Heavily Loaded S. Korean Vessel Turns Over; 233 People Drown

All Of Dead Believed To Be South Koreans; Tragedy Came Near Land

PUSAN, Korea (UP)—A small, heavily loaded South Korean passenger ship turned turtle in heavy seas 10 miles west of here Friday night, drowning 233 persons within sight of land.

All of the dead were believed to be South Koreans.

Only seven men, including the ship's captain, two crewmen and four passengers, struggled through the icy water to the safety of a small island 800 yards away.

The remainder of the passengers and crew were trapped in the passenger compartments or died of exposure.

The 145-ton, 100-foot coastwise ship on its regular run from Yosu, 10 miles west of Pusan, to this temporary South Korean capital, was fighting its way through mountainous seas and gale winds when it was struck broadside by a huge wave and capsized.

Three rescue vessels were sent to the scene eight hours after the passenger ship overturned. They found only floating corpses.

One vessel picked up Captain Ha Ryang Moh and his fellow survivors from the small island.

The South Korean Ministry of Transportation opened an immediate investigation.

The ship, named the Chang Tyong-Ho, was carrying 240 persons altogether. But it also bore 400 bags of rice and a cargo of dried seaweed.

It was one of several regular coastwise vessels used between Korea's east and west coasts.

A preliminary report indicated the delay in getting rescue boats to the scene resulted because the passenger ship had no radio.

The captain sent the first news of the disaster to the mainland from a radio-equipped fishing boat moored on the island he reached with the other survivors.

Capt. Ha said there would have been no opportunity to send a radio distress signal even if the ship had been equipped for transmission.

He said he was struggling with the steering gear of the ship in an attempt to keep it headed into the seas when it swung suddenly and was hit broadside by the giant wave.

He said he was thrown to the deck and overboard as the ship heeled over to one side. Water poured into the passenger and cargo compartments, trapping the screaming passengers.

Mrs. Blair Wheeler, chairman of the Women's Division of the March of Dimes in Pitt County, today released the names of those working with her in the various townships of the county.

In addition to the township chairmen, Mrs. Ruel Tyson is working with Mrs. Wheeler as co-chairman. Mrs. Harold Alfred has been named secretary and treasurer of the women's division and Miss Gloria Blanton is serving as chairman in the city.

Township chairmen are: Mrs. H. W. Gooding, Ayden; Mrs. Roy Nichols, Bell Arthur; Mrs. W. R. Hunsley, Fount; Mrs. E. B. Besley, Fount; Mrs. J. M. Hart, Grifton; Mrs. Joe Lupton, Grimesland; Mrs. Tyree Stokes, Stokes; Mrs. J. C. Brock, Jr., Marlboro; and Mrs. J. D. McArthur.

Rural Fire Protection Program Being Undertaken In Winterville

WINTERVILLE — Ground work for the organization of a rural fire department for the Winterville community was laid here at a meeting of interested citizens Thursday night.

Actually, the meeting was the second held by local farmers and businessmen of the community interested in better rural fire protection in the Winterville area.

Some two weeks earlier, the first meeting was held, but the meeting Thursday saw a slate of officers elected and other problems worked out.

At the earlier meeting, interested citizens had called for a survey of property in the Winterville area which could be covered by the organization of a rural fire department.

The Winterville Fire Department undertook the survey and came up with the figures that 2500 houses to buildings, from dwelling houses to pack barns, could be served by a rural truck stationed in Winterville. A board meeting Monday night

Rosenbergs File Plea For Mercy

WASHINGTON (UP)—Atomic spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg appealed to President Truman today to save them from the electric chair.

Appeal was filed at the Justice Department at 9:30 a. m., thus meeting a deadline set in New York by Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman who sentenced the couple to death two years ago.

All court efforts to save the Rosenbergs from death had failed. Justice Department attorneys will process the appeal before Atty. Gen. James P. McGranery turns it over to the President with his recommendations.

It was not certain just when the appeal for clemency will reach Mr. Truman. Nor is it certain he will act upon it before his retirement Jan. 20. He may leave it up to President-elect Eisenhower to make the life-or-death decision.

Judge Kaufman told the Rosenbergs' counsel Jan. 5 that he would stay execution of sentence if the appeal for executive clemency were filed by today. The Rosenbergs originally were scheduled to die in the electric chair at New York's Sing Sing prison next Wednesday.

Wife Of Tarheel Lawmaker Dies

CHAPEL HILL (UP)—Mrs. Carl T. Durham, wife of Rep. Carl Durham (D-NC) died late last night after a long illness. She was 58.

Durham has been at home here with his wife since last Saturday afternoon when he left for his eighth term in Congress. Mrs. Durham had been seriously ill since Sept. 15.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Chapel Hill Presbyterian Church here Sunday at 2 p. m., with interment in Antioch cemetery.

Three Hundred Planes Attack Links Between Manchuria And Sinanju; Smoke And Flashes Visible 30 Miles Away

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—Three hundred United Nations warplanes dealt the Communist war machine a devastating blow today with a bomb, bullet and napalm attack on a vital supply line between North Korea and Manchuria.

F-84 Thunder jets dropped thousands of pounds of bombs on five rail bridges and four road bridges just north of Sinanju, one of the most heavily defended cities in North Korea.

The fighter-bomber attack followed by only a few hours an assault on rail lines in the Sinanju area by American B-29 Superforts.

Col. Victor E. Warford, commander of one of the four fighter-bomber wings participating in the second attack, said the smoke and flashes of bursting bombs could be seen 30 miles away.

The strike started in early afternoon when planes swept over the heavily-defended area, picking off Communist radar-controlled anti-aircraft positions.

Red artillery threw up a curtain of bursting shells.

Eight Communist gun positions were destroyed or damaged and when later flights of U.N. warplanes came in, the Red guns were quiet.

Pilots reported two spans knocked out of one bridge, one span of another, five buildings leveled and rail lines cratered in four places.

"All I could see was torn steel and concrete falling into the river below," said Lt. Richard S. Orrville, Oklahoma City, Okla. Allied F-86 jets screened the area between Sinanju and the Yalu River, guarding against attempts of any Communist MIG-15s to break up the attack. None of the enemy jets made an appearance.

Alderman Backs Plan D For City

Heber B. Tripp, a Greenville alderman from the first ward for several terms, came out today in favor of the council-manager form of government for the city.

"I am glad to make a few remarks in reference to the city manager form of government to those who have an open mind, and also to answer several questions I have been asked about it," Tripp stated.

"I am informed that if the people want it and request the board of aldermen to put the utilities commission under the city manager; to elect a mayor as we have been doing and also have the same number of aldermen; it can be done.

"But unless we do this, the city manager form of government as set out would be the election of five councilmen who elect a mayor from their own ranks. Personally I would prefer a five-man board of well informed businessmen instead of our present set-up."

Alderman Tripp said running the government of Greenville is a big business, one which involves a big investment in which private citizens are stockholders. "Some people vote for an officeholder because he is good looking, others out of sympathy, when they should be sensible and vote for outstanding businessmen with good executive ability."

"Now, as to a city manager," Tripp stated, "I personally feel that if we are lucky enough to get the right man he will save enough from coordinating the departments and employees of the city and those of the utilities commission; from joint purchasing of the two units; by avoiding overlapping of machinery and street, water and sewer work; to pay his salary—to say nothing about efficiency in general."

"With our present growth and rapid expansion a well-informed man to handle jointly all our city departments is a step forward, and I feel certainly a good investment for the voters of the city," Tripp concluded.

Man Lying In Road Is Run Over By Auto; Driver Saw Victim Too Late

FALKLAND—A Negro man lying on the highway, was seriously injured around six o'clock last night when struck by a car about one and one-half miles from Falkland.

Thomas Williams, 55, of Fountain, was removed to Pitt Memorial Hospital in a serious condition. Patrolman Paul Whitley stated this morning.

Whitley quoted the driver of the car, Charlie G. Rouse, 29, as saying that he ran over the man at a speed of 25 miles per hour. He stated that he did not see the man

Republicans Set Sights On $10 Billion Budget Cutting

Doubts Voiced By Mayor Page On Plan D Value

Opines Council-Manager System Will Not Best Serve Interests Of City

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor

"My personal opinion on council-manager form of government," Mayor Lester D. Page said this morning in reply to queries, "is that it will not serve the best interests of Greenville."

The mayor added, "I have given the matter considerable thought and discussed the entire proposition with numerous people in the city before finally making up my mind to oppose it."

There is no magic in the word "city manager" and no cure-all for ills that arise daily in the administration of the city, Mayor Page stated. "Additional taxes will have to be levied by at least five percent to defray expense of a city manager, whose salary would be approximately $15,000 including office costs."

Denied Privilege He went on to explain that under Plan D citizens will be denied the privilege of voting for the mayor; five councilmen will elect a mayor and, thus, politics from a very few can determine who that mayor will be.

"Plan D is less Democratic in that the city manager has very great powers, among them the hiring and firing of the heads of each department or any employee in city government."

The mayor said there will be five councilmen elected in Plan D, one of which will be appointed mayor by the council. That action makes the council for or less obligated to the council for his position as mayor, therefore the council can dictate if they so desire the mayor's duties or policies.

Possible Inexperience "All members of the council will be elected and take office at the same time, making it possible for an entire new board with no previous experience to take office at the same time. Our Federal government does not operate under a manager, it operates under congress and the president; our state government does not operate under a manager, it operates under the legislature and governor."

Mayor Page declared Plan D does not include the Utilities Commission, although the attorney general has ruled it would possibly include the personnel of the utilities. "That would have to be determined by our courts."

If the people of the city want a city manager to manage all government functions, the present board can submit same under our present charter to the people at any regular election for their approval," Page stated. "That would not change the city charter as it now stands, and citizens will be permitted to vote for the mayor and board of aldermen as they have in the past."

People Express The mayor said in his opinion that would bring about a better form of city manager form of government, is more Democratic and permits the mass of the people from each ward to dictate or at least express themselves in matters pertaining to their immediate localities.

"I do not intend for this statement to reflect on any individual or group that may be in favor of Plan D, because I feel sure the majority of those favoring the plan are sincere; I believe it is their desire to have the best city government possible," Page stated.

"I, therefore, urge all citizens to go to the polls and say by their vote the type of government you want for Greenville. One vote may be the deciding factor of which government Greenville has in the future."

Legislators Hold Brief Meeting

Traditional Abbreviated Saturday Sessions Start; Umstead Restores Full Powers To Dave Coltrane

RALEIGH (UP)—Both houses of the North Carolina General Assembly held the traditional abbreviated Saturday session for consideration of local bills only today.

The legislature also met for only a short time yesterday but started off Gov. William B. Umstead's program with a rush. Two bills embodying recommendations made in the governor's inaugural address were introduced in the House.

One calls for a $50,000,000 program of state aid to counties for school construction and the other for minimum retirement benefits of $50 a month for all school teachers and state employees with 20 or more years of service.

The governor restored full powers to Dave Coltrane, assistant budget director, who had refused to resign at the request of then Gov. Kerr Scott last June.

Scott had accused Coltrane of disloyalty and asked for his resignation. He charged that Coltrane had helped Scott's political enemies by holding back the release of funds for Scott's projects, hoping to accumulate a surplus in the treasury when Umstead became governor.

Coltrane, however, refused to quit and Scott relieved him of all duties not specifically provided by law. Coltrane stayed in office but refused to accept his salary.

Umstead wrote a short letter to Coltrane yesterday, addressing him as "dear Dave."

"This is to advise you," the letter said, "that I, as governor, am hereby restoring to you all rights, privileges and powers useful and necessary to the just and proper discharge of the duties of your appointment and those duties pertinent to the office of assistant director of the budget for the state of North Carolina."

ROPS ARE DIMMING ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (UP)—Searchers for a C-46 transport plane which disappeared in the rugged mountain country near the Idaho-Utah-Wyoming boundaries began their fourth day of operations today with hopes dimming that the plane would be located soon.

Get Together? All farmers looking for tenants, and tenants looking for farms, are being urged to report to the Greenville Employment Office each Wednesday afternoon from 1 o'clock until 5.

Douglas Taylor, farm placement interviewer, said the plan is being conducted for the benefit of owners and tenants who wish to find a satisfactory situation for this crop year.

The interviewer said Wednesday has been defined as Farm Employment Day, and the purpose of the clinic is to make it easier for farm owners and tenants to get together.

"We want to emphasize the fact that both owners and tenants may come by the office at anytime," Taylor stated. "However, it will facilitate matters if they both come by on Wednesday."

Man Lying In Road Is Run Over By Auto; Driver Saw Victim Too Late

until he was too close to avoid striking him. Whitley stated that the man had been seen in several stores nearby; seeking beer, and was reported to have been drinking heavily.

At Pitt Memorial Hospital the man was reported to be suffering from serious head injuries and lacerations about the face.

Whitley stated that the injured man looked like a "meat grinder had run over his entire face."

No charges have been placed as investigation of the accident is incomplete.

Accident Victim Dies Of Injuries Second Man To Die As Result Of Collision Tuesday Morning

Jack Dowdy, 48, of 2559 Dickinson Avenue, died at 4:50 this morning in Pitt Memorial Hospital of injuries received in an early morning crash on the Winterville Highway Tuesday.

Death of Dowdy brings to two the number of persons who died as the result of the head-on collision near Winterville.

Pitt Memorial Hospital this morning reported that Dowdy died of internal injuries. He also suffered a fractured skull in the car-truck accident.

Dowdy was riding in the back seat of a 1947 model convertible driven by Albert Richardson, Du Pont construction worker, who died three hours after the early morning crash.

Also on the critical list at the hospital is Roland Richardson, brother of the driver. He suffered head injuries, broken leg, and fractured jaw in the accident which snuffed out the lives of his two companions.

Cornelius William S., 19-year-old Negro lorry driver is in city jail pending a Coroner's inquest into the two traffic deaths.

The two fatalities were the first for the 1953 year. Last year 12 persons met death on Pitt County's highways.

Longer Selective Service Duty Suggested To Solve 'Shortages'

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. James E. Van Zandt (R-Pa.) proposed today that a reported draft manpower squeeze be relieved by stretching the term of military service from 24 to 36 months.

Van Zandt, a member of the House Armed Services Committee and a reserve Navy captain who recently returned from a tour of duty in Korea, also said Congress must tighten up on draft deferments and start treating the Korean fighting "as a full-scale war."

Van Zandt pointed to a statement by Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey that the pool of draft-eligible — under-18 non-veterans 18-1 through 25 — is "about to run dry."

Van Zandt said lengthening the present two-year draft term to three years not only would ease the manpower squeeze but boost fighting efficiency and cut defense costs.

Hershey, writing in the Selective Service monthly Bulletin, said Friday some college deferments will have to be ended and that fathers — now deferred by presidential order — may have to be called to service before long.

Hershey's plea for more men got a cautious reception from most congressmen.

Chairman Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said he thinks Hershey's problem can be solved by changing deferment regulations a move that would not require legislation.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-N.Y.), a key member of the House Armed Services group, said if Hershey's

GOP Lawmakers Refuse To Take Truman Budget Seriously; Taft Hopeful That Expenditures Can Be Limited To $70 Billions By Careful Paring Of Waste

WASHINGTON (UP)—Republicans refused to take President Truman's whop pin $78,600,000,000 spending budget very seriously today.

They set their sights on slashing of $70,000,000,000, and some thought they could cut even deeper. More optimistic Republican congressmen thought the budget not only could be balanced, but that taxes could be reduced by the last half of this year.

Mr. Truman estimated federal revenue for the 1954 fiscal year starting July 1 at $68,700,000,000. He said present very high tax rates should be continued or even increased.

The Republican feeling was that Mr. Truman had sent the new GOP Congress a budget made-to-order for trimming. Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr., said the proposed spending program represented a "phantom budget."

"It is a spend thrift budget, calculated on policies and programs which no longer prevail," Martin said. "At the proper time, the new administration will submit its own program, and a balanced budget to support it."

Senate Republican leader Robert A. Taft said he had not had time to study the figures. But he told newsmen that the Republican goal still is to hold federal spending in the new fiscal year to $70,000,000,000 at the most.

Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, GOP floor leader in the House, said the budget would be reduced "without any of the dire consequences predicted by the outgoing President."

Rep. John Taber (R-N.Y.), who will be chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the GOP would have little trouble cutting the budget substantially. He thought a $10,000,000 cut might be within reach.

Miss Gaut Speaks On Textiles

The Sans Souci Book Club was delightfully entertained by Mrs. J. B. Kittrell at her home on East Fifth Street on Tuesday, January 6, the first meeting of the new year. Flower arrangements lent added attraction to her always lovely and recently decorated home.

Mrs. S. T. White, the president, extended a timely New Year's greeting to the club, wishing for all a year of blessings and great happiness.

After a short business session, Mrs. W. I. Wooten, who was in charge of the program for the afternoon, the subject of which was "The Textile Industry in North Carolina," presented Miss Lillah Gaut of the Home Economics Department of E. C. C. Miss Gaut gave a most interesting and informative paper, tracing the growth of textiles in North Carolina from the first cotton mill in the state, which was built in Lincolnton in 1813, to the present mammoth industry it has become, with North Carolina leading the nation and the world in many of its textile productions.

She told of the Battle Mill at Rocky Mount, which is the oldest cotton mill in the state still standing and operating at the site of its beginning.

Among many others she spoke of the Cannon Tovel Mill, the largest towel mill in the world, Burlington Mills, leader in rayon manufacture, Cone Mills, which produce more denim than any other mill in the nation and of Chatham Mill, nationally famous for its blankets. She made all present proud to be citizens of a state with so many "firsts" and "greatest" to its credit.

This was one of the most outstanding programs of the year for which the club feels deeply indebted to Miss Gaut.

The hostess served a delicious salad plate with coffee and coconut cake. During the social hour, many good wishes for the new year were exchanged among those present.

Visitors for the afternoon were Miss Lillah Gaut, Mrs. Katherine Adams and Mrs. N. S. Fulford of Asheville.

TO HEADS BETTER THAN ONE?—Harold, a two-headed turtle, shown here beside a silver dollar, lives in constant confusion — because each of his heads independently controls two of his legs. Don't laugh — this is a maddening situation for Harold. For instance, if one head goes to sleep but the other gets hungry, the legs on the sleeping side relax while the other two walk Harold around in a tight circle unable to get to food. Dr. William O. Sadler, biologist at Mississippi college, who observed two-headed Harold, said each head has independent action and controls its side of the body. Harold was found by Gustave Rink, a fisherman and trapper, near Morson City, La., and is now owned by Joe Prive of Clinton, Miss. (AP Photo)

Eastern Star Holds January Meeting

Greenville Chapter 149, Order of Eastern Star, held a regular meeting on January 6th with Mrs. Thelma Maxwell, Worthy Matron, presiding.

It was announced that a scrap book was being compiled to be sent to Grand Chapter and any member having material which will add interest to this book is asked to contact Mrs. Betty Nobles, chairman of scrap book committee. This book will show activity of chapter and will remind members of splendid cooperation the Worthy Matron has received.

The Past Matrons and Patrons will be honored at the next meeting which will be held on January 20th and a picture of this group will be taken for the scrap book.

Mr. Alfred Kennedy, Worthy Patron, led the members in the obligation, reminding them of their duty to the Order.

Mrs. Mildred Kennedy made a report for the Sick and Cheer Committee and Mrs. Lillie Dell Briley for the Ways and Means Committee.

Mrs. Martha Forrest thanked members who assisted her in serving Masonic supper on January 5th.

It was reported that Mrs. Thelma Maxwell, Mrs. Betty Nobles and Mrs. Lillie Dell Briley attended the inauguration of a new chapter at Pikeville on January 3th.

All committee chairmen were reminded that they will present a written report at the last meeting in March.

All members are urged to be present at the next meeting at which time four candidates will receive the degrees of the Order.

B.P.W. Club Hears Discussion Of Plan D

J. B. Kittrell, Jr. and Kenneth Hite of the Junior Chamber of Commerce explained the proposed council-manager plan of city government to members of the Business and Professional Women's Club at a meeting held on Thursday at the Woman's Club announced Gloria Blanton, president of the local club.

Mr. Kittrell traced the interest of the J.C.s in better government for Greenville. He told how the club had studied the various forms of city government and how it had decided to ask the people to vote. Mr. Hite showed how the proposed council-manager plan could work in Greenville if the people vote favorably on January 12.

Francis Neel, acting head of the art department of East Carolina College gave an illustrated lecture on Mexico. He showed moving pictures which he had taken while on a trip there last summer. Louise Galphin, chairman of the Education-Vocations committee and program chairman for the meeting, presented Mr. Neel.

By vote of the club, the February meeting will be known as Guests Night. Mrs. Lucy Rhodes Duncan of Smithfield, State President of the North Carolina Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs will be invited to attend. The International Relations Committee is planning the program.

Miss Blanton, who is Greenville's chairman for the March of Dimes, outlined plans for the campaign which is being sponsored by the Club.

THIEF ROBS STORE WHILE PROPRIETOR'S BACK TURNED

"Automatic candid camera snaps thief in action. Police have clues to identity." "Small-time crook playing for peanuts," someone says, tossing aside the newspaper. But small-time crooks often become big-timers. And even "peanuts" are important. Too many times somebody's back has been turned while this young fellow (and others like him) have been growing up. Too many times somebody has overlooked petty offenses, remarking, "Boys will be boys." Too many times these little misdoers have mushroomed into serious crimes.

A young person who learns through home and church "to love the Lord thy God... and thy neighbor..." will not even want to commit such deeds against his neighbors. If his mind and heart are filled with the goodness of God, he will want to show that goodness and kindness to others.

Don't turn your back on youngsters. But turn your feet and heart toward the Church, and take these young folk with you.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church neither democracy, nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For the sake of his community and nation. (3) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Mrs. Spilman Hostess To Members of UDC

Mrs. J. B. Spilman was gracious hostess to the George B. Singletary Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy Thursday, January 8. The meeting was opened with prayer by Mrs. F. E. Wells, vice president, who presided in the absence of Mrs. J. L. Fleming, who is ill. Mrs. Wells expressed with regret the absence of Mrs. Fleming who was greatly missed by all present. She brought greetings from Mrs. Fleming who sent her love to each member.

The business session followed. Mrs. E. W. Harvey read the minutes of the last meeting. The yearbook program committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. Wells, Mrs. J. G. Lautares, Mrs. T. T. Hollingsworth and Mrs. Spilman. The committee to decorate a window for Lee's birthday is Mrs. Hollingsworth, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Spilman and Mrs. Lautares. Mrs. Nan Moore was appointed UDC magazine committee chairman.

Mrs. Spilman, in charge of the program, presented Mrs. Nancy Howard who played some old Confederate and old Southern songs on the piano. Mrs. Spilman led in the singing of these songs. Delicious sandwiches, cookies, fingers, fruit cake and coffee were served by the hostess during the social hour.

Visitors for the afternoon were Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Victor E. Wells Sr.

CITY MANAGER

The words "City Manager" are no magic words and are no cure-all for all evils.

It is estimated that it will cost 5% increase in taxes to pay for Plan D City Manager form of government, which is approximately $15,000.

In Plan D the citizens do not vote for City Manager. The mayor is chosen by the city councilmen—and is less democratic. Plan D is less democratic, in that the City Manager has very . . .

GREAT POWERS

Such as the power to appoint or dismiss any employee of the City.

There will be 5 Councilmen elected in Plan D, one of which will be Mayor, which will mean fewer members on the board. The members of the Council will be elected at large and not from wards, making it possible for all members of the Council to be elected from the same ward which will mean less representation for the mass of the people.

All members of the Council will be elected and take office at the same time, making it possible for an entire new board with no previous experiences to take office at the same time.

Our Federal and State Governments do not operate under a manager form of government, but are controlled by elected officers.

Plan-D does not include our utilities

Under our present city charter the citizens can vote in a City Manager at any general city election, if they so desire, and the board of aldermen can specify or limit his authority.

Strength for the Day

NARROW PATHWAY OF FAITH
Our Lord spoke about two highways—one a broad highway which leads to destruction; the other a narrow, straightened pathway which leads to life.

Our Lord in this case was talking about human behavior. Many people take the broad highway of loose living and go over the precipice. A comparatively few take the narrow pathway and achieve sainthood and spiritual triumph.

What our Lord said in this connection about conduct might be said also about religious faith. The people who have no faith travel a broad highway. It is easy; you don't have to believe anything. You can write books on the basis of your doubts, and you may be regarded as a great objective scholar. If you remain silent when the eternal verities are being discussed and raise your eyebrows and shrug your shoulders, you may build up for yourself a vast reputation for wisdom.

But say a word in behalf of good old-fashioned religion and most people will smile indifferently. Simple faith is tremendously hard to achieve and extremely annoying to defend. Yet the Man from whom time is dated was Himself a simple, elemental person. For his enterprise to conquer the world, He chose twelve men as simple and elemental as Himself.

The acquisition of a simple religious faith is the simplest of all spiritual achievements—and the most difficult.

The Business Of The People At Stake Monday

What goes on at the polls in Greenville Monday is every citizen's business.

Every citizen should have a part in the decision which is made.

All of Greenville citizens own a part of the biggest business in the city—the city itself. No citizen who feels his responsibility for local government and better government can afford to leave it to his neighbor to decide whether Greenville shall keep its present form of government or change to the Council-Manager form of government.

By now each individual citizen of Greenville should have made up his mind about the issue at stake. He should have thought through the situation very carefully and weighed the pros and cons of both forms of government in his own mind.

When Monday comes, each citizen should vote his convictions at the polls.

It has been many years since Greenville has held an election which was of importance to the city's future and the city's progress than the one Monday. The decision which is made by the voters will be one which, to a great extent, will determine the future course of Greenville's government.

Frankly, The Reflector favors a change to the Council-Manager form of government. We are convinced it will give Greenville officials a better form of government with which to work in the future to give the citizens of the city a more efficient, more progressive government.

Be that as it may, it is the responsibility of each citizen as an individual to draw his own conclusion on the Council-Manager form of government from the information which has been presented for and against the proposal.

This is not an issue for a small percentage of local citizens to decide. It is an issue for all the citizens of the city to decide, and that can be accomplished only if the voters turn out in large numbers to voice opinions at the ballot box.

The Reflector urges each citizen of Greenville to cast his ballot in Monday's referendum. It is important that this question of a new form of municipal government for Greenville be decided by the citizens of the city as a whole, not by a small number of the citizens of Greenville.

Honeymoon Harmony May Soon End

North Carolina's new governor, William B. Umstead has laid an ambitious program before citizens of the state and the General Assembly with his inaugural address.

There was only harmony and roses in the state capital on Inauguration Day and the few days which followed, but by the time the General Assembly gets its teeth into the program Governor Umstead has offered, they'll probably be tossing bricks at as well as bouquets around the Capitol. Any of the principal legislative changes which the new governor proposed could burst into a virtual political bombshell most any time. His proposal for a state-wide referendum on liquor has long been a smouldering question. In the same category one might place Umstead's proposal for a motor vehicles inspection law. The recommendation for a 10 per cent salary raise for teachers and other state employees could possibly cause considerably controversy.

Umstead's recommendation for another bond issue for public schools may not find as many receptive ears in the 1953 General Assembly as did the last bond issue for schools which was proposed by Governor Scott.

It is evident from his inaugural address that Governor Umstead will offer the next four years a more conservative program than that of Kerr Scott.

Umstead said in effect, the primary roads program is one which can wait. As we interpret the tone of his message, North Carolina has just so much money to spend, and first needs must be taken first, the other items must wait until funds are available. He said flatly that large outlays for building programs at educational institutions are impossible because of lack of funds. The need for improving facilities for the care and treatment of mentally ill patients is so urgent, the governor said, it can only be met by a bond issue.

It looks as if Governor Umstead is going to keep a close tab on the purse strings of the state, and that he is going to push a program for state betterment only as fast as the state can afford the program.

That may or may not be in keeping with the thoughts of members of the General Assembly, especially when it comes to particular items in which an individual member is most interested.

National Whirligig

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"I think," writes S. H. of Lynn, Mass., who indicates that he is a teacher of history, "that Churchill's most important and profound statement was his emphasis on Western Europe rather than the Far East, especially China, as the major front in the cold war with Russia. What is the Eisenhower viewpoint on that question?"

Answer: While I cannot speak for the Eisenhower-Dulles viewpoint, it is my opinion that they generally agree with Churchill, but feel more concern over future long-range developments in the Orient than he does.

I base that observation on the fact that both men have shown far more interest in this area than Truman or Acheson, or than Churchill and Anthony Eden. It is also the impression I gain from talks at State and the Pentagon.

There are two historical considerations to be kept in mind. Western Europe is a heavily productive, industrialized area, and it is occupied by industrious, highly cultured and enterprising people.

If Stalin could conquer it and combine its resources with those he now possesses, it would be a mortal blow to the democracies. England might fall, and we would be left to fight on alone.

TIME RUNNING OUT—However, if and when the 400,000,000 Chinese attain the economic and industrial status of Western Europe, their continued alliance or subjection to Moscow would likewise be a fatal thrust at us.

Under those circumstances, it is probable that Korea, Japan, Southeast Asia, Indonesia, India and the Middle East would become a vast Soviet satellite. Our position in either event would be unendurable.

Fortunately for us, it will take many years, perhaps fifty before the Oriental peoples can achieve such a state of advancement. Thus, with respect to that area, we have time on our side. With respect to Europe, as Churchill warns, time may be running out.

This is not a new situation to Eisenhower. It resembles the choice that confronted Roosevelt. Stimson, Hull, Marshall and Ike after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

It was a question then whether our first and major enemy and target should be Hitler or Hirohito. They decided that Germany was the more immediate threat, and that they would conduct a mere holding operation against the Japanese until the U. S. became strong enough to wage all-out war on both fronts. Ditto today.

BIG THREE GET-TOGETHER IMPROBABLE—"Do you think," inquires J.W.B. of Tulsa, Okla., "that Eisenhower, Churchill and Stalin will meet soon in an effort to obtain better diplomatic understanding?"

Answer: Possible, but not probable. There is no sense in such a powwow unless Stalin agrees in advance, and in writing, to a definite and permanent program for peace. He made that pledge as a condition to Roosevelt's recognition almost 20 years ago. He has repeated it at least 15 times in interviews with Wilkie, Stassen, our own diplomats and newspaper correspondents. He has made, no attempt to keep it, as witness Korea.

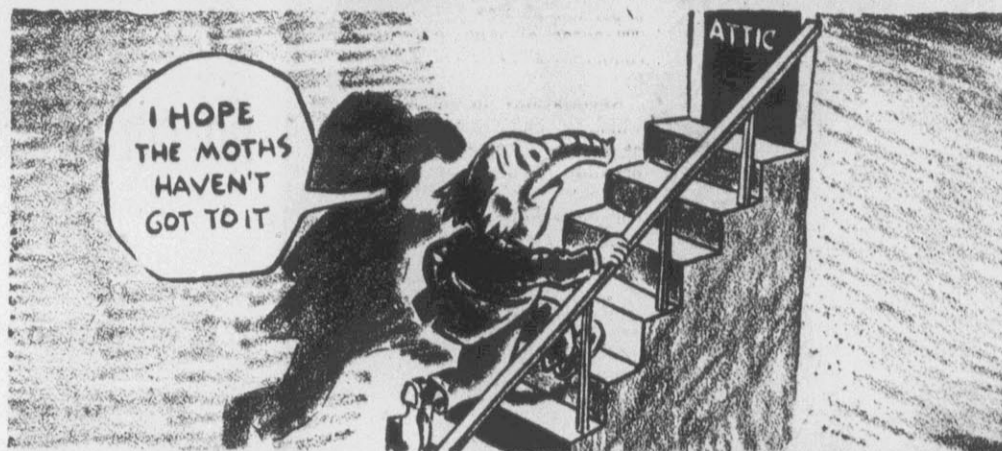

If the "big three" staged such a get-together, and it failed of accomplishments, Moscow would have an excellent excuse for blaming the failure on those "two Western, imperialistic warmongers—Eisenhower and Churchill."

REVOLT AGAINST TRUMAN—"If Governor Stevenson could carry only nine states with the aid of President Truman and the Democratic organization," asks F.R.E. of Belton, S. C., "how many states do you think Truman would have won as the nominee?"

Answer: I doubt if Truman would have held a single state, although he might have squeaked through in Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. Stevenson carried his other six states by such narrow margins that Truman would undoubtedly have lost them. The Democratic candidate's majorities in Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, however, were about 234,000, 126,000 and 60,000, respectively.

The southern revolt was directed against Truman's personality as well as his policies, and this factor would have hurt him in all nine states that remained Democratic, whereas the likable Illinois Governor did not suffer from this handicap.

The Social Scramble

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

While in New York during the holidays Wife Rachel and I saw the presentation of five television shows: The Garry Moore Show; The Lucky Strike Hit Parade; There's One In Every Family, starring John Reed King, Ed Sullivan's Toast of the Town; and Arthur Godfrey and His Friends. Because of schedule conflicts, we were unable to see many others and consequently gave our tickets away. Two regrettable radio shows we missed were dramas starring Paulette Goddard and Van Johnson.

WTAR-TV, Norfolk, does not carry two of the shows we saw: Ed Sullivan's Toast of the Town and There's One In Every Family. The latter is a give-away type morning show in which a deserving member of a family gets the opportunity to answer questions for cash and prizes. Ed Sullivan's Toast of the Town is one of the best variety shows on TV. The show is sponsored by Lincoln-Mercury and the complimentary tickets were arranged by the local dealer, Wagner-Waldrup Motors. Gloria DeHaven of the movies was the song-and-dance star of the Ed Sullivan show and Bobby Clark, the comic, was also featured. There were more celebrities in the audience that night than there were on the show. Movie Star Mark Stevens and the Negro star, Ethel Waters, were attending. The crowd particularly enjoyed Ethel, who sang "Stormy Weather" after the TV show went off the air.

The Lucky Strike Hit Parade was by far the best production job that we saw. That show is designed 100 per cent for the viewers at home, with little consideration for the studio audience. In fact, from the theater you can see only about half of the show. To compensate for this condition, there is a huge screen, about the size of Greenville's Pitt Theater screen, over the stage showing what's going out over the air. There are five sets on the stage, with only three visible to the studio audience. It seems logical to me that every TV show should be designed more for the home audience, and this situation prevails on the Lucky Strike Hit Parade.

Dorothy Collins' commercials are on film and while the movie is piped in by a control-room operation the sets are changed for the next number. Also, the cast gets an opportunity to clear their throats and make all the noise they please for a few seconds.

Some people like Arthur Godfrey, others do not. Even before seeing his show, I was on his side. After seeing it, I am even more of a Godfrey fan. Obviously, the show must be rehearsed. But he is so relaxed and informal that it's hard to believe there ever was a rehearsal. The technical procedure of producing a TV program is another story, which I'll cover later. Also from the New York trip I have personal interviews with Dave Garroway and Garry Moore coming up. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

INAUGURAL—The inaugural ceremonies went according to prearranged schedule, with Governor William Umstead taking the oath of office before a joint session of the General Assembly and more than 4000 others who packed the Raleigh Municipal auditorium. Even the weather man co-operated and dissipated heavy clouds of early morning so that, while the sun was not brightly shining the feared rain did not come down.

ATTRACTION—Hundreds of people came just for the show; some came to realize a long desire to see Bill Umstead become Governor of North Carolina; and some others very frankly stated they had come to see Kerr Scott move out of the high office he has held for four years. Whatever the attraction, the fact is that assembled in Raleigh's auditorium at noon Thursday was an epithelial, economic and social leadership of North Carolina.

HONORED—Besides the Tarheels there were distinguished visitors from neighboring States. Governor John S. Battle and former Governor William M. Tuck of Virginia had seats on the rostrum. Senators Clyde Hoey and Willis Smith came down from Washington for the occasion. Also present were Representatives Herbert Bonner of the First district; L.H. Fountain of the second; Ertel Carlyle of the seventh; Hugh Alexander of the ninth; Charles Raper Jones of the 10th and Woodrow Jones of the 11th. Other representatives had expected to attend and some may have gotten in too late to be seated on the rostrum. Republicans are not usually accorded high place in Democratic-controlled functions, but this time Congressman Jonas, only Republican in the Tarheel delegation and credited with large influence at the White House was given the front seat beside the senators. Former Congressman R.L. Doughton and Monroe Redden were also on hand.

JUDICIARY—The judiciary was well represented, every member of the State Supreme Court had part in administering the oaths of office to the constitutional elected officials. Judge Wilson Warlick of the Western District Federal court was on hand, along with Superior Court Judges Chester Morris, W.C. Harris, Quincy Nimocks, J.A. Rousseau, Z.V. Nettle, Dan K. Moore, Allen Gwyn and W.I. Halstead.

LOBBYING—Other judges may have gotten in during the day and all of them were doing a bit a discreet lobbying in behalf of the proposed judicial salary increase bill. It was first planned to include judges and solicitors in the executive officers' bill which was passed Wednesday, but it was decided to leave that item open since under the constitution the compensation of Supreme Court Justices and Superior Court Judges can be increased, but not diminished, during their terms of office.

FLOWERS—Governor Scott and Umstead wore red rosebuds in their frock coat labels. The Supreme Court Justices and members of the Council of State wore red carnations. Lieutenant Governor Luther Hodges had his usual white carnation. Hodges is maintaining the tradition of Marshall Field Company executives which he followed for many years by sporting a fresh white carnation every day. One of the first items of personal business to which he attended upon his arrival in Raleigh was to arrange for delivery every morning of that emblem.

EMOTIONAL—Governor Umstead's inaugural address was for the most part very practical in dealing with economic, political and social problems. Near the end he digressed from manuscript and injected a bit of human emotion and appeal in a little story about the trip he took all alone back to the place of his birth and the church of his childhood, where he found new strength from contemplation of the fact that improved roads and better schools, all the advances of science as manifested in mail boxes, radio and television, have not changed the eternal verities of the value of character.

TRIBUTE—The Senate, with not much State business to handle at the early morning session Thursday, devoted most of the time to tributes to retiring Lieutenant Governor H.P. (Pat) Taylor. Senators Edwin Pate, Grady Rankin and John Larkins took the floor for brief expressions of sincere affection for the man with whom they had served for several sessions and who had presided over the body in 1948 and 1951.

POLITICIAN (?)—Responding to these testimonials, President Taylor said he had not regarded service in the Senate whether as member or presiding officer as a "political" office. He considered it an opportunity for service to his State, and he felt sure that his associates felt the same way. He took occasion to pay high tribute to his successor, Luther Hodges, for whom he asked the same courteous consideration that had been accorded him throughout his tenure in the Senate.

LEADER—That brings up for further discussion a matter which has been bruited about a good deal during the past few weeks. Some of the old-timers in the Senate have claimed that the new presiding officer was talking too much without consulting them.

The Voice Of The People

To the Editor:

In these days of higher costs of doing business it is imperative that good management practices be employed in all businesses. Our City Government in all its activities is "Big Business" and affects every citizen's welfare and pocketbook.

A full time employee, subject to the counsel and guidance of elected representatives of the people, could actually apply himself to the many daily problems in a more efficient manner than our present system. This is not a criticism of our current people who are running our city government. It is simply a problem of time to spare for the job and application to the job of trained manpower.

Long term plans and objectives can be set up with definite objectives and "targets" to be reached. Progress reports to the people concerning the knotty problems now faced would give the public a better understanding of the problems facing those in our city government.

This is a matter of concern to all our people and it should be taken as a personal duty of each qualified voter to vote on Monday, January 12. Vote as you please, but vote.

Sincerely,
BACDER JOHNSON

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

FINGERS ARE AGAIN WAGGING at the amount of outstanding consumer credit. A number of magazines and several economists have issued solemn warnings that the total is dangerously high.

Too much credit is, of course, inflationary. And a high debt load on consumers can worsen a downturn if one should come along.

And the outstanding total is high—higher than it has ever been. Consumers owed a total of $27,798,000,000 on November 30, according to the latest report of the Federal Reserve Board. That was a rise of $2,809,000,000 in a year.

During December, gift buying undoubtedly shot the total well above the $23 billion mark and the net 1952 rise is probably around $3 billion.

That's a whale of a lot of money to owe, especially since most of the owners are wage and salary earners. And while $23 billion is a big figure even in these days of astronomical sums, compared with other figures. For instance, the total of all government and private indebtedness in 1951, according to the Department of Commerce, was $19,500,000,000 and "Financial World" estimates it is now near $50 billion. In short, of all the money owed in the United States, the consumer credit share is only 4 per cent.

For instance, the per capita share of the Federal, State and local debt was $1,840 in 1951; the per capita share of consumer debt is only about $14.

For instance, while consumers increased their debts $3 billion in 1952, they increased their savings by about $19 billion. (That angers some economists; they say savings and charging goods or buying on instalments.)

For instance, total personal income rose from an annual rate of $261,700,000,000 in October, 1951, to $275,800,000,000 in October, 1952, the latest figure available.

So while outstanding consumer credit rose $3 billion in a year, total personal income rose more than $14 billion. The years do not coincide exactly, but they overlap in 10 of the 12 months.

In relation to other figures, consumer indebtedness does not look so frightening. But it is still high enough to warrant a bit more selectiveness by credit-granters and a little less plunging by advertisers. ADVERTISING BARRED IN OFFICIAL CEREMONIES—Businessmen who get called offering advertising space in the official Inauguration Day program—with high-pressure urgings to act at once because the program is going to press—better call a cop.

The official program carries no advertising. And there will be no commercial or advertising floats, either.

HOW TO SUCCEED IN FASHION WORLD—There's a fat chapter on "owning Your Own Fashion Business" in "Careers in the World of Fashion," by Frieda S. Curtis, just published by Women's Press, 425 Fourth Ave., New York, at $3.50.

Other chapters deal with opportunities and careers in designing merchandising and promoting fashions. Mrs. Curtis is the author of "How to Give a Fashion Show."

COMMERCE GATHERS DATA ON VENEZUELA

Because Venezuela is one of the brightest spots in the foreign trade picture, the Department of Commerce has prepared a comprehensive study of conditions bearing on investment opportunities there. Venezuela has risen to third place among the South American nations in volume of foreign trade and ranks second among the countries of the world in exports per capita.

The study will later be published in book form but at the present it may be consulted in Commerce field offices.

SIGNIFICANT BITS OF BUSINESS NEWS

Advertising expenditures seem to have topped $7 billion in 1952, Printer's Ink reports. The average American ate 30 pounds of chicken in 1952, compared with 10 pounds prewar. A new magazine is about to bow in chain supermarkets, it's "Mother Baby," by Garland Publishing Co., 202 E. 44th St., New York. The National Association of Purchasing Agents reports that supplies of some aluminum, copper, zinc, lead, pig iron wire, many steel items and electrical equipment are easier to get, while diamond tools, glycerin, mercury, nickel, some sizes of pipe, polyethylene and some steel are still hard to come by.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

HOMETOWN, U.S.A. (AP)—Wilbur Peble, like every other average American husband, is sternly in favor of family economy.

"Where does all the money go?" he wails at least once each month to his wife, who pays the bill.

This year Trellis Mae decided to put her little man on the spot. "I'm tired of hearing you yelp," she said, showing under his nose a sheet scribbled with figures.

"What's this?" he asked. "It's my final budget report for 1952 and a projected 1953 budget for you," said Trellis Mae. "I am resigning with Truman and you're coming in with Eisenhower. From now on you handle the money in this family, and I'll scream for more economy."

"Um-m-m-m-m," said Wilbur. "How much did we save in 1952 under your administration?" "On account of you insisted we buy that new car we are in the hole," said Trellis Mae. "But that is still $5,899,999,100 less than the deficit Truman left, Ike."

Wilbur tried to look grateful. Then he studied the projected 1953 budget his wife had drawn up. It showed that by 1954 they should have $1,000 in the bank. "You will note again that I am doing better by you than harry did by Ike," said Trellis Mae. "Harry figured that if the Republicans follow his farewell budget they will be 10 billion bucks deeper in debt."

Wilbur inspected the figures more closely. "I don't see any provision here for our annual dues in the Quagmire Hills Country Club," he said. "Nor have you put down an item for my new spring suit. And what do you mean by cutting the food budget $100?"

"Well, you Republicans say the only way to balance the budget is to cut down expenses," said Trellis Mae. "So under your administration this family is going to have to tighten its belt. You can give up golf, make your own clothes last another year, and eat less. You're overweight anyway."

Wilbur looked glum.

"But I see you have put down $500 for clothing and beauty parlor expenses for yourself," he complained.

"A woman's looks are her first line of defense," replied Trellis Mae firmly. "Anybody knows you can't cut defense expenditures from a budget. It's fatal to inner security."

Wilbur's face got longer and longer.

"What is this item here?" he asked, pointing at a line that said: "Wilbur's Welfare Fund—$1 a day."

"That's your lunch and pocket money."

"I can't get by on a buck a day." "You'll either have to-o-o figure out a new source of revenue. Maybe you can sell magazine subscriptions on your days off." "And I don't see any item at all about our vacation." "We'll stay home this year—and you can paint the house," said Trellis Mae. "That'll save more money." Wilbur stared blankly at the figures. Then he said tentatively: "Honey, will you do me a favor? Please handle the money again this year. I don't want a new administration—in this house." "On one condition—that you don't yell all the time about where all the money goes."

"No yelling," Wilbur promised. He went into the bedroom and lay down. His head ached.

"Trellis Mae immediately got up, tore her projected 1953 budget into pieces, and threw them into the wastebasket, humming happily.

Then she sat down and began to figure how she could afford to buy a new electric dishwasher. She knew she would find some way to fit it into the family's finances. Wives always do.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—With the bang of the auctioneer's hammer and the familiar "going, going, gone," many truffles and treasures have gone for bargain prices to furnish and embellish the home of Washingtonians.

Since 1891 the famous auction house of C.G. Sloan Co. has been the gathering place at least twice weekly of Capital social leaders, diplomats and cabinet members who rub shoulders with curio hunters, antique dealers, decorators and rooming-house proprietors.

Everything from coal boxes, lead pipes, tombstones and shabby sofas to rare jewels, ancient etchings, suits of armor and White House china have been auctioned off by James M. O'Brien, while laconic, white-haired Mark Sloan, son of the founder, sits at a long table with folded bills between his fingers ready to make change.

Sloan's has sold Abraham Lincoln's dining table (for $28), the furnishings of the 35-room mansion of Adm. George Dewey, Stephen Decatur's shaving mug. The first day of catalog sale of fine rugs, antiques, curios and household furnishings from the home of the late Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge brought $10,000 to the estate, from which Sloan got a commission. In the old days a lot of rare wine from Washington embassies. They had to have a liquor license to transact such business.

Vice President and Mrs. Alben Barkley were among the distinguished bidders at a recent auction when some 700 historic pieces of furniture, rugs, china, glassware and linens from the former home of President James Monroe went on the block. The Barkleys spent $155 on an antique circular mahogany dish top table, a heavy Tiffany silver dressing spoon and two dozen damask hand towels. Among the heaviest buyers were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. DeLashmutt, who bought the Monroe estate, Oak Hill, in nearby Virginia in 1948 for 220,000 from the estate of Frank C. Littleton.

Among the items bought by the DeLashmutts were a walnut Chippendale side chair said to have belonged to Lord Fairfax ($120) and antique mahogany bed steps ($100). They also bought Madison's four poster bed ($340) and three carved oak chairs Lincoln "once stood in front of."

Sloan estimates some 30,000 to 50,000 auction-feeish people visit his shop each year. They prove the truth of the quotation painted on a beam in the center of the auction room: "The Trash of One Generation becomes The Treasure of Another."

Old Heirlooms Fill Their Home

Misses Louise And Sue Boyd Preserve Memories And Mementos Of The Past

By JESS POINDEXTER
November 20, 1739... North Carolina is still a crown colony under Royal Gov. Gabriel Johnston, and it will be 20 years before Pitt County is finally formed from Beaufort.

The Boyds relate how their grandfather insisted that during cotton picking time each slave had to pick enough cotton that the lint would yield enough seed to fill the slave's shoe.

Rich Man
"At the time of his death he was the richest man in Pitt County," Miss Louise asserts. "He was rich, even by the standards of that day, and he didn't make it on cotton, he made it on hogs and corn."

Sue explains that he shipped all his produce out by boats on Tar River.

When "grandfather" Boyd died in 1829, a public sale of unparalied proportions was held at his various farms in Pitt County. Such items as 24,000 pounds of pork, 1,500 barrels of corn, dozens of mules and horses and much farming equipment were disposed of.

Only one piece of property of his original vast holdings still remains in the hands of his descendants. It is a home and farm located on the old Pacolus road, and it has been in the family without changing hands for 94 years.

But the heirlooms of which the entire family is proudest are two lace-covered wedding dresses—those of the Boyd mother, the former Miss Emma Felicia McLuer, who married John Foreman Boyd in 1863, and their grandmother's, the former Miss Louisa Ellis who married James Henry McLuer in 1839.

Many Documents
In fact, a number of such old legal documents are preserved at the old Boyd house, where reside Joseph C. Boyd, Misses Mary Louise Boyd and Sue McDowell Boyd, and their niece, Miss Elizabeth McLuer Hayden.

Their grandmother McLuer's dress was cut from hand-made white silk, and is nearly 114 years old. Their mother's dress is of designed English silk lined with handkerchief linen. The fabric contains designs because white silk was impossible to come by during the years of civil war, and she was married in 1863 — on the site where Globe Hardware Company is now located.

Family Bible
The Boyds still retain the old McLuer family Bible, wherein are entered the names of all McLuer descendants through the years. It is 108 years old, having been published by Jasper Harding of Philadelphia in 1844. The Bible is printed on thick pages in bold-faced type.

Some of the other pieces of antebellum attire for young ladies preserved at the Boyd house are a shawl of Spanish lace, formal evening cape of white silk interwoven with gold thread, Domini wrap of red velvet with a quilted lining and a cape of red linen.

Her sister, Miss Sue, also entertains vivid recollection of the stories and events that happened many, many decades ago. She is a former school teacher, having graduated from East Carolina College during the first part of the 20th century.

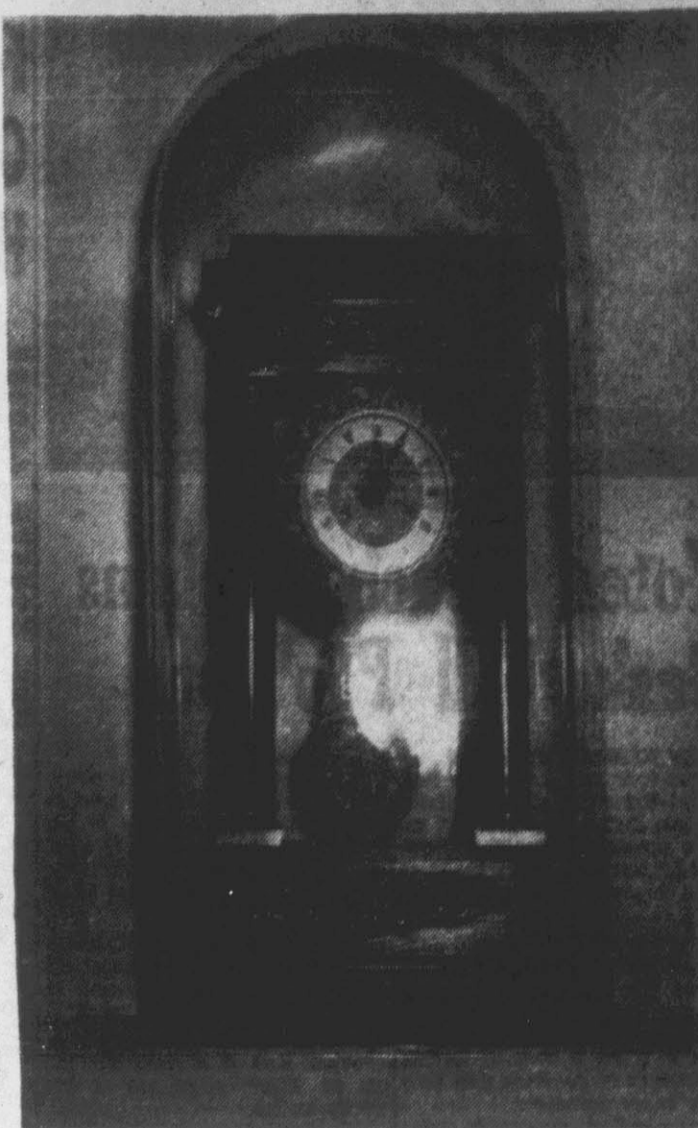

All those articles are very old and must be handled carefully, but they have lost none of the grandeur one unconsciously associates with that day and age. They are termed "priceless," and are seen by a chosen few modern eyes.

The house is an inexhaustible source of old manuscripts, family heirlooms and curios. Worn copies of old magazines, long out of date, are liberally distributed about the rooms. They reflect the glory and gentility of another age.

Old "Celt"
Miss Sue and Miss Louise display with pride the long-barreled, "cap and ball" Colt that their father carried in the war with the "Yankees." It is 102 years old with a solid walnut handle and trimmed in brass.

Priceless Articles
The Boyds are in possession of two articles of diningware on which they will set no price. They

In a bedroom off the livingroom at the Boyd house is an old "poster" bed of Rosewood dating back prior to 1840. On its feather

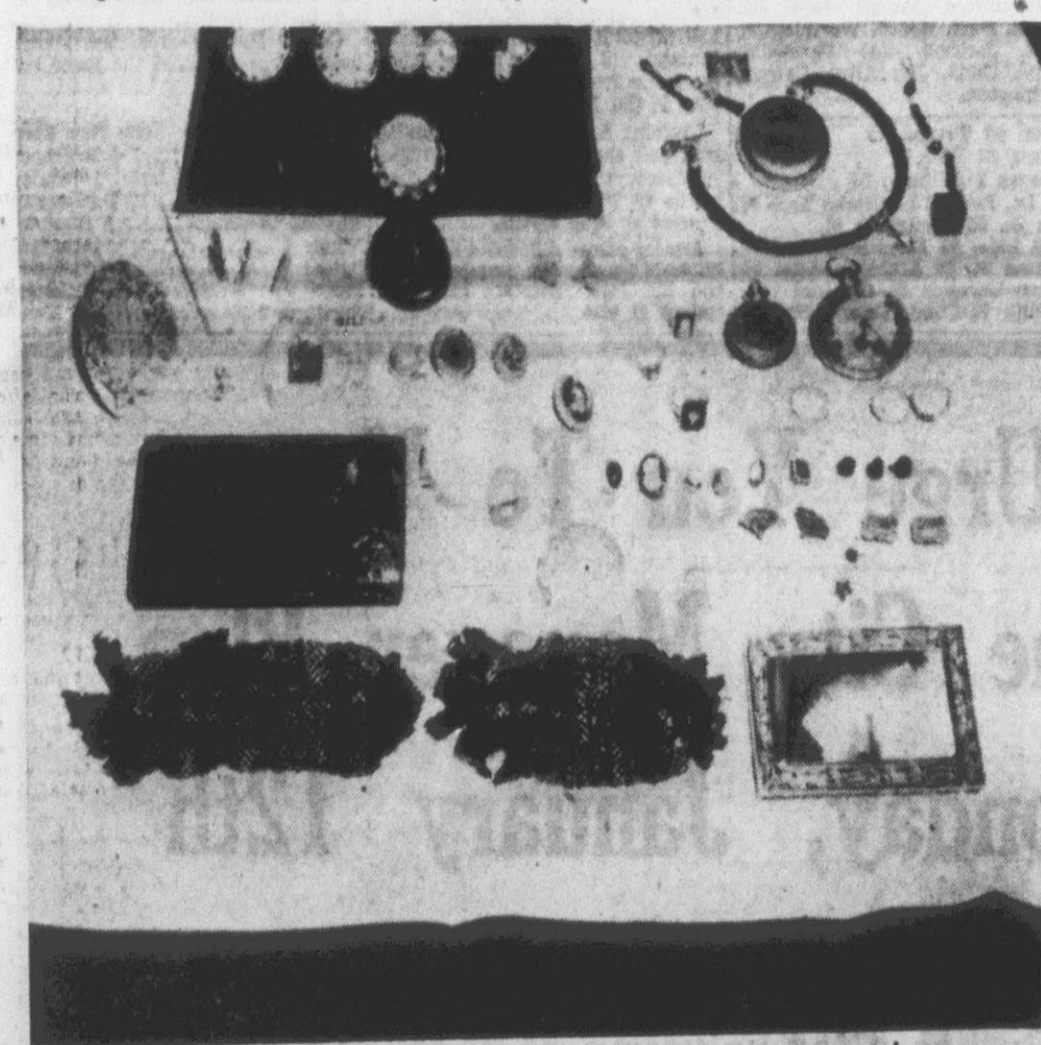

ANTIQUE SWISS CLOCK. Having tolled the hour for more than a century, the above Swiss clock was owned by the Boyds' grandfather and now sits atop the mantelpiece at the Boyd home in Greenville. It is enclosed in a glass canopy and is faithfully wound once a day. (Reflector Photos by Jess Poindexter.)

SILVER AND CHINA SERVICE, A CENTURY OLD. At the Boyd home on West Third Street are many cherished pieces of old silver and chinaware. The family retains a complete service of silver hand-hammered from silver coins, and a service of imported Royal Ironstone China. Many other old pieces dot the interior.

"SAVE YOUR CONFEDERATE MONEY..." At lower center of the above picture is a sheaf of money issued by the Confederate States of America, which became worthless with Lee's surrender at Appomattox. In the background is the "cap and ball" Colt John Foreman Boyd carried in the War between the States. Flanking those exhibits are the family Bible, prayerbooks, and old publications.

BOYD FAMILY HEIRLOOMS. Brought out of the vault especially for inspection and photographing, above is a collection of the Boyd family's antique jewelry. The pocket watch and fob in the upper righthand corner of the picture is suspended on a chain woven from human hair. Brooches, rings, cameos, all are highly valued by the family.

Seaboard Hard Hit By Heavy Snow, Ice Storm

By UNITED PRESS
Electric power, transportation and communication systems were ripped out in large areas of the Atlantic Seaboard today by winter's worst ice and snow storm in five years.
And in rain-drenched Northern California two muddy, swollen rivers threatened to spill over their banks and flood fertile western farm lands.
At least 25 persons were killed in accidents caused by freezing rain and snow in New England and the East.
About 100 families were left homeless by hurricane force winds in Florida.
Some 300 workers were endangered in California when the rain choked American River smashed through a coffer dam, cascading a 40-foot wall of water down stream. No injuries were reported.
Meanwhile a broad slice down the nation's midsection enjoyed the nicest weather of the year.
Continued freezing rain was forecast for New York and New England, which got the worst of the storms Friday. More than 25,000 homes were without heat or electricity after power lines, coated with an inch of ice, snapped like strings.

Morality Play Will Begin Religious Emphasis Week

Religious Emphasis Week, an annual event at East Carolina College, will begin with two performances Thursday and Friday January 15-16, of the Fourteenth Century English morality play "Everyman," presented by the Teachers Playhouse, student dramatic club. The play will be given at 8 p.m. in the College Theatre and will be open to the public.
"Everyman" will be presented during Religious Emphasis Week for the second consecutive year. Last January the Teachers Playhouse production of the allegorical drama won such high praise from audiences that it was decided to present it again this year.
Cooperating with the Teachers Playhouse production of the allegorical YWCA, the YMCA, and the Women's Chorus, the College Chorus, and the Varsity Glee Club, which include more than 100 voices and which will produce a background of liturgical music for the play.
Gilbert McLeod of Fayetteville is student director of the 1953 production of "Everyman." Dr. Lucien buildings made 41 persons homeless.
Schools were closed in many towns and transportation was so scarce in Newburyport, Mass., that telephone girls had to ride to work in police paddy wagons.
All air travel in New England was canceled and rail and bus travel was delayed. Fog added to the problems in many spots.
The freak winds which lashed Florida descended on tourist centers without warning. Damage was estimated at $100,000 in Sarasota alone and the total figure was expected to climb over $250,000.

Tenor Eugene Conley To Sing At ECC January 14

Eugene Conley, tenor star of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will appear at East Carolina College in a concert scheduled for Wednesday, January 14, at 8 p.m. in the Wright Building. The program by the young American singer, described as "the newest sensation on the operatic horizon," will be the sixth program on the college Entertainment Series for the current school year.
Conley made his debut at the Metropolitan in January, 1950, in the title role of "Faust." Both press and public declared that here was one of the foremost tenors of the world. He followed his initial success with performances of Lt. Pinkerton in "Madame Butterfly" and Edgardo in "Lucia di Lammermoor."
Conley came to the Metropolitan with a record of having sung leading roles with most of the greatest opera companies in the world. In America he has appeared with the New York City Center, San Carlo, Boston, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Chicago, and other operas. In Europe he has been heard with Covent Garden, London; the Royal Opera, Stockholm; the Grand Opera, Paris; the Teatro Reale, Rome; San Carlo, Naples; La Scala, Milan; and in a dozen lesser Italian cities. He has also sung as the National Opera in Mexico, in Havana, and throughout Central America.
Concerts with leading symphonies, radio works, and recordings have won the young American artist a large and enthusiastic audience both at home and abroad. He appeared for a time in the program "NBC Presents Eugene Conley" of the National Broadcasting Company.
In ancient times, trees were thought to have perceptions, passion and reason.

Claude Thornhill Band To Play For ECC Dance

A dance sponsored by the freshman, sophomore, and senior classes at East Carolina college Thursday, January 29, will feature Claude Thornhill, His Piano, and His Orchestra, nationally known dance band. The social event will be held in the Wright building and will be attended by students and their guests.
John Robert Kluttz of Goldsboro, president of the senior class, is in charge of arrangements for the dance. Assisting him are Emil E. Bardo of Wilmington, freshman class president, and Percy Wilkins of Benson, sophomore class president.
A concert will be presented by Thornhill and his ensemble from 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Kluttz has announced dancing will follow from 9:30 to midnight.
As a band leader Thornhill is noted for his unusual orchestrations. The theme song of the band "Snowfall" is his own composition and arrangement and displays his skill as a pianist to advantage.

Noted Coach Explains Basketball Problems

By HERMAN HICKMAN

It was immediately after the East Carolina-University of North Carolina game that a small group of reporters surrounded Tar Heel Coach Frank McGuire in the dressing room for an impromptu basketball clinic.

Retiring before the group until a row of lockers imposed backward progress the handsome coach ran his hand through a mop of wavy brown hair, scratched the back of his neck for a moment smiling at a barrage of questions and then quietly began answering.

A question that many North Carolinians have puzzled over a long time was first, "Why do the bigger colleges go north to recruit players?"

McGuire, a native New Yorker who attended high school at Brooklyn Xavier and college at St. John's of Brooklyn, explained it this way, "The north of the great progress made in North Carolina during recent years has been in developing young athletes. Especially in basketball. This state playing ball in the north is a very smart age. Boys from prominent areas will form teams and pay each other, each city block has its team that plays teams in their blocks."

"These youngsters gain valuable experience by learning basketball fundamentals early. Down here youngsters play football and baseball but they rarely begin to play basketball before entering high school. Then some of them are so much better in other sports that basketball is secondary."

"In recent years there has been a tremendous move in North Carolina especially for better basketball. I would say that basketball overall has improved at least 50 percent since I was in Chapel Hill for Pre-Flight training during the war."

Thus enlightened another reporter queried, "How does East Carolina and North State League compare with larger college leagues?"

With a slight frown McGuire of North Carolina was definitely up for this game and it took all he could do to keep from laughing. "I'll tell you one thing, they were so good that we had them counted twice before coming down here. That Sonny Russell and Bobby Hodges could probably make any ball-

Phantoms Down Bears 65-53 In NEC Opener

Four Players Hit Over Ten Points; Hardee Gets 15

NEW BERN—A well-balanced scoring attack coupled with almost complete control of the backboards enabled the Greenville Phantoms to down New Bern 65-53 here last night in their first conference outing of the season.

Four Phantoms hit in the double figures for Greenville. Forwards Leon Hardee and Smith Worthington scored 15 and 11 points respectively and Guy Smith and George Sideris chipped in 13 and 10 to the Phantom cause.

Flashy Center Jerry Bass was high scorer for the night, accounting for 27 points, more than half of New Bern's total.

Paced by Bass the Bears moved to an early 19-15 lead in a free scoring first period.

The Phantoms began to comeback in the second quarter with Worthington, Bobby Starkey and Bobby Conway combining rebounds off both backboards.

Worthington led the second period attack that by halftime had given the Phantoms a 30-20 advantage. The stringent All-Conference forward hit for five of the team's 16 points during the barrage.

With Bass hitting the hoop from all over the court the Bears stayed very much in contention through the third quarter. Coley and Gaskins teamed with Bass to match the Phantoms goal for goal.

The pressure-packed fourth quarter told the tale. In this final quarter the cool ball handling of guards Sideris and Smith, plus an array of deadly set shots, spelled victory for the Phantoms.

Smith, an all-conference football star came off the bench in the second half to dump in 11 points for the Phantoms. Smith's feats on the court are particularly outstanding due to the fact that, though a senior, he is participating in high school basketball for the first time this year. Hardee, Phantom high scorer for the night, is also a first year man.

Undeclared Elon Host To Pirates In Loop Battle

East Carolina's tired, but willing, basketball team will take the floor for the third time this week when they travel to Burlington tonight to do battle with Elon's undefeated Christians.

The contest tonight will go far toward indicating where the power lies in the current North State Conference race. The Pirates have taken on four league teams and have beaten all four. The Christians have met Atlantic Christian and Appalachian and won both games.

The Pirates' latest victory was a ragged 70-63 win over Appalachian Thursday night in Memorial Gymnasium. Bobby Hodges set a blistering second half pace to score 34 points for the Pirates as the rest of the squad went through the misery that comes only with a cold night from the floor.

The Christians' latest victory was in a non-conference affair with Dupont of Martinsville, Virginia, last Monday. In that game, they led all the way and never had any really serious trouble. Ben Kendall, Jack Musten, Dee Atkinson, and Jack Malloy, as usual, carried the bulk of the Elon scoring load.

Kendall is the king-pin of the Elon attack and will be the man the Pirates have to watch closely. He's little, but his play has been aggressive enough for two years to merit All-Conference and All-State honors.

The Pirates will go into the contest with the same line-up they've used in five previous games. Sonny Russell and Charlie Huffman will be at the forwards. Bobby Hodges at center, and Cecil Heath and J. C. Thomas at the guards.

The only member of the squad who stands to miss action tonight is forward Jack Carr who is out with an eye injury. Carr, a sophomore from Rose Hill, had two stitches taken in a cut just above his right eye and cannot play again until the stitches are removed.

Chicod Wins Pair Over Grimesland

CHICOD—The Chicod Hornets put in a strong bid for county basketball honors here last night with a double victory over rival Grimesland.

The Chicod lassies scored an easy 39-20 victory in the night's opener. Patsy Mills, freshman star, looped in 18 points in the first half and then retired for the evening in favor of a substitute.

Hazel Wilson and Jessie Kennedy had eight and six points for the winners.

Guards Joyce Spain, Sybil Adams and Maxine Jones did a remarkable job of holding the Grimesland forwards to a total of 20 points. The busy Hornet defenders allowed only 6 points in the entire first half.

Joyce Tripp was the chief threat for the Grimesland sextet with 11 counters.

Boys Game

Led by Walter Smith and Ducey Gaskins the Hornet boys swept to an early lead and staved off a belated Grimesland rally to gain a 30-46 decision. Smith accounted for 14 points and Gaskins 10.

Bobby Andrews took individual scoring honors in the rugged encounter with 17 points to the Grimesland effort. Ducey Gaskins and J. T. Mills had 10 and nine respectively for the losers.

David Tripp, rangy guard, and Gaskins were ever present to pull down rebounds and this action slowed Grimesland considerably in the first half when shots from the floor were practically limited to one crack at the basket because the taller Chicod crew were on hand to take the rebound.

Stokes Wins Two Over Grifton In Conference Play

STOKES—A pair of veteran Stokes basketball teams took both ends of a Pitt County Conference basketball doubleheader from Grifton last night. The Stokes girls started the evening's action by winning by a decisive 58-36 margin while the Stokes boys finished up with an almost identical 58-41 win.

In the girls game, Stokes' Helen Copeland and Judy Etheridge were the kings in an attack which rolled almost at will over the Grifton team. Copeland got 22 points for high scoring honors while Bullock came through with 15. Coleen Braxton was high scorer for Grifton with 15 points.

A four-pronged scoring attack composed of Warren Whitehurst, David Robertson, Carl White and Jack Warren was more than enough to win over Grifton in the second half of the twin bill. Robertson and Whitehurst shared the scoring honors for Stokes with 14 points apiece but White and Warren came through with 12 and 11 points, respectively.

Grifton's high scoring ace, J. R. Hooten, led the scoring for his team with 15 points. Rufus Craft took runner-up honors for the Bulldogs with 12.

NCAA To Restrict Grid Television

WASHINGTON (UP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association, having disposed of its television problem for another year, winds up its week-long convention today by tackling the task of how to handle wrong-doers.

In their final session, the delegates will vote on an amendment which would give the 17-man NCAA Council the authority to enforce its recommendations, without waiting for the approval of the NCAA as a whole.

This, council members feel, would give the association the power it needs to police university and athletic programs.

The NCAA, in a secret ballot, voted 172-13 Friday to continue restrictions on the telecasting of college football games. Earlier in the day, the delegates unanimously approved a resolution to continue New Year's Day bowl football games.

In voting a restricted football TV program for 1953, the NCAA left the way open for an increase in the number of games which may be telecast. A new television committee will be appointed later to work out the details of next season's program.

In deference to the demands of several major conferences for greater regional television, the committee was expected to recommend that a regional as well as a national network be set up so that fans in some sections may have a choice of two games to view.

The move to restrict television for another year was adopted against the demands of Notre Dame and Pennsylvania, who stumped for unlimited video.

O'Kelley Returns To Buc Cagers

After an absence of two days, Harold O'Kelley returned to the basketball squad at East Carolina College yesterday. O'Kelley is the freshman football and basketball star from High Point who left school with no explanations Wednesday morning.

The 5-10 former All-State football and basketball player worked out with the Pirates yesterday and will make the trip to Burlington tonight. The Pirates are playing Elon College tonight in a North State Conference basketball game.

O'Kelley had not played much in the four games East Carolina played prior to Wednesday. He had been used as a reserve at both forward and guard and had scored three points, all on free throws in the first game of the season. He is rated as an excellent prospect in football and basketball even though he isn't a first-stringer on either sport.

In tonight's game, O'Kelley will take the place of Jack Carr, a second-string forward who was injured in Thursday's game with Appalachian. Carr suffered a cut above his right eye and will not play again until the stitches are removed. O'Kelley did not dress for the Appalachian contest.

Greenville JV's Down New Bern

By WAYNE BISHOP

Sophomore forward Bob Howell sank 14 points as the Greenville Baby Phantoms ran over New Bern 45 to 28 in New Bern last night.

Howell also anchored 12 rebounds off the backboards.

Little Ike Riddick, a shifty freshman guard, contributed 13 points to the 3-men attack. Harry Scott hit for 7 points before fouling out in the fourth quarter.

Center Hal Edwards, the team's leading scorer, missed the game because of illness.

The scoring:

Greenville (45)	(28) New Bern
Howell 14	4 Bremmer
Scott 7	1 Whaley
Nobles 0	1 Patteway
Riddick 13	5 Hendren
Norris 4	9 Baches
Saunders 3	8 Lancaster

We Urge You To Vote For The City Manager Plan On Monday, January 12th

Our City has a tax valuation of 21 Million Dollars; And this year will spend ONE-HALF MILLION Dollars excluding Utilities.

Greenville Is Big Business—It Is Your Business!

Are you satisfied you are getting the most for your tax dollar? We believe our city needs a more efficient form of government to administer this Big Business more efficiently.

Vote Yes For Plan D

Citizens Committee for Council Manager Government

READ THIS BEFORE YOU VOTE IN MONDAY'S REFERENDUM

Here Are Some Facts You Should Know About Council Manager Government

1. The city manager is hired with no contract by the Council to supervise and manage the operation of all departments of the city. He can be dismissed by the Council at any time.
2. A city manager is a trained expert in municipal affairs and is responsible to the Council for the hiring and firing of all city employes, and for the efficient operation of all departments.
3. The city manager is selected by the Council solely upon his merit and ability as a manager of municipal affairs, and is paid according to his ability.
4. The city manager coordinates the work of all departments for efficient operation in order to give the greatest amount of service possible to the citizens for every tax dollar paid the city.
5. The Council is composed of five members elected at large by the voters of the city. The councilmen compose the governing board of the city and as such set policies and direct the work of the city manager.
6. The Council retains full jurisdiction over all the affairs of the city and the acts of city manager, by virtue of their authority to dismiss a city manager at any time.
7. The Council does not relinquish any of its authority under the Council-Manager form of government, but delegates to the manager the responsibility of supervising the detailed activities of all city departments.
8. The Council-Manager form of government puts the operations of the city on a business basis with the Council acting as a board of directors and the manager serving as supervisor of the business to carry out the policies and directives of the board.
9. With a budget of one-half million dollars a year, Greenville needs more modern business methods and administration. The Council-Manager Plan D will afford Greenville that form of municipal government.
10. Once Plan D Council Manager government is adopted by the voters of Greenville, any modifications of the plan needed to make it more applicable to Greenville's requirements may be made through legislative action.
11. How is the Greenville Utilities Commission affected by the Council-Manager form? The statute on Plan D says: "The city manager shall be the administrative head of all departments of the city . . ." The Attorney General of North Carolina has made no definite ruling regarding this provision as it would apply to the separately chartered Greenville Utilities Commission.

IN THE INTEREST OF A BETTER, MORE PROGRESSIVE FORM OF GOVERNMENT FOR GREENVILLE, WE URGE YOU TO VOTE FOR AND SUPPORT PLAN D COUNCIL - MANAGER GOVERNMENT IN MONDAY'S ELECTION.

Chapter 11
Marian could not go to Les Fleurs; it was too tiny. She would be bound to run into Anthea or Bianca. A few villas, one hotel, two or three pensions at the most. It would be better to go to Cannes, the nearest large town, where no one would know her, and then, by day, should go over to Les Fleurs by autobus. Quite a few people went over during the day, and the fact that Mario was making a film there would be sure to draw the crowds. She could go, and watch, and find an opportunity to speak to him, away from Bianca's watchful eyes and snarling rookery, her blackmailing demands for money. Away from Anthea, for she did not want Anthea to know.

She wore dark glasses when she got off the train at Cannes. She was surprised to find, after all these years, her French came back, rusty at first, but after a day or two with fluent ease. She found a cheap clean little hotel in a narrow street toward the back of the town, and during the day went over to Les Fleurs. It was not until she arrived there, on the first day, that she realized how absurdly she was behaving, and how unlikely it was that she would catch Mario alone. He was living with his party at a villa, not in the hotel. They were taking scenes locally, round the beach, harbor, and the old picturesque part of the town, and when this happened there was always a thick crowd of curious sightseers, behind rope barriers with which Mario protected his cameras, crew and actors. She could hear his voice; once she caught a glimpse of Anthea, brown as an Indian in her white shorts and shirt, her pretty hair tied back in a horse's tail, big dark glasses hiding her eyes. She was sitting by Mario, watching the scene being shot, and making notes, obviously very absorbed and busy. She caught a glimpse of Gina, bare-footed, in a ragged, peasant-type dress, sitting on a wall, chewing a straw, the camera trained on her like a great eye. She caught a bus back to Cannes, hopelessly. It was impossible; she could never get to see him, not without Anthea getting to know of her presence.

When she went down in to the little restaurant for her dinner that evening, a familiar figure was sitting at one of the little tables. Black-shirted, black-bloused, grey-haired, a basket filled with vegetables on her knees, a cigarette in the corner of her mouth. Bianca Marian pulled off her dark glasses. She knew that somehow Bianca had discovered she was there and was waiting for her. Mario was delighted to hear they were all going into Cannes to dine and dance that night. With Joe and Anthea, Gina would get home early, and tomorrow she would not be too sleepy, and have dark rings beneath her eyes. Mario would not, he said, come with them to Cannes. He was too busy. He would, however, hire a car for them.

Anthea wore a white broderie-a-laise dress, topless, boned to her tiny waist, cuffed at the neckline and ankle-length. In the darkness of the car her brown arms and shoulders and face were almost invisible; one could see only her eyes and the white of her teeth when she laughed.

They went to a very famous and expensive restaurant, where the dance floor rose rhythmically and the white-jacketed orchestra was embowered in roses, and the women looked more expensive than any women Anthea had ever seen. In the powder room, she said frankly to Gina: "You look quite lovely, Gina. The pearls are lovely too; they suit you beautifully."

Gina glanced at herself complacently in the enormous mirror. If she had learned nothing else from being with Mario, she had learned how to dress. "Yeah," she said, and catching Anthea's eyes, "I mean yes. Joe gave them to me. Otherwise I wouldn't wear them. They're not the real thing, just cultured pearls . . . but if Joe gave me a dog-collar I'd wear it." She smiled at Anthea provocatively, her fingers touching the pearls.

"Joe?" Anthea said incredulously. "Is it your birthday or something?"

"Oh, no," Gina shook her head, all mischief now, eyes wickedly aglint, soft, full-mouth smiling. "He just wanted to. Why shouldn't he buy me pretty things, if he wants to?"

"No reason at all," said Anthea quietly. She told herself, No reason at all I should believe you, my poppet, without a little more proof. And yet somehow when they joined Joe and Ivor in the long white-and-gold bar for cocktails before dinner, she could not bring herself to ask him.

On a tall stool at the bar near them, a dark, dapper man in a white dinner jacket was sitting, drinking alone. From his high perch he could watch people entering the bar through the long mirror which ran along the back. As the four of them came forward he turned round, a bland, smiling dark face, bright, intelligent, ruthless eyes, and a scar, a long jagged scar running from left lip to left eyes. Gina was leaning her shoulders against the bar as he swiveled round on his stool. She looked up and was still, frozen. For a moment they stared at each other, and the color ebbed slowly out of her lovely face, and then flushed back again, bright and quick.

"Hello, baby," said the man on the stool. Anthea was conscious of

Little To Show For His 'Career'

NEW YORK (UP)—Barry Jacobs, a 20-year-old tough guy from Brooklyn, had $14 to his name today—not much for a pro stickup man.

He wouldn't even have $14 if it hadn't been for Bronx County Judge Samuel Joseph, in whose court the bushy-haired youth appeared Wednesday for sentencing.

Before he passed sentence, the judge asked Jacobs if he had anything to say.

"What happened to my $14?" the youth demanded. "Either the D.A. or the cops or somebody got my money and I understand I have to bring an action to get it."

Assistant District Attorney Fran-

is X. O'Brien told the court that Jacobs had $14 in his pocket when he was arrested. The money apparently was part of the loot from a holdup.

The judge said: "In view of the sentence I am about to impose, I direct that the $14 be given to you."

Jacobs grinned.

Then the judge sentenced Barry Jacobs to die in the electric chair the week of Feb. 23 for the murder of William J. Hopkins in an attempted stickup last August.

Largest barracuda on record taken with rod and reel weighed 103 1/2 pounds, says the new Book of Fishes of the National Geographic Society. Average for this savage fish in tropical and semitropical Atlantic waters is about 15 pounds.

119 Arrests Reported Here For December

Greenville police made 119 arrests during December, 50 of the defendants white, 69 Negro.

Chief S. G. Gibbs' report to the Board of Aldermen last night shows that police investigated 39 accidents during December, investigated 402 complaints and checked on 12 complaints about dogs.

The report shows that Greenville police had knowledge of 174 cases that 119 cases were cleared by arrest. It also shows that 29 cases were recorded and 29 arrests were made for other authorities.

Following is a summary of arrests made during December:

European Unity Currently Dead; France To Blame

By PHIL NEWSOM United Press "Foreign News Editor

As of today, European unity is dead as a dodo.

The phrase "as of today" is used because there always is the hope that someone, perhaps President-elect Eisenhower after he takes office, may come up with the magic shot of adrenalin necessary to revive it.

But the corpse is cold and getting colder.

The hope of European unity always has lain with a few strong men. Such men as Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany, Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France and Premier Alcide de Gasperi of Italy.

Now it appears that Schuman is out, sacrificed on the chopping block of internal French politics.

His successor in the cabinet of Premier-designate Rene Mayer is expected to be Georges Bidault, who has held the job before and who also twice has been French premier.

But whoever gets the job, the make-up of Mayer's whole cabinet must of necessity be a hodge-podge affair, held together by string and chewing gum.

To win approval as premier from the French National Assembly, Mayer was forced into many compromises.

One of those kills the whole idea executive board meeting one hour prior to the council.

The council is scheduled to discuss the budget for the year and consider it for approval. County-wide projects will also be discussed and a brief training period for local officers is also scheduled.

Mrs. Howard Moye, council president, will preside over the council meeting which is the first in 1953. The meeting will be held in the laboratory of the home agents' office in the county office building.

of an European army, and with it the hope of European unity. It is his deal with Gen. Charles de Gaulle whose French People's Rally controls 85 of the assembly's 627 votes.

De Gaulle is one of those Frenchmen who believe that no good ever can come from any German.

He has opposed any plan which would put German soldiers on an equal footing with the French, he fears German reconstruction and he has accused Schuman of being a slave to the wishes of the United States.

As the price of his support, he forced Mayer to agree to insist on amendment of the European army plan.

That amendment would give France the right to withdraw its troops at any time, and without the permission of the other participating nations, from the European defense community for duty elsewhere in the world.

In other words, France would be a member of the defense community but would participate at its convenience and would be in a position to pull the rug from under Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's command at any time.

It goes without saying that other members of the defense community—Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and West Germany—quickly will put up safeguards of their own.

Eventually, then, Europe goes back to its old separations and boundaries.

Germany has been the quickest to react to the new situation. Adenauer calls it "normal" and a part of growth. He's whistling in the dark.

It's good news in Russia today.

YEAH—ALPHA DIDN'T GO TO THE MUSHROOM HOUSE AT ALL! HE WENT TO THE OFFICE OF JUDGE RULINGS.

OUR SECRET INVESTIGATION PROVED THIS TIE-UP, BUT I DIDN'T THINK THE CLIMAX WOULD COME HERE.

THERE'RE TWO MILLION DOLLARS IN THAT BAG, BUT WE WON'T GET A CHANCE TO USE IT.

MARIA HAS NO TEETH—HER WHISTLES HAVE A SPITTING SOUND. WE COULD HAVE CAUGHT THE PLANE, BUT YOU HESITATED.

I KNEW OUR HOUSE OF CARDS WOULD CRUMBLE, YOU—YOU—

BE THANKFUL YOU DIDN'T END UP LIKE JUDGE LAVA.

THEY'LL NEVER TAKE ME ALIVE—

LET 'EM COME!

CRACK

CRACK

THE KING OF CRIME AND HIS PARTNER—UGH!

THE DISBARRED JURIST!

TICKETS TO HAVANA! A CHARTERED PLANE TO RIO! THEN—

RULINGS, THE MAN WHO WAS PUT IN JUDGE LAVA'S PLACE—AND THEN KICKED OUT—

TWO WASTED LIVES, AMIDST THEIR OWN BLOOD—AND MONEY THAT WAS NEVER THEIRS, A SYMBOL OF CRIME AND ITS REWARD," SAYS DICK TRACY.
