Dulles Offers Grim Alternatives To Western Allies Europe Given Choice

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Eisenhower administration today left it squarely up to Western Europe to quit stalling on military cooperation or risk falling into the "fire-trap" of World War III and occupation by Red armies.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles offered these grim alternatives in a speech Thursday night. He also indicated inaction might prompt an angry Congress to reduce foreign aid sharply.

Reporting on his recent seven-nation tour of Europe with foreign aid chief Harold E. Stassen, Dulles said their conclusion was that the plan to weld German manpower into a new European defense community was "not dead but only sleeping."

Gasoline Among Items In New Decontrol Order Price Increases Said Ahead

By MAUREEN GOTHLIN United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—Consumers were warned today to expect sharp price boosts on gasoline and probable increases on a variety of other items as a result of decontrol.

Price Stabilizer Joseph Freehill said the price jump would be "considerable" on gasoline and probably natural gas as he yanked price lids off a second big batch of goods Thursday.

He also predicted "probable" price hikes on newsprint for newspapers, construction services for everything from homes to highways, and scrap metals which go into the production of metal goods.

Referendum Legislation Reaches Assembly Vets' Bonus Bill Submitted

By LOWRY BOWMAN United Press Staff Correspondent RALEIGH (UP)—A long-awaited bill for a statewide referendum on a veterans bonus bond issue hit the General Assembly by surprise today and another group of lawmakers called for annual sessions of the General Assembly.

Backers of the veterans bonus slipped the measure in quietly. Reported in difficulty to find a sponsor for the measure, it was introduced by Republican Rep. William L. Winkler of Watauga County. Winkler said he was introducing it "by request."

It would provide a bonus to Tar Heel veterans with maximum payments of $300 to statewide service, and $500 for overseas service. The money would be paid at $12 a month for statewide service and $17 a month for overseas service.

1,450 Inhabitants Of Iranian Village Said Killed In Devastating Earthquake

TEHRAN, Iran (UP)—Radio Tehran announced today that 1,450 of the 1,500 inhabitants of a village in northeastern Iran were killed in a devastating three-minute earthquake yesterday.

Other villages in the area—the rugged Elburz mountains—were hit severely, radio Tehran said, but the extent of casualties was not yet known.

Only 500 persons of the 1,500 population of Porud, in the Shah River area, survived the brief, terrific quake, radio Tehran said. The village was leveled.

Farmville Red Cross Drive Leader Named

FARMVILLE—William Cabot Monk, secretary of the A. C. Monk and Company, Inc., will head the American Red Cross Fund Campaign in Farmville this year.

The announcement of Monk's acceptance to the chairmanship of the 1953 fund drive in Farmville was made today by Mrs. Blair Cox West, chairman of the fund drive in Pitt County.

The Farmville chairman worked last year in the Red Cross Fund Drive with Miss Elizabeth Davis who headed the fund campaign in the community Monk worked as chairman of special gifts.

PAROLE DENIED WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. Parole Board announced today it has denied a parole to Benjamin Davis, one of the convicted "top eleven" of the American Communist Party.

N. C. Bond Issues To Be Advised

Umstead Reported Ready To Seek $88 Millions In His Budget Message

Raleigh (UP)—Gov. William B. Umstead was reported today ready to recommend bond issues totaling nearly $88,000,000 in his delayed budget message, now expected next week.

Sources close to the governor said the major features of the message will include recommendations for a $50,000,000 bond issue for school buildings, a $23,000,000 bond issue for mental institutions, and a "catch-all" $15,000,000 bond issue.

To finance the bond issues it was reported that Umstead will recommend revisions in the sales tax structure.

A likely revision is removal of the $15 per item limit on the sales tax. He also may recommend subjecting to the sales tax some items now exempted.

19-Year-Olds To Be Called Up In Meeting Quotas

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina draft boards will begin drawing on 19-year-olds to fill their quotas next month, Col. T. H. Upton, state Selective Service director, said yesterday.

Upton said 19-year-olds except volunteers are expected to be included in the February quotas, "and not more than 25 per cent of the boards are expected to supply 19-year-olds for the March induction quotas."

Churchill Urged To Visit Stalin

LONDON (UP)—Twelve laborites asked in a motion today that Prime Minister Winston Churchill arrange a meeting with Soviet Premier Josef Stalin to try to end the cold war.

Parole Petition Denied Costello

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. Parole Board said today it has denied a parole petition by gambler Frank Costello, now serving 18 months for contempt of Congress.

Panel Discusses School Needs For Greenville At Meeting

A panel composed of parents last night discussed how a bond issue could be floated to build needed schools in the city. The panel appeared at a three-school Parent Teacher Association meeting held in the auditorium at the Training School. Parents who took part on the panel were: (Left to right) Frank Steinbeck, chairman, Mrs. R. P. Rogers, John O. Reynolds, Mrs. James Joyner, Reynolds May, Mrs. Martha Forbes, and James Brewer. Civil Term Of Superior Court To Open Monday

The February civil term of Pitt County Superior Court will open here Monday morning at 10 o'clock with Judge Henry L. Stevens of Warsaw on the bench.

A total of 20 civil cases have been placed on the calendar for trial next week, seven of which are suits for divorce. Next week's term is scheduled to last through Friday.

Names of 50 Pitt County citizens have been drawn and approved as jurors. Every township in the county is represented on the jury list, and five of the jurors are women.

Ship Hesitates

SINGAPORE (AP)—The Finnish tanker Wilma was anchored today 20 miles off Singapore awaiting orders from her owners whether to proceed, turn back or discharge her 7,000 tons of aviation jet fuel consigned originally to Communist China.

The 7,710-ton tanker has not moved since she dropped anchor on Wednesday. Capt. I. Merimaa said he received orders not to continue as he rounded the tip of the Malay Peninsula.

A Washington dispatch said on Wednesday that American officials were understood to have approached the Finnish government recently to see if the ship owners could halt the Wilma before it reaches its destination, reportedly a port near Dairen, China.

Berlin's Division Nearer Complete

BERLIN (UP)—East German Communists have partially closed almost half the streets linking East and West Berlin tightening the Red noose around the last loopholes through which Soviet zone refugees have poured into Western Germany, West Berlin police said today.

Poland Seized Control Of Church In Broad Decree

LONDON (UP)—The Polish Communist government has seized control of the entire hierarchy and administration of the Polish Roman Catholic church, it was announced today.

The move, announced by the official Polish news agency in a broadcast recorded here, apparently was in response to the action of Pope Pius XII in making Archbishop Stefan Wyszynski of Warsaw a cardinal at the recent papal consistory.

Festive Day

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Today Friday the 13th, was a festive day in the John Borden household.

Joint PTA Meeting Sets Wheels In Motion Move For School Bond Issue

A motion to begin work on a bond issue sufficient to meet the needs of Greenville school district was unanimously adopted last night at a joint meeting of the Parent-Teacher Associations of three city schools.

More than 150 parents and teachers attended the joint meeting of PTA groups of the Training School, Third Street School and West Greenville School.

The motion to begin work toward a bond issue came after a panel discussion on the local school situation. The motion called for the appointment of two members from each PTA group of the Greenville City Schools in an effort to have the trustees take steps necessary to bring about a referendum on a school bond issue.

The panel of seven members which discussed local school needs was composed of Frank Steinbeck, Reynolds May, Mrs. Harry Forbes, Mrs. James Joyner, Mrs. R. P. Rogers, Dr. John Reynolds and James W. Brewer.

It was pointed out by the panel that the cost of additional school facilities the local school district needs at the present time has been estimated at $1,700,000. Of that amount, the panel said, some $1,100,000 is needed for new facilities for white schools and $600,000 is needed for new facilities for Negro schools.

Pitt County, the panel said, is one of the few counties in the state under the Cleveland County school act which permits school bond issues in individual districts rather than by a county as a whole.

The last bond issue in the Greenville school district was approved by the voters in 1939; but the $250,000 worth of bonds was not issued by the district until 1949.

The school district has a valuation of approximately $24,000,000, the panel asserted, and on the basis of that, additional bonds amounting to $1,670,000 can be issued by the district. At the end of the current fiscal year in June, Greenville school district will have $258,000 in outstanding bonds.

When the discussion was thrown open to the floor by the panel, S. O. Worthington, Pitt representative in the General Assembly who said he had come home specifically to attend last night's meeting, asserted local citizens "might want to take a building program now" until the Supreme Court rules on the segregation question now pending before it.

The appointment of representatives from the PTA groups is expected to be made in the near future, and after their conference with the Board of Trustees of the school district, the next move toward getting a school bond election will be in the hands of the school trustees.

Gen. Taylor Is Greeted By Red Probing Action

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—The Chinese Communists greeted Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor at the front lines in Korea today with savage infantry attacks that forced his men back temporarily in two sectors.

The new commander in chief of the U. S. 8th Army was at the front lines—"to get better acquainted," he said—"for the first time since he succeeded Gen. James A. Van Fleet Wednesday.

Striking after a two-day lull forced by bad weather, the Chinese Reds sent three platoons on two attacks east of the Pukhan River on the central front after three smaller Red units had been routed in three attacks at one-mile intervals.

U. N. troops were forced back from the advance positions in 10 minutes of fighting. However, they moved back into their trenches and bunkers after Allied artillery saturated the area.

U. N. troops holding a small outpost east of Kelly Hill on the western front, were driven back after a 10-minute clash with rifles; and the Allies recaptured the post before dawn.

Small Communist units made other probing attacks near Bunker Hill and west of Chorwon on the western front, southwest of Jackson heights and at Sniper Ridge on the central front and at Anchor Hill in the east coast sector.

South Korean troops killed or wounded an estimated 73 North Koreans last night when two platoons backed by reserve forces attacked Anchor Hill. After two hours of fighting during which the Reds fired nearly 1,000 rounds of mortar and artillery, ROK officers placed the North Korean casualties at 32 counted killed, 27 estimated killed and 14 estimated wounded.

Artillery killed 10 Reds and wounded 30 more west of the Mudung-Ni Valley yesterday when an Allied ground patrol sighted a 45-man Communist supply train.

Rain and overcast restricted visibility the length of the Korean peninsula during the morning, giving the Reds a chance to move vital supplies south to the battlefield. Allied fighter-bombers were grounded during the morning. Sabre jets swept MIG alley for the Russian-built fighters, but reported no contacts up to noon.

Wm. Tyson Resigns Post In Labor Dept.

After eight years in office as solicitor in the Department of Labor under a Democratic "regime," William S. Tyson of Greenville has submitted his resignation.

Tyson's resignation becomes effective next Monday.

Republicans reportedly have agreed upon his successor, former GOP Congressman Harry N. Routjohn 72, of Dayton, Ohio.

Regardless of who Republicans put in Tyson's place, the new solicitor likely will be paid a full $1,000 a year less than the $14,800 the Tar Heel received for his services.

That is because of a special pay boost once given Tyson and two other Federal executives by Congress. The pay raise was authorized for each of the three executives by name. The other two were J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and John Feairday, formerly with the State Department.

Berlin's Division Nearer Complete

BERLIN (UP)—East German Communists have partially closed almost half the streets linking East and West Berlin tightening the Red noose around the last loopholes through which Soviet zone refugees have poured into Western Germany, West Berlin police said today.

The police said mounds of bricks and earth had been dumped into many of the streets through which refugees have moved into the western sectors of the city to escape from Communist East Germany.

Erection of the partial barricades began 10 days ago and slowed automobile and truck traffic to five miles an hour. This permitted a close check of all vehicles by East Berlin Communist police for refugees seeking safety from Communist Soviet zone party posts.

Police said they expected all streets linking the divided city eventually would be blocked in a like manner.

Yesterday the flood of refugees still was running high and some 900 refugees—including four more Jews—asked for asylum in the West.

Miss Gaut Speaks On Textile Industry

"I hope you will swell with pride when you hear how your state of North Carolina stands in relation to textiles," stated Miss Lila Gaut of the Home Economics Department of the college in speaking to the Clio Book Club on Tuesday afternoon, February 10, at the home of Miss Jane Hadley. North Carolina has forged ahead and occupies first place in textile industry, she continued. The first five cotton mills built in the South were built in North Carolina. Forty percent of all the hose produced in the nation were produced in this state in 1950. The largest towel mill in the world is the Cannon mill in Kannapolis. The Burlington Mills in Greensboro are the largest single purchasers of rayon yarn in America. The Cone Mill of Greensboro is the world's largest manufacturer of denim. American Enka Corporation at Enka is the world's largest single unit in the production of Rayon. The Biltmore Industries are the largest hand-woven homespun industries. Chatham Manufacturing Co. is the largest single woolen mill in one unit in the world.

N. C. State College has the largest and best equipped School of Textiles in the U. S.

In giving these statistics and many more, Miss Gaut succeeded in making each one of her hearers swell with pride.

Mrs. Jake Hadley, president, presided over a short business session and welcomed Mrs. Lawrence Smith, Mrs. Robert Fridmore and Miss Gaut, visitors for the afternoon.

At the conclusion of this delightful program, Miss Hadley invited her guests into the dining room where a delicious salad course, carrying out the Valentine motif, was served from a beautifully appointed table. The centerpiece was a large heart-shaped bouquet of spring flowers with a lace paper background and large red ribbon bow at the bottom of the heart. Spring flower arrangements were used throughout the home.

Books were exchanged and the club adjourned to meet in two weeks with Mrs. R. B. Arthur.

Mrs. J. G. Lautares Hostess To U.D.C.

The George B. Singletary Chapter of the United Daughters of Confederacy met Thursday, February 12, at the home of Mrs. J. G. Lautares with Mrs. Ernest Willard as assistant hostess.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Mrs. P. E. Wells, vice president, who presided in the absence of Mrs. J. L. Fleming who is ill. Mrs. Wells expressed with regret the absence of Mrs. Fleming who was greatly missed by all present. She brought greetings from Mrs. Fleming who sent her love to each member.

The business session followed. Mrs. E. W. Harvey read the minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. T. T. Hollingsworth presented the new year books, the attractive covers of which had been made by Miss Kathleen Whichard.

Mrs. J. B. Spilman presented the program for the afternoon which was on Bellinrath Gardens near famous Mobile Bay. This garden of dreams was conceived because of the love of beauty held by Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Bellinrath who delight in sharing that beauty annually with thousands of visitors. Mrs. Bellinrath is a native of Mobile while Mr. Bellinrath was born in Atlanta, Ga. Mrs. Spilman's word pictures were so vivid that members felt as though they had taken a trip to these beautiful gardens. Everyone was most appreciative of Mrs. Spilman's fine presentation of this interesting program.

During the social hour a delicious salad course was served. Visitors for the afternoon were Mrs. Sallie Irons and Mrs. V. E. Wells Sr.

Churches of Christ, Scientist

"Soul" is the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Churches of Christ, Scientist Sunday.

The Golden Text is from Psalms 130:4 "My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning."

Passages from the Bible include: "For the Lord God is a sun and shield; the Lord will give grace and glory; no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." Psalms 84:11

And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, "Day may decline and shadows fall, but darkness lies when the earth has again turned upon its axis. The sun is not affected by the revolution of the earth. So Science reveals Soul as God, untouched by sin and death,—as the central Life and Intelligence around which circle harmoniously all things in the systems of Mind." p. 310.

MRS. BODKIN TO PRESENT PIANO PUPILS IN RECITAL

Methodist Students Plan To Attend Greensboro Meeting

A large delegation of Methodist students and the Director of the Methodist Student Center, Miss Mamie Chandler, will spend the weekend of Feb. 13-15 in Greensboro, attending the annual meeting of the North Carolina Methodist Student Movement. Dr. Waldo Beach, Professor of Christian Ethics in the Divinity School of Duke University, will develop the theme, "The Christian in Community," in three major addresses before the entire Conference. Eight sub-con groups will make practical applications of the theme to particular community issues, and there will also be a Seminar for Campus Directors and WSCS Secretaries of Student Work, led by Dr. J. Lem Stokes II, Secretary, Department of College and University Religious Life, General Board of Education of the Methodist Church, Nashville, Tenn.

Delegates to the Conference will be housed in the dormitories of the colleges in Greensboro and in Methodist homes in the city. Meals will be served in the dining room of West Market St. Methodist Church, and all meetings will be held in the spacious new Education Building of the church. The Older Youth Fellowship of West Market St. Church is cooperating with the Methodist students of Bennett, Greensboro, Guilford, Woman's A. and T. Colleges as host for the conference.

A coffee conab on Friday afternoon and an hour of directed recreation on Friday night will provide opportunities for the students from the various colleges in the state to get acquainted. On Saturday night there will be a conference banquet with a religious drama presented by the Wesley Players of Duke University.

The whole program is planned and directed by the State Council of the North Carolina Methodist Student Movement, with Carl Edwards, student at Duke University, as president and Rev. R. Harold Hipps, state director.

Book Club Studies Old Testament

Mrs. R. W. MacKenzie was hostess to the Lector Book Club on Tuesday at her home on Rotary Ave. The house was festive with spring flowers of jonquils and quince.

During a short business meeting the president, Mrs. Louis Gaylord welcomed Mr. V. E. Wells, Sr., and Mrs. Jack Horton as guests.

The program for the afternoon was a continuation of the study of the Old Testament. Mrs. Holly Van Dyke reviewed the Book of Psalms and the Book of Proverbs.

In the historical section of the Bible members of the club were made acquainted with David, the king of Israel, but it is in the Psalms that the real David appears. It is here we see him on his knees, pouring out his soul to God, in penitence, in Thanksgiving, in faith, for assurance, for strength, belief and instruction. No other book more truly magnifies God and God's word than does the Book of Psalms.

Most of the Book of Proverbs is by Solomon who either uttered them or collected them. We are told in Kings that he was the author of 3,000 Proverbs.

The Book of Proverbs is essentially a book of teaching or instruction. Dr. Somprey speaks of this Book as "The best business manual for the young man who wishes to achieve the highest possible success in life."

In conclusion, Mrs. Van Dyke read part of the last chapter of Proverbs which is a poem in praise of a very worthy, capable woman.

Mrs. MacKenzie, assisted by Mrs. Horton, served Russian tea with delicious sandwiches, cheese biscuits, and assorted cookies.

'Student Prince' To Be Staged At College

Sigmund Romberg's popular musical 'The Student Prince' will be presented by East Carolina College students under the sponsorship of the Student Government Association in three performances scheduled for early April. The operetta will be given in concert form, with a dramatic continuity which will be read during the performance.

Participating in the production will be a chorus of 120 voices, the East Carolina Orchestra, soloists, dancers, and performers in various specialty numbers.

Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director of the East Carolina department of music, will direct 'The Student Prince.' Dr. Elizabeth Ulterback of the English department will read the dramatic continuity of the musical. George McFadyen, junior from Wilmington, will be in charge of lighting and staging. Working with Dr. Cuthbert on the musical portion of the production will be Dr. Karl V. Gilbert, Dan E. Vornholt, and Mrs. James White of the music faculty.

A special performance for college students will be given April 9, and a second performance April 10 will be open to the public. Students from various towns in North Carolina who will attend High School Day on the campus April 17 will be guests at a performance. All are scheduled to take place in the Wright auditorium.

ECC Music Groups To Present Annual Concert

For their annual winter concert, the East Carolina Orchestra and the Varsity Glee Club of the college will present a varied program, including selections by three student soloists. The event will take place Sunday, February 22, at 4 p.m. in the Wright auditorium and is expected to attract a large audience from the campus, Greenville, nearby towns.

Marietta Hooper of Norfolk, Va., and Dolores Matthews of Henderson, N.C., will appear as piano soloists with the orchestra. Both are pupils of Robert Carter of the college faculty. Miss Hooper will play the Allegro Maestoso movement from Mozart's Concerto in C Minor, K467; and Miss Matthews, the Allegro Con Brio movement from Beethoven's Concerto No. 3. Bernard Ham of Portsmouth, Va., senior at the college and pupil of Mrs. James White, will sing the Prologue to Leoncavallo's I Pagliacci.

The East Carolina Orchestra, which draws its talent from students and faculty members at the college and from musicians in Pitt County, will open the program with the grand march from Aida and will present other selections during the afternoon.

The Varsity Glee Club, composed of approximately fifty men students, will be presented in a group of songs, including Fred Waring's arrangement of the Battle Hymn of the Republic. Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, head of the college department of music, is director of both the orchestra and the glee club.

BPW Club Conducts 'International' Meeting

ADDRESSES MEETING—Featured speaker at the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club last night was Mrs. Lucy Rhodes Duncan (left) of Smithfield, president of the state BPWC federation. Accents of many lands rang through the Woman's Club last night as the Business and Professional Women's Club celebrated the 1953 Guests' and International Guests' night at their 15th birthday dinner.

The program, under the direction of Dr. Bessie McNeil, included guests who are natives of foreign lands and persons who have traveled extensively in foreign countries in addition to an address by Mrs. Lucy Rhodes Duncan of Smithfield, president of the State Federation of BPWC. Each of the persons on the program spoke briefly of the land they were representing and some of those who were natives expressed appreciation for friendliness they have received while in America. Most of the brief talks centered around the life of women and their position in the respective countries.

Taking part on the program last night were Mrs. J. B. Spilman, who represented Europe; Miss Jackie Phlempin of France, exchange student at East Carolina College; Miss Eva Larson of Denmark; and Richard David of Lebanon.

On display at the meeting last night were various items of countries which fitted into the theme of international week which is being observed by Business and Professional Women's Clubs throughout the nation.

Federation President Mrs. Duncan built her talk around the BPWC's theme of the year, "The Ramparts We Build." She first reviewed the organization of the International Federation which she said was organized in Switzerland in 1930.

Christian Church Announcements At the Christian Church Sunday morning the choir, under the direction of Mrs. H. L. Carter, will sing as a special number "In the Garden" by Miles and the pastor will preach on the theme "The Word of the Master."

Chi Rho Fellowship will have a rare privilege when Mrs. W. L. Whedbee brings the group a very informative program at 8:00 p.m. There will be worship and recreation.

Christian Youth Fellowship meets on Sunday at 6:00 p.m. with Hannah Proctor and Leytha Brewer leading study and worship.

The World Day of Prayer will be observed in our community at the Methodist Church on Friday, February 20, at 10:30 a.m. and the speaker of the hour will be Dr. W. L. Wolverton, minister of the Episcopal Church.

The Disciples of Christ throughout the world will observe the week February 15-22 as the "Week of Compassion," during which time our prayers and thoughts will be with the suffering peoples of the earth and in a more tangible way offerings will be made to help them to sustain the bare necessities of life. The membership of the Eighth Street Christian Church is urged to share in this worthy project and to present their offerings on Sunday morning, Feb. 15. The Christian Church will observe March as "Loyalty Month" and every member will be encouraged to do the following things:

1. attend every Sunday morning service
2. be constant in prayer
3. present their tithes and offerings
4. share in the program of daily Bible reading

Men's Club Of First Presbyterian Church Elect Officers For New Year

Church Sponsors Religious Film

The Men's club of the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville last night elected officers for the new year at its monthly meeting.

F. Badger Johnson was elected president of the group; Tige Gardner, vice president; Stanley Daughtridge, secretary; and I. H. Morris, publicity chairman.

Joe E. Brewer, Rocky Mount businessman, was the principal speaker at the meeting and discussed the "hidden secrecy of stewardship and tithing."

Guests of the club at the meeting last night were Jack Cobb of Washington, E. A. Easley of Rocky Mount, Rev. Herbert Dail, Jack Edwards Jr., William Hoffman and Frank Strawn.

Instead of its regular March meeting, the club will meet with members of the church for the election of new elders and new deacons.

The Sacred sound film "Venture Into Faith" which carries the message of vital faith for this troubled generation will be shown at Austin Auditorium Saturday February 14 at seven-thirty in the evening.

This film was produced by Rev. Oral Roberts, famous evangelist with the world's largest Gospel tent seating 12,000, and sets forth the simple Gospel of faith in God as the means of solving all the problems that touch the lives of men.

The film is being sponsored locally by the First Pentecostal Holiness Church of Greenville of which Rev. H. E. Johnson is pastor and the church and pastor take great pleasure in inviting the public to view this picture and witness "the most unusual performance you have ever seen." Aside from the main cast of actors and actresses, the film shows Rev. Roberts in action preaching, praying for sinners and ministering to the sick and afflicted as well as an audience of 12,000 people sitting in reverence and worship.

There will be no admission charge and there will be no drive for money but only a nominal expense offering will be received.

New Insurance For Weddings

DAYTON, O. (UP)—The local branch of the Ohio Farm Bureau Insurance Co., has announced a new "wedding insurance" policy to cover all wedding expenses.

The policy may be taken out when the daughter is two years old and covers all expenses from bridal gown to rice.

If, perchance, daughter turns out to be a spinster, she can draw the money as an endowment after 20 years.

Polio Drive Now Near '49 Record

With more money coming in, Greenville and Pitt County are only $46.00 short of the record year, 1949, when $11,050.60 was collected in the March of Dimes.

As of today, the total collection stands at $11,004.56.

Three reports came in today from Bethel, the total amount from that community standing at $1,031.18. With the help of the mothers, school students in the community collected $931.18 of which $794.58 came from white schools and $136.60 came from the Negro schools.

A home demonstration club in Bethel contributed $100 in the March of Dimes campaign. J. H. Rose, chairman of the Pitt County Infants Paralysis Foundation, said the amount from Bethel was the largest ever.

In yesterday's report of the progress of the polio fund campaign, the West Greenville School, which contributed $65.23, was erroneously omitted.

Offer Inducement To Intellectuals

CENTRAL FRONT, Korea (UP)—Chinese propagandists near Papa-San Mountain tried an appeal to intellectual soldiers Thursday night.

The Communists' "no-man's-land network" usually offers good food, fine living conditions and, sometimes, women to Allied soldiers who will surrender.

Thursday night the Reds advertised that their POW camp also contained "a fine lending library."

It is estimated that it will cost another 10 year's work and 15 million dollars to complete the restoration of colonial Williamsburg, Va.

TRUST AND EFFORT TOGETHER

An old adventure story tells of a man lost in a barren area. Suffering from thirst, he prayed for rain and crept into a small cave to sleep. During the night it rained, but the unfortunate wanderer had had several pans and dishes in his pack, he had forgotten to put them out, and so he lost the very blessing he sought.

Some people go through life in the same foolish way. They desire something, they hope earnestly for it, they even pray sincerely for it—but they never do anything about it. They want the water to drink, but they lack both the energy, and the faith to put out vessels to catch it when it rains.

Such are most of those people who scorn the power of prayer. They point out scoffingly that their own prayers have never been answered, when in reality they do not know whether the prayers would have been answered or not—they had not the faith to take the necessary action to make an answer possible.

Praying is like writing a check on God. Merely to write it is not enough. You must walk down to the bank with it, endorse it, and hand it in to the teller, confident that you will receive the money.

If the check was drawn for the right purpose, you will.

It Seemed To Be Mighty Well Planned

Russia's diplomatic break with Israel looks like a well planned maneuver which awaited only the opportune moment to be executed.

That opportune moment—possibly arranged by the Kremlin itself—came with the bombing of the Soviet legation in Tel Aviv.

It took the Russian government only a matter of hours to reject the apology offered by the Israeli government in connection with the incident. And in its rejection of the apology, the Kremlin already had its propaganda line well formed. The Israeli government—according to the Kremlin—was the cause of the whole thing. Police had connived with criminals who exploded the bomb; the Israeli press, radio and government leaders had been inciting hate among the people of Israel toward the Soviets.

The whole story sounded mighty pat. It couldn't have been done better if it was rehearsed—or unrehearsed—as the case may be.

Russia's sudden act in breaking relations with Israel may be another step in the Kremlin's anti-semitic campaign which has been growing in intensity throughout the communist world in recent months. At the same time the severing of diplomatic relations with Israel may be a strategic maneuver on the part of Russia in an attempt to cement the relations between the Soviet and Iran and other Arab nations of the middle east.

Russia has been longing for Iranian oil, and would like to be squarely in the middle of the fabulously wealthy pool in Iran. There have been uneasy relations between the new state of Israel and the Arabic nations since Israel gained its independence four years ago. This may be Russia's bid to put the Arab nations of the Middle East into the Red Bear's hip pocket.

In any act of this kind by the Soviet, it is necessary to look beyond the immediate incident to find the real meaning and the true objective of the Kremlin. It is a safe bet Russia did not break relations with Israel unless she was reasonable sure she would gain much more elsewhere than she would lose by rejecting the Israeli nation.

Need Is For More Credit Care; Not Garnishee Law

Proposed garnishee legislation now pending before the Senate of the General Assembly certainly appears to be legislation the state can well do without.

There is no question about the bill's having a great deal of support from merchant and businessmen throughout the state. That was evident at the hearing on the bill held in Raleigh this week. At the same time, it is evident there is quite a lot of opposition to the bill.

Proponents of the measure are better organized and probably hold more power than opponents of the measure. Even so, it is unlikely in view of the opposition—that the necessary constitutional amendment will be pushed through both houses in order for such legislation to become law. The opposition makes it doubtful the measure could get the necessary three-fifths favorable vote in both houses; and extremely doubtful that the people of North Carolina would endorse the measure in a referendum.

In this era of extensive individual credit rating files; and of the far reaching coverage of organizations which keep credit reports available on a moment's notice, we can see little need for a garnishee law in North Carolina.

It is true that individual businesses in North Carolina extend credit to bad credit risks every day. It is true that North Carolina firms suffer losses of thousands of dollars each year because debts incurred by individuals unable or unwilling to pay what they owe.

Yet we feel the responsibility for collecting these debts rests with the individual firm which extended credit rather than with the employer of the individual who made the debt.

Under the proposed garnishee law creditors would be allowed to attach up to 10 per cent of the wages of debtors. It would be up to the debtor's employer to collect the money. To be sure, businesses in North Carolina already have an over-abundance of bookkeeping to do for the state and federal governments without taking on bookkeeping for the credit accounts of other businesses.

If firms doing credit business (most of them are these days) are careful in checking the credit rating of those to whom they extend credit, they usually find their losses are at a minimum. But if a firm is lax about checking references before extending credit, that firm should not expect the state, or another business, to do the collection job which would not have been necessary if it had been reasonably sure of payment before extending credit.

WASHINGTON—Any large-scale operation against Chinese Communists on the mainland by Chiang Kai-shek is discounted by American military experts after a full study of his potentialities for open warfare. He cannot mount an attack across the 100 miles of the Formosa Straits without complete U. S. support.

A mere listing of the men, materiel and equipment he would require for an effective invasion shows how unprepared he is to take any advantage of President Eisenhower's change of policy in this area. Since the Russians and Chinese intelligence are aware of these facts, it is revealing no security secrets to summarize his military wants.

CHIANG'S REQUIREMENTS—Chiang must have many more divisions well-trained in one of the most difficult of all military operations—amphibious warfare and landing on flat, open coasts against an expert and well-entrenched enemy. For such a movement he will require escort vessels, landing craft, hundreds of heavy bombers and fighter planes.

Once launched, an attack on the mainland would have to be sustained, or the psychological reaction throughout China and Asia would be disastrous. And it is in this field that the Generalissimo is extremely weak.

He has no solid motor or rail transport system, no vast store of weapons, clothing and food, no logistical or communication system of heavy industry.

U. S. CANT SPARE NEEDED EQUIPMENT—The Nationalist Army can obtain these things only from the United States. But the fact is that, although the defense production machine is now getting into high gear, we cannot spare him all this equipment.

To divert it to him would create even greater shortages for our troops in Korea, for the French in Indo-China, for the training of the draft army at home and for our West European allies.

Finally, the minimum estimate for providing him with an invasion force is $2 billion. That would dent all economy plans at Washington.

Another unknown quantity in the situation is the morale of Chiang's 400,000 troops and the attitude of the Chinese people in the area of attack. Even our experts in psychological warfare and our intelligence men concede that they lack any definite information on this vital question.

It is presumed but not certain that the soldiers who withdrew from Formosa with the Generalissimo are loyal or communitarian in the best sense of the word. During the civil war on the mainland, when they found themselves outnumbered or facing better armed units, the desertions increased disastrously after the Truman Administration cut off supplies on the basis of General George C. Marshall's report.

BOLSTERED SUPPORT EFFECTIVE—Pentagon strategists say that Chiang's army would give a good account of itself, if it were reinforced, supported and bolstered by the presence of American or United Nations units in the field with them. Asians have always fought well and bravely under such circumstances, as World War II demonstrated. Brigaded with the British, the Indians behaved heroically in the African campaign.

But the White House apparently has no plan for placing troops on Formosa, save for the 700-man training staff now there. That would mean formal and declared war with Red China, and a violation of Eisenhower's pledge not to expand the conflict.

Moreover, the United States could expect neither material nor moral support from its U. N. Allies. With the exception of Turkey, they have rejected the recent Dulles-Stassen request to increase their forces in Korea.

PART-TIME LEGISLATORS—Members of the House frequently resent newspaper writers' references to the "T-W-T Club." This is the press gallery's description of the M. C. who give only part-time service on Capitol Hill, arriving Tuesday and leaving for home Thursday afternoon. The New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey legislators are the principal offenders.

But a tabulation of roll calls at the last session shows that there is a "T-W-T Club." The average Monday attendance was about 300 and 340 on Friday. On the other three days, it was 380. Top attendance was 426 on a Wednesday, lowest was 233 on a Monday. There were only 23 roll calls on Mondays, only four on Saturday.

NARROWSBURG, N. Y., NEWS-TIMES: "The press has sometimes been criticized for squawking too much about their own freedom. Hey—The Teeter's Tottering!

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Our daughter, at 27 months, has already started asking "why?" to thousands of comments we make. There are times when the only way to end this series is to give an answer way over her head, whereupon she says understandingly "Oh."

"This problem," I told wife Rachel last night, "is just birming. From now on we will be called on more and more frequently to give simple explanations for everyday functions that might not be so easy to explain. For example, not too long from now we might be called on to explain how a voice travels along a telephone wire."

W. R. immediately referred me to a simple explanation written by a man named Gilbert Paust: "The phone rings and suddenly you're talking with someone across town or across the ocean.

Of course your voice doesn't do the traveling—that's done by electric currents, moving along the wire at nearly the speed of light (a mere 669,000,000 m.p.h.). The telephone instrument simply transforms your voice into electric currents and back again into sound.

Here's how it's done: The sound vibrations of your voice move a light metal disc (1) which presses on a container of carbon granules; (2) through which current passes. The varying pressure of the disc varies the current, which is carried by wire (3) through the exchange (4) to the receiver (5). There the current, which has been amplified, operates an electromagnet which vibrates another metal diaphragm, reproducing your voice."

"Now I'll admit," Rachel said, "that explanation is far too complicated for a small child, but it makes the operation simple enough to an adult so that he can make it even simpler to his children."

"Maybe so," I said, "and I think you have hit on something. It's a good idea for a book that should sell like hot cakes. If you could write a book, not for explaining difficult operations to children, but for explaining them to parents in such a way that they could in turn explain them to the children, you would really have something. Just think how many parents shuff off explanations because they are not capable of making them."

There's an idea for a money-maker. But who has enough knowledge of technical operations to simplify them? Many people understand them, but have no ability to simplify them to others. There's a project for you. And I thank you.

HOME RULE—The half dozen or so bills already passed under suspension of rules appearing in members of county boards of education, plus the numerous bills either fixing salaries of county and municipal officials or authorizing local governing boards to set them, have given further emphasis to the perennial problem of "home rule." Objecting to some of the "home rule" bills has been based on constitutional grounds for purpose of publicity; but the principal objection is political. It is that in some counties Republican commissioners and Republican voters would have more authority than the Democratic politicians in the General Assembly are willing for them to have.

EDUCATION—This attitude is especially marked in dealing with county boards of education. The omnibus boards of education bill is not expected until near the end of the session, but past experience justified prediction that when it comes out of committee there will not be a Republican member on most county boards, even though the county had voted more than two to one Republican in recent elections.

ELECTION—All Republicans and many Democrats would like to see the method of naming county boards of education changed so that they might be elected by the people in the same way county commissioners and other officials are chosen. The politically minded Democrats who control the Legislature are not likely to approve any such scheme. On the other hand, there is growing sentiment among the people that the system whereby the General Assembly names the county boards of education is not conducive to good schools. And the anomalous situation of having candidates for the county boards file in primaries and be voted upon by the people, but the results of the primary having no binding effect upon the Legislature admitted does not make much sense. So there has come a new suggestion, designed as a sort of compromise, for appointment of county boards by the State Board of Education, rather than by the General Assembly.

UNIFORMITY—Advocates of appointment by the State Board of members of county boards of education go a bit further and suggest also State board authority for naming members of city administrative unit boards. Presently there are 172 administrative school units in North Carolina—100 county and 72 so-called "city" units. Fact is the 72 city units have almost as many enrolled pupils and more nearly the same number of teachers as the 100 county units. County boards of education have some, but not much, authority over the city units within the borders of their counties. Under present laws the General Assembly names the county boards, but the city unit boards are chosen in a variety of ways—some by municipal councils, some by popular election and in a few instances the city boards are self-perpetuating, surviving members having authority to fill vacancies. Result is that about half the school children of the state attend schools under control of boards named by the General Assembly while the other half attend schools under control of boards named in numerous other ways. Uniformity would be achieved by having all the local boards elected by the people or appointed by the State Board.

APPOINTMENT—In view of the fact that in many of the counties more than half the voting population is in areas covered by city administrative units, appointment of all local boards by the State Board of Education would achieve a greater degree of uniformity and be more in keeping with democratic principles say the sponsor of the idea.

PRECEDENT—Precedent for State Board appointment of local boards is found in the election set-up, where the State Board of Elections has final authority for naming members of county board. There is the further suggestion that if the General Assembly insists upon reserving the right to name county boards of education it should also assume responsibility for naming city administrative unit boards in order to preserve uniformity in control of all the public schools of the State.

OVERLAPPING—The continual conflict between overlapping State and local functions and responsibilities was further pointed up by the discussion in the House Roads Committee on the Satterfield bill to require the highway commission to maintain school drives and parking areas. In the old days when school property and roads were both controlled at county level—and not much maintenance was done either—there was no problem of divided authority. Now with all roads under State control and with joint obligation for school houses and grounds, operating and maintenance costs, there are frequent conflicts. Another phase of the same problem is treated in the bill sponsored by half a dozen Representatives to require the highway commission to do street work in towns of less than 1500 people by agreement with town authorities. Main point is that in both these

Business Today

Women want color in their kitchens. They choose tiling in vibrant, contrasting shades, they select sink tops in all tints of the rainbow, they buy curtains and shelf trim in brilliant hues. Yet a preponderantly large percentage of refrigerators, ranges, freezers, washers, dryers and other major appliances still comes in "hospital white."

Some manufacturers offer a choice of white or cream. One manufacturer of refrigerators cautiously offered small, interchangeable colored panels as sort of grace notes on white boxes and, emboldened, is now offering panels in which fabric of any color can be inserted under plastic; matching kitchen curtains is suggested. A manufacturer of stoves is offering a choice of colored handles and another range maker has been daring enough to bring out a line in a dozen different colors.

But most manufacturers have a gingerly approach to the matter of color. At the recent meeting of the Industrial Designers Institute in Philadelphia, many executives appeared quite willing to let their competitors do the pioneering as far as color is concerned.

The manufacturers and their designers aren't just reactionary old fuddy-duddies. There are sound economic reasons why they aren't rushing to give women what they want.

Color preferences are difficult to determine on a long-range basis. Studies and sales records in the carpet industry show there is a constant shifting of preferences from season to season and year to year.

Suppose a manufacturer's survey indicates that 12 per cent of the women want blue washing machines, and 15 per cent want vermilion. If he schedules his production on that basis and it turns out that by the time the machines hit the market, 15 per cent will buy blue and only 12 per cent vermilion, he will lose 3 per cent of his potential sales and be stuck with another 3 per cent of his production. That's enough to put a company into the red.

The situation can be even worse at the wholesale or retail level. Color preferences can change faster locally than they can nationally; furthermore, there are distinct regional preferences. It is not improbable that a dealer who ordered stock on the basis of national or even state-wide surveys would find half his inventory in distress.

Makers have long produced autos in broad ranges of colors. But autos do not have to match anything else, such as kitchen tiling. And back in the 30's, when car production was out-running demand, some dealers found certain colors so hard to sell that they had to have them repainted at their own expense. The appliance industry remembers that.

Present taxes are stifling the amusement industry, George A. Hamid, association president, declared. This is denying youths opportunities for profitable summer employment. The tax, he added, bears heavily on children.

Very few amusement park operators want to charge youngsters more than a nickel or a dime for a ride," Mr. Hamid said. "But when a child pays a dime for a merry-go-round ride, he's got to pay an additional 2 cents to the ABOUT STRAWBERRIES.

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Ladies, do you feel doomed? Is the female of the human species on the way out?

This fascinating possibility of a womanless world is no meerschaum dream puffed up by a mere grumpy old male.

The average man today may have his grudges against the unfair sex. But his attitude toward women is pretty much that of a sportsman toward racehorses: he would like to improve the breed—not abolish it.

Are such efforts to achieve the better woman too late? A pioneer lady commentator apparently believes it is.

"Women, who have brought this fate on themselves, are on the way out, like other biological caprices of the past," wrote Inez Robb, noted war-of-the-sexes correspondent and long one of the feminist movement's leading stateswomen.

"We women are simply terrible . . . not worth a fraction of the time and reform efforts lavished upon us by the opposite sex."

Predicting the tension in the sexes would end in the complete elimination of the present female sex—at least as we know it today—Mrs. Robb gave this gloomy forecast:

"Like all species that have refused to adapt, we are on the way to oblivion. It is inevitable that man, creator of the atom bomb and the mechanical brain, will eventually invent a more satisfactory something to replace women."

Such a glum outlook sounds like heresy to the ordinary American male, who stubbornly clings to the theory that with proper care and training a good man can turn almost any modern woman into a human being. And a scientist I talked to said Mrs. Robb was putting the cart before the horse.

"Science will never develop a satisfactory substitute for women," he said flatly. "Where would you start? It works the other way around. It was by studying women that science got its ideas for the harrow, the phonograph, the atom bomb and the mechanical brain."

"But cross-breeding these inventions wouldn't create a desirable ersatz woman. You'd just have dynamic chaos with an electronic feminine accent."

Other male authorities con-test Mrs. Robb's theory that women are in danger of vanishing. "The sex does have its fossil forms, but I see no signs they are dying out," said one anthropologist, who preferred to remain anonymous.

"Actually women are flourishing more in this civilization than the bull weevil. There are more of them all the time, they are living longer, they control more money, and they are growing bigger and stronger. Haven't you noticed how much easier it is for them to push a man out of the way now than it was 10 years ago?"

And a husband I consulted said: "Wives are certainly getting more historical every year. But extinct? No. Most of them have not even caught their second wind."

But the most interesting summary of the whole matter, I felt, came from a white-haired old bachelor who said: "Son, the easiest way to kill a woman is with flattery. They can weather anything better than that. That is why men have to be careful not to appear too grateful to women for being the fine people they are. Women are afraid they will praise women to death."

Most women—along with Mrs. Robb—will probably agree their sex is in no present danger of becoming extinct from this cause. But it should cheer them to know the real reason why men sometimes fight so hard against showing how much they appreciate sharing a world brightened by so many lovely ladies.

They just don't want them all to die of praise.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—One of the best friends of the American housewife is the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), which works to insure the safety of the foods and medicines she gives to her family.

Deputy Commissioner George P. Larrick, who joined the agency as an inspector in 1923, told a group of local homemakers that the agency's job is to regulate a $5-billion-a-year industry in foods, drugs and cosmetics, upon which one-fourth of the total family income is spent annually.

"It is our task," he said, "to see to the enforcement of the federal act which insists foods must be produced under sanitary conditions, that they be free from filth or decomposition and that their labeling statements be truthful and informative."

"A great many years ago, when most foods were produced locally," he said, "housewives had a chance to know personally the sanitary conditions under which they were grown and prepared. Today they can no longer look for themselves. Thus the whole standard we seek to impose under the law is what will the housewife accept or reject?"

Fortunately, he said, manufacturers are honest and try to meet the law, but during the last fiscal year some 27 tons of food were seized during such working days. In any number of instances fines up to $10,000 were imposed for irregular practices.

One company's cereal products were found to contain ground-up insects and rodent hair from improper storage and unsanitary equipment. A firm ostensibly engaged in inspecting horse meat for dog food was caught removing the horse meat labels and replacing the meat with beef.

Each year, Larrick said, his men seize large quantities of dressed poultry found to be diseased, do not need to be, and with water to bring up the weight a quarter or half pound when frozen. Oysters often are weighed. His men are continually fighting the improper use of new chemicals used in bringing products closer to the serving process to satisfy housewives who want to spend less time in the kitchen.

Larrick said the FDA's most important enforcement procedure was taken away when the Supreme Court ruled in December that manufacturers could refuse to admit inspectors without incurring criminal liability. "We're hoping the 83rd Congress will restore the power of inspection," he said.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

EFFECT OF DE-CONTROL (Henderson Dispatch)

In removing controls from wage and salary payments and from prices of certain foods, the Eisenhower administration acted in line with what has been taken for granted that controls due to expire April 30 would be extended, and in recent weeks there had been increasing indications that the President would wipe most of them off the slate in advance of that date.

Overall effect of de-control will not be clearly evident for perhaps several weeks, possibly longer. Probably is that the national economy will not experience any great changes as a result. The whole structure has been extremely wobbly for a long time. There was no hesitancy in government circles to bypass the regulations where there was desire to do so. President Truman's action in the coal wage case last autumn was a case in point. And ceilings were raised where those in charge decided to permit that course. Result was that the system had degenerated more or less to a status of expediency—political or otherwise.

Controls have long been little more than a gesture. Their removal now should make little difference. Especially so, since in some instances market prices have been well under prevailing ceilings.

A free economy is due a fling at self-regulation. Consensus is that inflation, at which controls were aimed, has largely run its course, and that future thinking will be more properly directed at deflation. There are no certain signs of a serious recession, and most opinion is that no such thing waits immediately around the corner. But a government which steps in to halt inflation, even if it doesn't do it quickly, surely should have at hand the authority and the power to deal effectively with trends in the opposite direction.

N.C. Revenue Collector Lists County Itinerary

E. R. Carraway, deputy collector at the Greenville office of the N. C. Department of Revenue, this morning announced his proposed itinerary for the 1953 income and intangible tax filing period.

The collector reminded all citizens who have not yet filed their 1952 income tax returns that the deadline for filing State taxes is March 16, the same date as previously set for filing Federal returns.

State income tax returns have been distributed at strategic points in the various communities throughout the county, Carraway stated. They also may be obtained in the collector's office at the Pitt County courthouse, or in the office of the clerk of Superior Court.

Who Must File?
Those who must file, according to the collector, are: 1. any single person with an income of $1,000 or more; 2. any married man with an income of $2,000 or more; and 3. any married woman with a separate income of $1,000 or more from that of her husband.

"Taxpayers who have previously filed should use forms received which bear their names and addresses," Carraway declared. "However, failure to receive a form does not relieve a person of liability to file."

It is necessary under the law that remittances accompany the returns. Penalties automatically apply after March 16 to returns on which tax due has not been paid. "We will be glad to assist anyone who wants to come by the office in completing necessary forms," the collector asserted.

Collector's Itinerary
Dates and places where assistance will be rendered free of charge by collectors are: Monday, February 16, Greenville office; Tuesday, February 17, Greenville Carbon Plant; Wednesday, February 18, Greene County Courthouse at Snow Hill; Thursday, February 19, Ayden Post Office.

Friday, February 20, Grimesland Town Hall; Monday, February 23, Greenville office; Tuesday, February 24, Farmville City Hall; Wednesday, February 25, Greenville Mills; Thursday, February 26, East Carolina College in Greenville; Friday, February 27, Greenville office.

Every day during office hours collectors will be in the Greenville office exclusively from Monday, March 2, to Monday, March 16.

Atomic Weapons' Use In Korea Again Raised

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

Is the United States going to use the atom in Korea? The answer probably is that no one, not even President Eisenhower, knows for sure at this moment.

The question comes strongly to the fore now for two reasons. One is President Eisenhower's obvious intention to keep the Reds guessing about this country's next move in the hot and cold wars. The other is one of Gen. James A. Van Fleet's closing remarks as he gave up his 23-month-long command of the U. S. Eighth Army in Korea.

Before he left, the United Press put this question to him at Eighth Army headquarters in Seoul: "Would it be militarily feasible to use atomic weapons? Would it save lives in breaking the vast network of enemy tunnel defenses which so far have withstood massed U.N. artillery and air attacks?"

Van Fleet's reply was flat and firm. "The Department of the Army has announced the development of atomic weapons for tactical use in the field," he said. "Their use unquestionably would save friendly lives in the immediate situation on the battlefield." His last sentence is bound to have strong and favorable reaction at home.

This country's concept of war never has been to throw away lives. If atomic weapons can save them, then the reaction will be to go ahead, particularly since Van Fleet's statement clearly says they could be used in the "immediate situation on the battlefield" and would not involve civilians.

Of course, the next question involves one of the United States' most closely guarded military secrets. That is whether these atomic weapons which have been developed have reached the stage of actual production.

Some hint of the answer may come after the new atomic tests scheduled shortly in the Nevada desert.

We already have had troop tests with the atom bomb, and the new tests may involve troops with the atomic-firing cannon.

Military commanders from Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, or down are showing an increasing dislike for any offensive which would have for its objective merely the taking of more Korean real estate; or for any offensive which would give the Reds the advantage of shortened supply lines and put our forces under Red air attack. From now until peace comes, our objective remains the same as Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway once put it: "To kill more Communists."

Mystery Behind Death Of Doves

RALEIGH, N. C. (U.P.)—Some mystery element is involved in the death of almost 50 per cent of the mourning dove population in the southeastern United States each year, wildlife experts report.

Studies in a 10-state cooperative mourning dove project started in 1948 have revealed the total annual mortality of the dove amounts to about 70 per cent. The present rate of reproduction is not keeping pace with the staggering mortality figure, and wildlife experts fear that the dove may be headed for extinction.

Once it was believed that mortality due to hunters was nearly 50 per cent. But the study has proved that hunting accounts for only three to 20 per cent of the mortality, leaving 50 per cent unexplained.

Don Allison, a leader of the mourning dove study, said mortality causes such as disease, weather, old age and deprecations of other wild life do not offer a full explanation for the mortality percentage.

"When the nature of this great unknown mortality is uncovered, it may be possible through corrective measures to greatly increase the (dove) population and also the kill by hunters," Allison said. "At present hunting is the only mortality factor which can be controlled."

Soviet Command Backs Up East Germans' Threat

BERLIN (U.P.)—The Soviet command endorsed today the East German threat to cut off West Berlin if the West German government ratifies the European Army Treaty and the peace contract.

Die Tages Rundschau, official Soviet Control Commission newspaper, warned that the East German government will take "the toughest protective and security measures" if West Berlin is drawn into the "war pact regime" of West Germany.

The newspaper said West Berlin was in an "untenable and dangerous position." It also called for the "overthrow" of the West Berlin government.

Roads Need No New Financing

CHICAGO (U.P.)—The American Public Works Association believes that a vast highway construction program could be accomplished in most states with no additional financing.

The association said that an estimated $2,000,000,000 in state and federal funds already has been earmarked for highway purposes, along with another $2,000,000,000 being collected annually by the states in gasoline taxes.

Reserve Fund
For new construction and maintenance of existing highways, it is estimated that the states in 1952 spent $1,900,000,000 compared with $1,381,506,000 for construction and $592,195,000 for maintenance in 1951. Included in these figures is $400,000,000 contributed each year by the federal government.

With state expenditures for new highways and maintenance about equalling the money coming in from gas taxes, the association said the equivalent of virtually all federal aid funds could be added to reserves.

At the end of 1951 it was estimated that these reserves for new construction totaled $1,100,000,000. Federal government funds authorized but not appropriated for highway aid to the states were placed at $1,000,000,000.

Baseball's Highest Paid!

Ralph Kiner Inks Pact For $80,000

Ralph Kiner, the National League's seven-time home run king, was expected to come to terms with the Pittsburgh Pirates today after a conference at his California home with General Manager Branch Rickey.

RALPH KINER

Kiner, who has refused to accept a 25 per cent reduction from his $90,000-a-year contract of 1952, was believed ready to agree to a compromise figure of about $80,000. That figure still would make Kiner the highest paid player in baseball. Stan Musial's salary with the St. Louis Cardinals is estimated at $65,000.

Today's conference marked the first time that Rickey, one of the shrewdest bargainers in baseball, had ever dealt directly with Kiner on a contract. Rickey did not join the Pittsburgh organization until after Kiner had signed a two-year contract covering the 1951 and 1952 seasons.

Accompanying the conference, of course, was speculation as to whether Rickey was trying to sign Kiner for himself or somebody else.

The 71-year old master trader recently notified rival clubs that the 30-year old long-ball hitter and gate attraction could be obtained in a combination player and money transaction which might lead the eighth-place Pirates out of the wilderness.

The trade talks reached white heat a week ago when Rickey declared a trade for Kiner was "more likely than ever before" but no deal was closed. Rickey then turned his attention to signing Kiner amid reports that Rickey would find it easier to close a deal for Kiner once the big slugger came to terms.

In St. Louis, meanwhile, the Cardinals announced the signing of pitcher Floyd Boyer, who compiled a 6-6 won-and-lost record in 1952.

Boyer was the 37th Redbird to come to terms, leaving only five unsatisfied.

The Cleveland Indians announced the receipt of pitcher Steve Gromek's contract. Gromek beat the world champion New York Yankees three times last year but his overall record was only 7-7. He is 32 years old.

Pitchers Ralph Brickner, Ken Hokenb and Bill Werle returned their signed contracts to the Boston Red Sox.

Shrine Bowl Is Financial Hit

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — The annual Shrine East-West All-Star Football Game returned a net of $186,741 to the San Francisco Shrine's Crippled Children's Hospital, W. M. Cotman, managing director of the game announced today.

This was the biggest net profit ever reported on the holiday battle. Last year the previous record of $177,000 was set.

Phants In Non-Conference Tilt At Lynchburg Saturday

Phantoms Play Two Loop Games Here Next Week

Weathering a storm of sickness and misfortunes a small band of Greenville High Phantoms whipped through a short practice session yesterday afternoon in preparation for the inevitable at Lynchburg, Va. Saturday night.

Still on the air list are Smith, Worthington, Leon Hardee, and Guy Smith. Worthington will definitely miss Saturday night's contest and Smith and Hardee will see very limited action if any. Starting players Bobby Conway and Dixie Hubbard were cut from the squad for disciplinary infractions Wednesday by Coach Bo Farley.

Standouts Hal Edwards, Bobby Howell and Tommie Saied have been graduated to the varsity to take up the slack of missing team members. Edwards, a 6 ft. 2 in. freshman center has been very outstanding for the Jayvees all season in pointmaking and rebound work.

Howe, and Saied also have contributed heavily to the scoring department for Bill Kittrell's junior varsity. Howe has shown surprising adeptness at hitting from the backcourt.

Working out in starting positions yesterday were Edgar Moore and Sam Winchester at forwards, Bobby Siders and Jimmy Chatham at guards.

After Saturday night's game with the tall Virginians of E. C. Glass High in Lynchburg, the Phants plan to regroup forces for home games with Roanoke Rapids and Edenton next week.

The Lynchburg team defeated Greenville, 66-140 in an earlier season game here.

Bucs Scrimmage, Plan New Attack For Elon Game

The East Carolina College basketball Pirates went through another full-scale practice session yesterday as they began putting the cap on their preparations for the Elon Christians. Elon will come to town tomorrow night for an important North State Conference contest.

The Bucs went through another of their full-court scrimmage sessions yesterday. They reviewed their own attack plans and got a look at the scouting reports brought back from Elon games.

The game tomorrow night took on an added significance after Elon's surprisingly easy victory over High Point Wednesday. The Christians have been in second place in the loop standings nearly all season but a 24 point win over a team supposedly as strong as High Point was nothing short of a big surprise and moved the Christians into a strong position as a contender for East Carolina's first place position in the North State Conference standings.

The Bucs are in the driver's seat with an 11-2 record. Elon is in second spot with a 9-3 mark. East Carolina has three conference games remaining while Elon has four.

One surprising thing about the more recent Elon successes is that they were accomplished without the help of All-State forward Ben Kendall. Kendall has been on the suspended list for the past two weeks and most of the Elon scoring burden has fallen on the shoulders of a pair of young players.

Center Dee Atkinson, a sophomore, has been the big gun. He usually manages to lead in scoring and rebounding and is a top man in the defensive department. Guard Billy Hawkins is the second half of the one-two combination. He's a little playmaker who went to Elon from Wingate where he starred on Danny Miller's great junior college teams.

The Pirates, who have leaked Elon once this year, expect to start tomorrow with the same combination that started in the first ECC-Elon contest. Sonny Russell and Charlie Huffman will be at the forwards, Bobby Hodges at center, and Cecil Heath and J. C. Thomas at the guards.

A preliminary game between the Pirates and Jacksonville High School will start at 6:30. The varsity game will start at 8 p.m.

Bevo Francis Is Maintaining 50.5 Game Average

NEW YORK (UP) — Fabulous Clarence (Bevo) Francis of Rio Grande continued to lead all small-college basketball scorers today with an average of 50.5 points per game, but Walt Walowac of Marshall (W. Va.) was averaging 29.5 against tougher opposition.

In releasing the latest statistics, the NCAA Service Bureau referred to Francis as the "nominal" national leader, but said that Walowac is leading "among the contenders who play their games in strict senior-college competition."

Francis, operating to a large extent against junior colleges as he paced unbeaten Rio Grande to 29 triumphs this year (through Feb. 7), has racked up 1,464 points. And Rio Grande leads in total team offense with 2,898 points and in field goal percentage with 50.5 per cent.

Walowac has tallied 501 points in 17 games, but even so he is being hard-pressed for the first spot behind Francis.

Bob Kowa of Millikin, Ill., is right on his heels with 27.8, followed by Bud McIndoe of Allegheny, Pa., with 26.2, and Pete Kinkead of Geneva, Pa., and Manry Glasser of Kalamazoo, each with 26.1.

Six-foot, five-inch Jim Armstrong of Rochester leads in field goal shooting average, sinking 58.7 per cent of his shots, while Dick Parfitt of Central Michigan is tops in free throw shooting with an 87.7 per cent average. Tom Hart of Middlebury, Vt., leads in rebounds with 22.5 per game to 22.2 for Carson Lovett of Franklin and Marshall.

Congress To Take Action In Behalf Of Minor Leagues

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Edwin C. Johnson warned baseball's big leagues today Congress won't stand for them "destroying" minor leagues by nationwide telecasts.

The Colorado Democrat, who is president of the Western League, indicated a proposed game-of-the-week program by the DuMont TV network would be a bean-ball pitch to "bush league box offices."

"It costs a lot of money to put on a baseball game, and baseball charges less than any other form of entertainment. But the minors can't meet free competition," he told newsmen.

Johnson supported all baseball, including the major leagues, when it was under attack in 1951 by the House Monopoly Investigating Subcommittee headed by Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.).

"I told the Celler Committee baseball was not a monopoly, it was all one big, happy family," Johnson said.

"But now, if the majors are going to inject themselves into every minor league ball park in the country, I'll testify we made a mistake."

"I told the baseball writers at a dinner in New York (Feb. 1) I would testify before Congress that the majors were a cruel and heartless monopoly motivated by avarice and greed," Johnson recalled.

"That's no idle threat. If they go out and televise major league baseball into every minor league club, that's exactly what I'll do."

Johnson would not discuss what legislation he might introduce if the majors proceed with their TV plans, but said chances are good Congress would pass it.

"I don't believe Congress wants to see baseball destroyed," he said.

"Regulations should come from the industry itself. Congress is the last resort — and not a very attractive resort, either."

"But if baseball won't protect itself, we'll have to go to Congress for relief."

J. Doris Knox was outstanding on defense work for the winners Langley paced Sugg High defenders.

James Daniels, Odell Daniels and Lonnie Harper were the scoring leaders in Robinson's second victory of the afternoon. The Tigers started off fast and coasted to a 32-8 triumph over Suggs game warriors.

Reigel Is Duke Star! Duke Wins Eighth Consecutive Game

The race for basketball honors in the Southern Conference was about as tight as it can get today as Duke's rampaging Blue Devils trained their upset sights on league-leading North Carolina State.

The sizzling Blue Devils defeated Wake Forest 101 to 99 in a sensational overtime victory last night. The third, North Carolina State, comes tomorrow night.

Duke now has won eight straight — most of them upset. The Devils looked for a long while last night like they had met their match in sharp-shooting Dickie Henric and the Demon Deacons. At one point in the second period Wake Forest held a 15 point lead and Henric was hitting on all cylinders.

But in a back and forth scoring duel between Henric and Duke's Bill Reigel, the Blue Devils turned on the heat after a 14 point halftime deficit of 38-23. They closed the gap steadily in the last half. With a minute and 41 seconds to go it was Wake Forest 92 and Duke 90.

Reigel calmly dropped in his 37th and 38th points of the night on free throws to tie it up and send the game into overtime.

It was just as close in the overtime. But curly-haired, stocky guard Rudy D'Emilio was the answer.

The score deadlocked at 00-all, D'Emilio stood with the ball on his hip until the clock showed just three seconds left, then he drove in for a lay-up which gave Duke a 101-99 win.

Richmond, edging closer in its fight for a tournament berth, had to come from behind to whip lively Virginia Tech 77-71. At the end of the third period Tech was in front by four points but Spider guard Ed Harrison pushed chmond over the top with 18 points.

Maryland's slow-motion Terps stayed with the league leaders, trouncing VMI 67-41. West Virginia dropped a non-conference decision to Pitt 65-67.

Tonight has North Carolina at South Carolina, Clemson at Davidson and Washington and Lee at George Washington.

NEW YORK (UP)—Joe DiMaggio appeared headed today toward being another Babe Ruth, off the field as well as on.

Ruth, in his era, was the siege gun of the mighty New York Yankees. So, too, was DiMaggio.

And now Joltin' Joe apparently is headed down the baseball path to nowhere in the aimless footsteps of the Babe.

The Babe, maybe you'll remember, hoped that after his playing days were over he would be given the managerial reins of the Yankees. They wanted him to start in the minor leagues and prove his right to the big league post. To the Babe it was the top or nothing, and that's what he got.

Maybe he wouldn't have made a good manager, because you couldn't expect a man to control other players when he couldn't control his own gargantuan appetites. But maybe he would have, too.

But underneath that booming laugh and the bluster, the Babe was bitter. I remember one spring when the Yankees were leaving for spring training, I hunted up the Babe in a bowling alley.

"Sure I'd like to be going with them," he said. "But it just wasn't to be, I guess. I do wish I'd have had my chance, though."

Now, as the Yankees get ready to go off on another spring training trip, DiMaggio is out on the coast. What does he say?

"Sure, I'm interested in a manager's job but my ulcers aren't." It's the old pattern all over again. DiMag wouldn't be interested in the minors and the majors strangely leave him to his solitude.

They did even last year, with his career field just ended. DiMaggio had a "color" television show, before and after Yankee games. But they didn't put him on the "live" television or radio shows to describe the contests.

There was no attempt made to utilize his baseball lore or his intimate knowledge of the individual players.

The question rises as to why other men jump from the playing ranks to the manager's bench. Men, say, like Lou Boudreau, Eddie Stanky and Mart Marion.

You come eventually, to the answer that too much fame is a bad thing. Boudreau, Stanky and Marion were great players, but they weren't a Ruth- or a DiMaggio. They rose to the top as team men with a little extra something in their makeup.

Ruth, and DiMag, were titans

JOE DIMAGGIO ... Another Babe Ruth?

in any company. As such, they were "loners," men who needed no one else to be a standout. DiMaggio, for example, always gave the Yankees a lift, but it was a physical inspiration. Off the field he was an admitted touchable.

Now he has dropped his "color" shows before and after the game. And even when the Yankees needed a radio play-by-play man, Joe was not among those considered. He still has a television sports show for children. But, eventually, he and baseball seem headed for a completely different path.

Just like the Babe.

LaStarza, Layne Meet Tonight For June Title Shot

Promoter Jim Norris plans to match the winner of tonight's television 10-rounder with the Chicago victor of the April 10 return title bout between champion Rocky Marciano and Jersey Joe Walcott.

LaStarza is college-educated but degree-less. Nevertheless he was favored at 7-1 1/2 to 5 today to lick the ex-farm bo, from Utah's sugar-beet fields, who holds decisions over former champions Walcott and Ezzard Charles.

Layne has lost five of his 47 bouts and been held to two draws.

Scripture—Matthew 21:1-22:14

Jesus rode in triumph into Jerusalem, seated on a donkey, with the multitudes preceding and following Him waving palm branches and singing hosannas.

In Jerusalem Jesus went into the temple and threw out the money changers, saying that they were making the holy place a den of thieves.

The blind and the lame came to Jesus in the temple and He healed them. The children cried hosannas, which displeased the Pharisees.

Jesus told the chief priests and Pharisees that because they did nothing, God's kingdom should be taken from them.

Famed Mustang Is Out Of Fight

SEoul, Korea (UP)—The U. S. Air Force retired its last propeller-driven F-51 Mustang from the Korean war today.
Known as the "workhorse" of the Air Force, the shark-like Mustang raised havoc in World War II and performed yeoman service in close support missions in Korea.
The Republic of Korea Air Force still uses the F-51.

Wolves did not become extinct in England until the latter part of the 15th Century.

Male Fashions Target Of Women, For Selves

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—For years women have been quietly stealing men's fashions.
They've made dresses from foulard prints that used to be saved for men's neckties, copied his gray flannel suits, borrowed his vests, shortened the sleeves of his sports shirt, taken over the ascot, dressed up the old string tie—and insisted on slacks as well tailored as man's.
Man, in short, has little left to call his own except his padded shoulders, which women have discarded for the moment in favor of feminine roundness.
This spring and summer there will be more man-tailored shirts designed for women by men's manufacturers.
"We just about decided the men in America were shrinking steadily by the way the small shirt sizes were selling," explained Murray Lesser, head of a sports shirt company. "Then we discovered that women were buying them for themselves, so we gave up and started a separate line for women."
Men don't get all the credit for starting fashions that attract women. Men's sports shirts got their start in this country about 25 years ago, according to Lesser, but with a big assist from women. "Women pick out 87 per cent of the sports shirts sold for men in this country," he said. "They have more courage about buying something unusual."
A few changes are made in the new shirts tailored for women. Some for summer are sleeveless. Collars are smaller and often rounded. But the fabric, the buttons and the tailoring are identical.
Long sleeves with French cuffs on some of the shirts gave girls a chance to raid a man's cuff link box. And the more formal tailored shirts are being shown both with pastel bow ties and printed silk string ties.
"We make men's neckties and women's scarves from the same fabrics and prints," said Brooke Caldwell, "though we don't sell them in match; sets. The printed string neckties are the newest thing we have that women borrowed from men."
Women ought to get credit for helping save one male fashion from near oblivion. The disappearing men's vest has come back in colorful prints and unusual fabrics for both men and women.
It is believed that the first use of the zero in arithmetic notation was in India some time before the 9th Century.

WHOSE IS THE KINGDOM?

JESUS TEACHES THAT IT BELONGS TO THOSE WHO DO GOD'S WILL

Scripture—Matthew 21:1-22:14

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
ON THIS DAY all Christendom is celebrating Palm Sunday, the day Jesus rode in triumph into Jerusalem on an ass, with multitudes preceding and following Him waving palm branches and shouting Hosannas.

Within one short week He was to be beaten, tried, convicted and crucified, with possibly these same multitudes, led by His enemies, the chief priests and Pharisees, crying "crucify Him."
The occurrences in preparation for Jesus' entrance into Jerusalem reported by St. Matthew, were all according to ancient prophecy, although the disciples did not know it.

Jesus told two of them to go into the village of Bethphage and bring Him an ass and colt. If any man disputed their right to do so, they were to say, "The Lord hath need of them, and straightway he will send them."

All was done as He commanded, and, mounted on the humble steed, the Master rode in triumph, acknowledged as the king and fruit would ever grow on that tree, and it withered away. This parable was doubtless a stern rebuke to the Jewish people who rejected Him.

When the disciples marveled at this miracle, Jesus told them to have faith and they could do as He had done, in fact, "And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive."

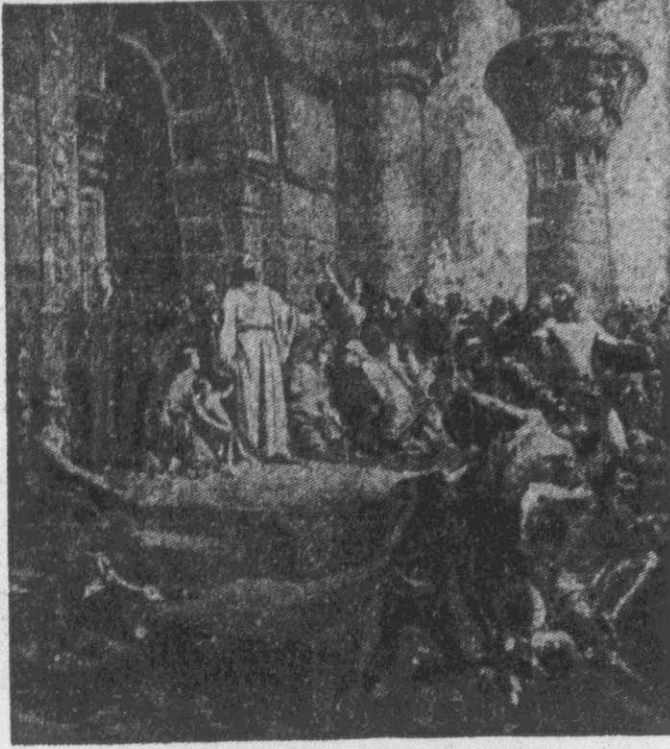

Coming again to the temple, the elders of the church demanded that He tell them by what authority He did the wonderful things that they had witnessed. Jesus answered by asking them if John's baptism was from heaven or of men.

They dared not answer that because if they said of men, they knew that the people believed John was a prophet. If they said it was of God, He would ask why they had not believed in him.

"Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things," said Jesus.

Jesus then told a parable of a man who called to his son to Savior of mankind. The acclaim of the people was not rebuked by Jesus. It was, as Dr. Wilbur M. Smith says, "an echo on earth of the verdict of heaven concerning Christ."

It must have been a powerful rebuke to those who had long been plotting to silence the voice of this Prophet and Savior, even as they renewed their efforts and succeeded at last in putting an end—so they thought—to the voice that told them such unwelcome and damaging truths. How wrong they were!

In Jerusalem Jesus went to the temple, and finding in the outer court money changers and cheaters, He cast them all out, saying, "It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves."

After He had cleansed the temple court of these money changers, the lame and the blind came to Him, and He healed them all. "And when the chief priests and scribes saw the wonderful things that He did, and the children crying in the temple and saying Hosannas to the son of David, they were sore displeased."

They asked Jesus if He heard what the children were saying, and He said "Yea, have ye never read, Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?"

Next morning Jesus was hungry, and seeing a fig tree, He found nothing but leaves on it where the fruit should have been. Jesus decreed that thereafter no

Chapter Thirteen
Sam Maiben made a tall, lean shape standing there in front of the cave with a grin creasing his darkly stubbled cheeks.

Remembering how frequently he had been mistaken for this man, Rimbaud thought: So that's how I look. He was not pleased by the knowledge.

"I've brought you something to eat," Della announced, going to Maiben at once.
"Good girl," Sam praised, but his chief attention was for Rimbaud. He came out to the trail and offered his hand and said, "I met Charley Bonn over on Big Mesa last night. He told me you had agreed to guard my place. I'm sure much obliged for your help."

Rimbaud shook hands, taking a leisurely look at the man who had won Eve Odegarde's affections. "Just a case of paying off a debt," he said, and reckoned Maiben's age at twenty-four or five.
Della asked, "Did you have any narrow escapes, Sam?"
"Half a dozen," Maiben said, and grimaced. "They almost pocketed me in the roughs south of Canteen Creek, and again when I tried to sneak into Swede Severeide's place. Booger Bill stayed at my heels half the night."

Maiben hadn't slept and showed it in the strained bloodshot condition of his eyes and in the nervous way he kept glancing up the trail. He said, "I dislike to shoot a man, but I'll put a bullet in that Booger

Bill if he pesters me tonight."
"Serve him right," Della agreed. Observing the way she looked at Maiben, Rimbaud was mildly amused. Della couldn't keep her eyes off him, or her hands either, for now she brushed dust from his shirt sleeve. Her eyes held the look of a squaw waiting to serve her brave.

"I won't need to worry about my place, with you there," Maiben said. "I'm sure pleased to have you siding me."
Rimbaud shrugged and said frankly, "I had no choice, considering. Then Della asked putingly, "Aren't you glad to see me too, Sam?"
"Sure," Maiben said. "Sure I am. Especially if you brought some thing to eat. I'm hungrier than six Sonora steers."

Della turned quickly to the saddlebags on her horse, bragging, "I've got beef sandwiches, ground coffee, a canteen of water, and a coffee pot. Also three airrights and some sack tobacco."
"Buono!" Maiben exclaimed. He grinned up at Rimbaud and said, "Light down, Jim. We'll have us a picnic."
Rimbaud glanced at Della, who was busily unloading the saddlebags. She didn't speak, and so he said, "Reckon I'd better ease on over to your place and take a look around before dark."

Presently, when Maiben had made certain suggestions, Rimbaud rode up the trail. It seemed significant that it was Sam, not Della, who had invited him to remain. She hadn't wanted a third person at the picnic; she'd shown that by her silence, and by the spry look in her eyes. But Maiben had seemed more interested in the food than in the girl who fetched it.

"Good country," Rimbaud mused with a cowman's eye for graze. Then he added cynically, "Too good."
For that was the unchanging history of catteland. Good graze had invariably spawned trouble ever since the Israelites ran their herds on the hills east of Jerusalem. There had been greedy men then, wanting to 'pread out and willing to fight for that privilege.

Times had changed, but human nature hadn't.
"Dog eat dog," Rimbaud muttered and focused his sun-squinted eyes to a search for Maiben's place. He glimpsed a windmill above the brush to the northwest, and presently, riding down a deep-grooved trail, caught a metallic glint a trifle to the south. It seemed to come from a low ridge, disappearing and returning, as if a piece of moving metal were reflecting sunlight.

Rimbaud gave the ridge a concentrated attention for fully five minutes, detecting no sign of movement save the occasional flash. There seemed to be only one logical explanation: A hobbled horse with a silver-mounted bit would make a flash as it browsed on brush or fought flies.

So Stromberg has sent me a visitor, Rimbaud thought, and put his mind to devising a proper method of entertaining the Roman Four trespasser. This, his initial act, as host, might be an important occasion; future relations would probably depend on how he handled the first caller at Boxed M.
Rimbaud grimed, believing he had hit upon a fit reception. When he reached the lower slopes of the divide he turned south and rode upwards of an hour, taking a roundabout course that eventually brought him to a mesquite-fringed wash a mile south of Maiben's yard. He couldn't see the ridge now, but reckoned it was due north of him, and that whoever was watching Sam's cabin wouldn't be expecting trouble from this direction.

He was riding forward when he glimpsed a black horse that stood tied to a mesquite tree part way up the slope. And now, observing the long-shanked Spanish bit that glistened in the sunlight, Rimbaud smiled. Except for that silver-inlaid bit he might have ridden into ambush. Survival could depend on trivial things.

Although a patient scrutiny of the ridge disclosed no sign of the black's rider, Rimbaud felt confident that he could find him. The sneaking son would be fortified up behind brush or boulders on top, where he could pick off a living target in the yard. That was the way these deals were invariably rigged. Dismounting, Rimbaud tied the roan to a clump of catclaw, took off his spurs, and hung them on the saddlehorn. Then gun in hand, he moved cautiously up the ridge. When he came close to the black horse Rimbaud spoke quietly to the animal, which had a Roman Four brand on its left hip. Maneuvering around the horse, he searched for boot tracks and found them. A big man, judging by the size of his boots, and Rimbaud thought at once: Booger Bill.

Fifteen Entries To Date In Beauty Event

BETHEL—Fifteen contestants for the title of "Harvest Festival Queen" have been entered to take part in Bethel's Harvest Festival which will be held in October. Early in January, the steering committee of the festival sent invitations to junior classes in the high schools of Edgecombe, Martin, and Pitt Counties inviting them to nominate their candidates to compete for the title of "Harvest Festival Queen." In response to the invitation, a large percent of the schools have named and submitted their nominees.
Bethel High school named Janelle Whitley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.L. Whitley of Bethel, to serve as Host Queen with Becky Keel and Janie Edmondson as maids of honor. As Host Queen, Miss Whitley will not compete.
The nominees, their escorts, and chaperons will be entertained as the guests of the Harvest Festival at a buffet supper served in the Bethel Rotary Building. Following the supper, the nominees will be presented to the Host Queen and audience.
The contestants and the schools they represent are: Phyllis Jackson, Grifton; Nancy Galloway, Grimesland; Guita Cannon, Farm-

Leprosy Victims Find Fresh Hope In TB Vaccines

HONOLULU (U.P.)—Use of anti-tuberculosis vaccines to combat dreaded Hansen's disease (leprosy) has been revealed here, with heartening results which give new hope to sufferers and doctors alike.
Hawaii is the site of a Hansen's disease settlement, located at Kalaupapa on the little island of Molokai.

The microorganism that causes Hansen's disease belongs to the same family as the microorganism that causes tuberculosis.
Hope has been raised that shots with vaccine made from tuberculosis bacteria may be used to immunize children of Hansen's disease sufferers from their parents' malady. The doctors know that the most common spread of the leprosy ailment is within the family.

Children Spared
In Hawaii, children of Hansen's disease sufferers are separated from their parents immediately after birth, under supervision of the territorial health department. None of the children has since developed the disease.

Hansen's disease bacteria will not grow in a test tube, but the related tuberculosis bacteria will. Using a method developed by French scientists, the local researchers have sensitized sheep cells to tuberculosis products. The sensitized red cells, mixed with tuberculin, were then re-mixed with blood from Hansen's disease patients. Finally, blood from tuberculosis patients was added.
The studies showed blood from the different types of patients showed the same kind of reaction.

Old Church Ruin Is Uncovered

ROME (AP)—A tiny, old Christian church, nestled in a grotto where Etruscans buried their dead before the rise of Rome, was uncovered recently in the Maremma section of Tuscany.

Experts say the Christians congregated in this old Etruscan burial place to worship when the mighty Caesars ruled the world. It contains not only Romanesque arches, but also frescoes and lettering of the later Byzantine period when the Christian church was firmly established in the Roman empire.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK UP—Stocks moved irregularly higher in moderately active post-holiday trading early today.

With few exceptions, price changes were very small. Texas Gulf Sulphur, however, fell 3 1/2 points to 96 1/2 on top of Wednesday's 3 3/4 point loss following directors' disappointing dividend action.

Also in the oils, Richfield Oil climbed 1 1/2 points to 62. Sinclair, Socony-Vacuum and Texas Company eased.

Douglas featured in the air-crafts with a rise of 3/4 point to 66 1/2, and Du Pont stood out in the chemicals with a 1/2 gain to 96 1/2.

Rail changes were small and mostly on the upside. Erie rose 1/4 to 21. New York Central 1/4 to 23 3/4. Southern Pacific 1/4 to 43 1/2. Southern Railway 3/4 to 7 1/2.

U. S. Steel gained 3/4 to 40 3/4 in its group. Bethlehem held at 53. Chrysler rose 1/4 to 90 1/4 and General Motors 1/4 to 65 3/4 in their group.

Federal Tobacco Crop Insurance Open To April 25

Pitt County tobacco producers have until April 25 to insure their 1953 tobacco crop under the Federal Crop Insurance program, the County PMA office said today.

Already hundreds of Pitt farmers have signed up to insure their crop against loss or damage.

Early estimates have been made, predicting the number of persons to be insured under the program this year will be at least one-third above last year's mark.

Records at the County PMA office show that in 1952 there were a total of 1760 farmers operating under the Federal Crop Insurance program in the county.

From that number there were received 174 claims for loss or damage to the 1952 crop. Payment on all claims thus far stands at $65,915.94. Of that amount, the largest single sum paid out was for $3,708.11. In comparison, the smallest check given was for only $13.77.

J.T. Meredith, Secretary of the local PMA pointed out to farmers that the rate of coverage and premiums for 1953 will remain as they were last year.

Each acre of tobacco may be insured against ruin in the field or loss in the curing barn at a cost of $8.20, which covers the crop with a total loss value of $336.00 per acre.

The PMA official pointed out that in these days when the tobacco farmers are forced to put out a lot of money for both labor and materials, there is more need than ever before for the farmer to be protected against any unforeseen loss.

Furthermore, the official went on to say, that possibly more than any other business man of today the farmer needs insurance to protect his investment against loss or damage.

Pitt's toll from both the elements and tobacco diseases was cited as an example which in 1952 cost local tobacco producers thousands of dollars.

Interested farmers are asked to come by the PMA office located in the old Pitt General Hospital Building, or to contact any one of eleven agents over the county who will sign up the farmers for insurance under the 1953 program.

Congratulates AFROTIC Cadets

Cadets Francis Madigan of Portsmouth, Va., and Everett Whitley of Kenly receive from Lt. Colonel Roger G. Fuller, professor of air science and tactics at East Carolina College, certificates designating them Distinguished AFROTIC Students. The presentation took place Thursday noon in the College Theatre.

Futile Heroism

WEST JEFFERSON, N. C. (AP)—The burned ruins of a home today bore testimony to the heroism of a father killed in a mistaken attempt to save his son's life.

Wiley A. Vannoy, 63, ran back into the burning house searching for a son he thought was trapped inside. As Vannoy entered the house, his 14-year-old son, safe in the yard outside, screamed for him to come out. Vannoy died when the house collapsed.

Mrs. Vannoy, four sons, and Mrs. Vannoy's sister, Mrs. William Dillard, escaped.

Two Cadets Are Awarded Honor

Cadet Lt. Col. Francis H. Madigan of Portsmouth, Virginia, and Cadet Major Everett H. Whitley of Kenly, N.C., senior students at East Carolina College, were presented Thursday, February 12, with certificates designating them as Distinguished AFROTIC Students. To be eligible for this award an AFROTIC cadet must have an academic standing among the upper third of the AFROTIC students in his class and among the upper third of all students in the college pursuing the same academic major; must possess high moral character and definite aptitude for service in the Air Force; and must have distinguished himself by demonstrated leadership.

The presentation to the cadet officers was made at noon in the College Theatre in the presence of the entire AFROTIC Cadet Wing. Lt. Col. Roger G. Fuller, professor of air science and tactics at East Carolina, was the presenting official. Cadet Madigan is the Cadet Wing O&T officer, and Cadet Whitley is commanding officer of one of the cadet squadrons.

Seeks New Stay In Appeals Court

NEW YORK UP— Counsel for convicted atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg planned to ask the U. S. Court of Appeals today for a stay of execution.

Emanuel H. Bloch, attorney for the couple, said the stay would be sought to permit him to appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court for a new trial.

William O'Dwyer To Enter Firm

MEXICO CITY UP— Former Ambassador William O'Dwyer said today he is working out "final details" for entering a Mexico City law firm as a counselor.

O'Dwyer, whose administration as mayor of New York has been the target of recent investigations, plans to serve as a counselor for the law firm of Luis Gonzalez Escobar. He can practice law in this manner without giving up his American citizenship.

Fathers, Sons Banquet Is Held

AYDEN—Nearly 200 persons attended the annual "father and son" banquet for Boy Scouts and Explorers at Ayden High School cafeteria last night.

Ercell Webb of Greenville, chairman of Pitt District of East Carolina Council of Boy Scouts of America, was master of ceremonies.

Rev. D. E. Earnhardt, Methodist minister of Washington, N. C., was the speaker. He used as his subject, "The Beatitudes in Connection with Fathers and Sons." He spoke informally, made numerous practical applications of the spirit of the "Beatitudes," and interspersed his talk with some humorous anecdotes.

Rev. Gilbert Davis, Jr., Christian minister of Ayden, said the invocation. Wilbur Ormond welcomed the guests. Sherman Parks of Greenville had charge of the banquet. Lester Dollar of Greenville, Pitt Scout executive, had part on the program.

Troop 34 of Ayden received the attendance award. Erskine Duff of Greenville, member of Pitt District Boy Scouts Committee, presented it.

GAINING A GATOR FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—Mrs. C. D. Lines was hanging out her wash when a stranger walked up and asked if she had lost an alligator. Mrs. Lines hadn't, but the stranger told her he had found one and tied it to the bumper of her car parked in the driveway. Then he walked off.

SPORTS SHOW ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP)—This world-famous resort will hold its first annual sports and travel show on the Steel Pier next summer. George A. Hamid Sr., managing director of the pier, said the show will feature casting, fishing, archery, judo, log-rolling and other events.

POLICE MATTER FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—Policeman C. K. Hawley was sitting in his patrol car writing out a ticket for a driver in a nine-car smashup when car No. 11 rammed into his vehicle, knocking it into the others. Hawley was the only one hurt in the 11-car smashup.

Permit Granted For Radio Station

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday granted construction permits for a new AM radio station in Greenville along with one at High Point.

The new station in Greenville will be operated by the Interstate Broadcasting Company during daytime hours on 1,290 kilocycles and with 1,000 watts.

The application was submitted during March of last year by the Interstate Broadcasting Company and filed by John Green, staff announcer at WGTC during the last war.

The application was submitted during March of last year by the Interstate Broadcasting Company and filed by John Green, staff announcer at WGTC during the last war.

It is understood from reliable sources that the grant made by the FCC was made on a contingent engineering basis subject to approval of a site. The application states the company plans to lease land and buildings for the station.

At present, Green is a used car dealer in Rock Hill, South Carolina, and also commercial manager of the radio station in Rock Hill.

ADLAI IS POPULAR WASHINGTON (UP)—Democratic national headquarters announced today that Adlai E. Stevenson's speech Saturday at the Jefferson-Jackson dinner in New York has attracted a record-breaking number of reservations.

NO RESPECT FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—Someone stole the purse of Mrs. R. C. Slay Jr. from a bench near her as she waited in municipal court to testify in a traffic case.

UNIFORMITY—Another bothersome problem was emphasized by discussion of the Satterfield bill. That is the developed and growing attitude of highway division commissioners to set up little independent kingdoms within the state empire. Point was repeatedly made that in some divisions the highway folks have given adequate attention to school driveways, while in others they have refused to allow highway folks to do any work on them.

What Satterfield was striving for, and the same objective is embodied in another bill by Rep. Joe Warren of Caswell, is a uniform policy. They want the school driveways in their areas taken care of, but would not resent nearly so much failure to have them maintained if schooling in other divisions were not getting the benefit of highway commission aid. Several members of the committee felt statutory requirement is necessary—as was evidenced by the emphatic, "No," voiced by Rep. Wilbert Forbes of Camden and endorsed by others when someone suggested that the good precedent set by a few commissioners might induce the others to follow the same course.
