Traffic Toll In U. S. Still Rising; Hits 400

Two Full Days Left Of Yule Holiday; Possibility Deaths May Hit A Record; Worst Expected Sunday

By UNITED PRESS Travelers and stay-at-homes out for weekend drives crowded highways today and multiplied the danger of traffic accidents as the Christmas holiday death toll pushed above the 400 mark.

Almost two full days of the four-day Yule holiday were left, and there was a strong possibility that a bloody new page would be written into the accident record book.

A United Press tabulation early today showed that 419 persons had been killed in holiday accidents. Traffic accidents took 30 lives, 32 persons were killed in fires, three in airplane crashes and 44 in miscellaneous mishaps.

The all-time record of 555 holiday traffic deaths was set last Christmas. The National Safety Council has already predicted that 500 persons will be killed on the highways by midnight Sunday.

Meanwhile, a cold snap chilled large portions of the country, but generally fair skies promised good holiday weather despite the falling temperatures.

Many persons who must be back at work Monday began the trek today to avoid the expected travel snarl Sunday.

Fortunately, deaths caused by fires and miscellaneous accidents were running lighter than last year when 111 persons died in holiday fires and 190 were killed in miscellaneous mishaps.

A mass of Canadian cold air was moving into the northern Great Lakes region, dropping temperatures below zero all through northern Minnesota. Fingers of the cool air pushed as far south as the Gulf Coast, bringing early-morning readings ranging from the 30's to the low 50's.

A heavy rain and wind storm hit northern California and southern Oregon Friday. Heavy snow was expected in the mountain regions of that area today and wind storms packing gusts up to 70 miles per hour, were in store for the northern sector of California.

The Atlantic Seaboard was chilly with temperatures ranging between the 20's and 30's in the north, but the Canadian cold front had not yet touched the area with its icy breath. Precipitation was unlikely in the east.

Friday was a day of rest after Christmas, and the accident toll had been expected to fall off somewhat. Today, with the resumption of travel by holiday fun-seekers, highway officials feared a sharp jump.

Fourteen Killed In C-47 Crash

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — Fourteen persons, including an American Air Force radio operator, were killed today in the second crash within a week of a Greek Air Force plane in Korea.

In addition to the American, four Greek crewmen and nine unidentified passengers were listed among the dead.

The plane plowed into a hillside near an airfield shortly after take-off. Witnesses said the plane appeared to have lost one of its two engines shortly after it lifted off the end of the runway.

On Monday a Royal Greek Air Force hospital plane collided with an American jet fighter on an airbase runway, killing 14 persons including six American patients.

The plane involved in today's crash was on a routine courier mission.

All Quiet At City Hall As Officials Resume Working

Things were quiet in the offices at the city hall today as local officials resumed work after the two-day Christmas vacation.

Most of the activity at the city hall this morning was at the pay window of the utilities department where local citizens drifted in a constant flow to pay their utilities bills before the first of the month.

Next door at the city clerk's window most of the activity consisted of sales of city automobile tags for 1953.

During the first hour the city offices were open this morning 16 city tags were sold. The sales this morning brought to 856 the total number of 1953 city tags sold since the licenses were put on the block December 1.

City Clerk H. H. Duncan, after a brief check of the books, said city tag sales so far are lagging 188 behind the number sold through the same date last year. For the Year 1952 Greenville sold a total of 3,416 city automobile tags, and Duncan said he anticipates the sale of 3,500 city auto tags for 1953.

Last year the city ordered 3,200 auto tags in its original purchase, but before the year was over, it was necessary to order another 300 tags to meet the demand.

AFL Pledges Full Cooperation With President-Elect

United Mine Workers Assert Ready To Fight For Objectives Next Year; Warns They Will Continue Struggle For Its Miners

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (UP)—The AFL today pledged its full cooperation with President-elect Eisenhower and the Republican Congress in 1953, but the United Mine Workers union asserted it was ready to "fight for unattained objectives" next year.

George Meany, president of the 8,000,000-member AFL, asserted: "We intend to do our job not as opponents of the administration but as good citizens determined to cooperate with it."

CIO President Walter P. Reuther, recovering from a gall bladder operation at his home in Detroit, had no new statement on the CIO's 1953 outlook. However after his recent election to the top office he pledged cooperation with the new administration "within limits."

But John L. Lewis' independent mine workers warned it will "continue the struggle for its 475,000 miners" and will "fight for its membership on a bread and butter basis."

In a year-end statement by UMW Vice President Thomas Kennedy—pinch-hitting for Lewis who is on vacation in South America—the union warned that "labor must present a united front to the new-elected Republican administration in which the only friendly face will be that of Martin Durkin."

Durkin, former president of the AFL plumber's union and a Democrat, was picked by Eisenhower to be the new secretary of labor.

Thus, the incoming administration was on notice that the UMW will continue using its own methods to obtain new benefits in 1953—methods which this year brought about the collapse of the tripartite Wage Stabilization Board.

Kennedy noted the UMW won its recent $1.50-a-day pay hike by "using our own strength. When the miners refused to accept a 40-cent wage board cut in the negotiated increase and went on strike, President Truman intervened to grant the full increase. Industry has since boycotted the wage controls program."

While the UMW was wary of Republican control, Meany said the AFL has "confidence in the sincerity of President-elect Eisenhower's pledge to be fair and just to the nation's workers."

"That goes for the AFL's relations with the new Congress, too," he added. He noted that "for changes in the Taft-Hartley Act will be up for consideration, and the AFL intends to work with members of Congress from both political parties to promote enactment of equitable and workable legislation."

Eisenhower has agreed changes may be necessary in the law while Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O), co-author of the act, is working up a series of amendments for presentation.

'Seventy-Six Alley' Is Symbolic Of Korean War

By FREDERICK PAINTON United Press Staff Correspondent WESTERN FRONT, Korea, (UP)

A few riflemen ran across the narrow valley, but most of them walked quickly with their heads bent to pick up the sudden whisper of an enemy shell.

They were going back to wait or sleep in the blackness of their bunkers. An hour ago they had scurried across the same strip to eat chow standing up in 20-degree cold.

Chinese observers 2,000 yards away watched every move they made going back across the frozen paddy. On each side of the valley, men huddled against the protection of hillsides waiting their turn to make the trip.

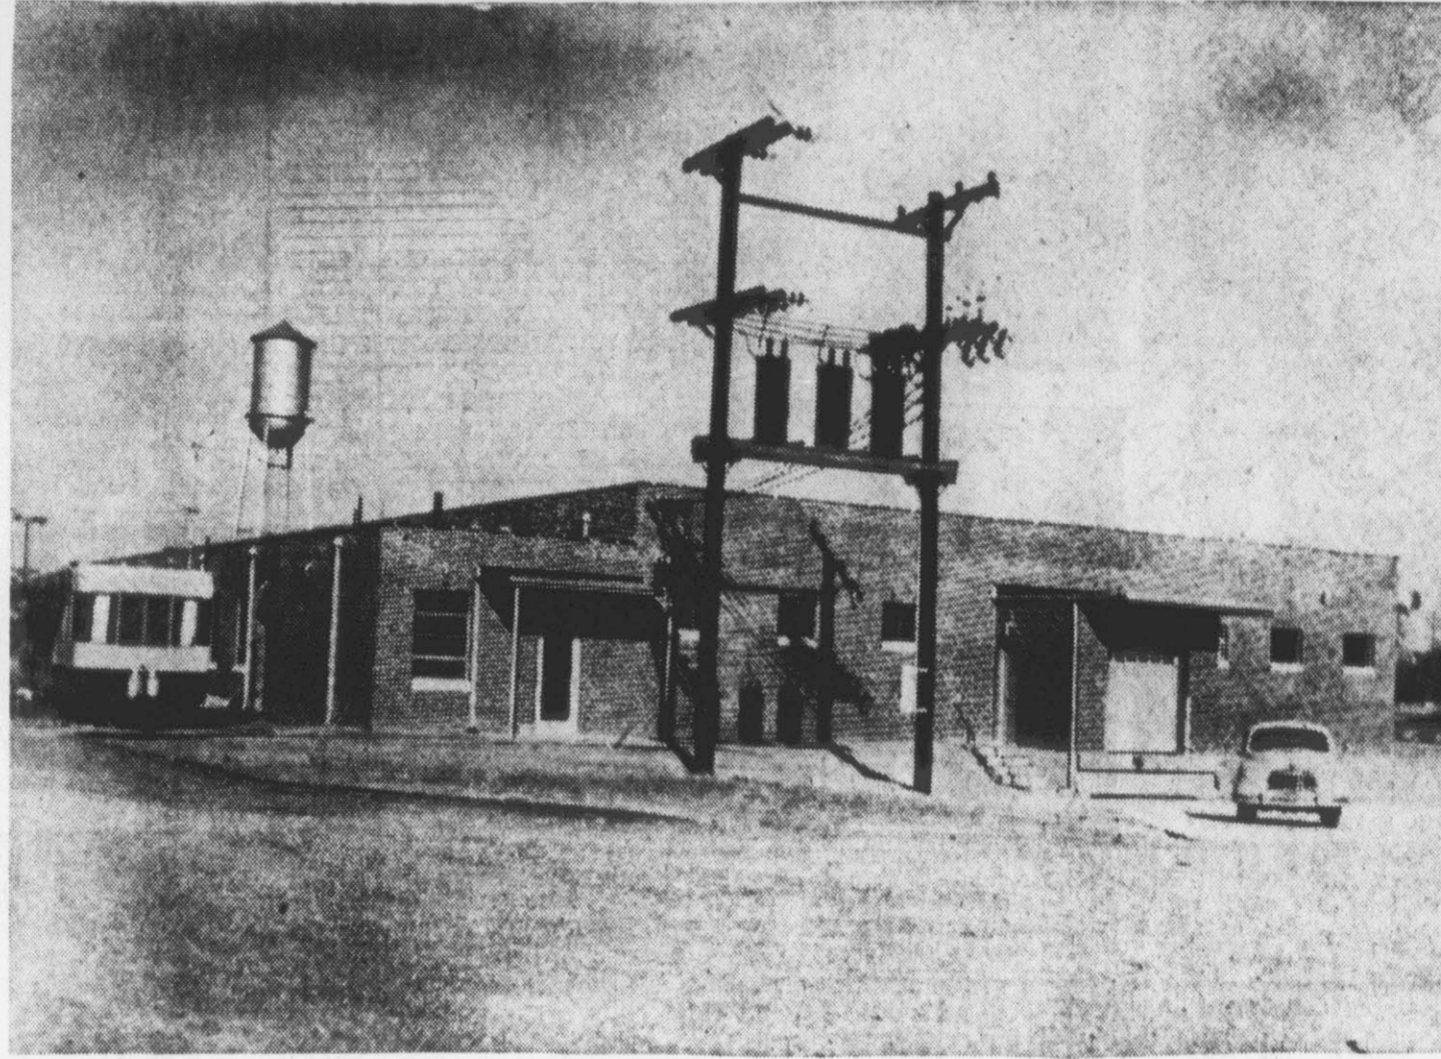

"You can tell which guys are going home," said Pfc. Woodie Hauserman, of Sayeville, N. J. "They're the ones that are running," he laughed. "I guess I'll run, too, though, when the time comes."

They call this shell-picked strip "Seventy-Six Alley" after the kind of shells the enemy used here to kill moving Americans. A sign stands along the roadside, saying "Seventy-Six Alley. Proceed at your own risk. Good luck."

In its quiet danger, this valley symbolizes the war that has grown up in the year 1952. A year ago this 150-yard wide strip of Korean earth was as safe as the sidewalks of New York, Chicago or Los Angeles.

Both sides waited for the armistice talks at Panmunjom to bring peace. There was hope, and little

Hosiery Mill In Bethel To Reach Full Production

NEW INDUSTRY for the city of Bethel is the Diana Hosiery Mill shown above. First placed in operation in September, the plant is expected to reach production quotas of 1,000 pairs of hose sometime in the early part of January. At the present time around 30 persons are being employed at the plant. The brick structure, and all of its modern equipment was erected at a cost of over $400,000. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Caudle Labeled Honorable Man

WADESBORO, N. C. (AP)—T. Lamar Caudle, ousted assistant attorney general, was jubilant today over a Congressional committee report which labeled him "an honorably-motivated" government official.

The committee also called Caudle a "weak" government official, and a "scapegoat" in being fired by President Truman in November, 1951, for what the President called "outside activities."

The labels were applied by a House Judiciary subcommittee and Keating R-NY. The committee has been investigating the Justice Department where Caudle, before his ouster, headed the criminal and tax division.

Commenting on the committee report published today, the Wadesboro lawyer remarked: "If it had not been for the Chief Committee, I'd have been another Dreyfus."

Alfred Dreyfus was a French officer falsely accused and convicted of treason around the turn of the century. He later was vindicated in a new trial.

"They said I was weak," Caudle observed, and added: "Well, everybody to his own opinion, but if anything I was too friendly. It's just my Southern way of doing things."

Caudle said he had received an advance copy of the subcommittee report and was "uplifted" by its contents. He described the report as "like a resurrection from the living dead." And he described the deadly serious "Its members, he added, "were fair with me."

Giving Study To Korea Proposals

PUSAN, Korea (UP)—President-elect Eisenhower is giving "careful study and consideration" to seven suggestions made by the South Korean government, it was disclosed today.

Acting Republic of Korea Prime Minister Paik Too-Chit made public a letter from Gen. Mark Clark which the Far Eastern commander wrote on Eisenhower's behalf after the president-elect visited Korea.

Clark said Eisenhower was "particularly impressed by the ROK troops which he observed" and added that the president-elect was studying a seven-point program presented to him by the Korean government.

Although the letter did not specify the seven points, reliable sources here listed them as follows:

1. Unification of Korea must be completed by force.
2. The South Korean attitude toward the truce negotiations has not changed and any agreement must include immediate withdrawal of Chinese forces from North Korea, immediate dissolution of the North Korean regime and elections in North Korea.

Russia Proposed Talks Praised By Red Newspapers

MOSCOW (UP)—Premier Josef Stalin's offer to meet with U.S. President-elect Eisenhower to discuss the easing of world tensions was praised today by Moscow newspapers in front-page editorials as "a new manifestation of the Soviet Union's consistent peace-loving policy."

The United States was charged with being the center and source of world tension.

Izvestia said Stalin's answers to questions submitted by the Washington diplomatic correspondent of the New York Times was "a new contribution to the cause of peace."

It added that the United States was the principal source of present world tension and was endangering peace by continuing the war in Korea and attempting to expand the conflict to other areas.

The newspaper said the United States is sharpening existing tensions by remilitarizing Germany and Japan and stopping trade with Eastern nations.

Pravda said that "international public opinion has hailed the answers (Stalin's reply to the New York Times) with enormous satisfaction."

"The answers published on the eve of the new year will give millions of persons fresh strength in the struggle for peace and the cessation of the policy of aggression and violence, the cessation of the war of conquest against the Korean people and peaceful regulation of international questions," Pravda said.

Moscow Papers Call Proposal 'New Manifestation Of Soviet Union's Peace-Loving Policy'

The answers published on the eve of the new year will give millions of persons fresh strength in the struggle for peace and the cessation of the policy of aggression and violence, the cessation of the war of conquest against the Korean people and peaceful regulation of international questions, Pravda said.

All newspapers reaffirmed Stalin's thesis that the Soviet and Capitalist systems can co-exist.

No mention has appeared as yet in the Soviet press of the statement by Secretary of State-designate John Foster Dulles that the United States would sympathetically consider any "concrete proposals" by the Soviet Union.

Families Of Vets To Get Medals Of Honor, Says Pace

Nation's Highest Military Award To Go To Next Of Kin Of Four Enlisted Men Who Died In Outstanding Acts Of Bravery In Korea

Release at 7 p.m. EST Sat, Dec. 27 WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (UP)—Families of four Korean war heroes will come to Washington Jan. 7 to receive the Medals of Honor for their soldiers' death, the Army announced today.

Army Secretary Frank Pace Jr. will present the nation's highest military award in Pentagon ceremonies to the next of kin of four enlisted men who died in recorded acts of outstanding bravery.

George W. Womack of Rutherfordton, N. C., will receive the award of his son, Pfc. Bryant H. Womack, 21, a medical aid man who was wounded while running through murderous fire to a stricken buddy. Later his arm was blown off but young Womack refused treatment and directed others in caring for the wounded until he died of death.

His mother, Mrs. Julia A. Womack, will attend the ceremony. The medal which Cpl. William F. Lyell won will be presented to his father, Benjamin F. Lyell of Old Hickory, Tenn. Lyell, exposing himself to enemy fire, knocked out one Communist bunker, clubbed a grenade-hurling Chinese to death and singlehandedly destroyed two more enemy bunkers before he was killed by mortar fire.

His mother and his brother, Bobbie D. Lyell, will be present at the ceremony.

John W. Jordan, Prentiss, Miss., will receive the medal for his son, Pfc. Mack A. Jordan, who stayed behind when his platoon withdrew. The soldier knocked out a machine gun, killing five of the enemy, before a demolition charge blew off both his legs. He continued to fire and died enroute to an aid station.

Also witnessing the ceremony will be his mother, Mrs. Otis R. Jordan, a sister, Louise, and three brothers, James, Howard and Everett.

The award for Pfc. Noah O. Knight took a position in advance of his platoon in the face of Chinese attack and kept up a blaze of automatic rifle fire. When he ran out of ammunition, he charged three Chinese who were trying to blast their way through defensive barbed wire. He clubbed down two of them with the butt of his rifle before the third set off the demolition charge, killing Knight and all three Chinese.

Also present at the ceremony will be his father, Jarvis Knight of Pageland, S. C., and brother, Airman 2-C James W. Knight of Shaw Air Force Base, S. C.

Churchill has consistently warned against the West's becoming entangled in Asian fighting to an extent damaging to European defense. British sources doubted that—in view of the informality of the visit—Churchill would address a joint session of the American Congress as he has done several times in the past.

These sources said there was a tendency to overlook the fact that Churchill intends to spend most of his time in Jamaica, enjoying a long-needed rest.

Blinding Fog Is Over All London

LONDON (UP)—Blinding fog descended upon London again today for the second time in a month. Traffic crawled through mist-shrouded streets with headlights blazing at noon. Airplane service was brought to a near standstill. Trains were running up to half an hour late.

The fog was not quite so dense as that of three weeks ago. The earlier pall hung over the city for five days and was blamed for the deaths of 2,850 persons—almost all directly or indirectly a result of respiratory ailments.

Airlines Chalk Up All-Time Safety Record

WASHINGTON (UP)—U. S. airlines chalked up an all-time safety record in civilian aviation in 1952 with only five crashes resulting in passenger deaths.

Civil Aeronautics Administrator Charles F. Horne said today. He said domestic and international airlines carried a record 27,000,000 passengers more than 15,400,000 miles during the year.

Barring a year-end wave of serious accidents, the 1952 passenger death rate will run slightly less than one person for every 100,000,000 passenger miles flown. In round numbers, 10 passengers have been killed in airline crashes so far in 1952—46 in domestic and 94 international operations.

This does not include deaths resulting from non-scheduled airline, military, or private airplane accidents during the year. Nor does it include the crewmen manning scheduled airliners.

The CAA said the previous safety record for civil airline operations was set in 1950 when 11 persons were killed for every 100,000,000 passenger miles.

Top British Cabinet Leaders Called From Vacations For Meeting Before Churchill Leaves; Talk Might Hit Foreign Policy

By JACK V. FOX United Press Staff Correspondent LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill today called his top ministers back from Christmas vacations for a cabinet meeting before he sails for New York next week to confer with President-elect Eisenhower.

Churchill also will call upon President Truman in Washington as a friendly gesture to the retiring chief executive.

The informal nature of Churchill's American visit was underlined by all British sources, but it was agreed his conversations with Eisenhower will hit all the essentials of foreign policy.

Churchill, high British sources said, wants to put before the incoming chief executive his ideas on the international situation, with particular emphasis on the Korean war, before Eisenhower formulates the broad outlines of American foreign policy for his administration.

Announcement of the intended trip came as much as a surprise to the British press and public as it did to the Americans.

It had been known that Churchill intended to go to Washington in February or March, accompanied by his top advisers. But his sudden departure on a solitary mission to the United States—and a subsequent vacation in Jamaica—had not been anticipated.

In Washington, diplomatic sources speculated that the British prime minister's principal concern in visiting Eisenhower is to discuss with the president-elect any new policies Eisenhower may be considering for waging the Korean war.

(While the announcement of the trip came as a surprise to many State Department and other Washington officials, it was believed that Eisenhower, Mr. Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson had tentatively agreed.)

Diplomatic sources in London said Churchill thought it advisable to put British and European views before Eisenhower prior to any new U.S. commitments on foreign policy in his inaugural address.

Sover Premier Josef Stalin's "feeler" about a meeting with Eisenhower naturally will be discussed, these sources said. But Churchill was said to be more seriously concerned to hear at first hand what new ideas Eisenhower brought back from his recent Korean trip.

Churchill has consistently warned against the West's becoming entangled in Asian fighting to an extent damaging to European defense. British sources doubted that—in view of the informality of the visit—Churchill would address a joint session of the American Congress as he has done several times in the past.

These sources said there was a tendency to overlook the fact that Churchill intends to spend most of his time in Jamaica, enjoying a long-needed rest.

More Discoveries Claimed By Reds

MOSCOW (UP)—Red Fleet, the official organ of the Soviet Navy, today said that newly discovered archives prove that Russian explorers discovered many places in the Far East falsely ascribed to British and other foreign explorers.

Furthermore, it said, American geographers have "recently intensified their falsification of discoveries."

"They not only disregard the well known historic facts, but distort them," Red Fleet said. "For instance, all Russian discoveries in the Pacific Ocean are ascribed to foreigners, particularly the notorious James Cook, although they know well Cook gave his own name to lands and islands discovered by Russians long before him."

Vacancy Not For Chief; For Ayden City Policeman

In yesterday's story from Ayden it was erroneously stated that the Town of Ayden was advertising for a chief of police.

Chief J. A. Jones said last night that he had advertised in some newspapers for a policeman for the Ayden force. Patrolman James Ross, who has been on the Ayden force about two years, is going to work for the DuPont Company, the chief said.

Jones has been chief of police at Ayden since last March 5. He went to Ayden from Edenton, where he served many years. He was a sergeant when he resigned to accept the job of chief at Ayden.

BY SHERRY ROWEN
AP News Features Writer
General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower became a civilian in 1952, when he resigned his commission and went on to be President-elect of the United States. Associated Press newspaper and radio editors chose him Man of the Year on the basis of his landslide victory which ended 20 years of Democratic control in the federal government. That choice dictated his designation as political man of the year.

"Ike" became an international hero in World War II. He led the Allied armies that smashed Hitler's fortress Europe. After a term as chief of staff, top U. S. Army position, he returned in 1948 to a civilian role as president of Columbia University.

But with the cold war posing new problems, President Truman called Eisenhower to Washington as temporary chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The general took a short leave from his civilian job. It became a long leave in 1950 when he was called to help organize and lead the North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces.

Retired from Army
This was the job he had in January 1952 when he would accept the Republican nomination for President of the United States if it were offered. At first he said he would not campaign. But in May, after he had shown great strength in several state primaries, he reconsidered. He left his NATO job and had himself placed in a retired status without pay.

He toured the country in what became a sharp contest with Sen. Robert Taft. After his nomination he resigned his commission, ending all connections with the U.S. Army.

There were still months of campaigning before election. But he was ready for the victory. As President, he will become the civilian commander in chief of all U.S. military forces.

Long before inauguration, he prepared for that role by a visit to the battle front in Korea.

Royal Succession
"The king is dead. Long live the queen." Tragedy struck Feb. 6, 1952. Elizabeth II became "Queen of this realm and of her other realms and territories, her of the Commonwealth, defender of the faith." She is, by one of the editors, Woman of the Year.

Death of King George VI found Elizabeth and her husband 4,000 miles away in Africa. She was substituting for her ailing father on a royal tour.

She flew back to England to become the living symbol of the British empire. Trained since childhood for that role, she is the 62nd sovereign of Britain since Egbert.

High tension in Iran continued throughout the year. The editors chose F. Mohammed Mossadegh, aged, ailing, emotional premier of that oil-rich country chief news-maker in foreign affairs. It was 1951 when he engineered the nationalization of Iranian oil which had been controlled by a British firm. But in 1952, with his country balanced on the brink of bankruptcy and tottering between alliance with the West and the threat of control by Soviet Russia, he faced crisis after crisis. The world's top diplomats worked with him, but all schemes to settle the dispute cracked up on the little man's firm determination that British influence should be wiped out of Iran.

Man of Industry
The naming of Charles Erwin Wilson, head of General Motors Corp., as Secretary of Defense in the Eisenhower Cabinet led to his choice as chief news-maker of the year in business and industry. Wilson has often denounced government defense buying policies. GMC has been one of the major suppliers of war weapons. He will give up a six figure salary for the $20,000-a-year government job.

U.S. steel workers went back to their jobs July 26, 1952, after 54 days of strike. Lack of steel made a big hole in defense production. The wage hike (which) involved a steel price increase) was, hotly denounced by labor leaders and denounced as inflationary by many business executives. Philip Murray was head of the steel union and of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. (He died Nov. 11, 1952.) His part in the strike led to his selection by the editors as chief news-maker of the year in labor.

The Nobel prize for medicine and physiology for Dr. Selman Abraham Waksman brought with it his selection as chief news-maker in science. The Rutgers university professor discovered streptomycin, a drug used against tuberculosis, and its companion neomycin. Royalties have been turned back to the university.

Ernest Hemingway, who has written popular novels and received high critical acclaim since the '20s, is chief news-maker in literature. His short book, "The Old Man and the Sea" was published in full in a magazine and then in book form. Some critics said it was a return to the old Hemingway. Implying that some of his other recent works were not up to the old standard.

Religious Spokesman
Bishop Fulton J. Sheen is chief news-maker in religion. The Roman Catholic prelate is credited with conversion of many leading Americans to his faith. He has for years conducted radio and television religious programs. His television program offered strong competition to leading comedians in 1952, for the first time, his program had a sponsor.

Rocky Marciano beat Jersey Joe Walcott to become heavyweight champion of the world and chief news-maker in sports. A perfect right in the 13th round gave the boxer the title by a knockout; he had been trailing. Admittedly no boxer, he has an explosive punch in either hand.

Marilyn Monroe, sexy, wise-cracking, rags-to-riches new film star was chief news-maker in entertainment. Cheesecake pictures brought her wide publicity as did her romance with Joe Di Maggio. Theater men called her the No. 1 star of tomorrow, although none of her pictures has been rated as outstanding.

A BETTER WORLD?

There's plenty of room for improvement in this old world of ours.

Of course, it is just about perfect from a structural standpoint. It spins through space with such mathematical precision that man can count days and months and years—and even print them on calendars without fear of error.

But where life and people are concerned... even a child can see that things are pretty badly muddled.

What of 1953? Will it bring a better world? Will there be more happiness and less sorrow... more love and less hatred... more good, less evil?

Our world will always be what we are. Only as the lives of men change, can the life of the world improve.

The Church is dedicated to building better lives. By religious education, by worship, by preaching the highest moral and spiritual standards, the Church can make a better you and a better me. There is no other way to a better world. The Church is the salvation of mankind.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) children's sake, (2) for his own sake, (3) for the sake of his community and nation, (4) which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Miss Manning Becomes Bride Of Charles Hubert Hagan

On Sunday afternoon, December 21 at 4 o'clock in Gum Swamp Baptist Church, Miss Alma Wooten Manning and Mr. Charles Hubert Hagan, Jr. were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony, with Rev. William Clifton, pastor of the groom officiating.

The church was decorated with ferns, tall baskets of white gladioli and seven branched candelabra holding cathedral candles. A program of nuptial music was rendered by Miss Estelle Dunn, pianist and Mr. Lawrence Tyson, soloist. Prior to the ceremony Mr. Tyson sang, "Because" and "Always" and as a benediction sang, "The Lord's Prayer," by Malotte. Traditional wedding marches were used.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of white slipper satin, having a yoke of sheer net, seeded in pearls, a princess style bodice and a full skirt ending in a long train. Her fingertip veil illusion fell from a white satin cap edged in pearls. She carried a white prayer book topped with white mums, centered with an orchid and showered with white ribbon tied with fern and white mums.

The bride chose for her maid of honor, her sister, Miss Mary Sue Manning of Durham. She wore a gown with a tucked strapless top of royal blue satin with full skirt covered in matching net. With this she wore a royal blue net stole and white mits. Her headpiece was a satin bandeau matching the gown. She carried a bouquet of light yellow pompons.

Attending as bridesmaids were Mrs. Bob Holloman, sister of the bride of Greenville, N. C. and Mrs. Paul Manning, sister-in-law of the bride of Robersonville, N. C. Honorary bridesmaids were Misses Noel Manning, niece of the bride, of Wilmington, N. C. and Janice Davenport, cousin of the groom, of Rocky Mount, N. C. They wore lobster pink dresses identical to the maid of honor and carried bouquets of dark yellow pompons.

The bridegroom's father was his best man. Ushers were Bob Holloman, brother-in-law of the bride, Clio Spain, Jerry McLawhorn, all of Greenville and Dickie Manning, nephew of the bride of Wilmington, N. C. Mrs. Manning, mother of the bride wore for her daughter's wedding a very becoming dress of green crepe with rhinestone scatter pins. She wore black accessories and a corsage of red carnations. The groom's mother was dressed in blue crepe with blue accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For traveling the bride wore a pearl grey tweed suit trimmed in navy velvet with a white angora hat and red accessories. She wore the orchid from her corsage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Manning of Greenville, Route 4. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hagan also of Greenville, Route 4. After a wedding trip to Florida the couple will make their home near Greenville. On Saturday evening after rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Gowan, maternal grand parents of the groom entertained members of the Hagan-Manning wedding party, out of town guests and members of the families at a cake cutting at their home on East Fourth Street.

Hollywood Finds Out TV Doesn't Hurt Movie Idols

By ALINE MOSBY United Press Hollywood Writer HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Hollywood found out today television doesn't hurt movie stars. The year's top money-makers in the nation's theaters were three video players—Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis and Roy Rogers.

The zany Martin and Lewis, who've been movie stars only three years, nosed out veterans Gary Cooper and John Wayne for the honor of bringing in more box office tickets than any other player in Hollywood.

The top money-making Western star, according to the 21st annual poll of theaters by the Motion Picture Herald, a trade magazine, was that veteran of the TV screens, Roy Rogers.

Theater managers have paradoxically complained movie fans won't go to theaters to see a star they can view for free on TV at home. Most stars were afraid to get their feet wet in television when it began for fear the theaters would object.

Yet Rogers' pictures can be seen free on TV stations all over the country. And Martin and Lewis shot to fame three years ago when they began both in TV and theater movies, indicating one helped the other.

The runners-up to Martin and Lewis were mostly old timers who've graced the celluloid for years. In second place was Cooper, followed by Wayne, who slipped to third place after holding the winning spot two years in a row.

Next came Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, also previous first-place winners, followed by Jimmy Stewart, Doris Day, Gregory Peck, Susan

Mrs. Quinerly Hostess To Book Club

GRIFFON—Mrs. H. P. Quinerly was hostess to members of her book club on Tuesday afternoon at the December meeting. In the absence of the president Miss Bert Johnson presided at the brief business hour, and welcomed Mrs. H. C. Oglesby, Mrs. J. B. Haymore and Mrs. S. E. Coffman, who were guests of the afternoon. In the living room where the meeting took place lovely arrangements of greenery and candles were used. The Christmas tree in blue and silver decorations added beauty to the room.

Mrs. Quinerly presented Mrs. Oglesby who in a very interesting manner gave the paper of the day which was on "December." In this she told of important events which first took place in the month of December and laid stress on Christmas, telling of the ways the different peoples of other countries observe the day. During the refreshment hour guests were invited into the dining room where the table was covered with a dark green cloth. A giant white candle with pine and berries formed the centerpiece. Fruit punch, cookies, salted nuts and candy were served.

After the delectable turkey dinner Mrs. Hagan was played at three tables. Highest scores were Mrs. M. B. Hodges and Mrs. Oglesby for club members and Mr. Al Hawkins for visitors. Other guests were Mr. Hodges, Mrs. Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Bissette, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cobb, Bill Johnson, Ed Berlin and Richard Pase.

Joint Hostesses At Coffee Hour

GRIFFON—Mrs. H. P. Goodson and Mrs. R. L. Meador entertained a delightful coffee hour on Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. Goodson in Griffon Heights to compliment Mrs. W. R. Hardee Jr. of Kingston who will soon be leaving to make her home in Galveston. The home for the morning was beautifully decorated with Christmas greenery, lighted tree and red candles. The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth and an artistic arrangement of colored Christmas balls, angel hair and berries. Coffee and sweet rolls and relishes were passed by the hostesses.

Mrs. Hardee was presented a red carnation corsage as a gift from Mrs. Goodson and Mrs. Meador. Enjoying the morning were the honor guest, Mrs. Hardee, Mrs. John Watson, Mrs. Bob Marshall, Mrs. Charlie Jackson, Mrs. Don Williams, Mrs. B. C. Foster, Mrs. Chester Welch of Kingston, Mrs. J. M. Goldwasser, Mrs. E. M. Howell and Mrs. W. M. Howell.

Conner-Hege Engagement Announced

Miss Sara Jo Hege's engagement to Carl Graham Conner, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Conner of Windsor, is announced by Rev. and Mrs. C. D. Burchell of Greensboro. Miss Hege is teacher-librarian at Vanceboro High School, while Mr. Conner is completing his Master of Arts degree in Journalism and public relations at the University of Minnesota. Both are graduates of East Carolina. The wedding is planned for early summer.

State Death Toll Now At Twenty

By UNITED PRESS In the first two days of the long Christmas holiday at least 20 persons lost their lives in North Carolina in violence and a series of highway accidents, and the grim count will not end until midnight Sunday. Shootings led the list of deaths for a while, but a sudden series of automobile accidents last night put the highway death toll back in its accustomed place at the top of the list.

PROMISE OF DELIGHT

By Mary Howard

Chapter Ten
They had dined, and the coffee was set before them. He gave her a cigarette, lit it and his own. "Go on," said Anthea, entranced. "I love him, as you say. He's my father, and he's always been wonderful to me. In fact, he's wonderful to everyone. The trouble is—he won't share him!"

Anthea thought of her mother's fierce possessiveness, and said quickly, "Some people can't—when they love anyone. My mother's like that."

Joe said quickly, "But after all, she's thinking of your good, and she is your mother, Anthea. I don't want you to think that Mario is just an old flirt. He isn't. He falls in love quite deeply, but so easily, and so often—and he's hard to resist."

Her brown faun's eyes glistened. "Don't worry, Joe. I want the job, and I shan't fall in love with your father."

He said curiously, "You're very sure of yourself. Why?"

Color flooded her cheeks again. She stammered, and he was sure once again that the words she spoke were not the words that had risen naturally to her lips. "Because I don't fall in love so easily, that's all."

He smiled, his warm, gay sweet smile, and their mood of seriousness and dissolved.

They danced. There were two more couples on the floor, and the floor was large and wide and empty. They finished the dance determinedly, but the minute the music ended, grabbed their things. Joe paid the bill, and they left. Beyond the parking lot, the woods were green, silent and inviting. By some unspoken mutual agreement they climbed over the stile and walked under the beech trees, their feet silent on the padded carpet of last year's leaves. Joe put a hand on her shoulder, and swung her to face him, lifting her up to stand on a sawn-off stump of beech, so that her eyes were level with his own.

She felt a strange, exalted feeling as though her heart had suddenly grown wings and taken flight into a world of unknown beauty. She thought suddenly of Jim kissing her goodnight when he brought her home, and how she had permitted it because it was the expected thing—and wondered suddenly if Joe was going to kiss her, and stood quite still, waiting.

He did. Even standing on the tree stump as she was, he had to bend his tall head. His lips rested lightly on hers, and then, as though sensing the eager young query of her lips, close, hard and fierce, so that her sense sang with a new and vivid delight.

His arms tightened about her close and protective. Women had said they loved him before, and perhaps some had, though many really wanted an entry into the magic world of films to which he and his father held the key. This limp honestly scared him, while he loved her for it. He could not believe it, yet looking at her, could not doubt it. "You funny, lovely little thing," he said.

It was dark when they drew up outside her home, but a light still showed behind the sitting-room windows. Her mother was still up waiting for her, as she had been every time she had been out with Joe. But the usual feeling of exasperation did not arise tonight. She was too happy, too excited, lost in a magic newly created world which belonged only to her and Joe.

His arm went along the back of the seat, drew her close, and their lips met again in the darkness. His back was to the window, and beneath his kiss her eyes closed. She did not see the curtains open, and then drop abruptly closed again. He whispered, "Tomorrow?"

She nodded. "Yes."

"Goodnight, Anthea."

As she shut the front door behind her mother came to the sitting-room door. Her face was white and tired, and she looked at Anthea's flushed cheeks and star-filled eyes strangely, her own big dark eyes curiously hungry and fierce.

"You shouldn't sit up, Mummy," Anthea protested. "It's too late, and you look so tired. It's really not necessary."

Marian shrugged, and went toward the staircase.

Anthea followed, and as they went upstairs Marian said briefly, over her shoulder, "Well, and what was the great news? Have you heard any more about this precious job? If you ask me it's just an excuse to get you to go out with him."

"His father will be in England on Monday. I'm going to ask Daddy for the day off, so that I can see him. I hope I can do it. I hope I get it."

Marian stopped, her hand on the banister, turned and looked down, her eyes wide and bright. "Will he be staying long?"

"Overnight, that's all. He has to see his producer on Tuesday. Then he'll go straight back. He'll let me know right away if I'll do and when I have to go."

Marian suddenly began to speak in an urgent and imploring voice. "Anthea, I don't often ask you to do anything for me. But please give this up. I hate the whole thought of this adventure. I will make up for it in any way you like. I'll take you abroad for a holiday myself, if you wish. . . but please give this up."

"If you could give me one real reason," Anthea said slowly.

"Isn't the fact that I loathe the idea enough?"

"No, I'm afraid not."

Marian shrugged, half-turned toward her bedroom door. She said, "You think you're in love with Joe Carloti, don't you?"

"Yes."

Marian was startled, although she was used to Anthea's transparent frankness.

"And is he in love with you?"

"I think so."

"Only think so?"

"Oh," Marian's exclamation was full of despair and disgust. "Anthea, you are a fool and a child. Don't you see it's just part of a game to make a young girl fall in love? They don't mean it—they are not sincere."

"How do you know?" said Anthea curiously.

"Don't be so stupid! Jim wanted to marry you, and you laughed at the idea. Has this young Carloti even mentioned marriage? If you weren't so infatuated by the idea of these people, you would know I was right."

Anthea followed her slowly up the stairs. "Jim mentioned marriage," she said thoughtfully, although her eyes were suddenly alight with laughter. "Joe didn't. But Jim did not mention love; Joe did. You make it sound like a bargain counter, Mummy."

Naval Academy Gets Old Flag

MILWAUKEE (U.P.)—A battered American flag which signalled a change in the course of naval history was presented to the United States Naval Academy museum in a ceremony here.

The flag is the standard that floated at the masthead of the frigate Minnesota during the Civil War. In the center of the pennant is a jagged hole made by the first shot fired by the Confederacy's ironclad, the Merrimack.

Commodore G. J. Van Brunt, flag officer of the Union Atlantic fleet and commander of the Minnesota, ordered his ship beached when the Merrimack fired its first shot. He sent the Union's ironclad, the Monitor, out to meet the Merrimack. The order marked the end of the wooden warship and the beginning of steel-clad fighting ships.

The flag was presented to the Naval Academy by Bradlee Van Brunt of Milwaukee, a grandson of the commodore.

Who Will Be UNC Coach?

One of the most controversial subjects around North Carolina sport circles is "who will replace Carl Shively as head football coach at the University of North Carolina?"

Most people surmise that George Barclay, present assistant coach, will be elevated to the head coach position. Barclay was a winning coach at George Washington but was lured from a head coach position to return to his alma mater as an assistant.

A logical deduction would be that Barclay was promised at least first consideration for the head coaching plum.

However, why all the hesitation, if Barclay is to assume the head mentor role as per an "on-the-side agreement" then why hasn't the agreement been fulfilled?

The problem may stack up something like this:

Following the 1951 season in which the dynasty of Carolina football crumbled to a 2-8 worst record, there was much consternation among the faculty of the Greater University. Many very important persons were hollering for the axe.

To offset the idea that football was big time business at the university and the coach must produce a winner, Shively, to the amazement of practically everyone, was retained for another year.

But a compromise move to quiet the VIP howl was to hire Barclay who had produced a winner at George Washington and who was a former UNC All-American.

Barclay, whose G.W. teams had operated from the T, was supposed to install a winning T-team at the university. A complete switch is extremely difficult under any circumstances but without an experienced quarterback and a schedule filled with some of the nation's best (Tennessee, Texas, Notre Dame, Duke) to produce a winner would have been virtually impossible.

But now the VIP's are remembering that it was Barclay who was to all practical purposes the head man this year. The Tar Heels 2-6 record didn't do anything to help gate receipts and attendance at Carolina home games dropped to the lowest mark of the post-war period.

Another member of the Tar Heel coaching staff may also be the reason for the elongated delay in announcing a replacement for Shively.

Jim Gill, UNC line coach, has always been a tremendous favorite with the players on the squad. Gill is a man the boys go to and spill their woes. He is sympathetic, listens to their troubles and then on Saturday they play their best for him.

In several games this year the Tar Heels didn't seem to be playing as hard as they could have, they didn't seem to have any fire. Especially in the Duke game.

However, Barclay still ranks top favorite. "Lady Wonder" the Virginia miracle horse that is supposed to have mystical powers to foresee the future, prophesied Barclay. A Virginia sport reporter asked the wonder horse who would be the next coach at UNC and the answer was B-a-r-c-l-a-y, which was close enough for those familiar with the situation.

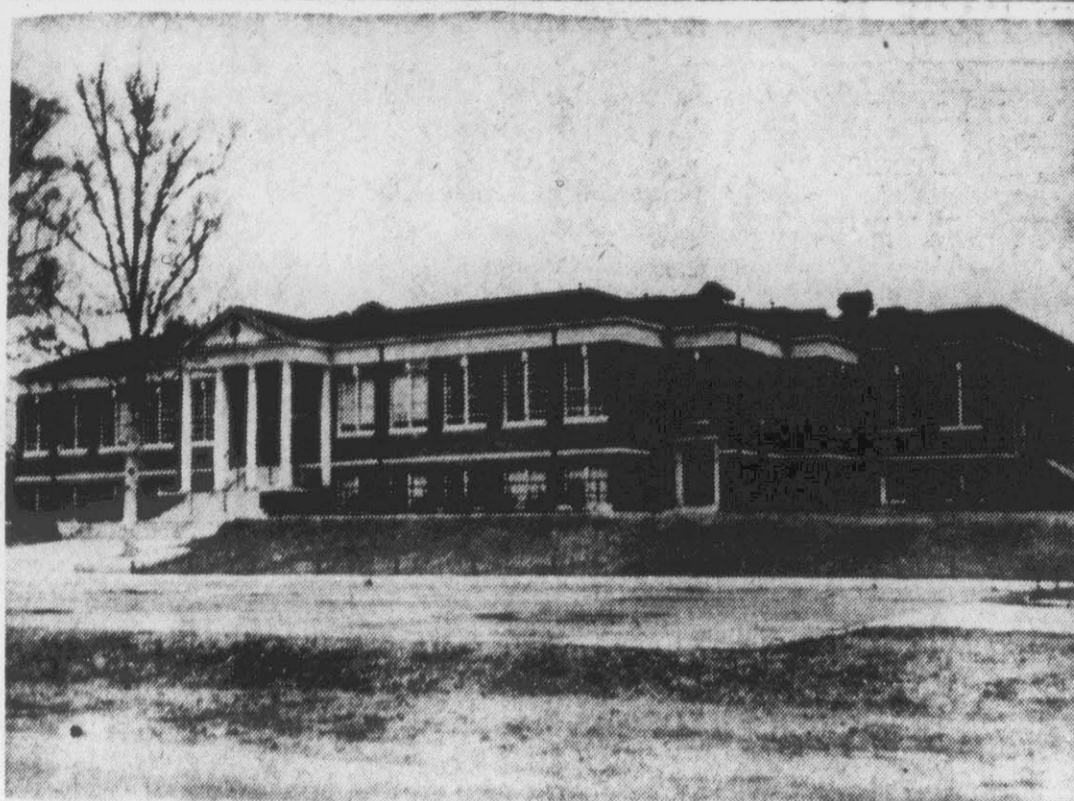

John Biggs, president of the Evans Street Athletic Association, predicts Barclay. John and myself have never agreed on anything in football this far so I'm going to predict Jim Gill as the next head coach at the University of North Carolina.

N. C. State, Illinois Hit Comeback Trail

State Plays Host To Dartmouth In Coliseum Tonight

NEW YORK (UP) — Comeback attempts by Illinois and North Carolina State and first-round games in the Big Seven Southwest Conference, and holiday festival tournaments highlight a top-notch program of college basketball tonight.

The powerful Illinois were rudely jolted Tuesday night when they were upset by Minnesota, 77-73, a loss that hurt their chances of repeating as Big Ten champions and also clouded their ranking as the nation's No. 1 quintet. The same night North Carolina State, ranked sixth nationally, was walloped by St. John's, 67-56.

THIS NEW GYMNASIUM AND PHYSICAL EDUCATION BUILDING at East Carolina College will be dedicated Tuesday, January 6, in exercises preceding a basketball game between East Carolina and University of North Carolina teams. The exercises include music by the East Carolina band and presentation of distinguished guests by Dr. J. D. Messick. An address will be delivered by Dr. Oliver K. Cornwell, Director of Physical Education for men at the University of North Carolina, and Mrs. James L. White will sing the National Anthem prior to the basketball game. (Staff Photo by C. L. Cleveland Loses Two Top Stars

CLEVELAND, O. (UP) — The Cleveland Browns lost stars Duane Jones and Mac Speedie, but the coach of the Detroit Lions pronounced his squad "in great shape" today on the eve of their clash for the National football League championship.

End Speedie and halfback Jones, both suffering from twisted knees, are "definitely out" of Sunday's clash before an expected crowd of 50,000 at Municipal Stadium.

Dr. Vic Ippolito, the Browns' team physician, told the two gridiron veterans that not only must they sit out this game but they also should pass up the professional All-Star bowl game two weeks from now. To play in either, the physician said, would jeopardize the rest of their careers.

The loss of both men may put a crimp in the passing of Cleveland's famed Otto Graham. Speedie, Dante Lavelli, and Jones are Graham's favorite targets. Coach Paul Brown said he would start

A Great Champion May Call It Quits

By OSCAR FRALEY
NEW YORK (UP) — Fearless Fraley's facts and figures: Looking forward to two years of active duty in the Marine Corps, Olympic decathlon champion Bob Mathias "at the present time" does not expect to compete in the 1956 international games at Australia.

"Three years in service isn't the best place to train for something like the Olympic games," comments big Bob. "This summer I will spend six weeks in training and then go back to Stanford for one more quarter. I will have one more season of eligibility left then but will not use it." Meaning that a terrific athlete and a great champion apparently has reached the end of the athletic road.

Maybe you didn't realize it, but greyhound racing has become real big sports business. The "sport of queens" is in its 34th year in the United States with 25 tracks in seven states. Florida has the most with 14. In 1952, a total of 7,056,117 people wagered $209,821,447. A nice way of "going to the dogs."

One of the busiest young gridiron gentlemen on New Year's Day should be Florida fullback Rick Casares, as his team meets Tulsa in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla. The Tampa Terror, who ran for 549 yards and scored 64 points during the seas on a slow passes, punts, quick kicks, kick off and handles the extra point and field goal kicking for the Gators... wonder what he does during half time?

Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano will be honored for "high principle and attainment in sports" Sunday night by the sports lodge of B'nai B'rith. He succeeded Jersey Joe Walcott—naturally...

Conservation cornerer Henry Schell, Hillsboro, Wis., and his son Goodwin, have trapped 1,438 foxes this year... (proving, no doubt that there are a lot of foxes in the Badger State)...

At hand is the ballot for the fourth "Pop" Warner award, presented to the most valuable senior collegiate football player on the Pacific Coast. I'm a bad risk, having been confined to the Ivy League (what a confinement!) but from what I hear it's between UCLA's Don Moormaw and Southern Cal's Jim Sears... the vote here goes to Moormaw... Happy New Year!

Seixas, Trabert Are U. S. Davis Cup Hope

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — American hopes of recapturing the Davis Cup got a big lift today when Tony Trabert, the power-stroking sailor on leave, zipped through one of his most impressive workouts.

Trabert, whose tennis got a bit rusty during Navy duty, will team with Vic Seixas, the U. S. captain, against Australia's Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor in the challenge round, opening Monday.

Aussie officials have virtually agreed to give McGregor the nod over left-handed Mervyn Rose, who lost his two singles to the Americans last year. This means the Davis Cup final battle will be strictly a four-man affair.

The Americans have young Ham Richardson and Straight Clark for reserve use, but neither is expected to see action.

The draw is scheduled tomorrow at 11 a.m., Adelaide time (8:30 p.m. EST). It will determine the lineup for the first two singles duels. The order is reversed in the final two singles Wednesday.

The doubles will be played Tuesday and the Sedgman-McGregor tandem is heavily favored, although Seixas and Trabert teamed well in the Inter-zone matches.

Trabert was stroking better today than any time since he reached this continent on brief leave. He was murdering the ball on his service, and putting away strong winners both from the back court and at the net.

Seixas, who has beaten Sedgman the last two times they've met, now is highly confident of an American victory and he doesn't mind saying so. He also is hitting the ball well.

A crowd of 8,000 turned out at the Memorial Drive Courts today to watch the Americans and Australians sharpen their strokes in final tuneups. They were encouraged by the sharpness of their own champion, Sedgman, but the impressive play of Trabert threw a damper over their hopes of an easy cup victory.

Terrific Tackle by Pap'

The first player invited to participate in the twenty-eighth Annual Shrine East-West Football Game in San Francisco was Dick Batten, regular offensive guard for college of Pacific. Honor of being the first player to be invited was accorded to Batten because he will be the first alumnus of the San Francisco Shriners Hospital ever to play in the East-West game.

When Batten was two years old, he suffered a diseased bone in his right leg. He was admitted to the Shriners' Hospital in 1932 and after six months was completely cured. Dick grew into a big, strong boy and became a fine football player at Dos Palos high school. He entered Colleger of Pacific and became a reserve tackle on the Tigers' eleven. In January 1951, Batten enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps and spent seven months on active duty in Korea where he engaged in the bitter battle for Chosin Reservoir. He returned to college in the fall of 1951 and resumed his football career.

Batten opened the 1952 season as a defensive tackle but was shifted to offense where he became Pacific's outstanding lineman and helped the Tigers enjoy a highly successful season. In addition to being a fine football player, Batten is a good student and a campus leader. He maintains a "B" average and last winter led a campus blood drive that netted the Red Cross over 1,000 pints of blood for the armed forces.

Vince Martinez Wins By TKO; Opponent Retires

NEW YORK (UP) — Violent Vince Martinez, the bee-bop belter from Paterson, N. J., who battered Don Williams into retirement Friday night, probably will be matched with Chico Vejar at Madison Square Garden Feb. 6.

Matchmaker Billy Brown was negotiating today with Co-managers Bill Daly and Tex Pette for the February appearance of bobby-sox favorite Martinez, who scored a technical knockout over more-experienced Williams at 1:35 of the ninth round in the Garden.

Handsome, dark-haired Martinez gave blood-smeared Williams of Worcester, Mass., such a battering that Referee Ruby Goldstein stopped the bout in the ninth. The choir singer from Worcester was helpless on his feet, and he was bleeding profusely from a deep gash on his right brow and from his nose.

Martinez, 23, scaled 148 1-2 pounds; Williams, 25, registered 146 1-2.

In the dressing room, Williams announced his retirement. "Although I'm only 25," he said, "I'm no longer the fighter I was. I'm going to hang up my gloves for good and stick to working in Worcester."

There were no knockdowns in the nationally televised fight that attracted 5,954 cash customers and $18,791. However, Williams was staggered three times in the fourth round and twice in the eighth.

Martinez suffered slight cuts on his nose and left brow as he registered his 12th straight victory that included 10 knockouts. It was his 26th triumph and 15th kayo since he turned pro in 1949.

It was Williams' 12th defeat in 71 fights in nearly seven years of professional boxing, and it was his fourth kayo.

Teams Drill Hard For Bowl

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP) — Tennessee, already threatened with the loss of Coach Bob Neyland in its Cotton Bowl meeting with Texas, definitely lost the services of star fullback Andy Kozar today.

Kozar, suffering an injured hip, was declared out of the game by team trainer Mickey O'Brien. O'Brien said Kozar's hip was improving but not fast enough to permit him to play in the New Year's Day game.

The six-foot, 197-pounder, was one of the key runners in Tennessee's sound ground game this season. He was injured in Tennessee's 26-12 victory over Florida on Nov. 15.

PASADENA, Calif. (UP) — Coach Ivy Williamson said today that he believed Wisconsin "is reaching its peak form" in time for its Rose Bowl game with Southern California.

runbacks, one of the team's most potent weapons all season, and forward passing highlighted Southern California's Rose Bowl preparations for Wisconsin today, with little Jimmy Sears playing the featured role in both phases of the game.

Sears and Rudy Bukich connected repeatedly with long passes during yesterday's workout and then Coach Jess Hill drilled his downfield blockers in the art of clearing a path for the speedy Sears.

N. C. State Is Undefeated In The Coliseum

By The Associated Press
North Carolina State and West Virginia get the Southern Conference basketball show back on the road tonight in engagements against major intersectional opponents.

State's Wolfpack, still smarting from a 67-56 setback administered earlier this week by St. John's of Brooklyn, moves to the friendly atmosphere of its home court—Reynolds Coliseum—to take on touring Dartmouth.

West Virginia plays Syracuse on the Mountaineers' home court at Morgantown.

S. Worthington, Bob Conway Lead Phantoms In Basketball

Smith Worthington, All-Conference Phantom forward, is leading Greenville high cagers in the point making department as the season transfers into the 1953 vein.

The slim hoopster has dunked 24 field goals and 40 free throws in the 88 total.

Bobby Conway leads the team in field goal accuracy. Conway has rang the bell nine times out of 21 attempts for a 43 percent mark. However his accuracy has faltered him at the free throw line caging only six of 22 tries.

Leon Hardee, a tall varsity newcomer, is runnerup to Worthington in points with 13 goals and six free tosses for a 32 point total.

Dependable defensive guard Jimmy Cheatham has added to the offensive effort.

The Phantoms begin their 1953 season meeting Goldsboro here Jan. 7. Then they begin a string of conference engagements beginning with New Bern there Jan. 9.

East-West Clash In 28th Meet Today Before 60,000

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Football's finest hour — the one in which the strong run so that the weak may walk — will be staged here today with the East meeting the West in the 28th annual Shrine All-Star gridiron classic.

More than 60,000 fans will jam Kezar Stadium for the one-hour pagan preceding the kick-off at 2 p.m. p.s.t. Net receipts from the game, which will amount to more than $100,000, all go to the Shriners' crippled children's hospital.

The weatherman predicts "occasional rains" during the day. But the field will start off dry, because it has been covered with canvas for the past week.

The game will be broadcast on radio and televised on national hook-ups.

With 25 men on each side—and nearly all of these at least sectional or All-American — picking a winner will be tough. The gamblers have installed the West as a 6 1-2 point favorite. However, the East has won four out of the last five games.

The men being boomed most for stardom, off the basis of their performances in practices sessions, have been fullback Johnny Olszewski of Cal; guard Bill Forester of Southern Methodist; and halfback Billy Vessels of Oklahoma, for the West; and for the East, halfback Don McAlliff of Michigan State; fullback Joe Fortunato of Mississippi State and end Paul Dekker of Michigan State.

Head Coach Biggie Munn of the East and Howie Odel of the West

Ted Williams Is Planning For A Business Future

MIAMI, Fla. (UP) — Ted Williams, conceding that he is "near the age when ball players begin to go downhill," has bought an interest in a Miami fishing tackle distribution firm.

The 3-year old slugger of the Boston Red Sox, now a captain in the Marine Air Corps, explained he "wanted a business to go into when my playing days are over for keeps."

Of his chances of playing big league baseball when discharged from the corps, Williams said: "I feel I can still move around good enough when I get out of service, I would like to play some more."

But he admitted his age and the long layoff might prove too big a handicap.

Amusement Park Joy Not A Lonesome One

NEW YORK (UP)—Mrs. Mildred Morgenstern though she'd have the loneliest job in the world during the holiday season.

"It's the first time I've ever worked in an amusement park, and I thought winter would be awfully gloomy," Mrs. Morgenstern admitted.

"My friends still aren't convinced that it isn't spooky in the winter, but there are all kinds of things going on behind scenes, and the children still come on weekends," said Millie, the combination office worker and kiddies advisor.

"They used to call it the Tunnel of Love in my day," sighed Millie. "But the young people these days demand something more exciting."

So she's been making periodic rides through the eerie caverns to pass on the scaring power of the latest painted figures.

Then there are conferences to figure out what new rides will catch youthful fancies next summer. Right now the young customers are going through an outer space phase.

"The fruit juice has to be called 'atom juice' and the whirling rides are flying saucers," Millie said with a laugh.

Some of the rides are closed during cold weather, but the atom juice still flows freely, and special contests live up to weekends.

"The most surprising thing to me is the number of older people who come regularly just to sit and watch the youngsters enjoy themselves," she said.

German Output Takes Startling 163 Percent Leap

By WELLINGTON LONG United Press Staff Correspondent BONN, Germany (UP)—West German industrial production has jumped a startling 163 per cent since the currency reform of June, 1948.

The foreign trade volume has increased 250 per cent in three and one-half years, and West Germany has become the European Payments Union's biggest creditor, with a corresponding increase of 33 per cent in the past 12 months in gold and dollar reserves.

More than 15,000,000 persons are employed, a post-war record. Economists report West Germany has been less affected by the rise in consumer goods prices since the start of the Korean War than any other European state.

Not All Rosy Yet beneath this facade of bustling prosperity, there is a broad layer of misery, only too easily overlooked by the casual observer.

One-fourth of the nation's 48,000,000 residents receive pensions or other types of government relief. More than 1,000,000 persons still are unemployed.

West Germany's 10,000,000 refugees have not been absorbed into the community, despite extensive programs to transfer these unfortunates to industrial areas where skilled workers are scarce.

The 1953 federal budget will total 26,455,000,000 marks ($6,298,923,000), four times as much as the 1950 budget, leaving little hope for a cut in taxes on anything except possibly cigarettes and champagne.

The gap with the dollar trading area still runs at about $18,000,000 a month, despite strenuous efforts to step up sales to the United States and Canada.

There is a woeful lack of private investment, both domestic and foreign, although that is precisely what is now needed to boost production still further.

The picture is brightened, however, by the fact that political West Germany is the most stable state in Europe.

There has been but one serious strike since the hunger walkouts of the Ruhr in 1947, and that one two-day strike on a political issue by the Socialist printers union in May-fizzled.

Although Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's coalition government is conservative by description, it has actually gone further towards pure socialization than many Socialist governments by giving workers in most private enterprises from 30 to 50 per cent shares in management under the "co-determination" laws.

The workers are more concerned about acquiring such a share in management, and thus insuring job security, than they are in fighting for higher wages, so peace reigns on most of the labor front.

Forgotten Men Remember Man Who Was Santa

By JAY BREEN United Press Staff Correspondent NEW YORK (UP)—The Street of Forgotten Men prepared today to remember a genial Brooklyn tavern keeper who had to prove his sanity when he played Santa Claus to the Bowery.

Joseph Bonavita started beary-eyed residents of New York's never-never land on Christmas Day, 1946, when he showed up without advance warning to pass out fistfuls of money to men who came staggering from doorways and alleys.

This year Bonavita won't make his pilgrimage. He's in the hospital, recovering slowly from an eye operation. Doctors aren't at all satisfied with his recuperation mostly because of his restless disposition.

He handed out more than $1,500 before police answer d a summons to investigate a man obviously out of his mind who was creating a small riot by giving bums money.

Bonavita was picked up and hustled off to Bellevue Hospital for a mental examination.

With calm, easy assurance, Bonavita pointed out to learned psychiatrists that his idea of Christmas—giving to the less fortunate to make his own heart glad—was not necessarily a symptom of lunacy but perhaps the true spirit o Christmas.

The next year, he returned to pass out $700 more, this time under the benevolent eyes of cops who still shook their heads in wonder over Bonavita's idea of holiday giving.

"We're going to do something nice for him, that's for sure," a said-eyed derelict said, "why some of these guys even went on the wagon, just to make sure they won't miss whatever we decide to do."

"He finds being quiet so difficult because he's always been very active," Mrs. Bonavita explained in the tavern and restaurant she and her husband operate, "and he's especially unhappy because he has to be in the hospital at this time of the year."

But there's a spirit of Christmas growing in the Bowery that may do as much for Bonavita's recovery as any medicine. Men who have nothing to give are getting together to plan some way of sending Bonavita the season's message of hope and faith.
