U. S. And Britain Agree On Modifying India's Proposal For Reaching Korean Truce

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) —The United States and Britain were in agreement today on modifications to make India's compromise Korean peace plan acceptable to the West.

The modifications were put forward in the United Nations Main Political Committee Thursday by Britain's Anthony Eden and quickly endorsed informally by American sources.

But there were no indications that V. K. Krishna Menon, the Indian who sponsored the compromise originally, would accept amendments.

And while there were indications the Communist bloc might vote for the compromise plan as it now stands, many observers considered it likely the Soviet group would reject it if the General Assembly decided to amend the original proposal.

The gist of the Indian plan was this: A commission comprising Poland, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Switzerland — with another power "umpiring" deadlocks —would free all Korean war prisoners in demilitarized zones. Those desiring repatriation would get it. Those resisting it would be sheltered and fed for 90 days, whereafter their fate would be decided by a top-level Far Eastern political conference provided for in the tentative agreement reached at Panmunjom.

Eden suggested these changes:

1. The "umpire" should be made a permanent member of the repatriation commission instead of being called on only to solve deadlocks when they arise. The fifth member presumably would be chosen by the General Assembly at the same time it approves the appointment of the other four.

The predominant Western majority of the Assembly would be likely to give the West the voting edge in the commission, observers reasoned. At worst, from the Western viewpoint, the fifth power would be none more unfriendly to the West than India.

2. Instead of referring the ultimate fate of the recalcitrant prisoners to a political conference, where the endless debate on their disposition could be expected to resume indefinitely, either the U.N. Korean Reconstruction Agency (UNKRA) or a specially-appointed resettlement commission should handle those who refused to go home.

The appointment of an out-and-out pro-Western power to be "umpire" in the repatriation commission was almost sure to draw Communist opposition. So was any move to refer the resettlement issue to UNKRA, which the Soviet bloc has boycotted since its inception.

New FEPC Bill Ready For First Day Of Congress

Sen. Humphrey To Submit Bill On Opening Day; Cites Gains By Negroes

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) said today he will submit a fair employment bill to the new Congress on its opening day, Jan. 3.

He made the statement after releasing a report on the employment and economic status of the nation's 15,500,000 Negroes. The report, prepared by a Senate Labor subcommittee staff, said Negroes are "less well off" than white citizens in terms of income, employment, education and length of life.

It added, however, that "in almost every characteristic, the differences between the two groups have narrowed in recent years."

"The evidence is clear," Humphrey commented, "that legislation by Congress is in order to provide equal opportunity in employment, adequate housing, fuller education and improved health facilities for all Americans."

He said the new anti-discrimination bill will be identical to one sponsored by 17 Democratic and Republican senators late in the last session. The senate took no action upon it.

Southern Democratic filibusters have killed all previous attempts to push fair employment legislation through the Senate. The so-called "FEPC" has been the part of President Truman's "civil rights" program that has aroused the sharpest Southern opposition.

Southern senators have said they would have no objection to creating a fair employment practices commission, provided it was purely advisory, and could not compel employers to hire anyone. Past FEPC bills would have armed the proposed commission with such compulsory powers.

The new bill attempts to compromise the compulsion issue.

It would set up a "federal equality of opportunity in employment commission" to investigate complaints of racial or religious discrimination against workers. The commission could issue orders to stop discrimination if a case couldn't be settled by conciliation or persuasion. The orders would be subject to court review if either party to the dispute appealed.

The bill would apply only to firms employing 50 or more workers and engaged in interstate commerce.

The staff report said income of Negro families averaged $1,869 a year, 54 per cent of the average for white families, in 1950. The differential was less in urban than rural areas.

The report made these other comparisons:

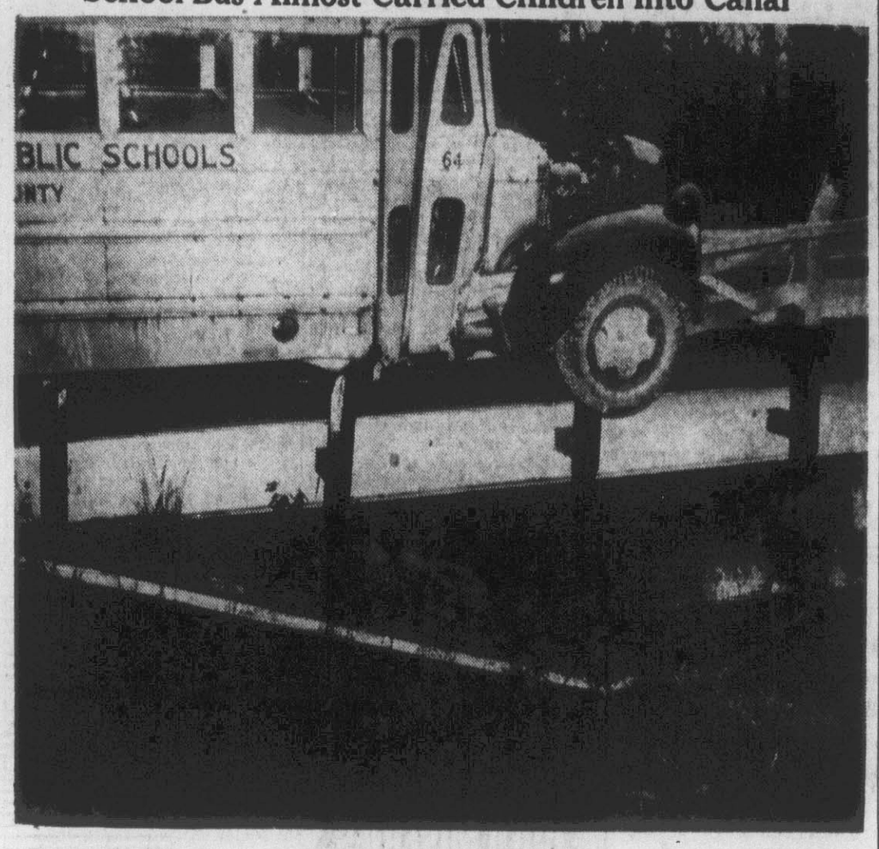
The average schooling of Negro adults in 1950 was seven years, almost three years less than the average for whites.

The Negro death rate was 12.6 per 1,000 population in 1949, compared with 8.4 for whites.

The life expectancy for Negroes is several years less than for whites, although this difference has "narrowed" in recent years.

The report noted a marked increase in the percentage of Negro children in school in the last decade.

School Bus Almost Carried Children Into Canal



SCHOOL BUS CRASH—36 Pitt school children were riding the school bus (above) this morning when it crashed into a bridge railing two miles south of Grimesland. No injuries were reported in the accident. A portion of the railing is shown (right center) where it tore into the lower body section of the bus. A few feet farther, officers said, and the bus would have turned over in the canal under the bridge. (Reflector photo by C. L. Perkins, Jr.)

Tragedy Missed By 3 Feet As School Bus Hits Bridge

The photo above shows the ripped section of the interior of the bus where the bridge railing smashed through the front right hand side of the bus. Sixteen feet of the bridge railing jammed into the bus, and another six feet of the railing in front of the bus was smashed.

Thirty-Six Pitt Children Unhurt When Bus Crashes Into Bridge Railing; Almost Nosed Into Canal; Driver Charged, Says Children Distracted Her

GRIMESLAND — Thirty-six Pitt County school children escaped serious injury and possible death this morning when their school bus crashed into a bridge two miles south of Grimesland.

Highway patrolmen investigating the accident reported none of the school children on the bus were injured even slightly. But Cpl. Carl Whitfield looked at the bus hanging precariously on the edge of the bridge and commented, "If the bus had gone three feet farther it would have turned over in the canal and made the Nash school bus wreck look tame." He had reference to the accident in Nash County several months ago in which a number of school children lost their lives.

The accident occurred at 8:45 this morning when the bus was carrying 36 Negro children of the Grimesland-Black Jack area to the Pitt County Training School.

Officers quoted Mamie Ruth Leary, 17-year-old Negro girl who was driving the bus, as saying she looked into the rear view mirror of the bus because of a disturbance among the children in the rear of the bus, and when she looked up, she was crashing into the bridge railing.

The young bus driver was charged by Investigating Officers Whitfield and Jim Davis with careless and wreckless driving, and her school bus drivers license was immediately ordered revoked by the highway patrolmen.

Measurements showed the school bus left the paved highway and traveled 76 feet nine inches on the right shoulder of the road before crashing into the bridge railing.

Approximately 22 feet of the wooden bridge railing was smashed by the impact. The railing of the bridge tore almost 16 feet into the

Ike Keeps Busy With Callers

Heavy Schedule Maintained In Talks With Numerous Officials, Visitors

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower worked his way through a heavy schedule of callers today in a foretaste of the burdens of public office. He talked with:

BULLETIN

NEW YORK (UP)—President-elect Eisenhower today appointed two more members of his cabinet. They are George M. Humphreys of Cleveland, O., as secretary of treasury and Herbert Brownell Jr. of New York as attorney general.

Eisenhower also announced that he would name Harold E. Stassen, long-time contender for the Republican presidential nomination, as director of the Mutual Security Agency, succeeding W. Averell Harriman.

1. Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, his liaison man in Washington with the fading Democratic administration, who said "there is still a lot to do" in the Republican examination of various executive branches of the federal government.

2. George Meany, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, who said he had a "nice pleasant talk." The AFL-supported Eisenhower's Democratic opponent, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson. Reporters surmised that Meany came bearing the olive branch of peace.

3. Claude Vardaman, chairman of the Alabama State Central Republican Committee, who said they discussed the importance of building up the two-party system in the South

4. Sen. William Knowland of California who said he had "no comment whatever on that" when he was asked if he is going to be leader of the senate in the 83rd congress.

Meanwhile Eisenhower appeared to be hastening his plans to leave for Korea.

He announced three cabinet appointments yesterday, two of them for offices that deal directly with the Korean problem.

They were John Foster Dulles, veteran foreign policy adviser, for secretary of state, and Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors, for secretary of defense.

Oregon's Gov. Douglas McKay was named for secretary of the interior.

At the same time, Eisenhower's office and the Department of Defense announced there will be no news report about his Korean trip while he is outside the United States—and only one news writer will go with him.

His press secretary, James C. Hagerty, told correspondents here yesterday that three news media representatives will be taken on the trip, a correspondent, a "still" photographer, and a newsreel cameraman.

Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett announced earlier that no news reports of the President-elect's activities will be cleared through the Korean Theater of Operations until after he leaves Korea.

Former Top Band Leader Is Dead

NEEDHAM, Mass. (AP)—Mal Hallett, 59, one of the top dance band leaders in the country in the twenties and early thirties, died last night in Glover Hospital of a cerebral hemorrage.

He was one of the first leaders to take his band on extensive tours and was rated with Ted Lewis, Paul Whiteman, Ben Bernie and Vincent Lopez in the late twenties.

HEAVY SNOW FALL

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Snow struck hard in a number of counties northeast of Asheville early today but only flurries fell on the city and surrounding area.

Rockets, Artillery Block Red Assaults

Chinese 'Mechanical Monsters' Chased From Battlefield; Another Russian Jet Downed; Fighter-Bombers Raid Enemy

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — United Nations rockets and artillery chased four Chinese "mechanical monsters" off the battlefield today and hurled back a new series of Red attacks on Sniper Ridge.

The Chinese called in four armored tank-like vehicles to saturate Republic of Korea defenses on the vital central front height with multiple machine gun fire.

But Allied artillery got the monsters in range and forced the Reds to retreat with their strange machines to towering Mount Papa, 2 1-2 miles northeast of Sniper Ridge.

The large armored vehicles which appeared for the first time on the Kumhwa front were believed to be similar to the "flak wagons" used by the Germans in World War II.

Front reports said the vehicles were tracked and carried a large number of machine guns and possibly a small 57-millimeter high velocity fire cannon.

The front line reports were based on night observations when the vehicles could not be clearly seen. However, they indicated that the strange Red weapon might be comparable to the American half tracks which mount machine guns and small-bore cannon.

In the air, 1st Lt. Richard B. Smith Jr. of Medford, Ore., shot down a Russian-built MIG-15 to raise the total on the Far East Air Force scoreboard to 503 MIGs destroyed in the Korean war. He also reported shooting down a MIG yesterday but the claim was not yet verified.

Thunder jets ranged deep into North Korea, hitting a military headquarters and billeting area northwest of Pukchin and a troop concentration north of Yonan.

Red raiders, attacking in the Imjim River sector of the western front, drove U. N. troops from two outposts during the night. However, the Communists fell back from one of the positions early today and U. N. troops reoccupied it without a fight.

Elements of a Chinese battalion were committed in the attacks on Pinpoint Hill and Rocky Point, key defensive positions on Sniper Ridge. The attacks were the heaviest in four days against the vital positions guarding the Kumhwa-Chorwon invasion route to Seoul.

U. N. troops hurled one of the heaviest rocket barrages of the Korean war when 300 howling Chinese struck in waves at Sniper. Rocket launchers fired more than 800 rockets, which exploded in the air and on contact with the ground.

Hundreds of Reds were believed killed or wounded by the deadly fragments.

To the west, Chinese assault units attacked U. N. positions fronting Jane Russell Hill on Triangle Hill mass. The Reds drove to South Korean bunkers where they were engaged in hand to hand fighting before being driven off.

Truman Budget Already Reduced

About $5 Billion Less Now Than Estimate Of 2 Weeks Ago

WASHINGTON (UP)— President Truman's budget for the next fiscal year has been pared within the last two weeks to a figure in the neighborhood of $80,000,000,000, reliable sources disclosed today.

That is about $5,000,000,000 less than the fiscal 1954 budget was expected to total on the basis of preliminary estimates earlier this month.

Informants said the lower figure reflects a slowdown in defense spending, which constitutes by far the biggest item in the budget.

Mr. Truman will submit the budget to Congress next January, just a few days before he surrenders his office to President-elect Eisenhower. Eisenhower will be free to revise the spending requests as he sees fit by sending supplemental messages to Congress.

Earlier estimates that the Truman budget would run close to $85,000,000,000 prompted Republican leaders of Congress to predict that any such request would be slashed by up to $15,000,000,000.

Mr. Truman replied Thursday by telling his news conference that he will send a tight, honest budget to the lawmakers as, he said, he always has done. He predicted that the GOP-led 83rd Congress will find itself unable to make any major cuts in his spending proposals.

Informants who quoted the $85,000,000,000 figure earlier this month emphasized at that time that the budget well be substantially revised. The same precaution applies to the new $80,000,000,000 total.

Still to come is the "supreme council" meeting, where the President, his council of economic advisers and top mobilization and defense officials get together to nail down the facts and figures.

The key to the revised budget outlook is the defense program. Defense spending has been scheduled to reach a peak by next June 30, and to continue at that peak level for the better part of a year.

But it now appears the goal will not be reached until a few months of the new fiscal year have passed. This delay in the defense buildup means a like delay in "peak" spending, and smaller expenditures in the meantime.

Chapman Pleased With Successor

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—Oscar L. Chapman, secretary of interior, says he is "quite pleased" with the appointment of Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon to succeed him in President - elect Eisenhower's cabinet.

He said it would not be in "good taste" for him to comment further on Eisenhower's appointment at this time.

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (UP) — AFL President William Green died at his home at Coshocton, O., AFL headquarters announced this afternoon.

First reports the union president was seriously ill were made known earlier today.

Relatives would not disclose then, or discuss the nature of his illness, but it was understood he had a "heart condition." An elevator was installed in his home some two weeks ago to aid him in going from one level of the house to the other.

Green has been president of the AFL since 1924, when he succeeded the late Samuel Gompers, one of the founders and first president of the federation.

Dulles Asks FBI For Investigation

Wants Past Probed To Prevent Any Taint Of Suspicion

NEW YORK (UP)—John Foster Dulles, picked yesterday as secretary of state in the Eisenhower cabinet, announced today that "there is going to be no taint of suspicion about the new State Department."

The secretary - designate made the announcement in a press conference at Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters.

"The first thing I did this morning was to speak on the phone to Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI," Dulles said.

"I asked him to put his best men to work to investigate my life record and to report to General Eisenho er.

"There is going to be no taint of suspicion about the new State Department. That goes for the top, for the bottom, and for all between. That's all."

Dulles is on record with expression of a firm belief that Eisenhower can end the war in Korea, and he's now in the No. 1 position to make that belief come true.

Says Eisenhower Conceived His Trip To Korea

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kans.) said today Dwight D. Eisenhower personally conceived the idea of visiting the Korean battlefront about a month before he made it a campaign promise.

Carlson, a close friend and adviser of the president-elect, told a reporter that Eisenhower has been "wronged" by Democratic charges that the forthcoming Korean trip originated in the brain of a "ghost-writer on loan from a slick magazine."

The New York Times reported on Oct. 29 that Emmett J. Hughes, a senior editor of Life Magazine then serving as an Eisenhower speech writer, had "produced the idea" of the Korean trip. The article said Hughes wrote the promise into a speech draft and Eisenhower accepted it "immediately."

LIVING COST REPORT

WASHINGTON (UP) — The government's cost of living index rose a tenth of a point last month, but dips in two previous months automatically clipped a cent an hour from the pay checks of more than 1,000,000 auto workers.

Alger Hiss Is Eligible Today To Get Parole

WASHINGTON (UP)—Alger Hiss became eligible for parole today after serving one-third of his five-year prison sentence for perjury.

The former State Department official, who is now in Lewisburg, Pa., Federal Prison, already has applied for a parole. His case is pending before the Federal Parole Board.

Chairman George G. Killinger, who recently gave Hiss a hearing on his parole application in Lewisburg, told a reporter that he "hopes" the full five - member board will reach a decision on Hiss next week. But he said he could set no specific date for the ruling.

He explained that the minutes of his meeting with Hiss are just now beginning to come in from Lewisburg. These minutes must be examined by the four other members of the board before they can make a determination in the case.

Execution Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman today set the week of Jan. 12 for the execution of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, convicted atomic spies.

Last week the United States Supreme Court refused for a second time to rehear the case of the husband and wife prisoners.

They were convicted March 29, 1951 of passing atomic secrets to Russia, and for many months have been confined in the death house at Sing Sing prison.

In rejecting the Rosenberg appeal, the Supreme Court also denied a petition signed by 50,000 persons asking permission to file a brief arguing for a new trial.

Rosenberg, 34, and his wife, Ethel, 36, were sentenced to death last year, the first death sentences meted out by a civil court to civilians under the espionage act of 1917.

Relates Futile Effort To Avoid Being Rammed

NORFOLK, Va. (UP) — The skipper of a Navy transport testified he ordered three changes of course to avoid being rammed by a tanker with a cost of six lives in an Atlantic maneuver last week.

Lt. Cmdr. Arthur C. Jackson, commanding the attack transport USS Ruchamkin, yesterday told a Coast Guard board of inquiry he tracked the oncoming Texas Oil tanker SS Washington on a radar screen.

"I had every reason to believe the ship closing with me was one of the formation we were about to join," Jackson said. "I did not realize it was an unidentified ship until seconds before the actual impact."

Jackson said he changed course three times in an attempt to avoid the tanker and in a final command before the crash, ordered "full right rudder."

Protest Spain's UNESCO Entry

PARIS (AP)—More leading supporters of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) resigned today in protest against the admission of Spain to the 65-nation body and one official said, "It is impossible to say how far this will go."

Among those terminating their support of the organization was Prof. Henri Marrou a leading member of the French delegation to UNESCO, and a well-known Catholic scholar from the University of Paris.

Dulles Termed A 'Spy' By Czechs In Purge Hearing

VIENNA, Austria (UP) — John Foster Dulles, newly named secretary of state in American President-elect Eisenhower's cabinet, was named as a "notorious spy" in the indictment against 14 top Red Czechs accused of espionage and treason, it was revealed today. 6 6

The full indictment against the former top ranking Communist party and government members was received in Vienna today.

The trial, communism's biggest since the Moscow purges of the mid-1930's, was in its second day in Prague's Pankrac court.

Bedrich Geminder, once one of the Kremlin's top men in Red Czechoslovakia, pleaded guilty today to charges of treason and espionage.

He followed the former secretary-general of the Czech Communist party, Rudolf Slansky, who yesterday confessed to "crimes" ranging from treason and espionage to murder.

Former Foreign Minister Vladimir Clementis takes the stand this afternoon before the five-man "peoples court" probably to plead guilty to similar charges.

The full text of the indictment said the "band of conspirators headed by Slansky did their best to serve their imperialist masters such as the notorious spy John Foster Dulles."

Slansky was quoted in the indictment as saying that former U. S. Ambassador to Czechoslovakia Waurence A. Steinhardt asked him to deal directly with Dulles over properties owned by Czech refugees.

"Steinhardt's argument was that the Republicans are certain to win the next elections and Dulles would be secretary of state," Slansky said according to the indictment.

"He said it would help our cause if we got Dulles on the right side, the indictment said.

The Red indictment referred to the 1948 American presidential elections, since Steinhardt, who was killed in an airplane crash near Ottawa, Canada in 1950, was ambassador to Prague from June, 1945 to June, 1948.

Tentative Regulations Are Approved At Conference

Representatives from six merchant sassociations and chambers of commerce met last night in Greenville and set up a tentative set of rules and regulations governing advertising and solicitation.

The meeting held last night was called at the request of Charles McCullers, manager of the Kinston Chamber of Commerce. Representatives from several towns in the eastern part of the state were invited.

A copy of the tentative rules and regulations regarding advertising and solicitation will be mailed to all secretaries of merchants associations and chambers of commerce in the eastern part of the state.

The rules will be presented to the governing boards of the two bodies for adoption. The deadline for deciding upon the rules in December 15.

The meeting last night grew out of a meeting held in Greenville May 27, 1948, at which time a set of uniform rules regarding advertising and solicitation were recommended. Ten years ago, Greenville adopted an advertising and donation resolution through members of the Merchants Association to protect merchants from advertising which was not worthwhile.

Attending the meeting last night were: John Parramore of Wilson who presided; John Riddick of Goldsboro; Charles McCullers of Kinston; Ed Carroll of Mount Olive; and Willard Kyzer and Cora Powell of Greenville.

'Honest Abe' Figures In Arrest, Jailing Of Boy

Even though dead 87 years, Abranam Lincoln figured prominently in the arrest and jailing of a Pitt County youth last night on a charge of larceny.

The former president's likeness bore out mute testimony in 896 instances, because that is the exact number of one-cent pieces found in the pockets of Cecil Sterl Smith, formerly of La Grange.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson reported this morning the youth was found in a New Bern theater last night and arrested there by city police for the robbery of his uncle's home.

Young Smith, who gave his age as 16 but whose pockets divulged a draft registration card listing him as 18 years of age, had been roaming about the country until recently, the sheriff said.

For the past few weeks he had been living with his uncle, Clara Smith of Shelmerdine, and it was from there he fled yesterday afternoon carrying a box containing 896 pennies, six silver dollars and 50 cents in dimes and nickels.

According to Sheriff Tyson, Smith said he had spent approximately $6 of the money for some clothing and a haircut. "He evidently had been roaming all over the country, because he had employment cards from various cities in his pockets.

Smith was placed in jail on charge of larceny and his bond was set at $300.

Mrs. Moore Discusses Art At Clio Club

The Clio Book Club met Tuesday evening, at eight o'clock, with Miss Annie Shield Van Dyke at her home on East Fifth Street.

During a short business session, the club voted to buy a TB bond. The club president announced a study course to be given at the city library in the evenings on "Our American Heritage." This course is offered to thirty Greenville men and women. One Clio member will take the course.

The program chairman introduced Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, guest speaker, who gave a most enthusiastic and informative talk on the North Carolina State Art Society. Mrs. Moore traced the work of the State Art Society from its beginning twenty-six years ago (it celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary last year) to the present.

It now seems assured, Mrs. Moore said, that after many discouraging set-backs and a struggle for finances, the State will have one of the finest art museums in the South, and, apparently, one of the ten best in the country. She praised Robert Lee Humber for his untiring efforts, beginning with a talk to the Wautauga Club in Raleigh in 1942, to interest people in the State in an art museum and to get for the State gifts of money and paintings.

Among those who became interested were the late Robert Pfeiffer of Concord, founder of Pfeiffer Junior College; Dr. Frederick Hanes, of Duke; and finally the late Sam Kress, whose gift of a million dollar collection was matched in value by the North Carolina legislature's appropriation of a million dollars.

Since the Kress collection is largely of renaissance paintings, those to be purchased in the future will be for the most part Dutch, Flemish, Spanish, American and British. The collection which the State already has, Duer Wood Cuts, glass collection, and paintings are in the old State Highway building; the Kress collection will be brought when the State has a fireproof, air-conditioned building.

Following the program, Miss VanDyke served a delicious salad course, followed by dessert and coffee.

Mrs. E. W. Larkin and Mrs. Holly VanDyke were guests.

At the morning service Sunday the choir of the Christian Church will sing, "Bless the Lord, O Jerusalem" by Maunder and the pastor will preach on the theme, "The Finest of the Fine Arts."

At 6 o'clock Sunday evening the youth of the church will meet for the monthly supper fellowship session. This group will include the intermediate, high school C.Y.F., and also the Disciple Student Fellowship

Third Street PTA Votes Donations To Various Funds

The P. T. A. of the Third Street School met Wednesday afternoon, November 19, with Mrs. A. M. Andrews presiding.

The membership chairman announced that the P. T. A. now has a membership of 247 members.

A detailed report was given concerning the Halloween Festival, which was a success from the financial point of view as well as having provided wholesome entertainment for the children. A rising vote of thanks was given to the Ways and Means chairman, Mrs. Marvin Riddle, and her co-chairman, Mrs. Tom Andrews.

It was voted to donate $25 towards purchasing the dry kiln which is needed for the use of all the schools in conection with art studies.

It was also voted to donate $5.00 to the P. T. A. national building fund, and $5.00 to the Martin Memorial Fund.

The members decided to enter a float in the Christmas parade which is to be held December 6. Several volunteered to help decorate the float.

A very informative and helpful movie, "The Sixth Chair," was shown telling in a very forceful way how the P. T. A. can work with the schools to the advantage of the school children.

The grade count prize was won by Mrs. Studdert's first grade.

Junior Circle Of The King's Daughters

The Hortense Moye circle of the Junior King's Daughters met on Monday, November 7, at the home of Miss Ann Rooke.

The devotional was given by Ronita Respass, and it was followed by the Prayer of the Order. The secretary read the minutes and the treasurer called the roll and took up dues.

Members then discussed the Christmas project, which is the sending of small gifts to The King's Daughters Oklahoma Tuberculosis Hospital for Indian Girls. Mrs. Clara Shackell, advisor for the group, stressed the importance of sending a gift and bringing holiday joy to these Indian patients, many of whom are in the last stages of tuberculosis.

The program was given by Ann Jackson and dealt with the inspiration of the Pilgrims and the first Thanksgiving which was observed by them.

Refreshments were served and the meeting was adjourned. There were eight members present and $70 was collected in dues.

Guest Speaker To Eastern Star On Order Work

Mrs. Maude Baynor Foy, Past Grand Matron; Mrs. Dora Cayton, Mrs. Geneva Myers and Mrs. Louise Wells, Grand Representatives, and Mrs. Marise Conyers, editor of Tar Heel Star News, were distinguished guests at regular meeting of Greenville Chapter 149, Order of Eastern Star.

Mrs. Thelma Maxwell, Worthy Patron, presided over the meeting, which was one of the most interesting meetings held this year.

Following a routine business session the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Louise Wells, program chairman, who made a short talk on Thanksgiving and its meaning. She then introduced Mrs. Foy, one of the speakers for the evening. Mrs. Foy gave an excellent and most informative talk on The Landmarks of the Order, which she explained in detail, stating they were the guide and foundation of the Order. The time and thought given to the preparation of this talk was evidenced in the well taught lesson received by members.

Mrs. Wells next introduced Mrs. Conyers, editor of Tar Heel Star News. Mrs. Conyers' report on this paper and its set-up was concise and detailed. There are approximately 5,000 subscribers and the goal for the year is 7,500 subscribers. This N. C. paper goes to every state in the union and to many other countries. It is printed at Oxford Orphanage by boys who are being trained there as printers and they do a splendid job. She urged her listeners to subscribe to and read this Eastern Star publication, calling attention to the program corner, directory and many other special features.

A gift was presented to Mrs. Foy by Miss Laura Bell and to Mrs. Conyers by Mrs. Mildred Kennedy as a token of appreciation from the chapter.

Mr. Elbert Bennett sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd" and was accompanied by Mrs. Florence Scott.

Mrs. Maxwell read a Thanksgiving message from the Worthy Grand Matron and Patron and Grand Secretary.

It was reported that 40 members attended church in a group on Sunday, November 9th, and that nine members attended the District School of Instruction in Farmville. The flowers used to decorate the hall for the official visit of the Worthy Grand Matron were carried to shut-ins.

A social hour followed in the dining room. The table was attractively decorated, using Thanksgiving motif and delicious refreshments were served. Mrs. Eula Cannon was chairman of the hostess committee.

On Wednesday night, November 20, the Eastern Star prepared and served supper given for the Creasy K. Proctor Chapter, Order of DeMolay, U. D., sponsored by Greenville Lodge No. 284. The chapter was proud of this opportunity to be of service and extends its best wishes for a most successful chapter here. Mrs. Fenner Allen and Mrs. Lillie Dell Briley were cho-chairmen for this supper.

WANTED HIS PAY CUT

CHESTER, Va. (UP)—The county board was amazed to receive a request for a salary reduction. A county employe, B. J. Banks, 73, asked that his pay be cut from $105 a month to $75 so he would be eligible for social security payments. The board complied.

Miss Lambie Speaks Before Faculty Club

The Faculty Wives Club of East Carolina College held its regular monthly meeting November 18 at 8 p.m. in the Graham Building on the campus.

Seasonal flowers in tasteful colors decorated the room. President Mrs. H. A. Coleman presided.

The club contributed a sum of money to the United Nations International Emergency Children's Fund. The money will be used for the purchase of milk for undernourished children of member nations.

Mrs. James White introduced Miss Ruth Lambie, the speaker for the evening. Miss Lambie is currently associated with the Home Economics Department of East Carolina College.

During the past summer, Miss Lambie taught in Alaska, at the University of Alaska. During her stay in the Territory, she made movie camera shots in color of many of the interesting places which she visited. The movies were shown to the club members with Miss Lambie delivering an interesting commentary.

Refreshments of open face sandwiches, cookies and coffee were served.

Mrs. James Fleming and Mrs. Carl Adams were chairman and co-chairman of the November Hostess Committee.

Members of the Hostess Committee were: Mesdames P. C. Scott, Floyd Freeman Jr., Orval Phillips, J. K. Long, R. L. Boone, Theodore Eaton, Hall C. Coe and James White

Current Show At Art Gallery Closes Saturday

Now showing in the Community Art Gallery of the city library is an unusually varied exhibition of recent American paintings.

The seven artists represent a sample of traditional and modern styles, ranging from realism through impressionism and expresionism to abstraction.

Happily the two most accomplished of the exhibitors do not belong to the same stylistic camp. Samuel Brecher's work conveys his intimate feeling for rural and seaside themes, richly colored and traditional in idiom.

At the other pole from Brecher's lively but conservative work is the imaginatively abstract painting of William Saltzman.

The balance of the exhibition does not uniformly rise to the excellence of Brecher's and Saltzman's offerings, but does fill the stylistic gap between the two.

Tomorrow Saturday, November 22, is the closing date of the exhibition. The public is urged to visit the current show before it closes.

Paid Fine With Glued Pennies

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP)—William Britt, annoyed at receiving a parking ticket, paid the $1 fine with 107 pennies — fastened together with iron glue.

Police Chief Thomas W. Davis ordered Britt to take his copper mass back and pay up with 100 unfastened pennies.

"Incidentally, why did you turn in 107 pennies for the $1 fine," Davis asked.

"I was just testing the department's honesty," Britt explained.

Strength for the Day

SWORD SUSPENDED BY A HAIR

You say you are sorry for your sins. But are you? Have you repented, or only repined? There is a difference.

To repent means to change one's mind. The person who has truly repented has left his sin with the determination not to return to it again. We are all sorry when the consequences of our sins overtake us, but such sorrow is not repentance. In such cases we are sorry not for our sins but for ourselves. To repent means to take a new attitude toward sin. And it means not only a new attitude but a new set of actions. True repentance gives us a new philosophy of life and a changed way of living.

Repentance is a gift from God. All we can do is to get our hearts ready to receive that gift. But once the heart is ready, the gift is always given. God can be relied upon to do His part if we do ours.

The importance of repentance is all made plain in the Christian gospel. Jesus began his ministry by calling man to repentance. We live in an age which is singularly unrepentant. It considers that it has little of which it needs to repent. Watch out! When people talk that way, the sword of Damocles has started to swing.

An Unsuccessful Experiment Abandoned

When an experiment proves unsatisfactory it takes as much courage to abandon the experiment and admit it was unsuccessful as it does to launch the experiment in the first place.

That, we believe, is what has happened in the case of the office of assistant solicitor for Pitt County Superior Court.

It came to light Wednesday that W. J. Bundy, solicitor of the fifth judicial district, had requested the Pitt County Commissioners two weeks ago to discontinue the office of assistant solicitor effective December 31. In making the request Bundy said the office did not justify the expense which the county was paying for it.

Several months ago when Solicitor Bundy asked the County Commissioners to create the office under enabling legislation which was passed by the 1951 General Assembly, The Reflector voiced its opposition to the new office. The Reflector then, and now, did not feel that the work of criminal terms of Superior Court justified the hiring of an assistant to the solicitor in Pitt County.

We felt, and still feel, that the solicitor should be able to handle his Superior Court job without Pitt County reaching into its funds to supply him with an assistant.

The Reflector is encouraged by the fact that Bundy has come to the conclusion that Pitt County can save the $75 per month it has been spending for the assistant solicitor and still not have its court performance impaired.

When the office of assistant solicitor is abolished officially December 31, Pitt County will return to its position on a par with the six other counties in the fifth judicial district. None of the other counties in this district afford Bundy an assistant for criminal terms of Superior Court, and we feel it is proper that he should have no assistant in Pitt County.

To say the least it is encouraging to see a government experiment, even on a local level, which did not prove successful, discontinued after a reasonable trial rather than keeping the unsuccesful experiment going at the expense of the local taxpayers.

In far too many instances, once an office is created it remains indefinitely whether or not the taxpayers get their money's worth.

Action Which Deserves The Highest Praise

During his seven years in office President Truman has come under severe criticism from many sources. A great part of the criticism has been well founded, and as always some of the criticism was ill founded.

Unless we miss our guess, however, the closing months of Truman's administration will see the President grow in personal stature in the minds of hundreds of thousands of citizens across the nation who have taken a dim view of many of the activities of Truman since he ascended to the White House in 1945.

The reason for this sudden growth in prestige, after several years of decline in personal popularity, is the manner in which he has offered full cooperation with President-elect Eisenhower who will assume the responsibilities of Chief Executive in mid-January.

To be sure there has been no occupant of the White House in many years who has been more partisan-minded than Truman. In both words and actions President Truman has set before the people the theory that the Democrats could do no ill and the Republicans could do no good.

Yet, when the chips were down, and the votes counted the Democrats out of the White House and out of control of Congress, President Truman immediately offered full cooperation to Eisenhower in bringing the President-elect and those who will be his closest advisors up to the minute on affairs of state in this great nation.

Almost as soon as the results of the November 4 elections became apparent, President Truman was anxious almost to the point of impatience that Eisenhower send emissaries to Washington to begin learning the intricacies of the present governmental operations. Truman insisted that no time be lost in equipping the new Republican leaders with the background in current activities they will need to make the transition from Democratic to Republican rule as smooth as possible.

On many occasions The Reflector has taken issue with actions of President Truman, but his attitude of complete cooperation with his foremost political opponents during the past few weeks deserves the highest praise.

The attitude, we believe, will do a great deal to help President Truman regain in the eyes of the vast majority of the citizens of the United States some of the personal popularity loss he has suffered during the closing years of his term in the White House.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Former defense mobilizer Charles E. Wilson's formal proposal that the government reduce the public debt and cut taxes by selling its $7 billion public power system to private interests was rejected by President Truman because the latter feels that the Democratic Party is "committed to government ownership."

Wilson disclosed this radical sidelight on Truman's policies in a letter to the writer, who had asked him to elaborate on his idea for getting the government out of competition with private business and industry in this and other fields. It is probable that the plan will be pressed when the Republicans assume control of Congress in January.

DEBT REDUCTION—In a statement after he resigned his defense job here, the former head of General Electric advocated the eventual sale to private interests or to individuals of all Federal holdings, including tin, rubber, power and atomic plants, bridges, barge lines, etc. He figures that this would reduce the national debt by about $25 billion and raise several billion in new taxes annually.

"The general idea of lightening the government debt through disposition of certain power projects and other properties," wrote Wilson, "is by no means a new one.

"It was early in 1946, when the national debt was mounting dangerously, that I discussed the possibility, even at that time advancing the further idea of having those who were disposed to buy securities in the new companies, for private operation of previously owned government properties, pay for their securities in the new companies by turning in their government bonds.

"I think the idea was first advanced to Messrs. Truman, Vice-President Barkley, Secretary Snyder and Attorney General Clark, and possibly to a few other government officials.

DEMOCRATS COMMITTED—"Nothing came of the proposition because the President reminded me that his Party was committed to what he described as public ownership, meaning, of course, outright government ownership.

"I discussed the general proposition with the President a number of times since, but was unable to work up an enthusiasm for it."

Despite Truman's indifference, the Wilson suggestion has taken root to such an extent that reclamation commissioner Michael W. Straus, although a public power apostle, has recently discussed the possible sale of power projects to the state of California. There have also been proposals that Grand Coulee, Bonneville and TVA be taken over by states operating as regional public power authorities.

"As the government debt mounted," continues Wilson, "and when I became defense mobilizer, faced with some responsibility for debt increases, inflation and higher taxes, I renewed interest in the general program outlined above.

"An added incentive was the realization that the original concept of TVA as a water-power plant had been changed, since they had installed considerable steam power and contemplated vast expansion of additional steam power.

"Frankly I cannot conceive any good reason why the whole project should not be sold to a private company, and by 'private,' I mean one that would offer the securities to all Americans who desire the opportunity to invest.

BUY WITH SAVINGS BONDS—"In the public power field alone," estimates Wilson, "more than a billion dollars of United States Savings Bonds could be lopped off the Federal debt by the owners using them to purchase the new securities. (If sufficient people wished to invest, the amount would be far larger, of course—Ed. note.)

"I was not unmindful of the fact that the private operating company would be a big payer of national and state taxes, which is what I happen to think should be. The same thinking applies to many other projects, including the largest of the currently government-owned projects in California and the Northwest.

"I quite frankly admit that, in all consideration of my proposal, one of my principal points of interest was the ownership, by literally millions of people, in such an important field of power generations and distribution.

"We talk so much about adult education in the current economics of our country, but I have had and continue to have a feeling that one of the most potent and practical lessons would be to secure five to ten million shareholders in pioneering in typically American industries.

"It would give them a deeper sense of responsibility in and for our American economic system."

Name One Good Reason—

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

This is a question and answer session for all new parents. Wife Rachel and I have two children and should be experienced by this time, but the only honest statement we can make is that we have a problem with our new six-weeks-old son.

Please note that I said we have "a problem." With Nancy, now 26 months, we must have had 200 problems. That proves that we have made progress. With Don we only have one problem.

The question that we would like to have answered is: When a new child gets night and day mixed up, how do you make a correction? If you have not made a successful experiment, please do not attempt to answer the question. Because you have to be fully qualified to answer this one.

If you are cruel, and hold the child up in the air by his feet to keep him awake, then you are not qualified. We are definitely interested in keeping the child awake, but not by any cruel methods. We have seen nurses thump babies' feet to keep them awake, but frankly, we don't have time to sit around all day and thump feet. We wouldn't consider thumping cruel, but it simply takes too much time.

We have almost decided that there is no way to teach a six-weeks-old child the difference between night and day. Everybody we talk to says that new babies eventually learn the difference for themselves, but by no other method.

Therefore, we feel that it is a challenge to parents who have found an answer to the question. There is no doubt that there are some who have found an answer. And we want to know that answer.

Perhaps it's best that parents have problems in their undertaking. If they didn't, there would be so many people in the world that none of us could eat.

We have a piece of furniture that helps in the battle. It's a rocker that squeaks in the most rhythmical tune you ever heard. Several times in the process of rocking we have almost fallen out because the chair puts us to sleep.

And I thank you.

STATE—AID — In addition to the multi-million dollars spent by the State in operation of the public schools, construction and maintenance of highways, and state-aid participation in health and welfare programs, there are at least three other items of State aid to local governmental units. The assistance here is in the mechanics of collecting the taxes rather than discretionary apportionment of the funds by some top agency. The State collects directly from the taxpayers and sends back to counties and municipalities more than $10 million a year.

SOURCES — Almost half of the total comes from the one-half cent a gallon tax on gasoline collected by the State and sent back to cities and towns for use on the streets. Next largest item is the tax on intangible personal property, of which 80 per cent is sent back to local units. The third largest item is half the state-collected crown and special tax on beer and unfortified wines.

PURPOSES — The gasoline money is shared by some 390 cities and towns this year amounts to just under $5 million. It can be used only for street construction, repair and maintenance. The intangible distribution is to 100 counties and some 400 municipalities and this year ran up to $3,382,299. It is distributed on a somewhat involved formula but when it reaches the local treasuries it is integrated into the general fund and can be spent at discretion of the local governing bodies, subject only to general laws prohibiting the expenditure of public moneys for private purposes. The beer and wine tax, amounting to $2,265,428 goes to 58 counties and municipalities within them, and 18 counties and towns in other counties, which have legalized the sale of beer and wine. That money also goes into the general fund of the local units for discretionary spending by local boards. Thus, the State of North Carolina collects and remits to the county and municipal subdivisions in excess of $10 million more than half of which has no strings attached with respect to purposes for which it can be used in the communities.

THANKSGIVING — Herbert F. Seawell Jr., variously known as "Bert" and "Chub", and by some optimistic supporters as "Governor" on account of his having been the Republican candidate for the office in the recent election, suggests an extra reason for thanksgiving this year. He remembers than 50-odd years ago the late Governor Aycock fervently thanked God for South Carolina, because it kept our State from being at the bottom of the education table. He says now both Governor Scott and Governor Umstead should thank God for the Atlantic Ocean, because "it kept North Carolina from being completely surrounded by Eisenhower."

NOT QUITE — When that wisecrack was quoted to Tom Walker, a member of Governor Scott's staff, he said it was pretty good and as accurate as might be expected from a Republican. But he pointed out it is not quite true. Virginia and Tennessee, representing almost two-thirds of the land borders of North Carolina, did go for Eisenhower. South Carolina was close, but not quite over the line into the Eisenhower column. And, what some eastern and mid-state folks are apt to overlook, for North Carolina counties border on Georgia—Cherokee, Clay, Macon and Jackson. So the record is that two adjoining states went for Eisenhower, while the other two kept North Carolina company with Stevenson. Tarheel Democrats claim that is a 50-50 ration-just like the man who claimed his rabbit meat and horse meat sandwiches were half-and-half—one horse and one rabbit.

OCEAN — There might have been more serious import in Seawell's reference to the Atlantic Ocean than appears on the surface. Emphasis has been placed throughout the controversy over Federal control of off-shore areas upon the petroleum reserves in California, Texas and Louisiana. The petroleum flurry in Eastern North Carolina did not produce oil, but this State has a tremendous stake in commercial fisheries and other off-coast marine resources. General Eisenhower advocated during his campaign that the States should retain title and control of these areas. Stevenson was committed to Federal control. Attorney General Harry McMullan and other staunch advocates of State's rights will not be sorry if the Eisenhower idea prevails with respect to the Atlantic Ocean.

POPULATION — The current issue of "We, the People," magazine published by the N. C. Citizens Association, has an interesting analysis of the Negro population trend in this state. The percentage of Negroes to total population has decreased from 38 per cent in 1880 to 25.8 per cent in 1950. This decline in Negro percentage has not been uniform during the past 10 years. Twenty-two counties show increased percentage since 1940, and two counties showed no change. Ten counties now have more than 50 per cent Negro population, with Northampton heading the list at 63.9 per cent. All ten of the predominately

What Other Papers Are Thinking

GOVERNORS ARE RIGHT
(Kinston Free Press)

The Southern Governors in session in New Orleans took a stand which The Free Press hopes they will not back away from in any respect.

According to a United Press dispatch: "Governors attending an annual regional conference decided they wanted no part of a 'fund raising' foundation to help support their joint educational program because it smacked of 'another sprawling bureaucracy.'"

There has been a consistent and persistent effort for the past score or more years to centralize power in Washington. Southern school systems are already threatened by the possibility of an adverse decision of the United States Supreme Court outlawing segregation in the elementary schools of the South. The government in Washington never participates in any joint undertaking with state or local governments that the undertaking is not wrapped up in red tape and bureaucracy giving the appointees of the federal government more than their share of authority.

A great many people in this country are obsessed with the idea that they are getting something for nothing when the government steps in and participates in building of a local auditorium, a stadium or what have you. They simply don't take into consideration that the taxpayers are paying their proportionate part. It so happens that the taxpayers in certain localities which haven't gotten their share of the improvements are paying for those in other localities.

The governors are eminently correct in their stand against any joint fund or foundation.

We agree with Governor Robert F. Kennon of Louisiana, who seconded the suggestion made by Governor Allan Shivers of Texas, saying: "Washington is willing to look after us but papa takes too much toll. We want to preserve our independence and sovereignty."

The motion of Governor Shivers seconded by Governor Kennon was unanimously passed by the 16 governors gathered for the conference.

Hurrah for this stand!

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

The veteran business consultant was in a relaxed mood and he was telling the things he usually gets $50 an hour for saying.

"I don't know how many times in the last twenty years I have seen a couple of young men quit their jobs and start an advertising agency," he said.

"A few of them have gone on to success and Madison Avenue. Most of them started with a few clients and then these slowly dribbled away until the young men folded their offices and went back to salary jobs.

"There were many contributing causes to both the success and the failures," he went on. "I don't pretend to know even half of them. But this I do know: In every firm that failed, the proprietors acted on the theory that the client was always right. If he wanted a certain theme, a certain kind of art, or a specific medium, he got it because he was the fellow who paid the bills.

"On the other hand, every firm that succeeded operated on the assumption that the proprietors knew what they were doing. They analyzed the problem, decided on the approach and then told the client what they were going to do. If the client insisted on some other line of action, he was invited to take his business to another agency. Some of them did. But most of them stayed and told their friends, "We have an agency that knows its business."

The consultant took another sip of his martini. "I don't know for sure -- I'm only guessing -- but I think you'll find the same pattern among publicity firms, engineering services, architects and designers and even doctors and lawyers."

"And in your own field?" someone asked.

"Well, no," he replied. 'We believe the client is always right--as long as he does just what we tell him to do."

WORLD AGREEMENT NEAR ON COLOR FASTNESS

Just how fast is fast may soon be determinable by the same measurements in most countries. The International Organization for Standardization has been working for years on international standards of color fastness of fabrics to water, water spotting, sea water, rubbing, acid spotting, carbonizing, peroxide bleaching, soda-boiling, chlorination, chrome and metals in dye baths and hyperchloride bleaching.

William D. Appel of the National Bureau of Standards, told the American Standards Association that international agreement has been reached on most of the principal phases of test procedures. When other points are agreed upon, the standards will be offered to each country for adoption.

MORE CASHEW NUTS BUT FEWER BRAZILS

Cashew are more plentiful; Brazil nuts scarcer.

This year's cashew production in India, the principal producing nation, is estimated by the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations at 63,300 short tons, 28 per cent above the average for the last five years.

Brazil nut production in Brazil is put at 18,700 short tons, the smallest crop since 1945 and 31 per cent below the five-year average.

COMMITTEE TO PROMOTE LARGE PLASTIC HOUSINGS

A group of large platic molders has been organized to promote the greater use of one-piece housings for television sets, refrigerators, furniture and other large items out of plastic. They will stress the facts that designs are limitless, that colors can go all the way through or be added to the surface, that plastics often reduce shipping weights without loss of strength, that they resist alcohol, greases and most chemicals, and that they have insulating properties.

The group is the Committee on Large Plastic Moldings and is sponsored by the Society of the Plastics Industry.

SEES NO INCREASE IN FOOD PRICES, UNLESS --

Continuation of food prices at present levels or possibly slightly lower were forecast by Paul S. Willis, president, at a meeting of the Grocery Manufacturers of America. He had one proviso: that we do not have continued increases in wages, transportation and taxes.

NEW PRODUCTS

STRIP: Flexible aluminum strips for Christmas lights, to allow homeowners to make their own outdoor lighting displays, are being introduced (by Miller Electric Co., 32 River St., Pawtucket, R.I.). In 2, 3 and 6-foot lengths, they are completely wired and assembled with interlocking ends and can be manipulated into any design. Aluminum nails can be driven through slotted sections, away from wires to prevent short-circuiting, to hold strips to mounting.

SPICER: A plastic device, which dispenses spices from six different chambers by a turn of its cap, is being marketed (by Spicer-Ette Co., 674 Van Ness Ave., San Francisco). It's 3½ inches high, made in red, yellow and white, and its cap is adjustable to sprinkle or pour.

BROADCASTER: A portable home broadcasting station to broadcast to any radio within 75 feet without connecting wires is being marketed (by Toys & Specialties Inc., 622 West Kinzie St., Chicago 10). Simple to operate, the set includes a high fidelity mike, vacuum tube, switch, tuner and 22½ and 1½ volt batteries.

FOLDS: A folding chair featuring a permanent tablet arm that folds flat is being introduced (by Clarin Mfg. Co., 4640 W. Harrison St., Chicago 44). Available in a range of frame and upholstery colors, the chair's flat folded depth is only 3 inches.

MAGNIFIES: An electrically lighted magnifier, said to magnify five times and to eliminate spherical and chromatic aberration and distortion, is being manufactured (by Bausch & Lomb Optical Co., Rochester, N.Y.). It may be battery operated or connected with any 110-volt power source.

ATOMIZER: A re-usable pocket-size "squeeze" bottle atomizer for nasal sprays and other medications is being distributed (by Spraz Co., 430 Commercial Square Cincinnati 2, Ohio).

SAW: A hacksaw, said to cut any depth and slip through small openings is being offered (by Alpha Tool & Supply Co., Westwood, N.J). When a lock screw is loosened, a plunger spring retracts the blade after each stroke.

NEW YORK (AP)—Many women have married a man because of his bankroll. But did any woman every marry a fellow solely because of his mustache.

Did she ever, crumpling shyly against his manly bosom, murmur:

"You yourself have an utterly resistible personality, my dear. But your mustache! Ah, I can fight against it no longer. It has swept me quite off my feet."

A boy, rubbing castor oil on his upper lip to stir the slow growth of the reluctant fuzz thereon, may daydream of such situations. But I have never heard in real life of a mustache with much romantic influence.

What is the actual social impact of the mustache?

This question arises because it appears that this form of male facial landscaping is getting more popular. It seems to me I see more and more mustaches around. I would like to believe this is only because there are more people in the world, as I like to look at the bright side of things.

I would hate to see mustaches become a badge of valor or a measure of achievement, as in a society in which that were true I would have to become a hermit.

Men grow mustaches for only three general reasons:

1. They have an inferiority complex.
2. To pay an election bet.
3. Curiosity.

The first of these reasons is the most widespread. And the average mustache carrier will admit it, if pressed.

"I grew mine to prove to myself that I could do something the other guys in my crowd hadn't done," one said. "It helped me overcome a lifelong feeling of inferiority, and gave me an immediate sense of security and personal victory."

The boy or man who wears a mustache out of curiosity or to pay an election bet he has lost soon finds the novelty wears thin, and off comes the mustache. The time and trouble it takes are no longer worth the effort.

But one who grows a mustache to cure himself of inferiority will never yield it until death. In case of fire he places its safety before that of women and children.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON--Changing administrations always provide happy house-hunting days for Washington real estate dealers. Now, after 20 years of more of less static occupancy, they're really rubbing their hands in the expectation that out-going, high-salaried, home-owning Democrats will be selling and incoming Republicans buying.

Especially in Georgetown and on Capitol Hill, they are busy remodeling houses in happy anticipation of eager buyers or renters.

Roxana B. Doran, who for the past 25 years had been dealing in real estate in Georgetown, still the town's "smartest address," tells me that more money has been spent per square foot in Georgetown than any place else in or around Washington. This has been at great profit to dealers who bought up old houses, some of them hardly habitable, gave them an inside bath, a coat of paint, some shutters and a brass knocker for quaintness to comply with the old Georgetown atmosphere. Many bought for less than the first note of a song, sold later at many times over their original cost.

Mrs. Doran, widow of the Capital's former Commissioner of Prohibition and Industrial Alcohol, herself has converted some 17 of these old houses, paying as little as $2,500 to $3,500 for houses now worth $30,000 or more. One gracious old mansion, bought for $18,500 a few years ago, resold at $30,000 and recently resold again at $75,000. Someone was offered a whole row of houses in the fashionable area about a dozen years ago for $15,000. Remodeled to look like the typical Georgetown house, today they are worth more than $29,000 each.

Many prominent Republicans as well as Democrats already live in Georgetown. Senator Robert A. Taft is one of them. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, former Attorney General Francis Biddle and the former U.S. minister to Norway, Daisy Harriman, are among the leading Democrats in the section.

Jesus' Thanksgiving -- and Ours

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 11.

When John the Baptist, confined in prison because he had criticized Herod's licentious way of living, heard about Jesus' works, he sent two men to ask Christ if He was indeed the Messiah.

Jesus answered the messengers: "Go and show John again those things which ye do see and hear—the blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the deaf hear, the dead are raised up."

When the two men had left, Jesus said to the multitudes, "Verily I say unto you, among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist."

Jesus' Thanksgiving prayer began: "I thank Thee, O Father, because Thou hast hid these things from the wise and revealed them unto babes."

MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 126:3.

Jesus' Thanksgiving---and Ours

HE THANKED GOD THAT THE HUMBLE ACCEPTED HIS TRUTH

Scripture—Matthew 11.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

WHY DO WE put people in prison? Because, of course, they have broken the laws of our land. They have been tried before a court before which testimony has been heard by the accused and the accusers. Occasionally there is what we call a "miscarriage of justice," and an innocent person may be condemned, but if so there is recourse to other tribunals before whom the innocence may be proven and the person released.

No person in free countries may be sent to prison by anyone in power without a fair trial. But in the case of John the Baptist it was different. In those days the ruler could clap a person in prison without a hearing before a court or "jury of his peers."

John had dared openly to criticize the ruler, Herod, for his licentious life, and the king had incarcerated him in a prison situated on the eastern side of the Dead Sea—as desolate and abandoned a spot as could be imagined.

John evidently was allowed to see some of his disciples, however, and he sent two of them to Jesus to ask a question which, in his solitude and inaction, had been worrying him: Was Jesus indeed the Christ as John had prophesied and preached, or should his people look for another?

This was a matter of great importance to John, of course, and it seems odd that doubts about Jesus' identity should have arisen in his mind, but he had much time to think and under the circumstances, who can blame him if doubts came. Other martyrs have suffered the same waverings while in his position.

The two men found Jesus and put the question:

"Art Thou He that should come, or do we look for another?"

Jesus did not give a direct answer. He said: "Go and show John again those things which ye do hear and see: The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached."

After the men had gone Jesus eulogized John the Baptist—more praise than He gave to any other person while He was on earth. John was not a man who lived softly or in luxury, He said. He was a prophet and more than a prophet.

"Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist."

Jesus then rebuked his generation. John the Baptist had led an ascetic life. He had spent his youth in the wilderness, eating simple, natural foods, dressed only in "raiment of camels hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins." But men said of him that he had a devil. Jesus ate with publicans and sinners, and it was said of Him that He was "a man gluttonous, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners."

Then he began to upbraid the cities wherein most of His mighty works were done—Chorazin, Bethsaida, Capernaum—because they had heard His wisdom, seen His power, and yet rejected Him. They were worse than Tyre, Sidon and Sodom. They, having seen Christ's works, would have repented and been saved.

What did our Lord have to be thankful for? This was His prayer of thanks:

"I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent and hast revealed them unto babes."

The learned, the so-called wise and the rich had opposed His teachings, but the ignorant, the poor, the sick and hopeless had known Him and worshiped Him.

We will close this most inadequate exposition of this lesson (which is all we have space for) with the exquisite and most comforting closing last words of this 11th chapter of Matthew:

"Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.

"Take my yoke upon you, and learn of Me: for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls.

"For my yoke is easy, and My burden is light."

How many million people all over the world have comforted themselves with this assurance when they have been borne down by grief, weary of their many burdens and almost in despair? With His help we can "find rest for our souls" in being "lowly and meek," as He was, and bearing our yokes as He bore His.

The Sport Reflector

By HERMAN HICKMAN
Reflector Sports Editor

Upsets, upsets, that's the doom of the football prognosticator. The unforeseeable elements such as one team being "up" for a game and another team remaining normal.

Who can tell when a football team will suddenly become inspired and rise to the heights and hurl back a favored foe?

I certainly can't, and apparently my royal helper, Solomon, ruler of the Order of Coleoptera, can't tell either.

Week before last was a disastrous week for picking football games and my little helper, who is allotted the fate of nominating which team shall win, failed to pick a single winner.

Solomon didn't show up last week but this week he returned and definitely went about picking upsets. I tried to restrain the little fellow but seeing that he was beyond help, I will therefore attempt to give some excuses for this week's choices.

Duke Vs. Carolina

Twice beaten Duke will move over to nearby Chapel Hill to take on oft-beaten Carolina.

If the ancient rivalry produces the type game it is famous for, a lot of fans are in for some top-grade football entertainment this Saturday.

According to the experts, figures, past scores, man for man comparison and any other way, Duke still ranks the favorite. Duke holds victories over teams such as S.M.U., Virginia, South Carolina, Wake Forest, Tennessee, N. C. State, and Washington and Lee. Carolina has been able to record only a single victory this year after suffering four straight setbacks.

Wake Forest and Virginia both defeated Carolina and Duke defeated both those clubs.

Duke started the season like a whirlwind but has been slowed to a slight breeze by injuries to key men like Red Smith, Bobby Burrows, and Jack Kistler. Duke has enjoyed a successful season but would still rather have this one over Carolina than any of the others.

Carolina has been defeated two years in succession by the Blue Devils and those losses give an added incentive to the Tar Heel players. Carolina has experienced a woeful season but following their win over highly rated South Carolina if they can follow up by defeating Duke's best team in years, they can save face and make the 1952 season a memorable one.

Don't forget that Carolina lost to some of the best teams in the country, and were playing from an unfamiliar formation all the time. Last week they gave signs of becoming adapted to the T-style.

Carolina has everything to gain by winning this game. So out with the record books and take the Tar Heels for an upset 21-14.

Wake Forest Vs. Furman

Furman startled the football experts by beginning the season with a 22-14 victory over West Virginia, but lack of reserve strength caught up with the Hurricanes and slowed them considerably.

Wake Forest has a big, fast line and capable performers in the backfield. Sonny George, Joe Koch, Jack Lewis and Co. should have little trouble downing Furman 27-7.

N. C. State Vs. William and Mary

When William and Mary came roaring back in the last half to score four touchdowns and all but upset Wake Forest, Coach Tom Rogers of Wake said he didn't believe he had seen a better set of backs on any team.

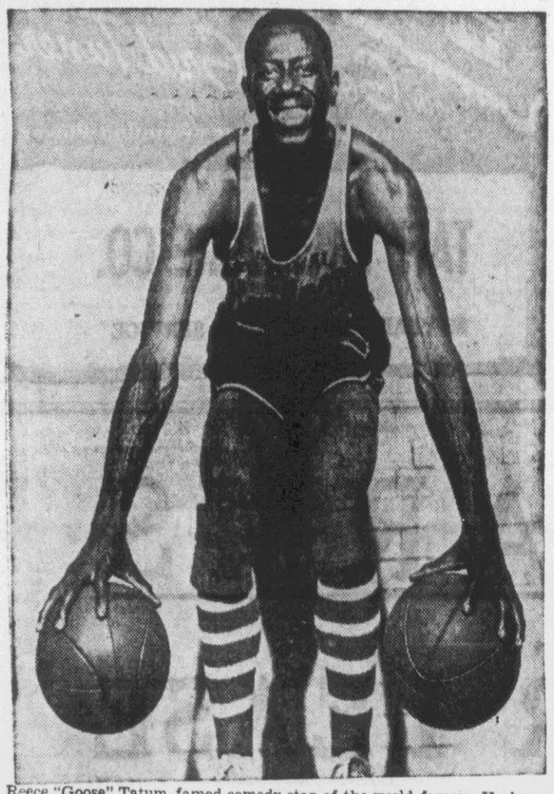
State was thumped soundly by Pitt last week but discovered a new passing star in Eddie Frantz. W.&M. by at least 27-13.

Davidson Vs. Citadel

Here comes another upset choice. Citadel is favored for this contest but Davidson has been making such progress and at times showing so much fight against larger teams that the time appears right for them to down the Cadets this time. Bill Dole's passing attack to win 20-12.

Catawba Vs. Tampa

Both these teams defeated Appalachian by narrow margins but Catawba seems to excel in getting by strong opponents to win with narrow margins. Catawba 14-7.



Reece "Goose" Tatum, famed comedy star of the world-famous Harlem Globetrotters, will appear in the William Neal Reynolds Coliseum at North Carolina State College Saturday night, November 22, at 8:30 o'clock.

Duke-Carolina Rivalry To Be Renewed This Saturday

Wake Forest Goes To South Car. For Tilt With Furman

Limping Wolfpack Travels To Virginia For William & Mary Game

CHAPEL HILL (UP) —North Carolina coaches worried today over the unusual number of injuries on the Tar Heel squad as final preparations were made for tomorrow's game with Duke.

However, Coach Carl Snavely said he feels his team's morale is good and predicted that the team will acquit itself with credit against the heavily-favored Blue Devils.

The Tar Heels worked out yesterday in a drizzling rain on a muddy field.

Wake Forest

WAKE FOREST (UP) —Wake Forest planned a final light workout today before boarding a train at Durham for the trip to Greenville, S. C. and tomorrow's game against Furman.

Coach Tom Rogers said star pass catcher Bob Ondilla and substitute flanker Lou Simmons will not make the trip.

The Deacons stayed indoors yesterday for a light dummy scrimmage and blackboard study.

Duke

DURHAM (UP) —Coach Bill Murray said today the only Duke squad member definitely unable to play in the annual classic with the University of North Carolina Saturday is guard Bobby Burrows, who suffered a broken leg against Georgia Tech.

A number of players were absent from drills yesterday because of afternoon classes. Coaches worked the defensive team on strategy to stop the attack the Tar Heels suddenly perfected against South Carolina last weekend for their first

N. C. State

RALEIGH (UP) —A 40-man squad of North Carolina State College left here by bus today for Williamsburg, Va. and an underdog role in tomorrow's game against powerful William and Mary.

Tackle J. C. Britt and guard Ed Mazgaj didn't make the trip because of leg injuries, but coaches said the Wolfpack team otherwise was in good shape for the game.

Bruins, Trojans Play For Crown

NEW YORK (UP) — Hour by hour, as excitement mounts in the city of Los Angeles, Saturday's Southern California-UCLA battle looks more and more like football's game of the year.

That's chiefly because there's more at stake in this one gridiron struggle than in any other single game played this season. To the winner goes the Pacific Coast Conference championship, the role of host team in the Rose Bowl, and possibly an unbeaten, untied season.

The game will lure the season's biggest crowd, 101,403, to Los Angeles Memorial Stadium. Fans in that city are calling it the "game of the century" and are paying scalpers as much as $50 for a ticket. What's more, the game will be nationally televised.

Joe Black, Harry Byrd Are Voted Rookies Of The Year

Orange Bowl To Pick Teams After Saturday Games

MIAMI, Fla (UP) —The Orange and Gator bowl committees are awaiting the outcome of Saturdays games before inviting any teams to play in their New Year's football classics.

The two Florida bowls came out second best in the competition to grab teams with the best records, mainly because they offer participants less cash than the Cotton and Sugar bowls.

The scramble for teams was more hurried this year since several former prospects, such as Oklahoma and Maryland, were prohibited from playing post season games by new conference rules.

The Orange Bowl here indicated it might announce a surprise selection in its efforts to line up an evenly - matched intersectional clash. But it was known the committee was considering Alabama, Pittsburgh, Syracuse, TCU and Florida.

The Florida Gators are also one of the prime prospects on tap for the Gator bowl in Jacksonville. They seemed a likely choice if they can live up to their favorite's role against Miami Saturday.

The Gator Bowl said it also is considering Villanova, Houston, Virginia, Tulsa and Syracuse. The committee meets Wednesday but probably won't issue any invitations until Saturday night.

"Not A Word"

That was Athletic Director N. M. Jorgensen's comment this morning when queried about the possibilities of East Carolina College's receipt of a formal invitation to a bowl game. Rumors which say that the Bucs have definitely been approached have been flying thick and fast for the last two weeks.

The Pirates finished up a 6-2-2 season last Saturday night with an impressive 34-7 win over West Virginia Tech. They have not been in uniform or had a practice session since that time but all their gear is being held ready on a moment's notice basis.

Members of the squad were treated to a barbecue supper last night at a local barbecue house. No mention was made at the supper about the possible bowl bids.

Paddy DeMarco To Return To Ring

NEW YORK (UP)—Lightweight Paddy DeMarco, 23-year-old "Billy Goat" from Brooklyn will launch his comeback campaign tonight in a television 10-rounder with Hawaiian Henry Davis at Madison Square Garden.

Dusky Davis, 28, will be making his New York debut.

DeMarco, who was ranked as top 135-pound contender early this year, lost his last two bouts on close decisions to Arthur King of Toronto and Orlando Zulueta of Cuba.

Dick Groat Receives Vote For Rookie Honors

NEW YORK (UP)—Joe Black of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Harry Byrd of the Philadelphia Athletics, two giant kid pitchers with the physique and determination of mules, were named the major league Rookies of the Year today.

Black, who won 15 games and saved 15 more while losing only four as the greatest relief pitcher in the history of the Dodgers, gained the National League award in a breeze. He got 19 out of the 24 baseball writers' votes.

But Byrd barely won out in the American in a close three-way battle. He received nine votes to eight for catcher Clint Courtney of the St. Louis Browns and seven for catcher Sammy White of the Boston Red Sox.

The only other National League players to receive votes were relief pitcher Hoyt Wilhelm of the Giants with three, and shortstop Dick Groat and third baseman Ed Mathews of the Braves with one apiece.

The Black-Byrd combination on rookies completed a resurgence in major league pitching this season. Hurlers won three of the four capital awards and just missed out on the other.

Pitcher Bobby Shantz of the Athletics previously won the A.L. Most Valuable Player Award, while outfielder Hank Sauer of the Cubs just barely nosed out Robin Roberts of the Phillies and Black in a hot three-way battle for the N.L. award.

In fact, Black came close to an unprecedented dual honor of being named both the Most Valuable Player and the Rookie of the Year. There were impressive statistics to back up his support, too. For the Dodgers simply could not have won the pennant without him.

He and Byrd started slowly and were at their peak down the stretch. Black set two Dodger club records for relief hurlers. He worked in 56 games, topping the old mark of 54 set by Les Webber in war-time 1943. He finished 41, erasing the mark of 37 set by the late Hugh Casey in 1947.

But it was in the month-by-month breakdown where he showed up the best.

New Basketball Style Introduced By Tulane Coach

NEW ORLEANS (UP) — Cliff Wells' basketball without a clock, an innovation designed to lessen the strain on the fans and to keep the sport clean, made its debut at Tulane University Thursday night and was pronounced "a big success."

The clock was only used in the Tulane inter-squad game to see how long the game would run. The entire game, which ended when a team scored 80 points, took 37 minutes and three seconds.

"It was a big success," Wells said. "The fans, visiting coaches and the players all seem to like the idea fine."

The game ended with the Tulane "Whites" on top of the Tulane "Greens," 80-61. The halftime score was 41-24.

Wells said last week he was going to try the clockless game to see if it wouldn't eliminate "freeze" tactics, and to prove also that it could diminish the possibility of a point spread on any game.

Candidates For ECC Basketball Still Reporting

Candidates for the East Carolina College basketball team yesterday continued preparations for their December 6 opener by going through an intensive review of their formations they will use this year.

Coach Howard Porter has about 25 candidates for the team but there are some players who have not yet reported. Included in the group which has not yet appeared is center Bobby Hodges, the scoring leader for the 1951-52 Bucs. Hodges, a 6-6 junior from Kinston, averaged 21.9 points last season. He was also a member of the All-North State Conference team.

Porter is expected to begin paring the squad next week and will more than likely have his traveling squad picked by the end of another week of practice.

Rookies Shine In Pro Football Loop

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—The brilliant play of most of the top rookie draft choices is one of the main reasons for the National Football League's tight division races.

Highly publicized college stars, who usually make up the bulk of the No. 1 choices, sometimes get their press clippings frayed during their first pro campaigns. But Hugh McElhenny of the San Francisco Forty-Niners, Ollie Matson of the Chicago Cardinals and Babe Parilli of the Green Bay Packers head a list of rookies who have made good this season.

McElhenny leads the league in touchdowns with eight and ranks third in the ball carrying race. His only bad day was against the New York Giants, who limited him to four yards. He also is a good pass receiver and has been lauded by such experienced coaches as Buck Shaw of the Forty-Niners, George Halas of the Chicago Bears and Steve Owen of the Giants.

Matson, a 200-pound football and track star from the University of San Francisco, probably is the fastest big man in the league. He is one of the scoring leaders with 42 points on seven touchdowns. His touchdowns represented the victory margin in two of the Cardinals' three victories.

Parilli, described by Green Bay Coach Gene Ronzani as "the best rookie quarterback to come into the league in a long time," ranks fifth in passing after being second last week. Ironically, he slipped in the rankings although his passing, play selection and faking brought both touchdowns in Green Bay's upset triumph over New York last Sunday.

McElhenny, Matson and Parilli probably have made the biggest first year splashes but such top draft choices as Bert Rechichar of the Cleveland Browns, end Bob Carey of the Los Angeles Rams, Frank Gifford of the Giants and fullback Ed Modzelewski of the Steelers also have made good showings.

Rechichar, Tennessee's 1951 team captain, has done one of the best jobs. He has become Cleveland's safety man, one of the most demanding posts on a club noted for its defensive skill. Even Coach Paul Brown says he's good.

Sunday's top game matches the Forty-Niners and Rams at Los Angeles. The Cardinals are at Pittsburgh, Dallas at Green Bay, New York at Washington, Philadelphia at Cleveland and the Bears entertain Detroit.

Little Leaguers Meet Monday At 4

The Little League playoff game scheduled for yesterday afternoon between the Red and Blue teams was called off because of inclement weather. The contest has been rescheduled for Monday afternoon at four o'clock.

Little League officials also announced that a practice session for the members of the Gold team would be held Monday afternoon. All members of that team are requested to be on time at the practice.

The Gold team will meet the winner of the Red-Blue game for the championship in a Thanksgiving Day contest. The Gold had previously eliminated the Whites from playoff competition.

All members of the White team are requested to turn in their uniforms Monday and, also, to attend a Little League meeting before the Monday afternoon game.

Chapter 13

There was some interest in the hard gray eyes now, but it was only interest and not acceptance Clay felt his hands clenched into fists, his jaw thrust forward in the final intensity of determination, his eyes dark slits that swept the mass of men before him. His voice swept up in a challenge, a challenge he was almost desperately afraid these men would not accept.

"But, by God, I can lead you to the Gulf! I can lead you to Morgan, and when we're through, there'll be no more Morgan and there'll be no more Regulators! I want men—and I want them now! You've growled and grumbled because you've been held here at Palmentera and you haven't had a chance to show what you can do. All right, by God here's your chance! Are you going with me to Velanto, or are you going to stay here until your saddles rot and your guns are too rusty to fire a charge?"

For an instant there was complete silence in the courtyard and he was sick with the awful despair of complete and irreparable failure. And then, like a wave rolling up on the shore, a ragged cheer began to gather momentum as it rolled through the uneven ranks. There were hats in the air and rifle shots blasting exultantly into the sky, and then the deep-bearded captain stepped forward and mounted the steps beside him. Without speaking to Clay, he turned to the howling mob and threw both arms above his head in a demand for silence.

Clay's eyes were tense upon him and his teeth gnawed on his lower lip until the hot blood trickled down his chin. He had won them over but he had not won this man, and now it would be touch and go as to which would prevail. Dimly, half-stunned by disappointment and anger, he heard the captain's bull voice rising above the tumult.

"Quiet! quiet! I've got a question to ask this man, an' I'm goin' to ask it, if I have to fight every man in this stockade!"

He had their respect and he had influence; that was plain enough, for the shouting gradually sank away and the men were quiet and curious again.

The captain swung around to face Clay and his eyes searched him from gray sombrero to polished boots.

"You said you were from Kentucky? What part might you be from? What county in Kentucky do you call home?"

Clay frowned down at him, surprised at the turn the question had taken, searching his mind for the purpose behind it. But there was no motive that he could find.

"Wayne County," he said slowly, and then, so that all men might hear the captain's question, he repeated his reply in a voice that carried to the farthest rank. "Wayne County! Wayne County, Kentucky!"

The captain nodded grimly, as if it were the reply he had expected.

"And was there a man in Wayne County some years ago called Bradley Todhunter Farrar?" he demanded.

Clay's head jerked up in amazement and his eyes bored into the bearded face before him.

"There was," he snapped truculently. "Bradley Todhunter Farrar was my father. And now you tell me what that is to you."

But the grimness was gone from the captain's face and the black beard was split by a smile as wide as a morning sunrise.

"I knew it!" he exulted. "I knew it the minute I clapped my eyes on you!"

He swung back to face the crowd.

"He's told you he's no soldier," he roared, "but his father was colonel of my brigade when we helped old Andy Jackson whip the British out of New Orleans in 1812! There never was a smarter soldier or a braver man than Colonel Brad Farrar. If this is his boy, I'm ready to follow him to hell an' back—an' th' rest of you can count on goin' along, too!"

Clay passed his hand over his face in a gesture of almost shattering relief. When he looked at it, he saw that the hand was wet with sweat and he realized that he had been holding his breath from the beginning to the end of the captain's speech.

If the courtyard had been bursting with noise before, it was sheer pandemonium now. Like a breaking ice jam, the men were breaking ranks and surging toward the veranda where Clay stood. They swarmed up the steps and he was almost engulfed by them. Harsh voices bellowed in his ears, one man pumped his hand and released it only to have it seized by an endless stream of newcomers. He was pounded on the back, cheered, offered innumerable flasks of whisky, and finally was borne back to the very doorway by the sheer weight of numbers. Released from harsh strain of doubt and uncertainty, he shouted with the best of them, pummeled gaunt frontiersmen as they pummeled him, and c changed abrazos with the hard-eyed vaqueros who swarmed about him.

Toni and Palmenter had retreated to the shelter of the hallway, but when the crowd fell back a little, Clay beckoned Toni to him and lifted her lightly to his shoulder so that they all might see her.

The shouting died away as abruptly as if a cone of silence had been pressed down upon it as the men stared, hungrily and unbelievingly, at this exotic miracle their commander had suddenly presented to them.

Clay looked around the circle, smiling a little at the wonder in their faces, holding the secret of her identity from them for an instant while they drank in her beauty. Then, in a tone that carried less than half a score of feet, he spoke her name:

"Toni Venita O'Neill."

They repeated the name, the words flowing back in ever widening circles until it reached the men who stood in the outermost ring.

"Toni O'Neill!"

"Miss Toni Venita, by God!"

There was no man there who did not know her story of violation and escape. There was no man, who hearing it, had not growled deep in his throat and sworn to bring a still more grisly vengenance to the Regulators. To them, she was symbol of Las Espinas, the living image of the cause for which they fought. And now she was here, lovely beyond compare, her head high with pride and her lips smiling down at them.

Smiling, Clay set her on her feet and hooked her arm through his as they began to move slowly forward through the shouting waves of warriors who were massed about them.

VA Disposing Of Unneeded Sites

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Veterans Administration said today it is turning over to the General Services Administration GSA for disposal 19 sites on which it had planned to build hospitals now dropped from the construction program.

An official told reporters the action was taken under a 1949 law providing for disposal of surplus property because Congress adjourned on July 7 without extending the life of the legislation under which construction of the hospitals was authorized.

Col. George E. Ijams of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who on Monday revealed he had protested to Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray, Jr. against disposal of any of the sites by the outgoing administration before the new administration coming into office Jan. 29 can set its policies, told reporters:

"No doubt the VA is perfectly correct that it has ample authority under law but this seems to me to be a glaring example of poor administrative judgement."

In 1946 the marriage rate in the United States was 16.4 per 1,000.

Gives Up After Three Failures

BAYTOWN, Tex. (UP) — Sam Alford stood in line all night in 1950 for a ticket to a local football game. His appendix had to be removed and he missed the game.

In 1951 he stood in the same place all night for a ticket but missed the game when his son had to be rushed to the hospital for an operation.

This year he tried again. Same line. Same wait, same result.

He missed the game again when his wife was rushed to the hospital for an operation.

"I give up," said Alford.

Hold Sales Girls In Store Thefts

NEW YORK (UP)—Five saleslgirls at a large department store here, ranging in age from 25 to 45, have been arrested for looting $16,000 in merchandise.

Among the many items the women slipped past a watchman at the employes' entrance was a complete home gymnasium.

Would Replace 'Archaic' System

RALEIGH (AP)—Motor Vehicles Commissioner L. R. Fisher wants the 1953 General Assembly to provide a state-wide system of traffic courts to replace what he tc ms an "archaic, crazy-quilt" system.

Fisher said yesterday the present system of handling traffic cases is out of date and lacks uniformity. He added the court system reduces the efficiency of the State Highway Patrol.

Fisher said he was not criticizing the court officials, but the system itself. Calling for uniformity, he pointed out as an example that a motorist cited in Iredell County faces court costs totaling $39 whereas in Mecklenburg the court costs are $9.

He proposed that every county have at least one traffic court. The governor would appoint the judges. The state would pay the salaries, and court costs and fines would go into the state's general fund.

A similar proposal was made in 1951 by Gov. Scott's Highway Safety Committee, but it was rejected by the Legislature.

Annual Negro HD Achievement Day Program Draws Increasing Turn-Out

By CHESTER WALSH

The annual Negro Home Demonstration Club's "achievement day" program, held at the armory here this week, was termed one of the best attended meeting held here in a long time.

"Interest in the various contests and projects was keener than usual," Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, Pitt county Negro Home Demonstration agent, stated. Mrs. Maggie Strong presided.

Rev. H.R. Reaves, principal of the Grifton Negro High School guest speaker, stressed the following points in his brief address: Improved farm homes, attractive surroundings, better diet in the farm families, and more attractive and practical clothing for all occasions. The speaker also emphasized the importance of thrift and industry on farms in farm homes. He urged greater use of the educational facilities now available; stronger support of churches and schools, and ample consideration of recreation as an important part in the daily life.

Mrs. Mamie Leary of the Calico Home Demonstration Club, was crowned "Mrs. Home Demonstration Club, for 1952" by Mrs. Ruby Carraway, Negro district home agent. Climaxing a summer camp and scholarship drive for funds, Mrs. Leary personally raised $55, and the total sum collected by her club was $70. The total sum collected in Pitt County was $201.65.

Perfect attendance pins were won by Mrs. Johnnie Williams, Mrs. Rebecca Chapman, Mrs. Mamie Leary, Mrs. Bettie Gay, Mrs. Sudie Mae Sharpe, Mrs. Nancy Chapman, Mrs. Ometa Allene, Mrs. Estelle Edwards, Mrs. Eula Baker, Mrs. Mamie Dupree, Mrs. Freddie Suggs, Miss Elizabeth Sharpe, Mrs. Lillian White and Mrs. Lillie Dudley.

The "Achievement Day" club attendance award was given to Pleasant Plane Home Demonstration Club for 1952. The Bruce club accepted the trophy for the other club.

The following Home Demonstration Club members won canning awards: Mrs. Maggie Strong, Mrs. Decie Pollard, Mrs. Ford Peaten, and Mrs. Feltta Tetterson.

Mrs. Carrie Hardy of the Lewis Home Demonstration Club won the deep freezing prize. Mrs. Estella Edwards won the fall garden prize.

The Pitt County Negro Home Demonstration Council, presented 12 robes for patients to Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Mrs. William Martin, supervisor of nurses, accepted the gift.

"Attendance at 'Achievement Day' exercises was gratifying, Mrs. Capehard stated. Seventeen Negro home demonstration clubs answered the roll call. Moye's Chapel, Pactolus and Bruce were not represented.

Mrs. M.T. Burney directed the Pleasant Plane Negro Home Demostration Club's singers in a musical program.

HD Agents Hold Three-Day Meet

BRICK, N. C.—The Negro Home Demonstration Agents' planning and training meeting convened here Wednesday for a three-day session.

Extension workers from the northeastern district of the state are participating. Mrs. Ruby C. Carraway, Negro district home demonstration agent, is presiding.

Topics being discussed include housing, food production and conservation, nutrition, horticulture, poultry, 4-H Club work, plant pathology, agronomy, dairying, agricultural engineering, animal husbandry, farm management and forestry.

Pitt County is well represented at the conference. Dennis D. Dupree and T. T. Talmadge, Negro farm demonstration agent and assistant agent, respectively; Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart and Mrs. Margaret H. Wade, home demonstration agent and assistant agent, respectively, were here.

Promoters of the training meeting report the largest attendance in years. The meeting closed this afternoon.

Nature was working for you...a billion years ago

Age-old natural gas—changed beyond recognition by the hand of science—is in nearly everything that's new today

Geologists tell us that centuries ago mountains rose and crumbled . . . oceans formed and disappeared . . . and great masses of plant and animal life were buried under layers of earth, rock, and water. Gradually, chemical reactions changed that buried matter into oil and natural gas.

IT IS IMPORTANT TO ALL OF US—Natural gas came into its own within the lifetime of many of us. Its great importance began when scientists learned to separate and use its parts. Out of this work in the field of petro-chemistry came "Prestone" anti-freeze, the all-winter type that took the worry out of cold weather driving. Then there are today's plastics. Some are so soft and pliable that they make beautiful, long-lasting curtains and drapes for your home. Others are so tough and enduring that they are used to protect the bottoms of ocean liners. Natural gas products are important ingredients in nearly all of them.

FROM ANTI-FREEZE TO FUEL—Wherever you turn, there's something that's been made better by the magic touch of chemistry. It brings you many of today's life-saving wonder drugs . . . man-made fibers for exciting new textiles . . . hundreds of useful chemicals . . . and also "Pyrofax" gas, the modern bottled gas for home, farm, and industry.

UCC AND CHEMISTRY—The people of Union Carbide pioneered in producing synthetic organic chemicals. Today, their plants turn out more than 350 of these versatile chemicals for industry to use in making the things that serve you so well.

FREE: Learn more about the interesting things you use every day. Write for illustrated booklet "Products and Processes" which tells how science and industry use the ALLOYS, CARBONS, CHEMICALS, GASES, and PLASTICS made by Union Carbide. Ask for booklet 1.

cab and lower body section of the school bus.

When the bus came to a stop the right front wheel was hanging over the canal a foot and a half over the bridge, and the rear wheels were on the shoulder of the road at the edge of the bridge. Officers said if the bus had traveled three feet farther it would have left the bridge and toppled into a canal approximately eight feet under the bridge, into five or six feet of water.

Leland Forlines, superintendent of transportation for Pitt County schools, quoted the driver of the bus as saying she was driving 18 miles per hour when the accident occurred. Forlines said the bus had a maximum speed of 20 to 22 miles per hour. There was no indication of mechanical failure in connection with the accident, he added.

The young driver who has been operating the schol bus for approximately six week was cited to answer charges in Pitt County Court December 2.

The front door of the school bus was jammed shut by the crash and the 36 children escaped through the rear door of the bus. A glass in the lower section of the front door of the bus was broken and the windshield in front of the driver's seat was cracked.

Negro counties are in the tobacco and peanut belt. Several of the big cotton counties lost percentage during the decade between 1940 and 1950 census counting, as did the highly industrialized centers such as Buncombe, Cabarrus, Gaston, Guilford, Mecklenburg, Rockingham and Rowan. The over-all drop for the decade was 1.7 per cent—down from 27.5 per cent to 25.8 per cent. Mecklenburg's 49,923 Negro residents topped the list for 25.3 per cent of the county total population, while Graham came at the bottom with 10 Negroes and a percentage of 0.14 per cent. Although with respect to percentage of total population some other counties ranked differently, it is believed that in percentage of increase in number of Negroes the 500 per cent scored by Graham—up from only two in 1940 to 10 in 1950—tops the list. Mitchell county listed 49 Negroes and Clay reported 66, the only three counties with fewer than 100. The biggest Negro counties in number, but not in percentage, were Mecklenburg with 49,923; Forsyth with 41,402, and Wake with 39,949.

SUMMARY — "We, the People" story summarizes the situation this way; 16 counties have less than 5 per cent Negro population; 11 counties have from 5 per cent to 10 per cent; 15 counties have from 10 per cent to 20 per cent; 13 counties have from 20 per cent to 30 per cent 16 counties have from 30 per cent to 40 per cent; 19 counties have from 40 per cent to 50 per cent, and 10 counties have over 50 per cent.

LAW MEN STUMPED

BRISTOL, Pa. (UP) — The sheriff's office here was thrown into mild confusion when it received divorce papers to be served on one of the town's citizens. The papers came from Mexico and were written partly in English, partly in Spanish. No one could be found to translate the Spanish.

Milk Production Quality Reviewed By Sanitarian

Quality Milk production was discussed last night by B. J. Jessup, milk sanitarian of the State Board of Health, at a meeting of milk producers from three counties at the local health department.

Of the 35 in attendance at the meeting two of the producers were from Martin County and Beaufort County, the rest representing dairy farms in Pitt.

Jessup stressed the importance of good housekeeping in dairy farms. "It does not take a lot of capital outlay to produce quality milk," stated the speaker, "but it takes healthy cows, water and elbow grease."

A movie carrying the same theme of Jessup's talk, "Quality Milk Production," was shown to the dairy farmers.

Those in attendance voted to have a meeting at least every two months to discuss dairy animal diseases, pastures, and artifical insemination in addition to dairy sanitation. W. M. Pate, head sanitarian at the Pitt County Health Department, said all of the dairymen showed enthusiasm over the interest of the local health department in milk production.

Attending the meeting were the following dairymen: Wilton Wilkerson of Pecan Grove Farm; A. R. Barnhill; K. O. Radford of Greenhill Dairy; T. H. Fleming; C. A. Forbes; H. F. Congleton; Dal Cox; Tom Forbes; Clint Galloway of Harvey's Dairy; Marshal Tatum of Carolina Dairies; Ernest Slack of Rodman's in Beaufort County; and Wallace James and Ervin James of Martin County.

Roscoe Barnhill; J. B. Webb and Ercell Webb of Carolina Dairies; Bill Coggins of Spain and Coggins; Herbert Randolph; E. K. Tucker; Norman Coward; Hassell Gurganus; and Elbert Tyson, Mrs. Elbert Tyson, and Flannagan Tyson.

Others attending the meet were Elmer Haddock, milk tester; Reginald Grey, county auditor; Dr Walter Humbert, director of the Pitt Health Department; and W. M. Pate and Lionel Evans, sanitarians.

Speedsters Get Lecture In Court

In Police Court today, Judge Charles H. Whedbee lectured two defendants who were charged with speeding motor vehicles on a public highway at 75 miles an hour.

William H. Hinson, 18, of near Kinston, and William J. Jackson of Ayden, were found guilty of speeding.

"Motorists who drive at the excessive rate of speed charged against you two are more dangerous than a man wielding a gun," the judge said.

He gave both men 60 days on the roads, sentences suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted, on condition that they turn over their driver's licenses to the clerk of Police Court for six months. The defendants paid their fines and surrendered their licenses.
