NATO's Defense Goals Slashed

Council Reducing Targets For 1953; This Year's Goals Substantially Met; U. S. Agrees To Pay 40 Per Cent Of Base-Building Costs; 'Quality' Sought

PARIS (UP)—The North Atlantic Treaty council ordered its military chiefs today to set sharply reduced 1953 goals for Western European defense...

At their Lisbon conference last February the allies set the following goals: End of 1952—"About 50" troop divisions and 4,000 planes.

At their final session, the foreign, finance and defense ministers of the 14 NATO countries approved a resolution incorporating two basic points:

1. Before the 50 divisions and 4,000 war planes which Ridgway has at his disposal are expanded greatly, their efficiency and equipment should be improved.

The United States delegation agreed that the United States should pay 40 per cent of a temporary 1953 base-building program when a committee agreed European countries should spend at least $225,000,000 on the project, authoritative sources said.

Indicates 'Plan D' Does Not End Utilities Set-Up

City Attorney Says, However, Utilities' Position Would Be Modified

Position of Greenville's Utilities Commission under the proposed "Plan D" type of city government was made somewhat clearer today as the result of a comment from Attorney General Harry McMullan.

"The utilities' position would be modified to the extent under the general law that a city manager would make appointments of all heads of departments and employees—with the authority to hire and fire at will—but he would be responsible to the utilities board of commissioners."

Remove Employees "That includes the power to appoint or remove all heads of departments, superintendents, and other employees of the city as I have indicated. He would likewise have the powers given him by G.S. 160-350 to appoint such officers and employees as the council may determine are necessary for the proper administration of the city."

Brought to St. Francis hospital in San Francisco from her Christmas City, Calif., home for treatment, Muryla will spend her Christmas holiday and many more days to come in this special frame. She has already undergone 21 grafts and more are to follow. Like any other small youngster confined as she is, Muryla is a lonely little girl and would like to hear from other boys and girls. With her here is Nurse Phyllis Culp reading a Christmas card. (AP Wirephoto)

The guests were then invited into the dining room where from a beautifully decorated table Mrs. Luther Bowling and Mrs. Lee served frozen fruit salad, coffee, cheese straws, ham biscuits, red crabapples, gaily decorated cookies, fancy candies and nuts.

The club members gathered around the Christmas tree in the living room and sang Christmas carols. Much merriment followed as the members opened their gifts, which had been left under the tree by old Santa Claus. At the close of a happy evening, the guests reluctantly bade Lil and Lila good-night.

Credit Womens Club Has Annual Christmas Party

The lovely Christmas party held by the members of the Greenville Credit Womens Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Copeland on the Falkland Highway Friday evening, December 12, from 8 o'clock until 12 was a most enjoyable occasion. Mrs. Copeland's home was beautifully decorated with Chinese holly, red berries, poinsettias and cut flowers. Guests were greeted by the host, hostess and club president Elinor Norris, and invited into the den and living room, where a gaily decorated Christmas tree and Christmas lighting effects and decorations provided a real Christmas setting. Packages were piled high around the Christmas tree, and, after the guests were assembled, Mr. and Mrs. Santa arrived and, amid much fun and laughter, distributed the presents personally. The club sponsors, Mr. Walter Harrington, Mr. Frank Copeland, Mr. John Clark, Mr. Floyd Hendrix, Mr. Lyman Ormond and Mrs. J. B. Spillman, were present, and were warmly welcomed and remembered with gifts by Santa. At the Christmas party it is custom for each member's Secret Breakfast Clubber to be revealed, and new games are drawn for the coming year.

Many flash pictures were taken of the Christmas tree, Mr. and Mrs. Santa, sponsors and members for the Club Scrap Book.

After the social hour, Mr. and Mrs. Santa joined the guests, and were invited to the dining room, where refreshments were served from a beautifully appointed table, laid with an imported Italian cutwork linen cloth over a green satin under-cover. The centerpiece was an arrangement of red carnations flanked by tall red tapers. Refreshments consisted of French coffee, assorted party sandwiches, pastries, salted nuts and fruits.

Services at Sweet Gum Grove Rev. J. B. Naron of Wake Forest will deliver a Christmas sermon at the Sweet Gum Grove F.W.B. Church Sunday morning, Dec. 21, at 11:00 o'clock. Everyone is invited.

100-Gallon Still Destroyed Today

A 100-gallon copper "still," complete and ready to run, rose with the sun this morning as Pitt County ABC officers blew it to bits with dynamite.

Liquid particles of mash — 600 gallons of it — showered surrounding trees as it was dissipated along with components of the "still" itself.

J.M. Ward, Pitt County ABC officer, reported today the illegal outfit was found near Post Oak Road Negro School in Carolina Township, and was complete in every respect.

According to Ward, the cap and two copper condensers were found. "Blockers" were using one copper coil and one copper radiator for condensers.

Strength for the Day

TO OLD FRIENDS
Are you growing old and feeling perhaps that you are useless? Cheer up. You are never useless so long as you can raise a hand to do anything. The modern idea that because people are past sixty-five they are no longer useful is unrealistic, cruel, and mistaken.

Ponder these words of Longfellow:
"Ah, nothing is too late,
Till the tired heart shall cease to palpitate.
Cato learned Greek at eighty; Sophocles
Wrote his grand Oedipus, and Simonides
Bore off the prize of verse from his compeers.
When each had numbered more than fourscore years."

Chaucer, at Woodstock with the nightingales,
At sixty wrote the Canterbury Tales;
Goethe at Weimar, toiling to the last,
Completed Faust when eighty years were past."
In my mid-sixties I am determined to be useful to the last day of my life on the basis of whatever strength I have. It will be our fault if we allow people who write books on psychology or efficiency experts to relegate us to the junk heap. We are never ready for the junk heap until our spirits collapse within us. Cheer up and brace up—there is much for us to do yet, although but a few years still to do it.

Is Honesty On The Skids In America?

Every so often there comes a story of an incident—usually of no grave consequences—which attains a high rate of distribution because it is considered a typical trait of the American people.

Of course these stories usually relate an incident which portrays an admirable trait; one which most individuals would be proud to possess.

Recently we have noted brief news articles of this kind which portray undesirable traits in individual character. The stories of undesirable traits are becoming almost as numerous as those of the desirable traits.

It makes us wonder if the undesirable traits of character are gaining ground among the American people, or are we just viewing ourselves more objectively than we have in past years.

For instance government scandals and reports of dishonesty from the top of the social and economic level to the bottom in the nation have gained quite a bit of publicity in recent months. The people have certainly become mindful to these dishonest activities through such publicity. Once scandal in government was viewed a rare thing. Now each new announcement of dishonesty on the part of an official or a person with high responsibility is taken in stride as just another link in the chain.

By the same token, the little dishonest acts are viewed with the terse remark, "Well everybody does it now days."

There was a little announcement this week by a leading manufacturer of radios saying the company is seeking the return of 52 portable radios which were lent for use by members of the Eisenhower staff during the election campaign. Of the 60 radios lent by the company for the Republican Candidate's train, only eight were returned to the company. The other 52 apparently were just taken home by members of the staff when the campaign ended.

Those individuals who "borrowed" the radios probably thought they were paid for out of the campaign funds, and there would be no further use for them when the campaign was over. Perhaps they eased their consciences a little by assuming if they did not take the radios someone else would.

That attitude, unfortunately, seems to be becoming widespread among the American people. The popularity for strictest honesty even where little things are concerned seems to be waning. If the American people could revitalize their collective character with a little more of Abraham Lincoln's fervor of honesty, we'd be better off.

The Hoover Report Shouldn't Be Forgotten

Prospects for streamlining the federal government and getting into operation some of the reforms which were recommended in the controversial Hoover Commission report are on the upswing.

At least that is what the chairman of the national citizens committee for the Hoover Report has said.

In case it has slipped the minds of some readers, the Hoover Commission was appointed by President Truman some years ago to look into the operations of the federal government and recommended ways of improving the operation efficiency of the government. The commission went to work and came up with a huge volume of recommendations. There were a lot of statistics and a lot of testimony of the overlapping and lost motion between the various departments and agencies of the federal government.

After the report was made, steps were taken to have the reform put into legislation and presented to Congress for approval. That's where the hitch came. Some legislation carrying out recommendations for re-vamping the government on a more efficient basis was passed by Congress, but much of it was lost in the maze of politics and hearings.

There were just too many people who had pet projects which they considered vital to them and to their welfare—personal and political. As a result bureaucrats and politicians scratched each other's back by seeing that a good many recommendations found their way to dusty pigeon holes while the merry, inefficient mode of operation continued its costly way.

Now, says the head of the committee for the Hoover Commission report, many of the individuals in Washington who resisted any change of any sort in the federal government will be going, and "men receptive to new ideas will take their places."

Whether the new individuals in Washington will be favorable to the Hoover Commission recommendations, or whether the new Republican control of the federal government will improve the chances of needed reforms being adopted, it is too early to tell.

One thing is sure. The Hoover Commission report is a valuable result of an intensive study of the operations of the federal government. It contains many recommendations which still should be incorporated in appropriate legislation to bring about reforms still needed.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—President Truman's wash-political nature has now conquered the generous, post-election mood in which he offered complete cooperation with President-elect Eisenhower during the interregnum period, between November 4 and the January 20 inauguration. Grimly and determinedly, the outgoing Democrats are building hurdles in the path of the incoming Administration.

The first evidence of Truman's glumness over the election results was reflected in his peevish and grudging offer of his Presidential plane to fly Eisenhower to Korea.

More flagrant proof of his sourness and pettiness came in his tart comment on the Eisenhower-MacArthur endeavors for peace or victory in Korea. Veteran White House attaches and newspaper reporters were shocked at the Missouriian's behavior.

BACK-ROOM TACTICS—Truman's personal conduct, however, would be only an item for psychiatric study, if it were not that it is matched by Administration activities which appear to be designed to embarrass his successor. In both domestic and international fields, it seems that he is trying to build pitfalls for the Republicans as they assume responsibility for the first time in a generation.

Indeed, it is understood that Truman and Governor Adlai E. Stevenson, the unsuccessful 1952 nominee, did not part on entirely friendly terms because of the President's outline of this sort of political strategy and plans for a Democratic comeback in 1956.

As a selfless, statesmanlike and generous individual Stevenson sincerely favors a maximum of cooperation with Eisenhower. He made that plain in the statement he issued after his recent conference with Truman. He himself had planned a trip to Korea, if he were elected. He has no use for Truman's back-room tactics for hamstringing a future President of the United States.

IRANIAN OIL CONTROVERSY—Despite numerous unsettled and dangerous controversies with England, our only major ally in the cold war, Truman has worsened relations with that country by his handling of the Iranian oil controversy and his prosecution of British and American firms involved in that Middle East dispute.

Reluctantly, and only because of persistence by the defendant's lawyers in open courtroom, Attorney General McGranery now admits that it was Truman himself who personally demanded an investigation and possible conviction of the Anglo-American firms.

In disregard of State's advice, Truman insisted on this anti-trust action last June for political purposes, hoping to make a play to small business and independent interests in this field. Senator Sparkman, the Vice-Presidential nominee, headed that committee, and helped to force action against the oil firms.

Then, while condemning the practices of these companies in vitriolic language that Mossadegh and Stalin re-echoed in propaganda pamphlets, Truman permitted Secretary Acheson to offer a $100,000,000 bribe to Iran, if it would come to terms with these same firms. That was the amount of the subsidy which the Secretary of State promised to Mossadegh, if he would do business with the British Government.

PROGRAM BACKFIRED—Meanwhile, Acheson had ordered American oil firms not to try to buy or market Iranian oil, and thereby get Mossadegh off a painful, economic hook. We were then supporting 10 Downing Street on this issue.

But when this inconsistent program backfired against Truman, he reversed himself and proclaimed that American interests could buy Iranian oil, if they were willing to chance damage suits in British courts. London still maintains that the disputed petroleum is British property.

Anyway, the British are furious over Washington's handling of the whole affair. It will be up to Eisenhower to placate them when Churchill visits the new occupant of the White House next spring.

McGRANERY'S DRIVE—Again at Truman's personal and belated urging, the normally easy-going Attorney General McGranery has started a drive against Communists inside and outside the Government, proled gangsters, allegedly crooked or inefficient Department of Justice officials, and criminals who have been subject to deportation for many years. He is cleaning up a messy house he is about to vacate for another tenant.

It is a complete reversal of the Truman tolerance toward the political underworld, a Presidential characteristic which was developed fully during the Kefauver and other Senate investigations. It constitutes the first exhibition of White House indignation on these subjects.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Without checking the weather report I can tell you that last Sunday was a cold day in Greenville. In Washington it was probably a few degrees colder. But as far as I was concerned, it was a hot time, that is, a hot time for the Philadelphia Eagles. Viewing the professional football game between the Washington Redskins and Philadelphia Eagles from the 40-year line was one of the most exciting experiences of my year.

The Redskins have been in existence for years, but as far as North Carolina football fans are concerned they were born in 1950.

The year they signed a contract with Charlie Justice, two-time All-American at the University of North Carolina.

Justice drew Carolina fans to Washington. The first year he played there were chartered trains from Rocky Mount taking fans to Washington for every game. When Choo Choo decided to coach in '51 instead of playing many followers slacked off. And this season when he rejoined the "Skins many rejuvenated their enthusiasm. In the first game, a non-conference exhibition in California, Choo Choo ran wild and was widely acclaimed as a back to watch this season. However, in this game he broke his wrist, which he termed as a stupid mistake on his part.

"I should have known better," he said, "I tried to stiff-arm a man and I have always known it was dangerous."

It took Choo Choo some time to recover from the fracture. Since he has been playing again his performances have not been too impressive. In fact, his assignments have been limited almost to punt and kickoff returns. In the last two games of the season, however, he was more frequently seen in the lineup.

Some people say Choo Choo is out of his league in pro ball. At times I had been inclined to agree; that is, before I saw a Redskins game. The game Sunday gave me a new respect for Justice. Mainly, I became convinced that his failure to return kicks is no accident. It would be impossible for every kick to go to Johnny Williams if the kickers were not kicking away from Charlie.

Pro ball is rough, but played in a manner pleasing to spectators. Every man is a specialist in his position and can be expected to carry out his assignment expertly. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

SEGREGATION — There has been a great deal of interest, amounting to genuine concern throughout the South, in the recent cases now pending in the Supreme Court of the United States affecting the policy of racial segregation in public schools. A few school administrators and newspaper editors in North Carolina have jumped to conclusion that the high court will outlaw segregation and have voiced alarm at probable consequences of that decision.

ALERTED — Attitude of a majority of those around Capitol square and elsewhere with whom your reporter has discussed the matter is one of alertness rather than alarm. Most of them see no point in getting all hot and bothered by anticipating a decision they seriously doubt will be rendered. At the same time, they think it wise to give some thought to plans for meeting the contingency of it should arise. Undoubtedly the over-hanging threat will influence action of the forthcoming General Assembly with respect to public schools, especially in the field of further State contributions to school buildings.

FAR REACHING — It is commonly conceded that there is more involved than the specific item of segregation in schools. That has pinpointed the issue in dramatic fashion, but the real question, according to several legal lights hereabouts, is that of State sovereignty; perhaps more accurately the question of State integrity, or even State identity. It is more important in human aspects because it intimately affects more people, but in legal and constitutional phases the problem is essentially the same as control of navigable streams, title to tideland and off-shore oil and mineral rights, and assumption by Federal courts of jurisdiction over crimes against State laws. Racial segregation has more dramatic appeal, but no more chance of destroying the integrity of the States than several other issues.

INSIDIOUS — Encroachment of Federal authority upon State sovereignty has been insidious. It began with need for national defense in the War of 1812, which broke out less than 25 years after the United States became an independent nation. It was greatly accentuated by experiences in the civil war, which is now officially designated as the War of the States, and the rapid expansion of national areas just before and after that war. The world-wide industrial revolution covering the last two decades of the 19th century and the first of the 20th contributed to the trend toward national consciousness. Two subsequent world wars with an intermediate great depression added to the necessity for Federal rather than State handling of affairs.

FAILURE — Honesty compels the confession, however, that large part of Federal intervention came because the State government utterly failed in its obligations to the people. The late Governor J.M. Broughton was among the first responsible Southern spokesmen to warn that continued failure on part of the States would inevitably lead to Federal action. Since he made that speech in Baltimore in 1941 many others have given lip service to the idea, but for most part the States have persisted in putting all the emphasis on State rights without accepting the attendant obligations. In the field of public education North Carolina has perhaps advanced farther than most other segregation States in providing equal facilities. The spread has been narrowed, but there is still a gap.

CONSTITUTION — One point sometimes overlooked in discussing the issue is the fact that there is no provision in the United States Constitution for maintaining public schools. Every state has such requirements in its constitution now, but South Carolina last month voted to eliminate the requirement. The North Carolina constitution places a mandate upon the General Assembly to maintain the uniform system of public schools, where in tuition shall be free to all the children of the State between the ages of six and twenty-one years. "And the children of the white-race and the children of the colored race shall be taught in separate public schools; but there shall be no discrimination in favor of or to the prejudice of, either race."

CONTROLLING — In absence of specific mention in the Federal constitution, and because the State constitution was approved by the Congress of the United States before it became effective in 1869, that section is controlling upon this State. It has been implemented by other constitutional and statutory provisions fixing a minimum term at six months and an actual term at nine months; by establishment of a consolidated central board of education; compulsory attendance, bus transportation and other administrative features, including equal pay for colored teachers and identical curricula in all schools.

VACUUM — If the State constitutional mandate for public schools should be voided, either by court decision or by election of the people in South Carolina, there will be a complete vacuum instead of schools, until such time as national legislation can be effectuated to carry on the educational program.

DESTRUCTION — Of greater concern to many citizens is that (Continued on page 8)

What Other Papers Are Thinking

OUR FARM INCOME (Wilson Times)

How much does a farmer earn an hour? He knows to a penny what he pays for labor, but does he know what he personally earns? Out in the Middle West the Federal Reserve Bank made a canvass. And it found that on the commercially-family-operated farms in the corn belt, the tops were $2.25. It doesn't tell us some other things. Does the farmer count from the time he starts or is he on an eight-hour day? If the former, if he were capable of paying overtime in keeping with the Wage and Hour law, his earnings would be considerable.

Farms, however, are not always run on a business basis. At the end of the year the farmer can tell you how much he earned, if he earned anything; but not many can tell how many hours they put in. If he keeps cows and chickens, he's working from sun-up till sun-down. If he's a tobacco farmer, he's loafing during large parts of the year. While he works he may average as much as the corn belt farmer, but he'll not have as much at the end of the year. For the man who depends on other things besides a cash crop is better off than the man who doesn't. Farm income, however, is like all income. A high hourly wage isn't always receptive. If a man can only put in six months at the job. His yearly earnings will be below the average. A low hourly wage, on the other hand, is sometimes more acceptable. If the man is assured 12 months work a year. Farmers, of course, always have work, although not always do they do it. Mending fences isn't profitable from a sales standpoint, though it's work that has to be done. Thus, to arrive at what a man earns is sometimes hard. But if he's a good farmer, if he lives off his farm, he'll have money to put in the bank at the end of the year.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
This is to report the happiest income tax story of the year. A youthful businessman has had an "understanding" with a young lady for many months now. Recently he learned — perhaps he read it here — that there were tax savings possible in advancing marriages planned for 1953 to before December 31.

He studied the situation carefully. He is making $10,000 this year. He calculated that if he did not marry until next June, he would have to pay Federal income taxes of $10,000, whereas, if he married before the end of this year, he would have to pay taxes, under the split-income provision of the law, on two incomes of $5,000. This would amount to a net savings of around $630.

With nary a mention of the tax-saving involved, he suggested to the girl that they get married at once. She agreed and yesterday they were married. He gave the minister $50. He told his bride about it last night. "I feel I can afford it," he said, "because by getting married I am saving a lot on my income taxes."

"Oh," said his charming bride, "You know about taxes, too I'm glad. I don't know a thing about them, and last spring I designed a collection of fashions for a New York manufacturer and got $12,000. Ever since then I have been wondering how much taxes I would have to pay. It's bothering me a lot, because I spent all the money."

So the young man now has to pay taxes on two incomes of $11,000, instead of taxes on one income of $10,000.

But it still is a happy income tax story. You see, they love one another.

COMPANIES AND GOVERNMENT SEEKING STURDIER SPINACH

An interesting example of cooperation between government and business is being conducted at Winterhaven, Tex. There the California Packing Corp., the American Can Co., the Missouri Pacific Railroad and the Department of Commerce are trying to develop spinach varieties resistant to white rust disease. The disease wiped out the Texas spinach crop in 1950.

The three companies will benefit if the experiments succeed. But so will other canning and railroad companies. And so will thousands of farmers and consumers. Economically, spinach isn't spinach. Last year 6,742,000 cases were canned and 97,900,000 pounds frozen.

FIND FEDERAL DEPT. CAN BOLSTER ECONOMY

The Federal Reserve's System should be free to deal with the money market on a basis of its effects on employment and prices and not on the basis of the needs of the Treasury for low cost funds, says a special committee of the Twentieth Century Fund in a report today.

It suggests that interest rates be lifted and credit tightened when the flow of credit is too great. Properly managed, the huge Federal debt can be a powerful tool for job employment, stable prices and economic progress, the committee concludes.

WAR ON BUGS COSTS...

U.S. $50 MILLION A YEAR
Americans spent $50,800,000 to kill and repel insects last year. Paul C. Olson, market research director of Topics Publishing Co., told the Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association meeting in New York. This compares with $59,870,000 in 1948.

Part of the rise is attributed to aerosol-type dispensers, which cost a little more but offer ease of application.

BRITISH OFFER 9-DAY...

RAIL-PASS FOR $36...
To promote more travel about the British Isles during the coronation, the British Railways has reduced the price of first-class nine-day railroad passes from $45 to $36. The passes must be purchased through travel agencies in the United States or Canada before departure, and the nine-day period specified at the time of purchase. Second-class passes are $24.

With the passes, visitors can travel on any of the 20,000 miles of railroad in England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales or North Ireland, and on any trains except for a few boat-trains. The British think the plan will encourage travelers to spend more time in Britain and less on the continent.

A new edition of the A-B Commercial Directory of the Philippines is now available, according to a Mutual Security Agency announcement. It's 1,900 pages long, lists 1,000 agencies, list importers, exporters and manufacturers, and also give import control rules and trade statistics. It is available from Daniel A. Montilla, 745 John Jay Hall, Columbia University, New York 7, N.Y. (at $15.20).

GLOBE: Geography can be fun with a map of the world printed on a 16-inch plastic globe. Inflated, it can be used as a beach or basketball; deflated, it fits into a pocket. (It is produced by Blaine Co., 130 W. 42nd St., New York 18.)

REINFORCER: A glass fabric that stretches while the yarn remains stable has been developed as a base for reinforced plastics (by Hess Goldsmith Co., 1400 Broadway, New York). It need not be tailored to fit compound curves, withstands temperatures up to 500 degrees F., and resists most acids and alkalis.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—This is the time when most people like to take a backward look and weigh the gains and losses of a waning year.

What happened to you in '52? Historians assess a year by the mighty changes that take place in it, but most people remember it on a personal basis. A little girl may always remember 1952 as the year she took her first steps into a brave new world-kindergarten. An older girl may recall it as the period of crisis during which she finally made up her mind to dye her hair red.

For most of us a year is made memorable by how it touched us rather than in the way it affected the destiny of nations. A boy who put on long pants for the first time is more likely to remember 1952 for that reason than the fact that Britain lost a king and gained a queen.

By and large, 1952 has been a year of watchful waiting and gathering tension rather than of tremendous and dramatic decision—except in the field of domestic politics.

There the deep disquiet among the American people created a landslide victory for Gen. Eisenhower. But the real results of that political earthquake cannot be known before 1953.

No stars collided in the heavens, but a potential H-bomb weapon was exploded in the Pacific. And what is the full meaning of that? We do not yet know.

New rumblings of unrest stirred in the teeming millions of Africa and Asia. The war in Korea cooled deeper in its long stalemate.

The average man earned more money and paid more taxes in 1952 than he ever had before. The nation as a whole ate higher on the hog than at any previous time in its history.

As a people we were probably never better off. But despite the fact we had more money to spend, and more gadgets to buy, we were not particularly happy about our prosperity. We worried, "how long will it last?"

It has been a restless and uneasy 12 months probably because we weren't sure whether the world was teetering toward peace or teetering toward war. The yearning for some kind of certainty and security grew among us.

Probably years and years from now most of us will look back at 1952 and wonder, "why wasn't I more grateful? It was a good time."

But right now the average man feels that in 1952 he only grew a little older, grayer, wearier—and more puzzled. He had a job, he ate well, he bought a new car or television set. But he still holds a vague resentment against 1952 because it didn't give him a clear answer to the main problem on his mind—what lies ahead?

Washington Letter

By CARL HAKTMAN

For JAN EADS

WASHINGTON—Politicians used to wax eloquent over the crimes and virtues of the tariff, but you ask a good many politicians about "import quotas" without getting much of an answer.

They are a means of protecting domestic products even more drastic than the tariff. Economists, who like to give things the dullest possible names, are responsible for the term. Sometimes they also use "quantitative restrictions," or "Q.R." for short. "Tariffs are designed to protect the home market for domestic producers by taxing imports. But foreign costs can sometimes be cut so low that the imported product is cheaper than the domestic even with the tariff. Then the protective tariff doesn't protect.

A Q.R. just stops imports at any price when they reach a certain level.

The idea is simpler and probably older than the tariff. Way back in the 17th the 18th centuries the British "navigation acts" sharply limited imports of goods from the colonies and were among the grievances listed in the Declaration of Independence.

The countries of continental Europe started using import quotas because they conserved foreign currency, which was often in short supply. In fact, nations whose exports furnish them with insufficient exchange to buy the goods they want abroad often impose quotas indirectly by limiting the dollars or other scarce monies that importers are permitted to use. The governments also can reap a profit on such transactions by demanding high prices in local currency for the foreign exchange that importers must have. This type of juggling was a favorite with Finance Minister Hjalmar Schacht, who helped save off the bankruptcy so often predicted for Hitler's Germany.

The U.S. did not need to conserve foreign currency, but it did want to increase the incomes of its farmers. Laws were enacted in the early 1930s to maintain the price of many farm products—sugar, cotton, wheat and others.

To make sure they could be sold at home for more than the world market prices, the amount permitted to enter the country was strictly limited. For example, during the 1950-51 season wheat quotas were set at 795,000 bushels for Canada and 2,000 for Argentina.

After Korea a boom in raw material prices resulted. Nations scrambled to stock up. They bought more than they could pay for, and their reserves of foreign currency melted away. Result: On went most of the quotas again.

Broadway 'Find' Is Surprised, Too

By JAY BREEN
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Blonde and skinny Geraldine Page has been declared this winter's "find" on the Broadway stage and the solemn-faced actress said today she's every bit as surprised as all the bosses who have fired her in times past.
The list includes the manager of a lingerie firm who gave her the gate when he discovered she was wearing falsies under the filmy nighties she modeled. Shortly afterwards, she added the operator of the hat-check concession at Lindy's Restaurant. He canned her when she committed an unpardonable sin and handed banian Billy Rose a check for his coat and hat.
"I was supposed to know he had his own special little book," she said, "he looked like I'd put a handful of hot fudge in his palm when I gave him that check."
This and similar dismal experiences only convinced Miss Page that getting pink slips is good for a girl's determination. Ever the denouement from the nightie-maker didn't discourage her.
"I'm 5 feet, 11 inches tall, weigh 123 pounds and when it comes to more exact measurements, just say I'm skinny," Miss Page declared.
"Most of the rules for getting ahead in New York aren't worth a darn," Miss Page said, "for instance they told me to stick to jobs on the fringe of show business until I broke in. That turned out to be pretty silly, too."
Instead of heeding the advice, Geraldine got herself a job sweeping up loose ends in a thread factory. It was one of the very few she quit, instead of getting heaved out. Miss Page hung up her broom to take a lead part in an off-Broadway revival of Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke."
"They told me that was a mistake, too," she said, "but it lead directly to being signed as star of my new show."
Miss Page, together with Jenny, the nine-year-old daughter of writer Ben Hecht, opens next month on Broadway as a co-star of the play "Mid-Summer." Not the least of her triumph will be a pay increase to $650 per week over the $40 per week she got in the Greenwich Village Theater.

Mrs. Denkins Coppage and son, Dudley, of Decatur, Ga. are visiting Mrs. D. W. Coppage.
Mrs. A. B. Morton Jr. spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Morton of North Harlowe.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles James announce the birth of a daughter on Dec. 9 at Tayloe Hospital in Washington. Mrs. James is the former Miss Shirley Movadith.

MILLION DOLLAR JUNK FILE:—This is a semi-general view of an Air Logistic Force salvage yard at a Far East Air Force base somewhere in Japan which Air Force officials claim has saved United States taxpayers a million dollars in 11 months. More than 2,000 tons of salvage from the battlefields of Korea and elsewhere are processed in the yard monthly. Some of it is reconditioned and returned to stock. Other parts are sold as junk on the open market. (AP Wirephoto)

The 'Big Lie' Technique Entangles Red Bosses

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor
The "big lie" is a recognized propaganda trick used effectively by the Nazis late and unlamented Dr. Joseph Goebbels and today by the Kremlin promoters.

But once in awhile these Communist strategists get tangled in their own typewriters.

Such has been one of the effects of the recent Prague "purge" trials in which 11 out of 14 defendants were of Jewish origin.

On the one hand, in their broadcasts to the Arab nations, the Reds used the Prague "purge" as proof of the dangers of Zionism to the Arab states.

They also made much of Czechoslovakia's demand for the recall of the Israeli minister on the charge that he was linked to a Western espionage ring.

What these propagandists didn't count on was the effect inside the party and among the fellow-travelers of Western Europe.

Nor had they realized that the anti-Jewish character of the Prague trial would knock the props from under the Communist-sponsored worldwide campaign for the release of the convicted American atom spies, Esther and Julius Rosenberg.

The Rosenberg case was being presented as a classic of anti-Semitism.

Now the Reds are in a desperate scramble to prove there was nothing anti-Semitic in the Prague trials after all.

Their efforts have not been successful.

London reports say the anti-Semitic nature of the Prague trials struck a more damaging blow to the British Communist party than any of the earlier purges in Eastern Europe and that the party is suffering both from a loss of membership and money.

One who left the party after publicly expressing his "revulsion" over the Prague trials was Benjamin Frankel, composer and conductor who had been a party member for 12 years.

Another effect has been to accelerate the decline of the London Daily Worker, whose circulation now is down to about 30,000.

In Belgium, party Secretary Edgar Lalmand admitted the Prague trial had caused "uneasiness" among Communists, but said these were "ideologically undeveloped" and should be suspected of being "capitalistic spies."

In Denmark, Communist party member Anders Doessing, son of the late Danish minister to Moscow, criticized Communist attempts to "explain" the Prague trials. The official Danish Communist party organ promptly labelled him a "Titoist."

In Italy, the Communist press tried to lessen the impact of the Prague trials by running several pro-Jewish stories.

Throughout Western Europe, the Communist press currently is carrying statements purporting to emanate from Jews defending the policies of the Czech government.

However, not one of these statements has come from responsible Western Jewish organizations or personalities.

Red Oak News

The Young Married Couples Class of Red Oak Christian Church will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Tyson on Friday evening, December 19, at 8 o'clock. Every member of the class is invited and urged to come and enjoy this Christmas meeting of the class.

Circle No. 1 will meet with Mr. and Mrs. Leon Tyson on Sunday night, December 19, at 7:00 o'clock. Let's have one hundred percent in attendance.

Those who attended the Christmas program at the church last Sunday evening enjoyed a program of beautiful Christmas music rendered by the adult choir of the church and "The Little Ladies" Choir. Douglas Mitchell gave three readings, "When the Christ Child Came," "When Christmas Came" and "The Christmas Spirit." Miss Jane Winchester and Mrs. Tyson were pianist and organist for the program. James Bullock directed the "Little Ladies" Choir. Thirty-five people took part in the singing. They wore white vestments and carried lighted candles. The church was decorated in Christmas greenery, lighted candles and a blue star. This program did much to set the tempo for the other celebrations which will be held in the community during the holiday season.

We were more than happy to welcome Joe Jenkins Allen, son of Mrs. James Allen, back in Sunday School last Sunday after an absence of almost two years which were spent in Korea and Japan.

A lovely Christmas card was received by the Sunday School from one of our members, Charles Stuart Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fenner Allen, who is now stationed in Seoul. We shall be thinking of him during the Christmas holidays.

Claim Discrimination In N.C. Gasoline Price Study

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina is being discriminated against in gasoline prices.

This much was agreed on by Gov. Scott's Gasoline Price Committee. However, the committee broke apart on how the state should remedy the situation.

As a result, minority and majority reports were handed to Scott yesterday. The majority report said the state should steer away from regulation of gasoline prices, but called for more teeth in the state's weak anti-trust laws. The report added there is "clear discrimination between North Carolina and Virginia" in gasoline prices.

A vigorous four-man minority report was led by Chairman Aubrey L. Brooks of Greensboro. This report strongly urged state regulation of gasoline prices by the Utilities Commission.

Brooks declared the state will either regulate gasoline prices or "leave our people at the mercy of these companies." He noted that North Carolina already regulates the prices of natural gas, power, bus fares, and freight and insurance rates.

Disagreeing, the majority report asserted that state regulation of gasoline prices "would inevitably lead in the future to attempted regulation of the prices of many other articles of commerce which this committee does not regard as desirable."

The majority report recommended that the state's annual gasoline contract be awarded on a county basis instead of on a state-wide basis.

This report also proposed that it be made illegal for oil companies to grant rebates to their dealers. It was pointed out that dealers can use their rebates to lower their retail prices "to injure or destroy competition."

It is unlawful to cut prices with the intent to injure the business of a rival, the committee stated. It added, however, "The intent is the difficult item to prove."

The committee cited these differences in tank wagon prices for gasoline: 14.7 cents per gallon at Wilmington, 14.1 cents at Norfolk, Va., 16 at Raleigh, 14.5 at Richmond, 16 at Mt. Airy, and 15.4 at Danville.

The majority report stated that Esso Standard Co. sets gasoline prices and other companies seem to follow suit. However, proving there has been a conspiracy, to fix prices is another matter, the report added.

Eighty-Five Students Finished Work At ECC In Fall Quarter

Production Goals Of Civilian Goods Raised For 1953

WASHINGTON (AP)—Makers of automobiles and other civilian goods raised their production goals for the second quarter of 1953 today, on the basis of government assurance they will have more steel than at any time since the Korean War began.

The Defense Production Administration (DPA) authorized them late yesterday to use steel up to 70 percent of their pre-Korean rate. This is about 16 per cent more than for the third quarter of 1952, the previous high since the government began rationing scarce materials to assure adequate supplies for defense.

Aluminum producers weighed, meanwhile, a conditional government offer for a ceiling price increase of one-half cent a pound on primary aluminum pig and ingot and 4 per cent on fabricated aluminum products.

Defense Mobilizer Henry Fowler tied the proposed increase to a provision that the Big Three producers agree to certain changes in their contracts with the government, among them the deletion of the right of the government or the companies to cancel contracts for aluminum before they run their full five years.

Fowler's proposal was made in identical letters to the Aluminum Company of America, the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. and the Reynolds Metals Company. He asked immediate replies.

The companies got a bigger increase last August, but they said it wasn't enough to meet their expansion programs and asked Fowler for another hike.

Eighty-five students completed their work at East Carolina College at the end of the fall quarter and will receive their degrees with their classmates at commencement exercises held in May, 1953, according to an announcement by Registrar Orval L. Phillips.

The list of fall-quarter graduates includes 67 men and women who will receive the B.S. degree, which at East Carolina is conferred upon those taking courses preparing them as teachers; seven who will receive the A. B. or liberal arts degree; and eleven who will receive the master's degree, which at the college here is a degree for teachers and school administrators.

North Carolinians among the graduates number 79 men and women. Six out-of-state students come from Virginia, Kentucky, Arkansas, and California.

Those completing work for the B.S. degree include twenty-three students who have done their work at the college in the fields of primary and grammar-grade education. Others have received training in teachers in the secondary school and have specialized in such subjects as industrial arts, art, social studies, English, science, mathematics, music, physical education, home economics, and foreign languages.

The eleven candidates for the master's degree did their work in the fields of school administration, elementary education, or secondary education.

Panther Scares Persian Boatman

BAHRAIN, Persian Gulf (AP)—Abdulla, a Persian Gulf fisherman, gasped in surprise recently when a black panther rose in his boat and eyed him with disfavor. The islands of Bahrain are known for pearls and petroleum, but not for panthers.

This explains Abdulla's surprise when he was faced by the big cat while towing his boat. Abdulla ran for his life. En route he met a posse that was chasing the panther which had escaped from a cage on an airplane taking the beast and a fellow panther from Singapore to the London Zoo. The panther eventually was shot.

Cases Heard In City Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH

In Police Court yesterday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Alex Darden, Jr., Negro, guilty of two charges of hit-and-run driving with a truck last Saturday. The defendant gave notice of appeal in both cases.

In the first case, he was charged with sideswiping a car driven by Mrs. Marjha Jorgenson, 505 East Eighth street, last Saturday at Fifth and Elizabeth streets.

In the second case, Darden was charged with sideswiping a car driven by Billy Ray Smith, 1294 Cotanche street, last Saturday afternoon on East 14th street.

Testimony was that he left both scenes before police arrived.

The court sentenced Darden to six months on the roads in the first case, suspended on payment of $100 costs deducted. He is not to ride in any motor vehicle for a year, except in a public bus, unless and until he has made restitution for damage to the Jorgenson car. Also, he is not to violate any motor vehicle law for a year and remain of good behavior.

In the second case, Judge Whedbee rendered the same judgment as above, except that Darden is to pay for damage to the Smith car. Judge Whedbee recommended that his driver's license be suspended pending his trial in Superior Court in January.

Raymond Evans, no operator's license and failure to stop at a stop sign, paid $25 and costs.

Jesse Staton, Negro, failure to yield right of way in traffic, was given 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $10 and he is not to operate a motor vehicle for a year unless he makes restitution to James A. Walker of Greenville for property damage.

Douglas Shirley, drunk and disorderly, 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on condition that he pay $15 fine and a hospital bill and behave for six months.

Cleveland R. Allen, Negro, improper lights, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $5 and the judgement provides that he is not to violate any motor vehicle law for six months.

Christmas Dinner Held For ECC Faculty, Staff

A brightly lit Christmas tree, gay table ornaments, and carols by a chorus of boys and girls from East Carolina College Training School lent a holiday spirit Tuesday evening to the annual Christmas dinner attended by the college faculty and administrative staff and their guests.

The event took place in the North Dining room on the campus and was arranged by the Faculty Social Committee, of which Mabel Daugherty of the home economics department is chairman. Dr. Karl V. Gilbert of the music department announced the program for the evening.

The tree, a gift made each year to the college by Dr. Paul Jones of Farmville, was a center of attention in the dining hall. Small trees made of metallic paper, hung with bright ornaments, and based with sprays of holly were used as centerpieces on the tables where guests were seated. The trees were designed and made by students in art classes taught by Francis Lee Neel of the college faculty.

President John D. Messick of East Carolina welcomed those present and introduced a number of the guests of the evening. Among these were Dr. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kilpatrick of Ayden, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Garrett of Greenville, and Mr. Sam Worthington of Greenville.

Special music was provided by a vested choir of children from the Training School. Carols were sung by the young people under the direction of Beatrice Chauncey of the college faculty.

Row Upon Row Of Big Guns Point Across No-Man's-Land Of Korea

EDITOR'S NOTE: President-elect Eisenhower came back from Korea pledged to a policy of "deeds not words." That could include stepped-up military action against the Communists. The following dispatch gives an idea of the size and scope of the military problem. The writer accompanied Eisenhower on his Korean trip and visited the battle line with the president-elect.

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—As President-elect Eisenhower seeks a solution to the Korean war, there must be constantly in his mind the dreadful picture of the heavily fortified hills on the icy western front along the 38th Parallel.

The row upon row of gun emplacements and the hundreds of fortified bunkers are waiting on both sides of the line to turn the valleys into a scene of bloody carnage should the Communists or the United Nations forces attempt a major move.

Looking from an airplane at the amazing sight of big artillery pieces rammed into the side of a mountain like raisins in a cake, it is easy to understand why this is known as a stalemate war. The sight makes it easy to appreciate the gravity and responsibility involved in any decision to step up the war.

To step up the war means for the United Nations moving northward and not before spring because the heavy snow and subzero weather makes mass movement now almost impossible. A major drive north by land will mean heavy casualties.

An amphibious landing to the north to avoid fighting through the wall of Communist artillery on the line itself might mean a lower casualty rate, but Eisenhower heard for himself in Korea the difficulties in keeping a large naval operation secret in the Far East.

Eisenhower found one of the most vivid examples of the gun-to-gun deployment of huge armies in the snowy mountains when he visited an infantry battalion of the Third Division on the western front.

By small observation plane and by jeep, Eisenhower was in plain view of the Communist lines. He saw American planes near the snow from the side of a mountain with flaring strikes of heavy napalm (jellied gasoline) bombs.

Army officers watched this particular air strike with detachment, explaining that these strikes were intended to rout Communists from the bunkers and to destroy it possible.

The road along which Eisenhower jeaped, snakes along the floor of a valley flanked on either side by towering mountains. The road had recently been under Communist artillery fire.

Strewed along mountain sides and ridges were hundreds of gun emplacements. Communist positions were not as easily visible from the air because none of the Eisenhower party flew over the actual fighting line, but the troops and officers just back from the line said the Communist end of the valley looked just like the United Nations sector except that many of the Red artillery pieces were hidden in caves during most daylight hours.

Gunnery officers aboard the U.S. Helena, the heavy cruiser aboard which Eisenhower traveled from Guam to Pearl Harbor, added to the picture with their stories of the difficulties in shelling enemy positions in the Wonsan Harbor area.

The Communists have their shore artillery pieces in caves. They will spot an American naval vessel in the harbor, do all of their preliminary sighting from within the cave, then suddenly roll the gun far enough out of the cave to clear the muzzle, fire a few rounds and pull back into the cave, leaving the Navy with no target.

Most of the current fighting in Korea is at night. Hundreds of patrols, sometimes up to battalion strength, are sent out by the United Nations forces nightly to probe the enemy lines, pick up information and prisoners and on some patrols, to attack and destroy the men come back from these patrols looking haggard and drawn, slogging slowly through the snow with their weapons and moving ponderously under the encumbrance of layer after layer of winter clothing.

Most of the American troops in the front lines are getting at least some hot food every day. Feeling that the Army might have laid on a specially fine meal for the visiting brass hats, reporters traveling with Eisenhower asked a snow-flecked GI who was squatting on a rock with his plastic chow tray, "do you get this sort of food very often?"

CAN'T WAIT:—Mouths open in wonderment, Korean orphans get a preview of the Christmas holiday as they browse through crates of toys, clothing and goodies at Eighth Army Headquarters in Korea. The youngsters, from a Catholic orphanage in Seoul, will be among the native children benefiting from the collection, purchased with funds donated by GI's in the area. (AP Wirephoto)

He looked from his steaming tray of food and said matter of factly, "no, most of the time we have steak." Looking at the gun studded hills at the front gave many first-time observers a feeling that the job ahead would be painfully difficult; a feeling that during the many months of the unsuccessful truce talks both sides embedded themselves so thoroughly that an attack one way or the other would be impossible without heavy casualties.

The troops, however, displayed little of this concern. One corporal expressed himself and the men standing around nodded their serious assent.

"Let's get this thing over with," he said. "If they want to go north, let's go ahead and do it and keep right on going until we get to Moscow. But whatever they want to do, let's get the hell out of here."

Which is what the president-elect is now trying to figure out.

World's Most Famous Aunt Is Sixty On Sunday

LONDON (UP)—The world's most famous aunt celebrates its 60th birthday next Sunday so full of life that people on both sides of the Atlantic will drink a toast to: "no ordinary woman."

The toasts will be to "Charley's Aunt," possibly the greatest box office hit in theatrical history. It opened in the now derelict Royal Theatre in London, Dec. 21, 1892. It has been playing somewhere around the world ever since.

Old laybills show that "Charley's Aunt" actually had its premiere in the Theatre Royal at suburban Bury St. Edmunds in February, 1892. But Jevon Brandon-Thomas, son of the author, said today that was more in the nature of a "sneak preview" and that the anniversary is calculated from the start of the London run.

Next Sunday actors who have played the title role in Europe and North America will drink toasts to the durable old lady.

These include John Mills and Arthur Askey in London and Ray Bolger and Jose Ferrer in the United States. In addition A. E. Matthews, one of the surviving members of the original company and still a stage and screen featured player at 82, will mark the event here.

Brandon Thomas, who died in 1914, wrote "Charley's Aunt" at the suggestion of an actor-manager, W. S. Penley, who, the old records show, "sald down on the floor and lay there helpless" with laughter when the author read him the first draft.

There were so few people at its world premier at Bury St. Edmunds that the manager invited them to huddle together for warmth in the front rows. But the house was full in London when it opened, on borrowed money, after being turned down for financing by every theatrical management in London.

On opening night a fireman laughed so much he fell against the alarm bell and rang down the curtain in the middle of the act. The duke of Cambridge was so overcome his seat collapsed beneath him and he remained seated on the floor, "speechless with mirth"—as the yellowed clippings have it.

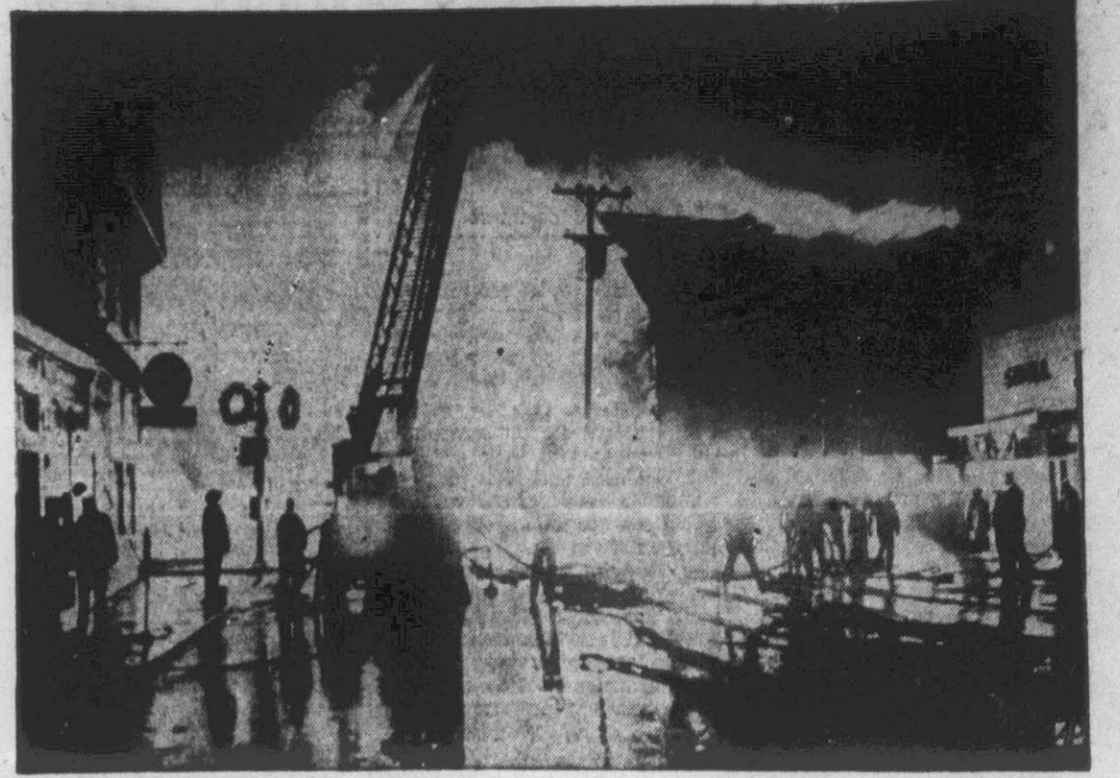

Within a month "Charley's Aunt" was transferred to a larger theater and ran for four years. It had its New York premiere on Oct. 2, 1893. At one time the play was being performed in 48 places on the same night.

Jevon Brandon-Thomas heads the family company which has profitably licensed the play to amateur and professional companies over the decades. He keeps a list of casts and at one time or another these have included Noel Coward, John Gielgud, Rex Harrison, Leslie Howard and Herbert Marshall.

On arriving home, she discovered the Thompson car already there because her mother had driven it away. Joy had mistaken another car of the same model and color for her own.

U.S. Reported Ready To Invest $100 Millions In Iran Oil Accord

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is reported ready to advance up to 100 million dollars in order to break the British-Iranian oil crisis.

Highly informed officials said today this sum would be provided to the Iranian government to help meet pressing financial problems and to help restore the flow of Iran's oil to Western Nations.

This emergency financial aid, however, would hinge on agreement by Iran and Britain to cooperate in a settlement of their bitter 18-month long dispute over nationalization of Britain's oil properties in Iran.

Secretary of State Acheson was reported discussing this approach with British Foreign Secretary Eden in Paris on direct instructions from President Truman.

The President, it was learned, has given Acheson a memorandum directing him to start exploratory discussions for a "voluntary agreement with American oil companies and the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. which would end the oil crisis. No hard-and-fast single plan has yet been put forward by Acheson. But, this is reported to be the main outline of the approach he is working on:

1. The United States, through various government agencies, would put up 100 million dollars in emergency financial aid to Iran. This money would go to help Premier Mossadegh's government pay civil servants and meet other outstanding bills which now threaten the stability of Iran. It would also help restore the huge Abadan oil refinery and to repair harbor and oil terminal facilities along the Persian Gulf.

2. An international oil combine made up of four or possibly five major American oil companies would then join Anglo-Iranian and the Royal Dutch Shell Co., in operating Iran's oil industry under a contract with the Iranian government. These member companies would also agree to move and market Iran's oil products to existing Western consumers.

3. In return for this, Iran and Britain would agree either to hand their dispute over to the International Court of Justice for judgement or to some international commission which would be set up to handle the case.

Under this plan, Britain would agree not to sue the oil combine for moving oil from Iran before a final verdict about the compensation it is due was given by the court or commission.

Old Methods In Producing Home Wine In Locality

DULUTH, Minn. (AP)—Minnesota's iron range is one of the biggest home wine-making localities in the nation.

More than 100,000 gallons of wine will be produced in the area this year, most of it through methods employed 50 years ago in the United States or 200 years ago back in the "old country." Grapes are shipped in.

Only change in the time-tested methods is the newer system of smashing grapes. Instead of stomping on them with bare feet, grapes are smashed with a gadget that looks like a clothes wringer.

Anyone who gets a free state permit can make up to 200 gallons of wine in his own home. Many wine-drinking families make the limit.

Egypt's Medical Plan Is Shelved

CAIRO (AP)—Plans for the nationalization of the medical profession and the expansion of free medical treatment to Egypt's 29 million population has been abandoned for the present.

Minister of Health Dr. Nuredin Tarraf says the proposed plan would have cost $143,500,000 and the country's economy could not stand such a strain. However, free medical treatment will be extended over a period of 15 years, the minister says.

D.S. Coltrane Tried His Hardest Not To Have Easiest Job In N.C. Govm't

By ALLEN ALEXANDER RALEIGH (AP)—The man who has tried his hardest not to have the easiest job in North Carolina's state government — at $1,015 a month — is D.S. Coltrane, assistant director of the budget.

Last June 13 Gov. W. Kerr Scott, who is director of the budget sent his assistant a curt letter.

Addressed to "Dear Coltrane," the letter notified its recipient that as of 4 p.m. that date, he "will discharge only those duties as assistant director of the budget that are specifically set forth in the statutes until the end of Scott's administration or further notice."

In effect, all Coltrane has had to do since receiving the letter has been sign his name to pay vouchers and attend meetings of the State Board of Buildings and Grounds. But he has done much more.

On the same date Scott addressed a letter to L.D. Moore, an assistant to state budget officers since 1937, telling him to take over the duties of the assistant budget director and soon thereafter upped his salary to $10,000 a year.

Although he was stripped of practically all his authority and duties, Coltrane refused to resign. He followed the Budget Commission during its three-week tour of state institutions. He spent another long period attending Advisory Budget Commission hearings this fall so "I may be fully familiar with the requests of the agencies of the state and thereby render the best possible service to the 1953 General Assembly."

In a statement issued three days after Scott lowered the boom, Coltrane said, "This situation is going to give me an opportunity to do some of the things I have really needed more detailed attention than the press of normal duties has heretofore permitted."

Coltrane said today that statement still expresses the picture accurately. In the statement he also said he would return "all subsequent salary checks to the State Treasury for the use of the State." This he has done and State Auditor Henry Bridges has put them in a special folder, awaiting further notice from Coltrane or the Legislature, which convenes next month.

Coltrane emphasized today that under no circumstances he could foresee would he cash the checks from July through December. State Rep. John Umstead, brother of incoming Gov. William B. Umstead, has stated he will introduce a bill or resolution authorizing that Coltrane be paid for his last six months' work.

Umstead will take over as governor Jan. 8. Since Coltrane was appointed assistant budget director for a four-year period ending next June 30, chances are he will re-assume his authority Jan. 8 and thereafter feel no compunction about cashing his checks. That is, unless Umstead indicates, he intends to keep Coltrane in a subordinate status.

Umstead has not indicated whether Coltrane will be reappointed when his term expires, or even if he will be fitted in elsewhere in the new administration. Coltrane stated of Umstead, "I don't know what he has in mind."

Many observers believe that Coltrane's support of Umstead caused the break between himself and the governor.

Last April Scott made it known he expected his top appointive officials to follow through loyally in supporting his Go Forward program. This loyalty, the governor made clear, included supporting Hubert E. Olive in the governor's race.

Coltrane said it was last December when he made up his mind "that I would support Mr. Umstead for governor."

One week after he stripped Coltrane of his authority, the governor issued a lengthy statement explaining the reasons for his action. Scott stated it was his responsibility to carry out the policies and programs he submitted to the people when he ran for election but that Coltrane "had not had the vision, and he was not kept pace with the tempo of the Go Forward administration."

He charged him with disloyalty in supporting Umstead and said he depended on the opinions of his top appointees for guidance. These opinions, he said, would be shaded if they came from persons supporting an opposition candidate.

Helpful Hints Given To 83rd Congress Members

By REX CHANEY
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (UP)—A word of advice to congressmen-elect: don't steal the government's typewriters. It's against the law.

This and other helpful hints on how a lawmaker should conduct himself are included in a booklet which Clerk of the House Ralph E. Roberts has sent to all members of the new 83rd Congress which convenes Jan. 3.

Roberts' 10-page booklet, intended primarily for the benefit of the House's 81 new members, explains how the free mail-privilege works, how offices are assigned and equipped, how committee assignments are made, how much the stationery allowance is (it's $800 per member per session).

But in the opinion of some old hands around Capitol Hill, the booklet is more notable for what it doesn't say.

It doesn't, for example, warn the new members that the discreet thing for a freshman to do is to be seen, not heard. Some new members get in dutch with the veterans right off by talking too much.

A freshman shouldn't offend the speaker either, even though the speaker may be of the opposite political party. The speaker has a lot of influence, and besides he has a hard time seeing — for recognition purposes — those who incur his displeasure.

Old timers think Roberts might also have suggested to the new members that they take it easy on the cocktail circuit. Invitations aplenty flow into congressmen's offices — enough to spill any man's (1) digestion, (2) disposition, and (3) reputation.

Also, the veterans say it's smart for congressmen to be on their good behavior around Washington even though they can, by custom, park overtime or drive 40 miles an hour in 30-mile zones without having the cops on their necks. (They can get tickets fixed even when they get them.)

The escapades congressmen usually find their way into the newspapers and these news accounts can be embarrassing in political campaigns.

Roberts did inform the members elect that they would have as much as $18,000 or $19,000 a year to spend for clerk hire. But he didn't warn them against the pitfall of trying to recapture any of that through kickbacks. Two members have been convicted of this in recent years.

Roberts might have said, but didn't, that it's all right for a congressman to put his wife on the office payroll, even if she does little or no work. Many wives, sons and daughters turn up there.

Have Faith In Old Rockin' Chair

STAMFORD, Conn. (U.P.)—Thomas E. Saxe, Jr., a businessman, believes that grandma had the right idea on how to relax. All she had to do to rid herself of tension and worry was to plop down in her favorite rocking chair and rock her troubles away.

That's just what Saxe and some 2,000 members of the Sittin' n' Rockin' Club are doing. The members include such persons as Mary Martin, and Ezio Pinza of stage fame, baseball's Ralph Kiner and football's Frank Leahy.

The club is Saxe's brainchild. He thought up the idea while vacationing in Florida. His friends joined and they told others about it.

Today, Saxe carries on club business by mail, but there isn't much to worry about. The club motto is "No Dues—No Don'ts."

Saxe, who operates a restaurant chain, gives each new member a record of the club's theme song, a miniature rocking chair, a six-month calendar (the regular ones are too long), a "license" to operate a rocking chair, and a drinking glass embellished with the club emblem.

The club's goal is to get more people to rock and relax.

City Manager Govm't Spreads

CHICAGO (U.P.)—Voters in nine cities approved the adoption of the city manager form of government in October and November elections, the International City Managers' Association reports. Eight cities turned it down.

The association said cities and counties with man. er form of government in the United States and Canada now total 1,124.

The nine cities which recently adopted the plan: Santa Ana, Calif.; Evanston, Ill.; Oak Park, Ill.; Westchester, Ill.; Wood River, Ill.; Hopkinsville, Ky.; Arlington, Mass.; Bemidji, Minn.; and Tacoma, Wash.

Proposals to abandon the city manager plan were defeated in Holton, Kan.; Brookfield and Nevada, Mo.; and Ashland, Wis.

The association said more than one-third of all cities in the United States over 25,000 population now have the city manager form of government, and almost one-third of all those between 10,000 and 25,000.

Seventeen counties in the United States have the county manager plan.

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

One of the best stories of the basketball season came out of the East Carolina-Catawba game the other night.

Catawba Coach Earl Ruth had sent in instructions that Catawba go into a zone defense in an effort to slow East Carolina's high scoring trio of Sonny Russell, Bobby Hodges, and Charlie Huffman. The instructions were followed so far as going into the zone were concerned but, for some reason, Russell kept spending an awful lot of time by himself over in the right hand corner of the court.

Ruth called time to find out. He got his two wingmen over to the bench and started asking questions.

"What wing are you playing?" he demanded of one player.

"Left, sir."

"And you," he said, turning to the other player, "what wing are you playing?"

"Left, sir."

Ruth scratched his head, looked a bit befuddled, then asked, "Tell me, son, isn't it a little crowded on that left side?"

One player looked at the other, then at Ruth before replying cautiously, "Not particularly, sir."

Ruth just rubbed his thinning hair and glowered at the two. They got straight in a hurry.

The fast start made by Wake Forest in North Carolina cage wars is one of those things which constantly amaze sports followers.

The Deacons were rated as such a powerful team in pre-season roundups but they've been going like a house afire since the season started.

Much of the credit for Wake Forest's success can be handed to Dickie Henric and Jack Williams. Henric is the sophomore with the stoppage legs who scored more than 650 points last year as a freshman.

Williams is an Illinois boy who is getting in his first full season with the Deacons.

The biggest plum in the Wake Forest pudding thus far is their victory over N. C. State. The game, played in Wake Forest's little Gore Gymnasium, was a lulu from start to finish and the Deacons never let up for a moment against the highly-favored Wolfpack.

Number two plum is their race horse victory over Duke.

Against State, the Deacons played a slow, deliberate sort of basketball. Against Duke, it was run, run, run, and then run some more. Both systems paid off.

Just what lies in store for the Deacons is something that only time can tell. Personally, we think they'll begin to slow down. They can—but we don't think they will—maintain the pace they've set for themselves.

We still like State.

After all these years of playing in the cramped Armory, the Washington High School athletic teams will finally move into a full-sized gym Friday night. The new structure is being completed today and all seats will be installed in time for the game.

The gym, a part of the main physical plant at the new Washington High School, will seat 1300 fans. Washington's high school fans are trying hard to get the gym filled for the first time Friday night and have extended an invitation to Greenville and East Carolina College fans to come over for the doubleheader Friday night.

The first game of the doubleheader will have the Pam-Pack taking on Aurora High School. The second game of the evening will be the first 1952-53 meeting of East Carolina and Atlantic Christian. The Washington-Aurora game will start at 7 p.m.

And They Deserve Special Awards

Warre Carroll says that he has been accused of favoritism in awarding Bobby Edwards, Dick Evans, and Bob Billbro medals for outstanding Little League achievement.

For the benefit of those with green eyes, the three that received the awards were the ones who hustled most and sold the most tickets to the Thanksgiving Bowl game. Edwards collected over $50 and Evans and Billbro over $40 each.

Rookie Catcher Is Top Fielder

NEW YORK (UP)—Bespoke-clad Clint Courtney of the St. Louis Browns was the only rookie to win a spot today on the American League's "All-Star" fielding team for 1952.

The scrappy St. Louis receiver committed only two errors in 113 games the past season to compile a .996 mark, four points better than runner-up Yogi Berra of the Yankees, according to official figures released by the league.

The other places on the mythical fielding nine were filled by veterans.

Mickey Vernon of Washington paced the league's first baseman with a .993 average. Nellie Fox of the White Sox barely edged Bobby Young of the Browns and Billy Martin of the Yankees for defensive honors at second base. Fox finished with a .985 average while Young and Martin each showed .984.

Fred Hatfield of Detroit, the Billy Cox of the American League, topped the third sackers with .971. Johnny Lipton of the Red Sox was the finest fielding shortstop with a .981 average.

Gene Woodling of the Yankees, who made only one error in 118 games, was the Number One defensive outfielder with a .996 average while the other two All-Star spots in the outfield went to Jim Busby of Washington and Sam Mele of the White Sox, each with a mark of .994.

A total of 37 pitchers who appeared in 10 or more games turned in perfect 1,000 fielding records but the position was won by southpaw Bobby Shantz of the A's because he handled the most chances—78.

Three Nationally Ranked Teams To Bid For Honors

By UNITED PRESS

Two of the top powerhouses of the Southern Basketball Conference will slug it out in Washington tonight in what may be the most decisive game of the season thus far.

Defending champion North Carolina State tangles with George Washington in the loop's headliner. Both the Wolfpack and the Colonials have lost only one game this season and both were defeated by one point margins by two other strong teams, Wake Forest and West Virginia.

In a heavy slate of games tonight Clemson will be at Enka Mills, Maryland at Washington and Lee, Roanoke at VMI, and Wake Forest at Lenoir Rhyne.

The Maryland Terrapins, who crept to within one-half a game of league-leading North Carolina last night by dropping VMI 54 to 37, will be highly surprised if they don't find themselves in a first-place tie after tonight.

The possession-minded Terrapins have a 3-0 conference record and Washington and Lee has dropped six straight games.

In last night's other loop game, West Virginia was pressed to the limit by one squeeze—ast William and Mary by one point, 101 to 100 in a free-scoring contest.

Maryland completely frustrated the VMI Keydets by simply hanging onto the ball and limiting the Virginians to long set shots, a Keydet weak point. In the third period, VMI was held to one field goal and five free throws. Maryland forq rd Gene Shue was high with 17 points.

It was a heartbreaker for William and Mary in their final pre-Christmas game.

The Indians led throughout the first period but by halftime West Virginia's Mountaineers had pulled up for a 50-50 tie. West Virginia took the lead in the third period, only to have the Indians pull up for a 91-91 score at the final gun.

The mountaineers took the game in a rough-and-tumble five-minute overtime. Guard Jim Sotille was high for the winners with 22, but Coach Everett N. Case's Wolfpack, never beaten in the Dixie Classic, features co-captain Bobby F-eight playmaker Dave Gotkin, former all New York City star and high-scoring center Mel Thompson, a cool veteran with a book full of records. All are potential all-Americans.

Pennsylvania, with high-scoring pivot star Ernie Beck touted for all star honors, faces Wake Forest in the first round. Wake Forest pins its hopes on six-foot, eight-inch sophomore center Dickie Henric, one of the South's highest-scoring stars.

Duke, having set a 90-point per game scoring average thus far with a fast, accurate crew led by Bernie Janicki, Rudy D'Emilio and Rudy Lac, will face Brigham Young's nationally-rated Cougars in first round play.

Seixas, No. 1 U. S. tennis player, defeated Fausto Gardini, Italy's leading player, 5-7, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6 and 6-3.

Trabert, a sailor on leave from Cincinnati, downed Gianni Cuculli, 36-year-old veteran, 6-3, 6-1 and 6-3.

Doubles matches were scheduled for Friday, with Seixas and Trabert probably meeting Cuculli and another Italian, Marcello del Bello.

JULIUS BOROS

Julius Boros Is King Of PGA

CHICAGO (UP)—Julius Boros, of Mid Pines, N. C., today reigned king of the PGA money winners in his second full year as a professional golfer.

Boros headed the list of the nation's top golfers with a $37,032 collection in tournament play during 1952. Cary Middlecott, of Memphis, Tenn., trailed second among the top money winners with $30,884 and Burke was third with $21,003.

Sammy Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was fourth with $19,003.

Trainer Willie Molter is seeking his fourth championship as the nation's leading trainer. He won the honor three straight years beginning with 1947.

J. Tyson, Mobley, Mills, Henderson, House, B. Worthington, Bethel—Savage, Moore.

Mississippi Aims To Upset Ga. Tech

OXFORD, Miss. (UP)—Mississippi hopes to love in the Sugar Bowl against Georgia Tech that its role of giant killer was more than a one-shot weekend special.

The Rebels of Coach Johnny Vaught parlayed a startling upset over mighty Maryland and their first unbeaten season into a trip to New Orleans for a pay check of about $140,000.

With quarterback Jimmy Lear running an always-dangerous split-T offense, Mississippi finished its regular season with eight wins and two ties. But nobody paid much attention until that 21-14 licking of Maryland which was much more convincing than the score indicated.

Tech is riding a long winning streak just as Maryland was and will be favored. Vaught and his squad figure a Sugar Bowl win will convince the remaining doubters and prove Mississippi's right to high national ranking.

Vaught isn't an especially gloomy coach but neither is he the most optimistic one in the business. Usually he just doesn't talk.

"Georgia Tech has a fine team," he says. "I don't care to make a prediction but I think our boys will be ready."

For silent John Vaught that's a mouthful.

Mississippi sports what many call the fastest backfield in the South and with Lear often looking like a magician disguised in a football uniform, the Rebels are a constant threat to score.

They averaged nearly 400 yards a game on offense, with the accent on rushing, but passing accounted for seven touchdowns.

The defense held opponents to an average of 230 yards a game, not the best in the nation but sufficient with the Rebels scoring at the rate of 24 points a game.

Offensively, Lear can call or no less than seven fine backfield aids, with halfbacks Wilson Dillard, Dick Westernman and Lea Praslay and fullback Harold Lofton carrying the brunt of the attack.

Ends Jim Mask and Edd T. E. Parker and tackles Henry Lint and Charles Montgomery are the defensive line-bulwarks. Lear is the key to the Rebel attack, running, passing or pitching out as the occasion demands. In two seasons of regular play, the senior back has yet to meet his maste, in all-round quarterbacking and that includes Maryland's All-America Jack Scarbath. And Lear's punting average is right at 40 yards.

Vaught, who has one of the best records in the Southeastern Conference, prefers team play to individual stars. And it has paid off with only 16 losses in his six years at Mississippi.

He and the team are working to make it pay an extra dividend on New Year's Day and Gov. Hugh White thinks it will. The governor flatly predicts a Mississippi win over Tech.

Skip Alexander Tops Pro Field

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UP)—A total of 64 star professional golfers are off today in the opening round of the $13,000 Miami Open golf tournament, with Skip Alexander in the spotlight.

For the first time since he was severely burned in a plane crash two years ago, Alexander won a tournament Wednesday, tying with Jim Ferrier for first place in the one-day celebrities golf tournament.

In a one-round affair, he and Ferrier each fired a seven-under-par 65 to earn first prize of $612.50. Matching that score, but missing out on the prize money because he's an amateur, was Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O.

Alexander, has gone through 17 operations and eight months in hospitals since the crash, occasionally taking time to appear in a tournament but never finishing higher than 23rd until Wednesday.

Archie Moore Takes Title In Brawling 15 Round Bout

New Champ Calls For Bout With Rocky Marciano

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—Ancient Archie Moore felt so frisky today after wrestling the light-heavyweight title from Joey Maxim that he craved a shot at the heavy-weight crown.

Moore, the mustachioed and goateed restaurateur from San Diego, Calif., said, "sure I'll give Maxim a return bout if he wants it, but I'm asking promoter Jim Norris today for a crack at Rocky Marciano's heavyweight title."

Dusky Moore, 36, gave Maxim a top-sided beating, before 12,610 in the Arena here Wednesday night and took his 175 pound crown on a unanimous 15-round decision. The gate of $89,487 set a new record for Missouri boxing.

Moore, who made up in 15 rounds for the snubs he had received from various light-heavy rulers during his 16 years as a professional, bullied his younger and slightly heavier opponent about the ring and battered him again and again on the ropes, where he could open up the cagey Cleveland Italian.

Archie was six years older than Maxim, who was attempting his third defense of the crown, and he scaled 172 1/2 pounds to Maxim's 174 1/2.

But it was the bobbing and weaving Negro who had the advantage over upright Joey in nearly every round. Every time they reached the ropes, Moore socked him with left-rights to the head and with booming hooks to the body.

Maxim started to drip blood from a gash at the corner of his left eye in the eighth round. And before the bout was finished, he was also bleeding freely from a gash on each cheek, and his left cheek was swollen badly.

Referee Harry Kessler viewed the fight as unexpectedly close. He scored 76 points for Moore and 74 for Maxim. But Judge Howard Hess gave Moore 82 points and Maxim 68, and Judge Fred Cornell favored Moore, 87 to 63.

On a round-by-round basis the United Press favored Moore, 12-2-1. And one of those two rounds was awarded to Maxim by Kessler on a foul for low blows in the fourth round.

Maxim made his best showings in the third and sixth sessions. In most of the other rounds, however, his attempts to keep Moore away with left jabs proved futile.

Moore came weaving in constantly, bullying Maxim toward the ropes. Maxim gamely tried to fight him off at close quarters, but could not match the solidity of Archie's hooks and upper cuts to body and head.

At no time could Maxim, with his crooked right elbow, throw straight rights in competition with the new champ. Maxim's right elbow was fractured and poorly set several years ago.

In the 10th round Maxim suffered his worst beating. A right knuckled him half over the top ring rope and then he was battered about the square on groggy legs until it seemed he was about to go down.

Moore favored at 8-5, a contract that calls for a return title bout with Maxim within 60 days, according to Maxim's manager, Jack Kearns, and 90 days according to promoter Jim Norris.

Maxim, 30, suffered his 19th defeat in 301 professional fights, and one of his worst batterings. However, he was rewarded with a guaranteed $100,000 from the $89,487 gate and the $50,000 television-radio receipts. Moore was slated to get 10 per cent of the net receipts.

Moore and Manager Charles Johnston said they would give Maxim the return bout if he wanted it. Maxim said he certainly wanted it because he thought he could do much better in a repeat performance.

He explained that his nearly six months' out of the ring since his last fight had left him loggy. His last defense was against Sugar Ray Robinson Aug. 25 at New York.

Unbeaten Naitre Dancer earned $230,495 in winning all nine races during 1952.

1952 Olympic Games Tops Sport Attractions

NEW YORK (UP)—Because of their world-wide interest, the 1952 Olympic games today were awarded top spot in Fearless Frayley's annual ranking of the year's 10 best sports stories.

Providing innumerable stories with a story, the international competitions as a whole drew more interest and newspaper than any other event in the entire history of sports. The top 10 in order appear here to be:

1. Olympic games.
2. World Series.
3. Marciano - Walcott heavy-weight championship.
4. Kentucky Derby.
5. Boros wins U. S. Oper.
6. Sedgman - Connolly U. S. Wimbledon grand slam.
7. Kentucky - Bradley basketball suspensions.
8. Desprito's ride on the records.
9. Robinson - Maxim "heat collapse."
10. Walcott-Charles fight.

The World Series was displaced from its usual top spot by the quadrennial muscle show at Helsinki, Finland, as Russia and the Axis nations returned to off-heated action. Interest was merely heightened by the nationalistic fervor depicted by idealistic officials.

Baseball's big show at season's end easily held second place as the outstanding heavy-weight bout in which Rocky Marciano won the championship by flattening veteran Jersey J. Walcott.

The Kentucky Derby, everybody's horse race, on the wings of a week-long buildup, maintained its place high on the favored events even though Calumet Farm made it a one-horse show by winning everything in sight, including the main race with Hill Gail.

Julius Boros became one of the overnight sensations of the sports world as he fought off Ben Hogan's determined bid to win the U. S. Open at Dallas, Tex., by four strokes. The 32-year-old Hungarian proved it no fluke as he won the $25,000 world championship, became golf's leading money and the "Golfer of the Year."

Frank Sedgman and Maureen Connolly teamed up on the tennis front for the sixth spot, each scoring by a rare Wimbledon U. S. "grand slam." High in interest were the basketball suspensions clamped on wandering Kentucky and Bradley, while another eye-catching story was the run at the all-time record

East-West Game To Pit T-Teams

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—The single-wing enjoyed the most success in American football during the 1952 season, but the Shrine East-West All-Star game on Dec. 21 will present mostly the spectacular T-formation.

Both head coaches, Howie Odell of the West team and Biggie Munn of the East club made that observation today.

"We have two fine T-formation quarterbacks in Don Heinrich of Washington and Chuck Spaulding of Wyoming," said Odell.

Munn said that he would use mostly the T—with a dash of the single wing.

"I have to talk things over with my assistant coaches first," Munn said. "But we'll use a lot of the T, I'm sure, with probably some of the single wing."

The West probably will have Heinrich at quarter, Johnny Olszewski of California at full and Bill Vessels of Oklahoma and Bob Reynolds of Nebraska in the halfback slots, on the offensive side. It is possible that Olszewski may see considerable action on the defense, too.

The East quarterback is expected to be the Tommy O'Connell of Illinois. Don McAuliffe, Michigan State's back, will be at one of the halfback slots. The other two backfield spots will be filled from such talent as Al Brosky of Illinois; Fred Bruney of Ohio State; Tony Curcio of Ohio State; Joe Fortunato of Mississippi State; Gene Cigan of Indiana; Paul Haner of Villanova and Bill Reynolds of Pitt.

PASSING IT UP
UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP)—Lea Paslay, University of Mississippi halfback, caught two passes against Houston but the net yardage amounted to just three yards. One was for a seven yard gain. The other for a four yard loss.

The Ole Miss sophomore did better on the pitting end, however, with two completions in two tries for a gain of 35 yards.

Wozniak notified Ike Armstrong, university athletic director, of his plans. Armstrong referred Wozniak to the school's television agreement with the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and the Western Conference (Big Ten) and added that athletic receipts, rather than taxes, support the physical education program.

Ex-Farmer Tops Harness Drivers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—William R. (Billy) Haughton, 29-year-old ex-farmer from Fultonville, N. Y., is the nation's leading money-winning harness horse driver for 1952. Billy is the youngest reinsman ever to win the title.

According to official U. S. Trotting Association records, Haughton earned $311,728 this year. This figure has been topped only once in the history of the sport — by Johnny Simpson who collected $333,136 last season. Simpson finished 10th in '52.

ANOTHER HOCKEY COOK

Legislator Will Force Grid TV

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The Minnesota legislature, meeting in January, is scheduled to get another proposal which would force the University of Minnesota to permit telecasts of athletic events.

Rep. D. D. Wozniak, St. Paul, says he will introduce a bill calling for the telecasts. A similar proposal before the 1951 legislature died in committee.

Wozniak notified Ike Armstrong, university athletic director, of his plans. Armstrong referred Wozniak to the school's television agreement with the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and the Western Conference (Big Ten) and added that athletic receipts, rather than taxes, support the physical education program.

Wake Forest Tops William-Mary In 101-100 Affair

NEW YORK (UP)—An impressive victory over previously unbeaten DePaul boosted the national prestige today of the Oklahoma Aggies, masters of defensive basketball.

The Aggies, ranked fifth nationally by the United Press Board of Coaches, rung up their sixth win last night by a lopsided 62-41 count over DePaul, ranked 19th nationally, on the Aggies' court at Stillwater, Okla.

The Aggies always boast one of the best defensive clubs in the nation, and they went into Wednesday night's fray with an average of 40.8 points allowed per game — a mark they hit right on the head. The Aggies broke fast and took a 13-point lead in the first quarter, center Bob Mattick accounting for 10 points in the spurt.

DePaul never caught up after that, although the Demons' Jim Larkin emerged as the game's high scorer with 18 points.

Second-ranked La Salle, 10th-ranked Notre Dame, 13th-ranked Louisiana State and 15th-ranked Navy each won an expected easy triumph in other games Wednesday night.

La Salle rolled to an 87-68 victory over Arizona at Tucson, Ariz. The unbeaten Explorers moved to a 40-32 lead at halftimes and held a 24-point margin in the fourth period before easing off. Fred Ichle led the Explorers with 31 points.

Loyola of Chicago tried a possession game in hopes of upsetting Notre Dame, but the Irish broke through for a 53-45 victory at South Bend. Joe Bertrand tallied 14 points to lead the Irish to their fourth win. Louisiana State gained its fifth victory by 58-45 over Alabama in the Southeastern Conference, while Don Lange scored 31 points to lead Navy to its fifth victory by 85-73 over Rutgers.

In other games, Wake Forest beat William and Mary, 101-100, in an overtime Southern Conference game; Maryland beat VMI, 54-37, in the same loop; Niagara walloped Syracuse, 65-45; Cornell beat Harvard, 64-56, in the Ivy League as Lee Morton set a Cornell record with 31 points; Fordham posted a 73-53 win over CUNY; Ernie Beck, Penn's All-America candidate, sank 28 points to lead a 78-54 win over Swarthmore; Army opened its season with a 67-61 win over Ithaca; Southern Methodist shaded Colorado A. M. 63-62; Dayton defeated Eastern Kentucky, 72-62; Detroit downed Houston, 74-64, in the Missouri Valley Conference; Princeton routed Lafayette, 79-47, and Siena upset Rhode Island, 97-70.

Sheton Hall, ranked sixth nationally, faces a test against Western Kentucky at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Eighth-ranked North Carolina State goes against George Washington in the Southern conference, Holy Cross meets Colby, N.Y. meets Temple and Missouri faces Texas Christian.

Other games tonight include: Maryland vs. Washington Lee in the Southern Conference, Colorado AT and MT vs. Baylor, Denver vs. Creighton, Villanova vs. Delaware, Hardin Simmons vs. Midwestern, Tulane vs. Rice, Tulsa

Football Players Arrested For Theft; Coach Goes Bail

RALEIGH (UP)—Two North Carolina State College football players, who police said admitted stealing clothes from three local stores were free to await trial today under $100 bonds signed by Coach Horace Hendrickson.

Don Langston, 19, of Lexington, Ky., and Percy Riden, 20, of Lewiston, Pa., will be tried in city court Jan. 6 on charges of taking shirts, socks and sweaters worth $77.50 from the three stores, police said.

Head football Coach Horace Hendrickson appeared with the boys when they voluntarily surrendered at the police station and returned the merchandise, officers said.

The glum coach said he came with the two because they had made excellent records both scholastically and as athletes, and that their conduct previously had been beyond reproach.

Langston was one of the Wolfpack's most promising fullbacks and the 200-pound Riden was a tackle on the 1952 team.

Police said Francis C. Bryant, manager of one clothing store, reported the thefts. But they said Bryant and managers of the two other stores did not want to prosecute.

"They didn't want warrants drawn against the boys," Detective Capt. Robert E. Goodwin said. "But it's a rule with us, in fact it's almost our oath of office, to draw warrants wherever we have evidence of a criminal violation."

Goodwin said the managers were listed on the warrants as prosecuting witnesses.

Bryant told officers he followed the pair from his store last Saturday and recovered four shirts from them. He said he later went to State College and identified them from photographs.

When confronted by school authorities Langston and Riden admitted the theft and voluntarily described the articles taken from two other stores.

Maximum penalty on conviction would be two years on the roads.

Legless Cagers Enjoy Play

NEW YORK (UP)—There's a lot of fixing going on in the spinner basketball league this season, but it's the kind saint would smile at.

Players on the six teams in the circuit cover the court in wheel chairs. When they're not whizzing up and down the floor, dumping the ball through the net, they're lovingly arming for their go-buggles, to see that they're ready for competition.

The only way you can play in this league is if you have lost the use of your legs.

One team, the Halloran Whiskies, is made up of World War II veterans who are paraplegic cases at a veterans' hospital in Staten Island. The Brooklyn Whirlaways are young men crippled as amputees.

They are tough as Australian goat steaks in ...

Some squads get their wheelchairs from the government but most have to figure out how to buy their own from pemmies left over from their defense or clerical jobs. Four seasons ago the Brooklyn squad was nearly grounded. They were working on an outdoor court with chairs rented at $5 each for each practice session. It was breaking them up in business.

Mrs. Sylvia Cantor, operator of "Chookies," a Brooklyn candy store and soda fountain, put a huge jar out for customers and badgered them into contributions for chairs bought on the installment plan.

On a few occasions, the squad nearly defaulted their games because their means of locomotion was about to be foreclosed on. Someone always came through in the nick of time.

Now the Brooklyn Whirlaways are driving for an Eastern division championship. They are in a tie with the New York Spokemen, with four wins each. Their only worry is that three of their stars might get benched because of sprained ligaments of the wheel chair.

"Mrs. Cantor is working on that with her coin jug," said another player, 22-year-old Peter Acca, "and we're sure she'll make it."

A Fixed Game Is Sometimes O.K.

STUTTGART, Ark.—Members of the Stuttgart High School football team admit conspiring to fix the score of a game in the Arkansas championship playoffs — but it was perfectly honest.

A couple of days before the game with Marked Tree, Stuttgart Coach Ned Mesoley observed his 7th birthday and remarked jokingly to his players that it would be nice for them to give him a present of 37 points.

Late in the fourth quarter, Stuttgart was leading 37-0 on six touch downs and, as carefully planned, only one conversion. Bob Marshaw, a back, broke into the clear on a long run. He stopped inches short of the goal and handed the ball to an official.

Final score: Stuttgart 37, Marked Tree 0.

PROMISE OF DELIGHT

By Mary Howard

Chapter One
The only exciting thing about working for the East-Midlands Technical and Manufacturing Company, Anthea Grainger thought, was the position of its office, in a high wharf building on the South Bank below Southwark Bridge. The only comfortable thing, and perhaps it was too comfortable, was that her father was a director and managed the London end of the business.

Anthea was leaning by the window watching a steamer loading at the wharf below, her small eager face lost and a-dream. A week ago summer had set in, hot days and cloudless skies. Weather for blue sea or green fields, but not for traveling to the city, working all day in an office, and traveling back in a crowded train at night.

She could, of course, go home with her father in the car, but she hated doing that. There would be a storm this evening. The great liver panorama, St. Paul's floating over the piled buildings of the City, and the Conqueror's White Tower up-river to her right, all gleamed in the curious, forbidding light.

Mr. Grainger's secretary, Miss Smithers, came in and carried some work over to Anthea's desk. She had been with him for years, and resented Anthea's presence in the office. Nothing could rid her of the suspicion that Anthea was being trained to supplant her. She glanced disapprovingly at the slim, small figure standing by the window, gazing down at the river below.

Anthea turned, caught her expression, and the stir of rebellion and resentment which had been growing in her heart flickered into a little flame.

She put her little brown straw bonnet on the back of her smooth brown head with a jerk that nearly pulled the brim off, picked up her gloves and bag and stalked out. At the elevator the two other typists were waiting, gossiping together. As usual their voices faded at her approach. Anthea glared. "Please don't stop," she said acidly. "I shan't report every word you say to my father."

The two girls stared, blushed, one of them giggled nervously. Anthea could have burst into tears. Jim Darwin, who handled the advertising, and lived on the same street as herself, was waiting at the bottom of the elevator. At the sight of his rather stiff, tall figure and pleasant face, anger and suspicion rose in Anthea again. Jim often took her out. Did he take her because he liked her, or because he was seeking promotion?

He came forward in his faintly diffident manner, and said, "I waited, Anthea; I thought I might run you home."
"I think I'd rather go by train," Jim looked dismayed. "Anthea, there's going to be a storm. It's silly to go by train, when I've got a car. You'll get drenched on the way from the station without a raincoat or anything." An ominous roll of thunder over the city steeples almost made Anthea relent, but just then Miss Smithers came out, and though she smiled at Anthea ingratiatingly, there was something about the look in her eyes that suggested she was thinking: Oh, of course Mr. Darwin is offering her a lift home. I go the same way, but of course I'm quite a different kettle of fish. It doesn't matter if I get soaked!

Anthea looked at him, her brown eyes suddenly dreamy again. "Jim, supposing I were someone else. I mean one of the other girls in the office, would you still want to take me home?"
Jim looked a little bewildered. "But if you were someone else you wouldn't live on the same street," he said, and then fatally, "Look, Anthea, if you get soaked your mother will be furious with me. She thinks you ought to come home with me or your father every day, and I agree. It's ridiculous to pay a fare to stand all the way to Summer-Hill." His voice trailed off. The dreamy look had disappeared from Anthea's face, her cheeks were rather pink, and her dark eyes angry.

"No, thank you, Jim," and marching off to the station, almost as though he had said something that was well, anyway, there was absolutely no reason for her to behave like that.
In the train, packed to suffocation, squashed between a garage mechanic in oily overalls and a very stout gentleman who obviously suffered from the heat, Anthea was beginning to think so herself. There was no reason at all to suppose that Jim only liked her because he worked for father's firm.

Anthea hesitated in the station doorway, one of a group of people anxiously peering out at the enpurpled sky. If she waited and the rain came down she might be marooned for an hour. She decided to run for it—her home could not be more than three hundred yards away. She turned the corner and started to run, light and fleet in her flat-heeled shoes, and like a spiteful fury on her heels the storm came down in a crack of lightning and a spitting shower of great hail stones.

She raced homeward, hand clutching her hat, head dipped against the wind, the big wet spots striking her shoulders through her thin blouse and jacket. She heard a motor horn just behind her and slowed down, thinking her father or Jim might have overtaken her, and hoping it was her father. But it was a big cream Buick with an American license, and the hood up against the rain, that slowed down to a stop beside her. A strange man. Every instinct of training and environment told her to get on and get wet. Common sense and the rebellious sense of adventure which had possessed her all day told her to get in. The glass at the side was down, and she saw a brown face and a pair of amused blue eyes. A friendly voice called, "want a lift, neighbor?"

GOING, GOING, GONE
PONCA CITY, Okla. (UP)—When volunteer models went behind stage to don their latest "creations" at the Ponca City church association fashion show, they found the dressing room empty. Someone remembered that the room doubled as a rummage sale storeroom. The models sped to the rummage sale scene and found some of their finery already had been sold.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks made up yesterday's small losses in slightly more active trading during the morning dealings today.

The railroad average reached a new high since Feb. 27, 1931 and the utility since Sept. 11, 1931. Industrials lost a few cents because of tiny declines in a few issues used in their compilation.

A 1 1/2 point rise in Peoples Gas boosted the utility component. In the rails, Baltimore & Ohio, the most active issue, set a new high. Small gains were set by New York Central, Southern Pacific and Southern Railway. Atlantic Coast Line rose nearly a point. Northern Pacific—outside the average group—rose 1 3/4 to 82 3/4. Allegheny Corp. preferred ran up 2 1/2 points on one transaction.

Shell Oil, up 1 and Texas Pacific Coal & Oil, up 2 1/4, featured a firm oil department. Steels firmed. Motors held about steady. Gains of a point or better were made by Clevite Corp. (formerly Cleveland Graphite Bronze), General Mills and Hooker Electro-Chemical.

Grand-Haig featured in turnover. Pepsi-Cola, Glenn L. Martin, and Curtiss-Wright also were active.

Arrest Young Driver In Traffic Accident

Jessie Langley, 17-year-old Negro, was arrested on a charge of failing to keep a proper look-out yesterday when his car collided with one driven by W. N. Moore of 411 Latham Street.

No one was injured, and property damage amounted to only around $50, investigating police officers reported.

The silk worm moth produces only one generation a year in countries with marked seasons, such as those in Europe, but in Japan it produces two a year and in India production is almost continuous.

Legionnaires Act On Disposing Of Post's Home

At the regular meeting of Pitt County Post 29 of the American Legion Tuesday night, a committee was vested with the power to act in "renting or leasing the Legion Home to the best interests of the post."

Ed Harris, chairman of the Legion Home committee appointed to investigate the situation, reported at the meeting he had looked into the possibility of making the home a club and found it to be too expensive.

Harris said after extensive investigation of operating expenses of several other clubs of similar nature, he determined cost of maintaining the home as a club would be between $300 and $400 per month.

"The post just doesn't have that kind of money to spend," he emphasized. Harris suggested that the post request the fair committee to allow members to use a portion of the fair building for a club until the post gets on its feet.

Herman McLawhorn, district vice-commander, made a memberhip report in which it was stated that membership is short all over the state. He urged that all members put forth additional effort to obtain new members or renewals.

McLawhorn said anyone getting 10 members by December 31 would receive a silver star. Anyone getting 20 members by the same date will receive a gold star.

Dr. H. G. Haney, post chaplain, delivered a Christmas message to post members. He called for the Christmas spirit the year round, "because everyday happenings consistently bring it to mind."

Talent Show For Charity Slated On Radio Tonight

"Tige" Gardner, of minstrel fame, will be among the featured performers on the Junior Chamber of Commerce talent show over the Greenville radio station for an hour tonight.

The show will start at 9:05 and continue until 10 to provide baskets of food and clothing for needy families on Christmas.

Members of the cast will sing or play instrumental numbers requested by people listening to the program. A charitably inclined person may phone to WGTC and request a song by a certain personality and it will be granted.

In the meantime, the master of ceremonies will announce over the radio the name of the person willing to make a donation. Jaycees in cars will get the name and proceed to that person's home to receive the donation.

"Last year, the Jaycees distributed 25 baskets of food and clothing to needy families," said Committeeman Bill Watson. "We earnestly solicit every citizen of Greenville to listen to the program tonight and open their hearts to those less fortunate. A brighter and happier Christmas for destitute people will make your own Christmas more radiant," Watson declared.

Tells Of Six Children Who Much Need Help

The child welfare worker of the county welfare department thoughtfully turned to the inquiring reporter. "Yes, I know of a family of children who need help this Christmas. In fact, they need just about anything and everything."

The worker began her story: "Living within 15 miles of Greenville there is a white family of six children who live in poverty and filth, who are ragged and hungry, for who has only an irresponsible father to attend to their needs."

"This family was pointed out by the Pitt Welfare Department as one which needs help desperately—the children need to be taken into foster homes.

"The children range from five to 15 years old; youngsters who have never had a chance," the worker explained. "Their is a broken home—the mother had to leave home after trying for a number of years to 'make a go of a bad situation' and still trying to do her bit for the children who need her presence so desperately, sending the department a small pittance in their behalf each week."

"Let me tell you something about each one of the children," the welfare worker suggested. "Tom, the oldest child, is 15, small for his age but willing to work to help with his maintenance and longing for an opportunity to be like other boys his age."

"Mary, 13, pretty, sweet and smart as a whip, if only there could be a little guidance and understanding; Jim, 10, shy, but needing affection and firm understanding hand on his shoulder; Joan, six, and the twins, aged five, needing a mother so badly."

"These children need a home; anyone who feels that could share with these children some of the blessings of their homes, please contact the welfare department," the worker asked.

Home Damaged By Fire In Night

The home of Arthur Hodges, located at Tyson and Ward Streets, was damaged by fire late last night.

Fire was discovered in the house around 11:20 p.m., and by the time firemen arrived in response to an alarm the fire had eaten its way from one room to the outside of the building.

No one was at home when the fire broke out.

This morning, Fire Chief George Gardner stated he was still "at a loss" to explain how the blaze originated. The room most heavily damaged in the blaze was apparently used for the storage of household furnishings.

A number of burning pieces had to be removed from the building before the fire could be put out.

Firemen remained at the scene for more than an hour.

One section of the outside weather boarding had to be removed in order to fight the blaze.

Woman Injured In Collision At Intersection

A 62-year-old woman was seriously injured in an automobile collision at the intersection of Farmville Boulevard and Line Avenue here yesterday afternoon.

Miss Annie Carroll, of Greenville Route 2, suffered a broken left ankle and laceration of the right leg and head. She was removed to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Police officers charged both of the drivers involved with failure to keep a proper look-out. Charged were: Willie R. Edwards, 1307 Clark Street, and Evelyn Carroll, of Greenville Route 2.

Both cars suffered damage estimated at near $1,000.

None of the other occupants were injured.

Wouldn't Work; He Closes Shop

DETROIT (UP) — A machine shop owner said today he was going out of business because his workmen "wouldn't earn their money."

"I'm quitting," said Fred Wohlfahrt. "I've tried and tried to get men to do a day's work. I've paid them over the union scale but I can't get results anymore."

Wohlfahrt's shop was the second to close within a week. The Peerless Production Co. notified its machinists last Thursday it was shutting down because of "inefficiency in our plant and drop in output."

Peerless employed 50 men. Wohlfahrt had 20 on his payroll. "The other's quit in disgust," he said.

The two firms signed contracts with the CIO United Auto Workers last year. Union spokesmen declared the Peerless shutdown a lockout. Mediation efforts failed and the plant is up for sale.

Wohlfahrt said he was a long time making up his mind but an incident Tuesday decided him.

"A mechanic earning about $1,000 a month sat all day reading a newspaper or looking over blueprints. He never turned over his job machine once. It's been this way ever since I signed the contract," he said.

Fire Escapes On Greek Row Soon

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Fire escapes were expected to start sprouting like weeds along fraternity and sorority row at the University of North Carolina after yesterday's rash of condemnation notices because of fire hazards.

The notices were tacked to the doors of 35 houses on the orders of Building Inspector P. L. Burch and Fire Chief P. R. Perry. The only house to escape was the recently remodelled brick Chi Psi Lodge.

All was not gloom for the frat brothers and sorority sisters, however, since the orders, which condemned all the buildings for use above the first floor, provided a 90-day period for compliance. In most cases, compliance means that one or two fire escapes will have to be built, leading from the upper floors of the buildings.

The orders were a result of a building inspection held by the State Department of Fire Insurance and local firemen at the request of University authorities.

With most students heading home for the Christmas holidays, Chancellor R. B. House has set a meeting for Jan. 6 with all house managers to discuss the regulations.

Local firemen, who passed out the orders, said the students were "agreeable and cooperative" in all cases, except that many were momentarily taken aback to see the "condemned" signs on their doors.

Congratulations!

approved by the federal government.

The commission recommended that Social Security beneficiaries be provided with health insurance paid for out of federal Social Security funds. Such a plan would meet federal standards and would "not involve a means test." It could be operated through what ever kind of insurance program is set up in each state.

Federal funds would go to states to pay health insurance premiums of persons on relief. Such persons would receive health service without "discrimination as to age, race, citizenship or place or duration of residence; and with no means test at the time care is needed."

All governments would do away with any present restrictions on organization of medical prepayment plans.

The commission's emphasis was on proper medical care for everybody, however arranged. But it said insurance plans should provide "adequate protection against the costs of hospital care, the services of physicians and . . . the more expensive drugs and appliances and certain dental care."

Social Clubs Are Entered And Robbed In Night

Two Negro clubs were entered during the night and small amounts of change taken from each place, the Police Department revealed this morning.

Both the Red Rose Social Club on Albemarle Avenue and the Tropicana Club on Bonners Lane were broken into.

At the Tropicana Club around $5 in cash was removed from a cash register while small change was apparently the only item missed from the Red Rose club.

Entrance was gained by a back stairway to the Red Rose club and once in the building, the robbers broke open the juke box, emptying the change box.

Capital Charge Warrant Served

Jessie Dell Roberson, 32-year-old Negro man, was arrested by police officers here last night on the capital charge of breaking and entering a dwelling at night while the occupants were asleep.

Chief of Police Gibbs said today the warrant had been issued July 16 of the year. It charges Roberson entered the residence of Sam Bass, 208 Wade Street.

A second warrant served on Roberson charges him with assault. The warrant also dates back several months.
