Legislators And Dignitaries Converge On Raleigh Today For Assembly, Inaugural

RALEIGH (UP)—State legislators and visiting dignitaries began converging on the state capital today for the formal opening of the 1953 General Assembly Wednesday and the glittering inaugural of William Bradley Umstead as governor of North Carolina.

Hotel rooms were already at a premium. Pre-session parties and social events were in swing.

Lobbying was not forgotten either as more and more of the state senators and representatives arrived on the scene.

Democratic members of both houses will hold caucuses tomorrow night to select a Senate president pro tem and a speaker of the House.

Sen. Edwin Pate of Scotland County and Rep. E. T. Bost of Cabarrus County were expected to get the posts, and their nominations were scheduled to be confirmed Wednesday when the gavel comes in both chambers to open the 1953 session.

Early-arriving legislators and their families, state officials, lobbyists and newsmen were caught up in a whirl of pre-session gaiety.

One of the early arrivals was Rep. Edwin R. Johnson, dean of the legislature both in age and service. Johnson, 84, from Currituck, announced that this session will be his final tour of public duty.

The highlight of the week will come Thursday with Umstead's inauguration.

Pomp has surrounded the ceremony since 1776 when Gov. Richard Caswell took the oath of office as North Carolina's first governor. He was elected by the legislature.

Umstead, of Durham, out-going Gov. W. Kerr Scott of Alamance, and Umstead's daughter, Merle Bradley, will ride in the first of 15 official cars heading the inaugural parade down Fayetteville street.

The official party will be escorted by some 2,000 troops from the regular Army, Marine Corps, National Guard and ROTC units.

Tanks, artillery pieces and other military displays will rumble in the parade with military, high school and college bands on the route from the executive mansion on Blount Street, past the marble Capitol, spanning clean for the session, and down historic Fayetteville Street to Memorial Auditorium, scene of the inauguration.

Beginning at noon, the oaths of office will be taken by the state's elected officials.

Insurance Commissioner Waldo Check will be the first, followed by Labor Commissioner Forrest Shuford, Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine, Atty. Gen. Harry McMullan, State School Superintendent Charles F. Carroll, State Treasurer Brandon Hodges, State Auditor Henry Bridges, Secretary of State Thad Eure and Lt. Gov. Elect Luther Hodges.

Hodges then will take the gavel from retiring Lt. Gov. H. Pat Taylor of Wadesboro and outgoing Governor Scott will introduce Umstead.

Chief Justice W. A. Devin of the State Supreme Court will administer the oath to Umstead.

Umstead's inaugural address is expected to outline what his administration plans and he may set forth a program for the legislature.

Umstead will have the auditorium for the Capitol with a 19-gun salute.

Following a review of the troops, Umstead will go to the executive offices where Scott will entrust the Great Seal of State to him.

The inaugural ball will come Thursday night and other parties will blossom out all over the city.

Superforts Flatten 2 Red Bridges

'Key Links' In N. Korean Supply Line Destroyed; Enemy Lines Probed

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—United States B-29 superforts bombed and flattened two Communist key supply bridges to the Korean battlefield last night—just as they were rebuilt after a raid three weeks ago.

The Air Force described the bridges in the Huichon area of central North Korea as a "key link" in the Red supply line from the Kangrye gateway south to Pyongyang and the battle sectors.

Fires from tons of bombs indicated the Communists were moving supplies over the rebuilt bridges when the superforts hit their targets.

The attack was made by twelve medium bombers.

"We must have caught something on one of the bridges," said airman O. G. Ernest S. Dumont, Lawrence, Kans.

"Just as we turned off our target, I saw two fires, large and bright orange. A steel bridge doesn't burn," the gunner said.

The Air Force apparently waited until the Reds almost completed their repairs before striking again.

On the ground, Allied raiders attacked an enemy hill behind hundreds of bursting rockets last night and clashed with the Reds for the first time in 48 hours on the western front.

Rocket launchers sent ripple after ripple into the Red outposts, hundreds of shells landing simultaneously on the Red bunkers. Then Allied mortars began dropping in front of the attacking raiders to keep the Chinese bottled up in their positions.

The attack was the advance across 30-man land.

The patrol flushed the Communist troops from dug-in positions on a hill and killed several of them with grenades and rifle fire.

After 10 minutes the probing patrol withdrew.

Communist ground troops made their usual nightly stab at U.N. positions along Sniper Ridge on the central front, but gained no ground.

South Korean troops killed 35 of the Reds and wounded 20.

Kept His Head

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A terrified father, unable to enter his flaming home, used the power of his automobile and the strength of a steel chain to save his two tiny children from a fiery death yesterday.

Harold Wilkerson returned from a drive to find his home lashed in flames. The fire blocked Wilkerson's attempt to enter through a door and all windows were guarded by iron bars.

But the frantic Wilkerson rapidly pieced together the picture and did the following:

1. Whipped the chain from a child's swing around his bumper.
2. Hooked the chain to the window guard and rammed the car in reverse.
3. Leaped through the broken window and carried 17-month-old Harold Jr. and 3-year-old Judy to safety.

Jaunty Churchill Arrives In U. S. Voicing Belief World Peace Hopes Are Unchanged

Says No Danger In Fuel-Flavored Drinking Water

Health Officer States Quantity Of Oil Too Small To Be Harmful

The drinking water in Greenville won't suffice for fuel yet, but during the past few days it has had the odor and tasted strongly of kerosene.

Both the Utilities Commission and the Pitt County Board of Health have been swamped with complaining calls since last week, and an investigation of the situation disclosed kerosene to be present in the water supply.

Dr. Walter Humbert, Pitt County health officer, said this morning traces of oil in the water have been investigated and although the odor is peculiar and has an obnoxious odor, there is no danger.

NOT HARMFUL

The health officer stated what oil is present in the water is definitely not harmful to people, and is not conducive to harboring any communicable diseases. He advanced that theory for the benefit of citizens who may be dubious about drinking city water.

Contacted this morning, Utilities Superintendent Martin Swarts said the kerosene is being carried down Tar River from Rocky Mount, where a tanker ship was damaged and spilled a tank of kerosene into the river.

"We have no choice in the matter of city water," Swarts stated, "because our only source of water for drinking purposes is Tar River." He expressed the opinion the situation will be cleared up within the next few days.

"It has been fairly dry recently, and rains last week washed everything into the river, but it should not last over two or three days longer."

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN

Swarts asserted every precaution has been taken relative to water purification, and the utilities department is doing everything it can to keep as much oil out of the city's water system as possible under the circumstances.

He explained that oil from the river has been trapped in the sand filters at the plant, and it will take sometime for every trace to be completely removed. "The worst situation regarding water tasting of oil exists at the end of city lines where water is trapped," Swarts stated.

"We know the water's pure," the superintendent concluded, "and if consumers will bear with us the whole thing will be cleared up soon."

Old Christmas

RODANTEE, N. C. (AP)—This Hatteras Island community celebrated "Old Christmas" today.

Rodante and the neighboring village of Waves on North Carolina's Outer Banks are the only places in the world, say villagers, where Old Christmas is observed on Jan. 5, Twelfth Night or Epiphany, sometimes called "Little Christmas," which comes on Jan. 6, is still celebrated in many parts of this world.

The exchanging of gifts, the music of fife and the beating of an ancient drum, and a visit by "Old Buck," the legendary wild bull of Trent Woods, will again feature the observance of Old Christmas.

Convinced That Meeting Korean Aggression Did More To Improve Peace Prospects Than Anything Else; Reminds That 'Gravity Center' Remains In West Europe

NEW YORK (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill blue eyes-a-twinkle, cigar-a-tilt, arrived in the United States today with the word that "the real center of gravity in the world" is along the Iron Curtain in Western Europe—not in Korea.

He Saw Hiss At Commie Meets

Ex-Red Says Hiss Was Member Of His Cell In 1933-34

WASHINGTON (UP)—Former government economist Nathaniel Weyl said today he attended "35 or 40" Communist meetings with Alger Hiss during 1933-34 and "saw him pay dues" to the Communist party.

Weyl, who testified previously before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, discussed his "communist" relationship with Hiss in a copyrighted interview with U.S. News & World Report magazine, and the Communist party's new line.

Not tell his story to the FBI until 1950—after Hiss had been convicted of lying about his Communist past.

Weyl explained that he was reluctant to expose any of his former Communist associates until the Reds attacked South Korea.

He advised other ex-Communists to consider communism "simply as treason" and to "go straight to the FBI."

Weyl said he was working as a economist in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in 1933 when he was recruited into a Communist unit headed by Harold Ware.

He said his fellow members included Hiss, Lee Pressman, John Abt, Nathan Witt, Victor Perlo and several others previously named by Whittaker Chambers as members of the Hiss "apparatus."

"They all knew they were part of a revolutionary organization," he said. "They were there because they believed in revolution. They thought the capitalist system was dying and would have to change over to a socialist form of organization."

He said Hiss was "not particularly talkative" at the meetings, which were devoted mainly to discussions of how Communists should organize the government when they came to power.

Truman's Figure Nearly One-Half Of 1954 Spending Plans

WASHINGTON (UP)—The federal budget which President Truman will send to Congress Friday includes about $41,000,000,000 for the Defense Department, informed sources said today.

They said the final budget figure is very close to the amount which the department asked for spending during the fiscal year 1954 which begins next July 1.

Thus defense spending will represent over half of the reported $79,000,000,000 total of Mr. Truman's budget.

Informants said that the White House cut about $1,000,000,000 from the funds which the armed services sought for 1954 purchases of tanks, planes, ships and other heavy armaments. These cuts were made by stretching out delivery dates for the requested items into the following 1955 fiscal year.

But the total was brought back up to the original Defense Department figure when the White House added about $1,000,000,000 for military bases and other public works. Pentagon planners had made no provision for this type of spending in their request, intending to seek such funds separately.

The new defense budget is about $11,000,000 less than the President asked last year and about $5,000,000 less than Congress approved.

Defense leaders said the reduction is possible because the armed forces have at least temporarily stopped expanding and now intend to maintain forces of about 3,600,000 men.

Defense officials contend that the new Republican Congress will find it difficult to cut down the proposed defense spending without impairing national security. But the lawmakers are determined to seek out and eliminate any "fat" or waste in the whopping military budget.

President-elect Eisenhower is on record, also, as believing that adequate military defenses can be provided with less money and more efficiency. He made this statement however, before the amount in the proposed budget was known.

Privately Admit Defeat In Anti-Filibuster Fight

Showdown Awaited Tuesday, But Senators Who Started Campaign Figure Coalition Is Just Too Strong

WASHINGTON (UP)—Several senators seeking to curb Senate filibusters privately admitted today that their move faces certain defeat by a Republican-southern Democratic coalition.

The showdown on the anti-filibuster move will come Tuesday. Both the Senate and House were in recess today until a joint session of Congress is held Tuesday to count the electoral vote and formally declare Dwight D. Eisenhower elected President.

Immediately after the joint session today, the Senate will take up a motion by Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-N.M.) calling upon the new Republican-controlled Senate to adopt new rules. Approval of this motion would open the way for anti-filibuster senators to offer a rule limiting Senate debate.

The anti-filibuster move was doomed, however, when the Republicans agreed in their first caucus that the Senate was a "continuing body" and therefore operating under previous rules. The Republicans can also count on support from southern Democrats, who have traditionally used the filibuster to block action on civil rights legislation.

After disposing of the rules question, the Senate will be ready to hear President Truman's final State of the Union message Wednesday. That will be followed by the President's annual budget message on Friday and his economic message about Jan. 14. After hearing the President's messages, Congress will mark time until Jan. 20 when the new Eisenhower administration takes over and submits its own legislative recommendations.

Meet Again To Fight Rate Hike

Eastern N. C. Towns Map Phone Fight In Wilson Tuesday

Plans will be formulated tomorrow for the conduct of an organized fight against another increase in phone rates recently requested by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Representatives from Greenville and various other cities and towns in Eastern North Carolina affected by the rate hike will meet in Wilson tomorrow morning at 10:30 to draw up opposition plans.

Representing Greenville and Pitt County are W. W. Speight, Pitt County attorney, and City Attorney R. B. Lee. Wilson has become the focal point for opposition discussions, because that city's chamber of commerce has been designated as the organ to coordinate the fight.

Most of the cities and towns included in the area to be affected by another rate increase have contributed financially toward the opposition for the purpose of hiring expert witnesses to testify against the company.

The N. C. Utilities Commission reviewed the company's side of the argument at a hearing in December, and testimony on the part of the opposition faction is slated to be heard sometime this month at another commission hearing.

Officials say this is the most active organization to an increase ever presented before the commission by people in this area.

Statehood For Hawaii Talked

Sen. Knowland Believes Action Possible At 'Very Early Date'

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) said after a conference with President-elect Eisenhower today that he has every reason to believe that Hawaii will get statehood "at a very early date."

Knowland, new chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, told newsmen he did not feel at liberty to discuss what Eisenhower had to say about Hawaii statehood.

"But I have every reason to believe," he added, "that Hawaii will get statehood at a very early date."

Legislation to give the territory statehood will be introduced in the new Congress in a few days, Knowland said. Previous bills to grant statehood to Hawaii and Alaska have been sidetracked in Congress.

Knowland was accompanied to Eisenhower's Commodore Hotel Headquarters by GOP Sen. Hugh Butler of Nebraska, Guy Gordon of Oregon, and Arthur V. Watkins of Utah.

Butler will be chairman of the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, which handles statehood legislation, Gordon and Watkins are members of the committee.

Butler previously has been opposed to statehood for Hawaii, but recently came out in favor of it after a visit to the territory.

Say Loyalty Was Secondary Issue

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate investigators claimed they had documentary proof from the State Department today that loyalty to the United States was given only secondary emphasis in screening Americans employed by the United Nations.

The Senate Internal Security subcommittee, which has investigated subversive infiltration of the U.N., made public a State Department memorandum outlining the secret 1949 arrangements under which the United States sent adverse reports on American employees to the U.N.

Sen. Pat McCarran (D-Nev.), former subcommittee chairman, called the document "startling" and said it "makes it appear that the State Department's so-called 'security checks' of United Nations personnel were not primarily concerned with the question of loyalty to the United States."

McCarran objected particularly to a section of the memo which said a U.N. employee should be given an adverse rating if his political sympathies would seem to make him "a poor risk in terms of adherence to his oath as an international civil servant," and therefore constitute a probable source of future injury to the U.N.

The subcommittee also made public a 1946 letter from then Secretary of State James F. Byrnes asserting that convicted perjurer Alger Hiss headed the State Department agency responsible for recruiting personnel of the U. S. delegation to the U.N. But Byrnes said the State Department "had no voice in hiring employees of the U.N. staff itself, which has been the target of Congressional investigations and a special federal grand jury."

Jumps 14 Floors And Threatens To Do It Again

CHICAGO (UP)—A 30-year-old man leaped from the 14th floor of a skyscraper YMCA hotel early today, lived through the fall and threatened to "do it again."

Doctors at St. Luke's hospital said Alexis V. Grekoff suffered numerous lacerations, fractures and a "crushed head" in the jump but was conscious when brought to the hospital. They said his condition was "serious."

Grekoff told police who rushed him to the hospital he was "tired of it all." And vowed he would try to take his life again if he got the chance.

Cards found in his wallet identified the injured man as a resident of Berkeley, Calif.

Grekoff was expected to be in emergency for some time, and there was no indication from doctors whether he would survive the fall.

NATO Progress Unsatisfactory To Gen. Rodgway

PARIS (UP)—Allied Supreme Commander Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said today his North Atlantic Pact forces would suffer grievous blows if there was war within a year and that he was not satisfied with the Western military buildup.

"It has been encouraging, but I do not regard the progress satisfactory in the light of the mission assigned to me and in the light of potential enemy capabilities," Ridgway said of the military buildup.

The American commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces charged with the defense of Western Europe was asked if his forces would be loomed if war came within a year.

"I believe that in the hypothetical case stated the L.N.D. forces would suffer grievous blows," he said. "I do not mean that they would be defeated."

New York Curb Has New Name

NEW YORK (UP)—The New York Curb Exchange, whose robust growth parallels that of the United States during the past century, today takes on its new name of American Stock Exchange.

Now the nation's second largest securities market, the exchange lists 793 stock and 83 bond issues with a total of more than 700,000,000 shares valued at around $18,000,000,000.

Code Crackers Hunt New Red Conspiracy

MONTREAL, Que. (UP)—Canadian code crackers sought today to uncover an international Communist conspiracy in papers found in a rooming house where a Greek immigrant died.

Police said they found code documents, including one which mentioned the name of convicted British traitor Klaus Fuchs, while investigating the death of Constantine Stathopoulos, 60.

The immigrant, a card-carrying member of the Canadian Labor Progressive Communist party, died in his room Saturday night, apparently of natural causes.

Capt. Louise Champagne and Lt. John Boyczum of the city police anti-subversive squad said the documents and letters were from "every country" behind the Iron Curtain as well as Red China and North Korea.

A preliminary check of the writings indicated "this guy was wrapped up in a major Communist conspiracy," Boyczum said.

The officers said a notebook found in Stathopoulos' effects contained names of anti-Communist Greeks "marked for liquidation if the Communists ever took over that country."

They said they found the documents, including Stathopoulos' membership book in the Labor Progressive party, in bags under the bed and in a cupboard.

"It will take us at least a month to read through it all, and even then we won't be finished," Boyczum said. "We found a submachine gun and 200 bullets at the bottom of a steamer trunk. We unearthed a wicked-looking machete sharp as a razor. There was enough Red propaganda to sink a landing library."

"And there's no telling how long it will take to figure out the stuff written in about 80 notebooks and 200 loose-leaf books. A lot of it is handwritten in Greek and a translator told us some of the Greek is in code."

Police said the notes on Fuchs, who is serving a 14-year term in England for passing atomic secrets to Russia, were in a code that would take "a good time" to crack.

Boyczum said Stathopoulos entered Canada as an immigrant in 1927 and since then has been a "key man" in the Communist movement. His papers showed he had made several trips to the U.S.

East German Purge Program Is Indicated

BERLIN (UP)—East German Communists have accused two top party leaders of being Zionist American agents, probably as the introduction to a German Communist anti-Semitic purge trial.

The indicated purge of East German Reds probably will involve former Soviet Zone propaganda chief Gerhart Eisler, who was fired last week, observers said. Eisler is a Jew.

The East German Communist Party Central Committee also accused lesser German Reds to a resolution which tied the Germans to the November trial in Prague of the former secretary general of the Czech Communist party, Rudolf Slansky, and former Czech Foreign Minister Vladimir Clementis.

The resolution, published in the Communist party newspaper Neues Deutschland, accused Paul Merker, 49, one-time Politburo member, and Kurt Mueller, deputy, of leading a "Zionist conspiracy" in the West German party, with being American agents, Zionists, Trotskists and Trotskyites.

Merker is Jewish. Mueller is not. The accusation said the two party leaders were members of an alleged anti-Communist, anti-Soviet Zionist conspiracy led by Slansky in Prague. Slansky, Clementis and nine other former top Czech Reds were executed last month.

Commissioners Hold All-Day Session Today

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners was in session today for its regular monthly meeting.

Board members were slated to hear a report from County Auditor Reginald Gray on the amount of money picked up during a thorough inspection of county tax books.

The total amount in evaluation picked up is expected to go over $500,000, a figure which will yield approximately $5,000 in revenue.

The meeting began at 10 o'clock this morning and was expected to last most of today.

Iran's Rioting Is In Third Day

TEHRAN (UP)—One person was killed and eight seriously injured today in the third day of fighting between Communists and rightwingers, police reported.

Communists attacked rightwing Pan-Islamists were driven off but returned with other rightists and beat up the Reds.

Press dispatches reported religious groups and Communists battled in the holy town of Qum yesterday and police fired over their heads in a vain attempt to restore order.

The reports said police arrested large numbers of rioters but the situation remained out of control.

Cigaret Firm Is Ordered To Halt Specific Claims

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Federal Trade Commission today ordered Philip Morris Co. to stop claiming that its cigarettes are less "irritating" than other brands.

The order also forbids the company to advertise that its cigarettes are "non-irritating," and will protect the smoker against "smoker's cough."

Philip Morris was the fifth major cigarette company ordered to "correct" its advertising under the FTC's power to prevent "unfair or deceptive" business practices.

Previously such orders were issued to the American Tobacco Co., makers of Lucky Strikes; Lorillard Co., makers of Old Golds; R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., makers of Camels, and Liggett and Myers Tobacco Co., makers of Chesterfields.

Three Warrants For Passing Bad Checks

Greenville police today were holding warrants for the arrest of C. B. Bafield, on charges of passing worthless checks.

Three warrants charging the man with issuing bad checks were signed by Vance Overton, local merchant.

Church Program Plans Adding 12 New Classrooms

WINTERVILLE—Twelve new Sunday school classrooms are included in the building extension program at the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church. The rooms will provide space for 175 pupils. Recently the chapel was remodeled, new windows were installed and the building was repainted.

Some members are donating their labor to the building extension program, a church official stated.

Scout Troop Is Registering Its 1953 Membership

Troop No. 200, sponsored by the Winterville Christian Church, is completing its annual registration for membership in 1953.

Scoutmaster Mark McGlohon said 21 boys have signed up—nine Explorers and 12 Scouts. Twenty four boys were in the troop in '52. "The boys did excellent work last year, and we are expecting record accomplishments this year," he added.

Chairman Herman Day, Asa Moore, Norman Worthington, Lloyd Worthington and R. Z. Boyd compose the Troop Committee.

Miss Whitehurst And Mr. Davis Married In Formal Ceremony

At a 4:00 o'clock ceremony Friday afternoon, December 26, at the Bethel Methodist Church in Bethel, Miss Virginia Jane Whitehurst became the bride of Russell Davis, with the Rev. N. W. Grant officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall T. Whitehurst of Bethel and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Davis of Fremont.

The church was decorated with floor baskets of white gladioli and Oregon fern, interspersed with candles of burning tapers.

A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Anne Whitehurst of Bethel, soloist, who sang "Because You're Mine," "Thine Alone" and "The Lord's Prayer" as the benediction, and was accompanied by Mrs. Harold Stator, organist, of Bethel.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore and ivory satin gown fashioned with a fitted bodice and a full skirt which ended in a circular train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a seed pearl tiara and she carried a white satin prayer book, which was topped with a purple throat orchid.

The matron of honor, Mrs. William G. Griffith of Ayden, sister of the bride, wore a rose brocaded taffeta dress with a fitted bodice and full skirt, with which she used matching hair, and mits and carried a nosegay of blue chrysanthemums.

Women In The Church

Women in the Church
By MARY FOWLER

The 66th annual observance of "World Day of Prayer" will be held on February 20 in more than 17,000 communities in the U.S.A. with interdenominational religious services, and in some 113 other nations. Begun in 1887 by Presbyterian women, it is now under the auspices of all Protestant women related to the National Council of the Churches. The day's offerings will help provide a spiritual and social ministry in migrant camps, in-service training for ministers engaged in church-centered community work among Negroes in rural areas, and make available religious education and social service for American Indians. Overseas it will aid in support of union Christian churches in the Orient, publication of 21 Christian magazines circulated among women and children in 25 countries, aid to some 30,000 foreign students matriculating at U.S. colleges and universities, and work among war and disaster victims.

The Emperor of Japan has presented a scroll and a gift to the Seiwa Social Center in Osaka as a means of expressing his appreciation of social work being done in a number of places and to encourage its continuance. The Seiwa Center was chosen as one of the best in all Japan. Commendation of its activities was expressed recently also by John D. Rockefeller III when he made an extended visit to its services. The Seiwa Social Center is operated by the Seiwa Junior College for Christian Workers in Nishinomiya, midway between Osaka and Kobe, thriving industrial cities. The college is a consolidation of the former Lambuth Training School for Kindergarten Teachers (Osaka) and for the former Congregational Bible School (Kobe). It was originally organized in 1923 by the managers of a daily newspaper in Osaka who had become interested in doing something for the people in the slum areas of that city. They early placed the institution under Christian auspices. During the recent war, the buildings were completely destroyed. But three years ago a new home for the center was erected — though that is now proving inadequate for the services furnished.

20,000 People Attend Hank Williams' Funeral

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UP) — Thousands of persons thronged a funeral for hillbilly singer-composer Hank Williams here yesterday to pay their final respects and hear a dirge of his sad ballads. A crowd estimated by the fire department at 20,000 jammed a block-long area and pressed for seats in the Municipal Auditorium, which has only 3,000 seats. Four women fainted.

For an hour before top stars of "Grand Ole Opry" began twanging guitars and singing folk songs that brought Williams fame, his mourners filed past his open casket. But many thousands never got to it.

One woman moaned, "He's gone, he's gone!" when she reached a spot directly in front of the flower-decked bier, and then slumped to the floor. Hundreds of persons wept openly.

Williams, former shoe shine boy whose melancholy tunes brought him an estimated $1,000,000, died on New Year's Day while being driven through W. Virginia to a singing engagement. An autopsy report on the death was expected today.

The former farm boy, described as a "lonesome, frustrated soul, singing his heart out," composed such hits as "Cold, Cold Heart,"

Didn't Belong In There; Raided

247 CHICAGO (UP)—Three detectives became suspicious when they saw two men emerge from a door marked "Ladies."

They became more suspicious when they heard from behind the door the words:

"Till call and raise you two."

Detective Timothy Allman and his aides forced their way in. They found eight men playing poker and arrested them.

Appreciated Her Word Of Advice

LONDON (UP)—Gillian Jennings, 13, and a schoolmaster like to brush up on their French by speaking in that language each day while riding to school on a bus.

Gillian decided Saturday she would describe a man sitting near them in her best French.

She said, "He is quite good looking but it is a pity he doesn't grow a moustache, it would improve his appearance."

The stranger raised his hat and replied in French, "Merci, mademoiselle. Your frank advice is greatly appreciated."

Luxurious Taste Brings On Trial

TAIPEH, Formosa (UP)—Dance Master Li Tsu-Sin was a hit with the cabaret girls because he always washed his hands in beer.

Police wondered how he could afford such luxury and investigated.

Li Tsu-Sin and 15 alleged accomplices will go on trial soon for stealing $100,000 worth of government bonds.

Left Change For Collection Plate

DETROIT (UP)—Norbert Schroll thought he could appeal to the better instincts of a gunman whom he had picked up as a hitch-hiker.

"I'm on my way to church," Schroll told the robber.

The gunman, who had taken $56.10 from Schroll, tossed back $1.10.

"That ought to be enough for the collection plate," the gunman said.

Strength for the Day

BEAUTIFUL DELIVERANCE
The Moravians arrived in Pennsylvania about the middle of the eighteenth century. They named their village Bethlehem because they arrived at their journey's end the day before Christmas. The next morning they hailed the dawn of Christ's birthday with their trombones playing the glorious chorales which they have done so much to make famous.

Years later, an Indian convert told them that he was a member of a savage band which, on the night of the first arrival of the Moravians, gathered on the opposite side of the river and, after a council of war, decided that on the next day they would exterminate these people. But behold, the next day glorious music came across the river, and the Indians listened with amazement and fascination. They held another council and then decided that this music was the Great Spirit telling them not to destroy these men and women.

As a lover of the chorales, many of us will vote with the Indians. Nothing has called forth out of the soul of men with such great music as has religion. From the days of Palestine, through Bach, and down into the nineteenth century, the glorious legacy of fine music has been increasing in value with each new composer.

"Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands."

Quest For Tar Heel Black Gold Continues

There are still those who will not give up.

And one of these days they may take big strides toward revolutionizing the economy of Eastern North Carolina — and the whole state for that matter.

We are speaking of those individuals, who through their research and exploration, are confident there is oil beneath the black earth of Eastern North Carolina.

The latest of the drilling projects in the state is ready to begin in Hofman Forest some nine miles north of Jacksonville. Heading the operation is Edwin T. Burton, Jr. of Houston, Texas, a native of Wilmington who is seeking oil in his native state after 20 years in the oil business in Texas.

There have been many others who have pioneered explorations for oil in North Carolina's Coastal Plain before Burton. There may be many more who follow Burton's footsteps as time goes on. So far none of the explorations has succeeded in bringing the black gold from the depths of North Carolina's soil.

But if men keep seeking one of these days, the right man, drilling in the right spot, may find the valuable deposit which so many have sought. When the discovery is made — if it is — another brilliant feather will have been added to the bonnet of Eastern Carolina's ever expanding economy.

There is still a reward, set up by legislative action, for the first oil well brought in in the Tar Heel state. Whether the current experiment will be THE one remains to be seen.

It is encouraging to see that hope for finding oil in this section of North Carolina still remains alive, and that men who have been successful in the oil business in other places are willing to invest their money in explorations in North Carolina.

Now To See What Republicans Will Offer

With the new Congress in session and preliminary formalities over, people in the home towns throughout the nation are sitting back to see what the Republicans will do, with their control of the legislative body.

There have been only two years in the past 20 in which Democrats did not control Congress. Now with a one-vote margin in the Senate and a 10-vote margin in the House, the GOP finds itself in the legislative driver's seat.

After 20 years, the people back home are anxious to see what the Republican administration and the Republican Congress are going to offer the nation in the way of a progressive program. Great strides of social and economic progress have been noted under the 20 years of New Deal and Fair Deal programs of the Democrats. Likewise the federal government has mushroomed under Democrat control, and more and more money has been required for its support.

It is a foregone conclusion the Republicans will offer a more conservative program than the Democratic administrations of the past two decades have presented to the people. At the same time, it is the consensus of observers that the Republican program will be more liberal than those Republican programs before 1932.

The note of harmony between the Democrats and Republicans at the opening of the new Congress Saturday offered an encouraging prospect for the coming session. Republican Congressional leaders have pledged their best efforts to continue the progress and prosperity of the nation. Democratic leaders — now in the position of opposition leaders — have declared they will not oppose Republican proposals on a partisan basis. They will place the interest of the nation above party lines if the Republicans have constructive steps to offer.

The old idea that Republicans can do no good and Democrats can do no harm — or vice-versa, depending upon the particular section of the nation — has pretty much been abandoned throughout the United States. Most people are aware both major political parties are capable of offering programs of merit.

During the past several years The Reflector has offered editorial opposition to a number of proposals offered and steps taken by the Democratic administration and Democratic Congressional leaders. During the coming years we expect to find much in the Republican program which in our opinion will not be in keeping with the best interest of the nation. Those proposals too will be opposed by this newspaper.

The United States still faces a severe crisis both in domestic and international affairs. No matter which party is in power or which party is the minority, partisan politics should not come before the national welfare and progress.

We hope the members of the 83rd Congress and the members of the forthcoming Republican administration keep that in mind throughout their tenure of office.

National Whirligig

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—In this Taft territory, President-elect Eisenhower has become as popular as his chief convention rival, Senator Taft, of Ohio, by reason of his pre-inauguration decision and appointments. It is a significant development which has not been missed by "Mister Republican," and probably accounts for his current exhibition of self-discipline.

The Middle West expects to throw its weight around at Washington as a result of the November 4 transfer of power there. It expects to supplant the South as the most influential force on Capitol Hill after January 20, through solid and cohesive Republican representation and the membership's influential status in both House and Senate. They count on Taft to do his part to fulfill these long-deferred expectations.

TIERED OF EASTERN INFLUENCE—In view of Eisenhower's tremendous majorities in the Mississippi Valley section, including Governor Stevenson's Illinois, it is mathematically certain that he would have carried them even without his so-called "surrender" to the Ohioan at the famous Morningside Heights conference.

Taft's midwestern supporters, and he has a host of them, were never so concerned over his personal disapproval at the Chicago convention as they were by their belief that the Dewey philosophy would prevail in an Eisenhower Administration. They have had their fill of eastern influence at the Capital, including its effects during both the two Roosevelt and the Wilson regimes.

They thought Truman even worse than the bipartisan "liberals" whose policies he pursued because he had none of his own. Since Dewey "me tooed" the New Deal in his 1948 campaign, their temporary doubt and chagrin over Ike's victory at Chicago and the polls derived largely from their dislike of the New York Governor.

MEN TAFT MIGHT HAVE NAMED—Such appointments as Humphrey of Ohio for Treasury, Wilson of Michigan for Defense, Benson of Utah for Agriculture, and Burgess and Folsom for management of Federal Finance and Credit, have tended to reassure them. Although none of these men were Taft nominees, they are regarded as the type of men he might have named, if he were in Eisenhower's shoes.

The Durkin selection for Labor, as well as Taft's denunciation of the Illinois man, aroused fear of top-level denunciations and a White House-Capitol Hill feud of the kind that eventually marred the Roosevelt and Truman years. But second-thought consideration convinced this section that picking a union official was a smart move. This heavily industrialized area wants nothing so much as labor-management peace and understanding.

The prospective choice of Taft as Senate Majority Leader has won the Middle West completely, especially as another man from the Mississippi Valley, Halleck of Indiana, would hold down the opposite position in the House. The Ohioan's elevation has restored confidence because it is interpreted as a keep-off-the-grass sign to Dewey during the formative stage of the first GOP Administration in 20 years.

MID-WEST'S COCKINESS—The Middle West's confidence for the future—it might almost be characterized as "cockiness"—springs from the fact that it hopes to be the geographical tail that will wag the national Republican dog.

This section will have 13 of the 19 chairmen of the regular committees in the next House, and nine of 15 in the Senate. Under the Democrats, almost the same proportion of control was lodged in Southern Democrats, and for the same reason. Once the GOP voters elect a man to Congress from this area, he stays there, barring unusual election upsets, and piles up seniority insurance.

And it was here, in Senator Taft's broad ballfield, that Roosevelt's New Deal and Truman's Fair Deal met their heaviest opposition at the ballot box and on legislative roll calls, one largely to the Ohio Senator's inspiration.

This section will have 19 members, as against 17 for the Northeast, 11 for the Far West and one from the almost recaptured South. Since the GOP enjoys a slim majority of only nine in the House, and an undependable margin of one in the upper chamber, thanks to Morse, the Mugwump, this area's hopeful spirit becomes even more understandable.

In the House, the lineup will be: Middle West, 97; Northeast, 30; the West, 38; the South, eight. In view of this solid, political and legislative basis for his neighbors' great expectations, Senator Taft would approach the close of his career—he has indicated that he will not run for re-election—in something less than a blaze of glory, if he disappoints them by feuding with Ike.

Around Capitol Square

INSURANCE—The attention which has been given to suggestions for re-instating requirements for inspection of motor vehicles has over-shadowed what many observers think is a more important safety responsibility. That is a greater degree of financial responsibility on part of motorists to compensate for personal injury and property damage resulting from accidents in which their vehicles were involved.

COMPULSORY—The increasing number of accidents in which victims have been unable to recover damages has occasioned demand for a better system. Some people have gone so far as to advocate compulsory public liability insurance. A much larger number are giving thought to substituting for North Carolina's present financial responsibility law, admittedly inadequate and outmoded, a modernized security type safety responsibility act.

Such laws have been in effect in Tennessee and Virginia for the past year or more, and became operative in South Carolina on January 1. Forty-one States and the Territory of Hawaii have adopted the principle. Massachusetts is the only State with compulsory insurance laws, and experience has not been happy. PROVISIONS—Dewey Dorsett, native of Chatham county and a former chairman of the N. C. Industrial Commission, now general manager of the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies with offices in New York, was requested to give a brief analysis of the provisions of the law, which now covers about 89 per cent of all motor vehicles registered in the United States.

PROTECTION—A motorist is not compelled to carry automobile liability insurance, but if his car becomes involved in an accident causing death, injury or property damage in excess of $100, he must deposit sufficient security with the proper State official to cover all damage claims up to $11,000. The deposit must be made by all owners or operators of vehicles involved in the accident, regardless of fault. Failure to deposit the required amount within 60 days results in loss of both driving license and registration until he has paid for the damage he has caused.

TIGHTENED—The safety responsibility law closes loopholes that exist in the Massachusetts compulsory insurance act by covering property losses as well as personal injury, and includes guest-occupants, out-of-state motorists and all accidents whether occurring on so-called private property or public highways. A great many uninsured motorists have found ways quickly to settle for damage caused, and those who do not are put off and kept off the roads. In that respect the new law is much superior to the law now in force in North Carolina, which does not become operative unless and until a judgment has been obtained.

VOLUNTARY While insurance is voluntary under the act, prudent motorists have found it easier and cheaper to carry insurance policies. Result has been a substantial increase in number of insured cars. In states where only 30 per cent to 35 per cent of the cars were insured prior to enactment of safety responsibility laws, the proportion has increased to 75-90 per cent. While avoiding the problems and faults that have developed in the only compulsory insurance state, it induces the great majority of car owners and operators to insure voluntarily.

ENFORCEMENT—No law is any better than its enforcement, and the efficiency of administration has influenced the extent of voluntary insurance. In New York, which adopted a security type law in 1943 and where enforcement has been good, it is officially estimated that 95 per cent of the motor vehicles registered in the state are fully insured. This means that all but five percent of the state's motorists carry greater economic protection for the public than compulsory insurance provides in Massachusetts. The satisfaction felt by motorists is of less importance than the protection afforded the public through influence of the law. Since an uninsured operator involved in an accident faces the loss of his right to own or operate an automobile if he fails to comply, most uninsured motorists either make the required deposit or quickly settle all claims.

RECORD—In 1951, the last year for which complete statistics are available, 6,677 uninsured operators in New York deposited security exceeding $1,291,000 to cover accidents in which they were involved under the act. 23,291 releases were filed by insured operators who had settled all claims against them. In this way the New York law, in practice, has provided protection against financial loss to traffic victims well beyond the 95 per cent.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

DUKE'S NEW FUND

(Wilson Times)

Duke University picked up $1,500,000 from the Duke endowment. But it doesn't go to support the institution. It goes instead to attract more brilliant teachers. And that is as it should be. For in years past college professors have been notoriously underpaid. Only in recent years have they been coming into their own and they've been doing that only because men with vision have through similar endowments been augmenting their salaries.

College pros, as most persons know, are men apart. They live a cloistered life on the campus. They grow to like it because they are associated with kindred souls. But in the best they've paid, too, for the privilege. They did it by sacrificing earnings that many of their classmates made in civil life. And while they'll never catch up with those who've been outstandingly successful, they will earn enough to take care of their normal needs, a condition that was not always true.

In this era of atom bombs, many of those professors have grown quite useful, particularly those specializing in nuclear physics. For it was they who found a way to break down the atom, capturing its explosive energies. It may have helped us only a little so far, but it has opened up new avenues for research. By employing what those physicists discover, we can make three blades of grass grow where one grew before. Can we, if necessary, move mountains and change the course of rivers? And should we not reward, as apparently Duke intends to do, those men who make the largest contributions?

It is doubtful if Congress will act any time soon to provide such a future for our two ex-presidents. Thus, President Truman will decide for himself what his future is to be. There are indications that he would first like to take a trip around the world to see some of the countries whose futures have been so affected by the policies of the Truman Administration.

Although President Truman is reported to have been able to save money from his Presidential salary to be economically independent when he leaves the White House, he has already been deluged with offers from private business. He may be strongly tempted to accept one or more of these offers, and there is no real reason why he should not, although the spectacle of a former President of the United States selling hats for a Texas firm—even at $250,000 a year—seems hardly consonant with his previous station and responsibilities. Writing, of course, offers many opportunities, and Mr. Truman is reported to be looking with favor on this type of career—along with lecturing and teaching history and government.

The problem of what to do with our former Presidents faces us with greater force now than it did 20 years ago. President Hoover was—and is—a wealthy man who could retire from public and business life without worrying about finances. Then, too, he left office under the cloud of the depression and an aroused citizenry who had little use for any advice he might offer. He has since proved his great administrative abilities in his plans for reorganization of the executive branch of the government. In his speeches and writing he has returned to public life. His views, while not universally favored, are those of a man of great experience.

It seems wasteful that our former Presidents should be discarded when they leave the White House. Nonvoting seats in the Senate would prevent this. Then our former Chief Executives would continue to hold honor positions in the government; they pay as Senators, which would continue for life, would give them a certain security; and finally the government would continue to benefit by their great experience.

What should an ex-President of the United States do? As President Truman prepares to move out of the White House and back into private life, his future becomes a topic of interest for all Americans. For the first time since Herbert Hoover left the White House in March, 1933, the question becomes practical, not merely academic.

As far as our present laws and customs are concerned, the earth might just as well open up and swallow the man who leaves the White House at the end of his administration. No pension is provided him. Nor is any provision made for utilizing the experience of the man who has for a time controlled the destiny of the United States. If his talents are utilized it is merely because the new President thinks they should be.

A solution to this situation that is now being given consideration is a nonvoting seat in the Senate for all our former Presidents. The Senate as a forum, the former President still will be able to make his voice heard in the councils of the American Government. His experience and knowledge as President of the United States would then be brought to bear on the problems which continue to face the country and which, in great part, are faced and decided in the halls of Congress.

It is doubtful if Congress will act any time soon to provide such a future for our two ex-presidents. Thus, President Truman will decide for himself what his future is to be. There are indications that he would first like to take a trip around the world to see some of the countries whose futures have been so affected by the policies of the Truman Administration.

Business Today

If you are an average person, this column may save you from fifty to several hundred dollars this year.

Get a little note book right away—today, not tomorrow. Keep it with you always. Jot down in it all expenditures that are deductible on income tax returns. The average person rarely keeps such records. Consequently, he ends up doing one of two things: He fails to claim the myriad of small deductible outlays, or he makes an estimate which either cheats himself or the government.

In some instances these small amounts—a few cents paid in sales taxes, a dollar or so in other deductible taxes, small gifts to authorized charities, losses from theft and so on—add up to a sizeable sum in the course of a year. It should be remembered that these deductions come off the top of income, hence if not taken are taxed at the highest rate an individual pays.

Furthermore, the government may crack down on the practice of making estimates of these deductible outlays. At the year end, a subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee reported on its 18 months investigation into the operation of tax laws.

It noted that under current rulings, a taxpayer who claims large business deductions but does not keep records to substantiate them is entitled to a reasonable allowance for the claimed expenses, which must be estimated by the revenue agent.

Strictly requirements for keeping records would eliminate the necessity for discretionary determination of the proper expense deduction and with it any possible temptation for the revenue agent to allow an improperly large deduction in exchange for some private benefit extended to him by the taxpayer, the report said.

It is fairly certain that legislation will be introduced in the coming session of Congress to carry out this idea and, if passed, will mean that taxpayers without detailed records will be out of luck.

The committee also favors tightening up laws to make recipients pay taxes on benefits bestowed by employers, such as autos, airplanes, vacations, housing servants and overly liberal expense accounts.

MAIL-ORDER CATALOGUE PRICES DOWN SLIGHTLY
New catalogues from the big mail-order houses are now being delivered to customers. They show an average decline in prices, ranging from 2 to 12 per cent in many lines.

This is significant because the big companies must make accurate appraisals of price levels for up to six months ahead. If prices are set too high, they lose sales to local stores; if too low, they suffer losses as they replenish stocks.

And once again: Every local merchant should familiarize himself with prices charged by mail-order firms on the lines he sells.

NEW PLANT HORMONE MAY SAVE MILLIONS
A new chemical compound which delays the budding and flowering of plants has been announced by Battelle Institute and Ethyl Corporation Research Laboratories. It is known as CDAA, which is very short for a-cyano-B-(2,4-dichlorophenyl) acrylic acid (Ethyl-214).

After more research is done on the chemical, it may save millions of dollars worth of crops by delaying budding until frost dangers are past. It is a hormone. Other hormones are already being used to prevent fruit drop at harvest time and undesirable growth of vegetables in shipment.

SEES DIM FUTURE IN COAL INDUSTRY

There would be less need of coal mining wage disputes if the operators had a stronger organization, John A. Cochran, assistant professor of economics, writes in the Quarterly Journal of the University of Illinois bureau of economic and business research. A more nearly even balance of power between labor and management is necessary, he believes.

Professor Cochran observes that mine operators are being squeezed between high wage costs and selling prices below ceilings. He predicts some marginal mines will close down and that others will merge to bring about mechanization, both causing loss of miners' jobs.

IDAHO GROWERS VOTE ON-SPUD DIAMETERS

There's a hot potato row on in Idaho. Spud growers are voting on a proposal to increase the minimum size of No. 1 and No. 2 potatoes from 1 1/2 inches to 2 inches, under the Federal Marketing Agreement.

In the early balloting, the 1 1/2 inchers gained a lead over the two-inchers.

FOR TRAVEL: An inflatable toilet seat for children is being made of rubber by Joseph E. Newmeyer Co., 506 Washington St., Allentown, Pa. Deflated, it packs flat for traveling.

EXTENDER: A preparation for adding to meat loaves is being introduced by "Henry" Traylor Co., Cambridge, Mass. It consists of dried bread crumbs, tomato, onion, parsley, herbs, spices and salt. Packages contain three ounces, enough for a pound of beef.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—How many people have asked you today usually with a smirk:

"Well, what have you given up for the new year?" Behind the leering query lies the assumption on the part of the questioner that you are a fellow hypocrite.

He assumes that you, as well as he, made a pompous list of good resolutions—and that you both have already broken them. He recognizes in you a kindred soul, another broken reed.

The uncomfortable truth is—he probably is right. The high resolutions made on New Year's morning often are forgotten by nightfall. Rarely do they endure a week.

The reason for this is simple. People make the wrong kind of New Year's resolutions. Let us peer into an average American home and see how the man of the house, Mr. Joseph Doakes, tries to reform his way of living.

He is seated at a desk. He takes out a sheet of paper and writes on it:

"I hereby resolve to give up smoking."

Joe looks at that, smiles in smug virtue, and adds another line:

"I hereby resolve to quit being inconsiderate of my wife."

Just then Mrs. Doakes peeks over his shoulder and says, "What are you doing, dear?"

Startled, Joe snaps, "None of your business. Can't a man have any privacy in this house?" His conscience already bothers him as he puts down a third line:

"I hereby resolve to quit being so sharp with Junior."

At that moment Junior tears into the room chasing the cat. The cat leaps up on the desk and overturns the ink bottle.

"Now look what you've done, you little imp!" Joe yelps at his son. "Can't you ever be quiet?" Junior breaks out crying. Mrs. Doakes says, "That's a fine way to talk to your own child," and Joe, his nerves jangling, hauls out a cigarette and lights it.

consciously more considerate of her. And the best way for him to quit yelping at Junior is to praise Junior.

It isn't what you don't do that makes you better. It's what you do do.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—This Capital is becoming the cultural as well as the economic and political center of the world, says Miriamne Barnett, Washington's well-known industrial and interior designer.

Mrs. Barnett estimates there are some 22,000 artists alone in the Washington area, besides an unusually large quota of writers and musicians. "This is a city of sober citizens who enjoy their home life and have time for creative work," she told me. "The capital has fewer nightclubs per capita than any other city in the country. Good living and a good home life can be achieved here under fairly decent standards, and although people get only nominal salaries, they make the most of what they get."

Mrs. Barnett, wife of a 15-year-old son, most recently gained the spotlight when she did decorations for the National Mutual Congress last fall in Philadelphia — the world's largest trade show built around one industry.

An attractive brunette, born in Chicago, a first-generation American of Polish parents, Mrs. Barnett, who to Washington 10 years ago when her husband served as an advisor on metals to the War Production Board, she wanted to be an architect and studied at the Art Institute at Chicago and later at Ohio State University, but her first job was as a dress designer and educational director in the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

It was in Washington she became conscious of her unusual decorative ability and now indulges her creative urges in interior and industrial design from her interesting studio in Georgetown. She believes industrial designing, born about 10 years ago, is now coming into its own. The powerful and dramatic effects created for the Metal Congress out of metals and plastics by a dozen different art studios and metal shops under her direction won wide recognition.

"Bunting and the potted palm are as passe as the bustle," she told me. "People often do things not because they feel it's the best way to do them, but because they've been doing so long before. We've got to get a new approach in the way we present things, whether it be in an exposition, a parade or in building and decorating a home."

People in other countries who had to rebuild their war-razed buildings are adapting modern design and techniques in their recreating. "It shouldn't take a bomb to tear us away from the old routine," she said.

East Carolina, University Of N.C. Play Here Tuesday

Pirates See UNC Play, Plan Game Strategy

Sellout Crowd Will Watch Dedication Game; First Meeting Of Two Squads

East Carolina College's Pirates, only one day away from their first basketball meeting with a Southern Conference team, put the polish on their attack today before beginning the long wait until tomorrow's gym dedication contest with the Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina.

The Pirates' time this afternoon was spent largely in taking advantage of pointers picked up Saturday night while they were watching Carolina defeat Maryland, 59-49. Not all of the squad members made the trip to Chapel Hill but there was plenty of information for everyone.

The Tar Heels have an impressive 5-0 record in Southern Conference play this year, and leading the 17-member conference. They've lost two games, both of them in the Dixie Classic, and are rated right behind N. C. State in Southern Conference play.

Co-captain Vince Grimaldi, freshman forward Jerry Vayda, and guard Al Lifson have been the main cogs in the Tar Heel attack thus far with Grimaldi standing out as the scoring leader with 134 points in eight games. Vayda had a sensational start and even though he has slacked up lately he still has a total of 116 points of eight games. Lifson had some academic difficulties and didn't see any action until the Classic. Since then, however, he has been a rugged performer and a valuable aid in plugging the gap left by Jack Wallace's illness.

The Tar Heels take advantage of the height of Bud Maddie and Paul Likens in rebound work. Maddie, a 6-6 performer, usually runs from the pivot position in Coach Frank McGuire's setup with Likens, a 6-9 sophomore, running at one of the forwards. Both are good shots but are used mostly in recovering rebounds.

The Pirates will counter the Tar Heels with the same lineup, which has brought three consecutive victories. All-State forward Sonny Russell and junior Charlie Huffman will be at the forwards, Bobby Hodges will be at center, and J. C. Thomas and Cecil Heath at the guards.

Russell, Hodges, and Huffman have provided the Pirates with most of their scoring punch this year. Russell has 71 points in three games with his individual game high standing at the 26 points he scored against Lenoir Rhyne. Hodges, the team's top rebounder, has 47 points in two games, and Huffman, the most improved defensive man on the team, has 40 points in three games in addition to a good record in rebounding.

The game, the first meeting between the state institutions on the basketball court, has become a sellout. There is a remote possibility of some tickets being available immediately before the 8 o'clock tip-off tomorrow but the possibilities are little more than remote. Capacity of the new gymnasium is 2,397.

What Will 1953 Offer In Sports?

NEW YORK (UP)—The young feller in the three-cornered sarong is flexing his infant muscles with great expectations today but to this corner it doesn't look like he'll foster too many sensations during his 12 months in office.

The status, according to Fearless Fraley's red-eyed inspection of the crystal eight-ball, is going to remain just about quo in 1953.

Sport by sport it shapes up like this: Baseball: The same old story and the same old heroes. Nobody should dispossess the Yankees or the Dodgers, with the World Series outcome about the same. Stan Musial and Ralph Kiner should hold up another year as National League batting and home run kings.

With Yogi Berra coming back for American League honors. In pitching, name me somebody better than Robin Roberts or Bobby Shantz.

Boxing: Rocky Marciano, with a chin of granite and ether in his right, will lower the boom successively on Joe Walcott, Ezzard Charles, Archie Moore, and Roland LaStarza.

Horse racing: Somebody will, of course, shoot at Tony Despirito's record of 390 winners, but Native Dancer will win the Kentucky Derby and the Triple Crown while Eddi Arcaro still will be the best booter when the peanuts are piled high enough in the winner's circle.

Tennis: Maurice Connolly will score another Wimbledon. U. S.

"Kiss Me Kate"

Both Teams Had A Quiet Evening

MERIDIAN, MISS. (UP)—The Center Hill and Stonewall High School basketball teams didn't play their scheduled game last Friday night.

Each team reported to the other's gymnasium, waited several hours for the opposing squad to show up, and then left.

Phil McAtee, goaltender for the Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League, served with the 4th Armored Division of the Canadian Army as a captain. He was wounded in action.

J. Edgar Hoover Sought For Post

NEW YORK (UP)—J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, would issue no comment one way or the other today when informed that he is being "seriously considered" as executive director of the International Boxing Club at a salary reported to be $100,000 a year.

Harry Markson, managing director of the IBC, admitted that promoter Jim Norris had considered asking Hoover whether he would care for the job.

Under terms of the proposed contract, according to Hoover's friends, Hoover would be paid $1,000,000 over a 10-year period.

"We will need an executive of his capacity," Markson explained, "because Mr. Norris no longer will be able to devote as much time to boxing as he did before the recent death of his father in Chicago."

Mr. Norris now must assume many of the duties in other enterprises owned by his family. "Mr. Norris has conferred with me and Truman Gibson (secretary of the IBC) about the possibility of getting Mr. Hoover to come to our organization," Markson said, "but I do not know if he has consulted about the proposition with Mr. Hoover."

Robert K. Christenberry, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, said that the possibility of obtaining Hoover to head the IBC also had been discussed with him.

U.S., Aussie Pros Plan Tennis Tour

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Jack Kramer disclosed plans today to make his tour with Australian Frank Sedgman the most profitable in the history of professional tennis.

Kramer's long, energetic pursuit of the 23-year-old Sedgman ended in triumph Sunday when the Australian signed contracts that will net him at least $75,000 in the next five months. Ken McGregor, who was Sedgman's No. 1 aide in bringing Australia three straight Davis Cup titles, also linked with Kramer for a $25,000 guarantee.

The professional tour opens Tuesday night at Pan Pacific Auditorium. Kramer will battle Sedgman in the first of 90 North American matches Tuesday and Wednesday nights here. McGregor's opposition will be furnished by Pancho Segura, the two-handed slugger from Ecuador.

Lloyd Mangrum Leads L.A. Pros

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Lloyd Mangrum appeared a cinch to capture his third victory in the $20,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament today as he teed off in final-round play with a commanding five-stroke lead.

Sixty-six linksmen were in the last round of the 72-hole event at Riviera Country Club.

Mangrum, the lean veteran from Niles, Ill., had a 54-hole total of 210. He carded a two-under par 69 Sunday, his second of the tournament, and only a major reversal of form could stop the one-time National Open champion from nailing down first-place money of $2,750.

Galleries estimated at more than 10,000 watched under ideal weather conditions Sunday as Mangrum's long tournament experience paid off and early pace-setters wilted.

Ed (Porky) Oliver, Wilmington, Del., fired a 67. His 218 total put him in a five-way tie for seventh place.

Farmville Downs Grimesland In 2 Basketball Tilts

FARMVILLE — Farmville's Red Devils pulled all the stops getting a double victory over Grimesland here Friday night. The games were Pitt County Conference affairs with the Farmville girls taking the first, 30-27, and the Red Devils following up with a 58-35 win in the second contest.

In the boys game, Jack Allen and Charlie Fitzgerald led a Farmville offense which kept the Devils far ahead of their visitors. Allen got 18 points and Fitzgerald got 12. For Grimesland, Jerry Gaskins got 12 points and Reid Godley got 10 to pace the offense.

In the girls game, Farmville's Edna Wooten and Emily Cannon were the only Red Devils able to score but they accounted for enough points between them to leave Grimesland far out in the cold. Edna collected 20 of the team's points with Emily coming through with the other 10. For Grimesland, Joyce Tripp was high for the night with 16 points.

Tar Heels Lead SIC Teams

The best third appeared to be firmly established atop the standings today with only one-third of the Southern Conference basketball campaign completed.

On the basis of breakaway starts by the top group, b tling for berths in the conference tournament already has begun in earnest — promising fans the best January and early February basketball in the conference area in years.

Two big developments over the weekend were North Carolina's victory over Maryland to gain sole possession of first place in the standings and the collapse of William and Mary on a South Carolina trip.

The Tar Heels of Coach Frank McGuire, seen by many as the young spirited squad which may end N. C. State's long tournament reign, won their fifth league victory without a defeat.

The Tar Heels beat Maryland, 55 to 49, in a terrific defensive show at Chapel Hill.

William and Mary, trying to hang on in hopes of a tourney berth, almost saw that hope blasted out the window. The Indians were scalped by Clemson and overpowered by Furman, both tournament teams last year.

North Carolina stood today in a favorable spot to extend its victory streak this week. The Tar Heels face VMI and Washington and Lee, league weak sisters. A return engagement with Maryland is scheduled for the White Phantoms on Jan. 17.

North Carolina State won its 12th game in 14 starts by beating a tough Cincinnati club 77-72 on the road Saturday night. The Wolfpack, winner of the league tournament six straight years, plays two conference foes this week, Davidson and Duke, and should boost its league mark to six wins and one loss.

Second-place Wake Forest, with a 2-0 league mark, plays The Citadel this week and the Deacons will be favored.

Maryland's loss to North Carolina knocked the Terps into a tie for third place with North Carolina State at 4-1. A highlight this week will be the Maryland-Richmond game Thursday night. Richmond has a 3-2 record including an 83-65 victory over West Virginia.

West Virginia, George Washington, Richmond, Duke, Furman, Clemson and VMI all have only two losses. Davidson has lost three, South Carolina four, William and Mary five and Washington and Lee seven.

Virginia Tech and The Citadel have a loss in their only league game to date.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Faced by oil issues, industrial stocks rose to further new high ground in more than 22 years early today in moderately active dealings.

The advance in the industrials moved prices in that section to their best levels since April 17, 1930.

Gains in the industrial section ranged to more than a point. Elsewhere improvements were mostly in the fractional zone.

Trading picked up on the upswing. Sales in the first hour totaled 420,000 shares, compared with 270,000 in the same period last Friday.

Texas Gulf Producing was the leader in oil section. It spurted 3 1/2 points to a new high of 39 1/2. Amerasia Petroleum at 18 1/2 was up 1 R points. Other pivots in this group rose fractionally.

In the main industrial section, steel shares were active and moderately higher. U. S. Steel rose to a new high of 43 1/2. Republic Steel also reached a new peak with a gain of 1/2 to 47 1/2. Bethlehem firmed.

Pleads Guilty

WASHINGTON (AP)—Charles E. Shaver, former general counsel of the Senate Small Business Committee, pleaded guilty today to accepting money from three firms seeking Reconstruction Finance Corp. (RFC) loans.

Shaver entered his plea before U. S. District Judge Charles S. McLaughlin. No date was set for the sentencing.

Shaver acknowledged accepting $500 on three separate occasions from loan-seeking firms.

Leonard H. Cooper, a Miami, Fla., businessman, pleaded guilty in connection with the same case. Cooper admitted inducing Shaver to accept the money.

Charges against Jerome H. Weinkle of Miami and Raymond W. Lopata of Chicago, in connection with the same case, were dismissed.

The meeting, which is an annual event, will begin at 7:30 Thursday night and is to be held in the courtroom.

"Action of nematodes caused considerable reduction in both yield and quality in the 1952 tobacco crop," Weeks said this morning.

"The extension specialist is in possession of the latest information on nematodes, and is prepared to answer any question that might arise from the discussion."

The tobacco specialist said all farmers attending the meeting will have an opportunity to see pictures of nematodes that cause root knot on the roots of tobacco plants.

Allied phases of tobacco production such as soil fumigation, rotation and other constructive practices for nematode control will also be discussed.

Farmers and all other persons interested in nematode damage to field crops are being urged to attend the meeting, Weeks declared.

He also requested that landlords urge their tenants to be present, because the discussion will be beneficial to them.

CHICAGO (UP)—Steel prices will not come down at all during 1953, although consumers might get some "price advantages" from "competition" among sellers, Steel magazine said today.

In its annual forecast for the year in metalworking, Steel noted that the United States entered 1953 with an annual steel ingot capacity of between 116 million and 117 million net tons—the fifth year in a row its capacity has increased.

On Jan. 1, 1952, the capacity was 108,600,000 tons net.

Steel said the increase made United States capacity equal to half the steel ingot tonnage produced in the world in 1952.

The U. S. steel industry produced 93,000,000 tons, less than capacity because of the steel strike and resultant haggling over steel prices.

The magazine listed Russia second with 38,000,000 tons; Germany third, Great Britain fourth with 17,900,000 tons and France fifth with 12,000,000 tons.

All countries showed increases in output except the United States.

Steel said sales were at a record high for the third year in a row, with $111,000,000,000 compared with $100,300,000,000 in 1951.

Automobiles used up the greatest amount of steel during the year, the magazine said, with the construction industry and container makers coming in second and third.

Military demands made themselves felt with demands for large bars and heavy plates high on their lists. Those two items, together with cold-rolled sheets, were the three biggest sellers of the year, Steel said.

For the future, Steel said "now it appears that capacity steel production is assured for the first half of 1953."

It also predicted that most steel will go for civilian uses this year.

Memoria
In memory of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Queenie H. Henryhan, departed this life January 5, 1951.

We loved her dearly but God loved her best.

Martha Henryhan and Daughters. One of the highlights of the holiday season here in Greenville was the Christmas party given by Mrs. Rosa Forbes at her home on Monday evening.

The lovely Christmas decorations throughout the home added to the festive mood of those in attendance.

The hostess was capably assisted by Mrs. Velma Bellamy, Mrs. William Streeter, Mrs. Lillian Murrell and Mrs. Virgil Meekins. Cookies, sandwiches, pickles, nuts, candies and egg nog were served the guests.

Approximately 100 guests enjoyed this holiday event.

Out of town guests included Miss Nettie Payton and Mr. and Mrs. Chris Thomas of New York and Herbert Miller of Oxford, N. C.

Nematode Talks Set Thursday By N. C. Specialist

Nematode infestation, and how it causes such extensive damage to Pitt County tobacco crops will be discussed in Greenville Thursday night by an established agricultural authority.

Pitt Tobacco Specialist Sam J. Weeks announced this morning that Howard R. Garriss, extension plant disease specialist from N. C. State College, will explain nematode damage and control at a meeting to be held at the Pitt County Courthouse.

The meeting, which is an annual event, will begin at 7:30 Thursday night and is to be held in the courtroom.

"Action of nematodes caused considerable reduction in both yield and quality in the 1952 tobacco crop," Weeks said this morning.

"The extension specialist is in possession of the latest information on nematodes, and is prepared to answer any question that might arise from the discussion."

The tobacco specialist said all farmers attending the meeting will have an opportunity to see pictures of nematodes that cause root knot on the roots of tobacco plants.

Allied phases of tobacco production such as soil fumigation, rotation and other constructive practices for nematode control will also be discussed.

Farmers and all other persons interested in nematode damage to field crops are being urged to attend the meeting, Weeks declared.

He also requested that landlords urge their tenants to be present, because the discussion will be beneficial to them.

CHICAGO (UP)—Steel prices will not come down at all during 1953, although consumers might get some "price advantages" from "competition" among sellers, Steel magazine said today.

In its annual forecast for the year in metalworking, Steel noted that the United States entered 1953 with an annual steel ingot capacity of between 116 million and 117 million net tons—the fifth year in a row its capacity has increased.

On Jan. 1, 1952, the capacity was 108,600,000 tons net.

Steel said the increase made United States capacity equal to half the steel ingot tonnage produced in the world in 1952.

The U. S. steel industry produced 93,000,000 tons, less than capacity because of the steel strike and resultant haggling over steel prices.

The magazine listed Russia second with 38,000,000 tons; Germany third, Great Britain fourth with 17,900,000 tons and France fifth with 12,000,000 tons.

All countries showed increases in output except the United States.

Steel said sales were at a record high for the third year in a row, with $111,000,000,000 compared with $100,300,000,000 in 1951.

Automobiles used up the greatest amount of steel during the year, the magazine said, with the construction industry and container makers coming in second and third.

Military demands made themselves felt with demands for large bars and heavy plates high on their lists. Those two items, together with cold-rolled sheets, were the three biggest sellers of the year, Steel said.

For the future, Steel said "now it appears that capacity steel production is assured for the first half of 1953."

It also predicted that most steel will go for civilian uses this year.

Firemen Called To Two Minor Alarms In City, Short Circuits Responsible

Only two fire calls were answered by city firemen over the past week end, with both calls being caused by short circuited wiring.

An electric stove in the home of Sherman Parks, 1109 Chesnut Street, caught fire from a short circuit in the wiring.

Slight damage was reported. The call came in at 11:50 Saturday morning.

Yesterday afternoon, firemen were called to West Fifth Street when smoke was observed coming from the roof of a vacant store.

Firemen found leaves from nearby trees had covered neon light wires and a short in the wiring had set fire to the leaves.

The fire was halted before any damage resulted. The building was owned by Joe Salsed.

Salsed stated that he had just left the building and at the time, nothing had appeared wrong.

Fewer Colds For Meat-Fed Babies

CHICAGO (UP)—Babies fed meat catch fewer colds according to research evidence reported by two Chicago doctors.

Drs. Howard M. Jacobs and George S. George said that in two years of study they found babies whose diets included meat had 40 per cent fewer infectious illnesses.

"Most of the illnesses observed, they said, were respiratory, such as the common cold."

Jacobs said meat-fed babies also "seemed to have greater vitality and slept more soundly."

"They seemed to cry less and to show less 'emotional upset,'" he added.

Jacobs and George, of the pediatric department of the Stritch School of Medicine, Loyola University, made their report in the medical journal, Pediatrics.

Blood Quality Better
"In those infants first fed meat under two months of age there was improvement in physical growth as determined by weight and height measurements," Jacobs wrote.

He said study also showed blood quality was better and young babies fed meat avoided the trend toward anemia which normally occurs in the first few weeks after birth.

The globulin, the part of the blood having to do with resistance to infection, was increased in the infants fed meat, he said.

The two doctors included in their analysis only those babies studied a minimum of two months to a maximum of six months. Of these, Jacobs said, 133 received the standard hospital diet and 170 got this diet plus supplements of commercially prepared strained and chopped meats. The infants received beef, liver, lamb, veal, beef heart and pork.

Light Wind Prevents Frost During Night
The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 47 degrees. Lowest last night, 23, and at 8 a. m. today the mercury stood at 27. Light wind prevented frost.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 45 degrees. Lowest that night, 40, and at 8 a. m. next day it was 42. Little over five-eighths of an inch of rain fell that night.
