Seventeen Entries For Council Race After Late Start

By JESS POINDEXTER, Reflector City Editor. The period for filing as a candidate for the new city council closed Saturday afternoon, but during the 90-day period a total of 17 political aspirants threw their hats into the ring.

Not a single candidate filed with the city clerk during the first three weeks of the registration period, but virtually an epidemic of filing broke out in the city during the last five days set aside for that purpose.

Royce Jones broke the ice Tuesday morning when he became the first citizen to register his candidacy for the new council. Early Saturday afternoon R. E. "Yank" Howell, a member of the present Board of Aldermen, topped off the list by being the last candidate to file.

Howell, 41, is rounding out his second term as an alderman from the third ward. He was born in neighboring Edgecombe County, but has lived in Greenville for the past 36 years.

Howell's Statement. Relative to his candidacy Howell said today, "I elected I will continue to give the same service to the council that I have rendered on the Board of Aldermen during the past four years. I will make every effort to make the council-manager plan work and realize its fullest possibilities for Greenville."

The last candidate to register for the forthcoming May 5 city elections is "Barred" to the former Miss Lena Casaway of Greenville, and she has three children, Nancy, 17, Bob, 15, and Patsy, 10.

Specifications of the "Plan D" type of municipal administration eliminate a run-off in city elections, because the council-manager plan provides that the five top men in the balloting will be elevated to the new council.

The five elected members of the council will be sworn and assume their new duties at the next meeting following the election, Wednesday, May 5, at 10 a.m. From their ranks they will elect a mayor and may "pro tem" to serve during their term of office.

Hope Abandoned

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—The Defense Ministry abandoned all hope last night of recovering further survivors from the rammed submarine Dumlupinar 238 feet below the surface of the Dardanelles Straits. The total loss of life was put at 31 American-trained Turkish seamen.

Five men, including the sub's skipper, were saved. All had been on the conning tower early Saturday when the 4,990-ton Swedish freighter Nabeland rammed the Dumlupinar in pre-dawn darkness as the sub cruised on the surface three miles north of Canakkale, a fortress town near the southern end of the Dardanelles.

The 1,536-ton submarine formerly was the USS Bumper and was transferred to Turkey in 1950 under the mutual aid program. All her crew had been trained in the United States.

The Allied press supplied the biggest delegation to the first meeting of exchanging sick and wounded prisoners of war. Sixty-nine correspondents, including one woman, drove to Panmunjom in eight jeeps, two buses and two trucks.

The Communists had at least six (you can't tell Red newsmen from security agents) on hand, including Australian Wilfred Burchett.

The newsmen didn't make U. S. security guards happy by leaving the gravelled plaza in front of the conference building and press briefing tent littered with flash bulbs and paper.

"We ought to get the correspondents to police this place up," snapped Lt. Louis Balent, of Summerville, N. J., top U. S. security officer.

The actual exchange of sick and wounded has been dubbed "Operation Little Switch," to prevent confusion with "Operation Big Switch" the return of all prisoners of war.

Brief Clash Just Prior To Meeting

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—American Marines battled with 200 Chinese early today in no-man's-land close to the Panmunjom truce site, killing or wounding 63 Reds in a brief but bitter clash.

The western front battle took place only a few hours before United Nations and Communist negotiators met at Panmunjom to discuss exchanging sick and wounded prisoners of war.

A marine combat patrol prowling through no-man's-land within one mile of the truce village ran into a reinforced enemy company before dawn. Bitter fighting immediately erupted.

The Leathernecks used rockets, tank fire, artillery, mortars, machine guns and grenades. The Reds replied with 76 and 120-millimeter mortars.

Despite the enemy shelling, the Marines stood firm and refused to give an inch. One hour and 30 minutes later, the Chinese pulled out of the fight after suffering 63 casualties, more than half of them killed.

It was the bitterest battle in the western sector in two days. Just to the northeast, Chinese raiders drove onto a Marine outpost called "Teddy," hurled hand grenades for 15 minutes, then withdrew without piercing Allied defenses.

Action picked up considerably along the rest of the front after a relatively quiet East Sunday. The Reds started six fights last night and early today, but the Allies touched off 19 clashes.

In the air, 14 Superforts smashed two large supply storage centers near Pyongyang and Sariwon Sunday night, touching off fires and secondary explosions.

'Distinct Progress' On Returning Of Ailing POWs Offer Exchange 500 Daily

By LEROY HANSEN, United Press Staff Correspondent. PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The United Nations told Communist negotiators today they were ready to return 500 ailing Red soldiers daily within a week after agreement was reached on a swap of sick and wounded prisoners.

The U.N. offer was in a nine-point program put before the Reds at today's 48-minute opening talk on the exchange of ailing prisoners.

The U.N. negotiators said the first Allied-Communist talks in six months made "distinct progress." Both sides agreed to meet again at 9 p.m. e.s.t. Monday.

The talks may lead to resumption of armistice negotiations. Chief U.N. negotiator Rear Admiral John Daniel said he told the Reds today:

"We are prepared to repatriate directly through Panmunjom all sick and wounded captured personnel specified in article 109 of the Geneva Convention. We have not divided them into categories. We have total figures by nationalities which we are prepared to exchange."

The Communists raised the possibility of sending some categories of sick and wounded prisoners to neutral countries for the duration of hostilities.

The Reds move indicated they may intend in this way to broaden the terms of the exchange of seriously sick and wounded so as to include thousands of prisoners who do not meet the rigid requirements of "seriously sick and wounded" under the Geneva Convention.

Chief Communist negotiator Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho announced in the meeting that the Reds are ready to repatriate all sick and wounded prisoners of war "listed to be directly repatriated or accommodated in a neutral country...."

He cited articles 109 and 110 of the Geneva Convention. Article 109 calls for immediate repatriation, on a voluntary basis of seriously sick and wounded prisoners.

Article 110, which the Communists mentioned today for the first time, calls for the release to the custody of neutral nations those prisoners whose physical or mental condition would be improved by release from a prisoner of war camp.

The U.N. made no reference to release of other prisoners to neutral internment in its note given the Reds.

A U.N. spokesman said after the meeting that this was the first time that the Reds have indicated they might not want to send all prisoners directly back to the Allies, but would want to turn them over to a neutral country.

Today's meeting was the first major conference between the U.N. and the Reds since Oct. 3, when the U.N. called an indefinite recess in the truce talks.

Since October, only liaison meetings have been held at Panmunjom.

William F. Burchett, Communist correspondent for the Paris L'Humanite, told Allied newsmen that "if the U.N. still insists on voluntary repatriation then agreement is still far off."

Newsmen Were Largest Group At Korea Talks

By VICTOR KENDRICK, United Press Staff Correspondent. PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—Notes and footnotes to the prisoner talks at Panmunjom today:

The Allied press supplied the biggest delegation to the first meeting of exchanging sick and wounded prisoners of war. Sixty-nine correspondents, including one woman, drove to Panmunjom in eight jeeps, two buses and two trucks.

The Communists had at least six (you can't tell Red newsmen from security agents) on hand, including Australian Wilfred Burchett.

The actual exchange of sick and wounded has been dubbed "Operation Little Switch," to prevent confusion with "Operation Big Switch" the return of all prisoners of war.

There was bitter infantry combat during the night around Panmunjom, but during the meeting not a shot was fired, or at least none was heard.

Man Arrested In Shotgun Slaying

One Pitt County Negro was fatally wounded by a shotgun blast Sunday afternoon and a man is lodged in Pitt County jail facing a charge of murder.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson identified the dead man as Melvin Jones, about 37, who lived on the Heber Brooks farm near Grifton. Arrested and charged with murder is Booker T. Payton, 29, also of Grifton community.

Tyson said the shooting occurred at Jones' house about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Information of officers have been able to piece together, Tyson said, indicates Jones was standing in the doorway to his house and Payton in the yard in front of the house when the shooting occurred. The sheriff said both men apparently had been drinking and the shooting stemmed from an argument over a woman.

Jones was taken to a Kingston hospital yesterday afternoon following the shooting, but died this morning at 5:45. Payton was arrested about 9 o'clock last night near Hanrahan by Deputy Sheriffs Lloyd Manning, Jasper Lee Mills, and Grifton Chief of Police Herbert Adams. Officers were continuing their investigation of the shooting today.

The report said the number of federal employees in the Washington area dropped during February to the lowest level in nearly two years, as a result of mass layoffs in economic control agencies.

For the country as a whole, the government had 2,548,700 civilian employees on March 1. Of these, 242,300 were in or around the capital.

The Defense Department led the way in the economy drive, dropping 8,500 employees. Most other agencies showed little change in employment, despite a White House order to restrict the filling of job vacancies to "absolutely essential" cases.

The Soviet people are immensely satisfied that the accusations against prominent physicians proved entirely false as did the outrageous reflections on the honesty and respect of officials of the Soviet state," Pravda said.

Annual Closings

Beginning Wednesday afternoon Greenville business houses will observe their annual Wednesday afternoon closings during the summer months.

From now until mid-August local stores will close at 12:30 Wednesday afternoon. The business office and advertising department of The Daily Reflector will close at 3:30 Wednesday afternoons during the summer months.

Nine Points For Panmunjom Talk

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The nine-point program submitted by the Allies in prisoner-exchange talks today:

- 1. Panmunjom would be the site of the exchange.
2. Exchange would begin seven days after agreement is signed.
3. The U. N. would repatriate 500 prisoners per day. The Communist figure was left blank.
4. Twenty-five prisoners would be brought to the exchange point at one time, with each group accompanied by a roster with names, rank and nationality.
5. Each side would provide immunity from attack to 10-vehicle convoys bringing the POWs to Kaesong and Munsan with proper identification.
6. The description, time and other details of the convoys would be exchanged 24 hours before movement.
7. There would be free access to the neutral site with each delegation not to exceed 300 persons at one time including the "captured personnel" under control of each side.
8. Liaison officers will meet to arrange administrative details.
9. Provision for terminating date of the agreement.

Army And Air Force Appeal Wilson Orders Balking At Manpower Cuts

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Army and the Air Force are balking at manpower cuts proposed by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson as an economy move, it was learned today.

Informed sources said the Army has appealed to Wilson to cancel a planned slash in its troop strength, contending it would seriously impair the services' combat readiness.

The Air Force has entered a similar protest against a Wilson order to reduce its civilian payroll.

The appeals were the first shots in the "battle of the budget" which doubtless will be waged with increasing fury in the Pentagon during the next few weeks as the services resist economy edicts from the new Republican defense secretary. It is Wilson's job under the military unification law to pass on the competing demands of the various services for bigger slices of the defense dollar, and to try to hold the overall total down to the lowest figure consistent with U. S. security. Conversely, the heads of the various services have a duty to fight for the dollars, men and weapons they consider necessary to do their jobs.

President Eisenhower made it clear at his news conference last Thursday that he intends to have the final say, and that his decisions will be based on a careful weighing of defense needs against the need for a balanced budget.

Wilson has about completed his item-by-item review of the $45,500,000,000 military spending budget proposed by former President Truman for the 1954 fiscal year beginning July 1. Informants said his proposed revisions will soon be submitted to the White House for approval.

Although strict secrecy has surrounded the military budget review, there were indications that the Republicans have fallen short of their original goal of cutting it by about 10 per cent or $4,500,000,000.

Wilson made military manpower one of his first economy targets. He hopes to trim the present 3,500,000 man level of the armed forces, partly by cutting the size of some divisions in this country and partly by unseating some of the so-called "chair corps" in headquarters and administrative posts.

Federal Payroll Cut By 7,800 In His First Month

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Eisenhower administration pared 7,800 workers from the federal payroll during its first full month in office, a Civil Service Commission report showed today.

The report said the number of federal employees in the Washington area dropped during February to the lowest level in nearly two years, as a result of mass layoffs in economic control agencies.

Think Bohlen On Peace Mission

PARIS (UP)—Charles E. Bohlen, here enroute to Moscow to take up his job as U. S. ambassador, aroused speculation he was on a "peace mission."

French newspapers gave prominent mention to a belief, widespread here, that Bohlen was carrying a personal message from President Eisenhower to Soviet Premier Georgi M. Malenkov in answer to recent Communist peace overtures.

The new envoy arrived yesterday by plane with his wife, two children and dog. He said he will go to Germany Wednesday and spend a day or two there before proceeding to Moscow.

West Germany's Leader Arrives In America Today

NEW YORK (UP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer arrived here today with his daughter and an official party for a two-week political and sight-seeing visit—his first in this country.

Adenauer arrived on the liner United States and said he planned to see "all that your continent has to offer to us Europeans." He is the first chief of a German state to visit this country while in office.

In a prepared statement distributed as the liner docked, he expressed Germany's thanks "from the bottom of our heart" to the United States for "the many acts of help and kindness you have shown to us after our defeat."

He refused to discuss recent Russian peace moves, saying "On my return from Washington, I will be wiser than now and will answer all questions."

Budget Study Nearly Completed By Joint Body 'Open Session' Vote Slated

RALEIGH (UP)—An "open session" vote by the Joint Appropriations subcommittee on big budget items appeared near today—much earlier than action on a bill to repeal the new law to permit it to deliberate money matters behind closed doors.

Rep. Carl Venters of Onslow County, co-chairman of the subcommittee, said the group has very nearly completed its work on controversial budget items. A vote, required to be taken in open session, was scheduled early this week.

The full House Appropriations Committee will set a time and place for a public hearing on a bill to repeal the "secrecy" provision written into law to permit the subcommittee to deliberate in private.

Rep. J. K. Doughton of Alleghany, Appropriations chairman, may announce plans for the hearings tonight. Public hearings on the repeal were requested in formal resolution by the North Carolina Press association.

The liquor referendum spotlight will be on the House tonight where Rep. H. M. Moore of Clay County has indicated he may move to have his controversial "all or nothing" bill recalled from committee.

It would take a two-thirds vote to get the bill out of the Counties, Cities and Towns Committee, and dry forces have doubts that enough strength can be mustered for that. However, they remained confident that should the bill reach the floor they can win approval.

If the recall move is attempted, and fails, the showdown on the liquor referendum will come Wednesday. Both the House committee and the Senate Propositions and Grievances Committee have votes scheduled Wednesday on identical referendum measures.

Another dry strategy may be to try to force a substitute measure to be brought up for immediate consideration by overruling the speaker of the House. However that also would require a two-thirds majority.

The Finance Committee is scheduled to send Gov. William B. Umstead's $85,000,000 bond issue referendum bills to the floor this week. Some observers predict the committee may do some trimming in view of reports of below-estimated state revenues.

Umstead himself may spell out more clearly his recommendations for state financing this week at a press conference. He has been conferring at the mansion daily with legislative leaders, but his return to the Capitol—following a heart attack—is not expected before the legislature adjourns.

Adjourning is still a matter of how soon the lawmakers can finish the money matters. A public hearing is scheduled tomorrow by the Senate Propositions and Grievances Committee on a measure to outlaw betting at racetracks in the state. The measure is aimed at driving out the dog racing tracks at Moyock and Morehead City.

The rally will be preceded by a regional meeting of party delegates from eight Southeastern states here April 30 and May 1.

Jim Smith of Tusculum, Alabama's Democratic national committeeman said the purpose is to re-visit the formerly solid South to the Democrats who lost four Southern states to the Republicans last November.

Smith and Mrs. Dorothy Vredenburg, secretary of the national committee, have just returned from Washington where the executive committee met.

"Our aim is to recapture control of Congress in 1954 and the presidency in 1956," said Smith.

Pravda Says 2 Soviet Officials Faked Case In Charging Doctors

By HENRY SHAPIRO, United Press Staff Correspondent. MOSCOW (UP)—Pravda, the newspaper of the Russian Communist Party, put major responsibility for the "wonderful" arrest of 15 Moscow doctors on two high Soviet officials today.

Pravda announced in a first-page editorial the arrest of a man identified only as Ryumin—the assistant minister of state security—for falsifying documents which "accused Soviet citizens unjustly."

Supreme Court Recess Is Ended

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Supreme Court returns to the bench after a three-week recess today with school segregation heading the list of issues to be decided.

Five cases challenging the dual school system now in effect in 21 states have been before the court since last December. Some southern officials have predicted the destruction of public education if the court rules that Negro children may attend white schools.

One person was injured around three o'clock Sunday morning when the car above went out of control in rounding a curve and overturned. The car was being driven by Willis Patrick Pollard, 33, of Tarboro Route 2, Ramon Harris, 28, also of Tarboro Route 2, received a neck injury and was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment. No charges were placed against the driver by investigating officer James W. Boyles. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

New Y Hut At College Completed And Ready For Use Of Students

East Carolina College's new Y Hut has been completed, and the keys to the building have been presented by Business Manager F. D. Duncan to the presidents of the campus YMCA and YWCA.

The Hut is planned for student use. Vesper services conducted by the Y organizations will be held there; and the building will be available for other meetings, both religious and recreational.

An attractive one-story structure, the Hut is located on the south campus just to the rear of the college infirmary. A fine grove of pines, dogwoods, oaks, hollies, and other trees lends beauty to the setting.

More than twenty-five years ago the college acquired its first Y Hut. Until last fall the building was extensively used for religious services, meetings of various organizations, and recreational activities of students.

When the site for the new Joyner Library, now under construction on the campus, was chosen, it was necessary to move or demolish the old Y Hut. The building, a frame structure, was razed last summer; and much of the material was salvaged and used later in the construction of the new Hut.

The contract for the Joyner Library, Business Manager Duncan states, provided sufficient funds to move the old Hut to a new location. When it was decided to tear down the structure and rebuild it, the college Board of Trustees authorized the use of funds donated to the college for any purpose approved by the Board. So far as possible, college labor was used for construction of the new building.

The recently completed Hut is a cottage-type structure. The exterior is finished in brown asbestos siding, and doors and window frames are white. Steps leading to the entrance are of brick and are built in semi-circular pattern.

The main room within the building is spacious and well-lighted. It measures 49 feet by 32 feet. A handsome brick fireplace faces the entrance.

"We are indebted for the materials of the hardwood floors," Mr. Duncan states, "to the Garris-Evans Lumber Company of Greenville, who presented them as a gift to the college and to the YMCA and the YWCA."

Windows with sliding panes light the room on four sides. The heating system is connected with the college power plant. A kitchen equipped with an electric stove and a refrigerator, a porcelain sink, and ample cabinet space opens into the main room. A cloak room and an office are located near the entrance. Toilet facilities are provided in the building.

The Hut will be furnished by the YMCA and the YWCA, and a drive for funds for the interior decoration of the building will begin soon on the campus. A piano and some furniture from the original Hut will be used.

Romance Blooms After Quarrel 63 Years Ago

MORRISON, Ill. (UP)—An 80-year-old clergyman and a 90-year-old spinster were wed on Easter Day, patching a romance that was broken by a lovers' quarrel on Easter 63 years ago.

The Rev. Osmond Colegrove and the former Miss Isabel Jacobs said today they would not take a honeymoon.

The elderly couple said the marriage was the realization of "our early dreams."

Colegrove, who has officiated at hundreds of weddings, turned out to be a nervous bridegroom.

The Universalist minister started to kiss his bride too soon, realized the ceremony was not over and stopped, flustered. When the Rev. Frederick Ringe pronounced them man and wife, Colegrove kissed his bride soundly.

Colegrove recently underwent an eye operation and has poor vision. His new wife is hard of hearing.

"She's going to be my eyes and I will be her ears," he said. "We'll get along all right."

Neither of the newlyweds would discuss the lovers' spat that separated them on Easter Sunday, 1890. But Miss Jacobs let it be known that she had not carried a torch for Colegrove all that time. The bridegroom, who was newly ordained when the quarrel took place, later married. His wife died about a year ago.

After his wife's death, Colegrove wrote to Miss Jacobs and asked if there was any chance they could "realize our dreams." She said there might be. He visited her and finally, a few months ago, moved back to Morrison.

A full length film "King of Kings" was shown Sunday night at 7:30. The picture was sponsored by the Farmville Ministerial Association. Rev. Z. B. T. Cox, Christian minister, had charge of the service.

A report given by Mrs. S. E. Coffman on the prospect of a Pitt County Social Agency was heard with interest. She also read the budget and this was accepted by the league.

It was voted by the group to work with the Lions Club to sponsor a Variety Show. A committee of Mesdames House, Coffman and Gower will work with the committee from the Lions Club to plan the program. White-Roberson Vows Pledged In Candlelight Ceremony

BETHEL—Miss Janice Ward Roberson and Julian Jordan White Jr. were united in marriage at a candlelight ceremony in Bethel Methodist Church on Saturday, April 4, at five-thirty in the afternoon.

The Rev. N. W. Grant, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Leon Burel Roberson and the late Mr. Roberson of Bethel. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Jordan White of Greenville.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Russell W. Hunnicut, organist, presented a program of nuptial music. Miss Ann Byrd of Windsor sang "All For You" by Bertrand-Brown, and "I Love Thee Dear" by Grieg just before the entrance of the wedding party. As a ceremonial benediction she sang "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte. The traditional wedding marches by Wagner and Mendelssohn were used for the processional and recessional.

The church was decorated with floor baskets of white gladiol, snapdragons, and stock, and tiered candelabra holding white cathedral candles against a background of woodwardia fern. The pews were marked with small white bouquets and single burning tapers.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother. She wore a gown of heavy ivory slipper satin fashioned with a Basque bodice and full gathered skirt which ended in a long cathedral train. The off shoulder neckline was designed with a yoke of Brussels lace embroidered with seed pearls and the long sleeves were of matching lace which ended in points over her hands. The skirt had medallions of seed pearls across the front. Her full length veil of ivory illusion was attached to a cloche cap of satin and Brussels lace embroidered with seed pearls and caught up at the sides with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Donald Edward McKay of Long Island, N. Y., cousin of the bride, attended her as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Edwin E. Rawl Jr., sister of the groom, and Mrs. David J. Whichard of Greenville, Mrs. C. B. Rowlette, Miss Mary Todd Smith, Miss Jeanne Cullifer of Bethel and Miss Vivian Mercer of Rocky Mount. Little Miss Frances Rowlette attended the bride as flower girl. The attendants were gowned in dresses of blue nylon tulle and taffeta with fitted bodices covered with French imported lace extending into puffed sleeves. The gowns were of matching lace. They carried colonial American Beauty fans with sprays of delicate blue delphiniums and American Beauty roses. The flower girl was dressed identically to the other attendants. She carried a small basket tied with American Beauty ribbon and tiny rose buds and sprinkled rose petals in the path of the bride.

Mr. Edwin E. Rawl Jr. was his brother-in-law's best man. Groomsmen were Cliff H. Edwards, John L. Howard, Judson H. Blount, John F. Minges of Greenville, Larry M. James of Farmville, Boete A. Barnes Jr. of Wilson, Lt. John Surber, Whichard of Camp Gordon, Augusta, Ga. and Lt. James W. Lee of Langley Field, Va. Mr. Wade T. Ward, uncle of the bride, was head usher.

For the wedding Mrs. Roberson chose a floor length gown of pastel blue lace and chiffon and Mrs. White wore a gown of lavender and purple chiffon. Their corsages were purple throated orchids. Mrs. L. L. Ward, grandmother of the bride, wore a formal plumb colored gown of wine crepe with an orchid corsage. Miss Camille Staton directed the wedding.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride and groom were honored at a reception in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Rives Sr., conducted by Mrs. J. L. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Rives welcomed the guests into the drawing room and introduced them to the receiving line formed by the parents of the bride and groom, the bridal couple and their attendants.

The drawing room was lovely with impressive arrangements of carnation, marisal, snapdragons and smilax and burning tapers in tulle tied brass candelabra.

Directing the guests into the dining room were Mrs. J. T. Nelson of Long Island, N. Y. and Mrs. Harvey Ward Jr. of Greenville. An assortment of tasty and attractive sandwiches, chicken salad rolls, cheese dreams, nuts and mints were served from the beautifully appointed dining table covered with a tulle and lace cloth over white satin. Smilax entwining an artistic arrangement of burning white tapers in individual silver holders tied with bows of tulle complemented the centerpiece which was a wedding bell designed of lilies-of-the-valley, carnation, marisal, snapdragons and white lilies.

On the buffet lighted white tapers and carnation narcissi in silver epergnes encircled the three tiered wedding cake which was topped with a miniature bride and groom.

Serving individual bridal cakes from another table in the dining room was Mrs. R. H. Salisbury Sr. Assisting with the serving were Mrs. J. L. Gurganus Sr., Mrs. S. C. Whitehurst Sr., Mrs. D. C. Carson Sr. and Mrs. Irving Taylor.

Miss Camille Staton directed the guests to the hall where they were received by Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Taylor of Greenville, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hunnicut invited them into the den to be served punch by Mr. and Mrs. Wade Ward and hot coffee by Mrs. F. L. Andrews Jr. and Mrs. J. P. Hooker.

Mrs. F. L. Andrews Jr. and Mrs. J. P. Hooker. Mrs. F. F. Pollard met the guests at the door of the music room and invited them to register in the bride's book presided over by Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Ward Sr. and Mrs. J. D. Hemingway showed them to the sun parlor where good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Van Nortwick Jr.

Floral designs of vari-colored tulips, Dutch iris and gladiol and lighted tapers in tulle tied silver candelabra decorated the den, music room and sun parlor.

After the reception the bride changed to a light blue suit with fuchsia accessories for the wedding trip. The couple will be at home in Greenville following the honeymoon.

Mrs. White attended East Carolina College and is a member of Pi Omega Pi.

Mr. White attended Carolina University and East Carolina College and is a member of Sigma Alpha Alpha Epsilon social fraternity.

Honoring Miss Janice Roberson, bride-elect, Mrs. James Harvey Ward Jr. was hostess to a shower Monday evening, March 30, at the home of Mrs. Harvey Ward Sr.

Upon arrival, the honoree was presented a lovely orchid with matching ribbon and net.

The house was attractively decorated with lovely arrangements of spring flowers.

Following a delightful social hour, during which time games and contests were enjoyed, the honoree opened the shower gifts which had been attractively arranged on a table in the living room surrounding a miniature bride and groom flanked by white tapers.

The Easter theme was cleverly carried out in the decorations that accented the dining room table. At one end of the table a large lighted Easter bunny surrounded by eggs, bunnies and other Easter decorations formed an attractive background for the array of refreshments on the other end.

Refreshments included a variety of party sandwiches, mints, nuts, Coca-Colas and delicious homemade cream puffs.

Approximately 25 guests were present.

On Friday evening at 8:00 o'clock following the White-Roberson wedding rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Van Nortwick Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Whichard III of Greenville entertained members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a formal dinner at the Van Nortwick home which was impressive with artistically arranged pink snapdragons, pink dogwood and pink burning tapers in silver candelabra.

Miss Camille Staton of Bethel served punch to the guests before they were conducted to the dining room by Mrs. Whichard where they were served a dinner of ham, molded crab meat and tuna salad on lettuce, asparagus, Lyonnaise potatoes, hot rolls, lemon tartis and coffee.

The dining table was lovely with its white organdy and lace cloth over pink centered by an imposing arrangement of pink snapdragons and burning pink tapers in silver holders.

Serving in the dining room were Mrs. D. J. Whichard Jr., Mrs. D. E. McKay of Long Island, N. Y., Mrs. N. O. Van Nortwick Jr. and Mrs. Beulah Brown.

Upon arrival Miss Roberson was presented a corsage of Dutch iris and at the conclusion of the dinner the couple received a silver place setting in their chosen pattern.

The course dinner was served to approximately 75 guests.

Honoring the White-Roberson wedding party, immediate members of the families and out-of-town guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. C.

New Dignity For Easter Parade; Clothes Familiar

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—The record crowds that jammed sunny Fifth Avenue for this year's Easter parade brought new dignity to the event, but the clothes looked familiar.

It was the most orderly Easter parade in years, the police department commented after estimating the sea of well-dressed men, women and children at 1,250,000, more than double last year's figure.

Women on the lookout for new fashion trends weren't so happy. The neat look aptly described most of the clothes women wore. Small hats, well-fitted suits, numerous styles pulled tightly around shoulders when cool breezes made the temperatures seem below the prevailing 50's, and black patent leather shoes were the uniform of the day.

Television networks didn't depend on women showing off their Easter finery on Fifth Avenue for their fashion predictions. They staged their own fashion shows away from the crowds, with paid models and carefully picked clothes from designers' salons. There was plenty of commercialism on TV screens but at least it was a far cry from last year's frantic scramble to get in front of the TV cameras.

Only a handful of women showed up in silly headgear. One woman wore a grass-covered hat topped with cotton chickpeas; another appeared in a hat decorated with a cross, table and chairs for the last supper, chickens and a bird cage. Police finally suggested they keep moving.

Men sought attention too. A television actor walked down the avenue with a cat draped across his shoulders. The cat wore a straw hat. Another young man leading an Afghan wore a hat he described as "pheasant brown, imported from Italy, with a moire taffeta band."

The place to see celebrities was at one of the $2.00-per-person fancy hotel luncheons. Stars including Ann Rutherford, Sally Forrest, Tyrone Power and his wife, Linda Christian, were featured at the luncheons along with fashion shows and in some cases television interviews.

DEATH A BEGINNING

The landscape has apparently been dead for many months. A visitor from Mars landing on our planet would be amazed to find our stark trees, and the shrubbery which is only stalks. He would conclude that these trees and these shrubs had died.

But experience teaches us that they have not died. This wintry starkness is part of the cycle of life. Even now there are beginning to be signs of life on the landscape. Buds are beginning to appear on trees and shrubs. In a few weeks the hardy, colorful flowers will be out. In some sections of the country, they are even now past and withered. We are not just expecting this—we know it will come unless the whole order of the growing world is fundamentally changed.

There are people who lower the bodies of their loved ones into the ground with the feeling that this is the end. Of course it is not the end; it is the beginning. The quiescence of death is something like the winter quiet of the growing inanimate world. The power of life is still there. Soon the life of the natural world will mount up into the trees and into the shrubs. Lawns will be green again, the flowers will blossom, the gardens will bring forth an abundance of food.

This is all part and pattern of a life which goes on through the whole universe. Death is not the end, it is just the beginning.

Now For A Month Of Careful Consideration

Greenville's political scene has changed abruptly in the last five days.

Monday night it looked like a possibility that the five posts on the new city council would go begging. There wasn't a candidate in sight who had paid his dollar and put his name on the line for the May 5 election.

Then beginning Tuesday the political field took an entirely different form. It was bursting out with candidates and when the filing period closed Saturday at 5 o'clock, there were a total of 17 candidates in the race for city council.

As a result of the unusual amount of interest—for Greenville—shown in the pre-campaign activities, the voters of the city find themselves confronted with probably the most formidable array of candidates for municipal board posts that they have seen in several years.

To select from the number of candidates the five which will comprise the best possible board of directors for the business of the city of Greenville, is the matter which now lies in the hands of the people. Fortunately, the choice of the five men from the field of 17 to sit on the city council is not an overnight matter. Local citizens have a full month to consider the individual candidates, their qualifications for council posts and decide which candidates will make the best officials.

During the next four weeks, The Reflector urges the people of Greenville to carefully weigh each candidate on his own merit. Each citizen should be constantly aware that the sole responsibility of directing the affairs of Greenville for the coming two years will rest upon the shoulders of the five men who are elected to the council. This election—just as any other election—is of utmost importance to the future of the city. Yet this election is unique in that it comes at the moment in which Greenville changes its form of municipal government for the first time in more than half a century.

In addition to the usual responsibilities which go with directing the city's affairs, the five new councilmen will have the responsibility of smoothing over the rough spots which may be found in the transition from aldermanic government to council-manager government.

The unusual surge of interest on the part of local citizens in local government affairs during the fading days of the filing period certainly has been a heartening sign of good, progressive government. We hope an equal amount of interest is exhibited between now and May 5 as local citizens consider the candidate who are seeking council posts.

Someday There Will Be A Disparity To Remedy

One of today's facts of life is that society demands an ever-increasing sum of knowledge among its individual members. The thirst for knowledge has become almost a requirement for survival. In every field, once simple tasks have grown more complicated as better means of accomplishing their ends have been devised.

Satisfaction with things "as they are" has long since given way to dissatisfaction; civilization and society will not hold itself back to accommodate the drones among us.

Recognition of this and its accompanying problems is often brought to the fore among parents of those youngsters who come up with that declaration "I'm going to quit school."

Just about every young person passes through that phase; and its coming heralds a small family crisis. His, or her, resolve may have come about from any number of reasons. But the most outstanding characteristic manifested is a supreme self-confidence that school has little more to offer them in preparation for later life. Whatever the primary cause, they have concluded it's only a waste of their precious time to complete even a high school education.

In one respect, they are right: Their time is precious. There is so little of it in which to prepare for living. Each generation of children is confronted by higher standards and sterner requirements for adult livelihood; growing requirements that do not carry with them a correspondingly longer period of time available for preparation.

There is no end in sight to this ever-widening disparity.

Someday, somehow, the balance must be returned.

For the present, a high in utility is discernible in the stubborn childishness of "I'm going to quit school" when even the rudimentary training of high school has not been completed.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—America's educators may miss out on their great opportunity to build a popular school system for children and adults, based on the 242 television channels which the Federal Communications Commission has set aside for this purpose. They are finding it extremely difficult to accommodate TV to the classroom.

In the 12 months since the channels were made available after long study and considerable controversy within the FCC, only 14 construction licenses have been granted, and only 11 applications are on file. There is tremendous interest in this new adventure in learning, but a minimum of progress.

NO FIXED DEADLINE—Contrary to the educators' own belief, the period for filing applications in this field does NOT expire on June 2, 1963. There is no fixed expiration deadline, although the Commission cannot, and will not, hold these channels open indefinitely.

Commercial interests, with strong political backing, cite the lack of action as a reason why they should take over all or part of this reserved air space. Many sincere believers in using TV for higher pursuits than comedy or crime insist that the regular telecasting chains are better equipped to fulfill this function.

SOME DISCOURAGEMENT VOICED—In short, Commissioners Paul A. Walker and Frieda B. Hennock, the principal official promoters of this experiment, admit some discouragement over the present outlook. So does Milton Eisenhower, head of Penn State College, brother of the President and an apostle of education on the air waves.

There is considerable disagreement among state executives, whose legislatures must foot the bill for television universities sponsored by a commonwealth. Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York is hostile to the idea, while Governors John S. Fine of Pennsylvania, Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey and Earl Warren of California are keen for the innovation.

Significantly, no legislature has yet appropriated a nickel for the venture, although the necessary bills have been introduced in 20 states.

STATION COST—Money, as usual, is a principal deterrent to widespread acceptance of this opportunity for broadening and enriching the nation's educational system. The average cost for station construction is $250,000, and the annual upkeep runs to the same amount, but these charges can be cut.

Most states and municipalities are now debt-ridden. Many cannot dig up the funds to increase the low salaries paid to teachers, or to build badly needed new schools. Parents and taxpayers may complain. If large sums are paid out for what many still regard as a visionary and impractical project.

TV MIGHT OFFER ECONOMY MEANS—On the other hand, in view of the shortage of teachers and the increasing costs of educational facilities from elementary grades to universities, TV might offer a means for economy without any loss of efficiency.

The financial burden might be eased, if schools, museums, civic groups and educational organizations combined their resources. But ironing out deep-seated differences over classroom hours, curricula and control make this an extremely difficult solution.

Several foundations, including the Ford, have offered to finance TV education, but it is questionable whether even this kind of educational process should be entrusted to such an agency.

ENTICING VISTAS TOO COSTLY—Programming presents another major difficulty. A technical study of this problem destroys some of the enticing vistas which more enthusiastic advocates of educational TV have envisioned. To illumine history, literature, scientific progress and the world's wonders in the way they propose would cost billions, not millions.

They have suggested, for instance, that TV could depict Noah's voyages, the assassination of Caesar, the signing of the Magna Carta, Washington crossing the Delaware, the invention of electricity, etc. Though it is true that a TV scenario could make a deeper and more vivid impression than a dull textbook, to stage such scenes with top performers and proper settings is financially impossible. To do it with "hams" would make TV schools as unpopular as our present system.

There must be a function that TV can perform in this field. But so far there is more talk than action save for a few shining exceptions.

RALEIGH—The establishment of a tax appeals commission for North Carolina as proposed in a House bill heard by Judiciary I Thursday seems very improbable at this session. Similar effort failed two years ago.

The proposal is for a three man commission who would hear appeals from the decisions of the Commissioner of Revenue in Contested tax matters and serve as intermediary step between the revenue department and the Superior Court.

Appearing to favor the bill, at least to approve the objective sought, though not the exact text of the pending measure, were three certified public accountants. Appearing against it was Revenue Commissioner Eugene G. Shaw. That situation was sufficient of itself to indicate little hope for passage. The taxpayers and the accountants present all paid tribute to the efficiency and courtesy of the revenue commissioner.

T.N. (Buck) Grice, Raleigh CPA and an official of the State Association, took a middle-ground position. He is not enthusiastic about the bill, doubts that the time has come for a straight-out tax appeals commission or court, but he is definitely of the opinion there should be some provision for relief of aggrieved taxpayers. Whether this should be in an agency above the revenue commission, which would hear appeals from his decisions; or an agency below the commissioner from which appeal could be made to the commissioner, he was not sure in his own mind.

Several of the speakers made the point that at present the only appeal from a tax assessment is to the agency which made the assessment in the first place; and that doesn't seem to make sense.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

FARLEY IS SO RIGHT (Kinston Free Press)
Former Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley in an address before the Chamber of Commerce at Greensboro this week, issued an appeal for higher standards in politics and among office-holders in this country. He deplored the cynical attitude that now prevails and declared he was not confining his remarks to the Truman Administration but to "all governments in which office-holders do not do their duty."

Farley declared: "We are hearing today altogether too much in politics about what this or that party or this or that policy has to give toward the material needs of citizens and voters."

"People are concerned with the finer objectives of human life, with spiritual values such as patriotism, the love of home and the love of God. I deplore the cynical attitude that prevails in this country and others."

Mr. Farley has offered a timely word on an important subject. There has been all too much cynicism in government and among office-holders. There has also been too little interest on the part of voters in what goes on in Washington and in the state capitals and even the county seats and in municipal affairs. We share Farley's concern about this cynicism and agree that it must be replaced with much higher standards of public service if the free world is to get from America the type of leadership it needs to survive.

"OTHER PEOPLES MONEY" (Asheville Citizen-Times)
The Advisory Budget Commission and the General Assembly have received requests for more than $750 million in appropriations during the 1953-55 biennium. This figure doubtless will be trimmed by more than $100 million. Even then it will represent the largest budget in North Carolina history. Save for Federal grants and income from State-owned property, every dollar of it will come out of the pockets of North Carolinians.

What appropriations are particularly worthy and should be approved—and for what reasons? What appropriations are unworthy and should be disapproved—and for what reasons?

Most North Carolinians will never know in any detail. The people have been shut out of the deliberations of the Joint Appropriations Sub-committee by a censorship law which defies the traditions as well as the Constitution of this State. It provides for secret committee sessions, closed particularly to the press.

The three-quarters of a billion dollars which in the main will concern the Appropriations Sub-committee does not belong to the 22 gentlemen appointed to that august and powerful group.

In the famous phrase of Justice Brandeis, it is "other people's money"—the money to be spent or not to be spent, which will come from the taxpayers of North Carolina.

And how is it to be spent—and for what reasons? The people of North Carolina won't be told.

They are to be shut out, locked out, debared.

What travesty on the democratic process, this star chamber proceeding in a State which likes to call itself the most enlightened commonwealth in the South!

SUBSIDY MEANS DEPENDENCY (New Bern Sun-Journal)
It is difficult to see how exceptional may be taken to Agriculture Secretary Benson's statements that price support programs should be avoided, except as insurance against disaster and to help stabilize food supplies. If the country had not been conditioned by years of living under a benevolent, tax-squandering government the fundamental rightness of the secretary's position would be recognized by all.

The idea of looking upon perpetual prosperity as a natural right to be subsidized by government, regardless of cost, should be repulsive to every American citizen. In the first place, it is inconsistent with the ideal of a self-reliant people; and secondly, as everyone should know by this time, it leads nowhere but to more bureaucracy and ultimate national bankruptcy.

Our national administration should seek to preserve the political and economic liberties of the individual, and protect the nation from the communist menace. It should endeavor to halt a trend in domestic policies which destroy our freedom. It should strive to stop wasteful spending and depreciation of money caused by government promising too much to too many.

Men of Secretary Benson's caliber are trying to prevent our fifty-cent dollars from becoming twenty-cent dollars or ten-cent dollars. They are opposed to the false security of the welfare state or, in plainer words, the police state. They are proceeding on the assumption that the people agree with them and are worthy of the privileges bestowed upon them by our constitutional republic.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
People today probably don't spend any more time thinking about the future than they did a decade, or even a century, ago. But they certainly have been coming up with more fascinating possibilities in the past few years.

Seemingly grandiose hopes by reputable and sane men are too often considered offshoots of the science fiction boom among our children. Often overlooked is the fact that children's fantasies are results, not the causes, of their elders' musings. Science fiction is not prompting the wild dreams of our civilization. But research and invention are inspiring some amazing science fiction.

Does a fountain pen that will never wear out and never need filling seem impossible? Or washing machines that will clean clothes better, faster and with less wear through use of ultrasonic waves?

Waterman Pen's Robert D. Howe thinks the perfect pen will come. What's more, he says, it will be made of extremely light materials such as lithium or beryllium. Wayne University's Dr. Ernest B. Yeager put forth the washing machine possibility. The principle is already being used in cleaning metal bearings.

Other capable businessmen and scientists are making "educated guesses" on what the next two or 2,000 years might hold for humanity, including:

Meals chosen and cooked in the store for home consumption while the housewife does the rest of her shopping is a possibility proposed by Nabisco's Edney Johnson.

Moving sidewalks to speed pedestrian traffic forecast by B.F. Goodrich's John L. Collyer.

Vast sources of food in seaweed, in addition to huge oceanic resources of minerals and chemicals, may be developed. Carnegie Institution's Dr. Vannevar Bush believes:

Aluminum automobile engines to reduce weight are undergoing experimental work in several laboratories.

Ironic instead of chemical or nuclear rockets may be the answer to interstellar travel, according to D.G. Samaras of U.S.A.F. Wright Air Development Center.

And: wireless transmission of power, lifetime razor blades, fire-fighting devices using high frequency sound waves, inexhaustible power supplies in solar energy and new and better synthetic fibers, pharmaceuticals, plastics, and alloys.

The difference between science fiction and industry's musings is that businessmen are aiming at practical product improvement

rather than romance. "QUALITY" MAIN REASON FOR SWITCHING BRANDS
Price ranks second to quality as the reason for switching brands, a survey by the University of Oregon indicates. Third most important reason is advertising; fourth is friends' suggestions, and fifth is salesmanship.

Of the 21 product groups studied, quality placed first in 20. Importance of price, however, varied a great deal from product to product. The 3,635 persons interviewed who changed brands in the past six years did so 24,401 times, or more than once a year on the average.

However, a consumer's reason for changing brands and what he thinks is the reason, unfortunately, are not necessarily the same. Marketing research would be a cinch if they were. Some of the most effective advertising influences people unconsciously and truly successful salesmanship lies in convincing the prospect that he convinced himself.

As Professor N.H. Gomish, director of the survey, points out, the real significance of the interview is the frequency customers admit to in changing brands and the complex variety of reasons for doing so.

"CLEARING HOUSE ON WHEELS" TO AID BANKS
The latest skirmish being fought in the banks' battle against the time and cost of handling the rising flood of checks involves special trucks supplied by an armored car company.

Forty banks in the Nassau County in New York have been plagued by five-to-eight-day delays in clearing checks issued in that area. Soon special trucks will be picking up the checks daily and depositing them with the Nassau Clearing House. Participating banks hope to have checks cleared to their proper banks within a day.

One phase of the plan calls for concrete and steel vaults placed outside the banks so that pickups and deliveries can be made without disrupting the bank during business hours.

Under the present system, checks are mailed to New York City for clearance and then returned to Nassau.

NEW PRODUCTS
GRINDS: A new grinding wheel for tool rooms, made of zirconium-bonded silicon carbide, is being offered by Electro Refractories & Abrasives Co., Buffalo, N.Y., as a substitute for scarce and expensive diamond wheels. Said to grind both shank steel and carbide with a greater depth of cut, it requires the learning of a new grinding technique.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—Two young veterans here in less than seven years have parlayed $5,000 and a dream into a multimillion dollar business empire built on fire extinguishers, haircuts and household chemicals.

Every thing that Lewis Wessel and Alvin Meyer touch seems to turn to gold and they can't stop touching things.

"We try to stay out of new things now—we've got about all we can do," said Lewis. "But if it's exciting, we can't stay away from it."

Wessel, now 36, and Meyer, 35, played on the streets of New York together as boys and have been lifelong friends. Each had a small business and had to liquidate it when they went into service during the Second World War.

Lewis, as an Air Force lieutenant in Europe, and Al, as a combat aviator, dreamed of going back into business on their own when the firing ceased.

"Neither of us wanted to work for anyone else," said Al.

One evening in 1946, while they were playing bridge, Lew mentioned a new product he was interested in—a compact fire extinguisher, no larger than a flashlight, for use in homes or autos.

Al liked the idea, too. They formed a partnership with $5,000 they had saved. Lew, an exceptional card player, had saved some of his $2,500 from his wartime winnings.

"Everyone we talked to said we were foolish," Al recalled. "They said people wouldn't buy anything they didn't expect to use and nobody really expects to use a fire extinguisher."

But by recruiting a nation-wide sales force, the two partners soon were selling the cheaply priced fire extinguishers like grass seed in April. At first they commissioned a metal firm to make them, then bought the firm with their profits. Now their metal plant and its products gross about $1,500,000 a year.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Several years ago a jam session was held in the Capital. Real jam too. Strawberry jam. How much strawberry should the jam contain? What is strawberry jam?

This was a public hearing, set up by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to set standards for fruit preserves and jellies. Representatives of the preserve and jelly industry, consumers, home economics specialists and Administration experts presented evidence on what standards should be. Today these standards, which require that all parts by weight of sugar, are the official specifications for such products.

This is only one of the steps taken in the government's effort to get honest, informative labeling on foods, drugs and cosmetics so that you, the consumer can get your money's worth and guard your family's health. On the label the packer, or manufacturer is required to tell you what is inside the package, but officials say you need to know what to look for on the label in order to be a good purchasing agent for your family.

To help you out, the Food and Drug Administration has published a pamphlet, "Read the Label." It's "Miscellaneous Publication No. 3" and you can get it for 15 cents in coin by writing: Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D.C. (Please do not write this newspaper.)

"We sell more than 2,000 of these pamphlets a month," says an FDA official told me. "Thousands of women throughout the country are interested in knowing there is such a thing. It's good for business too. If people read the label and get what they want they're likely to be pretty satisfied customers."

The label must be easy to read and understand under ordinary conditions of purchase and use, and the common or usual name of the food must be on the label. Imitations must be prominently labeled. If it's imitation black pepper, for instance, instead of black pepper compound, it should be so stated.

Ingredients must not be named or listed in a misleading way. For instance, are you buying a can of "chicken with noodles" or "noodles with chicken"? If contents must be stated in common units of weight, measure and content—not "Tomatoes, 1 pt. 4 Fl. Oz." or "Tomatoes, 1 Lb. 4 Oz."

THE HEART OF JULIET JONES

BLONDIE

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID S. BARUTNER, AP Real Estate Editor

The luxury of wood paneling, once restricted by its cost to baronial halls and mansions of the wealthy, has been brought within the reach of almost every home owner by fancy wood veneers on modern plywood.

veloped, taking advantage of nature and embossing the grain of the wood. This is accomplished by running the panels through a machine with power driven metal brushes. The soft spring growth in the wood is slightly gouged out, leaving the harder summer growth standing out in raised contrast.

We seldom realize that the intricate grain patterns we see on fine furniture were created by the speeding up and slowing down in the growth of a tree. When a log is sawed straight across, the rings of annual growth are easy to see. When the log is split into boards, the rings are shown in stripes or waves. The light colored part represents fast spring growth; the dark shows the slower, denser summer growth.

By processing a slice of such wood under metal brushes, the depth of brushing is kept to a minimum so that the wood grain is brought out in subtle relief, while the surface still remains relatively smooth. The result is a texture that catches light from any direction and displays a sharp pattern in shadows.

This type of plywood, known as Wedge Wood, is made with a surface of old-growth Western upland hemlock. The raw logs are selected for their relatively tight grain, brought about by slow growth. The surface is resin sealed and slightly pigmented with white in manufacture. This reduces porosity to a point where one coat of paint will cover.

Striking finishes can be obtained with stains, lacquers or two-tone paint wipings. In the latter process either a light or dark tone is applied, then a contrasting or complementary shade for a second coat is wiped off, accenting the texture of the grain.

The Georgia-Pacific Plywood Co. reports that tests have shown that all knots remaining in the thinly sliced veneer will stay put. Those that drop out in manufacture are replaced with plastic, which is grain ed to simulate natural knots, and the complete material is cured in a hot press.

Wood veneer is about as old as the pyramids, but its development on split-resistant, hot pressed plywood with waterproof adhesives came about since the 1930s. These modern improvements not only have made veneers practical and durable but have given us the use of fine wood for places where we never could have used it otherwise.

Although thin sheets of decorative wood were shaved or split off and glued to blocks of lesser woods in the days of Egypt's pharaohs more than 3,000 years ago, the result was not plywood. There were no balancing cross-grain layers to distribute strength and combat shrinkage and warpage.

The complete history of plywood was outlined by Thomas D. Perry in a symposium on wood at the Centennial of Engineering Convocation last fall in Chicago. Anyone interested in the technical story of wood can get a copy of the entire symposium report from the Timber Engineering Co., 1319 Eighteenth St., Washington 6, D. C.

Protest Jazzing Of Tribal Song

MALACCA (AP)—A traditional Malay song adapted to Western music has drawn protests here. Malays have taken exception to song sheets of "Terang Bulan" printed in Australia describing the tune as based on a tribal melody. The Western version of the song is called "Malayan Moon."

The Malays claim the song is a traditional melody, the anthem for Perak state for years.

Theology School Has Rare Bible

DALLAS (AP)—One of what is claimed to be the only two known copies of the large church edition of the Geneva Bible is at the Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University, here.

The copy is on loan from Summerfield Roberts, Dallas oil operator, who acquired it 10 years ago. This Bible, printed about 1560, was a strongly Puritan version compiled by the stern reformer, John Calvin. The Geneva version was the Bible of the Pilgrims and the first settlers in Virginia.

Cocoanut Shells Spread Disease

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The coconut, economically important to the South Seas, plays a part in filariasis, a disease that plagues millions throughout the islands, says Dr. David Bonnet of the University of California, (L.A.).

Major cause of the filariasis, the mosquito, seems to breed anywhere there are a few drops of water. A favorite breeding place is in rainwater-filled coconut shells and small holes in growing coconuts, gnawed by rats.

WHERE ELSE? JACKSON, Miss. (UP)—Mrs. E. J. Alsworth, who not long ago moved here from Mobile, Ala., later reunited with her father after 24 years of searching for him. She found him living in Mobile.

Sports Reflections

Time and again the question is asked, why won't major league teams play several exhibition games in North Carolina each spring?

There are always a couple of the exhibition contests played but for the most part the big-timers seem to want to get through the Old North State as quickly as possible.

One of their main reasons for such actions was illustrated yesterday in Winston-Salem. A loose board on the fence in Winston-Salem's old Southside Park caused Washington outfielder Gil Coan to fall and break his ankle. The incident puts a crimp in Washington's plans for a fast getaway when the American League action starts and could cost Coan his baseball career.

The condition of North Carolina's professional baseball parks is a sad thing. Raleigh Devereux Meadow, which could easily be one of the best in the state, is in such a neglected condition in the spring that practically every one of the major league clubs has refused to play exhibition contests there anymore.

Winston's Southside Park has been the subject of discussion for years when sorry ball parks are mentioned. There are others throughout the state in similar condition.

Coan's accident in Winston yesterday will cause major leaguers to think twice before they schedule any more games for that particular park. It, too, will cause them to think twice before they consider further exhibition contests in any part of the state.

Pro baseball is having enough trouble in North Carolina. It might be well for city fathers and club officials to take stock of the condition of their parks and playing fields. That might help to revive sagging attendance figures.

STRONG "PITCH"
WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (UP)—Bud Podbielan is making a strong "pitch" for the Cincinnati Reds' opening day starting assignment. The 29-year-old right-hander, a Brooklyn Dodger castoff who had a 4-5 record with the Reds last season, became the first Cincinnati pitcher to go full nine innings when he scattered seven hits Sunday and beat the Washington Senators, 6-2. Both Washington runs were unearned.

REYNOLDS GOES AGAIN
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP)—Big Chief Allie Reynolds, whose last pitching performance for the New York Yankees was impressive, will try to go the full nine innings today against the Birmingham Barons.

Reynolds, hampered by back trouble early in spring training, pitched eight innings and yielded only one run against the Phillies last Wednesday. He will go as long as his arm feels strong today.

DICKSON TO START
NEW ORLEANS, La. (UP)—If nothing else, the Pittsburgh Pirates can count on little Murry Dickson as their opening day hurler next week.

Dickson, Manager Fred Haney's most reliable pitching hope, allowed only two hits in the last four innings Sunday as the Pirates beat the New Orleans Pelicans, 5-1. The teams meet again today.

LEMON GETS CHARGE
ALEXANDRIA, La. (UP)—Bob Lemon gets the Cleveland Indians' pitching assignment today to try and snap the New York Giants' three-game streak in their exhibition series. Larry Jansen will pitch for the Giants.

For the first time since March 15, neither team hit a homer Sunday as the Giants trimmed the Indians, 7-2, with the help of some fine pitching by Sal Maglie. The Giants walloped Bob Feller, Bob Chakales and Lou Brissie for 16 hits.

LIVING UP TO NAME
FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—Rookie third baseman Ray Jablonski of the St. Louis Cardinals is living up to his minor league reputation as a long-ball hitter.

Jablonski hit his fourth homer of the spring training season with a man on base Sunday to give the Cards a 3-2 victory over the Houston Buffs in a game called in the eighth inning because of rain.

BAKER RETURNS
CHARLOTTE, N. C. (UP)—Del Baker returned to the coaching lines for the Boston Red Sox today in an exhibition game against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Baker was assigned the first base coaching box by Manager Lou Boudreau. He rejoined the Sox last week.

The Red Sox' game against the Memphis Chicks Sunday was cancelled because of rain.

four-way tie at 282 among Jay Herbert of Erie, Pa., Max Evans of Detroit, Al Smith of Annapolis, Va., and Fred Wampler of Indianapolis.

Barber, a former infantry corporal, has been on the tourney trail four years. In that time he has become one of the steadiest money-earners in the game despite his inability to win a first prize. He has finished second in the Eastern Open and the Sioux City, and taken several third prizes.

McLane Returns For Triple Win

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UP)—Jimmy McLane the slim Yale swimmer who sank from champion to chump, popped back to top today with a rare triple triumph in the National AAU indoor championships.

In the week-end competition in Yale's 25-yard Payne Whitney pool, McLane swept the 220-yard, 440-yard and 1,500-meter freestyle races.

He led the New Haven Swim Club, made up of Coach Bob Kiphuth's Yale stars, to the team title for the third straight year with a record 143 points.

The 22-year-old star's triple put him in exclusive company. Jack Medina, John Marshall and Ford Konno are the only other swimmers ever to win three national titles in a single meet.

Konno, who swept the three events last year, did not compete. The absence of Konno and such other Ohio State stars as Dick Cleveland and Yoshio Takawa gave New Haven a runaway victory. But it was the first recordless AAU meet since World War II, mainly because Ohio State's flying fish from Hawaii weren't on hand to press the Yale men.

McLane, an AAU champion at 13, was called the world's finest swimmer before he got to Yale and won the 1948 Olympic 1,500-meter title at 17, when most boys still are collecting autographs from sports heroes.

But after winning the Olympic title, McLane didn't win a major crown until this weekend. He was second, third and fourth last year as Konno swept the indoor freestyle races here. At Helsinki last summer, Konno's 1,500-meter triumph clinched the unofficial team title for the U. S., while McLane

Deacons Risk Record Against State Squad

By The Associated Press

Wake Forest's undefeated Deacons risk their clean record today when they resume Southern Conference competition in a Southern Division baseball battle with North Carolina State. The game is scheduled for Raleigh.

The Deacons are tied with North Carolina's Tar Heels for the Southern Division lead. A victory against State would give Wake Forest undisputed possession of the top spot.

Wake Forest's two conference triumphs a week ago over the Citadel. The Deacons have also won four other titles. State, with an overall 2-3 record, dropped its only loop encounter Saturday to Clemson, 8-4.

Clemson has a chance to pull in to tie with Duke for third place in the standings today when the Bengals invade Davidson, beaten in all four of its games to date.

Other action, all non-conference, on today's program finds William and Mary at the Quantico Marine Base, Michigan at George Washington, and Ohio University at Duke.

State left 18 base runners stranded Saturday in bowing to Clemson. Ed Horbel, State's starting hurler, couldn't get a man out in the first frame, gave up three hits and five runs. Southpaw Robbie Saylor allowed three of State's four tallies.

He left the game in the fifth with the bases loaded and two out. Reliever Neil Bates got out of the jam. North Carolina breezed past Furman, 7-1, as Chai Port held the Paladins to eight bloop. Bobby Roberts went the distance for Furman and dished out 13.

The Citadel surprised South Carolina, 4-2, behind the seven-hit twirling of Wofford Bubba Williams.

In games with outsiders, Williams tripped Duke, 7-2. Ohio thrashed Davidson, 12-4, and Wake Forest routed a Northern Division club, Washington and Lee, 16-2.

Conference play in the Northern Division gets under way this week—Wednesday, to be exact, when Virginia Tech travels to George Washington. George Washington has the best record of any Northern team, having posted victories in all of its four outings against inter-sectional foes.

In tennis today, North Carolina State is host to Colgate. Duke entertains Georgetown, and North Carolina meets Presbyterian at Chapel Hill.

North Carolina's net squad scored another shutout Saturday when the Tar Heels blanked Georgetown, 8-0, the same score by which Davidson lost to invading Dartmouth. In a second match, North Carolina didn't have it so easy with Michigan State, the Tar Heels winning by 6-3. Duke defeated North Carolina State, 6-2, and The Citadel edged High Point College, 4-3.

Seven conference golf squads are busy today. South Carolina goes to Duke, and Davidson visits Clemson in circuit clashes. Colgate is at North Carolina State, Dartmouth stops off at George Washington, and Notre Dame goes to North Carolina.

San Francisco (UP)—Joe Dimaggio, who used to be called "Joltin' Joe" by the baseball writers but who now answers better to the description of "Jovial Joe" is heading back to New York for the opening of the major league baseball season.

His ties with the national pastime completely severed, Joe will spend his first year in nearly 20 seasons without a direct connection with the game he loves.

But he doesn't feel a bit bad about it. He'll leave Hollywood for New York on April 12. But when he gets there, no one in the big city need shed any tears for the one-time star of the New York Yankees.

"If I had wanted to stay in baseball I could have played another three years," said Joe. "I quit because I knew my reflexes weren't what they used to be. The pitchers were throwing them in there and I wasn't getting away from them. I wasn't hitting the way I should."

The most famous of the Dimaggio baseball brothers doubts wound up fourth in a record-smashing race which saw the first seven finishers better the old Olympic mark.

Boston Red Sox To Gamble With Rookies This Season

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (UP)—Continuing his accent on youth program, manager Lou Boudreau of the Boston Red Sox is going to gamble again this season, figuring that it will pay off with a pennant.

Noted for their power in recent years, the 1953 team will feature speed, defense and, Boudreau hopes, glib-edged pitching.

"With our lack of power, we'll need mighty fine pitching if we hope to finish in the first division," Boudreau explained. "But our aim this year is to develop more youngsters who will win championships for us in the future."

In line with that program, his present plans are to start 1953 with an outfield of Gene Stephens in left, Tom Umphlett in center and Jim Piersall in right. Boudreau believes they could develop into one of the finest defensive trios in the league.

Dom DiMaggio will not be ready to play until after the season opens because of his eye operation. The veteran Hoot Evers may share left field duties with Stephens, but it looks like the veterans Clyde Vollmer and Al Zarilla may be on their way out.

It appears rookie Milt Bolling has beaten out the veteran Johnny Ligon for the shortstop spot. Dick Gernert, of course, will be at first with Billy Goodman at second and George Kell at third.

Sam White will be the No. 1 catcher, backed up by two veterans, Gus Niarhos and Del Wilbur. Mel Parnell (12-12), Sid Hudson (10-13), Mickey McDermott (10-9) and Willard Nixon (5-4) will be the starting pitchers when the season opens with the veteran Ellis Kinder (5-6) working into the rotation, around June 1 when the weather gets warm.

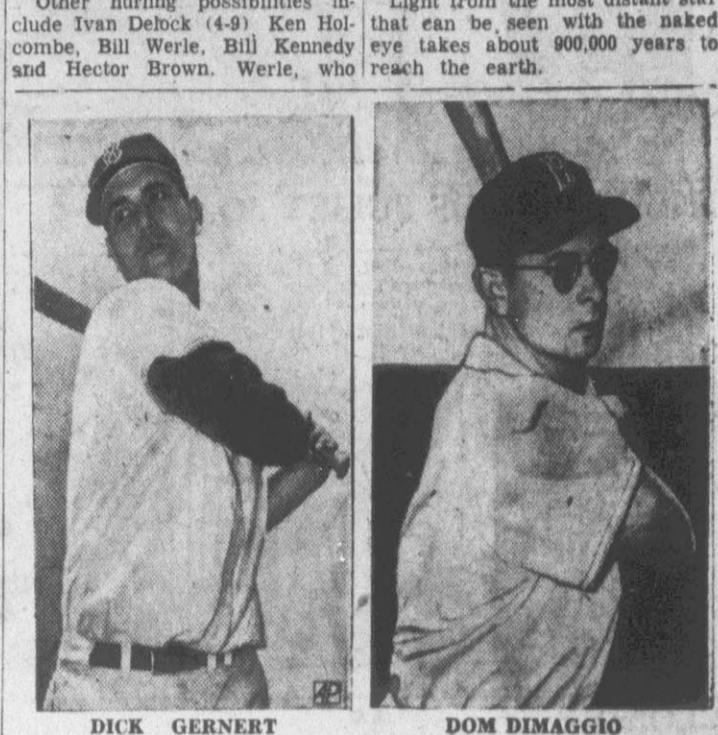

Two rookies, Bennett Flowers, who won 11 and lost 10 at San Diego last season, and Hershel Freeman, an eight game winner with Louisville, may win starting berths along with the veteran Marv Grissom (12-10 with the White Sox last year).

Other hurling possibilities include Ivan DeBock (4-9) Ken Holcombe, Bill Werle, Bill Kennedy and Hector Brown. Werle, who was with the Pirates and Cardinals last year, could win a starting role.

Light from the most distant star that can be seen with the naked eye takes about 900,000 years to reach the earth.

Crucial Week Coming Up In North State Baseball

GREENSBORO (AP)—The crucial weeks in the North State Conference baseball races are coming up now.

No games have been played in the Western division, but East Carolina is away out in front in the Eastern division with a class 3-0 record. ECC's wins over Atlantic Christian, High Point and Guilford are the only conference tilts on the books so far.

Three Eastern games and two Western games are scheduled this week. Lenoir Rhyne is the defending loop champion.

Elon, the 1952 runnerup, takes on East Carolina Friday at Greenville. Western Carolina is at Catawba the same day to start the Western ball rolling.

Saturday High Point will be at Guilford, Elon at Atlantic Christian and Western Carolina again at Catawba.

The Eastern division includes East Carolina, Atlantic Christian, Elon, Guilford and High Point. On the other side of the fence are Lenoir Rhyne, Catawba, Appalachian and Western Carolina. Division winners will meet in a post-season playoff.

Azalea Open Winner Gets Bid To Masters Tourney

WILMINGTON, N. C. (UP)—They Jerry Barber, already overjoyed by a $2,000 check for the first major victory of his professional golf career, reaped another big surprise. Veteran pro Doug the glittering Masters Tourney starting at Augusta, Ga., Thursday.

The 26-year-old Laganada, Calif., pro received his coveted Masters invitation by telephone just a few hours after he had reached the winner's circle for the first time with a 12-under-par 276 in the Azalea Open here.

Masters Tourney Chairman Cliff Roberts had another invitation for Dick Mayer of St. Petersburg, Fla., who did not compete in the Azalea. Both were admitted to the select field as "two players not otherwise qualified who have the best stroke averages on the winter circuit."

Barber's blazing finish gave him the invitation by a narrow margin over Art Wall of Pocono Manor, Pa.—a 71.25 average to 71.29.

It also gave the Azalea gallery a big surprise. Veteran pro Doug Ford of Harrison, N.Y., Ted Krull of New Hartford, N.Y., and Johnny Palmer of Charlotte, N.C., already had finished in a tie at 277 and it seemed certain that would result in a tie for first place, forcing a playoff.

But little Barber, at five-foot, five inches one of the smallest players ever to play regularly on the tourney trail, still was on the course with an outside chance of winning. Because of his size, Barber doesn't get much distance on his shots but he's recognized as one of the best chippers and putters in the game. And that's the way he played it coming down the last nine.

Each time he came to a crucial putt, he'd remove his glasses and sink it. He racked up three birdies on the back nine and came down to the last hole needing a par four for a final-round 68 that would give him the tourney. His second shot on the 28-yard hole was on the green, but his putt for a birdie was short by inches.

Barber took off his glasses—and sank the big putt.

Ford, Krull, and Harrison had to settle for second prizes of $1,066.66 each. There was a three-way tie for fifth place at 279 among Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and Francis (Bo) Wimmer of Oklahoma, each earning $606.66.

Tommy Bolt of Maplewood, N.J., third-round leader who shot a final-round 73, tied with Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., at 280, and then came Pete Cooper of White Plains, N.Y., at 281, and a PROFIT BY MISTAKE—Accidental reticulation in developing accounts for this unusual pattern on an ice-skating negative shot by Jerry Kastan. Enlargement shows the results.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

One of the camera fans in the office didn't follow all the usual darkroom rules while developing roll films recently, and he's not sorry a bit. On the contrary, he wishes he knew exactly where he made his error, so he could do it again! But that calls for an explanation, lest I be accused of encouraging sloppy darkroom work.

When Jerry Kastan first inspected his negatives, he knew something had gone wrong. They were marred by a fine network of cracks. He came around for an explanation. The trouble was easily diagnosed as reticulation, which is a defect caused by the rapid expansion, then shrinkage, of the swollen gelatin of the negative emulsion. It is usually caused by extreme temperature changes of the various solutions, or wash water, during the development process. It can also be caused by transferring film from a very alkaline developer to a very acid fixer without a rinse. Quick drying in an air stream which is too hot can also bring about reticulation.

In short, at some point the emulsion gets too hot and when it is eventually cooled and dried, it cracks. These cracks show up when prints are made and become more noticeable according to the degree of enlarging. However, instead of ruining all pictures, sometimes the pattern adds a decorative touch. For that reason, reticulation has become another technique in the bag of darkroom tricks used by the modern, creative school of photographers to enhance otherwise routine pictures.

Jerry wasn't aware of all that when he offered me his picture to use as a warning to others to watch the temperature of all solutions during developing. I didn't accept it because the pattern was too small to reproduce acceptably in newspapers. However, when Jerry began to play around with the negative in the enlarger, he was agreeably surprised. At greater magnification and by cropping just a small section, it made an unusually interesting picture. So much so that he didn't have to offer it to me for free. . . he sold it to U.S. Camera magazine!

Well, there's another darkroom calamity you might try for unusual effects. Ordinarily you'd scream if some one turned on the white light while negatives were being developed. Yet active image to turn into a positive image sometimes adding pictorial effectiveness. It'll take a lot of knows-how-many ruined negatives before you'll find out at what point in the negative development you flash on the light, and for how briefly.

As for me, I'll make sure that developer, hypo and rinses are all in the 68-to-70-degree range and that's how solarization is achieved. That the wash water temperature isn't too far away. And I don't have to worry about accidental solarization. I use daylight developing tanks and the covers are always in place.

City Folks Said Top Promoters Of Square Dance

BOXBORO, Mass. (AP)—"It's very strange, but it seems city folks make the best square dancers," says Bob Treysze, square dance caller and farmer. He should know. He has called for dance groups on the American east coast from 10 up to 3,000. He says it's a wholesome sign "When you see whole families coming to square dances together."

He thinks the group fun of square dancing, now producing greater enthusiasm in cities than in the country, is an answer to shyness, awkwardness and juvenile delinquency. And it doesn't cost much: Just a few records and a good caller.

A curious thing happened when Treysze conducted a sort of United Nations square dance for students from many different parts of the world.

"The men and women, all from far-off countries, danced together as though they had done it all the time," Treysze says.

Holy Bulls Of India Blamed For Communal Riot

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's holy bulls received the blame for a communal riot in Delhi in which 21 persons including 12 policemen were injured and scores arrested.

Replying to questions in the national parliament, Home Minister Kailas N. Katji said the Hindu extremist Jan Sangh and Hindu Mahasabha organizations were holding a mass meeting when stray bulls suddenly charged into the crowd.

Members of the organization mistook the resultant disorder for a police charge with lathis (staves), the minister said, and commenced a bombardment of stones which necessitated police action to break up the meeting.

Meanwhile the bulls, which wander unattended through Delhi's streets, went peacefully on their way.

Ranchers' Tailor Finally Retires

VICTORIA, Tex. (AP)—Master tailor Max Stockman, who began his 68-year career as an unpaid apprentice in Latvia and ended as a tailor to Texas cattlemen, has laid down his shears, needle and tape.

The 75-year-old Stockman has plied his trade under two Russian czars and eight American Presidents.

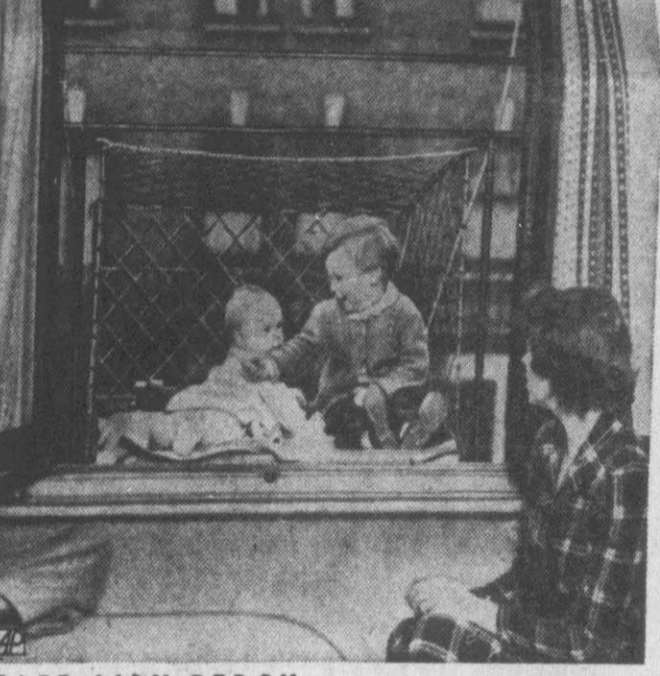

He became a tailor's apprentice when he was only 11 years old. When Czar Alexander's draft became uncomfortably close, he fled the country.

Teenagers Could Use Diet Change

HARRISBURG, Pa. (U.P.)—The typical teenager in Pennsylvania could well make a number of changes in diet, according to nutrition experts from the State Department of Health.

Mrs. Anne De Planter Bowes, who heads the department's nutrition division cited the findings of a survey among 3,109 "typical teenagers" of both sexes from various sections of the state and from low, average and high income families.

The nutrition experts made a careful analysis of the food eaten in one week by the group. Hundreds of cases of fatigue, poor skin conditions, nervousness, poor dental health and weight problems resulting from poor diet were discovered.

The survey found that only one-fourth of the teenagers ate the right number of calories recommended for their age and rate of growth. Only 52 per cent ate the recommended amount of protein. Boys met that test slightly better than girls.

Less than 50 per cent consumed a quart of milk per day, which is recognized as the best source of calcium to build strong bones and teeth.

Ancient Gilt Coins Are Found

RANG MAHAL, Bikaner, North India (AP)—Sweden's 11-member archeological expedition in the Rajasthan Desert has uncovered rare gilt coins "never before found" dating back at least to the time of Christ.

Dr. Hanna Rydh, Stockholm archeologist who heads the excavations, declared that three of the gilt coins were discovered in a batch of 20 coins of all types in a tiny dwelling room in this excavated village.

Georgetown Will Open New Clinic

WASHINGTON (AP)—Georgetown University Hospital will open the world's third clinic devoted to the treatment of muscular dystrophy.

Muscular dystrophy is a non-contagious disease that wastes away the voluntary muscles and, eventually, the entire muscular system. It always is fatal.

Dr. Francis M. Foster, Georgetown's head neurologist, said a feature of the clinic will be physical therapy for victims of the disease. The treatment is not a cure, he said, but helps in prolonging life and maintaining physical condition of the patients.

Ozarks Have Their Own 'Grandma Moses' Artist

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Mo. (U.P.)—Mrs. Laura Ann Turner, 82-year-old widow, painter and writer of folklore, is known as "the Grandma Moses of the Ozarks."

Mrs. Turner signs all her verses and paintings, "Hillbilly Ann."

Unlike Grandma Moses, Hillbilly Ann began painting as a girl. She started writing verse during World War I when her two sons were in military service.

A native of Illinois, Mrs. Turner has lived in this Ozark region for more than 50 years. She moved to the outskirts of Mountain View with the first of her five husbands, a traveling optometrist who fitted her with a glass eye to replace the eye she lost in a childhood accident.

Finger Painter
Hillbilly Ann's paintings are primitive but strong in line and color. They have a personal quality that appeals to many tourists looking for an inexpensive memento of the Ozarks.

Using ordinary household enamel and a piece of cardboard, she disdains brushes and employs a forefinger technique. Her rural landscapes, log cabins, and ocean scenes come out of her imagination rather than from reality.

Living alone since the death of her last husband, a preacher, Hillbilly Ann manages to do all the odd chores around the house despite a partially paralyzed left leg. She is best known for her mimeographed booklet, "Meditations of Life, the Poetical Works of Hillbilly Ann."

THE VOICE OF LOVE

William Neubauer

Chapter 28

Ruth took a cashmere sweater from the drawer, draped it over her shoulders and went out in answer to the fourth knock Dan gave on the door. She smiled at him quizzically. "Want to see me, Dan?"

"He grabbed her arm. 'Where've you been? I've gone crazy these last two weeks. Where the devil have you been?'"

"Would it be too melodramatic to say I've been on the rack?"

"Where," he asked bitterly, "do you suppose I've been?"

They swept by the veranda en route to the bench overlooking Main Street and the sea. As she sat down Ruth found herself thinking that this bench had become pretty important in her life. So many important things had been said while she'd been seated on that bench. Here a beginning had been made one afternoon when she'd talked to her mother. And now? The conclusion of the thought left her sad.

"Pretty, isn't it, Dan?"

He nodded. "I like the play of sunset on the water. If I were an artist I'd paint nothing else."

"You might remember this, Dan. When New York gets you down you might stop and think about this. You'll see a great many places and scenes in your life, but you'll never find a lovelier view than this."

His brows drew together. "Oh, am I leaving?"

"I think so, Dan."

"And why?"

"You don't want the humiliation of defeat, Dan. You're proud. As Doctor said, you like to walk the highroad. Well, that's all right. The highroad leads everywhere, and I suppose it's a nice road to travel. But if you stay here you'll fall from it."

He laughed confidently. "I doubt it. The polls indicate we'll win hands down in October."

"You're wrong, Dan, quite wrong. 'Or you may be,' he said huskily.

For a long five minutes they sat in silence.

"All right, I was wrong to do what I did. But so what? Look, Ruth, I love you now, and you love me. I want to marry you. I want you to wear that ring I bought for you."

"And, of course, help you win your battle. Too late, Danny boy. I've already come out against you."

He released her then. He got up and walked to the pipe-iron rail. He gripped the upper bar so tightly that even in the twilight she could see his knuckles whiten. "You did?"

She turned and strode away. But halfway across the lawn he stopped. There were cries of "Extra!" in the night. A newsboy came running in answer to his whistle and thrust a newspaper into his hand. He opened the paper, laughed shortly, and returned to the bench. He handed it to her. A sharp smell of printer's ink stung her nostrils; beneath her fingers the paper still felt damp. She studied the big, bold headline. There were just three words, but the message left her cold. She stood at them until they blurred over, until she could hardly make out the announcement: Private hospital abandoned. She scowled. "I see."

"Any questions, Ruth?"

"Sean O'Malley telephoned Doctor's decision. It was clever. He knew very well that I couldn't make an investment under those conditions. It's what I said to Bob one afternoon. He wouldn't invest in a business, risk his all, for profits others determined were fair or unfair. That isn't the private enterprise system."

"This time she did feel sorry for him. She'd gotten to know him at last."

"This meant a lot to you, didn't it, Dan?"

He nodded.

"It would have to, of course," she mused. "Only a very sincere man, only a very ambitious man, would think it terms of—well, of using me that way. Suppose you hadn't fallen in love with me? Suppose you'd succeeded, turned me against my family, my friends, and gotten your hospital? And then suppose the time had come for you to stop pretending love? What would I have done then, Dan?"

"It was pretty vile. I told you I'm ashamed."

"And that makes it all right?"

"I'll make it up to you, Ruth. She folded the paper and rose. 'I'd like to know how.'"

He was at her side instantly. He took her into his arms. "I'll marry you. I'll work for you. Ruth, I'll give you the world! We'll travel. We'll—"

"I'd like my illusions, Dan. I'd like to have the wonderful, wonderful love that people talk about. Can you do that, Dan? Can you give me back my heart, my belief in people, my belief in love?"

"Ruth, listen to me!"

"What can you say, Dan? What can you do?"

"—Ruth, Doctor's offered me a job. We'll stay here and—"

"Dan," she said clearly, "I don't really care where you go or what you do. I'm sorry, but I just don't care."

She dropped the paper over the rail, and left.

FINNISH EXODUS SLOWED
HELSINKI (UP) — Emigration from Finland in 1952 showed a considerable decline over the previous years, according to the Central Bureau of Statistics. It reported only 5,967 received emigration papers, or one third of the total in 1951 and about half the total in 1950. Almost 4,000 of last year's emigrants gave Sweden as their destination.

Have 'Portable' School System

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Portable schools, one of which was ready before home builders could catch up, have been helping San Diego meet the needs of its swelling population. The portable units are set up and put in use while permanent construction is planned and completed. Then they are moved on to the next emergency location.

Two are meeting the situation in the new Clairemont district, where 6,000 homes and apartments are scheduled for completion by 1948. The school authorities moved faster than the developers in this instance and one of the portables was vacant for several weeks until the first pupils enrolled.

Clairemont's two portable elementary schools now serve 800 families. School authorities estimate there will be 6,870 families within 18 months. Four permanent elementary schools and one permanent junior high school are planned.

San Diego's population has increased from 203,341 in 1940 to 434,000 counted in a special federal census in 1952.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks resumed their decline on increased volume today. Tickers were running late as noon approached.

The selloff came after a brief respite late last week on reduced trading. Today's first hour sales of 510,000 shares contrasted with 890,000 shares in the first hour Friday but were below the 640,000 shares in the first hour last Monday when the Korean truce talks first hit the list.

The industrial average sank to a new low since Nov. 18 and the rails to a new low since Nov. 21. Losses were much smaller than early last week, however.

Wall Street experts had anticipated further declines in the market and held the move was in line with usual market procedure.

A sidelight on the share market was further demand for repudiated Imperial Russian government bonds on the American Stock Exchange. The 5 1/2 per cent issue which matured in 1921 sold at 5 1/4 per cent of par, up a full point from Friday's close and up exactly 100 per cent from the year's low of 1/2.

Losses in the share market ranged to 2 points in Texas Pacific Land Trust. Most other oils fell. Bethlehem made a new low and General Motors and Kennecott equaled their lows. Douglas, off nearly two points, and Grumman were at new lows in the aircrafts.

Her car was damaged on the front and damage was estimated at $700. Officer T. E. Gladson said the accident was still under investigation. The accident occurred Saturday afternoon.

A juvenile was involved in an accident Saturday afternoon with Dr. C. F. Irons at Rotary Avenue. Dr. Irons told police his car was parked on Rotary Avenue when the car driven by the 14-year-old boy made a right turn off Fourth onto Rotary and hit his car.

Damage to Dr. Irons' car was estimated at $100 and damage to the car the youth was driving was estimated at $75. Officer Gladson said investigation was incomplete.

Three cars were involved in a wreck Saturday morning but only two cars were slightly damaged.

Officer W. C. Flake reported no charges were made against the drivers. A car driven by Richard Parker, Negro, 24, of Greenville was backing out of an alley on Albermarle Street and struck a car driven by Daniel Earl Brown, 36, forcing Brown's car into a car driven by Johnny Johnson, Negro, 23.

Damage to Brown's car was estimated at $75 and damage to Johnson's car was estimated at $15. Royce Jones, 37, of Greenville, was involved in an accident Monday morning at 1:14 with Herman Hardison of Route 5, Greenville on Grande Avenue and Dickinson Avenue.

Both drivers told investigating officer W. B. Cole that they did not see each other until they hit. Damage to Jones' car was estimated at $75. No charges were made by police.

Arrested, and turned over to Marine authorities, were: Pfc. Norman R. Wayne, of the Second Marine Battalion. His age was given as 21. The second occupant was identified as Corporal Harold Borden, 19, of the same unit.

The automobile was stolen from the base at around 4:30, Jackson stated. Radio reports were issued at 5:15 and fifteen minutes later the car and its occupants were in the hands of the law.

Dedicate New House Of Worship In City

A new house of worship was dedicated in Greenville yesterday, April 5.

With identical services at 11 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. on that date, the Christian Science Society of Greenville dedicated its new edifice, a colonial structure of red brick with white columns located on the corner of Meade and East Fourth streets.

Off the large foyer in the new structure are located a Sunday School room and the reading room. The vaulted auditorium bears no ornamentation except inscriptions painted in Roman letters to represent its faith.

Flanked by a railing an impressive desk stands upon the rostrum. Ecclesiastical chairs are placed on either side of the arched and curtained entrance, and readers' rooms, to serve also as Sunday School classrooms, are connected by a passage across the rear of the church.

Dedicatory services followed the order of the usual Sunday service except that, after regular announcements, Mrs. Lucille Baker Tripp, the First Reader, delivered a congratulatory message from the board of directors of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston, and summarized the history of the local organization.

The Sunday School was organized here in 1943. In March, 1953, the Mother Church recognized the society as a branch. The last building used by the society paid for in 1945 and dedicated in December, six year ago.
