City School Trustees Set Wheels In Motion

Plan Bond Election

Wheels were officially set in motion last night to bring a one-and-one-half million school bond issue for the people.

By unanimous action, trustees of the Greenville city schools instructed the county attorney to contact bond attorneys and take the necessary steps to bring the question to a vote.

The action of the board of trustees of the city schools came as a climax of a meeting with representatives of PTA groups of the city, and was the first concrete move by the school trustees toward a much-discussed major bond issue for expanding Greenville school facilities.

Although the $1,500,000 proposed issue is a tentative figure for expanding present school facilities, Superintendent J. H. Rose told the board last night it will take from $1,225,000 to $1,600,000 to provide the additions necessary to the present fiscal plan.

Rose said in the next few years Greenville must have school facilities to accommodate an increase of 800 to 1,000 pupils in its white schools and approximately 800 new pupils in its Negro schools.

Increased Enrollment Rose told the school trustees and the PTA representatives, "The thing that has happened to Greenville is the unprecedented growth of the city in the past 10 years. This year's graduating class is the last small graduating class Greenville will have."

Figures showed the graduating class of Greenville High School will number approximately 83 this spring, but in 1954 the graduating class will number in the neighborhood of 130, and will continue to grow in ensuing years.

A survey made by school authorities in the Greenville district showed the city schools next fall will have an enrollment increase of 204 pupils in the white schools and 113 pupils in the Negro schools.

Trustees Were "Ready" Chairman James said the school trustees have been working on the expansion program for the city schools for more than two years, and added, "We're ready to act."

In welcoming the PTA members to the meeting with the trustees, James asserted, "I feel every man and woman in Greenville who is interested in school children is a trustee of the Greenville schools."

The motion to put official wheels into motion on the bond issue was made by Trustee W. L. Allen and seconded by Dr. S. M. Crisp.

A general discussion of school needs and the school expansion program consumed most of the time in the hour and a half meeting last night. After some quick figuring it was stated that based on present valuations in the Greenville school district it would take a tax levy of 25 cents to 26 cents to finance the proposed million and a half dollar bond issue.

After details of the bond issue were worked out by attorneys, it will take a petition signed by 15 per cent of the voters in the school district to be presented to the Board of County Commissioners who must call the referendum on the bond issue.

A major bond issue for an expansion program in the Greenville school district has been talked for a number of years, but the impetus for last night's action stemmed from a meeting of the city's PTA groups held last month.

At the PTA meeting, each of the school groups appointed representatives to meet with the trustees of the Greenville schools in an effort to have a bond election called in the near future.

John L. Thurston has had this $15,000 a year job, serving under Administrator Oscar L. Ewing, who left with the Truman administration.

Of blanketing in Schedule A jobs under Civil Service, the White House statement said: "Such actions undermine the foundations on which a genuine career service should be built. A civil service system is not an end in itself. It is a method for obtaining more efficient administration."

Mr. Eisenhower was quietly eating dinner with his wife at the White House when Press Secretary James C. Hagerty notified him at 8:25 p.m. e.s.t. The President immediately authorized dispatch of a coldly official message of condolence to the Kremlin.

The government of the United States tenders its official condolences to the government of the U.S.S.R. on the death of Generalissimo Josef Stalin, prime minister of the Soviet Union.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles heard the report at the British Embassy with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. He said he would not elaborate on the President's message.

"We've sent our official condolences," he said. "There's nothing to add to that."

President To Install Party Men

Moves To Lift Policy-Making Jobs Out Of Civil Service Class

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has moved to lift several hundred policy-making jobs out of the Civil Service class so his administration can fill the posts with new appointees.

A White House announcement yesterday said Eisenhower ordered the drafting of a directive "to provide the heads of agencies with greater freedom in determining who should occupy top jobs now under Civil Service."

The announcement said the action "will not involve more than several hundred positions." It was not clear how many persons will be fired outright, if any are. Some affected - holdovers from the Truman administration - might revert to jobs they held earlier under Civil Service or be switched to other duties in the government.

The whole question of employees in "Schedule A" - that is, jobs of a policymaking nature - was tabbed for review in Eisenhower's order.

The directive touches on complaints that have been voiced since the new administration took over: that many policy-making jobs should be filled at the pleasure of the administration, were "frozen" during the 20 years of Democratic administrations.

By way of example, officials cited the case of Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, head of the Federal Civilian Administration, who found that the No. 2 job in her agency was protected by Civil Service.

John L. Thurston has had this $15,000 a year job, serving under Administrator Oscar L. Ewing, who left with the Truman administration.

Poland Asks For Return Of MIG

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UP)—Poland asked Denmark today to return the Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighter in which a 21-year-old Polish pilot made a dramatic escape to the island of Bornholm.

It was the first MIG to fall intact into Allied hands. This morning Polish minister Stanislaw Kulesz Krauz asked the Danish Foreign Office to have the plane returned. The Foreign Ministry said it would submit the request to government officials.

The young Polish lieutenant landed his jet at Roenne yesterday, climbed out and said "communism kaput" and "asylum."

It was believed the Danes would grant his request for asylum. His identity has not been disclosed.

North Atlantic Treaty Organization experts expressed interest in the study of the fighter. Lt. Col. F. F. Jeffs, British air attaché in Copenhagen, flew to Bornholm for a look at it.

Sources on Bornholm said the pilot made up his mind to escape during a training flight with another MIG from the Polish airbase of Slupsk. He suddenly released his extra wing gas tanks and sped north toward Bornholm.

He said over his radio he heard the other plane call the base to report his flight. The base ordered the second jet to shoot him down, but he outdistanced the other MIG.

Concern Voiced Over Testimony On Ammunition

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate military leaders expressed grave concern today over secret testimony of Gen. James A. Van Fleet on ammunition shortages in Korea.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) said Van Fleet presented a "very disturbing" picture to the Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday.

The committee, preparing to look into the ammunition matter, summoned the former 8th Army commander for more closed-door testimony on Korea and the Far East today.

Moscow's Streets Black With Mourning Populace

Thousands See Dead Stalin

By HENRY SHAPIRO United Press Staff Correspondent MOSCOW (UP)—Moscow's millions swarmed to the center of the city today to view the body of Josef Stalin as it lay in state awaiting the greatest funeral in Russian history.

The streets were black with sorrowful people, weeping and murmuring prayers. They stretched in lines two miles long, 50 abreast, awaiting their chance to honor the man who died at 9:50 p.m. yesterday after leading them for 29 years.

Stalin's body was taken from the grim walled Kremlin, where he died in his four-room apartment with members of his family and the government around his bed, to the great Hall of Columns of the Trade Union Building, five minutes' walk away.

The body lay in an open bier on top of a black-frame catafalque. It was clad in Stalin marshal's uniform, with only one of his innumerable decorations on the breast. It was the decoration of the "Hero of Socialist Labor."

At 4 p.m. (8 a.m. EST) the doors of the building were thrown open. Men, women, children, who had waited for hours in the biting sub-zero cold began shuffling in and past the bier.

Around the catafalque on guard stood members of all the branches of the armed services in full dress uniforms, like breathing statues.

Military orchestras softly played funeral dirges and other compositions especially by Stalin's favorite composers Glinka and Tschai-kovsky.

In the same hall the body of Lenin, Stalin's predecessor and the father of communism, rested in 1924.

Russia's people heard of their leader's death at 6:05 a.m. today (10:05 p.m. EST Thursday).

The announcement had come over the radio in the form of a statement by the central committee of the Communist party, the cabinet and the presidium of the supreme council of Parliament. A medical bulletin detailing the death followed.

The official statement contained a warning to any country that might attack Russia in the wake of Stalin's death.

"The party is in every way strengthening the Soviet army, navy and air force and intelligence organs with the view to constantly raising our preparedness for a decisive rebuff to any aggressor."

But the statement said also that Russia wants peace and "international collaboration and the development of business-like relations with all countries."

Western diplomats expected no immediate change, at least, in Russian foreign policy.

Presumably Vyacheslav M. Molotov, senior vice premier, was acting as head of the government. At the head of the communist party, through which Stalin had so long ruled, was Georgi M. Malenkov.

Foreign diplomats including U.S. Charge d'affaires Jacob Beam started visiting the Foreign Office to offer their condolences in behalf of their governments as the people of Moscow converged on the Trade Union Building.

Thousands of messages from heads of state, Communist party branches and individuals began flooding the Moscow communication centers.

Among first ones from notables were those of Mao Tse-tung, the Chinese Communist leader, President Boleslaw Bierut of Poland, President Klement Gottwald of Czechoslovakia, and French Communist leader Maurice Thorez.

All Moscow was in mourning for Stalin.

Psychological Warfare Project Quickly Launched

U.S. To Exploit Confusion

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Eisenhower administration launched a top secret psychological warfare offensive against Communism today in an effort to capitalize on Stalin's death.

High-ranking administration sources revealed the plan was whipped into shape immediately after Moscow announced that Stalin was gravely ill and now is "underway."

These sources guarded details of the project. But they revealed it is designed to "exploit" the confusion and chaos sure to grip the Reds as a result of the passing of "Mr. Communism."

One of the chief aims is to drive a wedge between the satellites in eastern Europe and Asia and Moscow.

President Eisenhower and his cabinet planned an urgent review of key U.S. domestic and foreign policy programs to prepare the nation for "any eventuality" that might flow from Stalin's death.

Even without a review, it was clear the historic shift in Russian power would have major repercussions on the nation's policies, foreign and domestic. Among other things, it was expected to:

1. Diminish the chances for any early cut in defense spending, budget balancing or tax reduction. The administration will be required to adopt a "go slow" policy until it detects - along with U.S. allies - the future course of Soviet policies.

2. Require a continued defense buildup and foreign aid. A high-ranking military officer voiced the fear that Stalin's successor, unlike Stalin, might underestimate America's productive genius and atomic power and touch off World War III.

3. Assure early and overwhelming Senate approval of Soviet expert Charles E. Bohlen to be American ambassador to Moscow during the current critical period.

4. Bring a moratorium on any drastic military or diplomatic moves that might drive warring Soviet leaders together and unite the Russian people behind them.

As the news of Stalin's death swept through the capital Thursday night, everyone realized that a fateful new chapter in history had begun, knew instinctively that peace or war for the world could be decided in the events unfolding in Moscow.

Mr. Eisenhower was quietly eating dinner with his wife at the White House when Press Secretary James C. Hagerty notified him at 8:25 p.m. e.s.t. The President immediately authorized dispatch of a coldly official message of condolence to the Kremlin.

System 'Saved By The Bell' At Last Night's Board Meeting

One-Way Traffic Issue Again Raised

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor A definite decision on whether to continue one-way traffic in Greenville will be made by the Board of Aldermen at a special meeting next Thursday night.

Local traffic expeditors badly battered the one-way street system, tried on Subway leg back to its own corner, so to speak after the aldermen's meeting last night—saved momentarily by the bell.

A formidable challenger in the form of an opposition faction among the Greenville Merchants' Association assailed the existing traffic set-up so vigorously in the closing rounds of the bout that it is doubtful if the champion can avoid suffering a knockout.

After vehement condemnation of one-way streets "because they are ruining business in the city," components of the opposition faction failed to obtain a showdown vote on whether to abolish outright one-way streets in the city.

Negotiations on the proposition were long and heated last night, as J. W. Roberts, attorney employed by the Merchants' Association, presented to the Board of Aldermen on their behalf a petition signed by 66 Greenville business firms requesting that the city return to its old form of traffic.

The document presented, in effect, petitioned the board to discontinue one-way streets because "they are unsatisfactory to both city and rural residents; that they are causing loss of business to Greenville and forcing shoppers to journey to other towns to trade."

Roberts said the merchants in the city are in favor of anything that will improve business and business conditions in Greenville. "They realize the system currently in effect moves traffic faster," he stated, "but it is doing irreparable damage to their business."

"Rural Town" The attorney called Greenville a "rural town with city ideas," and cited the college and the tobacco market as the two main items for drawing business to the city. He said one-way streets are the last avenue of escape: "cities put them in when they can do anything else."

Mayor Lester D. Page took exception to Roberts' statement that he had been furnished reliable information showing accidents to have increased by 50 percent since the present system of one-way traffic went into effect last August.

"Approximately 25 years ago there were only 900 automobiles registered in the city," the mayor asserted. "Now there are 3,600 here, and that number has increased proportionately out in the country."

"I contend to you gentlemen that one-way streets have been a success from the standpoint of traffic!" the mayor emphasized.

Accusations and denials flew thick and fast as tempers waxed warm during the discussion. Charles White, immediate past president of the Merchants' Association, censured the mayor sharply for what he termed "delaying the city's proposed off-street parking lots."

White said the project was instituted by the association approved by the City Planning Board and the Board of Aldermen and presented to the mayor for negotiations with property owners on whose land the lots might have been placed.

"That was nearly a year ago, and you have done nothing about it yet," White told Mayor Page. "I don't know what is wrong, but I'd like to be informed as to why the delay."

For your information, the mayor told White, "the Supreme Court has ruled that parking meter money cannot be used to establish off-street parking lots. We are awaiting action of this legislature so we may better understand our position."

A number of Greenville merchants who signed the petition were present for the meeting last night and some joined the discussion to voice their views in no uncertain terms.

B. D. Johnson, manager of Belk-Tyler's, agreed the system is a success from the standpoint of moving traffic, but is extremely detrimental from the standpoint of business.

He said sales at his store are down appreciably if compared with last year's business.

Manager of W. T. Grant and Company, Warren Chapman, presented figures to show that business at his store is down from nine to 40 percent as compared with business figures for the same period a year ago.

"Sales are down this year, of course they're down," Mayor Page declared this morning. "Not only are they down in Greenville but they're down all over our county and others in this vicinity—and it's certainly not all due to one-way streets."

The Greenville Board of Aldermen gave official sanction last night to a project that will afford local voters with new and up-to-date registration books for city elections to be held in May.

The board voted unanimously to have the antiquated registration books containing the names of city voters brought up to the present, and instructed City Clerk H. H. Duncan to proceed with the project so as to have new books ready for the May 5 municipal elections.

Duncan was authorized to have the old books recycled and brought "up to date," thus deleting names of voters who have died in the last few years and providing a permanent correct record of current voters and those who may register this year.

Both Mayor Lester D. Page and members of the board said they heard numerous complaints from citizens relative to the way city elections and General Elections were conducted last year, and they expressed a desire to abolish any criticism this year.

"Our prime purpose in doing this is to have an orderly conducted election as possible this year," one member of the board stated.

At the same time, members of the board gave the Mayor and the city clerk authority to obtain "competent" registrars and pollholders to serve during the registration period and for the election to be held the first Tuesday in May.

Both the mayor and City Clerk H. H. Duncan intimated the names of appointed registrars and pollholders will be announced within the next few days.

As the result of a secret ballot taken by the board, Reynolds May was elected to the Greenville Utilities Commission for a five-year term replacing J. B. Kittrell, whose appointment expired at last night's meeting.

Mayor Page said Kittrell informed him by phone he did not wish to be re-appointed for a five-year term, but would serve until the new city council takes office in May.

May was elected over nominees Badger Johnson and former alderman J. E. Waldrop. Final vote, 2-1.

The board of Aldermen gave outgoing Commissioner Kittrell a rising vote of thanks for his service during his term of office on the Utilities Commission.

Other appointments voted by the board last night were: Lester Turnage and Dr. H. B. Kelly reappointed to the Recreation Commission; and H. H. Duncan reappointed to the Firemen's Relief Fund.

The speed limit of 12-miles-per-hour currently affecting all trains of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad passing through Greenville was abolished last night at the request of the railroad company.

Faster Trains In a letter to the mayor, officials of the railroad promised not to violate the speed limit, but requested that it be removed to enable them to negotiate with cities through which their faster trains must move.

The letter stated that many cities, through which the railroad's main lines pass are holding to speed limits which throw their trains behind schedule and many of those municipalities concerned are holding out because Greenville and other cities still have the 12-mile-per-hour limit.

W. H. Watson, Greenville's representative to the Eastern Carolina Airport Authority, reported to the board last night that some objection to the authority has arisen in Edgecombe County because many people there think a site for the airport has already been picked.

Public Hearing Watson said there will be a public hearing on the proposal in Raleigh next Thursday morning, and he advised the board that some of its complement should be present for the hearing. Mayor Page intimated he will attend on behalf of the city.

Upon recommendation of Police Chief S. G. Gibbs, City and County Identification Officer S. B. Dorsey was elevated to the rank of captain. The salary of Oscar Arnold, police records clerk, was raised because of "increased work" in the department.

The meeting was adjourned until next Thursday night, at which time the board will rule on the one-way street controversy.

Aldermen R. E. Howell and C. R. Mayo were absent from last night's session of the board.

High Bonds Set

NEW BERN (UP)—Craven County Corner Frank Ballard set bond at $5,000 each today for two men accused of drunken driving in the highway death of an 11-year-old girl near Vanceboro Feb. 27.

The two men, Reece Gatlin and Wade Anderson, declined to take the stand at a coroner's inquest into the death of little Doris Franks.

The girl and her brown and white puppy were killed when a pulpwood truck ran over them on the road shoulder. The girl's mother, a neighbor and three other small children narrowly missed being struck by the truck.

Another occupant of the truck, Merle Jones, testified that all three occupants were drunk.

"I don't know who was driving," Jones said. "But Gatlin was behind the wheel when I passed out. Gatlin and Anderson both did some driving and I kept asking them to stop speeding. The more they sped, the more I drank. That's all I remember."

Jones was held under $1,000 bond as a material witness.

Artloom Announces Expansion Program For Greenville Mills

Greenville Mills, Inc., subsidiary of Artloom Carpet Company, has announced additional expansion programs to increase its capacity and production by 30 per cent.

The announcement of increase in production facilities of the Greenville plant was made by Stanley F. Anderson, vice president and general manager of Greenville Mills, Inc.

Anderson said new equipment has been purchased by the company and the first shipment is expected to be received here about May 1. "We expect to have everything (all new equipment) in production by the first of July," he added.

Although Anderson did not disclose the cost of expanding the facilities of the present plant he said the new equipment will include two complete sets of cards with auxiliary equipment, four complete spinning frames and the addition of package dye units to the present dye house of the plant.

The 30 per cent production increase of Greenville Mills, Inc. will carry with it a corresponding increase in the number of employees of the textile concern, Anderson added.

Extensive repairs are now being made to the warehouse of the plant, including a concrete floor, new columns and a new roof. The renovation of the warehouse will increase the capacity of the material warehouse approximately 50 per cent.

Work already has begun on the installation of the package dye units which are being added to the dye house. The new units will enable the plant to dye yarn after it is spun as well as continuing to dye the raw stock before it is spun into carpet yarn.

Anderson said the new package dye equipment is expected to be placed in operation by April 1.

It was made plain by Anderson that the addition of new facilities is being made in the present plant without construction of additional floor space, and the 30 per cent increase in production of the present plant is in no way a part of a new mill which it has been reported Artloom was planning to construct in Greenville.

Greenville Mills began its operations here in May 1951. Last September it began its operations on a three shift basis and the third shift was brought to full production January 1. At the present time the mill employs 157 workers exclusive of the office staff and executives.

When the mill was established in Greenville in 1951, it was estimated 150 people would be employed when the mill reached full production.

The mill produces carpet yarn for its parent concern, Artloom Carpet Company.

Club Program Given By Mrs. Clark For Jane Austen Club

STOKES—In a living room graced by arrangements of lovely spring flowers and with a cheerful fire burning in the grate, Mrs. L. Q. Chery was a most gracious hostess to the members of the Jane Austen Book Club on Thursday afternoon of March 5th.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Harold Watson charmingly presided over the short business session and then turned the meeting over to the program chairman for the afternoon, Mrs. Ethel R. Clark.

Mrs. Clark in her own inimitable manner presented a most interesting and informative topic: "The Burial Places of Our Presidents."

In addition to Grant's tomb in New York, Washington's at Mt. Vernon, Jefferson's at Monticello, Andrew Jackson's at the "Huntington" and Woodrow Wilson's in the National Cathedral, Washington, D. C., it was very interesting to note that the Madisons occupy an obscure spot near Montpelier, Vt.; that Andrew Johnson rests in Tennessee; that Abraham Lincoln lies in Springfield, Ill. not to mention the others whose final resting places are in various states of the Union.

Following the program, Mrs. Chery, assisted by Mrs. Clark and Mrs. G. H. Roebuck, served a delectable sweet course with hot coffee and salted nuts to the eight members present.

Books were exchanged and the meeting was adjourned to meet in April with Mrs. John I. Gray.

Timothy H.D. Club Entertains Husbands

On Monday evening, February 23, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Gardner were hosts at their home, "Sunny Lawn," to the Timothy Home Demonstration club with the husbands as special guests. The home was decorated with spring flowers and potted plants emphasizing the patriotic motif.

Mrs. Anne Hodges, home agent, gave a very interesting talk on Interior Decorating of the Home and Mr. Sam Weeks, farm agent, showed slides on Home Building, which were very interesting and informative. After this a social hour was enjoyed during which Miss Jeanette Gaidner rendered some vocal and tap dance numbers.

The hostess, assisted by Miss Jimmie Edwards and Mrs. Ray Humbles, served cup cakes topped with miniature cherries, cheese wafers, fruit jello and coffee to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Fodie Hodges, of Chocod; Miss Josephine Cusick; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Weeks, of Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Edwards and Miss Frances Moore.

Trouble in the sky

This is a tornado, like the one that struck the little town of Bald Knob, Arkansas, shortly before 5:30 p. m. on March 21, 1952. With a roar like that of an express train, the twister swept through the town. Toll: 90 homes destroyed, 156 badly damaged out of a total of 542 in the Bald Knob community; 8 people killed, more than 126 injured. In less than an hour the Red Cross was on the job. In 10 days, it served 9800 meals, supplied 20 pints of blood, furnished shelter and clothing for those who needed it. Said Red Cross Director Robert Pierpont: "This has happened many times before. Unfortunately, it will happen again. The Red Cross must be kept strong and ready to serve." . . . Wherever you are, wherever you are, give generously this year through your Red Cross. The need is always great.

Reception And Cake Cutting Honor Miss Leggett, Dr. Rodman

Following the Rodman-Leggett wedding ceremony at the First Christian Church in Washington Friday afternoon, Mrs. John Henry Leggett, mother of the bride, entertained with a reception at the Washington Yacht and Country Club.

Receiving with Mrs. Leggett were the bride and bridegroom, Mrs. John C. Rodman, mother of the bridegroom, and members of the wedding party.

Upon arrival at the club guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hodges Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Reid Mitchell Sr. Mr. and Mrs. Clon McLean introduced the receiving line.

The spacious club room was beautiful in its nuptial decorations of white and green with lighted white tapers.

The bride's table held a gorgeous central design of white carnations and snapdragons arranged with lace fern and flanked by three branched silver candelabra with glowing white tapers. At each end of the table, where punch bowls were placed, punch was served by Mrs. Robert Lee Corbett of Farmville and Mrs. Frazier McDevett Sr. Silver and crystal trays of bridal cakes, salted nuts and party mints completed the table setting and were served by the bride's honorary bridesmaids.

At the opposite end of the lounge the high stone mantel was banked with magnolia and held a beautiful fan shaped arrangement of white gladioli and burning white candles in triple-branched candelabra, while the low round coffee table nearby held a design of white gladioli.

Approximately 200 guests were invited to sign the register by Mrs. Selby Jones Jr. and Mrs. B. C. Holmes Jr., the bride's book being showered with a dainty arrangement of white carnations, fern and snapdragons. Good-byes were said to Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Hackler.

Mrs. John C. Rodman, mother of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Rodman Jr. entertained members of the Rodman-Leggett wedding party immediately following rehearsal Thursday evening Mrs. Rodman was a former resident of Farmville.

The climactic pre-nuptial event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rodman Jr. in Washington Park and the dining room reflected the traditional nuptial motif. The table, laid in an exquisite cloth of imported cutwork linen, held a beautiful all-white three-tiered wedding cake at one end.

The surface of the pastry creation was intricately designed with deep garlands of frosting and lapped white roses. The top tier was completely covered by roses, and the cake rested on a large round mirror-reflecter which was designed with the same pattern of the nuptial cake. Surrounding the mirror were dainty snowdrops and smilax, while white satin streamers attached to wedding charms came from the base of the cake and spread out onto the table. The cake was banqueted at the opposite end of the table by the crystal punch service arranged with smilax. The table featured an unusually attractive flat centerpiece formed by polished magnolia leaves holding gorgeous white capellas and a single deep pink carnation. Placed on the bed of magnolia leaves was a lovely pair of turquoise figurines.

Punch was served by Mrs. W. B. Rodman Jr. and after Miss Leggett and Dr. Rodman cut the first slices of wedding cake, guests were served by Mrs. J. H. Leggett and Mrs. Rodman, mothers of the honored couple.

Silver trays and containers on the table held cheese biscuits, party mints, salted nuts and ham biscuits. Mrs. Richard Cherry and Mrs. J. H. B. Andrew assisted in serving.

On the high antique chest in the dining room was a beautiful cut-glass pedestal bowl filled with a mass arrangement of white gladioli and fern, flanked by grandioles holding deep green candles.

The living room mantel was outstanding. A gold leaf mantel mirror reflected the grandiole with deep green candles and at one side was an exquisite lay design of spirea fern and narcissi. The graceful sprays fell below the mantel shelf.

On the desk a white three-tiered elongated design centered with sprays of white gladioli framed by spirea and lestrumstrum reflected in a wall mirror. Tall brass candelsticks with green candles were placed on each side of the arrangement and a similar design was used on a side table near the front windows.

In the den the color motif was slightly changed and deep flame gladioli with white gladioli formed a pretty setting. The low coffee table claimed marked attention with its floating arrangement of red carnations.

During the event Miss Leggett remembered her wedding attendants with monogrammed gold compacts and Dr. Rodman's gifts to his groomsmen were initiated Ronson lighters.

ILLEGALLY SAFE

Robert Carter, faculty member of the East Carolina College department of music, who will appear in a recital of works for the piano Sunday afternoon, March 8, will present a program made up of compositions by Romantic and modern composers.

The event, scheduled for 4 o'clock in the Wright auditorium, is sponsored by the college department of music as one of a series of faculty recitals during the present school year. The public is invited to be present.

Of special interest among Mr. Carter's selections for the afternoon will be the "Sonata for Piano," Op. 6, by the modern composer Samuel Barber. Other numbers include selections by Rachmaninoff, Liszt, Cesar Franck, and Charles Griffes.

A member of the East Carolina faculty since 1949, Mr. Carter has given a number of recitals on the campus and has played elsewhere in this section of the state. He is a graduate of the Chicago Music College and studied there with such well-known teachers as Rudolph Ganz and Dr. Glenn Dillard Dunn. Later he was a pupil of the celebrated teacher Olga Samaroff. He has been accompanist for a number of well-known singers.

Mr. Carter's experience as a judge in cities from Asheville to Wilmington, N. C., has also acted as an adjudicator in the North Carolina High School Music Contest Festival in cities from Asheville to Wilmington.

Mrs. Arthur is hostess to Clio Book Club

Mrs. R. B. Arthur delightfully entertained the members of the Clio Book Club Tuesday afternoon, February 24th, at her home on Elizabeth Street.

Varieties of colorful spring flowers were artistically arranged in the living and dining rooms.

The president, Mrs. J. M. Hadley, presided over a brief business meeting. She extended greetings to Mrs. A. W. Bryan, the guest for the afternoon. The secretary read a letter of appreciation from a friend in Korea thanking the club for sending boxes of clothes to the Koreans. The club voted to send more needed garments in the very near future.

The hostess had planned an exhilarating contest, which provided much delight for the 18 members present. The winner of the prize was Mrs. R. G. Lang.

Following this program of merriment, Mrs. Arthur, assisted by Mrs. Bryan, served a delicious salad course accompanied with party sandwiches, brownies and spiced tea.

The books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Boyd's Memorial Church

The Women of Boyd's Memorial Church met Tuesday night with Mrs. Mildred Harris. There were 14 members present and one visitor. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Elizabeth Allen. Mrs. Grizell Whitehurst led in prayer. Mrs. Ed Dixon gave the devotional. Then the business session was taken up. New officers were elected for the coming year which begins in April. Mrs. Hilda Holland, president, Mrs. Mildred Harris, vice-president, Mrs. Sarah Dixon, secretary, Mrs. Tarchie Forlines, treasurer. The next meeting will be held April 7th with Mrs. Charlie Harris, and a large crowd is desired. The membership is growing from time to time, and members are asked not to become careless in God's work, but try and increase the work and faith for Him. After all business was attended to the meeting adjourned. Mrs. Harris served delicious refreshments. Don't forget to go to church and Sunday School somewhere Sunday. If you don't have a home church, come out to Boyd's. The church is always glad to have visitors and new members.

February Bride

Mrs. Clark Rodman of Washington, N. C., who before her marriage on Friday afternoon, February 27 in the First Christian Church in Washington was Miss Mavis Lynell Leggett, daughter of Mrs. John Henry Leggett and the late Mr. Leggett. Dr. Rodman is the son of Mrs. John Croom Rodman of Washington and the late Dr. Rodman.

Models And Children Take Part In Spring Preview Fashion Show

A delightful preview of spring, featuring lovely models and well-groomed children, was held last night at the Woman's Club under the sponsorship of the Greenville Junior Woman's Club.

Using clothes from Blount-Harvey Company, the fashions included coats, suits, sportswear, spring and summer dresses, bathing suits, and children's clothes.

Opening the program, two students at East Carolina College, Misses Edge and Moore, sang "Easter Parade", accompanied by Miss Ona Shindler. Dr. M. W. Aldridge acted as narrator and described the clothes as Mrs. Glenn Scott played Easter music.

The small tots almost stole the show as it opened with them modeling clothes for the "small set". Models taking part were the Waldrop twins, Kay Berry, Jimmy Hale, Gail Nunn, Sara Webb, Judy Tucker, Buddy Murray, Dianne and Jean Hodges, Rodney Collins, Madge Stancil, Nelson Blount, Jo Brinson, and Marcell Aycock.

Mrs. Ethel Baker, Mrs. Ralph Hardy, Mrs. Jimmie Jenkins, and Misses Jean Stevenson, Janet Lewis, Cussie Marshall, Helen Forehand, Dorothy Nell Henderson, Ann Stokes, and Marion Perry.

Following the show, refreshments were served and a social hour followed.

Vanceboro News

Language Fraternity Elects New Officers

Mrs. Nancy L. Kesler of Fugay Springs, sophomore at East Carolina College, will head the campus of Sigma Pi Alpha, national foreign languages fraternity, during the 1952-1953 school year. She will assume her duties as president of the group later this spring.

Also chosen as officers of the campus fraternity chapter were C. Jean Thorne of Wilson and Nancy Harper Vick of Whitakers, vice presidents; E. Lynnette Murphy of Rose Hill, secretary; Jane Godwin of Wade, treasurer; and Edna Massad of Benson, reporter.

The name "Formosa" comes from the Portuguese, "Ilha Formosa" which means "beautiful island."

Walter Noona To Compete In Music Club's District Final Competition

Walter Noona of Norfolk, Va., representing Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, and South Carolina will participate Saturday, March 14, in final competitions of the Southeastern District of the National Federation of Music Clubs to be held at Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C.

The young pianist will enter the district contest as a result of being chosen last week in auditions at Greensboro College as state winner among nine entrants in the 13th Biennial Student Auditions sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs. Noona also was winner last week in Greensboro of an award carrying a $150 music scholarship offered by the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs.

The contest at Converse College next week will include musicians from telephoned more than a score of workers and awakened them in time to get to their jobs.

Strength for the Day

FAITH MAKES THE DIFFERENCE
In the catacombs at Rome there is a burial vault which bears three pathetic but inspiring inscriptions. It was evidently a vault used by a Christian family and the inscriptions were made with reference to the passing of some wife, mother, daughter or betrothed. The first inscription reads: "Sophronia, rest in peace." A little further in the vault is the inscription: "Sophronia, rest in the Lord." Over the grave are these words: "Sophronia, thou dost dwell in the Lord." The first inscription is a hope for eternal peace which anyone might entertain for a loved one. Thousands of people today have that hope and some of them quite apart from religious faith.

But there is another group, and for them religious faith is a real factor. The words "Sophronia, rest in the Lord" strike a responsive chord in their hearts. Deeper of all, however, is the faith of those who not only hope that their loved ones are resting in the Lord but who know that they are. "Sophronia, thou dost dwell in the Lord."
How can we believe otherwise if we have any religious faith? Or even if we have any common sense can we believe otherwise? For certainly a wise and all-powerful God would not make anything as fine as a human soul and then destroy it or cast it at last on the junk heap.
"Sophronia, thou dost dwell in the Lord."

Another Feather In East Carolina's Cap

East Carolina College's basketball team has added another feather to its cap, another feather to the institution's cap and another feather to Greenville's cap.

By virtue of winning the NAIA tournament here Wednesday the East Carolina basketballers have earned the right to participate in the NAIA championship tournament in Kansas City next week.

For smaller colleges across the nation, the Kansas City tournament represents the top in basketball recognition. For East Carolina and for Greenville, the invitation the Pirates have earned to the tournament is a gigantic step from the doldrums of athletics in which East Carolina found itself not many years ago.

East Carolina has come a long way in these years. The performance of its basketball team this year and the performance of its football team last fall are certainly indicative of the greater heights to which the institution is reaching.

While we are keenly aware that an institution of higher learning can not be judged alone by its athletic prowess, the growth of prestige which East Carolina has enjoyed in intercollegiate athletic circles is certainly evidence of the great strides of advancement made by the institution.

There is no doubt that the publicity East Carolina has received throughout North Carolina and surrounding territory for its athletic achievements has been a factor in its growth. The additional publicity it will receive by participating in the Kansas City tournament will add another bit to East Carolina's reputation far from home.

The players, coaches, administration and student body all are to be congratulated on the new pinnacle East Carolina has reached in another field of endeavor. It is another of the many reasons the people of Pitt County and Eastern North Carolina have to be proud of their college.

Being 'Americanized' Takes A Long Time

How long does it take to become "Americanized"?

Senator Willis Smith isn't happy about immigrants who don't try to integrate themselves with American culture, traditions and heritage. He said so, a couple of nights ago in Charlotte when addressing a civic club.

"Their sole purpose," he said, "is to reach this so-called land of milk and honey, or their own selfish purposes."

On first reading the wire service account, we too thought of the many immigrants who have come to America and become, almost immediately, a part of a little community of fellow-immigrants. They keep the customs of the Old World, to a great degree; and their social life seems to be pretty well centered within groups of similar and recent alien heritage.

So, the senator's speech made something of an impression on us; but our thoughts kept reverting to the pre-eminent fact that "they're not all like that."

Sure, there are some immigrants who come to the United States with only the dream of making a fast buck. Some never do get around to seeking citizenship-but the overwhelming majority do try to become citizens.

And about becoming "Americanized"; how long does that take? All of us look upon becoming "Americanized" as a natural order of things. The "American way" has always seemed the best way . . . and we have pride in that it is part of our heritage. Everything, from our advertising to our slang expressions . . . from clothing styles to the hot dog . . . it's our own "different" culture.

This is all foreign to newcomers. And all of them look for something familiar on reaching a new land. We'd do the same.

It takes much time to build up an association of ideas and new habits to fit new surroundings. The process is easier for young immigrants because they have less to forget, less to un-learn.

In time, the newcomers to our country do become absorbed. They always have, as history bears witness. Otherwise, America would be divided into a counterpart of nationalities and societies from which today's citizens sprang.

Becoming "Americanized" is more than assuming the surface aspects of Yankee Doodle. Roots in the new land must grow deep to become effective.

It takes years and perhaps even a lifetime; but in the end, America has whole new flocks of sons and daughters that call Sam "uncle."

The Prize Should Not Be Given Up

A prize the western world has been seeking for almost two years has fallen into their laps. A determined foot should be set down to make sure the free nations are not browbeaten into returning the prize until they have learned its secrets.

The much sought prize of course is the MIG-15 which a Polish pilot put down on a Danish runway this week. The Pole said he was tired of living in his native land under the communist heel and sought refuge in Denmark. With him he brought a MIG-15 in which he escaped.

It was a happy surprise for the free nations that the renowned communist fighter plane fell into their hands. It was not a surprise that the Polish Legation spokesman in Denmark demanded the plane be turned over to Poland immediately.

Under no circumstances should the plane be returned. It is indeed a prize of unknown value. The value must be determined by the experts. But the prize should be kept. It could prove to be of great benefit not only in development of better aircraft for the Western World, but also in determining better methods of destroying communist aircraft which already are in combat against planes of the Western World.

Let the communists fret and fume all they want. The plane is now in Western hands and it should remain there. We can't recall any Allied planes which have been returned after falling into communist hands.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Frank concern over the prospect of re-electing a Republican Congress in the 1954 off-year contests dominated the secret discussions of the GOP's executive committee at its recent session here. And the need for grassroots strengthening of the Party led most bigwigs to advocate policies temporarily frowned upon by the White House.

The committee's decisions do not represent a break with their first President in 20 years. But it does reflect the uneasy feeling that, in making appointments and framing his domestic and foreign program, the nonpolitical Eisenhower is not giving sufficient thought and consideration to the "regulars."

EISENHOWER DEMONSTRATION—In short, they begin to suspect that, as several deplored, "he is not a real Party man." He is not on par with the "boys in the back room," and he forgets to say "now and then" "see what they will have."
And yet, they find it almost impossible to present their protests to him. They recognize that November 4, 1952, was an Eisenhower rather than a Republican demonstration. Their narrow majorities on Capitol Hill—three in the House and one in the Senate—convince the leaders that they must swing on his coattails for want of a more substantial anchor.

BASIC DIFFICULTY—Their principal gripe, as recently noted here, is that Eisenhower is listening only to Senators and Governors in matters of patronage. National Chairman Wesley Roberts assured them that he would insist on greater Presidential thoughtfulness for National Committeemen, State Chairmen and local figures generally. But he admits, ruefully, that "he is pretty busy with other troubles these days."

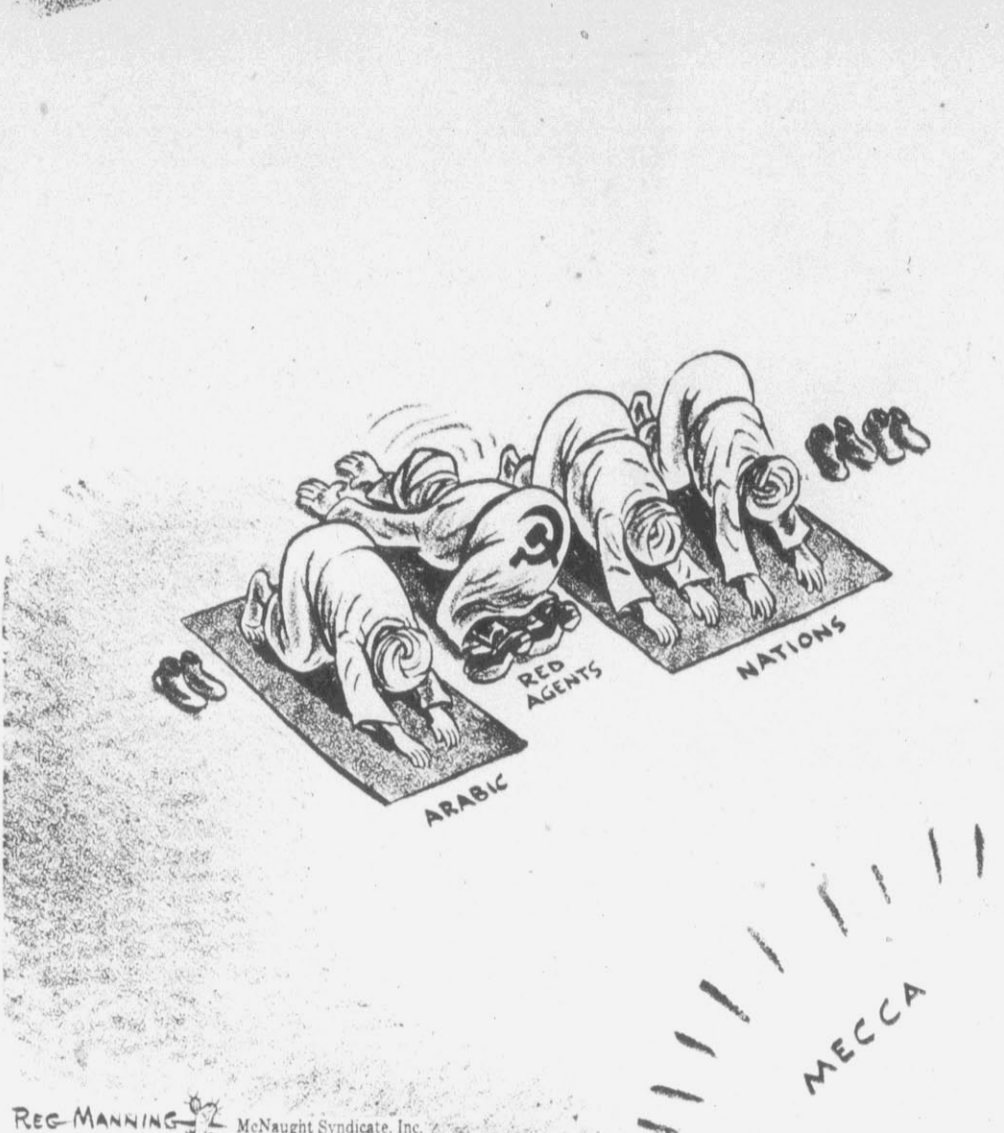

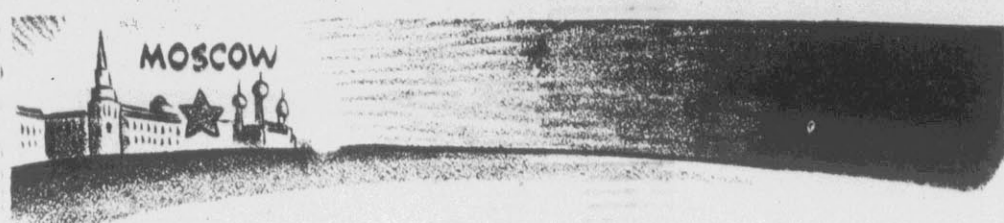

The basic difficulty lies in the nonpartisan nature of the Eisenhower triumph. He was elected by Republicans, Independents, boling Democrats, Citizens for Eisenhower and numerous other undisciplined organizations.

Thus, the stalwarts and do-or-die GOP-ers are caught in the subway jam for favors and patronage and recognition. The nice, orderly and polite system of politics they once knew and enjoyed has vanished, although they fail to recognize the revolution.

TAX CUT A MUST—Executive members from all sections of the country warned Chairman Roberts that a tax cut applicable to 1953 income was a political must. If the Republicans are to retain their hold on the voters, although largely hard-headed businessmen, they insisted that the party platform and Eisenhower's campaign speeches had been accepted as guarantees of immediate and favorable action.

Spokesmen from farm areas reported that the fall in prices must be checked to appease the agricultural states which romped back into the Republican column. They condemned the lack of positive steps to halt the decline, and they criticized Secretary Benson for his St. Paul address, which seemed to minimize the importance of price supports.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Yesterday I was talking to Coach Howard Porter of the East Carolina basketball team, and he told me an interesting story about Harry Truman. But before relating the story, let me congratulate Coach Porter for making history in basketball at East Carolina. This year's team is the first in the history of the college ever to be invited to a national tournament. The team leaves tomorrow for Kansas City.

It is also significant that in the same scholastic year Coach Jack Boone's football team was the first ECC team ever to be invited to a bowl game. Not only in sports, but in all departments, this is a history-making year for ECC.

Coach Porter was raised in central Missouri and lived in Kansas City for 16 years. While coaching high school basketball there he often played golf at the Hillcrest Club. One afternoon he was lined up on a tee, waiting the turn of his foursome before teeing off.

While his foursome was waiting another one walked up and struck up a conversation on politics. For some reason, Coach Porter listened to their conversation.

One said to the other, "Who will be elected Senator in the next election?"

"Harry Truman," the other answered.

"Who's Harry Truman? Never heard of the man!"

"He's a County Judge." In those days instead of having road commission, the State of Missouri had three road overseers: one for the East, one for the West, and one at large. It was his job to see that roads in the county were maintained. For some reason, these overseers were called County Judges. Harry Truman was the one at large in one of the counties.

The conversation went on: "I know you've never heard of Harry Truman. But Tom Penegar said he was going to bet that St. Louis crowd with an unknown. And you know Tom."

Thus, by living up to his promise, Tom Penegar started Truman on the road. And Harry really remained loyal to the Penegar machine to the end.

Penegar, of course, is sometimes considered ruthless as a political boss. But from his saigon on the North Side of Kansas City he has a policy of never turning down a person in need. And they say he hasn't missed an early mass in 30 years.

And I thank Coach Porter.

By LYNN NISBET

MEDICAL CARE—North Carolinians are going a pretty job of combating socialized medicine and protecting themselves from emergencies by buying accident, health and hospitalization insurance. Testimony at a recent legislative committee hearing indicated that the three hospital care mutual membership associations in the state, with respective headquarters at Chapel Hill, Durham and Tarboro, have in excess of 700,000 members who pay dues aggregating $12 million, of which nearly $10 million was paid back to hospitals for services rendered to holders of membership certificates. There were no accurate figures on number of policyholders in the approximate 100 companies licensed to handle accident, health and hospital insurance in North Carolina. Cumulative evidence was that these companies collect upwards of $40 million in premiums and pay claims to the tune of $20-25 million a year in this State.

PROBLEM—Allowing for overlapping policies, some affording only hospital care with payments made directly to the hospital and the doctors, other providing payments in lieu of lost earnings during periods of incapacity due to illness, it would appear that around half of the salary and wage earners in North Carolina have some type of compulsory medical care insurance. The big problem is to fit the insurance program into the rapidly rising costs of doctors and hospital bills. Walton Cheek, commissioner of insurance, told the committee that his department would cooperate in working out a reasonable schedule of premium rates based on type of coverage offered; and also would help to formulate, in co-operation with legislative, medical and hospital groups a reasonable schedule of charges for standard services. Evidence brought out at the hearing showed that medical-hospital costs have risen much faster than insurance premiums. That leaves a widening gap between amounts required to be paid by policy holders and amounts they can recover under their association certificates or contracts.

SELECTIVE—Another fact brought out at the hearing showed wide diversity of types of coverage offered the people. Actual effect of the bill under discussion (HB-344) would be to eliminate this choice and limit policies to non-selectable high-rate issues. As it stands now the associations and companies have the right to select whom they will insure, and the public has the right to choose what type of policy is desired. Actual effect of the pending bill would be to leave the companies the right of selection but deny that right to the people. Rep. Clifton Blue, one of the sponsors of the bill, admitted he did not want that.

COMPLEX—It was further brought to public attention that health and accident insurance is probably the most complex of all types of insurance coverage. The person who buys life insurance and the company which sells it can estimate chances on basis of experience statistics. Fire insurance is based on experience statistics. There is no formula for accidents, and as to health several of the company spokesmen emphasized that "you cannot insure against a state of mind." The wide variety in types of coverages serves further to confuse the layman. There is almost a different kind of policy for every individual, in that there are options for including or excepting numerous factors. One policy will cover health only; another accidents only; there is now and then a policy covering nothing but polo. Some policies pay full costs of treatment, others pay limited amounts, and still others guarantee a fixed sum per week. Each type and degree of coverage must take a different premium rate, because in dealing with reputable companies the policyholders gets what he pays for.

UNFAIR—It was conceded by industry spokesmen that some companies and agents undoubtedly take advantage of applicants for insurance. Also some individuals wait until they get sick to apply for coverage and then expect to get it at standard premium rates. There is already sufficient statutory and moral law to take of those incidents.

BONUS—Every member of the House Veterans Affairs Committee voted against the bill calling for a statewide action on a bonus for veterans, but for different reasons. Only four or five members took occasion to state their reasons, but it was apparent that these covered the attitude of their colleagues. Ed O'Herron of Mecklenburg could not go along with the idea because of the more desperate needs of schools and hospitals. Just a few minutes earlier O'Herron had seconded the motion for a favorable report on the measure designed to give Korean veterans equal status with those of World Wars I and II in application of all benefits and services by the State, which proved that his vote against a bonus could not be construed as a vote against the veterans.

REASONS—Jim Pittman of Richmond objected specifically to tying in the bonus plan with the

SENATOR SMITH TELLS THE NORTH

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

A Southerner has called national attention to one of the shortcomings of the North, reversing the usual procedure. Senator Willis Smith of North Carolina has called for the dismissal of four members of the New York City school system who refused to tell Senate investigators whether they are Communists.

We quite agree with the idea expressed by the Lumberton Republican—the Tar Heel junior senator's proposal has merit, in that the public needs protection against Communist infiltration into positions of public trust. The four school employees who balked at questioning first resorted to the old gag that it was an affront to academic freedom, but later refused to answer on grounds that under U. S. law a person cannot be required to testify against himself.

If suspected lynchers or members of the Ku Klux Klan were undergoing questioning about a crime in the South, some Northern Congressman could be expected to express alarm and call for federal action. Membership in the Communist party is at least as a whole concern to the nation as a whole.

Public discussion of the case has revolved around the question of whether it is up to the federal government or the City of New York to take action. Evidently the city does not welcome federal interference. This is much the same reaction that Southerners have when federal intervention is proposed in cases originating in the South.

Senator Smith, however, called attention to the fact that the New York City charter gives authority to dismiss employees who refuse to answer questions of official investigating bodies. Thus he appears to favor local action rather than federal action, which is in keeping with the attitude of the South.

A rich optimism will mark the annual Toy Fair which opens in New York next Monday. Not only has the birth rate been high since the war, but last year American mothers set a new record with 3,824,000 births, the highest number yet.

Furthermore, the first postwar baby crops are moving into ages in which the youngsters demand more elaborate and more expensive toys.

Retail sales established a new record of $810,000,000 last year, according to a survey by the Toy Guidance Council, directed by Melvin Freud, president.

The survey also showed that the steady increase in year-around sales continued and the manufacturers and retailers spent the largest sums for advertising and publicity in the industry's history. It also disclosed that inflatable plastic toys have become an important segment of the toy industry, with sales about $25,000,000 at retail.

While in many other industries there is a strong trend to larger shares of sale by chain and other giant merchandisers, the trend was the other way in the playthings field the survey showed. Independent stores in 1952 sold 142 per cent more toys than they did in 1951, whereas major department stores made gains of only 5.1 per cent and variety chain and mail-order companies made a 9 per cent gain.

The Toy Guidance Council also reported an increase in the number of stores carrying toys. The high margin and rapid turnover of toys and games induced many drug, children's clothing, furniture, quality candy chains and supermarkets to add lines of toys. However, the bulk of the toy business is done in equal shares by (1) auto supply and variety chain stores, (2) mail order and department stores, and (3) independent toy, hardware and sporting goods dealers. The Council found that about 30,000 stores handled toys last year—about one store for every 5,000 population. The $810,000,000 total represents an average of $18 for each child under 15.

Next week's toy fair will spread over many floors in one of New York's largest hotels. Both large attendance and heavy orders are expected. It is on the orders booked in March that manufacturers schedule production for the remainder of the year.

SALESMEN'S PAY STUDY
RUNS TO TWO VOLUMES

One of the most comprehensive studies of salesmen's compensation has been completed by Professor Harry P. Toudal of Harvard Business School.

The study—has been published in two volumes under the title of "Salesmen's Compensation" at $11.50 by Plimpton Press. It analyzes the salesman's role in the economy, pointing out that outside salesmen make a total of $10 billion in sales a year, and reports on various methods of compensation. It also covers the case histories of 30 companies with successful and unsuccessful experiences with various types of compensation.

OUTLINES THE CASE FOR LEASING CARS

The case for leasing automotive fleets instead of buying them was made before a group of businessmen by John W. Rollins, head of a leasing-company and Lieutenant Governor of Delaware.

Leasing, he said, eliminates capital investment, offers full tax deduction for costs, provides new cars yearly and unlimited mileage, improves employee relations and provides economies. Mr. Rollins said that leasing saved 1 cent a mile without any investment of capital.

URGES CONTROL, NOT END, OF COFFEE BREAKS

It's not the coffee break but its abuse that is wasteful, said J.B. Andrews, president of the National Office Managers Association, in calling on the government to reconsider proposals to prohibit it among Federal workers.

Industry, faced with the same problems among employees, have made the coffee break an asset by careful management, he said. He cited the case of an insurance company which, by serving coffee at desks of employees, eliminated unauthorized absences and estimates it is saving $130,000 a year in labor costs.

TELEVISION, BATHTUBS, PIG IRON AND SHIRTS

Chicago has more television sets than bathtubs, a recent survey disclosed. A Kansas City bank-pit adding machinery in its lobby and found one out of every three customers used them. Blast furnace output of pig iron and ferro alloys set a new monthly record in January with 6,564,383 net tons, the American Iron and Steel Institute reports. Total sales in retail American Iron and Steel Institute reports. Total sales in retail stores in January were $13 billion, or 10 per cent above a year ago. ## Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The Hammer and Sickle have fallen from the hands of Joseph Stalin.

The "Great Conqueror" has fled to twilight on his long, bloody road to power.

It is superb irony that this man whose words and actions frightened more people than any other man in history should be helpless, paralyzed, unable to move or ask for a drink of water, a complete prisoner of a small group or men in whom he held no final trust.

What terror must seethe in his darkened brain as strange shadows figure probe his numbing body in Moscow's official medical infirmary? What panic in his mind as his thickened tongue refuses to say what he wants it to say? Maybe he wants to give an order. "WOLF! ADVANCE! TAKE THE MARSHAL DOWN!" Maybe the great marshal doesn't want to talk about a battle plan, or purge a satellite country. Perhaps at last he wants to mumble a prayer, or to ask what day it is, or maybe his memory wanders to the lost fields of yesteryear and he is inquiring for Lenin, or Trotsky, the dead friends of his dead youth.

Whatever he wants to say, he no longer makes any difference. He shares in solitude the fate he inflicted on millions of other human beings. Now he, too, is a slave, and, like all the others, death is for him the only way out.

At this writing the Moscow government reports him still alive. But, true or false it makes no real difference. Dead or alive, Comrade Stalin is again a stranger to power.

No other figure in the Russian race ever held such power. Eight hundred million people under his direct sway, some 1,400,000,000 others worried or afraid of how he would move next.

Stalin took over as a dictator where Adolf Hitler left off. He knew no real peace since boyhood. Always fighting, plotting, scheming for the death of others. And what does all his vast empire come down to? A fight for just one more breath, and then another. What are the Ukraine and Poland to him now, Manchuria or Korea?

His arch enemy, the Pope at Rome, prays for his conversion. Millions of others around the world, less pious, would prefer to ring church bells over his death. Many in his own country probably feel that way, too.

Well, it took Joseph Stalin 73 years to make his bed. Now he lies in it, dead or probably dying, as the rest of the world, ready willing to forget him, wonders who will pick up his Hammer and Sickle now in the plot against peace.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Mrs. Herbert Brownell, wife of the new attorney general, loves parties and is already in her element in the Capital, where partying is a pre-occupation about as important as politics.

Guest of honor at a tea given at the hotel where the Brownells and their four children are occupying a $75-a-day suite until they buy a "suitable" home, the vivacious, Texas-born little brunette bubbled with enthusiasm over the prospect of life in Washington.

Though somewhat astounded at the "fast pace" of everything in this city, she says she is ready to take on the heavy responsibilities expected of the wife of a top government official. "If you are in politics, you entertain," she said. "I will do the things my husband wants. I think that is a pretty good rule for any woman to follow."

"No wonder your husband always looks as though he's having such a good time," a newswoman commented. "You must really help him to enjoy life."

"Herb helps me," she replied. "Herbert Brownell loves people and knows them from all parts of the country. At a reception recently he called everyone by first name and remembered little stories about each of them."

Mrs. Brownell, who hasn't lost her Texan drawl despite 20 years in New York, says they are selling their 10-room Gramercy Park mansion in Manhattan and expect to buy a "new box" with the charm of an "old house" here. It's near the "old" Friends School, where all four Brownell children are enrolled.

The attorney general, his wife and the children—Joan, 17; Ann, 14; Tommy, 12; and Jim, 9—are all ardent baseball fans. For the past few seasons they have maintained a box at Yankee Stadium and turned out en masse for the team's home games. Mrs. Brownell expects they'll haunt the ball park "see too."

In their hotel apartment, Tom and Jim, in bright red jackets, their faces scrubbed and their hair slicked, were sitting on the floor in front of the TV set but they scrambled to their feet to greet a visitor. "Do you like Washington?" I asked. "Oh yes," they both chimed.

"What do you like best about it?" I asked Tom. "The climate," he said. "We hear about it before we get here. It's better than New York."

Visiting Monk To Hold One-Week Mission Here

FATHER LEE STEVENS

Father Lee Stevens, an Episcopal monk of the Order of the Holy Cross, will conduct a mission at St. Paul's Episcopal Church March 8 through March 15.

The first portion of the mission will be held Sunday, March 8, at 5:30 with an address by Father Stevens and will close with a mission sermon March 15 at 5:30 p. m.

Throughout the week at 6:30 each evening, an address and instruction by Father Stevens will be given in addition to answering questions placed in a question box.

A spokesman of the local Episcopal Church explained the mission as saying it is a proclamation of all the essential parts of Christian belief and practices, presented on eight evenings by addresses and instructions all closely linked to one another in succession.

The mission will be open to all high school and college students and their teachers and sponsors.

Before entering the Order of the Holy Cross in 1947, Father Stevens' activities had ranged the gamut from U. S. Naval chaplain on the U. S. S. Zanthus, which operated in the Pacific, to several seasons in 1930's in the professional theatre as both actor and director.

Along his way from the stage to the monastery, Father Stevens taught English, French music, and public speaking and directed debates at Hebron Academy, a boys' preparatory school in Maine.

He did a year's graduate work at Harvard Graduate School of Theology, received a bachelor of arts degree cum laude in psychology, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, studied three years at the Episcopal Seminary in New York, graduated with the degree of bachelor of sacred theology and served parishes in Maine, including four years as rector of Christ Church, Eastport.

In 1947 Father Stevens entered the Order of the Holy Cross as a novice and in November, 1951, took his life vows. His work as a missionary has been well received in the many parishes to which he has been assigned by the Order.

Deaf May Hear Radio And TV

NEW YORK (AP)—A British invention will enable the deaf to hear radio and television programs, reports the British Information Service here.

The device has a small control unit with two-knob action, fitted with weighted fabric to adhere firmly to a chair arm. Attached is a specially designed single ear-piece headphone with plug and socket for connection with television, radio or car set. The design is such that the tone and volume for the deaf user can be adjusted without affecting the sound as heard from the set.

Coincidence

WASHINGTON (AP)—When the flash on Premier Stalin's death reached radio station WGMS last night, the playing of a recorded version of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony had just been started.

Instead of interrupting the program, scheduled long in advance, the announcer read the bulletin over the music.

The first four notes of Beethoven's Fifth are three shorts and a long — the same as the Morse code pattern for "V."

In World War II, they were widely used by resistance forces in Europe as a symbol of victory.

Robt. Kazmayer Next Speaker At Executives Club

Scheduled as speaker for the next meeting of the Pitt County Executives' Club is a "flying reporter", Robert Kazmayer, author, editor, and world traveler.

According to Dr. K. B. Pace, president of the local club, the dinner will be held at East Carolina College dining room at 7 o'clock Tuesday, March 10. A full attendance is expected to hear Kazmayer.

The noted authority on domestic and world affairs will lend the experience gained through a quarter of a century of almost continuous travel.

His latest journeys include a flying trip around the world during the course of which he saw top military figures in Korea, Nehru in India and dozens of lesser leaders in Egypt, Italy, France, and England.

Recently he returned from his seventh Kazmayer Seminar Tour, a tour conducted for U. S. business and professional men and their wives over England, France, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Italy, Turkey, and Greece.

Kazmayer was born in Rush, New York, in 1908. He went to school in western New York and then attended the University of Rochester and the Colgate Divinity School. He had intended to make the Methodist ministry his life's work and did, as a matter of fact, fill several churches in and about Rochester. In 1939 he resigned from the Greenstone Methodist Church in order to devote his entire time to writing and speaking.

He has written a book and he writes a monthly news letter which he publishes under the title of "Things to Watch and Watch For", but is chiefly a speaker.

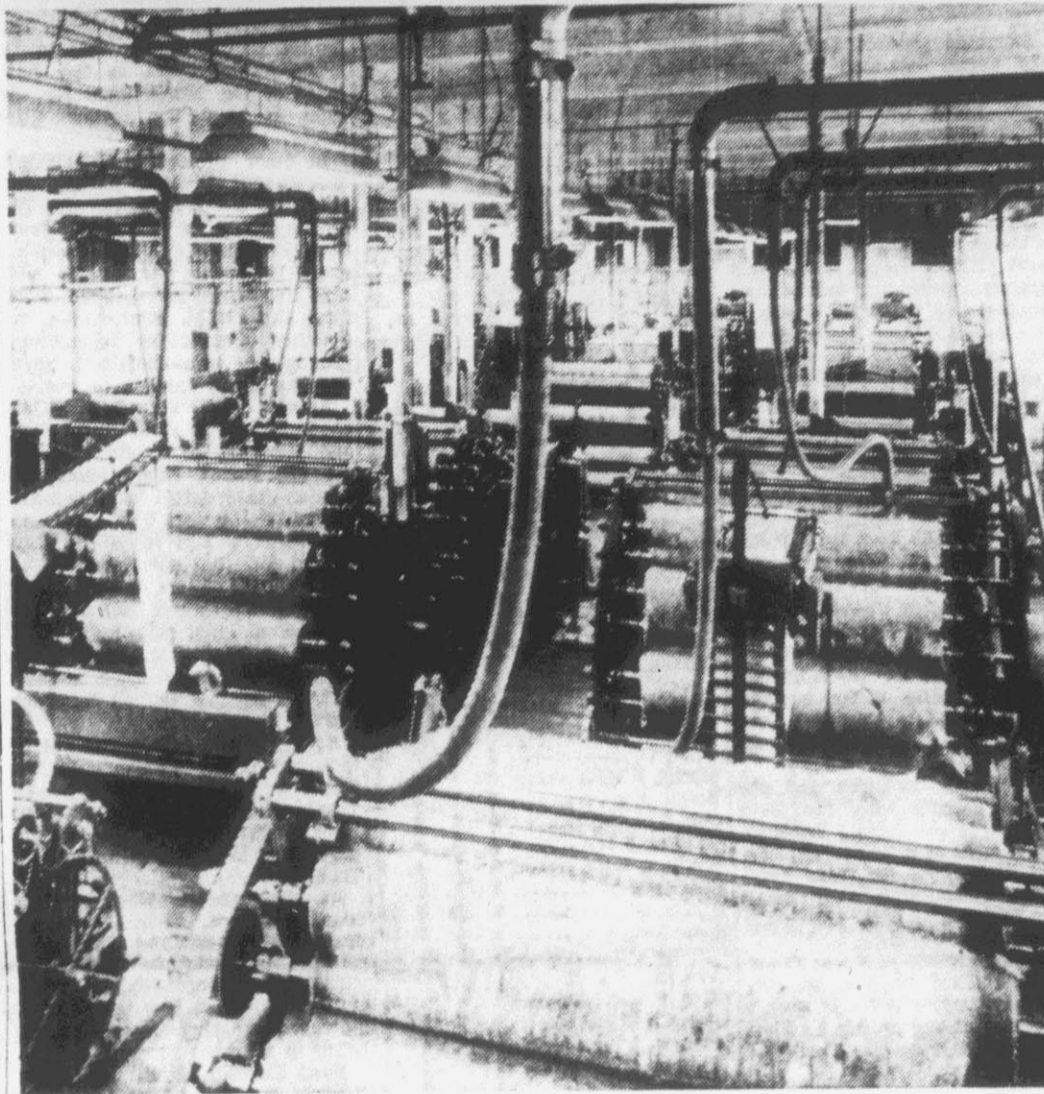

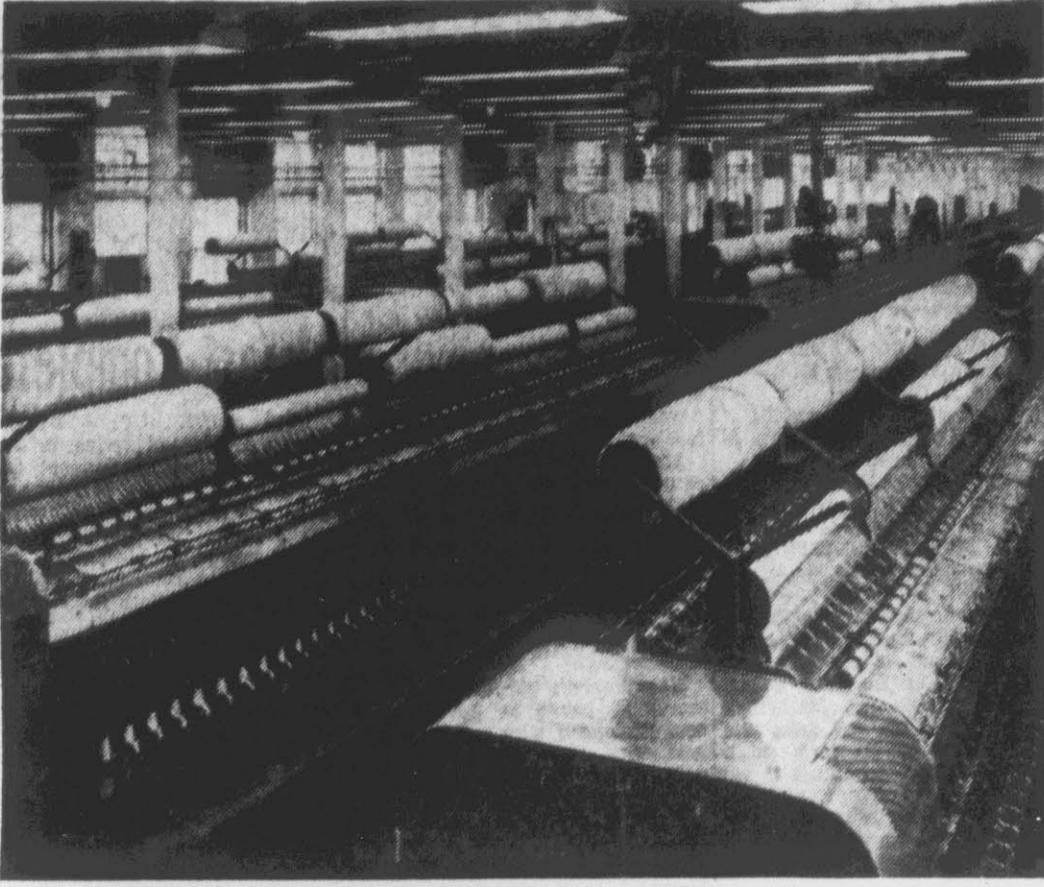

Although he is still a young man, Kazmayer lent a novice on the platform. He gained his first experience with the public via the radio as a new commentator. He attributes his start on the lecture platform to a lucky circumstance. Caught in Germany when World War II began in 1939, he returned to America and spoke to a group of New York businessmen the day he landed. The success of that lecture determined the course of his activities in all the years since.

Greenville Mills Plans Expansion Program

More spinning frames and carding machines will be installed in Greenville Mills, Inc. in the announced program of the firm to increase the production of its local plant by 30 per cent. Four complete spinning frames like those shown in top photo will be added to the plant as well as two complete sets of cards with auxiliary equipment shown in bottom photo. The two pictures show a portion of the equipment already in operation at the plant. Installation of the new equipment is expected to be completed in time to put it into production by July 1.

Red Cross Expects Disasters In March

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—If the American National Red Cross can ease through the month of March, it generally can stay within its budget.

March appears to be the month of disaster.

Presnell Betts, the comptroller, says that such things as tornadoes and floods are expected and therefore funds are set aside to take care of the homeless and needy. It's the unexpected that puts the Red Cross in the red.

"We work with the government weather bureau and generally know with considerable accuracy how serious a flood is going to be," Betts says. "More often than not we have field crews on the spot before the flood waters come."

Last year, March was particularly bad. Floods and a disastrous tornado at Judsonia, Ark., occurred. When the wind died down 134 persons were dead in the path of the storm, which covered a wide area around Judsonia, and 1,281 were injured.

"No home in the small town of Judsonia was left undamaged," Betts says, "and most of them were leveled. We spent $753,000 in Judsonia alone. Money we hadn't exactly planned on spending."

The floods around Council Bluffs, Ia., cost up in the millions.

This year, the Red Cross is asking Americans to contribute to a budget which totals $93,000,000. "We had planned to cut this by $7,000,000," the comptroller says, "but we added that amount for the emergency gamma globulin program for the treatment of polio."

Where does your Red Cross dollar go?

About $19,000,000 is set aside to run the 3,727 chapters and another $20,000,000 goes to run the national organization.

Some $5,000,000 is put away for disasters like the tornadoes, floods, mine explosions and so forth. There is a balance of uncommitted funds for national emergencies totaling $10,000,000.

"That ten million," says Betts, "is regarded as a cushion. If we have uncommonly bad luck and have to spend more than the 10 plus the five, we have to appeal together for World Understanding."

More than 2,005,000 boys and girls from 10 to 21 years of age belong to 87,000 4-H clubs located in practically every rural county in the United States.

In Pitt County there are 17 4-H clubs to which 475 boys and 550 girls belong.

Pitt 4-H Chapters Joining In Observance Of National Week

More than 1,000 4-H club boys and girls in the 17 chapters in Pitt County will join with the national organization in celebrating National 4-H Club Week March 7 through March 15.

During the designation week, 4-H members in the county will pledge their "Hearts, Hands and Health" in unity for greater service to home, club, community and country.

Radio programs, news articles, window displays, chapel programs, and demonstrations are some of the many special activities which Pitt County 4-H boys and girls have planned and will participate in during National 4-H Club Week.

Club officials in the county said the club members are using this to encourage and inspire other boys and girls to use 4-H club work to a greater degree to grow and develop into happier and more useful citizens. During the week the "hue of club work will be deepened in the already enrolled club boys and girls.

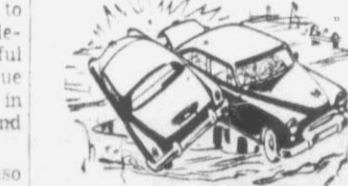

National 4-H Club Week will also give club members an opportunity to develop a working understanding of their 1953 theme, "Working To-

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by Herman Hickman
SPORTS EDITOR

Golfing Is For The Masses

My sports idol is a par golfer. Not any one certain person but anyone who can play 18 holes in par strokes.

A fellow who can lug a football 80 yards through and around eleven opposing is sensational, his action is beautiful to watch and any sports loving fan gets a big thrill watching him.

He is usually a rugged fellow with lots of stamina and a great symphony of motion, but I'll bet he can't shoot par golf.

Outstanding participants in most sports usually can credit endowed physical attributes for a large measure their success.

On the golfing links an underdeveloped physical specimen may very well wallop a fellow with an athletic physique.

Funny thing about golf is that most people are never satisfied with their game and invariably conversation on the links consists mostly of each golfer explaining what caused his shot to be slightly less than perfect.

Bill Kennedy, Farmville pro, recently fired a shot that he didn't want to explain—a hole-in-one. Bill recently received a medal from Professional Golfers Association.

Kennedy recently received a letter of congratulation from Smith Barter, Greensboro Daily News Sports Editor, in which Barter was lamenting the possibility of trying a turn at professional baseball in order to become a good golfer.

Greenville's golf team got off to a slightly shaky start in the Coastal Golfing tournament last Wednesday at Kingston.

Lucian Bryan says the Greenville team lost out in the putting department. The Kingston golfers knew how to play their ramsoaked greens.

Simon Mays was medalist for Greenville with a low total of 75. W. L. Allen and Erell Webb had 77; Reynolds May and Dr. J. M. Barrett carded 79.

The Greenville swingers are not discouraged however, they're confident they can take the measure of Kingston on a dry course.

Basketball fans at East Carolina may get to see the Eskine team again next year.

Nothing definite was decided the other night but East Carolina College athletic officials were doing some talk talking to the Eskine coach trying to arrange a home-and-home series for next year.

The Flying Fleet plays a couple of North State teams every year and ECC is trying to get them to come to Greenville on their trip through the state.

Eskine has a young ball club which should be great next year if it can get the freshman players it has in mind.

The football schedule for East Carolina hasn't been announced yet but two trips to Florida are definite on the schedule.

A return trip to Stetson University is slated for November 7. The week after the Bucs will pack up again and travel to Tampa University to meet the Tangerine Bowl champions.

On the home schedule, there are games with Elon, Guilford, Appalachian, Lenoir Rhyne, and Wilson Teachers' College of Washington, D. C.

The Wilson teams are not strangers to East Carolina sports fans. They've played both baseball and basketball here before.

Scoring Records Fall; Nield Gordon Gets 37

SOUTHERN CONFERENCE W. Virginia 91 Furman 87 Maryland 74 Duke 65 Wake Forest 85 Richmond 70 N. C. State 86 North Carolina 34

By WILLIAM SHIRES United Press Sports Writer RALEIGH, N. C. (UP)—Four teams that finished the regular season bunched at the top of the standings fight it out tonight for places in the finals of the 32nd annual Southern Conference Basketball Tournament.

But in tonight's semifinals it will be Wake Forest and Maryland with identical 123 records in one game and defending champion North Carolina State against fourth place West Virginia in the other.

West Virginia edged Furman 91-87. Maryland shocked Duke 74-65. Wake Forest trimmed Richmond 85-70 and North Carolina State mauled North Carolina 86-34 in opening round games.

It took a coin toss to decide first and second spots for the pairings and tonight's Wake Forest-Maryland game will tell how the coin should have fallen.

West Virginia showed it is highly underrated in beating the nation's highest-scoring major college team yesterday, and the Mountaineers could cause trouble for the top-seeded Wolfpack.

State left little doubt about its right as the tournament favorite. The 32-point Wolfpack win last night was the most lopsided victory in a Southern Conference tournament since 1933 when South Carolina beat Virginia Tech by 37 points in an opening round game.

Even with ace forward Bobby Speight nursing a knee injury, the Pack didn't show signs of missing out on winning its seventh consecutive conference title. Speight did all his scoring in one quarter, the second, but it was 15 points more than any Tar Heel could muster.

Center Mel Thompson led the Wolfpack scoring with 19. Dave Gotkin got 12 and Bernie Yum 10. State scored 28 points in the blistering second quarter, four more than North Carolina could count in the entire first half. The Pack led at halftime 43-24.

Furman's one-two punch of Frank Selvy and Nield Gordon set new tournament records, but it wasn't enough to stop the rifting by West Virginia both from the floor and foul line.

The senior member of the Selvy-Gordon firm, Gordon, set a all-time tournament record with 37 points, one more than the old mark set by Chet Giermak of William and Mary in an overtime game. Selvy, the nation's leading scorer, after that the Bucs will pack up again and travel to Tampa University to meet the Tangerine Bowl champions.

On the home schedule, there are games with Elon, Guilford, Appalachian, Lenoir Rhyne, and Wilson Teachers' College of Washington, D. C.

The Wilson teams are not strangers to East Carolina sports fans. They've played both baseball and basketball here before.

FIGHT RESULTS BY UNITED PRESS NEW YORK: Gil Edward, 159-12, New York, stopped Johnny Noel, 158, New York (8).

NEWARK, N. J.: Hurley Sanders, 158, Newark, outpointed Roy Alston, 154, Trenton, N. J. (8).

FALL RIVER, Mass.: Marshall Clayton, 141, Washington, D. C., outpointed Charles Smith, 139, Newark, N. J. (10).

UP Rates Indiana Best College Team

NEW YORK (UP)—Indiana, which rode to success on a formula of speed, stamina and Don Schlundt, was voted the 1952-53 college basketball championships today by a landslide vote of the United Press Board of Coaches.

Twenty-nine of the 35 leading coaches who make up the United Press rating board picked the Hoosiers for the top honor in the final ballot of the season. On a point basis, Indiana was just eight short of a perfect score, attracting 342 out of a possible 350.

The Washington Huskies were selected runnersup, 57 points behind Indiana. La Salle was third, Seton Hall fourth and Kansas fifth.

Coach Branch McCracken's Hoosiers, a tireless fastbreaking team paced by sixfoot, nine-inch center Don Schlundt, the Big Ten's highest alltime pointmaker, thus climaxed a long, uphill climb to the top ranking after a discouraging start this season.

NCAA Basketball Tourney Picture Almost Complete

NEW YORK (UP)—League championships and berths in the NCAA Basketball Tournament are up for grabs in the Skyline and Border conferences tonight, while leading contenders also battle for top honors in the Southern, Ivy and Big Seven conferences.

Wyoming can clinch the Skyline Conference title and a berth in the NCAA event by beating Colorado A & M at Fort Collins, Colo. Even if the Cowboys are upset, they can back into the league championship.

In the Border Conference, Arizona and Hardin-Simmons, which finished the regular season in the first round, meet in a one-game playoff at Abilene, Tex., for the coveted NCAA berth.

Border Conference representative meets Santa Clara in the first round of the NCAA event for the title to play the Skyline titleholder.

In other phases of the NCAA Tournament picture, Kansas can clinch at least a tie for the Big Seven crown by whipping Iowa State at home; Columbia, needing every victory to stay in the running for the Ivy League title, faces Cornell at home, while the Southern Conference tournament does into its semi-finals with North Carolina State favored to win.

Kansas, the defending NCAA champion, must beat Iowa State and Missouri to assure itself of the Big Seven title, although a Kansas State defeat in its remaining games against Oklahoma and Nebraska will make the Jayhawks' job that much easier.

If Columbia loses to Cornell tonight, Pennsylvania will be assured of at least a tie for the Ivy crown. In that case, Penn would be in a position to clinch matters at home against Cornell Saturday night.

North Carolina State was one of the first round survivors in the Southern Conference tournament Thursday night. The Wolfpack walloped North Carolina, 86-54, with the help of 19 points by center Mel Thompson.

In other games, West Virginia edged Furman, 91-87; Maryland upset Duke, 74-65; and Wake Forest best Richmond, 85-70, to reach tonight's semi-finals. Nield Gordon of Furman set a new tournament individual scoring record of 37 points in a losing cause.

North Carolina State plays West Virginia in the first round of the Virginia and Wake Forest is pitted against Maryland tonight. The tournament champ, to be decided tomorrow night, will represent the conference in the NCAA event.

An NCAA entry fell victim of an upset Thursday night when Miami of Ohio, the Mid-American Conference champion, was beaten by Cincinnati, 78-76.

N.C. Billiard Ace Continues Tourney Skein

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Champion Willie Mosconi gave Jimmy Caras, a former champ, a quick, easy lesson in the art of pocket billiards in the world tourney last night.

Mosconi, of Haverford, Pa., ran 98 balls, the tourney's highest, in the 8th inning and went out with an unfinished 24. He then dumped Caras, a Philadelphian, 150-66.

Joe Diehl of Rockford, Ill., bounced back from two defeats to upset Irving Crane of Einghamton, N. Y., 1982 runnerup and former champ, 150-146.

Luther (Wimpy) Lassiter of Elizabeth City, N. C., dark horse conqueror of Caras, won his third straight, defeating Eddie McGehean of San Francisco, 150-79 in 22 innings. Lassiter had a high of 42.

Jimmy Moore of Albuquerque, third in '52, had a narrow escape but eked out a 150-144 victory over bulldog Joe Procita of Los Angeles.

Medical Association Has News For Athletes

By OSCAR FRALEY NEW YORK (UP)—The American Medical Association jolted the sports world today with a report which would have delighted the likes of Babe Ruth, Rube Waddell and Grover Cleveland Alexander.

Shattering all training table rules, the AMA's council on foods and nutrition reported that if weight is maintained "cakes, pies and gravies are not harmful to an athlete."

It also asserted there is "no evidence" to support the idea that drinking great amounts of fluids during strenuous exercise was harmful.

I would hazard a guess that this would depend on the type of "fluids."

But it is the kind of a report which would have brought beaming smiles to the Bambino, the unpredictable Rube and sociable old Alec. That was their theory to the letter.

Ruth certainly was far ahead of his time in the medical department. The Babe figured that dull meals were for the incarcerated. His appetites were truly gargantuan, whether it was food or drink, and only once did it handicap him.

That was the time he ate too many hot dogs and had to be taken to a hospital. And "too many" with the Babe was quite a few. A mere half dozen was just an appetizer. He also handled the "fluids" with consummate ease and one of his greatest delights was to fling a check at a bar tender—a check for $15,000.

Babe had received it for endorsing a breakfast cereal. Instead of cashing it, he carried it around as his "bar money" until the figures were no longer legible and the company had gone broke. "Hell," he said, "I got $15,000 worth of laughs out of it."

Waddell was a man with the "fluids" too. There was nothing Rube liked better than to play bartender, unless it was to ride fire engines, and often a posse had to be sent out to round him up when it was his turn to pitch. Alexander, too, was a convivial soul who, rumor has it, often pitched around consuming "great amounts of fluids."

In the case of college athletic authorities, they already are screaming about the high price of turning out teams. This is just on meat and potatoes, and you can imagine their howls if the players demand gravy and rich desserts.

As I said it is a formula which would delight such as Ruth, Waddell and Alexander, as well as a man like Walter Hagen. It brings to mind the time the "Hag" showed up late to tee off in a golf tournament and a pompous official asked him whether he had been practicing shots.

"Nope," squelched Sir Walter, "having a few."

Major League Briefs

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UP)—Mickey Mantle, 21-year-old juvenile star, replaced Yogi Berra today as the world champion New York Yankees' cleanup man.

Manager Casey Stengel, in announcing the move, said the appointment was temporary pending proof Mantle could hold the job, but it was a forgone conclusion that Mickey will open the season in the No. 4 spot. Stengel hoped the move would benefit Berra, who always has disliked the cleanup job.

Mantle, a switch-hitter, batted 311 and hit 23 homers last season. Berra batted .273 and belted 30 homers.

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UP)—Manager Steve O'Neill may be convinced that Earl Torgerson will be the Philadelphia Phillies' first baseman this year, but Eddie Waitkus isn't.

Waitkus, who held the job and hit .289 last season, signed his 1953 contract Thursday and starred in the afternoon workout. His signing left second baseman Connie Ryan the Phillies' only holdout.

No other big league manager has yet given a thought to letting a pitcher go nine innings.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UP)—Stan Musial and shortstop Solly Hemus were the only 1952 regulars named today to the St. Louis Cardinals' starting lineup in their Grapefruit League opener with the Cuban All-Stars tomorrow. He also said Johnny Lindell, 24-9 with Hollywood in the Pacific Coast League last season, will be given a chance to turn the trick on Sunday against the same opposition.

No other big league manager has yet given a thought to letting a pitcher go nine innings.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UP)—Pitcher Early Wynn of the Cleveland Indians has a breakfast date today with General Manager Hank Greenberg to talk over contract negotiations.

"He knows what I want and I'm just going to walk in and keep my mouth shut," said Wynn, who won 23 games last year.

HAVANA, Cuba (UP)—Manager Fred Haney is determined that the Pittsburgh Pirates will be first in at least one respect this year.

Haney announced that he hoped rookie Bob Barber will be able to pitch the full nine innings in the Pirates' Grapefruit League opener with the Cuban All-Stars tomorrow. He also said Johnny Lindell, 24-9 with Hollywood in the Pacific Coast League last season, will be given a chance to turn the trick on Sunday against the same opposition.

The tournament activities will be launched by a get-together for all the competing teams late Sunday afternoon. The games will start Monday.

Pirates Embark For Kansas City Tomorrow Morn

Ten players, a manager, and Coach Howard Porter will leave tomorrow for Kansas City, Missour, when they will represent East Carolina College and District 26 of the N.A.I.A. in the national N.A.I.A. tournament.

The Pirates will leave Greenville tomorrow morning. They will go to Raleigh where they will board a plane for Washington, D. C. After a short layover in Washington they will switch to a west-bound aircraft which will carry them into Kansas City around midnight tomorrow.

Play in the national finals will begin Monday with 32 teams from all over the nation taking part. East Carolina officials have not been advised of their first round opponent as yet but will be as soon as final pairings are made by the national committee. Officials of the national tournament have been in contact with East Carolina officials since their Wednesday night victory over Elon, however.

The Pirates won the right to represent the district by defeating High Point and Elon in the district tournament held Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the East Carolina gym. The Bucs breezed past High Point 100-73, in the semi-final round of action but had a tougher scrap on their hands in getting past Elon, 72-56.

The victories in the tournament pushed the Pirates' season record to 18 victories and only four defeats. Their 14-2 mark was tops in regular season play for the North State Conference and gave the number one seeding in the North State Conference tournament held a week ago in Winston-Salem. They were eliminated from the conference championship by fourth-seeded High Point, the team which finally won the title.

Elon and High Point have represented the district in the national tournament in the last two meetings. Elon went last year and was eliminated in the first round. High Point was representative to the 1951 tournament and was also bounced in the first round.

The players who will make the trip to Kansas City are Sonny Russell, Charlie Huffman, Jack Carr, Bob Meyer, Bobby Hudson, Harry Hayes, Cecil Heath, J. C. Thomas, Jerry Hilburn, and Paul Jones. Norwood Talton will act as manager of the team.

The tournament activities will be launched by a get-together for all the competing teams late Sunday afternoon. The games will start Monday.

Chapter Two

Ruth crossed Main Street, took the gate into Pepper-Tree Lane, and thumped mightily on the door of Doctor's cottage. "Anyone home? And who's been clipping the wisteria?"

Big Sam chuckled as he opened the door. "Shucks, Miss Ruth, it was getting so you couldn't see the house."

An immense man with a chocolate-brown face and grizzled hair, he seemed perfectly content to stand there with her all afternoon, just talking. But a shout came from the house, the shout of an impatient man who'd been kept waiting quite long enough.

She stepped quickly into the broad, cool hall and went into the living-room. "Sorry to be late, Doctor."

Dr. Ambrose Fell smiled wryly. He waved her to a chair. "We're having coffee and cake. Big Sam says we don't entertain enough, so we're entertaining."

"Oh?" she eyed him, all suspicion. He entertained only when he wanted something.

She chuckled. "Why waste time? Ask for what you want and be done with it. I'll say no, and then we'll discuss the question of your vacation."

He sat down. At seventy-two he was still a bull of a man, broad-shouldered, thick-chested, with keen blue eyes and a vigorous crop of white hair.

"Vacations aren't fun," he said. "You fight mosquitoes and crowds and endure all sorts of discomforts."

"You don't have to travel, you know. You could stay at the hotel. Dad would be glad to put you up free of charge. There!"

The keen eyes twinkled. "Which," he said lightly, "reminds me of a favor I want to ask. Mr. Gomez needs a job and with the tourist season coming on—"

"No you don't! We've hired him four times and each time he is disappointed. And Nancy's scared to be around him and I don't want to be around him any more. He really doesn't."

"All right," she said weakly, feeling trapped. "Why doesn't Mr. Gomez drink?"

"His artificial leg doesn't pain him any more."

"Oh?"

"His wasn't well fitted. And he thought, the idiot, that pain went with wearing an artificial leg. When the pain was too intense, he drank. Gomez is different now, period."

"The poor guy!"

"You'll talk to your folks?"

She nodded, swallowing a lump in her throat.

Dr. Fell got up vigorously from his chair. "Fine. Sorry you have to leave. You know your way out?"

"Dr. Ambrose J. Fell!"

He halted at the door, struck by another thought. "And who'd take over while I was vacationing? And who'd work out the details for the community hospital?"

"You could hire a young doctor. And how do you know there'll be a community hospital?"

"There has to be."

"But the money!"

"I'm not concerned with money! I'm concerned with human health, with human needs!"

"If Dad backed such a proposal he wouldn't be elected. Do you know that?"

He met her eyes. "He'll have to declare, Ruth."

"And if he declares against?"

He smiled faintly. "You almost died at birth, you know. And why? Because we couldn't afford a hospital—or so people thought. You just tell your father that."

An hour later she was sitting on the veranda of her father's white-frame hotel. She stirred as the big door opened behind her. Meeting a pair of black eyes, she smiled mechanically. "You must be Mr. Daniel Curtis. I'm Ruth Carlisle. My mother told me you and your uncle have come for the summer."

He took her hand and shook it briefly and sat down in a wicker rocker beside her. "You wouldn't like a game of croquet, would you? I noticed that your sister and Mr. Huford need partners."

"We'll get licked, Mr. Curtis. They beat your brains out, as my students say."

"Oh, we'd let them win, of course! That fellow Huford needs a morale-builder."

She nodded. She began to like this tall, rather thin man who could go to the trouble of deliberately losing a game just to give someone a badly needed lift.

"I'll join you in five minutes."

"Sucker!" chuckled Maggi Colahan in the wide, long hall.

Ruth halted. "Are you feeling all right, Maggi?"

"I'm feeling honored, if that's what you mean." Awe overspread Maggi's features. "Don't you know who his uncle is? Honey, he's a dyed-in-the-wool celebrity! He's that philosopher who used to talk over the radio!"

Ruth ransacked her memory, found nothing; perhaps because of that ringing in her ears. Who was talking about her? Why were bells ringing in her ears?

"Maggi, is something boiling in the kettle? Is something whistling—or ringing?"

"I knew you should've worn a hat! That hot sun has scrambled your brains!"

"I hate hats!" Ruth went out the back way to the cottage. She took denim trousers and a blouse from the bureau drawer and put them on. She stared at her reflection in the mirror. Beautiful? She wished Bob would grow up. When she fell in love she'd know. There'd be a voice to tell her, a bell-like voice that would ring for happiness. Until then...

Dr. Ambrose Fell smiled wryly. He waved her to a chair. "We're having coffee and cake. Big Sam says we don't entertain enough, so we're entertaining."

"Oh?" she eyed him, all suspicion. He entertained only when he wanted something.

She chuckled. "Why waste time? Ask for what you want and be done with it. I'll say no, and then we'll discuss the question of your vacation."

Health Program Prepared For River Valleys

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—A joint effort by the governments of Brazil and the United States is making three of Brazil's big river valleys healthier places to live.

The two governments recently agreed on a new health program for 1953. The program will be administered by the public health division of the Point Four program, and will apply to the Amazon, San Francisco and Rio Doce river valleys.

In the Amazon region, the work will be concentrated on anti-malaria campaigns, including clean-up programs. Some medical-sanitary assistance also will be provided for the workers of the region. The San Francisco and Rio Doce programs will emphasize co-operation with state governments on problems of sanitary engineering, and water supply.

Barbershop Will Never Be Closed

DALLAS (AP)—A former state champion fiddler plans to open what he believes will be the first round-the-clock barbershop in Texas.

Elvis Loader, 41, first turned to barbering because he figured "anything was better'n pickin' cotton." He has four barbershops going now.

Archaeologists have found traces of a prehistoric iron industry in Sarawak, Borneo, where today's tribes live close to the Stone Age, says the National Geographic Society.

Ancient Royalty Get Their Faces Lifted

LONDON—Four ancient queens of England have been getting a face lift.

Two ancient kings have had a wash and brush up.

For hundreds of years the monarch's effigies have lain in state in Westminster Abbey. During World War II the damp got in and they began to fall apart. So three years ago a full-scale repair job started.

R. P. Howgrave-Graham, assistant keeper of the Abbey's ancient valuables, told the story to the Royal Society of Arts, one of Britain's leading learned bodies.

He said the work has unearthed a host of new facts about the six monarchs and their habits.

The effigy of Edward III for instance confirmed that he died of a seizure, the head was made from a death mask and the twisted mouth was proof of a paralytic stroke.

Edward had lost the tip of his nose and all but three strands of his great red wig and beard. Now he's presentable.

Edward died broke in 1377 after a lifetime battling the French and dealing in medieval real estate.

The other king to be rejuvenated was Henry VII, father of the Henry who had six wives.

Henry died in 1509 aged 52. Howgrave-Graham said the head, another death mask, still carried a few strands of red hair, perhaps Henry's own.

With Henry in death lies his wife, blonde Elizabeth of York. Elizabeth has a reputation for cunning—largely because of a cra-fty-looking picture in the National Portrait Gallery.

Not so, said Howgrave-Graham. He said the death mask shows "neither harshness nor craftiness."

Another relic he treated was the wooden head of Anne of Bohemia, queen to Richard II. She died of the plague in 1394 when she was 28. Caught under the nail which held her wig on was some hair; it was still brown.

Catherine of Valois was another. She was the flighty French wife of Henry V, the king Laurence Olivier made a film about. After Henry's death she had four children by a man named Owen Tudor. Some said they were married, some said they weren't.

Under one of Catherine's finger nails Howgrave-Graham found a piece of crimson velvet, a remnant of the robe which once adorned the effigy. After five weeks in a normal atmosphere the effigy shed all its paint, he said, but he stuck it back again flake by flake.

Howgrave-Graham's sixth patient was Anne of Denmark, extravagant wife of James I. One poet said she "made the night more glorious than the day" but James still spent most nights away from home.

Howgrave-Graham said all the images were exact and lifelike portraits. His work had shown they were all taken from death molds. All had the same purpose, he said—to lie in state at the place of death and later at the place of burial, and to be carried in the royal funeral procession.

The man, apparently rattled, fled.

Women Fight To Save Old Trees

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP)—A task force of about 200 Winter Park women is pledged to defend the stately old oak trees lining Winter Park Road against a widening project.

The women lost a court fight to prevent the widening. But that didn't prevent them from sitting under the trees yesterday to ward off construction crews.

"Pick a tree and park," is the women's motto. Mrs. Jeri Evans, one of them, declared: "We're going to be here every day."

Frank Holland, county engineer, said he didn't know what was going to be done about it.

Jesus Urges Alertness (Temperance)

HE WARNS CHRISTIANS TO BE READY AT ALL TIMES

Scripture—Matthew 24:1-25:13; Romans 13:11-14.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

JESUS THE PROPHET speaks to us in this lesson, the prophecies uttered on Tuesday of Holy Week...

As Jesus left the temple His disciples came to show Him the buildings of the temple...

And Jesus said unto them, See ye not all these things? Verily I say unto you, there shall not be left here one stone upon another...

Then as He sat on the Mount of Olives His disciples came to Him and wanted to know when they could expect the end of the world?

Many people in later years have been sure that they knew just when this was to come about, and devoted followers have assembled and waited all night...

Always the prophecies have failed, as we are well aware. The world has seen many crises in its history seemingly pointing to the conditions described in our lesson...

appoint him his portion with the hypocrites; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

People who are faithful, trustworthy, and who strive to do their jobs as perfectly as possible—what treasures they are in the world!

Such employes are greatly appreciated by their employers and hard to replace when they leave their jobs...

Jesus then told His disciples a parable, saying that the kingdom of heaven shall be likened to 10 virgins who went forth to meet the bridegroom...

The bridegroom went to the bride's house to claim and receive her, and it was nighttime, so the girls who were to escort him carried lamps (torches) which were fed with oil...

The five wise with them, provided extra oil with them, provided beforehand, but the careless ones

MEMORY VERSE

"Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong"—I Corinthians 16:13 can foretell the time of its coming. Jesus first warned them that they should not allow themselves to be deceived by false men...

Wars and rumors of wars would come, but He told them not to be troubled, "But the end is not yet."

Nations would rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there would be famine and pestilence, and the disciples would be afflicted and killed.

But of that day and hour knoweth no man, not the angels in heaven, but My Father only."

Christ warned them, therefore, to always be ready for "Blessed is that servant, whom his Lord when He cometh shall find so doing."

If the servant should say, "My Lord delayeth his coming; and shall begin to smite his fellow servants, and to eat and drink with the drunken, the lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of,"

St. Paul's words when writing to the Romans are also to be noted: "Let us walk honestly, as in the day, not in rioting and drunkenness, not in strife and envying."

"I'm not worried about nematodes - thanks to D-D" says Mr. J. C. Galloway Greenville, Pitt County

Mr. Galloway tells his experience:

"I treated about 45 acres of tobacco land with D-D in 1952. I figure that where we didn't treat tobacco we'll get around 600 pounds per acre. Where we did treat we'll get around 1400 pounds of tobacco per acre. Before I started treating with D-D I was bothered by rim-burn—a yellowing of the edges of the leaves. With D-D there's no rim-burn. I was about to stop putting tobacco on my light land, but now I'm not worried about nematodes. I intend to treat all of my tobacco land from now on."

D-D is injected as a liquid directly into the soil several weeks before transplanting. It becomes a deadly gas which spreads through the ground, killing nematodes, the cause of root knot and other ruinous plant ailments.

D-D is easy to apply. Its modest cost is returned many times over in greater yields of higher quality tobacco. For complete information contact your D-D distributor or

Many Italian Towns Have No Movie House

ROME (AP)—The movie screen for some Italian villagers is a bed sheet lent by a housewife on those rare occasions when a motion picture comes to town. For the woman whose bed sheet is hung up in the town hall or town square, it is a big honor. Her neighbors vie jealously for the same privilege.

The Italian society of authors and publishers, which keeps a record of all Italian films produced to safeguard royalty rights of authors, says there are 2,400 Italian communities without movie theaters. In these hamlets, in habitants, to see a motion picture, often call on their mayor and town council for help. A special collection is taken up and a motion picture projector rented from the nearest city.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks sagged about three cents on average of the leaders during a quiet morning session today.

Industrials and utilities managed to rise a trifle. Rails were down a trifle with most of the loss in dividends.

A handful of issues moved outside a fractional area. American Hawaiian Steamship, International Business Machines, Quaker Oats, and G. R. Kinney gained a point or better each. McGraw Hill lost 1/2 point. DuPont rose more than a point on record sales and higher earnings.

The steels were dull with Bethlehem up 1/4 and Youngstown Sheet and U. S. Steel each off 1/4. Motors were steady to slightly easier.

In the rails, Missouri-Kansas-Texas preferred rose nearly a point and small gains were noted in Seaboard Air Line and Rock Island. St. Louis, San Francisco, Northern Pacific and Southern Pacific eased.

Robbins Mills and Celanese firmed in the textiles. Celanese was irregular with Freport at a new high. Oils had a few stragglers, notably Cities Service which rose more than a point and Texas Gulf Producing, up a point.

Market men held that the death of Premier Stalin had been discounted two days ago when the market fell on news of his critical illness.

Pitt Druggists' Petition Is Given To Rep. Worthington

Harvest Festival Plans Entering Final Stages

RALEIGH—A Greenville druggist yesterday handed Rep. Sam O. Worthington a petition requesting the Pitt legislator to withdraw his bill that would afford unlicensed druggists with a license to practice pharmacy.

The petition signed by every registered druggist in Pitt County was presented to Worthington by Jarvis Alligood, one of the approximately 300 people who attended a hearing on the bill at the State capital yesterday morning.

Alligood, who represented Pitt County druggists at the public hearing, emphasized today the petition was addressed to all members of House Judiciary Committee No. 2, and not specifically to Worthington although he is chairman of that committee.

Can't Create

"You can't create a profession by legislative action, it must result from careful training," was the war cry of the opposition to the bill. And they were present in such increasing numbers as to necessitate moving the hearing three times to accommodate them.

The large and closely-knit opposition faction was composed of licensed and unlicensed druggists, pharmacy students, faculty members of the North Carolina School of Pharmacy, and members of the State Board of Pharmacy.

Dr. E. A. Brock, dean of the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy, argued that to pass such a bill would lower the State's professional and educational requirements below any of the 48 states and any United States possessions.

Uphold Standards

The secretary of the State Board of Pharmacy, H. C. McCallister, told the committee no other state allows such licenses. He said some states do not even maintain pharmacy schools but, nevertheless, they uphold their standards to protect the health and welfare of their citizens.

A number of students currently in pharmacy school spoke out strongly against passage of the bill on the grounds it would virtually disenfranchise a person who has spent three or four years in school learning a profession.

The highly controversial bill, introduced in the House by Worthington, provides that any person who is 30 years of age and has worked under a licensed druggist for 10 years may obtain a "limited service" license to practice pharmacy.

The bill is restrictive in that those people desirous of such a license must apply by July 1, 1953. No examination is necessary and no educational restrictions have been placed on those who may apply.

400 Affected

Alligood said this morning there are approximately 400 people in the category of those who may apply for licenses under provisions of the bill. The Greenville druggist said many proponents of the bill are unlicensed druggists who own drug stores.

The main argument projected by supporters of the bill was that it would permit druggists to do legally what they are now doing illegally in that it would allow a man employed in the store to compound prescriptions without the licensed pharmacist's consent.

A. G. Pelt of Goldsboro, a supporter of the bill, said druggists with years of practical experience are now filling prescriptions while the registered pharmacist with whom they work are out of the store.

Churchmen Of Three Counties Hold Supper Meeting Here Last Night

A dozen churches of the lower half of Chowan Baptist Association were represented at a regional brotherhood supper meeting at Respos Brothers' last night.

Seventy-four men from Baptist Churches in Martin, Beaufort and Pitt counties were present.

Rev. L. G. Burdge of Greenville, Baptist missionary for the area, introduced J. G. Gibbs, president of the Greenville Baptist Brotherhood unit. Gibbs spoke briefly and then

Will Seek Bids Capitol Square

The Board of Trustees of the Greenville city schools will advertise in the next few days for bids on construction of two classrooms at the Third Street School.

J. H. Rose, superintendent of schools, made the announcement this morning.

Rose said plans for the new classrooms are almost complete, and the school board anticipates having the rooms completed and ready for occupancy when the fall school term opens next September.

Celebration Has Lasted 5 Months

TOLEDO, O. (UP)—Frederick Coupe, 23, was charged with being drunk when police found four bottles of liquor on him.

Brought before the judge, Coupe said he was merely celebrating his discharge from the Army.

The judge discovered Coupe had been discharged five months ago.

Funeral Saturday For Mrs. Richard Briley

Mrs. Stella Deaver Briley, 46, wife of Richard H. Briley of Greenville, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital at 3:20 o'clock Thursday afternoon following a cerebral hemorrhage suffered late Wednesday night. Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel at 11 o'clock Saturday morning by her pastor, Dr. H. G. Haney, and burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery in Tarboro.

Mrs. Briley was the daughter of the late Joe and Elizabeth Deaver and was born and reared in Duplin County. She was married to Mr. Briley in 1924 and spent all her married life in Greenville. She was a member of the Eighth Street Christian Church and an active member of the Christian Women's Fellowship of the Church.

Surviving are her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Joseph P. L. Miller of Greenville; four sons: James H. Briley of Washington, N. C., and Billy Briley of Greenville; 6 grandchildren; 3 brothers: Bill Deaver of Mount Olive, and Otis and Milford Deaver of Washington; and a sister, Mrs. J. W. Barfield of Arden.

One-Way Traffic ...

DURHAM—A total of 495 students have been named to the dean's list at Duke University for the spring of 1953.

To be eligible for selection, a student must have made at least a "B" average in his scholastic work of the preceding semester.

The names of seven Pitt county students are on the dean's list. They are: Edgar Lee Barnhill of Bethel; Sam Northrop Jr., Lots Waldrop Gilbert, Marie Anne Scheller, Catharine Lorah Smith, James Rodney Fulcher and Frederick P. Brooks.

Tried To Enter Barber Shop

Someone attempted to enter the Star Barber Shop during the night, Greenville Police reported today.

However nothing was reported missing from the shop. The back door of the building had been forced open, the investigating officers reported.

The attempted robbery was discovered by a night policeman as he made his regular rounds, checking the business places.

John Tyler had more children than any other President of the United States—14 by two wives.

Ships of America - 1

AP Newsfeature

From the deck of this ship, Christopher Columbus first sighted the American coast. Columbus was an Italian navigator who, in spite of ridicule, believed that by sailing steadily westward he could reach Asia. After years of effort and frustration, Queen Isabella of Spain furnished him with three ships, the Santa Maria, Maria, and Niña. After sailing more than two months across uncharted seas, with his frightened crews on the verge of mutiny, he finally landed in the West Indies, but believed he was off the coast of Asia. In reality, he had discovered the vast new continent of America, October 12, 1492.

Tobaccoists To Leave For Africa

Three Greenville tobaccoists will leave this week-end on the first leg of their journey to Southern Rhodesia where they will join another Greenville tobaccoist who is already there.

The four local tobaccoists will work with an auction warehouse firm which operates a house in Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia.

Raleigh H. Bland, Ernest Wells and "Spec" Edwards will board a plane in New York Monday and fly to Salisbury. The tobacco market in Southern Rhodesia opens March 24, and the local tobaccoists expect to be in the South African city about six months.

Lloyd Mills, also of Greenville, left about 30 days ago for Salisbury where he is employed by the British firm which operates the two warehouses which compose the market.

The Salisbury market is expected to sell approximately 120,000,000 pounds of tobacco this year.

Three Charged In School Bus Gasoline Theft

Three Negro youths were arrested last night and charged with larceny of gasoline from a school bus.

The three, Guy Boyd Jr., James Teel and Robert Lee Jones, were caught trying to steal the gasoline by use of a rubber hose and a wash tub.

The gas was being drawn from the tank of the bus and poured into the tub. About four gallons of gasoline had been removed from the bus when the robbers were spotted.

All three will be tried in City Recorder court next Friday, which will be the next scheduled term of court.

Seven From Pitt On Dean's List

BE IT RESOLVED

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—The Tennessee State Senate adopted a resolution today by Sen. Wayne Sensing, Dickson County, on the death of Josef Stalin.

The resolution read: "Whereas Josef Stalin is dead, long live America."

City Visitation Program Will Be Started Sunday

The annual citywide "visitation evangelism program" will start in Greenville Sunday evening and continue through the following Wednesday.

Rev. Dr. John Pemberton, Jr., pastor of the Cape Island Baptist Church, Cape May, N. J., will be the leader. Selected leaders of the sponsoring Protestant churches will meet each evening for supper and instruction on how to conduct the visitations.

They will meet Sunday evening at 6 o'clock at Eighth Street Christian Church; Monday evening at 8:30 at First Presbyterian Church; Tuesday evening at 8:30 at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church; and Wednesday evening at 8:30 at Memorial Baptist Church.

Dr. Pemberton will preach a 30-minute union non-day message at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, Monday through Wednesday.

He will speak four times Sunday. At 10 a. m. he speaks to the men's and women's Bible classes at the First Presbyterian Church; 11 a. m. at the Free Will Baptist Church; 6 p. m. at Eighth Street Christian Church; and at 7:30 p. m. he speaks at Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church, across the river.
