Townpeople Gather Items For Fire Victims

Red Cross Aid For Grifton

By MURIEL SHOTWELL, Reflector Staff Writer. GRIFTON—Red Cross representatives arrived in Grifton this morning to aid townpeople in gathering needed items for the 18 persons left homeless after a fire destroyed the Cobb Hotel Monday afternoon. The fire which swept through the two-story frame hotel Monday left six families without many of their belongings. In one family, there were seven children who were left without clothes.

One person, an elderly lady, Mrs. Alf May, had been taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital 20 minutes before the fire broke out. She lost everything, as the fire concentrated mostly on the portion of the building where she lived. Families Needs The Cole family saved only a kitchen table, some chairs, and a refrigerator. Most needed by them are clothes for their children, four girls aged two, nine, 11, and 13, and three boys, aged 10 months, three and five. Household items and kitchen utensils are also needed. The Alton Wiley family, of which there are four members, saved only two beds. Clothes are badly needed for their two children, a boy aged six and a girl aged three, in addition to clothes for the parents. Mr. and Mrs. Hebert Ewell saved a few clothes, chairs, bed covers and a refrigerator. Most needed by them are kitchen articles. Mrs. Ruby Jackson and Mrs. Jesse Jackson also lost a great deal and they are in need of the same items as the others.

Consumers Face Free Economy

Strictly On Their Own As Last Of Price Controls Are Removed

WASHINGTON (UP)—Consumers were strictly on their own for the first time in more than two years today as the government killed off the last of its price controls and returned the nation to a relatively free economy. The action marked the end of a turbulent postwar experiment in direct price, wage, and credit curbs that began in the fall of 1950 after the Korean invasion.

Price Stabilizer Joseph Freehill completed the step-by-step decontrol of prices Tuesday by removing ceilings on steel and a batch of industrial goods. All wage curbs were wiped out Feb. 6. Decontrol already has begun showing some prices up. Freehill reported increases on meat, coffee, cigarettes, lard and oils, and in some places, motor oil and gasoline. He predicted prices would climb more than $3,000,000,000 during the year. Consumers will pay about a third of the bill, he said, or about $20 a family.

The controls agencies are being dismantled rapidly. Freehill said his office will be liquidated by June 30 with all but five field offices shut down by April 9. The price control program was one of the most controversial the government has ever undertaken. There were sharp differences of opinion on whether it was effective. The only statistic on the matter is that the cost of living rose 4 per cent between June, 1950, when the Korean war broke out and mid-January, 1951. Between the general wage-price freeze of January, 26, 1951, and mid-January, 1953, just before decontrol started, it rose four per cent. It is also true that prices which had been driven up by a buying spree after the Korean war began started dropping again in the first half of 1951, when the general freeze was proclaimed. Since then, prices have once more firmed on many goods. In spite of this and price hikes anticipated with decontrol, price officials do not expect another inflation spiral.

Two British Jet Planes Collide As Tito Looks On

CAMBRIDGE, England (UP)—Two British jet fighter planes collided today and their pilots plunged to death while President Tito of Yugoslavia watched horrified at an air show in his honor. An officer said that Tito, sensing that British airmen were putting their lives in danger for him, asked twice before the crash that the show be ended. But the flights kept on.

The Royal Air Force staged a spectacular display, including super-sonic aircraft, in honor of the anti-Kremlin Yugoslav Communist leader who is on a state visit here. The weather was extremely bad. The ceiling was only 1,000 feet because of fog. A 24-plane Meteor jet formation flashed over the field at nearby Duxford base. Two of the planes touched wings in the maneuvers, and crashed in flames five miles away.

NOW ELIGIBLE TOKYO (AP)—The Army today said combat veterans hospitalized by frostbite suffered in the bitter winters of the Korean War now are eligible for the $45-a-month combat duty pay for time spent in recovery along with soldiers wounded or injured in action.

Demand Russia Punish Pilot Who Fired On Weather Plane U.S. Protests New Attack

By CHARLES CORRDY, United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States demanded today that Russia punish the jet pilot who fired on an American plane over the Bering Sea Saturday, and curbed for measures to prevent such attacks from happening again. The demands were made in a note which "vigorously protested" the latest attack on an American plane by a Soviet MIG-15. The State Department said the American embassy at Moscow lodged the protest with the Russian government. The U. S. note said the United States "expects to be informed at an early date of the disciplinary action taken with regard to the Soviet personnel for the attack."

The statement said the note set the position of the U. S. plane about 100 miles northeast of Petro Pavlovsk and at least 25 miles from the nearest Soviet territory. Last Friday the United States also issued a strong protest to Communist Czechoslovakia over the shooting down of an Air Force F-84 Thunder jet in Germany by Red fighters. Neither plane apparently was damaged. The American plane was on weather patrol when it was attacked and returned the fire. The U. S. note asked for information concerning "measures adopted by the Soviet authorities to prevent a recurrence of incidents of this kind."

The Air Force will continue weather flights 25 miles off the coast of the Kamchatka peninsula despite the exchange of gunfire, a spokesman said. He said there was no plan to alter flight courses of Alaska-based reconnaissance planes or provide them with fighter escort as a result of the incident Sunday over the Pacific "approximately 25 miles" from the Kamchatka coast, presumed site of Russian air and naval bases. One of two intercepting MIGs opened fire with its 20 mm. cannon and drew a burst from the 13 50-caliber machine guns of the RB-50, a four-engine, propeller-driven photo reconnaissance version of the B-50 Superfort bomber. That ended the engagement. Neither plane apparently was damaged. Members of Congress commended the RB-50 crew for returning fire. The State Department, which protested within hours when Red MIGs shot down an American F-84 jet over West Germany last week, remained silent on the Pacific clash. Informants said the department was waiting for more information. It appeared possible Russia might be the first to protest the clash. That has happened in previous incidents involving American planes flying close to Russia's Pacific back door. It was the sixth aerial clash between communist and Allied aircraft along the world's cold war frontiers since the death of Josef Stalin brought Georgi M. Malenkov to power as Russia's premier two weeks ago. Military and diplomatic officials still were trying to determine whether the attacks fall into a definite pattern of increased aggressiveness on the part of the new Russian rulers.

Red Marauders Quickly Flew Off When Fired Upon

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (UP)—A U. S. reconnaissance plane which was attacked by a Soviet fighter and returned the marauder's fire, said today the Russian fighter turned tail as soon as the American guns opened up. "As soon as that pilot saw the burst, he took off for home," said Sgt. Jesse L. Prim of Ozark, Ark., who named the turret gun on the U. S. RB-50 four-engine aircraft. Although Prim fired 20 rounds from each of his six machineguns, Air Force spokesmen said they doubted the MIG-15 was damaged. The "Laboring Lady" pilot, Lt. Col. Robert S. Rich, Baraboo, Wis., said his plane was not hit by the cannon shells fired by the Soviet fighter. But he added: "In my estimation, you don't play with 20 millimeter cannon shells."

It's All There

WASHINGTON (AP)—An unprecedented check of the nation's gold and silver and coin has ended, and a Treasury official said today, "everything is there." That was a short report from Leland Howard, assistant director of the Mint, on a big subject: nearly 23 billion dollars worth of gold at Ft. Knox, Ky., and elsewhere, plus two billions worth of silver bullion and about 301 million dollars worth of coin not in circulation.

Bloodmobile To Be Here On March 24; 150 Pints Is Goal

"Roll up your sleeves," urged the Red Cross officials in the city as they announced the Red Cross Bloodmobile will make a one-day stand here Tuesday, March 24. The Bloodmobile from the Tidewater Region in Norfolk will arrive here Tuesday morning and set up a temporary blood center in the basement of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. Hours will be from 11:30 until 5:30. No Sponsors Breaking the usual custom, no organization is sponsoring this month's visit of the Bloodmobile. In this case, however, you can contribute a pint of body-needed blood for the armed forces and for civilian use are asked to call the county Red Cross office, phone 4222, or Mrs. J.T. Little, recruitment chairman for the county. Mrs. Little this morning stressed the need for volunteer donors. She reminded that at each of the visits of the Bloodmobile to Greenville, the quota has been met every time and "we don't want to fail this time." The quota has been set at 150 pints of blood. Need Serum Supply The recruitment chairman, Mrs. Little, said she was asked to call the county Red Cross office, phone 4222, or Mrs. J.T. Little, recruitment chairman for the county. Mrs. Little this morning stressed the need for volunteer donors. She reminded that at each of the visits of the Bloodmobile to Greenville, the quota has been met every time and "we don't want to fail this time." The quota has been set at 150 pints of blood.

Bombers Pound Supply Centers

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—U. N. fighter bombers raided three strategic Communist supply centers today in the wake of the fourth heaviest B-29 attack of the Korean war—a strike near the Yalu River. Air Force and Marine fighter-bombers, switching strategy for the first time this week, smashed buildings and supply centers instead of slashing at Red transportation arteries. Thunder jets roared over a troop center 10 miles southwest of Wonsan, destroying six buildings and setting off one secondary explosion. Smoke billowed hundreds of feet into the air and prevented observation of results. Marine Panther jets and Corsairs battered troop and storage centers southeast of Pyongyang and north of Yonan. Pilots claimed 90 per cent coverage of both targets. "The Yonan target was left in shambles," said 5th Air Force headquarters. Shooting Stars and Australian Meteors continued their attacks on roads and Communist rolling stock.

Uncle Sam Again Tips His Hat To 'Richard T. Roe'

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UP)—Uncle Sam tipped his hat today to "Richard T. Roe," the anonymous taxpayer who hasn't missed a payment in 13 years. The Buffalo office of the Internal Revenue Bureau received $800 by mail Tuesday from the mysterious man with the phony name and address. He has paid $8,275 in income tax since 1941. As usual the "taxpayer" took elaborate precautions to hide his identity. The payment consisted of four $100 postal money orders and four $100 American Express checks, all purchased Monday at six different locations in Buffalo. The address and "Roe" signature on the tax return were printed in block letters. The envelope had been mailed in a meter machine in the main postoffice.

Preparations For New Test Already Starting Plan Second Atomic Blast

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—Preparations were underway today at Yucca Flat in the isolated, high desert 65 miles north of here for the second atomic blast in a series of 10 detonations scheduled for this spring. The 1,000 soldiers and military observers who Tuesday emerged unscathed from trenches only two miles from the blast were back as their nearby Desert Rock camp today. It seemed apparent today that it would take at least a week to prepare the atomic testing ground for the next explosion. The time is needed to recover and read the instruments used in the initial test and to enter the two experimental houses which were heavily damaged and still contaminated with radioactivity today for survey teams to enter and analyze. Meantime, Desert Rock made preparations to receive 1,000 more soldiers who presumably will take part in the next test shot. Tuesday's veterans crouched closer to an atomic explosion than any human beings since Nagasaki two miles closer than the soldiers who were stationed within four miles of "ground zero" in 1952. Whether the next contingent of troops will be closer yet, was not disclosed. However, Brig. Gen. William C. Bullock, commander of Camp Desert Rock, said after the Tuesday experiment that his troops at that time could have been within one mile of the point of detonation with safety. Purpose of the initial experiment was to develop coordination between artillery armed with atomic warheads and infantry intent upon the capture of enemy strongpoints blasted by the great new 280-millimeter A-cannon. It was presumed that the next test shot could be earlier than Tuesday of next week. It will not be open to correspondents or photographers. There was speculation tonight at Camp Desert Rock and in Las Vegas over the fact, corroborated by atomic test Manager Carroll L. Tyler and scientific Director Alvin C. Graves, that the participating troops did not receive the popularly anticipated effect of such close proximity to the blast. Some of the men expressed the feeling that they had been extraordinarily lucky and that the shock wave had merely bounced over them, and that the entire lack of radiation in the troop area as contrasted to the intense spill-over of radioactivity on the target houses was simply more luck.

Brandon Hodges Urges Turning Talents Of N.C. Children To Future State Progress

State Treasurer Brandon Hodges challenged parents and teachers to develop the talents of the school boys and girls in speaking before a meeting of the Student-Parent-Teacher Council of Greenville High School last night. Also at the meeting school superintendent J.H. Rose reported on the proposed bond issue for the expansion of the city school system by saying that bond attorneys had favorably reported, and petitions would soon be ready for signatures. In developing his challenge to the parents and teachers, Hodges brought into his speech the development of industry in North Carolina, especially in the Piedmont region, urging that the young people of North Carolina be kept in the state. "As I look at the young people of this state, I realize with deep regret that as they graduate from high school, move on to college and graduate, that many of them will not remain in the community to employ their talent and develop their skills in this area," he stated. "The great tragedy in the state has been the out-migration of our young people. Who in the past, have made tremendous contributions to the enrichment of other areas." Before reviewing the development of industry in the state, Hodges brought out that North Carolina was making great progress to develop a new pattern of life. He cited that one-third of the population of the state was farm population: one-third town and city; and one-third rural non-farmers, which division he termed as being unique. Though the state treasurer advocated the development of industry, he said he hoped cities, North Carolina would not grow as other industrial cities. "Large industrial cities are the breeding place of crime, and I hope we can preserve the rural and neighborhood qualities we now possess." Hodges touched lightly on appropriations made by the legislature for school needs. He said more than $46 million dollars had been recommended for the next biennium for appropriation, "that is a lot of money in relation to material wealth, but in relation to the potentialities of investment in our youth, it is not a great sum," he said. The speaker closed by again stressing the need of more job opportunities for the youth of the state but emphasized the retaining of spiritual qualities while seeking more opportunities. Following the address by Hodges, S. O. Worthington, chairman of the Student-Parent-Teacher Council, appointed a nominating committee to draw up a slate of names to be elected as officers. The committee, which is made up of Rev. C. D. Patterson, Dennis Ruskett and John Brooks, will be asked to make a report at another meeting of the council the first of May. A brief musical program was presented by the high school band and the mixed chorus, girls' chorus and boys' chorus. The band, under the direction of James Rogers, played several numbers, and the chorus, directed by Mrs. W. H. Shindler, sang a number of songs.

Stepped Up Arms Deliveries Pouring Into Formosa; Jets To Be Included

TAIPEH, Formosa (UP)—Stepped up deliveries of guns, planes and ammunition for Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist forces are pouring into Formosa, the chief of the American advisory group said today. An official release from Maj. Gen. William C. Chase's headquarters said in the last two months 23 ships with cargoes of rocket-driven F-47 and F-84 planes, artillery, machineguns, ammunition, engineering equipment and vehicles have arrived. Essentials for deliveries was put on prop-driven fighters. But a shipment of jets is expected daily. During March, it was learned, almost double the number of ships will be sent to Formosa to help Nationalist forces repel a new invasion threat. In addition, Chase's headquarters said, the general had received a second wave of military advisers in the past few days. The military advisers advisory group is about 60 officers and staff of all branches of the service. The Korean advisory group consists of more than 2,000 officers and men.

Soldier Didn't Know He Was A Hero; He Only Stood Guard Over Wounded Colonel, Killing Nine Chinese

WESTERN FRONT, Korea (UP)—The soldier didn't know he was a hero. He had saved his battalion commander's life in the fierce fighting Tuesday on Little Gibraltar. He had stood over the wounded officer and calmly killed about nine Chinese. When the fighting died, he took time out to help a wounded man. The battalion commander — a Lt. Col. whose name has been withheld because he was wounded — said the story was told all night to the men who saved his life. I found Pvt. Courtney L. Stanley, 20, Mountain Law, lucky break on Little Gibraltar. He had been slighted by someone by one of the many rumors that had been spread by the Red, but he never believed it. "Oh, I was never all right," he said. "I thought I didn't get any more wounds." He didn't know exactly how many Chinese he killed. He guarded the officer and two other injured men.

"Maybe it was nine or maybe it was 11," Stanley said. "I didn't count them very close and when they fell I couldn't be sure they were dead." With two belts of ammunition wrapped around his body and extra magazines inside his pockets, Stanley was posted as a lone guard in front of a bunker that was serving as an emergency aid station. Chinese from an estimated 1,000-man attacking force had overrun part of the hill and were scattering in captured bunkers and trenches just a few feet away. "The Chinese were in a trench on the hill above the bunker," Stanley stuck up his head. I shot at him with my BAR. The young negro saw a lieutenant colonel struggling down a trench toward him. The officer, who had led reinforcing troops into the trench, was wounded in the face. The officer and two other injured men.

Christian Church, Setting For Atkins-Roberson Wedding

ROBERSONVILLE.—The beautifully decorated First Christian Church was the setting for one of the prettiest weddings ever attended in Robersonville at 4:30 Saturday afternoon, March 14, when Miss Vernida Greene Roberson was united in marriage to Vernon Doub Atkins in a double ring ceremony with the Rev. Wilbur Wallace officiating.

Prior to the ceremony Miss Jeanie Taylor, organist and Mrs. Rucker Dudley, Jr., soloist presented a program of nuptial music.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a gown of white duchess satin with a rose point chantly lace sleeved bodice and a low scalloped neckline edged with lace. The long full skirt extended into a train. Her two-tiered veil of bridal illusion which ended with wide lace was attached to a half bunnet of tulle, seed pearls and lace. She carried a bouquet of stephanotes, orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Patsy Roberson, her sister's honor attendant, wore a dress of aqua tulle over taffeta with a shirred strapless bodice. The skirt length skirt had three ruffles. Her headdress was of matching shirred tulle. She had a bouquet of small yellow chrysanthemums and roses with wide yellow ribbon.

The bridesmaids were Miss Becky Roberson, sister of the bride, Mrs. C. T. Chadwick, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Ann Johnson and Mrs. J. D. Linville.

Miss Beth Grimes, a cousin of the bride was a junior bridesmaid. They wore strapless aqua dresses like that of the maid of honor with semi-bonnets of shirred tulle and they carried yellow flowers tied with matching ribbon.

The Rev. Truit Chadwick was his brother-in-law's best man. The ushers were: Jack Albert, J. H. Parker, Jr., J. D. Linville and Wesley Atkins, brother of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride wore a aqua silk dress with a pink flower hat. Her corsage was a pink orchid. The bridegroom's mother wore a dusty rose crepe with a lace yoke and a matching bolero. Her accessories were navy and she had a red throated orchid.

The parents of the bride entertained at a large reception in their home immediately following the ceremony.

When Mrs. Atkins left for a wedding trip to St. Simons Island, Georgia, she wore a blue suit, with navy accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Atkins is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vance Little Roberson. She is a graduate of Greensboro College.

Mr. Atkins is the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. V. Atkins of Kernersville. He attended Elon College and now he holds a position in Winston-Salem where they will make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell Cowper, Mr. and Mrs. William Cherry of Windsor, honored Miss Vernida Roberson and her bridal party Friday night at a buffet supper.

The home was beautifully decorated throughout with spring flowers. Around the attractive arrangement of jonquils and forsythia on the buffet table were ham, shrimp salad, garden peas in casserole, hot buttered rolls, lemon tarts and coffee.

The bride-elect received a corsage of white carnations and a silver bread tray.

Mrs. Sherwood L. Roberson was the charming hostess at a coffee hour Saturday morning at her home on North Main Street Robersonville honoring Miss Vernida Roberson.

The living room and hall were decorated with large vases of spring flowers. When the bride-elect arrived she was presented with a corsage of yellow gladioli.

Mrs. Mayo Little greeted the guests and invited them to the dining room where the large table was covered with a white linen cloth. The centerpiece was an artistic arrangement of yellow carnations and greenery. Mrs. Vance Roberson, mother of the honoree, poured coffee. Mrs. Claude Greene, Sr., Mrs. B. L. Stokes and Miss Doris Little assisted in serving biscuits, chicken salad, cheese straws, sandwiches, nut rolls, cookies, pickles, olives and salted nuts.

Mrs. Bond Gillam and Mrs. George Mardre complimented Miss Vernida Roberson, bride-elect Wednesday afternoon at a floating tea from 4:30 to 5:30 at Mrs. Mardre's home in Windsor. Receiving with the hostesses were Mrs. Charles Sawyer, Mrs. Robert Turner Gillam and Mrs. Beil Cowper.

Jonquils and other spring flowers were used for decorations at one end of the table covered with a white linen cutwork cloth, centered with a vase of white gladioli. Mrs. N. C. Everett poured Russian tea. Mrs. Bond Gillam, who was seated at the opposite side of the table served the patty shells containing chicken salad, cheese straws, salted nuts, mints and rum rounds were served buffet style to about fifty guests.

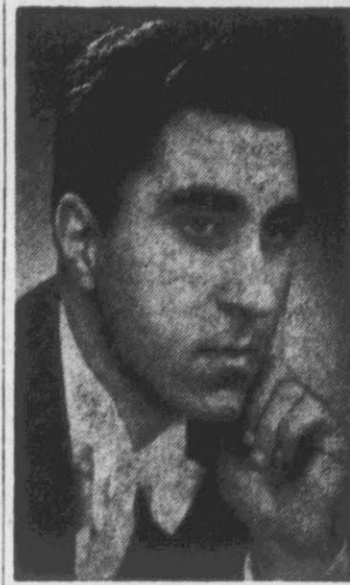

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Heath of Greenville, N. C., announce the engagement of their daughter, Irene, to Vernal Gaskins, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gaskins, of Winterville, N. C. The wedding will take place on May 9.

Children's Fair Held At Jarvis Memorial

A fair for the children of the Protestant Kindergarten was held last night at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church climaxed the past month's work of the school.

A large crowd of kindergarten students and their parents attended the fair which was highlighted by various activities centering around entertainment for the children. Each child had completed one project at home through the last two weeks, and had worked on a group project at kindergarten. At school the girls had made stuffed dolls and the boys had made a train.

A large activity room at the church was gaily decorated for the fair. An attractive and realistic mural of a "livestock exhibit" and another of a merry-go-round were painted by Mrs. F. Harding Sugg, mother of one of the kindergarten children, Ann Sugg. The music at the fair—songs, dances and rhythms—were directed by Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Cayton and Mrs. Thea Haddock, the Protestant Kindergarten assistant.

Herbert L. Causey was the clown for the fair and his daughter, Mary Alice, was his assistant, a little clown. Each family represented in the kindergarten took the responsibility for one of the activities or booths, which served hotdogs, pop corn, lemonade. Doughnuts were sold at a decorated cart, and dixie cups were pushed about the room in a gay tea wagon.

Exhibits of the work of the children were placed on tables in the hall and adjoining room. Mr. George Lautares sold tickets from a bright ticket booth placed at the main entrance. The door was decorated with streamers to simulate a tent entrance with crepe paper drapes. Streamers of red, green, yellow and blue draped from the center of the room to give the effect of a big top. The stage with a back drop picturing a merry-go-round was the center for rides.

Children who completed individual projects for exhibit at the fair included: Jane Jackson, basket, tamborine; Dolores Durvin, stuffed dog; Mary Alice Causey, doll cradle; Ann Lautares, braided rug, cookies; Kandy Vinci, scrap book, fir tree; Jo-Jo Kares, movie; Becky Holt, gingerbread; Myra Picklen, pot holders, doll, scrap book; Marianne McGlohon, stuffed doll; Nancy Forehand, clay village; Ann Sugg, stuffed dog.

Billy Respass, puppet, boat;

Taxi Passenger Took Over Wheel

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)—Taxi driver Arthur Stafford, 66, collapsed at the wheel yesterday. The taxi swerved across the center line of traffic and headed for crowds of shoppers in front of a department store. His passenger, Mrs. Virginia Rives, 25, climbed into the front seat and brought the vehicle to a stop. Stafford was dead of a heart attack when he arrived at a hospital.

LONDON (AP)—The Conservative government's bill to repeal the previous Labor regime's nationalization of the steel industry won House of Commons approval last night and was sent to the House of Lords for final action. Little effective opposition was expected in that predominantly Conservative body.

Commons voted 304-271 to approve, on its third reading, the legislation authorizing Prime Minister Churchill's government to auction off the vast industry after April 5.

In a noisy debate before the vote, Supply Minister Duncan Sandys, who is Churchill's son-in-law, said the measure will "undo the folly" of the Nationalization Act of 1946, passed by the previous Labor government.

Cool Reception Given Auto Liability Insurance

By JOHN HAHN
United Press Staff Correspondent
BOSTON (U.P.)—Massachusetts has had compulsory automobile liability insurance for 25 years but the program still is unpopular with just about everyone except those who get claim payments they would not otherwise have received.

Motorists not only are compelled to carry liability insurance whether they want to or not, they also must pay higher rates each year because these are tied to the increasing number of accidents and the rising cost of settlements.

Massachusetts, the only state to require motorists to have liability insurance, bases the schedule of premium rates on the incidence of accidents in the individual community.

Thus, cities usually have higher premiums because there are more accidents in heavily populated places and also because more motorists are registered in urban areas. Under the statute, an accident is charged against the home town of the person responsible, not the place where the accident occurred.

Companies Dislike It
Because city dwellers are charged higher premiums, they constantly demand a flat rate for the entire state. Any such suggestion naturally brings a flood of protests from suburban and country dwellers.

The Massachusetts compulsory liability insurance statute is perhaps most unpopular with the insurance companies which have to write the policies because:

- The law means regulation and added paper work. Persons must be insured because of state law, not because of business desirability.
- The statute means that companies must accept huge losses for which the only compensation is through higher profits from writing other types of insurance.

3. The unpopularity of the law jeopardizes the good will of the companies with the public. Sympathetic juries increasingly often award accident victims higher damages than their injury would warrant. Jurors, usually policy-holders themselves, apparently believe insurance companies have unlimited funds with which to settle claims.

Because the insurance companies are in business to make a profit, they pass on the higher costs of insurance to their customers in the form of increased premiums—thus completing the circle of mounting premiums.

Under the compulsory insurance law in Massachusetts, motorists must carry a minimum of $5,000 per person and $10,000 per accident in liability coverage. Property damage coverage is not required, nor is guest occupancy. Those extensions of coverage add to the cost of premiums.

Costs Passed On
Massachusetts passenger car owners paid a total of $22,134,323 for compulsory insurance premiums in 1947. In 1951 the total jumped to $31,125,242.

Over the same five-year period, passenger car registration increased from 744,562, to 1,020,702, a rise of 37 per cent.

Most startling is the boost in the number of claims paid. Insurance firms in 1947 settled 43,457 claims at an average of $329 each. But in 1951, the most recent year for which complete records are available, there were 69,319 claims at an average of $356 per claim—an increase of 61 per cent.

Massachusetts' highway fatality rate has been improving. Last year, with 1,670,053 cars registered, there were fewer deaths than in 1919 when only some 200,000 cars were registered.

More accidents, most of them non-fatal, together with higher claims for damages have been the ments are sometimes heard that the hotels and caterers get the tourist money, so why should the rest of the people be interested.

DISTRIBUTED—One paragraph in the Times-Herald piece reads: "Here are some figures to show just how wrong such statements are and how widespread the tourist trade does affect the city. From a study made of the spending habits of the 200,000 persons who attended the conventions last year it was determined that they spent 25 per cent of their funds on hotel rooms and incidentals; 13.7 per cent in hotel restaurants; 20 per cent in retail stores; 6.75 per cent on beverages; 6.4 per cent on night clubs and sports; 3.2 per cent on local transportation; 2.1 per cent on gas, oil and car service; 1.2 per cent on theaters; 1.1 per cent sightseeing and 6.4 per cent miscellaneous."

SAME HERE—Guides and taxi drivers, gas station attendants and shoe shine boys, along with hundreds of other persons in diverse occupations get a healthy whack at that $200 million. There are listed some of the outstanding attractions of the area, followed by the comment that "with it all it takes the human element to make business pay." Visitors who are treated discourteously are not likely to stay long or to come back. All that is needed to make the editorial fit North Carolina as accurately as it does Washington is to change the dateline from D.C. to N.C.

Truman To Again Toss Out Ball

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—Harry S. Truman, who officially opened major league baseball seasons by tossing out the first pitch while he was president, will get a chance to use his pitching arm again this year.

Mr. Truman has consented to perform the chore this season at Grandview, Mo., Baseball Park for the opening game of the Heart of America semi-pro League.

Anti-Freeze Has Early Advocate

CHICAGO (UP)—The Chicago Motor Club has warned its members to get anti-freeze in their cars before service stations exhaust their supply.

"Boy, that was a short spring and summer," one member said. A red-faced club official said the fall bulletins had been mailed by mistake, instead of those for the spring.

major factor in increased insurance costs.

Insurance firms have no choice. If a jury decides the loss of two teeth is worth $7,500 to a woman, the company pays the claim—and promptly boosts the premiums to reflect the increases in legal and court costs.

The insurance companies will stay in business. They merely pass on the increased costs to the insured.

Thus it costs more to get hurt and just as much to be protected in case you are.

Hawaii Racial Melting Pot Regarded As 'Showplace'

By GEORGE D. REMINGTON
United Press Staff Correspondent
HONOLULU, T. H. (UP) — Hawaii, which may soon become the 49th state, is a bustling melting pot where racial groups from all the world live and work harmoniously on the high standards of the U. S. mainland.

Food, housing and the general way of life in Hawaii all compare favorably to any typical U. S. community.

Hawaii's agricultural workers are the world's most highly paid. The 40-hour week is standard for most white-collar workers and pay scales are about level with those on the mainland. The cost of living is, perhaps, just a cut above that of most American localities.

As a territory, the islands never have been a drain on the mainland. In fact, Hawaiians like to point out that they have paid more in federal income taxes than has ever been returned in direct aid. Hawaii's economy is self-sustaining, but like many of her mainland neighbors, Hawaii faces several possible future problems in keeping healthy and prosperous.

Hawaii has no known natural mineral resources and man, of the other necessities of a modern society. Ninety per cent of what her 500,000 inhabitants consume must be imported.

Agricultural exports—principally cane and pineapples—earn the dollars that pay for less than half her imports. So-called invisible exports, principally goods and services sold to the huge military and naval installations and to tourists, account for the rest.

Markets for sugar and, to a lesser extent, for pineapples are more or less fixed by long-term pacts or consumer habits. Markets for invisible exports rise and fall, but not necessarily together, with the consumer goods markets. Hawaii's people, politics and government offer a good example of how people of many races can work together in the public interest.

In operation, Hawaii's government is little different from that of mainland state and local governments. But the names and faces of the men in her government are democracy's dream.

The governor is one-eighth Hawaiian. The president of the territorial Senate is of Japanese extraction. The speaker of the House is of Chinese ancestry. Hawaii's many races are distributed fairly proportionately in the legislature and public offices at all levels. No one race has attempted to band together to use its numbers as a political wedge.

Hawaii is traditionally Republican but there is no assurance it will stay that way. Honolulu has had a Democratic mayor for 12 years. The GOP has a one vote majority in the Senate, eight votes in the House.

But the Democrats seized the balance of power in the present House by lining up with seven maverick Republicans.

There still are 62,000 aliens in Hawaii, mostly of Oriental origin. But they are for the most part eligible for citizenship now under the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act. They are filing naturalization papers in droves.

There have been a few reports of racial discrimination—mostly in the left wing press. But there is no segregation in schools, pub-

Widening Rifts Seen Among Western Allies

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

At a time when the United States and its Western Allies should be pulling the hardest together, there is, in fact, a widening split.

The split is the result of both policies and personalities. From Paris this week, a high United States source saw fit to take public notice of an increasingly vindictive campaign against Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway among our Allies in the North Atlantic Treaty.

This man—not Ridgway—also saw fit to disclose a severe ammunition shortage in the NATO forces, at least partially due to the fact that our European Allies have not met their commitments.

This is bad enough. But further pointing up the gravity of the situation is a recent report issued in Geneva, Switzerland, by the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe.

The commission said that by 1960 the industrial capacity of the Soviet Union "will be equal or superior" to the combined total of the seven most industrialized nations in West Europe.

The West European countries are Belgium, France, Italy, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, United Kingdom and West Germany, which together have a population of 207,000,000. Russia has the same population figure.

The Reds' one big failure has been agriculture which as late as 1950 had not returned to the 1937 level.

The commission made the notation that increased production in the Soviet was in sharp contrast to the high resolves of the West European nations which lasted about as long as a new year's resolution.

Despite resolutions to increase West European industrial production 25 per cent in five years, last year's effort showed an actual decline.

Accompanying Europe's failure to meet its economic goals has been its increasing reluctance to meet its defense goals.

At least part of Europe's failure has been due to its own complacency—looking ahead to a pleasant day at the seashore rather than another Dunkirk.

Out of this has sprung at least part of the resistance to Ridgway. He reacted sharply when the NATO foreign and defense ministers set aside only half the money he and the United States chiefs of staff believed was necessary for air bases and other defense installations.

Now European newspapers criticize him for the way he conducts his cocktail parties, rather than noting the mounting strength of Russian arms and the fact that Russia has 175 divisions at West Europe's doorway.

Hungary Seeks To Increase Its Birth Rate

BUDAPEST (UP) — Hungary is worried about the falling birthrate, and a new decree imposes an additional tax on childless couples and penalties for abortions.

Some of the regulations in the new decree are:

No job can be refused to a woman on the grounds that she is pregnant. No expectant mother can be dismissed from her job on any other than disciplinary grounds.

Whatever grade of work she is engaged in, a pregnant woman is entitled to 12 weeks leave of absence. Working mothers are also entitled to extra time off every day to feed their children, while other mothers can stay home one day a month (for which they are not paid) to do housework.

Each new-born child is entitled to a layette worth 400 forints ($33) from the government, whether the mother is a worker or not.

All expenses involved at the birth will be paid by the state providing at least one of the parents contributes to the state health scheme for workers.

"Family allowances" for couples with more than one child are to be raised to encourage larger families.

Such allowances will in future be paid to agricultural co-operative members, and to farm workers, who previously were not entitled to them.

ROCKY HILL, Conn. (UP) — The fifth grade teacher at Moser School told her class each pupil was to be given the "patch" test for tuberculosis. One little boy didn't quite understand. "How can you tell whether we have TV at home by putting a patch on your backs?" he asked.

Sense Of Humor In Woman Is Different

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Do women have a sense of humor?

This short question, in various forms, seems to have provided fuel for masculine bull sessions since some forgotten Cro-Magnon man fractured his forehead with the first farmer's daughter joke.

Through the ages, a few things relating to the subject have been made abundantly clear. Most women believe implicitly that they possess this cherished quality and, in any argument on the subject, can silence the opposition by asking pointedly how they have been able to survive in a man's world without being able to laugh things off. Also to most women it is something short of a compliment to be charged—however admiringly—with having a sense of humor "like a man's." Finally, most women think it's pretty funny, actually, to hear a man complain that women can't laugh at themselves; each female has a memory of some hilarious episode when her accuser was the center of an accidental low comedy bit and met it grim-faced and wounded.

However, there are some indications that men and women, while they both laugh, tend to think different things are funny. Men, it seems to me, are more fond of jokes for the sake of their inherent humor whether it is in an office hot-foot or a staged pic-nic-drawing scene. Women like realism in their humor, real life or theatrical. Women would find it wonderfully funny if the Duchess of Windsor and Clare Boothe Luce turned up at the same function in the same imported, expensive hat. They think it's hysterical if a father, on a midnight ice-box raid, enjoys a dog-food sandwich.

Shirley Booth, one of the most adroit actresses of our time, has been studying reactions of audiences to humor for years, and may just have come up with a clue on the subject. Currently she's playing in a comedy, "The Time of the Cuckoo," on Broadway, and she remarked after a matinee that, judged by the reactions of audiences, an entirely different play was produced for evening audiences. The difference, of course, is that matinee audiences are largely composed of women; night audiences are co-ed.

"The matinee audience is much, much slower to laugh," she said. "And as a performer, you want and need a fast, quick reaction. But I've decided that women—unless they are around men and take their cues from them—need a little time to digest humor.

"Men, where humor is concerned, catch it like a tossed ball and immediately throw it back as laughter. Women are much more introspective. They catch the humor, then take it into their minds, where they match it up with some experience of their own. If they can relate it to something, they laugh. Men don't need to do that relating, and apparently women don't have to either when they are with men. Or maybe they laugh when the men laugh and then think it over later."

This necessity to personalize, one way or another, could explain the average woman's lack of appreciation for practical jokes and stories starting, "Did you hear the one about...?" Radio producers long ago, in soap opera, discovered the importance of association to women—heroines are women other women would like to be and the menaces are women other women can get up a good personal hate for. Such a line may be followed in their humor.

It is estimated that about 70 per cent of the meat eaten in North Carolina is pork.

To Avoid Widowhood, Marry Younger Men

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—There is one practical way for women to avoid widowhood and that is to marry men younger than themselves, a noted scientist said today.

Dr. Earnest Albert Hooton, professor of anthropology, Harvard University, was replying to an inquiry from the United Press science editor if science could tell women how to avoid widowhood.

There are almost 7,000,000 widows in the United States but only a little over 2,000,000 widowers because women live longer than men and marry when younger.

"Short of re-introducing the practice of suttee (by which Hindu women cremated themselves on their husbands' funeral pyres) I can think of no really effective method of equalizing the life spans of wives and husbands, he wrote. "There can be no doubt that the female of our species is the more durable animal. Since females are probably unwilling to be immolated on the graves of their deceased consorts, there remains only one alternative. That would be to change the current practice of age superiority of the husband so that wives would secure spouses sufficiently younger than themselves to offset the difference in their expectations of life.

"The main reason for men marrying women younger than themselves is that the adult male has to have an immature bride in order to satisfy his sexual and mental, personality, and in other respects.

"If men could only reconcile themselves to the mother-son relationship, which, as a matter of fact, is likely to prevail anyhow in successful marriages—and I mean by this the wife treating her husband as if he were, in a sense, her son—then it would be quite practicable for women of mature years to marry child husbands.

"The female who was senior by several years to her husband would naturally have to shoulder the larger share of the economic burden of family support. Of course, this whole mess has come about largely as the result of improved obstetrical care and the reduction in the number of offspring born to modern mothers with our 'American standards of

Hurricane Fliers Busy All Year

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (U.P.)—The men of Weather Squadron Two, fliers at the Jacksonville Naval Air Station who hunt hurricanes from May to November, don't loaf in the off-season.

They are constantly engaged in finding out more about the foibles of the weather.

For example, they are now filming a movie, "Aerology Flight Through Thunderstorms." Its purpose is to train Navy pilots to fly through any kinds of weather. Shots are made of planes actually flying through storms.

There's also project "AROWA." A detachment from the squadron was sent to the Minneapolis Naval Air Station to work on the problems of airborne release of plastic balloons designed to stay at a certain pressure level in the atmosphere.

These balloons, carrying a radar reflector, possibly could be placed in the calm "weather eye" of a hurricane to be tracked from a distance by radar installations on airborne radar-equipped planes.

Other duties include participation in search missions and the testing of new aircraft for use in night-tracking of hurricanes by radar. There are other jobs, but they are "highly confidential."

Interest Running High In College Student Election

East Carolina College students are experiencing this week the excitement and tensions of campus political campaigns, as the Student Government Association prepares for elections of its major officers for the 1953-1954 term. Interest is mounting over the campus through campaigns being staged by candidates.

Those seeking posts in the SGA will be presented at an all-campus assembly Thursday in the Wright auditorium and will make their final speeches to student voters. Balloting will take place Friday, March 20.

Arrangements for the elections are being made by the SGA Elections Committee, headed by Percy Wilkins of Benbow, president of the sophomore class. Dr. Clinton R. Prewett, director of student personnel at the college, is assisting students in drawing up plans for the event.

Mitchell Saleed of Greenville, Robert H. Hughes of Elkin, and Royce Jordan of Washington, N.C., are candidates for the position of president of the Student Government Association, most influential student office on the campus. Hughes is president of the college Young Republicans Club and business manager of the student year-book "The Buccaneer." Saleed and Jordan have represented East Carolina in intercollegiate debate tournaments held in North Carolina, Florida, and Virginia. Jordan is president of the junior class, and Saleed holds offices in both the Commerce Club and Circle K Club, campus branch of Kiwanis International.

Fifteen other SGA posts will be filled in Friday's elections. College marshals will also be chosen at this time.

New Report Card Tried At School

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (U.P.)—Getting a report card from a public school here is almost fun.

First graders take home a card with such entries as "I follow directions," "I clean my teeth," "I express myself well in clay," and "I sing songs in tune." Above each caption is a picture depicting the activity.

Older students, rather than receiving numerical or letter grades, are scored on three categories of progress: above average, average and below average. Included is a study of progress in habits and attitudes. Under "social attitudes," the card remarks that the student "shows good sportsmanship," and "pays attention when others are speaking."

Graded also are health habits, including posture, cleanliness and use of a handkerchief.

Teachers here who originated the idea point out that the cards attempt to give a well-rounded picture of students, noting social and personal development as well as schoolwork. Requests for information on the system have been received from many cities.

Election of the President of the United States has been thrown into the House of Representatives and there decided in two instances, Jefferson and John Quincy Adams.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARZUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

A woman's prerogative — to change her mind—is pretty well accepted. But the air conditioning industry thinks she isn't changing her mind fast enough about living in a sealed house where you can't open windows when you want to.

The luxury of year-round air conditioning in a home has more to it than glamorous appeal. Imagine having the temperature, humidity, circulation and freshening of the air always right whether you're sleeping, scrubbing, getting ready for a sun bath on the beach or a skating party on the lake! That's something—to put it mildly. Vacation resorts, take note.

But to make this practicable, within those exasperating limits of the family budget, it seems that a house ought to be built to take it. Of course you can cool a single room by buying a window unit or a console for about the price of a TV set. But for year-round "climate," as the enthusiasts call it, you'll get the most for your money by planning and building a house in such a way that you'll breathe only this specially conditioned air. Therefore, you'll keep that common outdoor air out of the house.

"In discussing the subject of the sealed house with the consumer," says a manufacturer's memo to his sales staff, "most men will say that their wives would insist on windows that open. On the other hand, once people have lived in an air conditioned home, they will tell you (wives included) that they never open their windows."

"This raises the question of which is easier to sell, use of fixed sash to reduce the cost of air conditioning, or the extra cost of air conditioning without any reduction through fixed sash."

This is serious business, because it is going to change the entire appearance of houses.

An architectural competition for houses designed for the best use of air conditioning is now being conducted by the Carrier Corp. More than 2,000 entries had been received at latest report. The designs will probably be something the like of which you have never seen, because the competing architects have been given engineering tips that completely upset ordinary planning ideas.

For example, the Carrier engineers say an air conditioned house "can be planned without concern for ventilation." They say that even the color of walls has a dollar value. "Heat gain through light colored walls is less than through dark colored walls. . . . The saving in cooling capacity required may range from 10 per cent up to more than 50 per cent. . . ."

Champions of so-called temporary design won't like to hear it, but the Carrier people contend that "a pitched roof requires about a third less cooling capacity to offset heat gain than a flat roof." However, they found that a flat roof with a white marble chip coating could throw off as much heat as a pitched roof.

The main gimmick of the competition seems to be to design a house that will save as much as possible toward offsetting the cost of air conditioning.

Various manufacturers have quoted original costs of air conditioning installations for an average house from $800 to $1,200 and more. This isn't bad in comparison with the cost of air conditioning in the new automobiles—which ranges from $600 to $700 or more, extra.

Your house is a lot bigger than any automobile, but of course, you also want to keep the operating costs down. So the Carrier engineers tackle this realistically. They figure that $80 to $120 could be saved in an average five-room house by having windows that would not open. No screens would be needed and airleaks would be reduced.

An air conditioned house could be planned with fewer corners. The experts figure that every jog in the shape of a house costs at least $50 to $75 per corner. Without the need for cross-ventilation, houses could easily be square or rectangular perhaps with interior bathrooms without windows.

A solid wall on the west side of the house, to shut out the hot afternoon sun, is figured to save $40 to $75 in windows. No need for a screened porch, when it's pleasant to stay indoors. This is put down for a $50 saving—which is low in our books.

In the South where summer cooling is most in demand, and where attic fans are fairly standard equipment, $170 to $300 is credited as a saving by eliminating such ventilators.

Architectural details have been figured out so closely that a 36-inch roof overhang is given a heat reduction rating of almost 50 per cent over a 12-inch overhang.

And Builder, spare that tree! Windows shaded by trees can be classed along with north windows—with a heat gain that is 22 to 68 per cent less than that through sunlit windows!

French Inventor Now Engaged By TV Industry

NICE, France (U.P.)—Ironically, the inventor of one of the so-called third-dimension movie systems that Hollywood is counting on to recoup against the ravages of television is now involved in adapting its system to give depth to TV programs.

The inventor is Prof. Henri Chretien, whose process called Hypergonar has been taken over by 20th Century-Fox and renamed Cinemascope. It will be put into commercial use this year by the Hollywood firm.

Chretien's process was available to movie people years ago, but there was no response then. Now the white-bearded 74-year-old scientist finds his system in demand for the cinema at a time when he hopes to apply it to television.

The system consist of a lens which, when attached to a camera or projector, widens the field of sight two and one half times. Successful experiments proved that such a "peripheric view" movie can be put on and screened from an ordinary 35mm. film with the peripheral image contracted on the sides of the frame.

Eight Years Of Work

"The great advantage of my system over others, such as Cinemascope, is that it requires only one camera and installation and is far less costly, both for theaters and producers," Chretien told the United Press.

It took nearly eight years for Chretien to perfect Hypergonar. On a rainy day in 1927, he attended a gala performance at the Paris Opera of the film "Napoleon," projected with three synchronized projectors. He was deeply impressed and thought the same effects could be achieved with only one lens.

After years of patient work he produced his first Hypergonar, from the Greek hyper (beyond) and gonar (angle). It was first shown publicly during the Paris International Exhibition in 1937, when a publicity film for a French electric company was projected on a 180 x 30-foot screen.

It was a great success but soon fell into oblivion, and Chretien, lacking funds, had to shelve his invention. His laboratory was destroyed by the Germans in World War II and he was unable to resume work until Hollywood offered him funds.

Late, But His Excuse Accepted

TOLEDO, O. (UP)—Patrolman Joseph Carnes had a good excuse for being 30-seconds late for roll call at the police station.

Carnes spotted a man Tuesday entering a theater who was wanted by police. Not sure the warrant was still in effect, the officer ran to the detective bureau to check it was.

Carnes then ran back to the theater, arrested the man and finally came running to roll call a little out of breath.

Mother Wants A Blue-Eyed Baby

NAPEVILLE, Ill. (UP)—Mrs. Louis Johnson, after giving birth to her 7th child, said she still wants to have a baby with blue eyes and blonde hair.

All the Johnson children have brown eyes and dark hair.

"It's not that I don't like brown eyes," the mother explained. "It's just that you get a hankering for a blue-eyed baby just for a change."

TWIN CONFUSION

SENECA FALLS, N. Y. (U.P.)—Law-breakers in this small central New York community are apt to think they're seeing double when they meet a couple of deputy sheriffs here. The town boasts what is believed to be the only twin deputy sheriffs in the nation, Victor and Arthur Balsari. To confuse the issue further, the two dress alike and always attend social functions together.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP) — Led by specialties, stocks registered an irregular advance early today. Trading was moderately active.

Gains in the specialties ranged to more than a point with a few issues showing much wider improvement. In the main list, however, price movements were extremely small.

The mixed advance was an extension of yesterday's upswing which carried prices to their best levels since early January.

Despite the firm undertone in the market, dealings were slow. Sales in the first hour totaled 350,000 shares, compared with 410,000 in the same period yesterday.

Montgomery Ward highlighted in the specialties, spurring 2 1/2 points to 63 1/2. American Cyanamid was another feature with a gain of 1 3/4 points to 50.

A few oil shares met demand. Texas Gulf Producing rose to a new high of 49 1/2, up 2 1/2 points, and Barber Oil ran up 1 3/4 points to 54 1/2.

Republic Steel, current favorite in the steel section, extended its advance with a gain of 1/2 to 52. Bethlehem Steel and U. S. Steel held at their previous close. Railroads and utilities were virtually unchanged.

Plan Revival To Start March 25

REV. W. D. MORRIS

Memorial Baptist Church, of which the Rev. Richard E. Hardaway is pastor, is planning a revival meeting for the week starting March 29 through April 5.

The visiting preacher in these services will be the Rev. W. D. Morris, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Scotland Neck for the past five years.

Rev. Morris is known as a strong preacher and evangelist. Before going to Scotland Neck he held pastorates in Elizabeth City, N. C. and in Norfolk and Roanoke, Virginia. He has conducted many revivals in North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland. He is a brother of the Rev. Frank Morris, pastor at Chester, S. C. and formerly at Winterville; and of Superior Court Judge Chester Morris of Currituck.

Music in the revival will be led by the adult choir under the direction of Mrs. Joan Gray, organist-director; and the youth choir, under the direction of Miss Florence McFadden, educational director of the church.

Services will be held each evening at 8:00 o'clock, and an early morning service will be held Tuesday through Friday from 8:00 to 8:40 a. m.

Brakes Failed, Wheels Locked, Overturned

Perly Manning, 37, of Wilmington, received minor injuries around 2:00 a. m. this morning when his truck failed to make a curve at Fifth and Albemarle Streets. According to Manning, the brakes on the truck failed and the wheels locked, causing the truck to hit the sidewalk and overturning. No charges were made by city police. Underground Parking In Chicago Upsets Street

CHICAGO (AP)—Michigan Avenue is being turned into a hole in the ground.

Chattering pneumatic hammers bit into the pavement of one of the world's most famous streets today, and chugging scoop shovels dug huge divots of dirt.

Only a three-block section, from Randolph to Monroe, is being torn up. And the defacement is only temporary—if you can stretch the term to cover a nine-month period.

The digging is being done for the city's first underground garage. Parking space for 2,359 cars will be provided under the boulevard and adjacent Grant Park.

Meanwhile, "Boul Mich." from the Chicago Public Library to a point near the Chicago Art Institute, will look like a garbage dump.

The smartly groomed people who operate the swank shops along the avenue take a dim view of the project.

"We don't like it," one merchant told a newsman. "We had to have the windows caulked to keep out the dust."

He said it had cut down on "impulse" trade—such as strollers who were smitten by, say, a $6.50 tie on view in the window.

Automobile and bus traffic has been diverted into a bypass.

The first thing that was removed from the path of progress was the peristyle at the north end of Grant Park. Folks used to stand in the shade of the classic columns and feed the pigeons.

Police Court To Resume Schedule Here March 23

Judge Charles H. Whedbee will hold the next session of Greenville Police Court Monday, March 23, he announced in court Monday.

Regular sessions will be held thereafter, Solicitor Eli Bloom said.

Whedbee, who was at Pitt Memorial Hospital about two weeks with a stomach disorder, is gradually recovering his health. His physician recommended a gradual return to his judicial duties. He and Mrs. Whedbee are spending several days at Nags Head, on the Carolina coast.

Parole Granted After 15 Years

A Negro sentenced to prison from Pitt County 15 years ago on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill former Police Chief George Clark, now deceased, went free on parole this week.

Milton Reeves, 33, was paroled from Central Prison in Raleigh to the state of New Jersey. Reeves was sentenced to serve from 12 to 15 years in prison as the result of a trial held in Pitt Superior Court in 1918.

His prison records indicate that Reeves had spent part of his time on escape, but actually had served seven years and nine months of his original sentence.

Officials at the Pitt County courthouse recalled this morning that Reeves was one of two Negroes who attacked Chief Clark after being placed under arrest by the officer. The chief was badly beaten by the two men before they made their escape.

The incident took place on Evans Street in Greenville during 1918. Chief Clark recovered and later participated in the apprehension of his two assailants. He testified against them in the Pitt Superior Court trial that brought Reeves a 12 to 15 year prison sentence.

Reeves was married to Alice Galloway Gorman of Greenville who survives with a son, James Scott Long of the home. Also surviving is a sister, Mrs. R. J. Teague of Roxboro.

The family request that no flowers be sent.

Prison Sentence Is Given Willie Waldon

"When it rains it pours". Willie Waldon (alias "Sambo"), Negro, probably would substantiate that adage today as a result of developments in two Greenville courts this week.

In City Recorder's Court Monday Willie was tried on two counts of forcible trespass and sentenced to a total of three years on the roads — two years on one charge and one year on another.

He waived preliminary hearings on six charges of breaking and entering and larceny and the six cases were sent up to Pitt Superior Court, which is in session here this week.

Justice Bone immediately sentenced Willie to serve from six to eight years in Central Prison.

Other cases heard yesterday

E. J. Dunn, pled guilty to driving drunk and fined $150 and costs and ordered to surrender his driver's license for 12 months; a charge of resisting arrest was not pressed.

Levi Tyson, charged with reckless driving and driving drunk, pled guilty to driving drunk and sentenced to six months on the roads, suspended provided he pay a fine of $150 and costs and remain sober and law abiding.

Archie Lee Smith, pled not guilty to assault with a deadly weapon but found guilty in jury trial, sentenced to serve two years on the roads.

Oren Tyson, receiving stolen property, called and failed to appear and capias instanter issued.

Roy Douglas Pierce, driving drunk, pled not guilty but adjudged guilty in jury trial, sentenced to three months on the roads suspended 12 months on condition he pay a fine of $125 and costs, surrender his driver's license for 12 months, and remain sober and law abiding. He was given 30 days in which to pay his fine and costs.

Clarence Harris, Jr., pled not guilty to driving drunk and adjudged not guilty in jury trial.

Dr. H. B. Kelly Resigning From Recreation Post

A letter of resignation was presented by Dr. H. B. Kelly to the Greenville Recreation Commission at its meeting Monday night.

Dr. Kelly is resigning the commission after serving one year, or being called into military service. The commission is investigating possibilities to replace Dr. Kelly and will recommend their findings to the Board of Aldermen.

Tyson Bilbro, chairman of the recreation commission, appointed K. T. Furelle and Heber Tripp to begin working on next year's budget.

The commission voted to set up playground equipment in Hillsdale Park. They will set up hobby horse swings and a climb-a-round for the children in that area. The commission is also planning to install a basketball goal in the Hillsdale Park.

The commission approved the teen-ager decision not to use the armory on Saturday nights.

Following the business meeting, a director's report was submitted by Warren Carroll, recreation director in the city. A budget report, activity report, and the recreation program for April was given to the members of the commission by Carroll.
