Umstead Calls For 3 Bond Issues Totaling $87 Millions

RALEIGH (UP) — Gov. William B. Umstead called today for three big bond issues totaling $87,000,000 for "absolutely necessary" construction of schools, mental institutions and other state buildings.

In his long-delayed budget message, read to a joint session of General Assembly by House Reading Clerk Carl Goerch Umstead praised the work of the Advisory Budget Commission's recommended $603,000,000 budget.

But he pointed out that it was "not the work of this administration (and) it is my duty to advise you of changes which I deem necessary."

In the short, concise message Umstead asked for a $50,000,000 bond issue for state grants to schools, $22,000,000 for mental institutions and $15,000,000 for institutions of higher learning and other state institutions.

Provision must be made for high-

Teachers' salaries, he said, although he did not list any specific figure. The message called only for "some additional pay for public school teachers in addition to the 10 per cent increase" now in the maintenance appropriation bill.

"Under the provisions of our State Constitution and the decisions of the courts, we must provide equal school facilities for the children of North Carolina without discrimination," he said.

"Our school population is rapidly increasing, and in order to protect and preserve our public school system we must be providing the necessary facilities."

Umstead said $50,000,000 would not be sufficient to provide all the necessary school facilities, but "if properly used, will no doubt result in the expenditure of large additional sums by the counties and towns of our state to provide school facilities."

The governor termed the bond issue for mental institutions "absolutely necessary, both from a humanitarian standpoint and from the standpoint of saving the state tremendous amounts of money in the years to come."

"I have said before," he told the legislature, "that adequate funds are not available to provide training schools for feeble-minded white and Negro children, nor do we have money available to construct necessary facilities at the various mental institutions."

The Advisory Budget Commission recommended $7,700,000 for permanent improvements at mental institutions.

Umstead said this amount was included in the recommended bond issue, which if passed, would leave the smaller sum available for other purposes.

The governor said he was revising his statements in his inaugural address which said that lack of available funds would prohibit any large-scale building program at colleges and other institutions.

"After careful investigation," he said, "I have found that there are some pressing and essential needs which should be provided for by the state."

cost of these needs will approximate $15,000,000.

The bond issues for schools and mental institutions would be submitted to the voters for approval. The smaller issue for other state institutions is up to the General Assembly.

Debt payments on the entire $87,000,000 would require $4,600,000 a year.

Umstead urged the legislature to provide for all three bond issues even if they "cannot be financed with funds estimated to be available for the next biennium." If that were the case, he suggested some sort of revision in the state sales tax to pay the bond debt.

Aside from the bond issues, the governor called for more money for several other services although he did not list any specific amount.

These included: Higher teachers' pay; funds to employ school attendance officers; funds for driver training in high schools; more money for vocational education; funds for payment of at least $50 per month to 20-year state employees under the retirement system; more money for operation of the State Ports Authority.

Funds for an engineering, survey to develop inland ports and waterways; funds for agricultural research and "an effective forestry program;" funds for additional revenue agents and personnel for the State Department of Revenue; and additional money to fight stream pollution.

"We are under legal compulsion to operate under a balanced budget," Umstead said. "Such general fund surplus now anticipated to be available on June 30, 1953, has been accounted for in the recommendations of the Advisory Budget Commission and incorporated in the appropriations bills."

"Therefore, appropriations for the next biennium must be within the limits of available revenue. In my opinion, under present conditions, the estimates of anticipated revenue under the present tax structure for the next biennium are realistic and as high as we can safely go."

Begin Another Attempt To Solve Korea Deadlock UN Assembly Meets Today

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) — The United Nations General Assembly opens the second half of its seventh annual session today and begins another attempt to end the long deadlock in the Korean negotiations.

There was an air of pessimism among delegates to the 26-nation assembly who had spent weeks in bitter debate on the Korean question last fall with no concrete progress toward a solution.

A new team of United States delegates took its place in the assembly but no great changes in U.S. policy toward the Korean issue were expected.

President Lester B. Pearson of Canada was scheduled to call the assembly to order shortly after 3 p.m. e.s.t. He was expected to report officially at that time that Communist China and North Korea have turned down the compromise peace resolution adopted before the assembly began its nine-week vacation last Dec. 22.

The opening session was expected to be a brief one, unless Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky chooses to bring up immediately the question of Formosa. Some observers today to place on its agenda the re-open action by President Eisenhower which opens the way for Nationalist forces to attack the Communist-held Chinese mainland.

Vishinsky and delegates from Soviet satellite nations were non-communicative when they arrived in New York Monday aboard the liner Queen Mary.

"I have no news for you," Vishinsky told reporters, and then added cryptically: "No news—best news."

Members of the United States delegation headed by Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. were under instructions not to talk about U.N. affairs—on or off the record.

V.K. Krishna Menon and Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, delegates from India, arrived by plane Monday and would give no hint whether the Asian bloc of nations, which led the way last fall in efforts to mediate the truce stalemate, would offer a new plan.

The Korean question will get its first renewed attention in the assembly's Political and Security Committee, which still has before it a number of proposed resolutions for breaking the deadlock in the truce talks at Panmunjom.

Cominform Said Called Into Top Secret Meeting

Yugoslav Authorities Say Session Being Held In Bucharest

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UP) — Russia has called together in Bucharest, Romania, the Communist leaders of her Eastern satellites for a super-secret conference that may prove to be the first full-scale Cominform session since November, 1949, authoritative sources said today.

There was no indication here of the names of those attending or of subjects under discussion.

But it was believed that representatives of the Italian and French Communist parties also are attending the conference which opened Sunday.

If this proves true, reliable sources here said it probably means a Cominform session is under way.

Sources here believed that the prospects for conclusion of a Yugoslav-Greek-Turkish mutual defense pact, scheduled to be signed shortly in Ankara, may have prompted the Soviet-sponsored meeting.

The satellites are believed to be seriously concerned by Yugoslavia's rapprochement with Turkey and Greece.

Their anxiety has been increased by the fact that Yugoslavia already has begun a propaganda campaign aimed at Communist-run Bulgaria and Albania, promising that the three pact signatories are willing to admit any other Balkan country on the same footing.

Yugoslav leaders believe their propaganda already has had considerable effect. But they admit they do not expect the two satellite countries to break away from Russia in the near future.

Interior Secretary Outlines Position To Congress Asks Title To Tideland For States

By William M. BATES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay today asked Congress to give coastal states title to submerged lands out to the historical boundaries.

But McKay, giving details for the first time of the Eisenhower administration's viewpoint in the long controversy over the offshore lands, said the federal government should keep exclusive control over the areas seaward from the historical boundaries to the continental shelf.

He advised the Senate Interior Committee that he favors dealing with the entire problem in one piece of legislation.

Historical boundaries of most states extend seaward three miles from the low tide mark.

In the case of Texas and western Florida, however, the boundaries encompass an area 101 miles seaward into the Gulf of Mexico.

The continental shelf rises at varying distances seaward. In some cases the outer belt between state boundary and the shelf is more than 100 miles. This is the area McKay said should be kept by the government.

He said it should be administered by the Interior Department, with revenue from development of its resources held for "the nation as a whole."

McKay said: "I believe that the interest of the federal government should be asserted and advanced by the Congress in all of the continental shelf which lies outside the line marking the historical boundaries of the states."

Questioned by Sen. James E. Murray (D-Mo.) about the offshore lands, McKay said his recommendations do not constitute a "turning over" of rights to the states.

"I consider it a restoring," he said, "I don't believe we would be giving the states anything; I believe we are reasserting their rights."

President Eisenhower, in last fall's political campaign, declared himself in favor of state ownership of the so-called tidelands.

McKay's testimony was the first elaboration by an administration spokesman to spell out details on how Congress should proceed to keep the promise.

"I do believe that the national interests would be best served by restoring to the various states the coastal off-shore lands to the limit of the line marked by the historical boundaries of 'a' of the respective states," McKay said.

This would give each state full rights to determine how to develop and administer whatever resources might be found underwater between shoreline and underwater boundary.

Opponents of state ownership have claimed "greedy" oil interests are trying to grab underwater petroleum deposits whose worth has been estimated up to $100,000,000,000.

Sen. Spessard L. Holland (D-Fla.) is sponsor of a bill to give the states ownership to their historic boundaries. Sen. Price Daniel (D-Tex.) would extend the legislation to cover territory to the continental shelf. Daniel has proposed joint federal-state management of the outer belt, with the states getting 77½ percent of any oil revenue from it.

McKay said, however, "problems of international sovereignty" would be involved.

Six Western European Nations Consider Plan Tariff Union Adoption Seen

ROME (AP) — Holland's plan for an eventual tariff union appeared to meet general agreement at a meeting of the foreign ministers of six Western European nations here today.

One phase of the lighter economic, political and military union for which the United States is pressing, the plan was discussed during most of a two-hour opening session.

"Of course we're only at the beginning," an Italian Foreign Ministry spokesman told newsmen, "but the plan seems to be favorably received."

Parallel programs for further economic union and political federation also were discussed.

The more bitterly disputed issues of a single uniform West European army had been taken up by the foreign ministers. These are expected to be discussed tomorrow.

The conference chamber doors in Rome's Villa Aldobrandini were closed in mid-morning, soon after the foreign policy chiefs and their aides from France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands took their places for the two days of talk.

A priority item was a list of amendments France wants to make in the proposed European army plan — amendments which Konrad Adenauer, West German Chancellor and foreign minister, has said he will fight to the last ditch.

The Dutch proposal for a tariff union would create a common market among the six powers within about five years. They already are pledged to a common coal and steel market by the Schuman Plan, which recently went into operation.

The dispute over the French-posed changes in the European Defense EDC Treaty centered on France's demand that she be allowed to withdraw troops from the planned single-uniform, two million-man West European army in case her overseas possessions are threatened.

Adenauer fears this would let France shift her troops at will, leaving the main burden of European defense to Germany.

The other four nations are afraid the dispute will put EDC on the rocks before it even starts to work. Italy's Premier and foreign minister, Alcide de Gasperi, reportedly was trying to strike a compromise.

De Gasperi met privately last night with French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, and was closeted just before today's session with Adenauer.

Pitt Democrats 'To Go Over Top'

Local Democratic officials predicted this morning that Pitt County will go over the top for this year's Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner "as it always had done in the past."

Pitt's quota for the 1953 dinner, which is to be held next Saturday night at the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh, has been set at $500.

County Chairman John G. Clark of Greenville has received 50 tickets to sell at $50 each.

Gilbert Peele, treasurer of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, explained today the series of dinners is held for two purposes: 1. to get Democrats from all over the State together for exchanging ideas; and 2. to raise funds to finance Democratic activities.

"I am sure that as the opposition party the Democrats will not oppose legislation merely to obstruct," Peele stated. "But the party will certainly try to put brakes on moves which would turn the government over to 'Big Business' without regard for the mass of the people."

Featured speaker at the 1953 Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in North Carolina will be Richard B. Russell, junior U.S. Senator from Georgia who is now in his 21st year as a senator in the Congress.

State Senator John D. Larkins, chairman of arrangements for the dinner, has urged that all county chairmen should send in their contributions for the fund-raising dinner as soon as possible. "Already," he stated, "the demand for extra reservations is coming in from a number of counties."

Approximately 650 North Carolina Democrats are expected to assemble in Raleigh next weekend for the festivities.

Smash Out Of Red Trap In No-Man's Land Raiding Party Breaks Trap

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — An Allied tank-supported raiding party in a four-hour battle today smashed out of a Communist trap in no-man's land and taking a heavy toll of Reds.

Heavy clouds blanketed most of North Korea hampering air attacks throughout last night and today.

However, U. N. fighter-bombers attacked a Red supply area at Mururi, southwest of Wonsan, and flew in close support of infantrymen along the line.

The 5th Air Force announced that F-94 night fighter planes damaged a Communist YAK-9 warplane Jan. 30 and a MIG-15 Jan. 31. The F-94 had previously destroyed one LA-9 and damaged another.

On the ground along the battlefront increased Communist armor was noted today and Allied big guns had to beat back six Red probing attacks. More than 37 Reds were killed or wounded in the top actions.

At least 100 Reds were killed or wounded when the Allied raiding party broke out of the Red trap near the true village of Panmunjom.

The Allied raiding party was pinned down in no-man's land by Red long range artillery and heavy machine-gun fire. A company of about 160 Reds moved out and surrounded them.

As the Reds moved in with burp guns and hand grenades, the U. N. unit formed into a defense perimeter. The Reds tried seven times to break through but each time had to fall back.

One Allied tank was disabled during the fight and another was halted by grenade fire as it attempted to break through the Reds to bring back ammunition.

The second was later towed back to its base. The first was retrieved hours later after the Reds lifted an artillery barrage around the Reds lifted an artillery barrage around the armor-clad to prevent its recovery.

Allied guns kept pounding the Reds, who in each attack lost more and more men. Finally, shortly before 1 a.m. (11 a.m. EST Monday), the tanks and foot soldiers broke through the weakened circle of Communists and made it back to their own lines.

Sixty Reds were believed killed and 40 wounded in the battle.

State Dept. Information Service Has New Chief; Temple U. Head Is Named

By WARREN DUFFEE
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — The White House today announced the selection of Dr. Robert L. Johnson, president of Temple University, to head the State Department's foreign information service which includes the Voice of America.

Johnson succeeded Dr. Wilson S. Compton, whose resignation was announced last week in the midst of an investigation of the Voice program by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said Johnson's appointment in no way would "cut across" current congressional investigation of the Voice of America.

Johnson conferred yesterday with Mr. Eisenhower and returned to the White House today for consultation with C. D. Jackson, special assistant to the president and White House specialist on psychological warfare.

Hagerty said Johnson took the post at the request of the President and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles who asked Johnson "to head and to study the entire operation" of the information service including the VOA.

Johnson said he would do "anything in his power which the President and the secretary felt might be of assistance to them and the administration," according to Hagerty.

Earlier today McCarthy said his subcommittee would gladly look into the merits of the Voice's sea-going radio station, the Vagabond.

Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.) asked for the inquiry to help his Appropriations Committee decide whether the government should shell out $3,714,000 for a third floating transmitter.

Naguib Asserts British Must Go Dies In Seclusion

CAIRO, Egypt (UP) — A top aide of Premier Ger. Mohammed Naguib warned yesterday Britain must evacuate its troops from the Suez Canal zone or "fight to the death."

Lt. Col. Gamel Abdel Nasser told a huge cheering throng at Shihin El Kom, some 45 miles north of Cairo:

"We are closely watching each country's attitude toward our cause of freedom. Whoever supports our sacred rights will have our warm handshake; whoever denies them will have nothing from us but war in every field."

(In London, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden indicated Britain will not evacuate the Suez Canal zone without an agreement on Middle East defense.

"No negotiations have yet taken place concerning the Suez," Eden told questioners in the House of Commons. "As has been previously stated, however, it is our policy to arrive at a general settlement of the whole question of defense by negotiations with the Egyptian Government.")

Von Rundstedt Dies In Seclusion

HANNOVER, Germany (UP) — Former Field Marshal Gerd Von Rundstedt, the man who directed Hitler's last-gasp "Battle of the Bulge" in an attempt to break the back of the Allied invasion of Europe, died last night.

His death was announced today by members of his family.

The ailing, 78-year-old Prussian militarist had been living in seclusion here since 1949 when the British government ruled he was too ill to face trial as a war criminal. Von Rundstedt was Hitler's western front commander when the Allies opened their second front invasion of Europe, and served in that capacity from 1944 until early in 1945.

He was classified as a "major Nazi offender" by U.S. British and was scheduled to have faced a war crimes trial.

Ailing when captured in 1945, his steadily declining health led to his release from a military hospital in May, 1949 and the subsequent British decision that he should not stand trial.

One of his last public appearances was made Oct. 9, 1952, when he attended the funeral of his wife, Louise.

LONDON, Ont. (UP) — The "Red Dean" of Canterbury, Rev. Dr. Hewlett Johnson, was heckled out of a speech here last night.

His audience booed, burst balloons and rang cowbells until he sat down.

The Anglican churchman had a microphone but he was drowned out by the din raised by a capacity crowd of 600, most of them students from the University of Ontario, that jammed the Masonic Temple.

He tried for 15 minutes to speak but finally gave way to the noise.

Eisenhower Flying To Augusta For Golfing Weekend Thursday

WASHINGTON (UP) — The White House announced today that President Eisenhower will fly to Augusta, Ga., Thursday afternoon for a weekend of golf.

Because he will be leaving the city Thursday, the President will hold his second weekly news conference here tomorrow at 12:15 p.m.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty said the chief executive would remain at the Augusta National Golf Club through Sunday, flying back to Washington late last day.

Rearranging a weekly schedule, the President met today with the National Security Council which usually sits at the White House on Wednesday.

Mr. Eisenhower last visited Augusta, his favorite golfing spot, in 1951 just after his election and before his trip to Korea. Before becoming President, Mr. Eisenhower, when not on foreign assignment, visited the famous golf club each spring after the annual Masters Golf Tournament. The tournament is set for April 9-12 this year.

Hagerty declined to say whether the President would make another trip to Augusta this spring.

The chief executive, accompanied by Hagerty and his appointment secretary, Thomas E. Stephens, will fly to Augusta aboard the White House Constellation, the newly-named Columbine, taking off some time Thursday afternoon.

Hagerty said he did not know whether the President would be accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower, who was with him at Augusta last fall.

Reporters and photographers will make the trip in a chartered plane, but Hagerty warned them not to expect much news in Augusta. He said the President is going there to devote the fullest possible attention to golf on Friday and Saturday.

Hagerty said in announcing tomorrow's news conference that in future weeks the regular day will be Thursday, the same day former President Truman chose for his news conferences.

In the rearranged schedule for this week the cabinet meeting, usually held on Fridays, was moved up to tomorrow.

While at Augusta, the chief executive will live in the small cottage of Atlanta's famous golfer, Robert T. (Bobby) Jones. The cottage overlooks the 18th green of one of the world's most respected courses.

Mr. Eisenhower has been a member of the exclusive club since shortly after World War II when he was encouraged to join by two old friends, Clifford Roberts, retired New York banker, and William E. Robinson, executive vice president of the New York Herald Tribune.

Both Robinson and Roberts probably will be in Augusta, and the President was said to be looking forward to playing with them and other old friends, including Ed Dudley, the club professional.

Barrow, chaplain of the Eastern Star Chapter, gave a short history of the Order, explaining why and how the Eastern Star came into existence, for what the Order stands, and pointed out instances of beneficent acts performed by the chapter, locally nationally and internationally. Mrs. Barrow stated that the Worthy Grand Matron had as her theme for the year, "Living in the Light," and the open Bible as the emblem, the aim, "To Scatter Sunshine Along Life's Way," and for the prayer, "Divine Guidance."

An hour of fun and fellowship followed, during which time refreshments of assorted sandwiches, deviled eggs, olives, pickles, potato chips, home made cakes with iced drinks or hot coffee served buffet style from a table covered with a lace cloth, centered with an arrangement of red camellias and lighted by white tapers in crystal holders. Approximately fifty were in attendance.

Committees serving for the occasion were: Refreshments, Mrs. E. P. Blair, Mrs. L. P. Taylor, Mrs. J. H. McWhorter, Mrs. J. E. Laughinghouse, Mrs. H. D. McWhorter, Mrs. J. E. Robinson; Decorations, Mrs. J. E. Hellen and Mrs. W. W. Butler.

LEGAL LOOPHOLE
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UP)—George Henry Jensen of Rio Linda, Calif., arrested for driving his automobile along a railroad track while intoxicated, escaped a drunk-driving conviction when police discovered a railroad right-of-way doesn't come under the legal definition of a public road or highway. Jensen was fined $50 when he pleaded guilty to being drunk in an auto.

Two-story dwelling, which was situated in the city's heavily-populated north end district.

Scene Agog Pretty Prints Set Fashion

All the fashion world is in a whirl over prints, among the most important fashion news for Spring and Summer 1933. The new ones are pretty and personal and they give a practical accent to the smart woman's wardrobe.

Prints are pretty, because color and design on wonderfully supple silk or rayon fabrics combine to give softness and grace to everything from sportswear to evening clothes. Patterns range from geometrics and Renaissance-like designs, or flowers of every shape and size, to "texture" and fur effects, or conversation prints. And colors are divided between light and dark grounds, deep tints on the occasion. A good general rule might be: light for the country, dark for town, and beige, the news-making neutral of the season, for any and all stops on the social calendar.

Prints Are Personal
Prints are very personal too, for carefully chosen designs can give a made-to-order look to a woman's wardrobe. Whether trim and tailored, with neat geometrics, tweed-like patterns, closely knit abstracts, or fragile and delicate, with all-over flowers, the new effects in lightly streaked patterns, there are types to spell out every personality.

And perhaps most important of all, prints are practical, serving as they do a multitude of uses. In the costume theme, the well-dressed woman's wardrobe basic, are the all-print dress and jacket, the solid cardigan over a print dress (or vice versa), the suit with matching print blouse and jacket lining. The dress that went dancing the night before might well turn up at the bridge table the next day, bare shoulders covered with a little bolero. The print blouse, too, is a match with solid-hued suits, and the cardigan can top any simple dress with ease.

Good for Travel
And the woman who loves casual clothes with a brilliant dash of color, will find neat little geometric and paisley-printed blouses to wear with sweaters and skirts, or the classic spectator dress for tailored sport wear.

Prints are good traveling companions too, says the Silk and Rayon Print Institute, as wrinkles and spots do not tend to show up easily. And, after a day's outing, they show up fresh and well-groomed looking for an unexpected evening date.

Wesley Philathea Class Meets

The Wesley Philathea Class of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church held its regular monthly meeting Monday, February 23, at the home of Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley.

Mrs. Ernest L. Willard gave the devotional, using as her theme, "Brotherhood." The scripture was taken from Luke 18:9-14 and James 1:27. Mrs. Willard read Carl Sandburg's new poem, "Crown Thy Good With Brotherhood." Brotherhood week was celebrated February 15-22.

"All of us are no doubt aware of the fact that many people in the great family of nations are having difficulty, hardships, and suffering. As followers of Christ we are concerned about those in need. In the sight of God every man was created equal, and it is a pity that more love could not be shown by nations of the world towards their neighbors, regardless of race, creed, or color. Brotherhood will not come about in this world today by observing just one week each year, but it will come about by practicing throughout every hour of every day till the end of time," Mrs. Willard stated. She closed with a prayer.

The president, Mrs. V. P. Scoville presided over a brief business session during which time matters of routine business were transacted. It was voted to change the meeting time from 7:30 to 8:00. Cards were sent to Mrs. Alice Keel and Miss Addie Johnston who are ill.

Delicious individual cakes, ice cream and nuts were served during the social hour.

Hostesses besides Mrs. Hadley were Mrs. Willard, Mrs. W. L. Best, Mrs. Hortense Moye and Mrs. S. T. White.

Mrs. F. J. Forbes was guest for the meeting.

SAD NEWS
NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (UP) — Here's sad news for "knights of the road." There will be no "train room" in the new headquarters of the local police department. Such a spot in the present headquarters has been popular for decades, and in recent years its overnight guests could be certain of a free breakfast on Sunday mornings contributed by a clergyman.

GOTCHA!
CHAMBERSBURG, Pa. (UP) — Merle Diffenderfer of Waynesboro pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk en driving in March, 1951, but because of a mixup in the records, he remained free for almost two years under a $750 bond. The error was discovered, and Diffenderfer was assessed a four-month jail term a $200 fine and the costs.

Strength for the Day

PLENTY HERE

A book has recently appeared on the market setting forth the possibilities of space navigation. Competent scientists now talk about the possibility of making a trip to the moon as if they were speaking about a plane trip from New York to Chicago. They even speculate how long it will take the scientific world to get ready for interplanetary travel; perhaps to Mars sometime—or some other planet. Two thousand persons are said to have signed up already for the first trip to the moon.

There is a story in the early chapter of Genesis of how men at one time tried to build a tower—which has since become known as the Tower of Babel. It was to reach the sky. God appears to have looked out of heaven and with the little finger of his left hand wiped the tower off the landscape and scattered the builders muttering to one another in strangely diverse tongues. The episode is presumed to be symbolic of what happens when man relies too much on his own efforts without regard to God.

Of course, great adventures and projected discoveries have always been scoffed at, and perhaps this fantastic scheme will eventually prove sound and helpful. But it would seem sensible to try to solve some of the problems of this planet before taking on the problems of another.

Full-Time Farmers Are The Ones To Consult

Secretary of Agriculture Benson in recent addresses concerning the future of farmers and the agriculture markets, hinted that farmers get their heads together and see if a more satisfactory farm program can be worked out for GOP leaders to present when the current farm price support law expires late in 1954.

Actually, we believe, Benson is aiming at a program of some sort which will not lean as heavily on government price supports for farm products as the program now in effect. We are not sure what he has in mind specifically in the way of another sort of farm program, and we are inclined to believe there is confusion in the GOP generally as well as in the Department of Agriculture as to what procedure should be followed.

The GOP doesn't want to take a chance on losing farmers' support at the polls, and at the same time some of the Republican leaders would like to see the price supports go out the window when the current law expires.

Benson has suggested indirectly that farm groups get together with him to discuss a farm program. In that endeavor the problem of numerous farm and producers organizations causes a dilemma. There are many of these various groups throughout the country, it would be difficult, if not impossible, to recognize any one group as representatives of the "dirt farmers" of the country.

It is interesting to note that latest census figures on agriculture show only 1,200,000 of the 5,400,000 "farms" in the country returned a gross income of more than $5,000 a year. Almost 2,000,000 of the nation's farmers sell less than $250 of produce annually. The major income of these "farmers" of course comes from industry or other sources. It is estimated almost 50 per cent of so-called "farmers" in the United States make their living at some other work.

Therefore when Secretary Benson begins to get "farmers" together to give their ideas about a government farm program, he should make sure he consults the honest-to-goodness farmers who make their living from the soil.

The man who depends upon the produce of the land for his livelihood is the man most interested in the prosperity of real farmers and the sort of program which is most beneficial for the real farmers.

Hit The Leeches Where It Hurts

It is a shocking thing to note how many North Carolina counties have completely disregarded the state property valuation statutes and are taking a free ride on the state government at the expense of the other counties in North Carolina.

An enlightening report came out of Raleigh Friday when correspondent Lynn Nisbet exposed the figures on property valuation in North Carolina compiled by Rep. Ed Gavin of Randolph County.

Only 38 of North Carolina's 100 counties have had property revaluations in the past four years as required by state law. There are 19 counties in North Carolina (and Pitt is among them) that have had no property revaluations in at least 12 years. Pamlico County has the dubious distinction of being the most tardy county in the state in its valuation program. It hasn't bothered with revaluing its property since 1919.

Of course such antiquated property valuations as those of 34 years ago or even a dozen years ago are preposterous. By no stretch of the imagination can they be a fair basis of levying taxes in county, nor can they be fair barometers of a county's wealth when it comes to dishing out state funds on the basis of need.

It is indeed a major step that arrangements are being made to revalue Pitt County in the near future.

Yet some method should be found by the General Assembly—and in the present session—to force the tardy counties in the state to undertake revaluation programs and to abide by the quadrennial law which is on the statute books.

Those counties which have neglected the obligation of revaluing property are naturally, according to the books, much poorer than other counties which have had a recent revaluation. But when it comes to determining the percentage of state aid to go to each county, those with the lowest valuations are considered the most needy. Therefore they get a larger proportional share of state monies than counties which have kept property valuations reasonably up to date.

The delinquent counties purely and simply gouge the other counties of the state for funds from the state government on the basis of their unwillingness to help themselves.

Legislation requiring each county which participates in state aid programs to have had a revaluation within a specified number of years—say five—would go a long way toward remedying the bad situation which now exists.

Too many counties apparently have learned the art of leeching on the state and other counties and are reluctant to mend their ways.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower's transfer of control over government policy from Truman's politicians to the nation's biggest businessmen and bankers threatens to be a difficult and painful operation, in view of the mutterings of farm and "little business" representatives on Capitol Hill.

In the first preview of the Administration's program for unshackling world trade as well as the domestic economy, the legislative response has been critical, if not unfavorable. Rarely has the Congressional Record been so cluttered with viewing-with-alarm resolutions from state legislatures, farm groups, labor unions and trade associations.

The reaction of "honeymoon," is peculiar. Few want to criticize the President after only five weeks in office, and they give him credit for the best of intentions. They can hardly do otherwise, for a majority of the GOP has been denouncing Fair-Deal, New-Deal controls, regimentation and bureaucracy for two decades.

LACK OF MONEY—In breaking down trade barriers and loosening up world commerce, the Administration's basic scheme is to make money and credit available to our allies. Unless they can obtain cash in some way, they must remain on an American dole in order to keep them in the cold war. The democracies' fundamental weakness are thin wallets, as they reiterate whenever Secretary Dulles prods them to greater efforts.

The principal means by which they can be strengthened financially are three, and it appears that the White House would like to try them all. The first is to buy more goods from them—raw materials, weapons, manufactured articles, etc.

The second is to lower and simplify the tariff laws. The third is to stimulate foreign investments of private capital. Mutual Security Stassen is already working on this tripartite program.

TARIFF DISTURBING ISSUE—Henry Ford II's demand for a sweeping reduction of tariffs and a great increase in imports has only aggravated this fear and feeling of uncertainty. Eisenhower will soon discover that the tariff is still a serious and disturbing local issue.

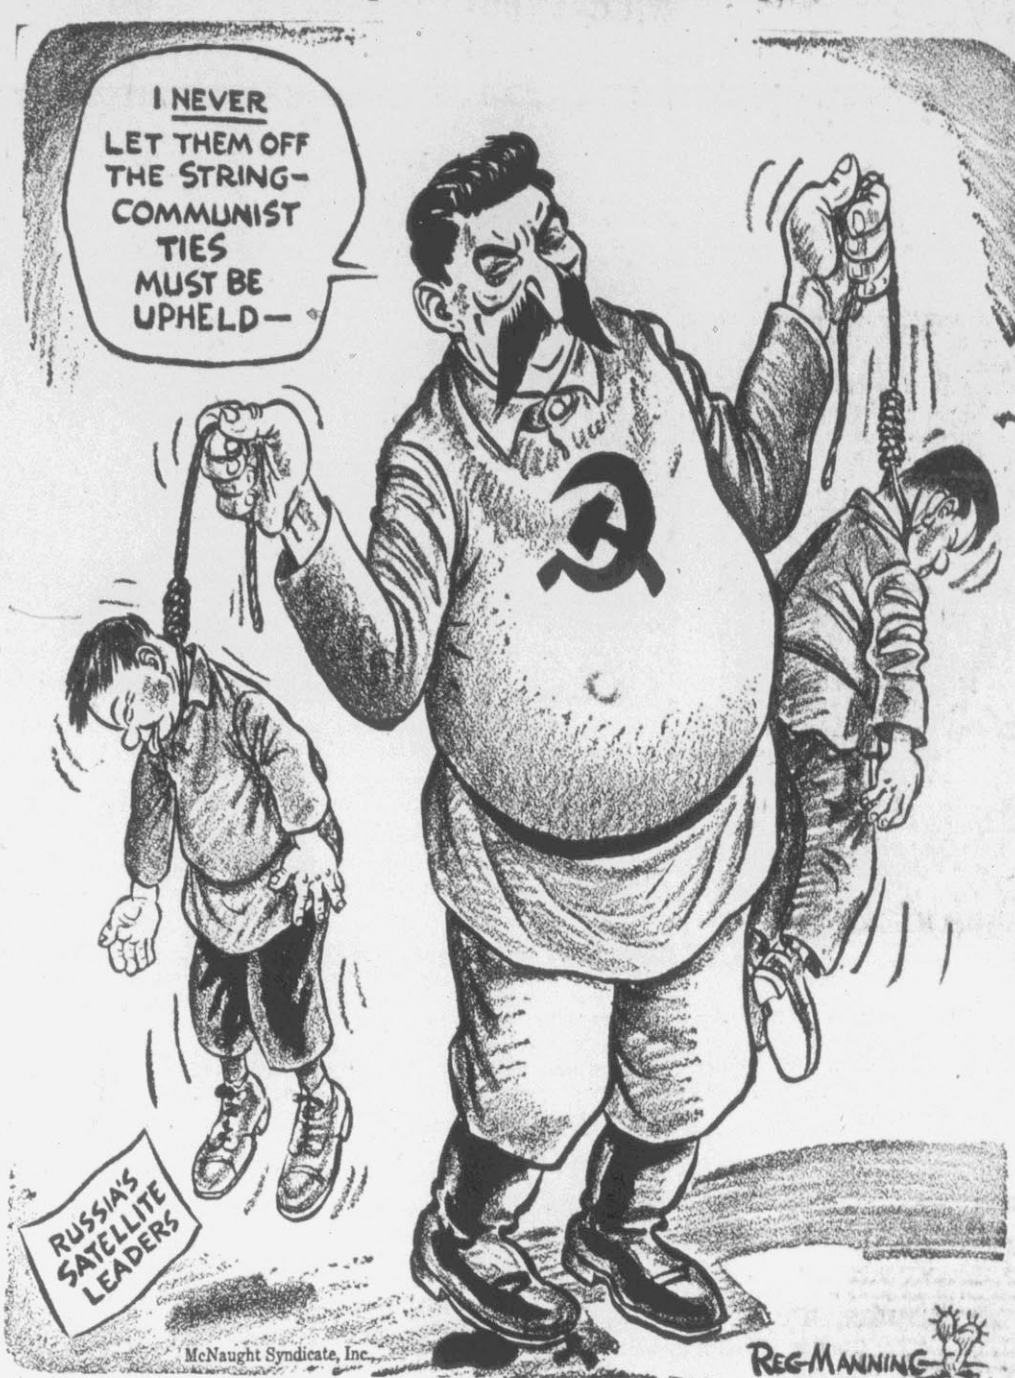

Ford's economic kinship with so many "car dealers" in the Administration makes him particularly vulnerable. The immediate outcry emphasizes that, while great firms like his might not suffer from a flood of imports, there are many small companies in every community which would be damaged badly, especially those which operate on a small margin. These factories exist in every member's district or a Senator's state. Even if they employ only 300 or 500 people, they, their families and tradesmen dependent on them comprise a powerful voting group. When they squawk, the M.C.'s listen, and they are squawking now.

OTHER IRRITATIONS—There are other sources of irritation against "bigness" at Washington. Administrator Stassen's selection of wealthy manufacturers and financiers to study the Mutual Security operations is a contributing factor. Since many of them have profited from this program, either in the sale of arms or supplies or in underwriting these transactions, the M.C.'s hardly regard the investigators as neutral or impartial.

The Eisenhower-Benson inactivity in the face of falling farm prices is a notable example of the downtown attitude disliked on Capitol Hill. It is looked upon as a willingness to let the producers suffer, while the packers and middlemen—railroads, insurance, processors, packagers, distributors—profit.

And yet, this is the kind of government the members clamored for, although this realization only sharpens their sense of futility. The GOP platform on culture favored a "farm program aimed at full parity prices in the market place," the last four being the important words. In all future planning, that seems to contemplate a lack of controls and subsidies.

Pupets To The End

Somebody Told Me

By J. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

If ever I saw a man having a good time, it was yesterday at the Pitt Memorial Hospital. J. D. Aman, plumber, heating contractor, and general Jack of all trades, was observing the erection of the flag pole he built for the Pitt Memorial Hospital. Since the pole is as high as the hospital itself, there was considerable engineering involved in the task.

"Do you mean to tell me that you built that thing?" I asked. "Why certainly," he said, "I'm noted for my flag poles!" Then he confessed, "This is the second one I ever built, and probably the last."

Mr. Aman delighted in kidding everybody who asked him what he was doing. When he was trucking the 76-foot pole to the hospital, pedestrians and motorists gaped at C. A. Howard's 32-foot trailer and the load it was carrying.

"Somebody asked me what it was," Mr. Aman said, "and I told him it was the antenna for the new radio station. I've worked hard enough on that pole, and now I'm going to have some fun with it."

The pole was given to the hospital by the Greenville Lions Club, at an expense estimated to be over $300. It will carry a flag eight by twelve feet, donated by the Greenville Elks Lodge. The pole will be dedicated to the memory of Louis Skinner, the first president of the Greenville Lions, who was killed in World War II.

Mr. Aman constructed the pole by telescoping pipe. At the base he began with pipe five and one-half inches in diameter. The top section of the pole is two inches in diameter.

In order to assure sturdiness in the pole, the joints were cemented together. As an extra precaution, the telescoping process was extended down into the bottom section so that in that section there are three thicknesses of pipe.

About five feet below the ground there is a concrete base, about four feet square, that serves as a foundation. In the center of this section is an eight-inch cup, to hold the base while additional concrete was poured by J. D. MacArthur.

The erection process was supervised by Hospital Engineer Walter Dail and engineered by C. D. Wall of Winterville. A wrecker with an extra long boom was used to pull the pole into the vertical position. For assistance after the job was set up by Mr. Wall, a Pitt County School wrecker came in.

Mr. Aman also built the pole that flies our flag at National Carbon Company. He claims this one is his second, "and probably my last," but I'll bet that he'd jump at a contract to build another one tomorrow. He seems to enjoy building flag poles.

And I thank you.

SPOTLIGHT—Frank Taylor of Goldsboro is one of the most important and powerful persons in North Carolina. That position of power is not of his own choosing. In fact he has told friends that he would never have accepted appointment as legislative counsel to the Governor.

Mr. Taylor is a man of many talents. He is a lawyer, a politician, a businessman, and a statesman. He has been a member of the House of Representatives, and he has served as Governor of North Carolina. He is a man of great influence and power, and he is a man who is respected by all.

He is a man who is a true leader, and he is a man who is a true statesman. He is a man who is a true patriot, and he is a man who is a true American. He is a man who is a true hero, and he is a man who is a true hero.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

DECONTROLLING PRICES

(Washington Daily News)

It is a little difficult for us to understand all the noise being made about decontrolling prices. Have we really had control for the past year? In answer to that question, we would say that controls went by the board 12 months ago. And they went by the board without the support of President Truman who was in office when the decontrol happened.

We had controls on the books, but housewives know that there has been no close adherence to ceiling prices. Why then, now that controls are about to go legally, all the hub-bub about removal of ceilings?

Does one suspect that restaurants will go up on the prices of meals just because the ceilings have been lifted? Is it reasonable to assume that old model cars or used cars will zoom upward? To find the answer to that, one has only to take his car to the used car lots and see what the market is slowly fixing its own level in most cases. Whereas a few years ago the purchaser had great trouble buying an auto, or a refrigerator, or a stove, today the purchaser has to be sold, and he can look around and study the features and prices at several places of business.

Then, today the buying public is once again gaining control more rapidly than most people would have us believe. Supply and demand are the great factors, and supply and demand will give regulation on a natural basis whereas controls imposed by law seldom do.

The law of supply and demand will cause retail prices to be affected. That is taken into consideration now that the Republican administration is ditching controls. Retail prices might go downward on the whole. Rents might go up, because the landlords have fared harder during control than any other set of people many business men believe.

To tell the truth as we see it, inflation is not so potent as it was at one time. There is no need to try to inflate something which the public doesn't want inflated. And again the law of supply and demand, a law which just can't be ignored, is at work.

Probably the farmers will feel the initial blow of decontrol more than any other group of people. What they sell will be lower, and the danger lies in the fact that before a farmer can sell his products, he must plant them, and whatever processing he has to do. From the time of planting to the time of selling covers several months. The prices could change considerably in a period of eight months. If what the farmer buys to make his crop is bought at high prices, and if what he sells to earn his living is sold during a lower price period, then it is inevitable that he must suffer. The farmer, then, needs more attention in his economic plight than does the average buyer or consumer.

Business Today

By ELMER BISSNER
The theme for today is that it's still possible to run a bright idea into a pot of money in the United States and the citation is Luke Kaiser, who runs a printing and letter service in Houston, Tex.

In sending Christmas greetings to customers in 1951, Mr. Kaiser enclosed what at first glance looked like oversized currency. Each was 13 by 5 1/2 inches and professed to be 1,000 "T" as bucks." The second glance showed they were a gag, well earned up. Steer heads and buck-teeth rabbits adorned the border; the seal of Texas bore a cowboy and five girls and the legend, "The Lone but Not Lonely Star State," appeared on the "bill."

Corny or not, Kaiser's customer-liked them and asked to buy quantities to send to friends; friends wrote and asked to buy more to send to their friends and Kaiser's presses were humming.

Then government agents moved in. No, they agreed, Kaiser was not counterfeiting U.S. currency but the engraving of Washington, even though it had a cowboy across the face, might confuse people. A few weeks ago Kaiser watched while they burned 435,000 specimens, more than 43,000,000 "bucks."

Meanwhile, Kaiser had redesigned the "bucks," using a portrait of Stephen Austin instead of Washington and bringing out a 1,000-buck size, 21 by 9 inches. The Secret Service was content. Orders piled in so fast that Kaiser had to get three other lithographers to help him meet them. He also brought out Louisiana and Oklahoma bucks, Texas buck wrapping paper, 20-buck coins and key tags in aluminum, Texas insurance policies and appointments as Texas ambassadors.

Note this angle to this success story: Everything Kaiser turned out bore the name and address of his company. This gave his products a sort of "Bureau club" promotion, everybody receiving one knows exactly where to write to buy more. And Kaiser's customers are his salesmen.

This ought to be significant to the manufacturers of thousands of other kinds of products—from gadgets to generators—floating around the market with no or vague identification of the maker.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—The birthday of the father of our country was Sunday.

Yet few people know what kind of a guy George Washington really was.

He is the daddy of us all, and yet he never had a kid of his own. He started to give up once—but didn't.

Probably nobody ever really understood George Washington, a big tall, lonely man. So was Lincoln, born in the same dull wintry month.

They had one thing in common, they stood up well under the long haul. They shared a passion of belief. Many people in this world don't really stand for anything. They did. One stood for rebellion and union. The other one against his will had to stand for Union against rebellion.

It is hard to understand Washington, hard to appreciate Lincoln. Both went against the grain of their times, took the hard way out. Stubborn guys.

Probably harder for Washington; started higher in the social scale, had to turn his back on more friends, took him seven years to win. Lincoln did it in four. Of course, Washington had no one to lean on when he helped build the union, a real pioneer. Lincoln did. He had words to lean on, too, as well as the example of Washington.

It wasn't until Woodrow Wilson came along that another president could handle the English language so eloquently. And, of course, there was a guy named Tom Jefferson, who kind of wrapped Washington, Lincoln and Wilson all together, when it came to honesty and the use of words.

It is hard to be alive today. It was tougher for a rich man like Washington to take a bunch of dreaming, disorganized colonials, and beat the British Empire to a decision. He had to join the so-called scum of his time, organize it, and win a victory with it against the considered opinion of many of the nice people of that day, who had no faith in independence.

Washington put all his dollars on the line for America, at a time when it was unpopular to do so and there was no America. Without his willingness to lay it on the line there probably wouldn't be an America.

Americans celebrate the birthday of this great patriot. But he was in essence no different from you or me. He had his doubts too.

There was a moment when his troops broke in a cornfield where the New York Public Library now stands, and Gen. Washington, his faith in his men lost, dropped his reins, lifted his head and spurred his horse toward death in the British lines. Haven't you ever felt like giving up, too?

An aide grabbed his reins, and turned him back. George Washington again became himself. He bent to the problem of reorganizing his routed men, and the problem of fighting again.

Had he succeeded in getting killed on that day of black despondency, the history of a continent would have been changed. But never again did he doubt himself in public.

We celebrate the anniversary

The industry shipped 814,086 freezers last year compared with 738,328 the year before.

Refrigerator shipments in 1952 were 3,413,603 units as against 3,797,260 the year earlier; electric range shipments were 922,385 as against 1,269,509, and water heater shipments 557,773 as against 674,533.

LUMBERMEN WANT U.S. OUT OF HOUSING

Private interests should take over the guarantee of home loans, permitting the Federal Government to discontinue mortgage insurance, the National Lumber Manufacturers Association declares in a policy statement. The association also favors the end of rent controls and the turning over to local communities the task of providing any public housing needs.

BRITISH CLAIM SECRET OF SOFTENING FURS

A process for the treatment of furs which makes them lighter in weight and as supple as they were when the animal was alive has been developed by Major Cyril Kent, son of the furrier to the late King George V, the British Information Services announce.

No chemicals are used in the process and, because it cannot be patented, it is being kept top secret.

860 FUR NAMES FADE FROM FURRIERS' TALK

New York furriers called furs by 860 different names in 1951 and 664 different names last year, according to the findings of Mrs. Karen R. Gillespie, associate professor of retailing, New York University. Now they are limited to about 100 names by the Federal Trade Commission.

WASHINGTON LETTER
By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Eggbert, the green and brassy caricature who by cockiness and bad example showed newly commissioned officers how not to get along in the Navy during World War II, is now trying to keep his brother Gailburt out of hot water. Gailburt, a wise guy too, with crew haircut, a little tougher, but just as green and brassy as was Eggbert 10 years ago, is the new creation of Capt. Earl D. Chesney.

Eggbert was evolved by Chesney in October, 1942, as a feature in the restricted Navy publication, the Newsletter, in off-duty hours when he was serving as a liaison officer in the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, L. L. Lowell Lawrence, former Kansas City newspaperman, then editor of the Newsletter and offices in charge of the Bureau's public information section, collaborated with him.

Eggbert was demobilized with other reserve officers, including his originators, in 1945, but his wartime exploits were immortalized in the book "Eggbert and Other Navy Caricatures." When the Korean conflict broke out, Eggbert was returned to active duty. So were his sponsors, Lawrence as a commander now. However, the pair felt the need for introducing a new foil. After all, Eggbert has grown up and is now a competent Navy lieutenant. Capt. Chesney told me, "The kids all wanted him back, so I gave him a soft job as a public information officer. Gailburt will go through the same things Eggbert did, and Eggbert will try to guide him past the pitfalls that caused him so much trouble."

Capt. Chesney was an Army officer in World War I and had an all-round career in government service—city, at the White House, with Congress and the Supreme Court, liaison officer for the Veterans Administration (VA) both in Washington and in the field. He was with the VA when he went on active duty with the Navy in 1942.

He began drawing as a youngster and practically worked his way through George Washington University here as a cartoonist. His drawings appear in many Washington clubs and offices, and he's done thousands of portraits of members of Congress and high-ranking officers of the armed forces. Born in Nebraska, a former football, basketball and baseball star, he is also an avid fisherman, a low-handicap golfer and incidentally, handsome. He and Comdr. Lawrence have been close personal friends for years.

Wider Shoulders, Narrow At Bottom In New Modes

Fashion will follow the straight and narrow path this Spring, with countless variations of the "slim look" carried out in coats, suits, dresses, ensembles and even evening wear. Elegant and new-looking, the elongated line of Fashion calls for a whole new approach to the woman's wardrobe, as well as her important accessories.

The very excitement of fashion is to be found in the word "change." Just as everything else in the woman's world is constantly in evolution, so is the conception of taste and style.

The natural changes in fashion have always been worked around the triangle, the basis of all style. Just as the past years have brought the narrow-topped triangle, or pyramid, into the fashion news, the latest and most exciting change is now that same triangle with the narrowness at the bottom.

Emphasis is on the wider shoulder line, narrowing to a confined hemline, such as in the newest coats and suits. The shoulder accent is achieved softly and subtly, with details such as the stole effect and easy draping rather than the bulky padded look. The wrap coat often has a suggestion of a cape at the shoulders, or dropped sleeves, while the skirt is very slim with not a trace of width.

The box suit, an extremely important fashion for Spring, also carries out the new line, with emphasis on the jacket rather than the skirt. While the new jackets are narrow and styled with a minimum of fitting at the waist, they offer a slightly wider and looser effect to offset the reed-slim skirt.

Suits in Variety
Suit jackets will be found in a multitude of styles, from the long and straight "walking suit" jacket to the abbreviated style that halts abruptly just above the waistline. Cut-aways and tuxedo styles offer a softer approach to the slim fashions, and make a pretty display of the new decorative weaves.

Prothy, feminine blouses also will star as light touches under these suit fashions, especially with the cardigan-styled jackets.

The stole emerges as top fashion this Spring, either as a separate accessory, incorporated into the ensemble, or suggested by means of draping and stitching at the shoulder. Seaming provides the bulk of fashion detail, criss-crossing or winding round and front and back of coats and suits.

And linings often are coordinated in prints to match blouses, or in solid colors to pick up the predominant color in a matching print dress or blouse.

Dresses are soft and fluid, in rich fabrics that drape well. The empire waistline still figures as an important influence, but skirts are generally on the slim side. Often a skirt will look narrow, but in motion will disclose floating panels or concealed pleating, to give a decidedly feminine effect.

Ensembles Popular
The ensemble idea will be most popular this season, in the guise of either suits or dresses. Practical as well as wearable, the ensemble offers a multi-purpose wardrobe for day into evening wear.

Fabrics stand out as an important and very individual approach to fashion. Textured surfaces are lighter and airier looking for Spring, including the bubble-light poodle cloths, whisper-weight fleeces, and frosty-hued zibelines. Hard-surface fabrics such as gabardines are making a successful play for recognition in coats, suits and ensembles, and silks and linens take the honors for casual as well as dress-up wear.

In colors, the white-frosted tones will be seen everywhere, as well as Spring pastels. The big news is the strong emergence of beige as a go-with-everything neutral. The beige family is seen in shades from pale ivory to golden caramel to dull bark tones. Navy is, as always, a definite fashion color. Spring, basic and flattering.

Accessories Important
The accessories a woman wears this Spring will be a main feature in her wardrobe plans. Pretty gloves in varying lengths will take over where the sleeves leave off and neat but feminine hats will top her every costume. Large hankies, oversized roses, and smooth leather handbags complete the fashion picture for Spring 1953.

King Arthur's spirit is said to live on Snowdon Mountain, highest peak in Wales—3,560 feet.

Desk Contrast

AP Newsfeatures
ALL CLEAR—President Eisenhower starts his work as chief executive with a clean desk. It contrasts with the desks of Presidents Truman and Roosevelt. Only the years will show whether the contrast represents a difference in temperament or only the fact that the new President has not had time to collect mementos.

TRUMAN kept a number of things on his desk. In the center is a pile of news bulletins. There is a 1917 picture of Mrs. Truman, a piece of granite from Mt. McKinley between the pens, miniature donkeys, clocks, ash trays, calendars and a flag.

ROOSEVELT was noted for the knick-knack collection he kept on his desk. In addition he had pictures of his four sons who were in the service at the time.

Vice Cleanup For Coronation

LONDON (U.P.)—With little fuss and publicity, London's police, aided by allied military officials, are moving into the "wicked West End" for a big pre-coronation cleanup of vice and crime.

With typical British conservatism, London authorities decided to spread the campaign over six months—gradually weeding out the bad elements—so as not to cause newspaper headlines, focusing attention on London's vice and crime.

The plan is already showing signs of success. Every few days one newspaper or another carries a small paragraph to the effect that street women have been barred from certain hotels, that some overseas, or returned-from-overseas criminals have been jailed, that certain areas have been patrolled by extra police.

"Black Book" Issued
Scotland Yard has issued to police forces throughout Britain a "black book" of more than 300 criminals to be apprehended or kept under surveillance between now and the end of the coronation festivities.

A special police "general staff" has been set up at Scotland Yard to deal exclusively with coronation matters and is holding weekly conferences under Police Commissioner Sir Harold Scott.

Police and immigration officers will cooperate to keep a close check on foreign nationals and others who might be expected to make some demonstration against the Queen. Inquiries will be made into the background of everyone buying a seat in the stands or a window view to watch the procession.

Vice Cleanup

For a month before the coronation, no workmen engaged on the renovation and cleaning of Westminster Abbey where the ceremony will be held, will be allowed in unless they have been satisfactorily screened.

Police already have started the cleanup of the West End, known as Britain's "square mile of sin." The thousands of prostitutes in this small area are one of the biggest coronation problems. The women already have been barred from many hotels in the area and landlords have been asked to keep them away from American servicemen, who look on London as a week-end leave center.

Spring Fabrics Feature An 'Airy' Surface Effect

Texture rises to the surface of fashion this season, carrying out the mood of Spring with a wide array of newly light and airy surface effects.

One of the most unusual and practical of the new finishes is the bubble-light wool tweed, looking nubby and texturesome, but weighing much less than its winter-weight counterpart. Its keeping with the lightness of this fabric are the pale tones in which it will be seen.

Linens, jerseys and silks too, take on a newly textured appearance, through either weaving or three-dimensional prints. When woven in combination, a crocheted or boucle effect is achieved.

New cottons look like tweed, silk wool or linen, depending on the finish, but retain their affinity to soap and water, making them a practical choice. Patent leather appliques on cotton look smart, and are also washable.

In coats and suits, brushed surfaces, silk or orlon and wool blends, light worsteds and zibelines, wool crepes and fleeces all spell out the newest Spring fabric news.

Fabric news continues in coats and suits, offering surface interest with less defined loops and boucle nubs. Poodles show up in "tamed" versions, looking almost

Second Leg Of Journey For Sea Scouts Ahead

Greenville Sea Scouts next Saturday will begin the second leg of their journey to bring their newly acquired boat from its old berth to a new berth on the Tar River near Greenville.

Officials of the local Sea Scout group were officially given possession of the boat—a converted 38-foot rocket launcher—near Colerain Saturday. Unit Skipper J.B. Newman, Committee Chairman Sherman Parks and Carlton Joyner received the boat from officials of the Roanoke Rapids Sea Scout unit which is relinquishing the boat to Greenville Sea Scouts.

Local Scout officials brought the boat from Colerain to Edenton

Saturday and were joined there Saturday night by five members of the Greenville Sea Scout unit. The crew of eight, consisting of the three adult leaders and scouts Mitchell Johnson, Dickie Newell, Brad Brooks, Jimmy Perkins and Bobby Langston, left Edenton early Sunday morning and docked at Belhaven late Sunday afternoon.

This coming Saturday the boat will be taken from Belhaven to Washington where it will be put on the ways where the hull will be reconditioned and the superstructure renovated. After repairs have been completed the Greenville Sea Scouts will bring their boat up the Tar to a berth near Greenville.

The boat is powered with a 225-horsepower diesel engine, and will be equipped to sleep eight to 12 persons.

Britons Will See Coronation Film

LONDON (AP)—Elizabeth the Queen, a 5,000-foot color film of Queen Elizabeth's coronation, will be on show throughout Britain six days after the coronation and will be available in the United States shortly afterwards. A shorter version will be shown in foreign-language countries.

Associated British Picture Corp. said it would be an historic record rather than a news film. The story will be told in as few words as possible.

John Adams, who died at 90, lived longer than any other man who has been U.S. President.

Weak Link Seen In Defense Dept.

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Nearly four years experience with the national defense department has proven it to be inefficient and likely to collapse under the strain of war.

Those are the grim facts behind last week's move to reorganize the department, Pres. Eisenhower is familiar with the department's inefficiencies.

His campaign speech devoted to national defense promise, creation of a committee to "restudy" departmental operations. He went further in his first annual message to Congress with a proposal for coordination of the department, merger of some supply activities and an end to military waste and duplication.

His cautious language was close to an admission that efforts to unify Army, Navy and Air Force are fouled up in service jealousies and the rivalry of each for a bigger slice of appropriation pie.

Secretary Charles E. Wilson pinpointed the problems Feb. 19 in announcing selection of a commission headed by Nelson A. Rockefeller to overhaul the department. Wilson put special emphasis on letting a proper "definition of authority" within the department the fixing of responsibilities, the establishment of methods to obtain facts and develop sound policies.

The project boils down to an effort to rewrite the National Security Act of 1949 which has failed to produce desired results. The roll call of Wilson's proposed improvements is a deadly indictment of the organization upon which depends the nation's defense against a foreign enemy.

Responsibility for failure of unification plans to unify the armed bound condition in which the department finds itself is placed by well informed persons more on the security act, itself, than on the military brass.

But the brass is partly to blame. The Joint Chiefs of Staff presided over by Gen. Omar N. Bradley has at least two strikes on it as an overall policy-making organization. Service rivalries and the organizational set-up of the Joint Chiefs have combined to prevent the military heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force from acting as a policy-making team.

Robert A. Lovett, who resigned defense secretary last month, is authority for that statement.

Lovett left behind a rough criticism of the national defense setup. He said the Joint Chiefs, as presently organized, were incapable of providing the president with the military guidance expected of them and which should be available under the unification system.

Lovett's parting word was that the present defense set up would not work in time of war.

Businessmen Go Back To College

HOUSTON (AP)—Twenty-five Houston businessmen are entering college to learn how to be top-flight executives.

They will be the students for a special University of Houston course designed to train men for top positions in management. They now are in middle management jobs but are considered by their companies to be destined for leadership. The "students" will live on the campus for six weeks.

Tot Shoots Man While At Play

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP)—Joe Payne welcomed a woman traveler into his cafe, smiled when her two children began playing behind the counter, and moments later gasped: "I've been shot!"

There had been a sharp report. Mrs. Albert J. Little, of San Antonio, Tex., told officers she looked up and saw her son Gary, 4, holding a .38 caliber pistol he had found behind the counter. She said Gary exclaimed:

"Look, Mama. See that cap pistol. I shot him with it."

Payne, 39, had wheeled around when the slug struck him in the back. He took the pistol from the child and asked another patron to drive him to Rex Hospital. He was reported critically wounded.

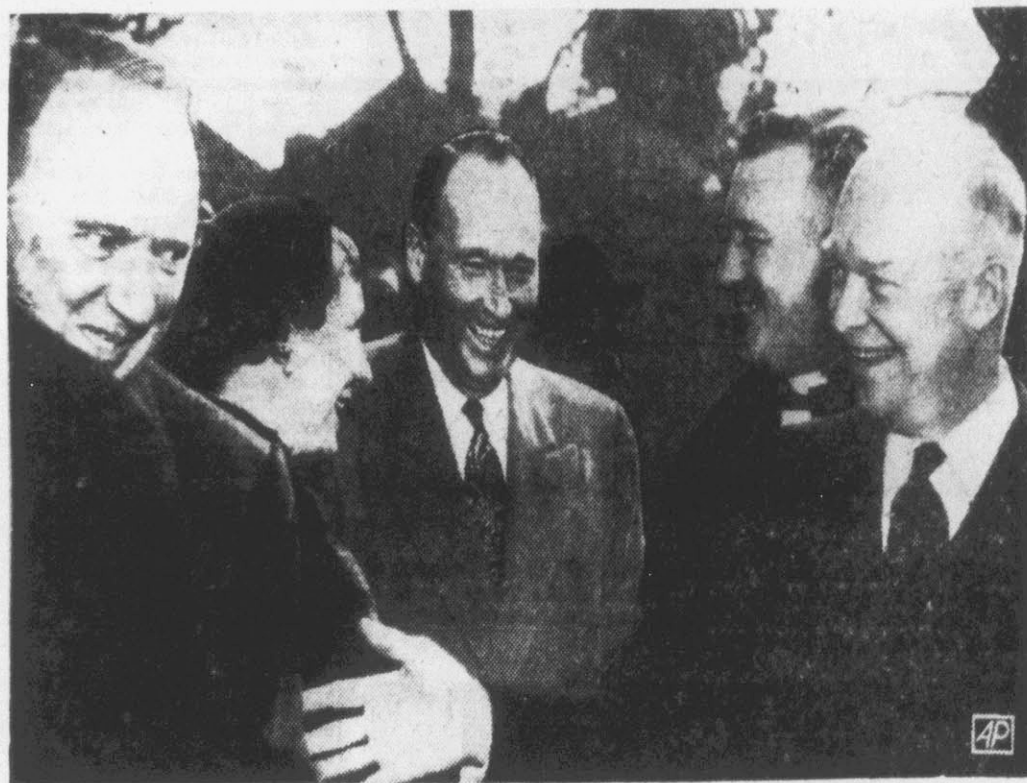

Mrs. Little, wife of an Air Force major in France was near collapse when sheriff's officers arrived. She said she stopped to eat yesterday while traveling to New York with Gary and her daughter, Catherine, 6.

"Mr. Payne was so friendly and nice and let the children play in back of the counter. But why did he have a loaded gun that was so easily reached?"

The officers ruled the shooting an accident and permitted Mrs. Little and the children to continue their trip. Mrs. Little said she is sailing next month to join her husband, Maj. Albert J. Little.

ART IS EARLY

ITHACA, N. Y. (UP)—An assignment of three Cornell University art students is the making of a 9-by-12-foot fresco that requires them to get to the studio at 5:30 a.m. to apply plaster on which they slap their paints later in the day when the plaster is in the required half-dry state.

Rain, Sleet And Snow Pelt Southern Areas

By The Associated Press
Rain, sleet and snow pelted areas over Southern and Southwestern states today but it was dry and mild over the northern half of the country from Wisconsin to New York.

Snowstorms whipped the mountain areas of Southern California while in the lowlands fairly heavy rain ended a 40-day winter drought.

There was a wide belt of precipitation from the Gulf through Texas northward into Kansas and eastward along the Gulf through southern sections of the South Atlantic states. A mixture of snow, sleet and rain was reported from Northern Texas into Kansas. Snow falls measured two inches in Chidress, Tex., and Herndon, Okla.

But snow measured up to 16 inches in some parts of the winter playground areas of the San Bernardino, Calif. Mountains. Heavy falls also were reported yesterday in the San Gabriel, and Cuyamaca and Laguna mountains and on Mt. Palomar.

Rainfall was general south of Fresno, Calif. The fall measuring about one-quarter inch at Los Angeles was the first in 40 days.

Strong winds accompanied the storms in California, with gusts up to 80 miles an hour in the northern part of the state. Some telephone lines were toppled and big military air transports were unable to land at Travis Air Base.

The only precipitation across the

'Delicate Look' In Bridal Styles

With the growing trend to younger brides, the new Spring bridal fashions put new emphasis on the youthful look, carried out in delicate sheers, tulle, lace and silks.

Taking into consideration the young budget as well, many of the newest styles embody the "deb gown" idea. This convertible fashion often becomes formal separates for the bridesmaid, for after-the-wedding wear, or the formal evening gown for the bride, covered up with traditional sleeves and a conservative décolletage that are removable after the ceremony.

Brides may also wear waltz or full-length strapless gowns, with a cut-away lace coat for the wedding. The lace length 39 inches from waistline to hem, or ballerina skirts 35 inches long, have become very popular with younger brides and their attendants, and are shown extensively for this Spring. Sheers are most popular in nylon tulle, embroidered cotton organdy, laces, silk organdies, chiffons and dotted Swiss.

Satin, alone or with delicate touches of lace or embroidery, stars in traditional ceremonies, and is usually seen in full length gowns.

Tar River Level Reached 'High' Point Sunday

Tar River reached its highest level here as a result of upstate and local rains when the river gauge registered 1.67 feet Sunday.

The river is considered in flood stage when it reaches the 14-foot level. Leland Mizell, local observer for the U. S. Weather Bureau, reported.

The stream started falling Sunday afternoon and at noon Monday the level was still dropping. Rivermen said with the high water receding, fishing in the creeks and other tributaries should improve with milder weather.

northern half of the nation was light snow in the Northern Plains and Northern Rockies and flurries in New England and the interior of New York state.

There was no severe cold throughout the country. However, temperatures were below seasonal levels west of the Rockies and in the wet belt in the South and Southeast sections except Southern Florida. It was below freezing—31 above—early today in Sandberg, Calif.

Some sleet fell in the Western section of the Carolinas today.

Temperatures, however, were not severe and the weather bureau said the sleet would change to rain later today. General rain throughout both states was expected by tonight.

Adlai Says Arab World Is Target

CHICAGO (UP)—Former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson said Russia is trying to woo Arab nations with its recent anti-Semitic outbreaks.

Stevenson, defeated Democratic presidential candidate, told 1,200 members of Decalogue, society of Jewish lawyers, last night that the anti-Semitic wave is "Hitler's ghost emerging from the walls of the Kremlin to accomplish in death what he could not do in life."

The democratic leader was presented with the Decalogue's annual award of merit "as the most worthy American."

He said the Soviet terrorism may have been caused by "misapprehension about the loyalty of a substantial segment of its population."

"The Russians 'are turning south to fish in the troubled Arab waters of our most troubled world, down where the struggling republic of Israel is the representative of civilization and culture," Stevenson said.

He said that "all God's children, Jews, Negroes, Catholics, an certainly Arabs, are entitled to their rights but all must do what is right for right's sake."

Funeral Wednesday For Gherman Taylor

Mr. Gherman Andrew Taylor, 51, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital at 9:40 o'clock Tuesday morning, following three weeks' illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon by the pastor, the Rev. Leon Russell, assisted by the Rev. J. A. Nelson, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church.

Members of the Carson Bible Class will be honorary pallbearers.

Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. The boy will remain at the Wilkerson Funeral Home until the hour of the funeral.

Mr. Taylor, son of Mrs. Sarah Elliot Taylor Tucker of Carolina Beach and the late J. Andrew Taylor, was reared in Pitt County and had lived in Greenville since he was a young man. He had been employed by the Greenville Utilities for the past 28 years and he was a member of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Surviving are his wife, the former Alberta Corey of Greenville, to whom he was married in 1923; two sons, G. A. Taylor Jr. of Greenville and Pvt. Conrad C. Taylor of the U. S. Army, now in Korea; two daughters, Mrs. J. Eric Whichard of Stokes and Miss Mitzi Sue Taylor of the home; a grandson, J. Eric Whichard Jr.; his mother; and three half brothers, Edwin T. Tucker of Wichita, Kansas, W. Eric Tucker of Richmond, Va., and Kenneth E. Tucker of Rocky Mount.

Slips Featuring New Linings

A practical feature in the new slips, petticoats and camisoles is lining or paneling for complete opaqueness. Cotton batiste types are trimmed with rick-rack, bright ribbon, eyelet or embroidery, and most is now shrinkage-controlled for perfect fit.

Black cotton plisse combines with sheer nylon net or lace to give a basically practical gown a glamorous look. Plisse petticoats are gaily polka-dotted and fringed in contrasting colors, and shiny cotton styles are covered with print designs.

Although there are fewer very full petticoats than last Spring, this year's full-skirted styles are fluffed with organdie or nylon net for a feminine look.

Basic slips now follow the silhouette of the Spring clothes with their slim lines, as seen in the sheath slip, the pared-down skirt fullness, or in the molded princess line.

Reject Protest Raised By Reds

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—United Nations armistice officers flatly rejected today a Communist protest that Allied warplanes flew over the Panmunjom neutral area Sunday.

But the Communists came back with a second protest over the death of a Red prisoner in a Kojé Island prisoner of war camp and the wounding of another on Pangam Island.

Both sides exchanged letters at a brief liaison officers' meeting called by the Communists. The Red made no mention of Gen. Mark Clark's request for an exchange of seriously sick and wounded prisoners of war.

"Evidence adduced at the joint investigation is conclusive that no hostile act was committed against the conference site area," said U. N. Col. Willard Carlock in rejecting the Red protest of an overflight.

Meanwhile, the U. N. Prisoner of War Command announced in an enclosure of Cheju Island Saturday, apparently a suicide. U. N. officials expected the incident would provoke another "automatic protest" from the Reds.

CATCH 'EM YOUNG

PLAINVILLE, Conn. (UP)—Connecticut should have at least the good woman driver on its highways about 16 years from now. Four-year-old Pamela Madrick is in training with a miniature electrically driven car made by her father. She does 15 miles an hour on the street in front of her house.

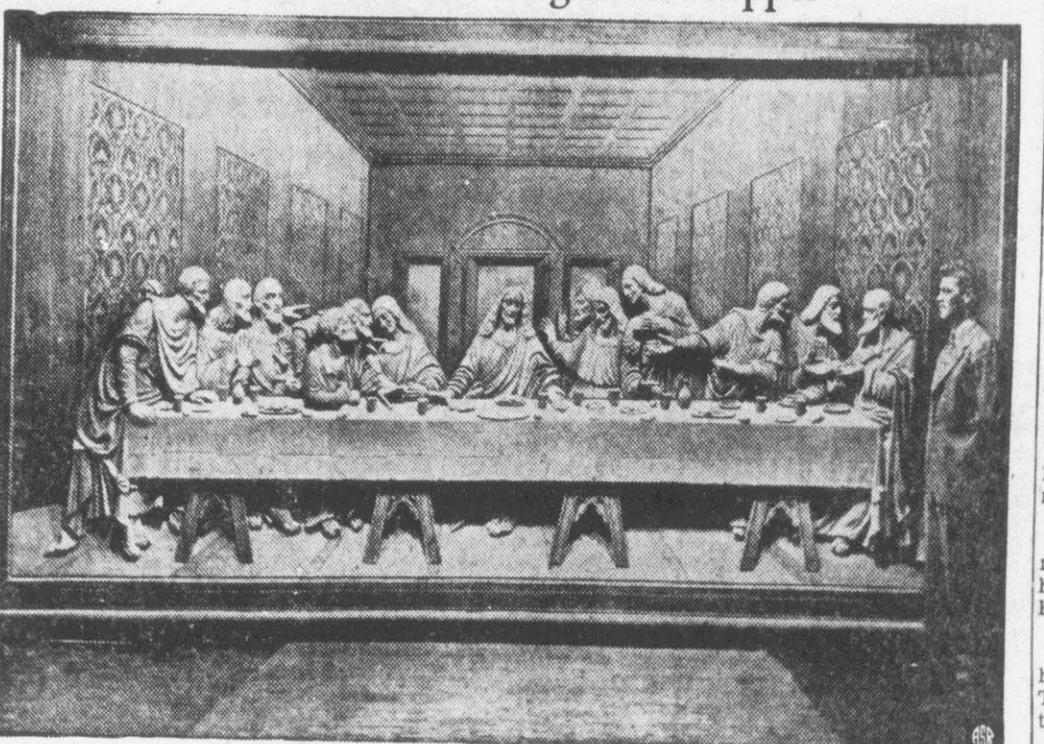

Research men have found that a pressure cooker is ideal as a ready-made gas chamber for the study of the arcing of contacts of a telephone relay at the Bell Laboratories.

Life-size Wood Carving of Last Supper

Courtesy Christian Science Monitor

BOSTON, MASS.—All the specialized skills of some of the finest craftsmen of New England have been combined to create this life-size copy in wood of the famous painting "The Last Supper" by Leonardo da Vinci.

More than a year was used in preparing the great carving—18½ feet long and 8½ feet wide. The figures, of limewood, are delicately tinted to give a feeling of lifelike reality, and a giant frame of contrasting walnut gives it depth. The carving will be the point of central interest in The Upper Room chapel, now nearing completion in Nashville. It is expected that visitors who view the carving will be moved to spend a few moments in prayer and meditation in keeping with the purpose of The Upper Room—a devotional guide issued in 17 languages and used round the world. The chapel itself is part of the new headquarters building for The Upper Room, the world's most widely used devotional guide. It is believed that it will become a devotional shrine and point of interest for visitors of the Midsouth.

The picture shows W. D. Irving, of Irving and Casson, New York and Boston, who have produced wood carvings for some of America's greatest churches and cathedrals. The wood carving was done from a model created by Earnest Pelligrini.

Soviet Cold War Policy Berlin Is Barometer Of

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

Even more than Korea, Berlin is the barometer of the hot and cold wars.

The relative toughness or softness of Soviet action in Berlin is a good measure of the confidence and aggressiveness of the Russians. Right now they're talking tough and acting tough. It is a bad omen and a confirmation of warnings by the Eisenhower administration and by Prime Minister Winston Churchill that we face perilous times.

West Berlin the Western island 110 miles inside the Soviet occupation zone of Germany, has been described as a "booby trap" set up by Premier Josef Stalin at Yalta for his erstwhile Western allies.

Russia holds the trigger to that booby-trap.

There is no doubt that, if the Russians chose, they could on short notice set in motion the delicate fuse mechanism that would blast the Americans, British and French out of Berlin overnight.

The Russians have toyed with that mechanism several times in the past. They're doing it again with orders to East Berlin border guards to shoot to kill the terrified or disenchanted German residents of the Communist "paradise" who have been fleeing by the tens of thousands to the freedom of the West.

The real question is whether the Russians are likely to explode their booby trap.

In spite of all their menacing gestures and bristling statements, the answer appears to be no—unless the Kremlin is prepared for World War III.

The Russians know that the trigger which explodes the Berlin booby trap almost certainly also would touch off an atomic war in which they would be at a critical disadvantage with the West.

We have mined no words in making our position clear.

Up to now the U. S., her Western allies and the West German government have spent $1,600,000,000 to enforce the right of the Western powers to remain in the shattered former German capital.

The new U. S. High Commissioner for Germany Dr. James Bryant Conant warned the Russians bluntly last week that the United States will defend as "an unshakable outpost of the Western world" its position in the west sectors of the divided city.

Thus the Russians once more have been put on notice.

New Styles Now Favor The Tall Girl

Time was, and not so long ago either, when women 5 feet 8 inches and over were idealized in song and fiction but made to feel like Gulliver among the Lilliputians when they entered a clothing store. They either had to have their clothes made to order, or pay for extensive alterations on the few ready-made fashions they were able to find.

Now that the skyscraper set constitutes a full 10 per cent of the total female population, stores and manufacturers are beginning to realize that a new size-range is called for, especially proportioned for "talls." Several stores have opened up complete departments for fashions which stock everything from bathing suits to eaters.

know no season.

"Made to order" for tall girls is the long, slim line of this Spring's fashions, ideal for setting off a classic figure. The straight, slender silhouette of the new suits and coats, the easy bloused backs of the newest dresses, and the dramatic dash of a colorful waist, all add up to glamour for the "tall set."

Drama in Design

One manufacturer of tall fashions who is 5 feet 10½ inches herself, reasons that no one can carry the unusual and dramatic as well as a person who is tall. Her line of cocktail and evening dresses, utilizing such flattering fabrics as supple rayon crepes, taffetas and shimmering satins, illustrates her point.

New Formals 'Waltz Length'

Look to the "waltz-length" formal gown for dress-up Springtime wear, a graceful and practical length that sweeps a full 10 inches off the floor. Taffetas make color news, with filmy sheers, nets and laces also particularly lovely for Spring.

"Festive but not too 'formal' is the keynote, with delicately feminine cover-ups seen in the guise of a one-shoulder design, removable fichu back, or yoke veiling. Full skirts, embroidery, lots of glitter, and romantic pastels star in the pretty Spring scene.

Industry Can Teach Economy To Gov't

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Industry sometimes teaches government tricks in economy.

Emmett J. Leahy, a noted archivist—or expert in records—says that private business could save "millions a year" if business would follow the lead of government. In the handling of records, that is.

Leahy is president of the National Records Management Council—a non-profit organization. He headed the Hoover Commission task force on federal paperwork.

"Government agencies have saved taxpayers more than $5,000,000 by housecleaning old records and practicing birth control on new ones," Leahy says. "Business and industry lag far behind."

The record expert got his first assignment with the Navy in 1935. He and three others were hired to survey the Navy's paperwork. As a result, tons of useless old records were burned. This made room for modern reports and, as Leahy says, did away with a dangerous fire hazard.

Other government agencies have followed suit.

As of today, according to Leahy, only 1-25th of all government records ever find their way into the crowded national archives.

Old records are dangerous, in the opinion of the NRMC President.

"They are great breeders of perpetual errors," Leahy says. "Every so often, experts should be invited to cull through the reports and do some wholesale throwing away. The trouble with libraries where paperwork is stored is that they generally are manned by inexperienced help."

The council once made a careful survey of the archives of the state of Michigan at Lansing. It was decided that 30 per cent of the reports could be destroyed.

"Before we got around to it," says Leahy, "the building caught fire and 25,000,000 pieces of paperwork went up in smoke. So far as I could learn none of those reports ever was missed."

"Business firms seem to be afflicted with the disease of saving valueless pieces of paper that just might come in handy sometime. A housecleaning periodically could save millions of dollars and make way for important modern records."

Leahy estimates that 1,000,000,000 pieces of old paper bulge in the nation's file drawers, could be burned—or sold as waste in the waste basket."

Federal agencies have been destroying 2,500,000 cubic feet of records annually, and thus have reclaimed the active use of 57,000 file cabinets, 78,000 transfer cases, and around 1,500,000 square feet of office and storage space.

Industry, Leahy feels, could profit handsomely by following suit.

don't DO that!

ALFOL

BUILDING BLANKET INSULATION

The men who are building America's newest—most modern homes want the best there is in insulation. And they want insulation material they can install faster and with least mess, dust and dirt.

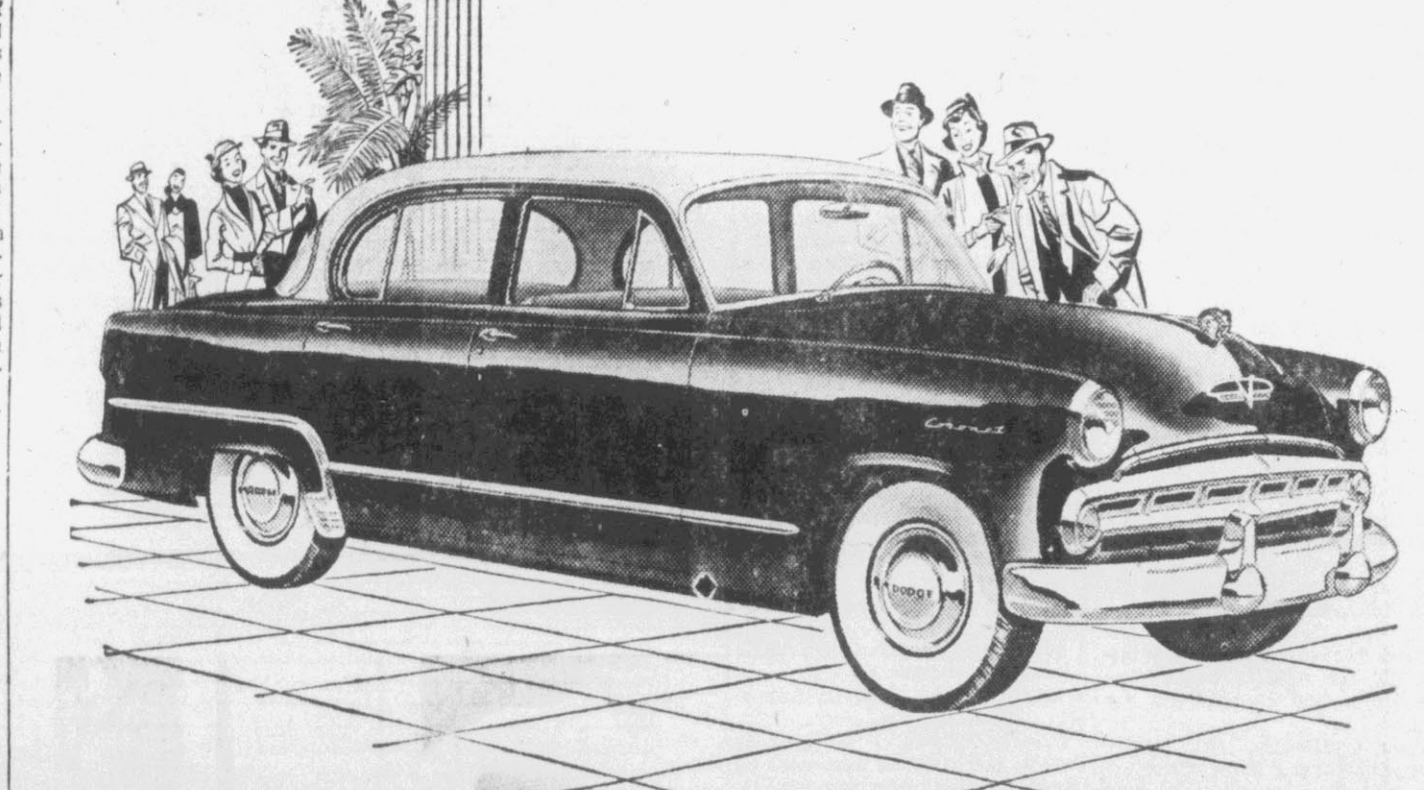

That's why so many houses going up now will have ALFOL Building Blanket insulation. ALFOL is aluminum foil insulation—"Reflective Insulation." It consists of one or two layers of aluminum foil with air spaces between them. The aluminum foil is attached to heavy moisture-proof paper. In summer, ALFOL literally turns the sun's heat round, sends it back to the outdoors. And in winter, ALFOL turns the heat from your heating system back into the room. Radiant heat can't get through aluminum foil.

Application is simple. No tools are needed but a hammer. Delivery and storing are less troublesome.

You can put enough ALFOL to insulate the average house in the back of your car.

Whether you're putting up a town full of houses—or simply insulating an attic, let us tell you more about ALFOL'S advantages to you.

Statehood Seems Sure For Hawaii

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—This year the people of Hawaii seem closer to the statehood they want than ever before. But for Alaskans who want statehood, too, the outlook is bleak.

Both houses of Congress must approve before either of the territories gets statehood. The House gave its blessing to Hawaii twice, 1947 and 1950, and to Alaska once, 1950. The Senate has always ignored or shied the question aside.

Nevertheless, Hawaiian and Alaskan statehood has been under examination by congressional committees for more than 15 years. In that time there have been more than a dozen hearings.

And for even longer the Democratic and Republican parties in their campaign platform promises have been, until recently, mumbling timidly about statehood for the two territories.

They were less enthusiastic about Alaska, contenting themselves, but probably not the Alaskans, with this phrase: "We favor statehood for Alaska under an equitable enabling act."

Hawaii has been traditionally Republican but oddly in 1952 the Democrats made gains there while Alaska, Democratic for years, in 1952 elected a Republican legislature.

President Eisenhower tried to live up to the Republican platform at once, for in his State of the Union message he said he wanted Hawaii to become a state fast. He didn't mention Alaska. Shortly afterwards, he put Hawaiian statehood on his list of 11 "must" items for Congress.

What makes it look better than ever for Hawaii is what's been said inside Congress, particularly in the Senate which has been the main stumbling block.

Sen. Butler of Nebraska, who had been ranking Republican member of the Senate's Interior and Insular Affairs Committee when the Democrats had a majority on it, used to be against Hawaiian statehood.

But now the Republicans run the committee, he's chairman, and shortly after the Republican election victory last fall he predicted Hawaiian statehood would be approved by the new Republican-controlled Congress. But he said he didn't believe Alaska would make the grade.

And Sen. Smathers, Florida Democrat and member of the same committee, recently gave as his guess that there wouldn't be "prolonged" discussion about Hawai. Coming from him, the statement had some significance. He led the Southern attack on statehood for Hawaii and Alaska in 1952. As states, Hawaii and Alaska might pose for Southern Democrats a problem they don't face now.

Being only territories, Hawaii and Alaska would be entitled to two senators and one or more House members. In their fight against civil rights legislation, the Southerners would have to worry about the weight the senators from Hawaii and Alaska might throw around.

But the argument given in the Capitol against statehood for Alaska boils down to this, rightly or wrongly: It's not economically fit for statehood yet. The same argument can't be raised against Hawaii which pays more taxes than each of 11 states.

Proper Lighting Prevents Crime

CLEVELAND, O. (U.P.)—The National Street and Traffic Safety Lighting Bureau here claims impressive inroads could be made in the national crime rate if streets were properly illuminated.

Statistics show, the bureau reported, that a "serious" crime occurs at the rate of one every 18 seconds in the United States. However, 75-to-80 per cent of all crimes are committed at night, and the bureau points to a consensus of police chiefs who believe a 50 per cent cut could be achieved in the after-dark crime wave with better lighting.

Figures also show, that 85 of every 100 street in the country are lighted by obsolete systems, while thousands of miles of streets have no lighting at all, the bureau said.

Stimulates Activities
In dollars-and-cents, the bureau estimated the annual crime bill at $10,355,000,000. Good street lighting would cost about $675,000,000 at most or $2.50 to $4.50 per capita with estimated savings the bureau said, of $3,000,000,000 from crime.

During darkness, the bureau's statistics show 8,260 rapes occur each year, 42,000 aggravated assaults, 80,500 automobiles are stolen and 261,000 homes and shops are burglarized. The survey of police chiefs indicates these figures could be cut almost in half.

Dream Sub Never Left Land, Has Useful Wind-Up

EAST HAMPTON, Conn. (U.P.)—Renato Valli has a dream boat in his back yard. It's a submarine that never left home.

Dreaming of adventure on the high seas, the Italian immigrant started building his submarine back in 1919. He riveted steel plates together by hand.

Gradually, the craft took shape. It was hard work. The lights burned far into the night in Valli's private shipbuilding plant.

The novice shipbuilder began looking for someone to join him on his planned adventures. Friends came to look at the shell of steel that was beginning to look like a submarine, but most laughed at Valli's dream.

Several years went by and the factory worker began putting in less and less time on his project. Discouraged by the lack of funds and the attitude of friends, he finally gave up the work. That was more than 20 years ago.

A Useful End
By then, the submarine was 27 feet long, looking a bit like a long sausage—open at the top—with a pointed nose. Eventually he would have built a windrotor and glass "windshield" on top. The rotor blades would have been geared to the propeller shaft for use if the engine failed. Valli designed the craft so it could submerge a few feet under the waves, taking in air from a steel pipe.

When visitors marvel at the engineering skill apparently put into the craft, Valli tells them: "I'm no engineer. I don't really know much about ships. I had to dream... that's all."

Now 62, Valli still talks wistfully about his dream of adventure. He hopes someone will take up the job where he left off. He wants to see his submarine in water before he dies.

In the meantime, the factory worker is a practical man. When the fuel oil man comes to Valli's house, he goes to the little ship-building plant in the back yard.

It's almost as though the Valli submarine were being refueled for a voyage as the oilman pumps his product into the hull.

Valli's dream boat is now a fuel tank.

Recruit Hits 20 Bullseyes In Row

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (AP)—Pvt. Earl Taylor of Waynesburg astounded his officers on the rifle range at Camp Bell, Ky., a few days ago when, at his first target practice, he fired 20 straight "bullseyes."

Not until they had gone to the pit and checked the target themselves did the officers believe the raw recruit had accomplished the feat.

Upon questioning, Pvt. Taylor confessed that shortly before entering the armed services he had established a world's junior record at 50 yards in a National Rifle Association meet and that he holds a number of state rifle championships in Pennsylvania.

Audience Pleased By Concert Last Sunday

At their annual Winter Concert last Sunday afternoon, the East Carolina Orchestra and the Varsity Glee Club of East Carolina College won an enthusiastic response from an audience representing the campus, Greenville, and other towns of this area.

The East Carolina Orchestra, made up of fifty musicians from the college and from Pitt County, was conducted by Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director of the college department of music. Interest in the cooperative work of both campus and community brought to the Wright auditorium a group of approximately a thousand people, whose prolonged applause after numbers indicated their pleasure in the afternoon's performance.

The orchestra opened the program with the Grand March from "Aida," played the Nocturne from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," and accompanied soloists and the glee club.

Three students of music, soloists in compositions for piano and for voice, were a chief attraction of the concert. Pianists Marietta Hooper of Elizabeth City and Dolores Matthews of Henderson, pupils of Robert Carter of the faculty, appeared with the orchestra in movements from concertos by Mozart and Beethoven, respectively.

Bernard Ham of Portsmouth, Va., baritone, sang with the orchestra the Prologue to Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci," and, accompanied by his teachers Mrs. Gladys Reichard White, gave several encores.

The Varsity Glee Club, vocal ensemble of forty-six men students, sang a group of scheduled selections and also several request numbers, including the Fred Waring arrangement of "Onward Christian Soldiers." Dr. Cuthbert directed the group.

appeal may be taken to the courts. Existing law requires payment of whatever taxes may be assessed by the State, and if the assessment is considered excessive the only relief is to pay under protest and sue in civil court for recovery.

REVERSED—That policy puts all the burden upon the taxpayers. The Long bill would put major burden to prove validity of the assessment upon the tax collector, in that payment would not be required until final judgment had been rendered by the tax appeals commission or the courts. In actual experience there might not be much difference in ultimate results. Technically there is this difference: The present law presumes that the taxpayer is trying to beat the State out of honestly due taxes; the proposed bill recognizes possibility of error on the part of the men who assess the taxes. Sponsors of the measure insist that the probable rare occasions of taxpayers appealing solely for the purpose of gaining time will be far less than the present number of instances in which the State forcibly takes money from a citizen, who is able to show that it should not have been taken in the first place.

COURT—Although called a commission the proposed new agency would be essentially a court, with only certified public accountants and licensed attorneys (and presumably litigants in their own right) qualified to practice before it, and with fixed rules of procedure. State tax assessing and collecting agencies have consistently opposed this type of legislation in the past, because it puts larger burden upon them to justify the levies made. On the other hand, many taxpayers have desired it as being in line with other court policy that the defendant is innocent until proven guilty.

CLARIFICATION—A great many of the bills offered by lawyers purporting to "clarify" the statutes seem to the layman more confusing than the original. Two name-changing proposals the past week make sense. The institution at Durham which is officially designated the "North Carolina Hospital for the Treatment of Spastic Children" would be changed to "North Carolina Cerebral Palsy Hospital." Another bill would change the name of the North Carolina Christian Missionary convention to "North Carolina Christian Missionary Society," which more accurately expresses the purposes of the organization.

Cadillac

Where Silence Is Eloquent!

Have you ever heard a 1953 Cadillac?

The odds are that you haven't—unless you've listened quite carefully.

For it is a literal fact that you must concentrate to detect the sound of a Cadillac car in motion... save, of course, for the soft song of the passing wind and the quiet hum of the tires on the pavement.

Even that great, powerful engine never raises its voice above a whisper!

But, oh, the wonderful, wonderful story this marvelous quiet tells.

It tells, for instance, of Cadillac's rigid adherence to the highest ideals of automotive construction... of the great engineering that enables every part of the car to perform in perfect harmony... of the magnificent styling and design that give the car its smooth, easy, steady, floating ride... and of the flawless craftsmanship that keeps the car so unbelievably free from vibration through the miles and the years.

And, of course, it speaks with equal clarity of the many things a Cadillac provides its owner.

It promises rest and relaxation... and a freedom from distraction that adds safety to every journey.

It foretells mile after mile of extraordinary dependability and a minimum of upkeep expense.

And, of course, it prophesies longevity... and, hence, bespeaks the wisdom and soundness of its owner's investment.

Yes, the quiet of the Cadillac car tells a wonderful story all of its own. And it's one that we think you should "hear" for yourself.

Why not come in soon—and spend an hour with a 1953 Cadillac?

We think you'll agree that silence has never been more eloquent.

Rev. Russell Speaks At Rotary Club Anniversary

Rev. Leon Russell was principal speaker last night at the Greenville Rotary Club celebrated the 48th anniversary of the founding of Rotary International.

"When the history of the 20th century is written," Russell asserted, "the careful writer will not overlook Rotary." Since its beginning on February 23, 1905, Rotary has grown to almost 8,000 clubs in more than 80 countries with a membership which now exceeds 365,000. Last year alone some 300 new Rotary clubs were organized.

"You and I have adopted the creed of Rotary — Service Above Self," Russell said. "It is an ideal which must be expressed in international service, community service, club service and vocational service. Rotary doesn't mean anything unless its ideals are put into practice."

The speaker pointed to the work Rotary clubs have done in the past six years with the Rotary Foundation which has enabled more than 400 young people from 48 nations to become good will ambassadors in foreign nations to promote world understanding, brotherhood and peace. "As Rotary is able to bridge these chasms between nations and bring about brotherhood, it contributes to world peace," he declared.

In the community, Russell said, Rotary strives to build people who can carry on community projects, and believes a community progresses when its people have an attitude of service.

Speaking of club service, Russell commented, "I hope you have joined Rotary because you believe in service above self, because it gives you an opportunity to serve and an opportunity to help others." As members of Rotary, the speaker stressed the importance of Rotarians seeking to live the creed of Rotary in their attitudes toward international, community, club and vocational affairs.

Last night the club recognized the five charter members of the Greenville Rotary club who are members J. E. Winslow, E. A. Stroud, Ernest Willard, Haywood Dail and J. B. Kittrell, Sr. The club also recognized its past presidents.

The Greenville Rotary club was organized September 8, 1919.

J. E. Winslow and Haywood Dail made short talks on their experiences with other Rotary clubs throughout the country.

Billy Goodson was a guest of the club as were visiting Rotarians Jack Quinley, Snod Edwards and T. G. Worthington all of Ayden.

TOKYO (AP) — The Japan Motion Picture Association estimates 680 million Japanese saw 933 motion pictures at 3,700 movie houses throughout Japan in 1952.

Movie houses showed 261 Japanese and 195 foreign movies. The latter included 153 American, 12 British, 10 French, five Italian and four German films. The association's bulletin said the Japanese movie industry grossed about $4 million dollars.

New Slim-Look Coats

Fashion takes a bow in the direction of the tall gal this spring, offering her a wide range of the popular fleecy, nubby and delicately surfaced finishes for her new Spring coat. On the left, an angora-like wool topcoat; in the middle, a slim boucle coat; and on the right, a two-tone boucle with solid skirt and jacket trim. All from A. Davis Tail Mss.

The coat story for Spring is a varied one, with styles running the fashion gamut from the reed-slim to the sweeping flare coat.

The slim line is one of the newest in coats, and stresses a columnar look that is as easy to wear as it is distinctive. A feminine effect is retained by use of flattering necklines, soft and luscious fabrics, and the all-important matching or contrasting stole.

As in the new Spring dresses, the fitted coat no longer relies on the cinch to attain a tiny waistline. Skirts are gently slimmed down, and the hipline may be emphasized with slight padding. The waistline and midriff are smooth, molded to give a high-rising Empire look. Collars provide a soft frame for the face, or are cut away deeply to flatter the neckline.

The "Long Shorties" — Of new importance too this Spring, are the long shorties, or seven-eighths coats, often shown with companion skirts and blouses; the narrowly tapered coat, worn "clutch style" rather than buttoned; the classic, tailored Chesterfield, dressed up with novel seaming and the shortie jacket, as versatile as ever.

Stoles cover just about everything, often broad-trimmed or fringed for glamour.

Harris reported that a car driven by Ben L. Iner, 31, was involved in an accident with a car operated by Phillip A. Averett, 19.

No injuries were reported, but Averett was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

Tiny Shrew Said Fiercest Animal

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The fiercest animal on earth, says Alan Devoe, writing in "Frontiers," is not the tiger or grizzly bear but the tiny shrew.

Some species are so small that they come 14 to an ounce. A shrew is so tough it will attack and devour almost any animal up to twice its size and so voracious it eats its own weight in meat every three hours. Without food, it starves to death in less than a day. It dies of old age in about 15 months.

Seek Admission To Trade Meet

MANILA (AP) — Italy, Hungary and Finland are seeking admission to a special conference of the United Nations Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East in Manila next month. The conference will deal with world trade promotion.

The United States, France, Great Britain and the Netherlands are sending delegates to the meeting. They are regular members of ECAFE.

Soviet Is Holding U.S. Responsible

MOSCOW (UP) — The United States was responsible for all the anti-Soviet acts which led to the break of diplomatic relations between the Soviet Union and Israel, the Russian government newspaper Izvestia said today.

The U.S.-sponsored acts included the bombing of the Soviet legation in Tel Aviv, the newspaper said.

Russia broke relations with Israel Feb. 11 for "openly incited hostile acts against the Soviet Union."

The newspaper said the former U.S. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. and two New York congressmen, Emanuel Celler, a Democrat, and Jacob K. Javits, a Republican, had worked out a plan to make Israel America's principal anti-Communist stronghold in the Middle East.

Izvestia said that although the late Israeli President Chaim Weizmann and other Zionist leaders were paid agents of British intelligence the real Zionist bosses always have been the United States.

Phantoms End Season In Kinston Tonight

Ex-Vanderbilt Coach Joins Tar Heel Staff

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UP) — Athletic Director C. P. (Chuck) Erickson last night announced that Bill Edwards, 47, coached Vanderbilt teams to 21 wins, 19 losses and two ties in four years at Nashville. Often the engineer of an upset, he was unable to hip Vandy's most-hated rival, the University of Tennessee and there was discontent after Tennessee thrashed Edwards' last Commodore eleven soundly in the final game of the 1951 season.

Edwards was replaced at Vanderbilt by former University of Virginia Coach Arthur L. Guepe. "I'm very pleased," Barclay said. "I now have two assistants who have been head college coaches and also with experience in professional football." Line coach Marvin Bass is a former William and Mary head coach and served as an aide with the pro Washington Redskins.

Edwards went to Vanderbilt from the staff of Paul Brown, head coach of the pro Cleveland Browns. Earl Edwards coached at Western Reserve where his undefeated team once played in the Sun Bowl. In 1941 he was head coach of the Detroit Lions.

His appointment was approved yesterday by the UNC board of trustees and was announced by Chancellor Robert B. House and

NE Tournament Begins Thursday In Kinston Gym

The regrouped Greenville Phantoms invade Kinston tonight for their final regular season basketball game.

Thursday night the Northeastern Conference Tournament opens in Kinston. Northeastern officials met recently and drew following pairings for the tournament.

THURSDAY
Elizabeth City vs. Washington, 6:30 p.m.
Roanoke Rapids vs. Edenton, 8 p.m.
Greenville vs. New Bern, 9:30 p.m.

FRIDAY
Kinston vs. Elizabeth City-Washington winner, 7:30 p.m.
Roanoke Rapids-Edenton winner vs. Greenville-New Bern winner, 9 p.m.

SATURDAY
Consolation game, 7:30 p.m.
Championship game, 9:00 p.m.

With Smith Worthington, Leon Hardee and George Siders ready for full time action the Phantoms will be in full force for the first time since a mid-season plague of flu.

A victory for the Red Devils of Kinston would clinch the Northeastern crown and bring an automatic invitation to the State AA High School Basketball Tournament in Winston-Salem on March 12, 13 and 14.

Against Edenton Tuesday night the Phantoms showed signs of returning to early season form that carried them through four straight conference triumphs. After a siege of illness the Phantoms quickly dropped six conference games in a row.

Working out in starting positions yesterday were Leon Hardee and Smith Worthington at forwards, Hal Edwards at center, George Siders, Edgar Moore and Jimmy Cheatham alternating at guards.

Fordham, State Clash Tonight In Coliseum

By the Associated Press

Fordham and North Carolina State, two of the country's outstanding college basketball teams, clash in a battle of giants at Raleigh tonight.

But Southern Conference fans will be watching another game with equal interest.

That one pits Duke's Blue Devils, fighting for one of the remaining berths in the loop tournament next month at Raleigh, against a hapless Davidson club that has only been able to win three out of 12 circuit games this season. Duke, which will face North Carolina Friday night, must win one and possibly both of these tilts to get a tournament look-in.

In the Rams-Wolfpack clash, Fordham will be laying an 18-4 record on the line against an N.C. State mark of 22 and five. The Rams will be out for blood since they are in the running for either an NCAA or an NIT tourney bid.

Yesterday, they were invited to take part in a playoff for a spot in the NCAA eastern regionals.

The only other game tonight involving a Tar Heel team sends the Norfolk Apprentice Navy quintet against Atlantic Christian College at Wilson.

Last night, Wake Forest's Demon Deacons closed out their season with a conference record of 12-3 by virtue of an 88-66 victory over South Carolina. Dickie Hemric and Jack Williams of the Deacons, the second-best one-two scoring punch in the nation, racked up 58 points between them to help sink the Gamecocks.

Hemric, connected for 33 and Williams bucketed 25 Johnny Petersen led the South Carolina forces with 19 tallies.

Davidson, meanwhile, was absorbing its 12th licking of the campaign, this one at the hands of Clemson, 72-58. The only ray of light came in the hands of Captain Joe Dudley, who for the Wildcats was the performance of the night, racking up 28 points to lead both teams. Before he fouled out with five minutes left to play, Dudley had racked up more than half his team's total production for the night. Marvin Robinson led the Tiger attack with 20 points.

Louisiana State Wins SEC Title; Eye NCAA Meet

ATLANTA (UP) — Louisiana State University held its first Southeastern Conference basketball championship in 18 years today and set its sights on the National Collegiate Athletic Association Tournament.

The Bengals, led by the SEC's most likely candidate for a berth on the all-America team, rangy Bob Pettit, dumped the University of Mississippi 63 to 48 last night to run their season conference record to 11 wins and no losses.

Last night's triumph nailed down for sure the elusive crown that has escaped LSU since 1935, as runner-up Tulane now has no mathematical chance to catch the Bengals.

Pettit, six-foot, nine-inch conference scourge garnered 29 points to bring his college scoring total to 1,003 points and establish him as the third man in LSU history to crack the 1,000-point mark.

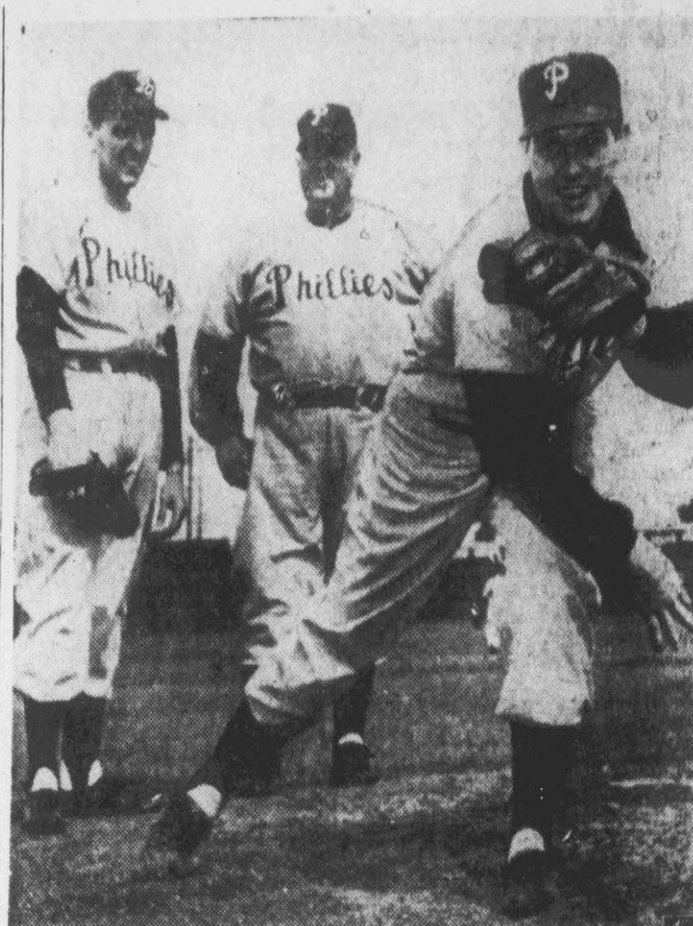

Between now and the NCAA tourney in March, the Bengals have only two games to go in quest of an undefeated conference season and an over-all record that to date shows just one defeat.

Tulane dropped the Bengals in an early season upset, but that defeat was avenged by the Tigers the hard way, Jan. 26. The new SEC kingpins downed Tulane 55-51 in the return engagement although Pettit was sidelined with influenza.

Meanwhile, Tulane, thanks to the help of the onrushing Tennessee Volunteers, took over undisputed claim on second place in the SEC. The Green Wave, which going into last night's game was tied for runner-up honors with Florida, defeated Georgia Tech 70 to 55, while Tennessee won its contest with Florida, 82-73.

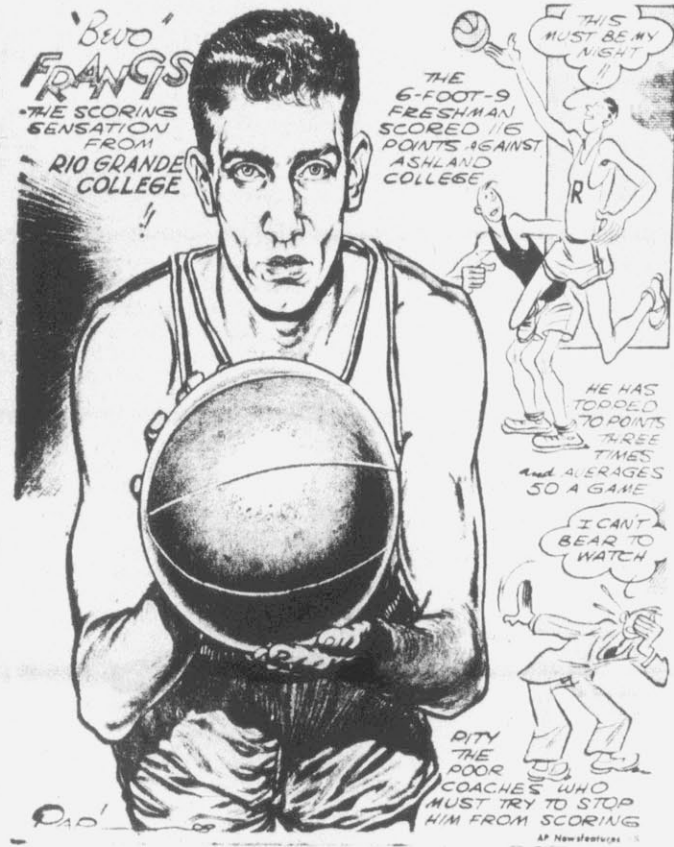

The Tennessee win, coupled with Florida's loss, dropped the Gators into a 3rd place tie with the Volunteers, each having a 7-4 conference record. Tulane has won eight of its 11 loop games.

The only other conference game last night saw Alabama dump Vanderbilt 88-80.

Neyland's Successor Is North Carolinian

ASHEVILLE (AP)—In September 1929 a lucky youth who had been an outstanding quarterback for a Weaver College near Asheville enrolled at the University of North Carolina and went out for football.

He matriculated at North Carolina largely because his older brother, also an ex-Weaver star, had been a lineman for the Tar Heels.

There had been no pressure in North Carolina to get the boy. Coach Chuck Collins put the youth on a third-string freshman team as a guard.

The lad balked and, despite his older brother's entreaties to stay put, left North Carolina and reported to Gen. Bob Neyland at Tennessee.

Neyland returned him to the familiar quarterback spot and the ability to do yeoman work for the Vols in 1930, 1931 and 1932. In 1930 he understudied Bobby Dodd, now head coach at Georgia Tech.

That player—Harvey Robinson—yesterday was named to replace Neyland as head football coach at Tennessee. Robinson will direct the Vols against North Carolina next fall in one of Dixie's big grid rivalries.

The story of how Harvey transferred from North Carolina to Tennessee was told here today by his brother, George F. Robinson, a lawyer.

"In my opinion," said the attorney, "Harvey was the best backfield prospect to be developed in this part of the country until the advent of Charlie Justice."

"I had played in the line at Carolina for 1923 to 1925," he continued, "and I used what influence I had to get Harvey a tuition scholarship based on both his football ability and his marks. For he was always a fine student. Harvey liked Carolina and since I had gone there it was naturally assumed that he would follow suit. Duke was after him, and so was Tennessee."

"My brother is a worshiper of Gen. Neyland. He and the general have always clicked perhaps because they both agree on the importance of fundamentals. Harvey always says that, despite all these new systems, football is still blocking and tackling."

Little League Directors Meet

The Greenville Little League Board of Directors will hold its first 1953 meeting in the Armory Wednesday, February 25, at 7:30 p.m.

Bucs Face Tough Elon And Top-Seeded Jinx

A big jinx and an opponent that is annually a good tournament team loomed today as East Carolina College's biggest hurdle in the North State Conference tournament which will open tomorrow night in Winston-Salem.

The jinx is one which has affected top-seeded teams almost since the tournament was started. It's a jinx which says that the first ranked team won't be around when the championship game is played. There's no hard and fast rule which says that the top-ranked team has to be defeated in preliminary play but only High Point College has been able to whip it in recent years.

Last year, for instance, Elon and Appalachian were tied for first place in the regular season standings but both teams were on the outside looking in when Lenoir Rhyne took home the bacon.

The Bucs' first round opponent, the Guilford Quakers, is another big hurdle the Pirates will have to clear before they can start on the road toward their first loop title. The Quakers always come up with good tournament teams and pulled two upsets last year before they were finally bounced out.

On paper, the Pirates appear to hold the edge over Guilford. Coach Howard Porter's team came on top in both the regular season games between the clubs and both games were won by rather decisive margins.

At Guilford, guard Cecil Heath sank seven out of eight free throws in the last three minutes to assure the Pirates of a 78-58 victory while in Greenville Bobby Hodges and Sonny Russell accounted for 52 points to an 81-63 victory. The Quakers will answer the Pirates with the Conference's top scorer and a smooth working team.

Bob Shoaf, a senior from High Point, is the point machine for the Quakers with an average of more than 24 points per game.

The Quakers' attack is built around Shoaf and guard Bobby Callicutt, a red-headed sophomore from Thomasville who played high school ball with a pair of the Pirates, Charlie Huffman and Paul Jones. Callicutt is the team's playmaker and has several times slipped in the leading scorer's slot when Shoaf was bottled up by ambitious opponents.

Callicutt is also the big man in Guilford's zone defense—the biggest troublemaker for the Pirates who run from a series of set patterns. Yesterday, the Pirates worked out against variations of the Guilford defense and plan further work along those lines today and tomorrow.

The Pirates will leave for the tournament Thursday morning. Their game with Guilford will be at 9:15 Thursday night. All of the tournament games will be played in the Reynolds High School Gymnasium in Winston-Salem.

Golf Day Will Be Held May 23

NEW YORK—Last year in a special tournament, 14,667 golfers from 2,114 clubs "defeated" Ben Hogan, 1951 national open champ.

Each contestant pays one dollar to enter the event. Proceeds go to worthy causes as decided by the National Golf Fund, Inc.

After the 1952 tourney was completed, approximately $40,000 was given to the U.S.O. and $20,000 to golf projects and charities. Another $20,000 will be distributed soon.

Gunfighter's Return

by Leslie Ernenwein

Chapter 22
Even then Rimbaud thought he might be dreaming; might be imagining this. What would Della be doing here?
"Are you shot?" she insisted.
"No, but they busted my ribs," Rimbaud said.
"You poor man!" she cried.
"Let me help you into the cabin."
"Find my gun first," Rimbaud suggested. "It's over there near the water trough. I'll need it when they come back."
"I heard the shooting," Della said worriedly, "and one rider going away fast. Was it Sam?"
"Reckon so."
"I hope they don't catch him," Della said. "Oh, I hope he gets away."
"How about getting my gun?" Rimbaud prompted. "I'm liable to need it any time."
It took a few moments for her to find it—moments while Jim Rimbaud listened for the sound of approaching riders. Long moments, while his nerves drew wire-tight and he was like Sam Maiben had been this morning.
"A little more to the left," he directed impatiently when Della called for directions.

Again, as it had out here this afternoon, awful helplessness swept through him. He'd have no chance against them without a gun. And now, with a sickening sense of futility slogging through him, he heard Della exclaim, "here it is! I've found it!"
"Good girl," Rimbaud said sighingly. "Good girl!"
Afterward, when she'd given him his gun Della went into the house and lit a lamp she found in the bedroom. Then she came out totting one of the drapes from a window saying, "I'll bind your side with this."
Seeing the way perspiration greased his battered face as he sat up and took off his shirt, she said, "I wish there was some whiskey for you. It might kill the hurt."
"There is," Rimbaud reported, and accomplished a grin. "On the bottom shelf, behind the flour and sugar."
And now, as he watched her go into the house, a sardonic sense of amusement came to him. What a joke this was—Lew Stromberg's daughter aiding the man her father hated! And she was the girl he'd called a brat.

When Della fetched the jug, Rimbaud took a long swig, and sighed, and said gustily "You're all right, kid. By God, you're plenty all right!"
That pleased Della and she showed it in the way she smiled at him. "You're all right yourself," she said, crouching down and getting her shoulder under his right arm. "I'll help you up."
It wasn't far to the four-poster bed. But it proved a slow and painful journey for Jim Rimbaud. Despite Della's supporting shoulder, he had to halt repeatedly, and each time she gave him a pull at the jug. When the last painful maneuver onto the bed had been accomplished, Della brought him a cup of hot coffee spiked with whiskey, saying, "This will help you relax."
It did. The breath-taking barbs of pain lessened to a dull ache, and presently, as she washed his bloodstained face with a wet cloth, the ache dissolved into a wooden numbness. He had difficulty keeping his eyes open, especially the right one, which was oad, swoolen. He said censurously, "You've got me drunk," and liked the sound of her girlish laughter.
"You remind me of Sam," she said, "because you're so helpless. He seems like that all the time. If Maiben appealed to Eve for him."
Rimbaud felt sorry for her then, knowing how little chance there was of her winning Maiben away from Eve Odegarde. He wondered if Maiben appealed to Even for the same reason. He said, "I guess you're no. the only one who feels like doing for Sam."
"I guess not," Della agreed. A frown clouded her heart-shaped face and she said angrily, "But Eve Odegarde doesn't love Sam the way I do. You wouldn't catch her coming for her man when he's in starve to death in the brush for all she'd do! She's too much of a lady to traipse into the hills looking for her man when he's in trouble. But Sam doesn't seem to understand that. Sometimes I think he's stupid."
Stupid like a fox, Rimbaud thought. Maiben would take what Della had to give him, and then marry Eve Odegarde when he got in the clear. Nothing stupid about that.
So sleepy now that he could scarcely keep his eyes open, Rimbaud said, "Don't let me drowse off. No telling what those three sons will come back for another try at me."
"I'll take care of them," Della promised. "I can spook Booger Bill by just yelling scat at him. He's afraid of women."
She laughed.
It was an odd thing. The laughter seemed to merge with voices afterward, and Rimbaud thought he heard Della about something to someone in the yard. One of the voices sounded like Hugh Jubal, which seemed important somehow. But he couldn't identify the reason. Vaguely, dreamily he remembered being in a fight, but it was blurred and confusing, like a dream that didn't make sense. Once when a sharp siver of pain lanced his side, he heard Della's soothing voice and felt her soft woman's hand on his forehead. Her palm was astonishingly cool against his skin, which was peculiar, for they were sitting their horses in a switchback turn above Embrace

Olivia De Havilland casts her spell over Richard Burton in this scene from "MY COUSIN RACHEL". The dramatization of Daphne Du Maurier's best seller.

Canyon and Della was perspiring as she told him about the singing laughter.
Or so it seemed.

Conant Outlines Education Plan

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (U.P.)—Dr. James Bryant Conant, who left the presidency of Harvard to become U.S. high commissioner to Germany, suggests this 10-point formula for the development of American education:
1. No more and no larger four-year colleges.
2. Contraction of four-year programs in universities.
3. Expansion of two-year college courses, preferably in local terminal colleges.
4. Creation of a "climate of opinion" where length of education after 18 years is no considered the hallmark of respectability.
5. Expansion of junior and senior high schools and revision of their curricula.
6. Adherence to the comprehensive high school with a common core of studies for all pupils and tougher training for the gifted.
7. Exploration of "work experience programs."
8. More scholarships for potential professional men and women.

Ayden Student Qualifies For Oratory Event

AYDEN—Wilbur Jackson of Ayden was declared first place winner in the American Legion oratorical contest yesterday.

By winning first place in the contest, he has qualified for the division competition against county winners in this area.

A Greenville High School sophomore, John Brooks, was awarded second prize. Both speakers presented the story of the Constitution effectively, said a contest spokesman.

Student teachers from East Carolina College judged the contest which was planned by Superintendent of the City Schools J. H. Rose, chairman of the contest in the county.

Canadian Says Distorted View Of UN Spread

WINTER PARK, Fla. (UP)—Lester Pearson, president of the United Nations General Assembly, says people are getting the "false impression" that the U. N. secretariat is "full" of dangerous subversives.

"This is a distortion of the true picture," Pearson told an audience at Rollins College here yesterday. "Its creation and spreading does no service to the cause of national security or international cooperation."

Pearson, of Canada, added that "any careless, irresponsible action or talk which might divide us and aid the enemy would be criminal folly."

Pearson, a speaker at an annual Rollins forum, received an honorary degree of doctor of literature from Hugh P. McKean, president of the College.

Slim Skirts For Spring Styles

"Slim and easy" is the predominant theme of the new Spring suits this season, with a wide range in interpretations of this so very flattering look. Skirts are uniformly slim, with all the fashion interest centered on the all-important jacket.

Variations of this look include the box-jacket suit, with emphasis on the wider shoulder look, the fitted suit with longer jacket, the semi-fitted effect, inspired by the Paris designers, and the practical three-piece "walking suit" ensemble.

The box-jacket suit makes news this Spring, being popular with every figure type because of its easy fit, and slenderizing effect when coupled with its reed-slim skirt. Many jackets have a carved oval look, carried out with curving button and facing trim.

The cardigan box-jacket introduces texture news in facings of self or knitted trim, braid, fringe, or tiny pin-tucking. And the cut-away or tuxedo jacket often reveals a dyed-to-match wool jersey, silk or cotton blouse as part of the costume look.

Shows Off Blouses
The tailored suit, classic and flattering, is again important, in sheer gabardines especially; meticulously fitted to the body, the collarless and clean-lined open necklines invite the soft, pretty show of the new, feminine blouses. "Custom tailoring" details, such as self bindings, precise pockets and slimming skirts add to the neat, spare line. Lightweight fabrics, including the gabardines, tweeds, flannels, jerseys and synthetic blends, tailor beautifully, and their light, practical weight give the wearer more good use from season to season.

Look for the longer jacket line this Spring, both in boxy and fitted styles. Molded over the hip and slightly eased at the waist, this season's fitted jacket is far cry from the man-tailored or the exaggerated padded style of yesterday. Cardigan necklines add to the overall slim effect.

The slim, elongated silhouette centers too on the compromise between the box and the fitted jacket, with both neckline and waistline cut slightly away from the figure. A miracle of fitting gives slender lines without the precise figure-hugging cut American women have come to think necessary. Inspired by the Paris collections, this line has been successfully adapted here, and is one of the most prophetic of all silhouettes.

Tweeds for Spring
Look for the use of nubby bouclés, soft fleeces, interesting mo-

hair blends and softer tweeds. Harder suitings such as worsted crepe, sheen ga ardine and sharkskin present an equally exciting side of fashion news this season. And jersey is the big surprise of the year, in both little and boxy suits, and traveins, ensembles.

Tweed, the standby for winter suits, puts on a new face for Spring wear. In a bubble-light weight, it lends itself beautifully to the exacting demands of the new suit tailoring, proving a boon for travelers and those who like year-round wear from their basic suits. Braid, fringe, and sharp white touches in linen accentuate the luscious fabrics.

Denim, rayon and rayon-synthetic blends, as well as cotton and linen, make sturdy, fashionable "look like tweeds," flashed with jewel and embroidery accents that dress them up for town wear.

Look for the new and improved use of synthetic fabrics in the new suits. Blends of dacron, orlon acrilan, viscose, vicara and rayon, used in conjunction with wool and silk have an elegant look and all the properties of good travelers.

The costume suit is a feminine version of the slim line for Spring. Right for every woman who leads a busy life, this fashion adapts itself to day-into-evening wear, perhaps with a change of accessories.

The slim wrap coat, elegantly tailored and at home with either casual or dressy fashions, will be a wardrobe basic this Spring. Here it is in precious cashmere by Eniger Mills. A Lederman Brothers coat.

Most Of Liquor Down The Drain

"...and with a slow gurgle, the last vestige of the powerful evidence vanished down the drain."

With those words, Pitt County ABC Officer J. M. Ward explained how a 25-year-old Negro woman poured the contents of a pickle jar—which he said contained "white" whiskey—into the sink.

The officer stated the dumping maneuver took place Saturday night at a business establishment in Greenville operated by Lilly G. Hooks. "She tried hard to destroy the evidence," Ward declared.

The raiding force confiscated the jar and enough remains of the liquor to make out a case. They recognized her to appear in City Police Court yesterday.

Lilly was found guilty by Judge Charles H. Whedbee and fined $25 and costs, and sentenced to 30 days suspended for six months.

Ward said the raid took place at a grocery store-dance hall combination which the woman operates on Pitt Street.

New Mineral Finds In Asia

TOKYO A(P)—The Peiping Red radio says new iron and coal discoveries have been made in China proper and Manchuria.

Two coal fields have been found in the Wei River area of Shensi province, the radio said. It described as "new and rich" the iron deposits discovered in the Lung-Yeh iron mining area of Manchuria.

The radio said part of the new deposits can be worked by open-face methods.

Old Age Assistance Cases Subject Of Sample Study

Pitt County has been selected, with 22 counties in this state from which a sample study on Old Age Assistance cases during the month of April, will be made.

K.T. Furelle, superintendent of Pitt County welfare Department, announced this morning that the county has been selected by the Bureau of Public Assistance of the Federal Security Agency for study of its old age assistance cases. Furelle, said about 2,000 cases in North Carolina are included in the survey and about 20 percent of the old age assistance cases in the county will be given study.

The superintendent pointed out that the study has been carefully planned with a view to making the findings of maximum value not only to the Bureau of Public Assistance but to other groups, Federal and State, concerned with the aged.

The sample study throughout the nation will be a basis for program planning and policy development and in recommendations to legislative bodies for future legislation. "The detailed study of requirements, income, resources, and social characteristics on each case studied will be of great value to the local welfare office," said the superintendent.

Beach Said To Need Cleanup

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Rio's famed Copacabana Beach is in need of a cleanup, according to the newspaper Correio da Manhã.

The paper says that storm sewers from nearby streets now empty directly onto the beach, one of the showspots of the hemisphere. The result is that sections of the beach are being eroded, and stagnant pools are forming in others. The water near the outflow is unfit for swimming.

Peron Supports Israeli Cause

SANTIAGO, Chile (UP)—Argentine President Juan L. Peron says his country will always stand at the side of Israel because its cause is "just and honest."

Peron made the statement yesterday to a delegation of the Jewish community of Chile which thanked him for his friendship toward Israel and his previous condemnation of communist anti-Semitism.

The Argentine chief executive is making a state visit to Chile.

Model Fliers In Global Event

CRANFIELD, England (AP)—The United States, Canada and 13 European countries will compete here next August in the 1953 model flying world championships.

The European countries entering the meet sponsored by the Society of Model Aeronautical Engineers are: Britain, France, Belgium, Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland, Yugoslavia, Spain, eastern Germany, Finland, Sweden, Denmark and Eire.

More Fertilizer Is Recommended For Local Crops

Increased fertilizer use is the best way to meet the lower farm prices - higher cost squeeze which is plaguing farmers, County Agent Sam Winchester said today.

Under present circumstances, farmers must keep a weather eye out so as to reduce expenses on items which do not offer adequate returns, the County Agent explained.

Such is not the case with fertilizer expenditures; in fact the dividends from its proper use make it the farmer's best bargain.

In 1940, $1 invested in fertilizer brought a $2 dividend in extra crops; six months ago this investment brought an average return of $3.75, with dividends on certain specialty crops such as tomatoes running as high as $15.

Even with a slump in market prices, far greater than experienced in recent months, fertilizer will remain the best guardian of the farmer's economic welfare, he said.

By increasing output per acre, through greater fertilizer use a farmer can maintain and even bolster his net income, Winchester pointed out.

The major explanation for this favorable situation lies in the fact that fertilizer prices have not risen as fast as prices for other commodities the farmer buys. During the past 12 years, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, prices paid by farmers have gone up almost 100 percent, and farm wages have jumped 140 percent, while fertilizer prices have increased only 50 percent.

Present need is for more corn fertilizer for higher bushel yield per acre. For average corn land, 400 pounds of 5-10-10, for corn in a tobacco-corn rotation program, uses 350 pounds, 6-6-12.

Top dress at six to eight weeks, or when the corn is about two and one half feet high, with 60-80 pounds of nitrogen.

Winchester recommended, that farmers buy the cheapest source of pure nitrogen available.

"For more specific recommendations, or recommendations on problem soils, contact the Vocational Agriculture teacher in your community or the County Agent's office," Winchester urged.

Bonnets And Sailors To Flatter Profile Coming

Spring millinery fashions for 1953 have a charm which no feminine heart can resist. Dainty little shapes that curve and sling, or spreading parasol brims that cast flattering shadows, they all have a light-headed look that is definitely appealing.

The bonnet and the sailor are again at the head of fashion's list. The most wearable bonnets have curving, face-framing brims that are angled for profile-flattery. Sailors are smartest with shallow crowns and narrow brims, posed just back of the hairline. Sometimes the silhouette is a subtle blend — a sailor with a rippling bonnet brim or a bonnet with the smooth roundness of a sailor.

The bell-shaped cloche in its Spring variation is shallower and has a softer, irregular brim. Little cap shapes have high-flying feathered or flowered, the pillbox is scalloped or dimpled or cuffed with a tiny rolled brim, and wide-brimmed hats share the trend to less crown and gentler brims.

Texture is predominant in Spring straw and fabrics, particularly the deep, soft, mossy textures achieved by combining transparent and translucent straws.

Highly Polished Surface
An iridescent look is found in combinations of fine-sewn braid in row-on-row of white and color, or ombre shadings. Smooth straws are often striped, plaid, or checked. Newest of all the Spring straw textures is the glossy satin sheen of highly polished straw.

The flower-trimmed hat is most likely to bear a single full-blown rose, or masses of delicate miniature blossoms such as forget-me-nots, violets, clover or apple blossoms. Vells, too, are important both for "trimming" and as flattering masks over the brow.

The Spring color palette ranges from the brightest to the palest shades. The vivid contrast of black on white, and the warm blonde beiges are the really neutral combinations. Bold color combinations, such as orange-and-pink, turquoise-and-violet, or royal-and-lime, are high fashion this year.

Among the quieter, harmonious costume colors echoed in hats of straw, felt or fabric are the sunny yellows, mossy yellow-greens; gentian blue, bright turquoise, sapphire; petal pink, scarlet and crimson; copper and beige; mauve and violet.

Exciting Combinations
Metallic gold with beige, and shining silver with white straw are the most exciting hat combinations that go-with-everything for Spring.

Double-Decker Buses To Appear

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—London-type double-decker buses are soon to make their appearance in the Thai capital.

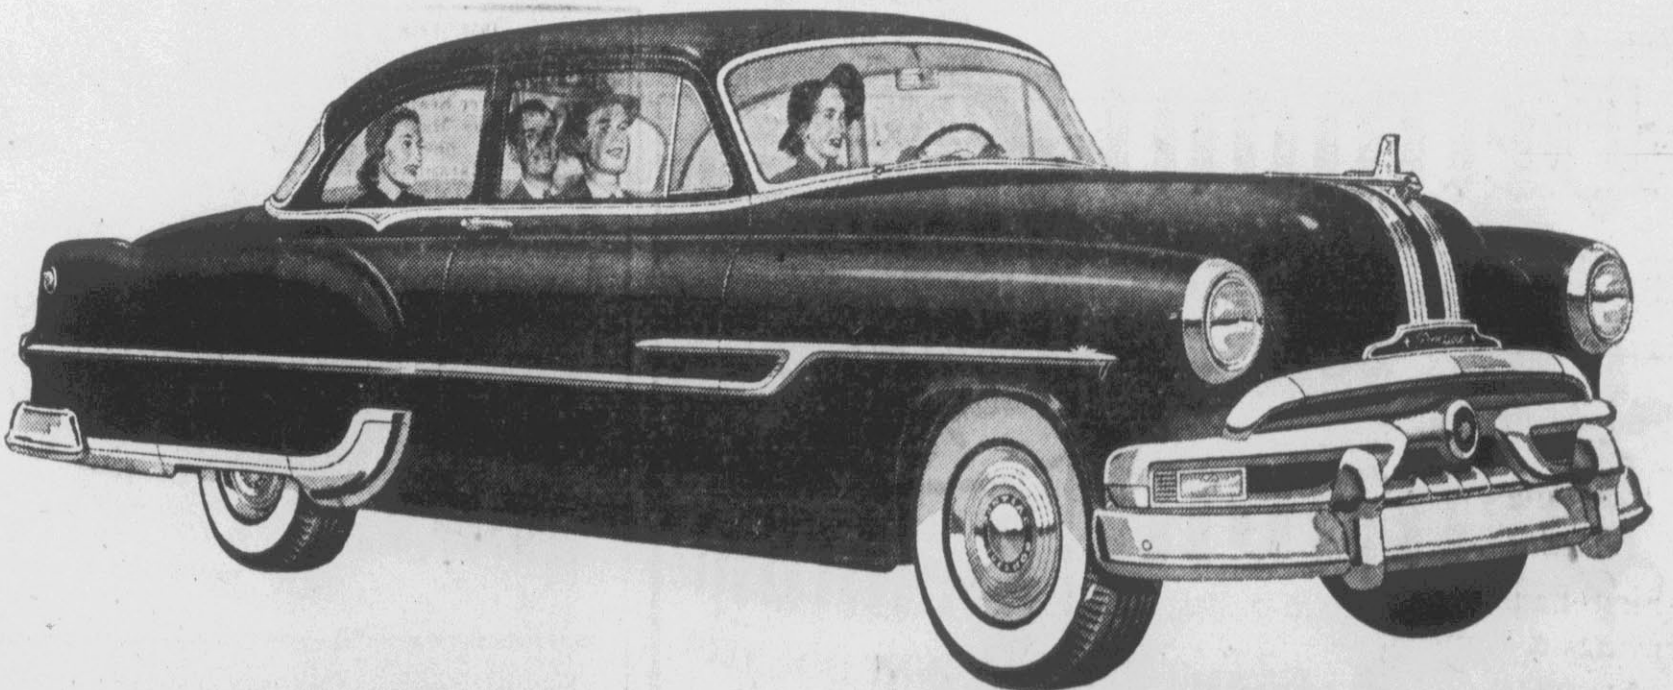

The transport department of the Ministry of Communications will replace existing bus transportation on main routes with double-deckers. This is the second step in the move to modernize Bangkok's transportation. The government banned rickshas and horsecars from the streets as of Jan. 1.

Although many astronomers once believed that very few stars had planets like the earth, current scientific beliefs now indicate that planets may be a common incident in the development of stars.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stock trading today increased to its most active pace since Dec. 18, 1950, and prices made their best gains since Nov. 26, 1952 in the market's first response to reduced margins.

Over the long Washington's birthday holiday weekend, the Federal Reserve reduced margins from 75 per cent to 50 per cent.

Opening transactions ranged to 10,000 shares in New York Central. Prices of rails, motors, coppers, oils, steels, and tires rose fractions to more than a point. Some issues gained two points or more. Tickers followed behind by as much as three minutes for a period of nearly a half hour.

Thereafter the volume lightened and prices slipped off from their highs.

American Telephone opened 5,100 shares at 159 1/4, up on its record earnings report for 1952 and held near that level.

U. S. Steel opened 7,000 shares at 41 1/2, up one and then dipped to 40 1/2. Chrysler gave up part of its opening gain of 1 1/2 points at 81 1/2 on 2,000 shares. Douglas Aircraft sold at 68 1/2 and then dipped to 67. Southern Pacific halved an opening gain of a point made on 3,700 shares. New York Central opened at 24 1/2, up 1/2 and later sold at 24 1/2.

Kennecott held at its opening of 19 1/2, up 1/2, made on 1,100 shares and Anaconda improved after opening at 43 1/2, up one.

Texas Pacific Land Trust rose a fraction above its opening of 154 1/2 in the oils. Cities Service eased from its first price of 89 1/2 to 89 1/2.

Trading in the first hour amounted to 870,000 shares.

Music Soothes Dental Patients

ATLANTA (UP)—A dentist said here today he has received a patent on his musical headset to soothe patients while he is drilling their teeth.

Dr. George A. LaFitte, named as the inventor of the device in a release from the U. S. Patent Office in Washington, said piping music right to the patient's ear is more effective than playing music in the room.

Dr. LaFitte said he received the patent several days ago on the device he perfected early in 1950 and since has demonstrated at numerous dental conventions and tried out on many patients.

A small earphone in the headset brings the music to the patient clearly but it can hardly be heard by anyone else in the room.

He said patients were enthusiastic about the device and he quoted one as saying, "It's wonderful—better than novocaine."

Blood Vessel Of Dead Man Gives Chance At Life

RICHMOND, Va. (UP)—Troy Wheeler, 35, was given a "90 per cent" chance for normal life today as a result of an operation to replace a closed main artery with a section of a dead man's artery.

A physician at the Medical College of Virginia disclosed he performed the rare operation a week ago after Wheeler had been given "six months to live—a year at most."

Wheeler, an aircraft worker of Detroit, Mich., was reported improving and able to walk after two-and-one-half inches of the dead man's artery was transplanted near the heart.

The physician, who asked that his name not be published, said he received permission of the dead man's family to obtain the replacement for a spot where Wheeler's artery the aorta, had been closed since birth.

The aorta carries all blood leaving the heart to the rest of the body except the lungs and is the largest artery in the body.

Smaller arteries alongside the aorta had taken over the job of carrying blood from Wheeler's heart but his condition had grown steadily worse with age and increasing blood pressure, the physician said.

He said the six-hour operation consisted of removing the defective section of Wheeler's aorta, sewing the donated section in place, and then cutting the tying up the smaller arteries. Three other surgeons helped, the physician said.

Research Fights Heart Disease

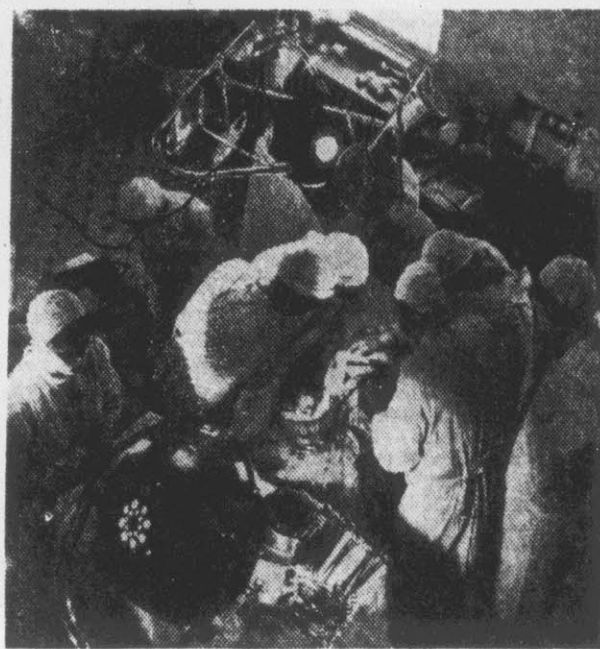

HEART CATHETER being used to draw blood samples from a patient's heart. This device is proving valuable in the diagnosis of heart defects, and in studying the heart's function.

CHICKEN'S BLOOD PRESSURE being recorded in an investigation of the cause of hardening of the arteries.

TRACER DIGITALIS will be made from the leaves of this plant "breathing in" radioactive carbon dioxide.

HEART SURGEONS operating inside a patient's heart. This remarkable operation repairs damage to heart valves caused by acute rheumatic fever.

RESEARCH LEADS THE WAY in the fight against diseases of the heart and circulation. One of its most challenging tasks is the search for the causes of rheumatic fever, high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries which together account for more than 90 per cent of all heart disease.

Today, many clues to these causes are being intensively followed. For example, it is now believed that a fat-like substance, cholesterol, plays a part in initiating hardening of the arteries, the most widespread of all blood vessel diseases. A widely used technique for investigating hardening of the arteries involves producing the disease in animals by feeding them cholesterol.

Among the powerful new weapons available to medical scientists are radioactive isotopes, by-products of the Oak Ridge atomic pile, whose tell-tale rays can be measured with a Geiger counter. Substances in which these isotopes are incorporated can be accurately followed in their course through the body. In heart research, such tracer studies have revealed new information about digitalis, a drug used to strengthen failing hearts.

Research has produced valuable drugs for the treatment of certain heart diseases and important new diagnostic instruments. Among the latter is the catheter, a slender tube which can be threaded through a vein into the heart where blood samples are taken and pressures recorded, aiding in the diagnosis of heart abnormalities.

Research has opened the way to dramatic achievements in surgery on the human heart. Operations to correct heart defects present at birth have restored to health children, among them "blue babies," who once would have faced almost certain early death. One of the latest advances in this field is an operation to repair heart valves dangerously scarred by acute rheumatic fever.

Heart research has high priority in the program of the American Heart Association and its affiliates. Contributions to the Heart Fund provide urgently needed support for this key weapon in the attack on heart diseases, the leading cause of disability and death in the United States.

Variety Show To Have Large Cast

With more than 150 people in the entire cast, the Pitt County Variety Show will go on stage tonight at 8 o'clock in Austin Auditorium on the campus of East Carolina College.

Sponsors of the show, Jaycee clubs of Greenville and Farmville, expressed enthusiasm this morning after viewing a dress rehearsal of the performance last night.

Eli Bloom of Greenville, director and producer of the show, was present for the rehearsal, and expressed satisfaction with the talent the two Jaycee clubs have obtained for presentation tonight.

An organ recital will be presented 15 minutes prior to opening of the show, and tickets will go on sale at the box office at 7:15.

All proceeds derived from the project will go toward support of "Crusade for Freedom," a privately-sponsored organization designed to supplement "Voice of America" broadcasts into communist controlled countries.

Atomic Proving Grounds Strike Said Averted

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—Atomic Energy Commission officials and security guards at the AEC's Nevada proving grounds were in accord today on an issue that threatened to cause a strike by 45 guards.

The AEC agreed yesterday to rehire a guard who had been fired. The threatened strike at the atomic proving grounds had not been expected to affect a series of nuclear tests scheduled to begin next month. The guards had agreed to man key security posts during the tests even if a strike was called.

AEC manager Seth Woodruff said the matter was settled during a meeting of commission representatives, union officials and the head of the Federal Services Co., which supplies the guards.

A dispute over an attempt to unionize the guards, however, was turned over to the National Labor Relations Board for a ruling.

The 1953 series of tests, which are scheduled to begin March 3, were expected to include 20,000 troops and possibly some of the United States' largest atomic weapons.

Unconfirmed reports from the desert area indicated simulated towns and camps were being constructed to test the effectiveness of atomic artillery shells.

Fashion Show Ties Up Traffic

BARNESLEY, England (UP)—Brunette Barbara Whitburn, 19, stopped traffic today by giving a fashion show in a shop window clad only in pink panties and an open floral dressing gown.

A crowd—mostly men—jammed in front of the shop window shortly after Miss Whitburn appeared. A policeman fought his way into the shop and told the manager to "take her out of the window."

Lions Again To Raise Funds For Elm Street Park Work

Last night the Greenville Lions Club voted to stage a fund raising drive for the benefit of the Elm Street Recreation project.

Under the leadership of Jimmie Harris the drive is scheduled to last only one week, with a goal of around $11,000.

It was the Greenville Lions Club which solicited funds for the first part of the proposed recreation project for Elm Street, raising around $8,000 in cash, materials, and promised labor for actual construction of the project.

The need for the second drive for funds to defray the cost of building and setting up the Elm Street Community building came about when a 50 per cent enlargement in the original plan for the building was approved.

Enlargement of the proposed project was asked when it became apparent that the capacity of the main meeting or assembly room would not accommodate a large enough crowd. The original plans would have had a capacity of only around 75 while the enlargement of the plans will allow a capacity of several hundred.

Harris appealed to all club members to make a careful canvass of the city and to help raise the needed funds in the week's time.

Both Harris and Recreation Chairman Tyson Bilbro outlined to the club the work which had already been completed at the Elm Street site to date with the funds raised and the improvements which will be made and need to be carried out.

President Bruce Sugg presided. Lt. Lewis of the Salvation Army, new commander here, was welcomed as a guest.

President Sugg read a letter from the Chamber of Commerce thanking the Lions Club for their part in the staging of the recent Newcomers Party held at the Armory.

Bob Stirling reported on the growth and progress which had been made in the past several years at the annual Lions Speech tournament sponsored by the local club.

Burt Aycock reported that yesterday a 68-foot flag pole, donated by the club to Pitt Memorial Hospital, was erected on the grounds in front walking about inside the shop, and paying only surprise visits to the window.

But the crowds outside are bigger than ever—waiting.

Four Teachers Named As Delegates To Convention

Four teachers were nominated as delegates to the national convention of the North Carolina Education Association at a meeting of the Advisory Council of Classroom Teachers here Saturday morning.

The convention will be held in Miami in June. The nominees from this area will be voted on at the state meeting which will be held in Asheville in March.

Those nominated as delegates were Mrs. Hilda Carswell, Washington; Mildred Manning, Bethel; and Mrs. Ora Van Buskirk, Rocky Mount. Mrs. Kara Lynn Fennell of Greenville was nominated as an alternate.

The president of the district unit of the council, Miss Manning reported on the Regional Conference which she attended in Savannah, Georgia, in November. North Carolina teachers numbering 31 attended the conference.

Mrs. Grace Lupton, Belhaven, district chairman of UNESCO Gift Coupon Project, reported on the progress of the project in this district. Mrs. Carswell, state chairman, reported on the statewide progress. She said the project of North Carolina teachers this year is to provide $2,000 to be used in the purchase of visual aids for schools in Afghanistan.

Mrs. Irma Worthington, Ayden, president of the Pitt County unit of classroom teachers, was welcomed as a new member of the council.

The council is comprised of local unit presidents and committee chairmen of 17 northeastern counties.

ACL Engineer To Address Club

"Railway Signal Systems, Yesterday and Today," will be the topic of a program to be presented at the February meeting of the East Carolina Engineers Club.

Addressing the club will be W. R. Baker, principal Assistant Engineer-Signals, of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

Baker began his service with the railroad industry when he joined the A. and W. P. at Atlanta, Georgia as signal electrician in September, 1922. Since that time he has served this and other railroads in various capacities as signal supervisor and inspector. Baker joined the A. C. L. at Wilmington in October, 1944, as General Signal Inspector. In June, 1945, he was appointed to his present position.

This meeting of the East Carolina Engineers Club will be held at 7:00 p. m. on February 25 at the Hilma Country Club in Tarboro.
