Churches of Christ, Scientist "God the Preserver of Man" is the topic of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches next Sunday.

The golden text is from Psalm 25th Chapter "O my God, I trust in thee. . . Let integrity and uprightness preserve me; for I wait on thee. Redeem Israel, O God, out of all his troubles."

Passages from the Bible include: "The fear of man bringeth a snare; but who so putteth his trust in the Lord shall be safe." Proverbs 29:25. And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, "The history of Christianity furnishes sublime proofs of the supporting influence and protecting power bestowed on man by his heavenly Father, omnipotent Mind, who gives man faith and understanding whereby to defend himself, not only from temptation, but from bodily suffering."

Robert Shaw's Chorus To Sing Here

Robert Shaw (shown above) will conduct the Robert Shaw Chorus and String Ensemble in a performance Monday evening, December 15, at 8 o'clock in the Wright auditorium at East Carolina College.

The program is sponsored by the college Entertainment Committee as the fifth number on the 1952-1953 Entertainment Series.

Though still in his thirties, Shaw occupies a preeminent position today in the field of choral music. Well-known for his work from 1938 to 1945 with the popular Fred Waring shows, Shaw organized and acted as conductor for the now-famous Collegiate Chorus, is increasing his prestige as conductor of the Robert Shaw Chorus, and has done other outstanding work in the field of choral music. For a time he was choral director for the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Mass., and also director of choral activities at the Juilliard School of Music.

Shaw and his Chorus have been widely and enthusiastically praised by outstanding music critics. The New York Herald Tribune called the young conductor "a musician of taste, high temperament and no mean skill," and the New York Post described him as "master of every nuance that can be coaxed out of a chorus," and added, "He is probably the most gifted conductor in evidence today."

The program announced for the East Carolina performance next Monday will present a combination of the new and the old, the grave and the gay in selections. Music by Schubert, Ernest Bloch, Brahms, Debussy, Johann Strauss, and others is included.

Semi-Centi Club Has Christmas Program

The Semi-Centi Book Club met Tuesday evening, December 9, with Mrs. Norman Little.

The meeting was called to order by the club president, Mrs. Floyd Phillips, and minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Ruth Vincent. A short business session was conducted which included plans for the Christmas party December 13th.

There being no further business, the meeting was turned over to the new members of the club, Mrs. C. T. Fleming read "The Birth of Jesus Christ" according to Matthew which was very impressive. A very inspiring article titled "Finger On My Shoulder" was read by Mrs. Ed Harris. This article was about the really true meaning of Christmas.

The guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Sheila DeSavigny who gave a most interesting talk on Christmas in England, Nicaragua and Costa Rica. She spoke about the different customs of Christmas in each one of the countries. Her talk was very interesting and most informative and enjoyed by all.

After the program refreshments were served and books exchanged. The number of American tourists in Germany in 1952 is estimated at 200,000.

Men's Club Is Host To Women

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church were hosts at supper at the church last night to the women of the church. Dr. John O. Reynolds presided.

"Tige" Gardner, of Kiwanis minstrel fame, entertained the group with songs and recitations.

Rev. Grier Woody of Bear Grass, a wounded war veteran conducted a brief devotional service.

Dr. Robert Holt, director of religious activities at East Carolina College, was the speaker. His subject was "World Religion," a new course being taught at the college. "Make this Christmas as it should be, and remember that the first gift belongs to Christ," the minister said. "This can be done best by helping someone who needs assistance and not by gifts to each other," he emphasized.

Badger Johnson introduced the speaker. Special guests were Bo Carr, Herman Nobles, Hunter Keck and Dr. John O. Reynolds, who sang as a quartet. Mrs. W. Glenn Scott was accompanist.

Approximately 150 persons were present at the turkey dinner.

Humorist Slated To Address Club

One of the nation's leading humorists, William E. Skadden, is scheduled to appear at a meeting of the Pitt County Executives' Club Saturday night at East Carolina College at 7 p. m.

"Marry and Be Merry" will give club members something different in the way of entertainment, pulling him in that rare class occupied by a choice few, a humorist who is really funny.

The committee in charge of dinner guarantees that Skadden will offer no weighty problems. His wit sparkles, his rib-tickers do come off as scheduled and there are many of them. "Marry and Be Merry" is a laugh riot and his listeners have a feeling the speaker is getting as much fun out of it as they are.

Of course, his remarks do have a serious side to them, but they are so expertly camouflaged and so adroitly sugar-coated as to make their existence almost unnoticed amid the chuckles, laughter and unrestrained guffaws which are by-products of any speech this Prince of Tom Foolery makes.

Plans are being made by club officials to entertain a large crowd of members and their guests who are expected to be on hand to hear Skadden.

Will Investigate Next 'Panther'

HOLBROOK, Calif. (UP)—Carl Millsagel vowed today he'd look twice before shooting "panthers" from his automobile.

Millsagel thought he saw a panther on a country highway near here and shot the "large, catlike beast."

The "panther" turned out to be Constable Edward Elmore's Persian cat. Millsagel was charged with "disturbing the peace and shooting from a public highway."

SAFETY MEASURE
CONCORD, N. H. (UP)—The New Hampshire chapter of the Refrigeration Service Engineering Society recently adopted a resolution to strip hinges and latches from discarded refrigerators. The action followed several mishaps in which children were trapped in abandoned refrigerators.

Raid Shelters

RALEIGH (AP)—Black and yellow fluorescent raid shelter signs will soon be posted on all state buildings in Raleigh to indicate emergency shelters.

The adhesive-type signs, designed by State Civil Defense Director E. Z. Jones, already have been adopted by the states of Virginia and New Hampshire.

Jones announced yesterday the signs, suitable for schools, industrial plants and other structures, will be made available to CD authorities at cost.

Preparation For College Reviewed

Answering the question "How can high schools better prepare students for college?" Dr. J.K. Long of East Carolina College told Hertford County teachers this week that the real answer lies in the student himself, but that "guidance from an understanding teacher is essential."

Dr. Long, director of the East Carolina department of education, spoke at a meeting held Tuesday in Winton. His topic, of educational interest to both public school and college teachers, was suggested by Superintendent R.P. Martin of the Hertford County schools.

The question of better preparation for college was approached by Dr. Long "as a problem which years as a result of many factors," he explained. Among these factors he cited increased number of youth enrolled and new demands on the schools for curriculum improvement.

Success in college, he advised is related to subject matter taught, effectiveness of teaching, and students themselves. Generally, he said, the student who does well in college is a well-rounded individual.

Guidance, he continued by way of definition, includes a willingness on the part of the teacher to evaluate the effectiveness of his own teaching, and also the ability to guide and evaluate individual growth of pupils in terms of their own goals. Evaluation of pupil progress should mean much more than giving grades, Dr. Long said, for it is based upon pupil-teacher relationships that make life more meaningful for the student and the learning process more interesting.

TOO MANY JONESES

Miss Latham Honors Couple

Miss Ann Cox and Mr. Raymond Davis were honored at an after-rehearsal party on Saturday night, December 6 by Miss Evelyn Latham at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dalmir Linden Cox.

Fall flower arrangements were used throughout the house. The refreshment table was covered with an organdy appliqued cloth over pale green satin. Snapdragons and fern centered the table.

Mrs. Howard Moyer of Farmville and Mrs. James K. Cox, sister-in-law of the bride, served the guests bridal cake, punch, minis and salted nuts. Mrs. Olla Forbes at the piano furnished soft background music for the occasion.

PAVE THOSE ROADS!

LOUISVILLE (UP)—A medical supplies salesman who was arrested for drunken driving here told the judge the reason he couldn't walk straight when he got out of his car was because he had holes in his shoes and the gravel on the road hurt his feet. The judge proved to be "stone deaf."

REST AFTER TOIL
Two navy veterans were reminiscing about the war. One spoke of his greatest happiness, when, at the end of a long and dangerous convoy run, his ship reached port again; the convoy brought safely in; the hard, days and nights of rough weather and long watches and enemy's attacks behind him; the ship tied alongside the dock, the engines stopped; and at last, the warm, leisurely, comfortable feeling as he settled down in his bunk with a book, knowing that for the first time in several weeks he could read till he dozed and then sleep undisturbed all night.

The feeling of peace of mind and body that comes after hard work well done—what is there to equal it? No enjoyment synthetically created by entertainers can compare with it. And it is free to all men. But not all men know this feeling; some will never know it. It takes a combination of two necessary elements to bring it about: hard work, and well-done work. It does not matter whether the work is physical or mental, but it must be taxing; for the truly rewarding sense of satisfaction comes only after a real effort. And it must be well done: inward peace does not spring from a botched job.

An Encouraging Word From Congressman Cooley

Congressman Harold Cooley's opinion of the government farm program under Eisenhower's Republican administration is encouraging, particularly to the people of a farming section like Pitt County.

In an exclusive conversation with The Reflector this week, Cooley said he looks for no change in the farm program under a Republican administration for the next two years. He anticipates a continuation of support of farm prices at 90 per cent of parity. Apparently he is confident his long time Republican friend Rep. Clifford Hope of Kansas, who will become chairman of the House Agricultural Committee succeeding Cooley, will strive to protect the interests of the tobacco farmers of North Carolina as well as those of the wheat farmers of Kansas.

Furthermore, Cooley declared President-elect Eisenhower "has indicated almost to the extent of a promise" that he will not disturb the present farm price support program after he enters the White House. That too is encouraging in view of the fact Eisenhower's favor of the present program could off-set any move by some elements of the Republican delegation which might seek to have the program revoked.

Cooley is a man who knows his way in Washington. He has served in Congress since 1934, and recently has been chairman of the House Agricultural Committee. He has viewed politics, politicians and government programs of various and sundry kinds long enough to draw accurate conclusions, and accurately anticipate future developments.

At the same time, Cooley is as rabid a Democrat as is to be found in Congress. He would not say encouraging words about a Republican administration just to hear himself talk — particularly concerning such a thing as the farm program which is so dear to him and to the people he represents.

In short, Congressman Cooley is in a position to know what he's talking about. His evaluation of the farm program under the Republican administration for the next two years is one which can be considered conservative, and at the same time authoritative.

And the evaluation sounds good to the Southern farm folks who too well remember the depression days under Republican administration more than two decades ago.

Umstead Picks A Plum To Guide His Program

Governor-elect William B. Umstead has reached into his barrel of political friends and pulled out a plum to be his legislative advisor when the North Carolina General Assembly gathers for its biennial session in January.

Frank Taylor of Goldsboro, speaker of the House in the 1951 General Assembly and long-time member of that group, has been appointed by Umstead as his right hand man on legislative affairs for the coming session.

In making the choice, Umstead probably could not have picked from his wide group of friends and supporters a man more capable when it comes to intricacies of handling legislative matters in the Tar Heel state. Taylor has the experience and the know-how. Probably more important is the fact he has the prestige and many close political and personal friends among the membership of the General Assembly.

As the liaison between the governor's office and the General Assembly, Taylor will find himself on the other side of the fence from the position he held as Speaker of the House in 1951. As a member of the so-called "economy bloc" in the General Assembly of two years ago he took a major part in leading the fight against a portion of Governor Scott's spending program. That his activities were successful is evident by the legislation passed by the legislative body two years ago, compared with the requests and recommendations which came from the Chief Executive's Office.

By appointing a member of the more conservative element of the upper echelon in state politics as his legislative advisor, Umstead has indicated the kind of program he will seek when the General Assembly convenes. It will be more conservative than that of the past four years, but it will still be progressive. Doubtless it will be presented to the legislators with more finesse and persuasion and less brow-beating than employed by Governor Scott in presenting his program to the General Assembly.

In the appointment of Taylor, Umstead has chosen a sound thinker, a proven representative and a skilled legislative strategist to help direct his program through the General Assembly.

WASHINGTON—In the Truman Administration's belated attempt to expose and eliminate Communist influence at Washington and throughout the country, Attorney General James P. McGranery is preparing a new drive against the insidious "fronts" which have enlisted so many respectable and patriotic Americans in Stalin's dirty work.

The Department of Justice compiled a comprehensive list of more than 100 of these organizations during the regime of former Attorney General J. Howard McGrath.

But the compilation was made in a hurried, hysterical and slipshod manner, largely to answer Congressional charges that the Administration had been indifferent to this menace. It was a counteroffensive to the Hiss-Chambers revelations.

NEW LIST—This arbitrary method of red-listing dangerous groups was condemned by the Supreme Court in a recent unnoted but far-reaching decision. When the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee of New York contended in court that it had been booked by the D of J without any hearing as to its status, the high tribunal condemned the Government's procedure.

As a result, McGranery is making out a new list, and will create an administrative board which will hear any complaints by alleged "front" units that they have been listed wrongfully.

In order to comply with the Supreme Court's ruling, the FBI and other protective agencies are now combing the Communist "underground" as it has never been ransacked in the past.

DIFFICULT TASK—Unfortunately, the task of identifying and labeling and prosecuting Stalin's secret organizations has become more difficult because of the long delay in attacking the problem.

During the period when Truman was ridiculing the Hiss investigation on Capitol Hill as a "red herring," they have had plenty of time to disperse, to adopt a new false front and to hide their tracks.

Many of the liaison men with Moscow have escaped to Mexico, Caribbean and South American countries, where they have set up cells of anti-American activity and propaganda. These same areas were fertile fields for Hitler's agents before 1939.

SACB RULING—McGranery cannot release his new compilation, however, until the Subversive Activities Control Board hands down a final and official decision that the American Communist Party is controlled by and responsive to the Politburo in the Kremlin. Until then, there will be no judicial procedure or effective machinery for defanging both active and merely sympathetic Reds in the United States.

After a stormy nine months' hearing, a SACB panel ruled in late October that the Communist Party in this country was an active agency which took orders and funds from Stalin. But this ruling cannot become valid until it has been okayed by the full board, which is headed by Peter Campbell Brown of Brooklyn, N.Y.

In view of the damaging evidence submitted to the panel by Government investigators and lawyers, full approval is expected soon.

COMPREHENSIVE—Once SACB has acted, there will be a definite and comprehensive check, perhaps for the first time, on both the central Red group, as well as its social, economic and philanthropic "fronts."

All these units will be required to register and to make periodical reports on their financial contributions and expenditures, which will enable the Federal police to maintain a vigilant watch on the Red network's ramifications. They can be penalized severely for the slightest violation of the law.

JUDICIAL OPERATION—When the new method comes into force McGranery will forward to SACB the names of organizations alleged to be working openly or secretly on behalf of Russia. Then SACB, after a semi-judicial and open hearing, will decide whether the McGranery indictment is supported by the evidence.

Thus seven long years after Russia's subversive operations against and within the United States were recognized and exposed, we will have in operation an effective but wholly judicial and American system for checkmating the Communists within our borders.

MOMENT OF CONFUSION—It has frequently been charged that the United States has been confronted with "crisis after crisis" since 1933. That gloomy word seemed to be a favorite with Roosevelt-Truman bureaucrats and politicians. It looks as if Eisenhower will banish it from the Federal dictionary, however.

When the AFL-CIO labor chiefs recently conferred with him in New York City, the President-elect read the statement they planned to issue after the meeting.

"I note," he smiled, "that you say I am taking office 'at a moment of crisis.' I would prefer that you use the phrase, 'at a moment of confusion.' Who said that Ike wasn't a politician?"

American advertising like the famous soap comes pretty close to being 99 and 44-100 per cent pure, according to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. During the past fiscal year the Federal Trade Commission found 96 and 20-100 per cent of 636,096 advertising messages was honest and factual.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

The other day I was talking to a salesman by the name of Wes Markham who lives in Richmond. Since television is available from several channels there, we were discussing the subject.

"You know," he said, "TV is going to make morons out of us." "How's that?"

"Well, just take the medical profession, for example. Or even law. Before the days of TV a group of doctors or lawyers would get together in the evening and talk shop. One would have encountered a problem that another one could offer him some help on.

"Now you know what happens. A few doctors or lawyers get together and somebody turns on the TV set. One of them starts to say something professional that would normally contribute to the education of the others. About that time somebody says, 'Shush! I'm interested in what they're saying.' Pretty soon everybody is sitting there and engrossed in the TV show. No more conferences, just TV."

Mr. Markham certainly has a point. But I told him, "Here in Greenville we aren't bothered by this. Our reception comes in only part of the time, so we have time for our sessions without interference."

When TV is coming in here in Greenville there are many of us who have the problem of driving ourselves to bed. Other nights we can catch up on our sleep.

SEASHORE — Deeds conveying title to several thousand acres of land will be delivered on December 22. The land will be the first officially to become a part of the Hatteras Seashore National Park or recreational area. Exact acreage to be conveyed has not been determined at the time this is written. That item was the subject of a conference Thursday morning in which Wade Bruton, assistant attorney general; George Ross, director of conservation and development; and A.C. Stratton, project manager for the National Park Service, participated.

AUTHORITY — An act of the General Assembly of 1939 authorized the State of North Carolina, through a Hatteras Seashore Commission, to acquire land by gift or purchase and cede it to the Federal Government for park purposes. Since that time some land has been donated, some has been purchased with donated money and some from appropriations out of the general fund. There is authority for legal condemnation of essential tracts, but so far as could be learned from official sources this week no condemnation proceedings have been completed.

INCOMPLETE — The process of land acquisition for the proposed park is far from complete. Original requirements for 30,000 acres or more have been reduced, but impact of the war and optimism over prospects of oil discoveries along the coast have delayed the program. The tracts to be conveyed this month do not embrace contiguous acreage and later deeds will fill in the gaps.

PROGRESS — Delivery of the deeds for a part of the acreage marks a definite step in progress of the seashore park, but it does not mean that the park will be developed next year or the year after. It is recalled that the Blue Ridge Parkway in the other end of the state has been in process of development since the early 1930's and is still far from complete. The 14 years since the Congress and the General Assembly authorized the Hatteras project is a relatively brief time for a deal of such magnitude to shape up.

DECORATIONS — Almost every city, town and village has been decorated for Christmas. The decorative schemes include vari-colored lights strung across the streets; huge bells and replicas of Santa Claus; Christmas trees ranging all the way from the biggest one in the world at Wilmington to tiny six-inch plastic jobs in show windows. Selection of the most attractive arrangement is governed entirely by personal opinion of the judges. In your reporter's notebook the Town of Apex is in the running for top honors.

APEX — This town of about 1,500 people situated in the western end of Wake county 16 miles from Raleigh has practically all of its business houses on one street, which happens also to be US-1 highway. In front of nearly every business place has been placed a native cedar tree, cut from nearby forests, of uniform size and harmonizing decorative lights. Town authorities set the trees and furnish the electric current, but each firm paid the cost of the tree and the wiring for it. Unlike some of the other towns and cities where overhead strings of light bulbs make a good show at night but look crude in daytime, these native cedars are attractive all the time.

INDIVIDUAL — Besides the overall attraction, the individualistic approach of the Apex people, which has been the policy for several years, is a stimulant to personal pride. At some places, like Federal and State offices, where no institutional money was available for a tree the local employees chipped in to provide the necessary funds. The very rare Scrooge type among business men can be identified by absence of a Christmas tree in front of his place. The Apex scheme is not so elaborate and is less expensive than some, but it is one of the most attractive seen by your reporter in travel over North Carolina since the decorations first appeared some three weeks ago.

SIGNS — There is one infallible sign that Christmas is near. The little daily covered boxes have appeared in the elevators of office buildings around Capitol Square, as silent invitations for small contributions from passengers riding up and down. Contrary to sincere belief of a lot of people, there is nothing in the Bible about the time coming when change of seasons could be determined only by the budding of the leaves. Nor is there any genuine authority for the belief that small boys playing with marbles means springtime has arrived. Official warning by post-offices that Christmas packages to men and women in foreign military service must be mailed by November 1 has had a lot to do with the premature promotion of Christmas goods by merchants, but does not necessarily mean that Christmas is at hand. The sure sign is appearance of the boxes in elevators, decorated with holly and poinsettia Christmas wrapping paper, with a slot just big enough to take a 50 cent coin or a folded bill. And always placed so that no person can enter or leave the elevator without seeing them.

GROWTH — The afternoon newspapers in North Carolina, all 39 of them, are spending of dollars to keep their service up to date. Your reporter visited half a dozen of them this week and found the folks at the Concord Tribune and Sanford Herald

It is generally accepted that taxes on any article tend to reduce sales. Just how true it is that "the power to tax is the power to destroy" is shown by a survey by the National Association of Tobacco Distributors.

It selected five states in which the state tax runs from 2 to 6 cents a pack, and the District of Columbia, where it is 1 cent, and calculated the per capita consumption. It came out this way:

State	Per pack	Consumption
D. C.	1c	3,574
Wyoming	2c	2,790
Indiana	3c	2,344
Minnesota	4c	1,963
Oklahoma	5c	1,739
Arkansas	6c	1,261

The consumption figure may be bit misleading and probably reflects purchases more than the actual cigarette burning. For example, residents from nearby Virginia and Maryland and even more distant points buy a lot of cigarettes and whiskey in the District of Columbia because Congress has kept the sales taxes there down.

The association's survey showed that cigarettes consumed in 1951 had a retail value of $4,081,000,000. Independent food stores had the largest share of sales, 19.1 per cent, followed by vending machines with 16.4 per cent and chain supermarkets with 13.3 per cent.

There's more news about cigarettes.

Bruce Robinson, of the A.N.P.A. Bureau of Advertising, reports that cigarette advertising is heading for one of its biggest years in history; lineage in 110 cities in the first nine months was 28.3 per cent above the same period a year ago.

A survey by Social Research, Inc. (for the Chicago Tribune) disclosed some unsuspected facts about smokers' preferences. They tend to classify cigarettes as "masculine" or "feminine" and to regard certain brands as appropriate for workers; others for "class." One brand, heavily advertised for its mildness, is regarded as strong and irritating — but popular.

And Robert M. Ganger, president of P. Lorillard Co., predicts that by 1960 half of cigarette sales will be in king sizes and filter types.

ON THE WRONG LIST — THEN TAKE IT EASY. Every once in a while some overly conscientious businessman, on receiving an offer by mail, writes the sender along these lines:

"Since all our floors are concrete, we have no interest in Cijam hardwood floor polish and you may take our name off your mailing list."

He would better save his stamps. Nine times out of ten he is not

NEW YORK (AP) — A pavement Plato views the news: Plans for the first commercial rocket flight to the moon are going steadily forward at the Hayden Planetarium.

Thousands of prospective passengers have signed up for the initial voyage, including a number of canny real estate dealers anxious to open new areas of suburban development for Metropolitan New York.

The long waiting list also has on it the names of a number of spinners who wish to see like the Man in the Moon is like. Others want to go simply because they have a desire to go anywhere out of this world.

All that is really holding up the project now is the lack of a few billion dollars to build a proper space ship. Uncle Sam, the only guy around with that kind of money, is still investing it in jet bombers and other earth-bound toys.

Margaret Phelan, the beautiful Texas night club singer, who also is a highly paid writer, skillfully volunteered to act as official songstress and cook for the proposed lunar voyage.

Dr. Robert R. Coles, chairman of the Hayden Planetarium, accepted the offer with alacrity, but pointed out some of the problems Miss Phelan would face in her double role:

"We have already signed up a good fiddler, and I think we could use you, too, in view of the long, frigid nights (two weeks from sunset to sunrise). We shall need plenty of hot music. The big difficulty is that there is no atmosphere on the moon, and therefore no one could hear your stuff unless you retired to the pressurized cabin of the space ship.

"Your offer to serve as cook, also, is particularly welcome, especially if you can make flapjacks.

"It is so hot on the moon by day about 212 degrees Fahrenheit that you could fry them directly in the sunlight on the floor of a lunar crater. And flapping them would be most fun of all, since, due to the moon's lesser gravity, they would rise six times as far into the sky before coming to roost."

Science marches on:

This dismaying era has been made even more burdensome by an endless rash of "talking dog" stories. Now truth being ever stranger than fiction, a real live spelling horse has broken into the news.

The animal in question, "Lady Wonder" of Richmond, Va., for a buck will answer any three questions posed to her by a human being. She painstakingly muzzles out her replies letter by letter on a big spelling machine.

What is so wonderful about that? She is 28 years old after all, and her spelling is even worse than that of an 18-year-old stenographer with a progressive school education.

Personally, I see no reason why any adult should let a semi-literate horse poke her nose into his problems. One of the most

Not All Bad News For Coming NATO Meeting

By PHIL NEWSOM

United Press Foreign News Editor

One of the bulwarks of United States foreign policy is the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Next week the foreign and defense ministers of the 14 nations bands together for the defense of the North Atlantic and free Europe to hold a "lame duck" session in Paris.

It is "lame duck" in that it falls in the period of changing U. S. administration, and must postpone important decision until President-elect Eisenhower and his new government are in a position to participate and make them binding.

However, the Dec. 15 meeting will be of interest because it will receive reports of progress made thus far in building defenses against Communist aggression and set up some signposts for the future.

It will be told, for example, that the 50-division goal for Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's European army during 1952 largely has been met—25 in being and 25 in position to be called up within 30 days after the start of any hostilities.

The program for the building of military airfields has been successful, with 126 built or building.

Defense strategy has been revised to include Greece and Turkey.

The U. S. and Britain are in agreement or near it on a compromise solution to their agreement over an eastern Mediterranean command—British Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten to receive command of convoy routes but with an American in charge of ground support operations.

NATO forces now are strong enough to provide a "shield" against any Communist attack, although far short of being able to meet a full-scale assault by Russia's 175 European divisions.

The United States, now apparently shares the generally held European belief that 1954 no longer is the "year of decision" which now may be farther off by a year or more.

By and large, the report on 1952 will be encouraging.

But signposts for 1953 point to disappointments.

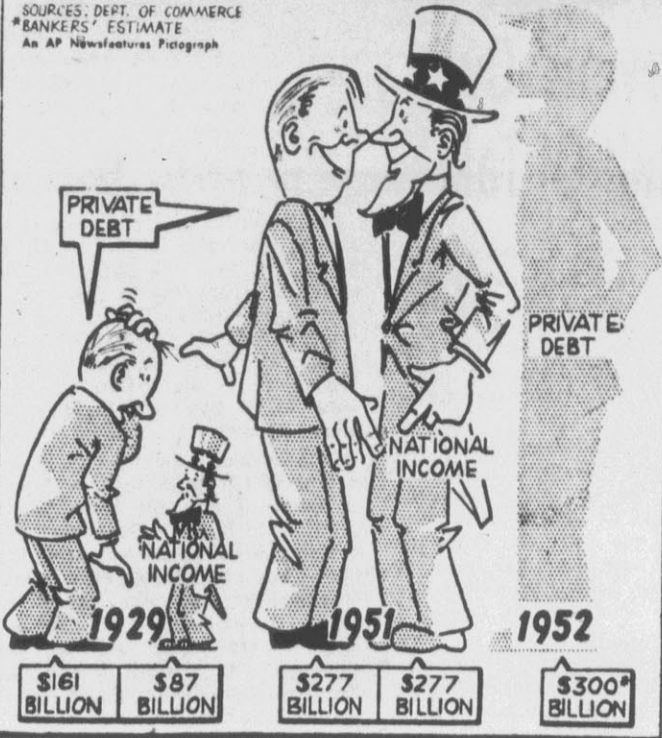

It had been hoped that by the end of 1953 Ridgway's army would have 75 divisions. That figure will be cut back to a probable 63.

Ultimate plans for the European army force included 12 divisions with their supporting units from West Germany. As of today there is no guaranty that an increasingly rebellious German parliament will ratify the plan.

As Russia's "peace" offensive accelerates, there are signs that Western Europe will lose a corresponding amount of will to arm in its own defense. The European nations, led by Britain, are pleading poverty and are pressing for development of new, cheaper weapons rather than mass production of conventional types.

In this they are opposed by the United States, which says, despite its leadership in atomic development, that a push-button war still is years away.

Familiar School For U.S. Kids In Britain

BUSHEY PARK, England (U.P.)—Eddie Warren, 17, comes from Panama City, Fla. He's just another American youngster who plays basketball and baseball, sports a crew cut and jeans, and dates as many girls in high school as the next guy.

Every morning, coming to school, his blue and red windbreaker—the school colors—mixes with the sober blues and greys of British businessmen because the school is in the heart of one of London's suburbs. Its pupils are exclusively American and there are only three British teachers on the staff.

The school, which has 210 students and 25 teachers, is located in the U.S. air force base here, and is for the sons and daughters of American airmen and soldiers stationed in this country.

Usual Courses
The school, opened in September, has a grade section of 260 pupils, also housed in the same building. The small children are taken to and from school daily by a bus system operated by Air Force authorities.

Most of the children previously attended British schools. So many American children wanted to attend the new school when news of its opening was announced that it had to be restricted to the families of airmen and officers.

The curriculum covers the usual range of subjects taught in elementary and high schools in the States, and also includes courses for the girl students in home economics.

Teaching American children, with their free and easy co-educational ways, dates, and lipstick for the girls, doesn't seem to have much effect on the three British teachers in the school, who are responsible for arts and crafts, music and the fifth grade. Elizabeth Graham, one of them said:

"Dates And Makeup
"It's a little difficult getting used to a school where they have a smoking room put apart so the children can smoke in the breaks, but apart from that it's fine."

The principal of the school, which is administered by the information and education branch of the Air Force, is Volney Farnad, a civilian teacher from Washington, D.C.

"I know this school is going to be a success," he said. "It's the first one of its kind here and will provide the American curriculum so that the children don't have to disturb the rhythm of this studies by switching back and forth between the British and American systems."

The novelty hasn't worn off yet for the children, most of whom seem to be glad to be back in the old routine.

Oklahoma's New Toll Highway To Open In Spring

OKLAHOMA CITY (U.P.)—Cross-country tourists next spring will be invited to travel the country's newest super-highway — the 88-mile Turner Turnpike that connects Oklahoma's two largest cities, Tulsa and Oklahoma City.

The $38,000,000 toll road, beset for four years by money problems, may be ready for traffic by February or March.

It will bring welcome relief to motorists who must traverse the hilly, forested and thick-covered area between the two cities. The road will cut about 18 miles off the present distance on U.S. 66.

Although it will not be a part of U.S. 66, the turnpike is expected to make most of that artery's traffic between the west coast and Chicago and eastern points.

No Cost to Taxpayers
The Oklahoma Turnpike Authority has worked for more than five years getting the four-lane, no-intersection highway off the drawing boards.

Without costing the taxpayers a dollar, the highway is expected to pay for itself long before the financing bonds mature 40 years hence. When paid for, the road will become the property of the state, and the toll gates will be torn down.

Former Gov. Roy J. Turner, for whom the turnpike is named, championed the toll road idea through the 1947 Oklahoma legislature, which authorized the highway, provided no state funds were spent.

For three years the authority sought in vain for money to finance construction. Eastern bondsmen hesitated putting their money into it, and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in Washington turned it down.

Sale Finally Arranged
Finally, in 1950, after more dogged salesmanship, the five-man authority was able to get bids from three bonding syndicates. The low bidder on the $31,000,000 issue bought the bonds at a 3.43 per cent annual rate. Later, as construction costs increased, another $7,000,000 in bonds were sold without trouble.

Motors from New York and Philadelphia will be able to travel the Turner Turnpike by following U.S. 40 through Indianapolis and picking up U.S. 66 at St. Louis.

Motors from the west coast who travel U.S. 66 through Albuquerque, N.M., and Amarillo, Tex., will use the turnpike en route to Chicago or the east.

The turnpike authority employed a Chicago engineering firm of national reputation to engineer the big earth-moving and paving job. DeLeuw, Cather Co., provided the know-how in constructing the long, easy curves, sharpest of which will be one and one-half degrees. The maximum grade will be three per cent.

More Roads Desired
No cross traffic will plague the toll road motorists. Interchanges with separate elevations will move vehicles on and off the limited-access road without forcing slowdowns along the way.

Interchanges are being built at four points between the terminals for traffic to join and leave the turnpike. They are located near the towns of Chandler, Stroud, Bristow and Sapulpa.

Rates for the toll road have not been set, but the authority hopes to keep them low enough to guarantee maximum use of the new highway.

Gov. Johnston Murray, who took over the turnpike project when Turner left office in 1951, has become a toll road enthusiast and hopes to promote a four-state network of similar roads in Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas and Texas. He proposes extending the Turner Turnpike to St. Louis along U.S. 66. Also he would like another to bisect Oklahoma north-and-south to Wichita, Kan. and Denton, Tex.

Our Trade Barriers Weaken Unity

(From The Dept. Of State, Office Of Public Affairs)

WASHINGTON.—Nineteen countries, each a friend and ally of the United States, have protested to the Department of State that they are bewildered by various actions on our part which either threaten or reduce their trade in the American market.

They are bewildered, they say, at the inconsistency of our blocking trade (imports), while we are encouraging them to produce more and sell more in the United States.

In effect, their point is this: To shield American industries from foreign competition, we seem to be undermining our efforts to promote economic recovery, political stability, and military preparedness in the rest of the free world. Unreasonable trade barriers, they say, weaken the strength and unity of free nations.

This feeling among our allies, the Department of State points out, is very significant—and not only with respect to trade relationships. For the inconsistency in our trade policy raises questions in the minds of other people with regard to all our programs in the free world.

The practical effect of tighter restrictions on our imports, without doubt, is to hurt both the United States and friendly countries. For the Department of State emphasizes, such barriers tend to diminish—

1. The chances of cutting down our foreign aid.

2. The opportunities for improving the use of manpower and resources among the free nations.

3. The livelihood of free people.

In addition, there is an impact on our leadership in world affairs. Since trade is the lifeblood of the world's economy, one sure result will be to lessen our leadership in all things if we do not support the movement among our allies toward freer trade.

For several years the United States has been aiding our allies through the Marshall Plan and the Mutual Security Program. This help to others is based on the assumption that they eventually will recover and will then be in a position to sell us enough to pay for what they need from us.

It is apparent, says the State Department, that if other countries are to become self-supporting, trade and not aid should become the means whereby they can obtain more dollars. Other-crop yields and higher income through the use of 20,000 tons of fertilizer supplied by the agency.

Dr. Ronald R. Renne, chief of the special technical and economic aid mission to the Philippines, also reports that rural banks and agricultural credit and co-operative systems are being established for the welfare of farmers.

That blockade has been due, in part, to the efforts of domestic groups looking only to their own interests. The pressures of these groups, the Department says, must be scrutinized in the light of the general interests of the United States. In many cases they conflict with our general interests, and when they do, the latter should prevail.

The Department of State points out one barrier, the "cheese embargo," to illustrate just what trade restrictions will do. The curtailment of foreign cheese imports has had these effects:

1. It has seriously impaired the economic and political situations in poor regions of Southern Italy, Sicily, and Sardinia, where production and export of cheeses to the United States represented a principal means of livelihood.

2. It has made it necessary for us to continue to give away more dollars to keep these areas buying our products.

3. It has meant that they have less money with which to sustain their own efforts at recovery and defense.

Unreasonable import barriers suggest this paradox: It is as though American workers in Detroit, producing trucks for our NATO partner, Holland, were refusing to buy Dutch cheese. To keep Holland buying the trucks, the Detroit workers would have to slip dollars into the pockets of the Netherlands.

That process, the Department says, is of course, economic nonsense and is sure to create problems in world affairs. Yet it is just about what Americans are forced to do by unreasonable trade restrictions.

Moreover, and what is very important to all Americans, the process hinders normal business operations. It causes Government "interference" with the usual trade of farmers, businessmen, and consumers in doing business with foreign buyers and sellers.

The Department emphasizes that the alternative—a gradual elimination of trade barriers—offers the only sound solution. For the major trade problem of other countries is their lack of dollars; they believe we can help solve that problem by assuring them a "fair shake" at earning American cash.

By reducing our restrictions and thus helping our allies to find an opportunity to compete in our market, we will enable them to earn more dollars and to pay their own way. As a Department economic expert put it, "Trade, not aid, is the best way to strengthen the free world."

The Department also recognized the growing pressure here for "protectionism"—a descriptive term for import barriers—and it condemned what it called our "self-imposed blockade."

West Europe Is 'Nervous' Over Result Of Talk

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—President-elect Eisenhower's decision to consult Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the Korean war will send a shiver of fear through Western Europe.

All the West was fearful when Eisenhower decided to visit the Korean theater. There was editorial applause in the great Continental and British newspapers when Eisenhower had completed his survey and had shown again he was not eager to spread the war area.

The minority socialist parties in Great Britain and on the Continent were especially suspicious of Eisenhower's motives. For their own political purposes, a considerable number of British socialists kept drumming away that Americans as a whole are trigger happy and not to be trusted as co-makers of foreign policy involving the use of force.

That was the party line of the whole socialist campaign during last year's British elections. Winston Churchill was tabbed as a warmonger in cahoots with Americans. The implications of what responsible British socialists said in that campaign was that Churchill's election would be followed by an atomic bomb free-for-all.

A lot of them really believed that and so did many a Continental European. They were scared. Nomination of Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson for president quieted their fears, but Eisenhower's campaign alliance with Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O.) frightened them again.

Entry of MacArthur into the picture will give a lot of Europeans the shudders and give the socialists some handy, new war scare propaganda. But viewed from Washington, instead of from London or Paris, the forthcoming Eisenhower-MacArthur conference looks like something very much different.

It looks like a move to get MacArthur to put up or to pipe down, or even to join the team. That remains to be seen. For the present no one knows the nature of his new ideas about Korea or whether Eisenhower will like them in whole, in part or at all. But so long as MacArthur was on the sidelines with a plan to end the Korean action honorably, a great many Americans would want to know why his experience and wisdom were not being used.

President Truman made a martyr of MacArthur, in some people's eyes, by abruptly rejecting his services and his advice. Eisenhower strategists do not intend to repeat on that. They know that only the judgment of future historians can decide who was the United States' greatest World War II general. But MacArthur unquestionably is among the nominees, despite his current low rating in Europe.

Jesus Dispels Fear

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 14.

Herod had John the Baptist executed to fulfill a promise he had made to his wife's daughter, who had pleased him by her dancing. The disciples buried his body and went and told Jesus.

After hearing of John the Baptist's death, Jesus went into the wilderness, but multitudes followed Him. When evening had come He fed five thousand souls with five loaves and two fishes.

Jesus commanded the disciples to take a ship to cross the sea. Later, after He had prayed alone, Jesus went to the sea and walked on the water to join them in the ship.

Landing in Gennesaret, the men of that place heard of Jesus' presence and brought their diseased to Him. Many were made whole.

MEMORY VERSE—Matthew 14:27.

Jesus Dispels Fear

HE TOLD HIS FOLLOWERS, "IT IS I; BE NOT AFRAID."

Scripture—Matthew 14.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
WHAT WOULD life be like if we could get rid of our fears? We are usually afraid of so many things—illness, death, accidents, loss of money, loss of family, loneliness—and many, many more things.

Faith is what we must cultivate. Faith won't ward off evils, we know that from our own and others' experience. Faith didn't save the poor Jews who were victims of Nazi brutalities. It did, however, help them face their fate with courage and serenity.

So has it been with many more human beings all over the earth. They may not be able to avert evils, but they learn to meet them with faith, courage and ingenuity.

Jesus preached faith, "Thy faith hath made thee whole." He said time and again. He taught faith in this lesson, although the story with which the chapter begins is a brutal one in which a fine man met his death because he dared to speak out against wrong doing. His influence is still strong in the modern world, while those of his enemies passion for them and he healed their sick. When evening was come His disciples came to him and said that it would be well to send the multitude away, so that they could go to a village and buy food. Jesus told the disciples to give the people food, and when they said they had only five loaves of bread and two fishes, He said, "Bring them hither to Me."

They did so, and He took the food, blessed and brake it and gave food enough to His disciples to feed the multitude so that not only were all satisfied, but there were 12 baskets filled with fragments left over. About 5,000 people were in that multitude. Jesus then told His disciples to get into a ship and sail for the other side of the Sea of Galilee, and He would dismiss the multitude. Even as you and I, there were times when our Lord felt He must get away from the crowds, and even from His close friends, and commune alone with His Father. He went up onto the mountain to pray.

The ship in which the disciples sailed was attacked by strong winds and the men feared they would be drowned. Toward morning, they saw Jesus walking toward them on the water, and they were afraid, thinking He was a spirit. But He said, "Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid."

Filled with comfort and faith, Peter called to Him, "Lord, if it be Thou, bid me come unto Thee on the water."

The Lord said, "Come," and Peter started walking on the waves, but they were high and strong, and suddenly his faith deserted him, he was afraid and called, "Lord, save me." And immediately Jesus stretched forth His hand, and caught him, and said unto him, "O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?"

If Peter had kept his eyes on Jesus and had cast out his fear, he would have been safe, but he allowed doubt to overcome him, fear to take away his faith.

Don't we all succumb to fear and doubt? How many of us miss golden opportunities because we allow our fears to breed doubt, and our courage to ooze away, and so the chance slips by.

"And when they were come into the ship, the wind ceased. They that were in the ship came and worshipped Him, saying, 'Of a truth Thou art the Son of God!'"

Actually, MacArthur Did Not Say He Had Solution To Korea

WASHINGTON (AP)—Just in case anyone has the impression Gen. MacArthur said he has a plan for ending the Korean war, the fact is, he didn't. At least he didn't in so many words.

What he said was: "I am confident there is a clear and definite solution to the Korean conflict. . . A present solution involves basic decisions which I recognize as improper for public disclosure or discussion."

He didn't even say there that he himself has a solution. He said "there is" a solution. That he expressed himself as he did, instead of saying flatly he has a solution or plan, may be only a matter of literary composition.

But MacArthur is credited with real consciousness of the language and the fact that he used the phrases he did, and in the way he did, may have some significance for the future.

Since Gen. Eisenhower listened to Sen. Taft's recommendations for his cabinet and then rejected them, it would seem he's willing to listen but determined to make up his own mind, no matter who likes it.

Eisenhower and MacArthur have now agreed to meet. The very language MacArthur used should save him from any feeling of loss of face if Eisenhower listens to him, as he did to Taft, and then goes his own way, anyway.

MacArthur talking with Eisenhower about some of his views on a solution—without claiming in so many words that he has the solution—is not quite the same as MacArthur saying flatly he has a plan and then seeing it rejected.

Eisenhower, of course, may feel that MacArthur has a real remedy, for MacArthur apparently is not thinking of precisely the same remedy he offered in the spring of 1951.

Bombing Chinese bases in Manchuria; blockading the China Coast and using Chiang Kai-Shek's Formosan troops on the Asia mainland against China. It was that plan, or rather his out-spoken espousal of it, that cost MacArthur his job in 1951 when President Truman relieved him of his command.

MacArthur indicated he was thinking of something different when he first mentioned the word "solution" in a speech last Friday night in New York before the National Association of Manufacturers.

As chairman of Remington Rand, Inc., at a reported salary of $100,000 a year, MacArthur himself is now a manufacturer.

Whatever it is that MacArthur has in mind, if Eisenhower accepted it and it ended the war MacArthur could feel he had ended his military career on a plane of vindication after his embarrassment in 1951.

College In Korea Sends Greetings
Christmas greetings from Ewha College in Korea have been received by the Wesley Foundation in Greenville.

The Wesley Foundation, under the chairmanship of Dwight Shoe of Salisbury, sent eight packages of clothing to the students of Ewha Woman's College and a letter of appreciation and greetings of the Christmas season has been received from Dr. Helen Kim, college president.

She wrote: "You can believe in modern miracles when you hear of the work carried on in Pusan, Korea, at Ewha Woman's University. Driven from their campus in Seoul in June, 1950, they are established temporarily in Pusan in tent buildings and carrying on with courage and determination in the face of every difficulty."

"During the past quarter quite a few special gifts from friends enabled 55 students to continue in school, besides helping many faculty families to tide over emergencies caused by sickness, loss of housing, rise of living costs."

"During the summer vacation, 66 girls worked in 40 different localities—teaching bible, hygiene, songs, and stories. . . Terrific needs are being met by our Ewha Healing Center, with the little with which we have to do."

The chairman of the Commission of World Christian Community for the Wesley Foundation was in charge of collecting and sending the clothing to Korea.

Decide Against Giving Up Sites

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Veterans Administration said today the government has now decided to hang on to 19 sites for proposed VA hospitals until the new Republican administration has a chance to review the veterans' medical program.

This is a reversal of the VA announcement last month that it was turning the sites over to the General Services Administration (GSA) for disposal as surplus because Congress allowed the authorization for construction of the hospitals to die on June 30.

A. W. Woolford, the VA's director of information, told a reporter the VA decided not to dispose of the sites after several congressmen had advised the agency they would try to get Congress again to authorize hospitals in their areas.

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.) yesterday called for a study of the program in view of complaints the VA's medical services were being curtailed.

The sites, bought by the VA or contributed by local interests in connection with the VA hospital expansion program approved by Congress in 1946 and 1947, included: Charlotte, N. C. and Greenville, S. C.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

Two Bathrooms are getting to be so popular among modern homes that many owners of older houses are putting a second bathroom at the top of their lists for future improvements.

At the same time the census people say that about one house out of every three has no bathroom at all. So some of the things to consider when planning a bathroom ought to be useful.

A friend of this department exclaims: "Two bathrooms? I can't take more than one bath at a time!" Well, although he could afford the luxury of an extra bathroom, he is a man whose youngters have flown the coop. He has no school-going rush hour problem when he wants to shave for work in the morning.

After all, this demand for two bathrooms has a real family need back of it. It amounts to much more than just an extra, like two windshield wipers on the car. It's an expensive proposition, no matter how you go at it.

Along with the modern fully-equipped kitchen the average bathroom is one of the most costly rooms in a house. Therefore economy is a must in its planning. Plumbing is expensive. Fixtures cost money. And if you're going

Canada Places Big Plane Order In Great Britain

LONDON (UP)—An $11,500,000 order for 15 Vickers Viscount turboprop aircraft, to be delivered starting in the fall of 1954, has been placed with Britain by Trans-Canadian Airlines.

This is the largest peacetime dollar order ever placed for British aircraft.

Canada is the fifth nation to purchase the Viscount, newest of Britain's turbine-engined aircraft. It will be the first to operate them in the Western Hemisphere.

Machine In Production

The Vickers Viscount seats 40 passengers, and has a three or four-man crew—two pilots and one or two stewards. They are the most modern medium-size airliners in service today. Four Rolls Royce Dart engines, operating on kerosene, give a cruising speed of around 300 m.p.h. at 20,000 feet. Normal range is 1,000 miles.

Passengers are seated in two double rows on each side of a central aisle. There is individual as well as general lighting, and the combined pressurization, air-conditioning and temperature control gives ground-level conditions up to 15,000 feet.

The Viscounts have a loaded weight of around 50,000 lbs. They are a little more than 81 feet in length, with a 94-foot wingspan.

The machine is now in quantity production in Britain. By the third quarter of 1954, when deliveries to Trans-Canadian Airlines will begin, production will be at the rate of eight per month.

Irish Government And Churchmen Try To Keep The Young People On The Land

DUBLIN (U.P.)—Irish government and church leaders, seriously concerned at the steady flight from Ireland's agricultural areas, have launched a concerted drive to keep the younger generation on the land.

This movement towards towns and cities by young people tired of the hard and, in many areas, poverty-stricken conditions, has been gradual for many years, but more recently it has assumed a serious threat to the nation's economic progress.

In order to tackle the problem, government planners and civic leaders have given detailed study to the causes. Leading the fight has been Premier Eamon de Valera, who has called for a halt to the movement in speeches throughout the country.

Elders Keep Reins

An important cause for this exodus by the younger folk in search of higher wages has been the reluctance of farm owners to hand over their holdings when they are past the effective age for economic farming.

Working for "pocket money," eight sons have no chance of marrying and settling down, and this has a natural effect on young girls who pack their bags and head for the cities in search of romance that has a reasonable possibility of ending in early marriage.

De Valera has long campaigned to get elder farmers to hand over to their sons when they are past the age of economic farming, but so far with little success.

Electrical Expansion

With many country areas still without electricity, the government has stepped up its rural electrification scheme, which it is extending to remote regions in the country. The first of two huge generators has been installed as part of a plan to give the country 200,000,000 extra units of electricity annually.

The hydro-electric scheme on the River Erne, county Fermanagh was started in 1945 and gives employment to 600 men, while a 22,500-kilowatt generator at Ballyshannon will go into production immediately.

Another cause at present being tackled is the almost complete lack of modern amenities and amusements in agricultural areas.

Vigorous local communities, assisted by parish priests, are trying to make rural land more attractive to young people. Dance halls, cinemas, lecture halls, local societies, are being established as a matter of urgent necessity.

But, perhaps, the most serious shortage at the moment is the lack of rural industries capable of offering good wages to young men willing to stay in their home villages.

Decentralized Industry Sought

A high priority with government planners is the decentralization of industries to provide employment at attractive wages away from the over-crowded cities and towns.

New legislation recently passed without opposition by parliament provides generous assistance and attractive loan terms for potential industrialists who will undertake to start factories along the west coast, particularly in the true Gaelic-speaking areas, traditionally the nation's poorest.

Government experts are experimenting with the nation's natural resources to find new uses for raw materials of the land. In this connection, industrial chemists are hoping to find another use for peat, the nation's only fuel resource. They hope it can be used to make newsprint.

This is not a new idea. Denmark and Canada have used it successfully, particularly for brown paper. But as far as is known, it has never been used for the production of newsprint.

For paper manufacture, peat must have special chemical properties found only in certain areas, including a high cottonseed content. Ireland's National Fuel Board reported some months ago that it had found such a bog containing at least 500,000 tons of peat. The experiments prove successful, many thousands can find employment in the bogs of Ireland and another step towards keeping down the flight from the land will have been taken.

Would-Be Speed Demons Tricked

ELYRIA, O. (U.P.)—Loran County Sheriff Carl Finegan has turned to trickery to hold down accidents, but it seems to work and has even saved the county money.

Finegan, one of the first in this state to turn to electronics as a means of checking speeders, installed one of the first such gadgets. However, the cost of radar detectors was too great so Finegan, who holds an electrical engineering degree, turned to what seemed to be the next-best thing—mock radar devices.

Now, Finegan turns out the awesome looking little black boxes in his basement workshop and installs them at trouble spots around the county. Motorists can't tell which is real and which is not. "The beauty of this system," ADURABLE cover for a snapshot album can be made easily by the home craftsman using panels of embossed fiberboard resembling Spanish grain leather for front and back. A one-inch strip of the leatherwood for the front cover is sawed off and hinged with binding tape. All edges are slightly bevelled with a file or sandblock and corners are rounded. The leatherwood can be left in its natural brown color, or painted.

Over One-Third Of Teen-Agers Found Smoking

AP Newsfeatures

NEW YORK—More than one-third of all American boys between 15 and 19 smoke cigarettes, and make no secret of it. They smoke about 12 a day, according to a national survey of smoking habits made by Alfred Politz Research Inc.

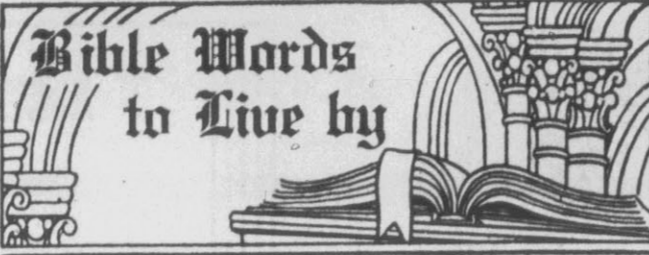

One out of every 10 girls in the same age group also smoke. They average eight cigarettes a day. The heaviest smokers are the men between 35 and 44. Four out of five smoke, averaging a pack a day. Two out of five women in the 25-34 bracket smoke an average of 13 cigarettes a day.

The Politz survey, taken among 5,000 people scattered around the country, showed that smokers more than double their consumption after adolescence and then begin to taper off after middle age.

One man in 16 and one woman in 50 smoke two packs or more a day. Farmers and farmers' wives smoke less than city folk.

YOUNG MOBSTERS

DAYTON, O. (U.P.)—Police held three boys aged nine, 10 and 11 today on suspicion of armed robbery. The three placed a knife against the back of an 11-year-old youth and demanded: "Give us a nickel."

My favorite Bible verse is the first part of the Twenty-Third Psalm:

"The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want."

It has been my favorite because of its strong declaration of God's existence, "The Lord is," bringing to mind the personal relationship between the Lord and my life. "The Lord is my shepherd"—the Psalm suggests the things for which one shall not want. One shall not seek for rest—mentally, emotionally, spiritually or physically, without finding it, for when we are tired He will lead us beside still waters and amid the green pastures. One shall not want for forgiveness, "For He restoreth my soul," nor can there be a want for guidance, "For He will lead me in paths of righteousness." And, too, one should never lack the ability to turn tragedy to triumph, "For when I walk through the valley of the shadow of death Thou art with me." Nor shall one want for an eternal abiding home, "For I shall abide in the house of the Lord forever."

This is my favorite verse because it has everything in it. It is all mine if I have the Shepherd, and none of mine without Him.

Playhouse Comedy Has Last Showing Tonight

Members of the Teachers Playhouse at East Carolina College will give tonight (Friday) at 8 o'clock in the College Theatre the last of three performances of "Charley's Aunt," popular farce by Brandon Thomas. The laugh-provoking play, presented Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week by the college players, proved a hit with audiences made up largely of students; and the production is receiving much favorable comment from those who were present. Tonight's show will be given especially for an audience from off the campus.

SEA POUNDS FREIGHTER.—High waves break against the grounded freighter Yorkmar as the 7,207-ton vessel sits helplessly on the beach outside Grays Harbor at Aberdeen, Wash. Shore line shows in background. Rescue ships fought heavy breakers in an effort to free the Yorkmar. There was no immediate fear for the safety of the 37 crewmen aboard. ally for an audience from off the campus. "Charley's Aunt," which has been successfully produced many times since it first won popular favor near the turn of the century, is the initial major production for the school year by the Teachers Playhouse. It is already being described as the funniest play yet chosen by the group for campus presentation. Carolyn Clapp, of Greenville, student at East Carolina, directed the local production under the supervision of Dr. Lucile H. Charles of the college faculty.

The cast of ten members do a creditable job in the play. Lloyd Whitfield of Kinston, as the Oxford undergraduate who impersonates Charley's rich aunt from South America, provides many laughs by his excellent interpretation of the role. John King of Clinton, as Charley, and Percy Wilkins of Benson, as his friend Jack, put on spirited performances as college youths who involve themselves in a great deal of difficulty with their sweethearts and with various relatives and friends.

In the parts of older men Ralph Rives of Enfield and Atwood Smith of Kinston make valuable contributions to the comic interest and the entanglements of the plot. Larry Williams of Ocracoke as Brassett, a college scout, does well in a "character" part.

The roles of three young women who provide romance and glamor, as well as humor, to the play are taken by Ann McCrazy of Durham, Billy Canady of Clarendon, and Patricia Goodwin of Havelock. Miss Clapp as Charley's real aunt from Brazil adds to her laurels as director of the play.

"Charley's Aunt" is a costume play and is presented by the Teachers Playhouse with proper emphasis on its fin de siècle setting. William Penuel of Goldsboro serves as technical director and heads a staff of students who work backstage to make the production a success.

Sunday Recital Will Feature Christmas Music

Christmas music will be presented on a program of works for the organ which will be given by a group of students at East Carolina College Sunday afternoon, December 14, at 4 o'clock in the Austin auditorium on the campus. The recital will be sponsored by the department of music at the college and will be open to the public.

Student organists who will appear on the program are Ellen L. Sprinkle, Asheville; David Victor Van Hook, Nashville; Myrtle Manning, Robersonville; Carolyn Clapp, Greenville; Carolyn Brothers, South Mills; Janet Watson, Greenville; and Cecelia Willoughby, Creswell. All are pupils of George E. Perry

Industrial Arts Club Initiates 5 New Members

Five students of industrial arts at East Carolina College have been accepted as members of the campus Industrial Arts Club and have been initiated into the departmental organization, according to an announcement by Robert Pennington of Rocky Mount, president. New members are Donald M. Atkinson, Elizabethtown; Thomas B. Blizzard, Deep Run; Roland Pridgen, Wilson; James F. Shine, Rocky Mount; and Gene W. Taylor, Edenton.

The club is carrying on during the present school year a program designed to foster interest in industrial arts and to encourage better work among members. Contests are held at meetings, and winners are awarded useful tools as prizes. Recent winners include Edward Croom of Rocky Mount and Shelton Weaver of Mt. Olive.

Club members are now working on a project to build bulletin boards which will be placed in the hobby leading to the college cafeteria. The Student Government Association of the college is sponsoring this activity and has provided funds for materials.

Pirates Play Lenoir-Rhyne In Home Opener Saturday

Tournament Site Moved To Kinston

By HERMAN HICKMAN
Reflector Sports Editor

WASHINGTON—The Northeastern Conference basketball tournament, which for several years has been held in Greenville at the East Carolina gym, will be conducted at Kinston this coming February.

Officials of the conference held their annual meeting last night to discuss athletic affairs to take place during the winter season.

The main topic of discussion centered around a letter received from Dr. J. D. Messick, president of East Carolina College, which stated that the conference tournament slated to be held at the college, would be "against his better judgment."

Dr. Messick's letter said that during past tournaments, college property had been damaged and that if the tournament was to be played at the college gym this year it would be on a probational basis.

After a thorough discussion it was unanimously decided by the representatives of the conference to hold the tournament at another site.

In the future the tournament will be held alternately at one of the schools in the conference. This season it will be conducted at Kinston February 26, 27, 28.

The conference also welcomed Jacksonville into the conference, replacing Edenton who is withdrawing to enter the Class A Albemarle Conference.

Lou Perini spoke in behalf of Jacksonville High and tendered an application for admittance into the conference. Approval for the school's admittance was unanimous and Jacksonville will begin conference participation next September.

George Thompson told the conference that Edenton leaves the conference with deep regrets but due to a decline in enrollment the school board of education felt it advisable to transfer to the Class A conference.

Vice-President Gerald A. James, who conducted the meeting in absence of President O. E. Dowd, appointed a committee to revise the conference laws to eliminate duplication with state laws.

It was agreed to hold the winter conference meet at Edenton.

Bucs To Christen New Gym With Loop Game

By JIMMY ELLIS

Greenville basketball fans will get their first look at East Carolina College's basketball Pirates tomorrow night when the Bucs christen their new gym with a North State Conference basketball meeting with defending champion Lenoir Rhyne. Tip-off time is 8 o'clock.

The Pirates have already played one of the 18 games they have scheduled and are riding at the head of the nine-member North State loop. Guilford's Quakers fell 78-68 before a last half spurge put on by the Pirates last Saturday night at Guilford. All-State and All-Conference forward Sonny Russell was the man doing the most damage to the Quakers with a total of 24 points for the game.

The same fellow is expected to lead the Pirates tomorrow night. Russell is being counted on to repeat the personal honors he had last year with the possibility of even more coming his way. Last year, the talented senior from New Bern was second highest scoring member of the team with a 17.8 average for 25 games.

Last year's scoring leader, Bobby Hodges, will be seeing his first action of the campaign. He missed last week's opener because of a death in his family but he appears to be ready to go. Hodges played in 24 games last year and averaged 21.9 points per game. He, along with Russell, was named to the official All-North State Conference team.

Backing up Russell and Hodges is certain to see considerable action. Carr, a starter last week, seems to have regained the touch he lost at game-time against the Quakers and will be given ample opportunity to redeem himself.

A pair of transfer students who have moved up as the top subs at guard are almost sure-fire bets to see action. Bob Moyer, a former Carolina student from Snow Hill, played almost all of the last half of the Guilford game and came through with two key shots, one of which put the Pirates ahead to stay.

Harold O'Kelley, a former All-Stater at High Point thugh school who is already familiar because of his football exploits, has come along fast in drills this week and will probably be used as Heath's number one relief man. O'Kelley, a good ball-handler and jump shot artist, has been the scoring leader in almost every workout this week.

Tickets for the game will be available at the door because considerable time can be saved and much confusion can be avoided. If the tickets are obtained from the athletic office before game time.

Coach Jack Boone and 40 East Carolina College football players departed this morning for Salisbury where they have a Lions Bowl date tomorrow with undefeated and untied Clarion (Pa.) State Teachers College.

The Bucs are expected to "shoot the works" in an all-out aerial battle against the Pennsylvanians. Quarterbacks Sandy Siler and Dick Cherry have been getting special attention in practice this week. Siler is the team's top field general but Cherry, the freshman ace from Washington, has been the thrill-maker on the squad.

Clarion will counter the potent ECC air arm with a passer who is equally dangerous. The Teachers' Fred Beveino has thrown 104 times in eight games, completed 54 of the tosses, and had 17 touchdowns come as a direct result of his passing. Beveino is the quarterback in the Clarion T-formation which rolled up 178 points this year while holding eight foes to a measly 24.

Both teams will have final workouts late this afternoon in Catawba College Stadium, site of the game tomorrow. The Pirates expect to do little more than limber up, throw a

Four Greenville High Stars Are Named On NE All-Conference

WASHINGTON—Four Greenville High football players have been nominated for berths on the Northeastern Conference all-star team by coaches and officials of the conference.

Bobby Perry, Guy Smith, Dixie Hobgood and Bobby Conway were the Greenville High stars to make the All-Conference squad. Making honorable mention were Doug Morgan, Anwer Joseph, Bobby Nunn, Bobby Howell, Tommy Smith, and Jimmy Cheatham.

John Gray Blount of the Washington Pam Packs received the George Dabose trophy for 1952 as the best defensive player in the Northeast conference.

Perry and Conway were high on the list mentioned for the trophy, which is presented by George Dabose of Kinston in memory of his son, who played at Grainger High School in Kinston.

Northeastern All-Conference Ends—Bobby Conway, Greenville; Bobby Bunch, Edenton; Tom Topping, Roanoke Rapids; Bob Kennell, New Bern.

Tackles—Dixie Hobgood, Greenville; Howard Myrick, Roanoke Rapids; Larry Dixon, Washington; Jim Turnage, New Bern; Tom Smith, New Bern.

Guards—Paul Popper, Kinston; Ed Lucas, Washington; John Epperson, New Bern; Don Bond, Edenton.

Topnotch Jockey Gets Suspension

A downcast Tony Despirito, with 370 victories under his belt and only 18 away from tying the all-time record, began sitting out a 10-day suspension today while Tropical Park stewards met to decide whether to impose a second ban on him.

Slapped with a 10-day suspension because he permitted his mount, Brased, to bear in twice on Prairie Kid in the fourth race on Wednesday's card, Despirito became involved in his second disqualification in as many days in the sixth race Thursday.

His horse, Night Town, bore in on Dom W, ridden by Freddie Ryan, at the eighth pole. Although Night Town finished third, she was disqualified and placed last.

Following the disqualification, the stewards announced another hearing would be held this morning, similar to the one held Thursday morning at which Despirito drew his suspension, to determine whether another suspension should be imposed.

Even should the 17-year old Despirito escape a second suspension his chances of tying the all-time record, 388 victories, set by Walt Miller in 1906 and equalled by both Willie Shoemaker and Joey Culmore in 1950, are extremely dim. The 10-day suspension will expire on Dec. 24, Despirito's 18th birthday, leaving him only eight more racing days to accumulate the needed 18 triumphs.

Despirito rode eight mounts in Thursday's race but failed to boot home a single winner.

Dixie Walker Limp Back To Major League Baseball

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Old Dixie Walker, the classic cripple, comes limping back to the major leagues next spring and while he'll be re-appearing in the wrong uniform it could portend auspicious events for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Dixie will be an outfield and batting coach for the Cardinals after two seasons as manager of the Atlanta club of the Southern Association. But those who remember him "when" will feel just about every time they look at him, that the man from Alabama should be sporting the flannel livery of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

That's how you remember him. Because through a long, and usually rather dull career, he was a bust with more than a dozen other clubs. But as a Dodger he became one of baseball's finest personalities—and performers.

All his life, the big, smiling guy didn't want to be anything but a ball player. It was in his blood. His dad, Ewart (also Dixie) Walker, was a pitcher for the Washington Senators along through 1909-12. But when young Dixie showed the same inclination his mother opposed it.

So Dixie worked on the open hearths of Birmingham, Ala., but he played ball all he could on the side. Such good ball that eventually his mother relented and in 1928 the youngster started an odyssey which carried him up to the Yankees in 1933 after he had hit 351 at Newark.

That's where the breaks, the physical ones, started. A shoulder injury cut him adrift from the Yankees. And, as he traveled from there... Detroit... Chicago... and along the line... he was plagued by a broken leg, a collar bone which went twice, a trick knee and a displaced elbow.

Then, in 1939, he went to Brooklyn on waivers.

You don't have to be infallible to be a hero in Brooklyn. They loved Lefty O'Doul because he couldn't throw. Babe Herman was a favorite because he did so many things wrong. Van Lingle Mungo they idolized because he was always in trouble. Walker they took to their hearts because of that ever-smiling personality and because he always seemed to murder the Giants.

By 1941, when he was dropped briefly as a regular, the fans threatened to boycott the park. Dixie didn't let them down. At the sundown phase of his career, he won the National League bat mark and the runs-batted-in title the next year with 124. After leaving baseball, Dixie tried real estate an even ran a liquor store. Then came his tenure with Atlanta. But, just as back in his kid days, they couldn't keep him down on the farm.

N.C. State Loves Cage Competition

RALEIGH (UP)—North Carolina State, which has been putting golden basketball trophies in its showcases regularly for six years, is finding its backyard cage competition more in its class this season. And the Wolfpack likes it that way.

Already the potent pack of coach Everett N. Case has been slapped with a one-point defeat by neighboring Wake Forest. It took some of the shine off the Wolfpack's national ranking but even so chances are that when Southern Conference tournament time comes around Case's sees will be the team to beat.

Since he arrived at the West Raleigh campus in 1946, Case has fastened powerhouses that have romped to the conference crown with monotonous regularity.

The little, gray-haired man from Indiana brought a magic touch that transformed N. C. State from obscurity to the home of basketball greats and brought jam-packed crowds to the gleaming new 12,400 seat William Neal Reynolds coliseum.

The Wolfpack had to look hard to find its brand of basketball in the Southern Conference and went east, north and west to schedule the nation's leading cage powers. This year the 'Pack plays such teams as Texas Tech, Dartmouth, Brigham Young, Holy Cross, Fordham and Cincinnati in Raleigh and will return again to play in Madison Square Garden Dec. 23.

Piling up Southern crown after crown doesn't mean that the 'Pack hasn't been beaten in its own league. It has. But the losses to Southern Conference teams have been rare and the more frequent they become the more credit Case will get for improving the caliber of basketball in this section.

William and Mary, when the Indians had the great Chet Giermak, beat the 'Pack two years in a row, both times at Norfolk, Va.

Rose Bowl Fate Being Decided

PASADENA, Calif. (UP)—Fate of the Rose Bowl pact between the Pacific Coast Conference and the Big Ten rested today in the hands of the midwestern group after the PCC voted to extend the current agreement for three more years.

Unofficial reports say the Big Ten is split 6 to 4 in favor of renewal when the current pact expires after the 1954 game.

PCC faculty representatives wound up a busy four-day winter meeting here Thursday by authorizing Conference Commissioner Victor O. Schmidt to seek renewal of present agreements with the Big Ten and the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, the bowl game sponsor.

Schmidt was instructed to get the job done by next June 5. Although the conference conceded that any bowl agreement naturally hinges on what action the NCAA takes next month regarding post-season games, it was apparent the PCC believes the major bowl contests will continue to receive NCAA approval.

Doug Ford Leads Pro's At Miami

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Consistent Doug Ford of Harrison, N.Y., was in first place as the field teed off in the second round of the $10,000 Miami Open Golf Tournament, but his lead was far from secure.

No less than 21 players were within four strokes of Ford, who set the pace through Thursday's opening round by shooting a three-under-par 67 over the Miami Springs course.

Tied for second place at 68 were Art Wall Jr., of Pocono Manor, Pa., and Johnny Palmer of Charlotte, N.C. At 69 were two pros—Jack Burke of Houston, Tex., and Ed Furgol of St. Louis, and two amateurs—Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N.C., and John Cusano of Coral Gables, Fla.

The first round was played in a 25 m.p.h. north wind that chilled the players, and the same conditions were expected to prevail today.

Ford, a driving-range pro who hasn't won a tournament since the St. Petersburg Open last spring but has been consistently in the money, played his usual steady game by going out in 33 and coming back in 34. Burke, the sensation of last winter's tournament trail, had the lowest in-hole score of the round, a 32 on the back nine, but he had a 37 going out.

HUDSON

with an all-time record in stock-car contests for performance, safety and durability

sets the style for 1953

Announcing a fabulous new HUDSON HORNET and a spectacular new HUDSON WASP

HERE IT IS, the fabulous Hudson Hornet for 1953—luxurious new version of the car that won 44 out of 52 stock-car races in 1952, a record unequalled by any other make.

See the Hudson Hornet's interior color harmony in your choice of two ensembles to complement exterior car colors. See and try new foam rubber seat cushions with bolstered and rolled-edge contours for more comfort. See the rich nylon interior fabrics.

And try the 1953 Hudsons on the highway! Feel them bug the road: the result of exclusive "step-down" design and the lowest center of gravity in any American car!

For 1953—there are two great, lower-priced running mates to the Hudson Hornet—the new Hudson Super Wasp and Hudson Wasp. The Super Wasp has a high-compression H-127 engine and smart new interiors; and the even lower-priced Hudson Wasp features a powerful H-112 engine.

Standard trim and other specifications and accessories subject to change without notice.

COME SEE THE 1953 HUDSONS TODAY!

Sensational engine development!

NEW! TWIN H-POWER*

NEW YORK (AP)—While modern American Christmas preparations are being made all around it, the Guild Bookshop here has brought a bit of the Old World holiday tradition to America.

The shop has an exhibit of the "santons" which form the center of many European celebrations. Among the exhibits is the work of Richard Lang who plays Christ in the Oberammergau passion play. Lang has fashioned a "creche," statue showing the original Christmas scene in the Bethlehem stable.

Other creches on exhibit come from other hands and the "santons," or figures which form the creches, are also exhibited separately. Some of the figures, notably those of the Three Wise Men, are not placed in the creches until Jan. 6 under the European tradition.

John Pierpont, director of the bookshop, says that the creches and santons are widely used in Europe in much the same way as Christmas trees are used in America as the center of family and church celebrations.

The bird coming in contact with the wire usually takes off immediately. A number of large buildings in Birmingham, England, have tried it successfully, according to the report.

NEW YORK (AP)—The best way to keep pigeons off public buildings is to give them the "hot foot."

The British Information Service reports that a slender electric wire is run along ledges on which the birds usually perch. This transmits a weak shock once a second. Any bird coming in contact with the wire usually takes off immediately.

New Guinea has been so little explored by white men, that even today, explorers flying over the island find stone age villages whose inhabitants never have seen a European, says the National Geographic Society.

San Diego, Calif.—It's still a dark secret—a new U. S. Air Force radio-guided target plane—except for the bare outlines.

These outlines fit a silhouette drawing of the jet propelled, pilotless "drone" target, were released here by Ryan Aeronautical Co., builder of the craft.

The plane is designated Q-2 by the Air Force and is currently being tested in New Mexico.

The Q-2, intended for anti-aircraft and aerial gunnery training and for use in combat plane interception problems, can streak through the sky nearly as fast as sound.

It is about half the size of an American jet fighter plane.

That is the only detail, beyond the dark silhouette, that Ryan was able to disclose.

NEW YORK (AP)—While modern American Christmas preparations are being made all around it, the Guild Bookshop here has brought a bit of the Old World holiday tradition to America.

The shop has an exhibit of the "santons" which form the center of many European celebrations. Among the exhibits is the work of Richard Lang who plays Christ in the Oberammergau passion play. Lang has fashioned a "creche," statue showing the original Christmas scene in the Bethlehem stable.

Other creches on exhibit come from other hands and the "santons," or figures which form the creches, are also exhibited separately. Some of the figures, notably those of the Three Wise Men, are not placed in the creches until Jan. 6 under the European tradition.

John Pierpont, director of the bookshop, says that the creches and santons are widely used in Europe in much the same way as Christmas trees are used in America as the center of family and church celebrations.

The bird coming in contact with the wire usually takes off immediately. A number of large buildings in Birmingham, England, have tried it successfully, according to the report.

NEW YORK (AP)—The best way to keep pigeons off public buildings is to give them the "hot foot."

The British Information Service reports that a slender electric wire is run along ledges on which the birds usually perch. This transmits a weak shock once a second. Any bird coming in contact with the wire usually takes off immediately.

A number of large buildings in Birmingham, England, have tried it successfully, according to the report.

New Guinea has been so little explored by white men, that even today, explorers flying over the island find stone age villages whose inhabitants never have seen a European, says the National Geographic Society.

San Diego, Calif.—It's still a dark secret—a new U. S. Air Force radio-guided target plane—except for the bare outlines.

These outlines fit a silhouette drawing of the jet propelled, pilotless "drone" target, were released here by Ryan Aeronautical Co., builder of the craft.

The plane is designated Q-2 by the Air Force and is currently being tested in New Mexico.

The Q-2, intended for anti-aircraft and aerial gunnery training and for use in combat plane interception problems, can streak through the sky nearly as fast as sound.

It is about half the size of an American jet fighter plane.

That is the only detail, beyond the dark silhouette, that Ryan was able to disclose.

That Battered Old Gift Just Might Be Valuable

By JAY BREEN
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—If you get a battered package from Europe this Christmas, or a great-grandfather gives one of your youngsters a toy he owned as a child, don't bury the gifts in the attic.

An expert appraiser, Sigmund Rothschild, pointed out today that he knows many a man and woman who got valuable art of collectors' treasures under the Christmas tree and only a stroke of luck prevented their from losing their precious finds away.

Utilities Plant Sub-Station Nearly Completed

Under construction "off and on" during the past 12 months, the new sub-station at the Greenville Utilities plant is nearly completed. Designed to accommodate the anticipated inter-connection with Virginia Electric and Power Company, the sub-station was built at an approximate cost of $75,000 and lacks only minor wiring and testing to go into use. The plant now has a capacity of 13,000 kilowatt hours, but the tie-in with VEPCO will increase available current to 25,000 kilowatt hours. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Last Rites Sunday For Paul Edwards

Mr. Paul Edwards, 75, died Thursday night at 11 o'clock at Smith's Clinic in Greenville. He had been in failing health for the past year and critically ill for a month.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by his pastor, the Rev. C. F. Laughlin, Baptist minister of Pactolus, and burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Edwards was born and reared in Abbeville, S. C. and was employed by the Southern Railway at the age of 17. He later became affiliated with the Norfolk Southern Railway, and was a locomotive engineer for 25 years. He had made his home in Raleigh until 1941, when he moved to Durham.

He is survived by his wife; four sons, James Paul Edwards of Raleigh, Charles A. Edwards of Greenville, Jack G. Edwards of the home, and A-2c W. R. (Bobby) Edwards of the U. S. Air Force and now at San Antonio, Texas; also two grandchildren.

Chinese Reds . . .

Hundreds of dead and wounded of both sides littered the peaks. Elsewhere, Allied raiders grappled hand-to-hand with Chinese Reds northwest of Musan on the Western Front. The Allies secured the crest of a hill in bloody, close-range combat after twice being driven back. The United Nations troops later withdrew to their own lines.

Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U.S. Eighth Army commander, today reported a new South Korean division of about 14,000 men is nearly ready for combat duty. He said the unit "could replace an American division on the battlefield."

Van Fleet said a second new ROK division would follow the first into battle "soon thereafter." He added there are "easily 100,000 South Korean recruits" in training as replacements for the ROK Army.

stitutional lawyer who delivered the key argument for the states, contended that the framers of the 14th Amendment never intended to interfere so radically with local self-government — "The very strength and fiber of our federal system."

Chinese Reds . . .

"There is no reason to reverse the findings of 90 years," he said. Thurgood Marshall, 44, NAACP attorney who has won a long string of court victories for Negroes, put it differently.

"What is best for the majority is a matter of legislative policy," he conceded. "The rights of minorities must be protected by the courts."

The District of Columbia case differs from the others because it concerns federal instead of state law. The Negroes rely on the Fifth Amendment which says "no citizen shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law."
