New Maps Of Pitt Communities To Cost $35,000

Accept Mapping Bid

By JESS POINDEXTER, Reflector City Editor. A low bid of $35,000 for preparing comprehensive maps of all cities and towns in Pitt County was accepted yesterday by the Board of Commissioners.

Meeting in special called session the commissioners approved the low bid submitted by Thomas L. Rivers, local engineer, and Virgil W. Joyce, engineer from Winston-Salem.

Only one other bid was submitted on the project and that came from Southern Mapping and Engineering Company of Greensboro, and it was higher than the accepted bid. The Greensboro firm's bid was $38,200.

The mapping project is planned to tie in with the proposed county revaluation plan, which is currently under study. Total cost of mapping in each town is to be borne by the county and the town on an equal basis.

Project Cost. Cost of the project will range from a low of approximately $800 for the smaller towns to an estimated high of $22,300 for the city of Greenville. As has been explained, the county will bear half the expense.

Reginald Gray, Pitt County auditor, said this morning the total cost of the project for each town will be an estimated $25 for each block mapped, "and the county will pay half of that."

The auditor said negotiations will begin soon for the purpose of determining whether each wishes to participate in the plan. "We plan to contact officials in each town and arrange a meeting with the town board so that the plan may be explained fully."

The project can be greatly beneficial to the towns, Gray explained, because it will help in all phases of city planning such as zoning, sewer and water expansion, paving assessments, and numbering and location of new houses.

Draw Contract. County Attorney W. W. Speight was authorized by the Board of Commissioners to draw up a contract to be signed and executed after the cities and towns have agreed to the amounts of their contribution to the project.

Immediately thereafter, the board passed a resolution that the bid submitted by Rivers and Joyce be accepted and considered a binding contract between the engineers and the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

Gray stated that work on the project will begin as soon as negotiations with cities and towns have been completed by the board. "We feel the county has received a very economical contract," he opined. "The project is to cost Pitt County approximately $25 for each block mapped, while the same project just completed in Lenoir County cost them $30 per block."

At yesterday's meeting the commissioners voted to cancel as of March 31 all county fire insurance now in effect, and they instructed Gray to place all county insurance under one policy with the agency designated by the Pitt County Insurance Exchange.

Central Agency. It was voted two weeks ago to appoint a centralized agency to handle all county insurance, profits derived to be distributed equally among all members of the exchange.

Tri-County Airport Bill Is Killed

Project Dies As Edgecombe Board Re-scinds Agreement To Participate. RALEIGH (AP)—A delegation of Edgecombe County citizens today were assured legislation which they feared might turn their tobacco fields into an airport will not pass.

Rep. Sam Worthington of Pitt, chairman of House Judiciary Committee 1, told the group action by the Edgecombe Board of Commissioners has killed a project to set up an airport to serve Edgecombe, Pitt and Nash counties.

The three Counties and the towns of Tarboro, Rocky Mount and Greenville had asked for legislation to set up an airport authority to build and operate facilities to bring airline service to the area.

After Worthington introduced the bill and it reached the floor of the House, some Edgecombe property owners protested because they feared their farms might be condemned for the airport.

Worthington said the Edgecombe commissioners yesterday rescinded their action agreeing to participate in the project. "We always were kind of backward down East," Worthington told W. W. Eagles of Macesfield, leader of the delegation. "We let the Piedmont get all the industry, roads and airports ahead of us."

"You folks can go home and rest in peace," he added. "Cobb's Crossroads won't be turned into an airport."

Five representatives from Greenville departed this morning for Raleigh to take part in the hearing before the State Utilities Commission in which the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company is asking for an increase in rates.

The representatives, W. W. Speight, Mayor Lester D. Page, Thomas Webb, A. L. Bishop and W. T. Kizer, are attending the hearing in opposition to the company's request for an increase in its rates.

The delegation from Greenville is only a small portion of the delegation from the eastern part of the state appearing in opposition to rate increases by the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Another group of representatives from the city plan to attend the second day of the hearing in Raleigh and a third group has been designated to attend the hearing Thursday if it is in progress that long.

HE MADE IT. BERLIN (AP)—An East Berlin showman and his family of three fled across the sector border to West Berlin today in two horse-drawn trucks. His cargo included a merry-go-round and swing boats.

Gen. John Hodge, Army ground forces commander who stepped out of the next helicopter, commented upon the extraordinary brilliance of the flash.

"Otherwise it was like the other atomic bursts," Hodge said. Corp. Joseph P. Corrivau, East Hartford, Conn., and Sgt. Charles C. Vaughn, Tulsa, Okla., were two of the first soldiers to return from the ground zero trenches.

They were covered with dust. "We heard a big noise and saw a flash overhead," said Corrivau. "The trench quivered like jelly. A little dust came down on us, but it wasn't bad."

Commissioners Authorize Application For Funds Seek County Health Center

A health center for Pitt County loomed into view as the county commissioners voted to request funds for a Hill-Burton Health Center and authorized an application for Medical Care Commission in Raleigh.

The action yesterday morning by the commissioners in special session presented to the commissioners by Dr. Walter Humbert, health department director, also requesting they explore the possibilities of securing Hill-Burton funds for a health center. Dr. Humbert was previously given authority by the local board of health to look into the matter.

Funds Available. In the letter presented to the commissioners, Dr. Humbert outlined the fact money was available through the Hill-Burton Bill that could be allocated for a health center in Pitt County. He stressed that the funds might not be available after July 1 but money could be held for such hand. The Hill-Burton bill specifies the type of equipment they will apply for and Dr. Humbert estimated that could be approved at $5,000. Funds provided for a $100,000 center by Hill-Burton would be $61,900.

Local Clinic Crowded. The local health officer stressed the need for such a center because of the crowded conditions at the health department building. "We do not have enough clinic space, especially for the orthopedic clinic where cripples have to climb stairs for examinations," he asserted.

"The proposed health center for the county could not only be used as a clinic but in an emergency it could be a disaster headquarters, a building adjacent to Pitt Memorial Hospital, a teaching center for public health personnel, and a community teaching center," Dr. Humbert envisioned.

A State Health Department official assured Dr. Humbert that an application for a health center in Greenville to serve Pitt County would be favorably considered.

Through Hill-Burton funds, in addition to Pitt Memorial Hospital, health centers and hospitals in nearby counties such as Wilson, Beaufort, Martin, Edgecombe, Wayne, Greene, and Nash have been built.

Through the Hill-Burton plan, the county's share would be $39,100 less $5,000 for the equipment now on hand.

Taking the top figure on the construction of a health center measuring 5,000 square feet at from $14 to $20 per square foot, Dr. Humbert set the cost of construction at $100,000.

Heroism Is Shown In Korean Battle. WITH 2nd DIVISION, Korea. (UP)—An American officer who fought until he collapsed from four wounds and a Negro GI who saved his life emerged today as the heroes of the battle for Little Gibraltar.

Col. Richard Steinbach of 708 Hall St., Norristown, Pa., commander of the 9th Infantry regiment, credited a lieutenant colonel with saving Little Gibraltar from capture by 1,000 Chinese Communists.

Steinbach said the Chinese swarmed into American positions west of Yonchon early today and pushed as far as the company kitchen behind the company command post.

"But the Americans never budged," he said. "Many of the Chinese got so far back they never had a chance to get out." The main attack force was driven from U. N. positions by 6 a.m. (4 p.m. est) he said, but the GIs continued to mop up on stragglers four hours later.

Polish Pilot To Stay; Denmark Returning MIG

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UP)—The government has decided to give political asylum to the Polish pilot who flew his MIG-15 jet fighter to freedom across the Iron Curtain.

The foreign ministry also started negotiations with Polish Minister Stanislaw Kales-Kraus to return the Russian-made plane, first ever to fall into Western hands intact.

It was believed the MIG will be put on a Polish ship at Copenhagen. Danish authorities probably would not allow it to be flown across their territory en route back to Poland.

Minister of Justice Miss Helga Pederson has decided Lt. Franciszek Gareski, who flew the MIG to Bornholm Island, will be recognized as a political refugee, the foreign ministry said.

O.C. Two-Story Frame Hotel Burns In Grifton; Six Families Are Left Homeless

LANDMARK IS DESTROYED—Only smoking embers left this morning of the large two-story frame building which served as a home for six families. Pictured above is the back portion of the sixty-odd year old structure, totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon in Grifton. Firemen fought the blaze for four hours before bringing it under control. (Reflector Photos by Roy Hardee)

By MURIEL SHOTWELL, Reflector Staff Writer. GRIFTON—A wind-fed fire swept through a large two-story frame hotel in Grifton yesterday afternoon, leaving six families homeless in its wake.

The fire, which destroyed the home of six families in the small town on the Pitt-Lenoir line, was discovered about two o'clock yesterday afternoon and burned steadily until six o'clock. This morning, only smoldering embers marked the home of the destitute.

Volunteer firemen from Grifton and Ayden were called and both groups received high praise from bystanders as they fought the fire which rapidly ate the frame building.

No Injuries. No one was injured in the fire, as all in the building were quickly warned and fled without stopping for many of their belongings. Mrs. Bill Cole, an occupant of the hotel, was washing clothes in the yard when she noticed smoke pouring from the building. She wrapped a wet towel around her head and ran into the building to get her small baby Mrs. Cole, her child, and another woman were the only ones at home when the fire was discovered.

Origin Not Determined. The fire broke out in one of the upstairs apartments, but the exact origin of the blaze has not yet been determined. An occupant of the hotel said she believed it was either from wiring or a stove which had "given trouble" in the past.

Steinbach said the lieutenant colonel personally led reinforcements through a devastating communist mortar and artillery barrage. He was wounded four times but kept fighting until he collapsed.

"The colonel's daring counter-attack definitely turned the tide of battle," Steinbach said. "It was like a nutcracker maneuver." The wounded colonel was placed in a trench with several other wounded soldiers. A Negro soldier assigned to guard them straddled the trench.

Final Plans For Organization Of Health Council Is Scheduled

Final plans for organization of a Community Health Council were outlined here Friday at a meeting of a committee from the Pitt County Medical Auxiliary.

The auxiliary first discussed the possibility of organizing the fact-finding and advisory council earlier in the year and recently voted to sponsor it.

Mrs. M.P. Hoot, president of the auxiliary, and her committee on community health met with Dr. Walter Humbert, local health department director, and planned for an early spring meeting whereby all organizations interested in community health planning and betterment will be invited to attend. The meeting will be for the purpose of explaining how a Health Council is formed and how it functions. It is planned that for this meeting a member of the North Carolina Council of Health will be present to address the group.

Community Health Councils are endorsed by the American Medical Association and all of the associations engaged in health work. One of the aims and objectives of the Medical Auxiliary of the Medical Societies in North Carolina is the sponsorship and organization of Community Health Councils.

The prime purposes of the Community Health Councils are: The thinking and planning of all organizations concerned with public health; to work to prevent overlapping and duplication of effort; to study health needs of the communities; to help in the development of a community-wide health program; to stimulate community interest in public health problems; and to express the opinion of the Council through its strength and authority in matters of health legislation.

Members of the Community Health committee of the auxiliary working with Mrs. Hoot in the organization of a Health Council are: Mrs. F. P. Brooks, chairman, Mrs. E. W. Larkin, Mrs. Stephen Bartlette, Mrs. C. Garrenton, and Mrs. James Smith.

Legend Of St. Patrick Stays Forever Green

By HARMAN W. ONICHOLS, United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP) — This is the day for wearin' of the green and a good time to look into some lore about St. Patrick.

History books are at odds as to where the patron saint was born, along about 389 A. D. Some say Scotland, some England, Wales, or France. To be sure, he wasn't born in Ireland.

St. Patrick is said to have referred to himself as a Roman and legend says he was born of a Christian family of Roman citizenship. When he was 16, he was captured by Irish pirates and kept in slavery for six years among the peoples he later converted to Christianity.

The Irish harp, incidentally, was old even before Patrick's time. For hundreds of years before he was born, it was Ireland's favorite musical instrument. Every king and every chieftain has a private harpist who amused and soothed his lord. Today the golden harp emblem adorns the Irish naval service jack.

The shamrock is thought to have become the national emblem of Ireland as a result of an incident in the life of St. Patrick.

This is the legend: The patron saint appeared in 433 A.D. before a group of Irish pagan chieftains and Druids gathered on Siane Hill near Tarn. St. Patrick was having a rough time trying to explain the mystery of the Trinity to his pagan audience.

In a moment of inspiration he decided to resort to an image that could be seen. He plucked a shamrock and used its single stem and triple leaf to explain the doctrine. St. Patrick, according to this legend, composed a gaelic prayer in verse which he recited when he appeared before the pagan chieftains on an Easter Sunday. That was when the final blow was said to have been dealt to Druidism. The triumph of Christianity in Ireland thus was complete.

Some books say there is evidence that trefoil plants have been regarded as sacred in different parts of the world from time back beyond written records.

Actually, today there is no plant specifically called the shamrock and there is much speculation as to what the original Irish Shamrock may have been. It is variously supposed to have been the lesser hop clover, the common white clover, the wood sorrel, or the black medic. Leaves of all these plants are used to some extent as the emblem of Ireland.

There used to be a belief that the "true shamrock" would not grow in England.

Unhurt Despite Series Mishaps

LOUISBURG (UP) — Shelton Allan Goddin went through a wind and electric storm, a highway accident, a fire and was hit by a flying barn roof, all in a matter of minutes. He wasn't scratched.

The Portsmouth, Va., truck driver was driving his big auto transport truck near here Sunday night when a violent storm hit the area. It blew the roof off a barn.

The roof struck his truck. The truck overturned and caught fire.

Another truck driver pulled Goddin unhurt from the wreck and put out the fire with a hand fire extinguisher.

Del Vescovo Is Ousted From His AMVET Post

DUNN (AP) — The state membership director of the North Carolina AMVETS has been asked to resign — and if he refuses he will be fired, the group's state commander said.

Paul R. Hester of Dunn said Andrew Del Vescovo of Burlington, the New Jersey veteran who spearheaded the 1951 bonus march on Raleigh, has been ousted by the AMVET state executive committee. Hester refused to comment on the move.

A prepared statement by the committee said Del Vescovo would be suspended if he does not submit the requested resignation as an executive in the World War II veterans organization.

During the recent legislative hearing in Raleigh on a proposed bonus referendum, Del Vescovo became a center of controversy when he criticized Hester and argued with the legislators on the hotly-debated issue.

Neighbors Plan Greet Van Fleet

BARTOW, Fla. (UP) — Neighbors of Gen. James A. Van Fleet planned a spirited "welcome home" for him today in the citrus fruit country where he spent his boyhood.

The former Eighth Army commander was returning to his Florida landholdings after nearly two years on the fighting front in Korea.

Thousands of residents in the fertile lake country his forebears helped settle gathered for a gigantic five-day homecoming celebration.

The general arrives from Washington at 3:30 p.m. e.s.t., in a government plane.

He will tour neighboring Lake Wales, Fort Meade, Frostproof and Ahlens City, then speak in formal ceremonies at a stadium here at 5 p.m. He will be introduced by Sen. Spessard Holland (D-Fla.).

Floridians prepared to present Van Fleet with donations to his pet project of rebuilding and equipping the Republic of Korea military academy. The general recently started the fund with a $500 personal contribution.

THE BIBLE AND FEAR What does the Bible teach about fear? About unwholesome fear it teaches precisely what modern psychology teaches. We are counseled not to be anxious about tomorrow—that is, not to worry. From the beginning of the Old Testament until the end of the New, the emphasis is that God is man's sufficiency. We may cast ourselves upon the mercy of God and be sure it will sustain us. To put it briefly, the New Testament teaches that there is nothing for a Christian to worry about.

But the Bible also teaches that the man who is not following the will of God has a great deal to worry about. In fact the whole of man's wisdom has its origin in the fear of God—that is, in the awesome regard of God and his holy will. If we sow to the flesh, then of the flesh we reap corruption. If we sin, we suffer. If we persist in our sin, we die, not only physically but spiritually; not only temporally but eternally. The Biblical doctrine of fear is that if we do trust God we have nothing to fear, but that if we do not trust God enough to be willing to follow his righteous commandments, then we have everything to fear.

Who Determines What Changes Are Needed?

It is a foregone conclusion that Greenville citizens will not have an opportunity this spring to determine whether the local Utilities operations shall come under direct jurisdiction of the city council or remain as it is.

Had Representative Sam O. Worthington intended to introduce the permissive bill requested by local aldermen, he no doubt would have done so before this late date, and would have guided it through the General Assembly by this time.

In lieu of the requested legislation which would have put before the voters of Greenville the question of what body should govern utilities operations, Representative Worthington has apparently taken it upon his own shoulders to determine what the city of Greenville should have.

The new bill he proposes, in place of the bill providing a referendum on the utilities question, would provide that the city manager be a member of the Greenville Utilities Commission. That may help some in assuring closer coordination between the utilities and other departments of city government. Yet it is by no means similar to the legislation which was requested by the elected representatives of the citizens of Greenville.

Greenville's Board of Aldermen have not taken action for or against the substitute bill which Worthington says he intends to present. We are not sure whether the representative has consulted all the aldermen individually about the legislation; but certainly an expression from the aldermen concerning the bill should be made known before the legislation is passed.

In the opinion of The Reflector, Representative Worthington never planned to present the original referendum bill as requested by the aldermen of the city. Apparently he was unwilling for the citizens of Greenville to decide at the polls whether the city council should have direct jurisdiction over utilities operations. The questions Worthington raised about the power of the city manager over the utilities operations and the effect upon the bonded indebtedness of the utilities if they were put directly under control of elected officials appear now, more than ever, outright delays to keep from presenting the requested legislation.

This substitute legislation appears a tool to pacify the citizens of Greenville—including the Board of Aldermen—who wanted the matter thrown into the hands of the voters. Be that as it may, this new substitute bill should be given full consideration by the governing board of the city and the people of Greenville before it is pushed through the legislature by Rep. Worthington.

After all, it is not the prerogative of a representative in the General Assembly to determine without consulting local officials or local citizens—how municipal charters should be amended or how the local government should operate.

If Rep. Worthington did not approve the proposed legislation offered by Greenville officials, he should have said so plainly instead of beating around the bush with delaying tactics designed to kill the measure.

If he now has a proposal which he feels will better suit the needs of Greenville and its citizens, it should be presented to the city officials and to the citizens of the city for consideration before being enacted into law in Raleigh.

Hide The Candy Kiddies, Here Comes The Law

North Dakota kids are going to have to turn to candy pipes, candy stogies or candy "chewing tobacco" to imitate dad's and mom's smoking habits.

The legislature of that state has passed a law prohibiting the sale or possession of candy packaged to resemble cigarettes. Proponents of the legislation which becomes effective July 1 asserted the candy fags inspired youngsters to turn to the "real things" after puffing on the little sticks of candy for a while.

They may be right, but it sounds a little far fetched.

If by the process of association, modern children of today are going to take to using real live versions of their present play toys, the legislature of North Dakota—and those of the other 47 states—better look beyond candy cigarettes.

There is hardly a kid who at some time does not have as one of his prized possessions a toy pistol. Most of them at one time or another pack a rubber dagger at least eight inches long and rat-tat-tat with a toy machine gun almost half as big as they are. The list of imitation lethal weapons in the average child's play chest could go on for pages.

But we don't expect those things to make the kids grow up to be gun-totin' killers. Neither do we expect the consumption of candy kisses to inspire junior to steal a real live kiss from the little girl next door.

If North Dakota is like most of the other states of the union, the members of its legislature could well spend their time seeking ways to keep youngsters free from liquor or dope traffic and out of undesirable rendezvous with questionable characters, rather than spending its time blasting away at the consumption of candy cigarettes.

WASHINGTON—Jane Froman's $2,500,000 damage suit against Pan-American Airways has been cited in Senate debates as a further argument in favor of Senator Bricker's proposed constitutional amendment which provides that treaties and executive agreements shall not supersede Federal or state laws.

Although the actress' attempt to recover for injuries suffered at Lisbon in 1943 is not an ideal argument for the Bricker proposal, it does emphasize the danger in hasty and ill-considered negotiation of international pacts by the executive branch. In this instance, however, the Senate is at fault because it gave its advice and consent to the Warsaw Aviation Convention under which liability for death or injury in international air travel is limited to only about $8,500.

In fact, an earlier suit by Miss Froman for the larger amount was dismissed by the court because of the Warsaw maximum. And yet, Miss Froman still wears a brace, and is so handicapped that her stage career is adversely affected.

ROME CONVENTION—Now European nations have proposed amendments affecting property destruction from aerial attacks in international travel. Known as the Rome convention, the changes are so disadvantageous to the United States that our government has refused to accept them or submit them to the Senate.

Even though the Senate approved the Warsaw agreement, it stands as a dramatic warning against future ratification of international pacts without careful consideration. It argues against the system under which the White House or the State Department alone may adhere to these engagements.

In the first place, the United States was not represented at Warsaw. The U. S. adhered to the convention in February, 1933, when Hoover was President, and it was approved by the Senate in October, 1934. Its provisions were discussed in the Foreign Relations Committee, but it is doubtful if many Senators knew of or understood the liability limitation of $8,500.

ONLY GAIN—The Europeans insisted on the $8,500 maximum because most of their airlines are wholly or partially government-owned. Moreover, the majority of international air travelers in those days were Americans. It was to Europe's definite advantage to fix a low ceiling on recovery damages.

The only gain for American passengers was that they could collect automatically instead of becoming involved in interminable lawsuits in a foreign court. Moreover, although it is not generally realized, the maximum liability for death in numerous of our states is less than the international total.

Another factor in winning Senate consent to the agreement in 1934 was that air travel was not so safe then as it is now. Overseas airplane passengers were regarded as reckless adventurers who knowingly took their lives in their hands.

INDUSTRIALISTS COMPLAIN—The Rome convention again reflects the European viewpoint on human and property values. It provides that owners of property damaged or destroyed by a plane in international service may recover only from $33,000 to $800,000. This figure applies to airports, ships, factories, bridges, homes, etc.

The cities with the two principal international airports—New York and Miami—have nearby industrial, railroad and maritime installations worth many millions more than the $800,000 maximum. Together with numerous airports along both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, they have protested bitterly against this pact, which seems doomed.

JUDGMENTS OVERSEAS LOW—But, like the Warsaw agreement on death and injury damages, failure to ratify will mean that Americans may have to spend vast sums and many years to recover in foreign courts. And judgments over here are invariably low, even when the plaintiff proves his case.

Another Rome clause provides that no damages may be recovered if the destruction was caused by military police or customs planes of a foreign government. At this moment, more than 50 kind of Americans killed when a Bolivian military pilot wrecked a commercial plane three miles from the White House are seeking with scant success, to collect for that fatality.

The Jackpot Question

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

As chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce Committee which is bringing the State College basketball team to Greenville Thursday to meet East Carolina, I have been in contact several times with the State Coach, Everett Case, by letter and on the telephone.

Anyone who doesn't realize it should be told that Coach Case from Indiana is the man who brought big-time basketball to North Carolina. Emphasis on the sport has multiplied ten-fold since he started building super teams at State. Directly or indirectly, the Coliseum is a result of his reign. Sunday I was talking to Coach Case about last-minute information on Thursday's game. By now, I figured, I know him well enough to talk to him about losing the Southern Conference title after holding it for six years straight, which is ever since he's been at State.

He was very cooperative in discussing the matter, in spite of the fact that (1) the loss must have been a terrific blow to him, and (2) he was paying for the telephone call.

"That's what makes the game so fascinating," he said. "You have to strive to get up to the top, and keep on striving to stay there."

Coach Case seemed in such a jovial mood that I had to mention the Greenville reaction to Bill Ballard's cartoon in the Friday News and Observer. In case you missed that cartoon you should make an effort to look it up, for many agree that it is the best they have ever seen. Ballard calls it, "The Thrill that Took a Lifetime in Coming."

The cartoon shows the Wake Forest Deacons, well inside the Coliseum's dressing room, prominently marked with a star. The wall is decorated with Wolves, crowned to designate them as champions for the past six years. Carrying the Deacons' bags is a sad-looking wolf, with a droopy coat and a pin labelling him as an usher. The Deacon flips the wolf a tip and says, "Ahhh, thank you, peasant, and a coin for your efforts. Put the luggage down and come back and throw out these ghastly pin-ups."

"Coach Case," I said on the phone, "we were sorry for you to lose, but I think everybody in Greenville enjoyed that cartoon."

Case literally let out with a belly laugh. East Carolina's team will be in tact; that is, the entire varsity will come up against State's Collegians Thursday night. Tickets are going fast, but there are still some left. For details, see the ads in the Reflector. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

NEWSPAPERS—The aggregate circulation of afternoon newspapers published in North Carolina has moved ahead of the total for morning papers. The PM's are credited with 466,628 and the AM's with 459,895 in the current tabulation in Editor & Publisher Year Book, which is the newspaper "bible" on such matters. The figures are based on ABC audit reports and post-office statements as of Sept. 1, 1952.

DISTRIBUTION—There are seven morning dailies and 38 afternoon papers listed, with ten afternoon papers having Sunday morning editions, either in combination with associate morning dailies or independently. It has often been said, and while perhaps difficult to prove by statistics, it would seem to be true, that North Carolina has more daily newspapers than any other State when the combination of area and population is taken into account. Adding the circulation of more than 150 weekly and semi-weekly papers to the daily total means that every day there is the equivalent of one newspaper for each four and a quarter people.

LOCATIONS—The morning newspapers are published at Asheville, Charlotte, Durham, Greensboro, Raleigh, Wilmington and Winston-Salem. Afternoon dailies are listed for: Asheville, Asheville, Burlington, Charlotte, Concord, Durham, Elizabeth City, Fayetteville, Gastonia, Goldsboro, Greensboro, Greenville, Henderson, Hendersonville, Hickory, High Point, Jacksonville, Kannapolis, Kinston, Lenoir, Lexington, Lumberton, New Bern, Raleigh, Reidsville, Roanoke Rapids, Rocky Mount, Salisbury, Sanford, Shelby, Statesville (2), Tarboro, Washington, Wilmington, Wilson and Winston-Salem. Not listed is the smallest daily newspaper in the world, The Tryon Bulletin, and not included in the morning list is a day-break edition of the New Bern Sun-Journal. Sunday morning papers are listed at Asheville, Asheville, Concord, Charlotte, Durham, Greensboro, High Point, Kannapolis, Raleigh, Roanoke Rapids, Rocky Mount, Salisbury, Wilmington and Winston-Salem.

DIFFUSION—A glance at the map will show that afternoon papers are widely scattered over the whole State, while the morning papers are concentrated in the center. There is only one morning publication east of Raleigh (Wilmington) and only one west of Charlotte (Asheville). The other five are in the middle third of the map. But—there are 15 afternoon papers east of Raleigh and eight west of Charlotte, and 15 in the middle third of the State. In view of the admitted fact that a large number of the smaller afternoon papers have very light street sales, preponderant majority of the circulation being delivered at the homes of subscribers, it would seem the afternoon folks can substantiate their claim that more people read each copy of the afternoon paper than read each copy of the morning edition. It is further of common knowledge that a larger percentage of morning circulation goes outside the State.

COVERAGE—Every one of the listed afternoon newspapers has either Associated Press or United Press wire service, and many of them have both. They also have numerous special features and columns dealing with trends and interpretations. And 23 of the North Carolina afternoon papers participate in maintenance of a special cooperative bureau at Raleigh, from which emanates this daily column as well as spot news stories on events in State government and general development. Finally, the editorial and news policy of most of the PM's is largely personal, while for the more generally circulated AM's it is institutionalized.

MORAL—The inescapable moral of the story is that more people in North Carolina read more carefully the newspapers published during the day than read those published during the night. It has long been the slogan of afternoon publishers that "Evening Hours are Reading Hours." Not only because the news is fresher, but because there is more restful time for perusing and digesting it.

AUDIO-VISUAL—The Editor & Publisher list was concerned only with daily newspapers. It is also factual that North Carolina has an exceptionally large number of excellent newspapers of less than daily frequency, many of them having AP or UP wire service and better photographic and typographic equipment than some of the small dailies. A survey made two years ago showed that North Carolina had more radio stations than any other place in the world, when the factors of area and population were considered. The State does not rank so high in television, but that means of disseminating information is moving in very fast.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Uncertainty about what Congress will do about taxes is having many effects on business.

The excess profits tax is due to expire June 30 but there is talk in Washington of continuing it at present rates for a short time, perhaps the rest of the year, or for a long term at lower rates.

It's no secret that many companies in the excess profits brackets have been spending money that would otherwise be subject to the tax—the so-called cheap tax dollars—on the development of new products and for other projects calculated to enhance profits after the tax has been ended.

These companies are now in a quandary. Should they start curtailing these projects now or should they continue them to take further advantage of cheap dollars? Until Congress makes any decision is a gamble.

The bill by Representative Daniel A. Reed (R. N.Y.) to cut personal income taxes 10 per cent beginning July 1 is also a disturbing factor. The Eisenhower Administration is opposed to cutting taxes until the budget is in balance; nevertheless, Mr. Reed appears to have considerable support and he is threatening to force action on April 15 unless the Republican leadership agrees to his proposal.

The prospects of lower taxes ahead is a strong inducement for unincorporated businesses and self-employed persons to postpone present rates, where it can be done legally, until later in the year. But if Mr. Reed's proposal is to be rejected, postponing profit would mean risking them in most cases without any compensating gain.

There is another source of uncertainty. Excise taxes on furs, jewelry, handbags, gasoline, autos, cigarettes, sporting goods and other products are, under the present law, automatically reduced on April 1, 1954. Proposals to continue present rates have been made and many Congressmen favor only minor reductions, preferring to concentrate all possible cuts on income taxes.

Hearings on these proposals had been planned for some time in the next two months. But businessmen are fearful that any talk about them will give rise to hopes that the reductions will be made on schedule and that consumers will start postponing purchases. If the reductions are not rescinded, you can count on next February and March being pretty dull in the fur, auto and jewelry businesses.

GAS APPLIANCE MAKERS SEE GOOD FIRST HALF Manufacturers of gas appliances and heating equipment expect a high rate of sales through the first half of the year. Good demand, which characterized the market in January, is likely to be sustained through June, according to Edward R. Martin, marketing director of the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association. January sales totaled close to 400,000 units, a gain of more than 40,000 over January, 1952.

DEPARTMENT STORES FIGHT PRICE-CUTTERS Price-cutting by specialty operators is the major competitive problem of rug and carpet departments of department stores, according to responses to a survey by the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

Of 60 stores questioned, 53 per cent said price-cutters were their worst problem and only 17 per cent reported that the specialists were not a serious threat to their business. The survey showed that department stores were trying to meet this competition with fuller stocks, established reputations, credit services, guarantees and facilities to coordinate floor coverings with other home furnishings.

THEIR BRIGHT SIDE TO HEAVY DEBT TOTAL While the total governmental and private debt in the United States stood at $9,900 for each person on January 1, there are some optimistic facts about it, McGraw-Hill publishing Co., says in a report on the debt.

The ratio of debt to national income is less than it was in 1929; the cost of carrying the debt averaged 8 per cent then and only 5 per cent now, and cash resources are double the short-term part of the indebtedness. However, it points out that heavy indebtedness can be dangerous in event of a national emergency it is doubtful that people would be avid to buy government bonds with so much Federal debt outstanding, and private debt becomes dangerous when it exceeds the ability to repay.

TAPING COINS TO LETTERS LEGAL, SAYS TREASURY Uncle Whiskers recently cracked down on a man who pasted ads on silver coins and the has led to the belief that it is illegal to tape a coin to a letterhead in making a purchase. My mail. Not so, says the Treasury. Tape all the dimes and quarters to letterheads you want. But don't paste ads on them.

GARBANZO CROP OFF: SOUP MAY BE THINNER Minestrone soup may be thinner this year. The garbanzo crop in 18 countries in the 1952-53 season is 16 per cent less than the previous season. In Mexico, the principal producer in the Western Hemisphere, production is down 40 per cent. Garbanzos, a favorite ingredient in minestrone soup, are also known as chick peas and Mexican peas.

Hal Boyle's Column

Editor's note: Our Mr. Boyle disappeared this morning into the St. Patrick's Day parade, leaving behind in his typewriter nothing but a small green shamrock. Therefore we are reprinting the following piece, which has found its way into many an Irish family scrapbook.

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP)—What is it to be Irish?

On 364 days of the year being Irish isn't visibly different from being Scotch, French, Italian, Jewish, Serbian, Dutch, or yes-even English.

The Irishman pays his bills, complains against his taxes, does his work, and listens to his wife like the man of any other race.

But on this one day of the year—St. Patrick's Day—the Irishman becomes an Irishman. And on this day you have to be Irish to know what it is to be Irish.

The outer signs, of course, can be seen by all. The Irishman overnight grows a foot taller and stalks the earth, a giant. All traffic lights turn green before him, and if they don't he sees red.

But this air of majesty is only token evidence of interior change. The men of other races who envy the Irishman his bearing on St. Patrick's Day would envy him far more if he could look inside the Irishman's soul.

What is it to be Irish? How can you put the wonder of it into words if a psychiatrist stretched himself out on his own warm couch after his last customer had gone home, and he dreamed of the man he himself would most like to be—well, he might be perfect, but he'd still be only half an Irishman on St. Patrick's Day.

What is it to be Irish? It is to have an angel in your mouth, turning your prose to poetry. It is to have the gift of tongues, to know the language of all living things. Does an Irishman pause and turn an ear to a tree? It is because on this day he wants to hear what the sleepy bud says to another as it opens its pale green hands to the warm sun of spring.

What is it to be Irish? Oh, on this day it is music. Not just the cornet in the parading high school band, but the deep, deep music of living, the low, sad rhythms of eternity. The Irishman hears the high song of the turning spheres, the dim lullaby of the worm in its cocoon. All the world is in tune, and he is in step with the tune, the tune that only he can hear.

What is it to be Irish? Why on St. Patrick's Day, to be Irish is to know more glory, adventure, magic, victory, exultation, gratitude and gladness than any other man can experience in a lifetime.

What is it to be Irish? It is to walk in complete mystic understanding with God for 24 wonderful hours.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS WASHINGTON—Mrs. Mary Berman works eight hours a day trying to inform Miami, Fla., about the aims and accomplishments of the United Nations.

In Washington to attend the third annual Conference on U.S. Responsibility for World Leadership, sponsored by the American Association for the United Nations. Mrs. Berman wore a scarf printed with the flags of the United Nations and a pin, enamelled with the U.N. insignia and charter in her handbag.

A modest, blue-eyed woman, she told me how she has converted the dining room of her Miami home into an office from which she directs the activities of the Association's local chapter, one of 100 scattered throughout the country. She receives an average of 10 pieces of mail a day on the subject from Washington and the Association's New York headquarters. Girl Scouts help to gather the material, which is frequently used by loads of school children who drive up with research problems. In addition, Mrs. Berman, a former Atlantic City beauty shop owner, helps run a bureau with 25 speakers who go out and answer people's questions about the world today.

"Sometimes there are attacks on the U.N. that have to be answered," Mrs. Berman explained. "When they say that the U.N. is costing in too much money, we point out that it's costing us exactly 16 cents per person per year. When they say that the U.S. is doing all the fighting in Korea, we tell them that actually at the present time 75 per cent of the front line troops in Korea are non-Americans. We try to reassure people about what's in it for us."

"I feel that the U.N. is the thing we have and that we have to use it," Mrs. Berman said. "It's like a piece of machinery. It won't work by itself. We've got to get behind it." She made the best way to get behind the U.N. is to dramatize it at the classrooms level. She organizes a big out-door rally every year during United Nations Week, with bands, a speech by the mayor and the American Legion marching by carrying U.N. flags. It does something to you to see all those flags from all over the world," she said.

When Mrs. Berman has time to give a party she decorates her luncheon or dinner table with a flag made of 60 tiny paper U.N. flags as a centerpiece.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

FIRES AND CHILDREN (New Bern Sun-Journal)

The winter months have taken their toll of children who have been the victims of fire in New Bern, Craven county and surrounding area. The same is true throughout the United States. As preparations are being made throughout the nation for the observance of Spring Clean-Up Week, attention is being called to the fact that fire is one of the greatest dangers children face nowadays. Homes may be made safer places for children to live. Recent reports from a leading life insurance company and the Office of Vital Statistics emphasize that fire is the principal cause of fatal home accidents to children aged 5 to 14 years. At least 600 children in this age group die every year as a result of fire. Children can be taught fire safety rules as easily as they learn their ABC's, but no one should assume that a child will understand what is dangerous without being told. Therefore, beside teaching a child basic principles of safety, it is the parents' responsibility to see that dangerous conditions do not exist in and around the home. The National Board of Fire Underwriters say: Don't ever leave children at home alone. Be sure the baby atter is mature and reliable, and that she knows how to call the fire department. Keep matches out of reach of young children, and see that pot handles do not protrude over the edge of the stove where young hands can reach them. Always children at bedtime and campfires only under supervision. By losing their footing they could fall into the flames. Keep a metal screen in front of the fireplace so that children can play safely near it. Don't dress children in flimsy costumes without first flameproofing those costumes with a mixture of nine ounces of borax and four ounces of boric acid to a gallon of water.

Order Resuming Of Construction On Roanoke Dam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders were out today to resume construction on a 30-million-dollar power project at Roanoke Rapids, N. C.

The way was cleared yesterday for the Virginia Electric and Power Co. (VEPCO) to go ahead with the work when the Supreme Court upheld the right of the Federal Power Commission to authorize development by a private firm.

The Interior Department for four years had contended the Roanoke Rapids site was reserved for government development by the Flood Control Act of 1944. This law provided for comprehensive development of 11 dams in the Roanoke River basin of North Carolina and Virginia.

However, Secretary of the Interior McKay, who took office as a member of the Eisenhower administration, said recently he saw no objection to private construction at Roanoke Rapids.

Within a few hours after the Supreme Court's 6-3 decision was handed down yesterday, VEPCO President Jack G. Holtzclaw issued back to work orders and said his firm would push its application to build a dam about 10 miles upriver, at Gaston.

Work at Roanoke Rapids was suspended last spring when the government took the case to the Supreme Court. Holtzclaw said the delay probably added three million dollars to the estimated $7 million cost.

Democratic members of North Carolina's congressional delegation predicted the power generated at Roanoke Rapids would be a boon for the area.

Sen. Willis Smith said he knew how badly "dependable cheap power" was needed there for industrial and domestic use.

Sen. Hoy said it was "almost unbelievable" that former Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman should have gone as far as he did to oppose the project. "But for his interference," Hoy said, the benefits of the power would already be felt.

Estimates were that the $1,000-kilowatt project could be finished in about two years.

Rep. Fountain, declaring the people of the area had been "deprived for a long time," expressed hope that all who had been active for and against the project would accept the decision "and encourage VEPCO to get it in operation."

Justice Frankfurter wrote in the majority opinion that the Supreme Court was not passing on the issue of public vs. private power development, but simply ruling "that the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission to issue licenses for private construction of hydroelectric projects in the public interest has not been withdrawn by Congress as to the Roanoke Rapids site."

Humor, gifts and a variety of entertainment highlighted the annual ladies night program of the Greenville Rotary Club last night.

Following the banquet held in the lunch room of the West Greenville School, program chairman John Overton turned the program over to master of ceremonies James Butler who in turn presented J. B. Kirtrell Sr. who presented a number of door prizes to the ladies.

Dr. Howard McGinnis welcomed the ladies to the annual affair, and Mrs. Charles White responded to the welcome on behalf of the ladies.

Dr. Treia D. Collins, retired Baptist minister of Durham, was principal speaker for the occasion and delivered an address of sparkling humor before turning to the more serious side of his talk. "One of the greatest assets of our race is the sense of humor and the ability to find something to laugh at," the speaker told the audience.

"Yet in these critical times we need to think soberly and to act accordingly," The things practiced in our local, national and international affairs will not be condoned by God, Dr. Collins declared. "We can not build a nation upon them."

The speaker compared "the world situation today with the mythology of the Trojan War and pointed out, 'The goddess of discord always crashes every party. In all the magnificent armor of the world there is always a vulnerable spot.'"

Dr. Collins asserted the walls of protection which have been built can only be torn down by degeneration from within when the people within the walls fail to follow the teachings of God. "The story of the Trojan horse is just as new as this morning's sun," Dr. Collins said, and added the situation which developed in Egypt several months ago with the overthrow of the monarch was "created by the rejection of the principle of the brotherhood of man and the rejection of God's teachings."

The people of the United States, he added, have something to live for besides the froth and frivolity of life. The plight of the past two generations is in store for the next generation unless the truths of God are taken to heart and put into action, Dr. Collins said.

Miss Carolyn Mahoney, accompanied at the piano by Miss Carolyn Clapp, presented a series of three songs, "El Dia del Paso," "Go Way From My Window" and "Love Is Where You Find It," during the program.

In addition to the door prizes which were presented the ladies during the program, each lady at the annual affair was presented several gifts at the end of the program.

Rotary President-elect B. A. Decker Johnson presided at the meeting and welcomed back to the club President Knott Proctor who has been ill. Special guests at the ladies night program were President and Mrs. Leo Jenkins of the Kiwanis Club, Vice-President and Mrs. Henry Swayne of the Lions Club, President and Mrs. Jake Hadley of the Exchange Club, and President Charles Home of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Sports Reflections

BY

Jimmy Ellis

For the second time in less than a year East Carolina College is in the market for a new coach. The situation last year was created when Bill Dole resigned to go to Davidson. This year's situation is caused by Clyde Biggers' decision to return to Catawba.

Biggers' change wasn't a very difficult decision for him. Catawba is the popular Biggers' alma mater and it's tradition that almost every coach dreams of the day when his alma mater will ask him to return. Then, too, Biggers is a native of Salisbury.

Just who will succeed Biggers as line coach is something that can hardly be guessed. There were a few applications for his job a few weeks ago when his name popped up in connection with Wofford's search for a coach but the status of those applications is somewhat questionable.

At the time Biggers was being mentioned for the Wofford job, one of the persons who was reportedly interested in the East Carolina position was Earl Smith of Campbell. Earl was originally a football coach but when Campbell dropped the sport he switched over to the basketball and baseball teams. He has an outstanding record in the two sports but he's reportedly anxious to get back into football work.

The change in jobs is a distinct promotion for Biggers. Catawba has always had an enviable reputation in small college athletics ranks and the job there is considered a particularly good one.

We wish him luck in his new venture but we're still looking forward to seeing just what will happen next October when East Carolina and Catawba bang heads in Salisbury.

In a story elsewhere on today's sports page, the possibility of Bill Veeck's ouster as a major league baseball man is discussed. The reason is the defeat of Veeck's attempt to move the St. Louis Browns to Baltimore.

Veeck's attempts to get his team to Baltimore were based on common sense. He's bucking the St. Louis Cardinals as long as he stays in St. Louis and unless the Browns can come up with a truly outstanding team this year Veeck may as well hang up and get out of the baseball business.

Just what will come of the Boston Braves' attempt to move to Milwaukee is something else that is highly questionable. The Braves' president, Lou Perini, is optimistic about moving even though Veeck's eleventh-hour proposal was solidly defeated.

The Braves are in a rather delicate situation in their home grounds, too. They're having to buck the Boston Red Sox and as long as they have done in past years they aren't going to be run out of town. The Braves would have to come up with a pennant winner to continue to make money in the bean city.

One good thing about the defeat of the Veeck proposal is that perhaps, at long last, the majors are concerned about what happens to the minor leagues. The Browns' shift would have taken the Baltimore franchise out of the International League and weakened that minor league circuit considerably.

Lou Perini Confident Despite Veeck Loss

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—Despite the stunning repudiation of Bill Veeck, Lou Perini expressed confidence today that the National League will approve his proposed shift of the Boston Braves to Milwaukee.

In sharp contrast to the bitter and angry atmosphere which accompanied the American League's meeting which rejected Veeck's proposed shift of the St. Louis Browns to Baltimore, the National League owners seemed ready to meet in a calm and sober atmosphere at St. Petersburg, Fla., Wednesday.

Although there was sentiment that the move might be inadvisable at this time, most of the owners indicated a willingness to listen to Perini and none claimed the Braves' president was "trying to ram something down our throats."

Although Perini said he was "very optimistic" of gaining the necessary unanimous vote, George Trautman, president of the minor leagues, predicted that the National League would follow the proposal and Walter O'Malley, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, hinted he may cast the one disapproving vote required to reject the proposal under National League rules.

Perini said he had talked to five of the seven other club owners and that all five assured him they will vote for the move. He said that Philip K. Wrigley of the Cubs and John G. Gabreath of the Pirates were the only presidents he had not contacted.

In Los Angeles, Horace Stoneham of the Giants announced that he will vote for the move but the president of the Reds, Cardinals and Phillies all declined to reveal their approval or disapproval.

O'Malley's hint that he may disapprove the proposal was contained in a formal statement in which the Dodgers' president said he favored the National Association's rule that no franchise could be moved before next Oct. 1 and expressing confidence that such a rule would be adopted by the major leagues at their next meeting.

It also was pointed out in informed quarters that Perini's original intention was to wait another year in Boston before attempting to move. It was said that the Braves' president was forced into his proposal for the move now because of the pressure built up by Veeck in Milwaukee.

Coaches Discuss Possible Changes

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—Members of the National Association of Basketball Coaches discussed recommendations for changes in the rule today—particularly the one-and-one foul rule.

The coaches arrived Monday for the association's annual convention and announced Eddie Hickey of St. Louis University will be installed Wednesday as president.

They were scheduled to select the "outstanding person" for an award by the Metropolitan Basketball Association at a luncheon today.

"We don't make the rules," Harold E. Foster of Wisconsin, former secretary who becomes second vice president, said. "We just make recommendations."

The National Rules Committee will meet at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday to consider the coaches' recommendations.

Cliff Wells of Tulane, chairman of the coaches' research committee, said the consensus was that something must be done about the one-and-one foul rule and a proposal to widen the free throw lane—which now measures six feet—to 12 feet.

The coaches also will attend the semi-finals of the NCAA tournament tonight, which two Indiana meet Louisiana State and Washington playing Kansas.

The coaches also heard committee reports today and watched films.

NEW YORK: Ralph Tiger Jones, 1523, Yonkers, N.Y., drew with Danny Bang Womber, 152, Chicago (10).

Clyde Biggers Named Coach At Catawba

No Hint Indicated As To Successor At East Carolina

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Editor

Clyde Biggers, Line Coach at East Carolina College for the past year, has resigned to accept the position as head coach at Catawba College. The announcement of Biggers' appointment to the Catawba job was announced yesterday by Catawba Athletic Director Chubby Kirkland. Biggers will succeed Bob Spangler who resigned last week to devote full time to his chinchilla ranch near Salisbury.

Biggers is a native of Salisbury and one of the all-time Catawba greats in football. He played three years of football and baseball at Catawba and was graduated as top man (scholastically) in his class in 1948. He went from Catawba to the professional Green Bay Packers of the National Football League.

Biggers stayed with the pros for a year and then took a coaching job as an assistant at Fayetteville High School. He was named head coach at Fayetteville following Coach Clement's resignation in 1950. He stayed in the Fayetteville job for two years and then last year, became Coach Jack Boone's top assistant at East Carolina.

In his one year at East Carolina, Biggers built an enviable reputation for himself and East Carolina's football line. In charge of the line, the former Catawba star had defensive and offensive units which were among the strongest in the North State Conference. Two of the linemen, end Dwight Shoe and tackle Willie Holland, were picked for All-Conference honors when the season was over.

Both Athletic Director N. M. Jorgensen and Head Coach Jack Boone, worked closest, expressed sorrow at seeing him leave. Dr. Jorgensen said this morning that "we are losing a fine man. He has done an outstanding job for us and we are truly sorry to see him go although we extend congratulations and best wishes in his new position."

Boone expressed similar remarks. He said, "It's a deserved promotion for Clyde who did an outstanding job for us last year. We hate to see him leave us but we can't very well stand in the way of professional advancement."

Biggers was very popular with the members of the East Carolina squad. He had the reputation among the players as a coach who would "work you hard but always fair."

There was no immediate speculation as to a successor. There were reportedly applications for the job a few weeks ago when Biggers was prominently mentioned as a possible candidate for the head coaching job at Wofford but it is not known whether these applications are still active. An announcement is expected anytime in the immediate future since East Carolina has already completed spring football drills.

Biggers said this morning that he considered it a "great compliment" to be asked to return to his alma mater as head coach. "I have always pictured Catawba as about the tops in small college athletics," he said. "And I'm highly flattered."

The new Catawba coach will not formally take over until next fall but he plans to visit Catawba as soon as it is possible for him to do so. He does plan to finish his year at East Carolina where he is an instructor in the physical education department.

Pirates Work For Thursday Contest

Full-scale basketball workouts were resumed yesterday by the East Carolina College basketball team in preparation for its Thursday night meeting with the N. C. State College team.

Coach Howard Porter had the full squad in practice race yesterday and sent them through a scrimmaging session that was played under actual game conditions. In addition to the regular members of the varsity, there were a couple of newcomers who were getting in a few practice licks before the team closes the book on the 1953 season for the last time.

Proceeds from the Thursday contest will go into the charity fund maintained by the Jaycees. After the expenses for the game are subtracted, the gate receipts are expected to be earmarked for further development of the Elm Street project.

No line-up changes for the Pirates are anticipated. Sonny Russell and Charlie Huffman will be at the forwards. Bobby Hodges at center and Cecil Hodge and J. C. Thomas at the guards.

Ticket sales for the contest started notoriously slow last week but picked up yesterday. Student tickets, on sale at the college, were going at a fairly rapid pace according to the members of the Circle K, the student organization in charge of the tickets sale at the college.

Admission prices for the game will be $2 for reserved seats and $1.25 for general admission and students. Tickets are available at Western Auto and from the Jaycees.

Baseball Briefs

BOTH HAPPY
CLEARWATER, Fla. (UP)—The Cincinnati Reds and Philadelphia Phillies, each were happy about the home run power of their new players today as they clashed in an exhibition game.

The Reds were delighted with a four-base wallop by new outfielder Gus Bell, obtained from the Pirates last season, during Monday's 11-2 rout of the world champion Yankees. The Reds got only six hits but took advantage of two Yankee errors and wild pitching.

Earl Torgerson, the ex-Braves, and holdover Del Ennis each blasted homers to pace the Phils to an 11-9 victory over the Cards Monday.

TO USE ROOKIES
BRADENTON, Fla. (UP)—The New York Yankees planned to use rookie pitchers Bill McDonald and Al Cicotte against the slumped Boston Braves in today's exhibition game.

The Braves were handed their sixth loss in nine games Monday, 8-6, by the Boston Red Sox when Lev Burdette gave up three runs in the ninth inning.

The Yankees also were defeated Monday, 11-2, by the Cincinnati Reds despite homers by Billy Martin and Bob Cerv.

X-RAYS OF SAUER
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UP)—X-rays will be taken today of the swollen finger of star Chicago Cubs slugger Hank Sauer.

Sauer, the National League's most valuable player last season, jammed the little finger of his right hand sliding back into first base to avoid a pickoff in the sixth inning of Monday's 6-3 triumph over the Los Angeles Angels. It was not believed that the bone had been broken, but the finger swelled badly.

Today the Cubs meet the San Diego Padres.

WHITE SOX EXCITED
PASADENA, Calif. (UP)—The White Sox, preparing to meet the Cleveland Indians today, were excited about the pitching form of big Saul Rogovin.

The right handed ace worked six innings in Monday's 4-3 win over the Giants and appeared in mid-season form, allowing only four singles and one walk and striking out three.

The Indians, using mostly rookies and reserves, lost to the Browns, 9-4, Monday.

SHANTZ IN FORM
WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UP)—An air of relief dominated the Philadelphia A's training camp today because bobby Shantz is back in pitching form.

The star southpaw, who fractured his pitching wrist near the end of last season, was battered in his first exhibition game, going only one inning against the Senators and complaining of a sore back. But Monday he set the Dodgers, ordinarily a team that "murders" lefties, down with only one single in five innings as the A's went on to win, 2-1.

POOR GATES
HAVANA, Cuba (UP)—The Pirates are beating the Cuban All-Stars regularly, but the attendance remains poor.

The National Leaguers downed the local aces, 9-1, Monday as Murry Dickson pitched two-hit ball for five innings. But the crowd was below 1,000 for the fifth straight day.

Winterville Loses, 61-45, To Aberdeen In Tournament

Veek Defeat Seen As An Ouster Effort

ABERDEEN—Winterville's Pitt County Conference champions were bounced from the Girls State basketball tournament by losing to home Aberdeen 61-45 last night. The game was one of the quarterfinal contests of the tournament.

Aberdeen, annually one of the strongest girls teams in the state, took an early lead in the contest and never gave any ground to the Pitt champions. Forward Morgan led the scoring parade with 20 points for her team. Winterville's Jean Ann Liverman took runner-up honors with 22 tallies.

Aberdeen started fast in the contest and held a 19-12 lead at the end of the first quarter of action. The host team stretched its lead to 31-20 at the half and then began pulling away completely in the second half.

Winterville made its most serious bid for a victory in the third quarter but Aberdeen still managed to improve its lead by one point. The Pitt County team scored 19 points in the third period but Aberdeen rolled right along with 20 and the back of the Winterville attack was broken. The Pitt County girls got only six points in the last quarter.

Winterville had reached the quarterfinal round of action by defeating Crossboro, 36-35, last week. Aberdeen had defeated Alamance.

The defeat was only the second of the year for the Pitt Conference champions.

Score by quarters:
Aberdeen 19 17 20 10-61
Winterville 12 8 19 6-45
Substitutes: Aberdeen—Dunn, Myrick 9, Winterville—Corey 6, McLawnhorn, P. Tripp 4.

Other bitter comment came from George Trautman, president of the minor leagues, and Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International League. Trautman charged that Veeck did not follow correct baseball procedure and Shaughnessy claimed Veeck misled owners when he told them six clubs in the International League supported the move.

"I knew that to be false," Shaughnessy said. "I knew I had five votes against him myself."

Will Hargrave, president of the league, added that to have "let this go through at this time might have meant a bad name for baseball."

And, even more bitter off-the-record comments blistering Veeck were heard from owners and league officials Monday night.

The sum total of the comment seemed to add up to this:

"We stood by while he introduced fireworks and midsets. He often has showed little regard for normal baseball protocol. Now suddenly he wants to re-arrange the baseball map which has remained the same for 50 years. Moreover, he wants to high pressure us into doing it only a month before the season opens—without proper reflection. This is where we must put our feet down. We've had enough of him."

Lenin's Farm Theories May Mean New Famine

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

The coming year may be one of famine for millions of persons behind the Iron Curtain.

It is the result of the almost complete failure of the collective farm system. Collectivization of farms was one of the basic principles of Lenin and has been followed slavishly by the Russian Communists, both in Russia and the satellites.

Now, as result of Moscow's heavy hand, farming is in a state of chaos in Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

Proof of how bad things are is found in many official Communist pronouncements.

For example, fodder is so short in Poland that peasants have been forced to slaughter their livestock rather than let it starve. Poland had 600,000 fewer pigs last year than in 1949, which was itself a lean year.

Czechoslovakia's meat production plan is "unfilled."

Czechoslovakia's cereal grain production met only half the domestic need in 1952. Meat production was less than in 1937.

The Czechs, who once were the world's third largest producers of beet sugar, now ration their sugar and last year's production was the lowest in 30 years.

In normal times, Hungarian farmers cultivated something over 12,000,000 acres. Last year more than 3,000,000 acres were not even plowed and half the remaining acreage was unseeded.

Seventeen per cent of all farmland in Poland is controlled by the state, but this area produced only 12 per cent of last year's thin crop. In Czechoslovakia, the "socialized" area comprises 25 per cent of the total, but its production was some 10 per cent less per acre as compared with the independent farms.

In Hungary it is reported that by the end of 1952, 4,000 of the country's 9,500 tractors were unusable due to overwork and poor maintenance.

Yet the Russian answer to all this is still more collectivization. Hungarian state farms and collectives have jumped from three per cent of the total land in 1946 to 36 per cent in 1953. Poland had 243 collectives in 1950 but now has 8,625.

One Communist country has tried the farm collectives and abandoned them. That is Yugoslavia.

The Yugoslavs admitted frankly they found a man worked better for himself than in a state-owned collective.

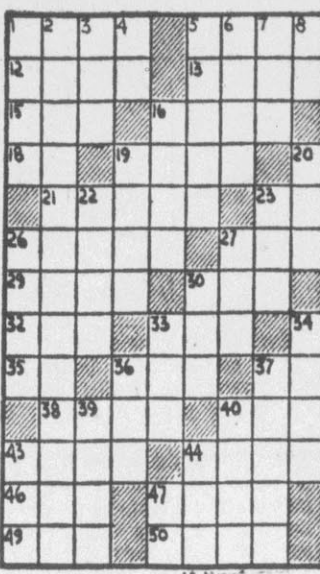

They also came up with the interesting theory that what made the Lenin theory unworkable was the tractor.

Lenin didn't know about the tractor with which one man can do the work of many.

The Spaniards set up public schools in New Mexico in 1791.

INFORMED — All of which means that the people of North Carolina have facilities for keeping abreast of doings throughout the world equal to those enjoyed by anybody anywhere. It is also of record that the reporters and editors are alert to keeping the channels of information open to the people. At least two proposed bills were changed in the current session of the Legislature when newspaper folks raised sand about secretive features involving public business. And on at least three occasions embryo efforts of legislators to bar the reporters from committee sessions failed when the reporters insisted "at public business should be handled in public. In that connection it may be interesting to note that there are 33 regularly accredited reporters for newspapers and radio stations covering the General Assembly, in addition to dozens of part time assignments and casual visitors to the press-radio corps.

MAJORITY — The fact is, there have been a few committee meetings and several Saturday sessions of the General Assembly when there were more reporters than voting members in attendance.

Vapor Trails Are Seen Over Alaska

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Air Force said today vapor trails from unidentified aircraft, possibly Russian, have been sighted during the past year over the Arctic fringes of the North American continent.

A spokesman said the identity of the planes has never been established. But the tell-tale streaks were seen in the sky at spots within easy flying distance from Soviet air bases in Siberia.

The most recent report came last week on the same day an American F-94 Thunderjet over the U. S. zone of Germany. A "yellow alert," signalling a precautionary warning of unidentified aircraft, was sounded at an Alaska base.

The Air Force statement came in response to a copyrighted dispatch to the New York Herald Tribune by Washington columnist Joseph and Stewart Alsop, who reported that the Soviet strategic air force is stuyi g "fairly frequent reconnaissance missions over the American continent."

The Alsops said that since last summer 10 vapor trail sightings over Alaska and northwestern Canada have been "confirmed" as resulting from high-flying Soviet reconnaissance planes. A recent sighting, they said, was reported near the important Thule Air Base in north Greenland.

Liquor Sales In State Decline

RALEIGH (AP)—Legal liquor sales in North Carolina showed a drop of $352,104.85 of 6.85 per cent during February compared with the same month last year.

Acting State ABC Chairman Frank T. Erwin reported yesterday that total sales for last month were $4,786,258.10. He attributed part of the drop to the fact that February last year had 29 days compared with only 28 this year.

Areas of the highlands in Scotland have been turned into cattle ranges much like those in the western part of the United States.

Tax Returns Pouring In; Complaints Fade

By UNITED PRESS
A flood of last-minute income tax returns poured into internal revenue offices today as the grouching of anguished taxpayers slowly died away.

Postal department employees worked overtime Monday to get March 16 postmarks on the returns and get them to tax offices today.

Reports from key cities across the country indicated that the annual stampede in the tax offices themselves was somewhat less intense than usual, although post offices seemed busier than ever.

As usual, some persons were ready for a feud with the tax collector.

A Whittier, Calif., couple, who called themselves Quakers and pacifists, paid only 34 per cent of their tax on the grounds that the other 66 per cent would be used for war and defense spending.

The Quakers sadly admitted they will probably end up paying the government anyway. They have tried the same ruse in the past and each year the government extracts the balance due from their bank accounts plus interest.

Mrs. Caroline F. Urie of Cleveland, the 80-year-old widow of a naval officer, declined for the sixth straight year to pay a personal income tax.

"This is the only symbolic way in which I, as a responsible citizen, can give clear-cut expression to my utter refusal to be a party to the savagery of modern war..." she said.

But an 80-year-old Nebraska farmer mailed an extra $50 to the Omaha tax office as a "little boost to the best government in this mixed-up world" on the grounds that the U. S. had been "pretty good to me."

One Boston youth requested prompt service so he could borrow money on the strength of a refund. And crowds at the Louisville, Ky., Federal Building chucked at a guard who announced frequently:

"Those paying income tax get in the line on left; those going to bankruptcy court get in line on the right."

Suggests Solons 'Inspect' Hawaii

WASHINGTON (UP)—Members of the Senate Interior Committee had a suggestion today to spend the Easter recess in Hawaii, looking over the island playground's qualifications for statehood.

Chairman Hugh Butler (R-Neb.) urged members of the committee to make an on-the-spot tour of Hawaii when the Senate takes a break for Easter. It has become apparent the bill to make Hawaii the 49th state has unexpectedly bogged down.

Chances of quick committee approval of the bill collapsed Monday when the committee agreed to hold new hearings.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rear Adm. J. W. Fowler has told the House Armed Services subcommittee how the Navy saved the taxpayer $10 per officer.

Fowler told the subcommittee that officers who formerly got a $16.50 white blanket now use the standard $6.50 model.

Lions Told Park Drive Advancing

Members of the Greenville Lions Club last night heard encouraging reports on the progress of the Elm Street Park Fund Raising program now underway.

Jimmie Harris, in charge of raising an estimated $8,000 needed to complete the recreation project, stated that early reports indicate the goal will be met provided that returns continue to come in as they are now.

Harris told the workers that the fund raising project will be carried on for one more week and will be closed at the end of that time.

Workers from the Lions club are soliciting funds to meet the building cost of the Elm Street Park project from local businessmen and others.

Jack Edwards presented a talk on the progress of Greenville's television station.

Edwards outlined to the club the problems which had to be overcome by the local station in obtaining its permit for construction and the plans which are now underway to put the station on the airways.

In the absence of President presided over the meeting.

Balks At Taking College Degree

TORONTO, Ont. (UP)—Walter Stewart, a senior at the University of Toronto, said today he will refuse to write any final examinations because the university degree isn't worth the paper on which it is printed.

Stewart said "there are three factors at this university which render it useless — the administration, the teachers and the students."

He charged the administration talked in terms of dollars, the teachers in terms of marks and the students in terms of sex.

Stole Car As Economy Move

MEDIA, Pa. (UP)—Pvt. Joseph R. Quigley, 23, arrested on an automobile theft charge here, told police he stole the car for week-end commuting between his Philadelphia home and Washington, D.C.

"I wanted to cut down on transportation costs so I could buy my wife a birthday present," he said.

Prison Sentence Suspended In Embezzlement, With Provisos

A sentence of six to eight years in State Prison was suspended in the embezzlement case against Ray Barwick yesterday with provision that he repay the amount of his theft with interest during the next five years.

Judge Walter J. Bone suspended the sentence handed down in Pitt Superior Court and placed the defendant on probation for a term of five years, during which time the defendant is to repay at six percent interest a total of $8,179.04 he admittedly took from J. B. Kittrell and Company.

The money was embezzled from the Greenville firm during a four-month period from September through December, 1952. During that period Barwick was employed by Kittrell and company as an accountant, but the theft was not discovered until he had left the company's employ.

Probation Terms

Terms of probation were that Barwick should pay all costs of the action plus a sum of $500 to the clerk of Superior Court yesterday. Beginning May 1, he is to pay $100 per month for a one-year period and then increase monthly payments to $150 for the next four years until the entire amount is repaid.

If Barwick defaults on any of the payments the prison sentence is to be put into effect at the request of the probation officer.

Barwick, now living in Goldsboro, was in court yesterday with his wife and two small children, a boy and a girl. His attorneys paraded a number of Goldsboro citizens to the stand, all of whom gave the defendant a good character. In addition, several letters testifying to his good character were read.

Barwick pleaded guilty to the charges brought against him, but said he did not know where all the money went. He stated, however, that approximately $1,800 went for hospital bills for his invalid father, and some additional money went for clothes for his family.

Other Cases

Cornelius Williams, Negro, pleaded guilty to manslaughter on two counts, which involved the death of two DuPont workers as the result of wreck near Winterville in February.

Judge Bone sentenced Williams to serve not less than four nor more than six years in State Prison on each count, but the two sentences are to run concurrently.

Other cases heard were: Buster Ball and Jimmie Ball, assault with a deadly weapon, pleaded not guilty and adjudged not guilty in jury trial.

Thomas Griffin, driving drunk, pleaded guilty and fined $200 and costs and operator's license to be revoked for twelve months.

John David Nicholson, violation of the motor vehicle law, not pros. W. J. Corey, three charges of assault, not pros.

Levi Tyson, reckless driving and driving drunk, juror withdrawn and mistrial ordered.

Grand Jury Cases: During yesterday's session, the Pitt grand jury found true bills in the following cases:

Johnnie Davenport, violation of the motor vehicle law.

Clarence Rogers Jr., violation of the motor vehicle law.

Olivia Andrews, liquor law violation.

Alonza R. Barrow, driving drunk. William Russell Buck, driving drunk.

Sydney Daniel Payton, breaking and entering and larceny.

Three Branded 'Outlaw' Today

CARTHAGE (UP) — Three Negroes being sought in the shotgun slaying of Police Chief Bernice Cameron were proclaimed outlaws today.

Under the proclamation, signed by Judge J. A. Rousseau, any citizen has the right to arrest the fugitives or to kill them if they offer resistance. Rousseau signed the proclamation late last night in Rockingham after the three had eluded a huge manhunt in the swampy, wooded Sandhills area.

Under the old North Carolina outlawry proclamation, a fugitive declared an outlaw may be called upon by any citizen to surrender without charge or warrant, and may be slain on the spot if he resists.

Moore County Sheriff C. J. McDonald requested the outlawry proclamation against J. C. Dowd, 20, who has been named as the triggerman in Cameron's slaying here early Sunday, and against two other Negroes, Juechub Morrison and Harry Richardson.

Five other Negroes were rounded up Sunday and Monday.

George Washington was the only President of the United States who never lived in Washington, D.C.
