Historic Test Of States' Rights Before Supreme Court; Negro Attorneys Argue Segregation Implies Racial Inferiority

WASHINGTON (UP) — South Carolina defended its segregated school system before the Supreme Court today in a historic test of state's rights versus the rights guaranteed to Negroes by the U.S. Constitution. The state, which already has taken preliminary steps toward abolishing its public schools if segregation is outlawed, was represented by white-haired John W. Davis, the famed constitutional lawyer who persuaded the court last year to strike down President Truman's seizure of the steel industry. The state, which already has taken preliminary steps toward abolishing its public schools if segregation is outlawed, was represented by white-haired John W. Davis, the famed constitutional lawyer who persuaded the court last year to strike down President Truman's seizure of the steel industry. Leading Negro attorneys argued at the opening session of the long-awaited hearing that segregation of school children by races implies that Negroes are inferior, and thereby deprives them of the "equal protection of the laws" guaranteed in the 14th Amendment to the Constitution. Thurgood Marshall and Robert L. Carter, New York attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, declared that segregation is unconstitutional even if the schools provided for Negroes are every bit as good as those for whites. Hospital Records Course Held Here

Representatives Of 10 Hospitals Attend Meeting Tuesday

Representatives of 10 hospitals in eastern North Carolina met at Pitt Memorial Hospital yesterday for a course in medical record keeping and hospital bookkeeping to conform to the Duke Endowment system. The all-day meeting was one in a series of seven meetings held by the hospital section of the Duke Endowment for record keeping personnel in hospitals assisted by the Duke Endowment. C. D. Ward, Pitt Memorial Hospital administrator, said the Duke Endowment gives $1.00 per day per charity patient and to receive the money records must be conducted in the Duke Endowment system. The meetings being held are to acquaint new personnel with the record keeping problems peculiar to all hospitals. The meeting yesterday was conducted by James R. Felts Jr., field representative; H. Carl Rowland, field representative; and Albert T. Early of the staff of the hospital section of the Duke Endowment whose offices are in Charlotte. A similar meeting will be conducted today in the Hotel Cape Fear in Wilmington. The facilities of the Pitt Memorial Hospital provided through the courtesy of Ward and all of those in attendance were delighted with the reception and hospitality they received. Dinner was served at the hospital through the courtesy of the Duke Endowment. The following hospitals were represented at the meeting held in the class rooms of Pitt Memorial: Pitt Memorial Hospital; Carolina General Hospital, Wilson; Woodard Herring Hospital, Wilson; Albemarle General Hospital, Elizabeth City; St. Luke's Hospital, New Bern; Edgecombe General Hospital, Tarboro; Roanoke Rapids Hospital, Roanoke Rapids; Chowan Hospital, Edenton; and Duke Hospital, Durham.

It Took An All-Night Job To Fix Troubles

One breakdown followed another, and for awhile it looked as though today's Daily Reflector would be printed on a press in another town; but temporary repairs were finally effected and another day's news was printed. Yesterday's press run was interrupted before half of the papers were printed, and the big complex machine didn't hit its stride again until this morning. From 4:30 yesterday afternoon, until 4:00 o'clock this morning the press was completely broken down by the uncovering of more "troubles" which had to be remedied. It was after 10:30 this morning when the balance of Tuesday's papers could be run. Reflector pressmen and pressmen from neighboring newspapers were called in to help. They stayed on the job all night. An accumulation of small mechanical troubles over the past several days came to a climax yesterday afternoon with a general breakdown. Temporary steps had been taken to keep the press from coming to a complete stop but the development of further trouble caused a complete shutdown and a portion of the press had to be dismantled to get to the seat of the troubles. The Daily Reflector expresses its regrets for service not "up to par" and appreciates the patience of its subscribers for arising with it during the difficulties. Yesterday was the first time in a great number of years that the paper was unable to complete its daily press run the same day because of mechanical difficulties. Today marks the paper's 59th anniversary as a daily; having changed to the daily field December 10, 1894, after being operated as a weekly and semi-weekly from January 31, 1894.

Japanese Writer Says CIC Held, Tortured Him

TOKYO (AP)—A Japanese leftist writer, Wataru Kajii, charged before the Japanese Diet today that American Counter - Intelligence Corps (CIC) agents kidnaped and held him and held him prisoner more than a year. The U. S. Army has officially denied the accusation. Made originally two days ago it has created a furor in Japan. The Army said Kajii, 49, was picked up last in 1951 before the end of the Allied occupation, and briefly for questioning and released. He said that no Army agent had detained any Japanese national since Japan gained her independence April 28, 1952.

Naval Air Power Hits Red Bases

Stage Biggest Raid Of Korean War Close To Soviet, Manchurian Line

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — United States carrier fighter-bombers in their biggest air raid of the Korean war blasted four major Communist rail centers close to the Soviet and Manchurian borders, the U. S. Navy announced today. The raid sent Navy planes farther north than any bombers ever have been during the Korean war. Some of the raiders swept as close as 15 miles to the Soviet Union border. The fighter-bombers from the carriers Essex, Bon Homme Richard and Oriskany of Task Force 77 yesterday blasted Hunyung, on the Tumen River, the most northerly point ever lit, Najin, 1. miles from the Soviet frontier, Hyesanjin and Musan also on the Tumen River. Panther jets, Skyraiders and Corsairs flying from the carriers in the Japan Sea flew 252 sorties yesterday in blasting the key rail terminals in another blow against the Red transportation system. One Corsair was lost. The pilot ditched his plane in North Korea, but was picked up by a helicopter from the cruise, Los Angeles. While the Reds still quaked from the pulverizing Navy raid, U. S. B-29 superforts droned to within five miles of the Manchurian border to slam tons of explosives on a military-industrial area at Yongsong. The B-29's met heavy anti-aircraft fire, powerful searchlights and Red night fighters as they swept over the important target. U. S. Sabre jets, conveying fighter-bombers on attacks in North Korea today, shot down one Red MIG-15 jet and damaged another. It was the 10th MIG destroyed in three days. Credit for the destruction claim went to 1st Lt. James Low of Sausalito, Calif., 1's eighth for the Korean War. Lt. Ronald Hartrm of Port Jervis, N.Y., got credit for the damaged MIG in a duel between two Sabres and four MIGs at 38,000 feet. Fighter-bombers, meanwhile, smashed two rail bridges between Sinanju and Kuna and "ipped into rail lines south of Chaeryong on the Haeju Peninsula. Other dive bombers touched off fires and secondary explosions when they blew up seven Red ammunition stockpiles just behind enemy positions on the western front. On the ground the entire front was relatively quiet. The attack at Hunyung was the first against the Reds' main port of entry, the major east coast rail line connecting Manchurian and Russian supply bases. Pilots reported the entire area was mushroomed with thick black smoke after the raid. The carrier planes ran into no fighter opposition during the surprise assault. No details were announced of the attack on Najin, which has been blasted before by Army bombers. The port, also known as Rashin, first was hit in Aug. 1951 after special permission had been given by the U. S. joint chiefs of staff. Following the Hunyung and Najin raids the Navy sent its planes crashing into Hyesanjin. Six large buildings in a factory sector were damaged, and two secondary explosions and a fire touched off. Lt. Vic Lumpkin of Long Beach, Calif., and Lt. Charles Cleveland of Joplin, Mo., personally sealed off the city's water supply, at least partially, when they destroyed three buildings at the waterworks.

Slackening Of Gov't Curbs On Building Seen

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government may slacken Jan. 1 the tight ban on how much steel may be used to build schools, public works, hospitals and recreational and amusement facilities. The National Production Authority now maintains a tight check on the use of steel for such projects. However, the agency has said it would ease by May 1 its restrictions on the amount of steel which can be used without prior government approval. An inform source said yesterday an order permitting the use of five tons of steel each for recreational and amusement projects may be issued this week, effective Jan. 1. Officials reportedly are considering relaxing the prior-approval ban also on steel used for homes, apartment houses, schools, hospitals and commercial construction.

Swartz Issues Hopeful Note On Artloom Plans

Discloses Application Made For Utilities Service; Substation Advances

Utilities Superintendent Martin Swartz issued an optimistic statement last night concerning Artloom Jarpet Company's tentative plans for constructing a new plant in Greenville. Swartz's optimism relative to the project came out at the regular monthly meeting of the city's Utilities Commission, at which time vague plans for making water and sewer facilities available to the new plant were drawn up. "There is an excellent chance the plant will be built in the near future," the superintendent told members of the commission. "The company has already taken an option on the land and applied for city water and sewer service." Company's Expense According to the commission's discussion on the request, the utilities department will extend water and sewer mains to the city limits, and the company will bear the burden of expense in carrying them from there to the plant. "It's the nicest company ever to come into Greenville," Swartz stated. "They are going ahead with plans for building and are abiding strictly with the rules set up by the commission for extending water and sewer service into outlying areas." According to the superintendent's report, the new substation being built at the plant in anticipation of the electrical tie-in with Virginia Electric and Power Company is complete except for instrument wiring. VEPCO Near Swartz announced the VEPCO line is still in the Pactus area, where right-of-way problems have cropped up and the company has been forced to go through condemnation proceedings in the courts. He said court action has been completed and the way is now clear all the way into Greenville. The Vanceboro substation has been nearly completed and is almost ready to go into service, the superintendent explained. The Vanceboro unit is being constructed on a lot there recently purchased by the commission. "The water and sewer main project currently in progress in West Greenville is going according to schedule," he stated, "and we plan to complete our work there within four to six weeks." Mixing Chamber Swartz gave a "gratifying" report on the new mixing chamber under construction at the water plant and informed commissioners that the contractor has left the job, having completed his share of the work. "We are now working there with our own force," he said, "and barring unforeseen circumstances we will have water in the basin sometime in January. However, we are not pressed now because the peak demand for water has passed for this year." Members of the commission voted to request Mayor Lester D. Page for a complete, up-to-date set of city maps, showing all streets currently under construction and those being considered for repair work. Accept Check They also voted to accept a check from Eastern Construction Company in the amount of $1,492.33 as full payment for work done for the company by the utilities department in installing several water taps on the campus of East Carolina College. Commissioner J. B. Kittrell was absent from the meeting last night.

En Route West?

NEW YORK (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur was "out of town" today but his office said it knew nothing of speculation that he might be en route west for a conference with President-elect Eisenhower. The speculation arose after Eisenhower in a radio message to MacArthur expressed interest in learning the former Far East commander's views on ending the Korean War. Newsmen who attempted to contact MacArthur yesterday prior to announcement of the exchange of radio messages were told by his office he was "out of town."

Exchange Of Cables, Instigated By President-Elect, Schedules Exchange Of Views On Ending Of Conflict

ABOARD USS HELENA (UP)—President-elect Eisenhower turned an ear today toward Gen. Douglas MacArthur, saying he is "looking forward" to hearing the former far eastern commander's plan to end the Korean war. MacArthur announced last Friday night, in a speech before the National Association of Manufacturers in New York, that he had conceived a "clear and definite solution." He indicated he wanted to present it to Eisenhower. Eisenhower's response, which showed his willingness to meet informally with MacArthur, was revealed Tuesday night following an exchange of cables between the two World War II leaders. The President-elect's interest in the secret MacArthur strategy pleased Eisenhower's one-time superior officer and military mentor. It marked the first time, MacArthur said, that anyone had shown official interest in his way of thinking since President Truman fired him because of his views on the war in Korea. MacArthur had told the manufacture of his plan could be carried out "without either unduly heavy price in friendly casualties or any increased danger of provoking a third world war." He said, too, that a "change in conditions" had caused him to revise, in part, the blueprint for ending the war which Mr. Truman dramatically rejected as untenable 20 months ago. "There has been a material change in conditions from those of 20 months ago when I left the scene of action, and the solution then available and capable of success is not now entirely applicable," MacArthur told the NAM. The original MacArthur plan which caused President Truman to deprive him of his command and called for economic and military blockade of the Chinese mainland, U.N. attacks on Manchuria and use of Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist Chinese forces in an invasion of the mainland. Eisenhower told MacArthur in his cable that he was "gratified by your continued interest in the Korean war which so vitally affects the United States and our allies." "I appreciate your announced readiness to discuss these matters with me and I assure you I am looking forward to informal meetings in which my associates and I may obtain the full benefit of your thinking and experience," Eisenhower said. MacArthur's ensuing cablegram said he was "grateful for your interest in my views concerning solution of the problems involved in the Korean war and the Far East."

Constitution Of Egypt Abolished

Premier Naguib Promises New Democratic Code In Making

CAIRO, Egypt (UP) — Premier Gen. Mohammed Naguib abolished the Egyptian constitution today and promised a new one setting up a government "by the people for the people and of the people." Naguib in a radio broadcast shortly after midnight said the present constitution had been thrown out "in the name of the people." He said that a committee will be formed shortly to draw up a new constitution making the Egyptian people the "source of all powers." He said his "transitional" government was taking over all power until the new constitution can be drafted and submitted to the people. Naguib, the Egyptian "strong man" who took over the government Sept. 7, 1952, told a press conference the "abolished constitution has been a failure because it represented only capitalism and feudalism." "We want now a constitution representing various classes of the population and the needs of each class."

LONDON (AP)—An official source said today that British will protest to the United States against plans to screen foreign seamen before they go ashore in American ports. New immigration regulations requiring a foreign seaman to undergo questioning before he steps off his ship in a U. S. port is slated to go into effect Dec. 24. British shipping, particularly on the North Atlantic run that takes the Cunard Line's two "Queens" between New York and Southampton, will be hard hit, the informant said.

Sentenced Last March, Hubert Daughtry Is Free Man Without Serving Single Day

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor A low-flying Ayden native who gave two state highway patrolmen a merry, 80-mile-per-hour race in 1951 had a six-month road term commuted last week without serving even one day of his sentence. Hubert Devone Daughtry, who appeared in Pitt Superior Court last March nattily attired in a pin-striped suit and sporting a drapper mustache to answer charges of speeding, carrying a concealed weapon and driving with an improper muffler, is free. The commutation order was dated December 4, 1952, and was signed by State Commissioner of Paroles N. F. Ransdell, who said in a telephone conversation Tuesday the sentence was commuted at the written request of Judge John J. Burney, trial judge who sentenced Daughtry. Judge's Letter According to Ransdell, Judge Burney's letter was dated December 1, 1952, and stated in part: "In view of the facts of the case and the fact that the defendant is not physically well, it is satisfactory to me that the Parol Commission commute sentence imposed in the action so as to require such fines and costs to be paid as in the opinion of the commission meets the ends of justice." Daughtry was tried in Pitt Superior Court on March 21, 1952, on three charges. He was found guilty in the case of carrying a concealed weapon, but received a six-month road sentence for speeding and a 30-day sentence for driving with improper muffler - both sentences to run concurrently. The Ayden defendant appealed both cases to the N.C. Supreme Court, and the highest court in an opinion filed November 5, 1952, found no error in the trial and upheld the sentence imposed in Pitt Superior Court. Quelled Action The two cases were to have been re-docketed here December 15, when judgment would be confirmed and the sentences put into effect. The Paroles Commission's commutation order quelled that anticipated action. According to the order signed by Ransdell, the six-month road term was commuted to a suspended sentence on condition Daughtry remain of good behavior and not violate any state law for a period of two years, and that he pay court costs. No additional fine was imposed. Daughtry was represented in the Pitt Court by local counsel, but in

No Major Change In Farm Policies For Near Future Anticipated By Rep. Cooley

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor A North Carolina congressman intimately acquainted with the score struck a reassuring chord yesterday regarding future status of the farm price support program under Republican regime. In contact by telephone with a reporter on The Daily Reflector staff, Rep. Harold D. Cooley of Nashville stated he does not anticipate any major change of farm policy in the near future. He said: "Prices at 90 percent of parity will continue at least two more years." Representative Cooley, member of congress from the Fourth N.C. District since 1934, has been chairman of the influential House Committee on Agriculture for the past few years - but he will be succeeded by a Republican when con-

Lauded Successor

The retiring Tar Heel chairman of the committee on agriculture spoke highly of his Republican successor, Rep. Clifford Hope of Kansas, of whom he said affectionately. "He has been on the committee even longer than I have." In remarking further on the Kansas congressman and "friend" Cooley said, "Hope is indeed our hope, because he has long been inclined toward our farm program being particularly favorable to price supporters at 90 percent of parity." Cooley disclosed Hope has been to North Carolina several times to observe local tobacco conditions. "He understands our particular situation thoroughly," he concluded, "and he should do a creditable job as Republican chairman of the committee."

Aldermen Schedule Provisional Date For City Vote On Council-Manager Plan, Pending Further Study By County Board Of Elections

By MURIEL SHOTWELL Reflector Staff Writer An election calling for a vote on whether or not Greenville will have a city manager was tentatively set last night for Monday, January 12, depending somewhat on the County Board of Elections' examination of the petition requesting such an election. The petition was turned over to the county election's board last night at a joint meeting of the board and the Greenville Board of Aldermen for further study. J. H. Harrell, chairman of the elections board, said the petition had not been presented to him and his board wanted an opportunity to look it over. However, the aldermen went ahead and passed the resolution calling for an election and set the date of the election for Monday, January 12. At first it was suggested no action be taken and the meeting continued for the county board of elections' answer but, as required by law, the board of aldermen must call for an election within five days after the petition is submitted. The Jaycees last Thursday night filed a petition containing the names of 1,800 city voters with the aldermen and requested that a special election on the issue be held. Question was raised as to the validity of some signatures on the petition. Mayor Lester Page pointed out that some people had signed for members of their family but he was sure there were enough names legally signed to make for legality of the petition. Another meeting of the aldermen and board of elections has been called Thursday noon to give the elections board time to study the petition and decide if they will act jointly in passing the resolution asking for an election. Harrell raised the question as to why the county board of elections was called in on passing the petition since it was addressed to the aldermen and the election would be city election. "We want to cooperate in the matter but how are we going to act jointly?" he asked. City Attorney R. B. Lee explained that the county board was called in to make the holding of an election "air-tight" and stated that it was best to have both boards act jointly on the matter. "We have called in the county elections board to eliminate any defect in the election," said Lee. Lee did not say, however, what would be the effect on the holding of the election if the elections board did not approve the petition or would not act jointly with the aldermen in calling for a special city election. It was brought out that if "Plan D," which calls for the election of five councilmen at large from the

Warns Against Using Fireworks

Police Chief S. G. Gibbs today warned about the state and city laws concerning possession, transportation, sale or exploding of fireworks. Under the law, a person found with fireworks in his possession, or selling or transporting or exploding them, shall be found guilty of a misdemeanor. The penalty for either of these violations is $50 fine or 30 days in jail, City Attorney R. B. Lee stated.

According to the record, the Board of Aldermen of Greenville passed a city ordinance some five or six years ago outlawing fireworks. Later the General Assembly passed a law outlawing fireworks in the state.

Greenville police have investigated several reports of persons exploding fireworks here and warned the offenders. Chief Gibbs reminded that possession of fireworks is a violation of the law and the police are going to strictly enforce it.

Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell delightfully entertained the Clio Book Club Tuesday afternoon at her home on Evans St. Guests for the afternoon, besides the club members were Mrs. Reid Perkins, Mrs. J. J. Perkins, Mrs. James Jenkins, Mrs. Howard Fuller and Miss Sonora Moore.

fairs. He spoke on the present situation in Korea and pointed out that President-elect Eisenhower's visit over there would definitely be a moral booster to the boys in service. The appointment of Vinson, Dulles, and others are indication of a strong cabinet for the next four years.

After many more informative comments, Dr. Frank stated that he could not conclude his talk without commenting on the high accident rate in the United States and in North Carolina. The 996 deaths in our state due to high rates of speed are appalling and something for us to stop and think about.

At the conclusion of this most interesting and informative talk, the hostess, assisted by Miss Moore and Miss Hadley, served a delectable salad course with coffee.

Books were exchanged and the club adjourned.

Davis-Cox Vows Pledged In Informal Ceremony

In an informal ceremony on December 7 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, Miss Ann Irene Cox became the bride of Mr. Raymond Alvin Davis at the Immanuel Baptist Church. The Rev. J. A. Neilson performed the double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dalmer Lindon Cox of Greenville. Mr. Davis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Emmett Davis of St. Louis, Mo.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Monteen Winstead, vocalist, accompanied by Mrs. Paul A. Toll, organist. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina length gown of imported Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over satin, fashioned with a strapless bodice and full skirt with inserted lace godets, bolero lace jacket with a small collar and long sleeves ending in points at the hand. Her shoulder length veil of French illusion was attached to an Elizabethan lace cap trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a prayer book topped with a white orchid showered with lilies of the valley and white satin streamers.

Miss Evelyn Latham, cousin of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore an Emerald green velvet ballerina length gown with a full skirt and a brief bolero. Her head-dress of green velvet was trimmed with a matching plume. She carried a colonial bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums tied with iridescent tulle ribbon. The bridegroom was attended by Otis A. Tuter of Jacksonville, N.C., as best man. Ushers were Dalmer Lindon Cox Jr., brother of the bride, Hassell James of Rocky Mount, Gene Skinner and Francis Jordan of Greenville.

The bride's mother wore a mist blue costume suit with matching accessories and an orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a dress of charcoal gray mallesse and a flamingo hat. She wore black accessories and an orchid corsage. Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Alva Jordan on East Tenth Street. The house was decorated throughout with white flowers and magnolia leaves. White candles burned from crystal holders. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Horace G. Foreign Mail To S. Claus

SANTA CLAUS, Ind. (UP)—Santa Claus said today that his mail from foreign countries is increasing.

Santa is Jim Yellig, leader of an American Legion group here which each year answers thousands of letters addressed to Santa Claus, North Pole.

Yellig said he is getting more letters with foreign postmarks each year. Last year, he said, there was one from Budapest, Hungary, behind the Iron Curtain. The four youngsters who wrote the letter wanted Santa to know he would still be remembered, even though he is not allowed in Budapest.

Elbert Reinke, postmaster of this village whose magical name has made it a "Christmas Capital," said he and his staff are expecting to handle between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 pieces of mail this season.

But he said the total volume probably will be lower than in previous years because large companies and advertisers are sending fewer letters here for remailing under the Santa Claus postmark.

In the past, one corporation alone mailed as many as 500,000 advertising circulars from Santa Claus.

"Maybe there's more first class mail," Reinke said, "but the lack of permit mailing will probably decrease the total volume we handle."

But the decrease is not likely to allow Reinke and his seasonal staff of 15 much leisure between now and Dec. 25.

They have an added task this year of opening entries in a "Name the Doe" contest.

The doe is the sweetheart of Rudolph, the most popular deer in the village's famed Children's Park.

Reinke said Mamie is the most favored name at present among more than 3,000 entries received. The contest closes Dec. 15.

Travel, Space Limits Kept Lawmakers Home

By LYLE C. WILSON United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—Representatives of the House and Senate turned up missing when President-elect Eisenhower visited Korea and began the policy conferences now in progress.

Eisenhower originally had planned to take two or more members of Congress with him. The chairman of the House and Senate Armed Services committees were a sure bet to go a week before the departure.

Space considerations aboard the airplane compelled even these two important figures to be eliminated. That created a situation wherein some of the top Congressional Republicans will expect to huddle with Eisenhower very soon after his return. They will want to know the new administration's plans for the Far East as worked out by the President-elect, several cabinet members and some others including unofficial advisers, but minus Congressional advice.

A meeting with Congressional leaders would give Eisenhower his first opportunity for a friendly gesture toward Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O.) since a senator publicly denounced the selection of Martin P. Durkin to be secretary of labor.

Taft easily could be eliminated, however, by limiting the meeting to top members of committees dealing directly with foreign policy and the armed services. Taft is not a member of either. He could be included, however, in his capacity as chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Eisenhower has been quick and business-like in dealing with the problems of a president-elect. His rapid fire selection of a cabinet was the most impressive performance, by far, of any recent incoming president. He knew what he wanted and got it, fast.

But Eisenhower is without much experience, and so far has shown no great skill, in dealing with members of Congress who are as fractious as prima donnas.

The method by which he lets Republican Congressional leaders know his decisions on Korean policy will show how fast Eisenhower is learning the art of keeping a United States senator or representative happy—in line.

W. R. Jenkins and Mrs. Paul Roberson were the guests of Mrs. Jasper Smith in Bethel at a tea honoring Mrs. Garber, the wife of Bishop Garber. Mr. J. T. Thompson has been confined to the bed at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harvey Farmer.

Strength for the Day

GOING UP?
In a department store there is a sign over an elevator which reads: "For co-workers only." It means that only those who have business with the offices on the top floor, where administrative policies originate and are administered, are supposed to use that elevator.

This little parable points up the fact that the decisions involving the management of big business—whether that is the business of a department store or the bigger business of an individual life—originate on the top floor and come down by definitely appointed channels. To listen to some sermons, one would get the idea that man is thoroughly adequate to handle his own affairs, and that in a modern scientific age we are in a position to tell God what to do, rather than the other way about.

There is a story in Genesis about some men who built a tower which reached into the sky, and God came down and scattered it and them. If you are in the least doubt as to who is running the universe, get straight on the matter before it's too late. God is running things just as He has always run them, and the only favored He has in the world are those who might be called his co-workers.

And remember this: the orders that come down from the top floor are what count in your life and what have counted in the life of the world from the beginning of time.

Who Will Help File The Key?

Are they going to reduce taxes up there in Washington in the next four years or so?

That's a question many people have been asking themselves and their neighbors lately. That is a question in which everyone is interested — for everyone pays taxes, directly or indirectly.

We'd venture to say nearly everybody is in favor of reducing taxes; but most folks these days, in view of the federal government's extended activities, qualify their favor with an "if."

This man is in favor of reducing taxes. If it doesn't hurt the farm program; that man is of the same opinion. If it doesn't slash defense orders; the other fellow is in favor of it. If it doesn't do something else.

No matter where one looks or how he figures this matter of high taxes, he is looking for some relief.

To be sure taxes can be reduced. But they can only be reduced if federal spending is first reduced. As long as the money is going out in increasing quantities, it must be coming into government coffers in like quantities, unless the government is to go even deeper into its red ink well.

To reduce the spending, which will be the forerunner of reducing taxes, is going to take a lot of doing on the part of individuals and communities.

From the community standpoint alone, literally millions from federal funds are going to purely local projects — to be paid for by taxpayers from one end of the land to the other. It is encouraging, however, to note that some communities are getting back to the old American habit of doing things for themselves and paying out of their own pockets. It is encouraging to note that some communities never got out of that habit even in the days when the most popular thing was to see how much Uncle Sam would put into a project before it was undertaken.

No matter how diligently they try, the administration leaders, the members of Congress or any other officials can not reduce taxes without the aid of the people of the nation. The federal spending can not be reduced until the communities and the individual citizens reduce their demands for federal funds for various and sundry purely local projects.

The key to lower taxes is reduced federal spending. The citizens and communities must help file the key to make it fit the lock.

The President-Elect Takes No Chances

It's plain that President-elect Dwight Eisenhower plans to say little or nothing about his policies and programs until after he is inaugurated on January 20.

Some news correspondents have indicated disappointment that Eisenhower refused to answer questions while in Korea. It is remembered too, that even during his presidential campaign he held few news conferences of a "give and take" nature.

He may have many reasons for not wanting to expose himself to probing queries on Korea. Whatever he proposes to do would be welcome information to America's enemies; and considerable significance could be attached to the manner as to how he answered his questioners.

As far as domestic policies are concerned, it must be recognized that the president-elect while determined on a general program must learn about the practical mechanics of how to effect his program. A slip of the tongue could cost him confidence of millions of Americans who look to him for competent guidance and would attach over-importance to a minor error in statement.

It is most reassuring that Eisenhower has chosen a cabinet of experts in their relative fields... real "success men" who know how to get things done. This points to a very real probability that this "staff" will do the actual carrying out of the overall program and goals set forth by the new President. In effect, Eisenhower will be putting to work the administrative lessons he learned in a lifetime of military service, adjusted to fit civilian needs and practices.

More and more, the signs point to an end of the off-the-cuff presidential interviews which have been the practice for the last twenty years. They provided a lot of "bloopers" by presidents, and grounds for much speculative writings by the newsmen involved. It appears that our next president considers the outlook for the next four years so serious that he doesn't want to chance any slips of the tongue that might make more difficult his already arduous task.

The free and easy news conferences of the past didn't provide a whole lot of big news, but did provide an atmosphere of public confidence the people were "in the know" so far as Washington affairs were concerned. It wasn't necessarily so, but that's the way it worked.

With a new administration coming in, and the prospects of a more formalized press conference, there need not be a lessening of this confidence if the sources of governmental news are left open to the public. Should they be closed, there would be real grounds for indignant complaint.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—An elaborate and expensive substitute program for our present system of foreign economic and military aid has been prepared by the outgoing Truman Administration and submitted to President-elect Eisenhower's advance agents at Washington, including Messrs. Humphrey, Wilson, Dulles and Stassen. In accord with Ike's orders, they have given no comment or commitments.

Although the blueprint is a highly confidential document, its general outlines have become known within the last few days. It has many different and novel angles, but it still calls for heavy expenditures and underwriting by the United States. However, instead of direct loans and grants through such agencies as the Mutual Security Administration and the Point Four Program, Uncle Sam would set himself up as a banker-investor.

The scheme is designed to appease European sensitivities. Under the present arrangements, the recipients of our assistance feel that they have become orphans, paupers and wards dependent on this country. Besides hurting their pride, it furnishes political ammunition to every dissident group among our allies, and especially to the Communists.

"We want trade, not aid" is the new slogan at London and Paris.

NEW PROGRAM PROVISIONS—The principal feature of the new program is its provision for private investments in foreign industries, utilities, railroads, etc. These projects have been financed under the Marshall Plan and Mutual Security Assistance, but they have been government undertakings from start to finish. There is hardly any expectation of repayment.

But the Truman-Acheson-Harriman substitute contemplates that Uncle Sam shall give a guarantee of 60 or 70 per cent on recovery of these private loans or investments, regardless of such dangers as nationalization, confiscation, revolution or invasion by Russia. It is argued that there would be only a small risk in this enterprise.

Although it is not generally realized, this kind of insurance is offered now under both MSA and Point Four, but only in a limited way. The current proposal contemplates a vast and semi-permanent expansion.

TREASURY WOULD HOLD BAG—Another impetus for increased international trade would be the establishment here of a huge "convertibility fund." This would break the existing dollar deadlock, in the opinion of the sponsors, which now prevents foreign interests from selling large quantities of goods in the United States and vice versa.

Its operation would be extremely simple and in reality, only a regularization and extension of Marshall and MSA financing. When an American firm sold commodities or machinery to a foreign country under a long-term credit deal, it would not have to wait until that country built up enough dollar supplies to pay off that time might never come.

But the money would be forthcoming from the U. S. Treasury, which would then become the actual creditor. Uncle Sam would assume the risk or at least a large percentage.

Likewise, a foreign country would collect from our Government, even though it was short of dollars on its own account, when it sold goods over here. The Treasury would again hold the bag, until the dollar difficulty disappears. If it does not, as fait rien as the French would say.

OTHER FEATURES—The other features of the foreign finance blueprint are less complicated and less extraordinary.

The first calls for greater "offshore buying" of military and kindred supplies. As of today, approximately 90 per cent of defense and MSA funds are spent in this country for raw materials, labor, transportation, etc.

Save for certain items, we can make better weapons than our allies. Secondly, an underlying politico-economic idea behind rearmament is to prolong good domestic conditions. Purchases for 1953-54 have been planned on that basis.

The second consists of a demand for reduction of our tariffs on many foreign items. Although duties have been cut heavily under the reciprocal agreement system, overseas manufacturers and exporters insist that they must sell several billions more annually in our markets. Otherwise, they will erect barriers to our goods.

Although these two changes will provide greater assistance to Europe, the heart of the plan, which Messrs. Churchill and Pinay will advocate on their visits to Washington next year, lies in the "guarantee" and the "convertibility" provisions.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Many of us make regular deposits at the bank. Mine are only occasional, but when I do get the opportunity it's certainly an enjoyable trip. Observing the various types of depositors is a comedy within itself.

The one I enjoy most is the shoulder-peeper. He's always trying to see over the shoulder of the depositor ahead of him to find out how much money he's putting in the bank. When this one gets behind me I usually try to egg him on by letting him have an occasional glance, which I hope is not sufficient to let him in on the figures.

Some day I hope to see the non-chalant type of depositor, who will simply amble in, throw his book before the teller, and calmly smoke a cigarette while the teller checks the deposit. But it seems that every depositor watches the teller like a hawk, observing him more closely than he does anything else.

The chatterbox is a holdup in the line, but I'll stick up for him. Most of us rush too hard and fast and we should take more time for chatting.

A teller once told me that if he had any one request to make of his depositors it would be for them to make their deposit slips correctly. And there are some who do not even fill out a deposit slip. For his own protection, every depositor should fill out his own slip, and be sure it's right.

The same teller told me an amazing story about a bank teller who changed a check. A good customer of this particular bank wrote a check that was not sufficiently backed up in the bank. The teller called another branch of the bank and was told that the check would be good there. So the check was changed and sent to the second bank.

It so happened that this second bank had a draft on this man for a $10,000 life insurance policy. When the premium came due the draft was not honored because this check in question had reduced the funds to the point that the draft could not be honored. In the middle of this situation, the man died. Of course the insurance company did not pay the $10,000 policy, but the bank was forced to, because they had changed the check. This would happen probably one out of 10 million times, but you can see that it is unwise for a bank to change a check.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

ROADS—Public roads will be one of the major issues in the upcoming General Assembly, just as they have been—directly or indirectly—in every session since 1913 and perhaps for even longer than that 40-year period. It is unlikely that the highway issue will dominate the next Legislature to the same degree as in 1921, when the first $50 million bond issue was authorized; or in 1931 when the State took over the county roads for maintenance; or in 1949 when the $200 million secondary road bonds were the big bone of contention; or in 1951 when reasonable State aid to municipal streets topped the headlines. There is definite prospect that demands for more attention to existing primary highways may be an issue in the next Assembly; and there is certainty that the question of divorcing prison administration from the highway commission will be one of the big items before the Legislature.

REORGANIZATION—That is one of the reorganization items which neither Governor Umstead nor the legislators can duck, because popular opinion demands that it be considered carefully before decision is reached as to whether to retain the existing union or have an absolute divorce decreed. Not so widely publicized or so well known, but just as important with respect to the future State highway policy, is Governor Umstead's purpose to ask for a revamping of the highway setup so as to bring the administration closer to the people and at the same time to strengthen State control over highway matters.

ACCORD—Those apparently conflicting objectives are not as much in conflict as might appear on the surface. The idea is to reverse, or at least retard, the progressive trend toward autonomous dictation in ten highway divisions by individual commissioners, and to give back to the people and their elected county commissioners somewhat more influence in the location of roads and selection of projects to be accorded priority, while at the same time to require sanction of the entire highway commission rather than the present policy of the division commissioner and engineers having practically the final voice in official confirmation of routes and contracts.

PROGRAM—Governor-elect Umstead has not outlined his program for the highway commission. He may do that in his inaugural address or he may devote a later special message to the General Assembly to the subject. He has made it clear in public speeches and in private conversations that he is not entirely satisfied with current policy. Many other people with whom your reporter has discussed the matter agree that the existing setup is out of date. It has not been changed in any important phases since 1937 when the present lines defining the 10 divisions with one commissioner for each and a State commissioner as full time chairman were set out in the statutes. It is unanimously conceded that the job done there was a good one, but there were many people who think that shifting population and changing economy call for review and re-alignment now. In conformity with his ideas about basic need for closer contact with the people and more control by the central State commission, Governor-elect Umstead is known to be thinking in terms of 15 instead of 10 divisions, the new lines to take into account the population and activity shifts since 1937.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
For some time it has looked as if construction next year would be sharply below this year. Capital outlays would pass their peak by mid-1953 and the housing market was approaching saturation, the experts said.

and 1953 may turn out to be a very good year. This is encouraging because high construction activity tends to bulwark the rest of the economy.

A joint forecast by the Department of Labor and Commerce says that both private and public building will increase next year. It puts the expected rise at one billion dollars above the $32,300,000,000 being spent for construction this year. A private estimate, based on the acknowledged intentions of corporations, also indicates greater expenditure next year for capital goods—of which construction is by far the largest component.

The National Production Authority has indicated it will ease many of its curbs on the use of steel and copper in construction by January 1, which should act as a further stimulus to building.

For some time now there have been reports from scattered sections of the country that new houses in some developments were selling slowly. While these reports are true, they do not appear to indicate a trend, because new homes are still being started at a high rate. Starts in September and October were more numerous than in those months last year and home-building starts by the first of November were about 960,000. That is slightly ahead of the same period of 1951. In fact, the millionth 1952 home was probably started sometime in November.

There has been some fear that the Republican Administration would not be as inclined to foster home building as has been its predecessor. However, Congressman Jesse P. Wolcott, Michigan Republican and chairman of the powerful House Banking and Currency Committee, told a meeting of Midwest builders that the new Administration may establish a housing program calling for at least a million new homes a year for the next four years.

Hal Boyle's Column
By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—A famous mountain climber was once asked why he wanted to climb Mt. Everest.

"Because it is there," he replied. "The lofty peak is still there and still unclimbed, so far as it is known. The latest expedition I reported to have failed a heartbreaking 150 feet short of its goal."

There are many mountains on the face of the earth yet un conquered by men on foot. But Mt. Everest holds a peculiar fascination for mountain climbers because it is thought to be the tallest in the world.

It is over 29,000 feet high, and is said still to be growing. And because of this, some men—even the experts—feel the task of reaching its summit on two feet is impossible.

But there have always been people in the past who have put a theoretical limit on human achievement, and lived to see their error. It used to be thought no one could ever swim the English Channel. Today a man who doesn't know someone who has swum the channel has a limited circle of friends.

When the machine gun was perfected, some high-ranking officers thought it meant the end of infantry warfare because no man would dare such murderous fire. They were wrong.

In track and field sports some authorities hold that no man will ever sprint a hundred yards in nine seconds or run a mile in four minutes. But because thousands of young athletes dream each year of doing these things, and work toward doing them, the chances are that in time they will be done.

The odds to attain the supposedly unattainable exist in the heart of every man. That is what makes him a human being. And in the breast of a few men there is a positive passion to achieve what has never been achieved before. It is these few whose superb strength of body or spirit force the cynics among mankind to revise their ideas of what is possible, and burst the strait-jacket of the past.

In a tormented world it may seem to many juvenile, useless and even silly for grown men to risk their lives and fortunes trying to climb a mountain.

But Mt. Everest is more than just a storm-swept height. It is a symbol, an eternal challenge. And the restless race of mountain climbers will never rest until one or two among them stamp their weary feet in elation upon its windy peak.

The ultimate victory will represent a triumph of all that is best in the human animal—physical courage, endurance, careful planning, selfless teamwork toward a goal beyond personal profit.

It is an odd fact that in these expeditions up Mt. Everest, native Tibetans and Nepalese, accustomed to vast heights, wear out sooner than the British or Swiss climbers. The reason probably is that the native climbers are doing it for pay.

The British and Swiss go because they have a higher goal. Why do they want to climb Mt.

Washington Letter

By CARL HARTMAN
(For Jane Earle's)

WASHINGTON—If you're really worried about inflation and want to get on a solid, hard-money basis, there's always Saudi Arabia.

No national debt, no government controls, no regular income tax except for foreigners, not even any paper money. However, if you want to become a Saudi Arabian, you'll have to turn Moslem. This is the picture given by U. S. officials who work closely with the country's problems.

Nothing but metal currency circulates in King Ibn Saud's almost medieval kingdom on the great Arabian boot. Shiny new gold sovereigns now going into circulation have a gold content of 82.24 at the official world price. They will be valued, however, at about $12.

The Saudi sovereigns bear no portrait of the aging monarch, because Moslem law forbids picturing any person or even an animal. The coins are covered with flowing Arabic characters instead.

Oil development by the Arabian-American Oil Co. raised the government's income from about 12 million dollars in 1946 to something like 180 million last year. The King used to cooperate government funds at low rates, but now he has his own personal income.

Government revenues are still not strictly budgeted, but with help from President Truman's "Point Four" program, some new accounting methods are being installed. Arthur N. Young, an American economist, has just returned from Saudi Arabia after 18 months work under Point Four. His big job has been to set up the Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency (SAMA).

This unique institution has only recently opened its doors. There was some discussion, before it was formed, of whether it should be called a bank. The decision went against the name. For one thing, the word "bank" implies organization dealing in interest. A practice that Saudi Arabia considers contrary to Moslem law.

SAMA will neither give nor take interest. It can hold no private deposits, and the shares are not being sold. The few countries left where people habitually carry their money in bags of gold like a medieval king, can also make them. It's a form of money so old that it's been used since the dawn of time.

Some of the Western advisers have argued that a government should collect taxes from its citizens, not make them gifts. The King has even been able to lift the $30 to $40 tax collected from foreign Moslems visiting Mecca, the great religious shrine. The tax is used to be his major source of income.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

HIGH ELECTION COSTS
(Wilson Times)

We're not the least bit realistic when it comes to examining campaign expenses. In the days of Marc Hanna, the Republican nominee, William McKinley, had far more to spend than his adversary, William Jennings Bryan did. It gave rise to the demand for a limit on campaign spending, ultimately leading to a law which held that $3,000,000 was the most either party could use. But that was in the days before radio and television. Now to put on a campaign, whether successful or otherwise, a candidate must have far more money.

He evades the law by having all sorts of groups for this and that. Thus, what the "Citizens for Eisenhower" pay out, whether large or small, isn't charged against the $3,000,000. It's simply a case of where we live up to the letter of the law but violate its spirit. It might be said, in the circumstances, that the recent campaign cost as much as $10,000,000, with $5,000,000 being spent by each side. All of it could and doubtless was spent legitimately, for voting is a thing of the past. In Wilson county alone, it's estimated, much was spent for Stevenson and the Democratic ticket that didn't come from the national organization.

In the face of the last election, Congress, if it's realistic, should revise the law. For, above all, we don't want presidential candidates evading the law. If they're to become known, if they're to get across their programs, they must use every media available. Yet to use those media is expensive. One TV broadcast alone might cost as much as $200,000. To deny a candidate the right to use such media is to deny him his right of election. That, we're certain, isn't the wish of Congress. It resents and rightly the buying of votes. But buying space in the available media isn't buying votes. We must learn to differentiate.

Couple Speak Vows In Chapel Rites

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wallace MacKenzie announce the marriage of his daughter Martha to James Page Webster, United States Army on Tuesday, December the Ninth Nineteen hundred and fifty-two Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church Greenville, North Carolina

The Youth Chapel of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church was the scene Tuesday of the wedding of Miss Martha MacKenzie of Greenville and Arlington, Virginia, and James Page Webster of Henderson and Fort Bliss, Texas.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Raymond Wallace MacKenzie of this city, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Otis Cleveland Jenkins of Creedmore.

The Rev. Edwin L. Earnhardt, pastor of St. James Methodist Church, of which the bride is a member, officiated at the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Church.

The vows were exchanged at three o'clock in the afternoon in the presence of the families and intimate friends. The Chapel altar was centered with a cross which was flanked by tapered candelabra holding burning white candles. Banks of palms provided a background for two floor baskets of white snapdragons, gladioli, stephanotis and fern. The couple knelt on a satin prayer bench for the benediction.

Mrs. H. A. Hendrix provided music for the ceremony. She played "O Perfect Love" by Barnby, "To a Wild Rose" by MacDowell and "Prayer Perfect." The traditional marches by Wagner and Mendelssohn were used.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a powder blue wool suit with a white fur hat and navy accessories. She carried a satin covered Bible topped with a white orchid and showered with streamers which had been given to her as a child by her grandmother. Charles Klutz of Henderson attended the groom as best man.

Immediately after the benediction the couple received in the vestibule of the church, after which they left

Greenville High School and attended Greensboro College and East Carolina College. For the past year she has been employed by the Department of the Defense in a branch office located in Arlington, Virginia. The groom was graduated from the Henderson High School and was attending East Carolina College before entering the armed services. He at present is stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas.

Wedding Luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wallace MacKenzie entertained at a luncheon at the Greenville Country Club at 1:00 p.m. Tuesday prior to the wedding.

The guests were members of the families and close friends of the couple.

Full arrangements were used to decorate the clubhouse, and the long table where the guests were seated was centered with an autumn design composed of fruit and magnolia leaves.

A three course luncheon was served, after which the bridal couple were toasted by the guests.

Out-of-Town Guests Among those from out-of-town who were present for the wedding were: Mrs. Arthur J. Reddin and Mrs. Robert Fleming of Hendersonville, aunt and cousin of the groom; Mrs. Frank S. Page of Henderson, grandmother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Otis Cleveland Jenkins of Creedmore; Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. MacKenzie, uncle and aunt of the bride, Miss Abby MacKenzie and R. P. ### Bob Woodruff Of Florida Is UP 'Coach Of The Week'

NEW YORK (UP)—He's football's man of the year in Florida, but he doesn't feel he is entitled to any personal credit.

The credit, he believes, belongs to the coaching staff and the football squad as a whole.

He's the United Press Coach of the Week, Robert (Bob) Woodruff of the University of Florida.

When his team beat Kentucky, 27-0, last Saturday, it gave Florida its best football season since 1928—a record of seven victories against three defeats with the Gator Bowl game against Tulsa on New Year's Day still to go.

He's already working toward that game, although he gave his players two weeks off before they resume practice. But not the coaches.

"Come on fellows, we have work to do," he ordered his assistants. And working they are—studying films of Tulsa and his own team, devising ways and means with which they hope to come up with another victory.

A slow, methodical perfectionist, there probably isn't any harder working coach in the game than the 36-year-old Woodruff, now in his third season at Florida.

He stresses team effort, mental attitude as well as physical condition and is meticulous with detail. He strives for perfection, but is not brutal when his players make a mistake. Like his football tutor, Gen. Bob Neyland of Tennessee, he teaches his players to hit hard and to concentrate in recovering enemy fumbles. In his first season at Florida, his team tied with Wyoming and Tennessee in the number of enemy fumbles recovered.

He's extremely proud of his 1952 team.

"We have gotten exceptional team effort from the whole squad all through the season," he said. "I'm extremely proud of the way they worked together, won together and lost together as a total football team."

He's proud, too, of his top-notch assistants and holds to the theory that no coaching staff can be successful "without the same kind of teamwork it takes to make a winning team."

Phantoms Fall Before Last Half Rally For Third Loss

Phants Lead At Halftime 20-19

By WAYNE BISHOP

GOLDSBORO—With forward Braxton Keen leading the way with 17 points, Goldsboro's Earthquakes outscored the Greenville Phantoms 49-39 last night in Goldsboro. The loss was the third straight for the Phantoms and all three have come at the hands of Eastern AAA Conference teams.

The teams operated on fairly equal terms throughout most of the first half with Greenville on top, 20-19, at intermission. At the beginning of the third quarter, the Quakes began a drive which gave them a slim lead throughout the remainder of the game. Four points in the last 30 seconds of play insured the Goldsboro victory.

Behind Keen in the scoring was Greenville's All-Conference forward, Smith Worthington, with 16 points. A trio of players—two Goldsboro and one Greenville—were deadlocked for next position in the scoring parade. Goldsboro's Jay Maxwell and Leroy Strickland and Greenville's Leon Hardee each had eight points.

The Quakes held a definite advantage in accuracy percentages. The Goldsboro team took 66 shots at the baskets and hit on 23 for a 34 per cent accuracy reading. Greenville attempted 63 field goals but hit on only 16 for a percentage reading of 25.

Defensive play for the night was led by Greenville's Bob Conway and Goldsboro's Jay Maxwell. Both did highly effective work on rebounds.

In a preliminary contest, Greenville gained some share of the night's laurels by coming off with a 31-23 victory over Goldsboro's Jayvees.

Center Hal Edwards was Greenville's scoring leader with 17 points. Walter Blackman scored six points to lead Goldsboro.

Ayden, Stokes Split County Double Bill

STOKES—Ayden's All-Conference center Mac Whitehurst poured in 20 points and played a terrific defensive game as Ayden defeated Stokes 52-44 in the second half of a Pitt Conference doubleheader. The Stokes girls had launched the evening's action by defeating the Ayden ladies, 59-39.

In the boys game, Whitehurst was easily the star in a nip-and-tuck ball game. Ayden led for most of the game but the outcome was never a "sure thing" until the closing minutes of the fourth period.

Behind Whitehurst in the scoring column was a teammate, forward Randall Harrington, with 19 points. Stokes' ace guard, Jack Warren, led the scoring for his team with 13 points while center David Robinson led the defensive play for the host team.

Girls Game
In the girls game, Ayden led at only one point in the game—early in the first quarter when they scored four points before Stokes could get organized. After Stokes did start working, however, the show was over for Ayden and Stokes was off to the races.

Forwards Ellen Copeland, with 23 points, and Jane Bullock, with 14, led the scoring for Stokes. Wilma Stokes, with 15, and Betty Paddy, with 13, were Ayden's most effective point makers against a tough Stokes defensive unit which was headed by Frances Warren.

After getting their first quarter lead, Stokes gradually pulled away from the Ayden team. Stokes led 33-23 at the half and gradually increased the lead in the last half.

Stokes will play host to Belvoir Friday night and Snow Hill next Tuesday.

Bucs Play Host Saturday

Little Harold O'Kelley, a freshman from High Point, was leading scorer in a 30-minute scrimmage yesterday between first and second units of the East Carolina College basketball squad.

There was no actual individual score kept but O'Kelley put on an outstanding display of ball handling and scoring in the session. In addition to his good floor game, he teamed with forward Ritchie Blake and Jack Carr in controlling rebounds.

Again yesterday, Coach Howard Porter had the team working with changes made Monday. J. C. Thomas, a freshman, was at forward; Bobby Hodges was at the center; and Charlie Huffman was at guard. Jack Carr, a sophomore who started the year as Sonny Russell's running mate at forward, was teamed with Blake at forward on the second team.

The Pirates will go after their second victory of the young season Saturday night when they play host to a highly-rated Lenoir Rhyne team. The Bears have lost many of the members of last year's conference champion team but they've added some freshmen who give the squad better balance.

The Saturday night game will be the first time the teams have met since last spring when Lenoir Rhyne eliminated East Carolina from the 1952 North State Conference tournament. The Bears went on to win the tournament and the conference championship.

East Carolina launched its 1952-53 season last Saturday night with a 78-68 victory over a surprisingly strong Guilford team. The Pirates trailed throughout most of the close contest but started a drive late in the third quarter and never gave up their lead after the fourth period got underway. All-State and All-Conference forward Sonny Russell led the scoring with 24 points. Charlie Huffman was second in the point making with 15. Huffman snared 17 rebounds to lead both clubs in that department.

PIRATES FOOTBALL

Another practice session was put behind East Carolina's bowl-bound Pirates as they went through a full-scale scrimmage session yesterday. The Pirates will close out their rough work today and spend their last practice tomorrow in polishing their attack.

Coach Jack Boone will take the squad to Salisbury Friday for a short workout before beginning the long wait until Saturday afternoon. The Bucs will face Pennsylvania's undefeated Clarion State Teachers College in the Lions Bowl. In yesterday's workout, halfbacks Eno Boado and Teddy Barnes were the outstanding players on the field. Both are normally defensive players with Boado working at safety and Barnes holding down one of the halfback positions.

Most of the emphasis in practice this week has been on offensive maneuvers. The strong Clarion defensive unit has allowed only 24 points in eight games this year and the Pirates are anxious to determine if that number represents the true strength of the Clarion squad.

Another phase of the East Carolina game which has been given a thorough review is pass defense. The Pennsylvanians have done most of their moving in the air this year and have one of the most potent air attacks which the Pirates have faced all year long.

The squad will leave for the game Friday, spend Friday and Saturday nights in Salisbury, and return home Sunday.

Wake Stuns State With 51-50 Upset

NEW YORK (UP)—Amazing accuracy from the free-throw line, even during a pressure-packed final minute of play, enabled Wake Forest to pull the biggest upset of the young basketball season Tuesday night by beating North Carolina State, 51-50.

North Carolina State, ranked sixth among the nation's cage powers by the United Press Board of Coaches, was a heavy favorite to score its fourth win of the season at Wake Forest, N. C. Instead, the Wolfpack found itself played to a standstill on the floor by Wake Forest's zone defense. As for free throws, the Demon Deacons sank 17 out of 21 shots.

Wake Forest, fresh from a four-point upset of Duke last Saturday, was on top by 26-24 at the half and 49-48 with a minute to go. N. C. State had control of the ball at that point but Mel Thompson missed a hook shot with 40 seconds left and, in the underbasket melee, Billy Lyles of the Deacons was fouled. Lyles calmly sank both shots for a three-point lead, and Thompson's basket for State in the closing seconds was too little, too late.

Jackie Williams racked up 20 points for Wake Forest, which now has a 3-0 record.

Morgan's eyes widened the merest fraction in the faintest suggestion of surprise.
"Requests, Mr. Logan? I shall be glad to hear them."
"First, let me urge you to come to a decision as promptly as you can. You know, and I know, that if this is to be done at all, it must be done soon."
"That is quite obvious, Mr. Logan. You may be assured I will not be unduly distracted from it."

And the second request?"
"The second? Why, simply that I'd like my gun and my saddlebags returned, if I am to be a guest. Otherwise, I feel obliged to regard myself as a prisoner and act accordingly."
Morgan's mouth twisted into a half smile, whether of amusement or contempt Clay could not tell. "I can plainly see why you were selected as an ambassador, Mr. Logan. You have no hesitancy in asking for whatever you desire. Of course, your belongings will be returned to you. They were simply impounded as a precautionary measure until you had identified yourself."
He straightened himself in his chair and the great voice that Clay had heard first boomed through the room.
Almost before the word had passed his lips the door was flung violently open and two men had catapulted themselves through it, their pistols ready in their hands, their eyes fiery and alert with the expectation of anger.
Clay chuckled. "Your discipline is excellent," he said dryly.
Morgan accepted the words in all seriousness. "I try to keep it so, Mr. Logan. If I find it very helpful at certain times."
The deep voice rumbled out a string of orders, the door closed behind them, and Clay found himself being escorted down the wide hall and ushered into a generously proportioned bedroom at the banely furnished and scrupulously clean; evidence enough, he decided, that he had been accepted and would be regarded as a guest of honor.
He turned, to the silent guard who was still standing beside him, obviously puzzled at the strange turn affairs had taken in the matter of this mysterious stranger.
"Have my gun and my saddlebags brought to me here," he commanded. "There'll be some dinner served someplace around here before too long, I hope."
"I was sheer innocence and he knew it, but he was intent upon establishing himself immediately as a member of the household who could come and go without question, and whose orders were to be unhesitatingly obeyed. If he was to succeed in his mission, it was essential that any interference be eliminated without delay. He felt a warm flush of satisfaction as the guard reacted unquestionably to the peremptory tone of authority.
"Your stuff's on the way here now," he said respectfully. "Ought to be along any minute now. Far as dinner's concerned, you'll be eatin' in the main dinin' room with Morgan himself, I take it. Someone'll call you when it's ready—hadn't ought to be more'n half an hour or so away."
Clay walked across the room and dropped into a chair, stretching his booted legs out at full length and giving himself over to the complete relief that had been denied him during the hazardous interview with Morgan.
"That's all." He lifted his hand in a careless gesture of dismissal. "If I need anything else, I'll let you know."
He watched the guard turn and walk into the hall, pulling the door to behind him. It closed quietly.
For a moment Clay sat staring at the closed door and then he drew his hand down over his face in a movement almost equally compounded of nervous exhaustion and overwhelming relief.
"The go-errandship of Coahulatl," he said softly. "And he believed me! By God, he took it—lock, stock, and barrel!"
Morgan did not sit in an appearance of the noonday meal, and Clay assumed that the guard's prediction had been correct and Morgan had been served in his office. Somewhat to his surprise, Clay strolled down through the wide hall and out on the sunlit gallery that stretched across the front of the house. The armed men lounging and gossiping along the gallery crew quiet when he approached and watched him pass with hard, questioning eyes.
His cigar clamped between his teeth and his shoulders as stiff as a grenadier's on parade, Clay moved through this attitude of sullenly doubtful suspicion as unconcernedly as though he were walking down a country lane on Br. 1's Kentucky plantation. Actually, outside of the fact that he might have attained some raw information under the cover of casual conversation, he was supremely indifferent to the attitude of the men about him. His own plan of operation was simple enough: to see exactly how well Oak Island was defended, to find and widen a chink in its armor, and to lead the regiment triumphantly through that widened breach to victory.
He strolled down the driveway that passed the side of the house toward the stables at the rear. Just behind the house a group of swearing, sweating men was gathered outside a small log-framed building that stood a little apart from the others. An open farm wagon was pulled up beside the open door, and as he came alongside he saw that a half-dozen legs of powder were still in the wagon bed.

HER HEROES—Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, wife of the president-elect, is all smiles as she views photo of her husband talking with their son, Major John Eisenhower in Korea. ### French Morocco Explosion Added To World Crises

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor
Events of the last few hours dramatically point up not only the enormity of the task facing President-elect Eisenhower but also the appalling speed with which these events move.
Thus, while Eisenhower and his aides consider our future course in Korea and policy toward the Orient, a long-feared explosion shakes French North Africa.
Center of the explosion is Morocco, in which we have built giant airbases as vital links in our defense against Russia.
Shock waves from the Moroccan flare-up could:
1. Seriously endanger the French home government which already has been embarrassed by having its troubles with Tunisian and Moroccan nationalists aired in United Nations debate.
2. Reduce French contributions to NATO and the unified defense of Europe.
3. Further antagonize the Arab world, which is lined up solidly with Tunisian and Moroccan nationalists, thus complicating hopes for unified command for Middle East defense with Arab participation.
4. Furnish new grist for the Communist propaganda mill, particularly as it attacks the West in its Arab-language broadcasts to the oil-rich Middle East nations.
5. Finally, disrupt vital oil shipments from these fields to Allied Far Eastern bases, ultimately affecting even our operations in Korea.
The latter point, it may be hoped, probably is far-fetched. But such a linking of events does illustrate both the global nature and the enormity of the task facing our national planners.
It is especially unfortunate that the Moroccan affair comes to a head at this time. But it probably was as inevitable as unfortunate.
Nationalist elements of both Tunisia and Morocco are interested only in their independence. However, Communists have joined enthusiastically in their demonstrations.
The disturbances come when other problems of Mediterranean defense planning hang in the balance.
Even now the U. S. is negotiating with Spain for the use of Spanish air and naval bases both in Spain and Spanish Morocco. Any upheaval in French Morocco is bound to have an important link between the nationalists of Egypt and those of Tunisia and Morocco.
Delicate Turkish negotiations to bring its neighbors into a Middle East defense alliance also could be upset.
The conclusion may be that it's all one world, but surely not a restful one.

Another Defeat For Atom Spies

NEW YORK (UP) — Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, the convicted man-wife team of atomic spies, lost another round today in their fight to beat the electric chair.

They are scheduled to be electrocuted at Sing Sing prison in the week of Jan. 12.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan today denied a motion to stay the execution and another motion to set aside the death sentence.

Ryan also refused to set aside the 30-year sentence imposed on Morton Sobell, a co-defendant.

On the other hand, if farmers plant to fumigate their planted soils for nematode control, the tobacco specialist asserted, they should use about twice as much fumigant as is used in field treatment.

Suggested rate of application are: one gallon of dichloropropene-dichloropropane per 100 square yards and one-half gallon of 85 percent ethylene dibromide over the same area.

Those fumigants should be applied when the soil temperature is above 45 degrees Fahrenheit, and soil should be fairly moist when treatment is applied.

"Soil fumigants should not be applied on plantbeds that have already been treated with cyanamid if good weed control is to be expected," concluded Weeks.

When using the methyl bromide treatment the manufacturer's recommendation should be followed, Weeks cautioned.

Nematodes Cut Yield And Quality Of Pitt Tobacco

Both yield and quality of tobacco produced in Pitt County this year were greatly reduced by nematode damage, County Tobacco Specialist Sam Weeks declared this morning.

Weeks said nematode soil pests, both root knot and meadow, are prevalent in planted soils as well as in the fields themselves. He explained that when best results are desired from treatment, it is very important to control nematodes in plantbeds and fields also.

"Nematodes in the planted can be effectively controlled," the tobacco specialist stated, "by treating with methyl bromide and by fumigating with either dichloropropene-dichloropropane or ethylene dibromide."

When using the methyl bromide treatment the manufacturer's recommendation should be followed, Weeks cautioned.

Referendum . . . (Continued from page one) city who in turn appoint a mayor from their own ranks and hire a city manager, does go into effect, new legislation will be needed to conform to the plan and the city charter will have to be revamped.

The new type of city government if voted into effect, will call for a completely new slate of councilmen to be elected and those councilmen who still have time to serve on the present board will not be included in the five councilmen unless re-elected by the voters.

In opening the meeting last night, Mayor Page said he had no other alternative than to authorize the calling of the meeting since the petition was signed by at least 25 percent of the eligible voters in the city.

It was brought that there are between 4,000 and 5,000 registered voters in the city and both the mayor and H. H. Duncan, city clerk, expressed confidence there were enough registered voters signing the petition, even though some persons signed for others. Mayor Page said he had not had the time to check into each name on the petition to see if they were registered voters.

Registrars, judges, and pollholders are still to be appointed to handle the special election.

More 'Yuletide Spirit' Located

PACTOLUS . . . Pitt County ABC officers got the "Yuletide Spirit" near here Monday, and in so doing impressed upon an unknown bootlegger "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

However, officers never made contact with the anonymous, subversive "blocker" to get his approval of the "giving," but they "received" from a cache along Tranter's Creek a total of 72 gallons of illegal booze.

J.M. Ward, member of the local ABC force, said this morning the whiskey was found on the creek bank approximately three miles east of Pactolus. "We were looking for a still and found the liquor in a woods bordering the creek," he explained.

Tranter's Creek is the dividing line between Pitt and Beaufort counties, and Ward declared the booze might have been floated down the creek in a boat for storage away from the still itself.

There was a total of 576 pints of the whiskey, and at inflated holiday prices it would retail for approximately $1,000 when "pinted" out to individual customers.

Officers participating in the raid were Ward, Dick King and J.L. Taylor.

Leading Attys. . . (Continued from page one) Negro, told the court that the kind of schools provided for Negroes is not the question.

"Our position is not that we are denied equality but equal protection of the laws," he said in firm tones.

He and Carter cited lower court testimony to show that the scholastic progress of Negro children is retarded by the mere circumstance of segregation, even when schools are equal in all other respects.

Justice Felix Frankfurter engaged other Negro lawyers in a spirited discussion of the legal grounds for the "separate but equal" doctrine on which the South's educational system has been based for more than 50 years.

Frankfurter, who poses more questions from the bench than any other justice, maintained that the doctrine stems from "long-established historic practice written on state statutes and adjudicated by state courts and this court." He said this solid foundation cannot be lightly tossed aside.

Carter and Marshall insisted that the court does not have to overturn any previous decisions to rule in favor of the Negroes; that the question of whether a colored child in a separate school can be educated as well as a white child is a brand new issue.

C-of-C Board Is Preparing For New Elections

At its board meeting Monday night, the Greenville Chamber of Commerce directors made preparations to elect new officials for the coming year.

An election committee was appointed to conduct the election of eight new directors for a three year term. The committee is composed of D. J. Whitchard, III, Charles O'H. Horne, Jr., and E. D. Larkin.

Directors whose terms expire are C. E. Blair, Hartwell Campbell, Larry Averette, B. B. Drum, F. F. Hendrix, Badger Johnson, Thomas Webb, and George Wilkerson.

A nominating committee was also selected to prepare the official ballot of 18 members of the chamber to be submitted to the membership by mail from which eight new directors will be elected.

Reports Heard
Manager W. T. Kyzer, in the absence of Reynolds May, industrial committee chairman, reported that progress in negotiations with the Artwood Carpet Company on possible location of its new plant in Greenville is being shown.

A treasurer's report was made by J. W. Overton and approved by the directors. The manager was requested to write over two-year delinquents again to give them opportunity to reactivate their membership.

The progress of the new member's party was reported on by the public relations committee chairman, Thomas Webb; who said that all commercial and civic organizations in the city had been invited to participate in planning and carrying out the party the latter part of January. He said several had accepted and he felt that all would within the next few days.

Manager Kyzer was authorized by the board to attend the meeting of Board of Managers of the Southeastern Institute for Chamber of Commerce executives which will be held at Daytona Beach, Florida, December 11 and 12.

London's Deadly Fog Has Lifted
LONDON (UP) — A fog that caused an estimated minimum of 160 deaths was lifted from London today.

Londoners, their lungs soot-blacked, welcomed the gray skies and occasional drizzle which are normal in London at this season.

Health authorities estimated that at least 160 persons, mostly elderly men and women suffering from bronchial ailments, died as the results of the fog which blanketed the entire city area for five days.

INOPPORTUNE — Miss Laura Reilly, whose duties as hostess and maitredome at the executive mansion require close attention to details in arranging receptions and other affairs, is a firm believer in the philosophy expressed in the Biblical book of Ecclesiastes. Especially that verse which reads: "to everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven." She is reluctant to criticize anybody's philosophy, but she does wish some other people adhered to that particular tenet. For example, she had made elaborate preparations the other afternoon for a formal tea honoring members of the several cultural societies meeting in Raleigh. It was a lovely setting for an elegant party. And, that was the day a bunch of shortsighted men chose to spread a lot of foul smelling fertilizer on the mansion grounds. Many of the guests while too polite to make comment, no doubt agreed with Miss Reilly that the timing was inopportune.

Seven Men Shot In Gun Battle In Middle Of City

NEW YORK (AP)—Seven men were shot down today as a swarming Cleveland gunman fought a furious running gun battle with police through the Times Square area.

The Negro gunman, Clarence O. Sims, finally spun to the pavement, badly wounded by a coolly firing patrolman, just as he was about to make his getaway. Three policemen were seriously wounded. Three passers-by, frantically hunting cover in the hall of bullets, were nicked.

Police said Sims had triggered dozens of holdups in the New York area during the past year. Cleveland police want him on an armed robbery charge.
