Two American Spies For Soviet Are Uncovered

Russian Diplomat Involved

WASHINGTON (UP)—Army intelligence officers here today have arrested two Americans on charges of spying for Soviet Russia, the Justice Department announced today.

The two are Otto Verber and Kurt L. Ponger, both of New York City. They were charged with conspiring with Yuri V. Novikov, second secretary of the Soviet embassy here, to channel defense information to Russia.

The United States declared Novikov unacceptable to this government and demanded that the Soviet Union recall him immediately from his post here.

The two Americans—naturalized citizens—were indicted on espionage charges by a federal grand jury here on Tuesday. But the indictment was kept sealed pending their arrest in Vienna.

Runaway Train Plunges To Station's Lowest Level

Engine And Coaches Fall; Over 40 Hurt

WASHINGTON (UP)—A runaway Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train crashed at high speed through the barriers at Union Station today and the engine and two coaches plunged through the concourse floor to the lower level.

The train left Boston at 4:39 a. m. and was due here at 8:20 a. m. The accident occurred shortly after 8:20.

Among the first victims was a man with a broken back, a colored woman with fractures of both legs, and a man with a broken leg. They were among 12 taken from the coaches and rushed to a Casualty Hospital.

Edward Coch of Baltimore, Md., an employee of the Washington Post, was aboard the second coach behind the engine when it plunged into the concourse.

Mayor Plans Meeting On 'Plan D' Revisions

Asks Citizens' Suggestions

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor Greenville citizens with suggestions on revisions that should be made in "Plan D" were urged today by Mayor Lester D. Page to put them in writing and mail them to the city hall.

"In the meantime, to arrive at some standard policy from which to work, I urge all church groups, civic clubs and interested individuals to write letters containing suggestions to the city hall.

"We will have to work fast," the mayor declared, "because any changes in the plan must be made this session of the legislature or nothing can be done until 1955, when the General Assembly meets again."

Organizational Meeting Is Scheduled Friday For New National Guard Unit Here

A preliminary meeting leading to organization of a local National Guard unit, Battery "C" of the 600th Field Artillery Battalion, will be held at the Armory in Greenville Friday night at 7 o'clock.

Lt. Franklin P. Redmond, of Greenville, who is to be commanding officer of the battery, this morning urged that all men in the Greenville area interested in joining the National Guard attend the meeting.

Redmond said all men between the ages of 17 years and 18 years, six months, should consider joining the unit, because they will be draft exempt so long as they attend drills regularly.

Legislation Introduced In Assembly Seek Parole Board Change

By LARRY DALE United Press Staff Correspondent RALEIGH (UP)—A bill was introduced in the House today to carry out Gov. William B. Umstead's recommendations to set up a three-member state parole board.

The board would replace the present parole system administered by one commissioner, under terms of the bill submitted by Rep. William B. Rodman of Beaufort. It would authorize the governor to appoint members of the board to serve at his pleasure.

The bill is designed to meet many of the recommendations made by a study commission which had been endorsed by Umstead. However, it would not strip the final parole authority from the governor. The governor has the full authority to parole, but in practice refers all parole matters to the commission of paroles and acts on recommendations received.

Degree of Pocahontas Installs Officers

Members of Degree of Pocahontas met Tuesday night. The hall was beautifully decorated with tulle, candelabrum and running ivy. There were forty members present with five visitors. Marion Vincent from Winterville Council, Great Wagonah, helped install the officers. Mrs. Sprull, acting Pocahontas from Washington Council, was also present. Three other visitors were present from the Washington Council.

Betty Nobles, Great Past Pocahontas and Ruth G. Cox, Deputy Great Pocahontas installed the officers. All officers were dressed in white evening gowns. Callie Rue Williams, Cassie Sawyer and Geneva Webb, all Past Pocahontas, assisted in the installation. The following members have been elected or appointed and installed for the next six months:

Kathleen Woodard, Prophetess; Emma Phillips, Pocahontas; Lissie Harris, Wagonah; Mattie Mayo, Trustee; Lena McGowan, First Scout; Minnie Bailey, Second Scout; Mildred Murrell, First Warrior; Ester McGowan, Second Warrior; Kathleen Russell, Third Warrior; Lillie Haddock, Fourth Warrior; L. O. Hemby, Powhatan; Jettie Ross, First Runner; Peggy Bowers, Second Runner; Glennie Eastwood, First Councillor; Agnes Landing, Second Councillor; Ruth Profit, Guard of Tepee; Martha Gwaltney, Guard of Forest.
Past Pocahontas Kathleen Woodard remembered each of her officers and presented each with a gift which she had made. A vote of thanks was given to the Decorating Committee. The Auditing Committee gave a report of their findings. Three members contributed to the birthday fund, Callie Rue Williams, Lella Harris, Bruce Hemby and Rachel Moore. The door prize was won by Jene McGowan.
After the meeting adjourned, sandwiches, nuts, cakes and hot tea were served.

Miss Lambe Discusses Alaska Before Club

Mrs. Ed Batchelor was gracious hostess to the End of the Century Book Club Tuesday afternoon, for the first meeting of the New Year.

Her home was unusually attractive by cut flowers, beautiful poinsettias grown by the hostess, also golden bell and mandarin berries from her garden.
The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. S. Moye, who prayed for God's guidance through the year and welcomed the guests and members with appropriate New Year's greetings. Routine business was disposed of and Miss Mary Harding, program leader for the afternoon, was presented. She in turn, presented Miss Ruth Lambe, who discussed Alaska.

Miss Lambe, who taught at the University of Alaska last summer, gave an excellent talk, illustrated by slides, on Alaska as she saw it. She told of her trip to Alaska and over most of its vast territory by boat, train and plane. She crossed the Arctic Circle and flew within sight of Russia.

In presenting the inhabitants, only one third of whom are native Eskimos and Indians, Miss Lambe discussed their homes, gorgeous flower gardens, costumes, dances, industries, food, native animals and their dog teams.

Miss Lambe's enthusiasm for Alaska created a desire in her audience to see it first hand and to read and study more about our neighbors to the north.

After this fascinating program, the hostess, assisted by her daughter Miss Lytle Batchelor, served delicious refreshments.
Guests for the afternoon were Miss Ruth Lambe and Mrs. George Perry.
Books were exchanged and the club adjourned.

Make Do

A TEMPORARY long bit to bore a small hole in a place that is hard to reach, where an ordinary power drill bit proves too short, can be improvised from an ordinary wire coat hanger. Cut the length required. Flatten one end to a cutting point. The American Builder, trade publication of home builders, says this will cut through plaster, lath and base with ease.

The time and place for the next convention was left to the executive committee.
About 15 members of the Christian Youth Fellowship attended the Albemarle District Youth meeting.

Cases Heard In City Police Court

Wednesday's docket in Police Court was unusually light for a mid-week session. Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of seven cases. Albert L. Smith, Negro, drunk and forcible trespass, damage to property and larceny of three bottles of wine, was given 30 days on the road for being drunk. On the other charges the court gave Smith 18 months on the road. Sentences to be served concurrently.
John Henry Adams, Negro, larceny of $7 from John Roberts, Negro, 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $7 to the prosecuting witness and $15 court costs. The judgement also provides that he is to remain of good behavior and not violate any state law for a year.
John Patrick, middle age Negro, was found guilty of vagrancy, and the Pitt County Home for six months.
Jasper R. Mills, Negro, was found not guilty of making an improper left turn.
Ray Cannon was found guilty of being drunk. The court gave him 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $10 on court costs and he is to pay $1 to the Carolina Grill.

Girls Swiped Sheriff's Badge

ROCHESTER, Ind. (AP)—Chief Deputy Sheriff Deverl Holloway said two girls how to get to South Bend, 40 miles away, but he didn't appreciate how they repaid the good turn.
After the girls left the Rochester jail, Holloway noticed his badge missing from his coat hanging on a wall. Holloway chased the South Bend bus to Plymouth, 24 miles away, but failed to overtake it. He radioed South Bend police, who found the girls on the bus when it arrived.
The South Bend police recovered Holloway's badge and let the girls off with a lecture.

Dr. Turner Reviews Book For Literature Department

The Literature Department of the Woman's Club met Tuesday afternoon at the club house for its first meeting of the year.

As the guests arrived they were served delicious refreshments from a beautifully appointed table, with Mrs. W. H. Woolard pouring coffee.

The club was attractively decorated with ivy and early spring flowers. White and green tapers burned throughout the meeting, reflecting a soft glow for the social hour.

Mrs. R. P. Rogers, president, extended New Year's greetings to the group and presided over a short business session. Club members answered to the roll call with New Year Resolutions. In behalf of the Literature Department, Mrs. Rogers presented Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, president of Woman's Club, a feather-bound diary to be used on her trip abroad.

For the program, Mrs. H. A. Coleman presented Dr. Lucile Turner, head of the English Department of East Carolina College, who in a charming manner gave a very complimentary review of the recently published book, "Browning and America," written by Miss Louise Greer of the English faculty of the college. Dr. Turner inspired each club member to make a deeper study of this popular classic.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mesdames H. A. Coleman, R. P. Rogers and Norman Garrison.

Review of Plays Given By Mrs. Barrett At Clio Book Club

The Clio Book Club met Tuesday with Mrs. James Moye at her lovely new home in College Court.

Mrs. Jake Hadley, the president, presided over the short business meeting. Reports were given on the work the club had undertaken for Christmas. Four very large boxes of clothing were sent to Korea and money was given to The King's Daughters for a coat for a small boy.

Following the business, the hostess presented her speaker, Mrs. Agnes Barrett. Mrs. Barrett gave a delightful resume of a number of plays she had seen in New York during the holidays. She discussed the season as a whole and gave a brief sketch of five plays that have had long runs. The review of "The Time of the Cuckoo" starring Shirley Booth and one with Helen Hayes in "Mrs. McThing" were particularly enjoyed.

As a sharp contrast in what theatre goers were offered she read bits from "Guys and Dolls" based on Damon Runyan characters, a musical which opened in November, 1950, and is still a box office attraction, and "Lost in the Stars" from the novel "Cry the Beloved Country," a musical tragedy about race relations in South Africa.

In closing Mrs. Barrett mentioned "Kiss Me Kate" which will be presented shortly through the efforts of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. This play opened on Broadway in 1945 with a long and successful run.
At the conclusion of this inter-

U.S. Oil Industry Hunt Never Ends

NEW YORK (AP)—The American oil industry sank 46,000 new wells in 1952, says St. Ives magazine.

Describing the problems of drillers, the magazine says that a deep exploration all may cost as much as a million dollars, although there is only once chance in 16 that it will find even a small oil reservoir.

Chances of finding a medium field of oil, capable of supplying the nation for a week, are only 1 in 330, says the magazine.

Duroc Show Will Have Entries Of 2 Pitt Breeders

Two Pitt County swine producers will have entries in the Southeastern Duroc Breeders Association Congress to be held for three days in Rocky Mount, beginning on January 19.

The three-day show will be divided into type conferences, judging, barrow show, carcass demonstration, show and sale of fall pigs and bed gilts.

A total of 84 entries from nine Southeastern states will be on hand for the show.

Local entries from Pitt will include Henry T. Smith of Farmville, who will have one boar for sale, one open gilt and one bred gilt.

J.H. Boyd Jr., of the Oak Hurst farm, will sell two bred gilts. Boyd will also send a young boar by the name of "Pathfinder" to the congress for show; but the animal will not be placed on the block for sale at the show. Pathfinder was purchased in Moscow, Iowa, in 1951 by the Pitt swine breeder and is a very valuable animal.

Judging of the entries will be held on January 19. An elaborate banquet has been set for the New Ricks Hotel at 4:30 on Tuesday evening, at which time the annual business meeting of the Southeastern Duroc Breeders Association will be held.

Wednesday will be devoted to the judging of Junior gilts, getting under way at nine o'clock. A carcass demonstration will follow the gilt show with announcements of judging winners coming at eleven o'clock.

Sale of the entries in the congress will start at 12:30.

Dry point etchings and linoleum prints in color in the show are the work of students taught by Francis Lee Neel, acting director of the department of art at East Carolina. Those whose works are included in the exhibition are E. Janet Lewis, Knightdale; Oscar U. Giles, Greenville; Joan Edwards, Wilmington; Priscilla Hynson, Washington; Sibyle Davis, Albemarle; Dorothy Anne Weaver, Durham; Harriet Carr Cozart, Greenville; Jan Hardy, LaGrange; William H. McWilliams, Aurora; Peggy Barnhill, Greenville; Frances Long, Whiteville; Burma Tunstall, Ashboro; and Bettie J. Dougherty, Fayetteville.

Mrs. Walker's exhibition includes five studies of birds in natural settings and an oil painting. For her bird pictures she worked with oil paint on watercolor paper. A recent review of the exhibition praises these five works for their "visual honesty, unaffected craftsmanship, and superb color."

Entertains School Faculty Robersonville—On Thursday afternoon from four until six, Miss Minnie Cochran, a member of the Robersonville School faculty, was at home to the following teachers: Mrs. Carrie Lee Martin, Mrs. John D. Tyler, Miss Millie Roebuck, Miss Jeannie Taylor, Miss Clara Woodson, Mrs. Core Guard, Miss Richardson, Mrs. Ella Dill Gibbs Murrow, Mrs. Rosalind Walker and Mrs. Herbert Highsmith who is substituting for Mrs. Irving Cherry.

Cookies, ritz, stuffed dates, salted nuts, potato chips, cheese straws, candy and Coca-Colas were served buffet style. The teachers enjoyed being together for a brief social period.

Party Hostess Miss Peggy Johnson of Robersonville entertained a group of her friends at her home Saturday night. Those enjoying the party were Norwood Keel, Leon Brown, Tink Kirkman, Johnnie Swinson, Ken Modlin, Robbie Ange, Janie Edmondson, Jo Ann Carson, Margie Modlin, Jimmie Perkins, Douglas Gardner, and Mittie Mae Harrison. Potato chips, crackers, mints sandwiches and iced drinks were served.

Free Breakfast For His Pigeons

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—Early each morning about 300 pigeons line up at a restaurant in Pittsburgh's East Liberty section and begin pecking on the windows for their breakfast. A porter by the name of Arthur tosses them the stale buns left over from the day before, which amount to some 450 a week. Owners Jerry and Lloyd Drones refer to the birds as "Arthur's Children."

CLOCK-WATCHER CHICAGO (UP)—Mrs. Sonja Birnbaum won a divorce when she testified that her husband clocked her long-distance telephone calls with an egg-timer. She said it embarrassed her in front of her friends.

World's newest V8 with a million miles behind it

HERE, in literal fact, is the most advanced V8 engine ever placed in a standard-production American automobile.

It is the first such V8 to reach an 8.5 to 1 compression ratio, and the first with a dynamic flow muffler that cuts power loss to zero.

It is the first V8 to utilize vertical valves together with a 12-volt electrical system instead of the usual 6. It is also the first designed with new "Y" type intake manifold to replace the "V" type conventionally used in V8s.

It is, quite simply, the first V8 Fireball Engine—the engine that brings electrifying performance to the greatest Buicks in fifty great years—the engine that powers the 1953 Buick ROADMASTER with 188 hp., and the 1953 Buick SUPER with up to 170.

Naturally, this spectacular new V8 has been proved—by eight years of developing, testing, improving, perfecting—and by more than a million miles of driving through desert, mountains, cities and plains. Only then did Buick engineers mark it: Released for Production.

But these hard-to-please engineers gave these Golden Anniversary Buicks far more than new power.

They gave them, too, a still finer ride, more superb comfort, new braking power and handling ease—and a sensational new Twin-Turbine Dynaflow Drive* that adds new quiet and whip-fast getaway to absolute smoothness.

Nothing, we believe, will do more justice to your automobile dollars—or to your love of magnificent motoring—than a visit to us right now.

*Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.

Strength for the Day

MOSQUITO BITES
Before Pasteur discovered his epoch-making treatment designed to prevent hydrophobia, thousands of people died every year after being bitten by rabid dogs. The mad dog had his day, and it was a sorry one—for him—a glorious day.
But the mad dog has now been put in his proper place. Insects are doing more to destroy modern civilization than did all the mad dogs 500 years previous to Pasteur. Some years ago I heard a student at a college commencement exercise orate on the way in which insects could destroy man and his works. The impression I got was that we are scarcely one jump ahead of extinction. We certainly know that in the Spanish-American war more men were killed by the sting of yellow-fever-bearing mosquitoes than by Spanish bullets.

And let us always be assured that our characters stand in more danger of being destroyed by the continuity and persistence of little vices than by the attack of some great evil. In the field of morals, mosquitoes are vastly more damaging than mad dogs. Mad dogs and hydrophobia get into the headlines; mosquito bites do not. Embezzlement, robbery, adultery, dope peddling get the front page. But our spiritual lives are being poisoned by the insect bites of selfishness, bad temper, avarice, undisciplined emotions.

But Economy Is Not A One-Man Job

Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren, former Congressman from North Carolina's first district, has done one of the most outstanding jobs in the federal government in the past decade.

As head of the General Accounting Office, Warren is the government's number one watchdog on the handling of federal money by the hundreds of federal agencies.

Time and again Warren has spoken unhesitatingly against extravagance in federal agencies and worked long and hard for more efficiency and greater economy in government. He has pointed out waste, not only of funds, but in manpower by federal agencies. And at the same time, Warren has practiced what he has preached in his own department of the federal government.

In a letter written to the Senators of the 83rd Congress at the opening of the current session, Warren voiced again his opinion that Uncle Sam is wasting too much money. The Comptroller General declared, "I have said on a number of occasions, and I have no hesitancy in repeating it at this time of intense discussion of budgets and expenditures, there is not a department or agency in the Government that can not reduce the number of its employees, providing there is a will to do so."

Those are words to which the Senators and the Congressmen of the 83rd Congress may well take heed. They come from a man who is in the best position in the nation to know about personnel in federal agencies and the money being spent by the agencies.

Warren, in his letter, added: "It is not an easy job (reducing the number of employees) even if you have the will, but I think the results we have achieved in the GAO without any mandate from the Congress furnish ample proof it can be done."

The Comptroller General then went on to point out that in April, 1946 employees of the General Accounting Office reached a peak number of 14,904. On January 1, 1953, the General Accounting Office employees numbered only 6,204. That represents a reduction of 8,700 employees or nearly 60 per cent of total department personnel in the past seven years. Of the 8,700 employees who were released by the GAO, 779 were transferred to the Post Office Department.

In explaining how the reduction in personnel was accomplished, Warren explained in the letter:

"Our accomplishments in reducing personnel have been brought about by constant surveys of our work and the elimination of procedures which serve no useful purpose under present-day conditions. In cases where changes were needed, but legal obstacles precluded them, we asked and received from the Congress revisions in the law. In bringing about these changes we have always tried to make sure there would be no loss of control of public funds.

There has not been. In fact, the revised procedures are enabling the GAO and the Government generally to do a far more competent job."

There, indeed, is an outstanding example of economy and a battle against waste which has been waged by one department in the government. There is no reason why other departments could not accomplish similar savings should Congress see that it is done.

To say that waste is inevitable where government agencies are concerned is indeed fallacy. Warren has proved that in his own federal department.

Japan Puts Teeth Into Her Orders

Japan has put teeth into her orders for foreign military planes to stay away from her territory.

The announcement that immediate action — with planes and bullets — would be taken against foreign planes which trespass over Japanese territory should bring an end to flights of Russian planes over Japan.

Of course the Japanese announcement is backed up by American planes and guns; but that nation has now spoken in terms which are readily understood by the communists. Previous protests which have been sent to Russia by Japan following such violations of the Japanese international boundary have been disregarded by the Russians. Now that some of the fastest military planes are stationed in the area of Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost island, the Reds probably will be more careful about sending their aircraft into Japanese territory.

Since Japan has taken its place anew among the free nations of the world, she has stood forth in a prominent position against the advancement of communism. This is not the first stern warning leveled at Russia by the relatively new Japanese government. It is not likely to be the last.

Japanese words for the most part now are being backed up by American power, but the Japanese are taking steps toward the day when they will contribute even more heavily to the world crusade against further encroachments of communism. Great strides have been made by the Japanese people toward stabilizing their domestic situation of democracy and freedom. Their influence in the Orient for democracy is continually increasing.

The Japanese, since joining the free nations of the world, are taking an active, rather than a passive, part in the struggle against communism.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON — President Truman's executive order empowering the Federal Bureau of Investigation to screen present and prospective American employees of the United Nations marks a fundamental change in the relationship between this country and the international organization.

It amounts to a basic amendment of the U. N.'s charter, and it forecasts more radical revision when the U. N.'s structure and powers are reviewed two years hence—1955—in accord with the charter's provisions.

Russian recalcitrance in this supposed world-peace body may lead Congress and the Eisenhower Administration to take a harder look at Franklin D. Roosevelt's utopian dream.

BYRNES SHUNS EMPLOYMENT PROBLEM — As originally founded at San Francisco, the United Nations was intended to be a government above all governments. It was to be an aloof, detached and idealistic organization.

Its staff, from Trygve Lie down to the most lowly clerk, was supposed to be a group of international civil servants. It is no exaggeration to say that their primary loyalty was to the U. N. rather than to their respective countries.

It was under this assumption that James F. Byrnes, then Secretary of State, refused to pick or recommend American employees. Truman and Acheson have tried to pin the blame on the South Carolina Governor for the fact that so many fellow-travelers climbed aboard the U. N. payroll. But Byrnes was simply complying with the charter's declaration that U. N. was a supra-governmental body.

Byrnes, in short, and he was fully justified by F. D. R.'s theory of U. N.'s expected role, did a Pontius Pilate act. He washed his American hands of the employment problem. It must be remembered, too, that in those days we looked for Russian cooperation for world peace and recovery.

NEW U. N. EMPLOYEES SCREENED — When Secretary Acheson became suspicious of Americans whom Lie planned to hire as U. N. employees, he argued against their appointment. When their names were submitted to him, he wrote, in effect, "okay" or "reject." His was an arbitrary decision which Lie did not have to heed. In most cases, Lie disregarded Acheson's advice.

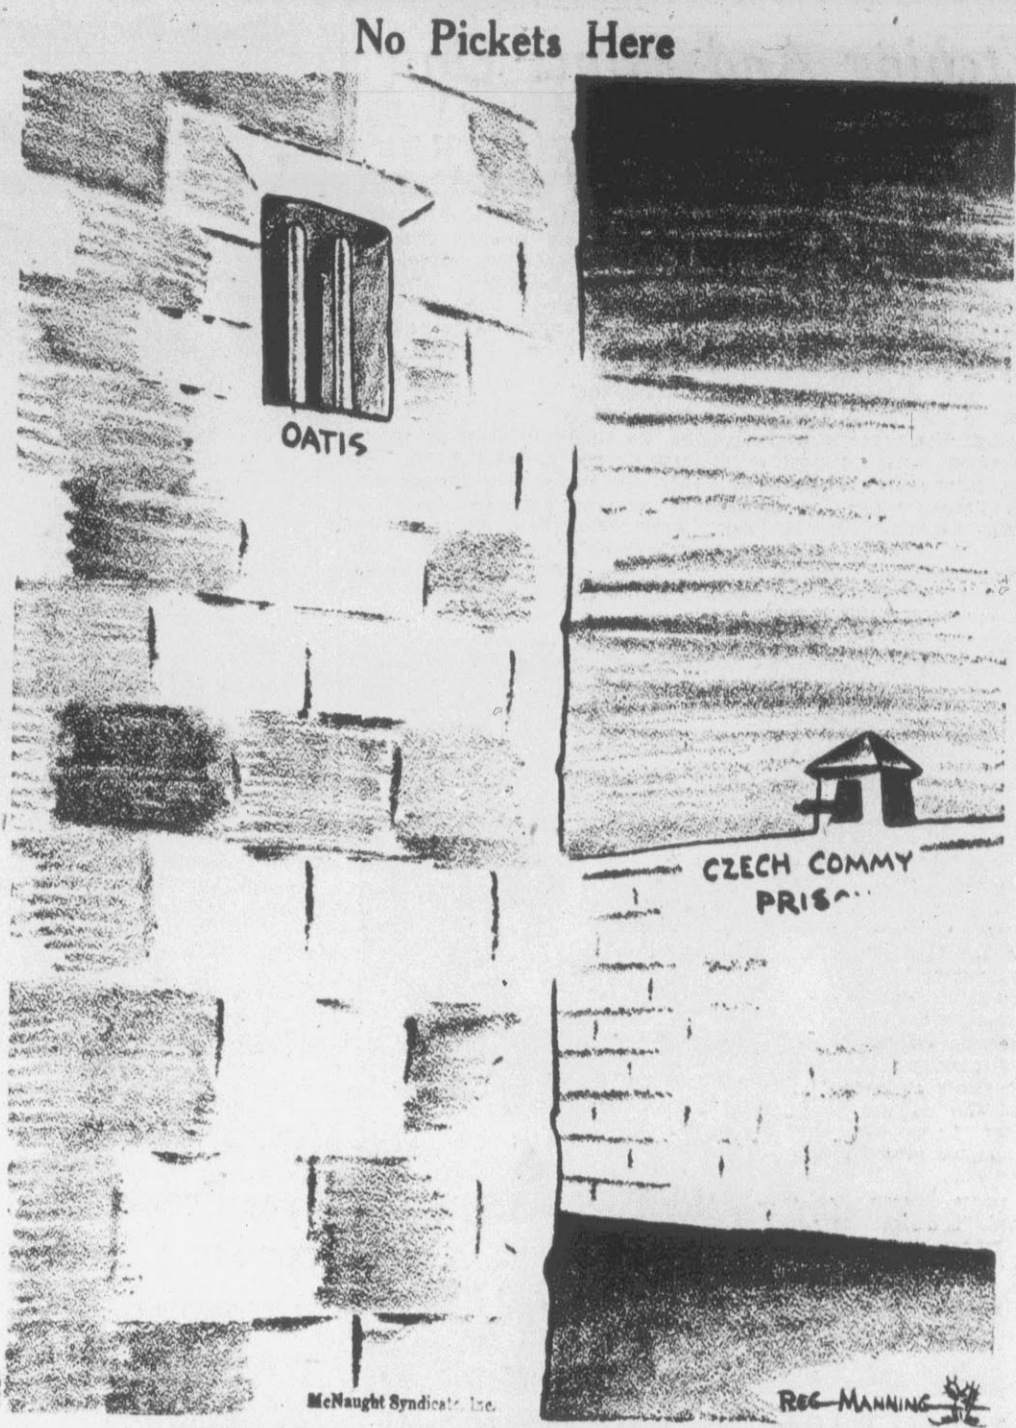

Lie did not accept Acheson's warnings for the simple reason that the Secretary of State furnished no facts to support his recommendations or condemnations, especially the latter.

Dean could not divulge this supporting data to Lie because, by White House and Justice Department order, he was denied access to FBI or Grand Jury files on alleged subversives and fellow-travelers on the U. N. payroll.

Now, under the new Truman directive, issued only eleven days before he quits the White House, the United Nations will hire no American until he or she has been completely screened as to their loyalty, not to the U. N., but to the United States.

SOURCE OF AMERICAN EMPLOYEES — The reason why so many American fellow-travelers crept into the U. N. is interesting. Although chartered at San Francisco in 1945, it was really organized at London in the spring of 1946. Top U. S. representatives were Adlai E. Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic Presidential nominee, and the late Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., former Secretary of State.

In selecting American employees, the London and subsequent bodies picked them from Henry A. Wallace's Board of Economic Warfare, from the La Guardia-Lehman organization known as UNRRA, from Edgar Davis' Office of War Information, from "Wild Bill" Donovan's Office of Strategic Services and from Nelson Rockefeller's South American unit.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Even by sitting in the studio audience during a telecast you can pick up some information about the technical operations in progress. Wife Rachel and I saw five presentations in New York during the holidays and were fascinated by each one.

The operation of the cameras and microphones is probably the most significant. On each show there are four to six cameras and as many microphones. These units are mounted on a three-wheel cart with a top-wagon-type handle. While the cameraman keeps focus another operator pulls him around in order to get the best shots of the show.

Mikes are mounted on a mechanism about 15 feet long with multiple controls that allow movement in every direction. Like the cameras, these also require a two-man operation. One man turns the controls so the mike will be as close as possible to the voice and yet out of the camera range. And of course there must be a man to pull the cart around.

Teleprompters play an important part in every telecast. Some TV actors know their lines, while others evidently make no pretense at learning them. Instead, they rely on the teleprompter and read every word. This gadget is about 18 inches square and consists of a well-lit scroll, black printing on yellow paper. Each teleprompter must have an operator to control the turning speed of the scroll. The operator uses a gear-shift type lever. As the actor reads faster, he pushes the lever forward to speed up the movement of the scroll. As the actor slows down, he retards the speed accordingly.

After the Garry Moore show I was talking to one of the teleprompter operators and asked him what job he aspired to next, assuming that he was hoping later to be promoted to camera, for example. The man looked at me as if I were crazy to ask such a question. "I'm lucky to be where I am," he said. From his conversation, I assume that operating a teleprompter is considered a good job by CBS and the operators.

Next time you see "Robert Montgomery Presents," Monday night, NBC, notice his eyes. About 90 per cent of the time he's using a teleprompter, which is mounted over the camera.

Although I couldn't get in a control room, I did glimpse the operation. There is a small TV screen in the control room for each camera on the set. Each one of these sets relays the picture being picked up by the camera. The one I saw included six pictures. The engineer in the control room takes his choice of the best picture of the six cameras and sends that one to us at home. And by looking at TV you can tell that the cameras are changed many times during a production.

In other words, the cameramen have no control over when their cameras will be the one sending the picture on the air. They can tell when lights is used, however, because a red light on the camera lights up.

Often backgrounds are projected on screens in order to bring, for example, an airport into the studio. This was done on the Lucky Strike Hit Parade, when Snookley Larsen was signing "You Belong to Me" to a departing airline hostess at an airport. This trick is effective, because it gives the complete picture of an airport in the background.

Around Capitol Square

CONCISE — Former Governor Kerr Scott was never noted for effusiveness or much speaking — or writing. Now that he is on his own, without a secretary and doing his writing with pen and ink, he has achieved a maximum of conciseness. Secretary of State Thad Eure received a letter from Haw River the complete text of which reads: "Dear Thad: Thanks for everything. It's good to get back. Kerr Scott."

COURTESIES — The practice of courtesies to the lobbyists or the floor extended to visiting friends occupies a lot of legislative time, but usually comes at periods when important business is not under consideration. Sometimes in their zeal not to overlook a distinguished visitor members forget their own rules. Such was the case Tuesday when Rep. Tom Turner of Guilford asked the courtesies of the floor be given to former Rep. Shelby B. Cavness. Cavness, having registered as a lobbyist several days before that was in direct violation of House Rule No. 11 in the 1951 book, under which the body is operating until new rules for this session shall be adopted.

RULES — The General Assembly has been in session for a full week and the rules committee of the Senate had not reported through Tuesday's session, but was expected then to report on Wednesday, and Speaker

Best appointed the House rules committee only on Tuesday. No other committees can be named near much business transacted until the rules have been adopted.

RESTIVE — Meantime members have been restive due to idleness and because they still have not been consulted by presiding officers about desired committee assignments or given any inkling of where they will be expected to serve. A few times in the past committees and introduction of money bills have been held back as long as this year, but heretofore there has been basis for good guessing. This time there is a blanket of ignorance that is not conducive to good feeling and co-operation among the members.

OATH BOOK — The book in which is recorded the official oaths of elective executive and judicial officials of North Carolina for the past 64 years is one of the interesting documents in the Secretary of State's office. The record in that volume begins with Governor Daniel O. Fowle, who was inaugurated on January 17, 1889, along with other state officials, and ends with Governor William B. Umstead and those inaugurated with him on January 8, 1953. This bound book is supposed to contain only the oaths of elected officials, the oaths being filed on separate sheets in the secretary of state's office. A few years ago someone let three or four appointive officials get in the book.

TENURE — Governor Fowle was the only one of the Governors whose oaths are recorded in this particular book who died in office and his was the last administration in which the Lieutenant Governor had to assume responsibility of the Governor's office, either for a brief time or to fill out the term. The record shows that he was sworn in by Chief Justice W. H. Smith on January 17, 1889. On April 29 of that same year Thomas M. Holt was administered the oath as acting governor by Chief Justice Smith, and on April 8, 1891, Holt was sworn in as Governor to complete the term. That oath was administered by Chief Justice A. S. Merrimon, who had succeeded Smith.

RECORDS — Chief Justices Walter Clark and Walter P. Stacy tie for honors in 'searing in Governors. Each has six to his credit. In that connection it might be noted that record tenure in elective office seems to have been held by the late Bryan Grimes, who was elected six times as secretary of state, but died a few months before his last term expired. Thad Eure, present secretary of state, has taken the oath six times, the first being for temporary appointment following his election in 1936 but before

What Other Papers Are Thinking

USING ATOMIC WEAPONS
(Wilson Times)

We're in hearty accord with those Senators who insist on using atomic weapons to win the Korean war. What good are they if they're not used? There's a growing fear on the part of our allies that the Russians, if atomic weapons are used, will take retaliatory steps. But hasn't Russia, in the last few years, had many wonderful opportunities? The fact that she's passed them up is evidence in itself that she doesn't want war. She isn't prepared and she knows it. If, then, through the use of atomic weapons we can force the Chinese out, we can prevent further aggression in Asia.

General MacArthur is a general in every sense of the word. You fight wars to win, not to quit with stalemates. Even though Churchill and some of our European allies are dead set against the use of atomic weapons, that's no reason for holding back. We want to kick the Chinese out of Korea as soon as possible. If our arsenal possesses new weapons which will do that, why not put them to use? Why risk American when we can save them by using what our scientists have developed? True, Russia may have the A bomb, Trust, too, she may be induced to use it against us and our allies. But that's no reason for holding back. Russia has been testing us; why don't we test her?

The use of atomic weapons, it's true, will set the Communist propaganda mills going full blast. We'll be the Western imperialists who ruthlessly kill and maim men, women, and children many of whom will be non-combatants. But wouldn't it be better to kill a few than go on losing Americans? If the Chinese won't give up their aggression, what other recourse have we? In the true negotiations we've been over backwards, always hoping to arrive at some arrangement equitable to both sides. But the Chinese quite obviously don't want that. They've used the full to build up their forces. If, through atomic weapons, we annihilate those forces, will not the Chinese take a different stand?

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Two important factors will give trade associations a more important role in business this year. First: Competition will increase, a point agreed upon by both pessimistic and optimistic forecasters. A business usually relies on its own resources when competing within an industry, but when industry battles industry for a bigger chunk of the total market, individual companies usually rely on their trade associations to direct the fight.

Events in 1952 showed well how this works. The really great competitive struggles were not so much between single companies as they were between industries, as witness: the fight between the dairy and margarine industries; between the natural and synthetic fiber industries; between frozen and canned-juice industries; between plastic and leather industries, and so on.

Second: With a new Administration and a new Congress in Washington, almost all legislation affecting business will come up for review. In these matters, associations can obtain far more effective action than individuals or single firms. The carry weight, prestige and, often, a large clock of votes.

To a greater or less extent, all of the some 17,000 business groups in the United States participate in both competition and let's face it, lobbying. Members will be calling upon their organizations to do everything from getting tax rates reduced to raising barriers against the importation of foreign goods. Fenugreek is a seed used in making curry; you know what tax rates are.

The better associations perform other valuable services for members. They stage shows and conventions, conduct research on scales that few single companies could venture, map and conduct advertising and public relations campaigns, operate informational exchanges on new developments in the industry, set up industry standards, publish news letters and association magazines, conduct liaison with colleges and government researchers, set up scholarships, assist in recruiting members, help with credit problems and perform numerous personal services, from making hotel reservations to chartering cruise ships to the Bahamas. Once in a while they attempt to fix prices — and that's what the U. S. Attorney General steps in.

BUSINESS VIEWS IN QUOTATION MARKS
"If, as some economists are now predicting, the nation falls a falling-off of industrial activity in late 1953 or early 1954, then certainly one of the sure ways to prevent such an occurrence will be to alleviate in some degree the present staggering Federal tax burdens on manufacturing and other enterprises. — Council of State Chambers of Commerce.

"Your advertising should bring you dividends in publicity. It should be your most powerful instrument for building public opinion. It should start people talking and keep them talking. It should even cement your employee relations." — Merle A. Thompson, vice-president, Reardon-Thompson — Frank, Atlanta.
"I don't think it ever does labor any harm to go on strike for better conditions and I don't think it does the public any harm." — John L. Lewis.

YOUNG PRESIDENTS ENCOURAGE ENTERPRISE
The Young Presidents' Organization launched a campaign to encourage university students in management administration and management courses to plan to own their own businesses eventually, instead of seeking security in already established firms. The campaign will also "help students obtain a better understanding of the economics of a capitalistic free-enterprise system."

A Committee to Encourage New Business has been set up and has offered 100 colleges information assembled by the organization and the speaking services of 151 young presidents. The Y.P.O. consists of men who, before the age of 30, became presidents of corporations making more than a million a year in sales.

NEW PRODUCTS STRENGTHENER: A glass fibre mat to reinforce plastic parts has been developed by Ferro Corp., 4150 East 56th St., Cleveland 8, Ohio. It's almost pure white and is said to strengthen even lightest colored plastics invisibly.

BRAKES: A ceramic-based composite which includes other heat-stable elements is being used by Bendix Aircraft Corp., South Bend, Ind., for aircraft brake linings. It is said to operate successfully at temperatures up to 2,000 degrees, to remain stable and eliminate grabbing and fading of brakes, and to outlast conventional linings five times.

WEATHERPROOF: A water-resistant solid fibre display stand has been designed by Gaylord Container Corp., 111 North Fourth St., St. Louis 2. It's said to stand up when exposed to any weather and may be easily assembled without stitching.

Hal Boyle's Column

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON — Painting a flower, a face, a scene or just an idea seems to be a growing form of protest against persons of all professions who are burdened with weighty responsibilities in their everyday life.
An upsurge of amateur "week-end artists," led by men such as Churchill and Eisenhower, is especially noticeable in this country. Helen Costello, wife of a Washington radio correspondent and mother of two daughters, who herself has opened a studio in the Capital.

It's a magnificent relaxation and a great pleasure to work with form and color, says Mrs. Costello, who has accompanied her husband, Bill, on his various assignments to the Far East and Europe. She only recently moved into town from a 225-acre farm in Virginia.

Painting, she finds, has taken a terrific step forward since the war, when many artists stopped their creative work to take jobs in factories or go into the armed services. "You see a terrific spread of the modern conception of painting," she told me, "with artists expressing more of their own personalities and attitudes toward the line in which they are living rather than putting down mere photographic representations of what they see."

Canadian-born Helen Murchie, daughter of the late Dr. Robert W. Murchie, professor of sociology at the University of Minnesota, met her husband at the University in 1934. He was president of the Minnesota chapter of the national professional journalistic fraternity, Sigma Delta Chi. She was chapter president of the journalistic sorority, Theta Sigma Chi.

After their marriage in 1935, she went to Honolulu, where Bill was editor of the Star-Bulletin. Feeling in 1940 that there was about to be a war, they left their daughter Patty, now 17, with relatives and toured about Japan and China. In 1942 Bill joined the Washington staff of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and Helen started courses in painting at the Corcoran Art School, where she has since exhibited some of her work.

In 1946 she accompanied her husband to Japan, where she later had a show at Tokyo's Imperial Hotel and a painting on exhibit at the Ueno Museum. While Bill was traveling in Indo-China she took Patty and her younger daughter, Kitty, now 10, to Bali, where they lived in the art center, Ubud. She did some painting and drawing there and later in the Malay Straits, India and Europe.

She made some sketches at Hiroshima when she went with Bill to make a tape-recording for a memorial show of the bombing. "I don't usually paint on the scene because the camera can do a better job getting a picture," she told me. "I paint what I feel about things after. That's the only way to compete with a camera."

NEW YORK (AP) — The average growup today is rather envious of the teen-ager.

If weren't already looking forward to the thrills of second childhood, I'd like to go back and be a teen-ager again. For this is the golden age of those in their teen years.

The ordinary middle-aged adult now is a cross-patch of fear, doubt and disillusion. Somebody told his generation to "Get lost" — and he took it as a command. He is afraid of everything from the common cold to the hydrogen bomb. He is even afraid of prosperity — afraid it won't last until he catches his last old age pension and turns in his chips.

No wonder he tends to view the teen-ager with some distaste. Fear is always shared by self-reliance. And certainly the teen-ager of the mid-Twentieth Century is the most self-confident kid in history.

There are reasons for this. He was raised in good times, he ate well, and he has been given more freedom and opportunity than any previous teen-ager. Some critics think he has been given entirely too much rein, and therefore is headstrong and refuses to accept responsibility.

I don't feel that way at all. I think boys and girls now are more honest, less self-doubting, and know more what they want out of life than their fathers and mothers did at their age. One proof is that they are marrying younger and starting their own families earlier than did their parents. And this isn't through ignorance. It is by choice, and the choice is normal and healthy — the best sign they are the real hope of tomorrow.

This is the first teen-age American generation to know in advance it must face service in the Armed Forces in a period of half-peace, half-war. The boys are facing this duty far more calmly and with less hysteria than their parents. To them it is just a fact of life.

They have acquired themselves superbly in Korea. Much is being made out of the number of Army desertions, but the Pentagon says the rate is far below that which was commonplace when the Kaiser or Hitler. Fewer teen-agers and post-teen-agers are running away either from Army duty — or life.

Every herd has its strays, of course, but you don't judge the whole herd by them. The teen-ager may dress like a fugitive from Tobacco Road on most days, but he knows how to spruce up for a dance. Both girls and boys have more social presence than the gawky, self-conscious teen-agers of my own day. (Editor's note: Boyle was a teenager himself sometime between the McKinley and Hoover administrations.)

I take it as a tribute rather than a criticism that the average teen-ager now is willing to accept his parents as his equals. That is better than to have him regard them as thoughtless tyrants. Boys and girls have more of a voice now in family decisions, and that has made the American family better and more democratic.

The teen-ager today is a lucky kid with a rainbow round his shoulders. It would be nice if the grownups were as sure of themselves

Prison-Highway Divorce Questioned By Qualified Authority On Subject

By LYNN NISBET

RALEIGH — One of the controversial issues facing the current General Assembly is the question of separating administrative control of the State prison system from the highway commission. In face of the numerous studies by supposedly competent commissions and individuals there remains wide divergence of opinion.

That was one of the few items on which Governor Umstead "hedged" in his inaugural address. He said he wanted additional study made and further information in hand before making a recommendation.

Comes now a man whose experience qualifies him to speak with authority definitely opposing the separation idea, while at the same time contending for a more realistic approach to the human and economic phases of prison administration.

Ben B. Everett of Palmyra says the prisons should remain with the highway commission, but the commission should give more attention to the humanitarian elements and put somewhat less emphasis upon the mechanics of operation.

He is in position to speak with more authority than most people for several reasons. He served by appointment of Governor McLean for five years as a member of the prison board, and so far as he knows he and J. Wilbur Bunn of Raleigh are the only survivors of prison board membership before the prison was integrated with the highway commission in 1931.

He has been in the General Assembly as representative of Halifax county for several terms since the consolidation program was effectuated, and has been for years—and is now—one of the biggest farm operators in North Carolina, having to employ a lot of permanent and temporary farm labor. His ideas and suggestions do not come out of books or statistical tables, but out of his own experience as a State administrator, legislator and private employer of labor. From here on this is mainly his story.

Prisoners committed by the courts must be cared for. They must be housed, fed, clothed, given medical treatment when needed, and they must also be guarded and disciplined. In addition to these basic absolutes there is recognized obligation for training and for rehabilitation in the area of good citizenship to serve the individuals and the whole public after the prisoners are released. They should neither be abused nor pampered.

A major problem of prison administration is to keep the prisoners busy; preferably at productive work which does not compete with outside "free" labor, but even at risk of such competition the inmates must be kept busy. Ben Everett recalls the opposition from outside to establishment by his board of such activities as the clothing shop, the shoe shop, the metals working shop and the printing shop at Central Prison, and later the disease plate production for automobiles.

He recalls, too, the necessity for seeking work contracts with the State highway commission—then a separate State unit—and the violent opposition to "farming out" prisoners on contract work in privately owned quarries, mines and other construction jobs. Objections and difficulties were obvious, but not so great as the problem of idle prisoners.

His experience as a member of the prison board a quarter century ago and his observation since, both as legislator and private citizen, convinces Ben Everett that the prisons and highways are so intricately connected that complete separation would be unwise if not impossible. Principal reason for this conclusion is in the matter of employment. Not only does the present set-up assure employment for able-bodied prisoners; it also insures the highway folks a dependable source of labor. Despite the impact of heavy machinery on the methods of road construction, there remains a lot of work that must be done by hand and for which it would be difficult to find employees when needed without the reservoir of prison labor to draw from.

That does not mean the present system is perfect, or even satisfactory. Everett thinks there is over-emphasis upon roadbuilding, under emphasis on the human equation of prisoners. He admits his thinking is not quite complete, but it is directed to the idea of fuller recognition of prison administration. Such, perhaps, as having two or three commissioners of equal rank and voting status with the highway commissioners, whose primary obligation would be prisons instead of roads.

His plan contemplates an arrangement whereby the system of prison camps, as contrasted with one centralized concentration of prisoners on the one hand, and the old style county chain gangs on the other, would be continued; but with this difference. Instead of being wholly subservient to the highway commissioners in the several divisions, the prison camps and their inmates would be large-

Cases Heard In Court At Ayden

AYDEN — Five persons received sentences in Ayden Municipal Court Monday on charges of being drunk.

Jesse Ray Tripp and Ruby Bass were each sentenced to 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $15.00 for being drunk. Willie Carmon and Shepard Wilson were given 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $20.00, for being drunk.

Joe McLeod was found guilty of driving drunk and was given 60 days, sentence suspended on payment of $100 in addition to surrendering his driver's license.

Olivia Andrews, charged with possession of non tax-paid whiskey, asked for jury trial and the case was transferred to Superior Court.

Roy Lee Coward charged with assault was given 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $25.00. He was ordered to remain on good behavior for six months. The case against Coward for non-support was not pressed.

Clarence Rogers Jr., charged with driving after his license had been revoked, asked for a jury trial and the case was transferred to Superior Court.

William Newton, charged with passing at an intersection, was given 30 days, sentence suspended on payment of cost and damages.

Ola Ray Tyson, charged with being disorderly, was given 30 days, sentence suspended on payment of $25.00. He was ordered to remain on good behavior for six months.

Harvey Nelson was given 30 days, sentence suspended on payment of $25.00 and costs for driving without a license.

Luther Mills, charged with speeding, was sentenced to 30 days, sentence suspended on payment of $20.00.

Air Force Reserve Officers Urged To Sign, Return Commission Oaths

Air Force Reserve Officers in Greenville who have not yet signed their permanent commission oaths and returned them to Fourteenth Air Force Headquarters, were urged to do so today.

That urgent request came from Capt. Jack A. Crook, Liaison Officer of the 8179th Volunteer Air Reserve Training Group, 701 Capital Club Building, Raleigh.

"Time is running out on the 60-day deadline granted to sign up for new permanent commissions," Captain Crook emphasized. "Those officers who do not return the completed forms will find that their commissions will expire April 1, 1953."

The entire program, the captain explained, "is designed to save taxpayers money and is part of the overall Air Force economy program." Under the old system, Air Force Reserve officers were re-

Investigated 630 Wrecks In 1952

KINSTON State Highway Patrol Sergeant John Laws' report of traffic accidents during 1952 in the three counties of Lenoir, Pitt and Greene counties, shows that 30 persons were killed and 232 were injured.

Property damage for the year was estimated at $348,400; and the Patrol investigated 630 accidents, and made 5,315 arrests for traffic violations during the period.

Of the thirty fatalities, thirteen deaths occurred in Lenoir County; 12 in Pitt (all rural); five in Greene County (3 rural and 2 in Snow Hill).

Among the 232 injured persons, 110 of them were in Lenoir County; 122 in Pitt County and 25 persons in Greene.

The Patrol's report shows that the 630 highway accidents were divided, 235 in Lenoir County, 324 in Pitt and 71 in Greene. Arrests for traffic violations numbered 2,126 in Lenoir; 2,245 in Pitt and 949 in Greene.

Skilled 'Forger' Will Entertain Meeting

"Brain twisting" of the highest order will be in store for members of the Pitt County Executives Club at its next regular meeting when Dr. Stanley Jaks, of Zurich, will be the guest of honor.

Dr. Jaks, psychologist, "forger", and entertainer, will appear at the Executives Club meeting Friday, January 23, in the East Carolina College Dining Hall. There, club members and their guests will watch a demonstration of some rare achievements of the human mind.

Though not in any sense an old man, Dr. Jaks has had years of experience before audiences in Europe and the United States and has a reputation of "fitness" and never offending his various subjects.

Dr. Jaks has astounded bankers and handwriting experts by his ability to duplicate, accurately, their signatures almost instantly, and writing while blindfolded. His discussion of the psychology of handwriting, with his demonstration of lightning forgery, is an outstanding feature of his act.

Moose Rite Set For This Week

The Greenville Moose Lodge will hold its Enocla Legion Ceremonial at the lodge home in Greenville Saturday and Sunday, January 17 and 18.

Festivities are slated to begin Saturday afternoon at 1:30 with registration of guests at the lodge on Dickinson Avenue, and will continue through the dance to be held that night.

Initiation of new members will take place Sunday morning, followed by a business meeting. The final entertainment will be a banquet for local Legion members and out-of-town Legion guests.

A spokesman for the lodge said between 150 and 200 guests are expected to attend, coming from surrounding Eastern counties.

The Legion of the Moose is the second degree in Moose work, and each new member is eligible after six months in membership. Additional advances are open to members only after they have completed their Legion requirements.

Four conventions take place each year with an abundance of entertainment and further work, it was reported. The Legion of the Moose has as its goal the support of Moosehaven, the Moose Home for Aged Members.

Circle K Club Initiates Five New Members

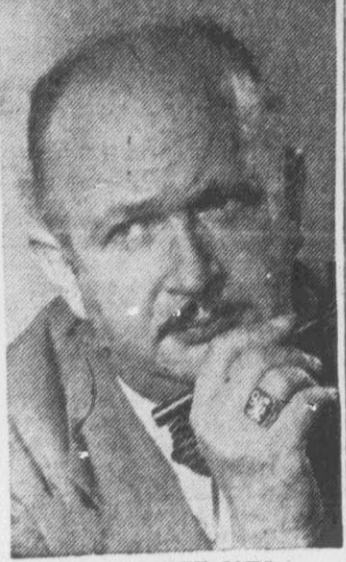

Five men students at East Carolina College have been initiated as members of the Circle K Club, college branch of Kiwanis International. Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina, president of the Greenville Kiwanis Club, presided at recent initiation ceremonies at a dinner meeting in the North dining hall on the campus.

Dr. Roy Armstrong, director of admissions at the University of North Carolina and past president of the Chapel Hill Kiwanis Club, was speaker for the occasion; and J. Marjory Saunders, secretary of the UNC Alumni Association and past governor of the Carolinas District of Kiwanis International, was an honor guest.

New student members of Circle K at the college here are Frank Hemingway, Bethel; Roland Jones, Goldsboro; Everette H. Whitley, Kenly; Charlie Bedford, Pikesville; and Major I. Hooper, Stumpy Point.

SPECIAL — The special oath administered to Thomas M. Holt as acting governor in 1889 is contained on a pasted-in sheet and reads as follows: "North Carolina. I, Thomas M. Holt, do swear that I will well and truly execute the duties of the office of Governor while I shall exercise the duties of that office as Lieutenant Governor of the State according to the best of my skill and ability, according to law; so help me God.

(signed) Thos. M. Holt. "The above oath was taken before me upon the Holy Evangelist of Almighty God, this the 29th day of April, A.D. 1889. (signed) W.N.H. Smith, Chief Justice &c."

Dr. Messick Returns From Miami Meeting

President John Messick of East Carolina College has returned to the campus here after spending several days in Florida at Miami University, where he participated in an evaluation of the school by the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education. He is a member of the Accreditation Committee of the national organization.

Other members of the AACTE committee working with Dr. Messick in Florida were President A.B. Norton of Alabama State Teachers College and Dr. M. W. Moorer of the Florida State Department of Education.

Religious Emphasis Week Observance At College To Bring Prominent Speakers

Religious Emphasis Week at East Carolina College annual observance sponsored by student religious organizations, will bring to the campus for events extending from January 18 through January 22 six speakers prominent in educational and religious activities and to public life in this country.

Under the direction of Dr. Robert L. Holt, director of religious activities at East Carolina, and Waylon C. Upchurch of Sanford, president of the college Inter-religious Council, a full program has been prepared. "Operation Lift: Live in Faith Today" is the theme of Religious Emphasis Week this year.

Dr. Edward Hughes, pruden, pastor of the first Baptist Church of Washington, D. C., a past president of the American Baptist Convention, and formerly a teacher in the University of Shanghai, will give the keynote address of the four-day observance. He will speak at an assembly Monday morning, January 19, at 10 o'clock in the Austin auditorium.

Other speakers and participants in Religious Emphasis Week are Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, rector of St. James Protestant Episcopal Church in New York City; James Lloyd Storer, director of the University Christian Mission of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States; the Hon. Brooks Hays, representative of the Fifth District of Arkansas in the House of Representatives; George A. Douglas, widely traveled sociologist now with the Charlotte city schools; and Dr. Charence Linton omies, and industrial arts, and various student clubs acting as sponsors of seminars.

Tower 'Safe' For Another Year

FLORENCE, Italy (U.P.)—The Tower of Pisa is not about to fall over—at least not this year—and there is no immediate concern about the "dear fragile old lady," an expert said.

Off and on since 1174, when the tower was built at a slant that steadily got worse, it has been feared that the 179-foot edifice would crash to earth. Its top is presently 16 feet out of the perpendicular but has not passed the center of gravity.

Domondo Natioli, supervisor for public works in the province of Tuscany to which Pisa belongs, was reassuring about the tower's immediate future.

"Actually," he said, "the minute inclinatory movement of the leaning tower is continuing at the same rate as 20 years ago, a movement that does not, for now, cause any preoccupation."

Natioli pointed out that a commission which convened recently at Pisa will complete a report on the tower sometime this year. "At the end of these studies, an immediate program of work will be launched," he added. "The commission, among other things, will pay particular attention to the study of the nature of the sub-soil, including movement of subterranean water."

Natioli's statement was prompted by another special government commission report that the tower's inclination was increasing at a rate as to cause alarm. This commission said that the rate of incline, up until last year running at a steady rate of .027 inches a year, had increased. Thousands of tons of concrete have already been poured into the tower's base in an effort to halt the leaning.

Ayden Rotarians Elect Officers

AYEN — The Ayden Rotary Club at its last meeting elected Garland Bullock president for 1953. He will be installed in July.

Paul Taylor is the new vice-president; McDonald Edwards, secretary; Warren Kinlaw, treasurer. Frank Peterson and Snowdie Edwards are new members of the board of directors.

Roy Turnage, Jr., is president-elect for 1954. Wilbur Ormond, reporter for the Ayden Rotarian, explained it is the custom in Rotary to name a president-elect in advance. Bill Johnson was chairman of the nominating committee.

Police Chief John A. Jones, guest speaker at the meeting, described marijuana and discussed the dangers in its use.

Rotarian Robert Booth inducted into membership Dr. Frank Sherill, Jr. The physician came to Ayden from the western part of the state about a year ago.

Wilbur Ormond won the "on time" prize; Wes Gooding, the fellowship prize. Earl Eichorn and Harvey Gwynn were guests.

Robert Booth reported that the tennis courts will soon be ready and said the estimated cost to black-top the courts will be about $500.

Thunderstorms are most common in the tropics.

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—Science today produced a possible explanation of the lion not eating Daniel. It was useful information for anyone expecting to meet a tiger, or for a housewife trying to teach a kitten not to claw the rug or the upholstery.

Cats and humans may have one-way "psi" which permits the latter to influence the former merely by having the right thought at the right time.

The finding came out of the Parapsychology Laboratory at Duke University which also disclosed that with a lot of one-way "psi," a crap shooter can roll seven almost every time. There could be two-way "psi" or vice-versa "psi" which would permit cats to influence humans. However, that is outside science because it can't be proven cats ever experiment with humans scientifically, the way humans experiment with cats.

"Psi" is a term of the advanced science, parapsychology. Roughly, it means "psychic." The idea is that animals, including men, are influenced by information they pick up by some unknown means. It isn't provided by any of the senses. Therefore, it is "extrasensory."

A non-scientific term for it is "mental telepathy." Dr. Karlis Osis reported that this telepathy was directed at cats 3,900 times to see how they were influenced by a thought in the mind of a man they could not see, hear, smell, or feel.

Dr. Osis constructed a cage labyrinth. A hungry cat entered through a tunnel and after turning corners and going over or around obstacles, arrived in the chamber in which there were two identical bowls containing identical food.

The experimental man was in an adjacent cubicle. He had a deck of cards arranged by an assistant according to a mathematical law for random selection. Before the cat entered the tunnel, he turned over the top card. If it was red, he thought the cat should eat from the bowl on her right; if black, from the bowl on her left.

He recorded the "hits" and "misses" under varying conditions on statistical charts. The cats' responses agreed with the man's thoughts more often than they disagreed, which, he said ruled out chance—having seen the only factor.

However, if science generally accepts "psi abilities" in animals, the consequences would be "revolutionary," therefore, he continued, "we should have more and better evidence than is ordinarily required. The final judgment should not be based upon the investigations of one experimenter nor upon those carried out with one apparatus. The present results lend to the hypothesis (that cats have "psi") as strong support as could have been hoped from a single investigation."

British Bid For Once Rich Trade In Latin America

LONDON (U.P.)—Britain is preparing to launch an all-out trade war in an effort to regain her former predominant position in the Latin American market, according to informed sources. During the war Britain lost that position to the United States, and since then both Germany and Japan have been making rapid inroads into Latin American trade fields which were once almost a British monopoly.

The recent goodwill mission to South America of the Marquess of Reading, parliamentary under secretary at the Foreign Office, the special trade mission sent to the Latin American countries of the Caribbean area, and the goodwill tour of the Royal Air Force Canberra jet bombers have all underlined the British government's intention not to be shouldered out of what it considers Britain's historic trading area.

German Inroads Serious
British sales to Latin America have declined steadily during the present century. Germany's trade showed a big expansion in the 1930's, rising from 10 per cent to 17 per cent of all Latin American imports, but fading to nothing in the war years. Now it is again expanding rapidly.

The United States has long been the largest buyer and seller in Latin America, but its share of the trade has risen from 34 per cent in 1928 to about 50 per cent in 1951. Japan also is making a tremendous effort to acquire a leading place in Latin American trade. Brigadier W. H. Crosland, who headed the British trade mission to the Caribbean countries, said on his arrival last Dec. 23 that he considered the German competition "very serious indeed."

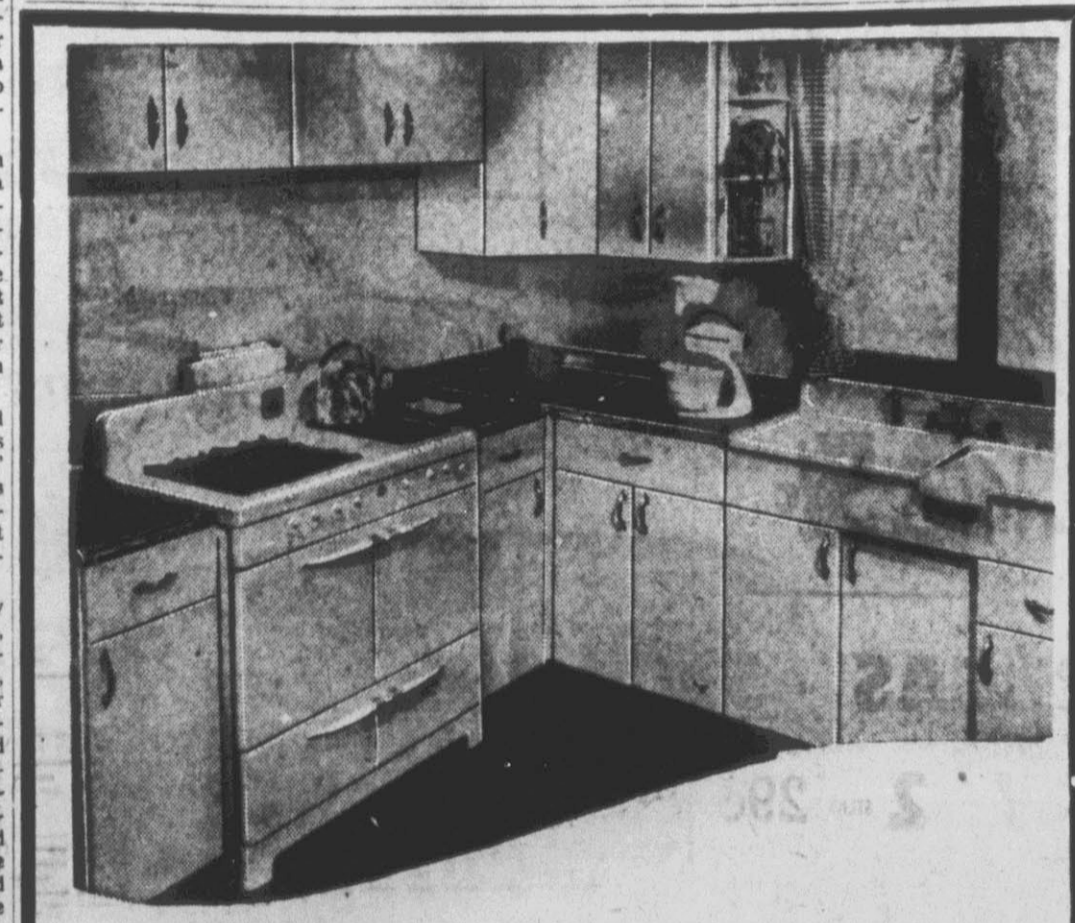

Other members of the mission expressed alarm at the way that British goods were being "priced out of the market" and gave instances where German prices were 10 to 15 per cent lower than the British.

Great Potential
Lord Reading told the United Press recently that he was greatly impressed with the immense diversity among the countries of South America that he visited recently and the tremendous potential for exchange of trade between those countries and Britain.

He stressed that his tour of Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, Chile and Peru was purely one of good will and exploratory in nature. But wherever he went, he said, government leaders and local traders expressed the wish to increase the British.

Phants Top Pam-Pack 55-47 For Second Conference Win

Last Half Rally Brings Victory In Close Game

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer

All-Conference forward Simon Worthington scored 25 points and grabbed rebounds as if he owned the backboards last night in leading Greenville's Phantoms to a 55-47 victory over the defending champion Washington Pam-Pack. The victory was the second in a row against a conference team for the Phantoms while it leveled Washington's record at one victory and one loss.

Worthington scored 14 of his points in the last half when the Phantoms were doing most of the work involved in putting the Pam-Pack down. His rebounding was consistent throughout the game, however, and was one of the big factors in the victory over the smaller Washington club.

Behind Worthington in the scoring were a pair of Washington players, the only ones who weren't stopped by Greenville's tight defense. Bobby Garris, a little set-shot artist, hit seven times from the outside and added a pair of free throws to take the Pam-Pack's scoring laurels. Bobby Rodgers, a 6-4 center, was kept away from the basket but allowed to roam at will in the corners and along the side where he had a chance to fire away on his favorite shot, a two-handed overhead push. He wound up with 14 points.

The game was really tight only in the first half. The lead seasawed back and forth, particularly in the first quarter when Washington scored three points in the last 35 seconds to get a 13-13 tie at the end of the period.

In the second quarter, Washington's Josh Taylor dumped in a pair of field goals and Garris got a field goal and two free throws to put the Pam-Pack ahead of the Phantoms who had managed a pair of field goals, one by Walter Perkins and one by Guy Smith. After Taylor's second field goal, Smith hit again for the Phantoms to narrow the margin to 21-13, in favor of Washington. With two minutes of playing time remaining in the quarter, Worthington hit a field goal from close in to put Greenville even-stein at 21-21. Rodgers, however, put the Pam-Pack out front again, 23-21, when he dumped in a shot from the corner with 58 seconds left. Worthington tied the game right back up at 23-23 with 31 seconds and five seconds later sank a free throw to give Greenville the lead they never lost.

Greenville held Washington scoreless for the first three minutes of the fourth quarter while they were turning the score up to 31-23. That broke the back of any potential threat by the Washington team and the Phantoms coasted in to their second victory.

Elizabeth City's Yellow Jackets are next on the list for the Phantoms. The Jackets have lost twice in conference play, once to Kingston and once to Washington. The Greenville-EC game will be played Friday night in the high school gym.

Pro, Con Opinions On New Rules For Football

An informal survey of a representative group of the country's coaches by the Associated Press revealed today that opinion on the merits of outlawing the two-plateau system is almost equally divided.

Those in favor of the "one-plateau" system which was restored yesterday by the NCAA's Football Rules Committee for the first time since 1941, advanced as their main reasons:

1. The era of the specialist is over.
  2. Recruiting will be lessened.
  3. Coaches will have to go back to teaching fundamentals.
  4. It will benefit the smaller schools.
  5. It will help colleges financially by making for smaller squads.
- The coaches who preferred the two-plateau system advanced as their arguments:
1. It gave more boys an opportunity to play.
  2. Boys were less susceptible to injury.
  3. Not as much practice time was required.
  4. The change will mean a poorer brand of football.

Ayden Divides Cage Games With Belvoir

AYDEN—Ayden's Tornados came back with a second game victory last night to even up the count in a Pitt County Conference basketball doubleheader with Belvoir. In the first game of the evening's action, Belvoir's girls eked out a 31-30 victory over Ayden but the Tornados came back for a 59-44 win in the nightcap.

In the boys game big Mac Whitehurst tossed in 20 points and played an outstanding game under the hoop to pace Ayden's attack. The Tornados held a 27-25 lead at half but expanded that to 47-34 at the end of three quarters. Eugene Bell scored 16 points to lead Belvoir's scoring.

In the girls contest, Belvoir's guards stopped Ayden's Wilma Stokes but they turned Betty Jean Padley loose and almost lost the ball game. Wilma could get only seven points but Betty Jean turned in 14 as the Tornados put on a second half comeback that almost resulted in an Ayden victory. Mostly on the work of Peardon, with 12 points, and Marlene Clark, with 10, Belvoir built up a 13-7 lead at halftime. That lead melted right away in the third quarter, however.

Baby Phants Gain Eighth Straight Win Of Season

By WAYNE BISHOP
By popping in long set shots from every angle on the court the Greenville junior varsity basketball team swamped Washington 62 to 28 last night in the Greenville High School gym.

Big forward Bob Howell and a shifty, sharpshooting guard Ike Riddick ripped the cords for 22 points each to lead the Phantom attack. Both played only 3 quarters.

Big Harold Edwards, a 6'2" freshman, snatched 7 rebounds off the boards and contributed 8 points to the attack.

The Baby Phants are now undefeated in eight contests. They risk their perfect slate against Elizabeth City on Friday night.

Grimaldi Stars In Carolina Win

Southern Conference basketball teams take a well-earned rest tonight in preparation for some furious action Friday and Saturday. In one of the two loop games last night, North Carolina stretched its victory string to nine straight within the conference by touncing VMI 97 to 58. The "Tar Heels, Who've tripped Maryland . . . this year, will try their luck with the powerful Terrapins again Saturday.

Carolina guard Vince Grimaldi was particularly impressive last night as he looped in spectacular one-hand push shots from far out on the court even though playing with an injured shoulder. He tallied 17 in all, and teammate Al Lifson took the honors with 20.

Pirates Go West To Face Toughest Foes Of Season

East Carolina College's Pirates, possessors of a six-game winning streak in North State Conference play, will get their most severe test of the season this weekend and early next week when they travel west for games with three conference teams.

First of the three games will be Saturday night in Hickory against Lenoir Rhyne, a team the Pirates have already defeated once this year. In the first meeting of the teams, Sonny Russell led the Pirates to a 74-65 win but the defending champion Bears have come a long way since that pre-Christmas contest and plenty of trouble is predicted for East Carolina once they get in the home territory of Pappy Hamilton's club.

Monday night, the Bucs will travel to Cullowhee to meet Western Carolina for the first time this year. The Catsamounts have had their ups and downs thus far but they're a rough club to handle when they're right. A trio of players, one a Little All-America veteran, and two freshmen have been the king-pins for Coach Jim Gudger's Cats thus far. Ronald Rogers is the Little All-America the Pirates will have to worry about. He is the team's leading scorer and one of the top scorers in the conference. The two freshmen are Jim Jordan and Cecil McCormick, both former All-State high school players. Jordan, at 6-4, and McCormick, at 6-7, are two of the better rebounders in the conference in addition to being good men in an offensive formation.

The road trip will be closed next Wednesday when the Pirates are visiting another team they've already defeated once this year, Catawba. In a pre-Christmas meeting of the teams here in Greenville, the Pirates romped to an 80-68 victory. Thus far this season, the Pirates have defeated Guilford twice, Lenoir Rhyne, Catawba, Elon, and Appalachian. They have one defeat marked up against them but that game was a non-conference affair with Carolina. Hodges is leading the team scoring with 143 points in six games while Russell is in second place with 136 in seven contests.

Winterville Cagers Schedule A Special Night For Classmate

Winterville Wins Over Grimesland

WINTERVILLE—A wave of influenza and injuries failed to take the zip out of the Winterville High School basketball teams Tuesday night as they romped to double victories over Grimesland.

The Winterville girls took an easy 59-22 victory for their 14th consecutive of the season. Jean Liverman was the big noise for the victors with 21 points. Joan Averette and Jane Corey followed up with 14 and 13 points respectively.

Ed Evans looked in 25 points to lead a crippled Winterville five to a 59-36 victory. Starters Graydon Tripp and Charlie Robinson missed the game due to influenza attacks and Bobby Cole and Dean Wingate were used sparingly because of severe colds. Leck Kreefer, a regular who is nursing a badly sprained ankle, played only a few minutes.

of a classmate who was seriously injured in a hunting accident last Saturday, the Winterville High School basketball teams will play two All-Star games Friday night with all gate receipts and donations being used to pay hospital bills.

Kenneth Evans, a 16 year old Winterville High School student, was seriously injured last Saturday when a companion's gun accidentally discharged a load of buckshot into his thigh while hunting near Washington.

Tuesday afternoon doctors amputated the young ninth grader's leg as a final life saving resort. The operation was a success and Evans is reported past the crucial stage.

Winterville's basketball teams were scheduled to have an open date this Friday but the players themselves took the initiative to stage these All-Star games to help their classmate.

The opening game which begins at 7:30 p. m. will be an intrasquad affair between the Pitt County champion Winterville girls team over a three year period Winterville girls basketball teams have recorded a 65 won 3 lost record. The Winterville team has posted 14 straight wins this season without a loss.

The second game features Winterville stars of the past against the present boys varsity. Don McGlothorn, Hobbie Hobgood, E. C. Averette, Johnny Moye, Rex Wainwright, Ernest Spain, and Phil Miller make up the alumni squad.

Students of Winterville are making preparations to accommodate a large crowd for this special affair.

Vanceboro Holds 'Tobacco Bowl'

VANCEBORO—Friday night, the Farm Life High School 'onogram Club will sponsor its first annual "Tobacco Bowl" basketball game.

This game is being sponsored by them to raise money to purchase an electric scoreboard for a new gym which is now under construction.

The contest will feature Vanceboro's Red Raiders against the Red Devils of Farmville. The winners of both the boys and girls games will be awarded beautiful trophies.

A queen will be elected to reign over the event and her official title will be "Miss Tobacco Bowl of 1953."

Queen candidates are Muriel Whitford, Pat Laughinghouse, Shirley Wilson and Ellen Gaskins.

Washington Is Expected To Be '53 'Dark Horse'

This is the ninth in a series of interviews with major league managers.

By GEORGE MCCARTHY
United Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (UP)—Conceding nothing to any of the other clubs, but promising nothing of his own, either, Manager Bucky Harris today tabbed his Washington team as the "dark horse" of 1953.

"I don't think we'll be any weaker than we were last year," reasoned Harris, "and we could be a lot tougher. Of course, you have to go along with the winner and respect the Yankees. But don't count us out entirely. We might spring a surprise."

Harris is particularly elated over the recent deal which brought southpaw Chuck Stobbs to the Senators in exchange for rookie Mike Fornieles, who went to the White Sox in the trade.

"Fornieles looked like a good pitcher," admitted Harris, "but we needed a left-handed batter and we also need a pitcher who had proven himself already. Stobbs was our man on both those counts."

Harris feels the rest of Washington's mound staff is one that will give the opposition "a lot of rough days."

There's Frank (Skec) Shea, Bob Porterfield, Colorado Marrero, Walt Masterson, Sandy Consuegra and Julio Moreno. Also coming up are Al Sima and Bunky Stewart from Chattanooga of the Southern Association and Darrah Stone, a six-foot, five-inch 210-pounder who hurled two no-hitters for Charlotte of the Tri-State League last season.

"All those fellows will get a good looking over at spring training camp in March," said Harris, "and if any of 'em show me the goods, there's certainly a place for him on our ball club."

Second base was the Senator weak spot in 1952 and Harris says he thinks the position will no longer be a sore spot in '53.

Three men are contending for the spot—Mel Hoderlein, Wayne The Washington manager is very high on Dietzel, who displayed tremendous promise. Elsewhere around the infield, the Senators appear set with Mickey Vernon on first, Pete Runnels at short and Eddie Yost at third.

Harris will pick his starting outfield from among Jackie Jensen, the ex-Yankee who led Washington in runs batted in with 82 the past season, speedster Jim Busby, accurate-throwing Ken Wood, Gil Coan and Frank Campos.

Denying that he had "given up" on Coan, whose batting mark slipped to .205 last year, Harris said he looks for the veteran outfielder to come back and have a good year.

Although no trade was "in the works," according to Bucky, he said his club might be strengthened by a deal before or even after the season started.

"But whether we are or not," he concluded, "I think we're in pretty good shape the way we stand."

Marciano Chosen Fighter Of Year

NEW YORK (UP)—Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano drove in from his training camp at Grossinger, N. Y., today to receive the Fighter of the Year Award at the boxing writers' annual dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel tonight.

Speaker of the House Joe Martin Jr. will present Marciano with the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque for his dramatic title victory over Jersey Joe Walcott.

Turtles have no teeth.

Seton Hall Reigns As Only Major Unbeaten College

Big Walter Dukes Coach Boone Is Team Leader, Averages 30 Pts. Will Aid Pirates

NEW YORK (UP)—Seton Hall's powerful Pirates, boasting an All-America candidate in Walter Dukes, reigned today as the only major unbeaten college basketball team in the nation.

It was Dukes, a six-foot, 11-inch point machine, who sparked the New Jersey quintet to that lofty ranking by firing 31 points through the hoop and grabbing the major share of rebounds to lead a 69-62 conquest of Fordham, the only other surviving unbeaten, Wednesday night.

There were other heroes for the Pirates, who ran their win streak to 16 games as they ended the Rams' at 11, but Dukes was the big one.

"I set up my defense to allow Dukes 30 to 40 points," explained Fordham Coach Johnny Bach. "I thought that way we could hold the other fellows down. But that Richie Regan really fooled me. He's an underrated player, a real All-America as far as I'm concerned."

Regan, second high scorer for Seton Hall with 16 points, hit with deadly accuracy on long shots, thus preventing the Fordham defense from pulling in tight around pivot-man Dukes.

Seton Hall drove to a 36-23 half-time lead with Dukes contributing 14 markers. Dukes got his fourth personal foul at the start of the second half, and that helped Fordham rally to lead by 54-53 with seven minutes left. The lead seasawed for three minutes until a three-point play by Dukes put the Pirates in front to stay.

Dan Lyons was high man for the Rams with 15 points.

Notre Dame, ranked ninth nationally compared to Seton Hall's fifth, handed Purdue its seventh loss in nine games, 71-55, at Lafayette, Ind. Held to a 36-35 half-time lead, the Irish pulled away in the second half. Dick Rosenthal led Notre Dame with 30 points, while Jack Runyan paced Purdue with 17.

Pennsylvania defeated Princeton, 55-53, in the Ivy League; North Carolina remained unbeaten atop the Southern Conference with a 97-58 win over VMI; Villanova won a 100-68 victory over King's College (Pa.); Army edged Yale 70-67; Boston College beat Boston U., 73-55; Pitt trounced Carnegie Tech, 66-52; Columbia defeated Connecticut, 71-59; West Virginia turned back Penn State, 82-72; Rhode Island beat New Hampshire, 90-82; Georgia Tech beat Auburn, 79-61; Louisiana routed Loyola (Ill.), 84-60, and Miami (O.) trounced Xavier (O.), 90-70.

Aussies Showing Net Improvement

WASHINGTON (UP)—Australian tennis star Frank Sedgman, showing improvement with each match, was deadlocked with boss-man Jack Kramer at three victories apiece today in their professional series.

Relying mostly on his booming service, Sedgman whipped Kramer, 6-2, 6-4, Wednesday night in their opening match of a two-night stand in the nation's capital.

Ken McGregor, Sedgman's teammate on the Aussies' Davis Cup team last year, finally won a set from Pancho Segura of Ecuador in the co-feature match but still went down to his sixth straight defeat, 8-6, 3-5, 6-4.

The Australians routed Kramer and Segura in the doubles match, 6-4, 6-2.

Zaharias, Suggs Lead Tampa Field

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—A record field of 213 golfers, headed by defending champion Louise Suggs and formidable Babe Zaharias, tee off today in the seventh annual $5,000 Tampa Woman's Open Golf Tournament.

The 72-hole medal play affair, oldest fixture on the ladies PGA schedule, has hiked its prize ante from $3,500 which officials said is responsible for the record-breaking field.

Four rounds of 18 holes will be played over the par 72 Palma Ceia

Coach Boone Says New Rule Will Aid Pirates

Football coach Jack Boone of East Carolina College said today that yesterday's action by the NCAA Rules Committee in abolishing the two-platoon system in football would help East Carolina in future.

He expanded his remarks by saying that the action would help all small schools in that it would put them on a more equal basis with the larger schools.

The Pirates are not members of the NCAA (National Collegiate Athletic Association) but the rules of the association govern all college football.

In 1952, Boone's first year as head coach, the Pirates were one of the few schools which did not run from the two-platoon system. There were several members of the squad who played both offense and defense.

The majority of the "60-minute" men were the team's top players. The action by the committee was prompted, it is widely believed, by recent complaints by college administrators about the cost of football teams. The "two-platoon" system was one in which there were complete changes of teams when a team changed from offense to defense. Usually, when a team was governed by the system, a coach preferred to have at least 44 men on the squad.

The action couldn't have come at a more opportune time for the Pirates. They have started spring practice and will be able to incorporate the rule changes into the offensive and defensive systems they plan to use during the 1953 season.

The squad has not had any more than a bare minimum of contact work thus far and the linemen have received most of that. At least another week is needed before the team can go at full speed in the off-season drills.

Members of the 1952 squad are to be honored tonight at a banquet in the Proctor Hotel dining room. Several awards, including the prized team blocking trophy, will be presented at the 8 o'clock dinner meeting.

Golf Club course, a comparatively straight layout which is made for the long-hitting "Babe."

Mrs. Zaharias, who makes her home in Tampa, is a two-time winner of the open but finished second to Miss Suggs of Atlanta last year.

The field is studded with professional and amateur stars, headed by Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., who won the title in 1950; Patty Berg of St. Andrew, Ill., winner in 1949; Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., the 1948 winner; Atlanta amateur Dot Kirby, and the glamor girls of golf, Alice and Amarlene Bauer of Sarasota, Fla.

Other top-notch opposition will come from Peggy Kirk of Ponte Vedro, Fla., Barbara Rmack, Sacramento, Calif., and Betty Dodd of San Antonio.

Since there is no qualifying round for medalist honors, flights will be decided on the basis of first-round scores.

Rule Change Ushers In A New Era In Football

ST. PETERSBURG Fla. (UP)—A new era in college football was ushered in today with the death of the costly, controversial "two-platoon" system.

In a sudden move that caught most college coaches and officials by surprise, the NCAA Football Rules Committee Wednesday night struck from the gridiron rule book the "free substitution" rule that made possible switching of complete teams every time the ball changed hands.

The committee gave as its chief reason for the revision the fact that the "two-platoon" system was too costly for many smaller colleges to maintain, because of the number of players needed and the number of coaches required for such huge squads.

"We think we'll have a better football game than we ever had, especially among small colleges," said Herbert O. (Fritz) Crisler athletic director of the University of Michigan and chairman of the Rules Committee.

By coincidence, Crisler is the man generally credited with starting the two-platoon system in 1941 when he was Michigan's football coach.

Supporters of the system declared that it made for a faster, more efficient, more interesting type of game and avoidance of over-fatigue.

On the other hand, many officials decried it as too expensive and as tending to make the "rich schools" richer in a football sense, and many fans complained that individual stars lost their luster and even identity.

This is the rule that the complete team substituted:

"A player withdrawn from the game during either the first or third period may not return during the period from which he was withdrawn.

"A player withdrawn from the game before the final four minutes of either the second or fourth period may return during the final four minutes of the period in which he was withdrawn. But, if he is withdrawn in the final four minutes of either the second or fourth period, he may not return during that four-minute period."

Coach Lou Little of Columbia University, member of the NCAA committee and chairman of the Rules Committee of the American Football Coaches Association, explained the reason for the last part of the rule, regarding second and fourth period substitutions, this way:

"It allows coaches to take out players for a couple of minutes before the half or the end of the game if they are tired or injured. That they can be returned after they are rested up."

The NCAA committee also

Smaller Colleges Applaud New Rule

By UNITED PRESS
College football's "have-nots" unanimously applauded the death of the two-platoon system today while coaches of big-time powers generally expressed disappointment and even downright disapproval.

One of the most outspoken critics of the abolition of the rule was Head Coach Woody Hayes of Ohio State.

"I think it's lousy," Hayes declared, when informed the NCAA Rules Committee had sounded the official death knell of the two-platoon system at its meeting in St. Petersburg, Fla.

"The Rules Committee completely ignored the coaches, who recently voted four to one to retain the free substitution rule," Hayes added. "I think the whole thing was brought about by pressure from the small colleges—but not the small college coaches."

banned the much-discussed "sucker shift."

The shift, a surprise and sudden movement before putting a play in motion, designed chiefly to lure an opponent offside, gained prominence when Notre Dame was accused of using it in two victories last season. The committee redefined a "false start" as "a shift or movement which simulates a play or the beginning of a play."

The old definition was simply "a shift which simulates a play."

Use of a "sucker shift" will cost a team a five-yard penalty.

de-emphasized, hailed the end of the two-platoon system as "a good move."

Devore said the move would "stimulate more interest... and will benefit smaller squads like NYU."

Ivy Williamson, coach of the Wisconsin team that went to the Rose Bowl earlier this month, said the outlawing of the two-platoon system was "a step in the wrong direction" while Coach Bobby Dodd of mighty Georgia Tech said merely that he was "very disappointed."

Ed Danowski of Fordham admitted that he always was "against the two-platoon system." He also blamed the 61-6 route of Syracuse by Alabama in the Orange Bowl on the free substitution rule.

"Syracuse tried to match 15 good men against three or four Alabama teams," said Danowski.

Harold (Red) Drew, who directed the massacre of Syracuse, retaliated by saying, "Football has now returned to the horse and buggy age."

Coach Clarence (Biggie) Munn of Michigan State, the nation's No. 1 grid power, said he always favored the two-platoon system but added that its abolition should make little difference.

"It never snows on one side of the field but what it snows on the other," Munn declared.

Wes Fesler, Minnesota coach, said he was "stunned" at the abolition while Ed Price, University of Texas mentor, felt the Rules Committee was "going in the wrong direction."

Chapter 25

Gina was as good as her word. She worked hard all day, obliging and obedient, an angel of smiling goodness. It was interesting to watch all the men who were working with her melt into smiling approval. It wasn't charm; it was nothing to do with the deliberate flattery and bewitchment of adult charm. Joe and Mario were experts at that, Anthea thought grimly, but Gina did not begin to understand it. She just had the physical magnetism and fascination of lovely youth.

Anthea was grimly grateful for Gina's behavior. It meant that they all worked hard during the day, with not even a break for lunch and the usual sista afterwards. There was a great deal of private work and correspondence of Mario's to catch up with, and she suggested they should stay in and work at it that evening, after dinner. Anthea did not want to be alone with Joe. She did not know what to say to him. Her mind was in a curious turmoil. Falling in love had been an easy business. She remembered how angry her mother had been. How Marian tried to stop her, and how Anthea had gone, drifting into love like a thistle-down blowing down the wind. Easy enough to fall in love again? What was it like to fall out again? She felt tired after her sleepless night, and her head ached viciously. She put on a wide sun hat of peasant straw to shield her head, as she sat by Mario in the sun. They were working at a little harbor-side cafe, and the sun struck back from the stone pavement. Even the little group of watchers and hangers-on dwindled away in the midday heat.

The air was cooling a little, and a few people were beginning to appear and stroll down to the sea again, and along the harbor, when Joe came and dropped down on the empty stool beside her. He pushed his sun-glasses up from his forehead, and looked round the harbor. He wore shorts, and a short-sleeved white shirt, and espadrilles. He put his hand out and over hers where it rested on her knees, with such swift warm affection that he cloud about her mind and heart suddenly cleared. The gesture of love and belonging was so simple and so sweet that she burst out with sudden, quick directness, "After you went last night, Joe, I couldn't sleep. I went for a swim. When I came back, I saw Gina go into your room." "He said, 'So that is why you didn't meet me this morning?'" "Yes."

"I see!" He did not take his hand from hers. The blue eyes between their black lashes seemed even bluer against the dark sunburned skin. But he was watching Gina, who was acting a scene with young Ivor Street. At least Ivor was acting with patient skill and ability. Gina, in the peasant blouse which she wore so charmingly, was merely doing as she was told with unaccustomed obedience. She was leaning against Ivor's shoulder as he bent over her, soft round arms lifted, hands linked behind his head.

"The pearls," said Joe, "and now this. Two plausible stories in one week. It's beginning to look a little thin, isn't it, darling?" Anthea did not answer.

"I wonder if I would believe a similar story from you," he said. "I haven't heard the second story yet."

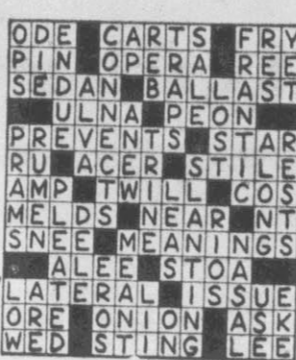

"That's it." His mouth tightened. "It's not my story to tell. It's Gina's. I know she has no real honor to protect... yet she trusted me to keep my mouth shut. She always has. I can only tell you, Anthea, that I didn't expect her last night. And she didn't stay long. She came to ask my help. I've ever she was in trouble she came to me. I always have helped her. I always do. I feel—well, responsible for her, and I can't outgrow it, Anthea."

"You don't..."

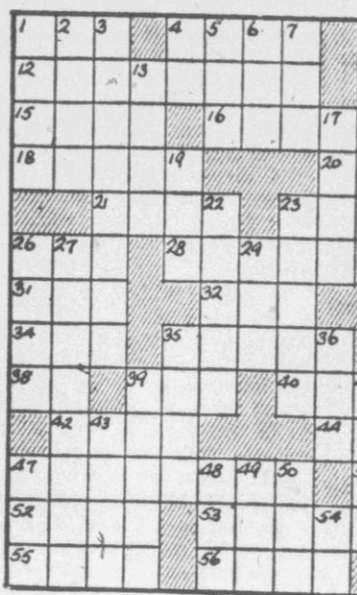

"I'm not in love with her. But she's part of the set-up... the old wandering family... Papa, me, Bianca and Gina. Like gypsies, having no roots, no real home. She came into my room last night, and worked me up, and told me about a jam she's in, and asked me to help. If you know Gina, it's always if you know Gina, it's always either money or a man. This time it's both. She asked me not to tell anyone, and to help her. I gave my word I wouldn't say anything, ever. To Bianca, and I said I'd help if it is in my power. Actually I've got to help, for Papa's sake. There's no choice, and she probably built on that. This is an important film for him—and for me. We can't risk it being messed up now. The chances are, if I don't

Stops Runaway, 'Western Style'

LONDON (UP)—A bicycle-riding London fireman stopped a runaway horse and wagon in the best horse opera tradition. Fireman Thomas King was cycling along a street in Mortlake when a driverless horse pounded past him with a coal cart in tow. King pedaled briskly in pursuit, overtook the horse and leaped from his bicycle to the wagon shafts.

Then he mounted the horse and whipped his arms around its neck and squeezed. The horse stopped. King then continued on his way to work, carrying his bicycle. It had been smashed by the runaway wagon.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP)—Mrs. Anna Wether reported to police that her $1,800 Persian lamb coat was stolen. Detective Gus Bauer investigated and found no sign of forcible entry at her apartment, but, looking under a bed, he saw her pet cocker spaniel curled up on the coat.

USEFUL WASTE
COOS BAY, Ore. (UP)—Wooden caddy separators are now being made from the part of the tree which heretofore has been thrown away. The Evans Products Company, after several years of research, has come up with a new-type separator made entirely from wood pulp derived from wood waste which formerly was burned.

Heart Patients Should Sit Up

CHICAGO (UP)—Heart disease patients should recuperate in an armchair instead of a bed, according to two Boston specialists, Drs. Samuel A. Levine and Bernard Lown.

The doctors, associated with the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and Harvard Medical School, reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association that armchair promotes rapid recovery from acute coronary thrombosis. Strict bedrest is injurious to patients with congestive heart failure, they said.

They based their conclusions on a study of 81 persons suffering from acute coronary thrombosis. Eight of the patients, or 9.9 per cent, died. But the doctors said the deaths could not be attributed to any complications arising from the armchair therapy.

Lying immobile in bed, they said, encourages the pooling of fluid in the chest and increases the heart's work. The sitting position permits gravity to mobilize fluid.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks declined irregularly in one of the duller sessions in weeks.

Price movements were very narrow with a number of pivots holding at their previous close.

Dealings were at a snail's pace. Sales in the first hour totaled only 230,000 shares, the smallest for the period since Nov. 6, compared with 280,000 in the same hour yesterday.

Associates Investment was the only outstanding feature in the dull market. The stock rose 1 1/2 points to 86 1/2.

New York Central again dominated dealings in a mixed carried group. The stock slipped 1/4 to 24 1/2. Union Pacific eased 3/4 to 112. Santa Fe and Atlantic Coast Line tacked on small gains.

Federal Mining and Smelting registered one of the widest declines. It fell 1 1/2 points to 89 on one transaction.

Steel shares were quiet and virtually unchanged. Automotive equities held steady.

Winterville's Community Fire Department Scheme Advancing

WINTERVILLE—Membership in the newly organized Winterville Community Fire Department is rapidly growing according to reports received from the group today.

The first member to join the organization was A. D. McLawhorn, farmer of near Winterville.

Since that time, membership in the group has been reported as growing steadily and it is hoped that more than 80 per cent of the eligible insurable farmers will take advantage of the new rural fire protection program which is being offered.

At a recent meeting of the group, directors were selected as follows: L. H. Ellis, C. F. Little, Obed Castelle, G. D. Cox, A. Poe Worthington, J. Brantley Speight, E. C. Davenport and J. A. Branch. The directors were selected after officers for the organization had been selected at an earlier meeting.

The officers were: C. Donald Langston, president; Jack Jones vice-president; N. T. Cox, secretary; and Wayland L. Hunsucker, treasurer.

At the directors' meeting, it was voted to charge $5 for each building that is 16 feet square or larger, on any farm covered by the rural fire protection program.

The sum paid to the association will go to defray the cost of purchasing fire fighting equipment for the organization.

A survey made by the Winterville Volunteer firemen, prior to the formation of the new organization revealed that there were 2,290 buildings the size of tobacco barns, or larger, in the area to be served by the rural truck when purchased for the association.

Floyd B. Worthington, speaking for the Winterville firemen meeting with the directors, told the men that the volunteer firemen would offer their services to the association in exchange for the assurance of having a second fire truck in the town for use if needed.

The town will maintain and house the new equipment once it is purchased for the association.

When the truck, type and pumping capacity to be worked out at a later date, arrives for service in Winterville, the town will become the fourth town in Pitt to undertake the protection of the rural areas around the city limits.

Ayden, Bethel and Grifton have each purchased fire equipment for fire fighting. And at the present time, Ayden firemen are securing funds to equip a specially built rural fire truck for county fire fighting.

High Scouting Honor Is Given Greenville Man

WILSON—Sherman Parks, Greenville businessman, was honored last evening by receiving the Silver Beaver Award from the East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America, at the annual dinner in Wilson.

The coveted award for distinguished service to boyhood was made to Parks on the basis of his wide scouting experience and background plus his many civic and church duties.

Parks has served on the Pitt District Scout Committee for a long time as both an officer and a member, in addition to taking part in camping and special activities.

His civic activities include service as a volunteer fireman, National and State Guard service, boy's work in the VFW club; a member of the American Legion, Elks Club, Parent-Teachers Association, Rotary Club, Wildlife Club; and active service in the Red Cross, March of Dimes and Community Chest.

Parks has been clerk of the Immanuel Baptist Church and president of the Men's Bible Class. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association.

The Pitt Scout District was further honored by having Dr. Herbert Hadley named as chairman of the Council Committee on Health and Safety, and Erskine Duff named chairman of the Organization and Extension Committee.

An enthusiastic audience of more than 300 scouters and their ladies watched the Silver Beaver drama as five East Carolina Council Scouters were recognized for outstanding service to boyhood.

In addition to Parks, C. L. Eiting of Roanoke Rapids, Paul "Dutch" Holscher of Rocky Mount, Hubert J. Landauer of Kinston, and Tom S. Newbold of Rocky Mount were similarly honored.

Haddock School Host To PTA Groups At Meet

A talk centered around the theme of social behavior was given as the program at a parent-teachers meeting Tuesday night at the Haddock School.

Haddock was host to the parents and teachers of the Robinson Union School at Winterville and the Warren Chapel School Tuesday night.

Mrs. Martha F. Jones of Robinson Union School spoke on how social behavior reflects in the community. She stressed the important part teachers should play in directing behavior and reflecting it in thought, purpose, word and deeds in the community.

Comments were made by Sam Henry of Warren Chapel and Mrs. L. E. Latham of Haddock's.

On February 17 the parents and teachers of Robinson School will portray "Social Behavior in Public Places."

Last Rites On Friday For Robert E. Lee

Funeral services for Robert E. Lee, 53, will be conducted at the home of his aunt, Mrs. C. T. Mumford, in Greenville at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon by the Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, and burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Lee died in Veterans Administration Center, Los Angeles, Calif., early Saturday morning.

Mr. Lee served in World War I, and after being discharged had lived in California. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Moore Lee; a daughter, Caroline Lee, a son, Robert E. Lee, Jr.; a daughter by a former marriage, Nancy Lee of Denver, Colorado; and a sister, Mrs. Harry Pamplin of Pulaski, Va.

Graveside Service For Infant Here Friday

Mitchell Anderson, month old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson of 1219 Washington Street, Greenville, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital at 10:05 o'clock Wednesday night following ten day's illness.

Graveside services will be held at the Spain Cemetery near Belvoir at 11 o'clock Friday morning. Officiating will be Rev. Rashie Kennedy, pastor of the Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are the parents; the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie May of Greenville;

Funeral Friday For Mrs. Charlie Joyner

Mrs. Mary E. (Betty) Joyner, 80, died at her home near Vanceboro at 4:40 o'clock Wednesday after being critically ill for the past six weeks.

Funeral services will be held at the Epworth Methodist Church Friday afternoon at three o'clock and burial will be in the Church cemetery. Her pastor, the Rev. Leroy Stanton, assisted by the Rev. W. R. Crowder, Methodist minister of Dover, will conduct the services.

Mrs. Joyner was born near Ayden, daughter of the late J. C. and Mary Cannon Bland. She was married to Charlie F. Joyner in 1890 and had lived in the Epworth community in Craven County since 1909. She was a member of Epworth Methodist Church. Mr. Joyner died in 1949.

Surviving are five sons: L. R. and

A three-day educational Circuit Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses from communities of eastern Carolina will take place this week-end in Kinston. The Assembly site will be the Sampson School Auditorium with sessions beginning Friday evening at 7:00 o'clock and continuing Saturday and Sunday. The discussions will include problems and progress intermingled with skits and demonstrations. W. J. Douglas, representative of the Watchtower Bible Society, will give a featured public talk Sunday afternoon on "Where Is This World Heading?" The public is invited to attend.

FOUNTAIN—Funeral services for Mr. Solomon Maye who died in Pitt Memorial hospital early Tuesday morning will be held Friday at 2:00 at Fountain Hill Church by Elder David Bynum assisted by Elder W. Cooper.

Surviving is his wife; 2 children and six grandchildren; 2 sisters, Miss Maggie Maye of Falkland, and Miss Lula M. Hill of Fountain; one brother, Elder Earl Maye; two half brothers, Mrs. Ernest Maye of Wilson and Mr. Tom Maye of Greenville. Burial will be in Maye Cemetery near Farmville.

Hear 'Last Shot' Of Civil War

PORT GIBSON, Miss. (UP)—For Mr. and Mrs. Ishmael Lynch the last shot of the Civil War was fired in 1953—in their living room.

A Civil War shell, found on a nearby battlefield, fell from the mantle at the Lynch home and exploded, putting more than 15 holes in the floor, door, walls and ceiling.

Eight-year-old Ray Lynch was in the room but was unharmed. The Lynches reckoned he was "just a lucky rebel."

Secret Vote May Settle Tie-Up

For a secret strike vote brought hopes today for early settlement of a transit strike which has left 1,000,000 persons without normal means of transportation.

Mayor Joseph S. Clark demanded last night that the secret ballot be taken among members of the CIO Transport Workers Union. He said conversations with union members convinced him an "overwhelming majority" wanted to accept a proposed contract offer of the Philadelphia Transportation Co. and return to work.

It was reported that union headquarters was bombed yesterday by telephone calls from rank-and-file members demanding a secret referendum.

FAREWELL SPEECH
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman's "farewell speech" to the nation will be carried on all radio and television networks tonight at 10:30 EST. It will be a half-hour speech.

Heavy Ticket Sales For 'Kiss Me'

Tickets for the road production of the Broadway musical, "Kiss Me Kate," to be presented in Greenville this month, are going at an unprecedented rate, ticket sales chairman Harry Douglas said today.

Featuring a New York cast and the music of Cole Porter, the musical will be presented on the stage of Wright Building at East Carolina College Wednesday night, January 28, at 8:30.

During the production's three-year run on Broadway it set a record of more than 1,000 performances, and played to more than 800,000 people. Rights to produce the musical have been leased to producers abroad.

Douglas, who was appointed by local Jaycees to head ticket sales, said a few desirable seats are still available to those who desire them, but a complete sell-out is expected by certain time.

HIT MUSICAL
"It is seldom that natives of Greenville have the opportunity to attend a professional, legitimate theater production in their own home town," the chairman stated.

"And especially since it is a hit musical comedy that enjoys a conspicuous national reputation."

Tickets are priced at $2.40, $1.80 and $1.20, and at present are on sale by all Jaycees and at strategic places throughout the city. However, after tomorrow all tickets will be collected and put on sale at one central point for the convenience of the citizens.

Douglas said that after tomorrow, tickets will be on sale by J. B.

Radio Talks By W. Kerr Scott

BURLINGTON (AP)—Former Gov. W. Kerr Scott will start a series of 15-minute radio broadcasts on farm topics next week.

General Manager E. Z. Jones of Radio Station WBBB here announced plans for the program today. He said Scott will go on the air over the Burlington station at 6:45 a.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The broadcasts will be from Scott's farm home at Haw River.

The talks will be non-political and partially sponsored, Jones said.
