The Constant Gander

For seven long years, Aleck the Gander has not wandered more than 10 feet from the oil drum at which he gazes at Waco, Texas. There's a reason. A goose and a gander mate for life, and while crossing a street with his goose-mate seven years ago, Aleck lost her to a hit-run driver. Their owner, W. Toll Hays, Jr., picked up the crushed body of the goose and cremated it in the oil drum while Aleck watched sadly. And he hasn't let the oil drum out of his sight from that day to this. When the drum is moved, Aleck goes right along with it. (AP Wirephoto)

Eisenhower Talks Federal-State Tax Revenues Division

Governors, Congressional Leaders And Administration Officials Sit In On Discussion Of Knotty Problem

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower called in a delegation of state governors, GOP congressional leaders and administration officials today to seek a solution to a knotty problem: federal-state division of tax revenues. After the conference and a White House luncheon for the President, he planned to fly to Augusta, Ga., for a relaxing week-end of golf. He will return to Washington Sunday. Eisenhower told his news conference yesterday that today's meeting would deal with: 1. Division of tax fields and tax revenues, a problem the Conference of State Governors has been grappling with for years. 2. Federal-state relationships under the social security program, including unemployment compensation, old age assistance and aid to dependent children. An Eisenhower aide said the conference would dig into the problem of double taxation - federal and state taxes on, for example, incomes, gasoline, cigarettes, liquor and inheritances. There has been talk that the Eisenhower administration might propose that the states get out of the income tax field in exchange for the federal government bowing out of other areas. However, such proposals have been discussed for years at governors' conferences without any concrete action. Eisenhower himself said there is no clean-cut, quick solution in sight. At today's conference Eisenhower invited four governors named by their colleagues to handle federal-state relationships. They are Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, chairman of the subcommittee, Allan Shivers of Texas, president of the governors' conference; Walter J. Kohler of Wisconsin; and James F. Byrnes of South Carolina. Eisenhower's week-end vacation takes him to the Augusta National Golf Club in Georgia where he stayed for two weeks after the November election. He again will live close by the 18th green in the cottage of Bobby Jones, one of the immortals of golf. Mrs. Eisenhower, her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, and a small staff of White House aides are accompanying the President. It is his first trip out of the Washington area since he took office Jan. 20th.

Predicts Congress Will Reduce Military Outlays

Taft Says Cut Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) predicted today Congress will cut deeply into military spending in an effort to balance the budget—a task President Eisenhower has described as terrifically difficult. The Ohioan, the Senate's Republican leader, told reporters he doesn't believe the military can claim exemption. Senators Byrd (D-Va.), Ferguson (R-Mich.) and Dirksen (R-Ill.) agreed on that score. House members who heard Secretary of Defense Wilson testify Tuesday in a closed session said they got the impression he believes few substantial reductions can be made in the 6 billion dollar military program outlined in former President Truman's 78 billion dollar budget. Told about this, Taft reported: "I think the military budget will be cut." Pressed for figures, the Ohioan indicated he believes the reduction will be substantial, but he wouldn't estimate how much. Taft agreed with Eisenhower's news conference statement yesterday that it will be a terrifically difficult thing to bring revenues and spending in balance. Ferguson took issue with Eisenhower's assertion that, if it hadn't been so difficult a job, the budget would have been balanced long ago. "Harry Truman never wanted a balanced budget. He wanted the country to spend more than it could collect," Ferguson declared. Byrd said he is convinced the new administration's fiscal officers, including Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and Budget Director Joseph Dodge, have lost none of their determination to slash spending. Byrd said he understands they think of about 10 per cent in Truman's estimates and in the backlog of appropriations already made by Congress. Ferguson told reporters he thinks substantial savings can be made in military funds "if the armed services will co-operate." Eisenhower said he thinks economies can be made by field investigations of the material the armed services have on hand and by a stretchout in the production of less essential items.

Other Pitt Lawmakers Will Support His Decision Bill Is Up To Worthington

By LYNN NISBET RALEIGH—Rep. Sam Worthington said today he is giving careful thought to requests that he introduce a bill authorizing an election on the question of abolishing the Greenville Public Utilities Commission and placing immediate control of the utilities in the city council to be elected this spring. He said the citizens of Greenville early this year voted to change from the administrative form of municipal government to the council-manager system set out in the General Statutes as Plan D. He is inclined to the position that further changes in municipal government structure should not be undertaken until the new method has been tried and the elected council can make recommendations based on experience. He said the question had been raised about effect of any change in seat of authority over utilities upon outstanding bond issues. Easterling's Opinion On that point W. E. Easterling, assistant director and actual administrative head of the Local Government Commission, said there would be no effect upon the general purpose bonds issued for rebuilding the generating plant, but that revenue bonds issued for extending power lines into the country might be affected to some degree. Easterling added he could see no reason to expect difficulties that could not be easily adjusted in that field. Taking No Part Worthington said his attitude is to give the matter further study before introducing any bill which might complicate the transfer from the present system to the council-manager plan of government in Greenville. Senator Paul Jones and Rep. Frank Kilpatrick said they were taking no part in the controversy, but indicated general purpose to support Worthington in whatever course he may take. Kilpatrick added that although the municipal power plant in Greenville serves a large area of rural Pitt county, he regards this issue as peculiar to the City of Greenville and in the province of Rep. Worthington. No Local Problem This overall problem of regulatory control over municipal utilities is not peculiar to Greenville. Just this week a bill was introduced providing for establishment of a "power commission" for Murphy in the far western corner of the State to separate utilities administration from the regular town board. In 1949 and in 1951, and there is possibility of similar effort this year, attempt was made to give the State Utilities Commission power to regulate rates and service of municipal utilities outside the corporate limits of the cities and towns providing them. The situation at Greenville is complicated by the upcoming change in the form of municipal government. General provisions of Plan D put directive control of all municipal functions in the City Manager, subject to policy-making authority of the council. Worthington says he is not sure but that that provision puts the Greenville utilities under an election. If that is true, he is not sure what the effect might be if the people, having voted in Plan D, should then vote to keep the utilities under separate authority. In answer to the direct question whether he proposed to offer any bills on the matter, Worthington repeated that he had not made up his mind and wanted to study the situation further before doing so.

Yugoslavia Gives Up On Farm Collectivization

BELOGRADE, Yugoslavia (UP)—Yugoslavia has definitely abandoned farm collectivization and plans to return most of its present collective farms to private ownership. Even the more successful collectives will be broken up, he said, "unless they put all their available means into a new type of production and begin to industrialize themselves — developing closer connections with other industries, and with our industrial development in general. This means abandonment of a conception or idea, he continued, "that is the idea of the so-called collectivization of the village. It means abandonment of the idea that only collective labor means real socialism. This we are definitely abandoning." The process of dissolving the farms really began a year ago when losing cooperatives were told they must get going or return the land to their individual members. Most of these poorer collectives already have been dissolved, Bakaric said. Bakaric said general peasant resistance had had some influence on government policy but he emphasized that it was not the determining factor. But he warned that the peasant will still face basic production problems under private ownership. Even the more successful collectives will be broken up, he said, "unless they put all their available means into a new type of production and begin to industrialize themselves — developing closer connections with other industries, and with our industrial development in general. This means abandonment of a conception or idea, he continued, "that is the idea of the so-called collectivization of the village. It means abandonment of the idea that only collective labor means real socialism. This we are definitely abandoning." The process of dissolving the farms really began a year ago when losing cooperatives were told they must get going or return the land to their individual members. Most of these poorer collectives already have been dissolved, Bakaric said. Bakaric said general peasant resistance had had some influence on government policy but he emphasized that it was not the determining factor.

Sets Out On Trip That Will Be 'No Vacation' Adlai Starts Global Tour

CHICAGO (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, who lost the presidency to Dwight D. Eisenhower last November, set out early today for a "long and weary" trip around the world. President Eisenhower upon his return, made it plain that his five-month tour will not "be a vacation." "When I'm through," he said laughingly, "I think I'd like to take another trip around the world." Stevenson, who was to speak tonight at a Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner at Los Angeles, said he is looking forward to his journey in the most difficult problems we must face are there and some of the men there are going to be making history in the years to come. He said he expected to work hard and steadily throughout the trip "with very little time for what we call visiting and traveling." At Los Angeles he will confer with Democratic party leaders from 11 western states as well as speak at the $100-a-plate dinner. He was scheduled to arrive there at 11:35 a. m. e. s. t. He will fly to San Francisco Friday. Included in his itinerary will be a visit to the battlefields of Korea. Stevenson said he will meet with government officials and will take a special interest in the training of South Korean troops, a subject which played a large part in the late campaign. The former Illinois governor will also visit Formosa, headquarters of the Nationalist Chinese government of Chiang Kai-Shek. He said he is also particularly interested in visiting Indonesia — "one of the first so-called revolutionary governments set up since the war" and India. He pointed out that he has never had a chance to travel in many of these countries before and added that "now is the logical time to do it — between jobs." Stevenson made a quiet departure from Chicago, accompanied only by William McCormick Blair Jr., his administrative assistant and secretary, with whom he plans to work on correspondence before he sails for Honolulu from San Francisco next Monday on the American President Line's President Wilson.

N.C. Senate Poised For Vote On Debated Resolution World Govm't OK Awaited

By EDWARD S. CORNISH RALEIGH (UP)—The State Senate was expected to vote today on a hotly-debated resolution to withdraw North Carolina's approval of world government. The measure was reported favorably by the Senate Committee on Interstate and Federal Relations. It would rescind a 1949 resolution which put the state on record as favoring global government, but it would not disturb a 1941 resolution which "expressed hope" that a world government could be created. Meanwhile, the House Committee on Counties, Cities and Towns scheduled a hearing Tuesday on another hot question, a statewide liquor referendum Nov. 3. Bills providing for the referendum were dropped in the legislative hopper of both houses yesterday. The Senate bill went to the Propositions and Grievances Committee, as usual for referendum proposals, but House Speaker E. T. Bost Jr. broke tradition and handed the measure to the Counties, Cities and Towns group. The Senate Propositions and Grievances Committee is heavily stacked against the dries, who have rallied behind the measure introduced yesterday. The bill calls for a straight vote on whether all North Carolina counties shall sell beer, wine and liquor or none at all. It makes no provision for the $15,000,000 to $30,000,000 in annual revenue the state would lose if the alcoholic beverage control system were scrapped. However, the Senate Committee is headed by Adam J. Whitley of Johnston, who was the chief sponsor of the liquor bill. Whitley may be able to round up enough support for the liquor bill to get it out on the floor on a minority report. The House counties group is reported also loaded in favor of the wets, but the dries are hopeful here, too, that the bill also may be brought out on a minority report. The dries feel that if they can get the measure out of both committees the Assembly will approve it — with members forced to submit to a roll call vote. Robert W. Winston, former chairman of the State ABC Board, believes the state will vote dry, if the referendum is approved, although he thinks the pendulum is swinging toward the wets and the control system will be out of danger if no referendum is approved in the current Assembly. A committee hearing on the world government resolution introduced by Sen. J. Vivien Whitfield witnessed spirited arguments by supporters and opponents of world government. The Daughters of the American Revolution, represented by State Regent Virginia Horne, charged that global government would weaken the United States and allow Asiatics and Russians to come to the country. C. A. Fink, president of the North Carolina Federation of Labor, said the AFL is also firmly against the world government legislation. But Billy Harrison of Rocky Mount, president of the State Young Democrats Club; Robert Lee Humber of Greenville, an original supporter of the world government plan; Mayor J. O. Tally of Fayetteville, L. P. McLendon of Greensboro, and F. I. Harold Tribble of Wake Forest College joined hands in supporting the proposition. One advocate of world government said "our hearts are in it because we're tired of war."

Van Fleet Insists Eighth Army Can Advance, Break Korea Military Stalemate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet insists—and emphatically—that the powerful United Nations Army could break the military stalemate in Korea, if unleashed. The retiring U. S. Eighth Army commander, arriving to a hero's welcome after 22 months in Korea, declared: "My Eighth Army can always advance another step and fire another shot." Van Fleet was given a ticker tape greeting as he rode through Market Street in downtown San Francisco after a 17-gun harbor salute. He was feted at a civic luncheon and a reception in which he was presented a gold-crested sword by the city. Then, at a press conference, the 50-year-old general repeated the question—and his answer which aroused so much Washington interest. It was the question put to him by John Randolph, Associated Press correspondent in Seoul — whether a major offensive could break the military deadlock in Korea. His answer yesterday, as it was in Tokyo, was the emphatic one word: "Certainly." "I hope I have made that clear for all time," he added. "Any offensive would break the military deadlock which is of our choosing and not imposed by the enemy." He gave no hint what recommendations he may make when he meets with President Eisenhower and congressional leaders Tuesday in Washington. He said only that he is going to Washington as "a humble and modest commander to give such information as the President and Congress may want—the best of my ability."

Supply Center Is Target Of Raid

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—American Sabre jets today damaged two Communist MIG-15 jets which tried in vain to break up UN fighter-bomber attacks on vital Red supply targets. The Russian-built fighters were damaged in a swirling battle over northwest Korea between eight Sabre jets and eight MIGs. F-84 Thunder jets raided a supply center southwest of the east coast port of Wonsan, wiping out five buildings in a bomb and napalm attack. Thunder jets also smashed a supply area a short distance behind Red front lines in the T-Bone Hill area, destroying or damaging 14 buildings. Meanwhile, the 58,000-ton battleship Missouri sailed boldly into Wonsan Harbor and blasted Red shore guns with a day-long bombardment. The Missouri sailed into range of the Communist coastal batteries and sent shells after shells from her 16-inch guns crashing into Red installations in the battered east coast Korean port. The nine big guns of the battleship opened up, shortly after dawn and soon were joined by her smaller guns. The five-inch guns of the escorting destroyer, Cowell also joined the bombardment.

New Round Of Talks Held Today On Ratifying Of Joint European Army

ROME (AP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault talked for 75 minutes today in the first of a new round of conferences aimed at smoothing the way for ratification of plans for the single-unit, two-million-man European army. Meeting in the closely-guarded suburban Villa Madama, Adenauer and Bidault threshed over the thorny question of the industrial Saar, which each of their countries wants to control. Informed sources said Adenauer tried to persuade Bidault to place the question of the Saar's economic future before a group of economic experts from all six of the Schuman Plan nations. The chancellor reportedly contended that all six, France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, should have equal economic rights in the coal-producing valley, in effect the first common European market accessible to all six of the countries now striving for economic, political and military union. Bidault's position was not made known. Until now, however, France has stood fast on maintaining the special economic ties she established after World War II with the coal-producing border valley. At later meetings today and tomorrow, probably with Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi on hand in a peace-making role, Adenauer and Bidault were slated to take up the other major point still at issue between them, France's demands for special concessions in the European army. Though these were deferred rather than settled by the six-nation conference, Bidault had shown willingness to compromise after running headon into the combined opposition of the five other allies and the expressed desire of President Eisenhower's administration for speedy formation of the international force. It remained to be seen whether the French Parliament would back up what retreating Bidault did at yesterday's meeting.

Deaths Due Flu And Pneumonia Show Decrease

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Public Health Service said today the number of deaths from influenza and pneumonia in 58 reporting cities showed a drop for the week ended Feb. 14 — after five straight weekly increases. An official said reports received from the 48 states indicate the influenza epidemic which started in December is definitely on the wane. The 58 cities listed 594 deaths from influenza and pneumonia for the week ended Feb. 14, compared with 610 the preceding week.

Irate Father Divine Boycotting Turnpike

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Father Divine let loose his heavenly wrath on the New Jersey Turnpike today. He ordered all his angels to boycott the multi-million-dollar superhighway and withdrew his blessing from it "until further notice." The self-proclaimed messiah struck back at the turnpike after paying a total of $60 in fines for chauffeurs in a four-car caravan near Moorestown, N. J. Father Divine, who was a passenger in one limousine, believes the fines were "illegal and unjust." A spokesman at Father Divine's headquarters here said turnpike officers subjected the father to "rude and discourteous treatment and a complete lack of recognition." Not only that, he said, but the drivers were accused of doing 70 miles per hour when they really were doing 65. A strike against the turnpike was proclaimed in Father Divine's publication "The New Day." In a front page declaration he told his followers: "You will cease to spend your money on the New Jersey Turnpike such as all my cars have been doing, giving them the patronage of our churches and church connections." "The way was made through the Jersey Turnpike so that you could go a little faster and make a little more time...but I withdraw from them until further notice. "If I bless anyone or anything it is blessed. And if I withdraw from anyone or anything it is withdrawn from...and curse and disaster follows them."

Mediterranean Sea Command Dispute Continues To Simmer

By HAROLD GUARD United Press Staff Correspondent VALETTA, Malta (UP)—The Anglo-American dispute over a Mediterranean sea command still is festering here and on the rival U. S. Mediterranean base at Naples. It is a clash of personalities and strategic concepts between U. S. Admiral Robert B. Carney, commander in chief of NATO's southern European forces, and Admiral Earl Moubatten, supreme commander for NATO in the Mediterranean. Moubatten won his new command after much wailing and pushing between American and British interests. The U. S. favored Carney for the Mediterranean command and a reflection of the friction that developed is seen in the fact that Carney's Sixth Fleet is independent of Moubatten. Carney's Naples base is a virtual rival of Moubatten's Malta base. The first major test of cooperation between the rival commands and their naval units will come late in March in a unified Mediterranean exercise, "Operation Rendezvous," under Moubatten's command. The British admiral's leadership will be closely watched by observers from many nations. They recall a parallel situation during World War II when Moubatten became a commander in southeast Asia and promptly conflicted with American ideas of strategy. That time Moubatten flew to Ottawa and promised the late President Roosevelt he would be a "good American." There is a similar clash of strategic concepts here. The Americans view the Mediterranean as an operating theater for carriers capable of striking atomic blows at the Balkans, Middle East and at Russia itself. The British believe the primary job here is that of defending the "lifelines" to the Middle East and Asia. Moubatten formally sets up his headquarters here on March 15 and the following naval exercises probably will prove to be a critical test of whether the two rival commands can work smoothly together, and whether the two strategic concepts can be merged into one powerful Mediterranean defense strategy.

Board Of Education To Further Study Amendment Legislation

By MUREL SHOTWELL Reflector Staff Writer Further analysis of a bill introduced to the General Assembly regulating building contracts and the construction of school buildings in Pitt County heads the agenda for the county board of education meeting Monday morning. The legislation under discussion is an amendment of an amendment to Section 143-136 of the general statutes relating to public building contracts and to amending the construction of school buildings in the county. The bill was submitted by the county board of education and introduced by S. O. Worthington and Frank Kilpatrick. Pitt representatives in the legislature, at the request of the board, it was referred to Judiciary Two, which Worthington heads, after its introduction. If passed, the bill would give the Pitt Board of Education the authority to construct school buildings and make repairs not exceeding $35,000 without having to advertise for sealed bids. At present, repairs and construction of school buildings cannot exceed $15,000 without advertisement of sealed bids. D. H. Conley, superintendent of the county schools, explained that the bill under study was drawn up as a safeguard to have on hand in the event of an emergency. He further explained that in some cases when small projects are needed, only one bid is received and there is no competition. "If the bill is passed, it will enable us to hire our own labor and buy our own materials for small projects but with certain specifications," Conley said. "However, if the bill is passed we will still call for sealed bids even on the small projects. We are not pushing the bill and we hope we won't have to use the enactment as it will mean more work for our men and equipment." The superintendent said a similar bill was passed years ago in Wayne and other counties as an emergency measure.

Classified Ad Brings Quick Results Again

Another of the many reports of quick results from the classified section of The Daily Reflector comes from Mrs. Ernest Clark of 1692 Dickinson Avenue. Mrs. Clark had a vacant two-room apartment she wanted to rent. She inserted a "For Rent" ad in the paper to run three times. Before the end of the first day she had rented the apartment and was very satisfied with the results of the ad. She called to have it cancelled. "No need to envy; you can do the same as Mrs. Clark if you place your ad today."

U.S. Casualties Stand At 130,321

WASHINGTON (UP)—American casualties in Korea now total 130,321, an increase of 228 over last week's report, the Defense Department announced Wednesday. The report covered casualties from the start of the war through last Friday. Casualties include 22,994 dead, 94,523 wounded, 2,189 captured, 220 missing, and 1,395 previously reported missing and now returned to military control.

Musical Program Presented For End of Century Club
Mrs. Guy Smith was a gracious hostess to the End of the Century Club on Tuesday afternoon at her home on Pitt Street. The rooms were festive with arrangements of lovely spring flowers.

The president, Mrs. Joseph Moyer, presided over a brief business session.

Mrs. Smith paid glowing tribute to the faculty and students of East Carolina College who have given so generously of their time and talents to the clubs of Greenville. She then presented Mrs. Willa Rae Harber Bullock and Mr. Jack Williford, who are music majors at East Carolina College.

The two accomplished young musicians delighted their audience with their interesting comments concerning music and the rendition of their selections. Mrs. Bullock sang "Clavetos" by Valencio, in Spanish; and "Vittoria Mio Core" in Italian. Her English selections were "Blue Are Her Eyes" and "None But the Lonely Heart," Tchakowsky, and "Adele's Laughing Song" Johann Strauss.

Mr. Williford played the selections "Rondo from Sonata Op. 14," Beethoven, "Valse Op. 69, No. 2," Chopin, and "Polonaise in C Minor," Chopin.

Following this most enjoyable program, the hostess served a delicious salad course with coffee.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Bullock, Mr. Williford and Mrs. Tom Smoot.

Dr. Frank Speaks On Current Events
"People are discussing the natural topics of the day, those concerning the new administration," commented Dr. A. D. Frank in bringing the latest news events to the members of the Chatham Book Club on Tuesday afternoon, February 24, at the home of Mrs. C. E. Blair.

Upon the arrival of her guests, the hostess, assisted by Mrs. W. D. Tucker and Mrs. E. R. Conway, served a salad course with coffee. Mrs. Luther Bowling, president, presented her house guest, Miss Hilda Jacobs of New Bern. She quickly dispatched the routine business of the club and called on Mrs. Carl Adams, program chairman, to introduce the guest speaker.

Dr. Frank spoke first of the rapid changes that the Republican Administration has brought about since President Eisenhower's inauguration. His conversation with the members of Congress, his appointment of big business men and his lifting of price and wage controls have been dominant in domestic affairs. He made a number of observations about changes in the government's foreign policy. He is in full accord with Eisenhower in his withdrawal of the Seventh Fleet, which has been protecting the Communists. He favors a blockade of China. Further, he opined Dr. Frank in discussing the Korean situation, "If we get into war with Russia, Stalin will never fight the U.N. in Korea."

Finder Asked To Keep Puppy
WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (UP)—A shoebox found by L. L. Carter on his doorstep contained a cocker spaniel puppy and this note:

Will Represent ECC At Festival In Wilmington

Dolores Matthews of Henderson, vivacious and attractive brunette and an outstanding student of music at East Carolina College, will represent the college at the annual Azalea Festival in Wilmington March 27, 28, 29.
She will participate in events of the celebration as a member of the Court of the Festival Queen. She was chosen for the honor by a committee of the Student Government Association.
Now a junior at East Carolina, Miss Matthews is specializing in work in the department of music. Last Sunday, February 22, she appeared as piano soloist in the annual Winter Concert by the East Carolina Orchestra. Her performance of a movement from Beethoven's "Concerto No. 8 in C Minor" received enthusiastic applause from an audience of approximately a thousand people.
She is a member of the violin section of the East Carolina Orchestra and plays the clarinet with the college marching and concert bands. Early in February this year she was clarinet soloist with the concert band at a program given for high school students of the state attending the Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic on the campus here.

Messick Appointed To National Board
President John D. Messick of East Carolina College has accepted an invitation to become a member of a national committee to study qualifications and preparation of teachers of exceptional children. The appointment was made by the United States Commissioner of Education.

Dr. Messick will begin his duties with this group next month. On March 7, 8, and 9 he will attend committee meetings held in the Federal Security Building in Washington, D. C.

Short Story Writing Club Program Topic

The Literature Department of the Women's Club met on Tuesday, February 24, at the home of Mrs. N. C. Brooks with Mrs. Claude West as assisting hostess. Guests other than members were Mrs. G. J. Bell, Mrs. Richard Hardaway, Mrs. Warfield Sypret, and Dr. Elizabeth Utterback.
Mrs. R. P. Rogers, chairman presided over a short business session. She announced that plans were being made for the annual Art Festival which will begin April 14. Attention was also called to the North Carolina Federation of Women's Club Endowment Fund.
Dr. Elizabeth Utterback gave a most interesting program on Short Story Writing. She began by saying that to write a short story is simple, easy and fun, but that one must know the subject matter thoroughly. There are certain requirements that the short story must meet, and critics agree that the best short story ever written is "The Prodigal Son," which meets all the requirements. After discussing what makes up the short story, by way of illustration, Dr. Utterback read one of her published short stories, "The First Day of School." This story has the Alabama cotton country as its background and was written about experiences the author had while teaching there.

The home of Mrs. Brooks was lovely with arrangements of mixed spring flowers. Cherry tarts with cream, nuts and hot tea were served.

Presbyterians Plan Revival Services

FOUNTAIN—A series of revival services under the leadership of the Reverend William Howard Kryder, Minister of the Presbyterian Church, Abbeville, South Carolina, will be conducted in the Presbyterian Church, Fountain, from Sunday, March 8 through Friday, March 13.

This annual event in the life of the Fountain Presbyterian Church will be of special interest this year because Mr. Kryder made a special place for himself in the hearts of all who heard him when he supplied the pulpit here several years ago while still a student in the seminary. A gifted speaker, he has a special appeal to children and young people. He will have a sermonette for the children at each of the services. The first of the series will be at the eleven o'clock hour Sunday morning. The remainder of the services will be at 7:30 p. m. Sunday through Friday.

The services will begin promptly with the singing of choruses by the children, followed by Mr. Kryder's sermonette for them. There will be a season of Gospel songs and the main message. The Reverend Philip M. Cory, minister of the church will lead the singing. The public is invited to attend all of the services.

Farmville Banker Named Association's Chairman

At the 37th annual convention of bankers of group 1, N. C. Bankers Association, held in Elizabeth City this week, C. C. Simpson of the bank of Farmville was elected chairman of the group for the coming year.

Simpson, assistant cashier of the Farmville bank, was elected in an afternoon business session to succeed Wyatt Aydie of Elizabeth City, who was elevated to the state association's executive committee.

Also elected to the slate of officers as secretary-treasurer for next year was W. H. Woolard, Jr. of the Meadowbrook Branch, Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, Greenville. Woolard also retired from his position on the state executive committee of the association.

A large delegation of officials and employees from Guaranty Bank and Trust Company of Greenville were present to hear local bank

Mrs. Stokes Hostess To Bridge Club

ROBERSONVILLE—On Tuesday evening Mrs. B. L. Stokes entertained the members of her bridge club at her home on Green Street.

The living room was bright and cheerful with vases of spring flowers.

Iced drinks, Valentine candy and fruit were served at the two tables during the game. When Mesdames Irving Smith, Geneva Weaver, Sherwood L. Roberson, Edgar Johnson, Mayo Little, Pearl Everett, Claude Greene, Sr., David Grimes, added their scores, Mrs. Grimes received a Valentine box of candy and Mrs. Greene was given a similar heart shaped box for low prize.

Mrs. Roy Hopkins of Plymouth who was visiting her sister, Mrs. Irving L. Smith joined her friends for the sweet course served by the hostess at the end of the progressions.

Flying Saucer 'Reward' Sought

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UP)—The South Carolina Legislature received a suggestion that a $1,000 reward be offered for the capture of a flying saucer "intact and unharmed."

Speaker Sol Blatt said he would refer the resolution and its author to the state hospital.

Second Term Is Still A Joke

WASHINGTON (UP)—For the time being President Eisenhower is only joking when he makes any comment about a second term.

Mr. Eisenhower told his second news conference that recent reports on his attitude about a second term must have been based on facetious remarks he made to friends.

He said he would say nothing serious on his intentions for the time being.

Private Matter Becomes Public

WASHINGTON (UP)—A "private matter" about the nation's chief executive leaked today.

President Eisenhower confided to New Jersey congressmen that his best golf score since he became president was a 91.

Officials at Burning Tree Country Club where he plays had refused to announce the scores on grounds the President's golf game is a private matter.

Surprised When Baby Arrived

NEW YORK (UP)—A first grade school teacher excused herself when she felt a severe abdominal pain while in her classroom.

Ten minutes later, while her husband, a teacher in the same school, paced a corridor, Mrs. Sandra Fendrick, 21, gave birth to a five pound boy.

The surprised new mother told school authorities she hadn't known she was pregnant.

NO FIRE DAMAGE

City firemen were called to Phelps radio store in North Greenville yesterday morning when an oil stove became overheated.

Firemen reported that no damage resulted. Too much oil had been allowed to drain into the stove before it was lit, the firemen reported.

Babies' Adoption Racket Is Probed

TORONTO (AP)—Canadian and American authorities today investigated an alleged baby adoption racket arranged the smuggling of hundreds of infants into the United States in the past year.

Announcing the probe into a baby racket that police said may have been operating here for months, the process of legal adoption, police said last night that at least 20 babies have been smuggled across the U.S. border from Toronto in the last three months.

The investigation was touched off by the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shindern, both 29, of Brooklyn, N.Y. The couple, carrying a 5-day-old boy who police said was not their own, was taken off a New York-bound plane yesterday at Toronto's Malton Airport.

They were held under $5,000 bail on charges of obtaining a birth certificate by fraud.

Police said the baby with them was born last Friday in St. Mary's Hospital. Its mother left the hospital without her child but the baby was taken out Tuesday and registered the same day at City Hall by a man and woman.

Authorities said they had evidence that a Toronto doctor and four or five other persons were involved in the suspected baby racket. They added that they believed headquarters of the ring were in the U.S.

Detectives said forged birth certificates were furnished the pseudo-parents. Findings so far indicate the ring's price was $250 per baby, male or female, authorities said.

Felt Real Bad Over Let-Down

HONG KONG (UP)—Man Cheung, who learned in court that a fortune teller bilked him of $250, said he didn't mind losing the money so much as not receiving the things Chan Fuk had promised him. They included:

2. A new wife; he was dissatisfied with his present one.
3. Three good sons.
4. Life to the age of 99.

Three Attended Pest Control Course In Raleigh

Three Pitt County men, Ivey Coward and W. C. Williams of Greenville and Roger Joyner of Farmville attended the Pest Control operators school which was held at State College in Raleigh Tuesday and Wednesday.

The two-day school was held in conjunction with the business meeting of the Pest Control Operators Association of North Carolina.

Coward of Greenville was one of two new officers nominated at the business meeting of the operators, but the nomination was withdrawn following the adoption of a motion by which last year's officers would serve an additional year. The Pest Control Operators Association of North Carolina was formed approximately one year ago.

"Miracle Drug" say SURIN Users

Pains of Arthritis, Rheumatism, Nouritis, Lumbago, Bursitis—Relief Can Start In Minutes

There's no internal dosing with SURIN. Nothing to swallow and wait anxiously for relief. You simply apply SURIN right at the point of pain and blessed relief starts as penetration beneath the skin gets under way. Of course there's a reason for this wonder-working new external fast pain relief medicine.

It's methacholine, a recent chemical born of research in a great laboratory. It acts speedily to aid penetration of SURIN's pain-quelling ingredients. Methacholine also causes deeper, longer-lasting pain relief and increased speed-up of local blood supply.

Tested on chronic rheumatism in large university hospital it brought fast relief to 75% of patients and to some for-the-agony. Totally different from old-fashioned rubs and liniments, modern SURIN brings faster relief, longer without burning or blistering, without unpleasant odor or grease. Simply smooth on SURIN at the point of pain and feel pain ease in minutes. Money-back at your drug store if SURIN doesn't relieve muscle pain faster and better than anything you've ever used. A generous 10c test. SURIN is not a cure for any of these conditions.

Court 'Puzzled' By Legislature

RALEIGH (UP)—North Carolina citizens aren't the only ones occasionally mystified by the actions of the General Assembly. The State Supreme Court says it's often puzzled, too.

The high court upheld a 1951 act of the General Assembly yesterday but ended its opinion on a sort of amazed note: "The General Assembly moves in a somewhat mysterious way."

It all came about as a result of the 1951 act which said that minor criminal cases in Washington County must be transferred from the recorder's court to the Superior Court when the defendant demands a jury trial.

Walter Norman was haled into recorder's court on a charge of trying—but failing—to choke Alton Baker. That's a misdemeanor, punishable by not more than a $50 fine or 30 days in jail. Normally it would be under the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace.

But Norman demanded a jury trial so his case was dutifully transferred to Washington County Superior Court where Judge Joseph W. Parker ruled the legislative act unconstitutional. It should be up to the recorder's court, he said.

The state appealed. The high court dutifully quoted past opinions and excerpts from the State Constitution then ruled that the act was legal, all right, but pretty useless. The law gives any defendant the right to appeal to a superior court, anyway, and if the legislature had simply wanted to abolish the six-man recorder's court jury an amendment would have done the trick.

But, said the court wearily, "the General Assembly has the constitutional power to select the roundabout way rather than the direct road to accomplish its purposes."

Strength for the Day

LIGHTING FIRES OF HOPE
Some weeks ago, a child, Nancy Fairless, lighted one of the great furnaces of the new steel plant at Morrisville, Pennsylvania. The news story stated that the furnace, once lighted, would go on for years as blast furnace operation is continuous.

Lighting fires which will burn through the years! There have been cruel conquerors who have lighted fires which centuries later were burning as a bitter memory in the minds of peoples whose ancestors had been oppressed. The forces of persecution have been burning all over the world since the beginning of time. There are foolish persons who have lighted fires of discord and hate in families, others who have cherished burning jealousies, unholy lusts in their hearts until the living substance was eaten out of their souls.

But thank the merciful God, there have been brave souls who in seasons of darkness, have lighted fires which thrilled men and women with a new hope. The Christian martyrs did this centuries ago. There have been fires of glory lighted at periods in our own national history which have been warming our hearts for generations.

A little child lighted the fire at the great, modern steel mill. A child lighted a world conflagration in a humble stable in Bethlehem long ago. There are still noble fires to be lighted, waiting for the courage of gallant men and women to lead the way.

Will It Be More Taxes Or Inadequate Facilities?

Governor Umstead dropped a hot potato in the lap of the General Assembly in his long-delayed message.

The hot potato wasn't unexpected.

Members of the General Assembly have been contemplating what to do with it. Now that it has finally been laid in the lap of the legislature, it will put legislators on the spot deciding what to do with it.

Governor Umstead's request for three bond issues amounting to $87,000,000 forces legislators to make one of two choices: 1. is it more important for North Carolina to have adequate school, mental institution and higher education facilities; or 2. is it more important that North Carolina's tax structure be kept as it is without increases anywhere along the line.

It is apparent from Governor Umstead's message and from other information coming out of Raleigh that North Carolina can not have the new facilities without an increase in taxes somewhere.

The governor's message proposed bond issues of $50,000,000 for public schools, $22,000,000 for mental institutions and $15,000,000 for institutions of higher learning. All of the proposed facilities which would come through the bond issue obviously are sorely needed in North Carolina. Even the legislators who oppose raising taxes to provide the facilities admit the facilities are needed.

Yet if the bond issue is voted by the people it will mean some $4,600,000 in additional revenue will be needed by the state to retire the bonds.

Much as The Reflector is opposed to more taxes on North Carolina's people who already are paying almost one-third of their income in local, state and federal taxes, we have come to the conclusion that pressing needs of schools, mental institutions and institutions of higher learning make it mandatory that bonds for these three vital phases of the state's operation be issued if the state is to keep pace with its growth and progress.

The people of North Carolina will have the final say on the $87,000,000 bond question provided the legislature takes steps to provide for a vote on the bonds. And in the final analysis, it will be the people of the state who choose between adequate facilities and taxes.

If the General Assembly is to consider the need for adequate facilities in the light of their urgency, they have little choice but to present the question of a bond issue and necessary tax changes to the people in a referendum.

Will 1953 See A New State?

After long years of waiting and many frustrating set-backs, it looks like 1953 may be remembered by Hawaii as the year she became the 49th state in the American union. The senators and representatives who will decide whether the 49th state will be added.

All in all, in an objective evaluation, Hawaii has matured sufficiently to take its place beside the other 48 states of the union.

It should be denied full statehood no longer.

For as many years as most people can count there has been talk about the day when Hawaii would become a state in the union. For more years than the people of the Pacific island group care to count there has been one stumbling block after another placed in the path to their goal.

Now it looks like the 83rd Congress will take the necessary steps to grant statehood to Hawaii.

Hawaiian statehood has been under examination by congressional committees for the past 15 years. In 1947 and again in 1950 the House passed legislation giving Hawaii statehood, but on both occasions the Senate balked at the issue.

A few key changes in the Senate — which came with Republican control — increase Hawaii's chances of becoming a state. It is not so much the change in personnel of committees or in positions on committees, but an apparent change of mind by some Republicans.

The matter of bringing into the Union a territory which is across the sea from the continental United States of course presents a serious problem. Yet it will by no means make the United States proper more entangled in international problems. Hawaii long has been considered an essential part of the United States territory as proudly proven when the Japanese struck the Pacific outpost in 1941.

In all fairness, it must be admitted even by those who are opposed to making Hawaii the 49th state that she has proven her worthiness to be a full fledged member of the union. Its people certainly have become truly "American" through the many years it has been a possession of the United States. Already Hawaii pays more taxes to the federal government than 11 of the present 48 states.

Of course it will take some time for the American people to get used to 49 states instead of 48 states. The politics of Hawaii — Republican versus Democrat — and the feeling in Hawaii on the vital civil rights issue will be taken into consideration by

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—An extremely important reform in President Eisenhower's press conferences will mean a freer and more reliable flow of news to the American people.

Although not sufficiently emphasized in news dispatches, his dismissal of an official and personal clique from these sessions marks a great and needed innovation. These outsiders stood between the President and the people. Here is how it worked:

A SQUEEZE PLAY—President Roosevelt and Truman used to invite a select group of friends to these interviews. They consisted of Cabinet associates, Generals and Admirals, the White House secretary, Party politicians and even members of their families—Eleanor and Anna Roosevelt, Margaret Truman, Roosevelt liked to perform for them; he was always at his most theatrical with them on hand.

In addition, although there was no justification except in wartime, they permitted a score of government press agents from the departments to attend. Sometimes, they filled the conference room so that there was hardly enough space for working reporters.

AN EFFECTIVE GAG—This clique served a useful purpose for the White House. By parrying or laughing off reporters' questions, it protected their boss and covered up the news. It was reminiscent of the paid admirers actors used to lure in the early, primitive days of the theater—to applaud their employer and shout down his critics.

Many a time, when Roosevelt or Truman responded to a query with a hostile quip or brushoff, this paid clique would burst into laughter, which ridiculed and belittled the inquisitive reporter. After a few such experiences, even veteran correspondents preferred to confine themselves to innocuous or friendly questioning.

CRUEL AND EMBARRASSING—This subtle and indirect form of censorship—or browbeating—was especially cruel and embarrassing to young news gatherers at Washington. And yet, as men actively covering State, Treasury, Defense, Agriculture, Commerce, etc., it was they who frequently asked the questions which produced information of broad-and-better importance to their millions of readers.

Eisenhower plans to have only his two press secretaries—Hagerty and Snyder—with him at these conferences. Now and then, when problems affecting specific departments are especially important, he will ask the appropriate Cabinet member or expert on the subject to attend.

SOURCES OF INFORMATION—Although this may seem like only shop talk and a discussion of trade practices to the average reader, the disappearance of this biased and interfering clique will make for better and more impartial reporting of the Government's top policies.

Contrary to advance reports, and as forecast here, Eisenhower plans to permit departments back to give out more rather than less news. As he notes privately, his new program can be put into effect by departmental change of policy and direction as much by legislation.

It will be a slow and everyday rather than an overnight, spectacular process. Therefore, the sources for information on the "Eisenhower revolution" will be at the lower levels, not at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

BUSINESSLIKE SYSTEM—President Eisenhower has suffered considerable criticism for his dictatorial conduct of press conferences. He took charge like the chairman of a board of directors, expressed his views on five major matters, and then remained for only a few elaborating questions.

However, a firm and guiding hand has been needed for years. Many reporters waste moments in asking trivial or local queries, which could be better answered down below. Many behave as district attorneys, belaboring a hostile witness.

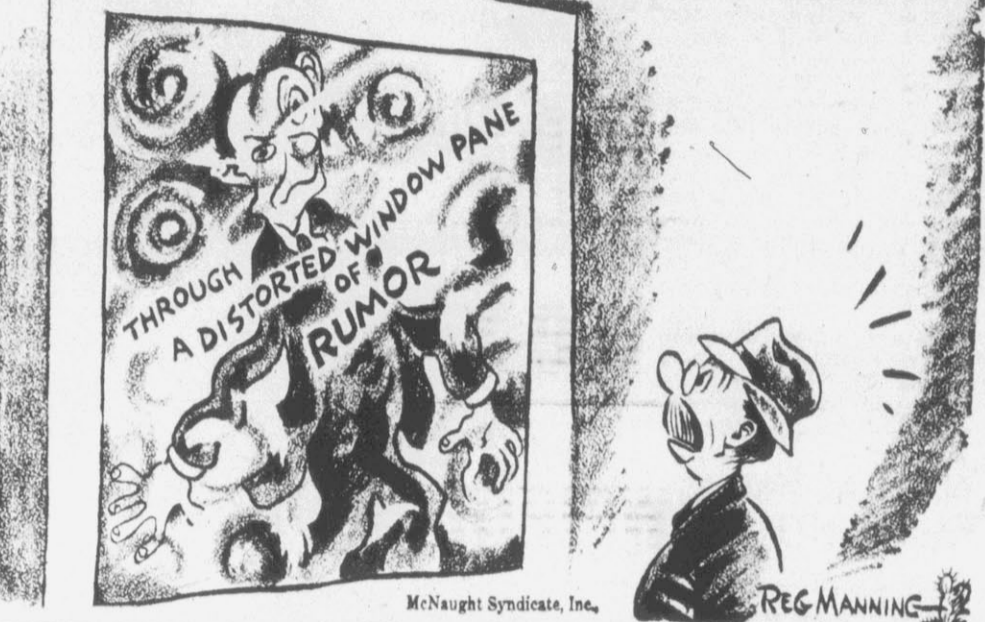

Others consume important minutes out of a feeling of self-importance. Roosevelt and Truman often wasted the reporters' and taxpayers' time. A more businesslike system will benefit everybody concerned.

Sombody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

If you're like me, you get the feeling that there's a solicitation drive in progress continuously in Greenville. Some organization is always looking for money for a worthy cause.

The International Correspondence Club at Greenville High School feels the same way. "If we put on a drive," the members agreed, "we'll have to come up with a new angle."

The club members correspond with other students all over the world. Some of the Greenville students are now in touch with students in Holland, where there is mass suffering from damage done by the floods. The personal contact, through their letters, brought the Greenville students to the decision that they would have to lend a hand.

A Daily Reflector story from the address for Holland aid on

Holland Flood Relief, 14 Wall Street, New York, N. Y.

Of the 47 in the club treasury, the members immediately voted to send $5 for the fund. After reducing the treasury, the members started working to raise even more for the funds.

The ICC has a set plan for collecting their pennies. They pass the box at every homeroom in Greenville High on every school day. Posters are located around the building to plug the drive.

If you have a few pennies and want to help with the drive, the GHS students will be glad to add your pennies to theirs. Or you could mail a check to the ICC Club, GHS.

And I thank you.

PORTS—An important feature of the administration bill reorganizing the State Ports Authority is that it clearly exempts from control of the Budget Bureau the handling of moneys other than State appropriations. In that respect it legalizes what has been the practice, winked at to some degree by the budget folks. Experience has proven that the business of the ports, which is to promote State industry and make a profit on its operations, cannot be conducted in open competition if hampered by budget red tape. All money appropriated by the State will be under the budget; moneys collected for services rendered by the authority will not be—but all accounts will be audited by the State auditor.

C & D—A long step toward making a real department out of the heretofore loosely knit divisions and units in the Department of Conservation and Development is contemplated in another of the Governor's reorganization schemes. Introduced by the C&D chairman in the Senate and House, the bill clarifies the relationship between the board and the director, and is intended to eliminate some of the friction that has occurred in the past by reason of questionable dividing line as to authority of each. The director will be appointed by the Governor to serve at the pleasure of Governor.

RE-ORGANIZATION—There is nothing fundamentally new in proposals by Governor Umstead and President Eisenhower that State and Federal governments reorganize in order to meet the needs of the present. It is recognized that current arguments over a world governmental structure are not much different in basic principle from debates in ancient Athens and Rome relating to democratic government, or the incidents surrounding the granting of the Magna Carta and establishment of the British "Articles" or those which pertained to establishment of the United States of America as a powerful government growing out of the original thirteen independent States.

CHANGE—Some 15 cc. articles elapsed between the halcyon days of the Greek and Roman republics and the signing of the Magna Carta by King John in 1215 at Runnymede. Nearly six centuries more passed before the constitution of the United States of America was adopted at Philadelphia in 1787. Any complete study of governmental organization must begin nearly 3,000 years ago, or essential purposes it can begin 2,000 years ago, and a practical application it can start at a point less than 100 years back. For political purposes in North Carolina it can begin with the turn of the century, and end just a little more than 50 years.

SHORTER—It might be possible to maintain the position that any current governmental reorganization plan should be based upon conditions and factual data covering only the past 25 to 30 years, co-incident with beginning of the New Deal. Let that in individual citizens and States were subjected to Federal edicts.

PROTEST—Throughout the depression years of the thirties and the war years of the forties and the Korean police action of the early fifties, the citizens accepted without protest the imposition of controls by the Federal government. Now the people are showing signs of restiveness and protest against controls by either Federal or State governments.

TRENDS—The interesting fact is the trend in this state is toward complete local control and centralized power in almost equal ratio. The developing situation could not be understood by anybody who is not familiar with North Carolina and politics. For example every one of the hundred counties, each of the 172 administrative school districts, and the approximately 450 incorporated municipalities, is agreeable to the proposition that the State shall finance and pay for schools and roads and streets. State financing presumes State control; but the legislators do not figure it that way. So there are pending bills requiring the State highway commission and the State board of education to grant special consideration to specified communities.

The inconsistency implied in demanding a statewide policy on the one hand and special community consideration on the other apparently does not bother some members of the legislature.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

A FAITHFUL OFFICIAL (Henderson Dispatch)

We don't know how much longer Lindsay Warren has to serve in his fifteen-year term as U.S. comptroller. He was appointed to the office about midway of President Roosevelt's tenure, so that his retirement must come about in two or three more years.

It would be a service to the country if he could be continued in the office. Under the law, however, the comptroller cannot be ousted except for inefficiency or misconduct and he is not eligible for re-appointment. The law is so framed in order to make that official virtually independent in his checks and balances against Federal spending. In other words, the office is non-political and its occupant has a free hand in discharge of his duties.

Lindsay Warren has netted more than one government agency more than a few times in refusing to approve outlays that have passed through his bureau, and which he has held was not strictly in accordance with spending authority. In doing that he was only discharging his duty as a watchdog of the Federal budget. He has pointed out numerous instances of extravagance and waste. How much effort it has had to ward effecting economy in Washington's sprawling bureaucracy is more than we can say. But Warren's policy has been a wholesome operation and definitely ought to be continued.

The comptroller, as it well known, is a North Carolinian. He is from Washington, N. C. As an authority in his home county, he served several terms in the State legislature and then went to Washington as congressman from the first district. It was while serving in that capacity that he was appointed to his present duties. He has always been a faithful public official, and fully as much so as comptroller he has served. With all due respect for the law, it would nevertheless be a fine thing if he could continue for a longer period than the remainder of his term. At least some one else with equal knowledge of the law and equal firmness in administering it should succeed him in that capacity.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

The vending machine industry is not in competition with other forms of merchandising, it was made clear by industry leaders at a recent session of the Sales executives Club in New York.

Robert Z. Greene, president of the Rowe Corp., speaking for the industry, said it was the nation's fourth salesman, coming after retail stores, house-to-house and mail order selling. It is a supplementary business, he said, creating sales where none existed before.

Nice little industry, too, it developed at the meeting. It developed that vending machines made 19 billion individual sales last year, grossing $1.25 billion. Vending machines sell one out of every six packs of cigarettes, one out of every five hot or cold drinks. This is a gain of 100 per cent since 1946. Part of the gain has come from installation of machines in industrial plants where management is finding between-meal snacks and drinks pep up production.

Railroad cars may be the next big market. Sid E. Phelps, Pennsylvania Railroad dining car service manager, said an automatic food buffet car is in the works and vending machines in coaches are helping to offset costs of $1.15 for every dollar taken in dining cars.

The vending machine industry is far from monopolistic. Three large concerns do 60 per cent of the business and the rest is divided among 4,000 small ones.

"It's a tough business with no get-rich-quick nonsense about it," Mr. Greene said. "There is a lot more to it than placing machines and waiting for the money to roll in, as some people have been led to believe. Unfortunately, it is possible for unscrupulous promoters to paint a false glowing picture around automatic merchandising than any other industry with the possible exception of gold mines or oil wells."

But, he added, there is a possibility for a fortune for the man who comes up with a new wonder item for the machines. "We are still seeking an item which will have the same consumer acceptance via the machine as the cigarette, for cigarettes represent almost 50 per cent of that $1.25 billion. Who Knows? The item which can equal the cigarette's success may even now be in the process of manufacture."

CLOTHING RETAILERS WORRY OVER MARGINS

Retail clothing is seriously ably concerned over shrinking margins. A large part of the recent convention of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furriers was devoted to discussion of margin and of de-munification of manufacturers who had reduced discounts.

The session ended with a resolution calling for an increase in the suggested or fixed retail price of branded merchandise to provide the retailer with a realistic margin which will reflect present-day costs of doing business.

SIGNIFICANT QUOTES ON BUSINESS AFFAIRS

"Where our boom has been fuelled by shortages and inflationary financing, we now face a period of having both surpluses and mildly deflationary financing." —George A. Renard, secretary-treasurer, National Association of Purchasing Agents.

"When you're sick and tired of looking at your trade mark in the point where you never want to see it again, that's when the public is just beginning to recognize it." —Anon.

"In the long run, free and competitive prices will best serve the interests of all people, and best meet the changing, growing needs of our economy." —Dwight D. Eisenhower.

TORCH: A lightweight brazing or soldering torch that operates from various types of bottled gas is being introduced by Rainsford & Lyves, Ltd., Birmingham, England. It is said to produce a flame of 1,200 degrees at a pressure of 5 pounds per square inch.

VEST: Eight-pound armored vests, fabricated of fibrous concave plates encased in nylon, is being produced in various colors for civilian use by L. W. Foster Co., Inc., Hancock and Westmoreland, Philadelphia 40. While not bullet-proof, they are said to stop all buckshot pellets, most low-velocity shells and bullets and to reduce the severity of direct hits.

AID: A device for locating transposition and transplacement orders is being marketed by Accounting Aids, Inc., 204 Jerome Ave., New York 66. By setting the dial at the figure representing the difference, the various combinations of numbers which, when transposed, will produce such a difference appear automatically.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The life of crusty old Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt probably evades any future German army with a sound military training. "A good soldier should never take orders from a paperhanger," Obscurely dead now at 77, Von Rundstedt must have often mused wistfully the last few years how much better the world would have been if he had shot Adolf Hitler dead the first time he saw him. For it was the sad fate of the field marshal, one of the great warriors of this warlike century, to build a fine military machine, only to see it gambled away by a fanatic playing a foolish chess game of power with millions of lives.

Von Rundstedt was a Prussian military genius whose tragedy was his blind obedience to the fanatical Nazi Party chief to whom he found personally distasteful and whose ideals repelled him.

Three times he quit Hitler's command in strong disagreement with his policies—in 1938, 1941, in 1944. But he could not bring himself to plot against the wild man he felt in his heart was destroying Germany. Each time he came back to lead another Hitler-led cause.

By 1928 his military fame was secure. He had performed brilliantly in the First World War, helped keep the German general staff alive in the years that followed, and was an architect of the new modernized army Hitler built.

Von Rundstedt opposed entering the Second World War, but put on his uniform again to mastermind the crushing defeats of Poland and France. He was against attacking Russia, but spearheaded the blitzkrieg through the Ukraine. Again he retired after tiffing with Hitler, and again came back into Hitler's service to build his West wall defense line. After the Allies secured the Normand beachhead, the canny old field marshal knew Germany's game was up. He wanted to toss in the sponge to save his country from piecemeal destruction.

But in the fall of 1944 he answered his final bugle call from Hitler, to direct the last-gasp fatal German offensive of the Belgian Bulge.

Von Rundstedt knew it was hopeless. And he resented the fact it became known as "the Rundstedt offensive." Actually he seems to have served mostly as a figure-head symbol. Hitler held the mad reins himself.

"They refused my advice," Von Rundstedt afterward said gruffly. "So I let it become their offensive, their responsibility."

"Hitler had not troubled to consult me about his possibilities. It was obvious to me that the available forces were far too small for such an extremely ambitious plan. To force the Allies from Europe in a second Dunkerque. Back I knew by now it was useless to protest to Hitler about the possibility of anything."

The great attack began the morning of Dec. 16, 1944, in the Ardennes. It caught the Allies completely by surprise, and forced them back 50 miles.

But when the Allies then rallied and held, Von Rundstedt wanted to begin a systematic withdrawal. Hitler overruled him.

One month of grinding withdrawal battle later, the German power in the West had been shattered. The Americans had suffered 176,800 casualties, Nazi losses were put at 81,834, including 12,652 killed.

Washington Letter

By JANE BARD

WASHINGTON—This is about the Mrs. Smith who came to Washington. Wife of Rep. Lawrence Smith (R-Wis.), she has been here 12 years, works in her husband's office, is active in social and club circles in the Capital. Mother of three grown children and grandmother of five, she is the new president of the Congressional Club, made up of some 500 wives of cabinet officers, senators and congressmen.

She was active in club work back in Racine, Wis., where she taught in the public schools before her husband "rescued" her, as she says, in 1917 and made her his bride.

In 1943-44, she was national president of the American Legion Auxiliary. She has been a member of the Congressional Club since her husband first was elected to Congress and was chairman of the club's popular, money-raising cookbooks of 1945 and 1948.

Typical of many congressmen's wives, she enjoys life in the Capital. In the evenings she goes on "The Hill," but she's as glad to get back to her real home in Racine, a nice, big, old-fashioned colonial brick residence, now occupied by her daughter, Betty, her lawyer son-in-law Fred Wheeler, and their two small youngsters.

Right now, I'm looking forward to going home to Easter," Mrs. Smith told me. "Washington's nice, but I wouldn't want to live here all my life." Every year she goes to the Hill. She and her husband at 8 a.m. She has a great deal of her personal correspondence and meets with her constituents. "Congressmen like to find someone they know personally in the congressman's office," she said. "It's easier to help them with their problems if you know them."

Since her husband is a member of the important Foreign Affairs Committee, the Smiths are invited to most of the parties on Embassy Row, and they themselves do a lot of entertaining. Now, as president of the Congressional Club, her own new cabinet, she is planning for the club a series of informal Sunday night buffet suppers for members and guests. "I'll have a Thursday luncheon and then my dinners throughout the week, as well as a busy schedule of day-time activities."

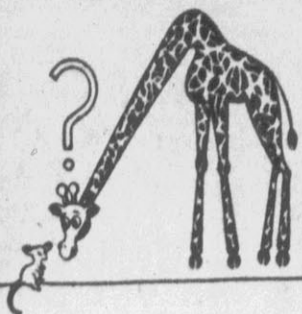

Personally she favors dinners in her own Washington apartment, where her favorite offering is a ham loaf with mustard sauce, sweet potatoes, and corn, a tossed green salad and a spiced apricot ring for dessert. She used to be fond of bowling and liked to take her since coming to Washington, but had little time for these pursuits.

Northeastern Tourney Opens In Kinston

Phants Play New Bern Tonight In 1st Round

Greenville Entry Rated Darkhorse Candidate; Phantoms In Top Shape

The Greenville Phantoms, who have struck the comeback trail with vengeance in mind, roll into Kinston tonight to take on New Bern in the first round of Northeastern Conference Tournament play.

Earlier in the season the Phants were the class of the conference and were wading through conference opponents with ease until a siege of flu descended like an ill omen and wrecked the team's effectiveness.

The Phantoms are looking forward to regaining a measure of their shattered prestige suffered during the elongated flu plague.

Back in action and apparently back in top form are Smith Worthington, Leon Hardee, George Sideris, Jimmy Cheatham, and Edgar Moore.

Two Jayvee stars, Harold Edwards and Bobby Howell, were promoted to the varsity in an effort to gain more scoring punch. Both boys have performed well in recent contests.

New play variations and a long scrimmage session featured yesterday's drills. Freshman center Harold Edwards shows signs of gaining more and more confidence in the varsity pivot slot.

The Greenville entry is rated the darkhorse candidate for the tournament. If Worthington and Hardee can maintain their scoring pace

Geo. Washington Makes Final Bid For Tournament

The George Washington Colonials get their last, slim chance at a Southern Conference basketball tournament berth tonight when they take on the fast-fading Indians of William and Mary at Williamsburg.

The best George Washington can hope for is a chance for an eighth place tie with Richmond in the standings. That can be done only if the Colonials win tonight and Richmond loses to the same William and Mary team Saturday night.

Such a situation would give both a .667 percentage, making a play-off necessary for the last place in the tournament in Raleigh next week.

In tonight's only other game, Richmond will attempt to fatten its non-loop standings with a victory over Hampden-Sydney.

Last night, Furman's Purple Paladins took out a big peeve on Wofford. For three straight games before meeting Wofford Feb. 19, Furman had been hitting at well above 100 points per game. But Wofford held them to "only" 90.

Consequently, Furman came back to trounce Wofford last night 104-78.

The West Virginia Mountaineers, victors by 10 points over Penn State last month, tried to try their regret to make it two in a row. Penn State trounced them soundly, 77-57.

Little League Elders Formulate 1953 Plans

The Greenville Little League baseball team has it all over some major league clubs at least in one important respect.

A treasurer's report at last night's Little League meeting showed that the small fry league operated in the black—financially—last season.

A recommendation was brought forth by Recreation Director Warren Carroll that the Little League stand as it did last year instead of increasing into two leagues as had been previously planned.

Carroll pointed out that the Little League program is still in the developmental stage and encouraged people of West Greenville to support the program with enthusiasm so two leagues may be established next year.

The next Little League meeting will be held Wednesday, March 11, at the Armory. The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. All parents who have children that participate in either Little League or Pony Baseball Leagues are especially invited.

New officers were elected and committees appointed to serve in Little League activities for the coming year.

Dick Evans was elected to succeed M. K. Blount as president. Other officers elected were: Reynolds May, vice-president; and Bruce Koonce, re-elected treasurer. A new office for secretary was formed and it is to be filled at the next meeting.

The following committees were appointed by the new president: 1. Finance Committee—Bruce Koonce, chairman; Tom Henderson, and W. L. Allen.

2. Grounds Committee—Bob Arthur, chairman; Reynolds May, E. C. Williams, J. T. Tripp, and J. L. Burton.

3. Manager Committee—Reynolds May, chairman; Lucian Bryan, and Neely James.

4. Equipment Committee—Neely James, and George MacMillan.

5. Publicity—J. B. Cummings, and Rev. Leonard Topping.

6. Women's Concession Stand—Mrs. Lucian Bryan, chairman; Mrs. Jimmy Jenkins, Mrs. Bob Edwards, Mrs. Men's Press Box—Rev. Leonard Topping, Jimmy Robards, and Lucian Bryan, chairman.

Seton Hall Goes For Major Team Record Tonight

NEW YORK (UP)—Seton Hall, the nation's No. 2 college basketball team in this week's United Press ratings, goes after an all-time major college record Friday night when it tries to make Baldwin-Wallace its 27th straight victim in an undefeated season.

Coach Honey Russell's Pirates tied the mark of 26 straight in one season last Saturday, matching feats accomplished by Long Island University in 1936 and Holy Cross in 1950. For LIU, it was a complete season; for Holy Cross, the streak ended with a loss at Columbia in the 27th game. For Seton Hall, No. 27 will be played on its home court at South Orange, N. J.

Shooting accuracy and avoidance of fouling have marked Seton Hall's success. NCAA Service Bureau statistics showed today, since the Pirates rank No. 1 in both departments, they have made 44.4 per cent of their shots from the floor to 4.1 for Niagara, and have committed 15.3 personals per game to 15.6 for Niagara.

This week's figures also show that the tremendous increase in scoring—10 points a game, on the average, for both teams—has come almost exclusively at the foul line. In the average game, both teams are averaging about 7 baskets, the same as a year ago, but they are making 41 free throws good instead of 31.

The increase in scoring is so great that 16 teams are clicking off 80 or more points a game, a level reached by only four teams previously in the entire history of the sport, Kentucky, Louisville and West Virginia were that high last year and Rhode Island State set the record at 82.5 in 1947. Right now nine teams are above Rhode Island's mark and the leader, Furman with 90.1, has gone over 100 nine times.

Defensive figures have taken the corresponding ten-point jump. Oklahoma A & M, leader last year with 45.5 allowed, is the leader now with 53.3, which would have placed it 15th a year ago.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—Charley Riley, a grand little St. Louis fighting man, appeared near the end of the boxing trail today after his defeat by Teddy (Red Top) Davis.

For Riley, the split decision loss to the Hartford, Conn., featherweight Wednesday night added up to an overall record of 60 victories and 24 defeats since he became a pro in 1944.

It was his second defeat in three fights with Davis.

Riley lost by a very narrow margin. One judge saw it 52-48 for Davis and another 51-49 the same way.

When the salaries go down, the caliber of the players goes down," he added, "and the fans will not come to see the games unless we have the best players from the best college teams."

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The defense will call back National Football League Commissioner Bert Bell to the stand today to continue testimony that unlimited television would kill professional football.

Bell, regarded as the defense's star witness, Wednesday told a judge hearing trial of the government's anti-trust suit against the league that without radio and TV blackouts the NFL could not survive.

Free-reign broadcasts and telecasts of league games would cause a drastic drop in attendance and force 40 per cent salary cuts on players now "averaging $7,100 per

Pirates To Play Here Again !! NAIA Tourney To Be Held Here; East Carolina In

Greenville basketball fans and Pirate rooters far and near will have another opportunity to see East Carolina's championship team perform this season on the home court.

The National Association of Inter-Collegiate Athletics district tournament will be held in Memorial Health and Physical Education Building here Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. This tournament is small colleges' equivalent of major schools' NCAA and NIT tourneys.

Winner of the district tourney playoff here will go to the national finals in Kansas City. The tournament is being sponsored for the benefit of Greenville Rotary Club's Scout Activities Program.

Competing in the tournament will be the top four small college teams from North and South Carolina.

East Carolina's regular season North State League champions automatically win a berth due to a 15-2 record for the season.

The remaining teams will be the North State League and South Carolina tournament champions, plus the schools with best season record.

Final pairings for the tourney will be announced Monday.

Probable entries besides East Carolina will be Western Carolina, Elon from North Carolina and Presbyterian or Wofford of South Carolina.

Greenville Rotary Club's Steering Committee in charge of promoting the tournament here are: Howard McGinnis, tournament manager; J. B. Kittrell, assistant tournament manager; W. W. Smiley, James W. Butler, and Badger Johnson.

FILLY DEFENDS TITLE MIAMI (AP)—Heading the list of nominations for Hialeah's $25,000 Black Helen race for fillies and mares this winter is H. F. Krimendahl's Roman Miss. The filly won the race last year after losing a nose decision in the 1951 meeting.

Baseball's Sluggers Are Under .300 Mark

By OSCAR FRALEY United Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (UP)—This probably will be attacked as out and out heresy in some quarters, but it seems apparent from the major league batting averages that baseball today is a very stodgy game.

What, a few wide-eyed people have asked, has happened to the 400 hitters? What, I'd like to know, has happened to the 300 hitters?

Obviously, from the low rate of the attacking figures baseball is becoming a game between two pitchers each surrounded by eight men. Personally, I am a guy who sleeps soundly during a one-hitter and yells delightedly in a tight 12-11 contest.

Just as I like my box fighters to slug each other unmercifully, so, too, do I like my batters to belt the little white pellet between and beyond the fielders. They are displaying ever-increasing disability to do so which must frustrate just about everybody but the pitchers and their families.

For instance last year of the 400-odd major league players in action only 18 of them were able to hit .300 or better. You can knock down the average by claiming there are only about 144 "regulars" but the fact remains that baseball's best batting average was Stan Musial's .336 mark.

That .336 of his was nine points higher than the average of .327 compiled by the American League batting champion, Ferris Fain, and 11 points better than the National League's runner-up, Sc. It is obvious that the ball busters had a right bad season, with only 10 hitting .300 or better in the National League and but eight, counting Fain, squeezing past in the American League.

Nor is this a one-year phenomenon. Because only 12 players currently active in the major leagues have life-time averages of better than .300, and of those only Stan the Man's .346 looks real healthy.

Musial, as the game's leading hitter, argues that 400 is impossible these days because of the many night games which upset a player's living habits and give the pitcher an edge under the lights. There must be something to it, because baseball's last 400 man was Ted Williams away back in the pre-World War era of 1941.

This season the number of night games goes up five to 441 and it may be expected that batting averages will drop correspondingly. It is significant that the Cubs will "pioneer more day baseball."

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—Manager Rogers Hornsby who once refused players permission to attend the movies during the season, surprised the Cincinnati Reds at their opening workout today with a list of lenient rules for spring training.

Hornsby's "new deal" permits players to fish and play golf and bars "fines for being overweight. In recent years Cincinnati managers have declared nearby golf courses "out of bounds."

Hornsby made it clear, however, that he would continue to judge his players on the field by his own demanding standards.

HAVANA, Cuba (UP)—Home run slugger Ralph Kiner and pitchers Paul Pettit, Charley Sipple and Johnny Hetki were the Pittsburgh Pirates' only remaining holdouts today following rookie first baseman Al Grunwald's acceptance of terms.

Grunwald has notified the Pirates' main office in Pittsburgh that he will arrive in Havana late this week. He said he delayed signing because of the birth of his second child last Friday.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UP)—Outfielder Gene Woodling was expected to confer with Assistant General Manager Roy Hamey today and pitcher Ed Lopat was

Bucs Play Guilford In Tourney Tonight

By JIMMY ELLIS Reflector Sports Writer WINSTON-SALEM—The East Carolina College Pirates pulled into town today, eager to whip the jinx that has plagued all but one of the last nine top-ranked teams in the North State Conference tournament.

The Bucs are sitting on the top perch because of their 14-2 season's record—the best mark a regular season winner has posted in a number of years. The jinx they're facing is the one which has sidetracked the top teams every year in the last nine tournaments except back in 1942 when High Point won the tournament crown.

The first foe on the Pirate list in the tournament is one that is disarming at first glance, the Guilford Quakers. By all rights, the Pirates hold every kind of edge possible over the Quakers. They beat the Guilford team twice during regular season play; the Pirates are, for the most part, a thoroughly experienced club; Guilford has nothing at all to compare with the one-two punch of Sonny Russell and Bobby Hodges.

Those three factors, if nothing else, make the Pirates out-and-out favorites. But Coach Dave Meredith and the rest of his Quakers will have no part of the feeling. They point to Bob Shoaf, Guilford's scoring machine, Bobby Callout, one of the cleverest ball handlers scheduled for a conference Friday when the Yankees sought to reduce their list of unsigned players.

Woodling, who hit .309 last season, is believed asking for $25,000 while Lopat, a 10-game winner, is resisting a conditional contract which would involve risking a heavy cut.

and playmakers in the conference; and the unbeatable Guilford spirit when tournament time rolls around. They figure they're at least on equal psychological terms with the Pirates.

Anyway, both Meredith and Coach Howard Porter of the Bucs are going all out to win the battle. Meredith is going to start his regular team of Shoaf and Oswald Schmidt at center, and Callout and Gary Hildebrand at the guards. He plans to stick with them if they can go the distance. If they can't, he has his reserves primed and ready to throw into the fight.

Porter, the quiet master of the Pirates, is prepared to follow the plan he has used all season: he'll use the first team as long as necessary but he's hoping to let his reserves get into action. He has already nominated the regular crew of Sonny Russell and Charlie Huffman at the forwards, Bobby Hodges at center, and Cecil Heath and J. C. Thomas at the guards for the starting jobs against Guilford. Should anyone of them falter, he has Paul Jones and Bob Moye ready to throw into the gap. That system has brought 15 victories in 18 outings thus far.

The Pirates have been to three North State Conference tournaments. Twice they went to the finals. Last year they got bounced out on their ear by an upstart Lenoir Rhyne team that surprised everybody in mopping up everything in sight. The Pirates don't figure to let that happen again.

Anyway, the winner of the Pirates-Quaker clash has no easy road ahead. The next stumbling block is High Point, winners over Catawba in last night's opening round of play.

Gunfighter's Return

by Leslie Ernenwein

Chapter 24

When Jim Rimbaud awoke it was coming daylight and Della stood by the bedroom window with his gun in her hand. He wondered why she should be holding a gun, and intended to ask her about the voices. But he drifted off to sleep, and when he opened his eyes again Della was beside him on the bed, her face so near he could feel the gentle brush of her measured breathing.

Lying motionless, so as not to disturb her, Rimbaud wondered if his ribs were broken, or merely cracked. He took a deep breath, and feeling no pain, thought: "Just sprung a trifle is all. He probed his side and found it so sensitive that he winced at the slight pressure of his fingers. He was aware of a soreness that seathed his whole body; even his right hand was sore. Examining it, he grinned at sight of the bruised knuckles. Booger Bill would also have some sore spots this morning.

Rimbaud thought about last night—the half-remembered voices that had merged with his confused dreaming. Had he actually heard Hugh Jubal's voice, and if so, what had Della told her father's foreman? And what would he tell Lew Stromberg?

Rimbaud didn't realize that he had dozed off until he heard a man announce, "Well, he's not dead."

Turning his head, Rimbaud saw Doc Featherstone. And then, as the medico leaned over to examine him, Rimbaud peered at Eve Odegarde who stood in the bedroom doorway. There was an expression of shocked wonderment in her eyes, as if she was astonished at what she saw. Astonished and repelled, Rimbaud thought instantly: "I must be a sorry sight. He grinned and said, "Good morning, Sweet Stuff."

"How do you feel?" Eve asked, not smiling.

"Like I'd been tromped by six shod broncs," Rimbaud admitted. "But I've felt worse and lived."

Doc Featherstone unwound the wide bandage and gave Rimbaud's bruised flesh a squint-eyed appraisal. Presently Doc said, "Two broken ribs. Perhaps three."

"You sure?" Rimbaud asked.

"One more kick and you'd have had a punctured lung. In which case you'd have been dead by now."

Della sat up abruptly, yawned, and knuckled her sleep-swollen eyes. Then, seeing Eve in the doorway, she asked in astonishment, "What are you doing here?"

Eve shrugged and said, "I could ask the same question."

"Oh, you could, could you?" Della demanded angrily. "Well, if it's any of your business, I slept here. I spent the night with Jim Rimbaud and I don't care who knows it. Now what are you doing here, Miss Priss?"

Eve said quietly, "Charley Bonn didn't tell me there was someone to take care of Jim."

"Charley Bonn?" Rimbaud asked. "What would Bonn know about it?"

"He shot out the lamp here, and rode all night trying to get past Roman Four men," Eve explained. "Charley believed you were dying," Rimbaud shook his head in puzzlement.

"I thought it was Sam Aiken who shot out the lamp," he muttered. "So did Hugh Jubal. Hugh said it was Sam."

"It couldn't have been," Eve said. "Sam gave himself up after supper last night."

Della got off the bed. "You mean Sam is in jail?"

"Yes," Eve said, adding tartly, "if it's any of your business."

Swift anger starved Della's cheeks. "So you talk me into quitting like a yellow coward!" she exclaimed. "You talked him into spending five years in Yuma just to spite me!"

Then, not taking time to tuck up her tumbled curls, Della shouldered past Eve and hurried outside.

Rimbaud heard her ride off while Doc Featherstone worked over him. Most girls, he reflected, would have been hugely embarrassed at being found asleep in bed with a man, even a wounded man. But not Della Stromberg.

"That girl is a case," Doc Featherstone said sighingly. "Never saw one like her."

"A good thing for me she's like she is," mused Rimbaud. "A proper girl wouldn't have been proving around last night and found me."

Eve made no comment as she helped Doc with the final tight bandaging. She was, Rimbaud thought, as gracious as a woman could be; yet he sensed something in her eyes that was like disappointment, or a mild animosity, as if she resented the fact that Della Stromberg had spent the night here. But that didn't make sense. What difference would it make to her who slept with him?

Eve, who'd gone out to make a pot of coffee, came back into the room to announce that it was poured. Rimbaud saw her glance at the nearly empty jug. He smiled cynically, thinking that she would be mortified if she knew the jug belonged to her precious Sam. She probably wouldn't believe it if he told her, any more than she believed Sam was having an affair with Della Stromberg. Eve was that kind of woman. She would have faith in the man of her choice, no matter what anyone said about him.

"Try standing up," Doc Featherstone suggested.

Rimbaud eased off the bed. All his muscles ached, and soreness still seathed his battered body, but there was no sharp pain as he took a few exploratory steps around the room. "Just like new," you'd quit soon as you heard he had given himself up," Eve reported.

"You're not quitting?" Eve asked.

"But why should he?" Rimbaud asked, wholly jazzed.

"Well, you see, I told him how it was the night you came back," Eve admitted, a rose stain tinting her cheeks now. "It well, it seemed only right that he should know."

"So your conscience was hurting you," Rimbaud suggested, a decisive smile rutting his bruised cheeks.

"No," Eve said, very sober and deliberate about this. "I wasn't my conscience that was hurting me."

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS WASTE

Stagnant backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slow-down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages. Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Use successfully by millions for over 40 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 million kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today! See flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

"But why should he?" Rimbaud asked, wholly jazzed.

"Well, you see, I told him how it was the night you came back," Eve admitted, a rose stain tinting her cheeks now. "It well, it seemed only right that he should know."

"So your conscience was hurting you," Rimbaud suggested, a decisive smile rutting his bruised cheeks.

"No," Eve said, very sober and deliberate about this. "I wasn't my conscience that was hurting me."

Air Guard In Japan Fighting Added Hazard Of Cold, Fog

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
AP Newsfeatures

AN AMERICAN AIR BASE IN NORTHERN JAPAN — Fly with U.S. jet pilots to understand the bitter weather hazards the airman face in guarding Northern Japan against possible enemy attack.

Circling one of the northern airfields, Capt. Don Watt, of Thomas, Ga., watched visibility plunge fantastically from fair to almost zero.

This was nothing new to him. Frequently conditions at the guardian bases change from bright, wintry sunshine to blinding snow storms in 20 minutes or less.

Watt radioed the airfield and asked that he be guided to a landing. He put his jet down on the runway at more than 125 miles an hour. The jet skidded breath-takingly each time Watt clamped down on the brakes. He got it stopped at the very end of the runway, sighing:

"Well, I needed all there was."

Lt. Col. Robert W. Shick, of Modesto, Calif., and 1908 Kenwood,

Austin, Tex., director of operations for the 27th strategic fighter wing in Northern Japan, said:

"As far as flying in poor weather is concerned our pilots have top ratings in instrument flying and feel at home under almost any sort of conditions."

Lt. Col. Earl A. Arnett, of Oakdale, Calif., commander of three northern bases, said: "In spite of deep snow and low temperatures, morale stays high because we have good living conditions and adequate facilities."

Most U.S. jet pilots in Northern Japan have prior service in Korea where temperatures are not so bitter. Last Nov. 4, while patrolling northern Hokkaido, Lt. Paul L. Hummel of Dixon, Ill., and Lt. Bruce Grant, Long Beach, Calif., intercepted two Russian propeller-driven planes. The Russians had strayed into Hokkaido's territorial waters.

"They were flying LA-11s which look like the old German Focke-Wulfs," Hummel said. "We dropped down and came in behind them. When they spotted us, they took evasive action and flew all over the sky."

Pilots are on 24-hour alert at northern air bases. When an alarm bell rings, the pilots dash out to their planes and take off under the prescribed time of five minutes.

Capt. Hill W. Beasley, of Gilmer, Tex., maintenance control officer, said sub-zero temperatures add greatly to maintenance problems of aircraft. Mechanics work 15 hours a day.

"When we were based at Bergstrom Field (Austin, Tex.) it took up to 45 minutes to get a plane ready for a flight," Beasley said. "Here it takes two and one half hours."

Mechanics must endure freezing temperatures while staying on the flight lines. They must keep planes warmed up in case of alerts touched off frequently when Russian aircraft approach the shores of Japan.

Pay Tribute To John S. Moore

Members of North Carolina's lower house yesterday paid final tribute to John Samuel Moore, former Pitt County representative who died in Richmond last week.

A resolution honoring Moore was offered by Pitt's two-man delegation, Sam O. Worthington of Greenville and F.M. Kilpatrick of Ayden. The House passed it under suspended rules and sent it to the Senate.

Moore represented Pitt County in the House in 1937 and 1939. He was born in Bethel October 2, 1893, and attended Whitsett Institute, the University of North Carolina, University of California, Duke University and Columbia University.

Moore had been superintendent of schools at Fremont and Gates counties, and a teacher in Galileo High School.

SCARVES ADD COLOR

Pretty scarves not only add the spice of color to a wardrobe but they help to protect dress and coat collars from cosmetic and perspiration soil. To function properly, the scarf must, of course, be clean itself. Squeeze it often through warm soapsuds and rinse thoroughly; roll in a towel; shake into shape; press with a warm towel while damp. It's flower-fresh, ready to be used again.

Individuality Traits In Everyone's Blood

By DELOS SMITH
 United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—Your blood makes you a unique person even more than the length and shape of your nose. A medical scientist revealed today that your blood tags you as the individual which you are.

Dr. Peter Bernfeld of the Tufts College Medical School, Medford, Mass., runs streams of electrons through samples of blood which cause them to form into patterns. He now has studied hundreds of patterns and all were distinctly different except those of identical twins.

He is seeking an easy means for the quick and early detection of cancer, and his report was made through the American Cancer Society which helps support his work. So far it has been disappointing in that regard but it may produce a means of charting any person's resistance or susceptibility to specific diseases.

Keep this in mind. Your blood is 77 to 81 per cent water. But the comparatively little which isn't is made up of scores of chemicals. But the proportions vary minutely in individuals—both in sickness and in health.

Dr. Bernfeld separates all these chemical parts by a method which is called electrophoresis. The blood sample is spread on a positively charged plate hooked up with a sensitive stylus which draws a line on a chart inserted into a roller drum.

The stream of electrons (electrons are the smallest particles of negatively charged electricity) causes the particles that make up the blood to "leap" on the plate and thus disperse. This dispersing is recorded on the chart in a pattern similar to a weather chart. A scientist like Dr. Bernfeld can

Air Force Plan Said Unaffected

WASHINGTON (AP)—The proposed half-million dollar Air Force installation near Roanoke Rapids, N.C., will not be affected by a recent Defense Department order halting construction on Air Force projects while the whole construction program is reviewed.

Rep. Fountain (DNC) said here last night that the North Carolina project is an entirely new one and will not be connected with any existing project. He said the Air Force has not given him any information as to the location of the project other than that it is "near Roanoke Rapids."

Fountain also said the Air Force has refused to disclose the installation's exact purpose.

The congressman said the plan is to build about 30 prefabricated structures and utilities in Halifax County, with $500,000 being spent for housing and equipment.

Thumbs Down On 'Andor' Measure

ATLANTA (AP)—Georgia, the United States and the English language generally will have to struggle along with a suggested new word "andor."

The Georgia House of Representatives voted to make "andor" a legal substitute for "and-or" but the Senate turned thumbs down on the suggestion yesterday.

read this chart as easily as the comics. He discovered that people—except identical twins—are different in their blood composition. The difference between patterns of identical twins were accounted for by fever, different diets or by medicines.

This would make blood patterns valuable for precise identification the way finger prints are used. Moreover, the pattern of any person will change with even a slight change in health, although it takes a complete change of diet to affect it.

Cases Heard In City Police Court

In Police Court Wednesday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Ervin May, Negro, 1304-B Fairfax avenue, guilty of temporary larceny of an automobile.

The court gave him six months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted. The judgment also provides that May is to remain of good behavior two years and pay Ed Pratt for damage to his car. This case was retained for further order.

May was given 30 days in jail for not having a driver's license, sentence to be served concurrently with above sentence. The court suspended sentence on payment of $25 and costs.

Mrs. Penny H. Cherry, failure to yield right of way, prayer for judgment continued on payment of $5 on court costs. Testimony was that her car collided with a car driven by Sam Northrop at 10th and Charles streets a week ago. Both cars were damaged. Impact of the collision, it was testified, caused the Northrop car to collide with a porch at the home of A. R. House, 318 East 10th street, causing $100 property damage. Occupants of both cars were painfully injured.

Asa Griffin, violation of a court order to provide support for his wife and children, was given three months on the roads.

Lamb Tyson, Negro, was fined $25 and costs for not having a driver's license.

Lewis Griffin paid $15 for speeding and he is not to drive a car for seven days.

Faith, Cookies Said Her Secret

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Faith and steady cookie baking have kept a Pittsburgh couple happy for 62 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar S. McCurdy began their 62nd year of married life in a reminiscent mood not long ago. The 85-year old Mrs. McCurdy said she has baked five dozen cookies a week for her husband since their marriage in 1890.

"The way to hold a man is through his stomach and his heart. Our faith and my cookies, have done the trick," she claims.

FRESH WHITE TOUCH
 New in Spring trimming is the fresh white touch of kid leather at the collar, cuffs and even buttons of the new suits and coats. Suede too is a smart accent in rich jewel shades.

It is believed that about 15 per cent of commercially available water-power in the United States has been developed.

Report Finding Anti-Red Group

HONG KONG (AP)—The Shanghai Communist Liberation Daily reported recently the Public Security Bureau of the municipal government had uncovered a Chinese Nationalist underground resistance organization.

The Red paper said three leaders of the Shanghai "Anti-Communist Fraternal Society" were executed. Two more were sentenced to death but the sentences were deferred for two years. The victims were said to be "sons of Chiang Ching-kuo," eldest son of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

An hour's work by the average worker today will produce about four times the goods and services that an hour's work would produce in the United States in the middle of the 19th Century, says a Twentieth Century Fund study.

CHILEAN NITRATE OF SODA
CHAMPION BRAND

The Difference in NATURAL CHILEAN NITRATE makes a DIFFERENCE to you!

One difference between Natural Chilean Nitrate and other nitrogen fertilizers is quality—natural quality. It is the world's only natural source of nitrate nitrogen.

The nitrogen content of Chilean Nitrate is 100% nitrate nitrogen—100% available—100% fast-acting—100% dependable.

No antidote is necessary. Chilean Nitrate is non-acid forming.

Rich in sodium and minor elements. Chilean Nitrate is rich in beneficial sodium that makes a stronger, deeper root system—improves crop health, vigor and nutritive value. It also contains small quantities of essential minor elements.

Chilean Nitrate is the ONLY fertilizer that supplies nitrate nitrogen, beneficial sodium and essential minor elements.

Noted for all-round efficiency. Quick-acting 100% nitrate nitrogen makes rapid, sturdy growth. Its 26% sodium content acts like potash when necessary and helps to increase the supply of available phosphate in the soil.

Chilean Nitrate's free flowing pellets guarantee rapid, accurate distribution under all conditions. No special precautions needed.

Helps maintain productivity of your land. When used consistently in a sound farming program, Chilean Nitrate builds up fertility, increases efficiency.

Year after year, Natural Chilean Nitrate increases yields—improves quality—defends against disease—fortifies against insect injury—counteracts soil acidity. Use Chilean Nitrate for solid satisfaction!

Poor Production Quality Rapped

HONG KONG (AP)—Communist speed-up and "emulation drives" have caused more bad goods to be produced in Red China, Peiping complains.

The Chinese Red radio blasted Red factories and mines which "sought blindly to increase quantity in production, ignoring quality."

The radio scolded: "not only has the amount of rejections and seconds increased, income has decreased and the reputation of the products has been seriously damaged."

Company B Has Its Own Hens

WITH U.S. 45TH DIVISION, Korea (AP)—A few hundred yards from Communist positions in Korea chickens are busily laying eggs for the men of Company B, 160th Infantry Regiment.

The poultry farm was started by Capt. William J. Clarke to provide fresh eggs for breakfast. The six chickens and a rooster, of Korean origin, are housed in a special cage of wire and sandbags for protection against incoming artillery and mortar fire.

Apparently nerveless, the hens are producing amply. Their daily diet includes barley, popcorn, breakfast cereal and beans.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks rose small amounts on active trading in the morning trading today.

Opening blocks ranging to 11,000 shares in Avco swelled first hour sales to 560,000 shares, against 350,000 shares yesterday. In the Tuesday session the first hour produced 870,000 shares on lowered margin requirements.

Today's volume centered on the low-priced issues, including Pepsi-Cola, Willys-Overland and Avco, all at new highs. Pressed Steel Car, Packard, Columbia Gas and Calahan Zinc.

The tobaccos continued to advance under the spur of higher prices. Reynolds B American and Lorillard reached new highs, the first up a point. Coppers were up fractions on their price rise.

Rails had several strong spots. Atlantic Coast Line gained 2 points, Northern Pacific more than a point and Texas & Pacific a point. Steels held steady to firm and motors firm.

Shell Oil and Amerada rose more than a point each in the petroleum group. Jersey Standard rose a point.

Roanoke River Dams Discussed

WASHINGTON (UP)—A North Carolina and Virginia delegation held a lengthy conference with Interior Secretary Douglas McKay here yesterday to "familiarize" him with proposals for long-range development of the Roanoke River area.

Sen. Clyde R. Hoey and Rep. L. H. Fountain, North Carolina Democrats, were in the group which included Virginia Republican Rep. Richard M. Poff and a committee delegation.

Senator Hoey said the group made no requests of McKay and did not try to commit him on any specific policies. He said they merely wanted to "familiarize" McKay with the project.

Hoey said the group feels the government should erect a flood control dam at Smith Mountain, Va., as part of the long-range program but permit private industry to construct a power dam at Roanoke Rapids, N.C.

The Interior Department has blocked the Roanoke Rapids proposal and the case is now before the Supreme Court.

Pageant Tryouts Set March 13 In Manteo School

MANTEO—Local tryouts for "The Lost Colony" cast will be held at the Manteo High School Friday night, March 13.

State-wide tryouts for the great symphonic drama and other outdoor dramas in the state will be held in Chapel Hill March 28.

On March 13, 60 or more Roanoke Islanders will be selected for roles ranging from flower girls to colonists and Indian men and women.

Additional parking area for several hundred automobiles is now being made at East Raleigh for patrons of "The Lost Colony" when it opens its 13th season at Waterside Theater on June 27.

Manager Dick Jordan has established a year-round office in the Community Building.

Local Druggists Oppose Bill Providing 'Limited Service'

A bill has been introduced in the legislature which would permit any person 30 years of age who has worked under a registered druggist for 10 years to obtain a license to practice pharmacy in the State. The measure would provide for issuance of a "limited service" license, stipulations of which allow holders of such licenses to fill prescriptions and handle drugs while the registered pharmacist is not present in the store.

No educational requirements are included in the bill and, theoretically, it gives holders of "limited service" licenses the same privileges a regularly licensed pharmacist enjoys. He need not have attended college at all to secure a license.

Pitt Representative

Labeled House Bill 419 and introduced in the House by Rep. Sam O. Worthington of Pitt County, the measure has been referred to the House Judiciary Committee No. 2 instead of the House Committee on Health.

Reason for by-passing the health committee, where a bill of such nature ordinarily would be reviewed, was defined today as a policy known in legislative circles as "common courtesy."

In effect, "common courtesy" simply means that bills are referred to the committee of which the representative who introduced the bill is a member. Thus, House Bill 419 went into the House Judiciary Committee No. 2 hamper.

Representative Worthington is chairman of that committee.

Local druggists said this morning the bill has a restrictive clause in that it sets July 1, 1953, as the deadline for people in that specific category to file application with the secretary of the State Board of Pharmacy for such a license.

Applicants must include with their applications, sworn to under oath, proof that said applicant has had at least 10 years experience in compounding prescriptions under the direction of a legally licensed pharmacist or permitted physician.

The application must be accompanied by affidavits of two citizens in the community where he resides to the effect that the applicant is a person of good moral character.

Practicing pharmacists in Greenville contacted this morning registered indignation at the introduction of such a measure in the legislature, and inferred they plan to draw up a protesting petition to present to Pitt's legislators.

They set out as pertinent reasons for opposition that lack of education and training of such people who may apply for such licenses will increase the magnitude of error in filling prescriptions and, thus, endanger the health and welfare of the general public.

In addition, they theorized adoption of such a bill by the legislature would place North Carolina at the bottom of the list among all 48 states in professional and educational requirements for pharmacists.

They concluded that should permission to obtain such licenses be granted to men of inferior ability and education, it would greatly reduce the standing and professional perfection of pharmacists as a group.

Foundation Will Devote Sum To Freedoms Study

NEW YORK (UP)—The Ford Foundation has voted to spend $15,000,000 to seek ways of preserving American civil liberties while the nation combats its internal Communist menace.

Trustees of the foundation agreed to turn the money over to the "Fund for the Republic," an independent organization established by the foundation last year to fight restrictions on freedom of thought, inquiry and expression.

An announcement said the program would be concentrated on:

1. Restrictions and assaults upon academic freedom.
2. Due process and equal protection of the laws.
3. The protection of the rights of minorities.
4. Censorship, boycotting and blacklisting activities by private groups.
5. Principles of guilt by association and its application in the United States today.

Boys Too Early, Given Whipping

COXLODGE, England (UP)—Thirty boy pupils at the local primary school were whipped with a leather belt for getting to school too early.

Gray-haired headmistress Miss Dorothy Robson said today there is a rule that pupils must not arrive at the school more than 10 minutes before classes start—because insurance on the building is operative only during classes.

Ex-Slave's Land Sold At Auction For $750,000

WASHINGTON (UP)—Frederick Foote bought the land for $500 when he was released from slavery just after the Civil War.

It was just 33 acres of wilderness in suburban Fairfax, Va. But Foote, who had never tasted ownership before, treasured it more than anything else in the world.

When he died in 1895, he left a will decreeing that the property should remain "forever in the Foote family." It was a vain dream.

As civilization advanced and government workers spilled across the Potomac into Virginia, the value of the land crept upward.

The Foote children — two aging daughters and a son — no longer could pay the taxes. Especially after they jumped from $350 in 1951 to $3,196 in 1952.

A judge set aside Foote's old will and said the land could be sold for a large shopping center. He considered the price "fair and reasonable."

It was $750,000.

Book Returned After 11 Years

NEW STAITSVILLE, O. (AP)—The Canadian ambassador to the Netherlands is returning a book borrowed from the New Straitsville Library more than 11 years ago.

Ambassador T. A. Stone said the book "Rekindling Camp Fires," probably was taken from the library by one of his father-in-law's sisters and just discovered among his own books.

"I notice" that the penalty in the New Straitsville Public Library is five cents a week," Stone wrote.

"Although I am not, I suppose, technically responsible either for borrowing it nor the fact that it is so long overdue, I wonder in the circumstances if you would be good enough to accept my check for $25 as a contribution to your library fund in lieu of the penalty."

The library board in this city of 1,122 voted to accept the ambassador's diplomatic explanation, the check and the book.

Nine Registered For Scout Event

WILSON—Nine scouts from East Carolina Council have registered for the 1953 National Boy Scout Jamboree in Los Angeles, California, next summer.

Scout Executive Ralph H. Mozo said Rocky Mount, Terboro and Wilson sent in the first registrations from this council.

First Methodist Church Troop 5, Rocky Mount, has reserved places for four scouts, West Haven Presbyterian Church Troop 77, also of Rocky Mount, has signed up for one scout, Two Wilson troops, 4 and 77, First Presbyterian and St. Timothy's Episcopal Churches, respectively, have made reservations for one and two each, Howard Memorial Presbyterian Church Troop 49, Terboro, registered one scout.

Scout Executive Mozo said council headquarters has reiterated that the deadline for these registrations is March 2. After that time registrations will be accepted in order of receipt at national headquarters in New York until the 50,000 maximum is reached.

This is the first National Boy Scout Jamboree to be held on the west coast. Mozo said reservations, blanket type, with only $10 registration fee. Troop sponsors may make this type of registrations and name the Boy Scout later. At this time it appears, the scout executive said, that the cost will be something like $350. "We hope more sponsoring organizations will contribute to the cost of sending more East Carolina Boy Scouts to the National Jamboree," he added.

Chief Of Voice Of America Has Full Clearance

WASHINGTON (UP)—The State Department today wrote "closed" on the case of Voice of America chief Alfred H. Morton, who has been restored to duty with a stiff reprimand following a two-day suspension from his $13,000-a-year post.

The suspension was lifted following an investigation of an indicated disagreement by Morton with a Feb. 19 department order which banned use of any material authored by Communists or left-wingers in Voice broadcasts.

In order to avoid further trouble, the department said it was preparing a "clarification" of the directive. Officials said the new order probably would outline more specifically materials that could be used by the Voice and other U.S. foreign information outlets.

The Feb. 19 edict was issued after Sen. Joseph McCarthy criticized Voice use of works by left-wing writer Howard Fast. The Voice has been under fire from McCarthy's investigating subcommittee.

LOVELY CO-ED

DAVIDSON, N. C. (UP)—At Davidson College there are 328 men, and Mary McGill, 19, is the lone co-ed. Miss McGill finds her role at the college "flattering," but thinks she may be "cramping the style" of both students and professors.

In the account of the Pitt County Variety show which appeared in Wednesday's Daily Reflector, the name of Miss Joy Perkins of Stokes was inadvertently omitted from the list of those who presented song and dance numbers in the show.

Miss Perkins danced "In the Mood" at the Variety Show which was presented in Austin Auditorium at East Carolina College.

HARD HARVARD DAYS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UP)—So inadequate were the breakfasts at Harvard College in Colonial days that the students saved meat from the evening meal, fastened it to the underside of the tables with their pocket-knives, and ate it the next morning.

The winter at Valley Forge was only one in a series of dreadful winters endured by Continental soldiers in the Revolution. Others at Morristown were as bad or worse.

Says Attempt To Balance Budget Is 'Lost Cause'

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. Clarence Cannon, former chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said today President Eisenhower's attempt to balance the budget is a lost cause.

The Missouri Democrat, who has had 30 year's Congressional experience with federal spending, said Mr. Eisenhower was understating the case when he told a news conference Wednesday it will be terrifically difficult to get the government out of the red during the fiscal year 1954 beginning July 1.

Cannon noted that the 1954 budget, which former President Truman submitted just before leaving office, called for federal spending of $78,600,000,000 with a prospective deficit of about $10,000,000,000.

Carbine Is Same Brother Used

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA (UP) Pfc. Floyd L. Nix is using the same carbine his brother used to fight the Communists in Korea six months ago.

The Pickens S.C. artilleryman noticed the word "Nix" carved into the stock of his newly-issued carbine. Puzzled, he wrote his brother, M-Sgt. Thomas B. Nix. His brother remembered the serial number. It was the same carbine he turned in when he left Korea.

POLICY — We get back to the proposition that there must be general policy which takes into account the common good for all the people and yet does not violate the rights and privileges of local groups. It is admittedly hard to draw the line. Just how much benefit will accrue to the people of North Carolina by having three men instead of one to handle paroles, and 15 instead of 10 highway commissioners remains to be seen. But it should be remembered in that connection that 25 years ago there was no parole commissioner, no board of education as we currently think of that agency, and an entirely different kind of highway commission, with entirely different problems to deal with. So it is that any reorganization of State governmental agencies must be within purview of the constitution but must also take into account the fact that the constitution was adopted 85 years ago; and that some of its provisions just do not fit conditions as they exist in 1953.
