U.S. Citizen Group Behind Acquiring Soviet Plane

Private Venture In Intrigue

WASHINGTON (UP)—A private financial venture into international intrigue was given credit today for the escape to the West of a late model Soviet jet fighter carrying design secrets of vital interest to the United States.

A 23-year-old Polish air force lieutenant landed the plane March 5 on Denmark's Baltic island of Bornholm. It was the first undamaged MIG to fall into western hands. The plane probably will be returned to Poland—but not before its secrets have been thoroughly read.

Former Maryland Gov. William Preston Lane Jr. told part of the cloak-and-dagger story behind the MIG's flight from behind the Iron Curtain. Involved were a former U. S. secret agent and an unrevealed number of underground operatives in Poland and elsewhere, all of whom assertedly did their dangerous work without benefit of any official assistance. The whole fantastic plot was carried through at a cost of only $10,000, Lane said.

American officials denied any connection whatever with the spy-thriller episode. They predicted that Moscow will picture the incident in the wildest propaganda terms to persuade the world there is something to its espionage charges against the U. S. government and individual Americans.

In Copenhagen, a Danish Foreign Office spokesman said interrogation of the pilot did not indicate the flight was engineered by Americans.

If there was such an arrangement, he added, the pilot would probably have flown the plane to West Germany, where American authorities could have examined it. Lane said the venture was an entirely private one by a group of Americans, including him. Their sole interest, he said, "was to be helpful—patriotic. We had never got one (new model MIG) before."

It has been presumed that the pilot just wanted, as he told Danish authorities, to get away from the Communist regime in Poland.

But Lane indicated the flight actually was the result of nearly a year of cloak-and-dagger maneuvering with Polish underground sources. The mastermind behind the plan was reported to be Col. Udo Amoss, colorful former officer in the U. S. Air Force.

Lane, a director of the Fairchild Engineering and Airplane Corp., said at his Hagerstown, Md., home that about $10,000 in private American funds were raised to finance the venture. A Fairchild spokesman in New York said the firm itself supplied $7,500 of the total.

U. S. Jets Get Seven Red MIGs

Pilots Say They Chased Enemy Planes 'All Over Northwest Korea'

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—American Sabre jets destroyed or damaged seven Communist MIG-15s today as they flew over the Korean peninsula against the Russian-built fighters.

Pilots said they chased MIGs "all over" northwest Korea, knocked down three, probably destroyed two and damaged two more.

It was the last mission for Col. Royal N. Baker, McKinney, Tex., who shot down his 12th MIG Friday, to set an all-time jet warfare record. He made no claims today.

The 5th Air Force announced that Baker would leave for the United States "in a few days."

The new Allied air victory came when the MIGs left their attack-free base at Antung, Manchuria, in an attempt to break up relentless U. S. fighter-bomber strikes on the main Communist supply line from Red China down to the western front.

Capt. Manuel Fernandez Jr., of Miami, scored his eighth MIG kill and reported he damaged another.

The latest air action was the climax to a successful week for American Sabres, some of which started using new radar-controlled gun-sights for the first time.

Before the Saturday battles, the Air Force announced Sabres had knocked down 12 MIGs in the past seven days, bringing their Korean war toll of the Red fighters to 586.

Other types of fighters of the 5th Air Force and Far East Air Force had knocked down 18 other Red jets since the start of the war for an overall total of 60.

Ground action today was limited to only a few scattered patrol contacts along the 155-mile battlefield. One Chinese unit probed Rocky Point north of Kumhwa, but was repulsed.

Chinese Reds hit a central front advance position held by U. N. troops and forced the Allied fighters to withdraw after a 10-minute small arms fight.

The Allies called in their artillery then slammed back up the slopes and recaptured the hill.

Betrayer Of His Homeland Follows Stalin-Pattern

Red Czech President Dies

By DANIEL F. GILMORE
United Press Staff Correspondent
VIENNA, Austria (UP)—Klement Gottwald, 57, the man who betrayed freedom-loving Czechoslovakia to the Russians, died today after a two-day Stalin-pattern illness.

The third president of the Czech republic which the United States fathered and fostered, Gottwald had been absolute ruler of his country since 1948.

He died at 11 a.m. (5 a.m. EST) in Prague.

The illegitimate son of a poor farmer, Gottwald had made himself one of the outstanding figures of world communism.

Immediately after Gottwald's death Premier Antonin Zapotocky presided over a meeting of the presidium of the Communist party and government, the Prague radio said.

There was no mention of a successor to Gottwald as president. It was believed Zapotocky probably would be the man—unless the Czech Reds decide to take this opportunity to remodel their government on the Soviet pattern, leaving Zapotocky the ruler as premier, with a president enjoying merely nominal power.

Gottwald lapsed into a coma this morning. But it had been evident long before he was dying. Bulletins from his big staff of Russian and Czech physicians and surgeons made that plain.

The sixth and last medical bulletin issued by the Communist party and the government said in part:

"To save the life of Klement Gottwald, all was done that could be done by human power."

"Comrade Gottwald fought for his life until almost the last moment while fully unconscious."

and his blood pressure could not be measured.

"All was done to save the life of Klement Gottwald that is in men's power to do. Great and truly brotherly help was granted to the Czech people by the Soviet government (which sent two Moscow specialists, one a woman, to Prague). At his bedside were the best Czech and Soviet doctors. He fought almost to the last hour for his life."

"However, it was impossible for us to save this most valued life. There came heavy, very heavy minutes for the Czech people."

"Shortly after the death of the beloved Stalin, they (the Czech people) were stricken by another misfortune — Klement Gottwald's death."

News of the death of Gottwald, mastermind of the coup that took Czechoslovakia behind the Iron Curtain in 1948, was withheld for three hours.

At 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EST) the Prague radio interrupted its regular program and started playing, over and over again, "My Fatherland."

After 10 minutes of that, Prague announced that Gottwald had died of acute pneumonia and acute pleurisy.

The announcement was made by the central committee of the Czechoslovak Communist party.

Western diplomats here were astonished at the similarity of technique of announcing Gottwald's illness and death to that used in the case of Josef Stalin.

Medical bulletins gave similar painfully detailed particulars of the illnesses.

It was announced, as in Stalin's case, that the Czech Communist party and government — with the government ranking second — were handling the situation.

Gottwald, 57, died in Prague's towering Hradcany Castle just four days after he returned from the funeral of Stalin in Moscow.

Unarmed British Airliner Intercepted Over Germany

Will Protest New Attack By Red Jets

BONN, Germany (UP)—Top Allied officials met today to draft a joint protest to Russia over the attack by Soviet jet fighters on an unarmed British airliner — the fourth Allied-Communist plane incident this week.

As Allied officials met an American Air Force spokesman said the U. S. radar screen along the Iron Curtain had been tightened and jet fighter pilots put on an around-the-clock alert basis at U. S. German zone bases.

The spokesman said U. S. fighter pilots have been under orders to intercept all unidentified planes along the German borders with Soviet areas, and to fire back if fired upon "belligerently." However, U. S. officials now believe it impossible for a plane to slip through the American radar screen system since it has been tightened. The Allied high commissioners met in the Bonn office of French High Commissioner Andre Francois-Poncet to draft the three-power note against the attack by Red jets on a British European Airways passenger plane Thursday.

Officials explained it would be a joint protest this time because the attack occurred along the Allied air corridor to Berlin—so all three powers were interested.

The airliner — a two-engine Vickers — had strayed slightly out of the 20-mile-wide corridor on its way from Munich to Berlin. Soviet fighters fired warning shots. As soon as the BEA plane returned to the corridor it was allowed to proceed unmolested.

This was the fourth air incident in a week. The first was the shooting down of one of two U. S. Thunderbolt jet F-84s Tuesday by two Czechoslovak MIG-15s which had been picked up by the American radar screen inside the American zone of Germany.

On Thursday six British airmen were killed and a seventh wounded when their Lincoln bomber was shot down by Russian fighters on the British-Soviet zonal border. The same day another British bomber was subjected to a "mock attack" by Red fighters deep in the British zone.

British authorities said today they had received permission to send a team into the Soviet zone to recover the bodies of four of the airmen killed in the Thursday attack.

Two of the others killed in the attack landed in the British zone.

The pilot — the only survivor — landed in the Soviet zone and is in a hospital there.

The British are expected to make a second protest to Russia on the shooting down of the bomber after an investigation has been completed. Yesterday they accused Russian pilots of "order" in shooting the bomber down in a "brutal act of aggression."

The U. S. also has made two protests. The latest note was sent yesterday and warned the U. S. would "take the measures necessary" to prevent further attacks.

The Royal Air Force yesterday ordered all its pilots to stay 10 miles from the Iron Curtain border to avoid possible clashes with Communist planes.

However, the American Air Force spokesman said the U. S. did not plan to issue any such orders.

Worthington May Introduce Substitute Legislation

Utilities Vote Bill Seemingly 'Dead'

By JESS POINDEXTER
Reflector City Editor

A proposed bill calling for a city-wide vote to determine future status of the Greenville Utilities Commission probably won't materialize, according to an interview with Rep. Sam O. Worthington.

Instead, the Pitt legislator said this morning, a substitute measure may be introduced in the General Assembly, provisions of which would permit the city manager to be named a full-fledged, voting member of the Utilities Commission.

Under Worthington's direction, he stated, a proposal to that effect has already been prepared and sent to the bonding company which passed on the issuance of utilities bonds affecting the Greenville organ.

"I have not received a report on their findings as yet," the Greenville attorney declared, "but if they approve I will feel free to introduce the substitute bill in the House."

Affect Bonds?

Worthington, a Pitt representative to the General Assembly since 1938, stated that the bonding company will return one of two rulings, namely, that such a proposal will or will not affect Utilities bonds.

"If they find it doesn't affect bonds the measure may be introduced as drawn," he asserted. "If some affect on bonds, officials will deal whatever provisions they deem necessary for protection and return the bill to me."

"I want to be certain the bill is cleared all the way around before I introduce it. I certainly don't want to encounter any confusion or misunderstanding relative to the measure after it is introduced."

Worthington theorized that the substitute bill as drawn will make unnecessary the previously suggested centralized purchasing agency for both the city and the Utilities Commission.

Control Purchasing

"Working with both the commission and the city, the city manager should be intimately familiar with both operations and should be able, directly or indirectly, to control purchasing for both departments," the legislator said.

Reports Russian Maneuvers Held In Manchuria

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—The Ministry of Interior's Ta Tao News Agency today said Russian ground and air forces conducted large-scale three-day maneuvers in the Dairen-Port Arthur area of Manchuria in mid-February.

It described the maneuvers as the biggest of their kind in that region since the end of World War II. Residents in the maneuver area were confined to their homes for the entire period and martial law was imposed.

The railroad north of Dairen was guarded by both Russian and Chinese garrison troops.

The agency claimed that two divisions of Soviet Russian troops, 300 Soviet planes and more than 100 Soviet tanks took part.

local attorney said. The bill, which was referred to House Judiciary Committee No. 2 of which Worthington is chairman, has aroused vigorous opposition among druggists throughout Pitt County and elsewhere in the State.

The representative said his committee has "billed the bill down" to the point that what it is concerned with primarily is "whether to permit a practice to continue in which some 500 druggists employ violate the criminal law every day."

Not Read Petition

He said he has no personal interest in the bill, and has not read "all the way through" a petition presented by the druggists of Pitt County opposing the bill. "Even so it would not affect my judgment."

In his opinion, he stated, the committee working with the State Board of Pharmacy and the Pharmacy School at Chapel Hill will work out a compromise measure which will allow people employed in drug stores to fill prescriptions while the registered druggist is absent.

"As for the zoning bill outside Greenville," Worthington concluded, "I have forgotten about it, and unless someone shows me a more pressing need for the bill I will not introduce it."

Passed Both Houses

As a matter of fact, he added, the bill of incorporation together with the amendment already has passed both the House and Senate.

Reason for extending the active date of incorporation of the new areas, Worthington explained, is that the town is planning a new bond issue for water and sewer extensions. Date of the election has not definitely been set but it will be held "sometime in May."

According to the legislator, if the new areas should have been incorporated immediately residents of those areas would not have been allowed to vote on the issue. New areas have to be inside the limits a minimum of four months before they may vote.

Judge Dink James, Greenville attorney, said this morning the amount of the Grifton bond issue is $105,000. Of the total, $55,000 will be designated sewer bonds, while $50,000 are to be water bonds.

He said in view of the pressing need for improvements it seemed more practical to hold the election as soon as possible rather than wait an additional four months to give people in the new areas a chance to ballot on the issue.

In regard to the controversial "limited service license" bill for non-registered druggists introduced recently in the House by Worthington, the author of the bill said a subcommittee has been appointed to review the measure.

He said he picked up the knack himself somewhere along the way, she said.

But she admitted that maybe the extensive reading about she and her husband did for Marty when he was a toddler probably helped.

"When he was real tiny, I'd read him the Three Pigs and the Three Bears and showed him how to match up the words and the pictures," she said.

Gradually, the boy began picking out a word here and there until at two, he was reading on his own.

Now he peruses the daily newspaper and uses such words as "amazing" and "spectacular" by day tomorrow.

Tax collectors throughout the nation were braced for the usual last-minute rush. And regardless of irritations, they had orders from tax Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews to meet taxpayers "with a smile."

There was little doubt the government meant business in announcing the campaign against evaders. Both justice and internal revenue have been doubly anxious to do a good job since they came under attack for irregularities and more recently under new Republican management.

"Every effort will be made to discover and prosecute those who willfully attempt to evade their taxes," Coleman and Assistant Attorney General H. Brian Holland said in a joint announcement.

They said there would be a campaign to check returns of all sizes.

"There will be continued activity to identify those who fail to file returns, and where such failure is willful, prosecution will be undertaken," the announcement said.

Andrews and Holland said "criminal tax cases are receiving priority to assure speedy investigation and review." This is followed by "prompt" prosecution where necessary, they added.

Willful evasion "even in small cases will receive the utmost attention, the officials said, because it represents a significant threat to the revenue."

Bethel Harvest Festival's Host Queen Crowned; Entries Judged

By MURIEL SHOTWELL
Reflector Staff Writer

BETHEL—Last night's activities were highlighted with the crowning of Miss Janelle Whitley as Bethel's host queen along with the judging of 15 lovely girls to reign over the town's Harvest Festival in October.

Miss Whitley was crowned by Dr. John D. Messick of East Carolina

College, and her court included two other young ladies from Bethel, Misses Jamie Edmondson and Becky Keel as maids of honor.

Following the crowning ceremonies, the beauty contestants from nearby towns and cities were introduced by C. W. Everett, master of ceremonies. As the contestants left the stage and walked onto the floor, they were scored by the judges.

The judges' cards were sealed in envelopes last night and turned over to R. L. Martin, Bethel's mayor. They will not be opened until the girls return October 2 to take place in a talent show. Following the talent show, scores will be averaged and the young lady having the highest score will be crowned Queen of the Harvest on October 2.

Miss Whitley wore a shrimp colored evening dress of which the boucle was studded with sequins. The maids of honor wore identical gowns of blue net. All of the young ladies were presented with orchids.

Throughout the evening, the Duke Cavaliers furnished music for dancing. R. L. Martin welcomed the crowd of over 700 and introduced special guests which included Dr. Messick, Senator Paul Jones of Farmville, and judges. Judges included Mrs. J. P. Nowell of Ahoskie, Mary Elizabeth Ridge of Goldsboro, J. L. Koonce of Kinston, and Mr. Warren of Kinston.

The beauty contestants were first entertained at a buffet supper at the Bethel Rotary Club along with their escorts and chaperones. An intermission, party was staged for them by mothers of teen-agers in Bethel. Guests at the intermission party also included the contestants' escorts and teen-agers of Bethel.

A spokesman of the steering committee of last night's program included the following: Mary House, Oak City; Peggy Long, Robertsonville; Patricia Wynne, Williamson; Ann Elyon, Jamesville; Janie Cherry, Williamson; Nancy Galloway, Grimesland; and Janis Foster, Chidoc.

Phyllis Jackson, Grifton; Francis Sutton, Ayden; Nancy Worthington, Winterville; Sylvia Weeks, Greenville; Guitta Cannon, Farmville; Joyce Mayo, Belvoir-Paidland; and Mary Ann Pittman, Pinetops.

GHS Paper Is Again Awarded Medalist Rating

The Greenville High School Journalists, those who make "Green Lights" won medalist's (highest) grade for the second consecutive year at Columbia University in New York the past week.

Principal O. E. Dowd said the papers are classified and judged according to merit and number of students. He said the nation's top ranking school newspapers and magazines winners were announced yesterday by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

Greenville is in classification of the senior high schools with enrollment of 301-500 students.

The winners were named as approximately 4,000 student editors and faculty advisors gathered on Columbia University campus for the three-day annual convention.

The Greenville journalists were in New York all week. Mrs. Mary L. Goodson, their advisor, accompanied them to the metropolitan city. They are expected to return by train to Rocky Mount Sunday morning.

"Green Lights" staff members who went to New York are Dorothy Jackson, Ann Ruffin, Diana Porter, Rachel Lang, Ruth Topping, Billy Arnold and Wayne Bishop. Sudie Mae Spain and Evelyn Smith, co-editors, did not go.

Set Inquiry Into Color Television

WASHINGTON (UP)—The House Commerce Committee is planning hearings to find out why the public isn't getting color television.

Chairman Charles A. Wollerton (R-N.J.) said the investigation will probably begin late in April. He said the committee wants to know when color television will be ready for the market.

Sen. Edwin C. Johnston (D-Colo.) has charged that "powerful interests" are deliberately blocking color TV until the market is "saturated" with black and white sets.

Gamma Globulin Supply For N. C.

RALEIGH (UP)—A supply of gamma globulin, the drug with most promise as polio preventive, reached the State Health Department here yesterday.

The scarce drug has been declared a critical item by the Office of Defense Mobilization which is directing distribution to states. The ODM assumed control of the drug so that it can be made available when and where most needed in the event of epidemics.

Tornadoes Exact Heavy Toll In Lives

KNOX CITY, Tex. (UP)—A rash of tornadoes roared through North Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas last night and early today, killing at least 17 persons and causing millions of dollars of property damage.

At least 18 persons were injured in the tornadoes, which left more than 125 homes in splinters.

Arkansas state police reported they could not locate any of the 100 inhabitants of Bunker Hill, 50 miles northwest of Little Rock, where 18 of 35 houses were demolished.

They said, however, that there were no known deaths at Bunker Hill and believed the residents had taken refuge elsewhere.

Six houses were demolished and four persons injured at Mill Creek, five miles west of Russellville, Ark., when the latest in the series of tornadoes that terrorized three states struck early today.

Two houses were destroyed at Delaware, Ark., and there was minor damage at Dover, Ark.

Oklahoma Gov. Johnston Murray warned that he is prepared to call out the National Guard to protect towns hit by tornadoes if sightseers do not stay away. He said crowds had become so large that cleanup work was hampered and looting was feared.

Forecasters cancelled a tornado alert at 2 a.m., e.s.t. They said a vicious squall line that kicked off the tornadoes, beginning at 3:30 a.m., e.s.t. Friday, was dying out.

One tornado killed 14 persons, including most of two families in North Central Texas around the Judd, Rochester, Knox City and O'Brien area.

Three persons were killed when tornadoes rumbled through Dickinson, Washington, Bradley and Rush Springs, Okla., about 140 miles to the northeast.

Damage in the North Central Texas area was estimated by Tom Wagley, a Red Cross disaster unit director, at $1,000,000. There was no immediate estimate of the damage in Oklahoma. However, Lawton, hit by a 30-minute hail storm, suffered an estimated $1,500,000 damage.

Miss Janelle Whitley, Bethel High School senior, last night reigned over a beauty contest in which girls from neighboring communities took part in the preliminary judging to choose a Harvest Queen for the Harvest Festival in October. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Thalian Book Club Concludes Study Of Commandments
The Thalian Book Club met at the home of Mrs. V. C. Fleming Jr. on March 9. The home was decorated with spring flowers and a delicious luncheon was served.

Mrs. B. Sue Sigs Jr., president, called the meeting to order. She welcomed the guests, Mrs. A. C. Ruffin, Mrs. E. C. Wilkerson, Mrs. Hoover Taft and Mrs. E. H. Willard. After the business was completed she turned the meeting over to Mrs. J. E. Nobles Jr. Mrs. Nobles continued the study of the commandments with the final tenth commandment, "Thou shalt not covet." She stated the word covet had more than one meaning. There is a sense in which covetousness is altogether right. Every man has the right to covet an opportunity to work. Every man has the right to equip himself to do his work, and every man has the right to covet the realization of his best possibilities as a Christian.

"How then," she pointed out, "can we distinguish the two kinds of coveting? The self seeking from the inordinate desire of greed?" She continued, "This commandment forbids desiring that to which we have no right. Human greed is a terrible thing. It constantly endangers life itself—wars are fought, murder committed and another commandment broken. Covetousness also endangers the sanctity of marriage, adultery is committed and another commandment broken. It endangers the dignity of ownership because we covet the possessions which other men have and find subtle ways of attaining them—thus the 8th commandment is violated."

BSU Students Plan Talent Parade Next Tuesday At Center

Members of the Baptist Student Union at East Carolina College will stage a Talent Parade next Tuesday, March 17, at the Baptist Student Center on East Eighth Street. The program will be attended by members of the organization and their guests. Those on the program will be talented students at East Carolina.

The show is being planned by a committee headed by Airlie Barbour of Four Oaks. Assisting her are Lee Bishop, Greenville; Lillian Haynes, Greensboro; Larry Williams, Ocracoke; and Barbara Guyton, Wilmington.

Specialist Finds Money Allergy
LOS ANGELES (UP) — A skin specialist has reported a medical case, perhaps the most pitiful imaginable, in which a man suddenly developed an allergy to money and didn't touch it without getting a rash.

Dr. Paul D. Foster told the College of Medical Evangelists post-graduate convention Thursday that this allergy suffered broke out in a rash whenever he handled money and was advised to leave it alone.

Dr. Foster also said wives can be allergic to their husbands or vice versa, and it is even possible that you can become allergic to yourself.

Widely Varied Program Is Arranged For Annual ECC High School Day

Seniors in high schools of the state who will attend East Carolina College's annual High School Day here Friday, April 17, will engage in a varied program planned for their entertainment. Both recreational and educational events of the day are designed to give visitors a good time on the campus and to enable them to see "a college in action."

Dr. Ed J. Carter, director of the East Carolina Bureau of Field Services, as chairman of the High School Day Committee, has announced that final preparations for the gala occasion are now in progress. Approximately 3,000 students from the Eastern and Piedmont section of North Carolina are expected to be guests of the college April 17.

The day's events will begin with a parade by cadets of the college Air Force ROTC Wing and a program in the Wright Building. Dr. Carter will preside at this assembly and President John D. Messick of the college will speak. Music by the College Choir, the College Concert Band, and the Varsity Glee Club will be presented.

Bethel, Ayden Typists Garner Contest Honors

Winners in the second annual typing contest for students in Pitt County high schools were announced at East Carolina College Friday night during a dinner in the college dining hall.

The contest was sponsored by the college business education department and the Beta Kappa chapter of Pi Omega Pi, honorary fraternity for business education students. Ninety-one boys and girls participated as representatives of schools at Ayden, Bethel, Belvoir, Chicod, Farmville, Grifton, Grimsland, Stokes and Winterville.

Contestants from Bethel were awarded a cup for making the highest average in the advanced typing tests. Those from Ayden also received a cup for achieving highest rating in beginning typing. Receiving honorable mention as runners-up in these contests were Winterville and Ayden, advanced typing, and Winterville, Bethel, and Grifton, beginning typing.

Ernell Wilson of Bethel, advanced typing student, was winner of medals for the best individual scores. Honorable mention went to Margaret Ann Mellon, Winterville; Craig Harris, Farmville; Carolyn Corbett, Ayden, and Sue Flanagan, Farmville.

was a member of the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church and was a farmer.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary W. Dixon; three daughters, Mrs. R. E. Jernigan and Mrs. Eddie Ellis of Portsmouth, Va., and Mrs. Ernest Slaughter of Murfreesboro; a son, Robert M. Dixon of Murfreesboro; 11 grandchildren; and a sister, Mrs. Dillie Lewis of Greenville.

Mrs. F. M. Wooten Gives Club Program

Mrs. J. H. Waldrop, always a gracious hostess entertained the Sans Souci Book Club, Tuesday, March the tenth, at her home on Tenth Street. Arrangements of early April flowers brought a breath of the season into the house where a greater number of members answered to roll call than usual.

Mrs. S. T. White the president called the meeting to order and after a short business session in which a number of important matters were discussed and settled the meeting was turned over to the program committee.

Mrs. F. M. Wooten was introduced as the leader of the afternoon. Her subject being "An Educational Map of North Carolina." Heretofore the club has been studying the things in which North Carolina excels, tobacco, textiles, furniture, nylons and other things in which the state is a "first."

Mrs. Wooten approached her "Educational Map of North Carolina" from some years back when there was such a dearth of educational and cultural advantages in our midst. In fact the state was so lacking in colleges, libraries, schools of paintings, water colors, gouache pictures, and examples of mobile sculpture. The two college teachers recently gave a joint exhibition of their paintings and other art work in the Community Art Gallery of the Sheppard Memorial Library of Greenville.

Other local artists whose works will be shown in Kingston include Mrs. Georgia P. Hearne, Mrs. Elizabeth Pott Young, Mrs. John Clark, Jr., and Mrs. Joseph Tabor.

Local Artists Will Display Work In Kinston For Art Festival Show

Artists from East Carolina College and the city of Greenville will display their work in Kinston during the Lenoir County Arts Festival March 15 through March 22. Exhibitions will be housed in the Eagle Warehouse there and will be open to the public.

Francis Lee, Neel, director, and John Gordon, faculty member of the East Carolina department of art will be represented at the festival by an exhibition of oil paintings, water colors, gouache pictures, and examples of mobile sculpture. The two college teachers recently gave a joint exhibition of their paintings and other art work in the Community Art Gallery of the Sheppard Memorial Library of Greenville.

Other local artists whose works will be shown in Kingston include Mrs. Georgia P. Hearne, Mrs. Elizabeth Pott Young, Mrs. John Clark, Jr., and Mrs. Joseph Tabor.

Pitt's First Full-Time County Jailer Is Still On Job After Sixteen Years; His Duties Have Grown

By ROY HARDEE

Meet a man who has served as guardian for more than 7,500 persons in the past 16 years—Pitt County's first full-time jailer, W. C. Leggett.

Compé November 15 of this year, Jailer Leggett will have concluded 16 years as keeper of the county's "bad folks" and some of them have really been bad.

A man who likes children, that is clearly evident by the fact that he has successfully reared eight of his own—three girls and five boys rounds out his household.

In fact, in his own words, "I like everyone."

And nearly everyone, or a large part of the residents around the county know the friendly jail keeper.

Up until the employment of Leggett as the first full-time jailer, the county jail was under the direction solely of the sheriff, whose responsibility it was to look after the upkeep and welfare of the county's jail inmates.

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners appointed the present jailer November 15, 1937, a post which Leggett has held since that time.

Relaxing in his office, located in the front part of the large jail, built of brick and stone in 1910, Jailer Leggett simply commented that he has "not really seen anything exciting" while serving his post over the past year.

The figure of 7,500 represents the inmates who have been confined in the county's prison unit for terms ranging from several hours to several years.

Most of the inmates sentenced to the jail are slated to work around the jail or the courthouse which is also kept under the watchful eyes of the jailer.

When he first started as jailer, Leggett's regular duties simply consisted of staying at the jail 24 hours a day, working during the daylight hours and being on call at night. Then he was given the job of looking after the courthouse, then the grounds, and next, the Tucker building.

However, since last summer, the county commissioners hired a night jailer, O. H. Wilson, who works from seven in the evening until seven the next morning.

During the 16 years that Leggett has served as Number One man at the jail, the institution has undergone 45 Grand Jury inspections and 14 State Board of Health visits.

The only time during the life of the jail that additional work has been done other than routine painting, was summer before last when major repairs were done in the cell blocks and toilets.

A total of 48 beds are located in the regular cell block with an additional 22 beds making a total of 70. Over the years the load at the jail has always been fairly heavy.

"I have never seen the jail full, nor have I ever known it to be empty," the jailer commented.

Over the years, of the 7,500 persons who have been kept at the jail, the jailer estimates that about 70 per cent were felons, 10 per cent driving drunk, and another ten per cent booked for public drunkenness. Around 40 per cent of the overall total of county prisoners are made up of persons charged with simple assaults, assault on females, parole violations and violation of probation.

Since World War II the number of AWOLs kept at the jail has steadily increased.

The prison population is divided about 70 per cent for colored and 30 per cent white. Only a fraction of the number of prisoners are females. Only around four or five women are kept at the jail, generally, during a month's time.

Reports on all persons arrested and confined at the jail are sent into Raleigh and additional reports prepared and sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington; another of the many items which must be taken care of by the jailer.

More so in the former days than now, the county's jail was a favorite gathering spot for law enforcement officers as well as citizens who just dropped in to keep abreast with the latest news of the county.

A friendly game of cards is sometimes in progress when any interesting party happens to drop in. At the jail no regular visiting hours are maintained. Relatives of the inmates are allowed to visit "most any time" as long as they are on business.

Prison labor used to repair and work on the grounds of the county's building have to be well-fed. For that reason county inmates are served meals three times a day, instead of the regular twice daily fare which most jails have.

"In all of my time as jailer, I have had to hire only one person to help with the jail and that was a cook. She was employed for ten months," says Leggett. Meal times are seven in the morning, 12:30 p.m. and again at 5:30 in the evening.

Often times when a prisoner has been arrested he has been known to request that he be taken to county jail since "the county jail feeds you up there and there are no sandwiches like at the city jail."

Also, in the course of the past 16 years, the jailer's judgement regarding trustees has proven wrong only one time. Prisoners are granted certain considerations when they prove worthy, if it is often times a hard job to select those that "I not betray a trust."

But an average of being wrong only one time in 16 years is a good batting average, in any man's book.

That one black mark, which was quickly erased, came about when a Negro woman cooking at the jail decided to take leave of the institution and leave the county.

She was picked up several days later in Belhaven and returned to spend the rest of her confinement behind those iron bars.

Several prisoners confined at the jail have been the object of wide spread headlines in most of the state papers.

Among those most widely known were the Daniels cousins, Bennie and Lloyd Ray, who were sentenced to die for the slaying of a young Greenville taxi-cab driver in an off-road tobacco barn.

The most widely-known inmates were two young marines.

Last August Herman Socie and Fred Porcelli, convicted slayers of policeman Jessie Mills, were kept in the local jail after their capture and confession, some two weeks following the slaying.

Another was the case of Lavette Miller, who was charged with the shot-gun murder of a young Beaufort County farmer and the kidnapping of his wife.

Many prisoners from out of the county have been silently whisked to the county's jail for safe-keeping, unknown to the general public.

Before becoming Pitt's jailer, Mr. Leggett was a farmer, that is up until 1930, when he went to work for the State Highway and Public Works Commission. He remained there for seven years until taking the position of jailer for the county.

In addition to serving as jailer, Mr. Leggett must also supervise the feeding of prisoners as well as see that the grounds of the county court house, the Tucker building are well-kept.

More than 7,500 persons have been placed under lock and key by jailer Leggett since he assumed duties as the first full-time jailer 16 years ago. Here, Leggett opens the door of a cell block to admit a prisoner.

Art Notes

By KENNETH L. BING

During the last three and one-half years the physical facilities for the teaching of Industrial Arts at East Carolina College have been improved and expanded to a considerable extent.

Formerly, only woodworking and drafting were taught. Today, experiences in a wide variety of industrial activities are possible.

The woodworking department now has the most modern equipment for the teaching of hand and machine operations. Students may build projects which require the common hand tools or they may use machinery and produce fine pieces of furniture with complicated curves, moldings, and joints. They also find the necessary equipment for satisfactory finishes as well as a modern finishing room in which to apply them.

The drafting department is housed in a room especially equipped for this work. New and modern metal desks, as well as the best in drafting instruments, are provided. One of the most necessary conditions to successful work in this area is adequate light. The room is equipped with fluorescent lights placed in such a manner that neither glare nor shadows interfere with student's work. These lights provide a high level of illumination so that eye strain is negligible and accurate work can be produced. In the near future equipment will be installed for the making of blue-prints and black and white prints.

The equipment in the metal working department is all new. Five modern screw cutting lathes have been installed. Other equipment includes a milling machine, a metal shaper, drills, grinders, an electric welder, a gas welding outfit, a power hack saw, hand and machine tools for sheet metal work and other necessary hand tools to carry on a wide variety of activities. The machinery is powered through a bus bar which is specially designed and built for this shop.

In the electrical area students have an opportunity to learn and put into practice the principles of electricity as applied to motors, heating devices, home appliances, radio and automobiles. Adequate tools, materials and testing devices are provided. A very interesting piece of equipment built by Mr. Don Amelon, the instructor, with the assistance of his students, is a mock-up of a complete automobile electrical system including the starter, generator, lights, horn, distributor, spark plugs, and so on.

One of the most interesting areas is that of crafts. Specialized equipment is available for leatherwork, art metal work, and plastics. An opportunity is provided for the student to design and fabricate articles of which he can justly be proud. This type of work often leads to interesting and satisfying hobbies which can be carried on with a minimum of equipment.

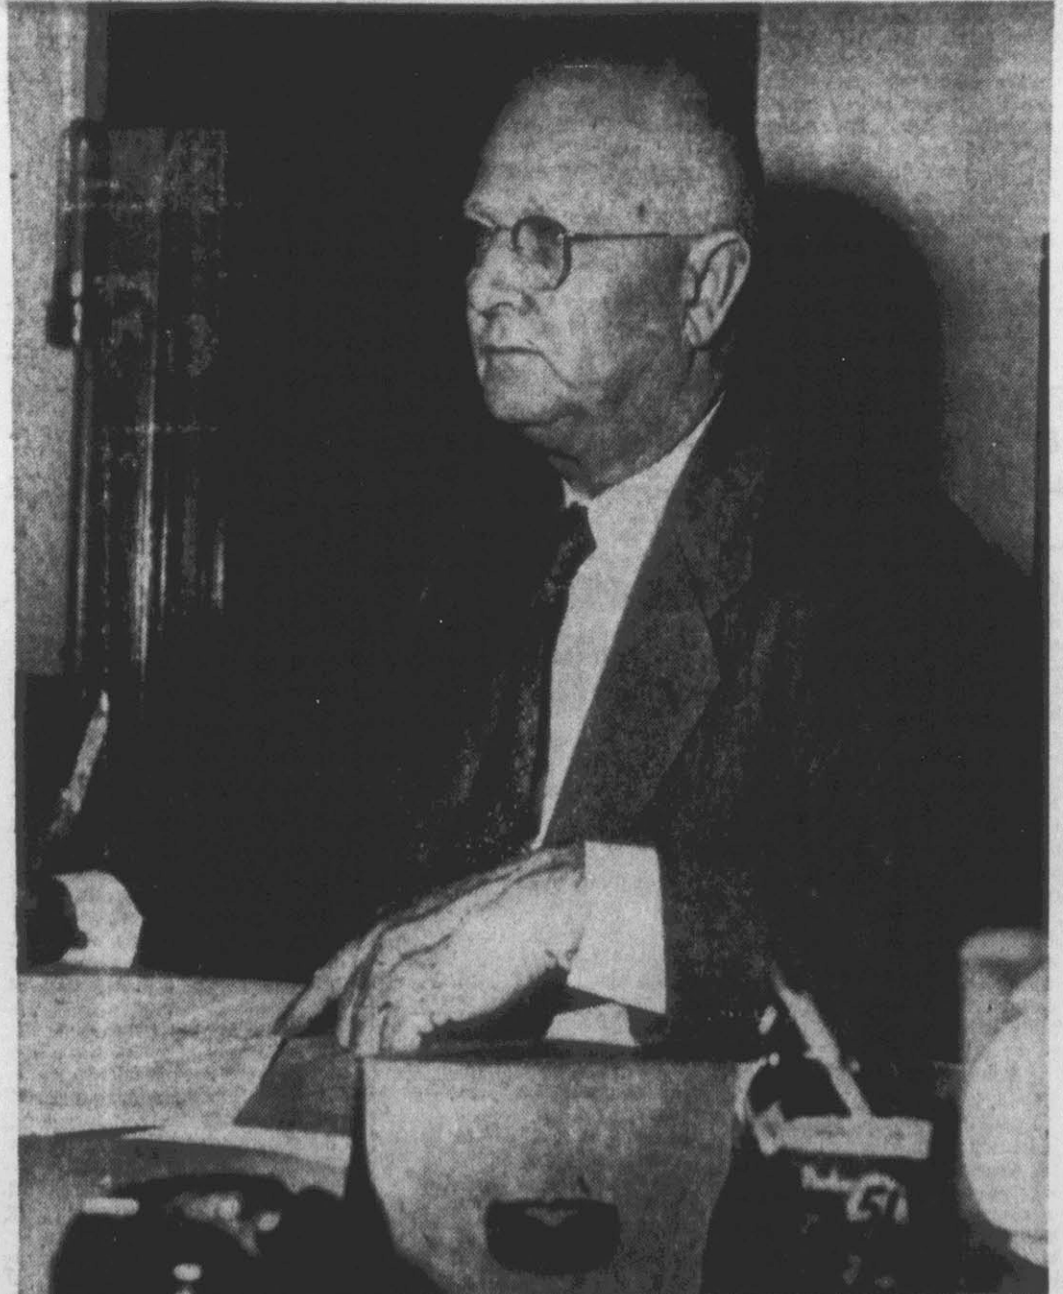

The rest of the department consists of two private offices, a general office, and a large classroom. The general office is used for small group meetings and certain administrative activities. The classroom serves also as a planning room, a study room and a library. In the future it will be provided with audio-visual equipment and a variety of other teaching aids.

The Industrial Arts Department at East Carolina College is a busy place with numerous activities being carried on throughout the day. However, the students and staff are happy to have visitors and to conduct them through the various rooms and shops.

Immanuel Baptist Church Announcements

The Sunday morning services of the Immanuel Baptist Church are being broadcast over radio station WGTC during the month of March and this Sunday, March 15, the pastor, Rev. J. A. Nelson, will bring the fifth in the series of sermons on "Seven Words on the Cross." The topic for this Sunday will be "The Words of Suffering, I Thirst." The choir under the direction of Dr. James L. White will sing "Give Us Faith For Today," by Wilson and Mrs. James L. White will sing a solo "He Was Alone."

Our usual Fellowship supper will be served at 6:00 p. m. followed by the Training Union and College Youth Fellowship at 6:30 p. m. A story hour will be held for the children of those attending the adult Union. The story hour is conducted by Mrs. J. A. Nelson. The evening worship service will be held at 7:30 p. m. followed by the church conference. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to worship with us.

Here, county jailer W. C. Leggett is shown working on some of the many records compiled by his office, which carries the entire history of each and every prisoner who comes into the county jail. (Reflector Photos by Roy Hardee)

THE VOICE OF LOVE

Chapter Nine

Ruth's father nodded shortly as she walked into the office across the hall from the kitchen. It was obvious that he'd been wrestling with his nomination acceptance speech, and it was obvious that he'd lost the match. "The trouble is," he grumbled, "that I know what I want to say, but can't say it."

"Too bad."

There was no sympathy in her voice, no interest in her snapping brown eyes.

He growled low in his throat. "That's a fine, helpful attitude. I like my children. They always come to the help of the old man when he's in a jam."

"Just say you'll run. Or, better still, say you'll not run."

This was a switch. Earlier in the year Ruth had been the one who'd urged him to seek the office. Annoyed with Mayor Lucchetti, she'd come storming into the living-room one evening to declare: "You're running for mayor, Dad!" He'd tried to laugh it off. But she'd worked. She'd gotten hold of some of the Civic Betterment people and convinced them the time had come for a new mayor to be elected. And presently his name had come to the fore. Then last night he'd been named. Because of her, actually! And now there she was changing her mind at this late date!

Words failed him. He got up from his desk and rushed to the service porch door. "I'm packing my duds and leaving. Ellen and I are taking a trip. You run the hotel. You run for mayor if you want to. I've had enough."

Light, casual, airy the contralto voice asked: "And do you think I care where you go or what you do?"

It was effective. He came back to his chair. He saw the wild scarlet flooding her cheeks and turned his attention to more important matters. "I've been waiting for you to talk," he said quietly. "I've been feeling it coming on for the last week."

She sat down. She felt breathless, and wondered why he didn't open a window. Then she noticed that all the windows were open, and that disconcerted her even more. "Am I a fool?" she asked frantically. "Am I less an adult than Nancy?"

He screwed the cap onto his fountain-pen and laid the pen away into its proper drawer. "You are," he observed mildly. "when you ask questions like that."

"He seems a nice enough fellow," Mr. Carlisle went on. "You don't have to feel ashamed of liking him, you know. I'm sorry about Bob. But if it just isn't Bob then that has to be that."

She groped for the proper words. Once she'd thought she was a highly articulate person, but now she suddenly saw herself fumbling and stumbling like a student who'd come to class without having prepared his lesson. "I'm all mixed up," she blurted out. She pondered. "I'm very fond of Bob," came the admission. More pondering. "Sometimes I wish I'd been born a boy, I really do."

This, overheard by her mother, brought a chuckle from the hall.

TIED FIRST GAME
DURHAM—Duke University, then Trinity, played its first baseball game in 1889 with the Winston-Salem YMCA, the game ending in an eight-inning tie at 10-10 and being called due to rain. Trinity also fielding teams in 1890 and 1891, but did not have teams from 1892 to 1896 due to "lack of material."

Love was what made the world go around.

Love was what she'd dreamed about for as long as she could remember.

In love, or so she'd always thought, was happiness.

Therefore why didn't she feel happy, and why wasn't the world going around the way it should be if love was so simply wonderful?

Besides, where was the voice inside saying it was love?

There was no voice at all! There was just that blasted ringing in her ears, that stuffy feeling inside her nose, those sensations of hot and cold creeping up and down her spine. And these couldn't be love. Wasn't love supposed to be exhilarating one? Wasn't love supposed to fill you with the yen to dance, to sing?

All she wanted to do was see Bob and bluster him with the whiplash of her tongue!

"Nancy?"

"Stop bothering me!"

The shriek startled Ruth to a sitting posture. She sat with wrinkled brow and thoughtful eyes, waiting for more.

None came.

Third Annual Fat Stock Show And Sale Is Set April 16; Fifty Steers Will Be Shown

Dedicated to the promotion of livestock production in Pitt County, the Third Annual Pitt County Fat Stock Show and Sale will be held this year on Thursday, April 16, at the Farmer's Warehouse in Greenville.

Sponsoring the show in which 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America clubs will exhibit prize steers will be the Pitt County Farm Bureau, the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and other various organizations.

Each school in the county of which the FFA clubs are associated, will be allotted five steers to show and five steers will be shown by 4-H Club members, bringing the number of steers scheduled to be shown to 50. The show and sale will be under the direction of the Pitt County Agriculture Teachers Association of Pitt County.

Last year, the Grand Champion, owned by Dan Wooten of Belvoir, FFA member, brought $68.00 per hundred pounds. The steer tipped the scales at 925 pounds and was bought by the Speight Seed Farm at Winterville.

The Reserve Champion, tipping the scales at 790 pounds, was owned by Robert Thomas, another Belvoir FFA member, and was bought by Colonial Stores for $55.00 per hundred pounds.

Approximately 65 steers were shown last year by county FFA members and 4-H Club members and 63 of the steers, averaging 853 pounds, were sold for $23,759.84, an average of $45.6 per hundred pounds.

The prices brought for the steers last year were a few cents under the average prices in 1951.

Blue ribbons were awarded to the top two winners last year and cash prizes went to boys in various classes in which they exhibited their cattle.

In addition to the Fat Stock Show and Sale exhibitors and their fathers will be entertained at a banquet following the show and sale. Last year, Commissioner of Agriculture L. Y. Ballentine spoke at the banquet which approximately 200 boys, their fathers, and show and sale officials attended.

Taking the reins of the show this year will be the following committees and their chairmen: Budget Committee, D. M. Nobles; Finance Committee, A. H. Tucker; Sound and Signs, P. W. Taylor; Steer Arrangement, P. A. Bradley; Sale Arrangement, Eugene James; Catalog and Ribbons, E. P. Bass; Publicity, J. H. Mobley; Show and Sale Management, P. W. Taylor; Steer Management, D. D. WORKING WITH GOD
Have you ever thought about the fact that God has left many things undone in this world? Evidently this is by divine intention. God appears to have arranged things in this way in order to keep us creatively busy.

The words of an unknown author were put in my hands recently and I pass them on to my readers with the conviction that they will be helpful. "The wisdom of God is shown in that he left the world unfinished that we might have the interest and delight in taking the raw material and putting the world together. He left the oil in the trap rock, the aluminum in the clay, the paper in the pulp, the electricity in the clouds. He left the forest unfelled, the mountains unsurveyed, the canals undug, the tunnels unbored. He left the field unplowed and unplanted. He left the music unwritten, the poetry undreamed, and the dramas unplayed. He left mind and character unperfected, that we might really be the children of God—created in His own image, with latent powers to take the raw materials and put the old world together."

Man is made in God's image and after his likeness. We are partners with God—creatures honored by being allowed to be his colleagues.

One Problem Settled; Another Needs Attention

Greenville's one-way street system is to be retained. Lack of adverse action by the Board of Aldermen at the public hearing on the matter Thursday night decided the issue.

The question is settled at least for the time being, and we hope, it is settled until some more progressive and constructive method of handling the city's traffic and parking problems is brought forth.

There are many businessmen and other citizens in Greenville who are sincerely opposed to the one-way system for one or more of the many reasons that have been cited in opposition to the system. There are other businessmen and citizens who are just as sincere in their opinion that the welfare and progress of the city will be enhanced by continuing the one-way system.

Both the opponents and the proponents of the one-way system have the same ultimate goal in mind—the constructive progress of the city. They differ only in opinion as to what route is the most practical and promising in achieving that goal.

Now that the method of approach to the common goal has been decided by the city officials, it behooves all the citizens and businessmen of the city to join hands in that approach to achieve the common goal.

Except for the unfortunate incident which resulted from the uncontrolled flare to tempers on the part of two citizens, the hearing on one-way streets was a constructive one indeed. It probably was the most constructive hearing the city of Greenville has held on a controversial issue in a long time.

Aside from the one-way street system, a key problem of the city from both the traffic and business standpoints was referred to time and again by those for and against one-way streets.

There is the matter of more much needed parking space in and near the business sections of the city.

For many months the question has been discussed and, considered, by business groups of the city. Several proposals for acquiring off-street parking facilities adjacent to the business district have been offered, but so far no concrete steps toward providing such facilities have been taken by city officials.

Now that the controversy over the one-way street system has abated, local officials should turn their attention to working out a practical method of alleviating the parking problem which Greenville has had for years, and still has.

Another Angle On The Aircraft "Trading"

It looks like the West and the East are trading planes over Europe.

The communists have shot down two Allied planes, and victims of overrun nations seeking refuge from the communist boot have stolen two Red planes and fled to Western territory.

When members of the communist armed forces begin to steal military aircraft with which to flee beyond the iron curtain, it is an indication the people who desire freedom are becoming bolder in their attempts to achieve it. Perhaps the planes stolen from Poland and Czechoslovakia hint of a growing desire for freedom not only among communist military personnel, but people generally behind the iron curtain.

It would be silly to assume the two isolated incidents indicate the masses behind the iron curtain in communist enslaved nations have reached a stage of unrest just below the point of insurrection. Yet the incidents clearly could indicate a slight weakening of the communist hold upon the people under their jurisdiction.

It could well be that inroads which the Western World is making among the people behind the iron curtain are greater than the general public over here has been led to believe.

Where To Find The Answer To The Highway Problem

North Carolina motor vehicle owners will not be bothered with a mechanical inspection tag for their automobile for at least a couple of more years.

The measure which would restore a mechanical inspection law in the state has been killed in the Senate.

The law in effect in 1948 left a bad taste in the mouths of the people of the state. There is no question about that, and there is little question that much of that bad taste still remains. The people are reluctant to give their sanction to another vehicle inspection law until they know it will not entail the inconvenience which the old law did. At the same time there is a growing concern throughout the state about the highway accident rate. There is growing concern not only over the number of lives that are lost and the personal injuries sustained, but also concern for the staggering amount of property losses suffered each year in highway accidents.

The state and its people must do everything within reason to bring down the accident rate. The question is just how and where to turn to get a practical, workable inspection law which will do what it is designed to do, and at the same time will be acceptable to the people of the state.

Frankly, we do not know what the solution to the problem is. We hope those officials whose job it is to cope with the state's highway traffic problems will seek and find a satisfactory solution before many more years have passed, and before North Carolina's highway accident rate climbs higher than it is at the present time.

Every Saturday, this veteran Washington correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—Recent remarks here on the draft deferment of college students have provoked controversy, albeit delightful, letters from more readers than space permits to list. They are divided about 50-50 on the wisdom and justice of a system which seems to favor the sons of fathers with enough money to finance a higher education.

These letters, however, convince me that I was too dogmatic on this question. Thinking mainly in terms of democratic equality, I said that youngsters studying only the "humanities"—that is, academic scholars—should not be given deferment.

May I add that I write as a father whose son quit the University of Virginia to enlist after Pearl Harbor. So, I may be prejudiced.

DREW TOO SHARP A LINE—I wrote also that students of medicine, engineering and other courses contributory to defense should be deferred. In short, I drew a sharp line—too sharp—between academic and useful studies.

Many letters agree with my viewpoint with respect to democratic equality. They think the deferment system is a favor or privilege to a certain class. They tell of boys attending college who have no qualifications for higher education—of youngsters who hurriedly bought broken-down farms to pretend that they are engaged in essential enterprise—of boys who have married prematurely for no reason except to escape the draft.

However, there were many letters which suggest that the general idea of deferring college students is both wise and valid, provided it can be administered in such a way that it does not produce inequities.

PROBLEM FOR PENTAGON—One reader, for instance, pointed out that under my philosophy—such leaders as Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt would not have been spared military duty so that they could render far greater service to their country.

Another asked whether a "useful engineer" could have written the Gettysburg Address, or rallied the beleaguered British people with a "blood, sweat and tears" oration. Others noted that England's post-World War I statesmen were worn out, old fogies—Baldwin, MacDonald, Chamberlain—because the flower of her youth was killed off in the poppies of Flanders Fields.

In view of these controversial reactions, I shall leave the problem with the "brains" at the Pentagon.

PRESS AND POLITICS—"Don't you think," asks J.T.B. of New Rochelle, N.Y., "that having a one-party press is setting a bad precedent by newspaper editors of the country? At least 85 per cent of the newspapers supported Eisenhower last year. Even today, they still follow the one-party line."

Answer: This is a rather ticklish subject. It is true that a majority of the nation's newspapers, in their editorial columns, supported Eisenhower. But so did a great majority of the American people. J.T.B. should not forget that newspapers are produced by human beings. And good newspapermen and women are, if I may say so, rather intelligent.

STEVENSON'S ADMISSION—Moreover, former Governor Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, admits that he was given extremely generous treatment in the news columns. Most of the correspondents on his train voted for him, and fought for newspaper space in their reporting of his campaigning. Most of them, foolishly, thought that he would win.

A newspaper, like an individual, has a right to its editorial opinion, which the reader may accept or reject. Its principal job and duty is to present the news fairly and objectively. With only a few exceptions, they perform that task remarkably well, in my opinion.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Today's story is the continuation of a letter from Korea written by V. M. Mulholland, former principal of Greenville high school. Dr. Mulholland is with the State Department on a mission of education.

Speaking of a friend of his in Korea, Vester says, "Matthew's living quarters are so humble that he is ashamed to invite me to his home, and that is a little hard to understand so well. But he came from an elite northern family with all the advantages of culture—fine home, horse, dogs, books, records, gardens, everything nice; but they too had to leave without any of his medical books, without any one of his several fine cameras, without any of his and his father's medical instruments."

"They came to Pusan and only he and his father survived the stress. He thinks his mother is alive somewhere in the North perhaps, but there is no assurance; and his six brothers and sisters are gone. He hid for days in the attic without daylight or food while the Communists were prowling around, and then when he was given food, was, of course, made deathly ill. When his area just above Seoul was bombed, he and his fiancée hid under a mattress out of doors for more than 24 hours, and when they dared come from under, they found 31 of their friends in the same block had been killed."

"No wonder he reverently refers to 'My God' on so many occasions. He plans to come to America and do his internship, perhaps at Englewood hospital, N.J., and then return to Korea to minister to his people."

"All Koreans eat with chopsticks in their homes and in most public eating places where Korean food is served. I too can now eat with them comfortably; and I like Korean food. The tables are about 15 to 18 inches from the floor and we sit on the floor or cushions with our legs crossed. Yes, it can be worlds of fun if one wants it to be."

"Business still goes on in the port city of Pusan, but everything is dirty and dingy. You can tell, however, that it was never a clean or beautiful city. Many people over here do not emphasize the outside beauty of their establishments, but place all the emphasis on the interiors. The buildings are filthy and not very substantial according to our standards, except in rare instances. There are far more shop keepers than any other profession. And some shops are not larger than a desk top—literally."

"And I thank Vester. This letter will be continued at a later date."

Around Capitol Square

APPOINTMENTS—Governor Umstead's reorganization bills have placed upon him the obligation to appoint a great many more members of administrative boards and commissions than any recent Governor has faced during the first year of his term. He has hedged to some extent against this becoming too burdensome by having the bills extend the incumbency of present members beyond the statutory expiration date of their appointments when made. He will have 15 instead of five members of the C&D board to name, but the new bill gives him until July instead of May 1. He will probably have 15 instead of 10 highway commissioners to appoint, but the new act gives him until November 1 instead of May 1 to name them.

EDUCATION—The State Board of Education comes in a different category, since the constitution requires confirmation of these appointments by joint session of the General Assembly. Terms of three members expire on April 1, and two others carried over from two years ago by reason of failure of the Assembly to act upon the nominations made by Governor Scott to replace him. The holdovers are A.S. Brower of Durham and Harold Linberger of Belmont, both of whom have publicly said they could not continue on the board. This year's expirations are A. McL. Graham of Clinton, D. Hiden Ramsey of Asheville and Dr. B.B. Dougherty of Boone.

CONSTITUTION—"The Governor has permitted appointments on the Utilities Commission, due February 1, to lapse and with respect to nearly all other positions the incumbents hold until their successors are named. Under the constitution the Board of Education vacancies must be filled within the next two weeks, or certainly before the Legislature adjourns. Further delay would in effect circumvent the constitution through later acceptance of resignations and interim appointments after adjournment."

CENTRALIZED—Many members of the Legislature and other patrons of the public schools are beginning to question the wisdom of having as much power vested in a State board as the constitution gives to the education group. Bills now pending in both branches of the Assembly tend to place ever greater control in the State agency. At the same time, there are numerous local bills designed to whittle down this authority with respect to special cases of consolidation.

OBJECTIONS—Sponsors of the big bills purporting to re-write a large part of the school laws concluded from the lack of protests registered when State Superintendent Charles Carroll explained the proposals before the House committee that there would be no real opposition develop. Numerous members of the House including several on the committee have told their reporter they are preparing amendments which will restore a measure of control to local units. One of the chief causes for concern is the prospect that there might be available another $50 million of State money to aid local units in building school houses. The committee has set aside the full meeting time Wednesday to consider the bill and a lively time is predicted.

RECREATION—The North Carolina Recreation Commission set-up is being used as a model by several other States and at least two foreign countries, Israel and West Germany. The plan is proving popular because it does not require the expenditure of State funds in providing recreational facilities, but makes available experts in the field for consultation and advice in planning and supervising recreation at local level. In this connection, it should be noted that big industrialists are coming to recognize the economic value of recreation. It is of record that several big plants have been located in North Carolina because accessibility of recreational areas—mountains and parks—were taken into account in appraising the overall attractiveness of the location. Last year the North Carolina State advertising division pioneered in using considerable part of the industrial advertising space bought to emphasize this feature.

FLOWERS—The azaleas are blooming down east and the rolling slopes of the sandhills and the thermal belt are pink with peach blossoms. The azalea festival at Wilmington, which has come to be recognized as one of the major events of its kind in the whole country, is scheduled for March 26, 27 and 28—just two weeks away. No special show or program has been arranged for the peach blossoms, but reports from the sandhills of Montgomery and Moore are that the peak of beauty will be next weekend, with the thermal belt trees in Rutherford, Polk and Henderson to be in "full bloom" a few days later. Not long after that will come the apple blossoms in the mountains and then the laurel and rhododendron.

FREE BEAUTY—A few privately owned estates, such as Airline and Orton near Wilmington and Vanderbilt at Asheville, have spent a great deal of money der the constitution the Board of Education vacancies must be filled within the next two weeks, or certainly before the Legislature adjourns. Further delay would in effect circumvent the constitution through later acceptance of resignations and interim appointments after adjournment."

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Manufacturers of household products are determined to get their prospects young, judging from displays at the fifth American Toy Fair in New York this week. Dozens of new toys feature miniatures of advertised projects. For instance:

A lot's bathroom cabinet contains packages of well-advertised toothpaste, bandages and cleansing tissues.

A shoe-shine kit includes a small can of a famous shoe polish.

A market cart, with a seat for a doll, is filled with samples of popular supermarket products. A kitchen set is equipped with small packages of a celebrated cake mix.

A shaving kit contains safety razor, a brush and paper blades packed in a box you see every day.

A doctor's outfit contains an unbraced plastic stethoscope, an empty bottle of an advertised antiseptic and a small box of those brothers' cough drops.

A kiddie kitchen includes, as well as miniature utensils, boxes of an advertised rubber drain-board mat and two cleansers.

In addition, there is a line of the best-known names in aluminum: five tractors, each modeled after nationally known tractor and a metal delivery truck bearing the name of a giant canning company.

Exhibitors said that when miniature packages are included in play kits, manufacturers usually furnish them to the toy-makers free because that interests youngsters at impressionable ages, gaining almost priceless sampling. The tractor deal works the other way; the manufacturer sells them to tractor companies as display pieces.

The interplanetary trend is still strong among the 1,250 exhibits of new toys; the western motif appears to be declining. There are a large number of farm toys being introduced; exhibitors say the best market is among city children—presumably, because the rural kids all too early have to deal with the real things.

That ribless, plastic kite invented by Francis M. Rogallo, mentioned here a few months ago, is now in mass production and is on display in a wind tunnel erected for the purpose at the fair.

There is also a game based on the United Nations. It's played with dice, perhaps an improvement on the original.

MICROPHONES RELAY ORDERS TO KITCHEN
Now there is an electronic restaurant. The owner of a drive-in eating place at Willowick, Ohio, has installed 24 microphones in his eating field. Customers read the menu, then dictate their orders to the kitchen. At that point the meal is delivered car-side by a waitress.

GOVERNMENT SURVEYS FOREIGN TELEVISION
The Department of Commerce has surveyed television activities in 38 foreign countries, in 35 of which telecasting stations are in operation. The survey, of interest to manufacturers, telecasters and the music and film industries, is detailed in a pamphlet, "Foreign Television Development," obtainable from the Department of Commerce, Washington 25, D.C., for 15 cents.

BUILDING PLAN SAVES LOAD-BEARING PARTITIONS
The Housing and Home Finance Agency have developed a new roof-framing method which permits the use of the upper story of a 1½-story house while dispensing with load-bearing partitions on the lower floor.

The method has been placed in the public domain. Builders and architects may obtain copies of blueprints detailing the method from the Small Homes Council, University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.

NEW TOYS
SWINGS: A spring-operated cradle and a swing that will rock or swing dolls for several minutes on one winding was introduced at the Toy Fair in New York by Arms 1112 Galeston Ave., Pittsburgh 33, Pa.

MODEL: A kit of plastic parts for building a miniature of the "General" locomotive of Civil War fame was unveiled by Northwestern Products Co., 2655 Spruce St., St. Louis 3, Mo. It is said to be the first such kit with numbered parts; the locomotive fits "O" gauge tracks.

FACES: A toy-television set produces only funny faces, but it is claimed that 65,688 faces can be made by turning knobs and dials. It is by Knott Enterprises, Inc., 44 W. 85th St., New York 42.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—Millions of Americans today are locked in a tortured grapple with a federal income tax blank, trying to get it in the mail before the deadline.

It is a time of tense anxiety. They are torn between honesty, fear of family insolvency, and a strong unwillingness to support the government in the style to which it has become accustomed. Often people in moments of great emotion make great utterances. They say things like, "Don't give up the ship," or "Hell, Boys, do you want to live forever?"

But nobody ever said, "I regret I have not one income to give for my country."

The chances are at least 100 million to 1 against anybody saying anything memorable about taxes between now and next Monday midnight. Somehow tax payment time takes the cleverness out of even our greatest literary figures. They either are struck dumb—or say things that are unquotable.

An exception was James Otis, who in 1761 cried:

"Taxation without representation is tyranny."

This got a lot of applause at the time. But the net result was we got representation. And Mr. Otis, if he were alive today, might regretfully have to recast his historic remark as follows:

"Taxation with representation is no guarantee against personal bankruptcy either."

Probably the only other famous saying about taxes that the average man remembers now was made by Benjamin Franklin, who wrote a French friend in 1789:

"Mais dans ce monde, il n'y a rien d'assuré que la mort et les impôts."

As this kind of talk is hard to understand on a crowded bus, most of us translate it:

"But in this world, nothing is certain but death and taxes."

The literature of the world is full of more praise for love and motherhood than for taxes, but there are a few consoling remarks on the subject for almost anyone.

For the congressman who votes the taxes on tax and to please, no more than to love and to be wise, is not given to men."—Edmund Burke.

For the fellow who thinks he has to pay more than his share—"The corruption of Democracies proceeds directly from the fact that one class imposes the taxes and another class pays them."—Dean W.R. Inge.

For the man who is sure taxes are ruining the nation—"Neither will it be that a people overlaid with taxes should ever become valiant... no people ever charged with tribute is fit for empire."—Francis Bacon.

For the angry farmer—"All taxes must, at last, fall upon agriculture."—Gibbon.

For the weary tax collector himself—"Men... prefer any load of infamy, however great, to any pressure of taxation; however light."—Sydney Smith.

For the taxpayer who is afraid his return will be questioned—"Taxation must not lead men into temptation, by requiring trivial oaths, by making it profitable to lie, to lie, to swear falsely, to bribe or to take bribes. Taxation must not take from individuals what rightfully belongs to individuals."—Henry George.

For the grudging taxpayer who wants a pat on the back—"The marvel of all history is the patience with which men and women submit to burdens unnecessarily laid upon them by their governments."—William H. Borah.

For the government official still trying to indict new taxes—"It is the part of a good shepherd to shear his flock, not to flay it."—Tiberius Caesar.

For the completely busted taxpayer—"What am I now to take out of all this scarcity?"—Terence

Grifton Church Ground Breaking Rites On Sunday

GRIFTON — Ground breaking ceremonies for the new Education Building at Grifton Baptist Church will be held on the church lot here tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Services will be in charge of Rev. Milan Johnson of Greenville, church pastor, who will be assisted by Rev. L. C. Zandy Burgess of Greenville, missionary of the Roanoke Baptist Association.

The ground breaking will launch the erection of the church's new Education Building, which will be 32 feet by 64 feet, two stories high, and will contain nine classrooms and a temporary auditorium. Construction is to be of brick veneer.

So You Are Going To Buy A Television Set!

NOW THAT TELEVISION HAS COME TO GREENVILLE, there is an immediate potential of 7,500 buyers. . . TO THE DEALERS, there is something of a Gold Rush! But to the buyer it will be a matter of shopping for the best buy, and the quickest possible installation.

Along with a great deal of confusion . . . Because, there will be more offers of inducement, than the customer will ever be able to conceive, and understand.

People who have never even turned on a television receiver, will be opening out-lets of television sales . . . So as to reap some of the profit they think they will find in the sales of television. . . But this will cause the customer who patronizes such a place un-due hardships, and much unsatisfaction . . . Because, television is a complicated machine that requires many months, and years, of factory supervision, and training, in order to service a television receiver . . . AND . . . Unless you buy from a long established Dealer, who has service men trained under factory supervision . . . Then you are bound for trouble . . . And a great deal of unnecessary expense.

There will be all kinds of Sharks in the television business that will hang out a sign as authorized Service Departments, and as authorized television dealers . . . But please don't be a victim of one of these overnight establishments. BEFORE YOU BUY . . . STOP and think of three things . . . 1st . . . Does the Dealer have a competent Service Department . . . So you can get your set serviced at a reasonable cost, and complete satisfaction . . . 2nd . . . Has this Dealer been factory trained and supervised . . . 3rd . . . Do they sell the best, and most reliable set available to you at fair prices . . . AS A BUYING TIP TO YOU . . . We would like it to be known by you the customer . . . That APPLIANCE SALES & SPORTING GOODS CORP. Formerly, Appliance Sales and Service, Sold the first television set ever installed in Greenville . . . And from that date . . . We have been factory supervised in our service Department . . . Our men know the complications of television . . . AND they know it in a manner that is not costly to you the customer . . . We sell the best line of television available to the American Public . . . We carry the largest stock in this vicinity . . . And we have gone to every expense to equip ourselves as legitimate Dealers in Television business . . . and as television Service Headquarters . . . At the very lowest cost possible, to you the customer . . . Please . . . Before you buy a television set . . . Take the above advice . . . AND IF YOU WILL . . . Let APPLIANCE SALES & SPORTING GOODS CORP. . . located next door to the Pitt Theatre . . . Be of service to you in any way we can in purchasing your television set . . . The oldest television Dealers in Greenville. (Paid Advertisement)

Einstein Ignores 74th Birthday; New Job Ahead

PRINCETON, N.J. (UP)—World-famed mathematician Albert Einstein ignored the passing of his 74th birthday today and prepared to assume new duties in the twilight of life.

The gentle, white-haired scientist, whose steps have slowed noticeably with the passing years, was to make a rare public appearance tomorrow to accept an undisclosed offer linking him with a new college of medicine sponsored by Yeshiva University of New York.

Miss Helen Dukas, his secretary-housekeeper, said the aging physicist would hold a press conference, too, but not in connection with his birthday. "He hates birthdays," she said.

Einstein has refused to comment on his new connection with the university, where he is an honorary trustee, although school officials said it was of "major importance."

DISCUSSING THE HIGH POINTS

We never learn all we are taught!
In religious education, as in secular, certain truths are grasped immediately; others are stored away in the mind to be understood later; and some are promptly forgotten.

When your child comes home from Church School each Sunday he has grasped a few "high points" of the lesson. You can encourage him by taking them over. He also brings home each Sunday certain impressions. He cannot express or understand them. But they are seeds which, if nourished in a Christian home, will blossom into moral and spiritual character.

But your child leaves behind him many truths which are essential to a mature soul. These "lost" ideas will be re-learned in future experiences at Church. That's why religious training must be continuous.

Wise parents study their faith with their children. In our local churches there are classes for young and old.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a schoolhouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every parent should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and mental support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Retreads Offer Dividends To NY

NEW YORK (UP)—A pair of National League retreads bought in successive seasons as "pennant insurance" promised today to pay added dividends by helping the New York Yankees to a fifth straight American League flag.

The brightest surprise in the camp of the world champions this spring has been the renewed promise of this once great duo—tobacco-chewing Johnny Sain and gangling Ewell Blackwell. If they live up to their comeback capabilities, the Yankees could make their fifth pennant their easiest.

And at the moment it certainly appears that they will.

Sain has been particularly startling in two brief starts, which suggest well considering that last spring he almost was washed out.

Blackwell, meanwhile, looks like the "whip" of old who stood National League hitters on their heads before a kidney ailment sent him down the skids. Twenty pounds heavier than he was last season, and swinging his arm with that old motion, he looks at least as good as the Blackwell who won 17 games for the inept Cincinnati Reds of 1950.

Sain is 34 and has a lot of pitching behind him, good pitching. He went up with the Braves in 1942, spent three years in service, and then came back to become a real star. He had four 20-game seasons with the Braves and led the club to the National League flag in 1948, along with Warren Spahn. Sain led the loop with 24 wins that season in which the Braves' cattle cry was:

"First it's Spahn and then it's Sain, and then, oh Lord, let's have some rain."

In 1951, burly Johnny lost his touch and was having a poor 5-13 season when the Yankees bought him in late August. He had a 2-1 mark with the Yankees and last year won 17 against six losses. But Sain insisted he was better than that.

"I worked out this spring before reporting to camp," he explains. "I gave me a better start, and I believe it will pay off in a better season."

Blackwell, who led the National League with 22 wins in 1947, and had two bad years after that because of illness, came back with 17 wins in 1950 and 16 in 1951. He failed off last year with a 3-12 mark before the Yankees bought him in August.

"When I came to the Yanks I was suffering from hay fever, sinus trouble and loss of weight," he said. "Last winter I had a checkup and went on a buildup diet. Now I think with this added weight, I'm ready again."

RALEIGH, N.C. (UP)—Holy Cross, led by a hot-shot basket popper from New Jersey, meets Louisiana State's talented Tigers tonight for a berth in the NCAA semifinals.

Togo Palazzi, who hails from Union City, N.J., scored 32 points in leading Holy Cross to a 79-71 victory over Wake Forest last night while LSU whipped undermanned Lebanon Valley, 89-76.

Palazzi, using overhand push shots, scored from every angle on the floor in humiliating Wake Forest. The husky, six-foot-four forward also dominated both backboards as the Crusaders took a 10 point lead in the first quarter and remained in command the rest of the way.

Even Wake Forest Coach Murray Gresson bowed to Palazzi's talents. "He's just as great a player as I've ever seen," Gresson said.

"And I've always been impressed by Holy Cross. They should go a long way in this tournament."

Gresson's Southern Conference champions made two bold bids to avert defeat. They cut Holy Cross' lead to five points midway in the second period and again moved to within five points of the New Englanders with two minutes left. But each time Palazzi took charge and pulled his team out of danger.

In the other game, LSU turned in a phenomenal 51.3 shooting average from the floor. This deadly eye work and the Tigers' distinct height advantage proved too much for little Lebanon Valley.

The kids from Pennsylvania took a 15-10 lead in the first quarter, but LSU rallied to tie the score at 24-all at the end of the period. However, Lebanon Valley trailed by only five points at halftime and carried its fight right down to the final period when Bob Pettit and Don Belcher of the Tigers combined for 19 points that sewed up the game.

Pettit wound up as the game's high scorer with 28 points, two more than Lebanon's Leon Miller.

Baseball Briefs

O'NEILL WORRIED

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—Manager Steve O'Neill insists he is unworried but the Philadelphia Phillies were confronted today with the hard fact of a seven-game losing streak and a victory in Grapefruit League competition.

The Phillies suffered their seventh loss Friday when they bowed to the Washington Senators, 3-2, on a run-producing eighth-inning single by Wayne Terwilliger. Karl Drews, counted on to be an 18-game winner for the Phillies this year, pitched the first four innings and was touched for two Washington runs.

The Phillies play the Reds today while the Senators meet the Philadelphia Athletics.

INFANT INFIELD

SARASOTA, Fla. (UP)—Rookies continued today to hog the spotlight as Manager Lou Boudreau's Boston Red Sox opposed the Boston Braves.

Infielders Johnny Merson and Milt Bolling, key members of Boudreau's "infant infield," delivered the big hits Friday as the Red Sox downed the Detroit Tigers, 6-3, for their third consecutive triumph.

MIXED EMOTIONS

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (UP)—Manager Leo Durocher was caught in a state of mixed emotions today—joy over pitcher Larry Jansen and concern over rookie shortstop Daryl Spencer.

Jansen, sidelined with an aching back during the last two months of 1952, appeared strong and sharp Friday in his one inning stint as the Giants lost to the Chicago Cubs, 4-3. But Spencer, counted on to take over at shortstop and replace Alvin Dark to play second base, made one error and contributed another "bad" play.

The Giants play the Indians today.

BYRNE IN GOOD FORM

MESA, Ariz. (UP)—Left-hander Tommy Byrne's early spring form indicated today that the erstwhile wildman of the American League may be headed for a big season.

Byrne hurled five innings as the White Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians, 11-4. Friday and now has permitted three runs in eight Grapefruit League innings this spring.

Jim Lemon, Harry Simpson and Al Rosen hit homers for the Indians, who now have dropped four of their seven exhibition games.

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The resignation of sports publicity director Mort Berry appeared today to have added new fuel to the football power struggle on the Pennsylvania campus between head Coach George Munger and Athletic Director Francis T. Murray.

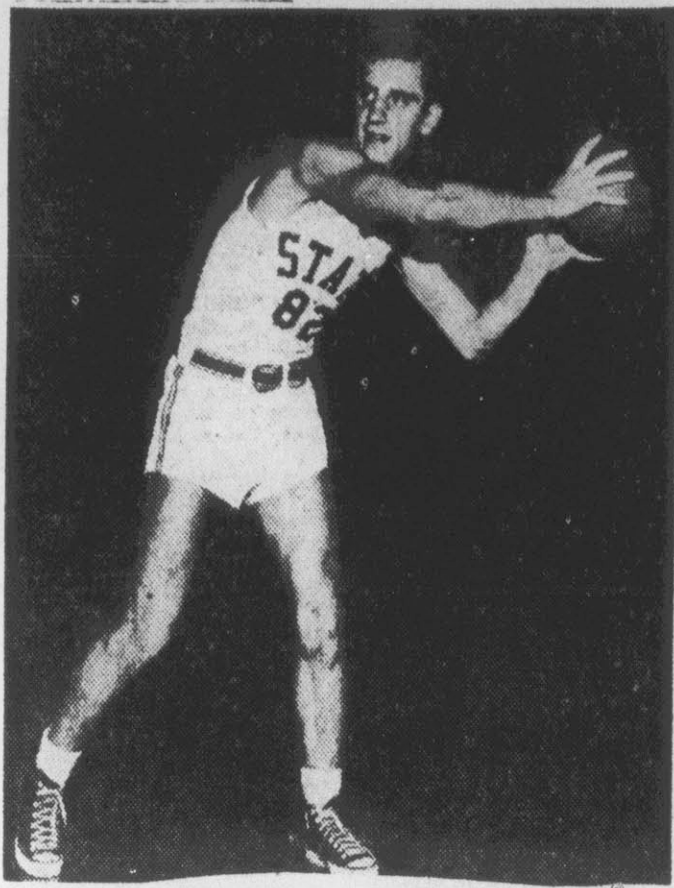

Berry left his Weighman Hall post Friday, 24 hours after the contents of a speech—in which Murray allegedly lashed Munger for meddling—reached the wire services through a mysterious telephone call from a central-city hotel.

There was "expert knowledge" that Berry's resignation was requested on Wednesday, when stenists of Murray's speech became lost, strayed or misplaced.

The resignation broke the uneasy armistice acting President William H. Du Barry felt would result from his announcement that a "searching study of the school's athletic policies" was under way. He promised a re-statement of the athletic policy at the Penn varsity dinner on March 26.

CONSISTENT HITTER

DURHAM—When Coach Clarence (Ace) Parker, in his first year as a head coach of the Duke University baseball team, played in the sport at Duke, he was a consistent hitter, to say the least. He hit 336 in 1935 and had a .337 mark in 1936. He gave up his final year of eligibility to sign with the Philadelphia Athletics.

BERNIE YURIN will be one of seven N. C. State College players who will meet the East Carolina College All-Stars Thursday night in the new gym. Proceeds from the contest will go into the Jaycees' community development fund. Pre-game tickets are on sale at Western Auto and from members of ECC's Circle K Club.

Record Will Fall In NAIA Tourney

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—Hamline University and Southwest Missouri State meet tonight for the championship of the 15th annual NAIA Basketball Tournament, with a record due to fall no matter which team wins.

Hamline of St. Paul, Minn., came from behind to trim East Texas State, 73-71, after Southwest Missouri beat Indiana State, 84-78, with only four players in action during the last three minutes.

Hamline is the tourney's only three time winner and a victory over Southwest Missouri of Springfield, would mean an unprecedented four championships.

The Missouri quintet is the defending champion, and never has one of the previous 13 winners been able to turn the trick the next year.

Bribery Trial Ends For Fixers

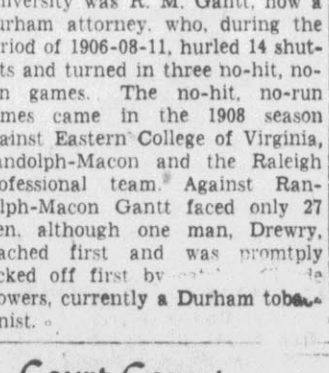

NEW YORK (UP)—The bribery trial of professional basketball referee Sol Levy ended Friday and the three special sessions judges reserved decision until March 27.

Levy was tried on a seven-count criminal information which charges he allegedly accepted bribes to fix games during the 1950-51 National Basketball Association season. If found guilty, he faces a maximum of seven years in prison.

GREAT RECORD

DURHAM—One of the greatest baseball stars to ever play at Duke University was R. M. Gantt, now a Durham attorney, who, during the period of 1906-08-11, hurled 14 shutouts and turned in three no-hit, no-run games. The no-hit, no-run games came in the 1908 season against Eastern College of Virginia, Randolph-Macon and the Raleigh professional team. Against Randolph-Macon Gantt faced only 27 men, although one man, Drewry, reached first and was promptly picked off first by Flowers, currently a Durham tobaccoist.

Ticket Sales Slow For Thursday Tilt

Tickets sales for Thursday night's charity basketball game between seven N. C. State College seniors and the East Carolina College All-Stars were continuing at a "slow" pace today.

The proceeds from the game will go into the community development fund of the Jaycees who are currently spearheading the Elm Street recreation project.

The game, billed as the last of the season for East Carolina's Memorial Health and Physical Education building, will bring the State cagers into this area for the first time. All of the seven members have completed their collegiate careers but Coach Everett Case will direct the squad during the game.

The group of State players is headed by Bill Kukoy and Bobby Speight, co-captain of the 1953 State team; and by Lee Terrill, captain of the 1952 Southern Conference champions. Other team members are Bernie Yurin, Bobby Goss, Paul Brandenburg and Bob Cook. All have been regulars at State at sometime during their college careers.

The East Carolina team will be the same one which represented the college during the past basketball season. All ten members of the

With almost a full week of rest behind them, the Winterville girls will move into the semi-final round of action in the State Girls Basketball Tournament Monday night at Aberdeen. They will play the host club Monday.

Coch Paul Clark's team worked its way into the semi-finals by defeating Crossnore 56-55 in a first round game last week. In that game, Winterville's Jean Liverman scored 35 points as Winterville grabbed a quick lead and then hung on grimly throughout the last half.

Clark is expected to stick with his usual starting line-up of Liverman, Betty Jean Little, and Joan Averette at the forwards and Faye Branch, Nancy Worthington, and Betty Lou Nobles at the guards.

Winterville climaxed an outstanding Pitt County record by being invited to the tournament. The team practically waited to the Pitt County Conference division championship on the strength of Liverman's outstanding offensive play.

The ace forward scored more than 870 points for Winterville during the regular season and conference tournament. She was a unanimous choice for All-Conference at one of the forward positions.

The Winterville cagers went into squad who made the trip to the NAIA national tournament at Kansas City will dress for the contest.

Tickets for the game are available at the college budget office, Western Auto, and members of the College Circle K club. Prices are $2 for reserved seats and $1.25 for students and general admission.

the first round of the state tournament not knowing exactly what to expect but they came home after the first game with a healthy respect for the type of basketball being played by the teams entered.

"It's the fastest brand of girls basketball in this state," one Winterville follower asserted after the game against Crossnore. "Every one of the teams entered in the tournament have good, accurate forwards and hustling guards. There are high scores in the tournament game but it's due more to offensive accuracy than defensive inability. Everyone of the 16 teams that started out is a good, solid ball club."

Winterville and Fremont, of Wayne County, are the only teams from this area in the tournament.

It is believed that the first public demonstration of television in color in the United States was broadcast in 1929.

In Talk To Club Coach Optimistic

Jack Boone, head football coach at East Carolina College, guest speaker at the Exchange Club's meeting last night, said he has an optimistic outlook on prospects for the 1953 season.

Boone praised the Pirates' spirit and said "the team is not looked upon as a 'girls' team by opponents who had felt the power of its 223-pound average line. We really 'messed up' five homecomings for other colleges during the past season."

The football coach said Tampa has been added to the Pirates' 1953 schedule.

"Limited seating capacity of East Carolina football stadium prevents us from booking many teams because the visiting team has to be guaranteed expense money," Boone declared. "When 1,800 of the approximately 3,500 seats are taken by students not many seats are left for spectators," Boone added.

Boone showed movies of the Bristol College-East Carolina College game played at Deland, Florida, last season. He described some of the plays and made running comments on the game.

Funeral Service For R.K. Williams Sunday

Robert King (Jimbo) Williams, 42, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville at two o'clock Friday afternoon. He suffered a heart attack Monday and had been critically ill since that time.

Funeral services will be conducted at the chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home Sunday afternoon at two o'clock and burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. The Rev. E. L. Earnhardt, pastor of St. James Methodist Church, assisted by the Rev. R. W. Bradshaw, Methodist minister of Wilson, and the Rev. J. A. Neilson, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church, will conduct the services.

Mr. Williams, son of the late E. C. and Nellie Godwin Williams, spent all his life in Greenville. He had been engaged in the shoe repair business for the past 25 years. He was a member of St. James Methodist Church and the Loyal Order of Moose.

He was married to Julia Swindell of Greenville in 1931, who survives with a son, Robert K. Williams Jr., of the home; a brother, E. C. Williams of Greenville; and four sisters, Mrs. T. I. Moore of Greenville, Mrs. Lester Baker of Fountain, Mrs. Marie Gardner of Kinston, and Mrs. L. M. Landin of Wilson.

One Case Of Scarlet Fever In Pitt County

One case of scarlet fever was reported in the county yesterday to the local health department.

Dr. Walter Humbert, department director, said the victim was a six-year-old child living at Sutton's Cross Road.

The doctor said that case was the only one in the county at the present time and no epidemic is expected. Dr. Humbert said the county had had a light winter of infectious diseases, except respiratory diseases.

GEORGE K. WORTHY DIED IN CALIFORNIA CITY

George K. Worthy, 81, retired, died at his home in Los Angeles, California, yesterday. Funeral services will be held this afternoon and burial will be in a Los Angeles cemetery.

Mr. Worthy spent a year in Greenville as a guest in the home of Dr. T. H. Eaton and Mrs. Eaton, 312 East 11th street. He left here last August.

High School Class Holds Annual 'Coronation' Ball

Reigning personalities were chosen from the student body of Greenville High School last night and crowned during the staging of the sophomore class annual Coronation Ball.

As a result of secret ballots cast by high school students, two girls and two boys were crowned as king, queen, prince, and princess amid a festive air at the high school.

From the senior classes, Barbara Cozart and Bob Howell were crowned as Queen and King and from junior high school classes Grayson Waldrop and Harold Edwards were crowned as Princess and Prince.

The royal court included Jo Ann Hales as queen nominee; Susie Pope as princess nominee; Jill Sutton

British-Iranian Negotiations Near Collapse

WASHINGTON (AP)—British-Iranian negotiations to settle their two-year-old dispute over Iranian oil nationalization have virtually collapsed, diplomatic officials reported today.

Prime Minister Mossadeq of Iran is expected shortly to reject the settlement proposals presented him Feb. 20 by Prime Minister Churchill's government.

Authorities said Mossadeq's behavior is so unpredictable that no one can say confidently that he will reject the British proposals. However, all available information in Washington leaves no reasonable doubt that he has decided on such action.

Settlement of the oil dispute would give Mossadeq quick control of large sums of money—up to 100 million dollars advanced by the U. S.—to put his economic system on its feet.

Noted American Shipbuilder Dies

WARWICK, Va. (AP)—Homer L. Ferguson, one of America's most noted shipbuilders, died today at his home in the Mariners' Museum grounds after a period of declining health. He was born 80 years ago at Wayneville, N. C.

Ferguson was chairman of the board of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., the largest private shipbuilding industry in the world.

Judge Satisfied By Good Record

18—JUDGE SATISFIED C LOUISVILLE, KY. (AP)—Fifty-seven years without a court record proved adequate defense yesterday for 83-year-old William Dehoney. "When were you in court last?" asked Judge Charles Walter as Dehoney appeared on a loitering charge. "June, 1896," replied the defendant. "Filed away. Next case," said the judge.

Mack Smith Is Kiwanis Speaker

At the Kiwanis Club's supper meeting last night, public affairs committeeman Mack Smith essayed the role of "after dinner speaker" in a last-minute change of plans.

President Leo W. Jenkins said Smith, who had arranged a program including School Supt. June H. Rose, to talk about school expansion and a talented singer from Ayden, substituted for both, who were detained by illness.

Smith reminisced about his coming to Greenville and some of the history of Greenville, including the tobacco market and agriculture in Pitt County.

Chairman Tom Wilson of the Support of Churches Committee, reported on the success of the "evangelism visitation" program here this week. Many of the Kiwanians participated in the work, he stated.

President Leo W. Jenkins paid tribute to the memory of Jesse Smith, brother of Past President Milo Smith, who died last Sunday morning.

The Kiwanians welcomed "back to the fold" Robert W. Fennell, a former member of the club.

Henry L. Andrews won the attendance prize. Frank Steinbeck announced the need for more blood for the Red Cross blood bank.

LT-Gov. Talmadge Narron of Wilson will make his official visitation to the club next Friday night.

Mrs. Mack Smith was a special guest of the club. "Tiger" Gardner had his grandson, John Nicholson, as a guest. Other guests were Charles Cherry and Wayland Upchurch. Circle K members from the college.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

Judge Charles H. Whedbee, who had been in Pitt Memorial Hospital two weeks, presided over Police Court Friday.

In the case of Willie Waldon, Negro, charged with breaking and entering the Murphy Candy Company's plant and larceny of merchandise, the court found probable cause. Judge Whedbee sent the case up to Superior Court for grand jury hearing.

In another case, Willie Waldon was found guilty of forcible trespass and larceny of $10 from the home of J. Bryan Brown on Rock Spring Road. Judge Whedbee gave him two years on the roads.

Lealon Sexton of Cherry Point, driving drunk (second offense), six months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $200 and costs. The court recommended that his driver's license be revoked for three years.

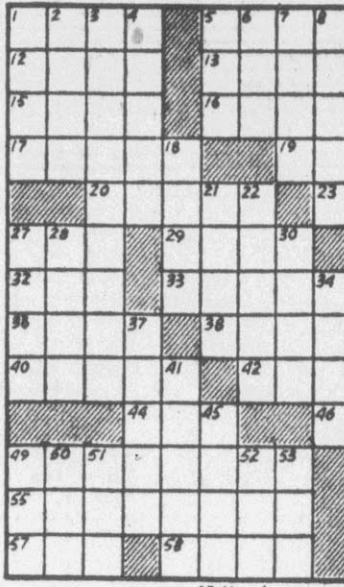

Judge Whedbee gave Sexton 30 days on the roads for driving without an operator's license, sentence to be suspended on payment of $25 and costs.

Richard Earl Ellis, larceny of a tire and an automobile accessory from Mayor Lester D. Page's Serv-U-Station at West End Circle, was given two years on the roads. Sentence is to be suspended on condition that Ellis be placed on probation a year, remain of good behavior and not violate any law for two

Car Left Road After Long Skid In Early Hours

STOKES—A car registered in the name of W. L. McLawhorn, Route 1, Greenville, wrecked early this morning around one o'clock on a curve in the city limits.

Patrolman James W. Boykin, investigating officer, stated that no one was at the scene of the accident and that investigation is not complete.

According to Boykin, the car left the highway on a curve at the city limits of Stokes and traveled 558 feet in skidding.

The car brushed against a telephone pole, damaging one side of the car, and continued on down the highway across the road stopping near a large oak tree.

An estimated $600 was reported in damage.

TEMPERATURE AFTER DEATH DROPS AT A MAXIMUM RATE OF 3 DEGREES PER HOUR FOR FIRST 3 HOURS, THEREAFTER ABOUT 2 DEGREES PER HOUR TILL IT EQUALS SURROUNDING TEMPERATURE.

YES, LITTLE SUSIE, UNTIL MR. BRACY LOCATES YORE MAMMY AND PAPPY, YOU CAN LIVE RIGHT HERE WITH SPARKLE AND US.

OUR HOME IS YORE HOME, OUR ROOF IS YOUR ROOF, OUR TELEVISION—

OH, SHE KNOWS ALL THAT, B.O. PLENTY!

LET THE LITTLE TYKE HAVE FUN WITH SPARKLE! SHE DON'T WANT TO LISTEN TO YOUR BLABBERIN'!

HOW AIRY MAN OR WOMAN COULD LEAVE AS CUTE A LITTLE SHAVER AS THAT TO SHIFT FER HERSELF—

MEANWHILE, AT HEADQUARTERS.

I DON'T MUCH LIKE THIS IDEA OF ODDS ZONN'S LITTLE GIRL STAYING WITH B.O. PLENTY, CHIEF.

HUH? WHY, YOU'RE THE ONE WHO LET HIM TAKE HER.

AW—THE OLD GUY MELTED ME, I GUESS. HE LOVES KIDS, AND SPARKLE WANTED A PLAYMATE—

LISTEN, MAKE UP YOUR MIND, BOY! REMEMBER, THE KID HAD BEEN ABANDONED.

THAT'S A KNOCK!

I BEG YOUR PARDON—MY CAR IS STUCK. I WONDER IF—

CAR? STUCK?

IT'S SO TERRIBLY COLD—AND THE MORE I TRIED, THE TIGHTER I GOT STUCK.

DON'T LOOK TOO BAD TO ME—RECKON YOU'LL BE OUT QUICK.

THIS KIND OF WINTER MAKES ME THINK OF WHEN I WAS A LITTLE FELLER. YOU SEE, I WAS ONE OF EIGHT BOYS—

PAPPY TOOK US WEST IN '87! TALK ABOUT WINTER! I SEED SNOW—

WH—?? WHAR IS SHE?

SHE WAIN'T STUCK.

WHAT DID SHE SAY, SPARKLE?

SHE SAID THAT WAS HER AUNT.

HOPALONG CASSIDY

By DAN SPIEGLE

WHILE I WAS SNOW-BLIND, I CAME UPON THIS MOUNTIE POST, MISTAKING IT FOR A TRAPPER'S SHACK. MELODY WAS HERE, STEALING A HORSE AND SOME GRUB. HE SLUGGED ME AND WAS ABOUT TO ESCAPE WHEN YOU TWO SHOWED UP.

SURE GLAD YOU CAN SEE AGAIN, HOPPY.

SUDDENLY, WHILE HOPPY IS TALKING, MELODY CARVER LASHES OUT....

BEFORE HOPPY RECOVERS FROM HIS SURPRISE, MELODY MAKES A FLYING LEAP TO TOPPER'S BACK!

COME ON, CAYUSE-- GIT GOIN'!

BUT TOPPER HEARS HOPPY'S WHISTLE AND SENDS THE OUTLAW SPRAWLING!

NOTHING ON HIM.

THEN HE MUST HAVE HIDDEN OUR BAR-20 PAYROLL SOMEWHERE!

HE SURE DID!

THAT'S ALL WE WANTED, SERGEANT. WE'RE TURNIN' TH' LAST O' TH' CARVER BROTHERS OVER T' YOU.

LOOKS LIKE THE MOUNTIES GOT THEIR MAN, AFTER ALL.

FLASH GORDON..... by Mac Raboy and Don Moore

AFTER HIS GRILLING UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF TRUTH SERUM, FLASH AWAKENS TO FIND HIMSELF ON A SOFA IN THE OBSERVATORY. DR. STELLA IS APOLOGETIC. "I'M MORTIFIED TO THINK THAT WE SUSPECTED YOU OF BEING SPACE PIRATES!" SHE SAYS. "FORGIVE ME, YOU SHALL BE MY GUESTS UNTIL THE NEXT SHUTTLE-ROCKET ARRIVES TO FERRY YOU BACK TO EARTH."

AS FLASH LEAVES THE LABORATORY TO REJOIN DALE AND ZARKOV, STELLA WHISPERS: "KEEP A CLOSE WATCH ON HIM, MARC. IT'S JUST A HUNCH, BUT I THINK HE SUSPECTS THAT WE ARE THE ONES WHO ARE HIJACKING EARTH'S CARGO-ROCKETS." MARC NODS GRIMLY. "PERHAPS," HE SAYS. "A FATAL ACCIDENT MAY BEFALL THE YOUNG MAN BEFORE THE SHUTTLE-ROCKET ARRIVES!"

ALONE WITH DALE AND ZARKOV, FLASH WASTES NO TIME ON EXPLANATIONS. "SOMETHING'S WRONG HERE," HE SAYS TERSELY. "DON'T ASK ME ANY QUESTIONS... JUST FOLLOW ME! SOMEHOW WE MUST REFUEL OUR ROCKET AND GET AWAY!"

DALE AND ZARKOV MANAGE TO SOLVE THE OPERATION OF THE AIRLOCK, PERMITTING FLASH TO EMERGE ON THE MOON'S SURFACE. BUT THEY ARE NOT UNOBSERVED! BY PHONE MARC REPORTS TO STELLA: "GORDON IS LEAVING THE AIRLOCK... THE TIME WILL SOON BE RIPE FOR THE LITTLE ACCIDENT!"

HER HEART POUNDING WILDLY, DALE WATCHES THROUGH A VIEW-PORT AS FLASH SLITHERS THROUGH THE POWDERY SOIL. EVERY STEP IN THE TREACHEROUS FOOTING IS A SUPREME EFFORT TO THE EARTHMAN, WHO IS ALL TOO AWARE OF THE NEED FOR SPEED ON HIS MISSION ACROSS THE BLEAK MOONSCAPE INTO THE PERILS OF THE UNKNOWN.

SUDDENLY FLASH STOPS SHORT, HARDLY ABLE TO BELIEVE HIS EYES. AHEAD OF HIM IS THE VERY SPOT WHERE, A FEW SHORT HOURS AGO, HE LANDED HIS CRIPPLED ROCKET SHIP IN A DESPERATE SEARCH FOR FUEL. NOW THE HUGE CRAFT HAS VANISHED INTO EMPTY SPACE! NEXT WEEK - MOON SLIDE 3-15
