Defense-Buying Program Starting For United States

Billion-Dollar Program For Foreign Purchases; First $90 Million Contract To Be Signed With Britain In About One Week; Will Help Foreign Economies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States was embarked today on a record billion-dollar defense buying program abroad, earmarking almost one-fourth of the fund for its first such purchases of foreign aircraft.

After months of preparation, informed officials said, the first batch of these new orders will be signed with Great Britain in about a week.

These informants said the initial orders will involve some 90 million dollars and will cover production of Britain's famed "Centurion" tank, successfully battle-tested in Korea, for the North Atlantic Treaty (NATO) countries.

Defense Department directives, it was learned, now have gone out for additional foreign buying in 10 other West European countries.

With this go-ahead, American military procurement officers are expected to begin letting contracts for arms, ammunition and supplies in France, Italy, Belgium, Denmark, Luxembourg, West Germany, Greece, Norway, the Netherlands and Switzerland.

But, they said, the billion dollars going to Western Europe under this program will play a very important role in propping up the shaky economies of America's allies.

For the first time, some of the funds will be used to buy complete aircraft overseas. About 225 million dollars is set aside for such production in France, Britain, Italy, the Netherlands and Belgium.

Tentative plans call for these countries to ship to 125 million dollars to make possible a coordinated production program covering the French "Mystere" fighter and the British "Swift" interceptor and all-weather "Venom."

American procurement experts who told of these plans cautioned against any belief that a flood of military equipment could be expected in the next few months.

In most cases, they said, 30 to 50 days will be required to complete specific arrangements and actual production may require months, perhaps years.

But, they said, the billion dollars going to Western Europe under this program will play a very important role in propping up the shaky economies of America's allies.

Offshore procurement by the United States began late in 1951. In the six-month period which ended last June 30 a total of 621 million dollars in orders had been placed abroad.

The record billion-dollar fund is 282 million dollars less than Congress appropriated for "defense support aid" in the year ending next June 30.

Contracts for offshore procurement last fiscal year emphasized ammunition, spare parts, electronic equipment and naval vessels. The specific items now being added are being kept secret but officials said many new supplies are included, among them the completely foreign-made aircraft.

Trygve Lie Fires Nine American UN Employes

Apparently Dismissed For Refusal To Answer Queries On Communism

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—U. N. sources said Secretary-General Trygve Lie fired nine American employes today for refusing to answer McCarran committee questions about Communist affiliations and subversive connections.

This brings to 18 the number dismissed in 1952 for this cause. Lie, in a formal statement, warned his staff of 3,000 they face the same fate if they act similarly.

The new notices of dismissal were contained in letters, the U. N. sources said, which are expected to be made public later today. The terms and mechanics of the firings are also expected to be announced.

Lie, in his statement to the secretary, said he was following the advice of a distinguished three-man panel of international jurists who recommended this course.

He announced that within a few days he would set up an advisory panel to help him in dealing with specific cases.

The nine have been on special leave with pay—but banned from entering the U. N. Secretariat—since they refused to answer questions by the U. S. Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, headed by Sen. Pat McCarran (D-Nev.), on constitutional grounds that their answers might incriminate them.

Lie was said to have served an ultimatum to the nine last Monday to answer these questions to him by noon yesterday or face firing. Their answers all were reported unsatisfactory.

The nine employes on special leave who reportedly were to be fired today were Frank C. Bancroft, editor, documents division; Hope Dorothy Eldridge, population statistics expert, department of economic affairs; Jack S. Harris, researcher on trusteeship matters; Julia Older Baiser, editor, documents division; Jane M. Reed, library employee; Joel Goroum, expert on current trade analysis; Sydney Glassman, junior economist; and Leon Elverson, library clerk.

Allied Bombers Pound Red Lines

SEOUL (AP)—Allied fighter-bombers plastered Chinese Reds on the Central Front for the third straight day today.

Other U. N. warplanes ranged deep into North Korea and attacked Communist supply and troop targets.

Action was virtually nil along the frozen battle front. The Reds threw no more than 40 men into their scattered jobs at the Allied lines.

A U. N. raiding party shot up a Chinese outpost on the Western Front Thursday. The raiders withdrew to their own lines after killing an estimated 58 Reds.

Sub-zero temperatures discouraged action almost all along the front. Allied artillery duelled with the Communist guns early today. Spotters reported 31 Communist bunkers were hit.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (UP)—Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett today thanked the American press, radio, television, and newsmen for their help in protecting the security of President-elect Eisenhower on his Korean trip.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Mrs. David W. Wallace, President Truman's mother-in-law, died today at 12:35 p.m. at the White House.

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Elections subcommittee announced today it has asked for a recount in the disputed Michigan senatorial election and requested that all ballots "be properly preserved."

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman today accepted the resignation of Walter J. Donnelly as U. S. high commissioner for Germany. The President heaped praise on the 56-year-old diplomat for an "outstanding career" in the foreign service.

Another 'Scoop' For AP Writer

Whitehead Adds Korea Trip With Ike To Long List Of Firsts

The big story is the perennial beat of Don Whitehead, Pulitzer Prize winning Associated Press staff member who accompanied President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower to Korea.

The tall, 44-year-old Kentuckian has been in the middle of the big story almost from the day that World War II caught up the United States.

Whitehead was with the British Eighth Army when it made its link-up with Eisenhower's forces in North Africa, sealing the doom of the powerful German Afrika Korps.

When the late George S. Patton stormed ashore at Sicily, Whitehead was there.

D-Day found him landing on Normandy's bloody beach with the great forces that Eisenhower threw across the English Channel.

Whitehead covered the major U.S. Army campaigns in Europe to V-E Day. His accounts of the decisive breakout of the U. S. First Army from its Rhine bridgehead were models of swift and dramatic reporting.

In Korea with Eisenhower, Whitehead was on familiar soil.

Whitehead was sent to the front from Washington shortly after the North Korean Communist Army invaded South Korea in the summer of 1950.

An old hand at the beachheads, he was with Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces when they made the famous Inchon landing in September of 1950, the blow that broke the back of the North Korean army.

Shortly thereafter, forces moving out of Inchon crossed the Han River, formidable barrier to Seoul. Whitehead was there. His humanized but forceful account of the crossing of the Han won a Pulitzer Prize.

Young New Head Of CIO Pledges 'Great Crusade'

Reuther Fires Warning At Industry Of New Militant Spirit For 'Justice'

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP)—Walter P. Reuther, battling young new president of the CIO, served notice on the nation today that organized labor is going on a "great human crusade."

Reuther fired warnings on industry and government that the 4,000,000-member CIO, under his leadership, would aim to "recapture the crusading spirit."

In the aftermath of his dramatic election victory Thursday over rival CIO candidate Allan S. Haywood, the 45-year-old president of the United Workers said that "failing to get economic justice . . . we shall march together on the picket lines of America getting what is rightfully ours."

Reuther pledged a new militancy to the CIO and warned that labor was out to get "economic justice." But the boyish-looking scrapper, head of the powerful auto union the past six years, set his sights on wider, international goals.

He promised that the CIO would "stand and work with free men everywhere . . . you cannot make freedom secure in the world as long as hundreds of millions of people are denied the necessities of life, as long as millions and millions of people are committed to belong to the have-not nations . . ."

But Reuther vented most of his feelings against "our enemies" in a summary of his program as president of the CIO. He said these were the "fat men on the plush cushions . . . in the union league clubs and millionaires' clubs all over America . . . who would drive us back and rob us of our hard-won social and economic gains."

Reuther stated his program in an hour-long address to the convention after his election and "one critic promptly remarked: "He'll be using the platform of the CIO to make that speech all across the country."

While holding the esteem of his fellow union members, Reuther is not considered "one of the boys." After the election, it was announced that the non-smoking, non-drinking Reuther would drink a beer to his victory.

But the betting was that the beer was never downed by the purposeful labor chief.

Reuther has been battling for labor since the age of 15 when he went to work as an apprentice tool and die maker. He was fired soon after for organizing the workers against Sunday work.

In 1926, Reuther first tangled with the auto industry and seven years later was again fired for union activity. He climaxed his early fight in leading the sit-down strikes at the auto plants in the middle 30's and rose to vice president of the Auto Workers union in 1942.

On his way up, Reuther made a lot of enemies. In 1948, while sitting in the kitchen of his Detroit home, an unidentified assailant fired a shotgun blast through the window and seriously injured his right arm. Reuther, still partially paralyzed from the attack, has since been accompanied by a bodyguard.

Leaving Board Of Agriculture

RALEIGH (AP)—Miss Ethel Parker of Gatesville today resigned as a member of the State Board of Agriculture after 11 years. Gov. Scott immediately appointed R. V. Knight Sr., 59, of near Tarboro to serve the remainder of her term, until next May 4.

Miss Parker, a successful peanut farmer and timber grower, had represented the state's peanut growers on the board and had worked for establishment of a peanut test farm. This goal was achieved this year.

Aldermen Receive Petition For Council-Manager Vote

New Firemen

On recommendation of Fire Chief George Gardner the Greenville Board of Aldermen last night voted to employ four additional firemen in the local fire department.

The four men, all of whom were present at the board's regular monthly meeting, will assume their duties with the department January 1, 1953.

The four new firemen are Harvey Case, 22, Amos Harrell, 26, Claude Christopher, 28, and J.B. Meeks, 27. Case, Harrell and Meeks have been serving as volunteer firemen.

Christopher is currently a sergeant with the Greenville Police Department, but authoritative sources have it that he will stay with the local force until the first of the year.

A report on the fire sub-station currently being renovated in West Greenville indicated that "unusually good" progress is being made on the project.

Alderman R.E. Rogers said all partitions have been constructed and he intimated the entire project may be completed for less money than the board originally anticipated.

Tunisian Leader Assassin Victim

Nationalist Spokesman Found Shot To Death In His Car

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP)—Farhat Hached, Tunisian trade union official and a Nationalist leader, was found shot to death last night near his bullet-riddled automobile on a highway south of Tunis.

French authorities immediately placed a 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew on Tunis and the surrounding area. The murder came at a time when Tunisia's demands for independence from French colonial rule were being heard at the United Nations sessions in New York. France has boycotted the debate in the U. N. Political Committee.

Hached had planned to attend a meeting of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions (ICTFU) leaders in New York, but the French had refused him permission to leave Tunisia. The Tunisian Labor Federation lodged a protest against the action on Tuesday, saying this was the fourth time Hached had been prevented from making trips abroad.

The French said they banned the trip because Hached made political speeches on previous trips out of the country.

Gen. Jean de Hautecloque, the French resident-general in Tunisia, was in Paris at the time of the slaying. He left immediately by plane for Tunis.

ON THE TAKE

Names Of 1,860 Registered Voters Contained In Request For Referendum; Utilities' Status Remains Uncertain Issue

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor

If the act presented to Greenville's aldermen by local Jaycees last night is found to be in order, the board is required to call a special city-manager election within the next five days.

In other words, N. C. Statutes provide that the date of the special referendum be set within a five-day period from the time the petition is filed; the election itself must be held within 40 days from the filing date.

J.B. Kittrell, Jr., chairman of the Jaycee city manager project committee, filed with the board a petition containing the names of 1,860 registered voters in the city and requested that an election on the city-manager issue be called.

Plan "D"

It was brought out that the only city manager plan citizens may vote on is the so-called Plan "D", which is provided for in the statutes and calls for five councilmen, who elect a mayor from their own ranks, and a city manager.

City Attorney R.B. Lee made the observation that Plan "D" sets out a maximum salary for both mayor and members of the council. The mayor's maximum salary is $1,800, and council members are limited to an annual stipend of $600. The city manager's salary is set by the council.

The most pertinent question to arise from the board's discussion on city manager form of municipal government was "Will the Greenville Utilities Commission be included under the jurisdiction of a city manager — if the people of the city indicate they want one?"

Utilities Status

The city attorney said the attorney general's opinion on that question is very vague. "In fact," Lee stated, "the attorney general has informed us that a test case may be needed to definitely determine the exact status of the utilities commission under a city manager — as provided for in Plan "D".

Even if the plan does not provide for control of the utilities, Lee declared, the plan may be modified to include the utilities by an act of the legislature — if the people see fit to put it to their representatives.

As set up, the plan merely calls for the city manager to have charge of all departments of city government. The Supreme Court has never handed down a ruling dealing specifically with that question.

Check Books

Board members instructed Mayor or Lester D. Page and City Clerk H.H. Duncan to check the petition against registration books to determine whether all petitioners are qualified, and call a joint meeting with the Pitt County Board of Elections. The meeting was set for Tuesday.

Spent Three Days Inspecting Combat Units, Conferring With Syngman Rhee And Top Military Chiefs; Reminds Newsmen He Made Trip 'To Learn'; Has No Panaceas

SEOUL (AP)—U.S. President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower took a hard look at the Korean War situation for three days, inspected combat units near the front, and departed today for the United States.

He indicated that he does not believe in attacking Red China or otherwise spreading the 2 1/2-year-old conflict.

Eisenhower was well-guarded and he was in excellent spirits. Shortly before his departure, Eisenhower visited President Syngman Rhee of South Korea for a hastily arranged conference.

A source closest to Rhee said the two exchanged notes which may be made public tomorrow.

It was Eisenhower's last act in his three-day tour and lifted a veil of disappointment that had prevailed in South Korean government circles since it had been indicated he might not pay his respects to Rhee.

Eisenhower had met Rhee at Eighth Army Headquarters but had not called on the ROK president.

The meeting averted a possible loss of face for the United States in Asia.

The Eighth Army announced that the world-famed, colorful general had completed his whirlwind tour of this war-torn nation. The general-chief of the crusade to victory in Europe in World War II was fulfilling a promise he made to American voters in making the trip.

Whether this unprecedented mission will prove to be a failure or a success—only time can tell.

The general told a news conference before leaving: "We came over here to learn. We have no panaceas, no trick ways of settling any problem."

But he strongly indicated the solution to the Korean conflict does not lie in spreading the war to attack Red China. He said: "How difficult it seems to be in a war of this kind to work out a plan that would bring a positive and definite victory without possibly running a grave risk of enlarging the war. There are many limitations on a war of this kind, but this much is certain. . . . Much can be done, in my opinion, to improve our position—much will be done."

Eisenhower added that on his way home he would meet with members of his staff to study "everything we have learned here."

Eisenhower left as secretly and quietly as he came. He arrived Tuesday and left today.

He found Korea war and cold, heaped with the dead and rubble of war, a war among nations shivering in its third war winter's snows.

Raleigh Will Try Collect Tax On State Property

RALEIGH (AP)—If the city of Raleigh has its way it will start collecting taxes on state property here.

Mayor James Briggs said yesterday that the total valuation of state property was well in excess of 75 million dollars. He said that the city council has authorized him to appear before the 1953 Legislature and request permission to tax the property.

Briggs said the city wants to apply its tax rate of $1.35 per $100 valuation to all state property, including buildings and real estate. It was estimated that this would bring in about one million dollars a year.

That is the amount if the full valuation were accepted, which isn't likely, since tax rates aren't usually based on actual value.

Ex-Policeman Again To Join City's Force

A Greenville policeman who resigned from the force last July to enter private employment was rehired last night on recommendation of Police Chief S. G. Gibbs.

The board of aldermen approved the re-employment of Clifton Ray Howard, 31, a former police officer who left the department in late summer to go with a local tobacco company.

According to Chief Gibbs, Howard will re-join the police force tomorrow if circumstances permit. He was hired to fill a current vacancy resulting from the recent resignation of H. B. Lilley, former sergeant with the traffic division.

The chief suggested several changes in the department, all of which were speedily approved by the board. Essentially, the proposed changes affect the office of clerk of Recorder's Court and the detective division.

Clerk Changed

"We would like to bring E. J. Dees, Recorder's Court clerk, back into the police department," Chief Gibbs said, "but as our budget is not sufficient to carry him at present we want him to continue under his own budget until the first of the year."

Gibbs said with Dees in the front office, the department as a whole could be better utilized, making for a more efficient force. Dees was removed from the police department and his office was set up under a separate budget about two years ago.

The board also approved the elevating of an additional plainclothesman from the uniformed ranks. The chief said most break-ins in the city happen at night, and he stressed the need of an additional detective to make that division more effective.

Gibbs stated last night he does not definitely know yet who will be promoted to the detective division, but he intimated the change will be made soon.

Tell Of Racketeering On N.Y. Waterfront

NEW YORK (AP)—State Crime Commission witnesses say shipping firms must submit to mob rule, theft and padded payrolls to avoid labor strife or New York's vast waterfront.

The dock probe hearings, which went through a second session yesterday, are aimed at exposing racketeers which take an estimated $30-million-dollar annual bite out of the seven-billion-dollar yearly Thomas Maher, a 40-year veteran on the waterfront, testified how he was employed by the Grace Line — "a phantasm employe whose wages went to an ex-convict."

Maher said Tim O'Mara, a public loader with a police record, collected more than $25,000 in wages over a seven-year period for a non-existent job known as "Edward Joseph Ross."

International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) now is supervisor of hiring bosses for the Grace Line.

Maher testified he once had to re-hire a man, previously fired on charges of thievery, "on orders from 14th Street" — headquarters of Joseph P. Ryan, ILA president.

Maher said the man, John Scanlon, from then on "did, maybe, an hour's work a day" and collected a full day's pay.

The witness corroborated earlier testimony concerning the theft of 10 tons of steel from a United States Lines pier. The firm gave up that particular pier after only six months' occupancy.

If watchmen turned in a thieving dock hand, Maher said, the longshoremen "would strike."

He further testified that the union decided whom he should hire as supervisory employes on his pier. "If that wasn't done, Maher said, "you'd have a strike off your hands."

First Presbyterian Announcements

This Sunday morning at 9:45 o'clock we will enter our new Educational Building. We have anticipated this occasion for a long time. The fulfillment of our dreams and plans will be a red letter day in the life of our church. We know that every member of the church and Sunday School will be present for the celebration. Our gratitude and praise we express to Almighty God for His direction and blessing.

Our building will provide a room for a new class—the Young Adults. All persons, ages 20-35, are urged to be present and to support this special project of our Sunday School which will meet on the first floor next to the Nursery Department.

Our church has provided a beautiful room for our students of East Carolina College. This room will be furnished as a chapel. We cordially invite all college students to take advantage of this class. The room is located on the first floor.

We have needed not only a new educational building, but also much class room equipment. The first offering to be received in the building will be devoted to new equipment.

Wyatt Brown Guest Speaker For Book Club

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. B. W. Moseley was a gracious hostess to the End of the Century Club at her home on Fifth Street.

Following a brief business meeting, the president, Mrs. Joe Mosey, presented Mr. Wyatt Brown, who delighted the group with an interesting account of his recent trip to Mexico.

He said that Mexico has a modified Socialist form of government, and that the huge estates have been broken up and small parcels of land distributed to the peons. Cardenas, who was recently elected president, was in the midst of his campaign while he was there.

He dwelt briefly on the geography, the climate, industries, culture, and art of the various periods of Mexican history, making his hearers feel that they had taken the trip with him.

Miss Dolores Matthews, a music student at East Carolina College, was then presented by Mrs. Moseley. Miss Matthews pleased her audience with her beautiful rendition of Bach's "Prelude and Toccata, number 1," "Intermezzo in A Major" by Brahms, and "The Cat and the Mouse" by Aaron Copland.

Mrs. James Fleming was welcomed by Mrs. Mosey as a new member of the club.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Bancroft Moseley, Mrs. J. F. Arthur, Mrs. J. B. Spilman, and Mrs. R. C. Stokes, served a delicious turkey dinner.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Sellars Crisp, Miss Mary Rose Crisp, Mrs. Bancroft Moseley, Miss Dolores Matthews, Mr. Wyatt Brown and Mr. Durham.

Robert Shaw Chorale Appearing Here At College On December 15

The Robert Shaw Chorale and String Ensemble will appear in a program at East Carolina College Monday evening, December 15, at 8:00 o'clock in the Wright Building, according to an announcement by Dr. Richard Todd, chairman of the college Entertainment Committee. The program will be the fifth number on the East Carolina Entertainment Series for 1925-1926.

Robert Shaw, organizer of the group of thirty-two singers and conductor of the Chorale, has had a remarkable career. In 1938 he became director of the glee club for the popular Fred Waring shows and continued this until he entered the Navy in 1945.

In 1941 he organized the now-famous Collegiate Chorale, which has sung at Carnegie Hall, Town Hall, the New York City Center, and elsewhere. This group has also appeared in choral works conducted by Toscanini, Szymanowski, Koussevitzky, and others and has recorded for RCA Victor.

After his discharge from the Navy Shaw became choral director for the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Mass., and director of choral activities at the Juilliard School of Music. "I do not know his equal in the choral field today," the New York Herald Tribune said of Shaw, young conductor still in his thirties.

The program to be offered at East Carolina includes such widely varied numbers as Schubert's "Mass in G Major," Ernest Bloch's "Second Service," Avodath Hokedeh, songs by Brahms and Debussy; a group of Spanish carols, and selections from Johann Strauss' "Dio Fiedermaus."

The Robert Shaw Chorale, says a recent review, have won high praise "for the accuracy and clearness of their ensemble, the delicacy and expressiveness of their interpretations, their wide range of dynamic levels, from the most subdued pianissimo to tonal splendor that threatens to take the roof off."

The service is an annual event presented by Methodist students at East Carolina College. The public is invited to attend.

used in the service are reproductions of pictures by Elsie Anna Wood, English artist who painted her pictures in the Holy Land. The production is directed by Mamie Chandler, director and sponsor of the Wesley Players.

Cargile-Carson Vows Are Spoken In Formal Rites

On Thursday afternoon, November 27 at the Avden Methodist Church, Miss Anne Carson became the bride of Alton Frederick Cargile with the Rev. C. M. Fogleman officiating in a double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jesse William Carson of Bethel and the late Mr. Carson. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. George Murry Cargile of Parmele and the late Mr. Cargile.

The wedding music was presented prior to and during the ceremony by Mrs. Roy Turnage, organist, Miss Jo Ann Padley, a niece of the bride, was the soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Wade Carson, wore a gown of chantilly lace with a yoke of illusion, long lace sleeves and a bouffant, accordion-pleated skirt. Her fingertip veil was of illusion attached to a tiara of pearls. Her bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley was centered with a white orchid.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Edgar Eugene Padley, who was matron of honor, wore a dress of pink net over taffeta with a sweetheart neckline, stole and a full skirt. She carried a bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums with blue satin streamers.

The bridesmaids were Miss Jean Cargile, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Velma Collins of Jacksonville. Their gowns of light blue net over taffeta were made like the matron of honor's.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. L. J. Wilson of Durham, Mrs. A. C. Turnage Jr. of Rocky Mount, Miss Nell Beaman of Farmville, Miss Alice Berry of Fremont, and Miss Betty Jean Padley, niece of the bride. They were dressed in pastel shades.

Winston Cargile of Robersonville was his brother's best man. The ushers were John Whitman of Greenville, John Roberson, Gerald Dixon, and John E. Nelson of Robersonville.

The mother of the bride wore a

Sans Souci Club Laying Plans For Christmas

The Sans Souci Book Club met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Key Brown at her attractive home on East Fifth Street after a most cordial welcome by the hostess. The club was called to order by Mrs. Herbert Waldrop, who presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. S. T. White.

The usual routine business was transacted after which the members discussed plans for their Christmas work. It was decided to help a needy family and bring Christmas happiness and cheer into their home.

Mrs. Louis Gavlor gave the program for the afternoon. Her subject was "Governors of North Carolina." She gave a most interesting and informative talk on the lives and accomplishments of the most outstanding governors of the state from colonial times to the present.

During the social hour, Mrs. Brown, assisted by Mrs. M. L. Wright, served enjoyable and dainty refreshments.

The Pythian Banquet eagerly looked forward to by members and friends of the fraternity in the community, was held last night at the Carolina Club and proved a great success from all points of view. The ladies of the Christiania church served the banquet. A stirring aggregation of players, at present in the community was engaged to furnish the music. Over 120 guests gathered around the table and did justice to the most excellent menu. The toastmaster read the story of Damon and Pythias, one of the basis of Pythianism. It was well towards one o'clock when the guests rose from the table and left the club after spending one of the most enjoyable evenings it had been their lot to attend.

Wesleyan Service Guild Has Christmas Party

The most outstanding meeting of the year for the Wesleyan Service Guild was its Christmas dinner meeting held Thursday evening, December 4, in the Ellington Bible Classroom of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. The whole atmosphere centered around Christmas, and once again the Spirit of Christmas reigned.

The invocation was given by Miss Frances Wahl, after which a delicious and sumptuous dinner was served by the Lydia Wooten Sunday School class.

Afterwards, Miss Jane Hadley, President, commented on the decorations and the attractive "Rosty, the Snow Man" favors. Members of the Lydia Wooten class who prepared and served the dinner, members of the Guild in charge of the decorations, and the guests, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Russell, were recognized.

An inspiring devotional—"Christmas Meditations"—was given by Mr.

Leon Russell. Mr. Russell reminded the Guild that Christmas is a "poetic day, looking not so much backward, as forward; it is a history of the future, of an order of life not yet attained, of a religion not yet realized. To our dull eyes it seems visionary, but to God it is a vision of a world yet to be."

Mrs. Margaret Farley then talked on "Christmas Symbols", listing some interesting fantastic customs of the time.

The meeting was then turned over to Miss P. y Brown, who led the group in singing Christmas songs, in playing Christmas games, and then in a very talented way she entertained the group by pantomiming the record, "Rudolph the Red-Nose Reindeer."

The gifts piled by a table in front were given to Mrs. Cora Powell to be distributed to the needy on behalf of the Kings Daughters.

Christmas could not be Christmas if the Guild had not remembered its little boy, Billy Braswell, at the Methodist Orphanage. It was brought out that a letter would be written to Billy to ascertain just what he would like to have.

And lastly, the President extended to everyone Christmas greetings and wishes for a most prosperous New Year.

Dr. Martha Pingel To Address Faculty Club On Thursday Evening

Dr. Martha Pingel, faculty member of the department of English at East Carolina College, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Faculty Lecture Club of the college scheduled for Thursday, December 11, at 8 p. m. in the Planagan building. The topic of discussion will be "Modern Man — Fact or Fantasy."

Dr. Pingel, who teaches English and philosophy at East Carolina, has announced that her talk will be a philosophic approach to the subject of modern man, "through the eyes of modern fiction writers and poets."

Non-members of the club who wish to hear the discussion will be welcome guests at the meeting.

Dr. Pingel has been a member of the East Carolina faculty for the past five years. At present she holds the office of secretary of the North Carolina Philosophic Society. She is the author of "An American Utilitarian: Richard Hildreth as a Philosopher," published by the Columbia University Press, and of "Satalyst: An Interpretation of Life," a volume of poems published by the Exposition Press.

Winterville Coed In Contest Finals

Miss Barbara Worthington, a Junior at Duke University, has been chosen as one of six finalists, out of 40 girls, as "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi." The "Sweetheart" will be selected tonight at a dance at the Country Club in Durham.

Miss Worthington is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Worthington of Winterville.

Dr. Haney Host To Kiwanis Officials

Dr. H. Glenn Haney, immediate past president of the Greenville Kiwanis Club, was host at supper to the club officers and directors at Respass Brothers last night.

President Milo Smith, who presided, announced that it was the last directors' meeting of the year. Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, dean of East Carolina College, new president, and recently elected officers and directors will be installed at the first meeting of the club on January 2.

Calls No Inquests In Three Deaths During Period

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse said this morning that no inquests would be held as the result of three deaths occurring in the county since December 2.

The coroner said all three deaths, two involving babies, were all due to "natural causes." Listed by Rouse were the deaths of Riley Stanell, Angela Louise Newton, and Dennis Earl Worsley.

Stanell, a 73-year-old Negro, died at his home in the Belvoir township early Tuesday morning. He lived on the Don Lewis farm. Angela Newton, three-month-old Negro baby girl, died in Farmville Tuesday, and Dennis Worsley, eight-month-old Negro baby, died Wednesday in Greenville.

Miss Lambie Recounts Her Trip To Alaska

Mrs. J. Bryan Brown was hostess to Chatham Book Club, Tuesday December 2, at 3:30 o'clock. Upon arrival the guests were served a delicious sweet course, coffee and nuts by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Luther Bowling and Mrs. N. S. Beard.

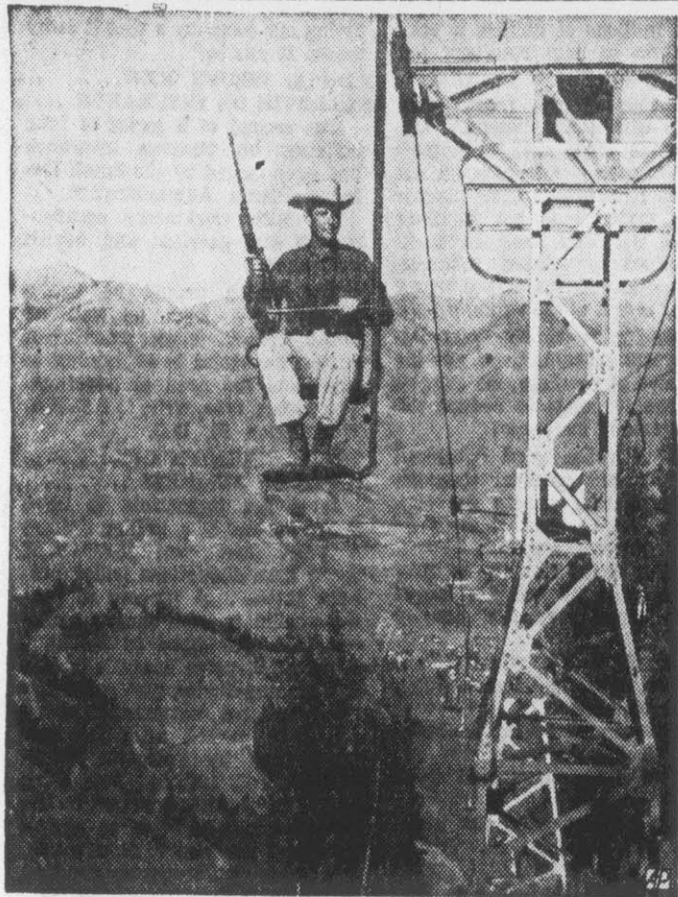

A short business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Bowling at which time books were exchanged.

Miss Ruth Lambie, nursery school teacher of E. C. C. was presented by program chairman, Mrs. Carl Adams. Miss Lambie spoke in a most interesting way of her recent trip to Alaska this past summer. She was teaching a six weeks course at the University of Alaska at Fairbanks. She told of her many rare side trips in search of wild animal life, flowers, birds. She brought Alaska, its busy, sturdy, industrious people closer to the members and made them more aware of the marvelous beauty of Alaska. Her film strip was most delightful as it showed the three main industries of the country; gold mining, fishing and the fur trade. It's interesting people came alive on the screen and the beauty of the country, "h its vivid color, its gorgeous sun, its snow capped ranges, its dogs, dog sleighs on the ice and snow are never to be forgotten. Her thrilling trip of the flight over the arctic circle was a thrill to see as well as to hear about. At the close of her interesting lecture, fascinating curios were shown—hand crafts and minerals of Alaska.

Strength for the Day

FOUNDATIONS
Not far from here a young man and his wife have just finished building their home. While they had some help from professional plumbers and electricians, they did almost all the rest of the work themselves; choosing their site, drawing plans, buying materials, and actually erecting the house.

One of the most difficult and also most important parts of the work will scarcely show now that the house is finished—the foundations. They knew the least about doing this part, and as far as physical work, it was the hardest of all. But they were sure of one thing; no matter how good the rest of the house was, it would be worthless without good foundations.

These people are sensible. They are building their lives the same way they have built their home. They want the best possible foundation for happy and successful living. So they have become members of a church—active members, trying to live the Christianity they profess and let others know what Christian living means.

Jesus said, "Whoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock."

Mail Early And Avoid The Rush

Extra packages by the thousands and cards by the thousands will soon be pouring through the post offices of Pitt County as the Christmas mailing rush reaches its peak.

As usual during the Christmas rush there will be people who decide to wait until the last minute to do their Christmas mailing; thinking, of course, they will be just behind the real rush.

There will be others who, in the hurry of getting off those packages to far-away places and those cards to numerous friends, carelessly scrawl an illegible name and address on their mail.

As a result there will be large piles of undelivered packages and cards still in the post offices come Christmas Eve. Some of those will be delivered later, but many will find their way into the dead letter categories because insufficient addresses will prevent their being delivered.

Postmasters throughout Pitt County have asked the people to do their Christmas mailing early—and more carefully—this year than in past years. The request of course, is nothing new. It comes every year about this time; and fortunately each year more and more people heed the plea.

Nevertheless the Christmas rush of mail continues to be a great problem for the post offices.

There are three simple rules which the people of Pitt County can follow in Christmas mailing to help themselves, the post office, and other people who are doing Christmas mailing.

(1) Mail early. Don't wait until the last minute to get off those packages and cards. If they arrive early they will still keep until Christmas. (2) Use complete addresses with names and numbers to facilitate delivery of the mail. (3) Be sure addresses are clear and readable.

It may take a little more effort to get the Christmas mail in the form of the post offices have requested, but it will insure better postal service and more prompt deliveries on Christmas cards and packages.

Controls Tossed Out The Window

Those members of the Wage Stabilization Board who have resigned in the wake of President Truman's decision to give John L. Lewis' miners a $1.90 wage boost can hardly be blamed for walking out on their jobs.

After all, it is reasonable to believe those members of the WSB took their jobs upon the assumption that their duty was to hold the line on inflation. If their considered opinions on what higher wages and higher prices would be "inflationary" to the nation's economy are to be arbitrarily thrown aside by the Chief Executive, then their function is no longer needed by the nation.

It was during October that the Wage Stabilization Board announced its decision that Lewis' miners should not be allowed more than a $1.50 per day wage increase under the wage-price stabilization laws. To allow the full $1.90 increase agreed to by the miners and the companies would not be in the best interest of the nation, the board said.

It also was during October when John L. Lewis ordered his miners back to work after a week of idleness, saying he was sure a satisfactory solution to the wage increase question would be reached. Lewis' announcement came following a conference he had with President Truman, and The Reflector speculated at the time that the President had assured Lewis the miners would get the full $1.90 increase despite the WSB decision.

Perhaps the executive action overruling the WSB in the miners' case is a final political gesture by Truman toward the miners and their union leader. Perhaps, on the other hand, Truman felt the government could not now cope with a miners strike during the transition period between administrations.

By his action in favor of the miners over the WSB, Mr. Truman probably has removed the possibility of a coal miners strike from the early burdens which will be shouldered by the new president.

Nevertheless, the action which President Truman has taken may well be the kiss of death to the whole wage and price control structure in the country. For the past few weeks it has been rumored the President would do away with controls altogether.

It seems to us, however, a good bet that Truman, after having laid the groundwork for killing the controls, will leave the act itself in the hands of the incoming President who may be blamed for any ill effects the lack of controls has upon the economy of the nation.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—General restoration of business confidence by the Eisenhower election has produced what Wall Street and the nation's industrial leaders describe as an "Ike boom." There has been no comparable upsurge since Calvin Coolidge defeated John W. Davis, a house of Morgan lawyer, in 1924.

Stocks have climbed to a 22-year high since November 4, with one depressed railroad securities leading the way. Earnings, dividends and prospects are bright. Production and employment are so strong that there are labor shortages in many defense areas. The national wage average has reached a record of $70.80. Prices remain steady or are moving downward slightly. Plants are still planning expansion of facilities for 1953. With or without large-scale government assistance, the key building industry may build a million homes next year.

There is no longer any talk of a "1953 recession." With proper planning and the sensible use of Federal controls at Washington after January 20, present conditions are counted on to last for several years, barring the outbreak of World War III.

SPIRIT OF OPTIMISM—Although Eisenhower will not take office for more than a month, his selection of such hard-headed businessmen as Humphrey, Wilson, Aldrich and Dodge has improved the "economic climate," to use the expression most frequently heard at Broad and Wall Streets and similar financial communities.

The money men hope that these changes will be reflected positively and affirmatively in budget and tax cuts, fewer anti-trust suits based on the belief that "bigness" itself is bad, and in less experimentation at Washington.

But even if these goals cannot be achieved overnight, and it is doubtful if they can be, the release from Roosevelt-Truman tension and pressures is sufficient to stimulate the current spirit of optimism. For the first time in 20 years, there is a friendly and understanding attitude toward the system of private enterprise at the Nation's Capitol.

PEACE FURTHER AWAY—This upward trend impresses public and private economists as especially remarkable because it has arrived in the face of unsettled world conditions. It seems to defy the argument that the United States cannot remain prosperous in and of itself.

Peace with Russia in the cold war, or even on the Korean front, appears to be more distant and impossible than ever. Military operations and assistance there and elsewhere—Indo-China, Greece, Turkey—will require heavy expenditures indefinitely.

In view of Franco-German quarrels, the hope for economic and industrial unification of Europe is diminishing. Recent communiques bring word of a general slump in all the countries of Western Europe except France. Our foreign exports will drop as a result of "austerity" programs which those nations must adopt.

STOCK SPECULATION LACKING—Another strange but encouraging factor in the "Ike boom" is that the element of stock speculation, unlike 1924-1929 days, is lacking. Solid expansion of productive facilities and purchasing power buttress the movement, although rearmament's contribution is considerable.

Nobody repeats 1928 predictions that "we have reached a new and permanent plateau of prosperity" for they recall 1929's disastrous echoes. But the kind of men surrounding the President-elect is accepted as a guarantee against another cycle of "boom and bust."

Contrary to the 1924-1929 mistake, and to certain current inflationary practices in high places, it is felt that the incoming Administration will apply the necessary brakes and guidance, in the event that they become necessary.

Moreover, warnings from them will be taken more seriously than from the professors and politicians who have managed the nation's economy for the last two decades.

DULLES REGARDED AS ANTI-BRITISH—The appointment of Winthrop W. Aldrich to the Court of St. James was almost an "Eisenhower must" in order to quiet official British concern over the policies of John F. Dulles, who becomes Secretary of State next year. It will also minimize London's regret over the loss of Dean Acheson, who has been characterized humorously as "England's able Foreign Secretary."

Rightly or wrongly, Dulles is regarded overseas as anti-British. He rejected the demand of English merchants that Japan's textile and mercantile industries be scrapped in the peace treaty. He negotiated a Pacific Pact with Australia and New Zealand that did not include Britain. Churchill and Eden saw in his call for "war of liberation" a proposal for military action against Moscow.

Dulles has also indicated greater interest in the Far East than in Europe, according to the London viewpoint. In short, he is held responsible for many Eisenhower statements and actions, including his present trip to the Korean front, which might conceivably enlarge that conflict.

Aldrich, on the other hand, is almost an Anglophile. He has frequently been decorated by the King for his peacetime and wartime service to the Empire. Although foreign fears of Dulles seem unwarranted, save that he will be more independent than Acheson, Aldrich will be counted on to preserve the hands across-the-sea relationship.

Live By The Sword, Die By The Sword

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Yesterday there was a traveling salesman in our store who lives in Greensboro and has been working this territory for years. His oldest daughter is now 17 and ready for college. She realizes that Greensboro College and Woman's College of the University of North Carolina are both top-notch schools, but wants to get away from home for her education.

Bert Stanford, the salesman, has naturally heard a lot about East Carolina College during the years he has been working Greenville, but yesterday he was more interested in ECC than he had ever been. When it comes time for son or daughter to attend a school, it becomes far more important to the parents. As Bert asked me questions about ECC, I answered him to the best of my ability. It made me wonder if I, or any average citizen of Greenville, can capably represent the college. After all, anyone who lives in Greenville is apt to be called on for information about the college. As valuable as the college is to us, we should feel that it's our duty to be able to answer questions directed to us.

Bert first asked, "Is the college here strictly a teacher's college?" "In order to emphasize the fact that it isn't," I told Bert, "the name has recently been changed from East Carolina Teachers College to East Carolina College. Although the college was originally established by the State for teacher training, and still stresses it, there are many other fields open to students who attend."

Bert wanted to know if scholarships are available for his daughter. He has been on honor rolls since she first started school. On this issue, I was happy to tell him that there is a drive on at present to provide funds for students with special qualifications.

And Bert was interested in something I had almost forgotten about—the supervision of girls who live in dormitories. What time do they have to be in? What limitations are placed on dating? On weekend trips? On social activities in general?

And he wanted to be sure there was plenty of social life for students here. And the athletic program, he said, speaks for itself. There is no doubt that East Carolina is making strides forward in that department.

Every Greenville citizen should be qualified to tell what facilities we have to offer in the way of a college. When I was talking to Bert I felt disloyal to Greenville because I didn't know more. All of us, including me, should keep abreast with the college program in order to give it a fair representation at every opportunity. And I thank you.

ALCOHOL—Anticipating a more vigorous fight in the next Legislature than for several past sessions on the question of a state-wide vote on liquor, many people are manifesting keen interest in the whole problem. It has numerous facets—political, economic, moral, social, religious. Some people try to approach the issue through logic, while others concede no approach except through the emotions. When all the argument and discussion is over, most people have the same opinion with which they began. Very few conclusions can be agreed upon as facts.

ECONOMIC—Some figures can be ascertained as factual in connection with the legal handling of alcoholic beverages, but there are no statistics for the illegal sales, and there is wide divergence of opinion about the extent of illicit handling in this state. And there is equal of greater divergence in comparative values with respect to indirect profits and losses in both money and morals. Many people will argue violently and sincerely that the $50-odd million received by the Federal government, $12 million received by the State, and a like amount or more by the counties and municipalities, is the kind of "blood money" which in the ultimate costs a lot more than it is worth.

REVENUE—The revenue is factual, and it is also a fact that if lost the amount must be replaced by additional taxes levied somewhere else. One member of the General Assembly has already announced that he will support a state-wide referendum only upon condition that at the same election the people be given a chance to vote on alternate source of revenue. Others are known to share that opinion, although they have not publicly expressed it.

LIQUOR—Because hard liquor can be legally sold in ABC stores operated by counties or municipalities under supervision of a State board, it is not difficult to get accurate figures on sales and profits. Beer and unfortified wines are sold by private dealers under State and local license, while fortified wines may be sold only in ABC areas—the official stores or specially licensed outlets within the counties or municipalities which have voted for the ABC system. The taxing method is different, involving crown or stamp taxes plus the 3 per cent general sales tax, making it extremely difficult to compute the exact revenue. Last year—July 1, 1951, to June 30, 1952—the ABC stores in the 29 county and 6 municipal systems sold $63,914,248 worth of liquor, which had cost them $47,655,483. There was other income from rentals, interest, etc., amounting to $23,534. Total expenses ran to $2,679,138. The 8-1-2 sales tax paid to the State added $5,423,116 to the State general fund account. Then there was the item of $594,265 reserved for law enforcement, leaving a balance of profit to the local units at $7,586,079. In other words, the State and local governments got $12,909,194 revenue from the ABC operations.

BEER—Under terms of a 1947 act the State collects the tax and remits to the counties and municipalities where beer has been legally sold one-half the amount collected. The year for the computation is made runs from October 1 to September 30. The amount distributed and held in reserve as of September 30, 1952, was $2,808,000, which means the State general fund received a like amount or a total for State and local treasuries of $4,577,242 from the beer crown tax, plus and undetermined amount from privilege licenses, permits and the 3 per cent sales tax. Conservative estimates put total receipts at about $5 million. On all alcoholic beverages the Federal taxes are considerably more than the combined State and local.

WINE—It is more difficult to figure the wine revenue. The schedule of double collection and distribution applies to unfortified wine as to beer. The September 30 distribution amounted to $65,946, indicating total revenue from that source of $131,892. This does not include taxes on fortified, commonly called 20 per cent wine, which the wine dealers offer figures to show paid well above half a million dollars to the State for stamps. Nor does it include the privilege licenses or 3 per cent sales tax. Relying again upon estimates by persons in position to know, the State and local revenue from wine is fixed at around three quarters of a million dollars.

SUMMATION—These actual and projected revenue reports indicate that State and local governments' derived more than $20 million in revenue from the legal sale of alcoholic beverages last year, divided approximately half and half or about $10 million for

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Manufacturers got a roasting and a dash of constructive barbecue sauce when Howard P. Abrahams, manager of the retail sales promotion division of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, spoke before the Lancaster, Pa., Sales Executive Club.

"Dealer helps aren't helping dealers," he said. He was referring to the advertising materials for which manufacturers spend millions of dollars a year in efforts to help retailers sell their goods.

The four things most often wrong with these "helps," Mr. Abrahams said, are: Manufacturers and their agencies do not use the retail slant; their promotional material is not flexible; it does not lend itself to tie-in promotions of related products, and it often arrives at the wrong time or is sent to the wrong people.

These opinions, the association executive said, were not his but those of retailers. He suggested these 15 points to reduce the huge waste of materials:

1. Abolish the word "dealers," since retailers consider themselves purchasing agents for consumers rather than dealers or manufacturers' agents.
2. Keep helps flexible so they can be used by bargain stores or high-quality stores equally well.

3. Give stores fact sheets about the merchandise.
4. Give stores selling instructions for sales people.

5. Give stores thumb-nail rough layouts for ads.
6. Give stores good art work.

15. Send the material to the right people.

Mr. Abrahams suggested that before preparing dealer helps, a manufacturer should get the assistance of his largest retailer in working out a complete program.

GREAT MINDS WORRY.....
ABOUT SAME THINGS.....

About the time yesterday's remarks in this space on talk of a recession were being written, Joe Meek was writing in the bulletin of the Illinois Federation of Retail Associations:

"Best advertised recession is slated for about July 1 at perhaps 6 a.m. It's too well advertised to come then. Recession and depressions come when we're sure they'll never arrive. When we vow one's coming we work to avoid it. In the avoiding, we find the necessary ingredients for postponement. Paradoxically, we're confident Congress will do something about taxes, thereby giving our economy a shot it sadly needs. It has to."

BULLETIN ON INSURANCE.....
The second of a series of four bulletins on business insurance has been issued by the Small Defense Plants Administration. It deals with workmen's compensation and accident and health insurance.

The series should be useful to insurance men as well as small plant management; it should be useful in explaining to prospects the need of coverage. For copies, free, write to S.D.P.A., Washington 25, D.C.

NOTES ON BUSINESS.....
It is not impossible to have a net income of a million dollars a year. Just earn $8,333,333.33 more than deductions under present rates. A process to produce cellulose from banana stalks has been developed in Brazil.

A comprehensive analysis of latest manufacturing and sales figures on the footwear industry has been packed in a free 66-page book by Fairchild Publications, 7 E. 12th St., New York 3.... Dry bean production in the 1952-53 season is down an aggregate of 2 per cent in 51 counties, the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations reports.

NEW PRODUCTS
FINISH: An odorless rubber base flat wall finish is being introduced in the U.S. market by Reichhold Chemicals, Inc., 630 Fifth Ave., New York. Said to be elastic and noncracking, resistant to abrasion, acids and alkalis, it leaves no brush marks, dries in 20 minutes, retains purity of color and is nontoxic.

BINDER: A self-binding combining advantages of a loose-leaf cover with readability of a bound book is being marketed (by Mooreslip, Ltd., 50 Church St., New York 7). Two flexible strips slip through staples of slide-stitched pamphlets, then slide into slots in back cover, binding pamphlets securely and allowing papers to open perfectly flat. Binders are available in all sizes.

COATING: A smooth-finish plastic coating, said to resist moisture, abrasion, fire and corrosion, has been developed by Koppers Co., Inc., Koppers Bldg., Pittsburgh 19). Used to coat blades of industrial cooling-tower fans, it adheres in a thick coating, yet excess runs off so that blade finish appears almost like baked enamel, without ridges or runs.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Many a stubborn male sighs for the return of the faithful vest.

But yearning isn't going to bring back the vest anymore than it will restore the dodo bird or revive vaudeville.

This is on the word of Spencer Witty, vice president of one of the nation's largest clothing manufacturing firms.

"The vest is finished," he said cheerfully. "It is very hard to get a vest today except contrasting or tattersal vests."

"Suits now are priced for two pieces—the coat and pants. If the vest reappeared it would cause terrible repercussions. I doubt if the public would pay an extra 15 per cent just to get a vest."

Witty said the ordinary man was happy to get rid of vests and that only sentimentalists and "older, conservative business men" still want them. When I asked him for examples, he said:

"Well, John Foster Dulles does wear a vest and Dean Acheson doesn't."

Taking a squirt at current fashion trends for the vestless male, Witty also predicted the decline and fall of the double-breasted suit.

"It's poison now," he said. Fat men still cling to the double-breasted suit in the fond belief that it helps hide their bay window and makes them appear slimmer.

"Pure illusion," said Witty ruthlessly. "They might as well face the facts—the double-breasted suit has had its day and is now on the way out."

Somewhat I began to feel a bit sad. The vest goes the double-breasted suit going—could anything else depart from a man's wardrobe and still leave him with anything except a loin cloth?

"Well, yes," said Witty heartily. "The bold look and the natural look are now definitely out, as far as the better-dressed man is concerned."

The bold look? The natural look? I looked startled. I thought only women's clothes had a "look."

"Indeed, no," said Witty. "Men's suits had a bold look during the war days—wider 'shoulders, spread collar. Then right after the war we had the natural look... unpadded shoulders... loose fitting."

Well, it seems the bold look made a fellow look too wide for anybody to believe it was him, and the natural look made his shoulders look so narrow it depressed his wife.

"The present look is a compromise between the two," said Witty, and it's a real benefit to the average man. It is less padded than the bold look and more flattering and athletic in appearance than the natural look."

Another nice prospect is that there is no immediate danger of men's suits vying with peacocks or the rainbow.

"Colors are going to be conservative." Witty summed up, "Flannels will be very big, and the gien plaid is very important again. Quite a revival there."

"Well, in the case," I began hopefully, "maybe the vest will—"

"No vest," said Witty with cold finality.

Washington Letter

By DILLON GRAHAM

For Jane Eads

WASHINGTON—Nobody's been frightened here by death on Capitol Hill since Rosie the Cow left. Rosie was a hefty black and white Holstein—life-size papier mache. She stood in the office of the late Rep. Reid Murray of Wisconsin, the big dairy state.

Early one morning a charwoman backed into the office, on her knees, scrubbing the floor. When she turned around and saw the cow, she let out a whoop and went screaming down the corridor.

Then there was the Florida alligator. Former Rep. Hardin P. Peterson (D-Fla.) had the 'gator on a green park bench. It put the fear in some of his visitors who didn't observe at first glance it was tuffed.

A quick survey indicates there are no more animals, real or imitation, in the offices of senators or congressmen. But you can bump into some strange objects.

There are stern, war-like looking Indians staring down at you. They are busts owned by Western legislators. Famous warriors of every tribe—Sioux, Navajo, Hopi—are represented in portrait or bust. Rep. Burdick (R-N.D.) has probably the largest library on Indian history and lore.

You can hardly squeeze into the quarters of Rep. Frank Boykin (D-Ala.) for all the bric-a-brac and curios. His favorite saying, "Everying's Made for Love," is framed on the wall. A huge corner bust of old pilots and guns and what are said to be the last spurs worn by Jesse James.

Currier and Ives prints of the presidents from Washington through Lincoln decorate the walls. Sen. Theodore Green (D-R.I.) has (R-Pa.) Sen. Theodore Green (R-I) has 20-odd oil and water color paintings. Rep. Joseph Bryson (S-C) collects Bibles, small and large.

Thirsty? You can always get a cup of steaming New Orleans drip coffee in the office of Rep. Boggs (La.). His desk keeps a pot boiling. Rep. Edward Herbert (La.) has a kitchen in his office. Croutenfish bisques and turtle soup sent up from Creole land draw raves from his guests.

But the fact is most congressional offices are pretty business-like. All have busts of George Washington. Some have pretty secretaries. Some don't.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

A WELCOME TOCSIN

(Greensboro Daily News)
Governor Scott's allocation of $1,000,000 in surplus funds to finance grading and structures on the U. S. 70 by-pass around Greensboro provides a welcome tocsin for the closing days of the road-building administration in North Carolina history.

If any project in North Carolina ever stood in need of surplus funds, this 13 miles of unfinished roadway, comprising a cross-state, inter-regional highway system, is it. Every other portion of the route, from the Burlington-Graham area to Kings Mountain-Gastonia, has been cared for by the State Highway Commission had argued that the dangerous three-lane highway now linking Guilford's capital with the Alamance County border could continue carrying its heavy load indefinitely.

But the need cried out for attention. Governor Scott, Highway Chairman Henry Jordan and Highway Commissioner James Barnwell deserve commendation, not only from the Greensboro area but from the state for the action taken in Raleigh this week. Other highway needs vied for the surplus; but none had the clear-cut urgency of the U. S. 70 project.

Funds set up in Raleigh by the outgoing administration will take care of grading and structures for two lanes only, but right-of-way will be secured for four from Greensboro as far as Elfund. When completed, this new highway artery will give travelers up and down North Carolina's "Main Street"—U. S. 29 and 70—one of the finest highways anywhere in the nation, complete with by-passes around major congested areas.

The full significance of the Scott administration's roadbuilding achievement will become clear only as the administration itself fades into history. The pattern shows that the State Highway Commission, by working harder than ever before in its history, has been able to shoulder $200,000,000 worth of secondary road building without any noticeable let-up in its regular construction activities.

An administration which came in with the emphasis on secondary roads fittingly emphasizes mainline highways in making its exit.

Chapter 24
It was a fine morning; birds in the trees, sun pouring down, a soft wind blowing in from the Gulf, and the water of the bay like liquid silver.
A fine morning to be riding into a trap that was baited with the grisly carrion of death.
The beach swung out to sea in a wide curve and Clay turned a little to the left with the thought of taking a short cut through the timber that covered the peninsula. He cursed as a low-lying branch tore at his sombrero.
He pulled up short as a rifle cracked and he heard the ball slam into a tree limb directly above his head.
"Stop right where you be an' keep your hands up or there'll be an extra hand in hell this afternoon!"
He sat motionless, his hands level with his shoulders. There was a crashing through the brush and sentry appeared. His right leg was twisted and shortened, but there was no weakness in the cold blue eyes that surveyed Clay, or in the rifle that was ready in his hands.
"Git off that horse," he commanded gruffly, "an' he sure you don't reach for nothin' while you are doin' it."

Hard eyes intent, he watched Clay maneuver himself out of the saddle and down to the ground. He stumped forward to stand between Clay and the horse and then lifted his voice in a roaring bellow to some companion still hidden in the trees.
"Keep 'em covered while I see what he's totin' along with him."
Clay started in surprise as the reply came from a dense thicket of brush less than ten feet away.
"I got him, Lije, right between th' eyes. One move an' I'll fix him so he'll be too dead to skin."
He tried to probe the tangled branches, but the hidden marksman was too well concealed. He felt Lije's hand jerk the revolver out of his holster and then run questionably over his body in search of a hidden knife or deringer. Limping, Lije moved forward to face him, his face dark with a scowl of suspicion.
"All right," he snarled, "where do you think you're bound for an' what do you want?"
Clay grinned at him and held out his hand, palm upward. "Why, right now I want that gun you just lifted," he said easily, "and after that, I want to see Garrett Morgan."
Lije's jaw snapped open in amazement. "Hell!" he exclaimed. "There can't nobody see Morgan. What you want to see Morgan for?"
Clay's smile vanished. His voice cracked as he replied. "The reason I want to see Morgan is my business, but I can tell you this: He's going to jerk about a square yard of hide right off your tail if you waste much time getting me to him!"
"The hell you say!"
Lije's habitual snarl was back in evidence and the pale eyes studied Clay with unhidden dislike.
"You're talkin' mighty big for a man that's where he ain't got no business to be. Might be a good idea if I was to belt you one, jest to teach you a little politeness."
Clay's eyes thinned into narrow slits and his left foot slid forward so that he was poised on the balls of his feet.
"You lift a hand and I'll break your jaw and run your leg through it," he promised icily. "If you've got anything to do with Morgan, get going and take me to him. If you haven't, get out of my way."
A shade of indecision crossed Lije's face. Clay was a stranger, but his voice was straight out of Kentucky, and it was in a voice that expected to be obeyed. Without turning his head Lije lifted his stentorian howl again.
"Come out here, Mort," he commanded. "I'm damned if I know what we've caught, but he's shore an unlikely varmint."
One moment the path was empty and in the next Mort blocked it. He stood staring at Clay, thin almost to the point of emaciation, his head thrust slightly forward, his thin lips as harsh and as uncommunicative as the jaws of a steel trap. A long rifle swung in his hand, and there was a pistol in his belt and a bowie knife dangling, unsheathed, at his side. Clay recognized the type and classified him almost unconsciously. A hillman, probably from some remote gorge in Tennessee, taciturn, suspicious.
"This danged fool says he wants to see Morgan." There was a sneer in Lije's voice. "Don't know what Morgan'd be wantin' with a feller like that. 'Pears to me we might as well shoot him an' think no more about it." He glanced questionably at Mort. "That sound about right to you?"
Mort's eyes had never left Clay's face, and now he spoke with the barest possible movement of his lips.
"Can't say," he rasped laconically.
Lije glared at him in exasperated impatience.
"Well," he protested, and then, as Mort's basilisk eyes continued to study him, he accepted defeat.

"All right." He threw up his arms in a gesture of disgust. "Take him on, then. God knows you ain't no more company to a man than a bump on a log anyway."
He turned and started to walk away but Clay's voice stopped him in his tracks. "Don't try to go south with that pistol," he commanded grimly. "I might want it to beat that moss-grown face of yours in with someday."
Lije wheeled around, his mouth half open in a yowl of rage and protest. But Mort held out his hand, and after a mutinous instant Lije jerked the gun out of his belt and flung it at him.
"Chances are, you'll let him tote it himself," he snarled sarcastically. "Bein' as you're so bent to see that he gets to where he's goin'."
But Mort had turned his back on him and picked up the reins Clay had flipped over his horse's head to tether him to the ground.
"Down thataway." He motioned eastward with his gun, and as Clay moved forward he fell in behind him, Clay's horse pacing sedately at his heels. A hundred yards farther on they found two more horses tethered, and he mounted one of them and then motioned for Clay to climb back into the saddle. Oak Island lay ahead and in it lay the seeds of a far more likely death than even Lije had offered. Scowling, he began to rehearse the story he planned to tell. Either it was going to be accepted wholeheartedly or he was going to be very dead indeed.
"We landed three days ago at Matagorda Bay. . . ." he began under his breath.

Ambitious Bunch Of Beavers Try Dam Mississippi

DAVENPORT, Ia. (AP)—Some bold beavers seem to have bitten off more than they can chew in setting out to dam the Mississippi River at Credit Island Park here, naturalists say.

Beavers usually cut small openings with tender bark for food. And they usually fell big trees only for dams. Since the only thing to dam at Credit Island is the broad Mississippi, naturalists say that must be what the beavers have in mind.

The industrious little animals with the wood-cutter teeth already have felled a number of big trees into the water, some up to 3 feet in diameter. To save the park's other trees, park employees have daubed the trunks with some stuff that doesn't taste good to beavers.

Only Two Cases In Police Court On Wednesday

In Police Court Wednesday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Lee Conroy, former state highway employee, guilty of non-support of his children.

The court gave him six months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $100 now and $20 a week for support of his children. He is to pay up by December 13, the court order provides. He was placed on probation for a year.

In the case of Claude Lee Floyd, assault with a deadly weapon and non-support at a previous session of court, the judge ordered that Floyd serve his time. The sentences are to be served concurrently.

Solicitor Eli Bloom, who had been out of the city for a week, returned and was on the job yesterday. Attorney James C. Lanier Jr. substituted for Bloom while he was away.

Blames Parents For Teen-Age Hunting Deaths

RALEIGH (UP)—A State Wildlife Commission expert said today that parents should have "99 per cent of the blame" for the fact that four of the five persons killed in hunting accidents this season were teen-agers.

The fifth fatality, an adult, was killed in an accident involving a teen-aged hunter.

"Hunting accidents don't just happen. They are caused by sheer carelessness," said Rod Amundson, chief of the wildlife commission's education division.

Amundson warned parents to teach their children proper respect of weapons in "this age of carelessness."

"I would lay 99 per cent of the blame for teen-age accidents on parents who have failed to give their youngsters proper training in handling guns," he said.

Hunting licenses are issued in North Carolina to persons 16 years of age or older, but there is no legal limit on when a person may begin hunting if accompanied by an adult who has a license.

A United Press survey of hunting fatalities since the season opened Oct. 15 showed:

William T. Carawan 40, of Nesik, hunting with his son and 14-year-old Leon Stanford, was killed when Stanford handed a .22 caliber rifle to the younger Carawan.

Wayne Biggs, 14, killed near Fayetteville. His 16-year-old companion told authorities the hammer of his shotgun caught on his sleeve and discharged.

Charles Brinson, 19, of New Bern, killed when another hunter mistook him for a deer and fired three times.

Joe B. Rogers, 16, of Concord, killed while squirrel hunting alone. Coroner R. W. Wright said Rogers apparently slipped on a log, accidentally firing his weapon.

Fred N. Whisnant Jr., 14, of Newton, killed while squirrel hunting with two other boys when the old shotgun he was using exploded at the breech.

New Shoe Fashions Are Walking In Men's World

NEW YORK (UP)—Never let it be said the men are standing by in their plain oxfords while women walk away with all the new shoe fashions.

The fellows are departing farther from their old brogues now than they have since the days of periwigs and buckle shoes.

"Here is one of our new 'his and hers' sets," said a representative of one of the 650 companies displaying spring and summer wares at the show of popular price shoes. She pointed to two pairs of shoes.

His were imitation alligator loafers with a tricky tassel tie. Hers were smaller imitation alligator loafers with identical tassel ties.

"There has been real effort this year on the part of men's shoe manufacturers to increase the variety of styles," explained John Foote, president of the New England Shoe and Leather Association.

He said nylon mesh has done most to change men's summer shoes. There is also a new colored foam rubber that's going to do a lot for male feet during leisure hours. One pair of pale blue denim and blue leather oxfords has soles of matching pastel foam rubber. The rubber also comes in yellow, pink and several other colors.

Even the old pipe and slippers routine seems in jeopardy. Men's shoe fashion experts are suggesting a low cut black patent leather pump with a tailored grosgrain bow (it comes in a his-hers set too) for lounging around the house. The shoe admittedly is for dancing, but they figure it'll get more wear if wives start promoting pipe and patent leathers by the easy chair.

Oh, yes, the women's shoes. In the modestly priced lines there's a great insistence that American women like the low-heeled look. Flat, ballet-type shoes are increasingly popular.

There's a coronation influence too. One manufacturer has managed to emboss coronation symbols on a black leather sandal. There is a tiny crown, a fleur-de-lis, the tower of London, plus several mysterious symbols embossed in gold, red and blue.

Win Commissions In Naval ROTC At Duke Univ.

Two Greenville youths have recently received student battalion commissions in the Naval ROTC at Duke University.

Walter Q. Wilson and Paul C. Conway received commissions as lieutenant (jg) and ensign, respectively, in ceremonies held at the University. They are two of 27 students to receive commissions ranging from commander to ensign.

The announcement of the commissions was made by Capt. John M. Ocker, commanding officer of the unit.

Wilson is the son of Walter G. Ward of 302 W. Third Street and Conway is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Conway Jr. of 1510 E. Fifth Street.

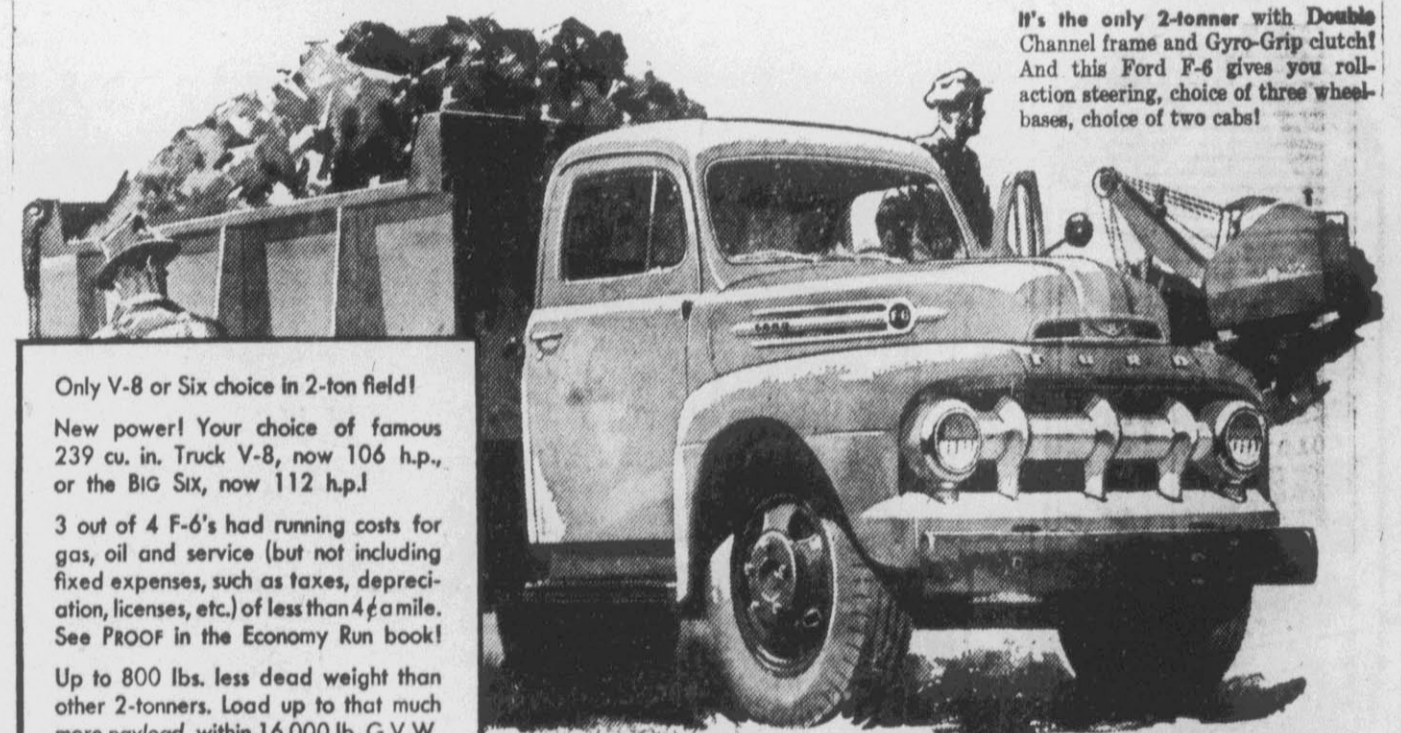

DIES IN KOREA AS HE WRITES—Mrs. Frank D'Ermiho holds her six-week-old Frank, Jr., in her home in Philadelphia after she was notified that her husband, a Marine infantryman, was killed as he sat inside a bunker in Korea, writing a letter home asking more questions about the son he had never seen. The Marine (right) died as a silver from an enemy mortar shell whipped through a tiny observation slit in the bunker, killing him instantly. The commanding officer of the 21-year-old Marine said his death was one of those "million-to-one shots." (AP Wirephoto)

Arab Sector Has Most Shrines In The Holy Land

By WILTON WYNN
JERUSALEM—How to get across to travelers that outstanding Holy Places are in the Arab sector of Palestine is one of many headaches plaguing the tourist industry of Arab Jerusalem today. This is a serious matter to the 60,000 residents of the Old City. With Palestine's seaports, industries, and best farm land on the Israeli side of partition lines, Jerusalem Arabs have only the tourist trade to rely on as a profitable business.

The misconception regarding location of Holy Places has cost Arab Jerusalem heavily in the past four years. There are countless cases of European or American tourists planning a trip to the "Holy Land" and spending practically all their time in Israel. With time and money budgeted, many such tourists realize too late that the most interesting historic shrines are on the other side of the line.

Shrines Over the Border
 On the Arab side are the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Garden Tomb, Calvary, the old walled city of Jerusalem, the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem, the Site of the Sacred Baptism on the Jordan river, and countless other sacred Christian spots.

The Jewish walling wall is on the Arab side, along with beautiful Moslem shrines such as the Dome of the Rock and the Aqsa Mosque.

Further inside Jordan are the well-preserved Roman city of Gerash and the fabulous Nabatean city of Petra, a complete classical city carved out of the solid rock of mountains in southern Palestine.

A second misconception hurting the Arab tourist industry is the belief that no good accommodations are available in Arab Jerusalem. It is true that the city has no deluxe hotels. But Arab Jerusalem has an increasing number of small first-class hotels furnishing excellent accommodations at modest rates.

In 1949, Arab Jerusalem had only 66 beds in first-class hotels. Today there are 276 beds in first-class hotels. In addition there are hundreds of beds in smaller pensions, hostels, and religious institutions.

Arab Jerusalem has daily plane connections with Cairo and Beirut. Jerusalem also can be reached cheaply by car from Beirut via Damascus and Amman.

Better roads have been completed from Jerusalem to the Mount of Olives and to Bethlehem, greatly shortening the trip to those sites. A new road has been built from Amman to Gerash. Cheap taxis can take the tourist anywhere he wants to go in Jordan.

Visas Are Available
 Visas are not hard to get. Ordinarily, this can be taken care of by travel agents in quick time. Jordan maintains consulates at Washington, London, Paris, Rome, Madrid, Cairo, Beirut, and other points. Official instructions have gone out to simplify granting of tourist visas.

As these misconceptions are overcome, business men in Arab Jerusalem believe their city again will show signs of life and relative prosper.

Helping the tourist industry along is new government Bureau of Tourism set up with the aid of $350,000 given by Point Four.

Passed Sentence In Sign Language

BUTTE, Mont. (AP)—A blind judge here and a deaf mute defendant "talked" it over in police court before finally agreeing on a sentence.

Judge John Selon, a police magistrate, faced by a 24-year-old deaf mute in a vagrancy case, obtained the defendant's consent to a temporary jail sentence while her case was investigated and assistance sought. The judge explained the situation with sign language.

Samoan Chieftain Is 'Up' On His Politics

APIA, Western Samoa (U.P.)—One of the last things you'd expect from a native Samoan Fautua (chieftain) is a political argument.

However, Fay Christian of Mount Carroll, near Rockford, Ill., found himself in the midst of a political debate—American politics, that is—almost as soon as he set foot on this south Pacific island. He was the first American tourist to visit western Samoa on the new Scheduled Airlines.

Christian was introduced to Tupua Tamses, 240-pound Samoan, immaculately clad in a gray dinner jacket and gray, skirted sulu.

The first thing Tupua Tamses asked was Christian's political affiliation. Christian was, he said, a registered Republican.

Immediately he was placed on the political defensive by the high chief.

Knows His Politics
 "Why, that fellow knows more about American politics than I do," Christian confessed after their meeting.

Tamses explained that he had followed the American political cam-walls and a thatched roof, in which the lone occupant—a man—was sitting at a piano under a bright electric light, playing soft music.

Although the natives warned him the path was treacherous and steep, Christian climbed the almost perpendicular trail to the graves of Robert Louis Stevenson and his wife.

The jungle path, he said, was badly overgrown. The graves of the famed writer and his wife were neatly kept, however.

Lumber Industry Has 'Hard Times'

MANILA (AP)—The once-thriving Philippines lumber industry has fallen upon hard times, and it wants government help.

A recent survey shows sales have fallen off to Japan and the U.S., the two major customers. The decline is attributed to the Korean War and the fact that Japan now has repaired much of its war damage.

Renato Arevalo, a Manila lumber company executive, says the Philippines most steady dollar producer. He proposed that the government adopt "a common-sense attitude regarding tax and other control measures."

Children Prey Of Home Accidents

NEW YORK (AP)—About two million American children will lose their lives or be injured next year as the result of home accidents, according to a statistics study by the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co.

Falling out of windows is the commonest accident for youngsters under 5, with burns and poisons almost tied for second place. In the 5-to-14 age group, broken glass leads the hazards.

The company's Institute of Safer Living has compiled a list of suggestions for parents. Here are some: Screen windows and keep chairs away from them; keep matches, broken glass, household bleaches and other poisons out of the way; turn handles of hot utensils so that children cannot grasp them; secure rugs against slipping, and don't allow children to operate power equipment such as washing machines, wringers or dishwashers.

Jesus, the Great Teacher

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 13.

Jesus sat by the sea side and multitudes came to Him. He entered a boat and talked to them from it. He spoke in parables, telling first of a man who sowed his field.

His disciples came to Jesus to ask why He spoke to the people in parables. He said it was because, seeing they saw not, hearing they heard not, and "neither do they understand."

Jesus next told of the man who sowed good seed, but, while he slept, his enemy came and sowed weeds in the field, so that they grew up mixed with the good grain.

In His home town Jesus taught in the synagogue. His hearers were astonished, saying, "Whence hath this man this wisdom, and these mighty works?"

MEMORY VERSE—Matthew 13:54.

Jesus, the Great Teacher

HIS WISDOM AND WORKS CAUSED AMAZEMENT

Scripture—Matthew 13.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
ALL THROUGH the years parents and teachers have tried, by telling stories, to show children what is right and what is wrong. Most youngsters are bright enough to understand the moral without having it pointed out to them.

Even crime stories in motion pictures, over radio and television (which we deplore because they are often brutalizing and frightening) always end with the good overcoming the bad—the worthy winning over the evil.

Jesus, the Great Teacher, strove to teach His listeners by stories which are called parables. They were simple stories about happenings in the everyday life of that period, but they conveyed His message if the hearers did not always "get the point," or, if they did, refused to take it to heart.

In our lesson Jesus went out of a house near Capernaum, and sat by the sea side. Probably someone saw Him sitting there and passed the word along, and multitudes went to Him. So great was the crowd that Jesus stepped into a boat moored nearby and talked from it.

He told them the story of a man who went forth to sow seeds. Now some of the seed fell by the forth a plentiful harvest. "Who hath ears to hear, let him hear," said Jesus. His second parable was about a man who sowed his field with good seeds, but while he slept—tired from his labors—an enemy came and sowed tares (weeds) among the good seeds. When the seeds grew, the weeds and the good grain were mixed, and his servants asked what they should do. Their master answered that they would let both grow to maturity, then they would gather the tares and burn them; and they would harvest the good grain and store it in the barns.

Further Jesus said, "The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field." It is the smallest of all seeds, yet it would eventually grow into a great tree in the branches of which birds would lodge.

Also, the kingdom of God is like leaven which a woman took, hid in a measure of meal, till the whole was leavened. Anyone who has made bread or seen it made knows how a small cake of yeast will make a whole panful of dough rise and become light to be fashioned into loaves of nourishing bread.

Later, when the multitude had gone away He explained what He

The Golden Text

Jesus preaches from a boat.

"Whence hath this Man this wisdom, and these mighty works?"—Matthew 13:54.

MEMORY VERSE
"Whence hath this Man this wisdom, and these mighty works?"—Matthew 13:54.

wayside where fowls came and ate them up; some fell on stony places where there was little earth to nourish them; they sprang up, indeed but, not having roots reaching down into good earth, they withered and died when the sun came up. Others fell among thorns, which sprang up quickly and choked them.

Some, however, fell into good ground, where they grew and flourished and yielded a good harvest.

Jesus' disciples came to Him and asked why He spoke to the people in parables, and He answered them that to them was given the understanding to know the mysteries, but to the majority of His hearers "seeing they see not, and hearing they hear not, neither do they understand."

In other words, some people were like the seeds that were devoured by fowls; some were like seeds that fell on poor soil, because their hearts would not give the proper nourishment to what they heard. And there were they who listened without understanding or interest in what the speaker had to say.

Those, like the disciples, who looked at Christ and saw Him for what He was; who heard His words and meditated upon them so that they understood Him, were the good seeds that brought meant to the disciples. He told them further that the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant seeking pearls. When he found one of great price, he would sell all that he had and buy the one perfect one.

Or, it was like a net that was cast into the sea, gathering into it every kind of fish. Men would drag it to shore, gather the good fish and throw the bad away.

"So shall it be at the end of the world; the angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from among the just, and shall cast them into the furnace of fire."

"Have ye understood all these things?" asked the Lord, and "they said unto Him, yea, Lord."

When Jesus had finished His discourse, He went into the synagogue in Nazareth and taught there. The people present, who had known Him from infancy, were astonished, and said, "Whence hath this man, this wisdom, and these mighty works?"

And they were annoyed, for they said is He not the son of Joseph and his wife, Mary? Are not His brothers named James and Joseph, and Simon and Judas, and His sisters are here among us?

"Whence then hath this man all these things?" All we can do in conclusion is to repeat Christ's words: "Who hath ears to hear, let him hear."

Hungry Young Burglars In City

MILES CITY, Mont. (AP)—Police scared off grocery store burglars who left behind $80, half-eaten rings of bologna and a barrel of salt colored with red ink.

Suspected are two "notorious burglars," aged 11 and 13, who escaped from the State Industrial School. Police said they believed the two were the same ones who wrecked a coke machine and a show case, took small change, candy and gum from a filling station and then broke into a store.

In the store they took $15 from a cash register which they filled with broken eggs and then wrecked candy machines before frying hamburgers on the grill.

Asphalt-Laying Is Next Step For Second Street Work

The grading of Second Street, from Cotanche through the "valley" to Jarvis Street is almost complete. The Greenville Utilities Commission has completed installation of its facilities and 98 per cent of the curb and guttering has been installed. Asphalt paving will be laid until the earth settles... which process may require as long as 90 days. (Reflector Photo by C. L. Perkins Jr.)

Nearing Full Recovery Japan's Economic Life

TOKYO (U.P.)—Things are getting pretty good in Japan. Most of the scars of the war are entirely gone.

Business is better than average. The people have a standard of living almost equal to that of pre-war days. Some say they have it better; some say they have it worse.

This correspondent has just returned from a 2,000-mile tour of central and southern Japan. It appears that things are back to normal.

Statistically speaking, the real national income per capita is back to the 92 per cent mark. The national consumption level is 86 per cent of the pre-war level.

Currency Confidence
Agricultural production is believed to have already reached its limit—and the crops saw on my tour looked excellent. There was no typhoon this year and a bumper rice crop is expected.

The people are happy, which may be because they are saving money.

The Bank of Tokyo says that confidence in Japanese currency has been restored. Today the people are putting it into the bank instead of rushing around madly to spend it for anything in sight. There has been a 61 per cent increase in time deposits this year. The "war boom" brought about by the Korean fighting certainly has speeded Japanese recovery. This is recognized by the Japanese government as well as by businessmen.

Plenty to Buy

The government also credits United States aid to Japan with playing an extremely large role in putting Japan back on her feet. Only an eye-witness can really appreciate the tremendous rate of recovery in Japan.

When this correspondent arrived in Japan at the end of World War II, the store shelves were absolutely bare. The people actually were wearing rags and they definitely were hungry.

Today you can buy anything you want. The rubble has been replaced by new skyscrapers. The shelves of small shops are overflowing with both domestic and imported goods. People are well-dressed and there are more than enough good eating places. Grocery stores are filled; their products literally spill over on the sidewalks.

However, Japan no longer is the "inexpensive Orient" which attracted many tourists in pre-war days.

Tokyo now probably is one of the most expensive cities in the world. Most visitors are shocked by the high prices.

They also are impressed by all the automobiles, the high noise level, the countless modern neon lights that spell out their advertisements in ancient Japanese characters.

Yes, things are getting pretty good in Japan.

Driving License Required In All But One State

SOUTHBRIDGE, Mass. (U.P.)—South Dakota is the only state in the nation where a motorist is not required to have a license or driving examination.

A nationwide survey of state requirements for motor vehicle operators, conducted by the American Optical Company, showed that the only requirement for driving in South Dakota is an age minimum of 15 years.

The 1952 survey revealed that Idaho and Missouri now require driver examinations after passing more stringent laws. These states previously did not require an operator to be examined before obtaining a license.

Cost of a driver's license ranges from 50 cents for 100 years in South Carolina to $3 for one year in New Jersey. A driver must be at least 14 years old in six states and 17 in New Jersey. Other states have varying age requirements between these ages.

Every state in the nation bars drivers with mental or physical disabilities, though "handicapped" persons may be licensed in most states with special driving devices. At half the states bar drivers with police records.

Standards of vision vary throughout the nation. Some states require "perfect" 20-20 vision while others will license a person blind in one eye if his other eye checks 20-70 with or without glasses.

Three-fourths of the states require hearing a fifty tests and examinations for color blindness. Eleven states check for depth perception.

Octopuses may have an arm spread of as much as 28 feet.

Arrest Youth On Forgery Charge

Greenville police yesterday arrested Johnny Earl Warren, 17-year-old youth of the Stokes Community, on the charge of forgery.

The warrant charges Warren with forging the name of his father, W. C. Warren of Stokes, to a check for $100, drawn on the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company.

Police said a bank teller suspected the check to be a forgery and started an investigation. The check was not cashed. Police Chief S. G. Gibbs and Detective L. M. E. Corbett investigated the case.

Literary Mystery-Romance Reviewed Before Rocky Mount Fine Arts Club

A mystery-romance of the Eighteenth Century, having as heroine Nancy Stair Carmichael, poet and friend of Robert Burns, was reviewed Tuesday, December 2, by Dr. Martha Pingel of the East Carolina College faculty before Members of the Fine Arts Club of Rocky Mount.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Armistead Gill. "Nancy Stair" by Evelyn M. Lane, a work presented to Mrs. Gill by a descendant of the Scottish poetess and noblewoman, was the subject of Dr. Pingel's review.

ground of the work. Dr. Pingel traced the relationship between Burns and Nancy Stair, in whose honor he wrote several poems. She also discussed briefly a volume of verses by Nancy Stair, several editions of which were published in England.

The talk by the East Carolina professor also outlined the romances of the Scottish noblewoman with Danvers Carmichael, Count of Glenmore, and John Montrose, Duke of Borthwick. Since the Duke died, supposedly a suicide, in Nancy's home, Dr. Pingel said, the biography has the excitement and suspense of a mystery story in addition to the interest of its literary background.

West Virginian To Join Staff Of ECC Library

Betty Lee Heavener of Gap Mills, W. Va., will join the staff of the East Carolina College Library in January, 1953, according to an announcement by Wendell W. Smiley, college librarian. She will work in the cataloging and circulation departments.

For the past year Miss Heavener has been studying library science at George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn., and is scheduled to complete work on the master's degree there this month. She is a graduate of Beaver College, Jenkintown, Pa.

As a librarian Miss Heavener has worked at Greenbrier College, Lewisburg, West Virginia, and at West Virginia University in Morgantown. She has also taught for a year in Venezuela.

Local Rainfall Continues Light

Little over one-tenth of an inch of rain fell in the Greenville area during the last 24 hours.

The highest temperature here yesterday was 50 degrees. Lowest last night, 40, and at 8 a. m. today it was 46.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 87 degrees. Lowest that night, 47, and at 8 a. m. next day the mercury stood at 48. Nearly half an inch of rain fell here that day. Mrs. Carl E. Malden, local observer for the U. S. Weather Bureau, reported.

Investigated 78 Auto Accidents

The State Highway Patrol, in District 5 Troop A, including Lenoir, Pitt and Greene counties, investigated 78 motor vehicle accidents in November.

Sgt. John Laws of Kinston, head of the district, reported that 30 of these highway mishaps were in Pitt county.

There were two highway fatalities during November, one in Greene and one in Pitt county.

Twenty-six persons were injured, 11 of them in Pitt county.

Property damage (estimated), was $35,850, about $15,100 of it in Pitt.

The state highway patrolmen made 542 arrests in November. 225 of them in Pitt county. A summary of the arrests follows: Speeding, 145; motorist; driving drunk and reckless driving, 64; "stop" law violations, 66; driving without operators' license, 53; and drunk on a highway, 37.

Other highway arrests were for failure to yield right of way, improper passing, defective lights and equipment, etc. Sgt. Laws' report states.

Robinson's title was officially vacated at 12:01 a. m., because he failed to defend his crown within six months of his last defense, by an announcement by New York State Commission Chairman Robert K. Christenberry.

Hawk Grissom Is Out Of Bowl Tilt

Extra point kicker Hawk Grissom went to the sidelines yesterday as East Carolina College's football Pirates continued preparations for their December 13 appearance in Salisbury's Lions Bowl.

Grissom injured one of the toes on his kicking foot and is not expected to be able to play in the game. During the regular season, he booted 21 extra points and a field goal for a season's total of 24 points.

Just who will handle the point kicking hasn't been announced by Pirate Coach Jack Booth. There are several potential candidates, but one has been definitely decided upon.

Bethel, Grifton Top County Slate

An indication as to who will lead play in the boys division of the Pitt County Conference could be decided tonight when the strong teams from Bethel and Grifton tangle in the Bethel gymnasium.

Bethel, defending champion in the loop, lost three players from last year's squad but has some outstanding new talent. Grifton's one loss has been replaced and the team is expected to be at peak strength for the first meeting of the two clubs.

Other Pitt County games being played tonight are Aysen at Grimesland, Chicod at Farmville, and Stokes at Winterville.

Rocky Mount Downs Phants In Non-Conference Match

Worthington Tops Attack With 20 Points Total

By ANWER JOSEPH (Special To The Reflector) ROCKY MOUNT — Coach "Bo" Farley's cagers got their second taste of defeat this season 63-51, as favored Rocky Mount Blackbirds of the AAA conference withstood several determined Greenville bids in a rugged and aggressive basketball contest here last night.

All-Conference Smith Worthington, a lanky 6-3 center, was the big gun in the Phantom attack. He was deadly on his one handed push shot from the floor and sank 12 for 17 foul shots to account for 20 points and take individual high scoring honors for the night.

The first part of the opening quarter found both teams locked in closely contested struggle, but with less than 4 minutes remaining in the quarter the Blackbirds exerted their superiority to pull ahead by a score of 18-9.

During the second quarter the Rocky Mount club remained out in the lead while a scoring duel was staged between Smith Worthington and Joe Lancaster, who matched each other by sinking basket for basket. Half time score was 34-22.

The opening of the third quarter saw the Greenville quint come to life against the Blackbirds. Again it was Lancaster of Rocky Mount and Worthington of Greenville who took spotlight in the point-making parade.

In the fourth and final quarter the Greenville five staged its last bid for the game, but was unable to overcome slim margin that was built up by Rocky Mount in the first quarter and as the final buzzer sounded the score stood 63-51 with Greenville on the short end.

East Carolina Quint Opens '53 Basketball Schedule Sat. Night

By JIMMY SLLIS Reflector Sports Writer Three former high school All-State basketball players will lead the East Carolina College Pirates in their basketball opener Saturday night against Guilford.

The three squad members who made All-State honors as high schoolers are among Coach Howard Porter's group of seven lettermen and have continued the outstanding records started years ago.

The most glittering of the lot of players is, of course, All-State and All-Conference forward Sonny Russell. Sonny, a senior this year, compiled one of the most brilliant records in high school basketball while he was at New Bern High School and capped four years there with an exceptional performance in the 1949 high school All-Star game in Greensboro.

Sonny went into that All-Star game almost unheralded but he came out of it with the title of North Carolina's "Most Outstanding Player." Since entering East Carolina, he has racked up almost every honor available except Little All-America ratings and is being boosted for such honors this year.

Russell was number two man in last year's scoring race with an average of 17.8 points for a 25-game season but the team lead in scoring was held by another former high school star, Bobby Hodges, a junior from Kinston.

Other lettermen returning include two juniors and a pair of sophomores who are expected to be in the starting line-up. The sophomores — forward Jack Carr and guard Cecil Heath — were both underclassmen last year but their practice performances thus far have stamped them as sure-fire starters this year.

Heath, a 5-9 fireball from Wilmington who played on the 1950 state championship Class AAA team, will be the Pirates play maker. He'll be charged with the bulk of the work involved in moving the ball into the forecourt.

"Hot Hands" Carr The other sophomore who has a starting position all but wrapped up is about the hottest player on the 25-man squad.

Maureen Connolly and Julie Sampson, both of California, were to have played Mary Hawton and Beryl Penrose in final of the women's doubles and Fank Sedgman and Ken McGregor were to have played Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad in the final of the men's topped an almost amazing use of his left hand and has been dunking in practice points both right and left. Of course, he remains to be tested under fire but he can afford to slack off some and still be hot as a pistol.

The two junior lettermen available stand to be the team's top reserves. Center Charlie Huffman and forward Paul Jones are both from Thomasville and both outstanding basketball players. Huffman is 6-3, ambidextrous, and giving Hodges a rough battle for the starting job at center. Jones, 6-1 and one of the coolest players on the team, has been shifted from guard and will be Russell's relief man.

The remaining positions on the 12 man team will be held by a promising group of newcomers headed by freshman J. C. Thomas, a former Raleigh high school ace. Thomas, 6-1 and an amazing ball-handler, will team with Heath at the guards on the first team.

Transfer Students After Thomas comes a pair of transfer students and two freshmen. The transfers — Jere Hilburn, ex-Wilmington and ex-Carolina — have been teamed as the guards on the number two team in the squad drills. Hilburn, 5-10 and a good push shot man, played with Heath on the great Wilmington teams two and three years ago while Moye, a six-footer who is an outstanding rebounder, played freshman ball at Carolina after a brilliant career at Snow Hill.

The two members of the squad have shown a great deal of promise and bid to see a lot of action before tournament time in late February. Harold O'Kelley, ex-High Point ace and Harry Hayes, ex-Wilmington ace, are both guards but are lined up behind Heath, Hilburn, Moye and Thomas.

After the game Saturday night at Guilford, the Pirates are scheduled to be idle until December 13 when they open their home schedule against Lenoir-Rhyne, defending North State Conference champion.

Rain Halts Net Champion Play

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—Rain washed out play in the Victorian Tennis Championships today.

Maureen Connolly and Julie Sampson, both of California, were to have played Mary Hawton and Beryl Penrose in final of the women's doubles and Fank Sedgman and Ken McGregor were to have played Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad in the final of the men's on defense before taking over as the Steeler passer, and Graham lead in touchdown passes with 18 and 17, respectively. Graham is far ahead in passing yardage with 2,300 and might have set an NFL record for the season if end Dante Lavelli, one of his best receivers, hadn't missed a month with a leg injury.

Duke Is Strong Contender For SIC Cage Title

Despite the loss of last year's great star, Dick Groat, Duke's Blue Devils look to be a first-rate contender for the Southern Conference basketball crown worn by North Carolina State.

Better balance appears to have offset the departure of Groat, one of the finest cagers ever to perform in the conference. And though the Blue Devils have played just one game so far, this balance already is evident.

In the Duke opener last Monday against Vanderbilt, Coach Harold Bradley was pleased at the 94 points the Blue Devils accumulated. But he was even more pleased with the way the team members divided up the scoring honors.

Of these, Reigel, Driesell and Lanley are sophomores. The others are juniors, so the Dukes also have promise for the future.

Monday's performance by Duke was noteworthy, too, because of the accuracy of the shotmakers who hit on 30 of 66 field goal attempts and on 34 of 45 foul shots.

Duke, like all other conference contenders, is idle tonight as the circuit gets ready for tomorrow's rush of action. Wake Forest, Saturday's foe for the Blue Devils and with Dickie Hemric around to toss in baskets, the Deacons probably will furnish the Blue Devils a major test.

If N. C. State is worrying about Duke, though, the Wolfpack shows no sign of it. Going about the business of defending the title to which they have become accustomed, the Pack last night whammed Washington and Lee, 88-63, to notch their second triumph in as many games.

Center Mel Thompson netted 19 points to pace the State attack. Jim Rich collected 18 for W & L, which never was in the game after the first quarter. State substitutes played most of the last half.

Maryland's Terps captured their second victory — their first inside the conference — by edging out William and Mary by 64-61 at College Park, Md. Guard George Manis dropped in a pair of free throws to cement the victory for the Terps with seven seconds to go. Bill Linders got 26 points for the Indians. Gene Shue 22 for Maryland.

Furman was downed rather unexpectedly by Mercer, 73-64, though Frank Sely notched 18 points for the Hurricane. Richmond's Spiders, who look as if they may be reviving after several lean years, smacked Hampden-Sydney, 85-52, in a rout at Richmond.

Clemson racked up Presbyterian, 77-64, and Virginia Tech fell before Elon, 73-61, in other games involving conference teams.

doubles. Vic Seixas, playing captain of the U. S. Davis Cup team, meets Sedgman in the final of the men's singles and the Misses Connolly and Sampson clash for the women's singles crown.

Southern Conference Makes Plans To Split

RALEIGH, N. C. (UPA) plan to split up the 17-member Southern Conference between its larger and smaller schools appeared certain today to receive at least informal discussion next week at the winter meeting at Clemson, S. C.

However, there was no indication that the proposal, rumored for months, had received enough support to assure definite action. Chances were against its being brought up on the floor.

Proponents of the plan say that by dividing the present unwieldy conference, schedules of all members would be strengthened. One school of thought has proposed that the larger schools pull out, forming their own organization.

Under the latter plan, Maryland, West Virginia, William and Mary, Virginia Tech, North Carolina, North Carolina State, Duke, Wake Forest, Clemson and South Carolina would be in the same league. Virginia, now an independent, would be invited to join the group although Virginia officials recently denied reports that they had been formally approached about it.

The smaller schools who would be in the other division would be The Citadel, Furman, Davidson, Richmond, VMI, Washington and Lee, and George Washington.

The powder-keg of the issue may be the conference's freshman rule, about to expire. Smaller schools want the rule allowing freshman participation retained while the larger schools oppose it.

Although there has been no formal notice that the freshman rule will be on the agenda at Clemson, there were indications of a parliamentary fight to discuss it and possibly bring it to a vote.

Should the freshman rule get to the floor, another controversial issue — the league's ban on post-season football bowl games — may get there the same way.

Several touchy rules changes, including a grants-in-aid policy proposal, are on the agenda. But none would be of wider interest than the bowl question which this year kept the Southern Conference from furnishing any post-season competition.

In past years the Southern always has been generously represented in bowl games, but the one-year suspension slapped on Maryland and Clemson last year showed that the conference majority intended strict enforcement of the ban.

Without a bowl team, the conference had only the upcoming winter meeting rules discussions, and next season on its waiting list.

"Sinners" Maryland and Clemson will be received back into good standing. Bot' will play representative conference schedules next season.

The 1952 gridiron records for the conference will be written into the books after tomorrow's final game between North Carolina State and Texas Tech.

Bob Perry Will Return To Shrine Bowl By Saturday

CHARLOTTE—Bobby Perry, a highly regarded halfback on North Carolina's Shrine Bowl team, has returned to his home in Greenville to be at the bedside of his seriously ill grandmother. Perry left Charlotte yesterday.

The 160-pound halfback was one of the outstanding members of the Greenville team in the Northeastern Conference and received All-Eastern honors on the basis of his regular season performances. He had been expected to see a lot of action in Saturday's game.

Perry said today he planned to return to Charlotte before Saturday.

Rookies Shine In Pro Loop But Veterans Set The Pace

NEW YORK (UP)—Most of the rookies distinguished themselves this year in the National Football League, but the old pros appear set to win at least four of the six main individual titles.

Veterans lead or share the lead in every offensive department and only rookie halfbacks Dick Lane of the Los Angeles Rams and Eddie Macon of the Chicago Bears have much chance of winning a title.

Lane, who came to the Rams from Scottsbluff (Neb.) Junior College, is tied with teammate Herb Rich and Tom Keane of Dallas, both veterans, for the lead in pass interceptions. Each has eight.

HUGH McELHENNY ... rookie fullback ...

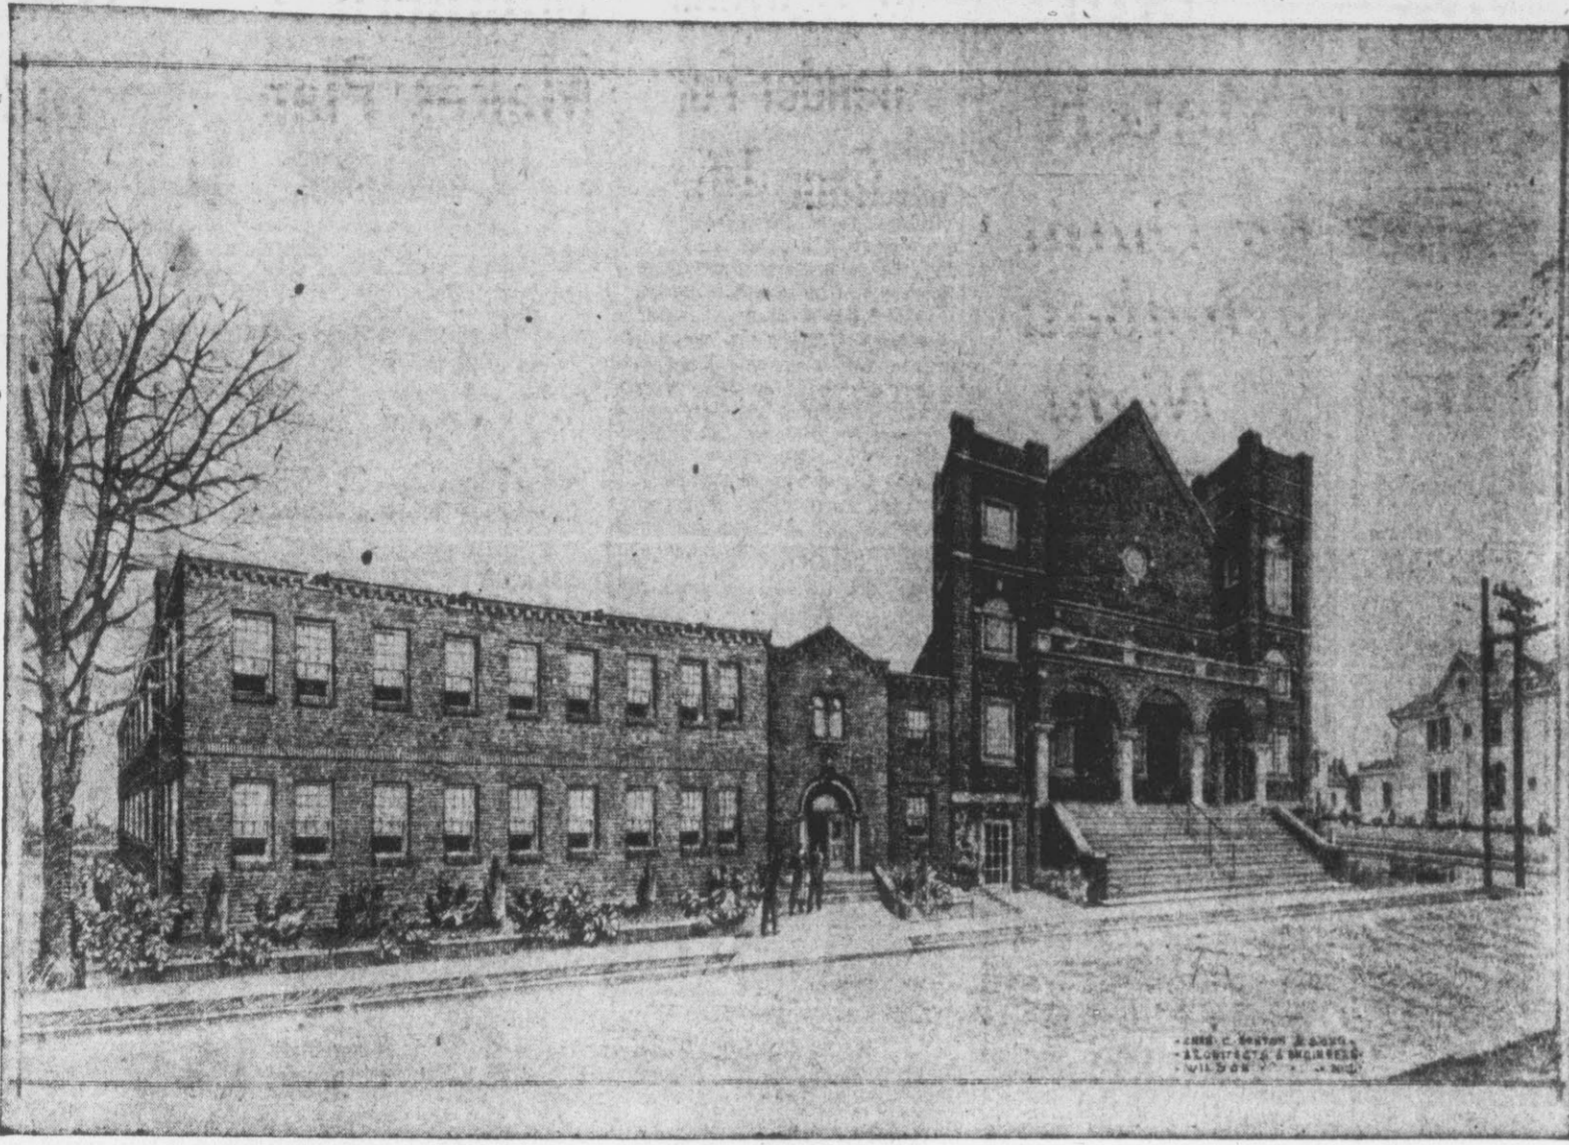

Macon has a chance to win the kickoff return crown in which he trails the pace-setting Lynn Chandnois, a three-year Pittsburgh Steeler pro, by two yards in the averages. Chandnois has averaged 36.1 yards per return and Macon, 34.1.

Experienced players hold fairly safe leads in the other departments with two weeks remaining in the regular season.

Fullbacks Dan Towler of the Rams and Eddie Price of the Giants, both three-year men, rank 1-2 in rushing with 792 and 737 yards, respectively. Rookie Hugh McElhenny of the Forty-Niners is next with 645 and doesn't figure to catch up.

It's the same in the passing standings where veteran quarterbacks Tobin Rote of Green Bay, Norm Van Brocklin of the Rams and Otto Graham of the Cleveland Browns rank 1-2-3 ahead of rookie Babe Parilli of the Packers.

First Classes In New Education Building Of Church Is Scheduled For Next Sunday

Upon recommendation of the building committee, the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville accepted its new education building and voted expressions of gratitude to the committee.

This Sunday, December 7, the first meeting of classes and departments will be conducted in the new building which has 31 rooms, including a kitchenette, five restrooms, a pastor's study, an office for the director of Christian Education, and a boiler room plus corridors, lobbies and closets.

In September, 1949, the congregation voted unanimously to construct an education building on the property adjacent to the present sanctuary. Charles G. Benton and Sons of Wilson were employed as architects.

Proposed plans and blueprints were presented to the building committee, the Session and Diaconate, in October, 1950, and approved by the congregation. In July, 1951, a large congregation attended ground breaking ceremonies.

The building will provide a room for a new class—young adults which includes all persons from ages 20 to 35. The church has also provided a new room for the students of East Carolina College and the room will be furnished as a chapel.

Because of additional space, separate vesper services can be held for the pioneer group and seniors on Sunday nights. Supper will be served to both groups this Sunday night in the Fellowship Hall (the old

Speech Contest Winner Addresses Local JCs

Wilbur Jackson, Ayden High School student who was chosen winner of the Voice of Democracy contest sponsored by the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce, last night addressed the local Jaycees in their regular meeting.

Jackson delivered before the Jaycees the five-minute talk on democracy and Americanism which will be entered in the state-wide contest tomorrow. Winners in the state contest on tomorrow will be in the contest sponsored by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Slain In Quarrel Over Sleeping

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—An 18-year-old youth was charged with first degree murder after he admitted slaying his young friend in an argument over who would sleep on the left side of a bed.

Joseph Dean Underwood said he shot 15-year-old John Abel Safrano to death in their rented trailer yesterday following a wrestling bout caused by the argument, according to authorities.

"I admit it was stupid. I really didn't re which side I slept on," Underwood was quoted as saying.

The trailer was shared by Safrano, Underwood and William Franklin Harrison, 18, all formerly of Holsington, Kan.

Harrison related that after Safrano bested Underwood at wrestling, the older boy said, "you might whip me at wrestling, but I can beat you at something else," police said.

1953 LINCOLNS SWEEP FIELD IN MEXICAN PAN-AMERICAN RACE

Lincoln for 1953 is the automotive sensation of the world today!

1953 Lincolns in the Mexican Pan-American Race took not just first, not just second, but third and fourth places as well!

In the race participants call "the toughest stock car competition in the world," the winning Lincolns swept afield of 66 other American production cars representing 11 other makes—and won by a big time advantage.

The first 1953 Lincoln to cross the line was driven over the tortuous 1,938-mile course in a total elapsed time of 21 hours, 15 minutes and 38 seconds. Then, within 10 minutes and 58 seconds, the three other winning Lincolns swept in—with the last one fully 20 minutes ahead of its nearest competitor.

Never before has there been such a record established in this International Contest organized by the A.N.A. (Asociacion Nacional Automovilistica)—a run that includes altitudes ranging higher than 10,000 feet—over roads of every type and condition.

Never before has a great car so clearly demonstrated both its performance superiority and ruggedness in such a competitive test.

The 1953 Lincoln, with its advanced design 205-hp engine—the V-205—is the car to challenge all others this year. So see the 1953 Lincoln—which is powered to leave the past far behind. Try it—drive it—for the performance revelation of a lifetime!

Highway Safety Award Winner

AYDEN—Corey Stokes of the S. and E. Motor Company and mayor of Ayden, received the "1952 Highway Safety Award" presented at a meeting of the North Carolina Automobile Dealers' Association in Raleigh Wednesday.

The presentation of the award took place at a luncheon given by the association to honor dealers who have loaned new cars free of charge to high schools for use in the driver education program.

The award was also presented to the dealers for "their integrity toward public service" and their interest in safe driving. The award was given by the inter-industry committee on highway safety.

Governor-elect William B. Umstead paid tribute to the dealers receiving awards and Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction, made the awards on behalf of the inter-industry committee.

In addition to remarks by Umstead and the presentation, Audley H. Ward spoke on "Human Relations." Members of the Council of State of North Carolina, some managers representing manufacturers who have arranged for above-quota cars, and officials from various finance organizations attended the meeting.

Sheepman Tends His Flocks From Small Airplane

SALT LAKE CITY (U.P.)—Charles W. Stoddard, who lives near the shores of Great Salt Lake, is the only known sheepman who tends his flocks from an airplane.

Stoddard got the idea for his one-man aerial "lift" to feed sheep three years ago when the government aided sheepmen with "operation haylift" because of the severe winter.

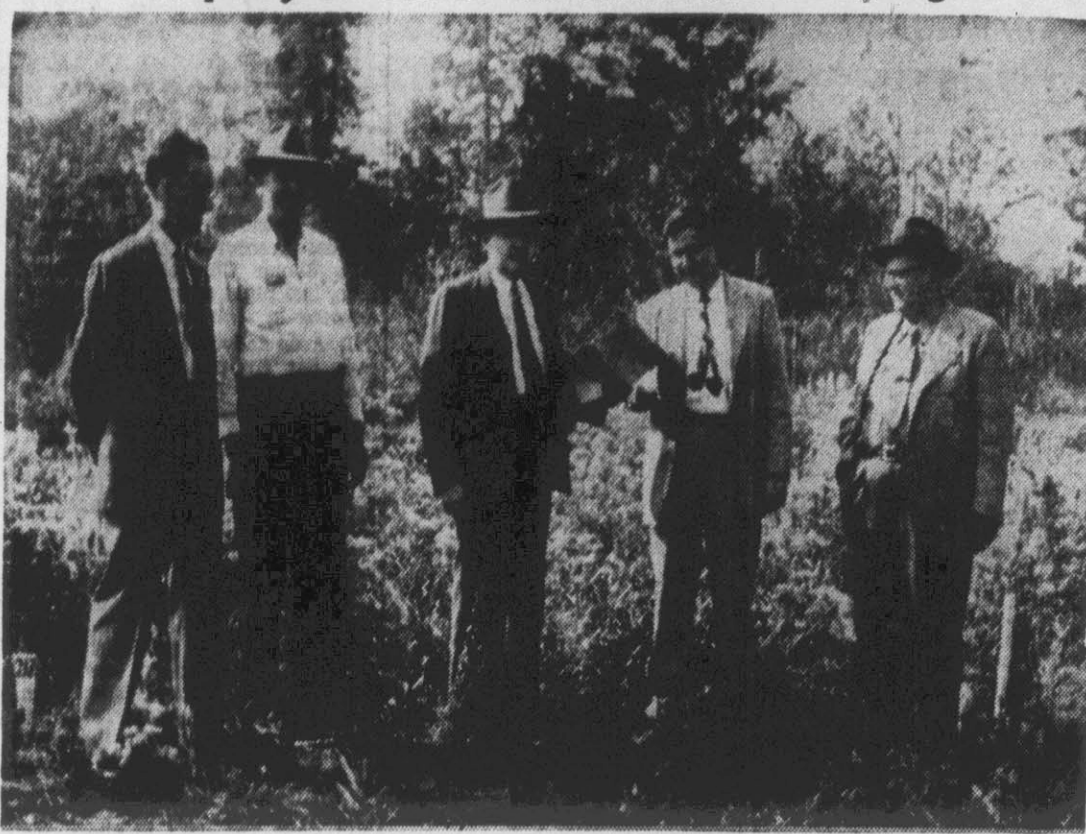

After taking flying lessons, Stoddard installed a hopper in a two-seated Cub plane. The pilot can push a lever and release concentrated food pellets to the sheep below.

In only 45 minutes, Stoddard can feed 1,000 head of sheep on Fremont Island in Great Salt Lake, flying at an altitude of 50 to 100 feet.

High water fences in the sheep and fences out coyotes.

It is estimated that about 250 million people in the world speak English.

Property Given For Grifton Recreation Program

Property owned by Thurman Williams was turned over to the town of Grifton last month to be used as a site for future recreation activities construction. Above, Williams is shown giving the deed to Mayor W. E. Rasberry. (Reflector Photo)

South America And Africa Said Once Connected

ALGIERS, North Africa (U.P.)—A University of Cincinnati geology professor has announced new findings on an old question: Were South Africa and South America ever joined by a strip of land?

Dr. Kenneth E. Caster told the International Geologic Congress here that his years of study have convinced him that the two continents although never a single body of land as suggested by some, were once joined by a belt of earth. He said the strip probably was alternately below and above the water's surface during the course of geologic history.

Dr. Caster based his beliefs mainly on the "astounding" similarity of plant and animal life in corresponding formations on the two continents.

The present insignia of the U.S. Marine Corps — anchor, globe and eagle, was adopted in 1868. The amount of salt in sea water varies more at the surface than in the depths of the ocean.

Appoints Water Safety Chairman

Hoover Taft, chairman of the Pitt County Red Cross chapter announced today the appointment of Dave Whichard as water safety chairman for the county.

Whichard, who is managing editor of The Daily Reflector, will arrange for water safety classes to be held and instruct in a number of the classes.

The new water safety chairman met with W. G. McDonald, field representative of the Southeastern Area, and M. N. Jorgenson, athletic director at East Carolina College, Wednesday to arrange for safety courses to be taught at the college which is working in cooperation with the Red Cross.

Whichard said today two courses will be taught at the college during the next two months. A senior life saving course will begin Monday night at the swimming pool in the new college gym. It will be a 17 hour course, meeting each night next week and beginning at 6:45.

An instructor's course in life-saving will begin January 5 and will include two phases. Whichard will teach the first phase of the course and McDonald will teach the second phase which begins January 12.

Wants It Known His Job Is Not Husband-Finder

TEMPLE, Tex. (U.P.)—Mayor Roy Strasburger has put his foot down and wants it known he is not a marriage counselor or lonely hearts adviser.

The occasion of his outburst was receipt of a letter from a Fort Worth woman, addressed only to "Mayor of Temple, Temple, Texas." It asked Strasburger to help her find a husband "not over 60, who owns a home, does not drink and has neat habits."

The woman, who described herself as a widow, middle-aged and of "easy disposition," added: "I would rather a man be on the plump side, for I find most thin men high strung."

Climate Changes Within City Being Measured

AUSTIN, Tex. (U.P.)—A roving scientist whose car serves as a meteorological laboratory is surveying the difference in climate between a city's downtown section and its residential areas.

The mobile "weather bureau" is driven by Kenneth H. Jehn, assistant professor of meteorology at the University of Texas, and has a thermometer extending on a rod from the car with delicate instruments inside the vehicle.

"Everyone knows," Jehn says, "there can be a big difference." The meteorologist, using Austin as a test city this year, says the survey may develop information useful to architects and engineers in designing homes and other structures to make maximum use of a particular climate's advantages.

Traffic Violator Finally Nabbed

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (U.P.)—Police who had been searching for a man for six months on a traffic violation finally nabbed him—in the police station.

Lyle Van Hook was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign before an accident in which he was injured. He was given two weeks after his release from the hospital to appear in court. He didn't.

Police got him anyway when he walked into the police station to pay a parking ticket fine.

Capitol Square

the State and a little more for the counties, cities and towns. That is factual. It is also a fact that if that revenue is lost it must be replaced from some other source. From there on everything said is speculative opinion. Nobody knows how much, but everybody there was a lot of liquor was sold illegally in North Carolina last year. Nobody knows, but almost everybody will argue about it; how much more or less liquor was sold if there had been no legal outlets or if there had been ABC stores in every one of the 100 counties, instead of in just 34. There are no reliable statistics available to prove—or even to suggest—whether public drunkenness and drunken driving are more prevalent in legal or non-legal liquor areas, or to show whether the culprits bought their drinks from an ABC store or a bootlegger. Available figures do seem to prove that legal outlets contribute to defraying the overall costs of government while bootleg outlets have as much or more bad effect, without any alleviating contribution.

Dusting Easier In Future Homes

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (U.P.)—Dusting will be simple task for tomorrow's housewife.

Westinghouse engineers say electrostatic air cleaners will remove airborne dust continually, even particles as small as those from cigarette dust, in the home of tomorrow.

Multi-millionaire Dead Of Sudden Coronary Attack

CHICAGO (UP)—James Norris, 73, who made millions in the cash grain market and Great Lakes steamers and invested heavily in sports programs, died Thursday from a coronary occlusion.

At the time of his death Norris held interests in the Detroit Olympia and the Detroit Red Wings; Madison Square Garden and the New York Rangers; the International Boxing Club, the Chicago Stadium and the Chicago Black Hawks; and numerous other individual enterprises.

His death thrust upon his son, James D. Norris, the responsibility for the extensive holdings.

Norris founded the Norris Grain Co. in 1910 and was its head when he died. The company became the leading cash grain house on the board of trade and held elevator interests throughout the grain belt.

The multi-millionaire, affectionately called "Big Jim" by his friends, was an amateur hockey player as a youth and at one

Head Of Large Newspaper Chain Dies In Florida

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — John Holliday Perry Sr., a one-time farm boy who built a flourishing newspaper empire, died at a hospital here yesterday.

While funeral arrangements had not been completed early today, services were tentatively planned for Saturday at a funeral home here.

Perry, 71, owned a large chain of Florida newspapers, and was head of Western Newspaper Union, a multi-million-dollar organization servicing newspapers.

Perry died at Good Samaritan Hospital, where he was taken after suffering a cerebral thrombosis last Sunday. He had never completely recovered from effects of a fall on his head last August.

Perry suffered a broken hip in a fall while en route to Europe to attend the wedding of his son, Farwell, and was hospitalized in Paris and New York for some weeks before he could return to his home here.

A on-line farm boy, Perry gained control and ownership of organizations which serve 11,000 weekly and 300 daily newspapers and his journalistic influence reached many parts of the world.

His interests included 29 newspapers, 25 of them in Florida, and four radio stations in Florida. Eleven of the newspaper are daily publications.

Perry was born March 3, 1881, on a small farm at Port Royal, Ky., later renamed Perry Park. In 1922 he began a publishing career with the purchase of the Florida Metropolis, later the Jacksonville Journal.

In three decades he had become a press lord and one of the nation's top business executives, and an authority on newspaper, law, and public relations.

Perry was once general counsel for the United Press Associations, Scripps Newspapers, Newspaper Enterprise Association and part owner of James G. Scripps western newspapers.

He acquired control of Western Newspaper Union and held real estate investments in Florida, real estate and New York properties. He managed his enterprises from New York offices but maintained his residence in Palm Beach.

Youth Council In Second Meeting

BETHEL—Last week the Youth Temperance Council of Bethel, met in the High School Library for their second meeting, since first organized on November 14. There were 19 of the 25 members present.

Norma Williamson, president, called the meeting to order and Mrs. J. L. Gurganus was in charge of the scripture and worship service. The minutes were then read by the recording secretary, Ernest Wilson. Old and new business was discussed.

It was decided to take up a "Love Offering" each meeting. Also decided was the time, date and place where the meetings will take place. The meetings will be held twice a month on the second and fourth Tuesdays in each month. They will continue to meet in the High School Library.

"Pledge and Dedication Service" was then presented to the Council. All the members took a part in the service. Mrs. J. C. Williamson, one of the advisors, read the constitution of the Youth Temperance Council to the members. Norma Williamson explained about the service and told them some of the projects that they could do to make points. Each Youth Temperance Council tries to compete against another Council in giving more projects for points.

The advisors Mrs. J. C. Williamson and Mrs. J. L. Gurganus, served the group with Coca Cola and cookies. The meeting was then adjourned until Tuesday, December 9.

Pitt Winner In 4-H Contest Congratulated

Andrew H. Bone, 18, of Greenville, N. C., state winner in the national 4-H Field Crops awards program, receives congratulations from C. E. Jarchow, executive vice president, International Harvester Company, during the national Club Congress in Chicago. Andrew has been in 4-H work seven years, is a member of the Factolus Senior 4-H Club and lives on a 100-acre farm. He won his state award—an all expense trip to the Club Congress—for his work in growing outstanding yields of corn, tobacco and sweet potatoes. During the six years he has been enrolled in Field Crops his corn yield has been more than 100 bushels per acre with a top yield of 122 bushels. His one-acre plot of tobacco yielded 1,822 pounds and his two-acre plot of sweet potatoes yielded 300 pounds. International Harvester is the donor of awards in the Field Crops program for the eighth consecutive year.

Thieves Break Into Falkland Graded School

FALKLAND—Unidentified thieves broke into the Falkland Graded School here last night and robbed the principal's office of approximately $250, Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson reported this morning.

Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Manning, officer making the investigation said the robbers entered the building by raising a window in one of the classrooms.

The principal's office was locked, Manning stated, but by boring a hole in the door with a brace and bit, the thieves managed to unlock the door from the inside and gain entrance to the office.

The deputy said school officials did not know exactly how much

New Bridge For Trent River Is In Planning Stage

RALEIGH (AP)—Plans for a 14-million-dollar bridge across the Trent River at New Bern were announced yesterday by Gov. Scott and the State Highway Commission.

Scott said plans for a new structure to replace the antiquated span which carries Highway U. S. 70 across the river have been under consideration for a year. Money for the project was not available until last month when federal funds for next year were allocated he explained.

The governor wired New Bern officials of the allocation after Mayor George H. Roberts renewed a request for the bridge in a telegram to the governor.

The mayor sent the wire after a station wagon went out of control on the bridge and plunged into the river.
