Christmas Theme Used In Open House Decorations

ROBERSONVILLE—The principal social event of the holiday season was the open house party given Monday night by Mr. and Mrs. Mayo Little in their spacious home on Main Street here.

The host and hostess greeted the guests at the door. They were then shown to the dining room where the beautiful bare table was centered with a miniature Christmas tree on a reflector.

Red satin ribbon ran down the middle of the table and six shorter strips were carried to the sides. Four red candles completed the pretty arrangement which had a background of greenery.

Cheese straws, stuffed dates, salted nuts, candy, individual party cakes and ice cream soda was served buffet style.

The two living rooms and the reception room were bright with yuletide decorations. A gorgeous tree was the cause of much admiration.

One mantel had a large drawing of Santa Claus in a sleigh filled with toys. This was the artistic work of Miss Doris Little. On the other mantel there was a large head of Saint Nicholas which was painted by the charming daughter of the host and hostess.

Red candles and greenery added more color to this mantel. The trimmings throughout the first floor carried out the Christmas theme.

Approximately fifty friends were to attend the party. Mr. and Mrs. Little.

As the girls and boys gathered around the party table they sang Happy Birthday to Mary French. She cut her cake and served each guest. A punch bowl

Immediately following this a very informative religious picture was shown. Everyone is invited to come out to this service. Beginning Saturday evening Jan. 3, the Rev. Black will begin showing a series of pictures on the "Life of St. Paul." This will last 12 Saturday evenings showing all phases in the life of this great Bible character. Preaching services are being held every Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock by Evangelist Paul Black.

The December meeting of The Women of the Presbyterian Church was held at the church with Mrs. Linwood O'Neal and Mrs. Dupree Tolar hostesses. In the absence of the president Mrs. Margaret Williams presided. The meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer prayed in unison, led by Mrs. G. T. Tyson followed by the Bible study given by Mrs. G. S. Nichols taken from Colossians 3, 12 through the 17 verses and asking the question, "How Do You Wear Your Christian Clothing?" The study was closed with a circle of prayer.

The program on "Annuities and Relief for Retired Ministers" was presented by Mrs. Del Williams at the close a special offering was taken for this fund. At the fellowship hour the hostesses served delicious refreshments. We were glad to welcome Mrs. Mark Tripp as a new member.

On Wednesday evening, Dec. 18, Mesdames Noah Barber and Dupree Tolar were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower honoring Mrs. Marvin Moxingo a recent bride.

The guests were met at the door by Mrs. Tolar and upon arrival bingo and other games and contests were enjoyed by all. Mesdames P. J. Elks, J. R. Jones, and G. S. Nichols received prizes. Following the games and contests a large number of attractively wrapped packages were placed on a table and presented to the guest of honor who upon opening them found many lovely and useful gifts. The hostesses then served delicious refreshments.

Stylish Script Is On Way Out

OMAHA, Neb. (UP)—W. H. Borcharding is a member of what appears to be a vanishing race—the stylish penman. Borcharding uses an old-fashioned oblique pen to dress his handwriting with a variety of classical flourishes and shaded areas. He said his art, called "flourishing," was learned through years of practice and concentration. But now, no one seems to be interested in fancy script and few are adept at it any more.

Borcharding learned flourishing through a correspondence school while a boy in Glidden, Ia. He said he "just wanted to improve the legibility of my handwriting." With such penmanship so rare, Borcharding is in mild demand here to write out name cards and inscribe awards and diplomas. "I get a kick out of creating something," he said, explaining that he continues the work chiefly as a hobby.

Winter Leg Lure

LEG LIFT... Skin balm containing a soothing emollient helps keep legs smooth in winter.

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor
Legs are a major winter beauty problem.

Outdoor cold—biting winds, snow and rain—and indoor heat are likely to roughen dry and chap the skin, particularly the legs. A good grooming routine performed regularly should help keep legs smooth in their silken or nylon hosiery.

If faithfully observed, the suggestions offered here might also help to insure pretty legs and feet come spring:

1. After the bath, massage a lotion gently over your legs and feet. Skin balms containing special emollients are available to help smooth an irritated skin.
2. Defuzz the legs as often in winter as summer, and use gentle depilatories which will not irritate tender skin.
3. Use pumice on rough calluses

White Housekeeping Is Formidable Task

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

As the resident of a small, non-historic cottage, I'd love to know how Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower feels about the four-year lease her husband has signed for 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. We know she is reconciled to spending four years in a gold-fish globe existence. In her first interview as a future first lady, less than a half-hour after the election was conceded, Mamie Eisenhower remarked that she was accustomed to living in the public eye and that bodyguards are by now an old, familiar accompaniment to her daily existence.

But living in the White House—along with Buckingham Palace, one of the most famous private residences in the world—is bound to require some adjusting. I suspect that Mrs. Eisenhower will make those adjustments about as easily as any human being, for she's an Army wife who has managed to turn everything from cramped apartments in various posts to a French villa in a private park into a home.

But the White House is a formidable place to live. It's not only the residence of the President and his family, but it is his office, and it is a combination museum, national shrine and top tourist attraction. Life for the family in residence must be rather like living in a hotel apartment. The family's own quarters are on the second floor, and they are about the only place in the house where Eisenhower taste is allowed to show. The rest of the mansion itself belongs to the people, and they into the place. The Trumans will leave their impact in the House—they chose the colors and fixtures of the living quarters into which the Eisenhowers will move. In time, the Eisenhowers will leave the marks of their taste in their private quarters, too. Generally, I suspect, it's hard to think of the White House as home. And I'll bet before Mamie Eisenhower is done with it, she'll crave—as Bess Truman before her—the simple, uncomplicated home-making responsibilities of a private residence. It's hard to live in a rented museum.

No More Itching After Haircuts

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (U.P.)—American inventive genius came to the rescue when Pennsylvania health authorities outlawed the soft bristle brush used by barbers to dust off hair from customers' necks.

The old duster was banned as of Jan. 1 under new regulations. At the same time authorities ruled that all barbering tools—clippers, combs and shears—must be thoroughly sterilized between haircuts.

So now comes the "Barber's Helper"—an invention of two Johnstown men which whisks away loose hair ends slickly and thoroughly and does it in a way that meets all sanitary regulations. Vacuum Cleaner Ernie Bothe, a mechanic, and Bob Kaiser, an engineer, came up with an oversized version of a vacuum cleaner. Hoses attached to two sides of a gleaming, white cabinet permit it to be used by two barbers at the same time. The loose hair is removed by suction.

Red Stop Signs Gaining In Favor

NEW YORK AP)—There is a growing tendency to favor red stop signs over the present yellow color in an effort to cut down motor vehicle accidents, says Harry E. Neal, chairman of the traffic committee of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

South Dakota is the first state to adopt over-all red stop signs. California has been using a red octagon on its stop signs for many years while Illinois is planning to switch to a red stop panel, says Neal.

NEVER CARRY DICE
NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UP)—William Dignel was relieved of a penknife and a pair of dice when hauled into court on a charge of causing a disturbance in his home. Magistrate Arthur Takacs heard the case, then gave the dice a roll. "It's a six, Willie," he said. "So, it's 60 days for you."

Strength for the Day

"SHALL NOT PREVAIL" A speaker returned from Korea recently told this amazing story.

In one Korean town the communists barricaded themselves in a Presbyterian church. The American officer in charge of the assault against them asked his chief if they should turn the artillery on the church.

The order went out and a terrific barrage went on for some time. When it was finished, the entire village was reduced to ruins, but the church was completely intact.

Regardless of the explanation, the circumstance stands as a symbol of how the church of Jesus Christ and the spiritual values for which it stands remain intact amid the devastations caused by conflicting ideologies.

Kerosene Water Will Soon Be Gone

Kerosene-tasting water which has found its way into a large number of Greenville homes during the past several days is about at an end.

To say the least, it was an unfortunate happening — this water with the oil flavor — but the occurrence was entirely beyond the control of local utilities officials and employees.

The Pitt Health Department and Greenville Utilities officials are to be commended for their prompt action in checking into the situation and letting the people know the score on the peculiar tasting water as soon as reports of it came to their attention.

There were some people in Greenville who became almost panic when they began to taste kerosene in their water. There were even rumors about sabotage at the water plant, poisoned water and all such things; but those rumors were quickly stopped by the Health Department and the Utilities office.

The Health Department and the Utilities office checked the water to make sure it contained no properties which would harm the health of the general public in Greenville.

In spite of the fact the water had a peculiar taste, it has remained pure and has continued to flow through the city water system. Had there been any indication that the water was unfit for human consumption, the citizens can rest assured the Utilities and the Health Department would have shut off the water supply immediately.

The large amount of kerosene which was poured into the Tar River upstream from Greenville caused the oily flavor. Since the river is the only supply of water which Greenville had, there was no alternative but to continue to use river water even though the undesirable element was present.

The taste of kerosene in Greenville's water may cling for a day or two yet, but it is through no fault of the Utilities. As soon as the river clears itself of the kerosene, and the oil which has clung to the sand filters at the purifying plant clears out, the city water should be as good as ever.

Scott's Four Years Did Improve N. C.

When William Kerr Scott turns the helm of North Carolina government over to William B. Umstead, Thursday, one of the most memorable administrations in the state's modern history will come to a close.

Kerr Scott's administration has been notable from the standpoint of accomplishment. It has been notable for unorthodox procedures adopted by the man from Haw River. It has been notable because of the outspoken manner, the hard-headed independence of its governor.

Under Kerr Scott's administration, North Carolina has lived high. It has paved more new roads than in any other single period in the history of the state — and they have been paved where they were needed, in the country. To say Scott has taken the farmers out of the mud is to speak literally as well as figuratively.

Since Kerr Scott came to the governor's office more money has poured into school buildings throughout the state than in any other period. The industrialization of North Carolina has continued, and progress has been made in the conservation of the state's natural resources during Scott's administration.

Rural electric lines and rural telephone lines have been strung across many an acre of farm land since Scott became governor four years ago. Just how much would have been done in the way of rural electrification, we can't say. But Scott raised enough "rucus" with the power and telephone companies to have some effect upon their rural expansion programs.

Then there are the permanent improvements which have been made to colleges and other state institutions during Scott's administration.

All these things, William Kerr Scott is leaving with the people of North Carolina as a memorial to his four years as chief executive.

Along with the multitude of improvements, he is leaving with the people a good many of the bills for those improvements which will serve as a constant reminder of his term of office for years to come.

The people are smart enough to realize that one doesn't get something for nothing. And in all fairness to Governor Scott, he did not promise them something for nothing.

There is hardly a group of people in North Carolina who, during the past four years, did not come under the sharp lash of Kerr Scott's acid tongue. A lot of the criticism leveled by the governor was constructive, much of it was not. Scott made many friends during his term of office, and he also made many enemies.

In the evaluation of Kerr Scott's four years as governor of North Carolina, whether a person likes or dislikes the retiring governor, he has done a great deal for the betterment of North Carolina.

Above all, Kerr Scott will never be listed as a do-nothing governor of the Tar Heel State.

National Whirligig

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Although more than 100,000 people have written personal letters to Adlai E. Stevenson, begging him to keep his sights on a 1956 presidential nomination, the highly personable and attractive politician is continuing to project his course as a politician "without honor" in his own state of Illinois.

If he should succeed in the spring reorganization of the Democratic State Committee, Stevenson may not even be offered to the 1956 convention as this state's favorite son. This seemingly impossible situation is not unusual in American or foreign politics, as witness Churchill's defeat on the eve of the German capitulation, and it does credit to the man.

POLITICIANS SOUR—It frequently happens that, after embracing a man of Stevenson's stature out of political necessity, the politicians-for-revenue-only sour on him. So do people generally. It happened to such great figures as Borah, Norris, Hiram Johnson, La Guardia and Alfred E. Smith.

Had F. D. R. lived to run again, he might have become the victim of political and public yearning for a return to what Harding called "normalcy." The local reaction to Stevenson suggests that the Eisenhower sweep, in a sense, was evidence of a nationwide desire for practical, bread-and-butter management of the nation's affairs rather than a more rarified rule at Washington.

ILLINOIS DEMOCRAT MACHINE IN SHAMBLES—The fact remains, however, that Stevenson has left the Democratic machine of Illinois in a shambles. Their plight may be of no interest or concern to Stevenson's millions of admirers across the country. But it is a hard fact which cannot be disregarded in any forecast of his future in politics.

When he lost the state by 443,407 last November, he carried the Democrats' state ticket down with him, as well as local candidates in numerous out-state communities. The Chicago Democrats, who still control the state bloc at Springfield killed many of his proposed reforms. It was the amateurish idealists, mostly professors, who rounded up support for him at the convention.

The Democrats, whether pro or anti-Stevenson, have almost no strength outside the Windy City. Eisenhower got a terrific vote in those suburban and rural areas.

STEVENSON ANTAGONIZED LOCAL POLITICIANS—As temporary boss after his nomination here last July, Stevenson managed to antagonize the local politicians in every way possible. He did so, not from a spirit of hostility or revenge, but because he preferred his principles to their professions.

He dictated the nomination of his Lieutenant-Governor, Sherwood Dixon, for Governor, sidetracking Edward J. Barrett, Secretary of State and the regular favorite. Dixon made a dismal run. And the rejected Barrett, who sought re-election, ran 100,000 votes ahead of Stevenson.

There is additional ballot-box evidence against Stevenson's political sagacity and chances of survival in a cold and selfish game, which tosses away and overlooks good men after they have served their purpose. Since he won the governorship in 1948 by 572,067, his 1952 output of votes reflects a four-year turnover of more than a million ballots.

This represents a loss of 29 votes for each hour from the 1948 election, according to a cynical computation by his enemies at home.

STEVENSON'S PRESENT INFLUENCE—Stevenson, in fact, polled fewer votes in Illinois last November than he did when he ran for Governor in 1948. Moreover, he carried fewer votes in 1948 and 1952 than did Stratton, the victorious Republican nominee for Governor, last November.

This analysis of Stevenson's present and prospective influence within and outside the Democratic Party is not written in any disparagement of him. It is simply a factual report of the political weather on his home grounds.

A student of the classics, Stevenson may be pardoned, if he recalls rather cynically the fate of Aristides. The great Athenian, a distinguished military commander and statesman, was running for re-election as candidate to mark his ballot, Aristides asked the fellow was voting against him. "Why do you vote against Aristides?" inquired Aristides. The reply: "I am tired of hearing everybody call that guy 'Aristides the Just!'"

Official Word Arrives Today

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Wife Rachel and I arrived in New York on December 26 and departed January 1, so we have now experienced New Year's Eve on Times Square. The 900 policemen on duty for the spectacle were pleasantly surprised at the lack of violence this year.

Vendors all along Broadway were selling horns as early as three in the afternoon and even seven stories high in the hotel "constant blast of the horns could be heard from 10 until almost two.

Dave Garraway, NBC radio and TV star, had the best take-off on New Year's Eve we heard. On his December 30 afternoon radio program he said, "A lot of local hotspots and clipjoints are advertising their annual New Year's Eve celebrations. Some of them will let you inside the front door for only $50 a couple . . . this price includes 1 paper hat apiece. For everything else, like food and drink and tip and entertainment tax and checking your hat, you pay extra."

"I don't know what you're planning to do on New Year's Eve, maybe you'd like to go to one of the upholstered sewers and let yourself vator down and stepped out into the mob to get the real feeling of New Year's Eve. This experience also gives you the feeling that you've been a 60-minute performer in a football game.

"Empty out your hall closet, put an orange crate and two footstools in it. About 10 o'clock on New Year's Eve, take your husband into the closet and shut the door. Now, for the next two hour all you have to do is shove each other against the wall, being careful to bang your head against the door each time. Yell, 'Happy New Year,' and throw old shredded newspapers at each other from time to time. It's wise to set fire to a couple of old wool socks in the corner, just to get the smoky atmosphere that nightclubs always have. Every now and then, take a swig of a special New Year beverage made of prune juice and paint remover. When twelve o'clock finally rolls around, you'll be in the same horrible condition as all the people downtown who have been spending their money all evening. And you'll have one big advantage over them . . . you'll already be at home when you collapse and have to send for the doctor."

And I thank you.

but feel you really can't afford to. If that's the case, I know how you can get the same effect and save about a hundred bucks at the same time.

INCONSISTENCY—The same sort of inconsistencies and inadequacies were found at national level as have been experienced in North Carolina. These include lack of responsibility to the Governor or a central State agency; lack of uniformity in composition, procedure, fees and services; imposition of artificial rules tending to constitute monopolies in existing establishments.

FINDINGS—The commission found more than 1200 separate State laws governing the licensing of more than 75 professions, skilled trades and occupations, ranging from attorneys and physicians to horse-shoers and ship salesmen. It was found that every one of the 48 States license 15 professions and trades. Accounting, architects, attorneys, chiropractors, dentists, dental hygienists, embalmers, engineers, nurses, optometrists, osteopaths, pharmacists, physicians, teachers and veterinarians. Barbers are licensed in 46 States, beauticians in 40. Some states license collection agents and certify shorthand reporters.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER The margarine-butter battle isn't over yet. Despite the fact that the Federal Government repealed laws prohibiting the sale of yellow margarine two years ago, margarine sales are taxed and other-wise restricted in all but twelve states.

Six states—Idaho, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah and Wisconsin impose taxes of from $5 to 20 cents a pound on all margarine. Eight states—Idaho, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Vermont and Wisconsin—levy retailing license fees ranging up to $100 a year on retailers. Eleven states—Idaho, California, Colorado, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Vermont and Wisconsin—levy license fees ranging up to $500 a year on wholesalers. The same taxes, except for Idaho, North Carolina and Vermont, levy fees from $1 to $1,000 a year on manufacturers.

Federal laws still require restaurants using the spread to announce on posters or menus that "margarine is served here," and when served at tables, to be offered in triangular shape on plates marked "margarine" or "oleomargarine." In Florida, state laws also require posters announcing that "imitation butter" is served. Margarine makers insist that it is not an imitation of butter but a spread on its own right.

Nine states—California, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington and Wisconsin—prohibit the serving of yellow margarine, posted or not, in public eating places. All these states except California and Pennsylvania prohibit the sale of yellow margarine. Despite these prohibitions, margarine sales keep rising nationally.

While the dairy and vegetable oil industries continue their fight for markets, the battle has broken out on another front, resulting from the development of frozen desserts that use vegetable fats instead of butter fats, as are used in ice cream. These frozen desserts can be sold in even fewer states than margarine and the Federal Government insists they be labeled "imitation ice cream" although, again, the manufacturers say it is not an imitation but a product of its own.

BIR CLARIFIES INSTALLMENT TAX RULES The Bureau of Internal Revenue has clarified the computation of excise tax payments on installment sales; the newly approved method is said to be simpler for dealers. Details are available from BIR offices. PUBLIC'S PREFERENCES IN COLORS SHIFT Consumer color preferences in upholstery shift from quarter to quarter, the Joan News Letter reports after a survey. From the second to the third 1952 quarter, for instance, there was a notable shift from dark to light greens. Dark greens dropped from 25.6 per cent of all sales to 22.7 per cent and light greens rose from 9.4 per cent to 11.4 per cent. Greys, browns, blues, pumpkin, gold and copper increased slightly in popularity; reds held constant, and roses, turquoise, lime chartreuse and others declined slightly.

3 OF 4 FAMILIES TO OWN OWN HOMES BY 1968 If recent trends continue, three out of four American families will own their own homes at the end of the next fifteen years, Donald E. Ryan, vice president in charge of mortgage operations for Investors Diversified Services forecasts. About 58 per cent of the families now own their own homes; the percentage was only 43.6 in 1940.

OLD PROMOTER NOW PROMOTING CAPITAL The Old Promoter did not make his weekly call today; instead there was a postcard, postmarked Washington. It read: "Dear ER: The Klondike was never like this. Hot owners are making so much money the government has stationed an internal revenue agent at each registration desk. Stores are staying open nights to sell including Republican furniture, TV sets and monkey safes. I am making small fortune peddling gas plates. Newcomers can't find apartments and restaurants are so jammed they will starve to death unless they can warm up a can of beans in furnished rooms. At night I am renting inflatable pillows to people sleeping in the railroad depot. Even labor-baiters are forced to nap in Union Station." It looks as if the Republican Congress will do something about housing after all.

DRYER: Perfumes can be used with a new cabinet that dries hands with ultra-violet rays and is activated by breaking a beam of light. (It is by Electronic Towel Corp., 342 Madison Ave., New York.) FINISHER: A new internal gear finisher for spur and helical gears up to 12 diameters has been announced by Michigan Tool Co., 1711 E. McNichols Rd., Detroit, 12. Eleven design features are incorporated in the machine.

NEW YORK (AP)—This is the season when the average man would trade a future year in a future heaven just to see the first robin of spring fly into his backyard right now.

It is the winter of our discontent. The last carol has been sung, the Christmas tree is burnt, and the bright baubles that decorated it now hide in the darkness of a closet.

There is a false cheeriness to the mailman's "Hello" as he stamps up the walk. He knows there is nothing but bad news in all those envelopes he brings.

The pages on the calendar say the year is fresh and new. But the calendar is a liar. The calendar of the spirit says the year is old and tired and shabby—just about the way the average man feels himself.

The party-giving is over. Now comes the letdown. He feels the heavy hand of time upon him. The personal woes he shrugged away during the holidays perch again on his shoulder and whisper into his ear: "Look, we're back. Did you miss me?"

Everyone he knows seems to be packing for a gay vacation in Florida, in Arizona, in California, in Cuba. But no luxurious sea cruise for him. Nope. Just the long voyage to work on the 7:15 bus and the long voyage home on the 5:45 bus. That is, if the buses are running at all.

A fellow in the city looks out on streets getting grimmer every day. He puts on a white shirt in the morning and by noon the shirt has turned it gray. The button falls off the collar, too.

Snow locks the suburbanite's garage, but even if it didn't, the car wouldn't start anyway. Frozen solid. How come it turned so cold overnight so sudden? Does a man have to think of everything?

The fuel oil truck drives up and leaves a bill for $56.12. Underneath the snow the crabgrass is secretly plotting to ruin the lawn. The suburbanite plots moodily through the drizzle toward the railroad station, freezing his ears on the way. A neighbor's dog sneaks behind him and nips him in the heels. The train is an hour late and so crowded he has to stand up.

An acquaintance says, "I got a big Christmas bonus and a 15 buck week raise. What did you get? Oh, come now. Really? Nothing. How come you slipping on the job? Ha, ha, ha. What's the matter? Can't you take a joke?"

Everything's wrong. You put on your shoes, and by string snaps you go out to lunch, and gravy drips on your new necktie. You sit down in the evening to read, and the light bulb burns out. Not a spare one in the house either.

What happened to the sun? If it isn't snowing, it's sleeting. You open the front door and an icicle falls on your head. And the bitter wind? It blows, and blows and blows . . . keeping you awake at night with its howling. What does it expect you to do open a window so it can come in and get warm? Yes, all's wrong, naught's right during this brief, bluish moodiness of the year. But down South right now a faithful little friend is buttoning up his orange waistcoat

Washington Letter By JANE EADS WASHINGTON — Gertrude L. Warren, "mother" of the 4-H Club movement, who retired recently after more than 35 years in government service, is taking what may be described as a "busman's holiday."

As National 4-H Leader emerita, Miss Warren says she will continue her interest in the program which has grown to more than two million members and is one of the world's greatest youth organizations. Members in the "Head, Heart, Hands and Health" clubs, who range in age from 10 to 21, numbered only about 300,000 when she came to the Department of Agriculture's Extension Service in 1917 to develop the clubs' homemaking program. Alumni now total more than 15 million.

Projects of the organization now cover every phase of homemaking and agriculture, and similar programs have been planned with her help in many countries at the request of their governments. Among the many honors conferred upon the distinguished youth leader is that of the Order of the Three Stars, presented by the Latvian government. In 1949 she received the Department of Agriculture's Superior Service Award and received a plaque at the 25th anniversary of the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago in recognition of her "leadership, steadfast devotion and continuous service."

Miss Warren says she's looking forward happily to some "extra duty" when she meets with leaders of 4-H activities in some 10 countries she expects to visit this spring after taking the "coronation cruise" to England in May. In addition, she will be kept busy as president of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, which gives many scholarships to 4-H girls.

"The high aims, fine friendship and good sense which are so much a part of 4-H have always been foremost in the mind of Gertrude L. Warren," Rep. Francis Bolton (R-O) told Congress.

A native of Forestport, N. Y., and longtime school teacher, Miss Warren is known to hundreds of thousands of boys and girls throughout the United States but insists that the "far-reaching results of 4-H Club work represent too great a movement to be claimed by any one person."

"They are the product," she says, "of many minds working in unison toward one goal — developing a young people a way of life built on self-help and the ability to look beyond their simple daily tasks to their place in the life of our nation."

LICENSING—The perennial problem of examining and licensing boards is coming up again for its biennial consideration by the General Assembly. Most observers raise chances for remedial action somewhat brighter than for some years past, but even the most optimistic do not expect anything approaching complete solution. The problem is not peculiar to North Carolina. It is found in every one of the 48 States, but there is evidence that in many respects it is more bothersome here.

STUDY—A study commission authorized by the 1951 Assembly is preparing a report and recommendations for laws tending to make procedural practice of the 30-odd boards more uniform. Other commissions in the past have studied other phases of the total question. The prize report was made four years ago by a group which had been assigned the job of reducing the number of licensing boards and commissions. It came up with recommendation for a super licensing board—empowered to license the other boards. He problem has been studied on national level by the Council of State Government under authority of the Governors Conference. The findings were incorporated in a report to the Governors' Conference last fall and embodied in a proposed model bill prepared by the drafting committee of the Council for consideration by all State legislatures in 1953.

FINDINGS—The commission found more than 1200 separate State laws governing the licensing of more than 75 professions, skilled trades and occupations, ranging from attorneys and physicians to horse-shoers and ship salesmen. It was found that every one of the 48 States license 15 professions and trades. Accounting, architects, attorneys, chiropractors, dentists, dental hygienists, embalmers, engineers, nurses, optometrists, osteopaths, pharmacists, physicians, teachers and veterinarians. Barbers are licensed in 46 States, beauticians in 40. Some states license collection agents and certify shorthand reporters.

The Voice Of The People

Dear Mr. Editor: Please lend me some of THE FREEDOM OF PRESS you were recently writing about. For one person, I don't know enough about the proposed council-manager form of city government to write much about it. And I venture that 75 per cent of the voters of our city know just as little, if not even less about it than I. And people who know that little about such a measure ought to vote against it, lest those who want it vote a calamity down upon our heads. They may tell us we ought to inform ourselves; but few of us feel disposed to pay the price required for the law book that contains the provisions for such a form of city government. Yet, I would want to know just what the law itself says—fine print and all—and not some advocate's own prejudiced explanation of it, before I would want to vote for it, even if it were a good measure.

All I know about the COUNCIL-MANAGER form of city government is just what those who want it have said about it; and such a criterion is very frequently a dangerous one to follow. Yet, in this instance, it is exactly what its advocates tell me about it that makes it so revolting to me. If this is a move on the part of one element to get rid of another element in our present city government, then I warn them that they are just cutting off their own noses to spite their own faces; for it is highly possible, if not indeed probable that the very element they wish to oust would be the very element to land right back in the saddle, but this time with none left to oppose them.

I'm opposed to the proposed COUNCIL-MANAGER form of city government because it is a long step away from democracy and a long step toward autocracy. With the dangers of Communism threatening the foundations of our Democracy this is no time for our cities and towns, the head springs of our democratic form of government, to be surrendering to totalitarianism. This proposed form of city government promises to work so smoothly and so noiselessly along that we citizens would seldom know just what the handful of dictators were doing in our city until they had completely hobbled and saddled us with financial burdens that might require our own homes to satisfy. While a comparatively small handful of towns and cities in our Nation have adopted the proposed Council-manager form of government, by far the majority of them have been too wise, too democratic, too American to adopt it. PROMISE OF DELIGHT

By Mary Howard

Chapter 17
It seemed to Anthea that her mother was always out in the evenings, nowadays. It was almost as though she could not bear her home—or was it that, now Anthea went out so much—with Joe, she could not bear to be left with her husband? Anthea glanced at her mother uncomfortably, wishing these thoughts did not come into her mind. She stood silent, watching Marian's nervous fingers searching in a trinket box for a brooch for her lapel. There were several bits of jewelry, and Marian searched through them hurriedly. Withdrawing her hand with a little exclamation as a brooch caught her finger. The sharp movement upset the box and sent the trinkets across the polished surface of the dressing table. Among them was half of a rose-quartz heart, decorated with a few gilded letters. Without thinking Anthea exclaimed, "How extraordinary!"

"What?"
"That heart—or half-heart. The other day when I was tidying Mr. Carliotti's desk, I found one just like it. It had the end of a date and the tail-end letters of some words." She put out her hand to pick up the little broken trinket, but Marian's hand was before her. She glanced at it apparently inquisitively, and said, "It's very likely. When I was a girl there were a lot of them about. They're Italian, it was considered the thing for sweethearts to break one in half, and each to keep one half. It's worthless." She tossed the heart back, scooped the other pieces of jewelry on top of it into the box, snapped it shut and pushed it back into her drawer. Anthea wanted to ask about it—ask whether a young man sweetheart had given it to her, and what the words were engraved upon it. But Marian's face was unresponsive, and she said, "Did you get it in Italy? I don't know you had been."

"Oh, yes," Marian said impatiently. "I did the usual tour with my parents, as the snow-pieces. They were artistic, you know." She gave the word a slightly sarcastic twist. She pulled on her gloves, bade Anthea a brief good-bye. "I'll be back about eleven. Tell your father not to wait up, and see he gets his meal."

"All right," Anthea said sharply along the road to meet Mrs. Prentiss. She did not want to go, and the very thought of spending the evening watching a possibly silly film, with this certainly foolish woman, appalled her. But she could not stay in. She had to get away. From the house, from Bianca, from her husband. But most of all from Anthea. Anthea in love and a-dream, with all the depth and beauty and trustfulness of unsuspecting youth. What had she said to Anthea? The usual tour... all the show-places... very dull... excessively hot... She could still say those things, as though she believed in them. The reality of that year in Italy when she was nineteen came back to her. The hills above Flo once when the apricots were in bloom in the garden of the villa, and the stars so big and beautiful you felt you could pick them out of the sky, and the whole of life had been a mad, misty delirium of delight and desire, and exciting fear.

She walked on, not seeing where she was going, not thinking where she was going, lost in her thoughts. All these years, I've ignored it. Pretended it did not happen. All these years I've been satisfied with my life. Why had these people to come and live next door to bring it back to me again? I can't stand it. I shall have to go away. They are noticing me. At first they thought it was just bad temper, but Gregory's beginning to fidget.

I can't keep up the pretense in front of him! I can't stand being with him! His very presence drives me to exasperation. Take care, take care! That way is hysteria and breakdown. I've got to stick it out. I've got to appear normal. They will go. One day soon they will go, and everything will be the same again. Not quite—nothing can be the same. I shall never be able to pretend that I didn't care again, not to myself!

"Why, Mrs. Grainger," said Mrs. Prentiss, catching up, a little out of breath, "you walked right past the house. I saw you from the window, and I ran after you."

Marian started and stared, grabbed after sanity.

"I'm so sorry—was dreaming," she apologized, "I'm a little worried, you know, about this job of Anthea's. Come along, or we shall be late, and I'm really dying to see this picture."

Anthea rang the bell next door just after seven-thirty, and Joe opened the door to her himself. She said, "Well!"

He smiled, and said, "Very well, thank you. Why?"

"But what about Pierrette?" she asked as he drew her into the hall. "Oh, the usual thing, no good. We saw about half a dozen tests."

"But what about Gina?" Anthea went on.

"Gina?" he repeated blankly.

"Yes, Gina Scarpi, Bianca's daughter. She came this afternoon. Do you mean to say that you haven't seen her?"

"Gina is here?" he said incredulously, and gave a little whistle of surprise. "You mean you've seen her?"

"Yes. She came here about four o'clock. She told me that she left the convent about a year ago she decided to come to her mother and managed to borrow the money for her fare."

Three Dimensional Film Techniques Encouraged

United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—The extraordinary success of Cinerama, the multi-dimensional film process that has been doing turn-away business here since last October, coincides with at least two other efforts to give moviegoers something besides a "flat picture."

The other two so-called three-dimensional techniques are known as Natural Vision and Tri-Opticon. These are what are known as polaroid processes, necessitating the wearing of special spectacles by the customers. Natural Vision already has been seen in half a dozen cities in this country. Arch Oboler made a feature-length film called "Bwana Devil" with the process and this picture is now making the rounds.

Projection is identical in the cases of Natural Vision and Tri-Opticon but they differ in their cameras.

The Natural Vision camera, developed by Milton L. Gunzburg, achieves a realistic impression of depth by photographing through two lenses set at an angle to each other. The picture is thus recorded on separate strips of film as it would appear to two human eyes. Variable focus follows the action the way the eyes do.

These two strips of film, projected simultaneously through polaroid lenses onto a special screen, fuse into a single stereoscopic type of picture when viewed through a pair of polaroid glasses.

Tri-Opticon is a British invention. It was featured in 1951 at the Festival of Britain and has been seen extensively in Europe, but has not been shown in this country. However, Sol Lesser, a veteran American movie showman, has acquired the rights and is making a series of shorts with the process, to be followed by feature films later this year.

The Tri-Opticon camera is designed to permit its two lenses to move over a pre-calibrated range. This makes possible such startling effects as hands seeming to reach out from the screen or objects seeming to move in space far away from the screen.

Meanwhile, Cinerama, which utilizes a tremendous concave screen, a camera that takes three simultaneous pictures and three projectors working at the same time, is being prepared for showings in other key cities. The first place to get it after New York will be Chicago, where the Palace Theater is being done over to accommodate the initial attraction, "This Is Cinerama."

The Cinerama process achieves its effects without the audience having to wear special glasses, and one of its biggest assets is extra-dimensional sound that achieves the effect of making the viewer feel he is right in the picture.

Boys Try Hand At Safecracking

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A couple of boys, aged 9 and 10, were surprised recently by a company employe who caught the pair busily trying to break open a safe with hammer and screwdriver.

In their midnight foray in the sporting goods store the boys had originally planned to steal a bow and arrow set but when the safe was spotted they decided to have a crack at it. They claimed the job was masterminded by an "old timer," a 13-year-old who waited outside.

Greenville's Little League baseball all-stars composed of Bobby Edwards, Billy Cox, Mack Roebuck, Charles Staton, Maylon Edmundson, Johnny Harrison, Francis (Peanut) Nunn, Ralph Johnson, Richard Evans, Marvin Blount, Klutz Fisher, Walker Lee Allen, Oscar Stoneham, Milton Harrington won District 1 playoffs and went to the state playoffs in Wilmington.

Farmville defeated Ormondsville to take the Bright League championship in baseball.

Manager Pete Piestrak, George Graybill, Bill Kennedy, Paul Gay, and Red Benton were outstanding performers for the champions.

East Carolina's football Pirates sank conference foes with abandon and almost lost the North State Conference title.

Head Coach Jack Boone and Line Coach Clyde Biggers, both newcomers to collegiate coaching ranks, combined a hardhitting forward wall with a easy air-ground offensive attack that catapulted the Buccaneers to runner-up spot for the conference crown. The Pirates won 6, lost 2, tied 2.

Sparked by All-Conference nominees Dick Cherry, Dwight Shoe, and Willie Holland the Pirates were still showing improvement in their final regular season game.

The 1952 East Carolina football team became the first in the college's history to play in a post season bowl game. The Pirates met Clarion State Teachers College of Pennsylvania in the Lion's Bowl Dec. 13 at Salisbury.

Coach Jack Boone was named North State Coach of the Year in football for his excellent job in first year as head coach of the Pirates.

Casey Says Yankees Will Retain American Pennant

This is the first in a series of interviews with the major league managers.

GLENDALE, Calif. (UP)—Pest-like moment and optimistic next, unpredictable Casey Stengel today pointed to several obstacles in the New York Yankees' path for 1953 but felt his players could "pick up where we left off in the World Series."

Stengel, aiming for his fifth consecutive world championship, spoke of Cleveland and Chicago as "definite threats," but in the final analysis liked the chances of his own club best.

Casey said he couldn't tell much yet about the newcomers who may turn up in spring practice but he spoke affectionately of the players who carried the Yankees to the American League pennant and victory in the 1952 series.

"Mickey Mantle improved every month he was with us this last season and he'll keep right on improving," said Stengel at his home here. "No, I won't compare him with anyone else. But I'll say right now he can be classed as an exceptional center fielder considering his year and a half of experience in the majors."

Stengel snorted with disbelief when asked whether he thought 35-year-old Allie Reynolds might be getting a little too old for the role of a starting pitcher.

"Why he pitched more games this year than he ever did before and what he did in the series for us was tremendous," declared Casey. "You can't say a guy with that kind of heart and will is slowing down. We're definitely counting on him again."

Stengel said he welcomes the return from the Army of Whitey Ford and said if he hasn't lost anything through his absence in the service he could be a highly valued performer next season. But Casey was cagey about whether Johnny Mize would again be his Number One pinch hitter.

"Only time would tell," said Stengel.

Stengel is not sure where he will use the promising Andy Carey but said he definitely was shaping up for an infield berth.

"Newcomers? Sure there'll be ceased to be the Northeastern Conference doormat and lost only to New Bern in conference play.

Coach Bill Kittrell used the speed of Bobby Perry's flashing legs and the bombsight passing arm of Pat Sawyer to produce a devastating offensive attack. The Phant finished the season with a 5-3-1 record.

The Ayden Tornadoes once again defeated all comers in the Coastal Conference but relinquished claim to the title when the conference ruled a play ineligible. Farmville was second in line for the conference championship but they also played an ineligible member so the title officially and finally was delegated to Robersonville.

Mac Whitehurst continued to add laurels to a brilliant high school career establishing himself as the finest high school athlete in Pitt County.

Leonard "Teedy" Bullock lived up to his Ayden High reputation by winning a varsity post at defensive halfback for the University of North Carolina and starting at that position throughout the season.

Snow Hill and Jamesville applied for membership in the Coastal Conference and were unanimously accepted. The two schools will begin athletic participation in September of this year. With the addition of those two teams the conference now represent seven high schools, listing: Farmville, Robersonville, South Edgecombe, Vanceboro, and Ayden, plus the new entries.

The Northeastern Conference lost an old member but gained a new one this year. Edenton decided to drop back to Class A participation due to decline in school enrollment. Jacksonville will join the conference in September.

newcomers at spring practice but I don't want to say anything about them. I haven't even got the spring training roster from the front office yet, so how can I say who we expect will look good. But any body who looks good gets a chance. I'll look 'em all over and then decide."

Stengel agreed that Cleveland was the team to be feared most if the Indians start off 1953 with the strength he showed at the close of 1952.

"They were winning so many ball games we had to play like champions to keep ahead of them," he said. "But I can't say if they will be the strongest team we'll have to meet. After all, everybody likes to beat the Yankees."

Stengel said he welcomes the return from the Army of Whitey Ford and said if he hasn't lost anything through his absence in the service he could be a highly valued performer next season. But Casey was cagey about whether Johnny Mize would again be his Number One pinch hitter.

Greenville Meets Goldsboro In 1953 Basketball Opener

Phantoms Will Be Seeking Initial Win Of Season

The Greenville High Phantoms went through an intense basketball drill yesterday afternoon in preparation for their 1953 opener Wednesday night against Goldsboro.

The Phantoms have drilled sporadically since the Rocky Mount game December 16. Player commitments during the holidays plus workmen rebuilding and painting the dressing rooms have kept practice schedules on an intermittent basis.

Scheduled to see action for the first time this season will be Pat Sawyer, a sharpshooting guard. Sawyer has been recuperating from a football knee injury and has been working out with the team.

Yesterday the knee seemed to be okay and Coach Bo Farley said, "Yes, I intend to play Pat some Wednesday night; how much, of course, will depend largely on how his knee holds up under playing conditions. Pat is a good shot and will help our offense a lot."

In yesterday's practice session Smith Worthington, Leon Hardee, Bobby Conway, George Sideris and Dixie Hobgood were working together smoothly as a unit.

Worthington and Conway were hitting nicely from inside while Sideris and Hobgood worked the ball in to them.

Tall Bobby Statkey has been showing up well in holiday practices and he will probably be called on for considerable action against Goldsboro.

Starting for the Phantoms will probably be Worthington, Hardee, Conway, Sideris and Hobgood or Jim Cheatham. Walter Perkins, Preston Fields, Edgar Moore and Guy Smith are top reserves.

Six-foot forwards Braston Keen and Leroy Strickland, center Jay Maxwell, and guards Billy West and Bobby Greene of the Goldsboro team will be shooting to gain their second defeat over the Phantoms this season.

The Earthquakes won the first engagement between the two teams 58-50 in the Goldsboro gym. Coach Farley summed up his team's chances, "If the boys are hitting, we can beat them; we have improved a good bit in ball and floor work."

State Moves Up To Ninth Spot In Cage Rating

NEW YORK AP)—Those holiday basketball tournaments are gone, but apparently not forgotten by the nation's sportswriters and broadcasters, who named Kansas State as the nation's No. 1 team.

Kansas State's rousing victory in the Big Seven Tournament last week—the Wildcats' only activity of the week—kept State at the head of the Associated Press basketball poll today for the second straight week.

The tourney success also widened the Kansas State lead, as the Wildcats piled up 758 points on a basis of 10 for first, 9 for second, etc., to only 647 for second-place Seton Hall. Seton Hall trailed by only six points last week.

A total of 101 writers and broadcasters, voting for 20 different schools, kept LaSalle in third place, followed by Illinois, which last night trimmed Purdue, 87-71. But from that point on, the standings were scrambled.

Oklahoma A&M, victor in the All-College Tourney at Oklahoma City, jumped from seventh to fifth, and North Carolina State climbed from 11th to ninth after winning the Dixie Classic.

Crowd Of 2,500 Will Attend ECC-UNC Game

By JIMMY ELLIS, Reflector Sports Writer

Pre-game excitement reached fever pitch at East Carolina College today as a crowd of around 2,500 fans prepared to jam the Pirates' new gym tonight for the dedication contest for the million-dollar edifice. A full round of ceremonies has been planned with representatives of both East Carolina and the University of North Carolina—the competing teams—taking part.

In brief, pre-game ceremonies. Dr. Oliver Cornwell, director of the University's department of physical education and health will dedicate the new gymnasium to the memory of John B. Christenbury and East Carolina College alumni who died while in the armed forces. Christenbury was a coach at East Carolina on leave to the armed forces at the time of his death in World War II. Dr. Cornwell and other distinguished guests will be presented to the crowd by Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina. Included in the program are musical selections by the college band and members of the college choir.

The feature of the evening—the basketball game between East Carolina and the University team—will mark the first time the teams have met each other in basketball. Representative teams from the schools have met in other sports but never in basketball.

The visiting Tar Heels have been made favorites in the game, largely on the basis of their unblemished record in Southern Conference play. Led by co-captain and guard Vince Grimaldi, the Carolina team has swept past six Southern Conference opponents as well as taking a victory in the Dixie Classic. Their only losses of the season were in the Classic when they fell before Holy Cross and Penn.

Grimaldi, the team's scoring leader with 134 points in eight games, is expected to team with Al (Fuzzy) Lifson at one of the guard posts for tonight's contest. Big Paul Likens will be at the center post, and freshman ace Jerry Vayda and veteran Bud Maddie will be at the forwards.

East Carolina, one of the early season favorites in the strong North State Conference and the loop's pace setter with a 3-0 record, is expected to rely upon the five players who have been largely responsible for the undefeated record. All-State and All-Conference forward Sonny Russell, the team's scoring leader with 71 points in three games, is almost certain to team with Charlie Huffman at the forwards. Bobby Higgs, the team's leading rebounder and second highest scorer, will be at center, and Cecil Heath and J. C. Thomas will be the guards.

Tip-off time will follow the pre-game dedication ceremonies which are scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Lloyd Mangrum Cops L.A. Open

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Lloyd Mangrum added his third Los Angeles Open golf championship to his long list of honors today and prepared for what looms as the most successful tournament year of his career.

The 38-year-old veteran shotmaker made shambles of the field in scoring a smashing five-stroke victory in the $20,000 event Monday. He completed the 72-hole grind in a four-under par 280 at the Riviera Country Club.

That sub-par performance earned him top money of $2,750. Mangrum plays out of Niles, Ill., but considers Los Angeles his home.

Jackie Burke Jr., had a 70 for a 285 total. He collected $1,900. Johnny Bulla, Verona, Pa.; Harry Bassler, Culver City, Calif.; and Zell Eaton, Montebello, Calif., carded 289 totals for $1,366.66 each.

Art wall, Pacona Manor, Pa., who stayed among the leaders throughout the entire event, was alone with a 290 total worth $1,000.

Steady saving is what it takes for the average person to build a good reserve. To build a fund of $1,000, $2,500, $5,000—or whatever goal you have in mind, many customers put a part of each check into savings on payday and get along on the balance. And, remember, earnings start the first of the month on savings received by the tenth.

Ayden, Stokes Get Wins From Farmville, Chicod

FARMVILLE—The Farmville Red Devils took it square on the chin in both ends of a Pitt County Conference doubleheader played here last night. The victors in both games were teams from Stokes.

The Stokes lassies started off the two-game program by taking a close 35-33 victory over Farmville's girls. In the second game, the Stokes boys overcame an early Red Devil lead and romped in the second half for a 49-39 victory.

In the girls game, Farmville's Edna Wooten tossed in 21 points for high scoring honors but she was not able to singlehandedly match the scoring done by Stokes' Helen Copeland and Jane Bullock. Helen scored 21 points and Jane scored 12.

The twin-edged scoring for Stokes put them into an early lead in the ball game. Farmville's most serious threatening was done late in the third quarter when they tied the game at 26-26. Stokes pulled back into the lead soon after that, however, and managed to hold off Farmville in the last few minutes of play.

In the boys game, Stokes' team overcame a 15-10 lead owned by Farmville at halftime and then turned on the steam in the second half to win going away. Forward Jack Warren led the scoring parade with a total of 19 points. Center David Robinson contributed 13. For Farmville, Burt Warren was top man with nine points. Charlie Fitzgerald and Jack Allen added eight apiece.

had to hustle to stave off a last-minute Virginia rally and squeaked by 59 to 56.

The Terrapins led all the way, paced by Gene Shue's 30 points, but Virginia outscored them 16 to 11 in the final period with Bud Wilkinson high for the Cavaliers with 18 points.

At Greenville, S. C., the Purple Hurricane of Furman breezed over little Presbyterian 102 to 75.

Capitol Square

pointed out in the Council of State Governments report is "so many of the licensing boards are composed wholly of persons who have material interest in the matters about which they must make official decisions. About three-fourths of all licensing boards have only practitioners of the profession or trade which the board controls.

QUESTIONS—The Governors Conference asked for answers to three pertinent questions after the facts of current operations were determined. (1) Are we limiting the right of an individual to select the vocation of his choice by procedure? (2) Is democratic government being subverted through the delegation of the powers of forming public policy to independent boards representative of particular professions and trades not directly responsible to the people as a whole? (3) What kinds of state organization and licensing agencies will tend to achieve maximum responsibility and efficiency?

PROPOSAL—The Council of State Governments drafting committee came up with a proposal not greatly different from that suggested four years ago in North Carolina for a super-licensing board. It is for the establishment of a state department of licensing with a director appointed by the Governor; and creation within that department of separate divisions for each licensed profession or trade, with an examining board of five members to be appointed by the Governor, three of whom should be of the affected occupation and two to represent the public. Issuance, renewal, suspension and revocation of licenses would be the province of the department, not the special examining board. All fees collected would go into the general fund, and expenses of the department would be met by legislative appropriation. The examining boards would hold hearings on suspension or revocation of licenses, and the departmental director could not revoke a license without written recommendation of the appropriate board. Uniform administrative procedure in hearings before all boards would be required, and there is provision for judicial review of final administrative decisions.

OBJECTIVES—Original objectives of the licensing boards was to protect the public against practitioners and operators who were incompetent or irresponsible. Objective of the current studies and efforts at revision is to maintain this principle, with the added purpose of protecting the present practitioners without constituting them a monopoly to the exclusion of other competent men and women who want to enter the professions or trades. Whether the goal can be attained this year or some other time there is no doubt; that some revision is sorely needed in the complex, duplicating and sprawling set-up of examining and licensing boards in North Carolina.

At the business session of the group voted to send a Christmas basket to a family who had had much sickness during the year and it was reported that one had been sent at Thanksgiving. Plans were also made for a program to be given at the church. Following this the hostess assisted by her daughter Effie served chicken salad sandwiches, roasted nuts and leed Coca Colas. There were 12 members present.

On December 29th Mesdames Earl Hemby, Roy Nichols, and Thomas McCaskill honored Mrs. Jalene Sander at a shower at the home of Mrs. Hemby.

Upon arrival of all the guests bingo and other contests were played. Prizes were won by Mrs. H. S. Pruitt, Mrs. Jack Nichols, Mrs. Ora Jones and Mrs. Ned Kinsauls, and much fun and merriment was enjoyed by all present.

At the conclusion of the games chocolate with marshmallows, roasted nuts and assorted cookies. Then a lovely arrangement of attractively wrapped gifts were brought in and presented to the honoree, which upon unwrapping found she had received many lovely and useful gifts.

On Wednesday evening preceding Christmas, members of Mrs. Jack Nichols' family met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nichols for a family party. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Heber Vandiford and daughter of near Hookerton, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vandiford of Lizzie, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Vandiford of Pope Field, Fayetteville, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Vandiford and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie F. Sutton of near the home.

During the evening the hostess served fruits, candies and nuts. At their party the group voted to make this an annual affair and the one next year will be held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vandiford at
