Doctor Amazed As Both Brodie Twins Cling To Precarious Life

'No Change' In Condi- tions Of Either In- fant; One In Coma For Fifth Day

CHICAGO (UP) — Roger Lee Brodie, who lost much of his protective brain membranes and a vital blood vessel in the operation that separated him from his Siamese twin, "amazed" doctors today simply by continuing to breathe.

After more than 100 hours in a deep coma, the 15-month old boy's condition was described as "still very precarious, no change for better or worse."

Twin Rodney Dee, who was favored in the marathon operation which severed the tissue which solidly joined the boys at the top of their skulls, was reported to be "still critical, no change for better or worse."

The team of skilled specialists caring for the separated Siamese twins were "absolutely amazed" that Roger lived through the week-end.

Doctors at the University of Illinois Education and Research Hospital said that Roger's inability to shake off the coma after five days indicated how close he was to death.

They said the fact that he had not regained consciousness might mean he had suffered severe brain damage, either during surgery or later from post-operative complications. But they were not sure. The twins had been joined so that their legs pointed in opposite directions before Wednesday's 12-hour and 40-minute operation.

Rodney Dee's progress over the weekend did not fulfill all the doctors' hopes, but they said they were not discouraged with his condition. Saturday the child had been able to play patty-cake with nurses, and physicians said he might be removed from the critical list soon. Sunday, however, he was less active and lay quietly in his crib, seemingly unimproved. Doctors emphasized that any change in either twin would probably be extremely gradual.

The following days will be a "wait and see" period, a hospital spokesman said.

Three major dangers, all post-operative complications, threatened the lives of the twins. In all cases it was Roger who was in greater danger.

There was the possibility of cerebral edema, or "water on the brain," a swelling of brain tissue caused by seepage of watery fluid from overworked blood vessels.

Roger was deprived of a vital blood vessel, the sigmoid sinus vein, which performs most of the work in draining blood from the head. The vein was shown by the twins before surgeons gave it to Rodney in a "survival of the fittest" decision.

Now Roger's smaller head veins are taking over the job of draining the brain of blood, but they must increase in size rapidly or the child will die or suffer brain damage.

There was the possibility of damage to brain tissue from lack of oxygen. Since less blood is circulating in Roger's head because of the removal of the main drainage vein, he is in greater danger from this complication than is Rodney.

Finally, both twins have lost some spinal and brain fluid from the openings at the tops of their skulls left by the separation. Rodney left the operating table with two-thirds of the natural brain membranes still intact, but almost all of Roger's brain protection consists of a plastic cap covered with aluminum foil.

Mr. and Mrs. Royt Brodie, the twins' parents, have stayed close to their sons' room most of the time since Wednesday. Although faithful churchgoers, they did not leave the hospital to attend services Sunday.

"We are going our praying right here," said Brodie.

Philippines Hit Hard By Winds

ANILA (UP) — A tropical storm, accompanied by winds up to 70 miles-per-hour, pummeled the Philippines Sunday and today causing heavy damage to crops and roads and wrecking at least two small ships.

No loss of life was reported. The storm hit eastern Luzon Sunday. Today it was reported cutting across northern Luzon. Island and was expected to hit Mindoro Island before blowing out to the China Sea.

One Shipment Of Parcel Post In Holiday Season

Three regular employees of the Greenville Post Office are shown handling one shipment of parcel post, a scene that has been re-enacted several times each day at the local office since the beginning of the Christmas rush. The above stack of bags came into the city via truck from Wilson, where it had been brought by train. The trio handling the bags are (left to right) Ralph Heidenreich, Paul Fye and Tom Forrest. Private Industrial Use For Atom Proposed By NSRB

WASHINGTON (UP) — The National Security Resources Board recommended today enactment of legislation to encourage private industrial production of electric power from atomic energy.

The board made the proposal in a report to President Truman on how to carry out long-term resources policies proposed earlier this year by the President's materials policy commission.

The commission, headed by William C. Paley, board chairman of the Columbia Broadcasting System, made a series of recommendations on how to provide enough materials to meet the demands of the nation's expanding economy.

The commission had suggested the government present cooperative arrangements between the Atomic Energy Commission and private industry for developing atomic power.

The board noted that industry's interest in participating in atomic power development "is retarded by uncertainties as to how it would be permitted to use its results."

These uncertainties it said, stem from provisions in the law which:

1. Prohibit private ownership of facilities capable of producing fissionable materials in large quantities to be used in any atomic weapon.

2. Prevent AEC from licensing civilian uses of atomic energy until 90 days after a report to Congress.

3. Give the AEC the right to condemn any "pertinent" invention or patent by private industry.

The NSRB recommended, therefore, that the President propose to Congress an amendment "specifying the conditions"—including patent rights, availability of fissionable materials, and allocation of costs between industrial power and weapons—"under which private interests could benefit from their atomic power research, development, and production."

The board concurred with an assertion of the commission that the free world need not run short of raw materials as long as a vigorous program is pushed to develop and utilize resources.

Enough quantities to be used in any atomic weapon.

2. Prevent AEC from licensing civilian uses of atomic energy until 90 days after a report to Congress.

Sabres Knock 3 Enemy Fighters Down In Battles

Three 'Vicious' Aerial Fights While Ground War Virtually Halt- ed

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — American Sabre jets blasted three Communist MIG-15 jet fighters out of the sky in three vicious dog-fights over North Korea today.

The 5th Air Force said the fights involved a total of 10 MIGs and eight Sabre jets.

The 5th Air Force said the fights involved a total of 10 MIGs and eight Sabre jets, which were screening fighter-bombers attacking ground targets.

Credit for MIGs destroyed went to Capt. Herbert Weber of Brattleboro, Vt., of the 4th Fighter Wing; 1st Lt. Harold E. Fischer, North Las Vegas, Nev., of the 51st Wing, and to a third pilot who requested that his name be withheld.

Navy Panther jets hit a supply concentration north of Singye, the 5th Air Force said.

A study of gun camera film resulted in a belated MIG damage credit being awarded to 2nd Lt. Fred W. Gray, Chicago, Ill., who crippled an enemy jet on Dec. 15.

Gen. Mark Clark's headquarters said the Korean war came to a "virtual halt" on the ground.

Clark's Tokyo headquarters' 60-word communique, covering all aspects of the war—ground, air and sea—said:

"Ground action came to a virtual halt yesterday with only a handful of minor contacts made with enemy forces by United Nations command patrols."

The rest of the brief communique dealt with air attacks against Red supply concentration and Naval attacks against targets near North Korea's two coasts.

Eleven B-29 bombers based in Japan showered 110 tons of bombs on two newly-developed supply centers on the west coast of Korea.

Striking at the targets for the first time, the superbombers hit Nam-sangye, eight miles southeast of Sinanju, and at Yongyong, 11 miles southwest of Sukchon.

Cabinet Status For VA Is Urged

WASHINGTON (UP) — Rep. Eith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass.), who will be chairman of the House Veterans Committee in the new Congress, proposed today that the Veterans Administration be raised to the status of a cabinet agency.

She said she will sponsor legislation to effect this. She has not discussed the proposal with President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower or his aides.

"I believe this important agency would have more stability if its head were a member of the President's cabinet," Mrs. Rogers told a reporter.

The Veterans Administration now is an independent agency under an administrator who is responsible to the White House but has no cabinet status.

Mrs. Rogers served notice she will fight any attempt to slash government spending for veterans' benefits although she said some relatively minor savings could be made in the administration of the veterans program.

She discounted fears expressed in some veteran circles that Eisenhower's economy campaign might misfire and hit the ex-serviceman.

She noted that Eisenhower promised in his campaign to maintain and improve service to the disabled.

Secrecy Shrouding Inquiry Of Crash

Four Generals On Investigating Team Wh. n
Convenes Today At Site Of Air Tragedy In Which 86 Men Died

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (UP) —

High-ranking Air Force investigators were to examine the grisly wreckage of a C-124 Globemaster today to determine what caused the big plane to crash Saturday and take 86 of its passengers to their deaths.

The investigating team, which includes four generals, ordered a strict blanket of secrecy thrown over their investigation of the crash.

All survivors, excluding the most serious cases, are being thoroughly questioned. Many are wondering if they will be released in time to go home for Christmas.

Authorities said at least six of the thirty survivors are in serious condition.

The Air Force has released the names of 41 victims and said the remainder will be released as quickly as possible.

The grief-stricken wife of 1st Lt. Robert J. Maple, co-pilot of the plane, managed a weak smile and said the tragedy would not mar the Christmas of her two children.

She took the youngsters to a Christmas party at Larson Air Force Base Sunday.

"Regardless of what has happened, I thought the children ought to go," she said. "We had promised to take them."

The four generals investigating the disaster are Maj. Gen. Robert W. Douglas Jr., commander of the 18th Air Force at Donaldson Air Force Base, Greenville, S. C.; Maj. Gen. Homer L. Sanders, deputy chief of staff for operations at Tactical Air Command Headquarters, Langley Air Force Base, Va.; Maj. Gen. L. A. Bertrand, chief of the Air Force Safety Division at Los Angeles, and Brig. Gen.

Richard B. O'Keefe, director of flight safety research for the Air Force at San Bernardino, Calif.

All information was being thoroughly screened in an effort to determine why the plane slammed to the ground early Saturday morning.

Investigators declined to comment on the length of time needed to complete the survey, but emphasized they will remain on the job as long as necessary.

The huge plane crashed into the sagebrush-dotted desert of central Washington moments after taking off in a snowstorm from Larson Air Force Base, or Kelly Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex. It was carrying 116 servicemen home for the holidays.

The plane faltered as it reached the end of the runway, labored about 100 feet into the air, then shuddered to earth with a tearing crash. Gasoline from its huge wing tanks spilled onto the frozen ground and burst into flames.

Most of the 30 survivors were sitting in the tail section, which was torn loose from the rest of the plane. Sgt. F. N. Wehrle, Barnesville, Ga., said his life was saved because he had his safety belt fastened.

"Anyone who didn't have his belt fastened, had it," Wehrle said.

The six most seriously injured men were flown to Madigan General Hospital, Ft. Lewis, near Tacoma, Wash., for special treatment.

The death toll of 86 topped by six the worst previous disaster in the history of aviation. That was the crash of an Avro Tudor airliner which fell in Wales, March 12, 1950, killing 80 persons.

Eisenhower Asserts Victory Is Possible

Says America Can Win Ideological War Against Communism Through Rededication To Basic Religious Concepts

NEW YORK (UP) — President-elect Eisenhower said today that America can win the ideological war against Communism.

He offered as a victory formula a rededication to basic religious concepts on which our government is founded.

Eisenhower, in a speech at the annual meeting of the Freedom Foundation, said that "no false theory such as Communism can make any headway" on people who have held themselves on the strength of a government founded in religion.

He received a scroll from the foundation for his activity in promoting better appreciation of the American way of life.

The Freedom Foundation is an organization which makes annual awards to worthy persons in the field of Americanism. Eisenhower is national honorary chairman. He presented the first awards in 1949.

If we are going "to win this fight," Eisenhower said, we must get back to the fundamental "that we are a religious people" and members of a religious civilization.

"I don't mean to be evangelical," he said, "but this is the founding doctrine, this is the basic doctrine."

"If we can be strong enough to sell ourselves this idea at home, we can win the ideological war," he said.

Earlier, Eisenhower was quoted by George A. Sloan, chairman of the U. S. Council of the International Chamber of Commerce, as saying he is "deeply interested" in international economic problems.

The President-elect invited four of the top men designated for positions in his administration to attend the luncheon. They are Secretary of State-designate John Foster

Dulles; Attorney General-designate Herbert Brownell Jr.; Roger M. Kyes, designated to be deputy secretary of defense, and Harold Stassen, director of the Mutual Security Agency in Eisenhower's administration.

The committee on the Present Danger, formed two years ago, is dedicated to arousing public awareness of the danger of Communism at home and abroad.

Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, announced Sunday the President-elect will spend Christmas Day at his Morning-side Drive residence in New York. His grandchildren and Mrs. John Eisenhower, wife of his son serving in Korea, also will spend the day at his home.

Eisenhower had a two-hour meeting Sunday with a committee studying methods of reorganizing the executive branch of the federal government.

Hagerty described the meeting as an "informal discussion," and said a report probably will be issued in January recommending reforms in the sprawling network of bureaus in Washington.

The committee consists of Nelson A. Rockefeller, former assistant secretary of state; Dr. Arthur S. Flemming of Delaware, O., president of Ohio Wesleyan University, and Dr. Milton Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State College and brother of the President-elect.

The committee's work is based on a non-partisan study at Temple University of various plans for reorganizing the executive branch of the government, including the recommendations of the Hoover Commission.

Midnight Maneuver Assailing 'Mass Mur- der' In Korea Is Thrown Out, 45-5, In Last Hours Of Unit- ed Nations Session; Adjournment Effect- ed Early Today

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) —

The United Nations General Assembly voted down early today a last-gasp Soviet demand to condemn the United States for alleged "mass murder" of war prisoners in Korea.

The Soviet "midnight maneuver" was thrown out by 45 to 5 at the end of a marathon, all-night session of the 60-nation assembly.

Ten Arab-Asian nations abstained on the Russian resolution, which U. S. delegate Ernest A. Gross had described as a "clumsy attempt to smear the United States at the last minute in an effort to cover up the fact that the aggressors and their sponsors have rejected peace in Korea."

The Kremlin spokesman demanded the approval of a resolution condemning "criminal acts by U. S. armed forces" and insisting that the U. S. "should take immediate steps to put an end to the brutalities committed by the U. S. military authorities."

The resolution referred to the Pongam incidents as "inhuman brutalities" and "systematic extermination of prisoners of war."

The vote came at 4:41 a.m. EST at the end of an almost 12-hour session.

Four minutes later—at 4:45 a.m. EST—the seventh session of the General Assembly adjourned until Feb. 24, a month after President-elect Eisenhower will have taken office as chief executive of the U. S.

The Kremlin's 11th-hour melodramatic attack on the U. S. force shadowed, in the opinion of diplomats, an increasingly tough Red attitude on the Korean war.

In demanding the approval of his doomed proposal—which described recent Pongam island riots in which 84 Communist prisoners were killed as "inhuman brutalities"—Soviet delegate Andrei Gromyko delivered one of the most scathing harangues against the United States in U. N. annals.

After Gross and a large group of western diplomats lashed out at his charges, terming them "ridiculous," "shabby propaganda stunts" and "odious accusations," Gromyko returned to the rostrum to claim that the U. S. was committing daily crimes against Koreans and the Chinese.

"The Chinese people have accumulated a mountain of resentment against the aggressors," he charged.

The 60-nation assembly sat through a marathon session—it began at 3 p.m. yesterday—and witnessed a Russian-American verbal battle over charges melodramatically sprung by the Kremlin near dawn Sunday that American soldiers murdered 84 Red war prisoners at the Pongam Island compound.

The U. N. discussion of the Soviet accusations began at 2 p.m. EST yesterday. At that time, the assembly's 15-nation Steering Committee met in an urgent session to consider Gromyko's request for the inclusion in the agenda of his 11th hour accusations.

It was well past midnight when Gromyko gained the rostrum to deliver the violent attack.

U. S. Lawmakers
Urge Probe Of Red Atrocities

WASHINGTON (UP) — A special House committee unanimously called today for a congressional investigation of Communist "war atrocities" inflicted on "American and other United Nations troops in Korea."

The proposal came on the heels of Soviet Russia's demand yesterday that the United Nations condemn the United States for alleged "mass murders" of Chinese Communist and North Korean prisoners.

The congressional investigation was recommended in the final report of a special House committee which spent a year investigating the wartime Katyn Forest massacre.

The committee in an interim report last July blamed Russia for the slaughter of more than 14,000 Poles during World War II, including more than 4,000 at Katyn Forest near Smolensk, Russia. It said the massacres may have been the "blueprints" for the murder of American prisoners in Korea.

Committee Chairman Rep. J. Madden (D-Ind.) in a statement accompanying the committee report denounced Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Gromyko's surprise attack on the United States in the U. N.

He said it was "nothing more than a follow-up of Soviet propaganda which commenced a year ago to overcome the devastating testimony and evidence received by the committee on Soviet guilt for the murder of over 14,000 Poles at the beginning of World War II."

ABC Enforcers Intensify Vigilance As Holidays At Hand; Arrest Five In Raids

With the approach of the holiday season, Pitt County ABC officers have increased their vigilance of "white" whiskey vendors.

As the result of a series of raids in Greenville Saturday night, the ABC force hauled in five defendants and charged all of them with possession of bootleg whiskey for the purpose of sale.

J. M. Ward, member of the ABC force, reported their morning two Negroes, William Barrett, 29, and Ella Ruth Barrett, 28, were arrested at their home at 512 West Twelfth Street late Saturday night.

Officers entered the house with a search warrant, Ward said, but before they could intervene approximately three gallons of liquor contained in a stew pot was poured down the kitchen sink.

"However," Ward stated, "some of the holiday spirit was saved for evidence, and the pot was also confiscated." He disclosed a total of 17 persons was in the house at the time of the raid, evidently enjoying the Barretts' hospitality.

Both defendants were jailed in default of $200 bonds each, and Ward said William has a record of two arrests for whiskey prior to last night. "He has been released each time," he said.

Hazel Mayo, 37-year-old Negro woman of 105 Washington Street, Greenville, was arrested Saturday night when officers searched her premises and found six pints of bootleg whiskey in her bedroom. She was released under bond of $200.

Later in the night, Nathaniel Taft, 22-year-old Negro who operates a service station on the Falkland Highway about a mile from town, was arrested for possession of whiskey.

Ward reported "some over a gallon" of illegal whiskey was found near his station. An assistant Cleveland Taft, 20, was arrested at the same time. Both were later released under bonds of $200 each.

Officers participating in the raids were Ward, J. L. Taylor, R. W. King and H. B. Lilley. Assisting in the arrests were deputies Elmer Haddock, "Duke" Andrews and Jasper Lee Mills.

Carload Of People Escaped Possible Death

A carload of people escaped serious injury and possible death Sunday night when their car in which they were riding overturned when the driver became blind by the lights of a car and he brakes "grabbed" Patrolman James Boykin, who investigated, said the car was driven by A. C. Moore, 29, of Grimesland, and estimated the damage at more than $700. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Kiwanians Give Toys For Children

The Greenville Kiwanis Club Friday night donated more than 75 toys to The King's Daughters for distribution among needy children Christmas.

Mrs. W. M. Scates, president of The King's Daughters, and Mrs. E. W. Harvey, received the Christmas toys and thanked the Kiwanians. President Milo Smith presided.

Friday was the club's Christmas party meeting. Past President Tige Gardner was toastmaster for distributing Christmas gifts to Mrs. Ray Tyson, club pianist, and Mrs. J. K. Spivey, club caterer, and the girls who serve the meals at weekly meetings.

Roger P. Taylor, 406 Library street, was inducted into membership by Dr. Austin D. Bond of the Kiwanis Education Committee.

George Perry won the attendance prize. Ed Tyler, Ed Waldrop, Frank Steinbeck and Tige Gardner had birthdays and each donated a dime for each of their age to a Kiwanis fund.

President Smith announced that next Friday's meeting (the night after Christmas) will be a "dessert meeting" for Kiwanians and their wives. It will be held at 7 o'clock. Light refreshments will be served. The club had voted to dispense with the usual program and to assemble for a few minutes and then adjourn.

New officers of the club will be installed at the January 2 meeting.

Steppe - Garris Vows Spoken
In Double Ring Ceremony

The Eighth Street Christian Church was the setting on November 30 for the wedding of Miss Mary Jean Garris and Samuel Frederick Steppe. Dr. H. G. Haney officiated in the double ring ceremony.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Eleanor Toll, organist, and Miss Ruth Little, soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Garris of Greenville. Mr. Steppe is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Steppe Sr. of Columbia, South Carolina, and the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Honeycutt of Greenville.

The bride and bridegroom entered the church together. The bride wore a rose wool suit with Navy blue accessories, and carried a cascade bouquet of white feathered carnations centered with two white orchids.

Mrs. J. M. Whitehurst attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a navy blue suit with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Jack T. Steppe Jr. attended his brother as best man. Ushers were A. S. Mosley of Columbia, South Carolina, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Robert Russ of Greenville.

The bride's mother wore a black suit and matching accessories with an orchid corsage. The aunt of the bridegroom wore a black crepe dress with matching accessories, and an orchid corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at an informal reception in the church parlor.

The bride couple left for a wedding trip to Florida and upon their return will make their home in Arlington, Virginia.

Mrs. Steppe is a graduate of Anderson Junior College at Anderson, South Carolina, and the bridegroom attended Clemson College in Clemson, South Carolina.

Mrs. C. Vainwright Dies In Pennsylvania

Mrs. Annie Mae Vainwright, 24, wife of Coley Vainwright, formerly of Greenville, died at 3:55 o'clock Sunday afternoon in a hospital at Somerset, Pa., following an automobile accident a few hours earlier. Funeral arrangements are incomplete pending the arrival of the body.

Mrs. Vainwright, daughter of Mrs. Annie Speight McDaniel, and the late Henry McDaniel of Greenville, spent most of her life in Pitt County and was married to Coley Vainwright in 1948. Since July, 1952, they had been living at Paxton, Ill. where Pfc. Vainwright was stationed with the United States Army. They were on their way home for the holidays.

Surviving are her husband; her mother; two sisters - Mrs. Earl Spain of Greenville and Mrs. Earl Smith of Greenville; three brothers - Johnnie Lee McDaniel of the home, Henry M. McDaniel, Jr. of Greenville, and Floyd M. McDaniel of the U. S. Navy, now stationed in Korea; and her maternal grandfather, Mr. Johnnie Speight of the home.

Funeral Wednesday For Mrs. W. Crandall

Mrs. Ella R. Crandall, 61, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Smallwood Harris in Robersonville at five o'clock Monday morning. She had been ill for the past two years and critically ill since Sunday night. Funeral services will be conducted at the Robersonville Primitive Baptist Church Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and burial will be in the Robersonville cemetery. Elder A. B. Avers, Primitive Baptist Minister of Beargrass, assisted by Elder W. E. Grimes, Primitive Baptist Minister of Stokes, will officiate.

The body will be taken to the church one hour prior to the service.

Mrs. Crandall, daughter of the late John Stanley and Lula Gore Ross, spent nearly all her life in the Stokes community. She was married to Willis Warren Crandall, who died in 1945. She was a member of the Briar Swamp Primitive Baptist Church near Stokes.

Surviving are two daughters: Mrs. S. A. Wallace of Raleigh and Mrs. Smallwood Harris of Robersonville; three sons: J. S. Crandall of Robersonville, Cpl. Willis R. Crandall, U. S. Army, now stationed at Fort Bragg, and Russell Crandall of Robersonville; 9 grandchildren; and a sister, Mrs. Nannie R. Keel of Robersonville.

Wave Of Minor Weekend Fires

A wave of minor fires plagued the Greenville Fire Department over the weekend.

Three box alarms were answered by the firemen and one telephone call and one county fire call.

Early Saturday afternoon firemen were called to Blackwood, near Five Points, when a bucket of paint remover ignited. No damage resulted, however.

An overheated stove sent firemen to 205 Center Street, the home of Nina Barrett, around 6:15 Saturday night.

No damage was reported.

Slight damage resulted to the roof and one room yesterday afternoon when fire broke out in a Negro dwelling at First and Side streets.

A defective chimney was credited with starting the fire, which was reported around 3:30.

The house was occupied by Roy Spell and Mary Blount.

It was owned by Ellen Boyd. No estimate of the damage was made, except that it was slight.

A county fire call was received at 8:15 Sunday morning and a fire truck was dispatched to the home of J. J. Edwards on the Washington highway when an oil stove became overheated.

No damage.

Still a third oil stove fire brought firemen out on the double around 10:00 last night when it flared up in the home of Wallace Gurganus on Mumford Street.

Only slight damage resulted, firemen reported.

Restore Home Of Washington's Early Ancestors

NEW YORK (AP)—The home where George Washington's ancestors lived in Sunderland, England, is being restored, reports the British Information Service here. It is hoped to complete the building, known as Old Hall, and grounds in time for the coronation next June.

The Old Hall will be presented to the people of Washington, D. C. as a goodwill gesture. The building will be weather-proofed and surrounded by a lawn flower garden and have antique furnishings inside. Contributions for the project, costing about $28,000, came from both England and the United States, the announcement says.

The Old Hall was the home of William de Washington, who settled there in 1183, the report states. In 1376 the family moved to Northamptonshire, where they remained until Washington's great-grandfather emigrated to Virginia.

Couple Speak Vows In Formal Rites

In an impressive candlelight ceremony of picturesque loveliness, Miss Lois Zeigler Waldrop and Joseph Corthell Gilbert were united in marriage Sunday afternoon in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church with the Rev. J. Herbert Waldrop, Jr., brother of the bride, performing the double ring ceremony. He was assisted by the Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of the bride.

The church had been tastefully decorated in southern smilax, huckleberry, palms and other bridal greenery. Elaborate arrangements of white gladioli and calla lilies and many cathedral candles formed a lovely setting for the wedding ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Paul Toll church organist, Mr. Robert Oppelt, violinist, Mrs. J. Herbert Waldrop, Jr., sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Sam Northrop, as soloists. Mrs. Toll's selections included: O Lovely Rose Is Blooming, by Brahms; Jesu, Joy Of Man's Desiring, by Bach; Meditation, by Massenet; Trauerlied, by Wagner; and A Vase by Bach. Mrs. Waldrop sang, Beloved It Is Morn, by Aylward; Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee, by Gounod; and I Love Thee, by Grieg. Mr. Northrop sang, O Perfect Love, by Barnby; and The Lord's Prayer, by Mallotte. The traditional wedding marches were used.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a Belle Bride original wedding gown of candlelight satin with deep yoke of sheer net, fitted bodice of D. Strausse Princess lace extending down over the skirt to the hips, dipping slightly in the back. Her full length veil of silk illusion fell from a cap of illusion edged in seed pearls. She carried a formal bouquet of phalaenopsis, centered with white orchids and showered with stephanotis.

The bride chose for her honor attendants her sister, Miss Mary Ann Waldrop, as maid of honor and Mrs. Herbert Paschal as matron of honor. They wore graceful long dresses of burgundy velvet with short sleeves, fitted bodice and full gathered skirts. With this they wore tiny hats of matching veiling and velvet, long white gloves and carried muffs, to match their dresses, centered with white orchids surrounded by french-carnations and showered with stephanotis.

Attending as bridesmaids were: Misses Virginia Smith, Columbus, Ohio; Jean Nowell, Macon, Ga.; Patsy Hinson, Charlotte, N. C.; Jeanne Bosworth, Albermarle, N. C.; Frances Bendall, Lyle Batchelor and Grayson Waldrop, sister of the bride of Greenville; and Mrs. D. C. Dohmer, Raleigh, N. C. They wore green velvet dresses identical to those of the honor attendants and carried similar bouquets.

Arthur Gilbert of Havre de Grace, Md., was his brother's best man. Ushers were: Hyer P. Larsen, Woodbridge, N. J.; Edward O. Wallace, Philadelphia, Penn.; Raymond P. Ammerman, Lakeland, Fla.; Fred O. Mitchell, University of Md.; William Middleton, University of Tenn.; Richard D. Woodfield, Washington, D. C.; and Lawson C. Brown, West Palm Beach, Fla.

The honorary bridesmaids were: Misses Betty Ann Young, Durham, N. C.; Sugie Michael, Baltimore, Md.; Catherine Clark and Barbara Russell, Greenville; Mesdames William A. Bowen and James Cozart, Greenville.

Mrs. Waldrop, mother of the bride.

wore for her daughter's wedding a most becoming dress of navy poudre-soie, small mauve hat, navy accessories and an orchid corsage. The groom's mother was dressed in French blue with rose and navy accessories and a corsage of white orchids.

For traveling the bride wore a chic Paul Parnes suit with gray accessories and an orchid corsage. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Herbert Waldrop. She was educated in the city schools of Greenville, Peace College in Raleigh, and is a member of the senior class of Duke University. She is a member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lawson Gilbert of Havre de Grace, Md. He received his education in the city schools there, McDonough School, Baltimore, Md., and is a member of the senior class of Duke University. He is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

After a wedding trip to Florida the couple will make their home at the Alastair Courts, Swift Ave., Durham, N. C.

Immediately following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Waldrop entertained at a reception at their home on East Tenth Street.

Reception
On Sunday afternoon immediately following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. John Herbert Waldrop entertained at a reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Corthell Gilbert and their wedding party. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Blount and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Moye, and presented to Mrs. Frank Bendall who invited them into the library where Mr. and Mrs. Ed Batchelor served them punch. Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Moore registered the guests.

At the music room door, Mrs. W. L. Wooten welcomed and presented them to the receiving line composed of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Waldrop, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lawson Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Corthell Gilbert and their wedding party.

In the dining room a silver-eggplant filled with brides roses, white snapdragons and silver mums centered the Battenburg lace covered table. Silver candelabra with white tapers were placed at either side of the centerpiece. Guests helped themselves to refreshments of Smithfield ham and turkey with rolls, cheese straws, fancy sandwiches, dainty bridal mints and cakes. Mr. and Mrs. Hoover Taft served French Cafe au Lait. A three tiered wedding cake of bluish pink surmounted by a miniature French bride, which was placed on the buffet, was later cut by the bride and groom and their wedding party. Mr. and Mrs. John Staton invited the guests upstairs to view the presents.

Others receiving in the house were: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Staton, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Stauffer, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Northrop, and Mr. and Mrs. William Taft.

Blame TV For Lack Of Barber

BELLEFONTAINE, O. (UP)—If the men of Degraff, 10 miles southwest of here, looks like long-haired Santas by Christmas, they will blame television.
Degraff's only barber, Louis K. Miller, fractured a heel while erecting a TV aerial and may be hospitalized for several weeks.

Burglar's Hard Work Didn't Pay

COLUMBUS, O. (UP)—A hard-working burglar had a good reason today to think over the old maxim that "crime doesn't pay," after a foray into a Columbus candy shop.
Mrs. Gertrude Hill, the shop's owner, told police the burglar pried open a rear screen and forced a back window to her shop. The only loot taken was one penny from a gum ball machine, she said.

Servicemen Get Hunting Rights

Servicemen from North Carolina who are home on Christmas leave and wish to sharpen up their shooting eye in the hunting fields may do so without purchasing a hunting license.

District Game Warden J. O. Teel says, "Servicemen who are residents of North Carolina and are home on leave may hunt without a license provided they carry along their leave papers."

This does not extend to hunting of migratory fowl. Teel says that everyone must have a "duck stamp" in order to take a crack at the winged jets of the bird family.

Servicemen's hunting privileges also do not include hunting on U. S. reservations. He must have a special permit the same as all hunters. Dove season, which had a two week run from October 1-15, will resume December 27 and continue through January 10. The season closes for migratory fowl Jan. 10 also. Deer and bear season closes Jan. 1.

Teel explained that a lot of hunters are disregarding the law by hunting on Sunday and warns that action will be taken against anyone who is apprehended in this act.

The game warden also issues a warning to all hunters to be extremely careful while hunting during the holiday season. Many lives are lost each year by careless holiday hunters.

CRASH VICTIMS REMOVED:—Rescue workers remove bodies from tall wreckage of C-124 Globemaster which crashed at Moses Lake, Wash., during takeoff. It was reported at least 90 servicemen, hitch-hiking home for Christmas, were killed in the crash. (AP Wirephoto)

Junior Woman's Club Has Christmas Party

The Junior Woman's Club held its annual Christmas party on Wednesday night, December 17, at the club house. In an atmosphere of glowing Christmas trees, beautifully trimmed tables and recorded Christmas music, the members and their husbands and dates enjoyed a delicious covered dish supper. After dinner entertainment included a rendition of "It's In The Book" by Dr. M. W. Aldridge.

Mrs. J. B. Spilman awarded prizes to winners of the Christmas Seal Package Contest—the packages having been displayed during the Garden Club Open House. The first prize went to Mrs. Howard Grady; second to Mrs. Harold Alder; third to Mrs. James Davenport; and fourth to Mrs. Joe Robertson.

Following the activities at the club house, the members and their guests were invited to the home of Mrs. Spilman where the group enjoyed a social hour of games and Christmas carols. Christmas punch and cookies were served by the hostesses.

LAST RITES HELD TODAY FOR DAY-OLD INFANT

Arthur Lee Brann, Jr., one day old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lee Brann of Greenville, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville Sunday afternoon at 2:25 o'clock. Graveside services were held at the Winterville Cemetery Monday afternoon at three o'clock by the Rev. Roy Ray, Pastor of the Church of God in Greenville.
Surviving are the parents; two sisters: Barbara Ann and Mary Lee Brann of the home; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gray L. Hardee of Greenville, and John Brann of near Greenville.

Strength for the Day

A CHRISTIAN SOLDIER

We often hear the expression, "I would give my eyes" for that coveted thing. I have a friend who actually gave his eyes. The Reverend Courtney Penn, considerable more than 80 years old now, told me the other day why he had gone practically blind.

Thirty years ago when he was a missionary in China, he started to edit a concordance of the Scripture in Chinese. A concordance is a book which enables one to find any verse in the Bible immediately. Dr. Penn read galley proof under a poor light, and one morning when he awoke, he was completely blind in his right eye. That sight has never returned.

Seven or eight years later, missionary friends persuaded him that he should enlarge his little Chinese dictionary into an unabridged edition, corresponding to our Webster. This he did, and when he was through, his eyes were sufficiently damaged that his career as a scholar was at an end.

"And would you do it again, Dr. Penn?" I inquired. He smiled expansively. "Why, of course," he said. "Those two books have opened up the Scripture for Chinese Christians, and for those among non-Christians who are seeking the light. The task was worth two eyes."

One reason why we have so many martial hymns is because we have many brave soldiers in the Lord's army.

"Onward Christian soldiers, Marching as to war;
With the cross of Jesus, Going on before."

Facts To Keep In Mind On City Manager Vote

With Greenville citizens considering a change to the council-manager form of government, a news story carried last week by the United Press drew our close attention.

The story was a report from the International City Managers Association dealing with the progress the particular form of government made in the United States during the months of October and November.

According to the reports, voters of nine cities approved the adoption of the form of government during the two months. Voters of eight other cities turned thumbs down on the adoption of the council manager form of municipal government. In addition to those elections, voters in four other cities defeated proposals to abandon the council-manager form of government.

The nine cities which adopted the plan of government during the two months were Santa Ana, Calif., Evanston, Ill., Oak Park, Ill., Westchester, Ill., Wood River, Ill., Hopkinsville, Ky., Arlington, Mass., Bemidji, Minn., and Tacoma, Wash. which range in population from 4,308 to 143,600.

Aside from the fact that the report shows of the 21 cities which had ballots on the council-manager form of government during October and November, 13 of the cities either adopted it or gave it a vote of confidence; it also indicates the amount of interest being taken in the form of government throughout the nation.

If the council manager form of government did not have a great deal of merit, doubtlessly such a large number of municipalities would not have the question under consideration by their respective citizens.

What is probably more significant in the report is the statement that more than one-third of the cities in the United States over 25,000 population now have the council-manager form of government in operation. The report also states that almost one-third of the cities in the nation with populations between 10,000 and 25,000 likewise have the city manager plan of government in operation. The total number of cities in the United States and Canada which now have the city manager form of government is set at 1,123.

To bring the matter closer home, it is reported that some 40 municipalities in North Carolina operate under the city manager form of government; and several municipal officials who spoke before the Greenville Jaycees some weeks ago pointed out that Greenville is probably one of the largest cities in North Carolina at the present time which does not operate under the city manager form of government.

Those facts might well be kept in mind between now and January 12 while the voters of Greenville make up their minds whether Greenville should change from the aldermanic form of government to the city manager form.

Tragedy May Strike Again In Pitt County

Tragedy on the highways already has struck one Pitt County family and the real holiday season can hardly be considered underway.

How many families will be struck by similar tragedies before the holiday season is over, no one can answer.

The death of a 12-year-old girl last Friday shortly after she alighted from her school bus, should serve as a grim warning to all Pitt Counties who travel even short distances on the highways during this holiday season.

It is almost cruel to mention death and serious accident during this joyous holiday season, but we must face the grim reality of the times in which we live. No holiday passes without its toll of highway deaths across the United States. Hardly a holiday passes without taking one or more lives on the highways of Pitt County.

For the family little Doris Boyd, who was killed on the highway near her home Friday afternoon, this Christmas season will indeed be one of bereavement. Unless great care is taken, there may be other Pitt County families who will be suffering the heartbreak of the accidental death of a loved one before this Christmas season ends.

One moment's carelessness may cost the life of a loved one or a neighbor. A few minutes spent in the interest of safety will not detract from the joy of the holiday season, and they might prevent many years of grief.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—A full-dress review and revision of American foreign policy has been necessitated by a stunning defeat which the United States recently suffered within the United Nations. It demonstrates that this country cannot buy friendship, alliances or world peace even with the expenditures of billions of dollars annually.

The General Assembly's Economic and Financial Committee, an extremely important body, adopted by sizable vote a resolution which bars the United States from giving any protection to private investments overseas.

It even prevents our State Department from making vocal or written representations on behalf of American firms whose foreign properties are jeopardized by nationalization, confiscation or outright seizure.

LARGE ANTI-AMERICAN VOTE—Ironically, this amazing prohibition was proposed by Iran, which has successfully nationalized British petroleum holdings, and by Bolivia, which has taken over valuable and strategic tin mines owned by British and U.S. interests.

The anti-American vote was so large in several tests that adoption of the resolution by the General Assembly itself seems certain. Meanwhile, it is expected that spokesmen for both President Truman and President-elect Eisenhower will try to persuade the recalcitrant majority that they are biting off their own noses to spite the only power sufficiently well-heeled to develop their resources.

U. S. STRATEGY UNDERMINED—The 31-nation ultimatum, especially if it is ratified by the General Assembly, will undermine our present strategy in the cold war, which relies on Point Four, Mutual Security and similar expenditures to win us allies in any showdown with Russia. It casts considerable doubt on the value of the $12 billion, Marshall Plan investment.

It comes at a time, too, when President Truman, Secretary Acheson and Mutual Security Administrator Harriman, as recently revealed here, have framed a program for encouragement and stimulation of huge private investments abroad.

SCHEME DISCUSSED WITH IKE'S AIDES—Under their scheme, which has been discussed with Eisenhower's aides in this field, the United States was to expand enormously the system under which full or percentage recovery of exported funds is guaranteed by the U.S. Treasury. This sort of businesslike assistance was supposed to supplant the current operations involving direct government loans and grants.

However, in view of the temper of the prospective beneficiaries, it is dubious whether Messrs. Eisenhower, Dulles, Humphrey and Stassen will look upon this suggestion as feasible. Even if they should, it is questionable whether Congress would approve or appropriate the money for it. The U.N. is already in the black books of many prominent men on Capitol Hill, including Delegate-Senator Wiley.

GOOD NEWS FOR STALIN—The outcome was a complete victory for the Soviet, as paralyzing to us in the diplomatic and foreign aid field as the North Korean attack has been to us in the military realm. Almost immediately afterward, Delegate Andrei Vishinsky took ship for home to report the good news to Stalin.

The vote on the key measure was 31 in favor, with only the United States opposed. Nineteen nations, including Britain and the Commonwealth bloc, did not vote because the Bolivia-Iran resolution violated their constitutions. Had they not abstained, they would probably have lined up with us. Arrayed against the U.S. were the Latin-American, Asian, Arab and Soviet countries.

SAUDI ARABIA LEADS TEST—When the U. S. representative tried to postpone a showdown, the lineup against us was 25-3. Worst of all from our standpoint, the principal opponent on this test was the spokesman for King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, who is supposed to be our good friend.

He is almost the only Middle East ruler who has not moved to break his petroleum agreements with American oil firms, largely because they have boosted his royalties to 50 per cent.

This clear-cut evidence of the rising tide of nationalism threatens new trouble in many hitherto quiescent areas. It accompanies rumblings of nationalization movements against U.S. oil firms in Venezuela, Iraq and elsewhere. It may also endanger investments in factories, utilities and railroads, as well as in natural resources overseas.

MOSCOW PROPAGANDA RESULT—In effect, it gives U.N. approval to the revolt against "colonialism" in North Africa, the Middle East, Indo-China, Egypt and China. It indicates that our erstwhile friends have been influenced by Moscow propaganda branding public and private financial aid from this country as "imperialism."

It is a fiery cross of world-wide rebellion against the old system, as well as Truman-Acheson well-meant modifications of it, which Eisenhower and the incoming Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, must heed.

Incidentally, although the State Department has not publicized this U.N. action or its reaction to the threat, the question has been discussed off the record with members of the new Administration.

The Little Tree That Made Good

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

LEADERSHIP — The immediate setting was about as informal as any public meeting could be, but the speech delivered at Lumberton the other night by Judge John J. Parker, senior judge of the Fourth Circuit Federal Court, was rated by those who heard it as an outstanding challenge to American citizenship, especially members of the bar, to accept the obligations of world leadership. The kind of world we will live in during the next few years, he said, depends upon the leadership of America, and America is looking to the lawyers to provide that leadership.

SETTING — The occasion was the annual meeting of the Ninth District Bar combined with the annual "Buck" Harris dinner. Nineteen years ago Frank McNeill, Lumberton lawyer, gave a little informal dinner for Judge W.C. Harris, who was holding court in another district.

By natural stages the idea developed into an annual affair and came to be known as the "Buck Harris Dinner." So many folks wanted to come, the thing got too big for one man to handle as host to furnish a free meal, and it progressed into integration with the annual district bar meeting. The president of the district bar presides, that being former Judge T.L. "Buck" Harris, and there is formality in conducting the business of the day. Despite the expansion of the idea, the occasion is still essentially the Buck Harris Dinner and Frank McNeill is still its ramrod, and informal good fellowship is the dominating quality.

SCHOLARLY — That was the setting for the scholarly address by Judge Parker, and it is a tribute both to him and to his audience that there was no apparent incongruity in the mixture of serious and facetious, business and pleasure, and that in the atmosphere of informality those present recognized they were listening to profound sentiments without being oppressed by high brow dignity.

CHALLENGE — The impact of two world wars in one generation upon the physical, social and economic fabric almost destroyed European civilization, said Judge Parker. That created demand for new world leadership, and America is being qualified to provide it. As a nation we have met part of the obligation and through application of the Marshall Plan and other cooperative functions, we have kept Communism in check. The world-wide revolution which has brought drastic change in the habits of life and processes of thought requires further attention to fundamentals. The less privileged peoples are looking to America to direct the upsurge of freedom into safe and proper channels.

POWER — The shifting of world power has left only two nations with potentials for world leadership. Russia looms as a challenging rival to the United States. America must take the lead in an alliance of free nations to maintain the ideals of democracy and Christianity. We can do it, and we must do it.

DUTY — It becomes our inescapable duty to keep ourselves strong. Strong militarily, economically, spiritually. To do that we must have unity at home, and Judge Parker pleaded for support of President Eisenhower and his administration. We must leadership, including the necessity for helping our allies get on their feet and to protect them if attacked. Despite some mistakes and failures our aid to Europe and intervention in Korea have been in keeping with this obligation. There is inherent long-range among all peoples for a world order based on law. Some of the things the League of Nations failed to do the United Nations have accomplished. The total job has not been done, and America can neither turn back nor quit, because we as a nation are stewards of great power. If through selfishness, cowardice or lack of vision we fail in leadership, Russia will assume it—and freedom will perish from the earth.

QUALIFIED — No man in the whole country is better qualified to make that sort of speech than John Parker. He was born in Union county, and by heritage environment and education is steeped in the traditions of the State and the South. A partisan Republican from boyhood, he was his party's candidate for Governor while in his mid-thirties, and was placed on the circuit court by President Coolidge a few years later. Appointed to the Supreme Court of the U. S. by President Hoover in 1931, he failed of senate confirmation by one vote because of opposition sparked by leaders of special labor and racial groups—many of whom have reported in sackcloth and ashes. Great as John Parker has been as a judge, consensus among those who know his record is that his attitude in that defeat effectively demonstrated his real bigness as a man. Instead of becoming embittered and sulking as a man of lesser stature might have, he devoted even more energy to the job at hand and further confounded his critics by numerous common sense liberal opinions in his own court.

HAPPY — The Lumberton occasion was particularly happy in having Judges John Parker and Buck Harris in featured roles. Both are senior members of the courts which they serve. Parker is a Republican whose father was a Democrat, and Harris is a Democrat whose father was a Republican leader in his day, but partisan politics does not influence the judicial decisions of either. Both men have to much higher than average degree the inherent capacity to evaluate human relations as more important.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

LOOK OUT, LATIN'S COMING

(Greensboro Daily News)

We hate to bring it up just before the Christmas holidays, but Latin seems to be making a comeback.

Item 1: In Richmond, Va., 520 students were taking Latin in the city schools in 1948 compared with 715 in 1951. That's a magnanimous jump.

Item 2: Soon a magazine called "Latinité" will be published in Rome, that's right, in Latin. The death of Latin may have been grossly exaggerated. Anyway the director of the new publication will be Monsignor Antonio Bacchi, one of the Vatican's foremost composers of Latin documents.

He has already published a dictionary of modern words translated into the Latin equivalents, according to the New York Herald Tribune. For instance:

Atom bomb is globus atomica vi dispendens (an atomic ball which breaks out of there).

Communist agitators are vulgi turbatores (crowd disturbers). Gasoline is benzinium.

Telephone is telephonium.

Coffee is cafeum.

That sounds easy enough.

But a newspaper reporter is ephemeridum notitium auctoris (zealous seeker after ephemeral or day-to-day knowledge).

Caesar must have had a shorter word than that for newspapermen, but we can't think what it was right now.

Anyway Monsignor Bacchi thinks that a simple form of Latin such as was used in the Middle Ages might be useful today as a means of communication among cultured men of various nations. He might have something (chabot quid) there.

Meanwhile Latin can be useful in acquainting one with the fathers and grandfathers of English words and of giving one the feel of sentence structure.

MORE MILLIONS GO ABROAD

(Henderson Dispatch)

No small amount of the billions of dollars the United States has poured into Europe and the Middle East since World War II has been sent in an effort to stem the westward tide of Communism, and in that sense the investment has been charged up to defense of this country. Those in position to know confirm claims that the objective, in large measure, has been accomplished. Well, so far, so good.

Many Americans have for quite a while been wondering, however, how long the policy must be continued, and if it must go on indefinitely. It is a strategy of containment of communism, and the proposed advance of one hundred million dollars to Iran, in its final analysis, is that also.

Iran has been a trouble spot for years. It came about by reason of the tremendous oil business developed by British capitalists, the fabulous profits that were being realized from the industry, and jealousy of Iranian leaders and people of this success. The feeling was so intense, goaded on in part, to be sure, by agitators planted by Moscow, that the government was driven to a decision to force the British out and to nationalize all oil operations. Along with this was an unwillingness to compensate the British owners for the investment which was being confiscated, but they were made to get out. Result was that the complicated refining machinery ground to a halt because of ignorance of the Iranians about its operation.

Even with the huge profits accruing to the British, Iran derived sufficient income from royalties to keep its government going. Since the flow of oil has ceased, however, that government is bankrupt and has become so weak that the country is in imminent danger of toppling into the lap of Soviet Russia. It is for the purpose of staving off such a tragic and hazardous development that President Truman has offered this hundred million dollars grant to Iran in an effort to put the government back on its feet. A condition of the credit is that the deadlock between the British and Iranian governments shall be ended and an understanding reached.

Perhaps the United States would be repaid in deliveries of oil, and certainly that would be an easy method of liquidating the obligation unless what Mr. Truman has in mind is simply another gift under a different name. It would appear that the time has come for gifts in billions of dollars anywhere and everywhere in the world to cease. This particular instance is an outstanding example of how a huge cash advance can be paid off in a commodity that is urgently needed here, as all over the world. Sending a hundred million dollars to Iran would be a sound investment if handled in such manner.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Plastics sales, which got off to a slow start this year, have made up lost ground in the second half and are expected to end the year at least equal to 1951, according to the Society of the Plastics Industry.

After a poll of leading manufacturers, the Society reports that a continued record level in most branches of the industry can be expected "at least well into the first quarter of 1953." George C. Miller, in charge of sales for (Bakelite) one of the largest producers, goes further; he says that plastic sales may set a new record in 1953 and, at any rate, "plastics will do considerably better than business in general during the coming year."

One of the reasons for optimism in most places is that demand for thermosetting plastics has increased considerably and all-time high monthly records have been set in the last half of this year. These tough, non-fusible materials are gaining wide use in appliances and radio and television sets, both as parts and as cases.

Recent developments in reinforced plastics, largely with glass fibers, has helped engineers make constantly larger components. Wide use of plastics in refrigerators, washing machines and other large items as predicted by engineers.

In addition, there have been advances in the manufacture of both flexible and semi-rigid plastic pipe and in insulating telephone and telegraph cable. The Army has announced that this use is saving taxpayers $18,000,000 a year.

There have been many other developments, including an all-most weightless foam useful for packaging and insulating, a liquid plastic that hardens into a porous mass useful in stiffening structural parts of airplanes. Plastics chemists say that, given time and financing, they can produce a plastic to almost any set of specifications.

RETAIL SALES SHOW SPURT IN OCTOBER

The business rebound this fall is reflected in retail statistics for October, just compiled by the Department of Commerce. Total sales were 6 per cent higher than in October, 1951, and 8 per cent above September, this year.

Dairy product, confectionery, liquor, floor covering, paint, glass wallpaper, stationery, music and camera and photographic stores and farm equipment dealers were the only large groups to show lower sales than a year earlier.

G.I. OVERSEAS PARCEL RATES PROTESTED

It costs 13 cents more to send a parcel from the East Coast to a serviceman in Korea or Japan than it does to send one to a civilian. It also costs 13 cents more from the West Coast to a G.I. in England, France or Germany than to a civilian in those countries.

That's because rates on military mail are figured on from the point of origin to the port of embarkation, whereas international rates are based on treaty agreements.

The Marine Corps League is organizing a public protest against this state of affairs; it wants the G.I. rates lowered. It should be of interest to retailers to join in the protest.

SAYS FROZEN FOOD NEEDING MORE STORAGE

Demand for frozen food is growing so steadily that warehouses must be enlarged and streamlined to handle future business, Henry K. Schaffner, executive director of the National Wholesale Frozen Food Distributors Association warned the North Atlantic Chapter of the National Association of Refrigerated Warehouses.

He said that 51 per cent of the tonnage received by public refrigerated warehouses in 1950 was for sharp freezer storage. This has increased to 55 per cent this year, he said, and predicted it would rise to 60 per cent in 1954 and 70 per cent in 1955.

NEW YORK (AP) — What mother ever raised her boy to be a vice president?

Probably none. Mothers want their sons to be doctors or lawyers or dentists or engineers. But they are missing a bet.

Why shouldn't a wise mother today aim her lad from birth toward one of the safest and most profitable careers in America — that of being a vice president? There are thousands upon thousands of vice presidents in this country, yet not one started life with that idea in mind.

They all got there by accident. But why shouldn't a smart young fellow set out deliberately to make himself a vice president? Why shouldn't business colleges have a course entitled, "How to become a vice president and stop right there."

There is a popular belief that every man would like to have a high-paying post with a lot of responsibility. That isn't so. What the average man really craves is a high-paying post with absolutely no responsibility. And for that you can't beat the job of vice president.

Look at what it offers:

1. A swivel chair in a warm office out of the wind and the rain.

2. A secretary to answer the phone calls from your wife. And who else would phone a vice president?

3. Prestige. Everybody thinks you're important but nobody knows "hv."

4. Security. Nobody ever fires a vice president because he never does anything wrong. Since nobody really knows what his duties are, he wisely decides the best way to keep from doing something wrong is to do nothing.

Some folks believe that vice presidents are frustrated, neurotic executives consumed by gnawing ambition and who spend their days off lying on a psychiatrist's couch asking: "Why can't I be a president instead of just another vice president?"

Nothing could be further from fact. Most vice presidents are contented, cheerful men whose sleep is haunted by only one terror:

"What if they ever made me president of the firm? What would I do?"

They know they have a happy life, and they don't want anybody to mess it up by giving them more responsibility. What lives longer anyway—presidents or vice presidents?

If I were a young fellow starting on a fresh career I'd go to work for a big firm and tell them right off, "My goal is to be a vice president." The chances are the president would be so surprised at such a strange ambition he'd make you a vice president right off-just out of curiosity.

Of course, the perfect title to aim at is "vice president-in-charge-of-seeing-that-all-the-other-vice-presidents-are doing."

That is living at the peak.

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—Our country cousins are just as smartly dressed and "hep" to what is going on in the world as girls in the big city today, thanks to family financial planning, better incomes and the help of home economists.

Gertrude Drinker, a Virginia farm girl, whose 4-H Club work and 14 prize dairy cows paid her way through college, is one of the home economists now heading U.S. farm women plan and work for a better living. National home economist with the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) since 1947, she sits down and talks with the wives and daughters of farmers to whom the administration loans money to get their farms started or better organized.

"The planning is with the family, and the woman is important in the program," Miss Drinker told me. "While we talk of the need for a tractor or other farm equipment, we also talk about what is needed in the home, like a bathroom, a refrigerator or washing machine."

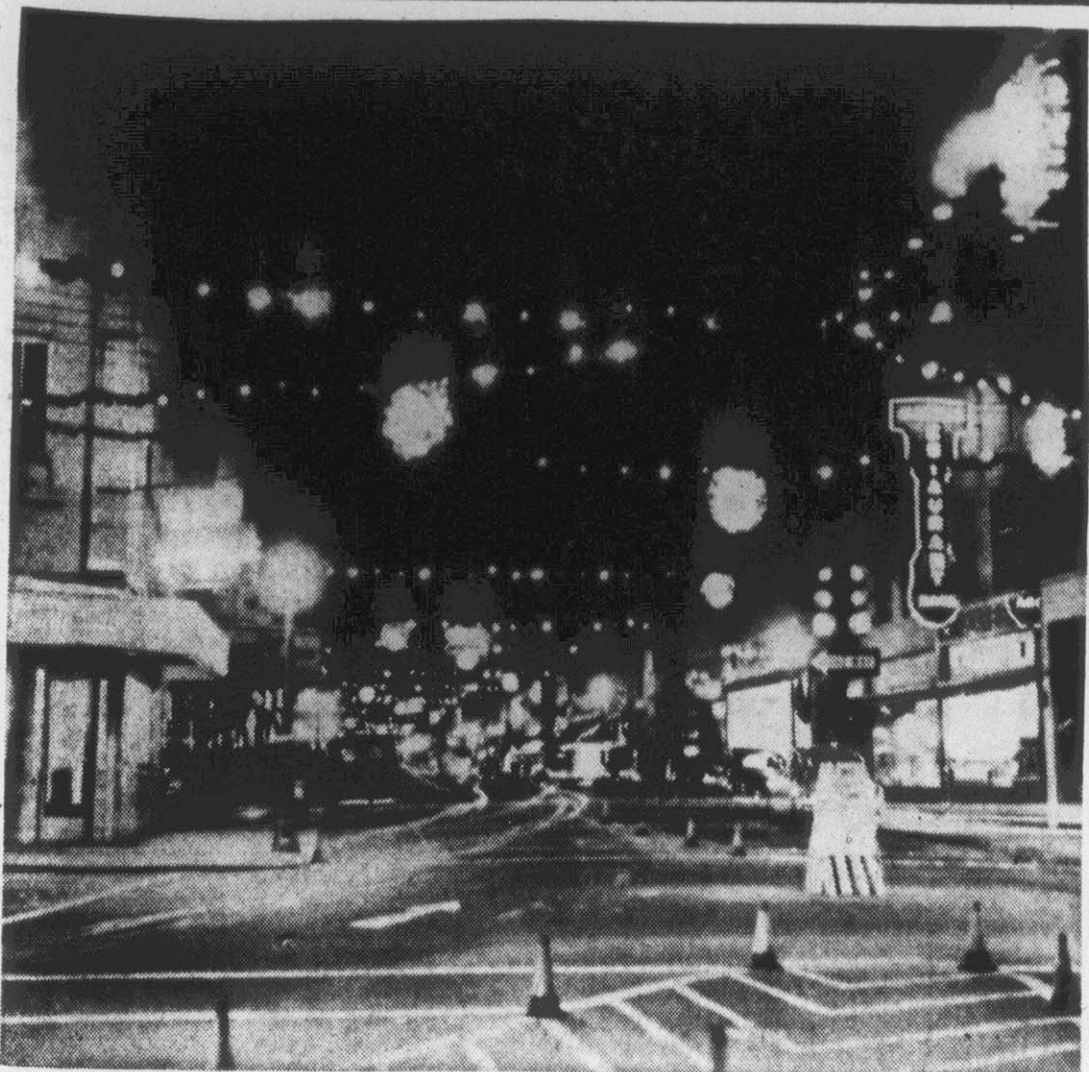

The administration tries to help all borrowing families with their food production and conservation. It has only 137 home economists, but they work through some 1,657 county offices.

"When we talk about fertilizing the cornfield we also talk about fertilizing the garden and encourage the women to take part in extension service programs," Miss Drinker said. "We discuss health problems, clothing and housing and try to see families increase their incomes so the kids can go through high school." It isn't unusual now, she says, to see a family grow to a point where the children get as far as college.

A large portion of the 200,000 families currently being assisted through the FHA program are young veterans with a farm background who want to get started in their own business. They are bringing new ideas back not only to the old folks but to their neighbors and the whole community.

"Everywhere we see a real desire to live better," Miss Drinker said. "Women want improved and convenient homes, and they're beginning to get them. While they are not elaborate, they reflect good taste. Through home economics courses women are also learning taste in their dress. You can't tell a farm girl from a city girl anymore."

Miss Drinker says she would still like to see more rural homes with running water and bathrooms and, in some sections of the country, a better-planned diet

'Probable Death' Chosen, That Her Unborn Baby Might Survive

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (UP)—A young mother who will risk probable death the day after Christmas so that her unborn fourth child may live, said today, "I'll die happy if I can have my baby."

"Death is the least of my worries," said Mrs. Jean Garrett as she talked cheerfully about preparing "the best Christmas ever" for her husband and three children. The 27-year old woman suffers from an incurable lymphatic ailment known as Hodgkins' disease. "I'm going to try to forget my troubles and make it a happy time for everyone," she said as she went about their small home decorating a tree and wrapping gifts.

Her last wish was for "a Christian education for my children and that they always remain together." Mrs. Garrett will enjoy Christmas Day with her husband, Thomas, and her children. That night she will say goodbye to Thomas Jr., 7, Robert, 3, and Raleigh, 18 months, and enter the hospital to prepare for Caesarean delivery of her baby the next morning. There is a strong possibility she will die from the effects of the surgery, although doctors said her chances of having a normal child are good.

Doctors advised her not to have a fourth child, she said. "They said they could have saved my life if I had given up my child. But I feel that a baby has as much right to live as anyone else."

Garrett, an aircraft employee, said his wife first learned of her ailment in September, 1951. Shortly afterward she was told she had only six months to live. "But, 'the doctors were wrong,' she said. 'The prayers and the faith of my husband, my children... and a thousand strangers kept me alive.'"

"People have offered to adopt our younger child. But that would separate the children, and I don't want that to happen."

Says Movie Censorship Brought On By His Roles

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Edmund Lowe, the master of those torrid love scenes and salty language of the Twenties, confessed today his movies brought on censorship—but he approves.

Lowe has launched a new career as an easy-spoken detective on television's "Front Page Detective." But film fans remember him with Victor McLaglen in "What Price Glory," and as the suave wooer in other films.

"I've seen old stills of those horizontal love scenes of mine in three magazines recently," the silver-haired actor chuckled. "The captions say, 'This is how they used to do it.'"

"My movies started censorship—but I think the modern ones are better. Ours were too suggestive."

Lowe and McLaglen's daring dialogue hastened the blue penciling of films, too. After their immortal Quirt and Flagg 25 years ago, they were teamed in 10 other pictures.

Lowe and McLaglen plan to be reunited in a detective movie next year—their first picture together since "Call Out the Marines" in 1941.

For the past 10 years, Lowe has made an occasional movie and raised grapes on a ranch. He recently sold the ranch to live in a Bel-Air bachelor home that is modern, but it still holds touches of Hollywood's elegant past.

Lowe wears his famed widow's peak and monogrammed shirts and has a Chinese valet to serve him telephone messages on a silver plate. A table holds a large photograph of the late Lillian Tashman, Lowe's beautiful actress wife, and a framed still of the last scene from "What Price Glory."

"When Vic and I act together next year our dialogue will have the salt taken out of it," the veteran actor said.

Man's Curiosity Spurs Science To Faster Pace

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Washington, D. C., coed found a piece of a fish head believed to be 250,000,000 years old.

Astronomers completed more than half of a gigantic survey of the universe out to some 1,800 quintillion miles.

Diggers in Germany found a 250,000-year old skull which may be the missing link between the Heidelberg ape man and true man. In fact, the National Geographic Society said today, curious human beings did more kibitzing in space, the sea, and the earth in 1952 than ever before.

They also climbed higher—if official confirmation is forthcoming that a Swiss team reached, as reported, a point only 150 feet from the top of 29,000-foot Mount Everest.

The sky survey is being sponsored at Palomar Mountain, Cal., by the Geographic Society and the California Institute of Technology. The society, having explored about all there is of the earth's surface, explained it is now taking on "outer space and the depths of the seas."

Not all of 1952's achievements, however, were the results of such grandiose undertakings. The coed (Thelma Cook) who discovered the ancient fish was merely participating in a school geology field trip.

smiling through the pain of her affliction.

"Doctors told my husband to expect screaming fits, and they told me I'd be better off sometimes if I did scream. But I'm not made that way."

Garrett said he had been preparing himself for the possibility that his wife would die. "I've thanked God for the people who have written. They have built up my morale. But about the time you think that you're prepared for it... you just don't know."

Girls Are Either Smarter, Or Else Can't Catch Men

CINCINNATI, O. (UP)—The women are either getting smarter or they can't catch a man, even in Leap Year.

Whatever the reason, more of the young beauties are staying in college and that in part accounts for the surprisingly high college enrollment this year.

Dr. Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati, says in his 33rd annual survey of college enrollment that attendance this year totals 1,293,524 full-time students, only 1.5 per cent less than in 1951. There are 462,248 part-time students, making a total of 1,755,772 persons attending 430 universities and four-year colleges in this country.

Dr. Walters said there are two big reasons for college enrollment staying much higher than predicted. They are:

1. An unexpected upsurge of men and women freshman enrollment.
2. "The academic persistence in the three upper years of college women."

Last June's high school graduation classes were smaller, Dr. Walters said in School and Society, weekly educational magazine. But "No one predicted what came to pass in September" when 11.5 per cent more men and 8.1 per cent more women enrolled as freshmen.

Dr. Walters said in a report released Sunday night that the answers for higher freshman enrollment are economic and the world situation.

The draft deferments given young men who do well in college was listed as only a "probable factor" in the increased freshman enrollment.

Dr. Walters said that the enrollment of women gained 1.5 per cent while male enrollment dropped 2.9 per cent, probably because thousands of war veterans were graduated last year.

Only a "tiny fraction" of present freshmen are Korean war veterans, he said.

The gains in women's enrollment are chiefly in co-educational institutions. While this is a break for the men, it also indicates that the women's college have about as many women as they can accommodate.

document supporting belief that St. Peter was buried under the main altar of the great church in Rome which bears his name. And at Nazareth was uncovered the ruins of a church in which, the society said, Christ himself may have preached.

Imports Of Rice 'Unnecessary'

MANILA (AP)—The executive secretary of the National Federation of Filipino Farmers predicts that the Philippines will not have to import rice next year.

Secretary Buenaventura C. Lopez based his prediction on increased rice production, light demand for imported cereals, and large scale use of fertilizers supplied by the U.S. Mutual Security Agency.

Taft's Influence On Labor Law Is Sure To Be Felt

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft is expected to put his imprint on changes in the Taft-Hartley Act next year even if he passes up the chairmanship of the Senate Labor Committee.

The Ohio senator, virtually assured of election as Senate majority leader, has indicated he is willing to give up his seniority claim to the Labor Committee chairmanship. It was from that post that he piloted the Taft-Hartley law to passage over President Truman's veto in 1947.

Taft said last week that if he does not take the labor chairmanship it probably will go to Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.), third ranking Republican on the committee. Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.), whose seniority puts him between Taft and Smith, is expected to head the Agriculture Committee.

But no matter who becomes chairman, Taft still will be the ranking GOP member of the committee. From that position and as Senate Republican floor leader, he will be in a position to play a dominant part in the passage of new legislation.

While he is willing to accept amendments to meet union complaints against the law, the Ohioan is also determined to keep what he regards as the basic provisions now in it.

President-elect Eisenhower is committed to seek amendments to the law but has not yet come up with any detailed proposals.

One early Eisenhower supporter, a GOP senator who asked not to be identified, expressed the belief today that Taft's withdrawal from the labor chairmanship would make it easier for both him and the new administration to handle labor legislation.

This belief was not based on the assumption that Taft would lose interest in labor legislation. It was based on the theory that Taft, as the principal author of the Taft-Hartley Act, has become a symbol of the six-year controversy over the law.

It was understood that Smith would not be anxious to accept the Labor Committee chairmanship because of his greater interest in the work of the Foreign Relations Committee.

However, the New Jersey senator would be under much pressure, at least from Taft, to accept the job. The next in line is Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-N.Y.), who broke with Taft over labor legislation in 1949.

Friends of Taft doubt that he would be willing to let the chairmanship pass to Ives.

Smith and Taft have closely paralleled voting records on labor legislation.

Paul Robeson Is Among 'Winners' Of Stalin Prize

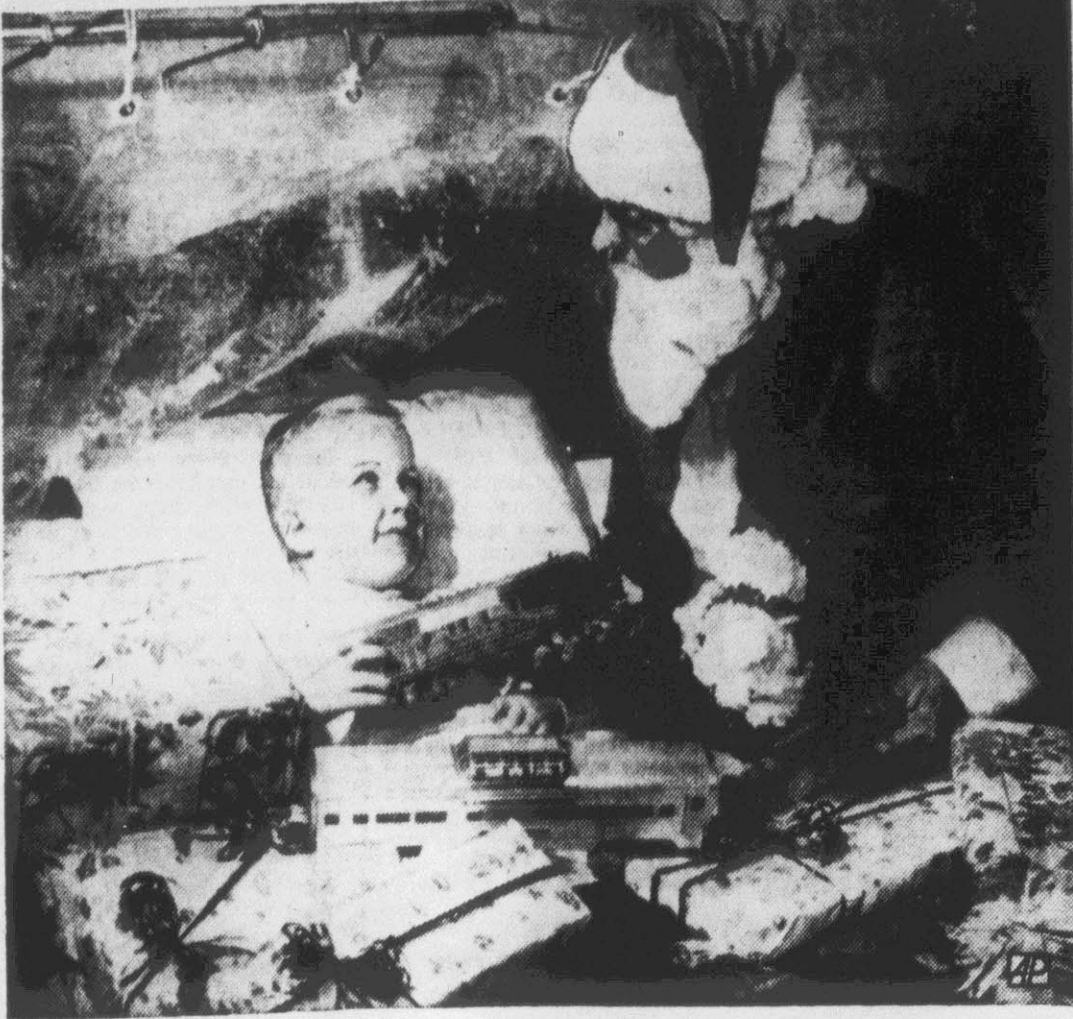

MOSCOW (UP)—American singer Paul Robeson and six other persons were awarded Stalin peace prizes yesterday on the Russian premier's 73rd birthday.

Journalist-author Ilya Ehrenburg, who toured the United States after the war, was the only Soviet citizen ever to receive the prize established on the 70th birthday of Premier Josef Stalin.

The awards for "strengthening peace among nations" were made by a special international committee in a ceremony coinciding with the end of the Vienna Peace Congress. They are worth 100,000 rubles (about $25,000 at the official exchange rate) each.

Front pages of all Soviet newspapers were devoted to the awards.

Women In The Church

Women in the Church
By Mary Fowler

As quickly as the United Nations and its military commanders will permit, American women missionaries are being added to the church-related forces now serving in Korea. Eight Presbyterian and seven Methodist women missionaries are now on the field (in addition to more than 20 men) and more are in the process of being certified for appointment and sailing. Some of the women are teachers, and others are nurses; others are trained for special ministry among the amputees of the civilian population and for aid in the distribution of relief goods and the caring for orphans and refugees.

United Church Women — organization of most of the active Protestant lay women in the United States — is enlisting its members in personal pledging of work against racial discrimination, especially within the churches. It is part of their wider campaign for human rights in the local community and in the world. The pledge signers say: "I will work against all forms of discrimination; will threatened. Will endeavor to interpret to my church the implications of human rights, especially as they apply to the inclusion of all Christians in its life and program; will strive for the integration of all Christian women, of work of my local council; will be guided in my everyday attitudes and actions by my belief that all persons are children of God."

Instances Of Waste In Armed Services Cited

WASHINGTON (UP)—House investigators who visited 15 big military construction projects found the armed forces wasting money on all sorts of costly "frills and extras."

Specific cases in which the Army, Navy and Air Force have been free-handed with the taxpayers' dollars were cited in a blistering report filed by a House government operations subcommittee which went hunting for waste in the $9,000,000,000 military construction program.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Porter Hardy Jr. (D-Va.), also accused the military in some instances of giving Congress "inaccurate, incomplete or misleading information" to get funds for facilities they could well do without. "This raises the serious question," it said, "as to whether the present emergency is being used to obtain additional plant facilities which are nice but not really urgent."

The defense department had "no immediate comment" on the findings.

The subcommittee, which visited military installations in 12 states, said the armed services have made "notable achievements" in expanding military facilities since the outbreak of the Korean war. But it added: "Unfortunately, directives requiring that the planning and design of construction proceed on the most austere basis... have too often received only secondary attention."

The subcommittee made a series of recommendations for economy in the construction program—including elimination of "frills and extras" and wider standardization of materials and facilities, particularly barracks and warehouses.

Hardy said a "sincere and diligent" effort by military planners to carry out the recommendations would result in "large savings to the taxpayers... without weakening our defense structure."

The harshest criticism fell on the Air Force and Navy for the "plush features" found at some of their expanded and new bases. It said it found "some evidence that inter-service rivalry for long-term permanent construction has overshadowed the desire to get the most defense for the least cost."

The group's principal recommendation was that the Defense Department draw up standard plans for barracks which comprise a large percentage of the military building budget. It found that each of the services was paying a different price for barracks, with designs varying widely, although they all serve the same purpose.

As one of the more flagrant examples of "overlaborate" construction, the subcommittee cited the new Limestone Air Force Base in Maine. The operations building, it said, "would compare favorably with the most modern at any private airport." Plush features in the training building "included folding plastic partitions in the classrooms and expensive doors similar to those used in the modern office buildings."

As an example of a standard plan not adapted to local conditions, the group cited new type

Policeman's Lot Has Its Comedy Side, Sometimes

CHICAGO (UP)—The policeman's lot sometimes was a funny one in 1952, as indicated by these reports:

In January, police searching for a patient who wandered away from the Western, W. Va., State Mental Hospital found him working as an attendant at the Columbus, O., State Mental Hospital.

At Des Moines, Ia., in February, an irate man complained he was ordered off a city bus. Investigation showed he boarded it with a dog, two pigeons, a bass drum and a dish pan full of popcorn. The same day, at Oklahoma City Okla., larceny charges were filed against a housewife who slipped into the bosom of her dress two pounds of bacon, three pieces of steak, three veal cutlets and two slices of lunch meat.

In March, J. E. Eden of Atlanta, Ga., had a hunch his salvage company might be broken into and spent the night there armed with a shotgun. He went to sleep. When he awoke the shotgun was missing.

At Ashland City, Tenn., last April, a cripple on crutches and a one-armed man broke out of the Cheatham County Jail.

In May, at Cleveland, O., the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. asked police to help find who was robbing one of its pay telephone coin boxes. The phone was located in Central Police Station. At Detroit, while Acting Mayor Louis C. Mirani was telling a civic association meeting that crime in the city was on the downgrade, someone stole his car.

In June, at Knoxville, Tenn., police reported that thieves broke into a lumber company and stole nothing but a kitchen sink.

In July, at McEesport, Pa., a woman was charged with driving a power lawn mower while drunk and running it into a freight train.

At Chicago last August, Mrs. Gladys Berman saw a burglar and rushed to a telephone to call police. The burglar took the phone away from her and directed officers to another address. An Alverton, Pa., man was held for stealing a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad siding—7,100 pounds of steel rails. In September, Memphis, Tenn., detectives sought the person who cashed a check at a department store drawn on the "East Bank of the Mississippi." A Chicago Bible student was arrested on charges of changing $1 bills into $5 bills by drawing a black beard on George Washington.

Willing To Spend Holiday In Jail

MINEOLA, N. Y. (UP)—William Steward, a dishwasher, is perfectly willing to spend his Christmas holiday in the Nassau County jail. Arraigned on an intoxication charge Sunday, Steward said "You get the best Christmas dinner here."

Buddies Of Killed Soldier-Son Are Never Forgotten

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Mrs. Susan Ghisla, who lost her son in World War I, never forgets his buddies, especially around Christmas time.

The kindly Gold Star mother puts aside personal grief to bring Christmas joy to hospitalized servicemen. She's just completed a week-long baking project in her home here in which she turned out 800 cookies, 140 miniature pasty Santa Clauses, 140 candy-filled Christmas trees and 144 popcorn balls.

The whole batch is on its way to Pennsylvania servicemen's hospitals at Altoona, Aspinwall, Butler, Lebanon and Perry Point.

A CHOICE SPOT
MIAMI (AP)—Most horse racing observers prefer to sit at the finish line. But not John B. Campbell Jr., Hialeah steward and racing secretary of the New York tracks. Campbell likes to watch the horses run from a spot high in the grandstand away from the finish line.

One Family; Father Lost No Joy This Christmas In

By VIVIAN SANDE
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—The weeks before Christmas should be a happy time of year. But the Silver family of the Bronx doesn't have any heart for Christmas this year.

To Chanka Silver, six-year-old daughter and 13-year-old Norman, the green trees that line the streets and the shopping districts near their home look like dark shadows. Joyous Christmas carols bring tears to their eyes. No one in the family can think of exchanging presents.

But if you've seen Jacob Silver, you can change all that.

Mr. Silver is a medium tall man, about five feet nine inches. He has light brown hair, brown eyes, a scar on his left arm, and a little mark on his face. He's a mechanic by trade, so maybe he's working somewhere in your neighborhood... or looking for work. And he couldn't have been around for more than six months.

Six months ago, Jacob Silver left home, a dejected man. His business had failed.

"He loves all of us," his tearful wife said, "but he left home." "I got a note from him from Charlotte, N. C.," she added. "It was a few days after he left. He said he'd ruined our lives with his failure, but he'd try to make up for it. He enclosed a small check and said he'd send more when he could."

The family hasn't heard from Jacob Silver since.

"His mind must have snapped," said his wife, "he thought we'd be better off without him. He can't know what he's done to us."

"A week ago Sunday, Isaac, our 17 year old son, went to look for him. He packed a few things and left early in the morning. He didn't take any money. He left me a note saying he couldn't think about his school work anyway, so he figured he might as well look for his father."

Isaac hitchhiked south and got a job in a garage in Miami to keep him while he looks. He thinks his father is in Miami. He writes his mother every day. And in his last letter he promised, "If I don't find daddy by Christmas, I'll come home."

"I know he's all right," says Mrs. Silver, "but I worry about him just the same. He should be in school."

Mrs. Silver says she's thought about trying to make the holidays happier for the children, but it's impossible. She says whenever she asks Norman or Lana what they want for Christmas she gets the same answer:

"I want my father more than anything else in the world."

ant than property values. Both have that rare sense of humor which is not at all related to just being funny, bug which marks the distinction between man on the one hand and lower animals or machines on the other. Civilization cannot survive without machines. So long as there are judges like John Parker and Buck Harris to maintain and preserve the human equation there is no reason for fear that either legality or machinery, or the combined attack of both, will destroy the essential principles of democracy.

LEARNED IN SCHOOL

DENVER (AP)—A pair of teenage boys were arrested on suspicion of cashing $205 worth of bogus checks at downtown stores. They told officers they learned in their arithmetic class how to write checks.

'Amazed' By Free China Air Power

MANILA (AP)—Philippine pilots who returned recently from a goodwill mission to Formosa expressed amazement at the growing strength of the Chinese Nationalist Air Force.

Col. Benito Ebuon, commander of the Philippine force, said the Chinese Air Force should be considered "the one bulwark in Asia that could turn back the tide of Communism."

He asserted the strength of the entire Philippine Air Force is "only a drop in the bucket compared with their strength." The airman added that a Communist attack on Formosa would prove "very costly."

General Freight Rate Hike OK'd

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—A general rate increase of 15 per cent on railroad freight moved within Minnesota goes into effect Jan. 2, 1953.

The increase, granted by the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission on the plea of railroads, will bring rates on shipments within Minnesota to the same level as those authorized for interstate shipment by the Interstate Commerce Commission on April 11, 1952.

It is estimated the new rates will bring in an additional $2,857,000 in revenue to railroads.

New Flying Suit For RAF Pilots

NEW YORK (AP)—Pilots of the Royal Air Force will soon be issued new flying suits designed to meet needs of the modern airman, reports the British Information Service here.

The suits will combine the present pressurized "gravity suit" which enables the pilot to make high-speed turns without blacking out, the pressure waistcoat for maintaining life at high altitudes, and the flotation gear and padding for protection against forced landings at sea.

Contrary to popular belief, the buildings do not sway very much in high winds; the Empire State Building in New York City from the vertical only about 1.49 inches in a 100 mph wind which blows for two or more hours.

Bible Words to Live by

MATTHEW 5:13-14:—"You are the salt of the earth; but if salt has lost its taste, how can its saltiness be restored? ... You are the light of the world. A city set on a hill cannot be hid."

Christian character is the essential saving quality in our world. It is always dependable as a consistent and positive power in determining the moral quality of society. It demonstrates an unmistakable and a courageous faith in the moral and spiritual order of the world ruled by a God of justice, righteousness, love and mercy.

Jesus made Christian character central and basic. His followers "are salt" and "are light." It would have been entirely different if he had said "You have salt" and "You have light." There is a vast difference in having an external something in our possession and in being something ourselves. The language of Jesus is clear. It requires us to be "salt" and to be "light."

Christian character is constant and unchanging. It faithfully expresses and reveals its Christlike qualities in every situation and under all circumstances. It can never conform to the worldly ways of convenience and expediency. It reveals Christian brotherliness at all times to all persons.

Wobbly Stripes For Some Candy Canes

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—One batch of candy canes may show up in Christmas stockings with slightly wobbly stripes.

Reason: Two kids in a candy factory.

Barbara Duane, 6, and Joseph Winter, 5, walked into the candy factory at 10 a.m. Two hours, four candy canes and seven chocolates (five of which Joseph ate) later, they went home to lunch.

"I'm not hungry," was Joseph's only comment as he departed.

Upstairs in the Fanny Farmer factory, Edward Groia, a hard candy maker, was cleaning up a shapeless mound of green and white striped candy. Ordinarily, he would have pulled the huge stick of hot peppermint batter cradled in canvas into a neat strand, to be snipped with scissors by a helper on his right and curved into canes by two women sitting across from him.

But trying to answer the questions of two inquisitive first graders is not an ordinary job in the day of a candy maker.

"How many candy canes does he make?" blue-eyed Barbara asked from a point approximately two inches from the green and white stream. Groia started nervously.

"This batch makes 1,560 canes, 24 to the pound," he said with satisfaction, then muttered, "unless something happens." Joe was just under his left elbow by this time.

"That's more kids than we have in the first grade," Barbara volunteered, studying the growing mound of hardened canes.

"I like red ones better," muttered Joe, a solemn, brown-eyed boy carefully dressed in a white shirt and navy blue necktie. He readily accepted the offer of a green and white candy cane, however, which he polished off with a few minutes of concentrated crunching.

The two children, who go to school in the Bronx neighborhood near the candy factory, were given the morning off from school to take advantage of the candy maker's invitation.

"Where's the chocolate candy?" Barbara inquired, nudging against Groia, who by this time had given up and shut off his machine.

He pointed to another room in the candy-scented plant, and Barbara and Joe, their sticky hands linked, headed in that direction. On the way they passed the lollipop machine. They stuffed three in their pockets.

Oil Union Seeks Members' Views

CLEVELAND, O. (U.P.)—Some labor unions have been attacked for being undemocratic, but the CIO Oil Workers' Union is giving its members a chance to let off steam in a scientific way.

Thousands of OWU members in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, been asked to fill in a 70-point questionnaire on all phases of their union — its procedures, offices, contracts, and the like.

No one needs sign his name to the questionnaires which will be turned over to the University of Chicago's Industrial Relations' Center for analysis.

"This is the first time in history that an important labor union and a university have cooperated to give rank-and-file members a chance to express their opinions confidentially and to receive a scientific analysis of those opinions," said Warner Bloomberg, Jr., who is directing the poll for the university.

OWU officers call the survey an unusual experiment in union democracy and plan to extend the investigation throughout their union after the present sampling has been completed in about a year.

"This is a real grassroots affair," said Carl J. Peterson, president of Local 395 here. "When the results are analyzed and sent back to us, every member will receive a printed copy."

Beer Drinking In Minnesota Is Up

Receipts show that Minnesotans drank more beer during the first 11 months of 1952.

Liquor taxes for the period amounted to $10,058,442, a drop of $87,209 compared with the same period in 1951. Beer taxes totaled $2,439,439, an increase of $53,356.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

By FAGALY and SHORTEN

effusive. There is a nice, bright honest way of acknowledging the gift you don't like without insulting the sender. Here's an example:

Dear Aunt Hattie,

The dictionary you sent me is a perfect gift for a poor speller like me. It came in the nick of time as I am working on an involved essay at the moment. It should be more readable with all the words spelled right, thanks to you.

4. If a young man you see often gives you a gift, then it is not necessary to write him a note, unless you want to tell him how much you are enjoying his remembrance. Of course it goes without saying that if your gift from a boy friend comes through the mail that you will acknowledge it promptly and appreciatively.

5. Here is an example of a note thanking the giver for something you truly like:

"I just can't wait until I use my wonderful new skis (or ice skates). I sure am hoping for a snowy winter so that I can keep them busy every minute. Just as soon as I can get to it, I am planning to have them initialed. It was a surprise to receive them and grand of you to remember me."

6. If you received a present from a beau and your parents do not approve of it, and request that you return it do so as once. A young boy acquaintance is likely to give a gift that is not in particularly good taste, considering it is for a casual friend. Gifts of jewelry, lingerie and other personal items—except perfume—are marked taboo by most parents. In that case, do not send a wordy lengthy explanation or pass on a sharp rebuke to him. Your letter could be something like this:

Dear Jim,

"It was very thoughtful of you to remember me at Christmas. My

PITT — CHRISTMAS DAY and FRIDAY!
DORIS DAY and RAY BOLGER are starred in the Technicolor Musical "APRIL IN PARIS."

parents think that this gift is far too elaborate (or too personal) for me to accept, but thank you for your kindness."

"I hope your holidays were pleasant, and that I shall be hearing from you soon."

7. You might be tempted to write a sarcastic letter to some member of your family who has picked the all-wrong gift for you. Please don't. Or if you do, put it away for several days. Re-read it and the chances are that you will not send it.

FLEES CHICKEN JOB
BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — A 16-year-old boy ran away from a job of plucking chickens for his father.

New Mixing Chamber At Utilities Plant

Greenville Utilities employees are shown engaged in construction of a new mixing chamber at the utilities plant. The above group is at work on a wall of the new mixing chamber, which, when completed, will give the plant a capacity of 6,000,000 gallons of water each 24-hour period. Construction on the mixing chamber began this year, and is part of an overall project started in 1947. Cost of the mixing chamber, including installing equipment, is approximately $125,000. An estimate for the entire project is $525,000. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee.)

A portion of the mixing chamber at the Greenville Utilities plant is shown after being completed recently. The plant now has a 24-hour capacity of 3,000,000 gallons, but when the new chamber is completed in its increased capacity will be upped to 6,000,000 gallons. As water demand grows, only cost of expansion to meet Hardee)

Winter Ushered In With Day Of Blustery Cold

By UNITED PRESS
The first full day of winter began today in blustery style. There was snow in the Rocky Mountains, snow along with sleet, rain and ice in the Midwest, fog in Great Lakes and Ohio Valley regions and rain in the East.

Gusty winds blew in the Southwest, lifting tons of dust from the ground, and the sun shone brightly over Southern Florida and Southern California.

Winter started officially at 4:45 p.m. EST yesterday, and indications were that it was here to stay. More heavy snow was forecast in the Midwest, Iowa, which bore the brunt of the weather's violence during the weekend could expect from three to six inches of new snow. Nebraska and Kansas braced for similar amounts of snow, and forecasters warned that winds up to 35 miles an hour would whip it into drifts.

The fog stranded 10,000 airline passengers at Chicago airports, many of whom were homeward bound for the Christmas holiday. Few planes took off "at their own risk," airport officials said, and many incoming planes were forced to land at St. Louis and Kansas City.

Planes at the Greater Pittsburgh Airport also were grounded by the fog.

Twenty-one Iowa communities were isolated during the storm there, which cut off service to 1,200 rural telephone stations.

Small craft warnings were issued in the Gulf of Mexico from Brownsville, Tex., to Cameron, La., as easterly winds of 20-35 miles per hour shifted early today to northwesterly at 25-35 miles an hour.

Local dust storms in Texas limited visibility to as little as a mile in Lubbock, Midland, Big Spring, El Paso and Amarillo, with winds reaching 50 miles an hour.

Temperatures dropped as low as 26 degrees in Tulsa, Okla.

New York was likely to remain overcast following rain, with a high near 40 degrees. Most of the Southeast was chilly following heavy rains, and the winds in Memphis, Tenn., landed Robert Jacobs in jail.

Jacobs, a bearded horseman, attempted to swim his mount across the Mississippi River, but he was arrested on a charge of exposing the horse to the "mercy of cold winds."

Southern California was hit yesterday by a hail and rain storm before the weather cleared. But in Miami, Fla., 75 degree temperatures drew throngs to the beaches.

Weather forecasters did not issue a long range prediction for the three months of winter, but forecast a white Christmas north of a line from the Texas Panhandle to Virginia.

Purdue Planning Link In Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Professor R. Norris Shreve of Purdue University is scheduled to come to Formosa to plan an affiliation of the Taiwan College of Engineering with Purdue.

The Mutual Security Agency here says Purdue will send a team to Formosa for two years residence at the college. The plan is designed to provide well-trained technical personnel for service here.

Fatal Plane Had Recent Check-Up

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UP)—The giant C-124 Globemaster which crashed at Moses Lake, Wash., killing 86 airmen, received a 50-hour service check a "few days" before it crashed, Douglas Aircraft officials said today.

The Douglas-manufactured transport plunged to the ground moments after it took off Saturday, resulting in the world's worst air disaster.

Company officials said the plane was given a 1,000-hour inspection check "within the last month" and passed a 50-hour service check a "few days ago."

Until 1834, such beasts as lions and leopards were kept in a royal menagerie in the Tower of London.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

The home owner, who is now planning to build a new garage, a porch, dormers in the attic, or to make any other major alterations to his house, is not going to feel lonesome in tackling the project. More than a billion dollars was spent this year on this kind of work—additions and alterations to non-farm dwellings. Next year this amount, plus another $50 million, will be spent on the same kind of work.

This is based on a joint forecast by the Departments of Labor and Commerce in Washington. Their estimates make no allowances for repairs and minor improvements—such as painting, putting on a new roof, finishing basement playrooms, buying screen or storm windows and the innumerable other items that lure the householders' dollars.

The forecast is based on experience with figures shown in work requiring building permits. For this reason the farmer is left out of the picture. He's a free man, needing no permit.

Anyone planning on buying a new house will probably find plenty to choose from. The building boom in general is expected to continue. More than a million new houses were built again this year—several years in a row now—and this in spite of restrictions on materials and mortgage loans. With restrictions now eased, equally as many new houses are in prospect for 1953, even though the housing shortage is supposed to be whiped out in most places.

Various new materials are coming into the market to make it easier to improve our houses. One is going to simplify the finishing of that extra bathroom upstairs. It's a plastic bathtub that weighs only 17 pounds. The plastic is reinforced with fiber glass to keep the tub from bulging when Uncle Bulge gets into it. It is said to be chip-proof, too.

The manufacturers (Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp., Toledo) compare the tub's 17 pounds with the real heavyweights that call for extra strong floor joists. They cite 180 pounds for enameled steel and 350 pounds for enameled cast iron.

This lightness is expected to bring about a saving in labor costs for installation. At the same time the tub is designed to take conventional fittings and fixtures, so your plumber won't lose time scratching his head over how to connect the pipes. The tub comes in four colors and white, in standard sizes and is slated to sell for 10 to 20 per cent less than the regular types.

They say it's swell for a trailer. It may seem like a far cry from Grandma Moses to that new counter-top for your kitchen, but both use the same material—pressed fiber hardboard, which is now available in a new thick form with a plywood core.

Grandma Moses, the famous painter who was discovered when she was 80 years old, has some interesting things to say about this pressed wood that you buy in large sheets at the lumber yard. She says "I use masonite or hardboard to paint on, because it will last many years longer than canvas." She uses the rough textured side of the material.

Now 92, Grandma Moses has written a book, "My Life's History." In it she describes her method of painting. "I saw my masonite board fit the frame," she writes. "I always thought it a good idea to build the sty before getting the pig; likewise with young men, get the home before the wedding." Then I go over the board with linseed oil, then with three coats of flat white paint to cover up the darkness of the board." With that tip we can all try for a masterpiece.

When the makers have virtually welded this material to plywood with only the smooth side out. The plywood core provides sturdy thicknesses ranging from 1/2 to 3/4-inch. This makes it rigid enough for kitchen counter tops, shelves, partitions, sliding doors and various built-ins.

Since all pressed wood is grainless, this new material (Presply) can be sawed in any direction with ease, work it with common wood-working tools, yet takes a very smooth finish of enamel, varnish, or whatever you like. The plywood core holds screws securely.

A big advantage of the material is its hard, smooth surface which is wear and moisture resistant to a high degree.

Erred In Picking Judo Instructor

NEW YORK (UP)—John Giragosian, 27, of Shrewsbury, Mass., who police said attempted to hold up off-duty Fireman George Mitchell, was toppled and disarmed by the former Air Force judo instructor. Giragosian required 30 stitches to sew up a head wound suffered in the fall.

Says AFL Is In Politics To Stay

WASHINGTON (UP)—President George T. Meany says the AFL is in politics to stay, and will even help form a labor party "if that becomes necessary."

His stand is in sharp contrast to the traditional AFL policy, holding that the union's primary concern was the economic welfare of the worker and not politics.

Meany said in a radio interview yesterday (Gannett News Service's "Capitol Memo") that the AFL abandoned its "no politics" tradition in 1948 when "we decided in order to carry out our economic programs we had to go into politics."

This year, for the first time in its history, the AFL officially endorsed a presidential candidate—Democrat Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson.

Inaugural Medal Being Stamped

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Eisenhower inauguration medal is now being stamped out, after being retouched to show a grinning profile of the president-elect.

The Republican Inaugural Committee announced that orders are now being accepted for the bronze medal, which cost $3. No medals will be mailed, however, until early January.

Many Customs Of Yuletide Changed

WASHINGTON (UP)—Many customs around the Yule season have changed since olden days.

True, the custom of bringing trees into the homes goes back to ancient times. Long before the Christian era, worshippers of the sun god associated trees with sacredness.

According to researchers, the people of Egypt celebrated the shortest day of the year by bringing date palms into the house. That was the symbol of life triumphant over death.

In Rome, the Feast of Saturn dining tables, mantels, and buffets.

The greeting "Merry Christmas" began in Britain. The custom of decking the Christmas tree is supposed to have originated in Germany and the Christmas stocking in Belgium or France. Holland claims the origin of Santa Claus, according to ancient history.

Also there is a story that the origin of Santa Claus dates back to Lycia at the beginning of the fourth century. The Bishop of Myra was purported to be wealthy and showered the very poor with his money at Christmas time, saying that the gifts were "from Saint Nicholas." It was, according to legend, in the Scandinavian countries that Santa climbed aboard a sleigh, hauled over the snow by reindeer to deliver gifts. In America, the custom was changed by having the jolly old fat one dropping in on the kiddies via the chimney.

Decoration of the home with mistletoe is another ancient custom, and is believed by many to have originated with the Romans.

The ancient Druids on the sixth day of the moon nearest New Year's had a solemn procession for mistletoe cutting.

The officiating priest used a golden sickle to cut the plant. In those days mistletoe was supposed to keep away the witches. Today, of course, it is an excuse to lure your sweetie under a sprig and give her a kiss.

The poinsettia now a traditional Christmas plant, made its debut in Mexico. This Christmas nearly 2,000,000 poinsettias have been produced in American greenhouses.

Legend surrounds the Christmas rose. A shepherdess named Madelon, upon being told by the wise men of the birth of Christ, was momentarily sad because she had no flowers for the newborn child, so the story goes. She suddenly smelled a sweet fragrance, according to legend, and an angel stood beside her and presented white roses for her to take to Bethlehem. When the Christ Child touched them they were said to have turned pink.

Others are Harry W. Smith, 76, 50 years; Isaac Des Roches, 78, 46 years; and Edward P. Wentworth, 69, 34 years.

EX-SLAVE 103

DENVER (AP)—She used to be a slave shooting flies in the home of the Tennessee colonel who owned her but even now at 103, Mrs. Chaney Myers says "I'm still as supple as a girl."

Plan Spokesman For Government

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt will have an official government spokesman for the first time. According to present plans, the spokesman will receive official information from various ministries and transmit it to the public through news conferences and official statements.

Reporters will then be banned from the foreign ministry except by appointment.

The smaller types of shark are often known as dog fishes.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newfeatures

A GLAMOROUS house for a small lot, this plan features an indoor garden merging with an outdoor window box beneath the large corner windows of its dining room. A built-in vanity in master bedroom, double lavatories in bathroom and a third bedroom suitable for use as a den are among other details. This is plan Y-312 by Herman Young, 115 New Hyde Park Road, Garden City, N. Y. The house, about 31 feet wide, covers 1,232 square feet without porches.

State College's Wolfpack has shown during the last week that it is still the basketball team to beat in the Southern Conference. They offered as proof two very convincing displays of basketball power against George Washington University and Texas Tech.

Many North Carolina fans were about ready to consign Everett Case's team to the "has-beens" column when Wake Forest pulled its mighty 51-50 upset. Since then, the Wolfpack has been threatened but that's all.

Of course, the real test of their strength will come after Christmas when they tackle the meat of their Southern Conference card. As has been the case so often in the past, however, we reckon the Wolfpack will take care of itself—regardless of how rough the going gets.

Closer to home, the East Carolina Pirates have very definitely stamped themselves as the team to beat in the North State Conference. Their three straight wins (by convincing margins) over conference teams has put them solidly in front of the other eight members of the small college league.

Like State, East Carolina has its main tests waiting for the post-Christmas period. After Christmas, they'll have to take on Elon, High Point, Western Carolina, Appalachian, and the three teams they've already met in addition to traditional rival Atlantic Christian.

Elon is expected to be the most serious threat to the pennant hopes of Coach Howard Porter's Buccaneers. The Christians have been bouncing Ben Kendall back to lead them and the Kokomo Kid is just as hot as he has been in the two previous years.

The Christians have lost Don Halthcock, their fine pivot man, but sophomore Der Atkinson is moving along at a pace that tends to make fans forget their old favorite.

Both High Point and Western Carolina can cause a lot of trouble for conference teams before the year is out. The Panthers looked rather impressive in their early season starts but they really caught it on the chin last week when they moved into Kentucky and Tennessee for a three game series.

In Kentucky, the Panthers were all but barbed by Morehead State Teachers College and Union College. In Tennessee, East Tennessee did little better by them. They were glad to get back to the comparative safety of High Point where they'll rest until after Christmas.

Western Carolina can't be counted out of the running because of the presence of two players: Ronald and Jim Jordan. Rogers is the hot-shot forward who specializes in "impossible" shots to the extent that he made Little All-America two years ago. Jordan was perhaps the most sought after high school basketball player in the state last year as a forward-center for Little Welcome High School.

Just how strong the western North State teams are is something that can't be very easily reckoned in these parts. Thus far, the Pirates have had the advantage of seeing their opponents in action before having to step out onto the floor against them. There will come the day, however, when the Pirates are going to have to step onto a court comparatively "cold." That's when the acid test will be made.

But we aren't worried too much about the Pirates. They've got the experience, the height, and—perhaps most important—they've got a good bench to carry them over the rough spots. Every member of the squad has had some action this year and not one of them has been anything but a good college basketball player.

The next game for the Pirates is the January 6 contest with Carolina. If the Pirates can get past the Tar Heels, they might have the opening they want to move into competition on a larger scale. A lasting series could very easily grow out of that dedication game with Carolina.

That, to us, seems "right and proper" since both teams are state supported schools and since both are much-better-than-average in basketball.

Alabama Team Has An Honorable Pass Thief

By JAMES W. GUNTER
United Press Sports Writer
TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UP)—Pre-Orange Bowl warning to Syracuse: beware of Cecil Ingram, an honorable thief.

The slender Alabama sophomore safetyman stole more passes thrown by opponents than any other man in the Southeastern Conference this year.

Alabama Coach Harold (Red) Drew is counting heavily on Ingram and his fellow members of the defensive platoon to take the starch out of the Syracuse passing game Jan. 1 in Miami.

Ingram, a 19-year old Tuscaloosa boy, intercepted 10 passes during the regular season to tie the conference record set by Bobby Wilson of Mississippi in 1948.

He raced 163 yards with the interceptions and two of these were carried for touchdowns.

The Alabama defenders snagged 24 opponents' passes during 1952 and also recovered 14 of their foes' bobbles.

Drew, whose current squad earned him a two-year contract extension with a reported raise in pay earlier this month, calls his boys the best team at Alabama since 1934 when the Crimson Tide defeated Stanford in the Rose Bowl.

By 1934 the Tide already had become a bowl power. The Orange Bowl match will, Syracuse will be the 11th New Year's Day appearance for an Alabama team since 1926. Southern California is the only other club in the nation with such a record. Southern Cal also will be playing its 11th bowl game next month. Coupled with this year's alert defense is a high-powered backfield which scored 264 points against 11 for opponents. Senior Bobby Marlow, All-Southeastern Conference halfback who broke the Alabama ground-gaining record, led the way.

"Marvelous" Marlow plunged 970 yards from scrimmage and averaged better than five yards every time he carried the ball.

Syracuse Coach Ben Schwartz said his Orangemen will need at least three touchdowns to outscore the Tide backfield after he watched Alabama roll over Auburn in the final game of the season.

Neither Drew nor any member of his staff had a chance to scout Syracuse this year, but the Alabama coach has been studying movies of the Orangemen in action.

One Alabama eleven has been running Syracuse plays, including those from the tricky unbalanced line, against the rest of the team in practice.

Drew said he will give the Crimson a day off for Christmas and the squad will fly to Miami Friday for a week of Florida workouts. It will be the second Miami trip in three months for the Tide, which beat the University of Miami, 21-7, in the Orange Bowl Stadium Oct. 3.

Alabama goes against Syracuse with a record of nine wins and two defeats. Both Alabama victors—Tennessee and Georgia Tech—have bowl engagements of their own.

Ticket Sales Boom For January 6 Dedication Game

By JIMMY ELLIS

Reflector Sports Writer

Given an enforced—and expected—idleness by the cancellation of an exhibition game in Washington last Friday night, East Carolina College's basketball Pirates had to content themselves today with playing practice games—something they will do until January 6 when they swing back into action against the University of North Carolina Tar Heels.

The Pirates were slated to meet Atlantic Christian College last Friday night in the feature attraction of the dedication ceremonies at the new Washington High School gym. The game was called off, however, when Washington officials ran into an unexpected problem in setting up the bleachers inside the new structure. Delivery of the bleachers was delayed for almost a week for unexplained reasons and after they finally arrive, they couldn't be set up in time for the ceremonies.

There has been considerable talk—nothing more—about the game being called at a later date, possibly January 2. However, no formal announcements have been made by either of the participating colleges and Washington officials and it's highly doubtful that original plans will be followed.

The Pirates will work out today and tomorrow before finally leaving school for the Christmas holidays. Other students were dismissed last Friday until January 5 but members of the basketball team are being given plenty of opportunity to retain the form which has brought them three straight victories.

An advance sale of tickets for the Carolina game on January 6 is about the heaviest the college athletic department has ever had. There are still some tickets available for the game but they are going fast and the game is expected to be a sellout long before the playing date. The first basketball meeting of the two schools will serve as a dedication game for East Carolina's million-dollar health and physical education building.

At the present time, the Tar Heels have a 4-0 record in Southern Conference play. Their next scheduled appearance is in the Dixie Classic in Raleigh. They will meet Holy Cross in the first round of the Classic.

Boxing Decision To Go To Court

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Co-managers of Middleweight Joe Giardello plan to take the decision reversal of the Giardello-Billy Graham bout at Madison Square Garden last Friday night to court.

Carmine Graziano, one of Giardello's handlers, said here yesterday that he and Co-Manager Anthony Ferrante, had decided to test the reversal of the ring decision by Robert K. Christenberry, chairman of the New York Athletic Commission.

Giardello was awarded a split decision over Graham at the New York Boxing Center but Christenberry later shifted the scoring on one card and gave the verdict to Graham.

Graziano said Ferrante and he felt they should test the change "to uphold the established rules of the game. If we failed to do so," he added, "Christenberry's procedure might be put into effect by any commissioner in any state who disagreed with any verdict."

Ferrante will go to New York. Graziano said, to consult with an attorney over the steps to be taken to put the reversal to the legal test.

In New York, Christenberry said consideration is being given to possible changes in the current method of scoring fights. One plan now being examined, he said, would have a third judge at ringside replacing the referee. Under the present setup, a New York fight is judged by two judges and the referee on a round-by-round basis.

The whole problem of officials will be discussed at an early date special meeting, Christenberry said.

N. C. State Plays St. Johns In Madison Sq. Garden Tilt

Warren Scores 32 In Stokes Win Over Colerain

By UNITED PRESS

The strong George Washington Colonials face Duke, last year's tournament finalist, in an important Southern Conference basketball game tonight but for the most part, Christmas week scrapping for league teams is scattered.

GW bounced back from a defeat at the hands of North Carolina State last week and rolled up the highest score in its history in beating South Carolina 107 to 69 Saturday night in Washington.

West Virginia, with a 3-2 league record, is expected to add to South Carolina's woes in a two-game series with the Gamecocks, beginning tomorrow night. South Carolina has a 0-2 league record.

North Carolina State, 4-1 in the conference, goes after its eighth win of the season against only one loss in Madison Square Garden tonight against St. Johns. The Wolfpack returns to Raleigh for a game against Dartmouth next Saturday night.

Until Jan. 3, the date that the current co-leaders of the conference—Maryland and North Carolina—square off with their 4-0 marks at Chapel Hill, the biggest show will be the fourth annual Dixie Classic at Raleigh.

The Classic, beginning Dec. 29 for a three-day, 12-game run pits North Carolina State's defending champions, Duke, Wake Forest and North Carolina against Pennsylvania, Holy Cross, Princeton and Brigham Young.

The N. C. State Wolfpack won its third interconference game of the season Saturday night by beating Texas Tech handily 80-55 as Bobby Speight poured in 23 points.

The Pack, after a shaky start, went into a full court press and outran the Texans.

Furman's Purple Hurricane, led by Frank Selvy and Neil Gordon, is still plagued with bad luck. The Hurricane dropped a 73-74 decision to Manhattan College in New York when a timekeeper ruled that final basket by Selvy didn't count.

Southeastern

ATLANTA (UP)—Southeastern Conference basketball teams today showed a record of 30 wins in their 41 games with non-SEC clubs in the first three weeks of their "murder the outsiders" season.

Auburn was perched atop the SEC standings with a record of two conference wins to no losses but this year most SEC teams have ganged up on the rest of the nation and the non-SEC figures were more significant.

Undefeated Louisiana State held its position as a conference power with a record equalling Auburn's 5-0 showing. For all games, although LSU has played but one SEC game.

Mississippi State, with three losses to two wins, and Georgia Tech with three losses, were the only members of the Dixie Dozen falling below the .500 percentage mark on total games played.

Continuing a rough stretch of interconference bouts, LSU tonight takes on Tulsa while Tennessee, with one defeat, travels to Ohio to do battle with Cincinnati.

Mississippi, with four wins and two losses, invades Arkansas State and once-beaten Vanderbilt meets Baylor. In the only other game of the week Georgia meets Columbus University Tuesday night in Tampa, Fla.

Vanderbilt Saturday night beat Texas 84-66; Mississippi fell before Arkansas, 104-72; and Mississippi State went down, 82-52, in a surprise defeat by Florida State. Tulane beat Baylor, 77-60.

Ten other youths in the Newark area were arrested last week in connection with thefts in Delaware, Pennsylvania and Maryland in what police described as a "teen-age gang."

East Carolina Is Leading N. State Basketball Play

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With most North State Conference basketball teams taking their annual holiday break, East Carolina's Pirates were assured of remaining in the top slot in the loop standings until action resumes again Jan. 3.

The Pirates, victors in the three conference games they have played to date, have racked up wins over Guilford, Lenoir Rhyne and Catawba.

Three other North State teams, Elon, Western Carolina and Appalachian, are undefeated in league competition, but have met only one family foe each.

Lenoir Rhyne is next best with a one win, one lost record. Atlantic Christian has won one and lost two, High Point has yet to play its first conference game, and Guilford and Catawba have lost two and three games, respectively, without a win.

Last week's slim round of activity was featured by the three games played on the road by the touring High Point Panthers. High Point, however, failed to register a single victory, bowing to Morehead and Union, in Kentucky, and to East Tennessee.

The only circuit battles of the past week saw Atlantic Christian down Catawba, 71-59, and East Carolina defeat the same Indian quintet, 80-67.

Grid Television Put Before NCAA

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Directors of the Pacific Coast Conference will ask the National Collegiate Athletic Association to allow more local live telecasting of football games.

The NCAA convention in Washington, D. C., next month will be asked to continue the "Game of the Week" national telecast, but to permit the substitution or addition of local game telecasts, providing other NCAA schools in the area would not be hurt attendance-wise.

The PCC meeting yesterday also recommended that the additional games be televised by different stations and different sponsors than "The Game of the Week."

It also suggested that three-man committees in each of the NCAA's eight districts be allowed to select next year's weekly national telecast. They asked that no team appear more than once on the program in one year, and that teams which appeared in 1952's "Game of the Week" be barred in 1953. These suggestions, presumably, were to spread the TV receipts among more schools.

Soccer Coaches Meet In Florida

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—U. S. soccer coaches opened a 10-day forum here today to exchange teaching tips and promote the sport in the South.

The Soccer Coaches Association of America is sponsoring the forum, with Vice President Glenn F. H. Warner, soccer coach at the U. S. Naval Academy, in charge.

Other coaches taking part include William Jeffrey, Penn State; Eric De Groat, North Carolina State; Pat O'Connor, Carnegie Tech; and Bob Dunn, Swarthmore.

Leading college players will help demonstrate techniques and will play an all-star game Dec. 29. They are coming from Navy, N. C. State, Seton Hall, Oberlin, Illinois College, West Chester (Pa.) Teachers and Slippery Rock (Pa.) Teachers.

N.Y. Giants Have Minor Loop Stars

By OSCAR FRALEY

United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:

While they had 22 players on nine of their farm clubs selected on minor league all-stars teams, the New York Giants aren't expecting too much help from their young hopefuls with only five slated to report in the spring.

These are outfielder Jim Rhodes, shortstop Daryl Spencer, catcher Ray Katt, third baseman Rance Pless, but all of them have been up before except Pless, who led the Southern Association at Nashville with a .364 batting mark.

Video viewers next Friday will see one of the most promising young fighters in any division when Vince Martinez comes back after a layoff since June to box Don Williams. Martinez, 23-year old welterweight who laid off with bruised hands, is a dynamic puncher and how he goes against the much more experienced choir singer should make interesting watching.

Delvin Miller, trainer of Direct Rhythm, gives the world's fastest living pacer a 50-50 chance of breaking the all-time 1:55 record of his sire, Billy Direct. The latter set the mark in 1938 and the four-year old Direct Rhythm paced a mile in 1:56 1-5 two months ago.

Wilson Midgets In Santa Claus Bowl

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Green Bay, Wis., is the early favorite in the Santa Claus Bowl football games, largely because of its talented coaching staff.

None of the four midget teams—Green Bay, Greater New York City, Washington and Wilson, N. C.—has met any common opponent.

Green Bay has an all professional coaching staff, all former stars of the Green Bay Packers, headed by Ted Fritsch.

Assisting Fritsch are Charlie Brock and Charlie Tollefson.

The Santa Claus Bowl competitors must not be older than 12 or weigh more than 110 pounds.

The Greater New York team, from the Jamaica section, plays Wilson in the first game of a doubleheader Saturday night. Green Bay then meets Washington, which includes boys from such capital suburbs as Alexandria, Va., Bethesda, Md., and Mt. Rainier, Md.

The winners play for the championship Monday night, after a consolation tilt between the losers.

The bowl tournament is sponsored jointly by the Pop Warner Foundation and the Lakeland Chamber of Commerce.

Nation's Leading College Teams Meet In Yule Games

Big Seven, South-West Conferences Hold Tourneys

NEW YORK (UP)—Christmas week is tournament time in college basketball and the festivities this week are the Big Seven and Southwest Conference tournaments and the holiday festival at New York's Madison Square Garden.

The Yuletide court program opens tonight with a four-team tournament in the University of Detroit's field house with Duquesne the favorite.

The Big Seven shindig starts Friday at Kansas City, including all the teams in that circuit plus Yale University. The Southwest Conference show starts in Dallas the same night and will include all that league's teams plus Arizona. Also starting Friday are two tournaments for smaller colleges, the Hofstra tournament at Hempstead, N. Y., and the Sioux Falls, S. D., tourney.

The Garden festival begins Saturday night with eight invited teams topped by La Salle, the nation's No. 2 ranking team.

Several more tournaments start next Monday including the Sugar Bowl, the Gator Bowl, the Dixie Classic, and the All-College tournament at Oklahoma City.

Regular competition will be slim this week because of the holidays, but the offerings will be select.

Illinois, the nation's top-ranked team, which posted its third win on Saturday night by 75-58 over Butler, will seek its second Big Ten triumph Tuesday night against Minnesota and then will meet Ohio State on Saturday.

Intersectional games will bid for the spotlight with St. Louis especially active. The Billikens meet Brigham Young tonight, fourth-ranked Washington in the only big game on Christmas Day and Washington again on Friday night.

An important intersectional bill is the double header at Madison, Wis., on Friday with California meeting Wisconsin and Iowa playing Oregon. All four teams move to Iowa City the next night with California playing Iowa and Oregon meeting Wisconsin.

North Carolina State, ranked eighth nationally, prepares for next week's Dixie Classic by going against St. John's on Tuesday and Dartmouth on Saturday.

There were several important casualties among the top-ranked teams during the weekend. Meeting unexpected defeat were third-ranked Kansas State, fifth-ranked Oklahoma A and M, seventh-ranked UCLA, and Brigham Young. Seton Hall just managed to beat little St. Peter's of Jersey City, 67-65.

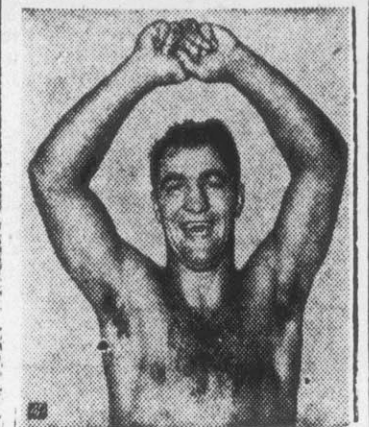

Kansas State, after winning impressively Friday night over Notre Dame, took an 80-63 drubbing from Michigan State. Notre Dame rebounded to ship UCLA conqueror of Michigan State on Friday, 68-60. The Oklahoma Aggies bowed to Colorado, 56-55, in a game that saw 101 free throws and Brigham Young was tripped by Oregon State, 67-65.

La Salle defeated Stanford, 95-80. Earlier in the week, the second-ranked Explorers defeated Dayton, Southwest Missouri, Arizona, and Santa Clara. Southwest Missouri came back from that loss to win the NAIA tournament, beating Portland U. in the final round Saturday, 79-69.

In other games Saturday, Washington downed California, 99-88; North Carolina State routed Texas Tech, 80-55; Holy Cross trounced St. John's, 81-62; Navy crushed Harvard, 85-62; Indiana downed Michigan, 88-60; St. Louis beat Texas Christian, 73-59; St. Bonaventure blasted Siena, 65-46; and Missouri beat Wyoming, 64-58.

Detroit Lions To Face Cleveland In Pro Title Game

By LLOYD NORTHAUD
United Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (UP)—Boach Buddy Parker had a pat on the back for Pat Harder after his Detroit Lions defeated the Los Angeles Rams 31-21 Sunday to move within one game of their first National Football League championship in 17 years.

The victory, which gave Detroit the National Conference crown, qualified the Lions to meet the Cleveland Browns at Cleveland next Sunday for the title. The game will be televised nationally over the Dumont Network at 2 p.m. e.s.t.

Parker termed Harder's performance "one of the greatest I have ever seen in professional football."

The 30-year old fullback scored the first two Detroit touchdowns, kicked four extra points, booted a 43-yard field goal, kicked off after each score and was the most deadly blocker on the Briggs Stadium field.

He carried the ball a total of eight times and picked up 72 yards, an average of nine yards a try, as he outplayed by a wide margin Los Angeles fullback Deacon Dan Towler, who led all runners during the regular season.

Harder's first touchdown came on a 12-yard run around right and in the opening period and gave Detroit a lead it never relinquished. Harder scored another touchdown in the second period when he bulled his way over from the three. Converting after each, he was solely responsible for a 14-0 lead.

Detroit added a touchdown in the third period on a 24-yard pass from Doak Walker to Leon Hart and Harder followed up with his booming field goal. That gave Detroit a 24-7 cushion. The Rams had scored in the final two minutes of the first half on a 15-yard pass from Norm Van Brocklin to end Tom Fears.

Los Angeles made a spirited but futile comeback in the fourth period. Stan West intercepted a Bobby Layne pass on the Detroit 20 and Towler carried over from the five. Vitamin Smith grabbed a punt minutes later and streaked 57 yards for the third Los Angeles touchdown.

As a blocker, Harder played his usual crushing game until he sat out most of the fourth period.

Los Angeles quarterback Bob Waterfield hung up jersey No. 7 after eight seasons in the NFL. One of the most brilliant T-formation quarterbacks of the era, Waterfield saw limited action against the Lions and took a back seat to Van Brocklin. Waterfield attempted nine passes and completed three for a net gain of 13 yards.

Two Detroit linemen were sent to the hospital for X-rays to determine the extent of injuries suffered during the game. Co-captain John Prechik suffered rib injuries and guard Dick Stanfel was believed to have a pulled leg muscle.

North-South Meet In Miami Bowl Game Christmas Night

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Shrine's North-South charity football game in the Orange Bowl Christmas night developed today into keen rivalry among seven coaches pooling their talents for the fifth annual all-star clash.

The North has won only once—a 20-14 decision in 1949—and is anxious to take this one. But what whetted the rivalry was Miami Coach Andy Gustafson's decision for a split T offensive team. Tatum brought along his own All-America quarterback, Jack Scarbath, and his fullback, Ed Fullerton.

Tatum also invited Missouri's Jim Hook, Oklahoma's Buck McPhail, Wake Forest's Joe Koch, and Virginia's Bob Tata. McPhail is a fullback and the others can pass, run, fake, catch passes and do just about

Surprise Passes Bring Victory

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Lions, armed with a surprise passing play that started as an end run and led to the National Conference championship, will try for the National Football League title Sunday.

The Lions, thirsting for a title for the last 17 years, probably will enter the game at Cleveland as favorites. Their opponents will be the Cleveland Browns, who'll represent the American Conference for the third straight year.

The game will be nationally televised but will be blacked out in the Cleveland area.

Coach Buddy Parker's Detroiters reached pro football's biggest game by thumping the defending NFL Champion Los Angeles Rams, 31-21, here yesterday in a post-season game to break a first place divisional tie.

The Lions' surprise weapon was a play used only twice. Each time quarterback Bobby Layne handed off to a halfback who raced wide as if to skirt the end. Ram defenders raced up to tackle the runner and suddenly the halfback unleashed a pass.

As a result two touchdowns were scored. The first time right halfback Bob Hoernschmeyer passed 24 yards to Doak Walker, who reached the Rams 4. Pat Harder bulled into the end zone to give the Lions a 14-0 edge midway of the second period.

In the third period left halfback Walker took the handoff, raced to his right and rifled a pass to end Leon Hart in the end zone. That made it 21-7.

Reports that he was headed for the University of Arkansas today following a meeting with school officials.

Bryant met with members of the university board of trustees and the board of directors of the university athletic association last night and assured them he was "eagerly looking forward to his continued association here."

Reports that Bryant might take the Arkansas Post, made vacant by the resignation of Otis Douglas, were given strength last week when he met with Arkansas officials at Little Rock. But the Wildcat coach indicated last night he is willing to remain at Kentucky as long as his services are wanted.

everything else to make the split T click.

Stu Holcomb of Purdue, the North's head coach, brought in Red Sanders of UCLA to mold a defensive team to shackle the split T. Sanders is drilling the defense in a 4-4-3 specially-gear formation.

The North's attack is labeled the T but Wesley Fessler of Minnesota and Buff Donnell of Boston U. are devising some variations designed to befuddle the South's defense.

The North came up with 26 players—one over the agreed limit of 25—when one invitation was delayed in the mails and both the invited and the substitute showed up.

But the South was not to be outnumbered. Gustafson put in a hurried call for Randy Broyles, Washington and Lee's All-Southern Conference halfback. Broyles is scheduled to arrive today.

Gustafson's assistant in addition to Tatum is Baylor's George Sauer. Both North and South coaching staffs plan to cut practice sessions to one-a-day from now until game time.

Kickoff is 8:15 p.m. and a crowd of about 45,000 is expected, with proceeds going to the Shrine's Crippled Children's Hospitals.

Kroll, Worsham Win Golf Laurels

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Ted Kroll and Lew Worsham, the chunky Oakmont, Pa., veteran, defeated Cary Middlecoff and Skip Alexander, St. Petersburg, Fla., 3 and 1, yesterday in a tense duel for the championship of the $13,000 International Four Ball Tournament.

After the early part of the 35-hole match starting at 8:30 a.m. and winding up finally after sundown, it was almost a man-to-man battle between Kroll and Middlecoff.

PROMISE OF DELIGHT

Chapter Four
Mr. Grainger followed Anthea into the kitchen, and helped himself to radishes from the glass dish on the tray. "By the way, I see the new owners have moved in next door. Have you any idea what they are like?"

"Yes," she said. "Their name is Carliotti. Father and son. The father is Mario Carliotti, the film director."

Mr. Grainger could not have been more astonished if she had told him a wild African tribe had settled in the Avenue. He gazed at her over his carnations.

"Good heavens! Film people. Isn't it exciting?" she said. "Yes," he said cautiously, "I suppose so. Let's hope they won't give wild parties, or anything like that. It's important to your mother. After all, she's at home all day."

Mrs. Grainger came down from the bedroom. She had discarded her smock and tidied for dinner.

"Hello, dear," she gave Mr. Grainger a perfunctory kiss on his thinning hair. They went into the dining room. Unfolding her snowy napkins, she said casually, "It's a lovely evening. Why don't you run us out into the country some where, Gregory? How about going to see the nurseries at Belmont. The roses should be at their best now, and they keep open until sunset."

"I should like a sherry," said Anthea suddenly.

Her father gave her a nervous glance and said, "Certainly dear," and rose to pour a glass at the sideboard. Anthea took it and drank, put down her glass and said, "Mother, Mr. Carliotti asked me in for coffee, as I told you. I'd like to go."

Her mother shrugged. "Why not go some other night? It's so lovely. I thought Jim might care to come with us."

"Mother," Anthea was annoyed to find her voice shaking, "please don't talk over my head. I am going next door for coffee. It would be rude not to go, as I have already accepted."

There was a little pause. Mrs. Grainger looked at Anthea. There was no anger in her face, but there was an expression in the fine dark eyes which Anthea had never seen before. Fear? Impossible. What was there to be afraid of?

"You can do what you like, of course, dear," she said smoothly, "but in my experience, people never mean those casual invitations. I never accept them. I think it's extremely foolish to begin an acquaintanceship before you know a little more about people. What can these people have to offer you?"

"I don't know. They might have a job for me. I want to change jobs."

"A job," repeated her father in surprise. "Aren't you happy at the office?"

"No," said Anthea uncompromisingly. She reached out her hand and patted his. "It's not your fault, or perhaps it is."

Mrs. Grainger busied herself breaking and buttering her roll with an air of faintly exasperated good temper. She said smiling, "Where on earth will you have better chance of getting on than in your father's office?"

"That," said Anthea, is exactly my point."

"Yes," began Mr. Grainger slowly, "I do see that it may cause a certain amount of jealousy. Miss Smithers resents you. But surely in time you'll settle down."

"Oh, nonsense, Gregory," Mrs.

Grainger served the fish and passed his plate, and began to serve Anthea. "It's just some romantic notion that Anthea has got into her head. I suppose you read that paragraph in the paper tonight, and you rather imagine you might be the sprig of spring this Carliotti is looking for?" Her voice and eyes mocked, and Anthea went scarlet, for the thought, light, absurd and barely noticed, had flashed through her head.

"I should forget the whole thing. This man Carliotti may be an excellent film director, but he is a notorious reprobate, with several broken marriages behind him."

Her voice was suddenly hard and bitter. "It's disgusting that he should practically advertise for a young girl for his film. That's what the interview amounted to. She wouldn't be safe very long in his company."

"How do you know?" Anthea said curiously. "You don't know him."

Mrs. Grainger's fork paused for a fraction of a second above her plate. "Everyone knows," she said abruptly. "It's common newspaper talk."

"His son rather indicated as much," said Anthea.

"Did he really?" Mrs. Grainger said crisply. She smiled her rare rather beautiful smile, and Anthea's heart hardened, for her mother's charm was her most dangerous and often most unscrupulously used weapon. "I know you think I'm an old stick-in-the-mud, Anthea, but it's much better to go slowly. If this young man really wants to know you, he'll certainly ask you again."

"I'm sorry, Mummy, but I said I'd go tonight."

Her mother gave a little shrug, but her manner of good-tempered exasperation now had a little edge to it. The good-humored toleration had snapped.

"With regard to the job," said Anthea slowly, "I was thinking something in my own line, secretarial work. And Mother Joe Carliotti was apparently at school here, although he has lived in the States . . . he doesn't seem particularly predatory. So I'm going to have some coffee with him."

Solution of Saturday's Puzzle

At 73, Stalin Finds Self At The Peak Of His Power

By PHIL NEWSOM

United Press Foreign News Editor
Iosif Vissarionovich Djugashvili celebrated his 73rd birthday Sunday.

And for the son of a poor cobbler, Iosif, alias Josef Stalin, could say he hadn't done too badly.

Nor, at 73, was Josef Stalin any rocking chair philosopher, in retirement recommending the young to an early to bed, early to rise routine and ascribing his "longevity" to three short beers each day.

"Longevity" is used here only in the sense of the occupational hazards of Stalin's job. But rather, at 73 Stalin found himself at the peak of his power. A large section of the globe and more than 800,000,000 of its people answered to his command.

He found himself the inheritor and interpreter of Marx, Engels and Lenin.

He was the man who, though still living, already was moving into his niche as major deity of a godless philosophy.

He was a man who could, and did when it suited him, rewrite history.

He was a man whose picture today is saluted more often than Russia's national flag. There would be many personal triumphs to review.

They could include the exile and eventual assassination of Trotsky. They could include the 1932-33 famine in which millions died and which was engineered deliberately by the government to speed the collectivization of farms.

They would have to include the great purge trials of 1936, 1937 and 1938 in which Stalin sent scores of his former comrades to death or into exile.

And, of course, there would be the greatest double-cross of all in which, after World War II, he turned against the nations which had saved him.

But no detail is too small or too great for Stalin.

Thus, as the interpreter of Marx and Lenin he takes that most obscure of Communist phrases, "dialectical materialism."

With it he removes the "moon, June" from romance and turns a young man's fancy solely into admiration for the straight furrow his girl friend turns with a plow.

Thus, too, he rewrites history. Stalin barely shares with Lenin credit for the October revolution.

Trotsky was not a former war commissar but a "subversive."

Enslaved nations "longed" for "liberation" by the Soviets.

It cannot be denied that the son of the poor cobbler and former divinity student has done pretty well for himself. Now it is said that gradually he is moving over, leaving some of the affairs of state to lesser men. He longs to be "father" to us all, even if he must purge us to do it.

China Liberation Action Is Urged

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—A well-known Chinese scholar says the return of the Nationalists to the mainland is the responsibility of the entire free world.

Dr. Hu Shih, one-time ambassador to the United States, said he would be in the packed Armed Forces Stadium. Thousands more heard his address by radio.

He declared liberation of China from Communist rule would deliver 450 million people from bondage and spare them from being utilized for "aggressive" Soviet purposes.

Turkish Army To Study Economy

ISTANBUL (AP)—The Turkish army plans to open a national war college this year to teach such subjects as national and international economy.

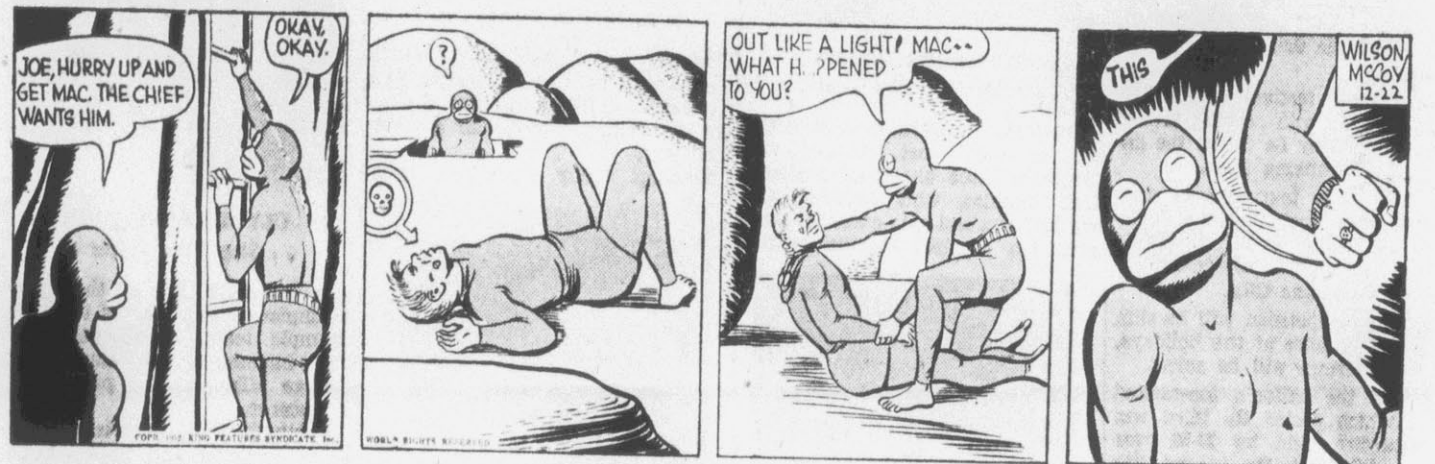

Maj. Gen. William H. Arnold, head of an American military mission of 1,300 which is helping to train the Turkish army, said it would be established in Istanbul for senior officers and would be in addition to the present staff college.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks rose to new 22-year highs on increased volume today.

Helped by reinvestment of year-end dividends, the list moved ahead with first hour volume up 30,000 shares on Friday's total of 400,000 shares.

Railroad issues again featured. The leaders registered small net gains and the average moved up to a new top since Nov. 21, 1930. Best gains were set by the issues outside the average group where Missouri Pacific preferred soared 3 points to 53 7/8. Rail earnings being reported for September showed a sharp rise.

Amerasia with a rise of 2 1/4 points featured a higher oil section. Industrial issues showed a small average gain. Utilities barely held their own.

General Motors firmed to a new high and Chrysler had a small gain. Steels were steady to slightly easier. Goodrich rose more than a point to feature the tires. Many special issues registered new highs. Cudahy Packing preferred fell 7 points to a new low when directors omitted the dividend on that issue. The company for its fiscal year ended Nov. 1 had a net loss of nearly $7,000,000, its report showed. The common stock fell nearly a point.

Costello Moved To New Prison

ATLANTA (UP)—Frank Costello, the underworld leader who is serving 18 months in federal prison for contempt of Congress, was transferred by bus today to Milan, Mich.

A heavily guarded prison bus rolled away from the high-walled prison here shortly after 5 a.m. Costello and 11 other prisoners passengers.

The reputed New York crime boss won his transfer in a federal court hearing here last week. He demanded that he be allowed to spend the remainder of his sentence in a common jail, on grounds that his sentence to six months on each of three counts of contempt made the jail sentence mandatory.

Warden A. J. Hiatt waited until the ailing Costello was far away from the prison before announcing his departure for the federal correctional institution at Milan. The bus was specially equipped to carry prisoners long distances without letting them off. Food is either cooked aboard or brought on by guards.

A source revealed the bus first would stop overnight at the federal reformatory at Petersburg, Va., to deposit some of Costello's fellow travelers and then continue to the Michigan institution which a federal official said "corresponds to a common jail."

The 12,546-ton liner sent an SOS after a violent gale drove it aground. It was reported that the ship's passengers included 68 Christians bound for the Holy Land for Christmas observances.

The Champagne, whose home port is Marseille, was on the way from Alexandria, Egypt, to Beirut, Lebanon, when it was driven into reefs and sandbanks near the ancient town of Sidon, about 25 miles south of Beirut.

According to word received here, Israeli tugs were sent from Hifa in the belief that Beirut might not have tugs of sufficient power available.

SHAPE Decrees Personnel Must Get Into Shape
PARIS (UP)—The initials of Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE) had a new meaning today for the "chairborne" 14-nations staff who man it. They've been ordered to start taking off some waistline bulges acquired from sampling French cooking.

The British started it with orders for all British officers under 30 to gallop off on weekly cross-country runs.

Dapper Chief of Staff Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, noting with sharp-eyed approval the disappearing British panache dashed off one of his well-known "Gruenthergrams."

Officers throughout the headquarters found it when they opened their mail the following day. Gruenther said the admirable British practice would be extended immediately to all soldiers of the 14 NATO nations.

Luxury Liner Is Driven Aground; Radio For Help

TEL AVIV, Israel (UP)—The French liner Chamois oiler appealed urgently for help today after being driven aground on the Lebanon coast with an estimated 1,500 persons aboard.

LEAP YEAR WAS FAILURE; FEWER WEDDINGS TALLIED
WASHINGTON (UP)—This leap year has been a flop from the standpoint of encouraging matrimony, government statisticians reported today.

On the basis of official figures for the first nine months of the year, and an informed guess on what has happened since then, the Federal Security Agency says there have been fewer marriages in 1952 than there were in 1951.

By Oct. 1, there had been 1,505,000 marriages this year, compared to 1,595,000 during the same portion of last year. Both figures were far below the 2,290,000 weddings which had taken place by Oct. 1 of 1946, the all-time boom year for matrimony.

Seek Identity Of Man's Skeleton

ASHEVILLE (UP)—Police examined papers and contacted dentists today in an effort to identify a decapitated skeleton of a man found on a mountainside near here by four Negro boys searching for Christmas trees.

Detective Capt. A. J. Creasman said dentists would be asked to examine the teeth.

Creasman said papers found in the clothing would be examined under ultra-violet rays in an effort to bring out faded writing. He said several pictures and postcards were lying near the body.

The detective said four Negro boys found the skeleton in a wooded area near Town Mountain Road while searching for Christmas trees yesterday.

The skull, which police believed may have been moved by animals, was lying in a gully about 100 yards away.

A New Testament found near the body had the name "Simmons" written on the flyleaf. The initials S. U. S. were discovered on a laundry tag in the clothing.

Coroner's physician Dr. H. C. Whims said the man probably was about six feet tall, weighed about 150 pounds and was 30 to 35 years of age.

Chemical Plant In Japan Blown Up, Killing 15
NAGOYA, Japan (UP)—An explosion shattered a sprawling chemical plant in the Nagoya dockyards today, killing at least 15 persons and injuring several hundred others.

Japanese police announced that besides the 15 known dead, five were missing. They said the death toll may rise since several bodies were believed to be buried under the debris.

In addition, 36 were seriously injured and 189 slightly hurt. The blast, which ripped through the East Asia Synthetic Chemical Co. plant, hurled wreckage from six buildings and showered deadly ammonia gas over a six-block area.

Firemen and workmen dug through the wreckage looking for bodies with the aid of huge searchlights. They donned gas masks to protect themselves from the fumes.

The explosion, worst in Japan since the end of the war, twisted and bent steel like taffy. Only the walls of the three worst-hit buildings still remained standing. The roofs were lifted into the air and smashed to the earth by the force of the blast.

WALLA WALLA, (UP)—Seven convicts, one of them a murderer, escaped from the Washington state penitentiary today by tunneling their way 200 feet under a wall.

NEW ARRIVALS
Mr. and Mrs. Lee Parker Grant of Greenville Rte. 2 announce the birth of a son on December 20 at Dr. Joseph Smith's Clinic.

LEAP YEAR WAS FAILURE; FEWER WEDDINGS TALLIED
WASHINGTON (UP)—This leap year has been a flop from the standpoint of encouraging matrimony, government statisticians reported today.

On the basis of official figures for the first nine months of the year, and an informed guess on what has happened since then, the Federal Security Agency says there have been fewer marriages in 1952 than there were in 1951.

By Oct. 1, there had been 1,505,000 marriages this year, compared to 1,595,000 during the same portion of last year. Both figures were far below the 2,290,000 weddings which had taken place by Oct. 1 of 1946, the all-time boom year for matrimony.

Chemical Plant In Japan Blown Up, Killing 15
NAGOYA, Japan (UP)—An explosion shattered a sprawling chemical plant in the Nagoya dockyards today, killing at least 15 persons and injuring several hundred others.

Japanese police announced that besides the 15 known dead, five were missing. They said the death toll may rise since several bodies were believed to be buried under the debris.

In addition, 36 were seriously injured and 189 slightly hurt. The blast, which ripped through the East Asia Synthetic Chemical Co. plant, hurled wreckage from six buildings and showered deadly ammonia gas over a six-block area.

Marine Suffers Light Injuries In Auto Mishap

One person received minor injuries in an automobile accident on North Green Street, Saturday afternoon.

Sgt. Paul A. Molar, of Camp Le Jeune was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for a head injury and bruises about the legs.

Investigating officers charged William Thigpen, 40-year-old Negro of Route 1, Greenville, with improper left turn in the face of oncoming traffic.

Thigpen's car collided with that operated by Lawrence E. Blackstone, Marine, around 2:30 Saturday afternoon.

The injured man, Molar, was an occupant in the right front seat of the Blackstone car.

Damage to both vehicles was estimated at $800.

Firemen and workmen dug through the wreckage looking for bodies with the aid of huge searchlights. They donned gas masks to protect themselves from the fumes.

The explosion, worst in Japan since the end of the war, twisted and bent steel like taffy. Only the walls of the three worst-hit buildings still remained standing. The roofs were lifted into the air and smashed to the earth by the force of the blast.

Attempt Remove Crew From Ship On Coral Reef

HONOLULU (UP)—An attempt was made today to remove some of the 44-man crew of a transport freighter aground on a coral reef in the Pacific, after fears grew that the stricken vessel might break up and sink.

The Military Sea Transport Service freighter Quartette was aground and a sea-going tug was making its way toward the reef 90 miles east of Midway Island.

The Navy here reported that a message from Capt. C. Catsambis of the Quartette said the ship's No. 1 hold was completely flooded and he was afraid the hull would crack along the vessel's double bottom.

The captain said moderate swells made it dangerous to attempt to abandon ship by lifeboats and the S.S. Frontenac Victory was attempting to remove "some of the crewmen."

Also standing by was a 170-foot patrol boat from Midway, but it was unable to get close enough to the coral reef where the Quartette went aground yesterday.

A radio message yesterday indicated the crew would stay aboard and await the arrival of the tug which was dispatched from here. The tug Ono left here last night for the reef about 1,050 miles west of Honolulu where the 1,798 ton cargo ship was lying helplessly, her hull ripped open.

It was estimated the tug would reach the crash scene in four-and-a-half days.

A radio message said the Quartette had smashed up on the reef yesterday in rough seas and was being battered by winds up to 25 knots.

The Quartette was enroute from Galveston, Tex., to Pusan, Korea, with 11,250 tons of yellow milo grain.

A Navy patrol bomber which returned here after a flight over the stricken ship, said the vessel's bow was crushed in and she was lying on the reef at about a 90-degree angle.

The Quartette's captain said the ship had taken water in the forward hold through a leak in the bow, but that the rest of the ship was not damaged.

In San Francisco, the Marine Exchange identified the Quartette as a Standard Steamship Co. vessel sailing out of Wilmington, Del. It was under contract to the MSTs.

In Galveston, a crew list was released which contained the names of:

Seward L. Cantrell, able seaman, Acworth, Ga.
Cecil E. Manning, fireman-water tender, Jacksonville, Fla.
Willie C. Thomas, deck engineer, Memphis, Tenn.
Gleason Weaver, fireman-water tender, Norfolk, Va.
William C. Scruggs, messman, Danville, Va.
Ralph L. Jones, third cook, Fort Myers, Fla.

The human skull is composed of 22 bones.

Pitt Highway . . .

riding overturned near the Grimesland city limits on highway 264. Patrolman James Boykin quoted the driver of the car, A. C. Moore, 29, of Grimesland, as saying that he became blinded by the lights of an oncoming car and applied his brakes.

In doing so, the brakes "grabbed" and the car went off the highway and overturned.

The entire top of the car was crushed inward on the front seat, but all occupants escaped injury. More than $700 damage was reported to the car.

No charges were placed by the officer. Several other reported accidents were investigated by the Highway Patrol, but they turned out to be nothing more than motorists who had slipped off into a ditch because of the wet highways.

Eisenhower . . .

mittie. Sunday's meeting also was attended by Joseph M. Dodge, Eisenhower's contact man with the P-R campaign of the Budget; Sherman Adams, who will be as vice president, and Arthur H. Vandenberg Jr., who will be the President-elect's secretary.

Eisenhower spent a rainy Sunday indoors and for the first time in several months missed church services. Mrs. Eisenhower was suffering from a slight cold and the President-elect stayed home with her.
