Eisenhower And GOP Lawmakers Set 'Must' Program

By RAYMOND LAHR United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower and Republican congressional leaders today agreed on an 11-point "must" legislative program for this session. Senate GOP leader Robert A. Taft said tax legislation was not included because the president and his leaders have made no final decision on tax policy. Taft said, however, that tax legislation would definitely be passed at this session.

- The 11 points: 1. The reorganization bill already passed. 2. Appropriations bills to clear the House and reach the Senate not later than May 15. 3. Hawaiian statehood. 4. Taft-Hartley labor law amendments. 5. Limited extension of controls and allocations dealing with materials required for the defense program and critical defense areas.

- 6. Legislation relating to tidelands oil. 7. Extension of the reciprocal trade law. 8. U. S. customs simplification. 9. Extension of old age and survivors insurance to cover groups presently excluded. 10. Extension of temporary aid to schools and critical areas. 11. Adding two commissioners for the District of Columbia. The program was announced by Taft and House Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. after a two-hour meeting with Mr. Eisenhower. Their statement said: "The conference discussed legislation which must be considered by Congress at this session. The list was not intended to be exclusive. Other subjects were discussed and will be pressed to a conclusion later. It was not intended to make any of this 'must' legislation, or reach a full agreement on details." By this, they explained that the legislation need not necessarily be passed, but "must" be considered at this session. Taft said the President still feels there should be no tax reduction until the budget is in balance. Taft said he shared this feeling. Taft said the list did not constitute an order or priority. The legislation of some sort would be passed on each of those on the program. The Republican leadership still is shooting for adjournment July 1 or July 4, Taft added. Taft and the Senate GOP policy chairman, William F. Knowland, conferred last week about the program presented today. In the three weeks since Mr. Eisenhower's inauguration, Congress has passed only one major bill—a measure giving the President authority to put reorganization plans into effect, subject to a Congressional veto. With much of its attention still devoted to confirming nominees for executive jobs it is unlikely that the Senate will pass any more major legislation until next month. Both Taft and Knowland expect the next major bills before the Senate to be legislation to grant statehood to Hawaii and to establish state ownership of submerged coastal lands. Knowland said he expected those bills to reach the Senate floor in March. The House must start soon, ahead of the Senate, on appropriations bills and legislation to extend the Reciprocal Trade Law. Other bills sure to be on the program include measures to amend the Taft-Hartley Labor Law and to extend government control over rents and the allocation of critical materials. Taft said Sunday it may be necessary to maintain price controls as well as allocation controls, over critical defense materials after the present law expires April 30.

Chilly Reaction To Dulles, U.S. Global Policies Britain's Press Is Critical

LONDON (AP)—The United States got as poor a set of notices in the British press today as it has had in a long time. The chief targets were Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and U.S. talk about a blockade of Communist China. The Conservative Daily Mail said Dulles had created a "dangerously confused situation" by his 10-day tour of Western Europe. The Daily Telegraph, another supporter of Prime Minister Churchill's government, found fault with some of the American official's public lecturing of his Western allies and asserted: "It would seem best to make such communications through well-tried diplomatic channels."

"I am sure," said the independent, influential Times, "that the effect of the Dulles tour will be to leave the European allies of the United States what kind of developments American policy desires to see in Europe this year. . . . 'No evidence exists that Dulles is being rigid and formal in the requirements, or that his visit has shown him willing only to talk and not to listen. The evidence is the other way.'"

The Telegraph commented that "much of what he said has been for the benefit of congress and cited particularly the 'state-ment that the United States made a big investment in Western Europe on the theory that there would be unity there.'"

Pravda Sees Broadening Of Conflict

By HENRY SHAPIRO United Press Staff Correspondent MOSCOW (UP)—The official Communist Party newspaper Pravda said today that President Eisenhower's decision to "de-neutralize" Chinese Nationalist forces on Formosa threatens to extend the war in the Far East. The Pravda article by Victor Korosov was the first official Soviet comment on Mr. Eisenhower's recent order to the U. S. Seventh Fleet to stop shielding the Communist Chinese mainland. The newspaper said the new American administration's foreign policy was counter to pre-election promises to end the Korean war. Pravda also attacked the European trip of U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Mutual Security Administrator Harold G. Stassen as designed to restore the West German Army for "military adventures."

Pravda's attack today was not directed personally against the American president, but against the foreign policy of his Republican government. The newspaper said the de-neutralization of Formosa, which frees Nationalist Premier Chiang Kai-shek's forces for attacks on the Chinese mainland, sharply contradicts Mr. Eisenhower's pre-election promise to work for peace. "The course of the American multi-millionaire toward continuation and expansion of the war contradicts the will of peace loving peoples for the preservation and consolidation of peace," Pravda said. The newspaper said that British, French and Indian diplomats had expressed indignation and alarm over the de-neutralization measures. "The reaction of the European and Asian countries to Eisenhower's statement on Formosa, and also Dulles' demands on West European countries, has produced a new and sharp division within the Anglo-American bloc," Pravda said. "Foreign observers connected President Eisenhower's decision on Formosa with the trip of Dulles and Stassen to West Europe," Pravda said. "In Europe, American diplomacy is introducing all measures to expedite the restoration of a West German Army intended to unleash military adventures against the peace loving European peoples."

Personal Reports Scheduled Soon For President And Congress Dulles Returns, Encouraged By Tour

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles arrived from Europe today and said he is "encouraged" by prospects of progress on creating a European defense community. Dulles and foreign aid chief Harold G. Stassen landed here after an 11-day unity-prodding tour of Western Europe. Dulles brushed aside questions regarding the possibility of a U. S. naval blockade of the Red China mainland. Asked if he thought a blockade would be "a good idea," Dulles said, "I have nothing to say." Dulles handed out a 650-word typewritten statement to reporters as he stepped from President Eisenhower's personal plane with Stassen. Dulles said he expected to see Mr. Eisenhower today to report on the trip. "Mr. Stassen and I shall report to the President and to members of Congress," Dulles said. "At the moment we limit ourselves to saying that we are, on the whole, encouraged by what we have been told by the leaders of the six continental European nations which have signed the treaty to create a European defense community. "We do not minimize the difficulties confronted by those who have undertaken this great project, but we believe that there is a responsible determination for completion. Although Dulles brushed aside questions on Formosa, he was certain to meet sharp questioning from members of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on Far Eastern affairs. The subcommittee has asked him to appear before it as soon as possible to "clarify" Mr. Eisenhower's action in freeing the Chinese Nationalists for attacks on the mainland. Of the European situation, Dulles said that by putting the military forces of six European countries into a single unit, unification would be created at points where divisions had been "disastrous" in the past. Dulles noted that the treaty had been signed last May but that so far none has ratified it. Mr. Eisenhower asked Dulles and Stassen to go to Europe and see what was the matter. Dulles in his statement did not refer to the Formosa debate, but he did say that "other matters" were discussed in Europe. Stassen, in another statement, said he believed that the way Dulles conducted the discussions with European statesmen would be known in future years "as 10 great days of service by the secretary of state to the cause of peace and of freedom." Stassen said he had made it clear throughout the journey that the foreign aid program would be coordinated "in the close, possible manner" with Dulles' foreign policy leadership. Informed sources said Dulles would give Mr. Eisenhower a moderately optimistic report on his first big diplomatic undertaking as secretary of state. They said Dulles believes there is a better than even chance of welding Western Europe into a solid defense front this year. Dulles told European leaders that the United States may cut its aid programs unless there is definite progress toward ratification of the stalled European army treaty within the next two and a half months. Although his warning was generally construed as a U. S. ultimatum, no European statesman was able to give him a firm pledge that the disagreements delaying the pact can be ironed out by any definite date. The treaty would bring West German manpower into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense system. Dulles and Stassen went to Europe at the express direction of Mr. Eisenhower, whose keen personal interest in European unity reflects his own work in that cause as supreme NATO commander.

Taft Dims House GOP Hope Of July 1 Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (UP)—Firm opposition from Sen. Robert A. Taft today dimmed the hopes of House GOP leaders for a July 1 tax cut. The Senate GOP leader said flatly it would be "unwise" to cut personal income taxes this year, suggested that it may be necessary for Congress to go in the opposite direction and extend the excess profits tax on business, now due to expire at mid-year. Taft made it clear, in a television interview Sunday and in a later talk with a reporter, that he sees eye-to-eye with President Eisenhower about postponing tax relief until federal spending has been sharply curtailed. House GOP leaders also profess full agreement with the view that spending cuts must come before tax cuts. But they believe that Congress can whack upcoming appropriation bills so drastically that it will be possible to lower personal and corporate income taxes this year.

Under legislation passed by the Democratic-controlled 82nd Congress, the excess profits tax on corporate incomes is due to expire June 30, and an 11 percent cut in personal income taxes is due to take effect automatically next Jan. 1. Both House and Senate Republican leaders agree privately that it would be bad politics to give business a tax break six months ahead of ordinary taxpayers. The House solution to this problem is represented in a bill being pushed by chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-N.Y.) of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee. It would advance the date of the personal income tax cut by six months to coincide with the scheduled demise of excess profits taxes.

Fifty-Acre Base Near Pyongyang Is Bombed In Night Red Supply Center Cratered By B-29s

By ROBERT UDICK United Press Staff Correspondent SEOUL, Korea (UP)—23 B-29s today left a 50-acre Red army supply center near Pyongyang "cratered and smoking" in an attack in which they dropped 220,000 pounds of bombs on 150 buildings and supply stacks. The target for last night's raid was about eight miles southwest of the North Korean capital. Eleven B-29s flew through the coldest temperatures of the year, 5 degrees below zero, to carry out the huge attack. "Fires in the target area cast a glow over the surrounding countryside," the pilots said after dropping their bomb loads. Three Red night fighters made passes at the B-29s, but did not fire. Anti-aircraft fire was "meager to moderate." Elsewhere in the air, Navy pilots attacked an airfield under construction north of Pukchong and bombed a large cliff at Hungnam, causing a "tremendous" landslide which "completely covered" a bordering railroad track and tunnel. On the ground, North Korean soldiers threw an unsuccessful 200-man attack on an Allied main line position between Sandbag Castle and the Puchbowl Sunday night. Supported by heavy mortar fire, the Communists hit U. N. positions at 7:30 p.m. (6:30 a.m. EST Sunday), but were thrown back 30 minutes later by artillery, mortar, recoilless rifle, machine-gun and rifle fire. Allied tanks on the central front continued their bunker-busting campaign and reported as destroyed or damaged 75 bunkers, 21 caves, 41 observation posts, three tunnels and 12 gun positions. Gen. James A. Van Fleet visited fighting men of the 8th Army for the last time today. He was accompanied on his three-day tour by Lt. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, who will take over command of the 8th Army Wednesday. "Goodbye, God bless you, and good-shooting," Van Fleet told men of the 1st Marine Division, his last stop. Meanwhile, Navy headquarters at Yokosuka, Japan, announced the Navy is ready to throw four guided missile ships into the Korean war "should the situation require their use." A statement issued by the office of Vice Adm. Robert P. Briscoe, 7th Fleet commander, said the former cruisers Boston and Canberra and the submarines Cusk and Carbonero have been converted to launch guided missiles and are available for Korea.

Second Cutter Dispatched To Assist Coal-Laden Freighter On Sand Bar

BEAUFORT, N. C. (UP)—The Coast Guard dispatched a second cutter today to help pull a coal-laden freighter with 3 men aboard off a sandbar at the entrance to Beaufort Inlet. The cutter Cherokee went to the scene this morning for a try at freeing the 6,800-ton Seaconnet, which had run aground in a fog while traveling to Morehead City, N. C., to pick up fuel oil. The cutter Conifer, first to arrive after the Seaconnet called for help early Sunday, tried without success to pull the vessel free and the larger cutter was dispatched from Norfolk, Va. A Coast Guard spokesman said the crew was not believed to be in any danger despite the ship's list to the starboard. Almost the entire 422-foot length of the Seaconnet lay aground in 20 feet of water, the Coast Guard said. The vessel draws 28 feet. Operators of the freighter, the Wilmington (N.C.) Ship Co., sought help in tugging it off the reef before resorting to its option of floating it off by lightening the cargo. The Seaconnet is owned by the Sprague Steamship Co. of Boston.

Something 'Extra' From Fishing Trip

Two Pitt County fishermen came home with a little more than they bargained for after a recent fishing excursion. Dewey Jefferson (left), and John Jopner, of Fountain, were fishing at Goose Creek when they saw a movement along the bank. Thinking at first the animal was a fox, the men maneuvered their boat for a quick shot with a 22 rifle. Jefferson was drawing "a bead" at the moment the animal exposed itself, offering a perfect target. The man downed the animal with one shot, and examination showed the "fox" to be a wildcat weighing between 20-25 pounds. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Church, professor of music education at Teachers College, Columbia University, as conductor, the Clinic Band of 125 members appeared in concert Saturday night in the Wright auditorium. Members of the organization, wearing the uniforms of their home bands, made an attractive and colorful group on the stage. The program included the national anthem, concert selections, and popular numbers and spirited marches suited to band performance. Student attending the clinic put in two days of strenuous work. Sectional practice sessions for performers on the various instruments had as instructors twelve band directors from high schools of the state. U.S. Artillery Is Shooting Fast

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—United Nations artillery has fired more shells in the 31 months of the Korean war than the Allies did in all of World War II, American ordnance officers said today. "Never before in history has an army had as much artillery fired against it as the Reds have had in Korea," one officer said. Officers pointed out that it takes more artillery to achieve results against deeply dug-in troops such as the Communists are.

New Type Of Korea Casualty From Narcotics

SEOUL (AP)—U. S. Army and Air Force officers are worried about a new type of Korean war casualty: the serviceman who becomes addicted to narcotics. Official reports today showed: Twelve to 15 soldiers and airmen are tried each month by general courts martial on narcotics charges. Most are convicted, but many offenders are never caught. Most offenders picked up the habit in Korea, although some are former addicts who resumed the use of narcotics here because of the plentiful supply. Korean peddlers sell heroin on the streets. Marijuana grows wild. An agent of the Army's Criminal Investigation Division said narcotics are cheaper here than in the U. S.

Legislature To Receive More Umstead Bills This Week

RALEIGH (UP)—The General Assembly heads into the sixth week of its 1953 session tonight with just about half of Gov. William B. Umstead's legislative program either passed or under committee study. More of the governor's proposals are expected to be embodied in bills to be introduced this week. However, some major items involving relatively large expenditures will not show up until after the Joint Appropriations Committee concludes its hearings Feb. 17. These include a 10 per cent retroactive pay raise for public school teachers; a long-range primary road building program; a 10 per cent retroactive salary raise for all state employees; a bond issue for construction of white and Negro training schools and mental hospitals and revision of sales tax exemptions "if it is found that revenue is not sufficient to meet properly the essential needs of the state." A run-down of other major parts of Umstead's program and their progress:

- 1. a commission to study state use of television channels for education and cultural purposes: Passed by both houses. Commission named.
- 2. reorganization of the State Highway Commission into 15 rather than 10 divisions: Scheduled to be studied by Senate and House Roads committees this week.
- 3. a motor vehicles inspection program: Expected to be introduced this week.
- 4. a drivers training program in all public schools: not yet introduced.
- 5. Outlawing hot-rod cars from the highways: Under study by a House Judiciary Committee.
- 6. a reexamination of the Ports Authority Act to develop small inland ports: Not yet introduced but under study by the Board of Conservation and Development.
- 7. A commission to study reorganization of state government and possible separation of the prison system from the State Highway Commission: Bill for nine-man commission introduced.
- 8. A three-member paroles commission to replace the present single commissioner: Passed by both houses.
- 9. A statewide minimum wage law: Not yet introduced.
- 10. Additional regular superior court judges in districts with heavy court dockets: Under committee study.
- 11. Reapportionment of the state assembly districts: Being prepared but not yet introduced.
- 12. A statewide liquor referendum: An equally explosive bombshell which has been held off until its backers confer with the governor.

Women In The Church

Women in the Church By MARY FOWLER
The women of the Methodist Church increased by almost 50 per cent their giving to missions through the Woman's Division of Christian Service during the period 1948-52, reports Miss Henrietta Gibson, treasurer for women's work in the Board of Missions. In 1948, the women of Methodist churches throughout the United States gave $4,661,464 for home and foreign mission service, and in 1952 they gave $6,874,537. Methodist women are officially organized into 29,716 local societies.

"Arab refugees are people discouraged, bored, unemployed, uprooted, insecure, unhappy, sometimes hungry and dirty people — always people," says Mrs. Douglas Horton, former president of Wellesley College, in a plea for support of Church World Service. "As such they have a claim on the sympathy and respect of Christians, men and women. That they are in need is reason enough for asking Christians to share their gifts. Certainly their plight is not the responsibility of the thousands of adolescent children who are facing a dark future in refugee camps. It is certainly not the fault of babies born into the exodus. It is sheer folly to assume that by depriving refugees of material aid they can be forced to a solution of their own problems. They are people, discouraged, bored, unemployed, uprooted, insecure, unhappy, sometimes hungry and dirty — always people."

At the request of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, missionary a "welfare arm" of the women of the Methodist Church, its national president, Mrs. Frank G. Brooks, of Mount Vernon, N. C., has written to President Eisenhower, expressing the appreciation of nearly 2,000,000 Methodist women, of the Society, for the President's "forthright stand in support of the United Nations." It urges also greater support for the technical

A delegation from Grifton, where Scouting was first organized last fall under the Greenville Council's jurisdiction, attended this annual Girl Scout celebration which last year was the occasion for a banquet.

Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, Executive Secretary, greeted guests at the door of the reception room and introduced them to the receiving line, composed of Mrs. B. B. Sugg Jr., Commissioner; Mrs. M. P. Hoot, 1st Deputy; Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, Secretary; Mrs. Henry Harrell, Treasurer; and Mr. Charles Bisette, Camp Chairman. Mrs. Raleigh Lee, Finance Chairman, directed guests to the register, where two Curved Bars were in attendance.

After registering, visitors were invited into the dining room, where a color scheme of green and yellow, the Girl Scout colors, was in evidence. The long tea table was covered with a pale green cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow roses, daffodils and gladioli in a crystal bowl.

Russian tea was served at one end of the table and iced punch at the other. Mrs. E. L. Henderson, Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, Mrs. W. P. Moore and Mrs. J. K. Long, past Commissioners, presided at the tea service, and Curved Bars alternated during the afternoon in serving punch, cookies, nuts and nints. Yellow tapers in crystal holders shed a soft glow over the scene.

Almost every Brownie and Scout in the city took part in the musical program, which was continuous from 3:00 until 5:30. Guests were treated to flute, clarinet and accordion solos, as well as numerous piano selections.

At one end of the dining room there was a display of handicrafts made at troop meetings during the year — articles as varied as shag rugs, etched glassware, nylon corsages and aprons.

Mrs. J. K. Long, retiring Commissioner, and Mrs. E. L. Henderson, retiring Executive Secretary, were presented gifts by the Council in appreciation of their service to the Girl Scout organization and to the community.

Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Sherman Parks, president of the Leaders' Club, who presented each guest with a copy of the Council's annual Report for 1952.

Quiet Week End For Police Dept.

It was mostly routine for the Greenville Police Department over the past week end. Chief of Police S.G. Gibbs reported this morning.

A brief summary of the activities of the police department for Saturday and Sunday showed that four traffic accidents were investigated, one robbery, and seven arrests made.

It was one of the smallest number of arrests made for a week-end period in several weeks.

Not a single drunk was locked up. Leading in the number of arrests, were charges for assault and assault with a deadly weapon. One person was charged with simple assault while two others were charged on assault with a deadly weapon charges.

Two careless reckless driving charges were lodged as a result of four traffic accidents in the city, which injured one person and caused hundreds of dollars worth of property damage.

THE BEST PROTECTION

When the crime statistics for the City of New York during the first half of 1952 were released recently, they revealed a startling increase in crime over the previous year. Nearly half again as many burglaries and robberies, and more than a third again as many killings, for example, were committed as in the same part of 1951.

The cause of the increase is officially given as "not enough policemen." Yet the ratio of police to population in New York is already considerably higher than that of the typical smaller community. Does not the real answer lie deeper?

New York is that city in our nation most noted for the number and splendor of its nightclubs, bars, theaters, and stores, for its expensive clothes, cars, and apartments, for wealth and showiness—in short, the glittering focal point of the worship of materialism. The connection between crime and material gain is obvious. Read the crime news in almost any daily newspaper and see.

Police men are of course a necessity, and a great help. Yet they are relatively ineffective in preventing crime as the nation's teaching prisons testify. Effective prevention of all wrong-doing comes only from inside, not from outside. Dedication to a higher goal than materialism is the only really efficient "police-man"—the guardian that every person can put on permanent duty within himself.

Free-Wheeling Economy Returns To U.S.

President Eisenhower has loosed the cord, and the United States once more finds itself on the way to a free-wheeling economy.

Price controls and wage controls — with few exceptions — have been lifted. Manufacturers and merchants now set their prices on items, are free to use the time-tested, hard-headed merchandising, and no longer have to maintain a complicated set of books for the OPS.

At the same time the cap has come off wages, and workers — who didn't have too much trouble with the so-called controls anyway — likewise find themselves in a market where the government places no ceiling price on their time.

What it all means; what it is going to do to the nation's economy, and how it is going to affect the family pocketbook are questions which confront every American.

When controls were first lifted following World War II, there was a decided spiral of wage and price increases which pushed prices above any previous mark. In those days, it must be remembered, there was also a shortage of almost all consumer goods and a shortage of workers to turn out new production peaks to meet consumer demands.

This time, as wage and price controls are lifted, a different situation holds sway. The old law of supply and demand for the most part has made the government inflicted controls obsolete. Almost without exception consumer items are selling below ceiling prices. Manufacturers and retailers alike are competing for the consumer's dollar.

In other words, the United States is now in a buyers' market rather than a sellers' market as it was the last time controls were lifted.

The likelihood of another inflationary spiral following decontrol appears slim. Of course there are many factors which must be taken into consideration. If the competition for the consumer's dollar remains strong as it is now, we may be sure prices will be kept as low as feasible as competitors seek their share of business. If a new push of wage hikes breaks out across the nation — as union officials have hinted it might — and these hikes are passed on to consumers, we may find ourselves caught in another inflationary spiral.

Even if another spiral becomes a reality, it will hardly approach the extent of the one which followed the last scrapping of controls.

After so long a time under government controls, it may take a little while for business to settle back to the law of supply and demand; but the readjustment, while it poses problems, should not present any more difficult problems than those which were surmounted while controls were in effect.

A Fine Example Of Cooperation

Greenville Jaycees have given $1,000 toward better recreation facilities in Greenville during the past two months.

That is a contribution of which any civic club in town could be justly proud. It is a contribution which will mean a great deal toward building for Greenville the kind of recreation facilities needed to give the youngsters and adults the organized recreation program they deserve.

Recreation in Greenville was traveling from pillar to post until about two years ago when the local Jaycees got behind the program and convinced city officials Greenville needed a full time recreation director and an organized program like surrounding cities have. Since then there has been a marked improvement in recreation activities in the city, and it obviously has paid big dividends in providing constructive activities to fill the leisure time of youngsters.

We don't mean to infer the Jaycees should be given credit for the recreation program Greenville now has. All civic organizations and most individual citizens as well as city officials have taken a great interest in the program. The cooperation and support of the citizens as a whole is what has made the recreation program a success.

The Jaycees, however, have set a fine example in supporting the recreation program in the manner they have. Not only have they contributed considerable money, but they also have contributed a great deal of time to bettering the recreation program of the city.

That is the kind of cooperation which makes for a well rounded recreation program in any community. In dollars and cents spent annually for recreation programs and recreation facilities, Greenville still lags far behind other cities in Eastern North Carolina.

The city has made great strides in that phase recently, and if progress continues, perhaps Greenville one day in the not-too-distant future will offer its youngsters and adults a recreation program comparable to those offered by neighboring cities.

International Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The preservation of American interests and friendship throughout the strategic and turbulent Arab world, extending from the Turkish-Russian borders to Eisenhower's invasion ports in North Africa, may depend on Washington's success in negotiating a peaceful and prompt settlement of Anglo-Egyptian difficulties. It may be the top task in the Dulles-Stassen mission abroad.

The ancient kingdom of the Pharaohs rivals Iran, and Korea as future explosive spots because of possible Russian infiltration. Lying athwart the Suez Canal and the Red Sea, the loss of Egypt would deprive the Western powers of an inner lifeline to the Middle East, India and Southeast Asia. It could be fatal in a World War III.

Luckily Premier Major General Mohammed Naguib, virtual dictator since the overthrow of King Farouk last July, is well-disposed toward the United States. Through our exceptionally able Ambassador, Jefferson Caffery, the Truman Administration had reinforced Naguib's effort to eradicate corruption and better his people's miserable lot.

We have agreed to sell him arms against possible revolt by the corrupt Wafd Party. Point 4 experts are cooperating in plans for waterpower and irrigation projects in the Upper Sudan. They are also advising on the breakup of vast estates and development of a balanced, diversified agriculture.

Truman showed political courage on the eve of the November election in this crisis. Overruling protests from Israel, which fears resumption of warfare with the Arabs, he agreed that the Arabian nations could buy weapons for their internal and external security. Lack of funds, however, has kept shipments at a minimum.

Despite deep-seated differences between Zionists and Arabians, Washington and London hope that an anti-Russian alliance of both groups can be organized in this area. It would be an adjunct to the European Defense Community and the proposed Balkan combination. Such a Middle East arrangement would ring every Soviet border with allies of America.

Unfortunately, as in Iran, the clash between British colonialism and nationalism impedes our progress. Naguib insists that the British withdraw from the Suez Canal area and the Sudan, or Upper Egypt. Otherwise, although violently anti-Communist, he may be tossed into Stalin's arms. His enmity toward British power and concessions will not abate.

Unlike Acheson in China, Secretary Dulles cannot afford to "wait until the dust settles" in this proud and ancient land. He cannot pursue a hands-off or pro-British policy, as we did in Iran until recently. Egypt from Britain's already slender grasp is preferable to forcing Naguib into the role of Mao Tse-tung in the Far East. For, if Egypt falls under Communist domination, the Middle East, North Africa and India might go the same way.

Any determined and decisive move to improve relations between this key kingdom and the West will cost money, as might be expected. Ninety per cent of Egypt's economy is based on cotton, and the market and price for that staple product have diminished. Basic reason is the expanding use of synthetic fabrics in men's and women's clothing, especially in the U.S.

There could be no more dramatic example of the interwoven pattern of world affairs and relationships. Whenever an American household buys a rayon or nylon dress instead of the old-fashioned but more expensive cotton garment, she complicates Eisenhower's effort to establish stable conditions in the remote Middle East. The U.S. Treasury may have to pick up the tab for underwriting Naguib because of an American shift in haberdashery.

What Does Europe Want?

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

LOBBYISTS — The lobby register in the Secretary of State's office had 50 persons listed as representing 52 firms, agencies and associations at closing time Saturday. Counting duplicates, such as several persons representing one firm and one person representing several clients, the total number of registrations was 59. To the same calendar date two years ago the record was 64. However, the 1951 Legislature convened four days earlier than the current session, and to the comparable legislative day "two years ago there had been 61 lobby registrations.

SABOTAGE — Two or three bills pending in the Legislature, if enacted as proposed, would result in a sort of left-handed sabotage of the contingency and emergency fund. For a good many years the General Assembly has followed recommendations of the advisory budget commission in appropriating a substantial sum of money for the discretionary use of the Governor and the Council of State in event of emergencies or contingencies arising when the Legislature is not in session. In recent years the amount has been a million dollars annually.

UNFORESEEABLE — I daresay there should be provision for emergencies and contingencies which cannot be foreseen during the session and for correction of obvious errors and omissions in the biennial appropriation bill. The Attorney General has repeatedly ruled that the fund could not be tapped for other purposes and certainly could not be used to accomplish deeds which the Legislature had considered and turned down. The General Assembly has ignored the emergency fund.

LAUDABLE — Admiration is laudable, but not recommended in an emergency. If this bill is enacted into law the general appropriation bill should be amended to read $99,000 instead of $1,000,000 for the C&E fund for the first year of the biennium. It is not a wise situation. Other Governors and Councils of State have been held accountable for disbursements of many thousands of dollars, when actually the General Assembly had denied them discretionary powers.

HORNBLISS — Rep. Roy Taylor of Buncombe may have thrown a rock into a hornet's nest with his bill to authorize penalties to "inspect and report upon the condition and operation" of the public schools in this state. The hornets are clustered in the word "operation." Grand juries have long had the prerogative and the duty of inspecting and reporting to superior court judges on the condition and operation of county homes, jail houses and administrative county offices. In these cases the responsibility for maintenance of the physical properties and the conduct of the business is vested in the county. Public schools come in a different category, with county and local administrative units mainly responsible for physical equipment, the State mainly responsible for operation, with some overlapping phases in both areas.

CONFUSION — Taylor's bill was inspired by incidents in Buncombe county. And judge of the grand jury to inspect public schools in its inspection itinerary, and the presiding judge for the next term of court advised that the grand jury had no authority in the field. Taylor is trying to co-ordinate and make uniform the practice not only in Buncombe, but in all the other counties.

CONFLICT — It is easy to see how confusion can become open conflict when a county grand jury seeks to compel a county board of education or the county commissioners to do something which the State Board of Education says they shall not do. There can easily be involved the whole bothersome issue of consolidation of schools, about which several local bills are now pending.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

SOME VERY PLAIN AIK (Henderson Dispatch)

Very plain talk in the London press about the visit of Secretary Dulles is regrettable. The tone of comment makes very little contribution to perpetuation of cordial relations between Britain and the United States. For such relationships to deteriorate would be exceedingly unfortunate, for the two countries have very much in common, and a great deal depends upon their future cordiality in securing the freedom of the democratic world.

Mr. Dulles is not in London, nor elsewhere in Europe, for that matter, with the idea of pushing any one around, as the London Daily Express put it. His mission is to obtain greater accord and more unanimity of purpose, to the end that there may be a stronger defense against a common enemy. The blunt statement is given that Britain is already making tremendous sacrifices to push them around, and "proposes to make no more."

One wonders if that is intended to convey the meaning that from here on the United States must carry the burden in men and money. Should all of Western Europe assume that attitude, it would stiffen the demand in this country for further reductions in foreign aid. While there is a limit beyond which the British feel they are unable to go, our friends across the water should bear in mind that that could become a very real Western Europe would very likely work both ways. If no further commitments were made quickly awake to the seriousness of the predicament in which it found itself. There is no disposition here to remind free Europe of sacrifices that have been made in its behalf by this country, and no reminder should be necessary.

WHEN WINTER EDDIES IT'S NEAR TIME TO GO (Spokesman-Review, Salem, Ore.)

There is in every winter a point— or perhaps it would better be called a stage—at which the winter is half over.

It is no definite date and mention of it never appears on the calendars nor in the almanacs. It can't be found by computing the number of days between December 21 and March 20 and dividing them by three. Nor does it have any connection with the set of going to the wall calendar and ripping off the January page with a sign like "Well, that's over."

However much American aid may have been in behalf of security of the United States, it cannot be denied that Europe has shared in that security and it is sharing it.

It will be well if all heads shall bear in mind that this is a mutual adventure. No one will deny that the United States is better equipped to carry a large share of the burden, but that in no wise relieves Europe of its own obligations. Free peoples are confronted with a common enemy and must present a common front to that foe if the grave threats from Eastern Europe and Asia are to be thrown back.

Congressman Richards, of South Carolina, voiced the sentiments of many Americans when he said that the feeling is "we have leaned over backwards long enough to meet Great Britain more than half way." Talk in London that Britain "will do no more" and that it will allow no one, "not even well-meaning friends," to push them around will not create any feeling of jubilation in this country.

The American government is seeking to build the strongest possible defenses against communism, and to enlist cooperation to the utmost degree possible in the effort. It would appear that such motives might be understood in Britain of all places.

A wife can notice, too, when winter is running its course. All she has to do is watch her spouse. If he's putting around the ragging tools or looking over the fishing equipment to see that it is in shape for action, then spring is coming. Sometimes a man can just feel it, without knowing why.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Maybe Americans aren't as smart as they think they are. For decades we have prided ourselves on our inventive genius and our dedication to progress. And now John A. Marzall, Commissioner of Patents, points out that the number of patents per capita is falling and is already back to the level of 1866.

"There was a continuous rise in the number of patent applications from 180 to 1921," he told the National Association of Manufacturers. With the beginning of the machine age, after 1866, the number of applications dropped. If the rate of patents had kept up with the increase in population, he said, patent applications would be around 130,000 a year, instead of the present rate of 60,000.

Commissioner Marzall did not attempt to explain the dip, but he pointed out that from 1925 to 1950, the Court of Appeals rejected patents in increasing numbers. In 1929, 63.3 per cent of patents granted were nullified. The ratio has since dropped, but in 1950-51, 52.8 per cent were "knocked out."

One factor that Mr. Marzall did not go into is the fact that many potential inventors are discouraged. It takes a long time to obtain a patent and, as the National Patent Council has pointed out, it often costs more to obtain a patent through the courts than the patent will produce in profit.

In addition, during the last Administration there was a tendency to view patents as fosterers of monopoly and several government actions ended up with large corporations agreeing to license others to use their patents.

There is still another, little publicized factor. A successful patent often brings out a number of patent pirates. An inventor, for example, may devise a gadget with which a pedestrian can send out waves that will stop an on-coming auto. As soon as it hits the market, some pirate will start producing the identical device.

It has two things in its favor: the chances are better than even that the original patent will be disallowed anyhow; if not, it will take years of legal action to prove piracy. And if the inventor should win out and get a judgment in the end, he will probably find that the pirate has folded his company and vanished with the assets.

There was one inventor who recently perfected an unusual compound. He had not applied for a patent. "I have gimmicked this up so much it will take my competitor two years to analyze it," he said. "About two years head is all I could get out of a patent anyhow, so why waste the money?"

URGES BIRTH CONTROL OF USELESS RECORDS
There are one billion pieces of paper in the files of American business, of which 400,000,000 should be junked, according to Emmett J. Leahy, president of the National Records Management Council.

He said that maintenance of obsolete records is costing business and industry $300,000,000 a year. In addition to destroying 40 per cent of existing records, he said, business should separate the remainder into those currently needed for operating and those that could be placed in low-cost off-premises storage. Furthermore, "birth control" of new methods should be established to prevent future accumulations of needless papers.

CHLOROPHYLL PRODUCT TO REPLACE ALL OTHERS
"Have you a few thousand dollars laying around you would like to put to work?" he asked a voice and we knew the Old Promoter had gotten by our secretary and was in again.

"Before you say no," he went on, "listen to this. There have been endless numbers of chlorophyll products—chlorophyll gum, chlorophyll pillows, chlorophyll air purifiers, chlorophyll bed sheets—but no one has brought out the best chlorophyll product of them all. It's a natural that has been overlooked."

"What is it?" we asked.
"Just chlorophyll. I am going to form a company to put it up in aerosol cans. It will sell like wildfire. You can spray it under your arms, in musty corners, on your clothes, in your dishwasher, on your teeth, on the baby—any place you want. Instead of buying 20 chlorophyll products, you buy one and have the equivalent of a million. What do you say?"

"It took us about four-fifths of a second. We said, 'No.'"

Hal Bayle's Column
NEW YORK (AP)—Nothing is as much trouble to people as themselves.
That is why they have a secret envy of birds and wild animals, who seem to enjoy such freedom.
Being civilized, even to the degree mankind claims, is a big nuisance. It makes a human being a lot of bother to himself.
The fight isn't just to get ahead in the world. It is a big battle each day to stay even with the day before.
Look at what happens. You go to bed at night feeling fine and fit, content with the universe. But the minute you lie down to rest from the struggle, what is the result? Decay sets in overnight.
You wake up in the morning and find you have lost ground. Your mouth tastes bad, one eye is gummy shut, your hair is greasy, you have to harrumph three times to clear your throat, and your stomach is growling for a bit of toast.
In eight hours of sleep you have fallen completely apart. The rust of time has set in.
Back you go into the endless battle of trying to "be yourself" which really amounts each morning to a hopeless attempt to cover up the ravages of the previous day.
You shower and shave, you brush your hair and comb your teeth, or vice versa, and put a polish cloth to your shoes. You put on a freshly pressed suit and a clean shirt. You breathe.
All right, world, here you come, armor for the day's fray. Bring on the problems. But how do you feel? Why, you've half-worn yourself out just getting ready for them.
And you know in your heart of hearts that the day will end with some problems still unsolved. You also know that when you come home your suit will be wrinkled, your shirt dirty, your beard sprouting and your stomach growling again. Your teeth will be a day nearer the time they will be gone. Same thing with your hair.
How can you win?
If you are a woman you are an even bigger nuisance to yourself. You fret about how girlish seem to be getting stronger or else you are getting weaker. You worry about how much harder it is to paint on that same beautiful face you wore so well only a year ago. Or, "is it yet?"
Year after year the repair work goes on, but, as the poet says, each morning "All's to do again." And still the image of yourself, as you would like to stay, remorselessly and steadily crumbles.
It might be nice if the whole human race would face up to the fact that they, too, must obey the old law of "Here today, gone tomorrow."
What I have in mind is a national "Give Up" Day—perhaps once a week, once a month and certainly at least once a year.
On this day nobod' would fight city hall, try to solve a problem, or attempt to look younger. No woman would put on a girlish face, or a man would put on her clothes. She'd just roll at home in a housedress, enjoying looking frowny.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—The receiving line formed promptly, but for an anxious hour and a half it was minus its guests. The hour guests, who were detained by a previous appointment of great importance. At that, the Women's National Press Club had a tap on local hostesses, for it was the first to press the members of President Eisenhower's cabinet to Washington.

While Marie Sauer, president and other club officials kept an eye on the door, members and their guests, totaling about 600, crammed into the ballroom and Chinese room of the Mayflower Hotel, sipped at wine and water punches served from bubbling fountains, greeted old Democrats and new Republicans and considered what had happened to the people they had been invited to meet.

Finally the word got around and a debate in the Senate had delayed confirmation and that the new cabinet was only then being sworn into office at the White House. Meanwhile, Athanasios Politis, genial Greek ambassador, kept the girls in the receiving line amused with his witticisms. The guests relaxed, sipped more punch, nibbled sandwiches and rushed forward to shake hands when day after day the President's official family—five of them accompanied by their wives—strived at 6:30 p.m. Velvet rope barriers were set up to hold back the enthusiastic well-wishers, who included diplomats, other top government officials, incoming and incumbent, as well as many leaders in Washington's civic and social life.

Chapter Nine

When Eve saw Charley Bonn come out of the Shiloh she maneuvered to meet him midway across the street. The old homesteader appeared worried. He said, "That shows what Stromberg will do to grab a piece of Strip graze. Link made it look like a personal grudge betwixt him and Rimboud, but it was meant to be a chop-down, pure and simple."

"Is Jim still at the saloon?" Eve asked.

Bonn nodded. "I tried to talk him into leaving town with me, but Rimboud said he had to help Limpy Smith finish off a quart of bourbon. Some damn foolishness about how important it was to drink twenty toasts."

"So Limpy has taken up with Jim," murmured Eve. And then she said something that didn't make sense to Charley Bonn: "Sam isn't a drinking man, thank God."

Bonn was wondering about that as he drove out of town with his wife. When he repeated Eve's words to Maria she said, "The poor girl had a drunkard for a father, and is set on having a sober man crowd of customers attracted by the fight. "It's an ill wind that doesn't blow some good," he confided to Pincune.

Buck Aubrey came into the Shiloh and joined Lew Stromberg at the bar. "Ernie's right arm is broke," he reported. "Doc says it'll take upwards of an hour to fix a cast."

"Serves the wild hellion right for bustin' up a poker game just when I was winnin'," Joe Gabbert complained. "Whatever got into him, Lew?"

Stromberg shrugged, maintaining the attitude of a mildly interested observer. "Some personal grudge," he suggested.

Farther along the bar Jim Rimboud stood listening to Limpy Smith's recital of Doc Odegarde's downfall.

Limpy endeavored to sift tobacco into the paper, most of it missing. He gave up and put the sack back in his pocket, again swaying, and announced, "But Doc Odegarde was a crackjack surgeon, regardless. Look how he carved this knee of mine."

As Rimboud turned to look at the stump Smith raised for inspection, he saw Hitz Jubal and Red Shafter come through the batwings. Remembering that Jubal was Stromberg's foreman, Rimboud thought: That makes five of them in town. He decided he'd had enough bourbon.

"Doc cut right through the joint," Limpy bragged, and lifted the leg so high he lost his balance.

Rimboud attempted to grab him, but Limpy staggered sideways, colliding with Hugh Jubal, who swore irritably. Smith caught at Jubal's vest to right himself.

"Don't use me for no leavin' post!" Jubal protested.

He gave Smith a shove that sent him sprawling into the spittle-stained sawdust, whereupon Red Shafter cracked, "Behold the face o' the barroom floor!"

Jim Rimboud endeavored to convince himself that tis was none of his affair; that Limpy Smith was just a drunken dishwasher who'd always be shoved around by someone. It was in the cards. But even as that reasoning ran through his mind, Rimboud said sharply, "That is no fit way to treat a cripple."

"And who are you?" Jubal demanded.

It occurred to Rimboud that the Roman Four mirrored was like Lew Stromberg in the way he looked at a man. Like he was the main stud. Ignoring Jubal's question, Rimboud helped Limpy up and heard Red Shafter say, "Why, that's the galoot you roped in Rimrock Pass this evenin'—the one we thought was Sam Maiben!"

Rimboud brushed sawdust off Smith's shirt. The fall had dazed Limpy, for he asked, "What happened?"

"You got man-handled by a sneaking ambusher," Rimboud said loud enough for all to hear, and escorted Limpy to a chair at the deserted poker table.

There were eleven men at the bar, all watching this, and now Lew Stromberg said, "Hugh, that's Jim Rimboud."

Jubal glanced around. "The Jim Rimboud?"

Stromberg nodded. He motioned to Buck Aubrey, who followed him out to stand beside Jubal and Shafter. They were like that, four abreast, when Rimboud turned away from the poker table.

A faintly derisive smile slanted Rimboud's whisker-blackened cheek as he observed the Roman Four line-up. It was an old established trick, he reflected: a traditional use of excess power to smother opposition. He had seen it in Lincoln County and on countless occasions across the border. Yet now, as he came on, Lew Stromberg said, "If my foreman waylaid you he made a mistake, and is willing to admit it."

Wholly surprised at this unexpected admission, Rimboud peered at Stromberg and knew something that he hadn't even guessed before. But the puzzling implication, that knowledge baffled him. Despite all Stromberg's arrogance and all his vanity, the man was dominated by a calculating caution that seemed in direct contrast to his nature. Not cowardice, surely, or fear of physical harm, but a caution spawned by his greed for graze.

Rimboud halted directly in front of Jubal and said, "I'm listening."

Trujillo To Seek Free Spaniards

WASHINGTON (UP)—Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo of the Dominican Republic will make a formal appearance at the United Nations to demand the return of 100,000 Spanish men and boys said to be held captive behind the Iron Curtain. He is in the United States on a three-month visit.

Trujillo, who, until last August, had been president of the West Indies republic for 20 years, except for the period 1938-1942, said that the Communists have "absolutely no legal basis on which to operate" in his country. He was referring to a law passed in 1947 which prohibits "Communist, anarchist and other groups that are contrary to the Constitution of the Dominican Republic."

"We enforce the law continuously and keep anyone with Communist tendencies under constant check," he said.

Air Force Now Canning Engines

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Iron and Steel Institute says the Air Force and Air Materiel Command are canning aircraft engines and clothing for overseas use.

The world's largest cans are made of 11 or 12-gauge low carbon, hot-rolled steel plates. They are opened with wrenches, not can openers, and can be re-used.

Humidity, big bugaboo in engine shipment, is overcome by use of desiccants placed inside the cans before closing. After the two halves are bolted together, dehydrated air is pumped in through a special valve.

Ancient Palace To Be Restored

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Brazil's famed Itamarati Palace, seat of the ministry of foreign relations, soon will undergo a major reconstruction job.

Work is scheduled to start in June on the reconstruction and modernization of the old palace, as well as an entirely new edifice for the ministry to be built on the same grounds.

The new building will be 11 stories high. It will have a large auditorium, meeting rooms for foreign delegations, and a teletype-equipped pressroom, as well as offices.

Praises Jews

Expressing shock at the Russian anti-Jewish policy, he pointed out that his island has become a haven for Jewish people. While president, he donated 26,500 acres of land for a Jewish colony.

"I have always considered the Jewish people very intelligent and industrious," he said. "We also welcome refugee Russians, provided they have no Communistic ideas."

He said little incentive remains in the republic for Communists anyway because of the high living standards there.

"Communism can be halted when governments improve the living and working conditions and standards of living of their people," he explained. "Such human relations develop faith in the respective governments and thus help build a strong bulwark against the Red movement."

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP)—This city's leading woman blood donor says giving blood is just about as easy as falling off a log. Mrs. Carl Hellman donated her 46th pint of blood she's given in the space of 11 years — an average of over four pints a year.

"I've never experienced any after-effects," she says. "Giving blood is a little thing to ask, and it's the least a person can do to help the boys in the service."

Bucs Defeat McCrary For Twelfth Win

Pirates Have 11-2 Record!

E. Carolina Leads North State Loop

By the Associated Press
The North State Conference basketball race moved into the next to last week of the regular campaign today with East Carolina's Pirates still setting the pace and with just three teams having a mathematical chance of beating them out of the title.

The Pirates, with an 11-2 record, are followed in order by Elon, 8-3; Western Carolina, 9-4; and High Point, 7-4. Elon must sweep its remaining five games, while the Pirates are dropping two of their remaining three contests to take the circuit crown. Western Carolina and High Point are even worse off, needing three East Carolina losses to stay in the running.

This week's schedule finds several top battles among the loop leaders on tap and on the outcome of the next two weeks' play will hinge the seedings for the annual North State post-season tournament at Winston-Salem.

Western Carolina's Catamounts tackle High Point tonight on the Panthers' home court, while Atlantic Christian is at Gullford.

Two of the week's most promising battles figure to take place on Wednesday when Elon is host to High Point and on Saturday when the Christians travel to Greenville to take on the Pirates.

Behind the Big Four in the loop standings come Lenoir Rhyne, 5-6; Appalachian, 4-8; Gullford, 4-8; Atlantic Christian, 3-8; and Catawba, 2-10.

High Point, in addition to playing Elon on Wednesday and Western Carolina tonight, also tangles with Appalachian Saturday for one of the week's toughest North State schedules.

Atlantic Christian, which dropped three straight contests last week, finds itself in danger of losing out on making the grade as the No. 8 team in the tourney. The Bulldogs need at least one more victory to sew up the last tournament berth.

Game Changed

Two Pitt County Conference basketball games between Grimesland and Bethel High Schools, which were originally scheduled for Tuesday night, will be played tonight instead. Action will get underway in the Bethel gym tonight at 7:30.

NCAA Tourney Will Feature 35 Teams This Year

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Thirty-five berths in the tournaments that start in exactly one month were the glittering prizes today as a host of hopeful teams hammered into the homestretch of the college basketball season.

The week of March 9 will see 23 teams, including 1 conference champion, competing in the National College Athletic Association tournament and 12 others — an NCAA rule new this year prevents "doubling up" — will battle in the still "big time" National Invitation Tournament.

Those are the stakes, and crucial games on tap this week will go a long way toward deciding who wins them.

The University of Washington Huskies, paced by six-foot, seven-inch Bob Houbregs, the highest scorer in Pacific Coast Conference history, stood closer to a tourney berth today than any other team.

By whipping Washington State, 69-56, on Saturday, the Huskies clinched the northern division PCC title and pushed themselves into a two-out-of-three playoff with the southern division titlist for the NCAA bid reserved for the coast champion.

The Huskies now own a 20-1 overall record and Houbregs, with 28 points in Saturday's game, has a new conference season record of 276 points.

The leaders in all of the other major conferences will see action this week, and, of course, every game is vital because a slip now could mean disaster.

The NIT field is put together by invitation only, and can include both independents and conference teams which missed out in their own loop.

Baseball Meeting For Bright Belt Set For Tonight

Member teams and officials of the Bright Belt League will meet at Parker's Restaurant tonight at 7:30 to discuss plans for organizing an eight-team baseball league for the coming year.

President of the league, John Allen Farfour, has issued an open invitation to all representatives who are interested in forming a team to enter in competition.

Last year the semi-pro Bright Belt League consisted of teams from Farmville, Ormondville, Pinetops, Stantonsburg and Fremont. Since disbandment of the Class D Coastal Plain League a stir of interest has been shown by several representatives in surrounding areas.

Pirates Show Second Half Surge Of Power

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer
East Carolina College's one-two combination of Bobby Hodges and Sonny Russell punched in with 46 points between them Saturday night to lead the Pirates' 79-65 victory over the strong semi-pro McCrary Eagles. The win was the twelfth of the year for the Bucs who have played 15 games.

Hodges, the big All-Conference center from Kinston, led the scoring division with 28 points but it was the smooth-as-silk Russell who led the whole show. The All-Conference and All-State forward from New Bern showed signs of soreness from a knee injury at times during the contest but, despite the injury, he was still top man on the court in ball-handling, passing, and setting-up plays. Russell didn't do badly in the scoring, either; his 18 points were good enough for runner-up honors to Hodges.

The Eagles, led by an ex-junior college All-Stater, lost out only in the last period. Smith Langdon, a 6-5 stringbean from Campbell Junior College, spread his 17 points over a wide enough period of time to keep McCrary breathing until the Pirates' collective necks until the last few minutes of the third period. Behind Langdon in the Eagles' private scoring show were Ab Williams, James York, and Ted Moran. Williams, the Demon Deacon from Wake Forest, showed signs of wear-and-tear of age but he was still good for thirteen points; York, a former high school All-Stater in football and basketball at Asheboro High School, tossed in 10 points and did a good job in the rebounding department; Moran, ex-High Point College, nearly hooked the Pirates silly but he wound up with only 10 points in his credit.

The Pirates jumped to an early lead that they held until the eighth minute mark in the third quarter. At that point, Williams hit on one of his "line drive" set shots and set the Eagles ahead 40-39. Langdon drove in for a lay-up that made the score 42-39. Bobby Hodges put the Pirates back into the set with a field goal at the 6:14 mark but Williams slipped the score back to 44-41 with another set shot. Sonny Russell then took charge of the Pirates offense with three points to tie the score. Hodges tossed in another field goal with 4:41 remaining to give the lead back to East Carolina but York got hot under the basket and tossed in two points to tie the game back up. That's when the Pirates got really hot and moved the ball into the lead for keeps.

J. C. Thomas hit a field goal, Russell got two free throws, Harry Hayes got a free throw, Hodges got two free throws and a field goal, and Charlie Huffman tossed in a free throw. When the quarter ended, the Pirates were resting comfortably with a 62-53 lead. They used the fourth quarter to extend the margin even more.

Practically all of the Pirate starters got into the double-figures scoring column. Thomas, the freshman guard from Raleigh, got 12 points; Heath, the sophomore "quarterback" from Wilmington, tossed in 10; and Huffman, the junior rebound ace from Thomasville, just missed with eight points. Huffman, however, did a good job on the boards and one of the big factors in the East Carolina control of rebounds.

The victory did nothing at all to strengthen the hold the Pirates have on first place in the North State Conference. They'll get back into league action next Saturday night when the second place Elon Christians come to Memorial Gym for the second game of the season between the teams. The Pirates won the first meeting, a 76-75 thriller.

Mal Whitfield Eyes World Track Record

NEW YORK (UP)—Mal Whitfield, who is so good he can call his shots, will bid for his second straight world record when he meets teammate Herb McKenley and Germany's Heinz Ulzheimer in the 600-yard run in the National AAU Indoor Track Championships at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Whitfield, two-time Olympic champion at 800 meters, set a new world indoor 500-yard record of 56.6 seconds last Saturday night during the New York Athletic Club meet. Both Whitfield and McKenley run for New York's Grand Street Boys Club.

As soon as he clipped three-tenths of a second off the mark of 56.9 set by Villanova's George Guida in 199, Whitfield said the 600-yard, 800-yard and 800-meter world standards were his next 1953 targets. The former Ohio State star had predicted he would crack the 500 mark.

"I believe I'll be able to better the records for 800 meters, 800 yards and 600 yards this season," Whitfield said. "McKenley made the 500 record possible by setting a fast early pace."

Whitfield equalled the indoor 600 mark of 1:10.2 Jan. 31. McKenley and Ulzheimer should be just the boys to pace Whitfield to a new record. McKenley, world's outdoor 440-yard record holder, set a blistering pace Saturday night, while Ulzheimer led all the way in setting a half-mile meet record of 1:52 in his U. S. debut here two weeks ago.

"When I equalled the 600 yard record at Boston, I had to coast through the last part of the race because I had the flu and couldn't breathe properly," Whitfield explained.

In the 500, the Olympic champion, glided up on the outside, took the lead from McKenley on the final turn and beat Ollig Sax of Penn State by five yards as McKenley faded to third. It was his fifth victory in as many starts this season.

"I'm in top condition now so I only work out about twice a week," he said. "I practice with the sprinters. My running comes from years of practice and from the help of such coaches as Larry Snyder of Ohio State and A. W. Snyder of the Grand Street Boys.

"I've just been discharged from the Air Force and more practice time is helping me to run well indoors for the first time. What I want now is a good job—one that will let me continue running to get ready for the 1956 Olympics."

Chandler Harper Wants One More Tournament Win

EL PASO, Tex. (UP)—Chandler Harper, a veteran trying to make his swan song to tournament golf a brilliant one, and Ted Kroll, a rising star in the links world, meet in an 18-hole playoff today for the El Paso Open golf championship.

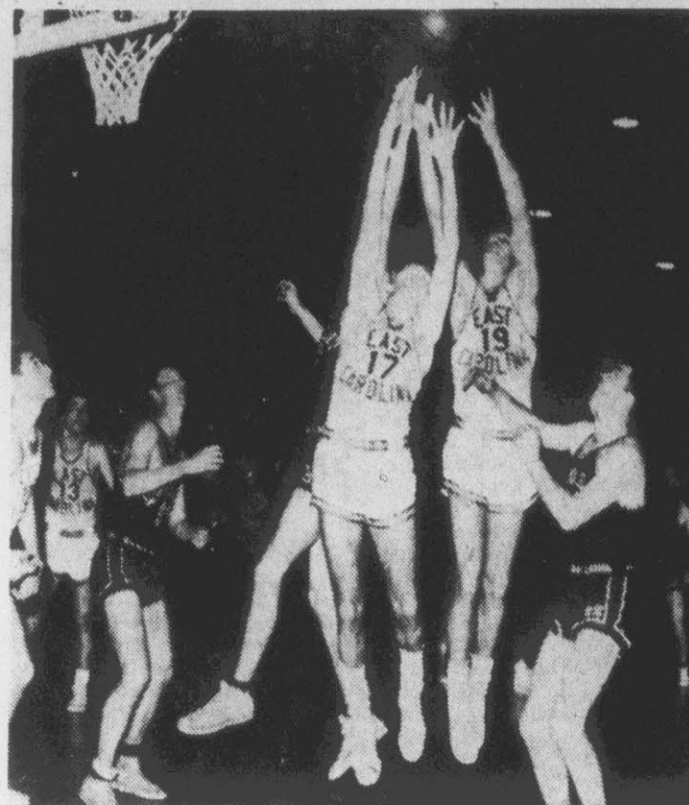

Harper and Kroll tied for first place with six-under-par 278's at the end of the regulation 72 holes Sunday and chose to settle the prize money in the playoff rather than split the $3,400 between them.

Harper, the former PGA champion from Portsmouth, Va., has never been a consistent winner on the tour and says he intends to forsake tournament golf for good after the Texas Open which starts Thursday at San Antonio.

He only joined the tour two weeks ago at Tucson after jumping on a hunch brought on by a friend's dream of him winning the Tucson Open. He didn't win it, but grabbed off $1,400 second money a stroke behind Tommy Bolt, the champion.

"I just want to win one more before I quit," he said Sunday before taking off for the final round in a tie for the lead with young Leo Biagetti of Baltimore, Md.

Biagetti faded and Kroll emerged as his chief threat as the pair waged a personal duel in the final threesome of the day.

Pressure On Duke!!

Southern Conference Teams Begin Scramble For Tournament Berths

By UNITED PRESS
Scrambling for berths in the Southern Conference tournament enters the frenzied stage this week with the pressure on Duke, Richmond and George Washington.

No less exciting will be the jockeying for positions by the teams already assured of tournament places.

Duke, with a 6-3 league record and seven games left, begins its most crucial week tonight against George Washington at Durham. The Blue Devils knocked off three favored foes last week, posting a pair of important conference wins. But they face Wake Forest and league-leading North Carolina State after tonight's game with the strong Colonials.

Richmond, with an 8-4 league record and six games to play, faces an equally crucial contest tonight against Maryland at College Park. The Young Spiders lost an earlier bout to the Terrapins, but last week showed they're ready to make a strong bid for the tourney by beating North Carolina.

North Carolina State, defending champions for the past six years, improved their first place standing and their prestige by walloping William and Mary 101 to 71 Saturday night. The Wolfpack scored 60 points in the first half.

North Carolina State now has an important intersectional game with Villanova Wednesday night and plays Duke Saturday night. The Wolfpack has an 11-2 league record.

North Carolina, 13-3, bowed to NYU 78-72. The Tar Heels played South Carolina and The Citadel this week and should improve their record.

Wake Forest downed George Washington in overtime 93-90 Saturday night to move into a tie for third with Maryland at 8-2. The Deacons should take undisputed possession of third tonight against William and Mary, providing, of course, that Richmond is able to overcome Maryland.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP) — Selective buying appeared in the stock market today despite another decline in the main list on active turnover.

Dealings lightened after a fairly heavy sales turnover at the outset. Some of the amusements stood out with small net gains. National Theaters and Columbia Pictures set new highs on fractional gains. Warner Brothers Pictures, Loew's and 20th Century Fox also firmed. Paramount, however, lost a point.

Some of the aircrafts made a good showing with Boeing touching 44 1/2 up 1/2 and Curtiss Wright 9 up 1/2. United firmed. Lockheed eased slightly. Celanese set a new low in the textiles and then came back to a small net gain.

Clark Equipment, the outstanding performer, rose 2 1/4 points to 43 1/2 following declaration of a 75 cent dividend which was equivalent to $1.12 1/2 on the old stock which paid 75 cents. Gains were noted in Minnesota Mining, McCord Corp., Missouri Pacific preferred and a few others.

Successful Raid

SAIGON, Indochina (AP)—Six of the main munitions plants used by the Rebel Vietminh forces were destroyed in a six week campaign in the area 25 miles north of Saigon, the French High Command announced today.

A spokesman for the General Staff said it was one of the biggest operations undertaken by the French. Five battalions were supported by an artillery group and a naval squadron in the raid, which was designed to break down the Vietminh supply system.

New tactics were employed. Instead of trying to keep contact with a base, the French force remained in rebel territory six weeks. Supplies, 160 tons of them, came by air drops.

In the six plants destroyed were 29 machine tool installations used in manufacturing artillery. Supplies of metal, spare parts and explosives were destroyed.

Forty-eight Vietminh were killed during the raid. The French lost four killed and 50 wounded. Sixty-one prisoners were taken.

Stray Porker On Highway Causes Car To Overtake

An eighteen-year-old driver escaped serious injury early Sunday morning when his automobile overturned after striking a pig roaming loose on the highway.

Investigating officer Jim Davis reported that a car driven by Willie Thomas Robinson, of 407 Church Street, Farmville, overturned at Cannon's Cross Roads around 8:45 Sunday morning.

Davis quoted the driver as saying that he lost control of his car after hitting a pig which ran in front of his car, causing it to overturn.

Guided Missile Ships Nearly Ready For Navy

YOKOSUKA, Japan (UP)—The U.S. Navy said today it has four guided missile ships almost ready to join the Seventh Fleet off Korea and Communist China "should the war situation require their use."

A detailed summary of the Seventh Fleet's recent history said that the ships — two heavy cruisers and two submarines — are being outfitted for guided missiles. The summary was issued by Seventh Fleet Commander Vice Adm. Robert P. Briscoe's office.

Briscoe directs the fleet's operations under the U.N. command in Korea. Adm. Arthur W. Radford directs its patrol of the Formosa Straits in defense of Nationalist China.

"At least four new type ships could be added to the Seventh Fleet in the not too distant future to initiate guided missile warfare should the war situation require their use," the Navy said.

"They are the former cruisers USS Boston and USS Canberra and the submarines USS Cusk and USS Carbonero. Their conversion to this specialized purpose has been under way in the United States since last summer."

Briscoe said that "contrary to popular concept no major portion of the Seventh Fleet has ever been actively assigned to the Formosa patrol."

"At most, fewer than half a dozen destroyers have ever been required in the straits of Formosa."

"In a shift of area responsibility a year ago, the Formosa problem was reassigned to Adm. Arthur W. Radford, USN, commander-in-chief of the Pacific and U.S. Pacific fleet."

"The Seventh Fleet, however, has continued to furnish the ships and probably will do so if they are required in the higher strategy now being compounded."

Rains Raise Tar Level 2 Inches

Tar River at Greenville was slightly higher yesterday than the recorded level Saturday.

Due to local rains, the stream was two inches higher than it was Saturday, Leland Mizell, local observer for the U. S. Weather Bureau, reported. The last reading of the river gauge showed the level to be nearly 3-4 feet. Normal level here is about 3-1/2 feet, the observer stated.

Hiding Place Is Found By Scout

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (UP)—Robert T. McWhorter of St. Petersburg, Fla., did a good job of hiding his wallet containing $11 when, as a soldier in Britain during World War II he ditched it on a ledge under the roof of his billet.

It was on the way to him in St. Petersburg today, discovered by a Boy Scout, John Haynes, 15 who was helping redecorate the hut.

Newcomers' Party Responses Piling Up

Responses of acceptance to the newcomers' party scheduled for tomorrow night continued to pour in today by both mail and telephone to the Chamber of Commerce office.

More than 200 invitations were sent out to newcomers to Greenville last week and approximately 100 persons have accepted the invitation to attend the party. Officials estimate that this year's crowd will exceed last year's which was the first attempt to stage such a party in the city.

Committees will begin on the final stage of the party tonight when they meet at the armory to put up decorations and get the building in readiness to stage the party. Various organizations, both civic and commercial, are working together on various phases of the party.

The ten groups which have been assigned various phases of the party are the Business and Professional Women's Club, the Credit Women's Breakfast Club, Exchange Club, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis Club, Recreation Commission, and Chamber of Commerce.

J. B. Kittrell will serve as the master of ceremonies and the Recreation Commission has charge of entertainment.

Calmly Brewed Some Tea While Robbing Bank

LONDON (UP)—Six masked bank robbers, calmly brewing tea as they worked, spent more than 12 hours trying to crack a huge vault in the heart of London over the weekend but gave up and fled with loot from two smaller vaults.

The gang got less than 1,000 pounds ($2,800) from the Royal Bank of Canada and the Sun Life Assurance Co. whose offices are housed in fortress-like Canada House on busy Trafalgar Square.

The robbery, described by a police as the "most audacious" in years, was discovered yesterday when two night watchmen freed themselves from ropes and gags and sounded an alarm.

The pair told detectives the six robbers kept a pot of tea water boiling throughout the night as

Youth To Appeal In Hunting Case

At a hearing in Magistrate H. L. Jenkins' court Saturday, he found Roland Allen, 16-year-old youth of Joyner's Crossroads community guilty of hunting ducks after hours.

The magistrate fined the defendant $10 and costs. Costs are about $7.75. He gave notice of appeal to Superior Court.

Game and Fish Protector Henry Flake arrested Allen near Courtneycreek Creek, in the lower part of Pitt County, last December 21 after sunset, the deadline for hunting ducks.

pending seeking to over rule actions of the State board. It is conceivable that further conflict in authority might arise on the issue of segregation of races. It is not an unreasonable premise that a superior court judge might issue an order, based on the report of a grand jury, to the county officials to do something which the State board has said they cannot do and then for a Federal judge to come along and upset the schemes of both the county and the State authorities. All of this is speculative, but the speculation serves to emphasize the complexities involved in school administration.

INTERESTING — Legislative debate on the Taylor bill is likely to be very interesting, but not nearly so interesting as subsequent developments in some counties if the bill should become law, and grand juries be able to the agencies vested with authority in controlling operations of public schools — which list already includes county commissioners, county boards of education, the State board of education and the Federal judges.

Students in the South Greenville elementary school collected $512.02 in the recent March of Dimes drive held in the city.

The school superintendent said the collection made by the students was probably the largest that will be reported by any elementary
