Soviet Munitions Sent Indo China

Large Cache Of Red Weapons, Including Soviet-Built Trucks And Ammunition, Found Deep Inside Indo China; May Reflect Decision On New War

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Discovery of a large cache of Red weapons—including Soviet-built trucks and ammunition—marks the opening of a new and "sinister" phase of the cold war in Southeast Asia, American officials reported today.

Experts said a raid by French Union forces near Phu Tho, 150 miles by road from Red China, had netted four "Molotov" 2 1/2-in. mortar shells made in Russia. This was the first time that Russian equipment had been found inside Indo-China.

Officials said the important discovery could reflect a decision by the Chinese Communists to enter the Indo-China arena of the cold war, but no one knows this for sure—yet. But they said it does mean that the Communists have decided military production to fight a war in Korea, control the China mainland, and have enough left over for use in Indo-China.

Details revealed today made it clear why Indo-China was one of the important problems raised by President Truman and his advisers at last Tuesday's White House world review with President-elect Eisenhower. The outgoing administration regards the situation as grave enough to portend important new decisions next year by the incoming administration.

The "Made in Moscow" trucks and ammunition were transported over 7,333 miles of railroad across Siberia and China—a trip that would take at least a month. The last 120-mile link in the railroad was completed a year ago and its southern terminal now is near the Indo-China border at Chen-Nau-Kuan. Thousands of tons of supplies are being unloaded there every week by the Communists.

From the end of the railroad line, Tonkinese coolies carry the supplies along mountain paths on their backs to the Communist dumps in Indo-China. The recent raid totaled 200 tons of munitions, three big recoilless cannon, 1,500,000 cartridges, and other good war equipment. What worries strategists here is that the important seizure may be only a small part of the Communist supplies.

Experts also see the new development in Indo-China as having threatening prospects for nearby countries. They said the weapons cache was seized just 400 miles from Burma and 350 miles from Thailand. The Communist strategy may be to try to link up with insurgent Reds fighting in those countries—a move that would touch off a large-scale war in Southeast Asia.

Until recently, the main Red supply dump was located at Thai Nguyen. French airplanes bombed deliveries to that area so effectively that the supplies now are being moved farther west to the Phu Tho area. The rougher terrain slows down the Red deliveries to the new center, but the coolies are harder to discover and destroy.

SUSPENDED CEILING
WASHINGTON (AP)—The government today suspended wholesale ceilings on pork products.

Holiday Plans
Following a tradition of many years, The Daily Reflector will not publish an edition Thanksgiving Day, Thursday.

Regular publication will be resumed Friday following the annual holiday.

Display advertisements for the Friday edition of The Daily Reflector must be in the hands of the advertising department of the newspaper not later than noon Wednesday in order to appear in Friday's paper. Classified advertisements for Friday's paper must be received by 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Decorations Set For Santa Parade Dec. 6

When Santa Claus arrives in Greenville December 6 to take part in the annual Santa parade, he will be greeted with new street decorations in full color.

This year painted mountain laurels and lights in the center strings will be plastic santa heads, reindeer, and other designs. Merchants in the city will have windows adorned with Christmas decorations and seasonal merchandise.

Accompanying Santa on his arrival will be the East Carolina College band, Greenville High School band, and the Epes High School band. Others have been invited to participate.

Closing Sales On Local Leaf Mart Conducted Today

Supervisor Of Sales Expects Heavier-Than-Usual Activity On Final Day

Today is the final day of sales on the Greenville Tobacco Market for the 1952 auction season.

W. L. Whedbee of Greenville, supervisor of sales on the local mart, intimated this morning today's sales will probably be heavier than usual because farmers are clearing their grading rooms.

Whedbee theorized the rainy weather last week may have hampered many farmers in getting the last of their crops to market and for that reason sales today will be larger than ordinarily is the case.

Sales this season are not up to figures for the local market last year, when farmers received a record amount of money for their tobacco. Last year, 74,419,452 pounds of tobacco were sold for $41,216,710.42, giving an average price per hundred pounds of $55.38.

That poundage figure tops any sale year in the 61-year period since the Greenville market was organized except 1939. In 1939, acreage controls were discontinued for one year and the local market sold more than 79,000,000 pounds of tobacco for $12,921,814, an average of $16.35.

The market remained open nearly a week longer this year than last, but neither poundage nor money figures of this year's sales are expected to equal last year's record. The 1952 season opened August 19, and closed November 24.

Last year the local market opened August 19 and closed November 19. Money paid out last year topped any previous year by more than $5,000,000, and the $55.38 average per hundred pounds was the highest in history.

Parole Is Denied To Alger Hiss
WASHINGTON (AP)—Alger Hiss today was denied a parole.

The U. S. Parole Board announced it had turned down the application of the former State Department official, now serving a five-year term for perjury.

Dr. George G. Killinger, board chairman who conducted a hearing on the Hiss petition at Lewisburg Penitentiary in Pennsylvania about 10 days ago, made this statement:

"In the matter of the application of parole for Alger Hiss, the Board of Parole, after a careful consideration of the official record, unanimously voted to deny the application."

The board is composed of five members. It acted on the basis of a report submitted by Killinger after his visit to Lewisburg.

Board members disclosed last week they had received more than 50,000 letters and telegrams expressing "pro and con" views on whether he should be paroled.

Hiss, now 48, has persistently denied that he was guilty of the crime charged to him.

He contends that he eventually will be vindicated.

Judge Parker To Assume Robes

RALEIGH (AP)—Superior Court Judge R. Hunt Parker of Roanoke Rapids will relinquish his post tomorrow and become a member of the State Supreme Court.

At 3 p.m. he will be sworn in as an associate justice to succeed Itomous Valentine, Judge Parker who won the Democratic nomination last May in a heated six-man race, will be the first of the officials elected Nov. 4 to take the oath of office.

Discrimination Lessened By Local, State Measures

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Senate Labor subcommittee staff report said today that state and local fair employment laws have "reduced discrimination and expanded opportunity" for Negroes and other minority groups.

The report was prepared by the National Security Resources Board and the Department of Labor at the request of subcommittee chairman Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.).

Humphrey, a persistent advocate of a federal fair employment law, said the survey "should do much to dispel the unreasonable reaction which anti-discrimination measures sometimes set off."

Humphrey plans to sponsor a bill in the new Congress to set up a federal fair employment practices commission with court-backed powers to halt discriminatory job practices. A similar measure was recommended by the Senate Labor

Weather Stymies Hunt For Missing Air Giant In Alaska

ELMENDORF AIR FORCE BASE, Alaska (UP)—Search crews stymied by bad weather, hoped today that a faint radio signal came from a big transport believed down with 82 servicemen in Alaska's "graveyard of air planes."

The Air Force C-124 Globemaster vanished Sunday while it was attempting to land through heavy fog and wind after a flight from Mc Chord Air Force Base, Wash. Search craft battled high winds and poor weather Sunday and returned to their bases Sunday night with negative results.

Sunday night the Air Force reported the Civil Aeronautics Administration station at Yakutat, Alaska, had picked up a distress signal on the 500 kilocycles band—the international SOS band.

No time was given on the pickup of the signal, which was so weak no bearing could be taken on it. The Air Force said the weakness of the signal could have been caused by the weather or could have been sent by a "Gibson Girl" hand-operated emergency transmitter carried on all planes.

A search armada of 24 planes stood by to fly over the search area by sunrise if weather permits. The forecast was for rain and no improvement in the poor visibility which hampered operations Sunday.

The ship was the third military aircraft to vanish in Alaska in less than three weeks. If all those aboard are lost, it would be the second worst disaster in the history of American military aviation.

Searchers concentrated on the area over Cape Hinchinbrook, about halfway between Middleton Island and Whittier, Alaska. The CAA station at Middleton said the plane was flying at 9,000 feet and reported "no trouble" at last contact.

That contact came as the C-124, the world's largest cargo-transport plane, winged through a dense fog over Middleton Island, 157 miles southeast of Anchorage.

Closest emergency landing fields were at Cordova, 70 miles to the northeast and Yakutat, 232 miles to the east, but the sky giant did not put in at either of those places.

The plane carried enough fuel to remain airborne until 6 a.m. e.s.t. Sunday. It was letting down through the turbulent "Southwest Passage" for its landing here. The jinxed passage is a precarious approach on which a plane must dodge 5,000 to 6,000-foot peaks

Acheson To Clarify U. S. Stand On India's Proposal

General Clark In Special Meet To Prepare For Ike

Confers With Top Commanders In Korea To Guard Eisenhower's Life

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—U. S. commander Gen Mark W. Clark met today with his top military commanders in Korea to set up fool-proof security measures to guard the life of President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Even as the meeting took place, Seoul underwent a half-hour blackout. It was the most thorough practice alert ever carried out in the shell-scarred South Korean capital.

Clark flew here today from his Tokyo headquarters. He said he will stay in Korea "a couple of days" to make arrangements for Eisenhower's visit.

Although there was no official word when Eisenhower would come, nor was there likely to be, speculation was rife in South Korea sources that it would be this week.

A few hours after his arrival, Clark closeted himself with Gen. James A. Van Fleet, 8th Army commander, and Van Fleet's staff officers. Lt. Gen. Glenn O. Barcus, 5th Air Force commander, joined them later.

In addition to security measures, the generals also prepared recommendations for the conduct of the Korean war.

The South Koreans looked forward to Eisenhower's visit with the keenest interest. President Syngman Rhee was in Seoul and did not plan to return to the temporary government capital at Pusan until after Eisenhower leaves.

For the last week or so, huge placards, banners and archways have been put up along Seoul's streets. Three large pictures of Eisenhower, copied from the front cover of an American magazine, went up today.

Mayor Kim Tai Sun ordered removed from the Capitol one sign which he thought went a little far. It said, "Give the communists hell, Ike."

Authoritative sources in Tokyo said Clark would not be on hand to greet Eisenhower HEN HE ARRIVES IN Korea. Clark said he last saw Eisenhower "just before he went to Europe to take over the NATO command."

There were reports the main conference site itself—which South Korean sources say will be Seoul—has not been mapped. Seoul presents a well-mapped and sprawling target, whose every building is known to the Communists.

The Air Force cannot exclude the remote possibility that the Reds would unleash their first A-bomb on Seoul if Eisenhower, America's top generals and defense-secretary designate Charles Wilson are assembled there.

Another danger is the bands of guerrillas believed to be hiding out in the hills near Seoul, and the groups of pro-Communist sympathizers living in Seoul itself.

Noted Scientist Doubts U. S. Has Perfected Bomb

WASHINGTON (UP)—Dr. Vannevar Bush doesn't believe the United States or Russia has perfected an H-bomb yet.

The noted scientist, who formerly headed the Armed Forces Research and Development Board and now is president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, was interviewed Sunday on the CBS television show, "Man of the Week."

He said he was taking at face value the Atomic Energy Commission's announcement last Sunday that H-bomb "experiments" were recently conducted at Eniwetok atoll in the Pacific.

He inferred from the AEC's use of the term "experiments" that more research remains to be done before an H-bomb is perfected.

Bush said he doesn't think the Russians have an H-bomb yet because they have trailed the United States in all atomic progress.

For Rent Ad Brings Fast, Heavy Response

Another result of the Classified advertising section comes from Mr. R. R. Forrest of 310 W. Boyd Ave., Greenville, Mr. Forrest had two new duplex apartments for rent. He ran a "For Rent" ad in The Daily Reflector for three days at a cost of $2.25.

Mr. Forrest said that he had about 20 calls on the two apartments and rented them right away to two of the interested readers.

May Speak This Afternoon Before United Nations; Despite Offered Revisions, Korea Truce Plan Said To Require More Changes To Be Acceptable To U. S.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson was scheduled to make the United States' position clear regarding an Indian compromise Korean peace proposal when he speaks in the United Nations political committee today.

American sources said Acheson definitely intended to speak at this afternoon's meeting. The only thing that could prevent the secretary's appearance on the rostrum, they said, would be the long list of speakers ahead of him.

Syria, Poland, Afghanistan, Chile and Burma all were ahead of the U. S. on the list.

Despite revisions offered by India to make its plan more acceptable to the West, informed sources said its most controversial provision, dealing with the ultimate disposition of prisoners who refuse repatriation, needed still further changes before it would be accepted.

The peace resolution sponsored by the U. S. and 20 other powers still held priority on the agenda of the political committee, and sources close to the Americans insisted there was no intention of yielding that priority to the Indian measure, despite a rift between Washington and London on that score. It was pointed out that the British co-sponsored the American resolution and were consulted closely in its drafting.

Other informed sources said, following a meeting of the 21 sponsoring powers last night, that the American-designed peace resolution might eventually be shelved in favor of a sharply-revised Indian proposal.

The main points of the new Indian version were:

1. Under the early version, the fate of POW's still refusing to go home 90 days after an armistice would be put before the East-West political conference tentatively agreed on at Panmunjom. The revision provides that the "neutral" repatriation commission that is to make recommendations to the political committee on the POW's would include a recommended "target date" for ending their detention.

If the political conference is unable to decide their fate in 60 days, the remaining POW's, would be removed from custody of the neutral repatriation commission and handed over to a U.N. group. The U.N. group would be responsible "for their care and maintenance" until the end of their detention.

A highly-informed informant said there was little doubt that, despite American reluctance, the Indian plan would be given "priority" over the American-inspired program in debate before the General Assembly's Main Political Committee.

That would be equivalent to putting the 21-nation plan on the shelf while the Indian plan was voted on and, if approved, sent to the Chinese and North Korean Reds for their reaction.

The Political Committee was to resume the Korean debate at 3 p.m. e.s.t.

Acheson was expected to underline the importance the U.S. attaches to spelling out in any resolution a solid assurance that prisoners refusing to go home would not be held in prisoner compounds indefinitely.

Such assurance still is not spelled out in the revised version of the Indian draft, although Menon gave such oral assurance to the committee last week.

Further oral assurances—as a prelude to an eventual armistice—are the main "clarification" the 21-nation group is seeking, an informant said, before accepting Britain's suggestion to give the Indian plan "priority" over the 21-nation resolution.

GOP 'Hatchet Man' Will Try Cut Defense Costs

Rep. Taber Declares Too Much Being Spent In Defense Department; Ridicules Reports Of Big Budget Planning

AUBURN, N. Y. (UP)—Rep. John A. Taber (R-N.Y.), probable "hatchet man" in a budget-chopping Republican Congress, said today the nation's defense spending could "readily" be cut and should not be increased "under any circumstances except war."

He described as "ridiculous" a $50,000,000,000 defense request which it has been reported may be included in President Truman's 1953-54 budget to be submitted to the new Congress.

Taber, who most likely will become chairman of the House Appropriations committee in January, issued a statement at his home here analyzing current spending in the Defense Department and four other government agencies. He thinks they are spending far too much money.

"The expenditures could readily be lower," he said. "They should not, under any circumstances except war, be higher."

The sharp-eyed fiscal expert, who headed the Appropriations Committee in the Republican 80th Congress, indicated the 83rd Congress would take a close look at every item in the new budget.

His statement was highly critical of current spending in the Defense, Agriculture and Interior departments and the Atomic Energy Commission and Mutual Security Administration. In the future, he said, he expects to "have the story" on spending by other departments and plans "to call attention to it from time to time."

Taber would not say what specific items he thought could be cut or whether he was for an immediate tax reduction.

"We are not proposing to go off half-cocked but to get at the facts, and as we get at the facts, to provide only for the needs of the government on an honest basis," he said.

He pointed out that in the first four months of the current fiscal year, expenditures for military purposes were $14,186,000,000 and at this rate they should not exceed $44,000,000,000 for the entire year since "they are not advancing month by month."

"The budget, as I understand it, is expecting to ask Congress for $55,000,000,000 and perhaps more for the next fiscal year for the Defense Department. This is obviously ridiculous," he said.

Congregation Plans Public Bible-Burning

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (UP)—A congregation of Independent Baptists plans to hold a public burning next Sunday of a newly published revised edition of the Bible because it uses "Your" instead of "Thou" and changes "virgin" to "young woman."

The Rev. M. Luther Hux, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church, said he will consult the fire department this week to find out if it would create a fire hazard to burn a copy of the Bible inside his church.

About 400 persons gathered for a protest meeting yesterday and denounced the new translation of the scriptures as a "deliberate" attack upon "the divinity of Christ" and the "virgin birth."

Dr. Luther A. Weigle, dean emeritus of the Yale University divinity school, who directed the preparation of the new translation, said at his New Haven, Conn., home that the Rocky Mount church-goers were upset only because "we have given the true meaning" to an old mistake.

Weigle said a team of 32 scholars, working from the original Hebrew of the Old Testament and the original Greek of the New Testament, found thousands of such errors in the popular King James version of the Bible.

He maintained, however, that he and his followers believe the new Bible "destroys faith in the divine inspiration of the scriptures and the essential deity of Jesus Christ

H. D. Agent Reviews Club Accomplishments

The Junior Woman's Club held its regular monthly meeting on November 19 at 8:00 P. M. with Mrs. Howard Grady, president, presiding.

A report was given on the Bake Sale which was held at Garris Grocery store on Saturday, November 9.

Members of the club voted in favor of purchasing a ten dollar Christmas Seal Bond. Junior members were also asked to provide a table of interesting and beautifully wrapped packages for the Garden Club Christmas program. The date for this will be announced later.

The president asked the committee for the Junior Woman's Club annual Christmas party to report at the next meeting on their plans. This report will be given at the December 3 meeting.

Following the business session the meeting was turned over to Miss Marian Perry, chairman of the program committee, she presented Mrs. Sue Brinkhouse May, Pitt County Home Demonstration agent, who gave a most interesting and informative talk on the work of the Home Demonstration clubs and the contributions which they are making to the rural American home.

Mrs. May discussed the purpose and aims of the Home Demonstration program, some of which are to bring scientific practices in home making to the rural home, to bring home making education to rural girls, to develop leadership among rural women, to build community life, to conserve natural beauty, and to promote happier home relationships.

Mrs. May brought to the attention of the group, with the help of charts, the year's program as accomplished by the Home Demonstration women of Pitt County. It was a report of a great deal of work well done.

In closing the speaker urged every woman to take count of her personal accomplishments for the year and to rededicate herself to the club and the principles for which it stands.

Following the program the group was served delicious refreshments by the hostesses, Mrs. James Davenport, Mrs. Charles Horne, Jr. and Mrs. M. W. Aldridge.

Play Presented By Pupils At Training School

Pupils of the Sixth grade, under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. D. M. Clark, presented a play at the PTA meeting of the Training School on last Wednesday afternoon.

The play, called "Miss Magician's Mistake," was presented with the help and cooperation of Ralph Rivers of the drama department of East Carolina College, who also wrote the last part of the production.

Those taking part in the play were Danny Pearson, Robert Taft, Jimmy Jenkins, Barbara Ship, Martha Tyler, Frances Allen, Ronny Cox, Linda Lee Jackson, Coleman Ruffin, Libby Keel, Catherine Moore, Katherine Raynor, Laura Lee Gurganus, Linda Joyner, James Earl Ward, Nat Van Nortwick, Joseph Puryear, Sally Ross Simpson, Merrill Bynum, Sue Ann Lupton, Grace Puryear, Sara Smiley, Elaine Weeks, Randolph Taylor, Jimmy Waters, Johnny Moore, Raymond Bullock, Sterling Jones, Ralph Sullivan, Jasper Tripp and Tommy Strickland.

For the devotion which opened the meeting, the Rev. Rashie Kennedy, minister of the Free Will Baptist Church, presided. Cecil Ellington, accompanied by Donald Roebuck, sang "The Lord's Prayer."

During the business meeting, the treasurer reported a balance of $600.16 in the treasury. The Ways and Means Committee chairman announced that a profit of $350 was made on the Halloween festival. The question was raised and discussed pertaining to the possibility of having a community carnival in cooperation with the other PTA's in the city next year. A committee was appointed to study the problems and advantages of these annual festivals and to investigate the feasibility of combining the celebrations in the future.

Mrs. Ray MacKenzie, chairman of the publications committee, suggested that neighbors subscribe in a group to the monthly magazine. Subscriptions are lagging behind the desired quota, and this suggestion was made in an effort to stimulate sales.

Miss Frances Wahl made an announcement concerning the March of Dimes drive to be carried out in the schools in January.

Registered Nurses' Club

The Greenville Registered Nurses' Club will meet Tuesday night, November 25 at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. S. B. Tucker. All registered nurses who are members and non-members are invited. Mrs. Alton Clapp will be assisting hostess.

Bridge and Canasta Tournament

The Greenville Service League is sponsoring another in its monthly bridge and canasta tournaments on next Tuesday afternoon, November 25.

The tournament will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Flanagan, beginning at 2:30 P. M. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Wesley Harvey at 2253.

The tournaments are to raise money for the Laughinghouse Bed Fund, the service project which is supported during the year at Pitt Memorial Hospital by the League.

Funeral Rites Held For A. J. Roberson

Mr. Andrew J. Roberson, 79, died Sunday morning at 6 o'clock at St. Luke's Hospital in New Bern after being ill for five days.

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the graveside at Pine Tree Cemetery near Askin. The Rev. B. F. Ringold, Free Will Baptist minister of Bridgeton, conducted the services.

Mr. Roberson was a native of Martin County and moved to the Askin Community about 50 years ago. He was a farmer. He was married to Sallie Purifoy in 1904, and she survives him. Also surviving are four sons: Chester W. and James R. Roberson of New Bern, Samuel J. Roberson of Panama City, Florida, and Woodrow R. Roberson of the home; a daughter, Miss Ester Bell Roberson of the home; one grandchild; two brothers, H. G. Roberson of Raleigh and Samuel R. Roberson of Rocky Mount, N. C.; and a sister, Mrs. Edith Phillips of Pollockville, N. C.

Mrs. Short Entertains Contract Bridge Club

GRIFTON—On Thursday night Mrs. J. W. Short was a gracious hostess when she had members of her contract club and invited players for four tables.

A color note of yellow was carried out with the use of yellow chrysanthemums and candles which were attractively placed throughout the rooms.

Prior to the bridge games a delectable supper plate with coffee was served at the card tables. Mrs. Thurman Williams received the high score for club members, while second high went to Mrs. L. L. Mewborn. The visitor's prize went to Mrs. Clay Burney.

Other players were Mrs. W. I. Bissette, Mrs. J. L. Quinley, Mrs. Alton Chapman, Mrs. Eleanor Gowder, Mrs. Richard Nelson, Mrs. J. S. Chapman, Mrs. Robert Mewborn, Mrs. H. P. Quinley, Mrs. J. L. Tucker, Mrs. Charlie Gardner, Miss Louise Mewborn, Miss Bertha Johnson and Miss Hazel Patrick.

Episcopal Auxiliary Has Benefit Bridge

GRIFTON—Members of the Episcopal Auxiliary entertained at a benefit bridge tournament on Wednesday night in the high school cafeteria.

Fifteen tables were placed for the bridge and canasta games. Each table was centered with a replica of the Red Cross Christmas Seal.

At the guests assembled they drew their tables and a dessert course with salted nuts and coffee was served. High score awards were made at each table, and the grand prize went to Mr. L. L. Mewborn, while Mr. Clifton Jackson was runner-up. Cup prizes at the tables were packages of margarine which were donated by Mr. C. D. Gardner. Canasta award went to Mr. and Mrs. Bumgartner.

Fellowship Supper Held In Grifton

GRIFTON—The annual Episcopal "Fellowship" supper took place on Friday night at the St. John's Home Demonstration Club House with well over a hundred members and friends of the St. John's and St. Mark's enjoying the evening.

The guests were greeted by Mr. E. W. Fleming and the Rev. Jack Rountree of Kingston, who is pastor of the churches. A bountiful supper was served buffet style. The table centered with a lovely arrangement of tall candles, greenery and yellow pom-poms. Elsewhere in the club house pine, pumpkins and chrysanthemums made a pretty setting.

Mr. Fleming acted as toastmaster as the group joined in singing of the Doxology after which they served themselves to the delectable supper. Ladies of the church served coffee and hot bread.

After supper the Rev. Mr. Rountree spoke to the group in an informal manner.

College Singers Present Program To Book Club

Mrs. J. D. Messick was hostess and program chairman when the Round Table Book Club met with her on Tuesday, November 19.

Mrs. Charles O. H. Horne presided over a short business session. Members were urged to take advantage of the study course on "Our American Heritage" to be given at the Sheppard Memorial Library. The course will begin Monday night, November 24, at 8 o'clock, and continue each Monday night for several weeks. Mrs. C. E. Oakley added a light and happy touch with her "Bit of Spice." Books were exchanged.

Dr. Dan Vornholt was guest director of Mrs. Messick's program, "Music Singers." He introduced the "College Singers," a picked ensemble of ten singers directed by him and accompanied by Miss Ann Johnson.

The singers were Miss Carolyn Elsie, Miss Ruth Little, Miss Catherine Stephenson, Miss Pat Corbett, Miss Ann Butler.

Miss Betty Sue Williamson, George Starling, Gerald Murphy, Charles Starnes, and David Holder.

Their delightful rendition of the following program will be remembered as one of the highlights of the club year.

Group—"When Allan-a-Dale Went A-hunting," "Pretense," and "Let's Dance." Solos—Miss Catherine Stephenson, "Canterbury Fair," and "A Little China Figure." Piano Solo—Miss Laura Pope, Duet, from Mendelssohn's Songs Without Words.

Solos—Miss Carolyn Elsie, "O mio babbino mio," "Gianni Schicchi," and "Jesu Bambino." Group—"The Holly and the Ivy" and "Wonders are Wrought."

During the social hour, Mrs. Messick assisted by Mrs. Charles O. H. Horne, Mrs. H. J. McGinnis and Mrs. K. B. Pace served a delicious sweet course. A lovely arrangement of fall flowers graced the dining room table and red berries and autumn leaves were used in profusion throughout the house.

Guests for the afternoon were, Mrs. Kenneth N. Outburt, Mrs. H. L. Rivers, Mrs. K. B. Pace, Mrs. M. L. Wright, Mrs. W. H. Woolard, Mrs. W. W. Howell, Mrs. Travis Hooker, and Mrs. Owen Marshburn.

LI. Bruce Cotten of Baltimore came in this morning to visit his parents at Cottontale.

The sexton going to the Baptist church early this morning saw considerable smoke issuing from the building. No alarm was given but enough people were called in quietly to investigate and it was found that a sleeper on sill under the foundation of the heating furnace had caught on fire and burned in two.

Miss Eldridge Honored By Club Members

Miss Mary Belle Eldridge, a charter member of the Greenville Credit Women's Club, was honored with a farewell party given by her club members at the home of Mrs. Earline Coghill, on Tuesday night, November 18th.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Coghill and club President, Mrs. Elmer Norris, and directed to the living rooms, which were lovely with fall flowers in various arrangements. After all guests had arrived, Mrs. Lettie Bilbro came in with a large traveling bag filled with gifts from all club members which she presented to Miss Eldridge.

During her membership in the Greenville CWBC, Miss Eldridge has served her club as recording secretary, publicity chairman, and has headed numerous committees. She has been connected with the Tadlock Insurance agency for several years, and in moving to Washington, D. C. she will make her home with her sister, and will transfer her membership from the local club to the Washington CWBC, where she will continue her club work in the nation's capital.

Miss Eldridge received many lovely and useful gifts to keep her reminded of the high esteem and affection in which she is held.

During the evening Mrs. Coghill served the honoree and guests with fruitcake topped with whipped cream, salted nuts and coffee.

College Choir To Present Handel's Oratorio Dec. 9

As a prelude to the Christmas season, the East Carolina College Choir will present Handel's "Messiah" Tuesday, December 9, at 8 p. m. in the Wright auditorium. Dr. Karl V. Gilbert of the faculty of the department of music will direct the group of eighty student members.

Seven soloists, students in the department of music, will sing with the choir in the performance of the famous oratorio. They are Carolyn Elsie of Statesville, Jeanne Ennis of Dunn, Ruth Little of Winterville, Catherine Stephenson of Willow Springs, Monteen Winstead of Tabor City, George Starling of Rocky Mount, and Leonard Starling of Rocky Mount.

George E. Perry of the faculty will be organist on the program, and Ellen Sprinkle of Asheville will be piano accompanist. The East Carolina department of music will be sponsors of the event.

Drama Workshop To Be Offered At ECC

A Dramatic Arts Workshop will be offered this winter for the first time by the department of English at East Carolina College. The course will meet a demand among students, particularly those planning to become teachers, for practical theatre experience and training in the theoretical background of dramatic arts.

Work has been so planned as to enable those who complete the course successfully to produce simple plays in schools, clubs, churches, and other community organizations. The course will be offered on the senior-graduate level and will carry three quarter hours credit.

Dr. Lucile H. Charles of the college English department, director of dramatic arts at the college, will direct the workshop. Six other staff members and a visiting instructor from the Greenville High School will lecture during the quarter on various aspects of dramatic arts. Topics will include The Theatre as a Cultural Force, Scene Design, Construction of Stage Sets, Lighting, Dramatic Arts in the Public Schools, Music of the Theatre, and the Dance of the Theatre.

Class sessions will include a lecture, a workshop play, and an evaluation of this production. All students in the college will be eligible to participate in the plays, and the public will be invited to attend productions.

The dramatic Arts Workshop developed from a series of workshop plays, begun five years ago as an extracurricular activity among students working under Dr. Charles's leadership. Since the series was initiated, approximately a hundred plays have been presented, and audiences have represented both the campus and the city. Several original plays by East Carolina students have been included among productions, and a number of radio programs have been given.

California Ends Disease Plague

SACRAMENTO (UP) — California's outbreak of "sleeping sickness" has abated.

The state department of public health said the worst year for encephalitis or record caused 47 deaths out of 718 cases reported. The disease is carried by mosquitoes and during the summer was prevalent in the 20 counties in the central valley section of the state.

State health officials said an all-out mosquito abatement program, financed by an emergency $250,000 grant from the state, helped quell the outbreak of the disease.

Inscriptions record the history of the Hittites back to 3,000 B.C., says the National Geographic Society.

Raleigh Sisters To Be On Poster

NEW YORK (UP) — Two little Raleigh, N. C., sisters who made remarkable recoveries from infantile paralysis have been chosen as the "Poster Children" for the 1953 March of Dimes campaign, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis announced today.

Patricia and Pamela O'Neal, will appear in person at ceremonies opening the foundation's fund-raising campaign, and their wistful faces will be seen throughout the nation on millions of contribution cards, contribution cans, and window posters.

The sisters were stricken with polio just three days apart in 1948, the year of North Carolina's worst epidemic when there were 2,498 cases in the state. Patricia was admitted to REX Hospital in Raleigh first and her condition was such that she was placed in a tank respirator. Pamela, who had a milder form of the disease, was discharged from the hospital in 15 days.

When Patricia was able to breathe independently of the iron lung, she found she was unable to walk. She was sent by the Wake County chapter of the National foundation to Warm Springs, Ga., where she received physical therapy for seven months.

At the end of the therapy, she was able to walk with the aid of a corset and a long leg brace and crutches. She now needs none of these devices. Both children, as a matter of fact, are now free from any polio disability, are as active and boisterous as any of their playmates, and are hardly recognizable as the sober-faced children who will be seen on posters from coast to coast in January.

Although Mr. and Mrs. O'Neal work, they were not in a position to meet the high costs of polio treatment and care.

"We've always given to the March of Dimes," O'Neal told the foundation, "but we never thought we'd know how we could have made it without the help of other people made possible because they gave to the March of Dimes."

Crow 'Studying' At University

COLUMBUS, O. (U.P.) — A crow at Ohio State University may have something to talk about when he finishes a course in speech.

Called Maxilian, the crow is the subject of experiment by Dr. Philburn Ratoosh, assistant professor of psychology, to see if the bird can learn to read and comprehend.

After six months, the bird has learned to choose a card marked "yes" or "no" in answer to a question and is expected to progress further.

Strength for the Day

WARNINGS

As we took a day's journey last summer between two of the great sea lanes in the Atlantic, a series of bell buoys kept the ship in its course. The mariners knew that if they were to proceed with safety, they must keep inside the bell buoys.

There is something indescribably haunting about the bleak peeling of the bells out on the ocean. It is, at one and the same time, indescribably fascinating and foreboding. One knows that there is grave danger just beyond these signals. Through calm summer days the stormy winter nights the buoys keep bobbing up and down, and the grim peeling of the bells continues.

The universe in which we live is a spiritual universe, and its laws regarding conduct are moral laws. There is indeed something haunting, fascinating and yet foreboding about the peeling of the great moral commandments which dominate all sound religion. They seem to say to us, "Thus far and no farther." No day is so calm but what we hear them. They ring out above the storms of temptation and the agony of life's sorrows. There are times when they induce melancholy within us, but we know that they are placed there by a kindly hand for our protection.

"Thus far and no farther." The course of life is more clearly defined than we are often willing to admit.

A Sign Of The Times In Political Life

A sure sign of the times in American political life is the request of John Foster Dulles, newly designated Secretary of State, for a full investigation by the FBI of his entire life and background.

There will probably be similar requests made by other people placed in high government offices in the near future.

Dulles, by his request, has beat the character slanders to the draw. There are few men in high places in American political life today who have not, at one time or another, been accused of pink tendencies or at least questionable associations with people who had questionable associations with communists or other distasteful groups.

Had not Dulles himself called for the FBI investigation at the outset, someone else doubtlessly would have before he had been in office many months. In spite of the investigation to be made at Dulles' request it is a good bet that someone else will ask for another investigation of some of his activities in the future.

Most people in the United States in the past several years have become so conscious of communist attempts to make inroads into our government, and of corruption on the part of government officials, that constant scrutiny of an officials' activities, past and present has become the rule rather than the exception.

That in itself is a good thing.

It keeps the people informed and alert; and at the same time it serves as a highly persuasive factor in preventing a tempted official from taking part in some underhanded scheme.

It can not be denied that a great deal of good has come from the numerous investigations of personalities and activities associated with the government. By the same token, it must be realized that a shadow has been cast on the character of a number of honest, genuinely loyal citizens by ill founded accusations made by people who fail to sense the responsibility assumed in making accusations.

Dulles has started his own investigation. Perhaps other officials will do likewise.

Principles Must Be Kept Even In Compromise

Will the United States stand by and see the victories its men have won on the battle fields rendered inconsequential by the battles representatives of the nation lose at the treaty table?

Down through its history, the United States has gained the reputation for winning war and losing peace.

Now, apparently, the country is coming, with the rest of the world, to the cross roads in the Korean conflict.

Literally for months the settlement in Korea has hinged on the question of repatriation of prisoners. The United States has held steadfast to its position that voluntary repatriation is the only proposition which it will accept in connection with a Korean truce.

From that stand the United States can not afford to turn.

As a nation, the United States has made many compromises with the communists in attempts to settle the Korean conflict. It has altered a number of its stands for the sake of harmony. Now at this final problem, the country can not afford to alter its position on prisoners.

The Indian proposal now pending before the United Nations is partially acceptable to the United States, but only if specific changes are made. Truly the Indian proposal (with certain modifications) appears the most reasonable proposition to bring the West and the East into an agreement for settling the Korean War.

Western powers, however, must be sure they are not sold a bill of goods in the Indian proposal.

A commission made up of two pro-communist nations and two pro-Western nations and a fifth "umpire" member may be able to reach a workable solution on the prisoners of war who resist repatriation. As proposed by Anthony Eden of Britain, the General Assembly of the United Nations should appoint the fifth member of the repatriation commission at the same time it approves the appointment of the other four members.

The Western powers, in our opinion, have given all the ground at the Korean negotiations they can afford to give. To relinquish to further unreasonable demands by the communists would be to defeat the purposes for which American troops were sent to Korea in the first place.

Western powers must now stand their ground, even under a modified Indian proposal, and see that the standards and principles for which Western troops have given their lives are not sacrificed in a Korean settlement.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The Truman Administration's persistent policy of harassing and bulldozing private business and industry can be reversed after January 20 by the simple process of reorganizing an agency with a great capacity for creating economic anxiety and uncertainty—namely, the Federal Trade Commission.

It is this Truman-packed body which now clamps a heavy hand on the nation's economic operations at home and abroad, including the current anti-trust suit against seven American oil firms with investments in the turbulent Middle East.

Besides giving the commission new and broader power than it ever exercised in the past, Truman has used it for purposes of political gain and reprisal.

MARKING TIME—The Eisenhower victory has already dampened the enthusiasm of FTC's membership for aggressive, anti-business tactics, as it has done in almost every agency of the government.

From Truman down to office boys, officials are marking time, especially the young, noisy, ebullient lawyers so frequently responsible for initiating questionable litigations and investigations.

Nowhere is this "keep your head down" spirit of caution more noticeable than in FTC and the Department of Justice, which carries FTC's complaints into grand jury rooms and the courts.

But the incoming President will be able to reform FTC within a short time after he takes office, and presumably along more conservative lines. Indeed, he will be able to halt several punitive actions which Attorney General McGranery initiated during the recent campaign under White House and FTC inspiration and insistence.

DISREGARD FOR LAW—Truman showed his disregard for the law establishing FTC, as well as his anti-business prejudice, when he filled a vacancy last summer with the appointment of John Carson. Although the statute provides that only three members of either major party shall sit on the commission at the same time, Carson was named because of his demonstrated sympathy for the White House program.

Truman violated the spirit of the law by describing Carson as an "Independent." But the fact was that, as former secretary to Senator Clegg of Michigan, Carson had been an ardent and active supporter of Roosevelt-Truman philosophy for 20 years.

The Senate refused to confirm him for three reasons, giving Eisenhower a vacancy to be filled immediately. Lowell B. Mason, the GOP member, has been bitterly critical of his colleagues, and his term does not expire until September 25, 1956. A Republican majority will become a reality next September, with the end of Commissioner Stephen Spingarn's term.

It is also possible that James M. Mead, a Buffalo Democrat and former Senator may quit. He has frequently been mentioned as a possible candidate for Governor of New York or for his old post on Capitol Hill.

REORGANIZATION NEEDED—The need for an FTC reorganization was evidenced spectacularly by its campaign publication of its inquiry into the activities of the seven petroleum corporations, and the Department of Justice' subsequent anti-trust action against these companies.

As Secretaries Acheson and Lovett have advised privately, this vote-getting proceeding jeopardizes national defense and foreign relations in an area susceptible to Communist conquest or infiltration—Iraq, Arabia.

The oil companies have been charged with conducting a cartel in violation of the Sherman Act by the FTC and D. J. Yet almost all the agreements and undertakings have been made with the knowledge and assistance of State since 1928, when military requirements for foreign oil imports were recognized.

Without this Middle East petroleum, which was sold to European beneficiaries of the Marshall Plan, postwar rationing of gasoline might have been necessary in this country. It is this delicate and sensitive international structure which FTC is trying to destroy, with Truman's consent.

INVESTMENTS ENDANGERED—FTC's political prosecution has had even more far-flung and dangerous repercussions in the field of overseas politics, diplomacy and military operations. It has helped to discredit American businessmen and to endanger their investments everywhere. It explains why private capital is reluctant to reinforce Truman's Point Four program with stockholders' and investors' money.

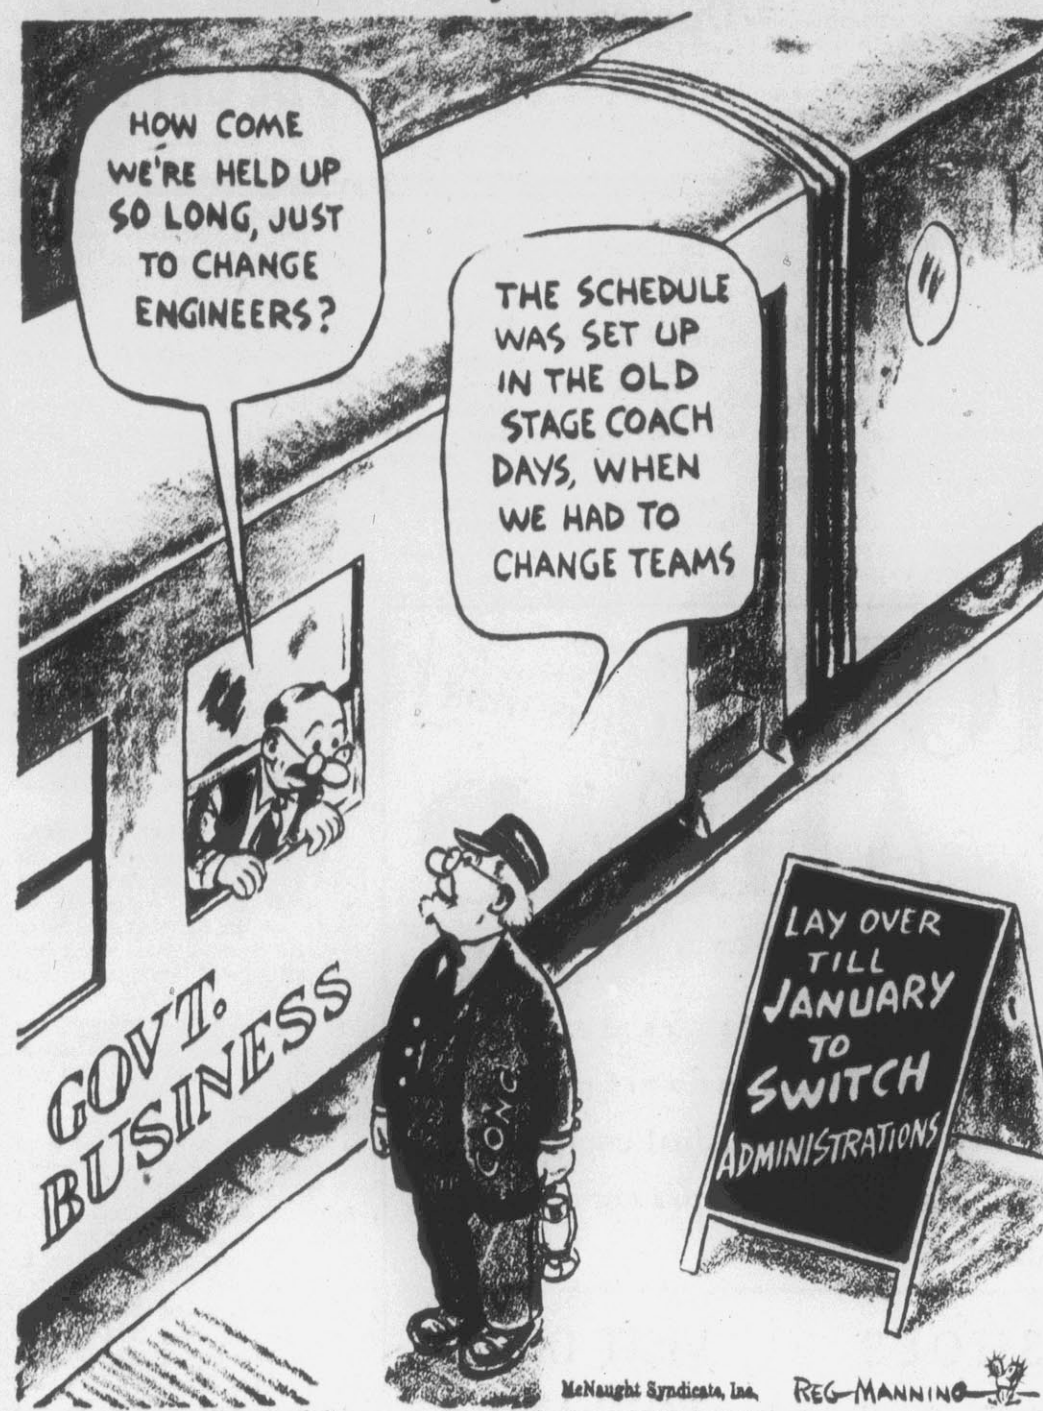

In his controversy with the British, Mossadegh has cited the FTC report and D. J. action as evidence that Anglo-American oil operators are "crooks." It has aroused suspicion against Uncle Sam's own activities in India, Egypt and the Far East generally.

It has given nervous ideas to the Venezuelans, whose relations with American firms had been excellent until recently. It may have hastened Bolivia's action in nationalizing tin mines essential to our military buildup.

FTC members, of course, never dreamed that there would be this worldwide chain reaction. Nor did Harry Truman, whose understanding of the interplay of economic forces at home and abroad is quite elementary.

But to Eisenhower, whose last pre-election assignment was to organize a system of collective security, prevention of these international emarrassments will be an immediate and major problem.

FARM CENSUS — The preliminary report on the farm census survey taken in January of this year for all of North Carolina has been released by the Federal State Crop Reporting Service. The compilation of this survey is based on actual figures from 97 counties and "includes allowances" for Burke, Dare and Hoke, which for some reason did not report. The Farm Census is taken by township enumerators in January and February, at the same time property is listed for county taxes. Through a cooperative agreement among County Commissioners, State and Federal Department of Agriculture, information on individual farms is made available as soon as possible by the township enumerators to County and State officials.

Nowhere is this "keep your head down" spirit of caution more noticeable than in FTC and the Department of Justice, which carries FTC's complaints into grand jury rooms and the courts.

But the incoming President will be able to reform FTC within a short time after he takes office, and presumably along more conservative lines. Indeed, he will be able to halt several punitive actions which Attorney General McGranery initiated during the recent campaign under White House and FTC inspiration and insistence.

DISREGARD FOR LAW—Truman showed his disregard for the law establishing FTC, as well as his anti-business prejudice, when he filled a vacancy last summer with the appointment of John Carson. Although the statute provides that only three members of either major party shall sit on the commission at the same time, Carson was named because of his demonstrated sympathy for the White House program.

Truman violated the spirit of the law by describing Carson as an "Independent." But the fact was that, as former secretary to Senator Clegg of Michigan, Carson had been an ardent and active supporter of Roosevelt-Truman philosophy for 20 years.

The Senate refused to confirm him for three reasons, giving Eisenhower a vacancy to be filled immediately. Lowell B. Mason, the GOP member, has been bitterly critical of his colleagues, and his term does not expire until September 25, 1956. A Republican majority will become a reality next September, with the end of Commissioner Stephen Spingarn's term.

It is also possible that James M. Mead, a Buffalo Democrat and former Senator may quit. He has frequently been mentioned as a possible candidate for Governor of New York or for his old post on Capitol Hill.

REORGANIZATION NEEDED—The need for an FTC reorganization was evidenced spectacularly by its campaign publication of its inquiry into the activities of the seven petroleum corporations, and the Department of Justice' subsequent anti-trust action against these companies.

As Secretaries Acheson and Lovett have advised privately, this vote-getting proceeding jeopardizes national defense and foreign relations in an area susceptible to Communist conquest or infiltration—Iraq, Arabia.

The oil companies have been charged with conducting a cartel in violation of the Sherman Act by the FTC and D. J. Yet almost all the agreements and undertakings have been made with the knowledge and assistance of State since 1928, when military requirements for foreign oil imports were recognized.

Without this Middle East petroleum, which was sold to European beneficiaries of the Marshall Plan, postwar rationing of gasoline might have been necessary in this country. It is this delicate and sensitive international structure which FTC is trying to destroy, with Truman's consent.

INVESTMENTS ENDANGERED—FTC's political prosecution has had even more far-flung and dangerous repercussions in the field of overseas politics, diplomacy and military operations. It has helped to discredit American businessmen and to endanger their investments everywhere. It explains why private capital is reluctant to reinforce Truman's Point Four program with stockholders' and investors' money.

In his controversy with the British, Mossadegh has cited the FTC report and D. J. action as evidence that Anglo-American oil operators are "crooks." It has aroused suspicion against Uncle Sam's own activities in India, Egypt and the Far East generally.

It has given nervous ideas to the Venezuelans, whose relations with American firms had been excellent until recently. It may have hastened Bolivia's action in nationalizing tin mines essential to our military buildup.

FTC members, of course, never dreamed that there would be this worldwide chain reaction. Nor did Harry Truman, whose understanding of the interplay of economic forces at home and abroad is quite elementary.

But to Eisenhower, whose last pre-election assignment was to organize a system of collective security, prevention of these international emarrassments will be an immediate and major problem.

confusion due to census bureau policy of classifying residence of the people. Residents of municipalities with less than 2,500 population are classed as rural, but only those living on tracts of three acres or more are classified as farmers. Analysis of the 1950 census indicates that North Carolina population is pretty evenly divided in three segments—urban (meaning towns and cities of 2,500 and over); farm (meaning residents on tracts of three acres and over); and non-farm rural, meaning everybody else—including those in towns of less than 2,500.

HARVESTED — The composite report shows that crops were harvested from 6,161,504 acres or nearly 29 per cent of the total farm land; that 1,185,059 acres or about 5.6 per cent was listed as idle crop lands; that slightly more than two million acres was in pasture, of which 808,947 acres or 3.8 per cent of the total acreage was classed as improved pasture, exclusive of woodlands. The remaining 1,915,514 acres, 56 per cent of all farm lands, was classified in the several categories of wooded, waste, home sites, etc. It is interesting to note that as compared with 1950 there was a decrease in acreage from which crops were harvested, less pasture lands and less wooded and wastelands, while there was a very substantial increase in acreage devoted to pasture. Increases also were noted in number of swine, poultry and cattle kept on these farms, with a decrease in number of dairy cows and an increase in beef type cows and heifers.

CROP — The breakdown in number of acres from which various crops were harvested with 34 per cent of the total or 2,182,915 acres. Corn was grown in every county and in most of them represented the largest acreage. Lespedeza, including that crop, cotton came next with 735,493 acres and tobacco was a close third with 707,231 acres, each of these being credited with 15 per cent of total harvested acreage. Lespedeza, including that crop, cotton came next with 735,493 acres and tobacco was a close third with 707,231 acres, each of these being credited with 15 per cent of total harvested acreage.

UNIVERSAL — Corn, oats, soybeans and hay crops were grown in every county reporting and presumably in the three non-reporting counties. Tobacco was grown in 90 of the counties, although in a few the acreage was insignificant — Polk listing one acre, Gaston two, Hyde three and Currituck five.

VOTES — That unexpected million and a quarter votes cast in North Carolina still affords subject matter for speculation, boasting and alibi. Republicans are bragging that they got more votes in North Carolina than ever before and attempt to argue from that fact that they are increasing their potential as a real opposition party. Democrats argue just as glibly that because their candidates got more votes this year than in any other election, they are in stronger position.

It wouldn't be fair to expect a ship a day from the outlet. The shipping lines must have some reason for sending their vessels into the port of Wilmington. And that gets back to North Carolina's commerce.

The terminals were opened with fanfare of words and predictions. Included in the oratory was the admonition to the State's business people to make use of the facility if they would profit by it. As yet they haven't learned or haven't taken the pains to do so.

Two million dollars was spent at Morehead City. How much patronage has developed there we haven't heard. A similar amount was spent at Morehead some ten to fifteen years ago for this same purpose, and, as it turned out, to be accommodated Japanese freighters hauling scrap iron down the Atlantic coast through the Panama Canal and across the Pacific to be turned into guns and bullets for use against American service men.

Seven million dollars has been spent at these two ports by the State to provide water transportation facilities for North Carolina shippers. Surely they will ultimately get into the habit of using the terminals, but as yet they haven't. So it seems up to the business interests of the State as to whether or not this latest investment is to be of greater value than the sum expended a decade and more ago proved to be. The cash outlay involved will not have been justified if only a ship a month is to use the Wilmington docks.

ONE SHIP A MONTH (Henderson Dispatch) Approximately one month ago, Wilmington and the State dedicated the new $5,000,000 State-owned port terminals on the Cape Fear river just below town. On last Tuesday, Armistice Day, November 11, about one month later, the first vessel to use the facilities tied up at the docks. It came in to unload a cargo of lumber from British Guiana, in South America. And the lumber is for use in construction work at a pier at Morehead City, where a similar terminal has just been completed.

Perhaps the world hasn't yet learned of the Wilmington terminals, and when the shipping firms hear about it they may use it more particularly if North Carolina concerns order their goods to ashore there. To a layman, it would seem that this is the explanation as to why an entire month has gone by with only one ship in sight! Surely North Carolina hasn't spent five million dollars to accommodate a ship a month, or a round dozen for a whole year!

Possibility — nay, probability — of a decline in defense spending next year has sharpened manufacturers' interest in broader lines, especially in consumer fields. As this interest becomes keener, some manufacturers, in addition to developing new products of their own, are acquiring them in large lots by buying out other companies.

General Mills, the largest flour-making company in the country, has announced plans for expanding its home-appliance line, which now accounts for 10 per cent of its volume. In addition, it acquired O-Cel-O Co., maker of cellulose sponges. "Nonfood activities may contribute a larger part of the company's business in the future," Gordon C. Ballhorn, controller, told stockholders.

RCA-Victor recently purchased the Estate Stove Co., putting it smack in the gas and electric range and the gas and oil heater business. Earlier this year it entered the air-conditioning business on its own. Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co., which makes a wide range of farm and industrial equipment, acquired the LaPlant-Chaste Mfg. Co., makers of scraper equipment. Nash Kelvinator is adding a new line with the purchase of Altorfer Bros., makers of laundry equipment.

Westinghouse Air Brake Co. bid for the stock of Le Roi Co., manufacturers of internal combustion engines and other industrial equipment. College Inn Food Products has taken over manufacture and sale of Calcutta Club Chutney.

There are many other instances. Acquiring a firm in the same line is an ancient practice. It has been so common that the Federal Government has found it necessary to erect barriers against such deals when they tend to create a monopoly. But the acquisition of companies in different though related fields has become something of a current trend.

In some instances, it appears to spring from a desire to "hedge." If a company has defense contracts which may some day taper off, or if it is competing in a field where profit margins have been shrinking, it is sound to broaden base of operation as an insurance against ups and downs.

CAMP KILMER, N. J. (AP) — The American soldier is known to have a wide range. He proved it here in an unusual way.

They passed the hat recently among some 25,000 or more troops here during a United Fund campaign. The money solicited was for 23 charities in nine neighboring communities of this sprawling 15,000-acre camp.

Some 20,000 soldiers kicked in for a total of $9,350. The amounts given ranged from a few pennies to $20.

The result has made the camp commander rather proud. It left some of the local citizens feeling rather ashamed.

The reason: Most of the soldiers who contributed to the drive were in transit, men just entering the service or men leaving it. Only a handful have any permanent connection here. Yet the camp increased its contributions 650 per cent over a year ago, while the citizens who live in the communities lagged behind their goal.

"The average soldier stays here only at average of six days," commented Brig. Gen. Charles F. Craig, who regards the record troop contributions as proof that "Army men want to become part of whatever community they are stationed in, and help serve its needs."

And industrialist Robert Wood Johnson, chairman of the board of Johnson & Johnson, observed: "Our armed forces have demonstrated a responsibility to the community that should serve as an example to those who take too much for granted."

A local newspaper, pointing at the generosity of these strangers in uniform, asked its readers: "What kind of citizens are we?"

WASHINGTON—Capital society is expected to launch its most brilliant full-dress social season in years — with a return to the formalities of past Republican regimes — when the new administration takes over Jan. 20.

Those who know the Republican social pattern say an evening "white tie" invitation will mean white tie, not tuxedo, and that guests won't be showing up at late day receptions in business suits and street dresses either. They'll go home first and change frocks as they did in the days before the Democrats introduced informality into the social picture.

Local social arbiters and society reporters say the social season during a Republican administration has always been far more brilliant and elegant than during a Democratic one. This doesn't mean that the Democrats have been less receptive or skimpier on their entertaining of the rich than their predecessors, but that they don't know how to throw noteworthy shindigs. Both the Roosevelts and Trumans have displayed a real knack for making people feel at home in the White House, though their parties actually haven't been so fancy.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt moved into the executive mansion during the depression and were there most of World War II years. President and Mrs. Truman saw out the end of the conflict and then the beginning of the Korean War. Good taste, as well as necessity, governed their decisions to curtail the usual grand scale entertaining expected at the White House.

The 1950 social season started off quite brilliantly, then nosedived in December with the worsening of the Korean situation. Vice President and Mrs. Barkley started the trend of calling off parties when they canceled an affair honoring the Trumans. Most other socialites followed suit. In 1951 Mrs. Truman even gave up the small teas she customarily gives for wives of members of Congress and other government officials. The annual formal receptions for the diplomatic corps, Supreme Court justices, military, congressional and departmental groups and the very formal state dinners again were canceled.

No state dinners or receptions will be held by the Trumans before their departure from the White House.

Mamie Eisenhower's top responsibility in assuming the role of the next First Lady will be to set the pace for the "official" season. She is said to dislike formality but exhibited a decided flair for hostessing large functions both at Columbia University when she was serving as president and abroad, when she was Supreme Commander in Europe.

One practice is certain to remain in the discard, the business of paying formal calls on everybody.

An Irish firm offers to export 50 tons of carrageen, or Irish moss. Italy announces it will not set minimum export prices on accordions. The Government of Southern Rhodesia is planning to sell its steel plant at Que Que. A new formula for making excellent craft paper from banana stumps is reported by the Indian Government.

PROMOTER FOR HONESTY. — WHEN IT PAYS. The Old Promoter had a story with a moral today.

"A couple of partners I know decided they were paying too much income tax," he related. "So they agreed they would pad their expense accounts. They would take on a little entertaining here, a little travel there. For a while it worked fine."

"Then each partner began to wonder if the other wasn't padding a little more than he was. It was a natural suspicion. Your see, each partner had revealed to the other that he had a streak of dishonesty."

"The mutual suspicions led to quarrels. Yesterday the partnership busted up in a grand quarrel, with each threatening to turn the other over to Uncle Whiskers."

"An interesting item," we remarked. "Have a cigar."

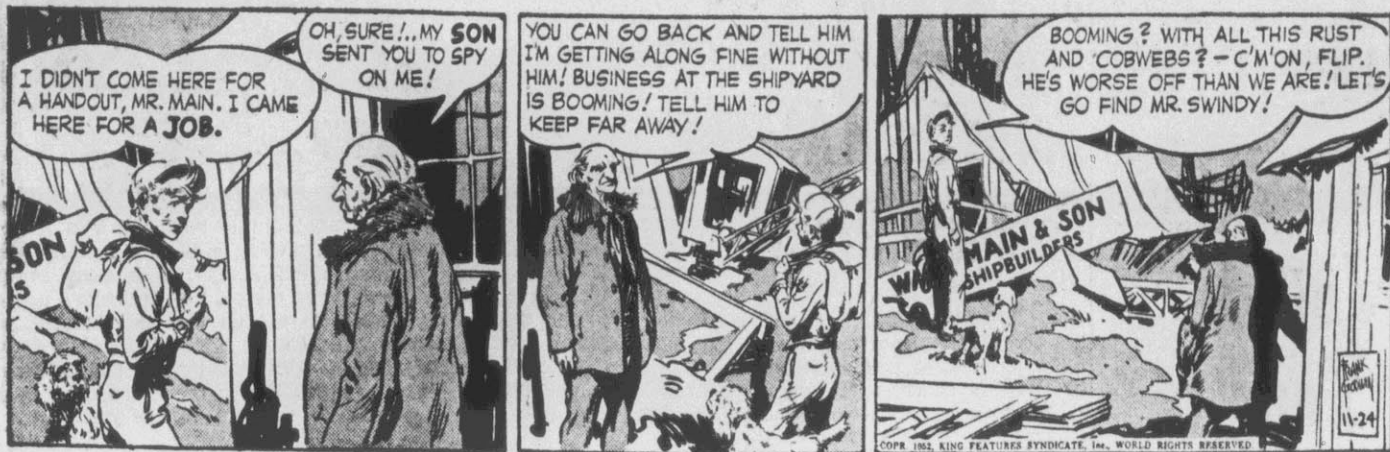

"Only," said the Old Promoter with a twinkle, "if you assure me that the cost is a deductible item."

Carfare Left To Robbed Couple

NEW YORK (UP) — A holdup man Sunday night rifled the pocketbook of Mrs. Clara Lable, 48, and took $50 from the wallet of Henry Reimer, 53, her escort. Reimer protested he didn't even have carfare left to get home. "See your friend," the holdup man said. "I left her some quarters."

Ike Victory Party Set Nov. 26 In Beaufort County

WASHINGTON — An "Eisenhower victory party" to be held here November 26 has been announced by John Wilkinson who is making arrangements for the party.

The affair will get under way with an oyster roast at 6:00 o'clock at the Dr. Peopple plant and the Washington High School Band has been invited to lead a parade from the plant to the court house at 7:45 p.m.

The scene shifts to the Beaufort County courthouse at 8:00 o'clock where Herbert F. Seawell, recent Republican candidate for governor, will be the main speaker. Seawell polled almost 400,000 votes in the election, and his speech is expected to be a light commentary on the recent election.

Mrs. Cherry Watson, state secretary of the Citizens for Eisenhower organization will also speak. Mr. Wilkinson has also announced there will be presentations of various prizes to Beaufort County citizens of both parties. Wilkinson will act as master of ceremonies, and laid stress today that Democrats and Republicans alike are invited attend. The entire First Congressional district is included in the plans and many Eisenhower leaders from Eastern North Carolina are expected to attend.

Several other dignitaries will be present or have signified their hope of attending. J.E. Broyhill of Lenoir, GOP national committee chairman Charles R. Jonas, Lincoln, congressman-elect, Bill Stevens, Lenoir, president of the N.C. Young Republicans and J.M. Bailey, State Republican chairman, are among this group.

"Wilkinson said that Democratic officials in Beaufort County have been invited to attend and that many have signified their intention of being present.

The average income per family in the United States is about $3,300.

Duke University's smashing 34-0 victory over Carolina Saturday afternoon may have cost Carolina Coach Carl Snavely his job. The defeat not only climaxed one of the worst football seasons that the Tar Heels ever had but also represented the highest score that a Duke team has run up on a Carolina eleven.

Snavely's position has been a shaky one for more than a year. It became seriously in question this year when the Tar Heels went down to five defeats before knocking off the University of South Carolina for the first Tar Heel win in an even dozen half games.

The Tar Heels had a losing streak of 11 games stopped by that win over the Gamecocks and the stock for their chances of a victory over Duke rose considerably. Snavely never lost his faith in the members of the Carolina squad but he was undoubtedly greatly disappointed in their show-in Saturday.

In all fairness to Snavely and the Tar Heel players, it has to be said that they met a great team Saturday afternoon. Perhaps the Dukes were not so powerful as have been other Duke teams but there's not a team in the country which could have pushed the Devils around Saturday afternoon.

A victory in the Duke-Carolina game is always sweet meat for the winners and a bitter beating for the losers. Even those of us who are solid Duke fans cannot help but express regret that Saturday's win may have cost the services of one of the all-time greats in college football coaching.

Duke Demonstrates Power In 34-0 Win Over Carolina

By HERMAN HICKMAN
Reflector Sports Editor

Chapel Hill—Regardless of rivalry or bitterness in defeat, most of the Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina expound that Duke University has a terrific team.

After the Blue Devils lost successive games to Georgia Tech and Navy, there was some skepticism as to whether the Dukes were anywhere near as good as they had been touted to be.

Against Wake Forest the Blue Devils appeared to be somewhat defeated by the successive losses and the absence of Bobby Burrows and Red Smith. However, the victory over the Deacons and the return of all injured players except Burrows, gave the Blue Devils a new outlook. They demonstrated their return to early season aggressiveness Saturday, by trouncing an unappreciative Carolina team 34-0.

The Blue Devils marched with ridiculous ease through a Carolina line that had formerly halted the ground thrusters of Wake Forest, Notre Dame, and Tennessee. Duke scored the first four times they had possession of the ball.

Byrd Looper, Charlie Smith and Red Smith romped with reckless abandon through and around the Snavelymen. One of Duke's favorite offensive weapons is worth

Because of the press of his academic work, Washington's Dick Cherry has decided to pass up basketball this year at East Carolina College. The Pirate flash has already made his mark in football but he won't attempt to further his basketball career despite a high school record that included All-State honors.

If Cherry should decide to go out for the basketball squad, Coach Howard Porter would find himself in the pleasant situation of having five high school All-Staters on his hands. The other four are Sonny Russell, Ritchie Blake, Bobby Hodges, and J. C. Thomas. All four figure to start this year with Russell and Blake standing as the only seniors in the quartet. Hodges is a junior and Thomas is a freshman.

The other tentative holder of a first-string job is a fellow who didn't make any of the "all-this or that" teams while in high school. Jack Carr hails from Magnolia and came to the Pirates without much fanfare from anyone except a fellow who officiated some of the games in which Jack played and who recommended him to Porter.

Incidentally, in a practice game a week ago, Carr scored 37 points—but that's just half the story. Eighteen of the points came in the first half against Charlie Ruffin—a pretty good basketball player in anyone's book. Defensive changes were made in the second half but Carr wasn't slowed a bit. In the last 20 minutes, he scored 19 points—all off All-State and All-Conference ace Sonny Russell.

or its passing. They didn't even bother to pass until after three touchdowns had been marked up. After the game a Tar Heel player said that Duke had the best all-around blocking of any team he had seen this year. "They have a good team and were determined to beat us by as high a score as possible," said the downcast player.

Another Tar Heel grizzer who has another year of eligibility, chirped, "We'll take them next year." But the cry wasn't echoed by his teammates who were mostly silent and apparently disgusted.

Two records were recorded for the game. It was the worst licking suffered by either team throughout the long rivalry. Red Smith, who tallied 22 points on three touchdowns and four extra points, accounted for more points than any single performer ever has during the long series.

Rose, Orange, Gator Bowls Seek New Year Opponents

Alabama, Florida Win Berths After Saturday's Games

By JOHN GRIFFIN

United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Who will play against Southern California in the Rose Bowl? Against Alabama in the Orange Bowl? And against Florida in the Gator Bowl?

These were the three top questions today as college football headed into its last week of the regular season, a week that will settle the last conference races and will be marked by a host of "traditional rivalry" games, topped by the Army-Navy classic in Philadelphia.

The three bowl berths mentioned are the only ones left open in the major Jan. 1 games, and they were expected to be filled quickly.

The Big Ten was expected to announce at noon today whether it will face Pacific Coast Conference king Southern Cal in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

Badgers, and the Boilermakers wound up in a tie for the Big Ten as a result of their games Saturday in which Wisconsin tied Minnesota, 21-21, and Purdue downed Indiana, 21-16.

That tie left it up to the Big Ten athletic directors to pick the bowl team in a poll, which was taken Sunday. Wisconsin, which hadn't won a league title since 1912, was expected to be their choice.

Alabama's Orange Bowl berth as host team came Sunday night as a reward for its 27-7 upset of Maryland, the second straight loss handed the Terrapins after 22 straight wins.

While selection of the Crimson Tide was expected, there was plenty of speculation about the other Orange Bowl team. Syracuse (which completed its season with a muddy 26-13 win over Fordham), Villanova, Tulsa, Holy Cross, and Penn State were the teams believed to be leading contenders. However, there was a reliable report that officials of the Miami Game were trying to land Notre Dame, Navy, or UCLA.

Florida was tendered its Gator Bowl bid after thrashing Miami, 43-6, on Saturday. The same teams are being considered as for the Orange Bowl.

Southern California made the big news on Saturday, of course, by wrapping up the PCC crown with a thrilling, nationally televised 14-12 victory over previously unbeaten UCLA. However, the Trojans must play one more game before they can boast a perfect season—against Notre Dame this Saturday in what could prove a real "spoiler."

While Southern Cal was winning its title, Oklahoma tucked away the Big Seven championship for the seventh straight time with a 34-13 win over Nebraska; Duke took the Southern Conference crown with a 34-0 win over North Carolina; and Texas gained the undisputed Southwest Conference crown as a contender Southern Methodist was held to a 7-7 tie by Baylor.

ECC May Get Bid To Lion's Bowl

Bowl hopes for the East Carolina College Pirates today hung on the outcome of Thursday's North State Conference championship game between Lenoir-Rhyne and Catawba. The prize resting on the outcome of that game is a place in the Lion's Bowl at Salisbury on December 13.

Lenoir-Rhyne put itself into a positive position late Friday evening when it accepted a bid to meet Tampa University in the Cigar Bowl on December 13. Catawba, reportedly first choice of the Salisbury bowl sponsors, lost to Tampa Friday night. East Carolina has been idle since it finished its regular season a week ago against West Virginia Tech.

Officials of the Pythian Bowl have announced that they won't make any public statement until after the Lenoir-Rhyne-Catawba clash. They want Catawba but if the Indians lose to the Bears, they will extend the invitation to Coach Jack Boone's Pirates, according to reports.

Indians, Bears Play Thursday For Loop Title

By The Associated Press

More than feathers will be flying on Turkey Day this week when two traditional North State rivals clash, in a perfect football season windup, for the grid championship of the circuit.

The Thanksgiving classic at Salisbury features the rough, tough Bears of Lenoir Rhyne, currently leading the conference, and the second-place Catawba Indians, who are gunning for an upset and the loop crown.

Unbeaten Lenoir Rhyne has an overall record of seven victories against no defeats, with five of the wins against conference foes. The Indians have won six, lost three and tied one this season, but stand at four wins and one tie in loop play. A win over the Bears could give them the crown, while a Lenoir Rhyne win would see it up for the Bears.

Another pair of teams, also renewing a fierce rivalry, but with no championship at stake, are Elon and Guilford. Their Thanksgiving afternoon game will be played at Reidsville. Guilford will be out after its first North State victory of the season against the Christians, who have a 1-4 mark in circuit play.

The two games close out the family action in the conference for the season. In post-season bowl play, Lenoir-Rhyne is slated to face Tampa in the Cigar Bowl on Dec. 13. Another

NEW YORK (UP)—One Count, the dark brown colt who won the grueling Belmont Stakes and Jockey Club Gold Cup, today was voted the "Horse of the Year" in the annual poll conducted by Triangle Publications, Inc., publisher of the Morning Telegraph and Daily Racing Form.

One Count scored seven victories, three seconds and two thirds in 15 starts this season. He also was voted the leading three-year-old for triumphs that included the mile-and-a-half Belmont and the two-mile Jockey Club Gold Cup.

One Count is owned by Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords. He is a son of Count Fleet, who was named "Horse of the Year" in 1943 after winning the triple crown—Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Nineteen of the 31 voters made One Count their first choice, while six favored Native Dancer, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's undefeated two-year-old. Real Delight, Calumet Farm's fine three-year-old filly, received three votes, while Tom Fool, Crafty Admiral and Spartan Valor each got one vote.

Native Dancer, victorious in his nine starts, was named the top two-year-old. Mrs. E. E. D. Shaffer's Sweet Patootie, who won eight of her 12 races, was selected as the outstanding two-year-old filly.

Real Delight was voted the best filly in the three-year-old and handicap divisions; Charfran Stable's Crafty Admiral was named the best handicap horse; Teak-Maker, F. Ambrose Clark's nine-year-old gelding, was named top sprinter and Jam was voted the leading steeplechaser.

Karl Kling Wins Mex Auto Race

JUAREZ, Mexico (UP)—Karl Kling of Germany was $14,000 richer today because of his brilliant triumph in the 1,738-mile Pan American Auto Road Race, which he called the "greatest race in the world."

The German ace, piloting a Mercedes-Benz, finished the marathon with a total clocking just 35 minutes faster than his fellow countryman, Hermann Lang, who also drove a Mercedes-Benz. Luigi Chinetti of New York, driving an Italian Ferrari, was third, and Umberto Maglioli of Italy, in a Lancia, was fourth.

Jack McAffee of Manhattan Beach, Calif., with a Ferrari, was the first American to finish in the marathon for sports cars, but the Yanks dominated the stock car division.

Finishing in order in the stock car class were Chuck Stevenson of Lynwood, Calif., Johnny Mantz of Los Angeles, Walt Faulkner of Long Beach, Calif., and Bob Korf of Dayton, O., all driving Lincolns. Kling finished the race from Tuxila Gutierrez on the southern border of Mexico to Jares on the northern border with a total driving time of 18 hours, 51 minutes.

North State team may be selected to play in the Lions Bowl at Salisbury on the same date.

Sam Snead Leads Boros Open At Southern Pines

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C. (AP)—Sammy Snead, who has won an impressive list of golf tournaments but still is shooting for his first U. S. Open crown, seems bent on making the Julius Boros Open Tournament the Sam Snead Open.

The 54 hole $5,000 event, held in honor of the reigning U. S. Open champion, Julius Boros, went into its second round today with the slugging man from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., top man in the field of 107. Yesterday he had a first round of 68, four under par, for the 6,399-yard Mid Pines Club Course, Boros' home layout.

Sammy carded four birdies and 14 pars to take a one-stroke lead over Pete Fleming, Hot Springs, Ark., who carded a 35-34-69.

Boros, unable to sink a putt when it meant a birdie, settled for a two under 70, to share third place with six others. He was joined by Clayton Heafner, Charlotte; Pete Cooper, White Plains, N. Y.; Clarence Doser, Southern Pines; Doug Ford, Yorkers, N. Y.; Lou Barabara, Deal, N. J.; and Leo Biagetti, Sandusky, Ohio.

Nine others care in at 71, one under par. Among them were crack amateurs Dick Chapman of Pinehurst and Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O.

Snead, playing his first golf after two weeks of hunting and just plain relaxation, was off and running with a 14-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the first hole. He left himself a six-one-footer on No. 6 and a three-footer on No. 9 for a three under 33. Coming back he had eight pars and a birdie on the par '15th.

Sammy was well pleased by his performance which found him playing steadily with little scrambling. That birdie start was coming up. As Sammy said in the locker room, "Man, when I get a couple under I don't play safe—I just keep charging for more birdies."

Professionals locked at 71 with Chapman and Stranahan were Al Bessellink, Grossinger, N. Y.; Max Evans, Detroit; Charles Farlow and Joe Zarhardt, both of Greensboro; Wally Ulrich, Austin, Minn.; John Kelly, Norfolk, Va., and Canadian Stan Horn.

Perry Discusses Grid Regulations

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—The snafued football playoff schedule in the State Triple A High School Conference was slated for another go over here today.

L. J. (Hap) Perry, executive secretary of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association, yesterday called a meeting for today of representatives from affected teams and Raleigh officials. The group was to consider protests over the present schedule arrangements.

Before the meeting, at least, Winston-Salem Reynolds was slated to meet Charlotte Central at Charlotte Wednesday night. The two teams are tied for the lead in the Western Division of the conference with identical 6-1 records. The winner was scheduled to face Durham's Eastern Division champs in Duke Stadium next Saturday, Nov. 29.

The protests hinge on the fact that a state game-limit rule bans high schools from playing more than one regularly-scheduled game a week. But the rules also designate Nov. 29 as the latest date on which the North Carolina championship may be settled.

National Pro Loop In Four-Way Tie

NEW YORK (UP)—It took five hours of coin-tossing to decide the various National Football League playoff possibilities and it looked like time well spent today as four teams shared the National Conference leadership, while three others were tied for first-place in the American Conference.

The Los Angeles Rams, San Francisco Forty-Niners, Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers were deadlocked for the top spot in the National. The Cleveland Browns, New York Giants and Philadelphia Eagles shared the American lead after Sunday's action.

All seven top clubs have 6-3 records with three games to play. The National Conference could end up in a four-way tie and the three-way deadlock to back Commissioner Bert Bell's prediction of the closest division races in the league's history.

The Rams, Chicago Bears and Eagles pulled the upsets that tightened the already close competition. San Francisco and Detroit started the day tied for the National lead, while Cleveland held a one-game edge in the American.

Los Angeles stretched its victory string to five by whipping San Francisco, 35-9; the Bears snapped a five-game Detroit winning streak, 24-23, behind the magnificent play of makeshift quarterback George Blanda; and the Eagles surprised Cleveland, 28-20.

In the other games, the Packers crushed Dallas, 42-14; the Giants rallied to beat the Washington Redskins, 14-10; and the Pittsburgh Steelers beat the Chicago Cardinals, 17-14.

A rugged defense and the passing of Norm Van Brocklin—the same combination that enabled Los Angeles to beat the Cleveland Browns in the 1951 title game—gave the Rams an easy triumph. The Forty-Niners, who swept their first five games this year, trailed 21-0 before scoring in the final period.

Woody Lewis returned a punt 83 yards to give Los Angeles a 7-0 halftime lead and Van Brocklin pitched a 46-yard scoring pass to end Eloy Hirsch early in the third period. Van Brocklin's passes also set up two short touchdown dashes by halfback Vitamin Smith in the last period and halfback Jack Dwyer made the other Ram TD when he ran 54 yards with a tumble.

The Los Angeles clash drew 77,968 fans. The teams meet again next Sunday at San Francisco. Blanda, a "re-tread" quarterback, was the hero of the Bear victory over Detroit. Blanda, a place-kicking specialist playing his first full game of the season at quarterback, threw three touchdown passes—including the decisive one to end Ed Sprinkle with nine seconds to go—kicked three extra points and a 28-yard field goal. Jack Christiansen appeared to have won the game for the Lions when he scored on a 79-yard punt return with less than two minutes to go. But Blanda ate up 67 yards with two passes, then snapped a short TD pass to Sprinkle and kicked the game-winning extra point.

Ralph Goldston, Philadelphia's rookie fullback, scored twice in the last period as the Eagles wiped out a 20-14 Cleveland lead. Otto Graham, the Cleveland passer, threw two touchdown passes to end Mac Speedie but had trouble throwing against the busy Eagle defense.

Rookie quarterback Fred Benner put some zip in the New York attack after replacing Chuck Conerly late in the second quarter. Benner directed a 76-yard scoring drive in the third period with Kyle Role getting the last two yards and led the fourth-quarter victory drive which ended with fullback Eddie Price scoring on a 14-yard run.

Halback Tony Canadeo, honored by Green Bay fans at the last home game of his 11-year pro career, responded with two touchdowns as the Packers crushed Dallas. Packer quarterback Babe Parilli threw touchdown passes to ends Bill Howton and Bob Mann during the easy triumph.

Elections Board Meets Tomorrow For Canvassing

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Board of Elections will meet here tomorrow to certify the results of the Nov. 4 general election and to hear appeals in two disputes from Brunswick County.

The appeals were filed by Republican candidates W. A. Kopp and C. C. Robbins. Kopp was defeated in the House and Robbins lost out in a county judgeship race. Both want recounts.

The State Board will canvass the returns from congressional, state and the presidential races.

Complete but unofficial returns from the election show a record-breaking total of 1,210,810 votes were cast in the presidential race with Gov. Adlai Stevenson receiving 652,803 to 558,107 for President-Elect Dwight Eisenhower.

New Liability Rate Effective

RALEIGH (AP)—Effective yesterday, Tar Heel car and truck owners will pay an increase of three million dollars a year in automobile liability insurance premiums.

Insurance Commissioner Waldo Cheek said it was clearly shown at a public hearing Nov. 6 that the old rates are inadequate to pay present and future losses. The increase was proposed by the North Carolina Automobile Rate Administrative Office.

The new rates mean increases of $4 to $8 for private automobile owners and $8 to $15 for commercial vehicle owners.

Chapter 15

Slowly Clay felt his body relax. He turned slowly to face the other captains, who had leaped to their feet and crowded forward to follow the fight.

Deliberately he let his eyes travel from one face to the next, until at last they stopped at Web Holland's bearded countenance.

"Any objections?" he demanded flatly.

Web's eyes held his searchingly for an instant and then the great beard split in a grin of pure delight.

"Objections, Colonel? No! There ain't no objections! Seems to me you let him off pretty light, considerin' what a fool he made of himself an' tried to make of you."

Web turned so that his eyes, too, ran over the faces of the men

rather have us hand him with a quirt?"

Clay laughed, all of the tension gone in the amazing resurgence of relief and confidence these fiery-eyed men's approval had bred in him.

"We'll keep him around while Give him the hardest job in the stockade until we're ready to leave. After that, we'll make up our minds what to do with him."

He turned to Web and motioned him back to the table.

"I've got a few more things I want to talk over with you, Web, before you go. The rest of you might as well get under way."

Tyree, take our friend with you and let me see him sweating his tail off when I get out there."

They straggled out, dragging the half-unconscious Sarazan with them. Clay set his chair on its feet and dropped into it. Toni leaned forward and laid her hand on his and he turned his head to smile at her.

"What a fine mess you got me into."

Her quick smile answered his, but there was more than a smile in her eyes as she answered him.

"Yes," she agreed softly, "the blame is mine—and the credit, also. You are my hombre, Clay—my hombre!"

He turned away from her and waved Web into a chair.

"Just what was the matter with Sarazan?" he demanded. "Was it because he didn't like me, or was there something else back of it?"

Web shook his head slowly. "I don't know for sure," he admitted. "He been funny and standoffish ever since he got here. Claimed he lost a big patch of land down by Columbia to the Regulators, but there wasn't ever any special proof that he actually had or hadn't. He had some money and he was pretty free with it, so when there wasn't nothin' surprisin' about the fact that the boys lined up and letted him as captain. Fact is, Colonel, I've got kind of an idea that he was yearnin' to be the colonel of this outfit himself, an' when you stopped in ahead of him, it riled him so bad he just couldn't control himself no longer."

Clay shook his head. "I'm sorry it happened," he said soberly.

"This is a case where one bad apple can ruin a barrelful. Now we'll have to find a new captain for his troop, and I'm going to have to find a new one for yours, too, Web."

Web jerked upright in his chair, his eyes wide with amazement and a shutter of words tumbling from his lips.

"For my troop. Great God, Colonel—"

Clay lifted his hand to dam the flow of words.

"Take it easy," he advised. "I've got to have somebody who knows these men—all of them—and who can act as a link between me and the captains of the troops. You're a major now, Web, and that's why we've got to dig around and root out two new captains instead of one."

"A major," Web shook his head in disbelief. "Major Web Holland."

Suddenly he leaned across the table and stuck out a great hand as vast and hairy as the paw of a bear.

"By God, Colonel," he swore, "I ain't never been a major before, but you can bet your bottom dollar that from now on I'll be the best major that ever et t' tail end out of a captain, or sent a squadron down the road talkin' to themselves."

His hand crushed Clay's in a grip that was like a vise and there he swung himself to his feet and turned away toward the door.

"Major Web Holland!" he repeated softly.

His shoulders straightened and his beard jutted forward even more truculently than before. Moving swiftly, he jerked open the door and stomped briskly down the hall.

Before the day was done some captains would unquestionably be taking their meals off the mantel and more than one private would be muttering dazedly into his beard.

Baby's IQ No Clue To Future

AKRON, O. (UP)—Your baby's high IQ doesn't mean a thing so far as his later intelligence is concerned and neither does a low IQ rating.

Prof. Benjamin Mehlman, Kent State University psychologist, says babies just a few months old don't have enough intelligence to make any kind of report accurate.

"Below two years old, most psychologists would feel squeamish about saying this child has such and such intelligence quotient," he said. "We can make predictions about his intelligence but the science is still imperfect in many ways."

Measurement of a baby's intelligence is usually done by testing his ability to learn or to grasp problem solutions extremely simple solutions, of course.

Firemen Even Mopped Floor

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (U.P.)—It is almost a pleasure to have a fire here, according to Harvey M. Jackson.

Jackson said he returned to his office after lunch, detected a faint smell of smoke and found this note on his desk:

"Sorry we had to force your door. Your fan motor was overheated and the fire department was called. L.J. Montgomery, Lt. Engine No. 1."

Jackson commented: "They even mopped the floor after they put out the fire."

It has been estimated that the United States will reach a population of 200 million well before the end of this century.

Farmers Almanac Puts 1953 As Atomic Year 9

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The Old Farmer's Almanac calls 1953 "atomic year 9."

The latest continuous publication in America is on the stands with its 161st annual edition. As usual it contains weather predictions for the coming year, plus recipes and a splash of philosophy here and there.

Last year the almanac, published in Dublin, N. H., came up with some pretty accurate weather forecasting. "Abe Weatherwise" predicted "stormy" as his overall general description of the winter months. He didn't miss.

Under the heading for this winter he already has hit it on the mark for November. He said the month would start off cool in many areas and stay that way for 10 days, with storms coming toward the end of the month, "chiefly rain."

For December, Abe says: "The first two weeks will bring about as bad weather as you'll want to see for that time of year. But the last two weeks will moderate some and on Christmas Day there will be more bare than snow-covered lawns."

January, the forecaster says, will be "nearly normal" with the thaw coming between the 22nd and 28th.

In February, according to Abe, the groundhog will see his shadow in most places, meaning a long cold we. spring will follow.

"A rainy and stormy month which will conclude the winter's many and various average storms with one 'whopper' falling the week of the 15th to the 22nd. Then it will show some more."

The expert predicts storms for Thanksgiving, but nice weather for Christmas and Labor Day. July 4th will be rainy, and the Memorial Day and Washington's birthday will be overcast.

The almanac hasn't changed much across the years. There is a hole through the top of the book, always, so that you can put a string through it and hang it in the kitchen, just like grandpa used used to do. The editors are proud of what they call the "Farmer's Calendar"—folksy patter published beside the forecasts for each month of the year.

For example, January: "This is the philosophers' month, good for pipe-smoking in the Boston rocker—excellent for feet warming. Ma's activities will be about the same as usual, likely stepped up some—you being under foot or sick—abed from house draughts."

February: "You have probably taken note this time of the year in checking over your tools and farm implements that a good many things seemed missing. Well, why not do something about it? Spend a few dollars and get a branding iron (better with your name than your initials) and brand every wooden handle and machine on the place."

March: "This is the month that puts the 'whether' in the weather prediction. For March is neither winter nor spring and fair weather or foul are about as predictable as March hares."

And so on through the year.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks today extended last week's advance and around noon stood at the gateway to a new high level for more than 21 years.

Railroad issues, leaders in the upturn, with gains ranging to more than 2 points, set a new high since March 10, 1931. The industrial were a few cents under their high since Aug. 26, 1930, last touched on Aug. 11. Utilities were near their best since Sept. 11, 1931.

Trading increased on the rise and the market broadened. Sales to 11 a.m. totaled 410,000 shares, against 330,000 shares in the first hour on Friday. Second hour volume continued large.

Gains were distributed among all leading groups. Numerous special issues joined the rise and more interest developed in speculative issues where Willys-Overland set a new high. Steels and motors firmed.

Best gains in the rails were made

Speaker Reviews Leaf Control Future Outlook

At the Kiwanis Club's Friday meeting J. Con Lanier speaker, reviewed the tobacco production situation in relation to the "change over in Washington from a Democratic to a Republican administration."

He said he anticipated no opposition to the tobacco crop control program from Republicans, except from those in the larger cities of the country.

"I can't conceive of any administration taking the tobacco crop control program as a factor to be eliminated," he declared, "but I was worried about Democratic Secretary of Agriculture Brennan. If he had his way, the tobacco control program would have been junked."

Lanier said this tobacco control program would have a A-I-C-U program is a non-partisan proposition. "The Republicans worked with us in planning the program and maintaining it. Our opponents to crop control are the Democratic members of Congress from the big cities," he declared, and pointed out that the National Grange and the American Farm Bureau Federation have supported the control program.

"We have worked in the hope that the tillers of the soil should have a fair share of the profits from the farming industry, and tobacco is a crop with a quota on production," the speaker said.
Lanier informally talked with the nearly 100 Kiwanians and guests. He is general counsel for Tobacco Associates of the United States and the Leaf Tobacco Exporters' Association. The policy of the crop control program is to strive for natural and necessary production of tobacco, and it never has tried to make a scarcity of the leaf. Normal production in relation to demands, natural competition among tobacco dealers and fair profits for the farmers is the goal. It appears that crop control on farm commodities will continue to get support through 1954 without extra legislation, Lanier pointed out.

In conclusion he reminded that quotas and crop control have brought prosperity to the farmers and he does not anticipate any action by the Republican administration to interfere with the program.

President B. B. Bug of the State Bank and Trust Company introduced the speaker. President Milo Smith presided.

Forgery Trial Is Set For Dec. 8

The case in which Michael J. Besso of Norfolk, Va., is charged with forgery will be tried in Police Court Monday, December 8.

A warrant charges Besso with forging the name of James J. Winstead to a check for $20. Police Chief S.G. Gibbs said they have information that the check was cashed at Mack's Pure Oil Service Station on Highway 11 on November 8.

Police Detective N.H. Bryd, who is investigating the case, said Besso's trial will be held in Police Court here Monday, December 8. Besso provided $500 bail and was released from custody.

Scott Proclaims Thanksgiving Day

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Scott has proclaimed Thursday, Nov. 27, as "a day of general thanksgiving" in North Carolina.

In a proclamation issued over the week end, he urged North Carolinians "to observe the day as one of solemn and public thanksgiving to Almighty God for past blessings and of supplication for his continued kindness and care over us."

Capitol Square

A staunch friend of Secretary of State Thad Eure was pointing out that Eure led the ticket for all offices except Governor, and therefore was proven the most popular official. Somebody then recalled that Eure's Republican opponent also got more votes than any other candidate of his party below Governor—which proved that Eure was the least popular of all Democrats.

MAJORITIES—Further proof that statisticians can make figures say what they want them to say may be found in comparing total and percentage majorities in several races. It is discovered that Charles Carroll for Superintendent of Public Instruction, while getting fewer votes than several other candidates of his party, still received the biggest numerical majority; and that Judge Hunt Parker for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court led all candidates in percentage majority. He got a slightly bigger percentage margin over his opponent, Algernon Butler, than William Umstead received over Herbert Seawell for Governor, just a little under 68 per cent. Another item in the comparison column is that Hamilton C. Jones got more votes in the tenth district than any candidate for Congress had ever received in that district before—but still was defeated by about 23,000.

INADEQUATE—These record breaking totals which still resulted in loss of the election remind again of the oft-quoted wisecrack by the late Governor Broughton when he was asked what he thought about the Wendell Willkie vote for President in 1940. The Governor's cryptic comment was: "Highly complimentary, but utterly inadequate."

Two Thefts On Saturday Night

The thief who robbed the James L. Hardy home on the Washington highway Saturday night absconded with enough domestic equipment to set up housekeeping.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said this morning Hardy's home was robbed of clothing, blankets, sheets—and the thief even went into the deepfreeze and took a chicken. The sheriff stated his department is conducting an investigation, but no one had been arrested today.

A second theft was reported to have happened Saturday night at Mrs. Fannie Hines' service station, also located on the Washington highway.

Sheriff Tyson said the pool table was broken into and an undetermined sum of money in nickels and dimes was stolen. The cash register also was entered and approximately $3.00 in change was missing from the source.

Temporary inspection showed that thieves took eight cartons of cigarettes in addition to the money. The sheriff's office is continuing with the investigation.
There probably is no connection between the two robberies, the sheriff said.

Western N. C. Roads Cleared Of Heavy Snow

ASHVILLE (UP)—Bright sunshine and highway crews quickly cleared western North Carolina roads and highways of a thick snow blanket that isolated some communities and disrupted power and communications over the week-end.

All major highways were reported open today. A 14-inch snowfall downed TVA power lines in Avery county, cutting off electric service to Banner Elk, Elk Park and Newland. Hospitals brought emergency power units into use until the lines were restored.

The snow, first major fall of the season in Western North Carolina, ranged from seven inches near Boone to 18 inches on Max Patch Mountain in Madison County and to from 15 to 18 inches in parts of Graham and Cherokee counties. Lighter falls were reported in Buncombe, Haywood, Swain, Jackson, Yancey and other western counties.

ECC Concert Draws Big Audience Here Sunday

A joint concert Sunday afternoon, November 23, by the East Carolina Orchestra, a community organization, and the Varsity Men's Glee Club of East Carolina College attracted an audience of approximately 800 people from the campus, the city, and elsewhere to the College Theatre. All available space in the auditorium, including standing room, was filled, and many who arrived late were unable to hear the concert.

The program for the afternoon was well received, and both vocal and instrumental numbers were enthusiastically applauded. Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director of the department of music at East Carolina College, was conductor for both groups.

Walter Noona of Norfolk, Va., pianist, a junior music major at East Carolina, was guest soloist with the orchestra. His performance of the Rachmaninoff Concerto No. 2 in C Minor was a special attraction of the program, and his interpretation of the popular concert number received much favorable comment from those present.

Selections by the East Carolina Orchestra included Bach's Komm

Susser Tod, the overture to Von Weber's Der Freischutz, and the Knightsbridge March from Coates' London Everyday Suite.

The Varsity Men's Glee Club, popular music organization of fifty men students at the college, appeared in a group of selections by Handel, Purcell, and Grieg. As closing number on the program, the group sang, with accompaniment by the orchestra, the inspiring Simeone arrangement of Onward Christian Soldiers.

Needs Growing

WASHINGTON (AP)—There will be 27,533,054 public school students enrolled throughout the United States this school year, says the National Education Association.
The association, a national professional organization of educators, said in a report yesterday that this means an increase of about $21,000 over the last school year.

To handle this hike in enrollment, about 25,700 extra teachers are needed, and state and local units are spending 370 million dollars more than a year ago.
