Attorney General-Designate Brownell Is First Caller Today
Eisenhower Off To An Early Start

WASHINGTON (UP)—Attorney General-designate Herbert Brownell Jr. met with President Eisenhower today on "business matters" and apparently the challenged choice of Charles E. Wilson to be secretary of defense. Brownell entered the White House at 7:55 a.m. EST to be the first official caller on the new President in his first working day in the executive mansion. Asked if he would discuss with Mr. Eisenhower the Senate fight over confirmation of Wilson, Brownell said "I am not going to make any statement about that." He added, that he would discuss "business matters" with the new chief executive. It was apparent, however, that Mr. Eisenhower and Brownell would take up Wilson's disputed appointment. Brownell entered Mr. Eisenhower's office at 8 a.m. EST., and the President joined him two minutes later. Mr. Eisenhower was getting off to an early start in his new administration. The administration is somewhat stalled, however, for lack of a cabinet. As a result Mr. Eisenhower began his first day in the White House with holdover Democrats running all of the government's departments. Senate Republican leaders assured him that eight of his cabinet appointees would be confirmed and ready to take over their jobs by nightfall. Mr. Eisenhower's hope of having them confirmed Tuesday was blocked by an objection from Oregon's independent Sen. Wayne Morse. But GOP leaders backed away from an early showdown on the ninth Eisenhower Cabinet choice, Charles E. Wilson to be secretary of defense. Rumors circulated that Mr. Eisenhower may withdraw the Wilson appointment, or that the former General Motors president may agree to sell the $2,500,000 in GM stock which many senators of both parties regard as a fatal defect in his qualifications to head the Defense Department. GM is the department's biggest contractor. The administration is somewhat stalled, however, for lack of a cabinet. Wilson and Mr. Eisenhower held an animated discussion lasting seven or eight minutes last night. The President's box at the inaugural ball. As Wilson left, reporters asked: "Is there any change in your nomination status? Are you still planning to be secretary of defense?" "You boys know that I am not in any position to talk about that," Wilson replied. The Senate Armed Services Committee, which had planned to question Wilson in secret session today, suddenly postponed the hearing until Friday. A high Republican source said the delay was arranged to give the new administration time to find a way out of its first political dilemma. Confirmation of the other eight Cabinet nominees had to go over until today because Morse, a maverick by nature and an ex-Republican by choice, invoked a technicality in the Senate rules which allowed a single senator to force a 24-hour delay. The general-become-President may think in after-years that his first hours in office were the toughest. There was fearful emotional experience of assuming the presidency, and then the strain of the inaugural address. After that, the grueling, overlong ordeal of parade watching, bowing and smiling far into the evening shadows, hatless and surely chilly. On top of that—two inaugural balls. But all of that is finished now and the hard work begins. Dearly left for the new President to determine whether Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, the atomic spies, shall die. There is a State of the Union message with plan and program for months or years to be whipped into final form for presentation to a joint session of Congress, probably next week. There is the regular, back-breaking drudgery of the presidency with all of those papers to sign, people to see. And over all the chill shadow of Korea and the cold war, and the campaign confidence of so many millions of Americans that if Mr. Eisenhower did reach the White House he would do something big and important about that.

'Maginot Line' Across Korea Claimed
Seven Red Jets Shot Down

SEOUL (AP)—Allied Sabre jet pilots shot down seven Communist MIG jet fighters and damaged three others in battles high over Northwest Korea today, the U.S. Fifth Air Force said. Two U.S. jet aces, Col. Royal N. Baker, McKinney, Tex., and Maj. Robinson Risner, Oklahoma City, both were credited with their eighth MIG destroyed. U.S. losses, if any, will be announced in a week-end summary. Today's bag was one of the biggest in several months. U.S. pilots destroyed eight MIGs last Wednesday—the most in one day since September. On the ground Allied troops hurled back sharp Communist attacks on the frozen Eastern Front while the Peiping radio boasted of an unconquerable defense line of tunnels across the Korean Peninsula. The broadcast asserted thousands of Red soldiers, working underground by lamplight day and night, carved out the tunnel network which "already proved itself as impregnable defense line never before seen in the history of war." Thirteen Japan-based B29 Superforts slammed 130 tons of bombs on a Communist troop and supply center near Hamung, 60 miles north of Wonsan on the Korean East Coast last night. Crewmen said the area was ripped by explosions, probably from ammunition stockpiles. North Korean troops forded the ice-choked Nam River last night and early today and jabbed at three Allied positions near Kansong on the Eastern Front. The heaviest Red assault, by about 70 men, was driven off after 40 minutes of rifle and machine-gun exchanges in near-zero temperatures. Allied artillery fire hammered the Red units. The Air Force said twin-engine B26 bombers bombed Red front-line positions and blasted Communist rail facilities near Sariwon. Pilots reported 41 Red bunkers blown up or damaged by noon, and 85 Red trucks destroyed last night.

Survey Sought For Inland N.C. Ports By State

NEW BERN—A vague possibility that Greenville's Port Terminal may be developed by State funds and utilized as an inland port was brought out at a meeting here yesterday. The North Carolina Coastal Marine Council, formed last September at Belhaven by representatives of 2 Eastern counties, met here and voted to request $47,000 for a proposed engineering survey of inland ports in the east. As a result of the two-hour session, the request for funds was presented to George R. Ross, director of the Department of Conservation and Development. Action is now under the jurisdiction of the Water Resources Committee of that department. "Heart endorsement" Members of the council requested that the conservation department study the proposed project and submit it to the General Assembly during this session. A dozen speakers gave "heart endorsement" to the proposed survey and study of a master plan for development of the coast's marine resources. By unanimous recommendation of the council, it was requested that the New York firm of Parsons, Brinckerhoff, Hall and McDonald be employed to make the extensive survey and submit a plan for development of inland ports in the east. Ross and Aubrey Cavanaugh, chairman of the conservation and development department's Water Resources Committee, both promised their support to development of coastal resources "to their fullest extent." Port Terminal Included Included in the requested study of Eastern North Carolina's inland ports is Greenville's Port Terminal. Representatives from the city of Greenville and Pitt County attended the meeting. Guy C. Evans, chairman of the Tar River Port Committee, was elected to the Coastal Marine Council's board of directors. A committee was appointed to draft by-laws for operation of the marine council, and included on the committee is W. T. Kyzer, manager of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce; Dan Walker of Beaufort and George Arrington of New Bern. That committee plans to meet in the near future. Other local representatives attending were Lester D. Hodge, mayor of Greenville; M. B. Hodges of Grifton, member of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners; and J. Nat Harrison of Greenville.

Grifton Is Winner In Contest

Grifton today was disclosed one of the winners in the "Piner Carolina" community improvement contest sponsored by the Carolina Power and Light Company. The top prize for towns with population of less than 2,500 went to Grifton; it carried a cash award of $1,000. Winners announced yesterday were selected from among 148 entries which competed in the contest covering both North and South Carolina. A total of 800 improvements projects were carried out in the contest by the towns taking part in the improvement contest. Running up to Grifton in the smaller towns was Elerbe which received a prize of $750. During the improvement campaign conducted in Grifton, a general clean-up drive was launched with improvements being made at the cemetery, churches, and the general appearance of most of the homes in the community. One of the largest strides made by the town was completion of a vast housing project in the city, aimed at taking care of the heavy influx of Du Pont workers. Hartsville, S. C. and Sanford, N. C. walked off with the grand prizes in the improvement contest with prizes of $2,000 and $1,000 for winners in the larger communities.

Postmaster Urges Change Of Address Notification
Rural Mail Routes Revised

The United States Post Office Department has issued an order establishing an additional rural route at the Greenville Post Office bringing the total rural routes to six. With the establishment of the sixth route, no new territory was taken in but it was a redistribution of the existing five routes, making them shorter to decrease the load of the carrier. Some rural roads were taken in that never before had service, but the perimeter remained the same. The newly established route takes in the northern portion of routes four and five, also causing some change in one, two, and three. The establishment of the sixth route has caused considerable change on all Greenville rural routes in that some patrons have been changed from one route to another and in some cases only the box number of the patrons was changed. Caused Confusion Postmaster J. Knott Proctor said today that the redistribution of routes has caused considerable confusion to patrons as well as carriers. "It is hoped that patrons will cooperate with us as far as possible by using their new route number and box number if there has been a change," said Proctor. "By using the new numbers, I mean to exert every effort to have mail addressed to new numbers. If you are subscribing to newspapers and magazines, notify the publishers of your new number, both route and box number." Order Issued In conjunction with the adding of a new rural route, the Post Office Department has issued an order making it necessary for all boxes located on paved highways to be on the right-hand side of the road in the direction in which the carrier travels. This was done in the interest of safety so that the carrier will not have to violate traffic laws by crossing the highway. "If your box is one which has to be relocated we would appreciate if you consult your carrier for the exact location, and cooperate with him as to the height of the box and the manner to the highway," said Proctor. The Greenville Post Office now has six rural routes serving in excess of 2,000 boxes and approximately 6,000 families. Delivery is made daily except Sunday. Proctor said it is quite a problem to deliver mail when it is improperly addressed. "There are quite a few duplications of names and in these cases it is most essential that each piece of mail be completely and properly addressed," explained the postmaster. "If every piece of mail was correctly addressed the problem of delivering it would be more simple," he said. "And for these reasons, I urge mailers and patrons alike to see that all mail is properly addressed, and especially that going to rural routes."

From Now On, It Is 'Mr. Truman'
Ex-President On Way Home

CINCINNATI (AP)—Harry S. Truman's homeward-bound train stopped in Cincinnati for 15 minutes today. "It was 7:15 a.m. EST when it pulled in. The weather, crisp and clear, was just what the former President liked for his usual brisk walk at train stops. He followed the same routine as he did when he headed the government and was surrounded by Secret Service men. "There were no Secret Service men today. "Do you feel any different this morning than yesterday when you still were President?" Truman was asked. "No, at all," he replied. "How could I? There's not much change with all these people around." "Why that he waved his arm in an endearing movement to take in reporters, photographers and the 25 or 30 others. "There was no turnout of Democrat bigwigs. As Truman walked up the ramp to the railroad station, main concourse, several people greeted him. One Negro woman shook his hand; another woman asked for his autograph. He declined the autograph, saying he did not have time. Truman fell into his role of plain citizen easily. He walked up to a newsstand and waited in line for his turn with the clerk. Smiling and looking rested, Truman stopped a photographer who addressed him as "Mr. President." "From now on it is Mr. Truman," he said with a grin. Asked again as to his future plans, he said: "I honestly don't know as yet." His first job, already known, will be to establish an office in the Federal Reserve Bank Building in Kansas City. From there, with the aid of two government employees assigned to him, he will work on his personal papers, getting them in shape for eventual presentation to the nation. Neither Miss Truman nor Margaret, their daughter, left the presidential car assigned to them by President Eisenhower for the trip home to Independence, Mo.

Weaker Brodie Twin Succumbs

CHICAGO (UP)—Roger Lee Brodie, whose fate was sealed on an operating table 35 days ago when he was separated from his stronger Siamese twin, died Tuesday night after more than 800 hours in a deep coma. Twin Rodney Dee rested easily in a nearby crib while doctors and nurses made an eleventh hour attempt to save his brother. Roger Lee's tiny body was sponged repeatedly in an attempt to bring down his rising body temperature. His throat was swabbed free of choking mucus as his respiration faltered. At about 9 p.m. a.s.t. the 16-month-old child's heart stopped beating. "Attending physicians were amazed that Roger Lee had remained alive for this relatively long period of time," a terse hospital announcement said. Doctors had warned repeatedly that Roger's chances for life were "remote" and "unlikely." In the separation Dec. 17 a vital cranial blood vessel that the boys shared was given to Rodney Dee in a "survival of the fittest" operating table decision. Mr. and Mrs. Royt Brodie were coming to Chicago from their home in Ferris, Ill., today. Their country line telephone was out of order when their son died, and they had to be brought to the telephone office in the little Illinois town to hear the tragic news.

New President Will Meet Press

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower will continue the system of holding regular weekly news conferences, and possibly televising one a month if mechanical problems can be worked out, it was announced today. Press secretary James C. Hagerty said there would be no news conference this week because of the heavy amount of work facing Mr. Eisenhower. However, Hagerty said he "assumed" that Mr. Eisenhower would have his first meeting with newsmen next week. Hagerty said the present freedom of questioning would continue and that Mr. Eisenhower has no intention of changing the system that has been in effect at the White House for many years. Prospects of a televised and broadcast meeting with reporters once a month remained to be developed finally. "This is the way we are thinking," Hagerty said. There never has been a "live" television broadcast of a presidential news conference although television cameras have recorded some portions of conferences for broadcast later. Other cases heard yesterday were:

Indignant Over Discrepancies In Testimony
Judge Censures Witnesses

Discrepancies in testimony offered yesterday in Pitt Superior Court aroused Judge Henry A. Grady's indignation, and he proceeded to dole out an 18-month road term to Russell Buck of Pactolus. The Pactolus defendant and his 17-year-old son, William, were under indictment on charges of assault with a deadly weapon. In view of his youth, the judge suspended an 18-month term in the boy's case. "I have been on the bench for more than 30 years," Judge Grady told the two defendants, "and I am getting so tired of lars going on the stand I just lose all patience with them." Censured Both The New Bern jurist severely censured the father and son for what he called "not telling the truth on the witness stand after having taken the oath." He said the boy and his father both lied, but he felt some compassion for the son because of his age. "When men go on the stand and commit perjury the life of every man in this country is in danger," the judge stated. The older Buck filed notice of appeal to the N. C. Supreme Court and posted a $300 appearance bond. The two youths who a few weeks ago allegedly robbed Mrs. Fannie Hines of "between $40 and $50" pled guilty to larceny yesterday and both were sentenced to serve three years in State Prison. Other Charges The defendants, Roy Spencer Cox and Clarence McInnis Midgette, admitted taking some money from her cash register but denied emphatically that the amount was more than "about $21." It was brought out in court that the two are under indictment in Tarboro at the present time for breaking and entering and larceny. Both defendants said they are also wanted on a Federal charge in Virginia for stealing an automobile and driving it across a state line. Judge Grady said he would sentence them from Pitt, and instructed a nol pro with leave be taken in Tarboro. Other cases heard yesterday were:

Legion Post Opposes N.C. Veterans Bonus

Members of Pitt County Post 39 of The American Legion went on record last night as being opposed to a North Carolina veterans' bonus "at this time." Local veterans present voted to oppose the proposition "due to the present financial condition of the State and the many urgent needs that currently exist throughout North Carolina." Discussion on proposed bonus legislation was the main order of business brought before the post at its regular monthly meeting last night, and recorded opposition was passed unanimously. Ed Harris reported on the position of the Legion Home in Greenville and explained that the proposed lease to St. Raphael's Catholic School did not materialize. The school has obtained another location. It was voted not to contribute to the Pitt County TB Association this year, but to apply $25 for the purchase of necessary drugs and medicines to be used by any Pitt County veteran waiting to enter the veteran's hospital at Oteen. Post Commander W. Conner Eagles presided over the meeting, which School cafeteria.

Bulletin

NEW YORK (AP)—A Federal Court jury today found 13 Communist leaders guilty of conspiracy. The jury of six men and six women reached a verdict after receiving the case last Thursday. The trial lasted 4 1/2 months. All of the Communist leaders were charged with conspiring to teach and advocate the overthrow of the U. S. government. RESIGNS POST PARIS (AP)—Paul R. Porter, No. 2 man in Europe for America's economic and military aid program, has resigned, the Paris office of the Mutual Security Administration (MSA) announced today.

Haven't Spoken For Ten Years

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UP)—Arthur W. Rice hasn't spoken to his wife and six children in 10 years, according to his own testimony in Middlesex probate court. "You must have many sleepless nights, living that sort of life in such a very unhappy home," Judge Joseph W. Monahan said yesterday in a hearing on a separate support suit by Mrs. Rice. "That's not so," answered Rice, a Wellesley College storekeeper. "I sleep well nights. My conscience doesn't bother me." Rice admitted he had not spoken to any member of his family for 10 years, even to a son when he returned from 36 months overseas duty in World War II. "Why?" asked Judge Monahan. "They don't speak to me," Rice said.

Employment Is Down From January 1952

A decline in 1952 of crops and construction work have combined to send unemployment figures soaring for Greenville and the surrounding area. Tabulations at N. C. State Employment Service Division show that 988 persons have filed unemployment claims through the week ending January 16, 1953. This is an increase of 316 according to a total of 642 claims filed through the week ending January 12, 1953. Of the 1953 total, 776 are women as compared with 464 female claims filed in 1952. William B. Dillingham, manager of the local employment division, says that employment conditions are definitely not as good as last year this time and gave several reasons why. "Crop failures which resulted in a shorter season at the tobacco factories put a large number of people out of work. Then last year this time DuPont was hiring all the construction workers they could find. Now their work is nearly completed and the demand for workers has lessened considerably." The first of every year is always a tough time in unemployment points out Dillingham. "All types of business are usually off a little at the beginning of the year and there just isn't as much hiring done."

Grifton's Rental Housing Ordered To Be Registered

GRIFTON—Registrations for all rental housing accommodations in Grifton will be taken at the city hall here each Thursday from now until March 1, 1953. That announcement was made today by John C. Proctor, associate area rent director, Kingston. He said hours of registration will be from 9 o'clock in the morning until 12 o'clock noon. To avoid a last minute rush, Proctor urges early registration. All persons renting houses, apartments, rooms, motor courts, trailers or trailer spaces should register before March 1, 1953, in order to avoid penalties provided by law. In addition to registration times and places announced at this time, Proctor said, registration will be taken at the Kingston Area Rent Office located at 811 North Queen Street. That office will be open Monday through Friday from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m.

Little Nazis Of East Germany Serve 'Warning'

BERLIN (UP)—The Communist-led "little Nazi" party of the Soviet zone of Germany today warned Jewish survivors of Hitler's extermination camps they will be punished if they ally themselves with "American warmongers." The warning was served as East German Jews by the score were fleeing into West Berlin and West Germany seeking political asylum from what they feared would be a sweeping anti-Semitic campaign in the Russian-run eastern third of Germany.

Inaugural Speech Praised By Press Of Free Europe

LONDON (UP)—Newspapers throughout free Europe spotlighted President Eisenhower's inaugural speech on front pages today and reaction in government circles was generally favorable. Along with its lengthy coverage of the inauguration, the London Times complimented Mr. Eisenhower's speaking style. "It is a steele," the Times said, "that accords with the deep sense of moral purpose which is the main spring of American policy at its best." In West Germany, government officials said they were "favorably impressed" by the new President's showing. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer telegraphed his congratulations. Authorities in Madrid praised Mr. Eisenhower's lucidity, directness and "sense of reality" in diagnosing the world's problems. European leaders who sent congratulatory messages to the President yesterday also included President Vincent Auriol of France, President Luigi Einaudi of Italy, and Premier Willem Drees of the Netherlands.

Polish Priests Go On Trial As 'Spies For U.S.'

LONDON (UP)—Four Polish Catholic priests and three other defendants went on trial before a military court in Cracow today on charges of spying for the United States, the official Polish Communist news agency reported. The agency alleged the priests were "among the leaders of an espionage organization in the service of a foreign intelligence center." It claimed that "instructions, reports and espionage material were found on them when they were arrested." The arrest of the priests was first announced only two days after Pope Pius XII nominated Polish Archbishop Stefan Wyszynski to be a cardinal.

Circle No. 2 Christian Church Meets
AYDEN—On Monday night Mrs. J. L. Jenkins and Miss Virginia Belle Cooper entertained Circle No. 2 of C.W.F. at the attractive home of Mrs. Jenkins.

The devotional was led by Mrs. Marvin McCormick. Mrs. McCormick, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Wayland McGlohon, who presented the speaker of the evening, Rev. Gilbert Davis, who talked on "The Missionary Work As Disciples of Christ." His talk was most inspirational to those present.

After the program the co-chairmen, Mrs. Kermit Surrrell and Mrs. Joe Tripp, led in the business discussions. The hostesses served hot chocolate and cookies to the 22 present.

In 1952 each man, woman and child in the United States owed an average of $1,840 as his share of the federal, state and local debts.

It requires an investment of about $5,000 to create a job in a manufacturing plant.

Mrs. Tripp Entertains Bridge Club

AYDEN—On Friday night at her home on the Ayden highway, Mrs. Tucker Tripp entertained her bridge club members.

At the end of play cards were given Mrs. Raymond Cox for making high score. A set of glasses was given Mrs. Leslie Stocks, runnerup. Ash trays went to Mrs. Velma Sanders as the low score prize.

The hostess served a sweet course with coffee to Mesdames Cox, Stocks, Sanders, Marvin McCormick, Joe Tripp, "Mac" Edwards and Chester Hart.

Man Is Starting His 'Third Life'

HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—An 83-year-old man today started the third day of his "third life" and doctors hoped for the best as a round-the-clock watch was kept at his bedside.

Although his heart stopped beating twice during delicate surgery at St. Francis Hospital, the unidentified patient recovered enough to ask for a glass of beer, a hospital spokesman said.

The elderly man was operated on for a bleeding gastric ulcer after doctors decided surgery was needed to save his life.

After the operation was started, the patient's heart stopped.

The surgeon, who was not identified, swiftly cut open the chest cavity and massaged life back into the heart with rubber-gloved hands.

Ten minutes later, the heart stopped beating again. This time, a machine called the vacuum-cup defibrillator was used to "shock" the heart back into regular action.

In cases where the heart stops for too long, the brain suffers irreparable damage due to the lack of oxygen.

"Apparently there was no cerebral damage resulting from the operation on this patient," the surgeon said. He estimated the man's heart stopped "about 40 seconds" the first time and "several" seconds the second time.

Although in critical condition, the man was described as "alert" today. He asked for beer when a nurse offered him water.

"Do you want to sit up?" a doctor asked him.

"Sure I do," he replied. "Where are my slippers?"

Florida Float Is Top Entry In Inaugural Parade

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Inaugural Parade Committee awarded first place in the float division to Florida's entry while it judged the Seattle, Wash., police drill team tops among the marching units.

Other first place winners were Virginia Polytechnic Institute, adult band; Joliet, Ill., High School, junior band, and Washington Civil Air Patrol, drum and bugle corps.

Ohio won second place among the floats while Idaho was judged third best.

The Citadel band of Charleston, S.C., was selected for second place among the adult bands.

Among the marching units, Pennsylvania state police was second and Virginia Military Institute third.

All winners will be awarded gold cups with brown and white onyx bases.

Magician Unable Return Hamster

NEW YORK (UP)—Magician Harry Blackstone conceded today that his best efforts with a magic wand couldn't bring back his wife's pet hamster.

Blackstone, who can make elephants and horses disappear and reappear in his better moments, stood by helplessly while workmen ripped out part of the wall in his hotel suite searching for the missing little rodent.

The hamster, named Poncho, disappeared last Saturday. All the hocus-pocus Blackstone could command failed to locate the pet.

The magician even called up his friend Dunninger, the self-proclaimed mind reader, and asked for help.

"You're the magician," Dunninger told him. "You find it."

TALK UNION PLANS
NEW YORK (AP)—Emil Rieve, president of the CIO Textile Workers Union of America, and his warden and worsted policy committee met today at union headquarters to review the status of various contracts in the industry. They also planned to discuss union strategy in forthcoming wage talks.

Participate In Religious Emphasis Week

DR. JAMES L. STONER

Two distinguished visitors who are now participating in Religious Emphasis Week at East Carolina College will appear in evening programs tonight and Thursday at 7 o'clock in the Austin auditorium.

Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, rector of St. James Protestant Episcopal Church in New York City, will speak tonight; and Dr. James Lloyd Stoner, director of the University Christian Mission of the National E.E.E. Council of Churches of Christ in America, will give the closing message of the four-day observance of Religious Emphasis Week Thursday. The public is invited.

Dr. Kinsolving, who is widely known for his work among young people, visits each year nearly thirty New England colleges and schools.

A graduate of the University of Virginia and the Virginia Theological Seminary, he has also attended Amherst, the University of Vermont, and Rollins College. As minister he has had churches at Amherst, Mass., where he served as faculty director of religious activities at Amherst College; at Old Trinity Church in Boston; and at the Episcopal Church in Princeton, N. J.

Dr. Stoner visited the college campus here last November and assisted members of the Inter-religious Council of the college in planning the 1953 observance of Religious Week.

A graduate of Yale University and an ordained minister of the Disciples of Christ, Mr. Stoner has worked extensively among students. In 1944 he served as associate secretary of the University of Texas YMCA and in 1945 he became first director of the Student Christian Fellowship at Bowling Green State University, a pioneer interdenominational work among students.

He began his present work with the University Christian Mission in 1947. As director, he visits each year many campuses throughout the United States.

Robersonville Church Secures Option On Land For Future Building Project

ROBERSONVILLE—Ernest B. Whichard, committee chairman of the Robersonville Christian Church Board, announced at the board's January meeting that an option has been secured on land for church property.

Whichard told the board that an option had been secured on the property between the funeral home and the David Grimes Jr. residence. The services of Paul Roberson have been secured to assist in the work of the committee securing the church property.

A motion was unanimously passed to establish a building fund and to transfer $1,500 now carried in the church general fund to the building fund.

Sherwood L. Roberson was appointed treasurer of the building fund. The amount to be transferred was $500 given during December for a building fund and $1,000 which had been in a building and loan stock for a number of months.

A motion was also passed that all fifth Sunday church offerings be placed in the building fund.

Due to the recent increase in Sunday school attendance, the church will have to be enlarged, a spokesman of the board said.

ILLNESS FINALLY GOT BEST OF HIM
RHINEBECK, N. Y. (UP)—A long illness finally got the best of hard-working, 71-year-old farmer Harry Seckendorff.

Police reported he went to his barn Tuesday night and carefully fired bullets into the heads of 16 of the best cows in his dairy-herd. Then he turned the rifle on himself and committed suicide.

"He loved those cows," a neighbor said.

HOLIDAY NEAR END

Whole New Series Of Test Tube Fabrics Seen

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—A whole new series of test tube fabrics are bringing surprisingly sheer developments in women's lingerie. The sheer spring stockings are almost invisible on the legs. New nylon fabrics for slips and nightgowns are so sheer that one can see through them. The newest bra is the lingerie bra, which adds puffs and ruffles of nylon at the top to minimize the utility aspect and accentuate the decorative. Even girdles are supposed to resemble anything but garments of utility these days. "We're giving the lingerie look to everything," one designer of foundation garments said. New nylon hosiery yarn will create stockings that are a mere wisp compared to the 40 denier nylons which first were turned out some 15 denier stockings—the denier refers to the weight and thickness of the yarn. Now 12 denier stockings are being readied for sale. They'll be fragile enough to be termed "luxury hose," according to the Du Pont Company. The finest undies are the "nylovent" numbers created by the Kayser Company. The fabric has alternating stripes of mesh and plain nylon for summer air cooling. This is the filmy line that inspired the nightgown-panty set. All nylon lace over nylon tulle is used in a spring petticoat with a wide flounce. Another new petticoat uses nylon eyelid over a new nylon-organ tafeta fabric introduced by the Barizon Corporation. The new tafeta has the same washable, no-ironing qualities of other miracle fibres. One of the new tafeta petticoats has a lace insert and a permanently-pleated tafeta ruffle at the bottom guaranteed to withstand scrubbing. Exercise is almost necessary now that the new girdles made of wisper elastic weaves than ever before. A girl just can't expect lace elastic to do the same job as businesslike boning.

Mamie Eisenhower Starts A New Life

By RUTH GMEINER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower slept late today before taking a close look at her new 100-room home. She had the extra rest coming. It wasn't until after 1 a.m. that she and her husband turned from the inaugural ball at the tail-end of the most exciting day in her life. During the 18-hour inaugural whirl Tuesday, she and the President spent less than three hours in the White House—while they ate a hurried supper off trays and changed into evening clothes for the ball. Today was Mrs. Eisenhower's first opportunity to visit her kitchen — one of the rooms she missed on her tour of the mansion with Mrs. Truman — and to meet the staff the Trumans left behind. And at mid-afternoon she was scheduled to preside at her first official function — a reception for 300 women from the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the National Federation of Republican Women and Volunteers for Eisenhower. It was the first of many scores of hand-shaking punch parties she will hold alone, and with her husband, in the state parlors of the White House. From 10 a.m. to noon, however, Mrs. Eisenhower could not call those same parlors her own. The daily sightseeing tours were resumed after a one-day holiday, and tourists, by the hundreds, had free run of the whole first floor. GRIMSBY, England (UP)—Royal sturgeon is a rare delicacy in England, and old fishing tradition says that when one of the fish is caught it must be offered first to the nation's reigning sovereign. So when fish merchant Oscar Cleave bought a 40-pounder from a trawler's catch, he sent a formal offer of the fish to Buckingham Palace. At the same time, feeling sure Queen Elizabeth II would not want it, he sold the sturgeon to Thomas Moore of Yeovil. She did, though. A wire arrived from Buckingham Palace. "Your kind offer gladly accepted. Please send sturgeon to controller of supplies Buckingham Palace." Horrified, Cleave frantically got in touch with Moore. Happily, the fish had not yet been eaten. It was delivered to Buckingham Palace yesterday. STUBBORN UNTO DEATH LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—John F. Bushby asked $3,575 for injuries and losses suffered when a mule and his automobile collided. He charged the mule caused $350 damage to his car. The suit was filed against Herman Singler, the mule's owner. The mule expired in the accident.

Tradition Almost Broken When Queen Accepted

WASHINGTON (AP)—Columnist Westbrook Pegler responded cheerfully yesterday when a man greeted him as he sat in the press section at the presidential inaugural ceremonies. Then his greeter, special process server Hugh Duffy, handed the newspaperman a 2-year-old summons and a copy of a complaint in a $5,100,000 assault libel-conspiracy suit. The suit was filed by columnist Drew Pearson against Pegler, Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), the Washington Times-Herald, radio commentator Fulton Lewis Jr., and others, alleging that they tried to drive him out of business.

'Very Good Day'

DURHAM (AP)—Gov. William B. Umstead, recovering at Watts Hospital from a mild heart attack and since Monday battling a case of influenza, was reported to have "had a very good day" yesterday. Dr. Ralph Fleming, the governor's physician, said last night that the governor's temperature, which has risen with the attack of flu, had been normal for the 12 previous hours. Dr. Fleming's report indicated that Umstead, who has been hospitalized for nine days, was recovering satisfactorily. The governor's aides, who had been visiting him daily but were asked to discontinue the visits until the flu condition cleared up, will probably resume their trips to the hospital if Umstead's condition continues good through today.

No Snow In Big Winter Exercise

CAMP DRUM, N. Y. (AP)—Paratroopers taking part in "Exercise Snow Storm" go hunting today for snow. The winter war games have been hampered by mild temperatures and melting snows since they opened Jan. 12 at this Northern New York Post. The Army said last night that 2,000 paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division would be sent today to Old Forge, 76 miles to the east, where snow had been reported. If the snow should be found satisfactory for training purposes, the Army said, most of the group would camp there and hold exercises until Saturday. Some of the more than 12,000 troops here for the maneuvers already are training in snow at Snow Ridge, near Turin, 40 miles to the south. The present phase of the maneuvers is for individual and unit training. The war games, which will involve mass paratroop drops and combined Army-Air Force operations, will conclude in mid-March.

Local Episcopal Church Planning To Honor Patron

Next weekend parishioners of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Greenville will hold their annual observance of the conversion of the church's patron saint. In a sense it will be a patronal festival, because church activities begin Saturday night and last through Sunday night. Guest speaker for the occasion will be Dr. Clark Keubler, president of Ripon College, Ripon, Wis. A nationally known speaker and Episcopal churchman, Dr. Keubler is a member of the national council of Episcopal churches in America. Church spokesmen said all are welcome and cordially invited to attend service at the church Sunday. Rotting of wood is always caused by fungi.

Minister Heartened By Spirit Of Cooperation

A growing cooperative spirit among Christians of the world is an encouraging development of modern times, Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, minister at the First Baptist Church of Washington, D. C., told members of the East Carolina College Faculty Lecture Club Tuesday evening. The distinguished speaker, a guest this week at the college and a principal participant in the annual observance of Religious Emphasis Week on the campus, was heard by club members and guests from the city of Greenville. In discussing the growth of the ecumenical spirit in Christianity, Dr. Pruden gave a discussion of the Third World Conference on Faith and Order, which he attended last summer in Sweden. Beginning with the International Missionary Conference in Jerusalem in 1910, he told of the three World Conferences on Faith and Order which have been held since then and of the organization of the World Council of Churches. Present in the ancient university and cathedral town of Lund, Sweden, for the 1952 conference, he said, were representatives of 116 denominational bodies from 41 different countries of the world. He gave a vivid picture of outstanding personalities at the event and described some of the impressive events, such as the joint communion service in the cathedral. Results of the conference, he stated, were that members became acquainted with points of view with which they had previously been unfamiliar and developed sympathy with and appreciation of many of these views. Those attending departed, he said, with "a strengthening of the idea that greater unity is needed." A discussion from the floor followed Dr. Pruden's lecture. Contrib-

County Dog Warden Has Impounded 422 Dogs In Four Months; 346 Killed

Since the beginning of the rabies control program in the county four months ago, 422 dogs have been impounded and 22 complaints answered by the county dog warden, Willie Bell. Of the number impounded, eight dogs have been returned to their owners and 17 dogs have been sold by methods approved by humane agencies; 346 dogs and 27 cats have been destroyed. Fifty-one strays that could not be captured and termed dangerous had to be shot. Ninety-five dogs were ordered to be vaccinated and proof of their vaccination shown. Two dogs thought to have rabies were put under observation. During the four months, September, October, November and December, 4,796 miles were traveled by the dog warden.

Paper Sponsors Talent Show

Staff members of the "East Carolinian," student newspaper at East Carolina College, have announced that they will sponsor an Amateur Talent Night Tuesday, February 3. The show, which is being arranged under the direction of Thomas R. Lupton of Greenville, editor, will be held in the Austin auditorium at 8 o'clock. Lupton states that a large number of student performers, including singers, dancers, pianists, and comedians, are expected to appear on the program. Prizes will be awarded winning contestants during the evening. A large attendance is expected, as previous talent shows on the campus have packed the Austin auditorium.

PIPE THE COAL

YOUNGSTOWN, O. (UP)—Businessmen here have the newest wrinkle in moving coal. They propose running coal from the Ohio River to industries that need it by a pipeline. A company behind the idea says coal can go through the tube for 50 cents a ton per 30 miles — one-third of what it costs by railroad.

Strength for the Day

At the center of the blotter lying on the top of my desk, I make a mark: that represents the sun. A foot away, I make another mark; that represents the earth. But where is the planet farthest out in our solar system? On that scale, it is ten miles away.
How can I possibly believe, in the midst of such vastness that God has any place for me, my troubles, my aspirations? Yet the Bible assures us that God does care. How is this possible? We don't know. We probably never will know; but, lost in the midst of the world's vastness, the one thing that sustains us is that God knows all about us; and, best of all, that He cares.

You recall, do you not, the pleasant English verse: "Yes, and I will," said Emmie, "but then, if I call to the Lord, How should He know that it's me? such a lot of beds in the ward!" That was a puzzle for Annie. Again she considered and said: "Emmie, you put out your arms, and I'll lead 'em outside on the bed— The Lord has so much to see to! but, Emmie, you tell it Him plain. It's the little girl with her arms lying out on the counterpane."

Registration Books In Bad Shape

Every now and then a problem in connection with local government becomes so obvious and pressing that some action should be taken on it.

Yet the situation in question is one which arises so relatively infrequently, that citizens and city officials are prone to let it ride indefinitely without rectifying the condition.

The Reflector in this instance has reference to the condition of the registration books of the city of Greenville.

To say the least, they are in terrible shape.

That was quite obvious at the recent referendum when many citizens had to go from one polling place to the other before they could find where they were registered in order to vote. In some instances individual voters had to make two trips to both polling places before their names were finally found on the registration books.

Because of illegible writing in some instances, it was almost guess-work to decide whether the name on the book was that of the voter applying for a ballot. That illegible recording of the names on the registration books plus the slip-shod "alphabetical" order in which names were listed caused a great deal of delay in the balloting during the course of the day.

In other words, the condition of the registration books proved almost inadequate to take care of the situation at the polls in the referendum. And the 1,500-odd votes which were cast during the day can not be considered an extremely heavy vote for a municipal election in Greenville.

There are many names on the city's registration books of people who are deceased or have moved to other cities. There are a number of cases in which an individual is registered in more than one ward by virtue of a transfer. There are some cases in which a voter's name is not on the books because a correct transfer from one ward to another was not properly made.

What is needed to rectify the conditions is a complete new registration for Greenville. If it is undertaken, it should be done over a relatively long period which would allow ample time for all eligible citizens to get their names on the registration books.

Short of a complete new registration, the books at least should be re-copied and placed in a more servicable form than they are now.

Guideposts For America's Foreign Policy

A new president now shoulders the tremendous responsibility for the administration of the government of the United States.

His inaugural address set forth the guideposts for the Ship of State in international affairs during his four years in the White House. They are guideposts which are not unfamiliar to American people. They are guideposts close akin, in principal to those which guided the administration that yesterday bowed from the public scene.

President Eisenhower reaffirmed America's supreme goal of world peace. At the same time he declared the United States citizens must "be ready to dare all for our country." For Russian ears he asserted there will be no appeasement, his administration "shall never try to placate an aggressor by the false and wicked bargain of trading honor for security. For in the final choice a soldier's pack is not so heavy as a prisoner's chains."

For those who have joined Freedom's cause around the globe, General Eisenhower declared the "United States stands behind them in building their defenses. He emphasized the effort must be one of mutual contribution by the United States and the other nations of the world. Uncle Sam will not carry the full load.

He pledged the United States efforts to the building of industry and commerce for the free world, and he emphasized once more that this nation has no desire to force its way of life upon any people of the world who did not want it.

The President's inaugural address yesterday was one of the most forceful statements of foreign policy issued by the United States in recent years. It was one which should leave no questions of American intentions unanswered in the minds of any group of people — friend or foe.

President Eisenhower's address was one that frankly warned the people of the United States of the international problems this nation faces in the years to come. In general terms he outlined the policy which the United States will follow in international affairs, and warned the people that sacrifices will be necessary to carry out the policies.

In a nutshell, President Eisenhower's statement of foreign policy combined the principles of the policy formed by President Truman, but added to it a more forceful, positive application.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Contradictory and unpredictable economic developments make it almost impossible for the conservative Eisenhower financiers in the Treasury and Federal Reserve System to chart a definite program for more businesslike management of Federal finances and credit.

These new forces, which have manifested themselves only since the November election, cast a cloud over the once bright prospect of great economy at Washington, individual and corporate tax cuts and stabilization of prices at a lower level than the present swollen figures.

The situation is reminiscent of Franklin D. Roosevelt's 1933 experience. He was elected on a strict economic program that promised a 25 per cent reduction in Federal costs. But within a year he had transformed into the heaviest spender in peacetime history.

CHIEF PROBLEM INFLATION—Before taking charge of the government yesterday, President Eisenhower and his principal financial advisers—Treasury Secretary Humphrey and Assistant Secretary Burgess, a Federal Reserve veteran—had anticipated that their chief problem would be to combat further inflation.

With defense expenditures due to reach a peak late this year, they had outlined a series of operations radically different from those pursued by ex-President Truman and former Secretary Snyder.

Besides serious attempts to reduce the Truman budget and to review projects authorized but not yet started, they had planned to introduce far-reaching reforms in the management of money and credit.

REVERSAL OF TRUMAN-SNYDER PLAN—Although these involve highly technical matters affecting the type and interest rates on $50 billion of forthcoming Treasury issues, the basic idea was to reduce the amount of cash and credit available to sop up excessive purchasing power and to lower prices. Although these have stabilized lately, it is felt that they should fall another 10 or 20 per cent.

It was to be a sharp reversal of Truman-Snyder policies, which have always favored a slight touch of inflation and a high level of industrial and business activity, even though it was stimulated artificially by easy money and credit terms. Eisenhower's Cabinet selections of bankers and businessmen, including many critics of the two Missourians' handling of these problems, gave assurance of such a change.

In his final economic report, Truman and the two more radical economists on the council—Messrs. Keyserling and Turner—warned against any deflationary moves.

TRUMAN CHALLENGE—Although denying that our present prosperity was built on heavy, post-Korean, military outlays, Truman wondered how long it could be avoided when huge defense spending was reduced, if ever. By arguing against tax cuts and protecting a Fair Dealish program of new dams, highways, hospitals and other Federal ventures, he put the Eisenhower Administration on the spot at the very outset.

Truman's economic valedictory also noted that he quit office with the nation more prosperous than ever. Under wise policies, he foresaw a paradise for everybody seven years hence. Deliberately or not, his final report was a chip-on-the-shoulder challenge to his successor.

DOWNWARD TRENDS—Now, as a result of recent economic changes, the Eisenhower family cannot be sure whether the greater threat is inflation or deflation. They have discovered definite weak spots in the nation's economy.

Farm income and employment have fallen heavily, with possible curtailment of this important market for consumer and heavy goods. Exports are dropping steadily, hurting agriculture, industry, shipping. General purchasing power is creaking up, as evidenced by the unprecedented number of retail sales. The "ike boom" in the stock market has halted. Industrial expansion and private construction are slowing down. There are many other downward trends.

Although these are not alarmingly serious conditions, they are telltale signs. While they foreshadow no recession or depression for the immediate future—1953 or 1954's first six months—their long-range implications are pessimistic, barring the equally unpleasant prospect of war or a permanent military budget of $50 billion a year.

You Come First, After Me

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Monday morning Jamie Keeter of Pitt County ABC Store No. 1, Dickinson Avenue, called me and said, "Jack, drop by here when you get a chance. I've got something interesting to show you."

When I arrived at the store I had to agree with Jamie that he did have an unusual and gratifying sight: One of the March of Dimes iron lungs was completely full of money—coins and folding green!

No doubt you have seen the iron lung displays all over town. It's a counter display, held by a cardboard stand, comprising a miniature iron lung, six inches long and three inches in diameter, with plenty of slots for coins.

Here's how Mr. Keeter filled the lung: He placed the display prominently on the counter, leaning against the cash register he uses. When he gave each customer his change from his purchase of liquor he would give the display a gentle tap with his hand. His action spoke louder than words, because the customers filled the lung in 9 days! One customer told Jamie, "OK. So you want to help the March of Dimes. I'll put a dollar in the thing for every dime you put in."

Quickly, Jamie grabbed a dollar out of his pocket and crammed it in. The customer, true to his word, put in a $10 bill.

At 11:30 on Monday morning business was pretty slack in No. 1, so I had a chat with the three clerks there: Jamie, B. F. Moore and B. G. Taylor. We agreed that Pitt County's plan of alcoholic beverage control is the best plan. To face facts, there have always been alcoholic beverages and there probably always will be. With our plan, the county realizes a tremendous revenue from the sale.

Here are the facts from the last fiscal year: The Pitt County stores did a gross business of $1,699,629.70. Of this amount, a profit of $169,048.16 was turned over to Pitt County.

The tax evaluation of Pitt County is $60 million. Using that figure as a basis, the profit from the ABC stores is worth 28 cents per hundred in tax rate. In other words, our tax rate is 90 cents and would be $1.18 if there was no revenue from liquor sales.

Of this business, Store No. 1 on Dickinson Avenue turned in $432,000. "This is interesting work," one of the clerks said. "All types of people come into the store. The problems of working in an ABC store are limited to two: (1) not selling people who are intoxicated, and (2) not selling people under 21. And I thank Jamie."

By LYNN NISBET

RALEIGH—To a greater degree than usual the nominal and actual leadership of the General Assembly is the same. Senate President Luther Hodges and House Speaker Gene Bost obviously gave more consideration to real ability than to mere seniority in selecting committee chairmen and vice chairmen. It is equally apparent that political affiliation and geographic residence were given less than usual attention. On second thought, may be these considerations did influence selection of committee leadership, but in ways that might be considered unorthodox.

PROGRESSIVES—None of the top chairmanship assignments went to reactionaries, and none went to irresponsible radicals. Analysis of the men and the jobs given them shows disposition on part of the legislative presiding officers to bring into services of the State certain talents which may have been hidden in past activities.

BREAKDOWN—To the money committees, for first example, Senate Finance is headed by Claude Currie of Durham and House Finance by Wm. B. Rodman of Beaufort. Senate appropriation committee is headed by John D. Larkins Jr. of Jones and the House committee by J. Kemp Doughton of Allegheny. Currie is a building and loan association executive; Rodman is an attorney who has a corporation clientele, mainly railroads and banks. If the calendar could be turned back 50 years the corporate connections of these men might look very bad for the common people. In the middle of the 20th century there are few more alertly progressive outfits than building and loan associations and banks in promoting development of the State. Currie and Rodman will bring to their committees in consideration of any tax bills the new concept of their businesses, which is for a fair and equitable distribution of the total tax load.

APPROPRIATIONS—On the spending end Senator Larkins and Representative Doughton have peculiar fitness. Larkins has been in the Senate most of the time since 1937, has served as President Pro-Tem of that body and as chairman of appropriations in 1951. As a member of the advisory budget commission he visited all the State institutions last year and helped to prepare the budget report now before the Assembly. Doughton, a third term in the House, inherited a flare for government finance. Son of Rufus A. Doughton, whose record of service included many sessions of the General Assembly, a term as lieutenant governor, one time commissioner of revenue and former chairman of the highway commission; nephew of Robert L. Doughton, North Carolina's greatest contribution to the Congress who had longest tenure in history as chairman of the congressional ways and means committee; and in his own right an experienced national bank examiner and expert on fiscal matters, Kemp Doughton is an excellent man to steer the biggest appropriation bill in history.

C. & D.—Importance placed by both presiding officers on conservation and development is evidenced by naming outstanding leaders to head those groups.

Grady Rankin of Gaston in the Senate and Alonso Edwards of Greene in the House. Rankin is a textile and utilities executive, a veteran of many legislative sessions having twice served as chairman of the finance committee and last year was president pro tem. Edwards is a farmer, also a veteran of legislative leadership, past president of the N.C. Farm Bureau, a former member of the State Board of Education and presently on the advisory budget commission.

OTHERS—Occasional surprise appointments, especially in the Senate, upon analysis prove to be sound. The point is illustrated by selection of Dr. Paul Jones of Pitt, a practicing dentist in agricultural section, as vice chairman of the committee on manufacturing and labor. President Hodges explains that the hope of balanced progress in North Carolina depends upon industrial development in the East. So he picked one of the leaders in the area for a position where he can get acquainted with the problems before the arise.

DISAPPOINTED—State employees generally were pleased with budget recommendations for a 10 per cent salary raise, and particularly the feature making the raise retroactive to July 1 of last year as had been proposed by Governor Unstead. Several of them have voiced disappointment that amount to cover the increase for the current fiscal year was included in the big general appropriation bill rather than in a separate supplemental measure. They think if it had been separately offered it might

What Other Papers Are Thinking

TOM-FOOLERY? IT'S AN APT ANALYSIS (Charlotte Observer)

We can't believe that the General Assembly will give more than a negative headshake to that bill introduced by Representative Robert Carr and several other House members—the one that would permit motorists to get their drivers' license renewed by mail, without an examination. In view of the impelling need for tightening highway safety requirements, rather than relaxing them, the Carr bill is a somewhat incredible proposal. Driver license tests in North Carolina are not, at best, stringent enough to weed out all the people who have no logical business behind the wheel of a speeding automobile. If one's eyesight is fair, and mind sufficiently retentive to memorize a few rules in a free manual, there's little difficulty about the matter of obtaining a license. On renewal applications, a driving test is seldom required. But the current regulations, with their provision for in-person renewals at four year periods, do afford some measure of assurance that the obvious misfits will be deprived, eventually, of their right to risk their own lives and the lives of their brethren on the public streets and highways. We concede the irritating potential of the visit to the license examiner's office. Frequently, one must wait for varying periods for his turn at the eye charts and the written test. But it only happens once in each four years and is insignificant in comparison to other delays that occur daily and even hourly in the personal routine.

Representative Carr calls it "tom-foolery." Under his bill a driver could get his license renewed by submitting a sworn statement, certifying that there have been no changes in his mental or physical condition and that he has been involved in no major automobile accident since the last renewal. The drivers' license requirements need to be strengthened, not stricken. And there's only one word for the Carr proposal. He used it himself.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Transportation strikes in Philadelphia and New York and walk-outs in industry elsewhere are symptomatic of considerable labor unrest. This may be quite a striking year. However, there are two factors that may serve to keep strikes somewhat in check.

One is the fact that Congress is planning to overhaul the Taft-Hartley Act this year. Undoubtedly, many proposals to curb unions will be proposed. Labor leaders will caution against actions, such as last year's steel strike, that will tend to strengthen demand for these curbs.

The second factor, and one not all too certain, is that there are prospects for a slight reduction in income taxes which, by increasing take-home pay, will relieve some of the pressure for higher wage demands.

On the other hand, factors for causing strikes are still strong. Vigorous demands for higher wages are in prospect. A survey of labor union economists by Business Week disclosed that they are recommending action for a new, eighth round of pay increases. Gains made last year by coal and steel unions are steaming up many leaders to demand commensurate boosts for their president, is seeking to have his auto workers' five-year contract with the manufacturers reopened.

While no politically inspired strikes are in prospect, some unionists may be influenced in their decisions by the fact that President Eisenhower was elected despite their opposition. After their defeat, it will be only human for a union to want to show strength.

Wage controls have done almost nothing to check strike-weighted demands for pay rises; nevertheless, the probable end of controls this year will serve as a psychological go-ahead signal for fresh demands.

On the other hand, employers faced with doubts about maintaining present volumes of sales—and perhaps a few counting on a more friendly if not helpful attitude in Washington—may show stiffer resistance to union demands.

And the oft-predicted dip in defense spending may be a strong incentive to labor unrest. Workers will want wages scaled up while business is still booming; employers will want to hold present scales in fear of a dip. That bodes no peace.

BBB ASSN. WARNS OF 'HEARSE CHASERS'
The association of Better Business Bureaus, Chrysler Building, New York 17, has published a four-page leaflet, "Facts Every Family Should Know About Funerals and Internments." It is the leaflet warns against the operations of "hearse chasers" and other fringe operators, and conveys considerable praise for funeral directors of reputation and character.

SEEN AS WINNERS
Appliance manufacturers are betting heavily on infra-red electric broilers this year.

No less than a dozen companies are displaying new models at the National Housewares Manufacturers Association's show in Chicago, and these items appear to be getting a heavier sales and marketing push than almost any other type of product.

Both interest and orders have been high at the show and exhibitors have been cheered by the fact that the preceding Winter Home Furnishings Market reported sales averaging from 10 to 15 per cent above last year's.

LIQUIFIED FOOD BEING MARKET-TESTED
A food manufacturer (Kingsan Co., Indianapolis) is experimenting with a liquid food that is neither a soup or drink. It consists of beef, beefs, carrots, tomatoes and potatoes, liquidized and homogenized. It is now being tested in 8½-ounce cans in consumer markets and is reported to have gained acceptance, especially among persons on liquid diets. The company, however, hopes that the demand will eventually be broader than that.

BUSINESS THINKING IN QUOTATION MARKS
"Any merchant who depends upon mail advertising when he should be using newspaper advertising will surely lose sales, if not his shirt."—Howard A. Robert Simpson Co., Toronto.

"When a housewife buys $10 worth of groceries from an efficient grocer, he makes a net profit of about 15 cents. The state of Iowa, in collecting a 2 per cent sales tax on groceries, makes more on the operation of a large-volume supermarket than does the owner."—B. Stillman, executive vice president, Iowa Chain Store Council.

"Too many of us are allowing chain stores to govern our thinking. They've scared us into taking action which we really don't want to take."—Max Hess, Jr., independent merchant, Allentown, Pa.

Hal Boyle's Column

Editor's note: Hal Boyle wrote a column describing the kind of ideal husband every woman needs. Today his wife presents a firm rebuttal:

BY FRANCES BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—This time my little man has really put his foot in his mouth.

That is no mean feat for a man who wears a 10-C shoe. Sometimes I feel my husband was responsible for killing vaudeville by trying to get into the act. Everyone today is giving bachelor gals advice on what kind of man would make them the best husband.

It's ridiculous, but for my own Rover boy to do it—well, it simply dulls the edge of wonder. He couldn't advise an unmarried lady porcupine. How can one wife's strolling nightmare tell any other girl about the man of her-dreams?

So far as women are concerned, my husband's mind dwells in an ivory tower-size 7½. His information about them is largely based on a childhood reading of the Elsie Dismore series—and what the big boys in the Army whispered to him. He needs to brush up on "What Every Lad Should Know."

The best thing you can say about his efforts to pose as an authority on the better sex is that he is like a good-hearted schoolboy with 12 thumbs trying to help the girl next door thread a needle.

Where does he get his ideas? Well, girls, let's see: He says you really don't yearn for a man who is tall, dark and handsome—that is just imagination.

I don't want to be ruthless with my breakfast buddy, but the facts are:

(1) He himself can't see the pictures if he sits behind a tall man at the movies.
(2) What is left of his muddy-gold locks is turning to silver, and
(3) The nose he flattened as a kid is a perfect match for his smile-ear to ear. Neither of us mind that. Somebody has to look rugged. That's my Rover—rugged . . . rugged . . . rugged.

Now, as to his advice about marrying a bald-headed man because baldies are more romantic and better breadwinners. Could this be because rugged Rover himself looks every day less like an airhead and more like a Mexican hairless dog? You can't keep trying to crawl headfirst through a pillow each morning to hide from an alarm clock without rubbing off some hair.

And Mr. Boyle's idea of romance and finance is as follows: "I'm going to take you out tonight. How much money you got?" His prescription for the ideal husband also calls for one who is a tea-drinker (intellectually stimulating) and a cigar-smoker (more sociable). He himself drinks tea because his mother did. I don't know who taught him to smoke cigars. But did you ever try to give a goodbye kiss to a man with a lit cigar stub in his mouth? How sociable can a man get!

Let me conclude Mr. Boyle's analysis with this point: He works for a man who is tall, dark and handsome. His boss presumably earns more lake-home pay, and he has been bringing it home to the same wife for 10 years longer than Mr. Boyle has been borrowing lunch money from her. His boss has a fine full crop of hair, smokes cigars and drinks coffee.

My own advice, girls, is this: Marry any man you like—even the rugged type. It isn't vintage year for the male. They're all habit-forming.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—There was small bedlam in the house this Price Daniel, new senator from Texas, rented for his family. "Excuse me, please," Mr. Daniel interrupted our interview. "I've got to refer to this. It's the first time the children have had a TV set and they're all getting in front of each other. We didn't have TV in Texas."

The little audience comprised of Price Jr., 11; Jeanie, 10; Houston, 7, and John, 4, whom the family calls "Brother John" (after the nursery rhyme, "A Boy Sleeping, Brother John"), finally settled down. "There's lots of things we have to get adjusted to up here, but it's going to be a wonderful experience for all of us," Mrs. Daniel, a slender and most attractive brunette, explained.

The Daniels are selling their home in Austin, Tex., bought six years ago when Mr. Daniel became the state's attorney general. They're living in the rented house until they can move into a newly purchased home here. "With four growing children, it wasn't easy to find something big enough we could afford to rent over the next four years," she said. "We came up a month before Congress opened and looked at rentals and decided it would be cheaper to buy. We found a house one block away from a school. What a mess there was there only one street for the children to cross, and it was a dead-end street."

Price, Jr., loves Washington. He's hoping to be a member of Congress himself one day. His mother said. He took the stump for his father during the campaign. His speeches were his own and unrehearsed. "We thought he'd get up and say, 'I hope you'll vote for my father,' Mrs. Daniel told me. "Instead, he said, 'We hope you vote for Price Daniel for U.S. senator—not because he's my father but because he has a platform Texans like, and another time he would say 'Vote for Price Daniel. He will work for a better future for the boys and girls of America.'"

Fert, brown-eyed, Jeanie hated most to leave her home in Texas. "Why do we have to go to the children of a senator and go to the Capital?" she asked. "Why can't our daddy be a filling station operator and we stay put?"

Mrs. Daniels insists she has no special talents, that she just tries "to be a good wife and mother." She came from Houston and attended Rice Institute and the University of Texas, where she will miss weekends and vacations on their farm at Liberty, Tex., but are looking forward to Capital sightseeing.

Ayden Officials Address Rotary On Town Gov't

AYDEN — Mayor Corey Stokes told the Ayden Rotarians last Friday night that the city government had spent $135,000 in permanent improvements since he was appointed mayor three years ago.

"Much of it can be seen, and some of it is hidden", the mayor explained.

"The fire truck costing $14,000 and other features are evident, but the 3,000 feet of 6-inch watermain, costing a large sum of money, cannot be seen", he added.

Other permanent Ayden improvements are a fire house costing less than an appraised value of $20,000 or more, eight fire hydrants, 1 1/2 miles of 1 1/2-inch water pipe, 7,000 feet of sewer lines, remodeling of the town hall, police station and the jail. Powell Bill funds have provided for black-topping all streets, and seven blocks of new street have been paved.

Mayor Stokes reminded these improvements had been provided at only a 25 cent increase in tax rate; and "that was for the years 1951 and 1952."

Alderman Harry Mumford pointed out that the bonded indebtedness of Ayden stands at $43,000. The town owns $40,000 in government bonds, and holds $5,000 in its sinking fund, which makes the town completely solvent, he explained.

Mumford noted the budget for 1951 was $150,000; and $161,000 in 1952. "Taxable property in Ayden totals $1,500,000," he said, "with a tax rate of $1.50."

Court solicitor Robert Booth then described to Rotarians the operations of the Recorder's Court, which has a jurisdiction of five miles outside Ayden.

"Each year a sizable sum is transferred to the General Fund", he reported. "All fines go to the Pitt School funds and $1.00 of the cost of each case goes to the Police Protective Association, an organization that helps injured or sick officers, their wives and children."

Rotarian Wilbur Ormond won the On-Time Prize, and Warren Kinlaw won the Fellowship Prize, Gilbert Davis had as his guest Donald V. Harroway.

President Ralph Hardee appointed Wilbur Ormond as Institutional Representative of Boy Scouts, Garland Bullock was elected as a delegate to the District Conference, and Roy Turnage, Jr., as alternate delegate.

No Superstition In Barn Emblems

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (U.P.)—Colorful medallions that decorate the well-kept barns in the "Pennsylvania Dutch" area had their source in Germany, date back to pre-Christian days and, contrary to common belief, have nothing to do with witchcraft, according to Harry H. Kauffman of Pennsylvania State College.

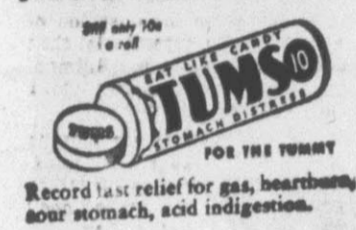

The professor of poultry husbandry extension said the emblems evolved from family coats of arms or were indicative of family names.

Kauffman, who studied the tradition in Germany, said some of the signs can be traced to the sun wheel design of pre-Christian days, when the sun was worshipped as provider of everything bountiful.

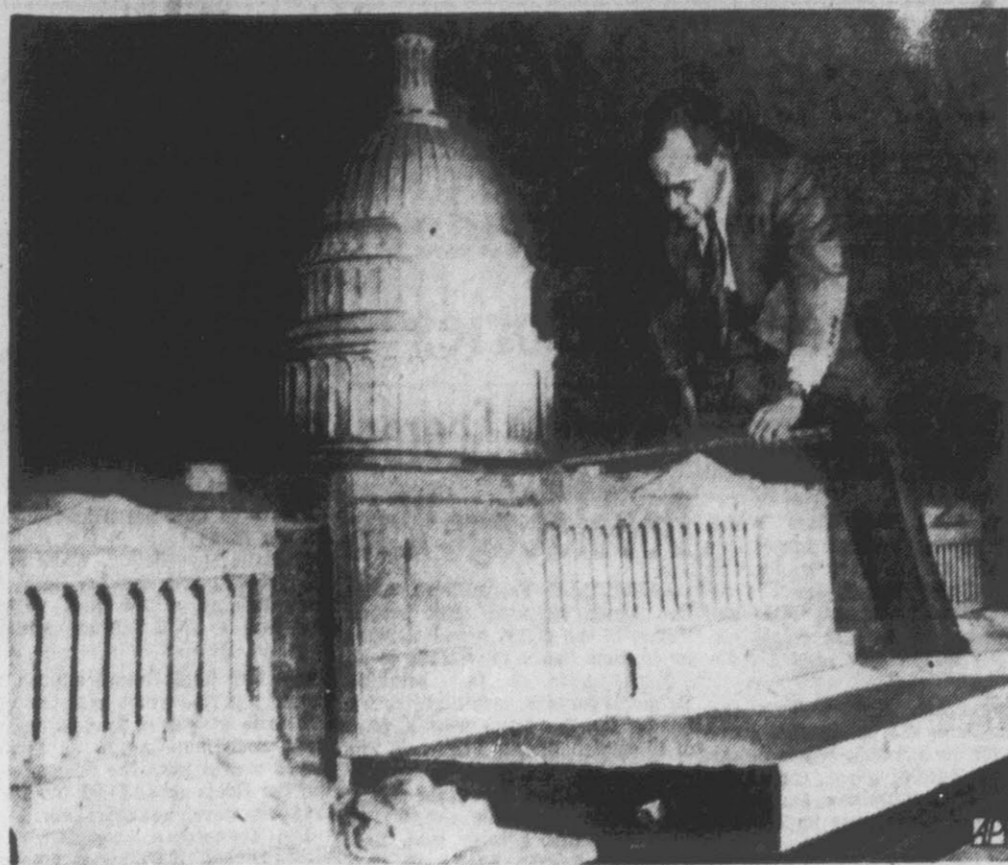

Some of the seals painted on barns, he said represented a contract between father and son, who is expected to care for his parents as long as they live in exchange for his land heritage. If the agreement is broken, neighbors may remove the seal.

Kauffman decries the common belief that the medallions are used to protect the family from hexes.

States Hunting Parking Space

CHICAGO (U.P.)—Cities in at least 32 states and the District of Columbia are authorized to condemn properties for public parking, the American Society of Planning Officials reports.

Some states empower all their cities to condemn property for parking purposes and others grant the right only to certain cities.

State giving cities power to condemn property for public parking space are Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

In 1941 only 211 of all cities over 10,000 population were known to own or operate public parking lots, the society said. But by 1951 the number had grown to 484, or nearly 43 per cent of the cities over 10,000 population.

MANHASSET, N.Y. (AP)—After some anxious moments two policemen managed to return a blue heron found on a busy street here to its natural marshland habitat.

The tall bird seemed bewildered by the bright lights when the policemen captured it and put it in a patrol car. The angry bird ripped a hole through the patrolman's notebook and the floor mat of the car with its long bill.

The policemen locked the heron in a nearby service station for the night and the station proprietor returned the bird to its natural habitat in the morning. The proprietor, who wasn't expecting to see the bird when he opened up in the morning, said, "I thought for a minute I was in Florida."

Bird Bewildered By Civilization; Is Returned Home

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—From 3,000 applicants, Brazil's federal price and supply commission investigated and picked 400 "trustworthy" volunteers to check on merchants' prices.

But it is not going to ask for more volunteers, and has already discharged the 400 it has.

A goodly percentage of the 400, commission chief Benjamin Cabero said, already had made the rounds of merchants, collecting in advance for favorable reports.

Alien Marriage Racket Is Bared

MANILA (AP)—The National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) reports it has uncovered a new "marriage convenience" racket to facilitate the entry of alien Chinese women into the Philippines.

The NBI says its agents discovered that hired Filipino "groom" go to Hong Kong and marry Chinese "brides" who then legally enter the Philippines. Once inside the country the Hong Kong marriage is quickly forgotten.

"Actual re-marriage of the Chinese woman with her real spouse here," says the NBI, "is just a matter of contacting the right parties in the Immigration Bureau who can give the woman documentation as a resident alien."

A certificate issued to the woman showing her as a resident alien presumably smooths the way for a quick legal marriage to a Chinese national living in the Philippines.

New Luxury Liner Is Soon To Sail Ocean

NEW YORK (U.P.)—When the new Italian luxury liner, Andrea Doria, sails into New York harbor late in January, the event will mark the return of Italy's merchant marine to pre-World War II status.

The 30,000-ton ship will make its maiden trans-Atlantic run with a distinguished passenger list from its home port of Genoa. The Andrea Doria recently passed all its trials and then made a tour of Mediterranean and Atlantic ports prior to going into regular New York-Genoa service.

The liner is air-conditioned throughout, including the garage, into which passengers may drive their automobiles from the dock, and quarters for pets, which may lounge on inner-spring beds and enjoy hot and cold showers.

Italian Line Flagship

Some statistics of the Andrea Doria:

Tonnage—30,000 gross tons.
Length—697 feet.
Beam—90 feet.
Draft—30 feet.
Speed—23 knots cruising; trials, 25.6 knots.

Carrying capacity—1,250 passengers and 575 crew.

Power—Two groups of turbines developing 50,000 horsepower with twin screws.

Construction—Largely electrically welded; bridges prefabricated.

The Andrea Doria will be the flagship of the Italian Line, joining the Vulcania, Saturnia, and the Conte Biancamano in the New York-to-Italy express service.

The new ship was built in the Ansaldo yards in Genoa and was launched on June 16, 1951. The Andrea Doria will be joined by a twin ship next year.

Named For Admiral

The Andrea Doria leads the name of a famous Genoese admiral of the 16th century. He liberated his native city and was honored by the Genoese senate with the title "Father of His Country."

Andrea Doria was a youth in Genoa when his more famous townsman, Christopher Columbus, sailed to discover America.

The Andrea Doria leads the world's luxury ships in at least one respect. It is the first of the trans-Atlantic ships to be equipped with three outdoor swimming pools, one for each of the classes. The three lido decks of the ship are stepped back toward the stern to provide for the pools, sun space and game areas.

The ship was designed by the Italian architect, Minoletti, who was joined by more than 40 artists of his country in decorating the ship with murals, inlaid panels of exotic woods and statues, one of which is of Admiral Andrea Doria.

The liner is air-conditioned throughout, including the garage, into which passengers may drive their automobiles from the dock, and quarters for pets, which may lounge on inner-spring beds and enjoy hot and cold showers.

Refugees Pouring Into West Germany's Haven

BONN, Germany (U.P.)—One-fifth of West Germany's population already are refugees, and they still are pouring in from Sovietized East Germany at the rate of 15,000 a month.

The 10,000,000 refugees already here are considered Europe's potentially most explosive group. They may someday lead to a new German "Drang nach Osten" movement, if their presence here does not wreck the national economy first.

"The problem of the expellees," Refugee Minister Hans Lukaschek had said, "is today Germany's central problem, because it affects all areas of the state, economic and private life. The political, economic, social and cultural shape of Germany in the future depends in the main on the solution of this problem."

Chief Problem Because they are Germany's chief problem, Lukaschek further contends, the Council of Europe in Strasbourg should consider them Europe's key issue, too. West Germany, he pointed out recently, has nine times more refugees than all the other 13 members of the Council of Europe together.

Lukaschek hopes to visit the United States early in 1953 to begin talks leading to a loan either from the U.S. government, the World Bank, or both, in order to finance refugee resettlement programs.

The refugees never wanted to come here in the first place, their sole ambition is to return home and the average West German wishes they would. Politically, their party, the All-German Bloc, has recently turned sharply to the right, and may soon set up a clamor for the western allies to seek to free their homelands of Soviet occupation forces.

Eight million of them came from east of the Oder-Neisse line, or from Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Rumania. The remainder came from and still are arriving from the Soviet occupation zone of Germany, with the Russians deliberately keeping the migration going in hopes of thereby wrecking the West German economy.

Tax Imposed Unfortunately, the bulk of the refugees are massed in the rural provinces, already jammed with bombed-out city dwellers and burdened with a serious unemployment problem. During the past two years, the federal government has undertaken to shift 600,000 refugees from the agricultural to the industrial areas, and a month ago announced a further 300,000 would be moved in 1953. But this program, already running six months or more behind schedule, is but a drop in the bucket.

Last fall, the federal parliament approved after two years of committee work a massive law under which $15,000,000,000 will be collected by a special levy over the next 30 years and redistributed to refugees who have lost their properties in the east.

But the refugees are dissatisfied even with this, on grounds that, if they are to build a new life, they must have the capital to finance it now, not in dribs and drabs over the next three decades, by which time many of the refugees will have died. The present arrangement, they complain, is little better than a dole.

Strike Inspires Night Shootings

HENDERSON, N. C. (AP)—The Vance County sheriff's department here was continuing its investigation today of several shootings at homes of miners working at the strike-bound Tungsten Mining Corp. near here.

Sheriff E. A. Cottrell said last night that window panes have been shattered in a number of homes by shotgun blasts, but that no one has been injured. Cottrell reported that the latest incident occurred Monday night when the homes of one white worker and several Negro miners were fired at.

The sheriff said that so far there were no clues as to the identity of those responsible for the shootings. He added there has been no violence at the mine site, 12 miles from here, where pickets have been patrolling for several days.

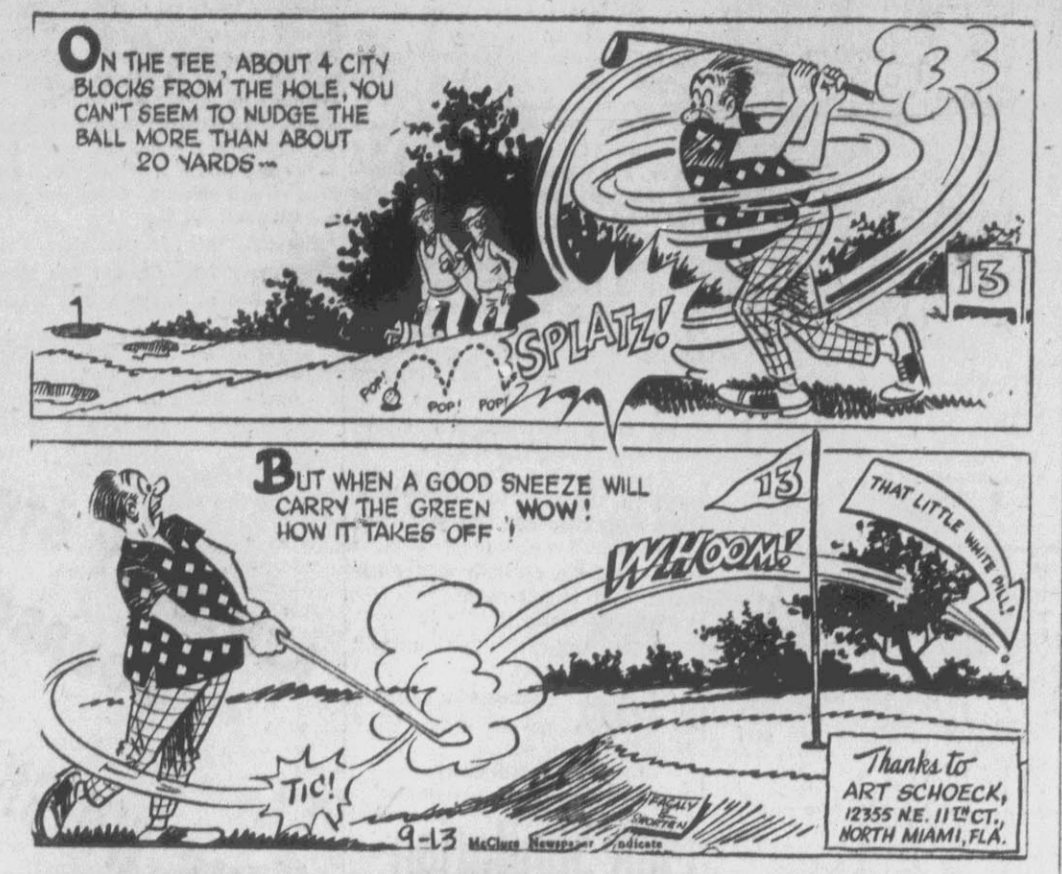

The strike of most of the 450 miners began 10 days ago after the company discharged two miners for allegedly violating underground work regulations. Company officials said yesterday that the mine is now operating night and day shifts.

WRONG TAXI DETROIT (AP)—A 40-year-old car washer lurched up to a police scout car, got in and ordered, "The Clinton Hotel." Instead he got a free "taxi" ride to jail where he was charged with drunkenness. Later in court the judge gave him his choice — $10 or 10 days.

Jap Fishermen Say Russia Shot Down U.S. B-29

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese fishermen just released from Soviet captivity said today they saw Russian fighter planes and ground guns shoot down a U. S. B29 Superfort last Oct. 7 off Northern Japan.

One fisherman said he saw two Russian fighter planes chase the B29, heard gunfire and then: "Black smoke started to stream from the American plane and it crashed into the sea at a tremendous speed."

The fishermen gave their accounts to Japanese reporters at Nemuro on the northern island of Hokkaido. Three fishing craft with 22 crewmen were released after six months of hard labor on the Russian-held island of Yuri near Hokkaido. They had been seized for allegedly poaching in Russian waters.

The accounts they gave varied in some detail but most said they saw two Soviet fighters chase a B29 while they were fishing under Soviet orders.

The fishermen said Soviet soldiers guarding them immediately ordered the fishing boats back to Yuri, where they were put under confinement. They made no mention of sighting any parachutes from the B29.

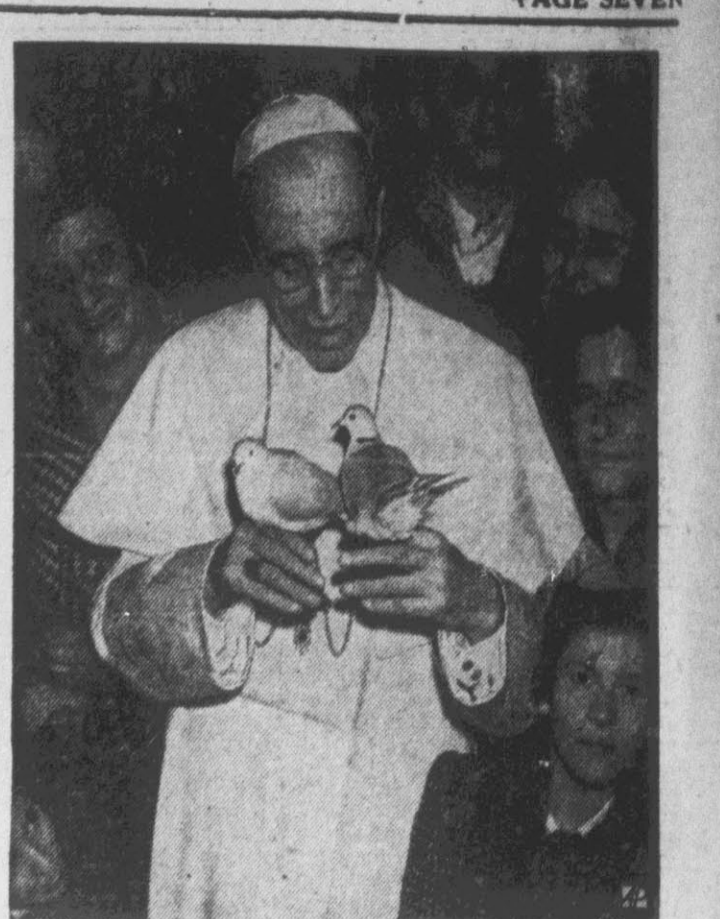

The U. S. government hotly protested the incident to Russia, demanded compensation for the "wanton and unjustified attack" and warned of possible grave consequences from the "reckless practice."

Yoshio Miyaho, 35, said he and 15 other Japanese prisoners saw a Russian plane dive at the Superfort and "fire furiously."

Moments earlier he had seen a single-engine plane and a four-engine aircraft flying side by side. The single-engine plane suddenly went into a dive, its guns firing.

The four-engine plane, he said, faltered and began to lose altitude, leaving a trail of smoke. It disappeared behind a hill.

Miyaho's account made no mention of a second Russian fighter nor did he say anything of ground fire.

Eisenhower Gets Down To Fine Points In His Next Big Address

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP)—It's when he delivers his State of the Union message to Congress, probably within a couple of weeks, that President Eisenhower may get down to details on what he intends to do.

His inaugural address yesterday simply outlined his position. He is now, as before election, an internationalist. It was reassurance to this country's allies if they had any doubt.

Former President Truman, in almost all his farewell messages, talks and interviews, gave very little space to domestic problems. He put the big emphasis on foreign affairs.

Eisenhower did the same thing yesterday. And in general he pledged himself to follow Truman's basic foreign program.

He wants good world trade and continued foreign aid for, and cooperation with, American allies. He's willing to seek disarmament. The latter probably won't happen. Russia has their own ideas on that.

But Eisenhower indicated he may be thinking of plans that go beyond Truman's. In the campaign he criticized the Truman administration for a lack of what he said he considered effective planning against Russia.

Truman said recently his suspicions of Russia began in earnest shortly after the war when Stalin wouldn't pull his troops out of Iran. Truman decided on a showdown right there.

He warned Stalin to get out. Stalin did. Truman's quick action, and reaction, paid off. He reacted again when the Communists began to push against Greece and Turkey. That time he set up a new Monroe Doctrine by throwing this country's arm around Greece and Turkey and giving them aid. The Communists lost out.

The Marshall Plan for helping Europe recover economically was of a longer-range nature. It was supposed to last at the outside four years. Before it could end, the cold war with Russia became hotter. Then this country entered into the North Atlantic Pact, this country's first peacetime military alliance with Western Europe, and gave arms. At the same time the U.S. urged its Allies to set up a European.

This looked much further into the future than the Marshall Plan. In fact, Secretary of State Acheson last year said strong armaments might be necessary for a generation.

"This policy worked out by Truman and Acheson — surrounding Russia with armed strength to discourage any Russian military adventures without starting war with Russia—has become known as "containment."

If Eisenhower doesn't spell out his ideas in ABC fashion in his State of the Union message, he will have time to do so when he later submits his specific programs to Congress.

Study Of Religion Termed Fundamental In Education

The factual study of religion in the public schools is fundamental in general education, Dr. Clarence Linton, professor of education at Teachers College, Columbia University, stated at a meeting of the East Carolina College faculty Monday afternoon.

Dr. Linton, who is a visitor on the campus during Religious Emphasis Week, distinguished between "factual study" and the teaching of religion in the future to create belief or to indoctrinate. He emphasized the rights of the citizen to freedom of belief.

Dr. Linton has recently made a national survey on the subject of religion in public education for the Commission on Religion and Education of the American Council on Education. His study is based on data compiled over a wide area in this country.

In beginning his discussion of the controversial subject, Dr. Linton gave as basic assumptions the ideas that religion is an important factor in human life and "intrinsic to the on-going experience of education."

A three-fold goal of religious instruction in the schools, he stated, is to make young people "literate about religion" to make them "intelligent in understanding the role of religion in human affairs," and to give them the "sense of personal obligation to achieve conviction."

Three approaches in education, he said, are the avoidance of religious instruction; planned religious activities, such as weeks of Religious Emphasis held on many campuses in the nation; and the factual study of religion. The last, he said, seems the desirable type of instruction in general education.

Issues involved, he pointed out, are "Will the public let you do it?" and "Can we prepare teachers for doing the job?"

Lack of religious instruction in the schools, he said, tends to create the effect of making religion seem unimportant in education. After many years, he concluded, we may achieve a change. In the interim, he advised, only highly trained teachers should be allowed to experiment in the public schools to see what is involved in the factual study of religion as part of general education.

Chapter 30

The company out at Les Fleurs finished up ten days later, after a driving week of work. Mario and Joe working like fiends, and Anthea beside them taut, watchful, efficient, being everything from assistant promoter to ward-robe mistress, at Mario's elbow every minute of the day.

Mario pulled himself together, and beckoned with both his hands, and his cast and assistants wearily pulled themselves together, and gave their attention.

"Finito," he said. "Here it is all over. Today is Friday. You will get a studio call for Monday week in London, a week from next Monday. Until then you can do as you please. Those who wish to come with us by plane on Sunday, please tell Miss Grainger, and she will see about reservations, and I have taken a table at the Ambassadors this evening for . . .

The brown-faced boatman started up the engine, and they began to run smoothly across the shining water toward the harbor mouth. Joe, lying flat on the deck, looked at Anthea, sitting on a barrel, with brown elbows on brown knees, and her head in her hands.

"Anthea," he began, when Gina came, and deliberately dropped down between them and familiarly slipped her hand into the breast pocket, of Joe's shirt taking out his cigarette case, taking and lighting a cigarette. "What you going to do next week? Are you going to take a vacation? I'd like to go some place really cool. Maybe up in the mountains. I don't want to go back to London for another week. I've got some friends here; I don't know anyone in London."

He backed the car, breathed a sigh of relief when the tires hit into the grass verge, and pulled the car back on the road. He drove up through the wrought-iron gates, opened the car, and got out. There was no one about. One or two of the light iron tables and chairs were overturned on the terrace, and as he went through into the salon, he saw two sharp, clean marks in the paint on the lintel—bullet marks. In the hall he heard Bianca clamoring over the telephone. Here it comes, he thought philosophically. The company is going to be pleased with this. Back to the road again! Perhaps Anthea won't mind linking her life to two itinerant gypsies.

He stood by Bianca's elbow, and said, "Phoning the police?" Bianca shook her head, and gabbled in Italian, "No, for a car. Gina's getting out. He just tried to kill her."

He took the receiver out of her hand, and put it down.

"Where's Mario?"

"With Anthea swimming."

"Where's Gina?"

"Upstairs." Bianca was as white as a sheet, and shaking. "She's going."

Milk Sanitarian Visiting Dairies

B. L. Jessup, milk sanitarian for the State Department of Health and the U.S. Public Service, is visiting the county this week inspecting dairies and pasteurization plants.

Jessup is working with W. M. Pate and Lionel Evans, sanitarians with the Pitt County Health Department in making surveys and inspections of the dairies and pasteurization plants that serve Pitt County.

Following the inspection, a report on their findings will be turned over to the local health department director, Dr. Walter Humbert, from which sanitation grades will be given to each dairy and plant.

The announcement of the grades received by the dairies and plants will be made at a later date by Dr. Humbert.

Humbert said all permits under which the dairies and plants operated which were previously issued have been declared void and new permits will be issued when the survey and inspection is complete.

Eight Recently Taken Into Army

Eight men were inducted into the Army through the Pitt County Selective Service last Thursday, the first induction from the county during 1953.

January 5, 74 men were sent from the county for pre-induction examinations. Another pre-induction is scheduled for January 27.

Those who left for induction Thursday were: Gus Hardy Jr., Mills Street, Greenville; Samuel F. Artis, Route 2, Ayden; Robert Lee Rouse, Falkland; Lenor Edward Smith, Washington, N. C.; Ben Worsley Jr., Route 5, Greenville; Robert Graham Ward, Route 1, Fountain; Fred Lee Anderson, Route 2, Winterville; and Billy Clark Harris, Farmville and Washington, D. C.

Herbert Teel Jr. transferred to New Jersey for induction and Kenneth E. Brooks transferred to Washington, D. C.

The local selective service board has listed two men as delinquents. They are Roosevelt Gardner, Negro, Route 2, Winterville and Route 1, Greenville, and John the Baptist Gay, Negro, Farmville and Washington, D. C. Anyone knowing the whereabouts of the men listed as delinquents are asked to contact the Pitt County Selective Service Board.

Draft calls for February include a pre-induction for 37 men on February 6, a pre-induction for 37 on February 27, and an induction February 17 for 25 men.

HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—When George Ransom chose a 30-day jail sentence instead of a $20 fine, he didn't reckon on one thing—homesickness. On the 19th day a friend appeared before the deputy court clerk, gave him $1 and explained: "This is to get George out of jail. He wants to go home."

When tobacco was first taken from America to Europe, it was thought to be a wonder drug having great healing powers.

Rev. C. D. Patterson filled his regular preaching appointment at Ballard's church on Sunday morning. There were 71 present for Sunday School.

Miss McMurray, returned missionary from Africa, will make a talk at the church on the evening of Feb. 3. More will be said about this later.

"The Youth Crusade for Christ" program was well attended at the Ballard's Community Building on last Saturday evening. The leader is the Rev. Wells and the young people from this and surrounding communities are showing a great deal of interest in the program. Rev. Paul Black will show a missionary picture on this Saturday evening, the 4th in a series on the life of St. Paul. Everyone is invited to these services and they are interdenominational. Evangelist Black closed a most successful two weeks revival meeting at the building on Sunday evening.

He began a week's series of meetings in the Gritton Community Building on Monday evening, Jan. 18, at 7:30. Rev. Wells leads the singing.

On last Friday evening Mrs. Lester Worthington was hostess to the Women's Auxiliary of the Piney Grove Baptist Church. The meeting opened with the group singing followed with a prayer by Mrs. Hubert Crawford. The Bible study and program was given by Mrs. Floyd Mills, reading for the scripture reading a part of the 9th chapter of Acts where Philip preached to the Ethiopian eunuch. The theme of the program was "Every Woman Enlisted for Christ" during the new year. Mrs. Mills presented some very helpful thoughts on how everyone could be enlisted, using Bible examples of Lydia, Mary, Martha and others. She closed with a prayer.

At the business session, presided over by Mrs. Clarence Little, the group voted to pay $50.00 on the piano recently purchased for the church by the Junior Auxiliary and to purchase a floor mat for the church. Mrs. Mildred Humbles was appointed to purchase the mat. Mesdames Pyrene Tyson, Raymond Tyson and Mildred Humbles made reports on the Christmas cheer that was taken to the sick and shut-ins.

At the fellowship hour the hostess, assisted by her daughter Alma, served chicken salad sandwiches, Coca-Cola and roasted nuts to 19 members and three visitors. Mesdames Austin Briley, Chester Worthington and G. S. Nichols, who added their names to the roll.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Harris are spending several weeks in Orlando, Fla.

Mrs. Alton R. Thomas of Bethel spent several days with her mother, Mrs. Ray Crawford, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Anderson and Mrs. Davenport of New Bern were visitors of Mrs. Verna Joyner last Wednesday. Mrs. Anderson is Mrs. Joyner's sister.

Mesdames Job Tyson Sr. and Jr. of near Farmville and Miss Lorene Andrews, student nurse at Park View Hospital in Rocky Mount, were visitors of Mrs. Roy Smith Jr. last week.

Mrs. G. T. Tyson, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tyson, visited relatives near Gatesville last Sunday.

Mrs. Becky Tripp of near Greenville was a week end visitor of her daughter, Mrs. Clifton Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Elks visited relatives near Raeford during the weekend.

Mrs. E. M. Tyson, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. James Fuller, in Moultrie, Ga. for the past two weeks, returned home Sunday.

Seaman Roy Smith Jr. of Norfolk, Va. spent the weekend with his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Bateman and children and Mrs. Verna Joyner were guests of the Misses Exums in Greenville Sunday afternoon.

EDUCATIONAL RUT SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (UP) - W. Richard Galt Duane Jr. is the ninth generation Duane to attend Union College here. The first of the line to be interested in the 168-year-old institution was Judge James Duane, a member of the Continental Congress and first mayor of New York City.

KP 16 KP CAMP PICKETT, Va. (UP)--After Pvt. Frank Morgan failed to show up for KP duty he was listed as absent without leave. Later he was found on mess duty at another dining hall. Morgan said he couldn't be blamed if all mess halls look alike before daybreak. And the mess sergeant couldn't be blamed for not turning away an extra helper.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks turned irregular just before noon today after displaying firm tendencies at the opening. Trading was dull.

A few selected issues managed to move out of the narrow range. Trading was very slow. Sales in the first hour totaled only 360,000 shares, compared with 310,000 in the same period yesterday.

There was nothing in the day's news to sway prices either way. Investors generally awaited developments in Washington.

Texas Pacific Land Trust was one of the few stocks that moved out of the narrow range. It spurted 8 points to 186. Superior Oil of California on one transaction declined 3 points to 54 1/2. Allegheny Corp. rose 5 points to 140.

In the carriers, Missouri Pacific preferred at one time held the spotlight. It rose to 55 1/2, but at the end of the first hour it backed down to 54 1/2, up 3/4. Other carriers generally were neglected.

Automotive shares eased. Fractional declines were noted in General Motors and Chrysler.

Herbert Hoover Basks In Inauguration Honors

By WARREN DUFFEE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The pink-cheeked old man who went out in gloom 20 years ago basked yesterday in the reflected glory of a new Republican President.

That roar from the throngs along the inaugural way was something Herbert C. Hoover must have thought often that he would never hear again.

The cheers were primarily for Dwight D. Eisenhower. But not since his own inauguration as the last Republican president in 1929 had the aging Mr. Hoover heard anything like the ovation he got behind Mr. Eisenhower.

For 20 long years the Democrats had hung the word "Hoover" around the GOP like a political millstone. And the 78-year-old ex-president sometimes seemed a forgotten man, not only to the public but to his own party.

But the softening years mellowed them all—the Republicans, the public, and Mr. Hoover himself. And yesterday, only Mr. and Mrs. Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon and his wife got more recognition.

Curtain Time Approaches For 'Kiss Me Kate'

The glittering fanfare and glamour of opening nights and theatrical first nights will be reproduced in Greenville next week when "Kiss Me Kate" comes to the city for a one-night stand.

Scheduled to open on the stage of Wright Building, located on the campus of East Carolina College, the touring Broadway musical will feature the immortal music of Cole Porter. The noted composer wrote the entire score — lyrics as well as music.

Acclaimed a smash musical comedy hit on the New York stage, the touring troupe will sing and dance its way through a script described as "hilarious." Performers will also interpret such hit tunes as "Wunderbar, So In Love With You Am I, Always True To You In My Fashion and I Hate Men."

As is the case with all hit shows, when the production showed to New York audiences, theatergoers were plagued by the evils of ticket speculators, who pushed prices for tickets to phenomenal heights.

One of the pleasures of local theater-going is that conditions of that nature do not prevail. The top price for tickets is $2.40, with less-advantageous seats going at $1.80 and $1.20. They may be purchased at the General Insurance Agency in Greenville.

Harry Douglas, chairman of tickets for sponsoring Jaycees, said only approximately 300 reserved seats remain for the show. However, he stated a number of unreserved seats will go on sale at the box office the night of the performance.

"Tickets are going fast," Douglas explained today, "and I would urge all persons interested in attending the show to purchase their tickets as quickly as possible."

The box office will open at 6 o'clock the night of the show to dispose of all tickets that may remain from advance sales.

Short Session Of Recorder's Court

Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of a short session of City Recorder's Court today.

Five of the eight cases tried this morning were for speeding.

Speeding: James D. Mathis, Jesse C. Whitehurst, each paid $15; while Charles J. Larue received a 30-day suspended sentence upon payment of $15, and not to operate a motor vehicle for seven days; Dalton W. Council, 30 days, suspended upon payment of $25 and not to operate a motor vehicle for 10 days; Larry E. Tetterton, 30 days, suspended upon payment of $25 and not to drive for a period of 10 days.

Drunk: Marvin Stocks, 60 days, suspended upon payment of $10.

Disorderly conduct: Cleveland H. Tait, 30 days, suspended upon payment of $10 and not visit city of Greenville for six months.

John W. Bunch Jr. was found not guilty of failure to keep proper look out.

Capitol Square

(Continued from page four) have passed and procedure for making payments much started earlier than will be the case under the plan adopted.

ETRA — Most state workers had expected the extra checks in February or March. Chances are they will not be forthcoming until May or June. One philosophical fellow admitted he could use the money right now, but that after all it was in the nature of an extra bonus rather than a "debt owed" and he'll be glad to get it any time.

HONEST — The man was counting the cash in the little red box attached to one of these help-yourself newspaper selling racks and checking it against the number of papers missing. The reporter asked if the box checked up short very often. "Not up here around the State buildings," he said. "At my place further down town there is frequent shortage in money, and occasionally some one drops in a penny and picks up a newspaper."

TRESPASSING — It's a violation of Senate rules for a member of the Senate to attend a session of that body. An original oversight perpetuated through the years makes the Senate rule covering those permitted in the chambers to read "members of the House of Representatives" in the House rule which reads "members and officers and clerks of the General Assembly."

Army Alarmed By Flu Epidemic In West Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Alarmed by a flu epidemic in the American Zone of Germany, U. S. Army authorities made plans today for widespread inoculations among 250,000 American troops.

The Army's European Headquarters at Heidelberg said it did not have figures yet on the number of military personnel hospitalized but scores of soldiers and Army civilian employees were reported on the sick list in Frankfurt.

An outbreak of flu in Bavaria this week has caused nine German deaths at Munich, filled the city's hospitals, and closed 27 schools where more than 40 per cent of the students had fallen ill.

The flu also hit Garmisch-Partenkirchen, winter sports center, where the world bobbed championship races start Saturday.

Mutinous Convicts Risking Extra Time

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (UP)—A pistol-shooting band of mutinous convicts at Rockview Penitentiary risked serving additional "time" today by spurning Gov. John S. Fine's ultimatum to end their riot.

The prisoners, who have been holding six guards as hostages since the riot began Monday night, were expected to reply to the governor's blunt statement during the day.

Fine Tuesday told the rioters, through state Attorney General Robert E. Woodside, to yield the hostages and six pistols by seven o'clock Tuesday night or he would see to it that "substantial time" was added to their terms.

Shortly after the deadline passed, 200 hungry inmates in the smaller blocks returned to their cells, but a hard core gang of 325 holdouts in the main cell area answered the ultimatum with two random pistol shots.

A ringleader in the riot told state Deputy Attorney General Edward Friedman "nothing doing" when he went to the main cell block at 7 p.m.

"The governor's message was just what we are protesting," a spokesman said. "We want the situation cleared up, but the governor now threatens to add more time to our sentences."

"We're keeping the guards and the guns," another riot leader yelled.

State police and prison guards were ready to enter this prison in the mountains of Central Pennsylvania at any moment when authorities felt that force must be used to quell the riot.

A contingent of Pennsylvania national guardsmen, who participated in President Eisenhower's inauguration parade in Washington Tuesday, returned to Pennsylvania ahead of schedule with orders from Fine to stand by in case they were needed.

But prison authorities believed that hunger would force the holdouts to surrender. They have not eaten since they started the riot in protest against what they called poor conditions at the prison.

When the prisoners were asked again to surrender late Tuesday night, one of their spokesmen said the rioters had bedded down for the night and the governor's ultimatum could not be discussed until morning.

They assured prison officials that none of the guards had been mistreated.

The rioters said at the start of the uprising they wanted better food, changes in the parole system and improved conditions.

Watched While His Car Stolen

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP)—Robert B. Brown told police he called at a parking lot to pick up his car and watched while a man got in it and drove away.

"I didn't think much about it at the time," he said. "It was about 10 minutes later before I realized my car had been stolen."

BELRLIN (UP) — East German Communist youth got a suggestion today for a "happy winter day" program—throwing snowballs at targets representing President Eisenhower and other Western leaders.

"Watch how well our friends will aim," the Communist Free German youth publication Young World said, "for everybody would like to hit the splash faces of those warmongers."

Although wild cranberries were available to the first settlers in what is now the United States, the berries have been cultivated only since the white man came to the country.

Happy Thought For Young Reds

BELRLIN (UP) — East German Communist youth got a suggestion today for a "happy winter day" program—throwing snowballs at targets representing President Eisenhower and other Western leaders.

"Watch how well our friends will aim," the Communist Free German youth publication Young World said, "for everybody would like to hit the splash faces of those warmongers."

Although wild cranberries were available to the first settlers in what is now the United States, the berries have been cultivated only since the white man came to the country.

Card of Thanks
The family of the late Richard Dickens wishes to gratefully thank their many friends for their cards of sympathy, floral designs, use of cars and services so cheerfully rendered during his sudden death.

The Family

The Ladies Social Sorority Club will meet Tuesday night, January 20 at 8:00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Mayne Ruth Hopkins, 1002 Travis Lane. There will be a voting meeting. All members are urged to be present; if not they will be fined $1.00.

Iowa Legislature Suspects 'Omen'

DES MOINES, Ia. (UP) — The Republican-dominated Iowa Legislature wondered today if it had seen the handwriting on the wall.

Then Harry S. Truman's picture was replaced yesterday with a portrait of President Eisenhower a note was found on the back of Mr. Truman's likeness. It said: "Out to lunch. Back in '56."

Taxpayer Finally Eased His Mind

CHICAGO (UP)—A Chicago taxpayer had a load off his mind and his pocketbook today.

Internal Revenue said they had received a check for $1,000,000—the biggest single individual payment of 1952 taxes in the Chicago area. The name of the taxpayer was not disclosed.

Doubleheader Inaugural Close Down Early Today

WASHINGTON (UP)—Exhausted Republicans shuffled their throbbing feet out of their doubleheader inaugural ball early today to ring down the curtain on a wild three-day jubilee ending 30 years of political frustration.

The climax of the marathon merrymaking was so formal even press photographers wore tails.

It was so popular it was split in two sections. And it was so crowded the GOP played double-or-nothing with the fire laws—and won. No fire.

It featured both living Republican presidents—present and past—and lesser politicians by the carload. Not a few of these were Democrats like Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), who once dreamed the 1953 inaugural ball would be for him.

President Eisenhower and his family spent an hour in the presidential box at the National Guard Armory and then hurried away to put in an appearance at the other half of the affair at Georgetown University Gymnasium.

But they got off to a late start. Like many another husband, the new President whipped into his white tie, tails and horn-rimmed glasses in jig time—and then had to wait.

After 15 minutes, Mrs. Eisenhower, her daughter-in-law, and Mrs. John S. Doud, Mrs. Eisenhower's mother, finally appeared—the first lady in a white fur jacket over a new pink gown and bouffant skirt.

Nine bandleaders—including Guy Lombardo and Lionel Hampton—sent sweet and fast music through the halls, gaily decked out in white, gold, a little blue and large pastebord eagles.

But there wasn't much dancing, what with the crowd. While the dancers were on the scene, the crowd mostly watched them.

When they weren't present, everyone just bumped into everyone else—five-star generals like Omar N. Bradley, movie stars, dowagers and diplomats, former President Herbert Hoover, and a sprinkling of ordinary folk.

Vietminh Forces Capture Outpost

SAIGON, Indochina (AP)—Vietminh guerrillas today captured the strategic mountain pass outpost of Deo Mong, about 275 miles north of Saigon, routing the French-led Viet Nam garrison after an all night battle.

French reports said the fleeing Viet Nam garrison in Northern Annam suffered heavy losses.

The dawn capture by the Communist-backed guerrillas posed a serious threat to the important Anhe Fortress which straddles a main supply road half-way between Saigon and the northern port of Haiphong.

The French have been digging in with reinforcements around Anhe, where they expect an all-out battle with the Red-led insurgents. The fall of Deo Mong gives the guerrillas an open route over the mountains, through which they can bring in supplies and reinforcements from bases in Annam.

The outpost fell just as planes from the French carrier Arromanches took off to bombard the attackers in supporting air action.

So Excited They Left Her Alone
MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—The passengers and driver of a city bus became so excited when a 30-year-old woman began suffering labor pains that they all jumped off the vehicle to go for help and left her to have the child alone.

The "abandoned" woman, Mrs. Marie Parrott, gave birth to a five pound one-ounce girl by the time solution fellow passengers and policemen arrived back at the bus.
