Special Emphasis On Blood Collections

Red Cross Goals Discussed

By MURIEL SHOTWELL, Reflector Staff Writer. Red Cross officials from 11 counties in eastern North Carolina and the national office gathered here yesterday for a regional meeting in which plans for the 1953 Red Cross campaign were discussed. Convening in the auditorium of the Flanagan Building at East Carolina College, the representatives of 11 county chapters and officials from the national Red Cross office in Atlanta spent the first portion of the meeting in a panel discussion. Methods of conducting campaigns were discussed at length with ideas being exchanged by the various chapters represented. The forum was conducted by Jewel Graves and F. D. Hollowell, field representatives; K. C. Lattimer, director of the Southeastern Area, and Hoover Taft, Pitt County chairman. Gamma Globulin Brought up at the forum by national officials was the additional importance of the Red Cross Blood Program since the development of a polio serum, gamma globulin which is derived from blood. Lattimer, in the second session of the meeting, explained that the Red Cross is the only source of the polio serum from blood given voluntarily. He pointed out that the serum is not sold, but given. "We don't buy or sell, we ask and give," he stated. Lattimer showed an outdated bottle of serum, two cc's of which he said was taken from one-half pint of blood. The size bottle he showed was the average dose for an infant. Lattimer explained that seven cc's of the serum in the average dose for a child of which it takes one and one-half pints of blood to obtain dosage for a child. Lattimer reviewed the work of the Red Cross as pioneers in all the fields which it has taken part. He brought out that three major fields, nursing, social work, and accident prevention, which have been taken over by government and private groups. "In the words of President Eisenhower, the Red Cross is the warm heart of a free people," said Lattimer. Two Korean veterans, one on convalescent leave from Korea were present at the meeting to tell what the Red Cross was doing overseas. One of the veterans, a young lieutenant, told how he was given Red Cross blood at a battalion aid station in Korea and then traced Red Cross activities from the aid station to a Tokyo hospital. The veteran said he was given the comforts of home by Red Cross in the form of magazines, books, cigarette, and everything he needed. He said the volunteer workers in the hospital helped wounded men constantly and that Red Cross was a morale builder by its activities. The other veteran told of his services administered by the Red Cross when he was at the Po River in Italy during World War II. He said portable canteens carrying coffee and doughnuts, came almost to the line of fighting to serve the soldiers. "I heard later that one of the Red Cross workers, a young girl stationed on the canteen, was wounded by fire from the enemy," he said. The veteran also told of how he was loaned money by the Red Cross to get back to his home on an emergency leave. Summary A summary of the panel discussion was made at the beginning of the second session of the group. In the summary it was brought out that public information and well organized plans were the main features in conducting a successful campaign.

Criminal Term Of Court Ends; Father Gets 30-Years Sentence

A Greenville Negro yesterday drew 30 years in the State penitentiary from Superior Court Judge Henry A. Grady for the alleged rape of his 16-year-old daughter. Moses Moore had originally been charged with the capital crime of rape, but he was allowed by Solicitor W. J. Bundy to plead guilty to the lesser charges of assault with intent to commit rape and incest. The New Bern jurist sentenced Moore to serve 15 years on the assault with intent to commit rape charge, and handed down an additional 15 year on the guilty plea to incest. A conviction on the rape charge could have meant the death penalty. Dangerous Weapons Marcus Bailey, James Curtis Hatchell and Edgar Griffin were all charged with breaking and entering and larceny with dangerous weapons in their possession. All pleaded guilty to the charge. Griffin was sentenced to 12 months on the roads, suspended for three years on condition he remain of good behavior and pay one-third of court costs. Sammy and Profit Sneed were charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, but they were allowed to plead guilty to lesser charges. Sammy pled guilty to forcible trespass and was sentenced to six months on the roads. Profit was sentenced to two years on the roads suspended for five years. Both men were ordered to pay costs of the action and told not to be found within the boundaries of the state of North Carolina for the next five years. A charge of carrying a concealed

Truman 'Ready For Social Life' As Soon As He Gets Unpacked, Thongs Told

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UP)—Former President Harry S. Truman promised today that as soon as he helps his "loss," Mrs. Truman, unpack he'll be ready to step out for a little social life. "I won't be available for a while. Mr. Truman told a noisy crowd of 10,000 that he has returned home Wednesday night. "But as soon as I get through with the job the boss' has for me—unpacking what it took eight months to pack—I'll be ready for dinner invitations. "I'll probably be hungry by then," he quipped. The town of Independence showed the Trumans in a tumultuous way that it was glad to have them home. The cheering crowd that met their train completely ignored a detail of Missouri state highway patrolmen and sheriff's officers. The officers were pushed aside when Mr. Truman and his wife,

Two Flee Pitt Road Gang Today

Bloodhounds On Trail; Prison Officials And Highway Patrol Surround Area

By ROY HARDEE, Reflector Staff Writer. STATION MILL—Two fleet-footed prisoners broke from a Pitt County road gang early this morning and are still being hunted by prison and highway officials. The escape took place on the Big Oak Road, about seven miles from here.

BULLETIN

Two bedraggled road camp escapees, Herbert Wilson and Clyde Conley, were captured at about noon today near the Pitt-Martin County line in the vicinity of the Flat Swamp Church.

Four men recaptured the pair after an intensive hunt lasting approximately three hours. Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson, Deputy Duke Andrews, and prison camp guards Paul Harris and Horace Vincent made the capture.

Camp Superintendent Paul Crawford listed the escapees as: Herbert Wilson, home address unknown, and Clyde Conley, of High Point. Crawford stated that one of the men was serving time for assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. Crawford was unable to furnish complete details on the two men, since all records on the men were at the prison camp near Greenville. Both were wearing prison clothing when they escaped at 9:15 this morning.

William Carlisle, workman for a drag line operator from Edgecombe County, stated he was some 300 yards from the prisoners who were working on the road when the two escaped.

"I was coming down the canal at the time a state truck pulled up to the road, and started to unload a load of gravel. This blocked the guards' vision, I think, and the two men ran away.

"They were two of the fastest running men I have ever seen," Carlisle said. Apparently the two men timed their break so that they would be running in a direction which would make it impossible for the guard to fire on the fleeing prisoners, for fear of hitting the workman.

"I ran out into the field to get away from the men, and they continued down the canal, hiding along the piled-up mounds of dirt which had been removed from the canal," he stated.

The prisoners, part of a ten-man work crew, were being used to fill in a hole in the road with dirt and gravel which had been removed in order to place tile under the highway to drain the canal which is being constructed.

Bloodhounds, hurriedly brought to the scene, quickly got the scent of the pair and bore down on the trail. Highway patrol cars circled the area in an effort to block any avenue of escape for the two men.

The bloodhounds tracked the two men down the canal for a long distance and then they were traced to a logging camp and then into the dense woods with the dogs still hot on the trail.

Other prisoners in the road gang were rounded up in their trucks and brought back to the prison camp.

Religious Census To Begin Jan. 25

A Pitt County Religious Census, under the direction of the county ministerial association, will get underway Sunday, January 25, and continue through February 15. The county census committee, made up of five ministers, has appointed county township chairmen to be responsible for the census in their community by appointing persons to work with them in taking the census. The census committee is made up of Rev. E. W. Holmes, chairman; Rev. E. L. Ehrhardt, secretary; Rev. E. G. Cole, Rev. Phillip Corey and Rev. Rashie Kennedy. The following are township chairmen: Ayden, Rev. Charles Craddock; Beaver Dam, Mark Smith; Belvoir, Mrs. H. A. Moore; Bethel, Rev. Joe Russell; Chicof, Rev. Lee Willingham; and Carolina, W. E. Overton. Falkland, J. E. Watson; Farmville, Rev. Z. B. Cox; Fountain, E. B. Beasley; Greenville, Rev. C. D. Patterson; Pictonus, Mrs. J. Paul Daventport; Swift Creek, Rev. Horace Quigley; and Winterville, Rev. E. G. Cole. A spokesman of the association said it is hoped that each family in the county will be reached and full cooperation given to the workers. "If for any reason," the spokesman said, "anyone is missed in the census, the township chairman can be contacted and needed information given."

His Moonshine Is Almost Fatal; Warns Officers

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UP)—C. L. Grimes, 30, staggered into county police headquarters here and sank into a chair. In a rasping voice he told officers he had drunk a quart of his latest batch of moonshine whiskey Monday. Only yesterday he had the strength to walk 14 miles from his farm to the jail for treatment, he said. "Get rid of the stuff before it kills somebody," he said. A jail physician found that Grimes' mouth, throat and stomach had been burned severely from metal acids which the whiskey had dissolved in the galvanized drum he cooked it in. "I drank a quart of it and I feel like I'm dying," he wheezed. "If it did this to me it would probably kill anybody else." He explained that he was accustomed to drinking with no ill effect. An investigator from the alcohol tax unit analyzed the whiskey and agreed it probably would kill most persons.

Eisenhower Attitude Definitely Unchanged

Still Wants Charles Wilson

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower has not changed his attitude toward Charles E. Wilson in the Senate controversy over his appointment to be defense secretary, the White House said today. Mr. Eisenhower's feelings were disclosed amid reliable reports that Wilson is considering selling his $2,700,000 General Motors stock—which senators say he must do in order to be confirmed. White House press secretary James C. Hagerty gave reporters a flat "no" answer when asked whether Mr. Eisenhower had changed his attitude towards Wilson. He brushed aside requests for amplification. Hagerty said the President had one telephone conversation with Wilson since the two talked at length at the inaugural ball Tuesday night. Mr. Eisenhower has not formally submitted Wilson's name in nomination to the Senate and Hagerty said that "as far as I know" the nomination will not be sent today. Hagerty also was asked whether anyone else is being considered for defense secretary and he brushed that aside, too, refusing to say. A source close to the former GM president said he was still reluctant to part with the controversial stock, but "probably" would do so if no other way can be found to bail the Eisenhower administration out of the politically-embarrassing dilemma. Senators of both parties were emphatic in saying there is no other way to get Wilson confirmed. Some even thought the situation had gone so far that President Eisenhower might find it politically expedient to drop Wilson, stock sale or no, and find a new defense secretary. Selling the GM stock would be a high price for Wilson to pay for the privilege of serving in the new Republican cabinet. He would be liable to a capital gains tax of 26 percent on the "profit" portion of the sale proceeds. How much the tax would come to cannot be computed, except by Wilson's personal accountants, since it depends on what he paid for the stock when he bought it and other factors. Associates said, however, it was not the money but the principle of the thing that caused Wilson to balk at selling the stock. It was learned President Eisenhower suggested selling the stock in a talk with Wilson Tuesday, and Wilson told the chief executive he feared such a course would reflect on his "integrity." What Wilson meant, associates explained, was that he is too honorable to let stockholdings in a private firm influence his official decisions as defense secretary, and he does not like to give the appearance of admitting that it is necessary for him to sell his stock in order to be an honest Cabinet official. It was indicated that Mr. Eisenhower sympathizes with Wilson's position, but the new President had other factors to consider too—notably the prestige damage which his administration would suffer from having a cabinet appointee rejected by the Senate. A highly-placed Democratic source, who cannot be named, said that "almost all" Democratic senators were ready to vote against Wilson if Mr. Eisenhower should ask that he be confirmed without selling his stock. The informant said the Democrats were "certain" of enough Republican support to defeat the nomination under such circumstances. A member of the Senate Republican Policy Committee agreed that Wilson "could not be considered" and predicted that Mr. Eisenhower would "without shedding his stock" would "have to withdraw the nomination."

China 'Protests' Violation Of Territory

Claim B-29 Downed Over Manchuria

TOKYO (UP)—Communist China protested today over Radio Peiping that an American B-29, which it said had been shot down Jan. 12 nine miles inside Manchuria, had violated Chinese territory. However, the U.S. Air Force said the bomber was shot down in North Korea, well outside the Communist Chinese border. The Red radio station said 11 of the 14 crew members parachuted and survived, but the other three died. The 11, the broadcast mentioned here said, were put in detention camps. Radio Peiping, propaganda voice of Red China, said the B-29 carried the number 44-62217 and was commanded by Col. John Knox Arnold. The report said the B-29 was shot down by Red Air Force planes near the Manchurian town of Wu Lung Pei on the main railway line between Northeast China's capital and industrial center of Mukden and the Korean battlefield. Communist China's Premier Chou En Lai followed the radio announcement with a protest directed to the U.S. government. He said the bomber's flight was a "serious act of provocation" and part of the American plan to "expand" the Korean war. He warned that it was one of a "series of outrageous aggressive actions" which "the Chinese people absolutely cannot stand." The Far East Air Force, in a statement six hours after the Peiping broadcast, confirmed loss of the aircraft but denied that it was attacked or shot down inside Manchuria. It said "friendly radar" was plotting the B-29 as it flew high over North Korea that day on a psychological warfare mission of dropping news leaflets on North Korean towns. The Air Force said the B-29 was attacked by 12 enemy aircraft well south of the Manchurian boundary. It said the B-29 transmitted a distress signal "and it is presumed it was shot down at that point," 12 to 15 miles south of the Yalu River. Peiping said crew members Maj. William H. Baumer, operations officer of the 91st Strategic Reconnaissance Squadron, and Capt. Eugene John Vaadi, in addition to Arnold, were aboard the B-19. Those were the only names dropping news leaflets on North

Guaranty Bank Has 'Best Year'

Fifty-Second Annual Stockholders, Board Meeting Held

The fifty-second annual meeting of Guaranty Bank and Trust Co. stockholders was held yesterday and stockholders representing over 50 thousand of their sixty thousand shares of stock outstanding attended. W. H. Woolard, president of the bank, presided. In commenting on the report for the year's operation, President Woolard stated the unfavorable crop season in 1952, especially for the Greenville territory, caused a $10,000,000 decrease in sales on the Greenville Tobacco Market alone from that of 1951. This naturally had a depressing effect on business generally in this community. Notwithstanding these conditions, he stated the bank on the whole had its best year in point of earnings, deposits, and total resources. He referred to the growth of the institution during the past ten years. In 1942 it had capital, surplus and profit of $74,000 with total resources of $15,000,000. At close of 1952 it had capital, surplus and profit of $2,000,000, with resources of $44,000,000. He expressed appreciation of the loyal interest of the directors, officers and employees, and the liberal patronage received from the public. The report of J. H. Waldrop, vice president and comptroller, showed total deposits of $42,381,412.18. His reported indicated earnings in excess of any previous year. After reserving $153,000 for income taxes, $125,000 was added to undivided profits. He stated that $200,000 had been added to surplus account from undivided profits, giving the bank a total surplus of $1,200,000 with common capital of $600,000, leaving $195,780.20 in undivided profits. $60,000 in dividend checks, representing a payment of 10 percent, were distributed to stockholders. A silent prayer was offered in memory of the following who died during the year: (Continued on Page 16)

Secretary Of State Warns His Employees Dulles Wants Full Loyalty

By DONALD J. GONZALES, United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles opened his foreign policy stewardship today with a warning to 16,500 U.S. diplomatic employees that the highest "competence, discipline and positive loyalty" will be demanded of them. Anything less, Dulles said, will not be tolerated. The 240-word message was distributed to all State Department employees in this country and radioed to 300 American missions in 75 countries. It was his first move to restore the prestige of the U.S. diplomatic service, damaged by disloyalty in the past. While he called for "positive loyalty" to the new Republican administration's policies, Dulles emphasized that "loyalty does not call for anyone to practice intellectual dishonesty or to distort his reporting to please superiors." He said the United States can have effective foreign policies only if its overseas diplomatic representatives send home "honest evaluations of the facts." The message was delivered at home and abroad as Dulles moved into the fifth floor suite of offices in the State Department occupied by Dean Acheson for four years. The day was a memorable one for the 64-year-old lawyer-statesman, who had long aspired to guide American diplomacy. Dulles indicated the State Department and foreign service will be shaken up and perhaps reduced in personnel after he and his aides have surveyed the present organization. He promised all possible "consideration" for veteran employees, but said "the national welfare must be given priority over individual concerns. Dulles said American diplomats "as a whole" are loyal. "You are worthy heirs of a noble tradition," he said. "I am honored to be one of you and I am confident that, under the leadership of President Eisenhower, we shall go on to deserve well of the nation we love and serve."

Stockholders Of Loan Ass'n Meet

The 47th annual Stockholders' meeting of the Home Building & Loan Association was held in their office Tuesday night at 7:30. Executive Vice President W. Lee reported revealed that 1952 was the best year in the long history of the association. Assets increased $664,160 or 31%. $927,125 was made in new loans during the year, $626,200 of this amount being loaned on new homes. This showed a net increase in mortgage loans of $577,500. The net increase in share accounts was $505,000. The association had a net income of $88,770.89, of this amount $61,239.69 was paid to shareholders and $27,531.20 was placed in reserve accounts. The following directors were elected for the coming year: K. W. Cobb, David A. Evans, J. S. Ficklen, C. Heber Forbes, R. M. Garrett, J. B. James, W. W. Lee, James T. Little, N. O. Van Nortwick Jr. and J. J. White. Immediately following the Shareholders meeting the directors met and elected the following officers: C. Heber Forbes, president; R. M. Garrett, vice president; W. W. Lee, executive vice president and secretary; Mary Dell Seymour, assistant secretary and treasurer; J. B. James and W. W. Speight, attorneys.

Capias To Be Issued For County's Tax Delinquents After Indictment By Jury

Three of the 23 delinquents indicted by a Pitt grand jury Tuesday for failing to list 1952 county taxes pled guilty to the charge yesterday and were taxed with costs of the action. In view of the fact the three defendants listed and paid their tardy taxes yesterday, Judge Henry A. Grady suspended judgment in each case but ordered the trio concerned to pay court costs, which totaled $17.50 for each person involved. And a few minutes previously, on the first floor of the courthouse, County Auditor Reginald Gray had listed their 1952 taxes, collected for that amount and calmly billed them an additional 10 percent penalty for late listing. Issue Capias Clerk of Superior Court D. T. House Jr. said this morning a capias will be issued for each of the 20 remaining defendants, and their cases will be placed on the criminal docket for trial at a later term of Pitt Superior Court. "Issuance of a capias will automatically elevate total court costs in each case to $20," the clerk stated, "because standard charge of serving a capias is $2.50." Before any criminal action was taken regarding late listers, two notices were mailed out to each of the delinquents which requested that they appear to take care of the matter. Later those who had not complied were subpoenaed by the sheriff's department. Outnumbered Sabers Add Four More MIGs To Score Of 'Kills'

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—American Sabre jets, again outnumbered two to one, shot down four Communist MIG-15s and damaged three others in air duels over North Korea today. The American kills came on the heels of yesterday's seven sure kills, two possibilities and three damaged to bring this year's MIG total to 28 destroyed, four probably destroyed and 25 damaged. It brought the two-day confirmed toll of Red jets to 11 destroyed and seven damaged. Sabre pilots also made one other destruction claim and three damage claims today which have not yet been confirmed. Capt. Ophine D. Overton III of Andrews, S.C., shot down one of the MIGs to bring his personal total for the two days to three destroyed and one damaged. Second Lt. Robert D. Carter of Bluefield, W.Va., had an additional damage claim confirmed from yesterday's near-noon-foray after gun camera film was examined. Heller, it was reported, almost clipped the pilot of a MIG he destroyed. He said the pilot "passed close over my right shoulder. His parachute blossomed over my right wing." The Sabres were flying convoy for marauding fighter-bombers when formations of MIGs boiled from their Manchurian sanctuary to attack the Allied fighters. Ten Sabres dived after 20 MIGs and knocked down four and damaged three. The dive bombers meanwhile slammed bombs and rockets into targets in North Korea. Pilots reported enemy anti-aircraft fire "went from intense to unbelievable." Col. Walter Warford of Chickasha, Okla., said, "When I went in on my bomb run I could see the stuff bursting right under my nose." On the ground "United Nations raiders battled Communist troops in savage combat in no man's land south of Panmunjom while Allied tanks ripped holes in the Reds' central and western defense positions. One Allied unit ran into a surprise battle on the western front but was able to shatter an unexpected Communist unit and drive it back to the protection of Chinese lines after a fight of undisclosed length."

In the afternoon, Miss Iola Wooten of Ahsokie served tea at one end of the table while Mrs. E. G. Anderson poured coffee at the opposite side. The mantel was artistic with silver sprayed leaves and natural leaves of similar color, gerandes each holding three tapers were on either end. A bouquet of chrysanthemums completed the arrangement.

Mrs. Mayo Little, an accomplished pianist, accompanied Mrs. Everett James and Mr. S. L. Roberson who entertained the guests with appropriate songs. Mr. Ted Roberson of Washington was the soloist during the evening.

History Students Conduct 'Election'; Stage Congress

Sam Winchester, a Greenville High School junior, was elected president of the student congress of American history classes in the county Tuesday.

Winchester was elected by the student "house of representatives" after a tally of the student electoral votes failed to give a majority to any one candidate. Steve Farish, a member of Strat Trripp's Ayden American History class, was elected vice-president.

When adult attention was focused on Washington, the Pitt county students divided their attention between the national inauguration and their government project, the election and inauguration of a president from the students who are studying American history.

The history classrooms of Ayden, Bethel, Chicod, Grifton, Greenville, and Stokes are organized as states of the United States. Each classroom's number of electoral votes, and number of representatives are determined by population (class enrollment).

The student "speaker of the house", Jimmy Phelps, administered the oath of office to President Winchester and Vice-President Farish during the Tuesday afternoon session of the joint congressional session in Greenville's Municipal courtroom.

BALLOT COUNTING

Farish, president of the senate convened the congress at 10 a. m. yesterday and stated the purpose of the joint session as being for counting the presidential ballots. In this American history experiment in government, no student received the majority of the electoral votes necessary to elect.

When the election was considered by the house each state (classroom) had one vote. A second roll call of schools was necessary to break a first ballot tie and resulted in a seven-to-four majority that elected Winchester.

The student electoral ballots were scattered among 15 candidates: Bobby Browning, Greenville, three; Harold Edwards, Ayden, five; Steve Farish, Ayden, 27; John Gray, Jr., Stokes, two; Michael House, Bethel, 8; Phyllis Jackson, Grifton, four; Wilbur Jackson, Ayden, one; Sybil Jones, Chicod, seven; Bobby Langston, Greenville, 18; Curtis Patterson, Greenville, three; Jimmy Phelps, Greenville, one; Claxton Stanell, Greenville, one; Shelby Waters, Bethel, nine; Sam Winchester, Greenville, 11; and Sam Worthington, Greenville, six.

Legislation

The student congress voted favorably in both houses for bills and resolutions to lower the voting age, to admit Alaska, to elect presidents by popular vote, to televise sessions of congress, to deport persons guilty of revealing "any atomic secret," and to have stricter narcotic laws.

The last legislative act was a house of representatives resolution that placed the house on record as endorsing the "recent" 29-year re-sume of the Democratic party. All bills "enacted" will be submitted to

Mrs. Luther Herring talked briefly on the prospects for action by the legislature on matters concerned with education.

Mrs. J. E. Winslow, who had just served on the state nominating committee for officers for the coming biennium, named the slate of officers to be presented to the state convention this spring.

Mrs. William Young, Miss Edith Zinn and Miss Louise Williams were named by the president, Mrs. Walter Krausnick, to select a slate of nominees for the Greenville branch for the coming two years.

Guests were Miss Jacqueline Phalempin and Mrs. James Fleming.

The senate in its afternoon session approved President Winchester's nominees for the students' Supreme Court: Chief Justice, Curtis Patterson of Greenville; Assistant Justices, Wilbur Jackson, Ayden; Shelby Waters, Bethel; Phyllis Jackson, Grifton; Michael House, Bethel; Jonnie Simpson, Greenville; Archie Oakley, Chicod; Carole Robbins, Greenville; and Fletcher Wilson, Stokes.

Mrs. Spain Feted At Shower Party

Mrs. Paul McKenzie and Mrs. C. B. Spain Sr. entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the Mt. Pleasant community house Wednesday, January 14, at 7:30 o'clock, in honor of Mrs. C. B. Spain Jr., a recent bride.

Guests were welcomed by the hostess and invited into the club house which was beautifully decorated with white glads and lace fern.

The table was covered with a linen cloth and centered with a bowl of white glads and white candles on each side of the bowl.

Mrs. Spain was presented a corsage of pink carnations and gifts of china in her chosen pattern by the hostesses. The bride received many lovely and useful gifts. Several games, led by Mrs. A. O. Spain, were enjoyed during the evening with Mrs. J. J. Jenkins and Mrs. L. E. Coggins winning the prize for the guessing games. Mrs. Woody Hagan won the prize for naming the most of the kitchen hints.

The refreshments consisted of lime ice, chicken salad sandwiches, minis, nuts and coconut cookies. Mrs. A. O. Spain poured lime ice, assisted by Mrs. McKenzie and Mrs. Robert Coggins.

Went To Morgue But Isn't Dead

WASHINGTON (UP)—The man with a butcher knife in his chest stepped gingerly out of the cab, walked half a block, and went into the city morgue to die.

But attendants hurried John A. Bucey to a hospital and today, more than 24 hours later, he was reported in fair condition.

City Wide PTA Study Course Is Planned

The P. T. A. of the West Greenville School held its regular meeting in the auditorium on Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 with Mrs. James Joyner, president presiding. Mrs. Wolff announced that the annual city-wide P. T. A. study course would begin on January 28th at 3:30 at Third St. School with Mrs. Haley, State P. T. A. secretary, as guest speaker.

Additional meetings are scheduled for February 12th, at eight o'clock at the Training School and February 17th at West Greenville School.

The meeting at the Training School will be in the form of a panel discussion on the question, Why Can't Greenville Float A Bond Issue For Its Schools?

Dr. Humbert will speak at the West Greenville meeting, using as his subject, Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency in Pitt County.

The Association voted to help in the solicitation of funds for the March of Dimes drive by participating in the March of Mothers, on the night of January 29th. Mrs. Joyner urged everyone to turn on their porch light as a signal that they would give a donation to this worthy cause.

Mr. Sherman Park gave a most entertaining and informative program on Better Schools for Our Children. He showed a film which depicted some of the problems which face our schools today and gave a running commentary on the responsibility of the city and county, as well as the State, in providing adequate classroom space to take care of the increasing enrollment.

Mr. Park pointed out that the 1952 school census showed a need of six additional rooms and warned that new children are moving to Greenville every month, so that by Sept. 1953 still more classrooms and teachers would be required.

Mrs. Rowlett's third grade won the attendance award.

WORKING OUT OUR SALVATION
The Bible teaches that it is impossible for us to achieve the salvation of our souls by our own efforts. Salvation is a gift of God. This doctrine is basic to all sound religious thought.
But having once received the gift of salvation, we have to work out that salvation to a successful end. The thing committed to our care has possibility for infinite growth and variation. St. Paul urged his followers to work out their salvation with fear and trembling. He did not urge them to work for their salvation; this would be impossible. But having been given salvation by the grace and mercy of God, he urged them to work it out day by day.
What does this mean? It means living a life so full of gratitude to God for what He has done for us, that we attempt joyfully to obey His moral law, to reflect the loving spirit of Christ in the world, and to throw ourselves with abandon and with whatever sacrifice is required into every project designed to extend the kingdom of God among men.
We do not work for our salvation—we repent, ask God for His gift, then accept it. Having accepted it, we must work it out—daily, patiently, with fear and trembling. We must work it out while it is day: the night cometh when no man can work it.

Grifton Sets A Shining Example

Citizens of Pitt County are justly proud of the accomplishments within the past 12 months of the town of Grifton.

Needlessly to say, the residents of Grifton are justly proud of themselves for having won Carolina Power and Light Company's "A Finer Carolina" contest for towns under 1,000 population.

By virtue of the award, the contest officials have judged Grifton the small town in the two Carolinas which has done most in the past year to improve itself. It is a distinction for which many communities vie, but one which very few ever acquire.

Countless hours of careful, farsighted planning, and countless hours of work by the residents of Grifton have gone into the improvements which have been made by the town in the last year. There have been leaders in the movement, just as there are leaders in every movement, but the accomplishments were consummated by the combined efforts of all the citizens of the town interested in making their community a much better place in which to live.

The list of improvements which Grifton has made in the past year is indeed long, but it is well enough to enumerate a few of the accomplishments to give an indication of the scope of accomplishment which the town has achieved.

Among those programs which received consideration by the judges of Grifton's accomplishments were: the purchase of a new fire truck; addition of some 40 homes; installations of stop lights; donation of land for a park and beginning a recreation program; formation of a teen-age club, Lions Club, Girl Scout troops and a garden club; street improvements and a bond issue for water and sewer extensions; purchase of a garbage truck and the installation of regular garbage collections; a $50,000 bond issue for improving Grifton District schools; organization of a new Free Will Baptist Church and planning for other religious units; a general town clean-up campaign, cemetery clean-up project, and a town beautification project.

Without question, that is a list of projects which any community would be proud. The citizens of Grifton are to be congratulated not only by their fellow Pitt Countians, but by all the people of North and South Carolina for their achievement.

For Grifton, we are sure the accomplishments are just beginning, because residents who have such an impressive list of improvements in 12 short months certainly will not be prone to rest on their laurels. They will continue to improve their community.

Bonus Issue Appears Losing Ground

The less-than-cordial legislative reception received by proponents of a state bonus for North Carolina veterans, has pointed overwhelmingly to the conclusion that no legislation which could provide such a bonus will be forthcoming from the 1953 General Assembly.

When the issue first came up more than two years ago, The Reflector stated its opposition to a referendum on a veterans state bonus question. This newspaper still opposes the state bonus for veterans, because we feel it is being sought by a small majority of veterans who are still seeking free handouts from any source which may be available.

By and large, the men of North Carolina who have served their nation in foreign wars will set no premium price on their service to their state and nation. The vast majority of them detest the suggestion that their state government owes them a cash bonus for having served in the armed forces during time of war.

It is gratifying to see that Pitt County Post 39 of the American Legion went on record this week in opposition to a state bonus for veterans "at this time." By such action, the Pitt County post has said flatly it does not think North Carolina should undertake to pay its veterans a bonus now. Whether the phrase "at this time" infers the post might sanction such a gesture on the part of the state government at a later date, we don't know; but we doubt it.

There are many other such veterans groups in North Carolina which have taken action similar to that taken by the Pitt County post. They have turned thumbs down on a state government hand-out for themselves, and they have given numerous good reasons for their decision.

Members of the General Assembly should be taking cognizance of the feeling toward the bonus held by the veterans groups of North Carolina. At the same time they should be considering the pressing needs for the funds which the state has to spend during the next few years.

The Reflector feels the millions of dollars which would have to be spent on such a state bonus could much better serve the interest of the people of North Carolina if it is put into betterment programs which the state needs.

Obviously there is a similar feeling among the majority of North Carolina veterans.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Reorganization and rehabilitation of Post Office services and morale will be the first Eisenhower accomplishment that will directly affect and impress the American people.

Although this may seem to be a minor matter, by contrast with besetting domestic and world problems, the new President recognizes that the P. O. is the show window of the national government.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, as former Republican National Chairman, shares Eisenhower's attitude on this problem. He has already conferred with Post Office experts in the Department and on Capitol Hill. Summerfield's experience as an automobile dealer and distributor gives him, it is believed, a unique training in the field of delivering the mail.

PLANS MAIL SPEED—Summerfield intends to restore the two-day delivery system that was abolished by former Postmaster Jesse M. Donaldson in the interest of economy. He also plans to speed up the parcel post by utilizing planes and faster trains than Donaldson permitted. He also will reinstall the program under which misdirected mail was checked by consultation of city directories.

Post Office experts believe that these improvements can be made at small or no cost. Donaldson, for instance, testified before the House Appropriations Committee that cutting out two deliveries a day would save only $20 million a year. Now, in warning against resumption of the two-day system, he estimates that it would cost $150 million annually.

EISENHOWER'S FIRST BREAD-AND-BUTTER JOB—Ironically, both President Eisenhower and Postmaster General Summerfield suffered from the breakdown of the Post Office service during the campaign.

Letters and speeches and information affecting the candidate's discussion of major issues frequently arrived too late to be of any use. Indeed, there were semi-humorous comments that the delays were the result of "political sabotage."

But the deterioration of the service during the Christmas and New Year holidays, the worst in Post Office history, convinced Eisenhower and Summerfield that their first bread-and-butter job was to deliver the mail faster and more efficiently.

DONALDSON'S REACTION—Although he won national reputation as a politician, Summerfield wants to remove his Department from politics and patronage. This will not be a difficult task because most of the postmaster's powers were placed under Civil Service during the Roosevelt and Truman regimes. Such office holders may be removed only on proof of charges filed against them.

But thousands of political hacks were blanketed into the system as postmasters under this system. In too many cities, the top man simply draws his pay, rarely visiting the office and discharging none of the duties. The real work is performed by hard-working, conscientious and underpaid deputies and assistants. No private business would put up with such waste of money and manpower for a second, Summerfield has observed.

It was expected that former Postmaster General Donaldson, as a career servant who began as a mail carrier in Shelbyville, Ill., would try to reform this system. But he approved it because he had been brought up in it. He lacked imagination and initiative. When improvements in personnel and facilities were suggested, he would always remark:

"The Post Office has been a fine, going concern for almost two hundred years. I don't see any need for changes."

WILSON'S ELIGIBILITY—The doubt surrounding Charles E. Wilson's eligibility as Defense Secretary has created a demand for revision of what seems to have become an obsolete law. Without amendment, the nation's ablest industrialists would be barred from serving the Government. Several other Eisenhower selections for top positions would be knocked out, to the President's chagrin.

The statute, which says that no Federal official shall deal with a firm in which he has an interest, nation. It has no great Army, Navy or Air Force. Indeed, the airplane had never been invented.

Small firms produced weapons and equipment for our miniature military establishment. A contract of several hundred thousand dollars could make or break a corporation. There was every inducement for collusion.

But the United States could not win a war without General Motors, General Electric, the du Ponts or the Aluminum Company of America, to mention only a few of our great munitions corporations. Officials of these companies, since war has now become total, are as essential to national defense as the Eisenhowers, Bradleys and MacArthurs.

Moreover, these considerations take no account of the fact that General Motors does not need Pentagon contracts, and that "Motor Charley" does not need the job!

The President's Desk

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

While in New York over the holidays I was lucky enough to interview Dave Garroway, star of NBC's television show. Today, which comes to us here in Greenville from WTAR-TV, Norfolk, from seven to nine every weekday morning. Dave also does an afternoon radio show, Dial Dave Garroway, for Dial soap every weekday afternoon from 2:30 to 2:45.

The events leading up to the interview are more significant than the interview itself. While Wife Rachel was on a looking (not shopping) tour in the department stores I took off for the RCA building to browse around.

In the crowded corridor on the main floor I almost ran over one other than Dave himself. When he boarded the elevator I talked him. By the time we reached the 8th floor we were alone in the elevator and I asked him, "Do you have about 10 minutes for a small-town newspaperman?"

"Sure," Dave said. "But right now I've got to rehearse my radio show. Come on in the studio."

For this show there is no studio audience, so it comes from Studio

8-F, NBC, which is about the size of an average living room. Studio 8-F is quite impressive: plush furniture, a marble fireplace and paneled walls.

When we walked in there was a bull session in progress among the six-odd people standing around. At the time the floor was held by a jovial man with a familiar look. After he walked out I asked, "Who was that stout fellow who was just in here?"

The staff resounded with laughter.

"Don't laugh," I said. "I'm just a country boy and I'm not supposed to know all of these celebrities up here."

"It's not that we're laughing at," Dave said. "It's your calling him a stout fellow. That gentleman was Skitch Henderson." Of course Skitch has one of the top name bands in the country, but instead of touring the country he's working for NBC.

Ed Pressley, the announcer for Dave's radio show, walked in and was greeted by Dave. "Hello you old rascal. I always thought you were a pretty nice fellow until I saw you Sunday night." Ed had taken the part of the District Attorney on Robert Montgomery Presents, an hour-long drama program that comes to us through Norfolk on Monday night. And Ed was a rough DA, which prompted the kidding by the staff.

Later, Ed revealed some interesting professional information about the Robert Montgomery show. As a member of the supporting cast in that show he received $250, which is an average amount for the job. The star of the program is usually a young Hollywood actor, like Robert Sterling, who is on the way up the ladder. He gets $1250 for a performance. The catch is that all actors must put in 15 hours of rehearsal for a one-hour play.

Robert Montgomery doesn't direct the play, cast it, or have any reading to do in order to pick which production goes on the air. He reads his lines from a teleprompter. The show goes on at 9:30 and he arrives at 9:00. For each performance he gets $5,000. That's what I said: $5,000.

After covering the activities in the studio during this coast-to-coast broadcast, I'll print my interview with Dave Garroway. And I thank you.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

One of the most bothersome problems facing the new administration is the price of farm products. Prices have been slowly sinking. In recent weeks, despite the fact that large quantities of farm products have been placed under parity loans, a number of major farm products are selling below the support level.

The sag in farm prices has had its effect on farm real estate. The Department of Agriculture has just reported that for the first time since the start of the war in Korea, farm land prices failed to rise in the four-month period ending November 1, 1952.

"The steady decline in prices of meat animals and other farm commodities since mid-1952, and dry weather over wide areas of the Southwestern and Northern Great Plains States were probably the major factors responsible for checking the rise in farm land prices," the Department observed.

The basic reason for the decline in commodity prices in turn results from successive years of high production, not only in the United States but in many other areas of the world. Other nations need less of American grains and fibers than they have in the past.

The problem facing the new Administration is complicated by two factors:

First, under present laws, parity supports are scheduled to decline. The Government is committed to support 1953 and 1954 crops at 90 per cent of parity, a figure which is calculated to give the farmers the same buying power they had before World War II. After 1954, supports are to be on a sliding scale between 90 and 75 per cent of parity. This seems to threaten farmers with somewhat less support in the years ahead.

Second, it is an accepted principle that farm production must be kept high and the farm community financially healthy as a safety measure in event of another world war. In that event, it would probably be necessary, as it has in past wars, for the United States to supplement the food of its allies and provide food for expanded armed forces. Men in services eat more per man than civilians and there is an inevitable high ratio of waste. To neglect the farm economy now would be as reckless as neglecting the stand-by military production lines.

Esra Taft Benson, the new Secretary of Agriculture in an Administration pledged to reduce government spending, has his work cut out for him. A long row to hoe.

DON'T STACK CANS TOO HIGH, SAYS U.S.

The Department of Agriculture, in addition to worrying about farm land prices, has been studying grocery displays of canned fruits and vegetables.

It found that in five supermarkets, when two vertical rows of canned goods were displayed on shelves, sales per row averaged 590 cans a week. But adding a third vertical row increased sales only 60.9 cans a week. Gross margin per shelf foot on the first two rows averaged $1.34 but for each additional row it averaged only 29 cents.

Full details of the report are available in "Better Use of Selling Space in Retail Stores, Part I," which is free from the Office of Information Services, PMA, USDA, Washington 25, D.C.

PURCHASING AGENTS CAUTIOUS ON CONTROLS

The sentiment of purchasing agents, according to a survey by Purchasing magazine, is that lifting all controls now would have an inflationary effect over the short term but not over the long term.

Eighty-eight per cent thought de-control would have a short-term inflationary effect while only 30 per cent thought it would have long-run inflationary effects.

ABOUT JOBS, SHELLAC, CHECKING & FLY TRAPS

Of 2,500,000 civilians employed by the Federal Government, 9 out of 10 are under civil service, the National Industrial Conference Board has found. An 18-page booklet suggesting many uses of shellac is free from the Shellac Information Bureau, 65 Pine St., New York 5. SUBSTITUTE: A tough, corrosion-resistant rubber-based plastic is being made (by U.S. Rubber Co., 1230 Sixth Ave., New York) as a substitute for bronze in water meter register boxes and covers. It is said to be unaffected by soil acids or alkalis, to withstand rough treatment, to have good dimensional stability and can be completely immersed in water without adverse effects.

RESTFUL: A velvet-like arm rest which protects an auto driver's arm from heat and cold is being made (by Ess-H-Bee Products, Inc., 4400 Elveth St., Rock Island, Ill.). It hooks between seat and left window molding and snaps down automatically to cover the outside sill when the window is lowered.

NEW YORK (AP)—To the poor man's philosopher:

"Dear Sir:

"I am a young man who doesn't remember what it is like to live under a Republican administration.

"My problem is—what to expect? How should I act? Personally, I am a Democrat, but a number of my young Republican friends are in the same plight. They have no memory of what life is like under a GOP regime.

"Have you any etiquette tips for us?"

"Worried voter"

It is going to take time even for the Republicans to get used to the fact they're in power again. If you can't understand

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—While wives of new members of Congress are being bedazzled with welcoming teas and receptions and bushels of friendly advice, a group of old-timers is recalling with nostalgia its own heyday.

Wives and widows of members of many Congresses ago and some whose husbands are still on Capitol Hill, they comprise the respected Senior Congress Club, formed some years ago to perpetuate friendships made when they themselves shared the limelight together.

Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, wife of the chief justice of the Supreme Court, whose husband was once a member of Congress, was the club's first president. Mrs. Carter Glass, widow of the "unreconstructed Rebel" senator from Virginia, was the second to head the group. Both are still active in the organization.

Current president is the indomitable Mrs. Dolly Gann, who served as official hostess for her brother, Charles Curtis, during the four years he was vice president in the Hoover administration.

Mrs. Gann, a gracious and stately lady whose fussiness in dress is reminiscent of an earlier broken hip. She is, however, probably one of the most active women in Washington. She served for five years as president of the D.C. League of Republican Women and rarely misses a Tuesday meeting of the Senate Ladies Club to sew, knit and roll bandages for the Red Cross. More than 100 women belong to the Senior Congress Club, which has about four big parties a year.

Honorary members of the club include Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Truman, Mrs. Alben Barkley and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of the Supreme Court justice; Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of President Teddy Roosevelt and widow of the late speaker of the House and Princess Julia Cantacuzene, granddaughter of President Grant.

Other members include Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the former secretary of state; Mrs. James Byrnes, wife of the governor of North Carolina, and Mrs. William Borah, widow of the former senator from Idaho.

Mrs. Walter George, wife of the Democratic senator from Georgia; Mrs. John Taber, wife of the Republican senator from New York, and Mrs. Clarence Lea, wife of former Republican congressman from Idaho, are all vice presidents. Recording secretary is Mrs. Maurice Thatcher, wife of the former governor of Panama. Mrs. Daniel A. Reed wife of the Republican congressman from New York, is corresponding secretary and Mrs. Oscar Bland, widow of the judge from Indiana, is treasurer.

Around Capitol Square

COMMITTEES—Committee assignments announced Monday night by Speaker Eugene Bost had almost as many surprises as did the Senate list released last Wednesday—and perhaps more disappointments for representatives who had hoped for better treatment than they received. Upon the whole both lists were accepted by the members and regarded by newspaper folks and other close observers as generally good.

PROBLEM—In some respects Speaker Bost had a more difficult job than did President Hodges, in that he acquired authority to name the committees by virtue of election by members of the House, whereas Hodges election as Lieutenant Governor and ex-officio President of the Senate was by all the people of the State. Bost's task was complicated by the fact he had no opposition in the caucus and every member had voted for him. He did have the advantage of knowing that some of the members came reluctantly and late to his corner in pre-legislature days. In past years when contests were lively for the speakership the late comers had a trading point. This time their votes were not needed and the Speaker was under no political obligation to them.

SORE—It is natural that with qualified early supporters available for important chairmanships, the late comers or those who had never joined the Bost forces, should be given less important places. It is just as natural that the members who had been relegated to secondary positions should be "sore" about it. There were indications Tuesday that some switches might be made in committee memberships, but none in chairmanships in the House. Hodges has made several changes in Senate assignments at request of Senators who felt they could do more effective work by moving from one committee to another. But undoubtedly will follow the same course—as have presiding officers in nearly all previous sessions.

BALANCED—Despite the lack of pre-session conferences among presiding officers and the Governor, which have been customary in the past, opinion prevails that good balance was attained in the composition of committees. This is especially true with respect to the money groups and those dealing with conservation and development, education, roads, the judiciary and other committees to which most important statewide bills are usually referred.

F. & G.—In both branches the committees on Propositions and Grievances claimed more than usual public interest, largely because in the past bills dealing with a liquor referendum have been channeled that way. Fair balance as between recognized proponents and opponents of a statewide liquor vote was maintained in the personnel of the committees, with perhaps a slight margin in favor of the existing policy of local option. There is no assurance that the referendum bill will be sent directly to P&G in either branch this year. Under legislative rules such bills might go to Elections or Finance, and in the House there is possibility that the new Local Government committee might get it, since the issue has as many local as statewide implications. With some $20-$25 million revenue involved, chances are both branches will insist upon consideration by the Finance committees before the question comes to the floor for final disposition.

WORKING—The committees got down to business early Tuesday morning and from how until session end the legislative day will run from 9 o'clock in the morning until late at night, although the formal sessions of re-cess will probably run an hour or less for several weeks. Many people still do not understand that 90 per cent of the work of the General Assembly is done in committees and in serious study and conferences about pending bills, most of which does not appear to capitol visitors or on the pages of the official journals.

FINAL TOUCH—The formal

work of the committees got down to business early Tuesday morning and from how until session end the legislative day will run from 9 o'clock in the morning until late at night, although the formal sessions of re-cess will probably run an hour or less for several weeks. Many people still do not understand that 90 per cent of the work of the General Assembly is done in committees and in serious study and conferences about pending bills, most of which does not appear to capitol visitors or on the pages of the official journals.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

A Bonus For Vets (Wilson Times)

We're glad to see at least one post of the American Legion going on record as opposing a bonus for veterans. It makes sense, although a lot of former soldiers may not think so. If they were students of history, however, they would agree with the Raleigh post in the American revolution we paid bonuses of a sort. Mostly it was in the form of land grants which the states could give without affecting their financial standing. Again we did the same thing to the veterans of the War of 1812 and the Mexican War. But not until after the Civil War did bonuses and pensions reach notorious proportions.

Woodrow Wilson was an historian. He was familiar with the scandals of the Eighteen Eighties and the Eighteen Nineties. To avoid similar ones, he arranged for soldier insurance in the belief that only those who needed help would get it. But after his death the soldiers campaigner for and got a bonus. As we know, it reached prodigious proportions. In that war, however, only 4,000,000 were involved. What would happen to the nation now if the 12,000,000 who were in the last war did as the veterans of the first war did? A nation already approaching insolvency would encounter difficulty remaining solvent. It would do to us what runs did to the banks back in the Nineteen Thirties.

We know a president has been set. But we know, too, that the soldiers in the last war were given far more benefits than the soldiers in any previous ones. Not only were they educated at government expense, but they were financed in the matter of buying homes. After all those, are they entitled to a bonus, too? The Raleigh post, after reasonable deliberation, said "no." We hope that other posts will take the same stand. For while we should take care of our disabled veterans, we shouldn't expect the able-bodied ones to cry for help. If more Legionnaires go on record, we likely won't.

Three Nations Run One Army; A Complex Task

By GEORGE BOULTWOO
AP Newsfeatures.

BAD OEYNHAUSEN, Germany—A three-nation field staff, unique in peacetime, now directs western defenses on the historic invasion route across the north German plains.

It is composed of British, Belgian and Dutch officers, set up here at Northern Army Group Headquarters.

Regardless of nationality, these "integrated" officers handle operation plans affecting all the corps in the command. Other staffs deal with problems affecting only a particular national force.

Altogether the headquarters commands over a quarter of a million men—the four British and three Belgian divisions in Germany and the Dutch corps in Holland.

The commander is British General Sir Richard Gale, a bluff, ruddy-cheeked man with a rich army vocabulary.

His Chief of Staff is quiet-spoken Major General Cecil Sugden. His Deputy for Operations is a Belgian, Brigadier C. Cumont.

"Operational planning is fully in his hands," General Sugden said. "He has proved to be an invaluable staff officer. Through such officers I hope to be able to reduce the British staff."

The Belgian Brigadier smiled when asked if there had been any difficulties in the experiment. "Only the language," he replied in excellent English. "Most British officers seem able to speak Indian dialects, but none of them know's Flemish." This was a gentle dig at General Sugden, who was born at Rawalpindi, India, in 1903 and served much of his Army career there.

"The Belgian and Dutch armies made big sacrifices to send good officers to us as all were badly needed in the build up of their own forces," General Sugden said. "The officers had to work hard here because the British staff system is different from that used by Continental armies. Then to complicate things further their own armies are changing over to American equipment and combat methods."

A score of officers from the Low Countries, with their non-ped bring order out of the initial commissioned assistants, have helped confusion of making one fighting force out of differing systems.

Two of the Dutch team are Major A.A. Paessens, of the Hague, and Captain W. van der Heem, from Ryswyk.

Their assistants are from the Dutch women's army corps. Staff Sergeant Beertje Beekman of Zutphen and Sergeant Leone van der Steen of the Hague. Miss Beekman likes Army life as it gives her a chance to follow her hobby of fencing. Miss van der Steen wants to be an air hostess when her military service is over.

20-gallons per minute. This arrangement reproduces the wind-driven rain of a hurricane.

A small test building is located 30 feet behind the propeller. At this distance, the propeller causes winds averaging 80 miles per hour with gusts up to 100 miles per hour.

The test building is the scene of the experiments. It was designed "to test various building components, mechanical and electronic equipment and other material that may be subjected to the destructiveness of severe storms or hurricanes."

The little box-like building, probably the most buffeted structure in Florida, has a hinged roof so samples of roofing material can be tested at varying angles to the wind.

The front wall of the building is designed so that awning, windows and shutters can be tested on it. Measurements are made of resistance to wind force and the amount of water permitted to pass through the product being tested. A plastic window in the test building allows observers to see what's going on.

In an article in the experiment station bulletin, Vincent G. Pollovkas and Robert A. Thompson report the set-up is capable of testing "practically any item that can be transported to the laboratory and erected."

Among products for which the test is informative are windows, doors and jalousies, storm shutters and awnings, roofing materials, concrete blocks, paints and protective coverings and television antennae.

Motor vehicles can be checked to see if they will operate under hurricane conditions—and people can be tested to find out if they have the physical stamina to meet power lines and replacing storm shutters during hurricanes.

Just As Sweet By Another Name

PITTSBURGH (U.P.)—Call it "Stardust" or "Polvo de Estrellas"—it all comes out "Stardust" for Jack Belle.

The husky Pittsburgh garage owner has collected more than 300 different recordings of Hoagy Carmichael's popular song. Chances are that the composer himself hasn't heard all the arrangements stacked away in Belle's record collection.

More than 50 foreign versions are included in Belle's "Stardust" file. Some records are in conventional styles. Others are long-playing records, discs, electrical transcriptions and special "custom made" waxings, including Belle's own piano version of the song.

He likes it

The melody holds no romantic connotation for Belle. He first heard it played over an outdoor amplifier 21 years ago while he was swimming in an amusement park pool.

"I just like that tune because it's nice and relaxing," Belle explained.

Hopping a plane to New Orleans or Chicago is nothing for Belle if he learns that a rare recording of "Stardust" can be obtained. The highest he ever paid for one was $40, a rare Cab Calloway platter.

The first recording of the ever-popular standard was done by a group of Richmond, Ind., musicians under Carmichael's direction. Belle has not been able to acquire this one.

Belle has recorded copies of nearly every instrumental interpretation. A mandolin version was recorded by Dave Appolon, harmonica by Larry Adler and harp by Anita Louise and Harpo Marx.

Belle obtains most of his records by corresponding with other record collectors and alerting record shop dealers.

Hurricanes Are Made To Order By Univ. Of Florida

GAINESVILLE, Fla.—They make hurricanes, to order at the University of Florida.

The University's engineering and industrial experiment station has a test set-up for checking the performance of everything from paint to people under storm conditions. The hurricanes it creates are small in size but are the equal of the average tropical disturbance in violence.

The heart of the storm-making machinery is a three-bladed airplane propeller driven by a nine-cylinder, 1,300 horsepower aircraft engine. Mounted 11 feet behind the propeller is a grid of perforated steel tubes through which water is pumped at around

Holiday-Giving Got Out Of Hand

MEMPHIS, Tenn. AP—After the recent arrest of four boys who are charged with burglarizing a store just before Christmas, Memphis police say the urge for holiday giving can get out of hand. The boys confessed that they stole from the store to get gifts for their girl friends.

The girls remained loyal to the boys and asked to be locked in jail with their friends so they could comfort them. That, the police would not permit.

The case reminded police of a Christmas night arrest, when they nabbed a man burglarizing a store just after he had played Santa Claus for his three children.

Total average taxes paid by each man, woman and child in the United States in 1952 was $514.

"They sent it to me of their own accord," the woman said. She denied she had received as much money as the government charged from the 50 men on her list.

Flowers Fade From Spring Print Designs

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Flowers seem to have disappeared from the spring prints.

The prints that will blossom everywhere around Easter time are new and subtle patterns, according to the fashions being previewed this week at the New York Dress Institute's Press Week.

Shades of the same color in small, indefinite patterns have replaced bright-colored flowers. Tweed, ermine and leopard all served as inspiration for the new prints.

Designer Adele Simpson has created dresses, jacket-dress costumes and coat-dress combinations with both tweed and fur prints.

Mollie Farnis uses white, gray and black for a spring print dress topped with a black raw silk coat lined in the same print.

Print dresses have print stoles to match in all shapes and designs. Some are triangular with fringed edges; others are long streamers with a loop at one end to hook securely over one arm.

There even are narrow fox fur stoles lined with print to match the dresses in Mrs. Simpson's new collection.

With a few exceptions such as the fur stoles and jewel-studded cocktail dresses, American designers stress simplicity as the most important thing in future fashions.

"Simple, direct and uncluttered" explained Mrs. Simpson, who managed to get the sleekly modern United Nations building into spring fashions by calling her straight, slim coats and suits the "U.N. Silhouette."

That uncurved look men probably won't like it is too popular to be ignored. It suits every figure, short or tall, the designers insist.

Philip Mangone settled for a suit he calls "semi-fitted." It has a straight skirt, boxy jacket and a low belt across the back that indents it only slightly at the waistline.

Many of these little straight jackets have loose-fitting necklines, so the collars seem to stand away from the neck. At first glance the jackets seem too loose, and the designers are anxiously waiting to see whether women will wear them that way or insist that a fitter take up a seam to make the collar fit more snugly.

Pauline Trigere used tucks and knife-sharp pleats from shoulder to hemline in coats and dresses to give the long, straight look.

Nature Film And Lecture Jan. 23

A colorful film story and a lecture on the wild-life of Lake Erie and on nature's clues as to the changes in the region over past eras will be presented at East Carolina College Friday, January 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Austin auditorium. The program is the second in a series of Audubon Screen Tours prepared by the National Audubon Society and scheduled for presentation at the college during the school year.

Dr. G. Harrison Orans of the University of Toledo, Ohio, distinguished scholar, naturalist, and nature photographer, will give the talk on "Erie's Changing Shores" as commentary on his film picturing the scenery and the wildlife of the region.

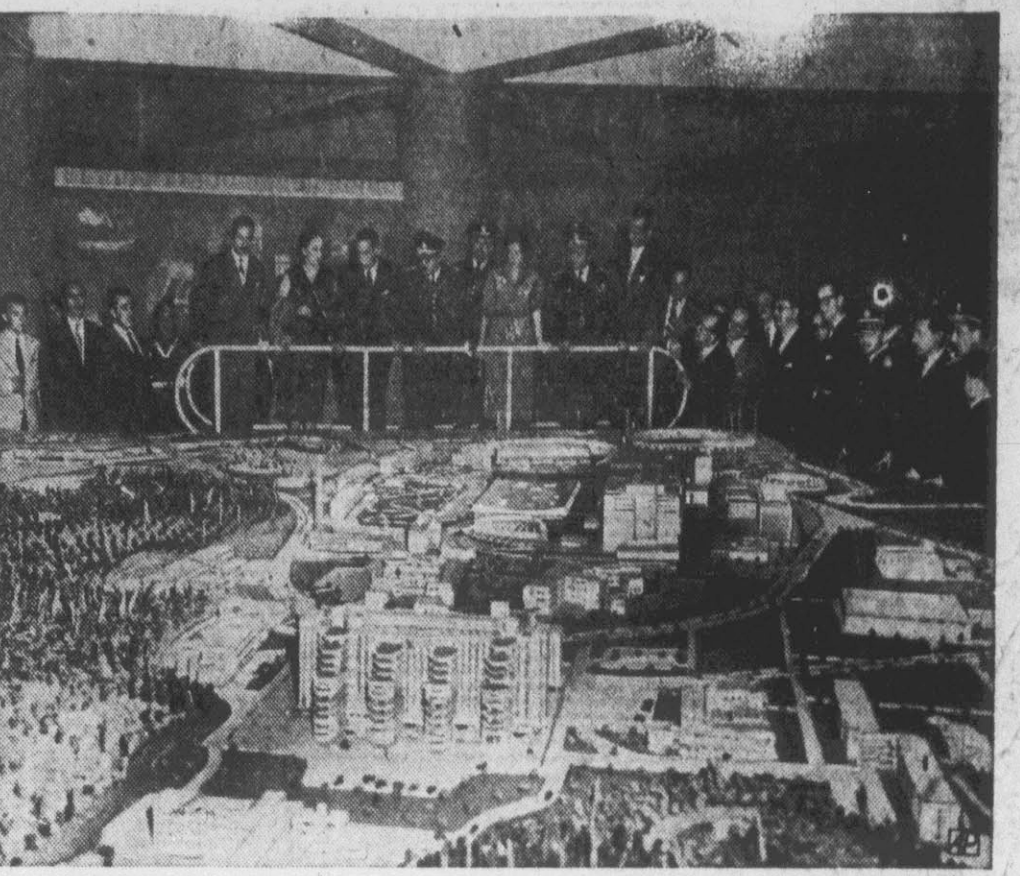

The motion picture reveals to the spectator evidences of the time when the Lake Erie country was part of a tremendous shallow sea. "Once the inhabitants," says information from the National Audubon Society, "included forms of life now extinct, traceable in fossilized rocks; and sand dunes, moraines, extensive marshes give up secrets of the distant past."

Against the scenic background of Lake Erie Dr. Orans has filmed "a dynamic world of wildlife" exhibiting seasonally many changes.

The program will be sponsored locally by the East Carolina College Science Club, the Greenville Woman's Club, and the city schools of Greenville. The public is invited to attend, and no admission charge will be made.

As a naturalist, Dr. Orans has traveled widely in this country and abroad. He was at one time a ranger at Yosemite National Park and during World War II served with the Army Air Corps. A Ph.D. graduate of the University of Illinois, he is at present a professor and the director of the summer school at the University of Toledo.

sessions of the Senate and House have been aptly compared to a wedding or to the signing of a labor-management contract or an international treaty. The brief official ceremony culminates, but does not always accurately portray, the arduous days and months of courtship and negotiation which led to the final official act.

FIRST—Testifying to the biennially recurring problems of Justice of the Peace, as well as to the impact of local issues upon the General Assembly, is the fact that the first item considered by the first committee meeting—Tuesday—was a measure introduced by Rep. George Uzell to establish uniform bills of cost in justices of the peace courts in Rowan county. The second item was a bill to extend authority of Tryon ABC officers to all of Polk county. Both were approved by the committee, along with several other local bills.

CAREFUL—On statewide measures the committee was less eager to act. At suggestion of Chairman Lee Whitmire consideration of all state wide bills was deferred until the bills could be printed and studied by the members. That attitude is in keeping with long standing policy of the General Assembly—to pass local bills almost wholly upon recommendation of the introducer, but to watch for jokers in statewide measures. The fact that more jokers with statewide implication appear in local bills has not in the past bothered the legislators.

BREACH—First suggested breach in the revenue act, and in direct opposition of Governor

Umstead's suggestion that exemptions in the sale tax schedule should be removed, was the bill sent up by Rep. Tom Turner of Guilford and several others, to further exempt farm machinery from the retail sales tax by making the same wholesale levy apply as presently applies to industrial and manufacturing equipment.

More Money Is Awaiting Grads

CHICAGO (U.P.)—New college graduates are being offered higher salaries than ever before, but there still won't be enough men to meet the demand, according to a nationwide survey by Dr. Frank S. Endicott, Northwestern University Director of Placement.

Endicott has studied the college labor market annually, for seven years.

A study of 176 major corporations showed that the average starting salary now is $304 a month. The average was $235 in 1948.

Most businessmen think they get their money's worth at present salaries paid college men but about 39 per cent of the personnel directors disagree, contending that the starting rate is too high compared with that paid older employees.

Induction No Barrier
Industry hopes to hire 25 per cent more technical men that previously despite the shortage of engineering graduates.

Endicott pointed out that about 75 per cent of all college seniors are due for induction into the armed services, but many companies are willing to hire a man despite imminent induction because experience shows that 83 per cent of all college men entering service eventually return to their former companies.

The over-all demand for non-technical graduates is up slightly—about eight per cent—mostly in sales, merchandising and general business. However, a third of the companies paged said they plan to hire fewer non-technical graduates and Endicott thinks this may indicate a "leveling-off" in the demand for non-technical men by 1954.

Endicott said he found that, on the average, each of the 176 companies had to interview 151 seniors for every 10 men employees. The companies had to make 24 job offers to find 10 who would accept.

Allies Are Given U. S. Warplanes

BRINDISI, Italy (AP)—This port on the lower Adriatic has become the gate of entry for a steady stream of U. S. warplanes destined to bolster the fighting strength of Italy, Greece and Turkey.

During the past year, 50 supply ships unloaded 360 planes and several thousand tons of other arms here at the southern end of the old Roman Apian way.

Supplies loaded here are divided roughly in thirds for distribution to the three countries. At big rebuilt jet plane bases inland from the port, both Greece and Turkey maintain crews of assembly mechanics and ferry pilots.

Public Lands Go To New Settlers

MANILA (AP)—The Philippine government will have distributed 511,750 acres of public land to settlers by the fiscal year's end next June, says Director of Lands Jose P. Dans.

The government program, in which settlers are being given farm land in the Southern and Central Philippines, is being carried out with the help of the U. S. Mutual Security Agency mission here.

Blood Bubble Surgery May Save More Lives

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Reporter
BALTIMORE — A Johns Hopkins Hospital surgeon has just reported that an extremely delicate surgical technique—previously dared by only a few doctors and rarely with success—now appears practical for much more common use.

The operation is the removal of a blood-filled bubble, sometimes as large as a basketball, arising on the aorta, or main artery. The thumb-sized aorta is truly the lifeline of the body and any surgery associated with it is always hazardous.

Dr. Henry T. Bahrsen, 32, reported the largest series of cases yet attacked by the direct-removal technique and the highest percentage of apparent successes, six out of nine cases. One of the six contained more than a gallon of blood.

Rising like a blister on a weakened automobile inner tube, an aortic bubble, or aneurysm, can result from syphilis, hardening of the arteries, or from an injury. Left untreated, it usually causes actual "blow-out" of the bubble or from pressure on nearby vital organs, such as the kidneys.

There is no highly effective medical treatment for the condition and up to now surgical attack has been principally aimed at causing the blood in the bubble to clot, rather than removing the bubble itself.

Various kinds of wires have been inserted into the sac and then heated by electricity to promote clotting. Metallic "meshes," including fine watch springs, have been inserted and have promoted clotting by a "stirring-up" action. Several techniques have been aimed at inducing clotting by wrapping the bubble with some material.

Occasionally, Dr. Bahrsen told the Johns Hopkins Medical Society in his report, when clotting is produced the bubble subsides. However, this is sometimes followed by recurrence—and death.

The surgeon told the meeting he and his associates had not employed any operating methods brand new to surgery but had applied advances made in blood vessel surgery over the past decade by many surgeons.

These include improved techniques for clamping blood vessels so as not to interfere too strenuously with normal blood flows, and for sewing blood vessels.

No Guns, It Was Only Backfiring

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Residents complained that two "hot rod" cars were racing up and down the streets and that the occupants were shooting at each other.

Police captured two boys and the "hot rods" but there were no guns. The boys were warned after they explained their cars had been backfiring.

On Monday evening, January 19, Mrs. Verna Joyner was hostess to the C. W. F. of the Arthur Christian Church. The meeting opened with the singing of "Jesus Calls Us O'er The Turbulent" followed by the devotional given by Mrs. Jack Smith and taken from "The Woman's Page in World Call." The program was the 7th in a series from the study book for the year, "The Church Invades the Pagan World" and was based on Philippians, Ephesians, and Corinthians, and was very informatively presented by Mrs. Bruce Strickland. She also had different members of the group to find the hidden answers in World Call, with each one explaining the question she found. She closed with a prayer.

Will Call Up 433 Pilots In January

A report today disclosed the Continental Air Command has received Air Force authorization to call up 433 pilots during the month of January, 1953.

That figure exceeds by 84 the 349 pilots the Air Force estimated would be ordered to active military service in January. All who are recalled will be volunteers who have submitted AF form 125 to a numbered Air Force Headquarters.

Limited to lieutenants who have not reached the age of 30, and other grades below the age of 36, the current pilot procurement program offers refresher training at civilian contract schools before being assigned to a major air command.

Qualified pilots below the age of 36 who are captains or above, or lieutenants under 30, who have submitted the applications for active military service and who meet specifications will be given first consideration.

Nationwide, a total of 4,838 volunteer reserve officers will be needed to fill Air Force requirements for pilots, aircraft observers and non-flying officers.

Application forms are available at the 9948th Volunteer Air Reserve Training Squadron at the Post Office in Washington, N.C.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

New methods of heating homes are being developed so rapidly the average householder is virtually compelled to cram as a sort of amateur heating engineer or see a good chunk of his money go up the chimney.

We all have to have at least a smattering of facts about convectors, diffusers, radiant panels, heat pumps and what not, or run the risk of buying some glamorous equipment that may burn up most of the family budget in operating costs.

One of the easiest ways to decide on a type of heating system for the home is to find out what our neighbors use, how they liked it, and why. Forced hot water, for example, "probably ranks second to warm air heating in the United States." This is the observation of John C. Campbell of Oregon State College in his bulletin entitled "Selecting a Heating System for Your Home."

Hot water can be used in radiators, convectors, baseboard units or radiant floors or ceilings. With forced circulation, this type of heating plant requires no basement. If it is installed in a basement, it can be used to heat the basement — which is a problem with systems depending on gravity circulation of water.

Another advantage is that most modern hot water heating plants provide domestic hot water the year round without the need for a separate water heater.

But undoubtedly the biggest preference for hot water heating is based on its even flow of heat. Water holds heat so much longer than air that abrupt fluctuations in room temperature can be avoided. It makes it possible to have mild heat on mid days and to maintain any comfortable degree more or less steadily.

This is probably why hot water heat is a favorite in hospitals, where carefully regulated and constant temperatures are needed. Although steam is commonly used to heat most other large buildings, hot water is used in many luxury apartment buildings.

Comparisons are not odious when the fundamental advantages and disadvantages of various heating systems are examined on a factual basis. Prof. Campbell lists advantages of forced hot water heat as compared with warm air, steam and other central heating systems, as follows:

1. Hot water "has less heat loss

New England's Pilgrims Late By 8,100 Years

ATTLEBORO, Mass. (AP)—The first New England settlers preceded the Pilgrims by about 8,100 years, according to Dr. William S. Fowler, executive secretary of the Massachusetts Archeological Society.

Dr. Fowler says these early settlers were lured around 6,500 B.C. into the region about Twin Rivers, R.I., chasing game, possibly elk and mammoth. They came from the south in large canoes hollowed out by fire from great trees. Fowler says Rhode Island then had no forests. Everywhere were sand dunes, gravel hillocks, tundra and arctic moss in the wake of retreating glaciers.

These deductions are made possible by a new type analysis called Carbon 14, a by-product of the discovery of atomic energy.

COFFEE IN THE BANK

PORTSMOUTH, O. (UP)—A local bank has installed a coffee shop for its employees. An official explained that, with thousands of persons coming here because of the government's plan to build a $1,200,000,000 atomic energy plant in this area, employees would lose too much time during their morning breaks to get coffee in restaurants.

Iran about $100,000,000 a year and is driving it steadily closer to chaos and Communism.

Kashani is not disturbed by the thought of Communism. He believes he can win his followers away from Communism and eventually achieve his much greater ambition, which is a united Islam.

Plan Eliminate Old Illiterates

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Plans to wipe out illiteracy in Formosa during the next five years have been announced by the Chinese Nationalist government.

Chen Hsueh-ping, provincial education chief, declared that in the past few years 360,000 illiterates on the island had been taught to read and write. They represented more than 25 per cent of Formosa's 1,400,000 illiterates.

Iran's Pussling Politics Has Another Odd Facet

between boiler and radiator or convector than between the furnace and register used in the warm air system. It also has a smaller heat loss than that encountered with a steam system. This low heat loss in distribution of heat makes it ideal for use in large, rambling houses.

2. "Surface temperature of the radiator or convector is lower than that for steam; therefore, less chance of burns."

3. "Pipes and radiators are free from disturbances (hammering) which are not uncommon in steam installations."

4. Hot water is "better adapted to hand firing (if desired) than the warm air system, as heat stored in the water prevents rapid drop in room temperatures during periods when the fire is low."

However, this expert also found the following disadvantages:

1. "High first cost. A hot water system can be expected to be 25 to 35 per cent more expensive to install than a warm air system." (This difference in cost may not prevail in some localities. Engineers for Warren Webster & Co., dispute it sharply for radiant baseboard installations.)

2. "Radiators or convectors, common to both hot water and steam systems may interfere with placement of furniture and with the cleaning of the house." (Warm air registers at baseboard level also have this disadvantage—a point that should be considered when planning a new house, so that heating outlets can be located where furniture is not likely to be placed.)

3. "Hot water pipes are subject to freezing if the furnace dies out."

4. "Air humidity and circulation of air are not as readily controlled as in a warm air system."

Another unavoidable disadvantage is that the air in the house is not filtered as it is with circulating warm air.

However, the need for humidity in the house has been largely reversed by modern construction with its insulation, caulking and weatherstripping. Ordinary living—bathing, cooking, laundry, house plants, and so on — provide too much humidity in the average tightly constructed house. This results in condensation on windows.

The humidity problem has become so common that one of the largest manufacturers of warm air heating plants has dropped humidifiers from its equipment except when specifically ordered.

ONE-PUPIL SCHOOL
BRIER HILL, N. Y. (UP)—A single pupil in a "little red schoolhouse" here costs thousands of dollars to educate. Others who used to attend the one-room school now go to nearby Morristown. The reason for the one-teacher, one-room, one-pupil school is that residents refuse to give way to a complete consolidation of the school district.

The bewildering course of Iranian politics has taken still another turn.

A little, wizened spider of a man who boasts of his links with terrorism and assassination has been shoved into second place. Top man is Dr. Mohammed Mossadegh, Iran's weeping and ailing premier. Second man is Seyed Kashani, Iran's aged but most powerful religious leader.

Mossadegh won a clear-cut victory when he forced the Iranian parliament to extend for one year his dictatorial powers.

He really needed them to complete successfully his negotiations for settlement of Iran's oil dispute with Britain.

Strongly nationalistic, British-hating Kashani will sit idly back and let Mossadegh collect whatever laurels there are for settlement of the oil question.

To Americans who have just witnessed again one of the great triumphs of democracy in the peaceful change-over of national administrations, Iranian politics are just about incomprehensible.

Kashani is speaker of the lower house of the Iranian parliament but never attends meetings.

He has been sentenced to death once, jailed three times and exiled three times.

He has four wives and innumerable descendants. His age is estimated anywhere between 68 and 80. He rules, sitting cross-legged on a rug surrounded by attendants, in shabby quarters of Tehran's old town behind the bazaar.

His power comes partly from his religious title which is Ayatullah, meaning "Miracle of God," and the Padsyan Islam—faithful of Islam—which he is said to head and which is ready to kill, burn and riot at his command.

Kashani last was banished from Iran because he was mixed up with an assassination attempt against the Shah. He came back the following year after being elected to parliament.

He has made only thinly disguised boasts that his Faithful of Islam were behind the assassination in 1951 of Premier Ali Razmara.

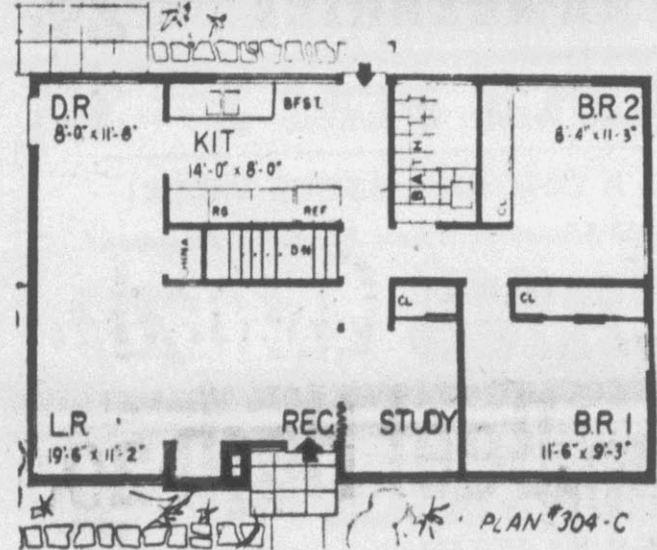

And he has made equally thinly disguised threats that Mossadegh would be next on the list if he makes any deal with the British which fanatical nationalists regard as unsatisfactory.

It is against this background that U. S. Ambassador Loy Henderson now is negotiating with Mossadegh in an attempt to get the oil flowing again from the vast Iranian field.

The fight which stems from

Iran's nationalization of its oil and seizure of the billion dollar Anglo-Iranian Company is costing

PROMISE OF DELIGHT

Chapter 31
"Oh," said Joe, "is she?" He raced upstairs to Gina's room, with Bianca at his heels, and knocked.
"Who's that?" Gina's voice was high-pitched, terrified. "Who's that? Is that you, mama?"
Joe pushed the door open, and Gina gave a little gasp of relief. A suitcase was on the bed, and she had been throwing some things into it. She was wearing a satin slip, and snatched up a dressing-gown as Joe came in.
"What goes on?" he said.
"You're not going to stop me. I'm going I'm not staying here. He'll come back. He's lost all his dough, and he's been drinking. He wants a lot more than you or I or any of us can give him. If he doesn't get it, he'll kill me. He did a couple of months because of me, before he made a jail break. He means it. You're not going to stop me, Joe."
He said irritably, "This has gone far enough. We'll have to take a chance on the publicity. I'm going to call the police."

"Police!" Gina shrieked, backing away in terror. "Don't you call any cops to protect me I don't want them to know anything about me. They might send me back to the States."
"You mean you're wanted by the police there?"
"I'm not telling you. I've got some money, and I'm getting a car, and I'm getting out of here fast."
"Gina behave yourself! Look wait until Papa and Anthea come back, so I can tell them. Then I'll take you back to London by road, tonight."
"They'll be two hours," she said sullenly. "I can't wait. He may come back. I can't stay if I shoot me. . . when I was dancing, or getting out of the car. They will be an hour, before they come back. I must go now."
"All right," said Joe, beaten, now. "But I'm not going in shorts. Let me change my pants at least, and write a word to Papa and Anthea."
"Bianca will tell them," she said. "There's no need to write."
"I'm writing," said Joe. "Go and get yourself killed if you want, but I've got to let them know."
Gina burst into tears, her hands over her face, shaking and shivering. "I'm so frightened. Joe. I'm so frightened. He'll kill me. He'll kill me."
"All right, all right, cut it out. Go and get dressed. I'll be ten minutes."
He raced into the villa, and long to his room, changed his suit, and threw a few things into a

Ambassador Has Good Eye For Horse Flesh

BALTIMORE (AP)—Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo Molina, ambassador-at-large of the Dominican Republic, has a good eye for horses.
The generalissimo recently toured the Sagamore Farm of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. The manager, Ralph Kercheval, asked the visitor to point out the young thoroughbred he liked best.

The generalissimo unhesitatingly picked out a 2-year-old son of Amphitheatre-Geisha. The colt is a half brother to Native Dancer, the undefeated 2-year-old of 1952 proclaimed Horse of the Year.
Generalissimo Trujillo also liked the looks of a 3-year-old filly named Hula. She's a half sister of Next Move, last year's best older mare.

Wisconsin's Voters Like Him Best Of All

By CHRIS EDMONDS
AP Newsfeatures
MADISON, Wis. — They love him in Wisconsin, and they've been proving it for years at the ballot boxes.

Fred R. Zimmerman, veteran secretary of state, is the acknowledged peer of this politically turbulent state's vote-getters. Right now he's winding up his 14th consecutive year in the same office and starting his eighth straight two-year hitch on the strength of a booming re-election.

Actually, Zimmerman has been on the Wisconsin political scene much longer than that. He was secretary of state for four years back in the early 20s, just before one term as governor (1927-28) and after a similar two-year span in the state assembly.

The 72-year-old politician, who has rolled up an unofficial 10,063,005 votes in his various quests for office, made his top showing the last time out despite having been kissed off by the Republican party organization. The brush came over U.S. Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy.

Zimmerman, who says what he wants whenever the mood strikes him, stated vigorously that he'd have no part of the controversial senator. That was before the September primary—and the party organization countered by endorsing another man for his job and cutting off his share of the campaign funds.

The action nettled Zimmerman, but didn't faze him. He won nomination easily, although his vote was under a half million. McCarthy, also seeking nomination, ran some 30,000 votes ahead of him. Gov. Walter Kohler, topped the white-haired veteran by 215,000.

But then came November. Wisconsin voters, storming the polls

Ayden Motorists Told Deadline On City Tags Near

AYDEN — Motorists were warned by the Ayden Police Department today that all locally-owned automobiles will be required to display city license tags before the first of February.

Chief of Police J. E. Jones today cautioned local motorists that the sale of city tags is lagging, and following the first of February a fine will be levied upon motorists who do not display the tags on their cars.

Between 500 and 700 city tags were sold in Ayden last year, but the sale to date is "below par", the chief said.

A city ordinance requires that the tags will be purchased and displayed on the automobiles. Only city firemen are exempt from the buying of the tags.

Raleigh Pastor In Piano Concert At Youth For Christ Rally On Saturday

Rev. Herman Hersey of Raleigh will appear in the role of concert pianist of sacred music at the Youth for Christ Rally at Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church, Saturday night, January 24, at 7:30.

Mr. Hersey is both an ordained minister and concert pianist, and is in record numbers, gave McCarthy 870,000 votes. They cast nearly 980,000 for President-elect Eisenhower, and 1,009,171 for Kohler.

Tops Ticket
Zimmerman? All he did was top the ticket with 1,039,317 votes, the greatest total in his and Wisconsin's political history.

Strangely enough, Zimmerman was ousted in 1928 after one term as governor by the father of the present chief executive, the late Walter Kohler, Sr.

After that Zimmerman disappeared from the political arena for nearly 10 years. He returned to his Milwaukee home and was employed on a score of odd jobs, including one as a taxi driver.

In September, 1938, he came back to win nomination as the GOP candidate for secretary of state. He wasn't given much chance to beat Theodore Dammann, the Progressive (cap.) incumbent who had held the post 11 years. But a Republican landslide wiped out the entire Progressive slate with Zimmerman nipping Dammann by 30,000 votes. Since then his bids for re-election have not even been close.

Church Plans To Raise $50 Million

BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa. (AP) — Fifty million dollars will be raised by Methodist Church members in the next four years for new church buildings and renovation work, the Methodist Board of Missions was told last night.

Dr. Earl R. Brown, general executive secretary of the Church Division of Home Missions, set that figure as the overall total to be raised by local annual Methodist conferences.

Speaking at a session of the mission board's annual four-day meeting, Dr. Brown said that a special fund-raising campaign, known as "The Advance for Christ and His Church," will be continued. The fund, in the past four years, he said, raised over two million dollars for church building needs.

The executive secretaries of the Methodist Section of Church Extensions—Drs. William V. Middleton of Philadelphia and B. P. Murphy of Louisville, Ky. — said in the past fiscal year their section assisted in the construction of 247 churches and parsonages by providing loans totaling $2,349,667. Additional donations totaling $1,280,680 were made to 645 church projects, they said.

A minimum of 1,500 new churches — one a day — must be constructed in the next four years, the two secretaries told the meeting.

Death Struggle

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—The body of a 70-year-old miner, a dead cow moose and an empty, broken rifle were found on a lonely trail 15 miles north of here yesterday, mute evidence of a bitter woodland battle.

U. S. marshal's deputies theorized that Lawrence Magnus was attacked by the moose after shooting it, emptied his rifle in an attempt to down the moose, then broke the weapon hitting the animal. Magnus then died himself, the victim of wounds suffered in the struggle or by a heart attack from exertion.

Magnus's team of half-wild Malamute dogs were crouched in the snow near the dead moose, upon which they had been feeding.

Ship Is Running British Blockade

ROME (AP)—The snub-nosed old Italian tanker Mirella headed home through the Persian Gulf today with a 5,000 tons of Iranian oil in a new try at running the British blockade on petroleum sales by Iran.

Successful completion of the voyage may bring a head-on collision in Italian courts with Britain's Anglo-Iranian Oil Company in a billion-dollar test case of the company's claim to Iran's petroleum riches.

It was the first challenge to the blockade since the tanker Rosemary was stopped at Aden, a British protectorate at the southern end of the Red Sea, with 800 tons—$40,000 worth—of oil purchased from Iran's nationalized oil industry by Italian and Swiss firms.

Britain claims all the oil from the Abadan refinery, is the property of AIOC pending settlement of its deadlocked dispute with Iran's government over nationalization of the refinery and other of the company's vast holdings in Iran. A British court at Aden ruled Jan. 9 that the Rosemary's cargo belonged to AIOC but the ship's captain and the oil companies which chartered her plan an appeal.

Italian oil interests, which hush-hush reports say are backed by the giant Fiat automobile industry, believe they can win a test case in their own courts and then buy and sell all the Iranian oil they can haul. The 7,000-ton Mirella, built in 1913, sailed from Genoa Dec. 26 on her showdown trip. Nosing up the Shatt el Arab River to Abadan, she loaded all the oil she could carry and sailed for home Tuesday night.

Kefauver Offers Suggested Bills

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) has introduced legislation to carry out two recommendations of the now extinct Senate Crime Committee.

One would force criminals and racketeers receiving as much as $2,500 income from illegal sources annually to file net worth statements with the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The second would compel witnesses to testify or produce records before courts or grand juries under certain conditions.

Yogi Is Eager To Help Americans Toughen Up

By ROBERT MUSEL

United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP)—Kitao, an Arabian yogi, said today he wants to go to the United States to help Americans become as tough as he is—so tough he can "wash" his face in broken glass.

"I call it washing my face," he explained, "but it's only done to show how tough my skin is. I use soap just like ordinary people for real washing."

Kitao is the original "there must be an easier way to make a living" fellow. He's a professional sufferer, and for American dollars he is prepared to suffer as few men have suffered before.

"I'm going to bill myself as 'the man they cannot kill,'" he said, "and I'll probably start my stay in the states by fasting on a bed of nails. I hold the world's record of 80 days without food while lying on six-inch spikes, you know."

The yogi said this with becoming modesty. "Then I'd like to go on television and entertain American families," he added. "I'll wash my face in broken glass—that ought to get a laugh."

"Or I can let 12 men try to strangle me—six on each end of a rope around my neck. It's a very artistic presentation."

His burly manager, Tom Leslie, interrupted to say: "I can tell you what Kitao does in three words—sensation! I, amazing, fantastic."

"How about the sword?" asked Kitao.

"He allows a sword to be passed through his body," Leslie said.

"The spikes," prompted Kitao. "And he lets six men stand on his body while he reclines on six inch spikes," Leslie averred.

"The needles," whispered Kitao. "And he passes 16-inch needles through his throat," said Leslie, picking up the cue like the veteran song-and-dance man he is.

Realizing the American market requires real staging, Kitao is considering a finale suggested by an American visitor.

Kitao lies on the bed of nails, six men prancing on his body through which a sword has passed. The needles are sticking through his throat and 12 men are trying to strangle him.

Leslie: "Does it hurt?" Kitao: "Only when I laugh."

"I wish we had a new home!"

Of course, we can't put out that kind of money at one time. I'll have to tell him about First Federal Savings & Loan's home loan plan. It's easy to borrow from them and pay it back in small convenient payments. He better go in today and see how easily we can have that new home.

Bucs Had Tough Road Trip

East Carolina College's Pirates rolled back into town early today to begin a well-deserved rest and to take stock of their just-ended western trip which knocked them from the undefeated ranks in North State Conference play.

The Pirates got clipped twice in their three game trip but they were guilty of a sub-par performance only once—Saturday night against Lenoir Rhyne. Even then, they weren't exactly "off," they just had a red-hot ball club to contend with.

East Carolina went into the Lenoir Rhyne game with a season's record that included six consecutive victories over North State Conference foes. That record included a 7-6 pre-Christmas win over Lenoir Rhyne.

The team was not cocky when it went into the ball game against the Bears. They had played too many times away from home to let that happen. But they never could get started. L-R's "big three" of Frank Hassell, Bob Ortmeyer, and Roland Barker had a virtual monopoly on rebounds, and Barker and Ortmeyer led a shooting attack that simply broke the back of any offensive efforts on the part of the Pirates.

Any gripes about the officiating in either of the three games would sound like little more than sour grapes but the Bucs were highly dissatisfied with some of the calls and most of what they termed "bad ones" came in that game with the defending champs.

In the contest with Western Carolina, it was simply a question of who got there "fustest with the mostest" as far as the ball game was concerned. The Pirates pulled a great second half rally but it wasn't enough to overtake the Cats.

The Pirates hit only 23 per cent of their shots from the floor in the first half but they roared back in

E. Carolina Regains Form To Trounce Catawba 70-56

Russell Hits 27 To Lead Pirates Scoring Attack

SALISBURY—East Carolina College's Pirates climbed back on the victory wagon and started the long haul back to the top of the North State Conference standings last night by defeating Catawba College's Indians, 70-56 in the Catawba gym. The victory was the only one recorded by the Pirates in their three game invasion of the Western part of the state.

As has been the case so often this season, the Pirates turned to All-State and All-Conference star forward Sonny Russell for points and inspiration. The senior from New Bern who is headed toward his greatest season for the Pirates did his usual job of leading the individual scorers, this time with 27 points, and then turning in an outstanding job on defense.

Russell and Bobby Hodges, a 16-point man last night, worked together to give the Pirates an early lead in the game. The Indians now, started off as if they were willing to make a real ball game out of the affair but it wasn't long before their offensive efforts wilted before the Pirates.

So effective were the Pirates in their work last night, only one Catawba player—forward Bill McKaig—was able to hit double figures in the scoring column and he barely sneaked in with 10 points. Don Graham got nine points and Worth Seats got seven.

The Pirates really went to work in scalping Catawba just after the second half was launched. Russell scored eight of his points in the third quarter while Charlie Huffman and J. C. Thomas scored four apiece.

The victory gives the Bucs a record of seven wins and two losses in North State Conference play. They had a record of six wins and no losses when they hit the road last week-end but defeats at the hands of Lenoir Rhyne and Western Carolina knocked them down behind Western Carolina in the league standings.

The Pirates will now begin a rest period that will extend through next Wednesday. On that date, they'll meet High Point's hot-and-cold Panthers for the first time this year. The game will be played in High Point.

Phants Play Lynchburg In Wright Building Saturday

By HERMAN HICKMAN
Reflector Sports Editor

With a full week of nothing but practice and preparation behind them the Greenville High Phantoms swing into action Friday night at Roanoke Rapids in a conference basketball game then return home to meet a touring Lynchburg, Va. team here Saturday night.

The Saturday night affair will be conducted in the Wright Building instead of the high school gym.

Still flush from victory over Elizabeth City, the Phantoms will be seeking their fourth consecutive conference win Friday night at Roanoke Rapids.

The high flying Greenville court guards are currently undefeated in 1935 competition. After losing five straight early season contests to AAA teams the Phantoms have spoken Goldsboro, New Bern, Washington, and Elizabeth City for consecutive victories.

Coach Bo Farley seems to have finally found the starting members that produces the most effective scoring threat. Lining up at forwards are Smith Worthington and Leon Hardee, Bobby Starkey and Bobby Conway share the pivot post and George Siders and Guy Smith have taken over guard duties.

Chief substitutes who have been seeing plenty of action in recent games are Forwards Edgar Moore and Walter Perkins and Guards Jimmy Deagham and Dixie Hobbard. Thail Doug Morgan has been showing much improvement in practice.

On Saturday night the Phants return home and open a series with Lynchburg High of Lynchburg, Va. Arrangements have been made for the Saturday night program to be held in the more spacious Wright Building.

Also on the program Saturday night will be a pre-game feature pitting two of North Carolina's top junior varsity teams.

E. K. Powe High of Durham, last year junior varsity state champs, will play Greenville Jayvees in the preliminary.

Over a three year period the Powe teams have marked up a 35-win, three-loss record. Last year they won 20 games without a loss and handed the Greenville Jayvees their only loss during a three year period.

The Baby Phantoms now have a three year mark of 51-1. Only the loss to Powe in the state Jayvee playoffs mar their record. The Durham team eked out a 36-35 victory over the junior Phantom edition in the last five seconds of the game and went on to win the state title.

This year the Greenville Jayvees, coached by Bill Kittrell, have a perfect 9-0 record. Coach H. D. Maynard's championship charges have a 3-1 record for the season.

Big Harold Edwards is the main stem of the Greenville Jayvees. Besides leading in scoring the rangy freshman excels in snatching rebounds off the backboards.

In forward positions are Bobby Howell and Larry Powell, both of whom top the six foot mark and are improving with every game. Little Ike Handick and Tommy Norris are the team's playmakers and both are deadly set shot stars.

A capable pair of front line substitutes are Center Clark Nobles and Tommy Saiced, a guard.

NEW YORK (UP)—If you find the time required for a haircut getting shorter, you too probably are taking umbrage today with New York Boxing Chairman Bob Newson, who's 45, and Dutch Leonard, who's 43. Satchel Paige they say, was showing his curve ball to the nation's scattered towns and hamlets when Abner Doubleday decided to make the game official.

You think Walcott's old at 38? Well, that handsome young tennis star they just got off the Davis Cup team—the guy—all the bobby-soxers swoon over—is 39-year-old Gardner Mulloy.

On the golf course, for one round at least, I have a guy I'd take as my partner any day in the week against anybody you want to bring. He's 50-year-old Gene Sarazen, but for 18 holes he'll have any of 'em biting their nails.

Maybe I'm all steamed up because my haircuts take about five minutes these days. Or maybe it's because I remember when Sam Snead broke into golf and somebody just called to my attention that he is 41 years old now.

Anyhow, at the moment I'm

Braves Continue Youth Movement

This is the 14th in a series of interviews with major league managers.

By BOB PARKIN
United Press Sports Writer

GRAY SUMMIT, Mo. (UP)—Jolly Charlie Grimm said today his Boston Braves are right back where they were last fall—with the accent on youth.

"Youth and optimism are the by-words in our camp for next season," he said. "We contemplated some deals at the winter meetings, but since none developed, as of now, stands as it did at the end of last season.

"However, the important thing is that our youngsters now have a year's major league experience under their belts."

Boston finished seventh last year.

Grimm, driving toward a pennant for Milwaukee when he took over as manager of the floundering Braves last June, said he's "optimistic" but added that he "never predicted the standings and isn't going to start now."

"At Boston, we're still working our youth movement and it may very well pay off next season. I can say we're set defensively. If we get some power hitting and a few breaks, we may move up a notch or two," Grimm explained at his winter home here.

"The return of Del Crandall from service is the best news yet," the amiable off-season farmer said. "Andy Pafko, whom we just got from Brooklyn, will help plenty, too."

Crandall, who's not yet 23 years old, will undoubtedly be the first string catcher, Grimm said. Reliable Walker Cooper, now almost 38, would be around to spell him.

Grimm's infield will average 25 years of age with veteran Earl Torgerson, 29, at first; Johnny Dismeyer, who'll be 25 in January, at second; 25-year-old Johnny Logan at shortstop, and Eddie Mathews, only 21, at third base.

Grimm said his frontline mound staff would be composed of Warren Spahn, Vern Bickford, Max Surkont, Jim Wilson and his young reliever, Lew Burdette. He's also high on rookies Don Liddle and Murray Wall whom he handled at Milwaukee.

Pafko, Sid Gordon and Sam Jethrow, will be in the outfield along with 25-year-old Bob Thorpe. Thorpe was going well until injured in mid-season.

"The best outfielder I have coming along is the Brewers' Bill Bruton," Grimm said. "He's a great defensive centerfielder and did a fair job of hitting."

"We're looking for some power hitting," Grimm said. "If we get just some fair country hitters, we'll be all right."

Flashy Demaret Outshoots Hogan

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UP)—Flamboyant Jimmy Demaret, with $1,500 first money in the Palm Springs Invitational tucked in his pocket, today led the touring golf pros to Phoenix, Ariz., for another $10,000 tournament opening Friday.

The flashy - dressed Demaret proved himself a "stretch" player in the final round of the $10,000 Palm Springs tourney Wednesday by sinking an eagle three on the 18th hole to score a two-stroke victory with 201 for the 52 holes of play.

Bantam Ben Hogan, engaging in one of his rare tournament appearances of recent years, failed to do what Demaret did on the 18th. Hogan needed an eagle also to tie Demaret, but instead he shot a par five which left him tied at 203 with Lloyd Mangrum and Jim Turnesa.

In third place came Dr. Cary Middlecott of Memphis, Tenn., with a 204 total, followed by Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., who had a 205 total.

Dizzy Dean Named To Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK (UP)—Dizzy Dean and Al Simmons—a pair of newcomers—proudly piped up "present" today when the role was called in baseball's Hall of Fame.

Dean, one-time pitching pride of the Cardinals, and Simmons, the Athletics' slugging star of the '30's, entered the Cooperstown, N. Y., shrine Wednesday upon being named on 75 per cent of the ballots cast by senior members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

At 42, the jubilant Dean became the youngest member ever to be voted into the Hall of Fame.

"It's the greatest moment of my life," he said, stepping off a plane in San Francisco.

Simmons, in fine physical shape at 50 and equally thrilled by his election, asked reporters at Hialeah, Fla.

"Are you sure it's true? This is the most wonderful thing that has ever happened to me."

Dean, who won 30 games for St. Louis in 1934 and led the National League in strikeouts from 1932 through 1935 before developing a sore arm and being sold to the Cubs for $185,000 in 1938, led the balloting with 209 votes. Actually, only 198 votes were required.

Simmons made it by the margin of one vote, polling a total of 199. The former Philadelphia outfielder who compiled a lifetime batting average of .334 while hitting with his "foot in the bucket," held his last baseball job with Cleveland as a coach in 1951.

Dean and Simmons, who finished fourth and fifth, respectively, in last year's voting, became the 43rd and 44th members to enter the Hall.

Barely missing was ex-Giant first baseman Bill Terry, who polled 191 votes—seven short of the required total—to finish third. Joe DiMaggio, who quit the Yankees in 1951, placed eighth with 117 votes.

In the record number of 264 ballots that were cast, former Yankee catcher Bill Dickey was named on 149 ballots to wind up fourth while Rabbit Maranville, erstwhile Boston Brave shortstop, was fifth with 164 votes.

Dizzy Vance of the Dodgers was sixth with 150 votes, followed by Ted Lyons of the White Sox, 139, and DiMaggio, who polled a strong eighth considering that he has been out of baseball only one year.

Gabby Hart, pitcher, and Chief Bender, the A's pitcher, rounded out the 11 with 104 apiece.

Huge Walt Dukes Is Leading Scoring Race

NEW YORK (UP)—Just as Seton Hall holds top position in the college basketball world—the only major undefeated team and No. 1 in this week's United Press coaches' ratings—is 6-foot, 11-inch center, Walt Dukes, holds first place among the nation's individual major college scorers.

Figures released today by the NCAA Service Bureau show Dukes has made 501 points in his team's 18 victories, or 27.8 a game, and has moved ahead of Pennsylvania's Ernie Beck, who has 27.6 in 11.

It's very rare for the leading scorer to be a member of the top team; in fact, it happened for the first time last year with Clyde Lovellette and Kansas. But Dukes has been moving at a steady pace and has an excellent chance to match Lovellette's performance.

His next game is tonight against Memphis State.

Behind Dukes and Beck come Little Johnny O'Brien of Seattle, with 26.8; Bob Jarvis of Mississippi, with 25.5; Bob Houbregs of Washington, with 25.3; and Frank Selvy of Furman, with 25.0. Dukes is also No. 2 in grabbing rebounds, with 22.7 a game to 23.2 for Fordham's Ed Conlin.

Including games of Saturday, Jan. 17.

Baseball Stars Signing For '33

Ned Garver, who named his own terms last winter, gladly took what he got from the Detroit Tigers today as he signed his 1953 contract and pronounced his sore arm as completely healed.

Garver, a 20-game winner for the Browns in 1951, asked $1,000 and promptly received it a year ago.

He was in no such position this time on the basis of his 8-10 record last season. Traded to Detroit after mid-season, Garver came down with a sore arm and won only one game.

Tiger Manager Freddie Hutchinson immediately declared that he expects Garver to be one of the team's regular starters along with Ted Gray, Art Houtteman and perhaps, Hal Newhouse.

The Giants also were busy in the pen-and-ink league, signing infielder-outfielder Hank Thompson and pitchers Max Lanier and George Spencer. Thompson, who played third base and the outfield last season, batted .290 and hit 17 homers in 128 games. Lanier had a 7-12 record and Spencer a 3-5 mark.

Catcher Darrell Johnson and pitcher Harold Brannan came to terms with the White Sox, leaving only 12 players unsigned for 1953 by the Chicago club.

Utility infielder Bob Ramazzotti and rookie outfielder Paul Schramka signed with the Cubs while right-handed pitcher Dave Cole came to terms with the Braves.

Early Wednesday, the Phillies signed the man whom owner Bob Carpenter called "the best right-handed pitcher in baseball"—Robt. Roberts. The curly-haired fast starter who won 28 games last year received an estimated $40,000 contract.

New Witness To Appear In Spivey Scandal Trial

NEW YORK (UP)—The prosecution was expected to put a new witness on the stand today in the perjury trial of Bill Spivey, former All-America basketball star at the University of Kentucky.

Stated to appear soon as a material witness was A. B. Kirwin, Summons by Judge Saul Streit, Kirwin left the Kentucky campus at Lexington, Ky., Wednesday.

An affidavit declared Kirwin would be questioned about the questioning of Spivey by himself and other university officials and about his trip to New York with Spivey when Spivey testified before the grand jury, that is investigating the basketball "fixing" scandal.

Spivey's testimony before that jury gave rise to his current trial. He has been charged with lying to the grand jury when he said he never fixed games or had knowledge of fixed games.

Two former "entucky" players, Walt Hirsch and Jim Line already have testified in the trial in General Sessions Court before Judge Streit.

Wednesday, Line testified that during the 1950-51 basketball season, when he was assistant coach of the Kentucky team, he acted as a "go-between" between players Hirsch and Spivey and gambler Jack (Zip) West, who already is serving a three-year sentence on bribery charges.

Line said West gave him an envelope containing $2,600, which he split up at Lexington—giving $1,000 to Spivey, $800 to Hirsch, and keeping $800 himself. He said that was the way West arranged the split.

Eppes High Downs Wilmington 63-52

The Eppes High School Bulldogs gained a measure of revenge and improved their season's record at the same time by scoring a 63-52 victory over Wilmington Tuesday night. The Bulldogs had lost an earlier meeting to Wilmington.

James (Monk) Daniels took scoring laurels for the Bulldogs with 24 points. Ephraim Green, the leader in the second and third quarter rally made by Eppes, was second high with 21 counters. Carlton Tucker added 11 points.

Eppes' next when they meet Darden High School of Wilson. They will meet Rocky Mount Monday night.

Pro Grid Teams Start Grab For College All Stars Today

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Owners and coaches of the 12 National Football League teams dipped into the grab-bag today to try to land some of 1953's top college players for the play-for-pay game.

The league's annual four-day business meeting was scheduled to open with the selection of the bonus choice with six clubs eligible for the draw—Cleveland, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Green Bay, the Chicago Cardinals and the new Baltimore team.

After that, the all-day pick begins among hundreds of stars of big and small college elevens all across the nation. The lowest teams in the standings will get first crack at the big draft pool.

Among the leading 1952 luminaries in the draft will be Moe Modzelewski, Maryland tackle, Billy Vessels, Oklahoma halfback, Howard Waugh, Tulsa fullback, and Donn Moomaw, UCLA linebacker. One of these may be the bonus choice.

The winner of the bonus pick—from a hat—gets his choice of any graduating college player.

The NFL's Rules Committee, in a preliminary meeting Wednesday night, stood pat on the two-pick system, as expected, and did not follow the lead of the colleges in scrapping multiple platoon play.

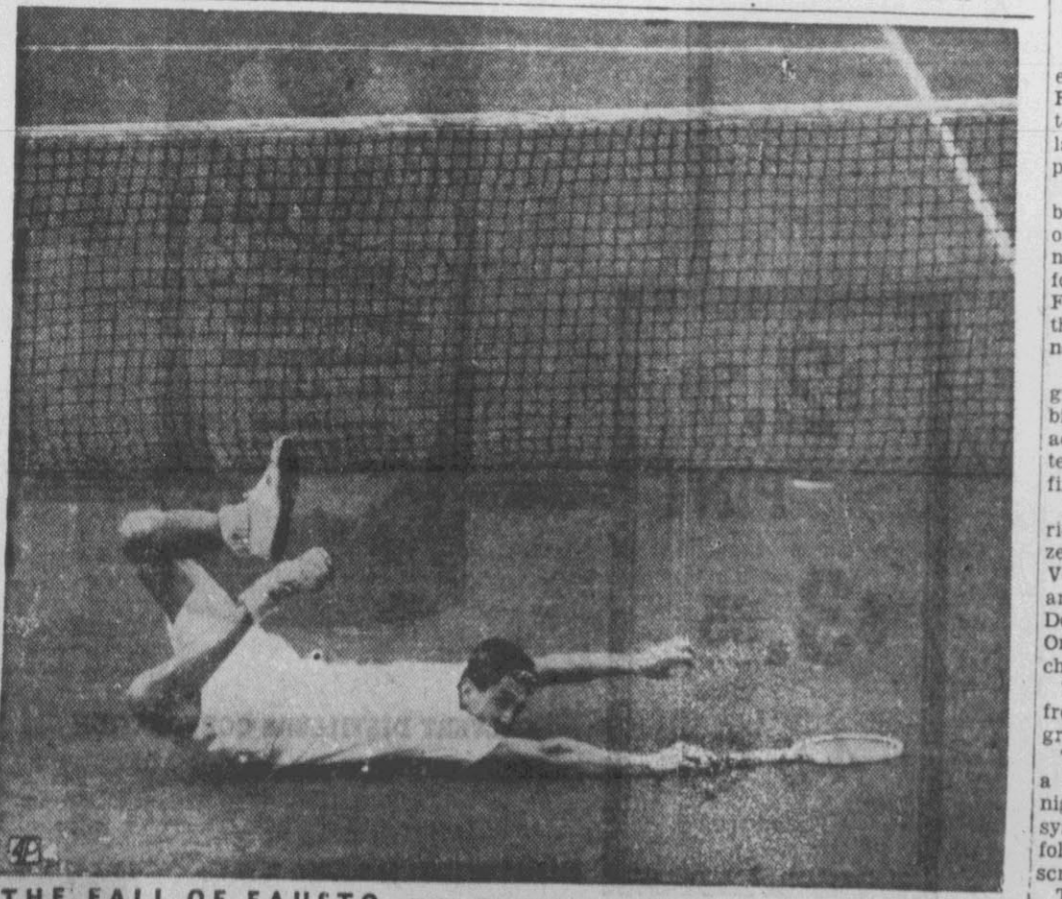

The committee adopted recommendations for minor rules changes and killed suggestions for eliminating the point after touchdown and altering ball-carrying regulations.

The moguls also did not have to act on a proposal that the sudden death rule apply to regular season games in addition to play-off and championship contests. This was withdrawn by Commissioner Bert Bell, who made the suggestion that the point after touchdown be eliminated to foil gamblers.

The committee proposed a new rule governing the clock after illegal touching of a kicked ball by the offense. The group recommended that the clock be stopped and then started when the referee designates the beginning of the 30 seconds.

Before the rules meeting got underway, Bell told a press conference that 1952 was the "biggest year" in NFL history. He said the total attendance of 2,149,633 was 1.6 per cent greater than the previous high of 1950.

Bell said he regarded last season as the best in history despite a loss of $69,200 from the default of the Dallas Texans, which finished the season under league guidance.

The commissioner said that he would suggest to the club owners Friday that the present player limit of 33 be cut to "reduce the risk of taking over a franchise."

"Cutting three players from the limit would cut expenses by $20,000 or $25,000," Bell said.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks moved aimlessly early today in dull dealings.

Price movements were in a very narrow range. The industrial component of the averages showed a decline of a few cents. The railroad average improved a few cents.

Market news continued on the dull side. With nothing to sway prices, investors turned to the side lines. As a result, sales in the first hour totaled only 290,000 shares, compared with 260,000 in the same period yesterday.

A few specialties managed to move out of the narrow range. Chicago Pneumatic Tool rose a point to 53 3/4. Texas Pacific Land Trust added a point to 156. Associates Investment slipped 1 1/2 points to 44 on one sale.

In the main industrial group, steel shares were mixed. Bethlehem Steel tacked on a gain of 1/4 to 55 1/2. U. S. Steel was unchanged at 42 3/4 and Youngstown Sheet & Tube eased.

Automotives eased. Small declines were noted in Chrysler, Studebaker and Buick.

Cites Big Land Holdings Of U. S.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Chairman A. L. Miller of the House Interior Committee said today the federal government owns a fourth of all land in the United States and it's time some of it was put in private hands.

The Nebraska Republican proposed a congressional "hourly" aimed at reducing federal holdings by about 820,000,000 acres in the United States and Alaska.

He said the government, in the public interest, should reverse the trend toward increasing federal ownership of land that developed under 20 years of Democratic rule.

"Much of the land is not needed by the government and should be on the tax rolls," he told a reporter.

Institute Covered Many Fields

Recreation leaders of nine towns in eastern North Carolina are attending the social recreation institute being held here this week.

The institute which has been in progress since Monday will wind up tonight after four days of instruction. White recreation leaders have been meeting at the army at night and Negro leaders have received instruction at Eppes High School in the afternoon.

Most of those attending the institute are teachers, municipal recreation directors, home agents and assistant agents, church representatives, college groups, and Girl Scout and Brownie Scout instructors.

The institute is being conducted to train new staff workers, to bring new techniques and activities to recreation leaders, and to establish new programs and revitalize old programs.

Leaders are being trained in skills in social recreation which includes all types of games, active and quiet ones, singing and mystery games, musical games, and dramatic games.

Instructing the group is Helen Dauncey of the National Recreation Association of New York. She has worked in numerous social recreation institutes and is the author of books appearing in several recreation publications.

The institute is being sponsored by the Greenville Recreations Department, the North Carolina Recreation Commission, and Extension Service of the University of North Carolina.

Loses Stubborn Fight For Life

HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—An 83-year-old man who "died" twice during a delicate operation Monday but was revived both times lost his stubborn fight for life Wednesday night.

Officials at St. Francis Hospital said that the remarkable oldster, whose name was not disclosed, "slipped quietly away" while attendants kept a round-the-clock vigil at his bedside.

His heart stopped beating twice during an operation for a bleeding gastric ulcer, but the beat was restored by massaging and stimulation. The man had recovered sufficiently Wednesday to ask for a glass of beer.
