Army's Big Display Of Firepower Fails To Break Red Lines

Chinese Emerge From Caves To Turn Back Raiding Party; Three Times The Allied Force Charged, Stopped

CENTRAL FRONT, Korea (UP) — The Allies put on the greatest coordinated display of firepower today since the war began. It should have been enough to crack enemy resistance on the side of T-Bone Hill. First came waves of jet dive bombers, flashing silver in the morning sun before they turned the hill into a volcano. Then came the tom-tom beats of artillery that splattered orange and black puffs over the hill mass in a concentrated barrage using almost every gun in the division. The sound broke seconds later and mingled in a ragged roar while the smoke spiraled into the sky and moved slowly eastward with the wind like a giant ghost. But the Reds still were there. I asked a wounded infantryman about it. "They were down in their caves," he said. "The minute it was over they came out throwing grenades. We could see old Joe Chink sticking his head up all over the place." The infantry moved toward its objective as if it was on a training exercise. Army and Air Force generals gathered in an observation post could see the Communists firing only a few shells at the clusters of tanks showing pointblank from both sides against the enemy-held ridge. The raiders jumped from their personnel carriers in the valley, walking in a skirmish line against the knoll objective on top of the ridge. The crude weapons of hand grenades and rifle fire stopped them as they started the slippery climb

'Truce Road' Hit By UN Bombers

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — Allied fighter-bombers blasted the vital Pongnyang-Kaesong "truce road" today over which Communists have moved western front war supplies in violation of an Allied-Red agreement. American and Australian Thunder Jets, Shooting Stars and Meteors destroyed 13 Communist supply trucks in morning strikes on the road south of Pongnyang, the North Korean capital. The road had been set aside for safe-conduct of truce teams to Panmunjon where the now-stalled armistice talks were held. Recently the Allies determined the Reds were moving war supplies in alleged armistice delegation convoys and ordered the road bombed today. The much battered Sinanju was hit again by other fighter-bombers which concentrated their bombs on scattered road and rail bridges, including spans across the Taeyong River. The American ground forces big-

Pitt Officials Depart To Inspect Revaluation Work

Pitt County officials left this morning for "other parts" in the initial phase of an investigation designed to ultimately bring about a proposed revaluation of all property in the county. Members of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, County Attorney W.W. Speigal, and Reginald Gray, Pitt Auditor, left Greenville today to inspect revaluation procedures recently carried out in Lenoir and Duplin counties. The tour is part of a project approved at the January meeting of the Pitt board, which called for a "revaluation and equalization of property in the county" sometime during 1953. Officials are visiting other counties to determine the most advantageous way to carry out the project. Auditor Gray said a board expected to visit several counties in

Eisenhower Really Trying Plug News Leaks Within His Cabinet

By LYLE C. WILSON Critical Pitt Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower is said to be edgy and angry about news leaks of his plans to the press and radio. A recent visitor described him as raging because word of political appointments had been peddled prematurely. Raging is an extravagant word, and Mr. Eisenhower's visitor may have been overly impressed by the President's displeasure. But the emphasis on tight security after the first Cabinet meeting was a hint that Mr. Eisenhower intended that the leaks shall be plugged. It will be a job for a master plumber. Emerging from the new administration's No. 1 Cabinet huddle, the Eisenhower team reacted to questions with a startled silence

Future Assured

By EARNEST B. VACCARO KANSAS CITY (AP)—President Harry S. Truman, it may now be disclosed, has been assured of contracts providing him enough money for his future needs and to permit him complete freedom to say and write what he pleases. This reporter was told by one of the former President's closest friends that Truman will write his memoirs for a New York publishing firm at a figure expected to run above half a million dollars over a period of several years. In addition, Truman will make periodic carefully selected lectures along lines of his own choosing. The source for this report would not be quoted by name. Details of the agreement are being handled for the former President by Matthew J. Connelly, his No. 1 secretary while in the White House.

Refugees Pour Into West Berlin At Record Rate

Over 1,000 Seek Asylum In 12-Hour Period; Bonn Govt's Plans Housing BERLIN (UP)—More than 1,000 refugees poured into West Berlin in 12 hours today and officials predicted a one-day record of escapes from new Communist purges in East Germany. The previous mark of 1,774 refugees in one day was set last Monday. East Germans and East Berliners seeking political asylum already have passed the monthly record of 15,800 set in December. Western officials said 18,000 persons have fled across the border so far in January and predicted the number will top 20,000 by the end of the month. Some 25 Soviet zone Jews were among the refugees during the weekend, raising the total of recent Jewish fugitives from a new outburst of anti-Semitism to 400. In Bonn, the West German finance ministry has earmarked $22,000 for emergency housing in West Germany for refugees from Communist purges. Many of those who flee into West Berlin are flown to West Germany in a "refugee airlift." Some 30,000 are jammed into West Berlin camps and another 100,000 have settled in the city since 1949. An estimated 10,000,000 refugees and displaced persons have flooded West Germany since the end of World War II. East German security police were reported to have arrested a Jewish Communist leader for helping other top Jews escape to the west. West Berlin Socialists said Bruno Wolf, Jewish chairman of the Central Committee's education and religious affairs department, was charged with covering the flight of all of East Germany's seven Jewish leaders. One of these escape leaders said today Russia has recalled almost all Jewish soldiers and officials serving with occupation troops and the Soviet Control Commission in Germany. Leon Zamojre, leader of the Jewish community in the Soviet zone city of Halle, said the Soviet began recalling Jews from occupation posts two years ago. In the last six months, he said, the camp was stepped up and virtually every Jewish soldier and official has now left Germany.

'Demagoguery' Label Withdrawn

NEW YORK (UP)—Former President Harry S. Truman doesn't think President Eisenhower's trip to Korea was "demagoguery" after all. Mr. Truman was quoted by Bryson Rash, American Broadcasting Company White House correspondent, as saying he favored Eisenhower's trip to Korea, and "it probably did some good." Rash said Mr. Truman made the statement 10 days ago but it was not cleared for release until after Mr. Eisenhower was inaugurated

Only Five Days To Go For Listing 1953 County Taxes

With the deadline for listing 1953 county taxes only five days away, attention this afternoon were that a very high percentage of the local citizenry will be penalized for late listing. Pitt County Auditor Reginald Gray said today only approximately 50 percent of the county's 19,000 taxpayers have obtained their abstracts and listed their annual taxes. "The 30-day listing period expires Saturday, January 31," the auditor cautioned taxpayers, "and no arrangements have been made relative to extending the time past that date. All who have failed to list by that time will be taxed with a 10 percent penalty for late listing." Greenville At 10 Gray declared Greenville Township is far ahead of other townships in the county in percentage

Eisenhower Addressing Joint Session Of Congress Next Monday

State Of Union Message Readied

By RAYMOND LAHR United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)— President Eisenhower will deliver his State of the Union message in person to a joint session of Congress next Monday 12:30 p. m., EST, congressional leaders announced today. House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr. announced the plans for the President's appearance after he and eight other top-ranking GOP House and Senate leaders spent two hours with the President at the White House covering the outstanding matters to be included in the message. Martin said today's meeting, the first regular legislative conference since Mr. Eisenhower took office, was "very interesting." The GOP leaders "went over all of the matters which will be treated by the President in his State of the Union message," Martin said. Senate GOP leader Robert A. Taft was among those who attended the early-bird meeting beginning at 8:30 a. m. He said also the group went over a long list of subjects to be included in the presidential message. "We don't want to give you a line on what it is," Taft said, "because after all, it is his message." Asked what the congressional leaders thought of the message, Taft said only it was "a very harmonious conference." Taft explained that the message is not actually written yet and what they received this morning

Wilson Confirmation Is Taft's Goal For Today

Ohioan Promises Hold Senate In Overtime Session, If Necessary, To Complete Formation Of Eisenhower Cabinet

WASHINGTON (UP)—Republican leader Robert A. Taft promised to hold the Senate in overtime session today if necessary to confirm Charles E. Wilson as defense secretary and complete formation of the Eisenhower Cabinet. Advance nose-counting indicated that the former General Motors president would win Senate approval by an overwhelming vote, now that he has agreed to sell his $2,700,000 worth of GM stock. But Taft evidently expected some lengthy anti-Wilson speeches from Oregon's independent Sen. Wayne Morse, an avowed foe of the nomination, and possibly from some Democrats. He gave the controversial nomination top priority at today's Senate session and told a reporter: "We're going to stick with it until he is approved if it takes until evening." But on two other Defense Department appointments, Taft had had news to report to President Eisenhower at their first White House legislative conference this morning. That news was that a clear majority of the Senate Armed Services Committee will oppose Mr. Eisenhower's choices of Army and Air Force secretaries, unless and until the prospective officials sell their stocks in companies doing de-

Army Chief Confers With Gen. Van Fleet

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—U.S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. J. L. Wilson Collins arrives in Seoul today for final conferences with retiring Gen. James A. Van Fleet which could change the United Nations conduct of the stalemated Korean war. However, no drastic change was foreseen. Van Fleet, looking fit and chipper a farewell press conference, said Sunday night that Communism is the "world's enemy" and urged that United Nations members supply more troops for the Korean war. Collins, who arrived in Tokyo Sunday for his seventh visit to the Far East Command, said that the switch in Eighth Army commanders probably would not result in changes in the conduct of the war. He said Van Fleet was being replaced solely because he has reached the retirement age. Because President Eisenhower has been extremely cautious in response to proposals for an Allied offensive in Korea, it was believed that Collins did not bring any word on new military operations. The chief of staff, who was met at the airport in Tokyo by Gen. Mark W. Clark and members of his staff, said it was merely a "regular, periodic visit." The four-star general said he had "things to discuss" with Clark and Van Fleet, but discounted any speculation that his inspection tour was connected with any new military plans by President Eisenhower. Collins will return to Tokyo Thursday to meet Lt. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, who was picked to relieve Van Fleet as Eighth Army commander. The 66-year-old Van Fleet is headed for retirement.

Sabotage Is Possibility, Say Investigators

Flames Gut Luxury Liner

LIVERPOOL, England (UP)— Sabotage possibly caused the fire which gutted the Canadian luxury liner Empress of Canada and sent her to the bottom of the muddy Mersey River today, investigators said. Flames and smoke still rose from the 20,325-ton Canadian Pacific cruiser liner as she lay on her side with her twisted superstructure jammed against a dockside building. For more than nine hours 200 firemen battled the flames which gutted the $5,600,000 liner and made her a total loss. Fire, police, harbor and steamship officials went aboard the smoldering hulk this morning as she lay with her port side resting on the river bottom under 50 feet of water. "Sabotage cannot be ruled out," fire Supt. A. G. Greenhalgh said. "It is up to the official inquiry to try to ascertain what happened." Britain's Criminal Investigation Division began an exhaustive investigation of the disaster this morning. First to be questioned by CID agents were the 25 men who were working on the 20,325-ton liner yesterday afternoon when the fire was discovered. Approximately 200 persons went on and off the ship yesterday before the fire was discovered. Every one of them will be questioned. J. B. Firth, head of the CID in northern England, said it will be several days before the superheated plates of the ship cool enough to permit a detailed examination. Some officials feared the ship's fuel tanks would burst, unleashing tons of oil which might start a sea fire and endanger other vessels in crowded Liverpool. The burning ship heeled over this morning with a series of thundering crashes as her superstructure and funnels smashed against the dock wall. The heat had buckled the plates and rivets shot across the pier like bullets. The ship's portholes flamed like gas rings on a stove. Her mast hit a warehouse. A funnel snapped. Clouds of steam covered the pier area as river water sizzled into the interior of the richly furnished ship. No one was killed but seven fire-

Special Meeting On 'Plan D' Set For Tuesday

Possible modification of the "Plan D" type of municipal administration, which was approved for Greenville by local citizens on January 12, will be discussed at the city hall tomorrow night. Mayor Lester D. Page said this morning he has called a special joint meeting of the board of aldermen and the Greenville Utilities Commission for tomorrow night at 7:30 for that purpose. "If any changes in the plan are to be forthcoming they must be submitted to the legislature this session," Mayor Page stated. "The purpose of the meeting is to discuss with the utilities commission any pertinent revisions to be presented before the General Assembly." The mayor said the meeting will be open to the public. Page has previously called on civic and social groups to submit tentative changes in the plan, but there has been no response to the request as yet.

Upset By Early Working Hours

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower's early-4 work habits are causing mild consternation among some capital bigwigs. For years they have considered 10 a. m. the earliest respectable hour for a meeting. But to Mr. Eisenhower, that is the middle of the morning.

Pitt Prison Camp Fugitive Is Captured After Robbing A Bank

CARTHAGE, Tex. (AP)—F. C. Bonner, 27-year-old Pitt County escapee, was apprehended in Carthage, Texas, yesterday for the robbery of a Gilliam, La. bank after a 23-hour chase. Bonner was taken into custody three months from the day which he and four other Pitt County prisoners made a bid for freedom from a prison road gang below Griffon. The fugitive, near exhaustion and suffering from a slight bullet wound in the left arm, gave himself up meekly to Constable Turk Chalmers and former Deputy Sheriff Grover Westmoreland. Officers and bloodhounds had been chasing the man, wanted for the $28,000 robbery of the Gilliam, La. bank for 23 hours. Robbery charges growing out of the bank hold-up have been placed against Bonner and two other men. The FBI listed the other two men being held as Bonner's brother, Haskell Bonner, and Guy F. Nelson. Officers reported that about half of the stolen money had been recovered from the robbery of last Tuesday. Officers found $950.00 on Bonner when he was captured. He had earlier abandoned a gun and a bag containing $2,000 in five dollar bills as he fled from police gun fire in Carthage Sunday afternoon, when he was spotted and pursued by officers. It was in the gun battle that he received the arm wound. One of the 16 FBI agents taking part in the hold-up search revealed that Bonner told them he had been practicing pistol shooting lately and had said that he would "not be taken alive. However he was alive when taken but too weak to resist when the officers came upon him in the East Texas pine thicket at 3:15 p.m. For hours before his capture the fugitive had been traveling with only one shoe. He lost his right shoe when his car was trapped by highway patrolmen in a dead-end street in Carthage. He fled in a hail of bullets. It was at this point that the dragnet search and the bloodhounds got on the trail which resulted in Bonner's capture. Bonner, a native of North Carolina, escaped from the Pitt County prison road gang on October 24 early in the morning near Riverdale below Griffon, along with four other convicts. He was serving a life term for the murder of Ira L. Godwin of Brunswick, near Whiteville. Bonner and three other compan-

Health Dept. Takes Up Canine Controls

Effective February 1, the operation of the city dog laws will fall under the administration of the Pitt County Health Department which will carry the program out in the same manner it is now operating the anti-rabies control program. The announcement of the shift in the administration of the city dog laws was made Saturday by Mayor Lester Page and Dr. Walter Humbert, local health department director. Page said the board of aldermen, at their last meeting, voted to have the health department take over the city's dog program. The present city humane officer, Enoch E. Jones, will report to the health officer for administrative control and salary of the humane officer will still be a function of the city. It is the plan of the health officer to discontinue the city dog pound for economy purposes, incorporate it with the county pound, which is located at the county farm. Plan Concentrated Effort A concentrated effort is planned to take stray dogs and cats off the street. Jones will "take a house-to-house survey of dog registration in the near future." Dr. Humbert said it is estimated that there are between 2,000 and 3,000 dogs in the confines of the city but only 150 dogs are licensed. The license fee is effective from July 1 of one year to June 30 of the next year. License for males is $1.00 and $2.00 for females who are capable of reproducing. He said Jones will be authorized to pick up any dog running at large and a nuisance whether it wears a collar or not. The dogs picked up will be taken to the county pound and can be claimed by the owner after a payment of a $2.00 pound fee and 50 cents a day for board. If stray dogs picked up are not claimed within seven days, they will be destroyed by humane efforts. Persons claiming their dogs must show certificates of vaccination or get the dog vaccinated by a licensed veterinarian and be registered and licensed in the city. A minimum fine of $2.50 will be charged the dog owner if it is declared a nuisance by the police.

Protective Measure Dr. Humbert said the prime purpose of enforcing the dog laws is to protect citizens and wildlife. "We cannot afford to take a chance with rabies," he said. The problem of rabies control is a terrific and expensive one. We have a good program in the county and know how to handle rabies control. The enforcement of the dog laws is a public health measure and we will do everything to prevent rabies, have an orderly town, and protect good dogs," he explained.

The books for dog licenses are open and dogs four months or older must be registered and licensed. A certificate of vaccination must be shown before dogs can be registered. Persons wanting stray dogs picked up can call the health department, phone 3225. The county dog pound is open every afternoon at 4 o'clock and on Saturday mornings at 10 o'clock.

Madame Rajkumari Amrit Kaur, minister of health under Prime Minister Nehru's government in India. She is one of several Christians in his cabinet. Speaking at the dedication of a missionary hospital in Bareilly, United Provinces, recently Madame Rajkumari said: "It is fortunate for India that there are good people (the missionaries) who have come from abroad. They help us in their service of our people and give relief to sick and suffering humanity with a self-sacrificing spirit. Their cooperation at this time, when government cannot afford to do all it should, is all the more welcome. After Independence, the question arose whether we needed their services, and we felt emphatically that it was essential that they remain. Indian practitioners need the same kind of spirit of service to their fellow beings. Their aim should be not to amass money by private practice but to render real service. This should pay more attention to serve in the rural areas, and government should encourage them by giving rates, an attractive pay, facilities of schools for their children's education, decent accommodation, etc. The active sympathy of Shri Murti Manohar, in giving a donation of Rs. 7,000 for a dispensary in the rural area, is an example which generous-minded people should do well to emulate."

Firemen Roused By False Alarm

Franksters last night routed the entire Greenville Fire Department from a sound sleep by turning in a false fire alarm around 11:15. Firemen responded to a box alarm from box 57, located at Fifth and Maple Streets but were unable to find any signs of a fire. Irritated firemen, reminded the public that a $50 fine and jail sentence can be imposed for the turning in of a false alarm. In addition, firemen pointed out the dangers involved with the heavy fire equipment moving over the city streets in response to an alarm, and the number of volunteer firemen who must also answer the alarms.

Designers Of Broadway Try Fashion For Public

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
 NEW YORK (UP)—Two women who have been whipping Broadway productions for years will test their talent on secretaries and housewives next summer.
 The new line of summer clothes was previewed here recently, with Edith Montgomery suffering all the backstage anxieties of an opening night.
 "We felt that since we have worked with so many women to make them attractive on the stage we had learned things about bringing out the best in women which would be valuable," explained Miss Lutyens.
 Then they started worrying that people would think the clothes were too subdued. With a reputation built on designing and making costumes for such hits as "South Pacific," "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" and "Brigadoon," they realized that the critics in the garment district might expect them to design something pretty startling.

 Their summer dresses, which will be distributed by Del Mar with a Montgomery Lutyens label, feature cotton prints in unusual designs and colors. But they're subdued, rather than flashy.
 "We used all kinds of necklines so a woman could pick out the one most becoming to her," Miss Lutyens explained.
 "Many of our skirts have a little fullness gathered at the waist in back. As a woman stands and walks she looks much more graceful from behind. You know, you have to be practical in the thea-

"KISS ME KATE". Following a record two-year run on Broadway, the highly touted musical comedy, "Kiss Me Kate," will be presented in Greenville Wednesday night, January 28, for one performance only. To be staged in Wright Auditorium on the East Carolina College campus, the production will feature the music of Cole Porter. Curtain time has been set for 8:30, and tickets are now on sale at General Insurance Agency in Greenville.

 At the social hour, refreshments were served by members of the Recreation Committee, Barbara Paramore, Mary Lou Moore, Phyllis Corbett, and Vera Cannon.
 Emille Camron, Farmville president, presided over the meeting which was held last Wednesday in the Home Economics Cottage on the Farmville School campus.

Two Killed

SNOW HILL, N. C. (AP)—An automobile went out of control near here early today, killing two Camp Lejeune marines and injuring two others.
 The State Highway Patrol identified the dead as Sgt. Harold A. Smith, killed instantly, and Robert Schneiderwind, who died about two hours later at a Kinston hospital.

Couple Slain As Thieves Fall Out

7 2 UP45 Jan. 26 LO655a KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—Police said today that a quarrel over how to divide the loot in a $50,000 bank robbery may have been led to the murders of a young man and his wife who were found in a bloodstained car here.
 The bodies of 22-year-old James Calloway Fahnestock and his red-haired wife, Billie, 21, were discovered Sunday in a stolen car that had been parked for six or 10 hours in a South Side residential area.
 A .38 automatic pistol with a fully loaded clip and $2,179.91 in cash was found on Fahnestock. He and his wife were shot through the head.
 Lt. Harry Nesbitt of the Kansas City Homicide Bureau said "this was definitely a double murder." "The killer or killers didn't waste any time fooling around with that small amount of money," he said "they were in a hurry to get out of there."

 Sgt. Wayne Dixon, who spoke for Nesbitt after the lieutenant closeted himself with FBI agents, said that "they're checking the very possible angle that there was a disagreement over the division of loot."
 Fahnestock and his wife had been wanted on warrants issued by the FBI in connection with the robbery of the Rosedale State Bank in Kansas City, Kan., last Wednesday. FBI agents were still seeking Louis Albert Sturgis, 23, and Virginia May Iser, 20, on similar charges.
 Dixon said that the warrants were issued after employees of the bank identified two of the suspects from police pictures.
 disposable personal income for each person in the United States was $782 in 1951, measured in dollars of the 1935-39 value, compared with $553 in 1929 and $389 in 1933.

Strength for the Day

FLOWERS ON SAND
Some years ago an English woman had a great inspiration whereby she turned a little savings account into a work of love which became her monument.

Over the years she had accumulated a small savings account which she deemed would be sufficient to pay her funeral expenses. But she heard of the great religious work which was being started on the island of Iona, from whence, centuries before, missionaries had crossed over to England and Scotland to convert the rude tribesmen. Iona was being rebuilt and re-dedicated to a religious crusade.

But Iona was a barren place. This woman visited the island, she was thrilled by the spiritual atmosphere but saddened by the appearance of the landscape. She withdrew from the bank her little savings account, bought flower seeds, and forthwith began a planting enterprise. Today Iona is a place of beauty and color. No one knows what happened to the little woman or whether she had decent burial or not but the flowers which wave on the slopes of Iona hills are a monument to her love of beauty—to her love of God and of all mankind.

We don't have to have much to serve well, but what we do have to have is a willing heart and a self-effacing spirit. Flowers grow wherever these qualities are worked into any kind of soil.

The "Natural Leaders", Mothers, Will March

One of the best pieces of news we saw in The Reflector last week was that the Pitt public is "more polio-conscious" this year than in the past.

The co-chairman of the March of Dimes campaign went on to tell of undertakings staged in various communities, all intended to raise funds to fight infantile paralysis.

And one of the heart-warming demonstrations of earnest effort against polio lies in the offering, the "Mothers' March." If anyone has a realization of what the March of Dimes means, if anyone has a real dread and knowledge of what polio means, it would be the mothers who fear the possibility of their own children falling victims to the scourge.

They are the natural leaders of any campaign against infantile paralysis in the sense of prevention and in the cause of cure. Their efforts this year should not go unrewarded when they ask for contributions.

We have often thought there was a discrepancy in according credit in successful fund campaigns. Able leaders are necessary, but they are the first to acknowledge that their success hinged on the work of the army of workers who did the actual solicitation.

And soliciting money for even a most worthy project requires time and selflessness beyond the power to give of most of us. Asking for a gift of money, in any such campaign is not easy for many of those who are veterans of fund-raising drives. A curt or unthinking dismissal of such appeals makes it harder than ever for the amateur campaigner to keep going. Tender feelings are sometimes bruised, and the earnest solicitor is discouraged by a cool reception, no matter how firm their convictions in the worthiness of the cause.

So, shortly, a group of mothers are going to add their efforts to the nationwide campaign against a feared disease. A lot of them will be seeing action for the first time in a solicitation campaign.

Remember when you greet them, their work is a selfless demonstration of civic responsibility. Only the knowledge of the very real need for such a campaign would bring them out. Let's not discourage them by a lack of understanding on our part.

Consideration Needed On Consolidation Question

The Durham Morning Herald, in its editorial column, has raised a question which gives food for thought on North Carolina's program of school consolidation.

The Herald poses the question: should popular approval be required for school consolidation?

Particularly during the past two years there have been a number of highly controversial issues over the consolidation of schools throughout the state. Pitt County has faced the problems along with other counties throughout the state. In view of the controversies over the issue throughout the state, it might be expected that the General Assembly, during the current session, may turn its attention to the problem.

Governor Umstead recognized the problem and the deep feeling connected with the consolidation question and referred to it in his inaugural address:

"The question of further consolidation of schools is largely one of administration. However, it can be carried too far. The human element should be considered and if the State Board of Education does not now have sufficient discretionary power to enable it, in any given situation to consider the human element, such power should be given it by the enactment of proper amendments to the school law."

As the state law is now interpreted by many, the State School Board is required to close a high school with less than 60 pupils and consolidate it with another school. As in the case of some schools closed last fall, such strict adherence to the law does not take into consideration prospects for increased enrollments of the schools in the next few years. At the same time human factors such as the distance students must travel to attend classes are given little weight under a strict rule based upon numerical attendance at a school.

Not only from the standpoint of children, but from the standpoint of the advantages a community receives by having its own high school, citizens of individual communities have increased their antagonism toward consolidation under the present state statutes.

Representative Speight has introduced a bill in the General Assembly which would prohibit the closing of any high school in Bertie County if consolidation would require more than 10 per cent of the students to travel more than 15 miles to school, making the exception that schools with fewer than 45 pupils may be closed with consent of the parents. His is the first of the bills in this session of the General Assembly pointed at protecting the small schools. It is likely that other bills pointed at the same general goal will be placed before the legislators before the session closes.

North Carolina's school consolidation program presents many problems to the state school officials, and to the individual small communities of the state, some consideration should be given the question by the General Assembly.

Whether the proposition of referendums on consolidations is the answer, we don't know. Yet it seems factors other than merely the number of students in a school should weigh more heavily than they now do in deciding whether a school should be consolidated with another.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The most conservative Congress in a generation is merely awaiting direct orders from President Eisenhower before embarking on the task of extricating the Government from outright competition with private business and industry. It is expected the word will be given in future messages on various problems.

Several resolutions divesting the Government of many New Deal-Fair Deal trappings are now before House-Senate committees, showing the general interest in the subject since Charles E. Wilson, former Defense Mobilizer, advanced it several months ago.

The Couderc proposal in the House asks that the Appropriations Committee be empowered to study this complex question. Another suggestion, sponsored by Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan and Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, would entrust the task to a revived Hoover Commission.

SEPARATING GOVERNMENT AND BUSINESS—Eisenhower's Capitol Hill managers concede that divorcing Government from business will be a painful, protracted and Siamese-twin sort of operation. But they are confident that a start will be made at this session to liquidate Federal holdings valued at from $10 billion to $25 billion, and ranging from a tin mill to a vast system of generating and transmitting electricity.

The first specific move has already been taken by Rep. Gordon Canfield of New Jersey. The veteran member heads the House Appropriations Sub-Committee, which parcels out funds annually to the Treasury and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The RFC now owns synthetic rubber plants, tin smelters, defense plants and a complexity of other enterprises worth several billion dollars. Although now under lease to private operators, the Government retains title through this agency. As long as it exists, it provides machinery for continued or expanded Government ownership. It is a constant political temptation.

FUTURE RFC APPROPRIATIONS—Canfield has informed the White House that he will postpone any consideration of future RFC appropriations until he has been advised of Eisenhower's plans concerning the lending agency Canfield favors abolition.

Only the belated appointment of Stuart Symington, now Senator from Missouri, saved the RFC at the last session. Canfield's sub-committee was ready to recommend liquidation because of scandalous transactions and loans involving Truman's cronies. As they anticipated, Symington did a good cleanup job, so much so that even he is against continuance.

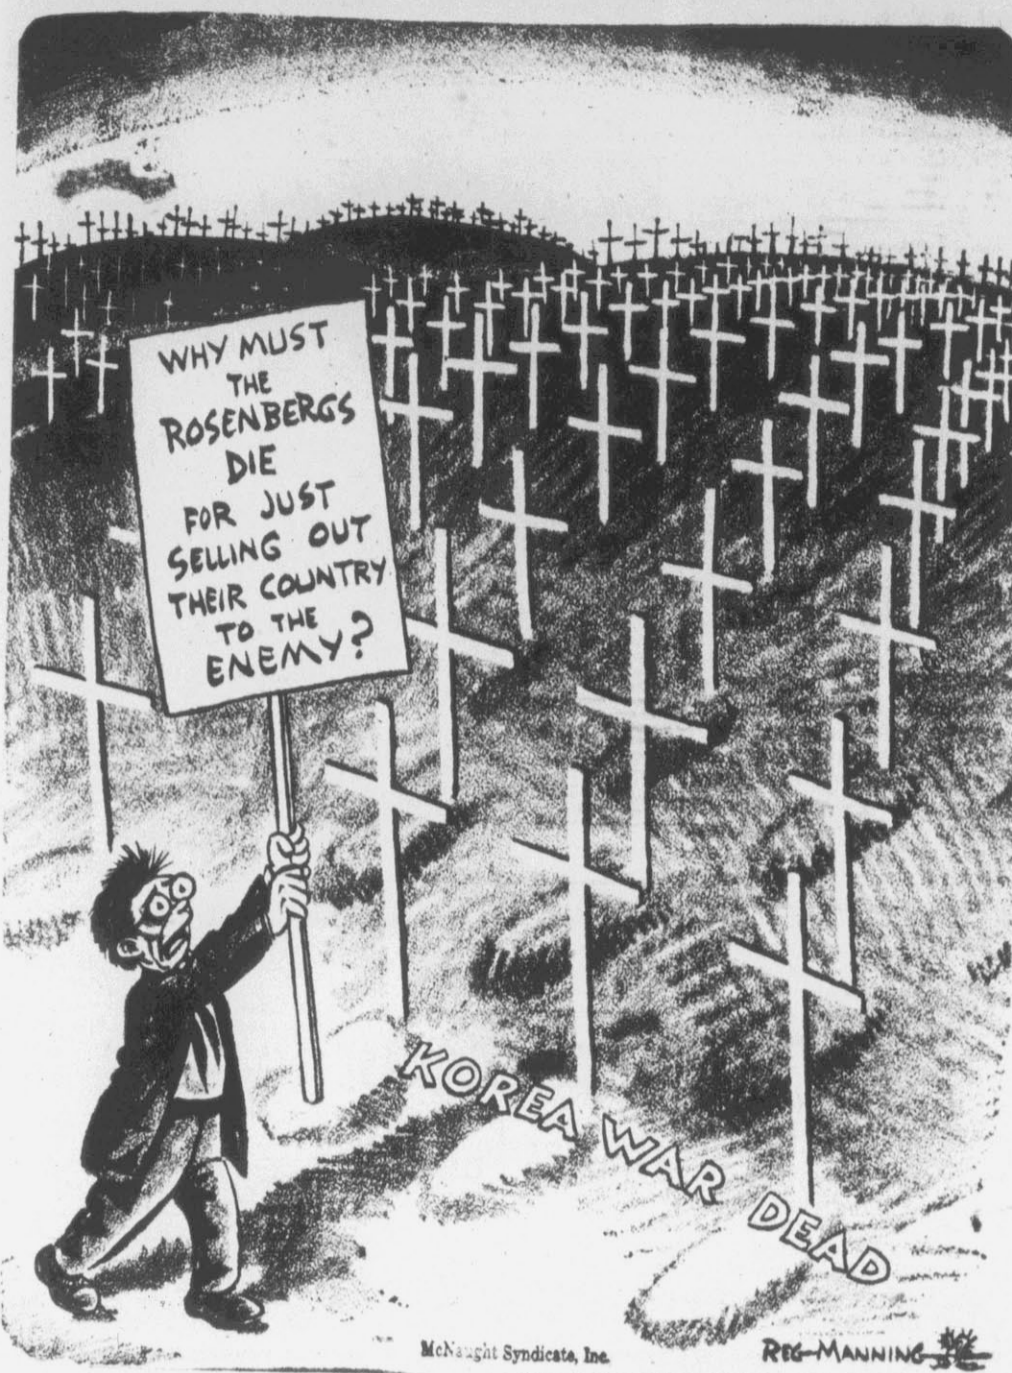

Under the Canfield program, if Eisenhower agrees, RFC would be transferred to the Treasury for an orderly disposition of its properties. There are plenty of customers for its profitable industrial investment.

CONTROVERSY OVER POWER SYSTEM—Sharp controversy has already arisen over possible sale of the Government's overgrown power system, which now produces more electricity than any public or private system in the world. It is estimated to be worth about $10 billion on the basis of present-day replacement costs.

The private utilities do not want to take over such collateral operations as flood control, irrigation, navigation and wildlife protection. Many do not want to assume ownership of the generating plants themselves. They insist that they will be satisfied if permitted to transmit and retail power to the ultimate consumers.

HOOPER PATTERNS—Ironically, Herbert Hoover's pattern may be the one adopted by Interior Secretary Douglas McKay, with necessary regional modifications. The Government built Hoover Dam but not until after it had negotiated contracts for full purchase of the power output on terms that would amortize the investment in 50 years.

Twenty Thousand Answers

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

STATE—Several incidents of the past few months occasion the serious question whether North Carolina may be emphasizing too much the admittedly laudable idea of State sovereignty. Latest instance was the response to the call by Charles H. Jenkins for a meeting of the commission on interstate co-operation to be held Tuesday afternoon in Raleigh when it had been arranged to have a representative of the Council of State Governments discuss uniform state legislation proposed by a special study commission of the Council. Jenkins is a carry-over from his appointment as chairman of the Senate committee four years ago. Attending Tuesday's conference was David Henderson, a member of last session's House committee, and the members of the current committee in the House on interstate and federal relations. No member of the Senate committee was present. Frank Taylor, legislative counsel for Governor Umstead was on hand, but stated he came to listen—not to talk.

INDEPENDENT—C.W. Fisher for the Council of State Government briefly outlined the program contemplated for uniform State laws on such subjects as highway traffic, civil defense, reciprocal export legislation and organized crime. In some instances he said North Carolina now has ample laws. In other phases there is real need for conformity. The attending legislators were not greatly impressed. The obvious attitude was that north Carolina is a sovereign State, competent to do its own law making and enforcing, without regard to what is being done in New York or Oregon or Texas. They were politely interested but not concerned with what Mr. Ingler had to say.

TY. CAL—Reaction of those attending the conference was typical of this State's general attitude toward co-operative enterprises. Another instance that can be cited to prove this point was failure to have representatives at the Legislative Work Conference on Southern Regional Education at Nashville early last fall.

COMPACT—Fourteen Southern States have signed a compact for cooperative support of higher educational institutions dealing mainly with certain professions requiring long and expensive training. The signers are Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky. All the States were represented at Nashville except the two Carolinas. One reason for lack of representation then was the traditional reluctance of the budget bureau to approve expense accounts for the kind of out-of-state travel. That excuse cannot be pleaded for failure of responsible people to attend the conference held in Raleigh this week. The reason must be the inherent spirit of "indocness" among Tarheels. Despite that feeling there is growing recognition that one State cannot get along without co-operation with its neighbors and compact agreements are becoming more popular.

DUPLICATION—rep. Sam O. Worthington of Pitt has in mind a resolution or an amendment to the rules eliminating the practice of concurrent introduction of identical bills in both branches of the Legislature. Practice has been to have major bills dealing with State Departments and other important matters put into the mill on both sides of the capitol. In some instances that speeds up action since the committees can have joint sessions for discussing the bills. In other cases it gums up legislative machinery and clutters up the journals by having to kill one of the measures. Out of many years experience—he has been in every session since 1939—Worthington has concluded that the total result is bad, and that one introduction is sufficient. Prior to the 1951 session when Thad Eure served as principal clerk of the House bills going from one branch to the other carried identification numbers for each. Eure streamlined procedure so that "rough-out" its course through the mill the measure retains its one original number. Worthington's proposal would further simplify handling.

GENERALS—An o Democrat, expressing some amusement at the troubles facing the new national administration, was taking over. Adverting to the report that in event the Senate does not confirm Charles Wilson for secretary of Defense Gen. Louis G. May get the nod, and the appointment of Gen. Edell Smith as under secretary of state, the Democrat said: "The generals are it. General Eisenhower in the White House. Generals Smith and Clay in two

What Other Papers Are Thinking

BIG BUSINESS MUST OBSERVE THE RULES IF IT IS TO RUN THINGS
(Hertford County Herald)

President Eisenhower has named to his administrative team a group of recognized leaders of industry. They are men who have made phenomenal success in business and whose climb to financial power has been consistent with the emergence of the United States as the leading world power. In fact, they are some of the very men who have helped to develop this country to that point of leadership.

Their leadership, however, has been in the realm of business and industry. They are not experienced in government. In recent years they and the companies they represent have been suspicious of government, and they have been arrayed against the federal government in many of its governing efforts. The truth is, this new administration has gone into power because of its opposition to government as operated by political leaders and politicians, and not because of its knowledge and experience in government.

Private business and government do not operate by the same set of rules. Government's business is to govern business. The more complex life becomes the greater must be the regulatory powers of government. Business must therefore, observe the rules and regulations that government prescribes. Business is governed; politicians govern.

It is one thing to have big business men—smart business leaders—run the private economy of the United States, but it is quite another story when men used to the ways of big business take over government. Thus, it becomes necessary for representatives of big business who come into government to adopt the rules of government, to act by them, and to run their public offices according to the governmental pattern.

That is why Chas. E. Wilson, former General Motors head and the biggest of the "big business men" selected by President Eisenhower, should not ask to be made an exception to the rules that deal with themselves nor with the companies with which they are allied or in which they own big blocks of stock. Either he should dispose of his stock in General Motors, or he should ask that his name be withdrawn from the list of appointees.

NOT MERELY A NEED BUT A NECESSITY
(Washington Daily News)

Some people look at bridges for Northeastern North Carolina as a matter of convenience and luxury for the few people who might live in the area.

Some look upon them as a necessity if that part of the state is to progress and become more prosperous.

Others, like the Daily News, are beginning to look upon the matter in the light of necessity. With the coming of the designation, National Seashore Area, the Pamlico and Albemarle areas find that bridges are now matters of necessity.

We can have the finest resorts along the Atlantic coast, but if the people who wish to get there find it difficult and almost inaccessible at times, then they are going to seek other resorts where facilities are more inviting.

We hear talk about state owned bridges, and then we hear talk of paying for them through tolls. And since much money is needed to get us the bridges we need so badly, then why is it economically wrong to let those who will use these bridges pay for them? Of course all of us would like to see toll free bridges spanning our rivers and water lanes. But if we can't get what we want, then we should explore the possibilities of toll bridges seriously.

It has been said before that it is not a responsibility of the state to develop wilderness areas. And it has been said that the state should not give roads and bridges to people merely because they happened to want them. We agree with this analysis.

Yet, everyday now we hear about industrial development in Eastern North Carolina. Is not the development of our Seashore beaches industrial development? Can we hope to see full development until we have adequate facilities to take people to the spot where development is ready to begin?

In the real sense today the bridge question has ceased to be one of mere need and has graduated into one of necessity. It'll cost a lot of money to do the job as it should be done. But this job is not merely one of serving the people who live in the area, but it is one of serving the residents and the "industry" which wants to come there.

The people of the Albemarle and Pamlico areas might present arguments which could seem selfish to some. To the Daily News what they say makes mighty good sense.

By ELMER ROESSNER

What's this? The new Administration has occupied Washington for five days now and there are much the same things just about as much talk, inflation and high cost of living as before. Seems that almost three months ago the people voted for a change and the only change so far is some new faces.

While some superficial changes may come quickly, basic changes in government will be slow.

One reason: There is a large body of law that keeps things the way they are. Congress may zip through a few quick alterations, but most changes will not be made without thorough consultation.

Some action may be forced. Various emergency powers of the President expire April 1; wage, price and rent controls expire April 30; the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act expires June 12, and the excess profits tax, export control authority of the President, materials and real-estate controls and several other acts expire on June 30. The time is short for such full consideration of the major policies involved. It is not at all unlikely that Congress will continue some of these powers until substitute measures and alternate policy are worked out.

Another reason: Over the last twenty years, enormous changes in the structure of the Federal Government have been added. Functions have been added, areas of action extended. Obviously, this structure can not be torn down; the task will be more like the job of remodeling a plant while work in progress continues.

Most important reason of all: The basic thinking of millions of Federal employees will have to be altered. Nonpolitical positions are occupied by persons who were and still are members of both political parties. But for twenty years they have been under the guidance and direction of New Deal and Fair Deal superiors. Even the Republicans among them have been conditioned to New Deal and Fair Deal policies and procedures.

Many employees, of course, will swing into action to carry out newer policies, but it will take months and even years for those policies to seep down from the Cabinet level to the vast number of persons who must eventually convert policy into action. Even then, there will be dedicated Democrats who may, consciously or unconsciously, resist the new departure.

Business faces the task of reconciling itself to the fact that for a long time to come we will have a government in transition.

BUSINESSMEN OVERLOOK MANY BANK SERVICES
Businessmen frequently overlook services which their banks are prepared to offer. E.A. Jesser, assistant vice-president of the National City Bank, New York, told the Young Presidents' Organization.

Among these services, he said, are help with foreign exchange problems, import and export commercial letters of credit, cable and mail transfer of funds, tax advice and letters of introduction. RETAILER SUES RETAILER

FOR $25 PER SALE

A new approach to maintaining prices fixed by manufacturers is being tried in New York. Most efforts to maintain "fair trade" prices have been manufacturers' suits for injunction, and sometimes for damages in addition, against companies that sell below the prices.

Now a New York jewelry retailer, who has fair-trade contracts with manufacturers of watches, fountain pens, lighters and other items, is suing a discount house which, it alleges, has sold these items below fixed prices.

The snapper to the action is that the jewelry retailer claims $25 damages for each sale made by the discount house.

FREEZERS, GAS FURNACES SHOW GAIN IN SHIPMENTS

Fair and home freezer were the only electrical appliances in the first eleven months of 1952 to gain in sales in the same 1951 period, according to a report of the National Electrical Manufacturers Association. In the same periods, refrigerator ranges fell from 1,196,268 to 2,151,688, shipments of electric shipments fell from 1,196,268 to 835,45 and shipments of electric water heaters dropped from 638,839 to 509,167 units.

Meanwhile, the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association reported that for the sole year of 1952, shipments of gas-operated central heating equipment totaled 390,000 in 1951.

NEW PRODUCTS

COFFEE MAKER—An automatic electric coffee maker with an instantaneous water heating system has been announced for commercial use by Indevco, Inc., 806 E. 11 St., New York 5. It uses a coffee concentrate, serves 200 cups per filling, and the coffee strength can be regulated by a twist of a knob. It takes up less than one square foot of counter space.

DETECTS—An electronic device said to detect any type of "chink" defect is being marketed by American Name Plate Co., 42 W. Arthington, Cincinnati. Resembling a geiger counter, it has a set of "carbon" batteries and an 18-inch metal rod attached to a plastic handle. By applying rod to engine or bearing, user can locate "chinks."

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—Once upon a time when most guys starved themselves to get that "svelte" look and the gals died to get toothpick thin there lived a happy fat man.

The time is now. The man is Herman Hickman, the roly-poly, ex-Yale football coach who has become one of television's biggest personalities.

Herman's career is proof that whoever said "Nobody loves a fat man" must have been "definitely" and jealous. While other hefty color their calories, he counts the dollars he makes out of being pleasantly plump.

"I guess I'm up to about 300 pounds now," he beamed contentedly as he dipped into a four-inch deep luncheon serving of lamb stew. "But I have trouble finding a place to weigh. I either have to go to an ice house or a coal yard."

His gusty enjoyment of living overflows in several directions—eating his own cooking, reciting poetry, smoking cigars, and telling tall tales of his Tennessee homeland.

His philosophy of life can be summed up: "Keep interested in everything—but don't spread yourself too thin."

But Herman himself is gaining weight on a schedule that would turn an average man into a skeleton. In addition to a daily television program for the Robert Burns Cigar Co., he cooks all the meals in his home, is writing a book and sandwiching a year.

His raconteur touring takes him all over the country. He talks to all kinds of groups—Boy Scouts, coaches, insurance executives, and women's clubs. "I enjoy an audience of women," he said, "because they like to hear poetry."

Herman gets a lot of fan mail from women, and says: "I must look comfortable. They never suggest that I reduce."

It might be because some women still like to see a man as robust, cheerful and friendly as Hickman. His own wife, Helen, has never tried to put him on a diet.

"I guess I started her out right," he said. "I've been doing all the cooking for 20 years. We put up a kitchen first, then built a house around it."

"Helen eats as much as I do, but doesn't put on a pound. She's awful good about letting me mess up the kitchen, and then cleaning up after me."

Herman is proud of being president of the Connecticut Amateur Chefs, and likes to "mix the Continental and Southern styles of cooking."

Here is the menu for one of the recent "snack meals" he concocted for his fellow amateur chefs:

(1) Italian "m" topped round Persian meal slices;
(2) Jellied consommé with sour cream and chopped chives;
(3) Chicken Brunswick stew, made from the meat of a four-pound hen stewed with onions sauté, fresh lima beans, corn off the cob, fresh tomatoes, Italian red peppers and garlic. Served with his own home-baked cornbread.

(4) Pecan pie and Italian coffee. Hickman is known as one of the better dressed fat men around town. But he has no particular advice on how faties can drop themselves to look svelte.

"If a man is only 40 or 50 pounds overweight, maybe he should avoid big checked patterns," he said. "Striped suits might help him hide his size. "But when you're 125 pounds overweight, there is only one way to dress—you're comfortable!"

Herman is about the most comfortable looking man in Manhattan.

Washington Letter

By JANE FADS

WASHINGTON—As predicted, the Capitol's 1953 social season is keyed to be the most spectacularly brilliant in years, christen it with champagne, sparkling with fabulous jewels, lavish feasting and headlines names. The pomp and elegance of former social seasons under Republican administrations is recalled by oldtimers, who've become accustomed to keeping their white tie and tuxedo regalia in moth balls during Democratic informalities under the Democrats.

Mrs. Morris Cafritz, wife of the wealthy Washington realtor, has gotten the jump on any other would-be aspirants as the city's No. 1 hostess. The party in the Cafritz' ultra-modern residence honored Lily Pons, petite star of the Metropolitan Opera. Miss Pons was dressed in British design. Charles James' red velvet gown with enormous skirt over-pleated and starched white organdy petticoats. She wore diamonds and sapphires. The hostess wore a Paris creation of pearl and crystal-embroidered white satin, trimmed with ermine, and a diamond necklace.

Ranking guests were retiring Vice President Alben Barkley and the dean of the diplomatic corps, Ambassador and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstern of Norway. A 6 foot tree of sunshiny mimosa stood in the entrance hall, along with azalea trees in full bloom. White calla lilies, lilacs and pale pink roses lent fragrance to the first-floor drawing room and garden-level ballroom, where an orchestra played for dancing after a formal 8 o'clock dinner for 22.

Phasant in plumage and crepe suzettes were highlights of the dinner, accompanied by an expensive array of fine wines and champagne, which was served all through the spanned evening.

Diplomats, top-ranking government officials and congressional leaders, military brass and the cream of Washington society were numbered among the 250 invited to the affair. Mrs. Cafritz promises this event was only a starter of a series she plans throughout the season.

Chapter 34

Joe drove on as long as the light lasted, and they were both tired and hungry by nine o'clock. It was quite dark by the time they found a township large enough to possess a decent hotel and restaurant.

"Gina," he said, "I'm going into the bar. I'm going to have a nice stiff brandy, and I'm going to write some letters. And I don't want you to my elbow. I want, as they say, to be alone."

"Okay," said Gina pertly. "I'm going to write some letters myself."

He looked at her suspiciously. "Don't kid me. Who have you ever written to?"

"I am going to write to my mother, to Bianca, to tell her I am safe."

"The surprise may kill her. I mean the surprise of your being considerate." Joe stalked away into the bar, ordered his brandy, got some stationery and wrote to Anthea and to Mario. He bought stamps from the barman, who told him that there was a tray for mail on the desk in the hall.

Joe put the letters into his pocket and went into the lounge. Gina was just finishing the envelope of her letter, writing with his tongue in the corner of her mouth, and making big, unformed letters like a child.

He rose and went out into the lounge, and Gina sat for a moment watching him with her heavy-lidded, sultry eyes. Then she too rose, and went upstairs.

Joe took his letters to the tray, and he was about to drop them when he saw a letter on the top, turned face downward. It was blue, like the envelope Gina had been addressing. He said to himself, "Most unethical, but I wonder if the little devil did write to Bianca. I've never known her to write to her, except for money."

He turned it over. The letter was addressed not to Bianca, but to Mr. Larry Donati at an address in Toulouse.

Joe stared. The mists of wine and weariness cleared from his brain. His attractive, good-tempered mouth set in a thin, grim line. He picked up the letter, and went upstairs to the first floor to Gina's room. There was no answer, so he thrust the door open. It was dark, so he switched on the light. The room was quite empty and obviously unoccupied. There was a little glint in his eyes as he closed the door, and walked quickly down the corridor to his own room. He opened the door sharply, and as he expected, Gina was there. Her luggage was open on the stand, and she was sitting on the edge of the bed, her pretty bare feet dangling, while she brushed her long shimmering fair hair. She was dressed in a filmy nightdress and negligee of pale rose-colored chiffo and she looked up and smiled at Joe as he stood in the doorway.

"Who let you in here?" asked Joe, and then he saw she was wearing a wedding ring on her left hand.

"Madame," said Gina dimpling. "I told her we were just married, and that we ad quarreled, and asked her to put my things in here to give us a chance to make up. She believed me."

"That all sounds very pleasant," he said, "and I suppose it was the whole reason for this trip. I'm beginning to see that I've been just a little dumb. There's just one thing I want to know."

"Of course, anything, Joe. I always speak the truth with you."

"Don't please, stretch it too far," protested Joe. His voice was so cold that Gina recoiled. He threw the blue envelope on the bed. "If you were so terrified of Mr. Larry Donati, why are you writing to him at Toulouse? Are you suggesting he should follow us here, so that we can have more scenes, and he can pretend to shoot you again? Of perhaps you would like to make up a threesome?"

"You've read my letter," she said furiously, snatching it up. Joe struck his forehead. "Your royal indignation is fascinating! I haven't if was a guess. And apparently read right what's in that letter? Open it, or you'll really have to be afraid of someone."

Gina tore the letter open and threw it at him, scrabbling back against the pillows, as though she really believed he would hit her. There was no letter—or only a scrap of paper with Gina's signature in her tortuous handwriting. The letter contained twenty thousand francs.

"So? Payment for services rendered? A pretense of jealousy, letters containing threatening demands, shots at the door but not at you? And I swallowed it. I swallowed it, for so help me, it never crossed my mind that you had the brains to think up anything like this!"

"Oh, I did not think of it all,

Village Landmark Is Restored By Outsider's Help

GOSHEN, N.Y. (AP) — When the village board recently found itself hard-pressed for funds to repair the village clock in the Presbyterian Church tower, out-of-town help saved the day.

John W. Richardson of White Plains sent word that he would put up $600 of the estimated $1,800 repair cost because as a boy at the village school he learned to tell time by the village clock. Another Goshen native, Dr. C. Hudson Thompson, offered to match the amount as a memorial to a beloved uncle, former organist at the church. The village now thinks it may be able to scrape up the other $600 if sentiment does not move other individuals to contribute.

It was just 100 years ago that subscribers to a town clock fund first decided to give a timepiece to the village.

PARADOZ — George B. Cherry, superintendent of buildings and grounds, believes he occupies a unique position among State department heads. The budget commission did not approve a single item for permanent improvements which he had requested, but recommended $35,000 which had not sought. The allocation is intended for the installation of public rest rooms on or immediately adjacent to capitol square.

NEEDED — Cherry feels that there is genuine need for some additional building, and for press facilities in the capitol itself, but there can be no question of the almost desperate need for the rest rooms. There is presently no place in Raleigh, either around the capitol or in the downtown business area, where visitors can go for relief. This makes for embarrassment in many instances, particularly when hundreds of school children or other groups converge on the capitol at one time.

Phantoms Swamped 66-40 By Fast Virginia Quint

Second Half Bid Is Cut Short By Tall Virginians

By WAYNE BISHOP
E. C. Glass High School of Lynchburg, Virginia, came South Saturday night and rode away yesterday with not too much respect for Northeastern Conference basketball. They took a 66-40 victory over Greenville's Phantoms back to the Old Dominion with them.

Playing before a good-sized crowd in East Carolina's Wrigley Gym, the Hilltoppers lost little time Saturday in letting the Phantoms know just where they stood. The Virginians rang up seven points before the Phantoms could score and improved that margin to a big 20 points by the time the half rolled around.

The Phantoms began clicking in the second half but they waited until it was too late to make their bid. Greenville forward Smith Worthington tossed in 14 points, most of them in the second half, but he lost individual scoring honors to Lynchburg's Wister Nelligan. Nelligan scored 21 points. Guard Bobby Wade of the Hilltoppers helped make the rout complete by adding 17 points.

The Phantoms outplayed their visitors in only one of the four quarters. That was in the third period when the host Phantoms scored 18 points to their visitors' 14. That spurt enabled them to close the scoring gap to 16 points at the end of the third period but the visitors went back to work in the fourth quarter to run up their final margin.

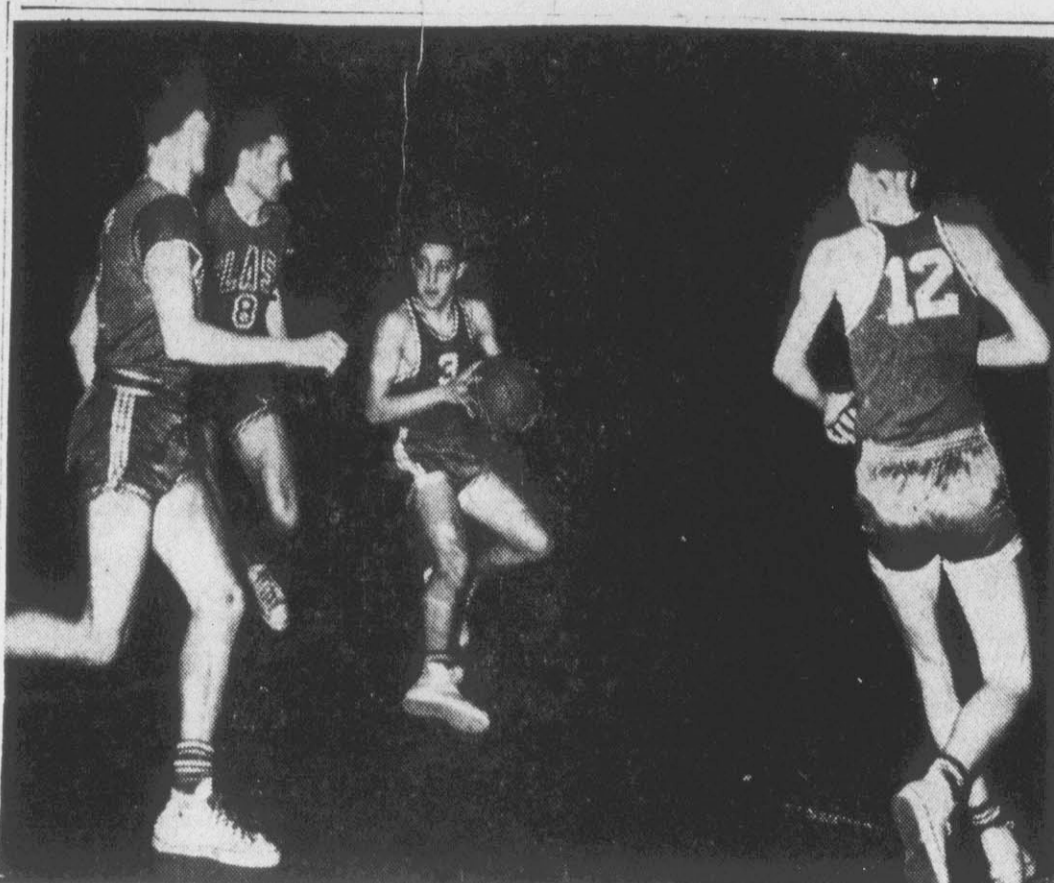

The Phantoms will get back into family feuding tomorrow night when they travel to Eden for a Northeastern Conference contest. Greenville has a 3-1 record in conference play.

Seton Hall Will Be Challenged Saturday

NEW YORK (UP)—A rugged challenge for Seton Hall, the nation's only major independent team, and games that will affect the leadership of five major conferences highlight this week's college basketball program.

Though mid-year examinations still will keep many teams in the classroom, this week's schedule is larger than last week's.

Seton Hall, ranked the nation's No. 1 team by the United Press Board of Coaches, is figured a cinch to gain its 20th straight win in its game against Albright (3-5).

But Saturday's game against Villanova (9-5) at the Philadelphia Palestra looks like a mighty tough assignment.

That's because Larry Hennessey will be back in the Villanova lineup after a term's ineligibility for having played an unapproved outside game.

Hennessey averaged 21 points per game last season. Seton Hall also will be strengthened by the return of Armer Ring and Jim Abern, both scholastically ineligible until now.

Five conference-leading teams will be called on to risk their positions this week: Oklahoma A & M, Wyoming, Louisiana State, North Carolina, and Arizona.

The Oklahoma Aggies, with a 1-0 league mark, were left atop the

Mike Jacobs Last Rites To Attract Turnaway Crowd

NEW YORK (UP)—Mike Jacobs' funeral services — were expected to attract a turn-away crowd to the Riverside Memorial Chapel today.

Friends and admirers from the worlds of boxing and business apparently would overflow the chapel, limited to less than 1,000 seats.

Dr. Julius Mark, senior rabbi at Temple Emanuel, was officiating at the services for 72-year-old Uncle Mike who died from a heart ailment at Miami, Fla., Saturday.

Jacobs' widow will confer Wednesday with attorney Ed Wise of Red Bank, N. J., about the estate, which some friends have estimated at about $7,000,000.

Most of Mike's money was made during his nearly 12 years as the world's foremost fight promoter, from January 1934 to December 1946, when he suffered a nearly fatal brain hemorrhage.

Following the Wednesday night clash at High Point, the Pirates will come home for a pair of contests.

On Friday night, they'll play host to Atlantic Christian in a revival of the "Battle of the Bohunk." Saturday, they'll get a second shot at Western Carolina when the traveling Cats roll into Greenville for a single game.

North Carolina, now out in front with an 11-1 record in the Southern Conference, faces a busy week with games against VMI Tuesday, Davidson Friday, and Clemson Saturday.

Wake Forest (8-1) meets N. C. State (8-2) in a big game on Saturday.

Arizona, with a 4-0 Border Conference record, plays Flagstaff State tonight and Tempe Saturday, while second-place Hardin-Simmons (4-1) plays third-place West Texas State (3-1) on Friday.

Louisiana State, unbeaten in five Southeastern Conference games, plays Tulsa in an interesting non-league game tonight and then meets Tennessee, a tough squad that upset Vanderbilt 83-79, Saturday, in a league game next Saturday.

Wyoming setting a hot pace in the Skyline Conference with a 7-1 mark, plays Colorado State twice, on Friday and Saturday. If the Cowboys stumble, Brigham Young (5-1) could move up by beating Montana Friday and Utah State on Saturday.

Missouri Valley Conference when Tulsa suffered its first loss in four loop starts, 61-56, to Houston on Saturday. The Aggies must protect their perfect mark against Wichita on Wednesday and then face Tulsa Friday in one of the week's best games.

Wyoming setting a hot pace in the Skyline Conference with a 7-1 mark, plays Colorado State twice, on Friday and Saturday. If the Cowboys stumble, Brigham Young (5-1) could move up by beating Montana Friday and Utah State on Saturday.

East Carolina Back On Top In North State Race

East Carolina College's basketball team was all smiles again today. It was back in the driver's seat in North State Conference standings.

The Pirates, possessors of first place on every weekend since the season started but dumped to second place last Monday night by Western Carolina, got back into the top spot Saturday night when Western Carolina was beaten 90-87 by High Point.

The loss made the Cats' record for the year 5-2. The Pirates have a 7-2 mark.

The fly in the ointment is the little matter of a High Point-East Carolina game coming up Wednesday night. The contest will mark the first time the two have met this year and the game could shed a lot of light on just who will wind up the season as the North State's number one team.

The Panthers have been about the most surprising team the conference has this year. They run hot and cold—when they're hot, they're very, very hot; but when they're cold, they don't buy a victory.

The win Saturday was the fourth of the year in conference play for the Panthers who have lost two. They are currently tied with Elon for third place in the standings.

The Pirates, naturally, will continue to rely upon the combination which has put them where they are today in the conference standings. Sonny Russell and Charlie Huffman will man the forward posts, Bobby Hodges will take care of the center position, and Cecil Heath and J. C. Thomas will fill the bill at the guards.

Following the Wednesday night clash at High Point, the Pirates will come home for a pair of contests.

On Friday night, they'll play host to Atlantic Christian in a revival of the "Battle of the Bohunk." Saturday, they'll get a second shot at Western Carolina when the traveling Cats roll into Greenville for a single game.

Carolina Regains Conference Lead

By The Associated Press
Furman University's Frank Selvy and North Carolina's Tar Heels both got back on top in Southern Conference basketball the past week.

Selvy regained his position as the league's best individual pointmaker with an average of 26.6 points per game for Furman's seven conference contests. A week ago, Selvy lost the lead to Wake Forest's Dickie Hemic, who was in second place today with an even 25-point average.

North Carolina's Tar Heels slowed down a pair of high-riding clubs — Wake Forest's Deacons and North Carolina State's Wolfpack—the past week to take back the conference lead they'd held most of the campaign.

After whipping the Deacons early in the week to regain their top spot, the Tar Heels edged North Carolina State Saturday night, 70-69, to see that they remained in the driver's seat.

The victory was the first for North Carolina over State since Everett Case became Wolfpack coach in 1946. Fifteen straight times the Tar Heels bowed to the pack.

State has lost only 10 games to conference foes since Case took charge. Duke, Wake Forest and William and Mary have each won three times. North Carolina's triumph was only the second game State has lost to a league opponent at Raleigh under Case's regime.

The Tar Heels have now won 11 conference games and have lost only to Maryland's slow-poke Terps. They have a pretty fair grip on first place in the standings and can strengthen that advantage the coming week end in games with Davidson's ineffective Wildcats and Clemson's just-so-so Tigers.

State's licking dropped the Wolfpack into fourth place with eight triumphs and two setbacks. Maryland rests in second with 7-1 and Wake Forest in third with 6-1.

Vayda's 18 points and 19 by guard Al Lifson were high for the Tar Heels. Bobby Speight, who had put State ahead just before Vayda's winning shot, and Dave Gotkin collected 20 points each for the Wolfpack.

Furman's Purple Hurricane picked up their fifth conference victory against two losses by routing the Citadel, 107-68. Furman's Selvy sank 32 points and Nelfo Gordon added 30. The Citadel hasn't scored a victory all year.

Bethel Improves Pitt County Bid With Double Win

BETHEL—The Bethel Indians went on the warpath here Friday night and scalped the Chicod Hornets in a pair of Pitt County Conference games.

After a point for point first quarter the Bethel girls charged from behind in the second quarter and were never headed again as they coasted to a 63-53 victory.

Carrie Ayers and Mary Jo Wynne spearheaded the Indian maidens belated attack with 32 and 24 points respectively. Jessie Kennedy and Patsy Mills were top point makers for the losers with 22 and 18.

Michael House, Dalton Council and Robert Nelson hit the basket with amazing accuracy in leading the Indians to an 86-56 triumph in the second game. House, Council and Nelson had 19, 16 and 13 points respectively.

Bobby Burroughs and J. T. Mills were chief scoring threats for Chicod with 16 and 10 points.

Writers Snub Some Of Baseball's Best

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Yogi Berra must be running a rental library in the baseball press boxes with his classic collection of comic books.

That's the only explanation I can find for the recent Hall of Fame election conducted by the Baseball Writers Association. The guys who filled out the ballots were reading something besides the record books, it's a double-dyed cinch.

Dizzy Dean and Al Simmons were elected, as they should have been. But how in the name of Abner Doubleday did an elective three-quarters of the voting 264 writers overlook such as Bill Terry, Bill Dickey, Dazzy Vance and Joe DiMaggio, just to name a few who should have made it in a lopsided way? Let's take Terry, for instance. Terry was a first baseman and nitter, to stand with the best of them.

Only eight batters in the modern era, meaning since 1900 have batted 400 or better. Memphis Bill was one of those, hitting 401 in 1930. In a 14-year career he batted .341 and was a slick man with the glove. But he mustered mention on only 191 of the 264 ballots cast—although each ballot carried space for 10 men.

Dickey, too, was snubbed by 85 of the writers. But anybody who ever saw him play knows that here was one of the really great mask and mitt men of all time, and a powerful hitter to boot. Big Bill holds the major league mark of catching 100 or more games for 13 consecutive years. He was behind the bat in eight World Series and had a .315 lifetime batting average. What, you may ask, do you have to do to get a vote?

Don't you imagine that Dazzy Vance must be dizzy wondering the same thing?

The Iowa Scotsman with the flaming fast ball was one of the all-timers in anybody's book. He twice led the National League in victories, posted all kinds of knockout marks, pitched a no-hitter, won 197 games and earned Most Valuable Player honors in the National League as the Brooklyn ace of 1924. He received a mere 150 votes.

Then there's DiMaggio.

Even if you're a Red Sox fan, you'll admit that the Yankee Clipper offensively and defensively could have made any club in any era. Just as a reminder, he was three times Most Valuable Player, starred in 10 World Series—and was the man who put the Yanks in most of them—twice led the league in hitting with a top mark of .381 and had an all-time mark of .329.

You could go from there, but these are the standouts for my limited dough among those who were snubbed.

Benedict Arnold Vessel Is Raised

ESSEX, N. Y. (UP)—A 60-foot vessel, one of Benedict Arnold's fleet in the Battle of Valcour Island, has been raised from the waters of Lake Champlain. The ship was raised recently by Capt. E. J. Hagglund and a crew of 10 men from Arnold's, or Buttonnold, Bay on the Vermont side of the lake with such secrecy that most townsfolk along the shore were unaware of their work. Hagglund had the vessel towed to the New York side to be sunk again until spring to prevent deterioration. It's believed the vessel is the Congress on which Arnold fled from the British fleet in October, 1776. He ordered it beached and set afire in the bay. Oak planking of the old vessel was found to be still solid after 176 years in the lake, and its rigging gave evidence of the fire. Col. Sydney E. Hammersley, upstate historian who has surveyed a number of the sunken ships of Arnold's fleet in the lake, said the raised vessel undoubtedly was the Congress. Hagglund previously had raised the gondola Philadelphia, flagship of the fleet, off Valcour Island.

Rita Hayworth Expects To Get Divorce Today

RENO (AP)—Rita Hayworth gets her Nevada divorce today from Aly Khan, playboy Moslem prince she married after a whirlwind courtship in 1949. The onetime dancer turned movie queen said she expects to take her and Aly's 3-year-old daughter Yasmin to the Washoe County court hearing. She wouldn't discuss either the divorce or Aly, sport-loving son of the fabulously rich Aga Khan. Jackson Leichter, Rita's business manager, said that no financial settlement has been reached with Aly concerning Yasmin, for whom Rita once asked three million dollars. But he said the possibility of a future settlement for the child is still open.

Teachers Playhouse Plans To Stage 'Born Yesterday' As Next Production

Barbara A. Grimes of Robersonville, junior at East Carolina College, has been chosen to play the part of Billie Dawn in the production of the hit Broadway comedy, "Born Yesterday" by the Teachers Playhouse, student dramatic club. The popular comedy by Garson Kanin will be presented by the Teachers Playhouse in the College Theatre at East Carolina February 19 as one of the major productions of the college dramatic club for the school year. Rehearsals are now in progress.

West Germany's Gold, Dollar Reserves Mount

DUESSELDORF, Germany (UP)—West Germany's gold and dollar reserves had jumped from almost nothing 18 months ago to around $550,000,000 at the end of 1952, German sources said recently. U. S. officials add that West Germany no longer requires dollar aid in order to achieve a balance of payments in her foreign trade, although she will need considerable American assistance in equipping the 500,000-man military machine she is to form as soon as the peace treaty and the European army pact are ratified, probably next fall. West Germany has been exporting more than she imports for the past nine months, although she is running a slight trade deficit with the dollar area. But this deficit is more than covered by the $200,000,000 American troops spend annually in West Germany.

U. S. Contracts Needed So far, West Germany has won only a few "off-shore procurement" contracts from the U. S. government, mainly because most items on the American "shopping list" are military objects which Germany still is forbidden to manufacture. But once the peace treaty and the European army pact take effect, this nation will be able to bid for all items on the American "shopping list." German manufacturers estimate they could handle $200,000,000 worth of such contracts in the fiscal year 1953-54. If she actually wins that many, Germany's gold and dollar position by mid-1954 should be as good or better than that of any other European state. West Germany also will continue to earn dollars as the United States buys marks from her in order to finance relief and investment projects in West Berlin. Already this fiscal year, the United States has bought $22,000,000 worth of marks for this purpose, and the figure probably will be double that before the fiscal year is out.

Production Rising West German production is now 160 per cent that of 1936, and still rising. But American officials point out that this increase results only from increased employment, not from stepped-up productivity per man, which is now only six per cent more than in 1936. These officials have estimated that if the German industries modernized and rationalized production, they could increase total production by 25 per cent during the next four years. German industrialists are reluctant to increase productivity, however, just as they are reluctant to break up cartels. Most of them still operate on the theory of restricted production with a wide margin of profit on each item. The federal government hopes that once the foreign debts treaties are completed in London and West Germany's international credit re-established, it can arrange a loan from the United States or the World Bank to finance refugee resettlement projects.

Dr. Walter Burgmayer, 26, was on the staff of the 98th Army General Hospital at Munich when Cpl. Albert Kessler, 24, was brought there last Spring with broken arms and a broken ankle. Burgmayer not only set Kessler's broken bones but spent much of his free time at his bedside. He confided to Kessler that he wanted to live in America but could not leave Germany without a sponsor. Kessler wrote to his parents in Philadelphia, saying money could never repay Burgmayer for "his help when I was lonely and sick and broken up." Going To Illinois "If you can ever do anything for him, please do it for me," he added. The Kesslers promptly got busy and made the arrangements for the doctor to come to America. When Burgmayer arrived in New York, he was met by the elder Kesslers and three of their children. They took him to their home where he was given the corporal's bedroom. A large Christmas party was given in his honor, and he was escorted on daily sight-seeing tours. Now the physician has arranged to move on to Peoria, Ill., where he will serve as a hospital intern for a year before taking his state medical examinations. VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Pius XII, suffering from bronchial pneumonia, was reported slightly improved today. Vatican sources already had said there was no cause for concern. No official bulletin was issued today on the condition of the 76-year-old Pontiff, who has been in bed since Thursday. His ailment at first was described as influenza but Vatican sources confirmed yesterday it was bronchial pneumonia. The Pontiff's persistent fever late last night hovered around the 101 mark. King's Collection Of Rare Coins To Be Displayed

ROME (AP)—The three-million-dollar coin collection amassed as the lifetime hobby of the late King Vittorio Emanuele III is soon to go on public exhibition. The collection is the largest in Italy, and one of the largest in the world. The late king donated it to the state when he went into voluntary exile in May, 1946. The collection was kept in the Quirinale Palace in 28 large, steel safes. After the armistice of Sept. 8, 1943, the collection was put in a number of crates and hidden. The Germans found out about it and took it to Northern Italy. It is not known whether any of the valuable pieces which formed the collection are missing. The cases still are sealed. The collection will be put on display at the Barberini Palace, a historic mansion in the heart of Rome. Cranberries are native to America.

Many Problems Posed By Longevity Of Today

Scientists say the nation's most serious social problem is that more people now live longer. The problem requires, they say, a drastic change in the attitude of everyone toward the aged.

Old people must get a renewed sense of belonging to the community. We must stop taking their jobs away from them and requiring them to live on pinnacles. We must allow them to be active so they will not withdraw from normal living.

The general public seems to have given little thought to the problem and probably is unaware that it exists. Here is the first of a series of dispatches by the United Press science editor going into all phases of the situation.

one out of every nine Iowans was over 65, and the proportion was increasing with every year.

The problem boils down to this: people who aren't old in years believe that people who are, also are old in body and mind, and therefore are practically useless. Younger people want them to withdraw from life, give up their jobs and live out their remaining years on pinnacles.

The surpassing irony of it is that so many of the old make themselves even older by thinking of themselves as old. It all comes from the unscientific idea that when a person is 65 years old, he also is old of body and mind. Everyone thought that years ago when there was some truth in it; the idea persists now when it has much less truth. Biological age and age-in-years now are rarely as ever the same.

But the "old" themselves are showing increasing resentment at being shelved before their time. They're compelling all of us to give attention because, as one economist remarked: "A man does not lose his vote when he becomes 65, even if he loses the possibility for a decent livelihood."

Adding to the urgency are the continuing strides of the biological and medical sciences toward longer and longer—and healthier—lives for more and more people.

New McCarthy Probing Begins

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's Senate investigating committee began operations today with a shot-in-the-dark inquiry into possible "irregularities" in the defense stockpiling program.

McCarthy called the committee into closed-door session to question unidentified witnesses. He said he would have preferred a public hearing, but "the military has classified this material as top secret."

The Wisconsin Republican said the investigation "has nothing to do with Communism or graft" but dealt with "what on the surface appears to be a little bad buying" on the part of officials in charge of procuring materials for the defense stockpile.

He said the "bad buying" apparently had resulted in a waste of public funds by "forcing up prices." He declined to elaborate but promised a public statement after the hearing.

McCarthy said in a television interview Sunday that the committee staff is now making preliminary inquiries on "about 10 different subjects." He said the Federal Security Agency is under committee scrutiny, but did not say why.

He vigorously denied that the Eisenhower administration had exerted influence in Congress to "push" him out of the Communist-hunting field.

FANCY MEETING YOU HERE!—Tweety-Pic, an Australian shell parakeet, does not appear to be awed by the stony glance and massive jaw of "Frauline," a boxer, after landing on the dog's back in home of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Sullivan, Orlando, Fla., where they are pets.

Fateful 24 Hours In Three Men's Lives

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

The 24 hours between April 10 and 11 were fateful ones in the lives of three men.

Gen. James A. Van Fleet was setting out orange trees in a "beloved spot" in Florida.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, in his headquarters at Taegu in Korea, was waiting for Communists to launch their spring offensive.

And in Tokyo, on that raw, rainy day in early spring, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, supreme commander in the Far East, left his Dai Ichi headquarters around 2 p.m. to head a lunch date at the U. S. embassy with Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) and William Sterns of Northwest Airlines.

Then events occurred like chain-lightning.

Over the Armed Services Radio in Tokyo MacArthur learned that he had been fired.

Ridgway learned that he was to take over an empire.

And Van Fleet, summoned from his Florida orange trees, was on his way to the bitter cold of cheerless Korea.

As he had once before in Greece, Van Fleet bore responsibility for the Western world's defense in a "hot war" brought on by Communist aggression.

He scarcely had taken over his new command when the Chinese and North Koreans struck.

They drove down the heart of the peninsula, through Chipyang, Wonju and straight toward Pusan. The Eighth Army stopped them and braced again.

In May, the Chinese unleashed an all-out desperation effort. They broke through the hinge between the U. S. Second Division and the South Koreans on the right. Like a river, they flowed around the U. S. flank, stepping over bodies of their own dead and emerging like ghosts from the clouds of smoke from exploding shells.

Those twin drives cost the Reds about 100,000 men, and after they were stopped, Van Fleet dared them to try again.

But for then, at least, the Reds had had enough.

Once it was thought Van Fleet would finish out his Army career as a colonel, a man passed over for the big promotions. Now this 60-year-old four-star general is our most experienced "hot war" fighter against Communism.

Van Fleet once said: "I never want to command by fear."

And the quiet-spoken fox-hole soldier has practiced what he preaches both in Korea and in Greece. He won affection and respect in both countries. In South Korea he labored persistently to build and train a South Korean army.

It was largely through his efforts in Greece that a newly-trained Greek army was able to defeat tough, well-organized Communist guerrillas.

Van Fleet's own son was lost in Korea, and so he leaves more than memories there.

But it is doubtful if Van Fleet, as he gives up his Korea command, actually is going into retirement. There have been rumors that President Eisenhower will have another job for him, possibly in the diplomatic field. It could even be in Greece.

Barkley Starting Another Career

WASHINGTON (UP)—Former Vice President Alben W. Barkley, who believes that 75 is much too young to retire, will embark on a new career as a television commentator next Sunday.

The 61-year-old Kentuckian has signed up with the National Broadcasting Co. to preside over a 15-minute news-and-interviews program to be broadcast from Washington every Sunday afternoon at 5:30 p.m. e.s.t. It will be called "Meet the Veep."

In high good humor as he disclosed his plans at a news conference Sunday, Barkley declined to discuss his salary except to say that it is "probably not as much as I'm worth." Industry sources guessed it will be in the neighborhood of $1,000 a week.

Barkley said he will discuss political affairs and other public issues "in a chatthy way" and occasionally interview prominent guests.

Asked if former President Harry S. Truman might be one of his guests, Barkley said he didn't know, but he would be glad to have him.

The program will start without a sponsor, Barkley said. If he does get a sponsor later, he will insist that the commercials be in keeping with the dignity of the office he recently held.

He also promised that his comments on political affairs will be as "non-partisan" as a lifelong Democrat can manage.

Plumbing Is Now College Course

CHICAGO (AP)—Plumbing may soon reach the status of a profession since Los Angeles City College offers a full four-year course leading to a degree in plumbing engineering, reports the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau here. Twenty students are now enrolled in the course, now in its second year.

The course, similar to any engineering course, offers such subjects as mathematics, physics, chemistry, surveying, English, history and economics.

SHINGLE-HANDED WILCOX, Neb. (UP)—Fred Ingram feels pretty good for a 95-year-old. He recently finished shingling the roof of his home, and it was a one-man job.

Top Flier Lost

SEOUL (AP)—Lt. Col. Edwin H. Heller, one of the top American fighter pilots of World War II, was lost over North Korea Friday, the Fifth Air Force said today.

Cannonfire from a Communist MIG 15 presumably blasted Heller's Sabre jet only one day after he had destroyed two Communist jets and was promoted from major.

Heller, 33, of Wynnewood, Pa., is listed as missing in action.

He was credited with destroying 19 1/2 German planes in European combat. His Korean score was 3 1/2 MIGs destroyed and one damaged.

A Fifth Air Force spokesman said other pilots in the 51st Fighter Interceptor Wing, busy in dogfights, did not see whether Heller's jet was hit, but saw it going down.

He said there was no report of Heller parachuting.

Old Style Turk Language Form Is Voted Back

ISTANBUL (AP)—Turkey's Parliament recently voted out one of Kemal Ataturk's pet language reforms.

Ataturk, Turkey's great dictator-reformer changed the constitution in 1937 to eliminate hundreds of words of foreign origin, chiefly Arabic or Persian. It was a nationalistic move. "Turkish" words were put in their place. A language committee named by Ataturk chose the substitutes.

Now the Parliament, dominated by the Democratic Party, has voted to undo this job and go back to the wording of the 1924 constitution.

Changing the constitution back to its old wording will bring problems. For example, names of most official bureaus and departments had been changed. Official forms and letterheads with the old names are now incorrect.

Buddhist Art To See Restoration

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The avowedly anti-religious Chinese Communists say they have embarked on a project to restore a number of ancient Buddhist temples and sculptures.

The Peiping radio's explanation is that these works have artist and historical value and "provide excellent models for China's present-day architecture." The Red broadcast, says most of the work is centered in the northern province of Shansi where many of the temples and art works are located.

New Cold Weather Suit Passes Its Combat Tests

WESTERN FRONT, Korea (UP)—The Army's new "man from Mars" cold weather suit has passed its first test in combat and a man who wore one approved it with the word "amazing."

Lt. William E. Aaron Jr. of Lyon, Miss., wore the spongy, vinyl-plastic "cold bar" suit instead of the regulation 12 to 15 pounds of winter clothing the Army issues. The "cold bar" weighs only four pounds.

"At one time," said Aaron in describing a night patrol, "we lay down on a frozen paddy and didn't feel cold."

He said his chief worry was not in keeping warm but trying to keep from perspiring too much in the new get-up. The new battle-dress is fitted with zippers which the wearer is supposed to open when he gets too warm.

Aaron's patrol wore the suits into no-man's land. They wore standard wind jackets and pants over the outfit for two reasons—to protect the "cold bar" from rips and because it has no pockets.

Another test was given the suit at division headquarters. Pfc. C. E. Mason of Marion, S. C., stood still for two hours in bitter cold wearing one of the outfits.

"It kept warm very well," he said.

Bingo Adapted For Blind People

NEW YORK (AP)—Blind persons may now play bingo for recreation on a special board with braille numbers, says the American Foundation for the Blind.

This is only one of the 150 special aids for the blind sold at cost and listed in the foundation's new catalog. Some other items are safety pressure cookers, adjustable slicer-graters, plastic can markers, coffee dispensers, brailled scales, needle threaders and braille alarm clocks.

Heart Is Healthy After Operation

DETROIT (AP)—Arthur Martt, 11, is back playing with the gang again after a rare operation which replaced part of his heart's damaged aorta.

Two years ago it was discovered that Arthur was slowing down and was losing circulation to his feet and skin because "the blood was being pumped to the outlying portions of his body. His aorta was closing up tight, doctors said.

Last July in Boston's Children's Hospital in a complicated operation, a section of his aorta was clipped out and a new section of healthy aorta was sewn in. Since the operation Arthur has gained 10 pounds, plays hockey and next fall may try football.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Wall Street settled down today to await the Eisenhower State of the Union address to come a week from today.

Routine business on the stock exchange left the list pretty much as it closed last week. Stocks rarely moved outside a small fractional area. Trading was light, a bit higher than in the first hour last Friday.

U. S. Steel lost 1/4 while Bethlehem gained that amount. General Motors dipped 3/8 point; Chrysler held unchanged. Santa Fe rose 1/8 in the rails, while Baltimore & Ohio was unchanged and Southern Pacific lost 1/2.

Chemicals were weaker than other major sections of the industrial list. Columbia Carbon and du Pont lost nearly a point each. Oils ranged from a loss of 1/4 points in Pure Oil to a gain of a point in Amerada. Jersey Standard was unchanged.

American Woolen, International Silver and Texas Gulf Sulphur gained a point or more. International Business Machines declined 3 points on one transaction, not a wide move for that high-priced issue. American Gas rose a point to help offset a loss in Panhandle Eastern Pipe line.

Columbia Broadcasting A stock and Affiliated Gas Equipment made new highs on fractional gains. Paramount Pictures lost nearly a point in its section. Packard featured in turnover.

Atomic Weapons Tests Resuming

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission announced today it will resume tests of atomic weapons at the Las Vegas, Nev., proving ground in March.

The new series of tests "is designed to advance development of new and improved nuclear devices and will provide additional weapons performance data essential to military and civil defense effects studies," the AEC said in a statement.

The announcement said 18,000 troops of all services will participate in maneuvers and training exercises during the 1953 spring tests.

Many secondary projects will be included to obtain research and effects information of value to other programs in government and to the public, the AEC said.

Construction of structures for the spring series of tests was begun last fall and includes new facilities for measurement work in the technical areas and additions to the permanent establishment at the Nevada proving ground.

FTC Challenges Cigarette Claims

NEW YORK (UP)—Charges that certain advertising claims for Chesterfield cigarettes are "false and deceptive" have been filed against the Liggett and Myers Tobacco Co. by the Federal Trade Commission.

The tobacco firm replied the charges will be contested "all the way."

The charge was filed in U. S. District Court here and challenged specifically Chesterfield's claims of "better tasting," "cooler smoking," and "leave no unpleasant after taste."

The firm has 20 days to answer the complaint. Fr. Jcis Horen, attorney for the company, said the suit will be contested and we "expect to prevail."

Five Succumb In Tenement Fire

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—Five persons died Sunday when fire gutted a rickety two-story tenement here only two doors from a fire station.

Firemen extinguished the flames within five minutes after the fire broke out, but the five victims apparently had been overcome by smoke and could not escape. Fifteen other tenants fled to safety.

Police identified the victims as Angeline Guzman, 52; Elias Guzman, 32; Johnny Guzman, 19; Juan Gonzales, about 65; and Michael Quinones, about 50. All lived on the second floor.

HOME IS WHERE THE JOB IS—German customs police stand before their "rolling barracks," a truck and trailer home. The homes were designed for flexibility in assigning police to strategic positions on Dutch and Belgian borders for quick raids on smugglers.

Pooch Lived Happily 8 Years In Dog Pound Snow Recorded, But Few Flakes

New Model Auto Is Long And Low

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP)—Studebaker Corp., which surprised the motoring world with radically new design six years ago, today introduced 1953 models likely to draw as much comment as the 1947 "which-way-are-they-going" cars.

Long and low—a five-foot boy can see over the top of them—the new Studebakers are a combination of European and American styling that sets them apart from other U. S. makes.

The front hood slopes down in a smooth curve to the front bumper with just enough center rise for engine space. The grille consists of two narrow chrome slashes on either side of the ornament.

Over-all effect is "first cousin" to the British Jaguar.

Because the main body is so low-slung, head room in the passenger compartment is achieved with deep windows and windshield. For example, there is 33 per cent more glass space on this year's 4-door sedan than on the corresponding 1952 model.

Studebaker also introduced the first mechanical power steering device powered directly off the engine. A hydraulic system is employed on all other cars.

Prices on most models varied little from last year. But $98 was taken off the hard top in the Champion line and $106 in the Commander series. The Land Cruiser was reduced $46.

CIO Pleads For Minimum Wage

RALEIGH (UP)—The 17 international unions of the CIO in North Carolina urged the General Assembly today to set a minimum wage rate in the state of at least 75 cents an hour.

Top leaders of the union met here over the weekend to discuss organizational moves and review plans for legislative activities.

State director Franz E. Daniel of Charlotte urged the legislature to provide workers with a "fair day's wage."

"It is a cardinal principle of our system of free enterprise," Daniel said, "that workers are also consumers."

"When men and women in retail and service establishments throughout North Carolina are earning $18 a week they can barely afford the most urgent of necessities," he said.

Daniel declined to discuss the organizational matters taken up at the meeting but indicated that the principal subject under discussion was the formation of an industrial union council of the CIO in North Carolina.

Two Charged In Auto Accident

Jasper Perkins, 47, of Route 4, Greenville, was arrested for failure to stop for a red traffic light Saturday morning which resulted in an automobile accident with James H. Palmer, 35, of 1406-A Ward Street, city.

James H. Palmer was also charged with driving without an operator's license.

Records at the local department show that a total of 19 persons were arrested for various charges during the weekend.

In addition, three traffic accidents were investigated and one breaking and entering was reported at a Negro cafe.

The majority of the arrests were for public drunkenness, fighting and assault.

Brake trouble was spotted last Wednesday at New Haven, Conn., aboard the Boston-to-Washington Colonial Express, and an alert crew noticed a brake valve out of position Friday on a Boston-to-New York New Haven train at Providence, R. I.

Wreck Revealed Liquor Violation

An accident involving two automobiles at First and Green Street Saturday night yielded not only an arrest for traffic violation but also illegal transportation of tax-paid whiskey charges.

Jasper Lee Sumerlin, Fort Jackson soldier, age 21, and Wilbur F. Harris, also of that base were charged with transportation of 15 pints of tax-paid whiskey.

Officer W. W. Joyner, reported that a car driven by Sumerlin was traveling North on Green Street and was meeting a truck driven by John Albert Perry, 46, of Box 32, Greenville. The Perry car then made a left turn into the path of the Sumerlin car resulting in the collision.

Damage to both cars was placed at $300. No one was injured.

Perry was charged with making an improper left turn in the face of oncoming traffic.

A charge of careless and reckless driving was lodged against a 20-year-old Route 3 Greenville man Sunday after his car rammed into the rear of a car driven by a Greenville Air Force man.

Lt. R. W. Harris, investigating officer, stated that Gus C. Elks, 29, was arrested for careless and reckless driving after his car crashed into the rear of a vehicle driven by Alton E. Howard, 23, of 100 Harding Street, city, who was home on leave.

After ramming into the rear of the Howard car, the Elks car then traveled along the fill of the Tar river bridge and crashed into the railing, damaging it. Harris reported that the railing was the only thing which prevented the man's car from going over the embankment and dropping into the low grounds below.

Damage to both cars was estimated at $500. No injuries were reported.
