Red Oak Club Has Demonstration On Potted Plants

April is the month when most people begin to think of flowers, plants, etc. for the porch or out-of-doors. At a recent meeting of the Red Oak Club, Mrs. Robert Little gave timely tips on rooting and planting of potted plants and how to root azaleas and camellias—using a bed of sand and a pencil she demonstrated one of the best ways of rooting cuttings from most any type of house plant or shrub. She also stressed the fact that bulbs can be forced to bloom at certain times. Mrs. Fenner Allen called the meeting to order with 17 members present and the minutes were read and approved.

Mrs. James Allen gave the devotional based on the Scripture of the Easter Season. The story of Charles Wesley's Christ the Lord is Risen To-day was told, and then sung by the group.

The committee appointed for buying and making new draperies stated they had good cooperation and all draperies were made and hung. It was discussed and voted that Red Oak sponsor a dinner on April 28th, since the building is now ready for use, with a completely modernized kitchen. With walls of knotty-pine, Youngstown kitchen cabinets, built-in cabinets, and sinks, plenty of storage space, garbage disposals, hot water, an institutional cabinet with a steel top, gas stove and in-laid linoleum on the floor, the club is well equipped to take care of four or five hundred people for dinners.

Several women brought magazines to be exchanged. Since there are many children in the community magazines for children are needed. Any magazine brought will be used by as many people as possible. The hostesses, Mrs. Lizzie Vandford and Mrs. Ethel Crawford assisted by Mrs. Mamie Crawford served a tasty plate of assorted sandwiches, nuts, candies and doughnuts with coffee. Mrs. James Allen led a short quiz on flowers and shrubs with Mrs. Little as the winner.

ICEC Chapter Names New Officers In Recent Meet

FARMVILLE—Dr. Walter Humbert, Pitt Health Department director, spoke last week before the East Carolina Chapter of the International Council for Exceptional Children using as his topic, "Coordinating the Problems of Physical and Mental Hygiene."

Dr. Humbert stressed the lower retarded level of the exceptional group rather than the gifted group. He explained the various types of retarded children, the causes for each, how the condition of many retarded children can be improved with careful diagnosis and treatment, and said that much can be done for retarded children.

In closing he impressed on the group the need for a closely coordinated program of all those persons working together for better understanding and guidance for the exceptional child.

Following the recognition of guests by Annie Lee Jones, Mrs. Dorothy Perkins of East Carolina College gave a brief summary of what the college is doing in the field of special education. Also attending the meeting from the college were Dr. Leo W. Jenkins and Dr. J. K. Long who expressed their interest and work in special education. D. H. Conley, superintendent of the county schools, introduced the speaker.

After a short business meeting, the following officers were elected for the East Carolina Chapter of the I.C.E.C.: Mrs. Leon Fountain, Tarboro, president; Mrs. Vera Davenport, Washington, vice-president; and Mrs. Verdie W. Sugg, Wilson, secretary and treasurer.

The group was entertained with singing and tap dancing by Ann Stator Everett of Fountain, accompanied at the piano by Grace Miller of Farmville. Piano and accordion music was rendered by Newton Maenhout, instructor of band in Farmville.

Mrs. Eula P. Greathouse, president, presided over the meeting.

Service League Pays Tribute To Mrs. S. J. Everett

The Greenville Service League meeting which was held Monday morning, April 6, at the Sheppard Memorial Library was presided over by the president, Mrs. E. H. Willford. After opening the meeting with a prayer, tribute was paid to Mrs. S. J. Everett, a member of the Advisory Council, whose recent death means a great loss to the League.

Mrs. W. S. East, Project Chairman of the Red Cross house-to-house canvass, Mrs. Ed Parkinson and Mrs. Bob Ross, for conducting a successful drive. She also thanked all members who worked on the sale of articles made by the blind.

It was announced that the TB Mobile Unit would be in Pitt County for 39 working days beginning April 25 and that the Service League would be called upon to act as hostess for one week.

The membership chairman submitted candidates for membership and seven new members were voted into the League.

Mrs. Bob Thompson, Thrift Shop Chairman, told of plans for a rummage sale to be held on Saturday, April 25th, at the Shop.

Mrs. George Lauterbach, Finance Chairman, reported that approximately $345 had been raised for the Hospital Bed Fund recently by means of the Shrubbery Sale, the Fashion Show and sale of coat hangers. She reminded that April was the month to work on getting subscriptions and renewals to Hollands magazine.

One complete asset had been furnished during the month and a wheel chair loaned out. Mrs. R. C. Stokes, chairman of the Hospital Bed Fund, reported that hospitalization had been furnished to a very worthy young colored boy, who was an outstanding student.

The Hospital Activities Committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. L. T. Shotwell reported that both dining rooms at the hospital had been decorated for Easter and that 50 Easter baskets had been made for patients' trays.

Mrs. Tyson Bilbro, chairman of Emergency Charity, reported that two calls had been answered during the month, one for food and one for clothing.

The League voted unanimously to again give a two week "campership" to a deserving Girl Scout and Boy Scout.

After the appointment of a Nominating Committee and a Planning Committee for the May luncheon, the meeting was adjourned.

Mrs. Sugg Gives Book Club Program

The Thalian Book Club met recently at the home of Mrs. B. E. Sugg Jr.

The home was beautifully decorated with spring flowers. After a delicious luncheon was served by the hostess, the president turned the meeting over to Mrs. Harding Sugg.

Mrs. Sugg started her talk with the world's most popular subject, religions, which she said was a movement that is spreading rapidly throughout the nation and the world at large because people are suddenly realizing that there is nothing permanent in this world.

"The morals of the world seem to have sunk to a new low," said Mrs. Sugg, "and is a contributing factor to the dissolution of countless homes which we Americans feel to be the very foundation of our nation."

"People are beginning to say that the one thing no one can destroy or take away from them is their faith, their belief. The tragic thing is that they do not know what is their faith. They are like the Colossians to whom Paul was writing, they are confused by so many beliefs and teachings."

Mrs. Sugg did not review the Ten Commandments which the club has been studying during the year but gave Jesus' summarization of each of them.

Man Producing Too Much Blood

LORAIN, O. (UP)—The veins of Ed Kibbe, 59, bubble over with rich, red blood, but nurses approach him with masks and gloves and a five-foot pole.

Kibbe apparently is the answer to a blood bank's dreams. His abnormally energetic bone marrow puts new blood into his body at the rate of a pint a day—three-and-a-half quarts a week.

His body takes care of five pints by itself through normal usage, but two pints have to be drained. He goes to St. Joseph's Hospital here twice a week to be bled.

Without his bi-weekly puncture Kibbe would burst—or more likely die before he reached that stage.

Every six weeks he goes to the nearby Cleveland Clinic to take a drink of atomic medicine for his bones. It comes from Oak Ridge, Tenn., where it is produced by atomic fission, in special containers.

Kibbe regrets just one thing about the whole business. No one can use the blood he gives up. Down to the very last red drop it is radioactive.

Seek Override Committee That Killed Measures

RALEIGH, (UP)—A bloc of legislators favoring redistricting of the state sought today to sound support to override committee's action to kill two measures.

The House Senatorial Districts Committee voted unfavorably last night on bills to redistrict senatorial districts and reapportion House seats. The vote on the Senate measure was 17 to 6, and on the House reapportionment 14-11.

Gov. William B. Umstead, had urged the legislature to follow the mandate of the Constitution in redistricting at this term. The Constitution requires redistricting after each federal census and the 1951 legislature failed to do so.

Rep. George Long of Alamance, author of one of the bills, said he would try to have his bill to reapportion the House by taking one representative each from Cabarrus and Pitt counties and adding them to Alamance and Rockingham, brought out of the committee on a minority report.

Charge Officials Urged Subsidies

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congressional investigators charged today that some local airports have been "solicited" by federal officials to seek federal construction subsidies or file damage claims against the government.

They also said the Civil Aeronautics Administration has approved subsidies for unjustified or dubious construction projects at some airports. The charges were made public with the release today of testimony last month before a House Appropriations subcommittee.

CAA officials were confronted with the charges when they appeared March 6 to defend the Truman budget request for $30,000,000 in airport construction subsidies for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Eleven days later Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks told the subcommittee at another closed session that the administration has cut from the proposed budget all subsidy funds for new airport projects. Weeks, said, however, that would mean a cut of only 25 per cent because $22,700,000 is necessary for subsidy commitments already made.

Allegations by subcommittee investigators included those at the Greater Cincinnati Airport at Covington, Ky.; Los Angeles public airports; Santa Ana, Calif., airport; Orlando, Fla., airport; Dublin, Ga., airport; and the London, Ky., airport.

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UP)—Graydon H. Hockensmith, ordered to pay a $1,000 fine for a fifth drunken driving offense in Municipal Court Tuesday was instructed to pay the amount as two fines, one for $500 and another of $500.

Large-Scale Methodist Revival Service Planned

By WATT BROWN

The impact of eight hundred churches holding revival services simultaneously from April 19th through the 23rd is sure to be felt, declared Reverend Leon Russell, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, last night at the church's official board meeting, in the course of speaking about the United Evangelistic Mission being held in every church in the North Carolina and Virginia Conferences. It is a new idea in revivals and is being used by the Methodists throughout the United States this year.

To further heighten the effectiveness of the idea over eight hundred visiting pastors will be brought into the Conferences from neighboring states to do the preaching. Other facets of the plan involve large youth rallies, training centers for "periods of power," visitation evangelism, cottage prayer meetings, and concluding the whole campaign will be a rally in the stadium at East Carolina College following the evangelistic endeavor. The whole idea was tried with success earlier this year in the Louisville, Kentucky area. The pastors of the North Carolina Conference have already been assigned to do the same sort of thing in South Carolina in May for the South Carolina pastors who will be coming to North Carolina in April.

Planning committees on the Conference, district, sub-district, and local church level have been busy for months. Recently the churches of the Greenville Sub-District met with Reverend Leon Russell and checked their plans. Everyone reported enthusiasm, cooperation and readiness in each church.

The opening event for Jarvis Memorial will be the participation of the young people of the church in a District wide rally of young people at New Bern on April 18th. Only the day before the visiting pastors will have arrived.

Over a month ago in anticipation of the United Evangelistic Mission hundreds of members of Jarvis Memorial signed prayer covenants to keep the coming Mission in their prayers daily. Local church committees have been set up and have been functioning for some time.

Thousands of church people in North Carolina and Virginia each aware that the many others with like heart and mind are simultaneously engaged in the cause of Christ will present an unprecedented stroke for helping in the building of the Kingdom of God on Earth.

Taxpayers Pick Up Tab For Each Launching Party

WASHINGTON (UP)—The taxpayers pick up a $1,000 tab for each of those fancy parties thrown by shipbuilders every time a government-subsidized vessel slides down the ways, it was disclosed today.

Rep. Frederic R. Coudert Jr., (R-NY) asked Maritime Administration officials at a recent appropriations subcommittee hearing whether there was a limit on how much a shipbuilder could charge the government for a launching gift to the sponsor of a new ship.

"We always allow a shipbuilder $1,000 outside of the launching expense on each ship, which includes the luncheon, putting up the platform, putting up the radio speaker and everything in connection with it—$1,000 per ship," answered Capt. R. L. Hicks, chief of the office of Ship Construction.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS—AND LATER ONES
Popular books on personality-building are always telling us how important is the first impression we make on people. Our clothes should be in good taste, clean and well-pressed, they say—our shoes shined, our hair brushed. Books of etiquette stress the necessity of poise, good manners, a well-modulated voice on such occasions. Educators impress on students the value of the neat, properly prepared business letters upon which may depend the entire success or failure of one's approach to the prospective employer or customer.

And it is true—first impressions are important. If we wish to be well-rounded, consistent, orderly human beings, then no part or aspect of us should disgrace the rest. Ideally, we should always have our best foot forward because we have no worst foot. Yet how often first impressions are deceiving. We have all been fooled. We have all been charmed by the flashing smile and the firm handshake of a new acquaintance only to discover in time that the man is a rascal. The reason is that anyone can keep up appearance for a short time. It is easy enough to make a good first impression: what counts is the impression we keep on making.

By all means, make a good first impression. But more important, keep on living up to it! It's not just what we are today which counts, but what we continue to be to the very end of our lives. It takes character to support a good first impression through the years.

An Idea In Interest Of Better Government

An impressive list of projects for the current fiscal have been recommended to the Greenville Chamber of Commerce. Some are a continuation of projects undertaken by the business organizations in previous years, while others are new projects undertaken to further promote a better city and community.

One of particular significance, we believe, is the project which recommends a special committee of the organization make a semi-annual report to Chamber of Commerce members containing an evaluation of city government operations.

In the past six months there seems to have been a constantly increasing amount of interest in local government affairs. The council-manager form of government has been adopted; a large field of candidates are seeking posts on the new council, and in general more people than usual seem to be taking an interest in city government.

As we understand the proposed Chamber of Commerce project, it will be exactly what it says — an evaluation of the city's operations. Such an evaluation every six months, made by an impartial group of local citizens on a strictly objective basis, should be of benefit not only to the members of the Chamber of Commerce, but to the citizens of Greenville as a whole, including the governing officials.

Greenville's government—which spends half a million dollars annually—is big business. And it is growing bigger all the time. The success and progress of the community as a whole depends upon the progress of the government. And the progress of the government can not be the sole responsibility of a few elected officials. It takes the thinking, cooperation and constructive criticism of all the citizens to make the wheels of progress turn as smoothly and as rapidly as they should.

The Chamber of Commerce can certainly do another valuable service to the citizens of Greenville if their semi-annual evaluation of local government operations is adopted and carried out.

Van Fleet's Testimony Packs A Wallop

GENERAL Van Fleet's testimony before the Senate Armed Forces Committee leaves a lot to be desired in the investigation into the shortage of ammunition in Korea over a two-year period.

Although the retired general of the U. N. forces in Korea was careful to level no direct accusations at the Pentagon or others in charge of the top decisions in prosecuting the war, he pointed out emphatically that somewhere along the line somebody missed the boat.

Severe shortages, according to Van Fleet, were the rule rather than exception for hand grenades and mortar ammunition. At times, he said, the only ammunition available for specific weapons was the ammunition that was near the weapons in their battle position.

The general in his careful testimony laid the fault in general terms to the fact that the war has gone on longer than anyone expected, and adequate production schedules were not set up. He pointed out that the war in Korea has gone on three years, while the battle for France in World War II lasted only ten months.

In Van Fleet's case — just as in all cases in which a figure is put on the spot for intense grilling — there are some discrepancies in his ammunition testimony. There are some questions which could be brought to bear which might help create a different picture.

Nevertheless, it seems definite that U. N. troops did not have ample ammunition in certain categories with which to protect themselves and exploit the enemy at specific times.

It is difficult to tell in a situation that sort exactly who is to blame. It could be the Pentagon, it could be the administration, it could be that Congress was reluctant to spend more than absolutely necessary for the prosecution of the Korean War. It could be an administrative problem, or it could be a responsibility shared by all the above mentioned.

The days and weeks — or even months — during which ammunition shortages handicapped American troops in Korea can not be called back. Nevertheless, Van Fleet's testimony on the subject should spur steps to make sure the same condition does not exist again.

Most Americans are anxious for the Korean war to end. Many are anxious that no more dollars than necessary be poured into that war. Yet, almost without exception, Americans are unwilling that money be saved at the expense of soldier's lives.

While hopes for peace in Korea again mount, every effort should be put forth to see that American soldiers lack for nothing that would help them in protecting their lives and bringing an end to the Korean War.

WASHINGTON—Senator "Joe" McCarthy's interference in diplomatic negotiations with Greek ship owners allegedly carrying goods to Russia has brought him into another showdown clash with the Republican leadership of the Senate. His own colleagues now resent his tactics.

This backstage row explains why President Eisenhower was so slow to engage in open and angry controversy with the Wisconsin firebrand over his invasion of the executive jurisdiction. The White House has been informed that, as in the Bohlen case, the Senate itself will restrict McCarthy's extracurricular performances.

When he was attacking government subversives, he was invulnerable because critics might open themselves to countercharges that they were Communist sympathizers. But he has lowered his guard in his more recent bouts.

MILLIKIN FURIOUS—Whereas the Bohlen brawl led Senator Taft to line up against McCarthy, the Greek affair has embroiled the Wisconsin Senator with an equally respected and redoubtable GOP leader—Senator Eugene D. Millikin of Colorado. Senate Finance Committee Chairman. Normally mild and tactful, Millikin is furious over recent unparliamentary behavior.

He maintains that McCarthy's secret one-man crusades destroy orderly government at the legislative and executive ends of Pennsylvania Avenue. In his opinion, they smack too violently of the methods of the Spanish Inquisition. They permit individual Senators to level public charges against private citizens without a full inquiry and prior sanction for disclosures by responsible Senate agencies.

TO END ONE-MAN ATTACKS—In short, the GOP leadership seeks to end the system under which a single member may use his Senate prestige to browbeat other branches of the government, and condemn fellow-Americans without a hearing.

They insist that they do not intend to curb proper study of executive policies, which was a popular Senate concern under Truman. They deny that they aim to protect the new Republican Administration. They simply maintain that there is sufficient legislative machinery for orderly and responsible discharge of investigative duty.

NEAR PRECEDENTS—McCarthy's private deal with Greek maritime interests was too raw and revolutionary for even his Senate sympathizers. He admits that he made the nonbinding agreement without consulting fellow-committeemen. It was strictly a private adventure.

Although no Senator in modern times has gone to such extremes in trespassing on the conduct of foreign affairs, there have been near-precedents. Many difficulties with South American Republics spring from denunciation of their commercial practices—coffee, oil, tin, etc.—by individual members, who had no authority to talk. They have kept relations in a turmoil that State was unable to quiet.

Foreign powers regarded the late William Edgar Borah as our real Secretary of State, due to his prestige and profound pronouncements as Foreign Relations Chairman. Anti-British and pro-German he was a descendant of Martin Luther's; his widely quoted statements in the thirties had a dynamic influence on world events. They encouraged Hitler, Mussolini and Tokyo in the belief that the U. S. would remain out of a European War, no matter the provocation.

TO RESTRAIN HEADLINE HUNTERS—In order to reinstall responsible procedure, Millikin has imposed restraints on a successful and able scourge of downtown crooks conducted by Senator John J. Williams of Delaware. It was Williams who, working alone, exposed Internal Revenue grafters under Truman.

As chairman of a Senate Finance Subcommittee, Williams wants to continue his unfinished investigation. But Millikin demands that he make public no charges or suspicions against alleged offenders without advance approval of a Finance Committee majority.

"What we are doing," explains Millikin, "is to restrain some blabbermouth, some headline hunter, from going out and ruining citizens. The notion that one man's judgment may be infallibly accepted as to what is wrong and what is not is the key to the door of every room of tyranny."

Millikin explained that he was NOT referring to Senator Williams!

Knock, Knock! Who's There?

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

If you read this column regularly you realize that reports from Americans who are overseas are fascinating to me. Today's is from the former Virginia Barnes of Elm City, now the wife of Captain Dan Spence of the U. S. Army.

The Spences are in Bangkok, in the country of Thailand. You will remember the country better as Siam, in Indo-China.

Virginia says, "I am getting more adjusted to Bangkok all the time. However, I'm ready to leave most any time. We have a new house which I like very much. It is completely screened in. The Americans coming in are demanding screens. The landlords think we are crazy; nevertheless, slowly the houses are being screened. I know the English are green with envy because the Americans are better paid and find it much easier to get houses and servants."

"We really have a large group here now and more are coming all the time. Families can come over with the husbands now.

"The December social whirl is really something to behold. Everybody is worn out with parties—dinners and receptions.

"I haven't written much about the political set-up, but things are really popping. The fighting in Indo-China is close enough for me, and Burma is so near with all their communists. There was a communist plan in December which did not materialize, but it called for the capture of the king. The communists planned to give him five minutes to turn over everything to them, with the choice of being beheaded if he did not. Luckily this plan was discovered in time. Now we will have a few months while they plan another one.

"We have a friend here who has no fear of being made a communist prisoner, as he was captured on Bataan during World War II, was on the death march and survived four and one-half years of being a prisoner of the Japs. He had over 200 enlisted men with him and kept them going by stealing food, planting gardens, trading—anything to survive. After going through that he figures he can take anything anybody has to offer."

In a later letter, Virginia took a different view on the situation. She says, "Maybe my last letter was a little misleading. I don't think we are in any immediate danger. However, they are fighting up on the Thailand border. One of the Thai Colonels told Don's (her husband's) Colonel that he was very worried over the communist situation here. But right now on the surface everything seems peaceful and quiet."

And I thank Virginia.

BUDGETING—The Executive Budget Act under which North Carolina has attained and maintained financial stability dates back to 1928, the first year of the administration of the late Governor Angus Wilson McLean. Surprisingly few people throughout the State have any concept of operations under the Act. In fact, a recent report of one of the original vital provisions, that affording public access to meetings of the appropriations committee, and efforts now to get that new "secretary law" off the books, suggests a brief review of the whole situation.

BACKGROUND—To get clear picture of conditions then it must be remembered that Governor McLean followed Governor Cameron Morrison, whose administration came immediately after the close of World War I. That was a sort of irresponsible spending era throughout the world, which was sparked in North Carolina by the $50 million bond issue for highways. At that time the aggregate spending for the operation of all State departments, institutions, agencies and services was less than $25 million. Each agency presented to the General Assembly an individual budget, which actually wasn't a budget at all in the sense the term is now used. The appeals by each unit of government were supported by general statements that the money was required, and there was very little co-ordination or balancing of the needs of one service against and appropriations acts, which those of another or the total needs of the State.

PACKAGED—Governor McLean out of his experience as a successful business man proposed a system, relatively new to government anywhere at the time, of a co-ordinating agency the basis element of which would be an advisory commission to assemble all the applications for the State funds, study them in their relation to each other and the whole economy, and present a "package" appropriation bill. The Governor was made director of the budget, with authority to appoint an assistant director and such other personnel as might be needed to actually prepare the package and to supervise subsequent disbursements to make sure the money was used as the General Assembly designated in its appropriations act.

INSPECTION—The advisory commission consisted of the respective chairmen of the money committees in the Legislature and two persons appointed by the Governor from the citizenship of the State. This commission was required to make personal inspection of facilities and needs at the various institutions sharing in tax money, and to hold public hearings at which administrators of the agencies might present their needs and the reasons for them. Also public hearings were required on proposals to levy taxes. At conclusion of the hearings the advisory commission was to consider the information obtained and write revenue were required to be in balance.

LEGISLATIVE—When these master bills are introduced they are accompanied by a "budget book" in which is set out in detail the purpose for which every dollar shall be used. Similar detail explanation was required as to source of all tax money, until in 1939 the revenue act then in force was declared to be a continuing act, and only amendments have been considered since. The bills are referred to the finance and appropriations committees, which also must afford public hearings at request of any affected taxpayer or representative of any agency seeking an appropriation. The act requires Senate and House committees to act jointly on these occasions.

PROTEST—Enactment of the budget act was protested by many department heads, particularly the elected officials, as unwarranted infringement upon their rights. Just as North Carolina would not ratify the Federal Constitution until the Bill of Rights was appended, the majority of the General Assembly would not accept the budget act without the provision that all sessions of the joint appropriations committee and all subcommittees should be open to the public. Even with the guaranty of public knowledge, elective officials continued to object to budget "interference," and such objections are still heard upon occasion. The routine operations of the Budget Bureau have to be generally accepted, and the re-

What Other Papers Are Thinking

HOLDING THE TAX LINE

(Henderson Dispatch)
Declining State revenue apparently holds no terror for the liberal bloc in the General Assembly. In the face of facts and warnings, by the revenue commissioner, they are ready to drive on in the spending program set up by the governor. They seem to be quite willing to pass the buck to the chief executive and to presume that all the ails they need is to say that it was his idea.

some seven million dollars less than anticipated. It impresses us as being poor logic to base appropriations on "expected" increases in income. A lot of water can run under the bridge in two years. And no one can envision what the future may hold. But it is reasonable to suppose that lush trends of the past six or seven years will see a halt or a break somewhere along the line. Future spending should be estimated on that basis, not on an indefinite and continued rise in revenues. We have every sympathy for the economy bloc in the legislature. It is regrettable that there are not more members of the assembly in that group—enough indeed to chart a course predicated upon soundness and sanity for public finances. It is poor policy to undertake to spend beyond income. And, as has been said before, here and elsewhere, colossal bond issues, for whatever purpose, will entail increased taxes. And this is no time to be raising taxes, but rather to be reducing such levies. North Carolinians will be no better off tax-wise if all the cuts voted by Congress, if any, are soaked up by increases in the State. There should be an overall recognition of ability and reason when it comes to programs adopted by the State. Growth and expansion are desired by every one, but there is a limit both to the amount of service the State is rightfully called upon to render to its citizens, and ability of those citizens to support such service. This should be the yardstick for measuring all undertakings, no matter whose idea they may be.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Chrysler's surprise price cuts—averaging out to about $100 a car—apparently caught other major producers napping.

The auto company is in an advantageous position to shift prices quickly because so much of its work is done outside its own plants. The fewer operations the less trouble in adjusting operating costs. Similar price changes by Ford or GM take a longer time to prepare.

Compared with General Motors' $2,162,918,601 investment in plant, property and equipment, Chrysler's stake of $368,288,359 is relatively small. Ford figures are not available, though they probably stand somewhere between the two. GM's 83 principal plants compared with Chrysler's 56 also points up the latter's greater dependence on outside sources.

This situation gives GM an advantage in a boom period since it doesn't have to compete for the services of suppliers to the extent Chrysler must. In a slower market, Chrysler has an advantage—it doesn't have to worry as much about keeping subsidiary fabricators busy.

One might guess that Chrysler went to its suppliers and said, "Automobiles aren't going to continue selling at this rate forever, boys, so let's get out and get as much of the market as we can now. We'll all cut our prices from 3 to 5 per cent and make up for it in bigger sales. How about it?"

Chrysler's position is an example of what other companies may seek as a shelter against a business decline. The do-it-yourself trend among consumers has a corresponding let-others-do-it-for-you trend in business.

Among advantages of the let-others-do-it philosophy are the availability of specialized talents for specialized jobs, lower capitalization and diversification of responsibility.

But the most important advantage is that a company can feel on its feet when the time comes for changes if it is less hampered.

APPLIANCE SALES TOP AUTOMOBILE PURCHASES
Sales of television and appliances now top automobile purchases for the first time, according to "Mart and Television Retailing."

Figures compiled by the publication put TV-appliance sales at $10 billion annually compared with the auto industry's $9.1 billion. Servicing and repair would add more than $1 billion to the TV-appliance total.

Associated products and servicing make up an estimated 40 per cent of the total. Home refrigeration equipment accounts for $1,840,000,000; home laundry equipment for $980,000,000; electrical housewares $800,000,000; electric ranges $540,000,000; vacuum cleaners $350,000,000; air conditioners $240,000,000 and the balance in miscellaneous items.

Hal Boyle's Column

HOMETOWN, U.S.A. (AP) — Trellis Mae Peeble was preparing a lecture for her club — the Minerva Gin Rummy and Current Events Society.

At their monthly session these literary ladies usually devoted 15 minutes to a lecture—and three hours to card playing.

"Wilbur, I'm stuck for ideas," appealed Trellis Mae. "Won't you help me?"

"What is the topic of your talk?" asked her husband.

"Why men don't live as long as women."

"What reasons have you put down so far?"

"I can think of only one," said Trellis Mae. "Biological inferiority—men just don't have the strength in the stretch; poor lambs."

A red flush of anger mantled Wilbur's ears.

"Well, I'll tell you something that's killing off men before their time — gallantry," he said. "Put down gallantry."

"Gallantry is chivalry," said Wilbur, nettled. "Surely you've heard of chivalry."

"Remember the term," replied Trellis Mae, "but I seem to forget what it means."

The battle was on. Wilbur put down his newspaper and said: "Chivalry is all the useless things a man does for a woman, things that are totally unnecessary or that she ought to do for herself."

"Such as—?" murmured Trellis Mae, her teeth showing.

"Such as opening doors for women, tipping your hat to them, picking up gloves they drop, jumping up when they come in to the room, lighting their cigarettes, and—"

"The last time you remembered to light my cigarette was in 1946," she shot back at him.

"A man is like any other machine," continued Wilbur. "Every bit of energy he puts out brings him closer to the time he'll break down."

"Say a boy starts practicing chivalry at 15. Well, no wonder he drops dead at 65. In 50 years he has worn himself out opening maybe 100,000 doors for women, tipping his hat 200,000 times, lighting 300,000 cigarettes for them, and picking up 500,000 things they have dropped — and maybe running to catch 25,000 taxis for 'em."

"That is the silliest, most unfair," began Trellis Mae.

"And take girdles," Wilbur said. "How many tired husbands a year do you suppose die of heart attacks brought on by trying to help an overweight wife get into her girdle? There must be hundreds, thousands."

put up with this nonsense," said Trellis Mae. "Admit it! Women out-live men because they are biologically superior."

Poor Wilbur made a final blunder.

"Either that," he said, "or because it's the only way women can be sure to get in the last word."

The neighbors had to clank on the radiator until dawn for peace.

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—Miss Julia Lathrop, first child of the Children's Bureau, in 1912 asked a widowed mother of five to write the government's first pamphlet to help new mothers.

First task of the new agency created by Congress was to investigate and report on "all matters pertaining to the welfare of children and child life." To do this the bureau was given $25,000. Even then there were more than 30 million children in the U. S. Attention had to be focused on "the phase — helping to save lives of babies and mothers during childbirth. There were no national records in those days, but where local records were kept they showed at least one out of every 10 babies died in the first year.

The first booklet, "Prenatal Care," came out in 1913. Its author, and later author of the fabulously successful "Infant Care," commonly known as the "Mother's Bible," which appeared in 1914, was Mrs. Max West who still lives in Berkeley, Calif.

A frail, white-haired little lady now past 70, she recalled on a visit here in 1949 her experiences in writing the latter pamphlet. A graduate of the University of Minnesota at the turn of the century, Mrs. West spent a year in France writing before her marriage. Widowed when the last of her five children was still a baby, she began writing again.

"I must have been a very cocksure person," she told me. "I blithely set to work on my assignment. I had gone through the experience myself five times — therefore I must know all about it. But as I worked my cocksureness began to evaporate. One fine day I took out my precious manuscript and tore it into bits, thankful that no eyes but my own had seen it."

Mrs. West then began reading up on the subject at the Library of Congress, took courses at a local medical school, sought the advice of leading obstetricians. How time has changed, or confirmed, ideas on the care of babies shows up in a comparison of the earliest and the latest, ninth, edition of the book.

When Mrs. West wrote the first edition, home pasteurization of milk was described in detail because commercially pasteurized milk was not widely available. No reference at all was made to vitamins, cod liver oil or immunization measures.

Lightning Arrestor Wins Endorsement By Swartz

Lightning arrestors currently being sold to consumers on Greenville's rural lines serve a constructive purpose in that they definitely reduce high-voltage damage to appliances during storms.

Martin Swartz, superintendent of the Greenville Utilities Commission, made that statement today, in remarking on sales of lightning protective devices being conducted among approximately 8,000 rural customers in the Greenville area.

"We recommend and approve the General Electric protector as satisfactory," Swartz stated. "We recommend only the GE device because our approval and customers' satisfaction is backed up by company guarantee."

The superintendent said the price to the consumer of the device installed should not be more than $10. As soon as they are installed the utilities commission will follow up with inspection to see that the devices are properly attached and grounded.

Swartz explained the function of the apparatus by saying it is a protective device connected to service wires where they attach to a building. The protectors drain off static discharges and lightning to the ground which otherwise would go through and burn out household appliances.

"In effect," the superintendent declared, "the GE protectors being sold prevent to a great degree lightning from entering buildings on the five wires of the electrical system."

However, Swartz warned, customers should be doubly careful to inquire if the representative who calls to sell the protectors is a "bona fide" representative of the Electric Protection Service of Richmond, which is selling protectors in this area under the auspices of the GE company.

He added that some "fly by night" salesmen are operating in the Greenville area "selling devices that are not approved and in many cases devices that do not do the job for which they are sold." The superintendent concluded that one study of rural systems involving 21,000 protector years of service operation in a severe lightning area showed damage to appliances and equipment to be as low as one-seventh of one percent.

Postmasterships In N. C. Open To Republicans

WASHINGTON (AP)—Five Carolina postmasterships are on a list for which Republicans may now apply with some hopes of getting the jobs.

The list of some 1,700 vacant postmasterships, made public yesterday by the Civil Service Commission, includes Morganton, Wilmington and Statesville, N.C., and Hartsville and Walterboro, S.C.

Meanwhile, North Carolina Republicans, beset by patronage problems, will make another attempt to settle them at a meeting of the executive committee in Greensboro April 18. A previous meeting in Charlotte was unsuccessful.

The Eisenhower administration two weeks ago threw out the results of examinations already held to fill more than 1,400 of the 1,700 vacancies. It was announced as a move to "establish higher standards of eligibility." But obviously, it also was aimed at giving Republicans a chance to try for the jobs.

Republicans said they did not stand much chance of getting them under Democratic administrations.

Long Talks Held On Air Corridor

BERLIN (UP)—Spokesmen for Russia and the Big Three Western Allies talked into the early morning hours today on preventing future airplane incidents in Germany's international air corridors.

The conference, held at Soviet headquarters in the East Berlin district of Karlshorst, lasted seven and one-half hours. A U. S. spokesman said the talks would be resumed later in the American sector. No date was set.

Doctor Honored For Risking Life In Medical Tests

CHICAGO (AP)—A young doctor who believes that man eventually must be Othe final test in medical developments was honored today for risking his life during two years as a human guinea pig.

In the course of numerous medical tests, Dr. Lloyd T. Koritz has been hung unconscious from a telephone pole, kept unconscious 11 straight hours and put on a 30-day ordeal of eating a pound of raw liver daily.

For his work in various experiments while a University of Illinois Medical School student, was chosen to receive the award from the Walter Reed Society, meeting in conjunction with the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology. The Walter Reed Society honors individuals who have risked their lives in medical experiments.

"I guess it's necessary to prove to the world that research is not all just cutting up dogs, as many people seem to think," the young doctor told a reporter.

"New drugs may be excellent with animals, but eventually they must be tried on human beings," he said in explaining why he volunteered to be a human guinea pig when 2 years old.

Koritz, now 26 and an interne at Cook County Hospital, said the worst of his experiences was eating raw liver daily for a month in studies of liver metabolism. "I had to gulp down a quart of milk to be able to keep it down, and after that I didn't have much appetite for anything else."

In experiments to test the new "push-pull" technique of artificial respiration, Koritz was administered drugs to make him unconscious and stop his breathing.

Once, in a fatigue study, he was unconscious 11 hours.

In tests in conjunction with Commonwealth Edison Company to study the effects of electric shock on linemen, he was knocked unconscious with drugs and hung in a harness from a telephone pole. Various devices were inserted into his lungs to measure the rate at which respiration was restored.

Koritz said despite his experience in research "I intend to be a good old country doctor."

He said he will join in practice with Dr. A. R. Bogue, a general practitioner in his home town, practitioner in his home town, Rochelle, Ill.

Wife's Brother Was No Brother

NEWARK, N. J. (UP)—The wedding took place in 1942 and shortly after Eddie Costigan and his bride, Edith, took up housekeeping Edith's "brother" moved in with them.

Eddie told Superior Court Tuesday that Edith's "brother," Edward Smith, stayed for 10 years. Then one day Eddie discovered the true identity of the constant boarder — Smith was Edith's first husband.

Costigan was granted a divorce. The National Geographic Society estimates that the crown jewels of England might be valued at 80 million dollars.

Adenauer Hopes For U.S. Aid In Refugee Problem

WASHINGTON (UP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer hoped today to enlist U. S. support in handling a steady stream of refugees from behind the Iron Curtain.

Informed sources said the refugee problem would be discussed at Adenauer's second meeting with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today. The German chief of state also was expected to discuss it in a speech before the National Press Club.

Some 9,000,000 refugees have poured into the Western zone of Germany since the end of World War II and they are continuing to flow into West Germany at the rate of 2,000 daily. Adenauer is seeking some method of lightening West Germany's burden of caring for them.

Capital Square

ENCROACHMENTS—Most of the recent protests have been because of insidious encroachment upon the original intent of the law by the Budget Bureau assuming power not contemplated when the act was passed. Instead of keeping the status of watchdog supervision to see that appropriated money was spent as designated, the bureau has developed into a powerful policy-making agency of the State Government. Legislative committees have gradually infringed upon the open sessions clause. At first the sessions were fully open. The next step was to ask persons other than members who were present to respect certain items as confidential. Then came the practice of "permitting" reporters to remain upon condition they would report results only and say nothing about comment or how any individual member voted.

CLOSED UP—Two years ago the full joint committee adopted the policy of turning over the whole appropriations bill to a subcommittee, and that group went behind doors shut so tight parent committee were not allowed to know what was going on. This year when a similar plan was proposed the majority of the joint committee bucked. A compromise agreement was reached under which "only controversial items" would be referred to a sub-group, which should report back at frequent intervals. It soon developed that nearly every item was practically suspended work on the budget bill, and the joint committee went behind closed doors again.

EXPLOSION—The thing exploded two weeks ago when newsmen declined to leave the room or to be bound by secrecy agreement, so long as unsworn persons sat in on the sessions. The subcommittee adjourned twice without action on the matters before them because the reporters maintained the right under the law for the people to know how their tax money was being parcelled out. After attempting to hold a formal meeting in the hotel room, which also was blocked by newsmen showing up, the co-chairmen of the joint subcommittee introduced bills in each branch to repeal the open session clause, the "bill of rights" of the original Executive Budget

Act. The bill was ramrodded through under suspension of the rules, without reference to any committee, and without considering requests for a public hearing on it.

TO DATE—On last Thursday a bill was introduced in the House to repeal the secrecy law enacted the week before. On that bill a public hearing has been promised. Meantime, the full joint committee has been unable to find what the subcommittee is doing about some $350 million of people's money.

Wage Cuts Seen In Auto Industry

DETROIT (UP)—Automakers today were expected to follow General Motors' lead and cut wages of the industry's 1,250,000 workers one cent an hour in line with the latest government price index showing a decline in living costs.

General Motors, under terms of its cost-of-living "escalator" contract with the CIO United Auto Workers Union, Tuesday announced the wage cut for nearly 400,000 hourly rated employees.

The announcement followed a day-long meeting with UAW officials. The UAW also met with Ford representatives. There was no immediate comment from Ford or Chrysler, the other two members of the industry's "Big Three."

UAW reaction to the GM pay cut was mild, at least for the time being, although the UAW had disavowed the "old" index under which the pay cut was made.

Walter Reuther, president of the CIO and the UAW, who is now in Washington, made no comment.

GM said the one cent cut would be effective starting April 13, and that 98,000 salaried employees whose pay is geared to living costs would get a similar cut.

61 Golfers Participate In Ladies Links Tournament

Three of Eastern North Carolina's top women golfers are shown looking over scorecards yesterday at the Greenville Country Club course. The three, Jeanette Amore and Bobby Ramsey of Washington and Jane Sauve of Greenville (left to right), were among the 61 golfers who competed in yesterday's round of the ladies golf tournament. (Reflector Sports Photo)

A total of 61 golfers took part in yesterday's round of the Eastern North Carolina women's golf tournament held at the Greenville Country Club. Low gross scoring honors for the day were taken by a member of the Washington team, Jeanette Amore, with a score of 84.

Greenville's Jane Sauve tied with Washington's Bobbie Ramsey for second place in the low score division with a 90. Low net scores, both first and second places, were turned in by a pair of Wilson golfers, Grace Moore and Harriette Smith.

The prize for the least number of putts taken while on the 18 hole round went to Evelyn Beck of Kinston. Mary Stuart James of Greenville came in second.

Additional prizes were awarded to Lib Bryan, New Bern; Ruby Johnson, Wilson; Clara Smith, New Bern; Gay Waldrop, Greenville; and Kathleen Whitley, New Bern.

In the competition for points to be applied to an individual's season total for a place in the championship flight of the championship tournament, Greenville's Jane Sauve added 30 1-2 points to her total for the season. Mary Stuart James added 25. Mrs. Luther Herring got 15, Carolyn Thomas got 6 1-2, and Millie Wright got 1 for their afternoon performances yesterday.

The next round of the competition will be played in Rocky Mount next Tuesday afternoon. All of Greenville's female golfers are asked to attend the tournament if it is at all possible.

There were 96 women present for the pre-tournament luncheon served at the Country Club.

White Sox Plan Big Upset In American Flag Chase

By MILTON RICHMAN

ATLANTA, Ga. (UP)—While the Yankees and Indians map plans to beat each other, the underestimated Chicago White Sox are quietly plotting to upset 'em both.

General Manager Frank Lane insists the White Sox would be a good bet to win the American League pennant if they could land one more dependable pitcher. Lane is trying to get such a hurler but even if he fails, he feels his team is a legitimate pennant possibility.

"I wouldn't trade our infield for any other one in baseball," he says.

Ferris Fain, in addition to being the best hitter in the league is also the best defensive first baseman. Nellie Fox is the kind of fellow who can lead the league in base hits and I don't have to tell you about his work at second base.

Chico Carrasquel, at shortstop, looks like the Carrasquel of 1950 and all we hope is that he keeps playing the way he is this spring.

"At third base, Vern Stephens not only is showing well defensively but he's been blasting that long ball for us. We have no kicks at all about our infield."

The White Sox are often deep in infield reserves with smooth-fielding Rocco Kirsch, versatile Sam Dente and hard-throwing Fred Marsh.

Manager Paul Richards, who claims the White Sox can beat both the Yankees and Indians "if we live up to our potential," says his outfield is set with Minnie Miñoso in left, fleet Jim Rivera in center and am Mele in right.

Rookie Bill Wilson is pressing all three for a job, however, while Ed Stewart and Tom Wright are the other outfield candidates.

There was considerable consternation in the Chicago camp this spring when southpaw Bill Pierce came down with a sore arm but the slender ace of the staff has pitched brilliantly since then and the White Sox no longer are worried.

Right-hander Saul Rogovin, a notoriously late starter, has gotten off well this time and laughingly says, "I still can't believe it's true." But it is, much to the satisfaction of the Sox.

Veteran curbe-baller Joe Dobson is the third starter while fast-baller Lou Kretlow will be the number four man if he can curb his wildness.

Rookie catcher Bob (Red) Wilson has caught Richards' eye behind the plate but Sherm Lollar, who provides the long ball occasionally, still figures to be the number one receiver. Darrell Johnson probably will be retained, also.

Like Lane says, the White Sox could win—but it probably will take at least another pitcher to do it.

1939 and tied by Claude Harmon in 1948.

"The fairways are much firmer than before and you can grip and control the ball with your stroke, giving it just that spin you want to get on the green."

"But then," said jaunty Jimmy with a glance at a sunny sky, "the weather might ruin any chance at the record, one wet, blustery day and three other rounds that would point to be washed out."

Demaret Says Masters 279 Can Be Broken This Year

By JIMMY WATSON

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—The man best qualified to speak about the Masters Golf Tournament said today that this is the year the 14-year-old record score of 279 for the event should be broken.

Jimmy Demaret, only three time winner of the elite tournament founded by Bobby Jones, gave his judgment after he toured the 6,450-yard layout in a five-hole that included two other ex-Masters champs. The 17th Masters opens Thursday.

"This year should do it," Demaret said of the assault on the record set by Ralph Guldahl in

Archie Oakley Hurls Chicod To 8-2 Win

CHICOD—The Chicod Hornets got only five hits off Grifton right-hander John Lewis but those hits were parlayed with five walks and four Grifton errors to score an 8-2 win for the Hornets yesterday afternoon.

Steady righthander Archie Oakley pitched the victory for Chicod, his fourth of the year in five decisions. Oakley, a sophomore, struck out 11 Bulldog batters and walked only one in leading the Hornets to the Pitt County Conference victory.

A five-run uprising in the sixth inning cemented the win for the Hornets. They put two walks, two hits, an error, and an outfield play in sequence to account for the big spurge. Bobby Fornes' triple was the big blow in the frame.

Not a single Chicod batter was able to get more than one hit off Lewis. However, O. Lewis got three of Grifton's four hits and Harris got the other one to complete the Grifton hitting for the afternoon.

Chicod's fourth of the year against conference competition. They'll go after their fifth victory today when they travel to Bethel to meet the Indians. Bobby Fornes will start on the mound for the Hornets.

Score by innings: R H E Grifton..... 000 200-2 4 4 Chicod..... 200 015 X-8 5 1 Lewis and Koon; Oakley and C. Mills.

St. Louis Cardinals: Under batting Eddie Stanky, they indicated they could go all the way. Much depends on rookies Ray Jablonski at third, Rip Repulski in the outfield and Steve Bilko at first.

Philadelphia Phils: The team was playing bad ball and second base remained a problem, but there were numerous bright spots. Jim Konstanty was coming back like in the pennant year of 1950, giving up only seven runs in 36 innings, including two complete games.

New York Giants: Pitching long a Giant strong point, was wavering and the club made no secret of its worry. Monty Irvin and Don Mueller were hitting and rookie Gary Spencer was coming through with men on base.

Milwaukee Braves: Weaknesses at short and second sobered the Braves but Joe Adcock was leading a good attack and three rookies brightened the situation. These are outfielders Bill Bruton and Jim himself in Tuesday's practice round. The other two former champions, Ben Hogan (1951) and Harmon each earned an estimated 69 in the practice five-hole.

Cary Middlecoff, the one-time Memphis dentist, whacked out a four-under-par 68 playing in the same star-studded group.

Middlecoff, who is pressing Lloyd Mangrum for top 1953 golf earnings, has had a burning desire to win the Masters ever since he got into it in 1946, on his sensational amateur record.

Pirates Play

Easter vacation comes to a halt today at 2:45 for the East Carolina College Pirates when they take on the Montclair (N. J.) State Teachers College Indians in a baseball game on the ECC diamond.

The Pirates have been idle since last Saturday when they defeated Guilford 5-5 for their fifth straight win of the season. Before the win over Guilford, they had scored a victory over High Point, and Atlantic Christian and two victories over New Bedford (Mass.) Textile Institute.

Today's game will be the first of a three game series with the touring Montclair team. A doubleheader tomorrow will complete the series.

No starting pitchers have been announced for either of the three games but Coach Jack Boone of the Pirates is expected to call upon Ken Hall, Martin Byrd, and Teddy Barnes to start the three contests.

Red Carpet Out For Braves Team

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—Milwaukee baseball fans literally rolled out the red carpet today as they gave a raucous welcome to their new major league team, the displaced Milwaukee Braves.

The city fathers, proud of their new status as major leaguers, pulled out all the stops and planned a real royal welcome for the team. It included everything from a real red carpet at the Milwaukee road terminal to a Christmas tree at the players' hotel.

A sign over the brightly lit Christmas tree at the hotel said "you brought us Christmas in April." More than 400 gifts were to be distributed to the Braves' players by grateful Milwaukeeans, overjoyed to be back in the major leagues after an absence of 51 years.

The Braves were moved to Milwaukee from Boston a month ago by the National League because of a lack of patronage at Boston, but this was the first time the team had appeared in the city.

The Braves' first game before the new hometown fans will be Thursday, when the club meets the Boston Red Sox in the first game of the former Boston cross-town city series.

More than a thousand stargazers of small planets of the sun have been observed by astronomers.

Wake Forest Only Unbeaten Team In Southern Division

Hot Springs Fights Ouster From League

By The Associated Press

Wake Forest's Deacons are the only unbeaten baseball team in Southern Division play of the Southern Conference.

Until yesterday, North Carolina Tar Heels were locked up in a first-place tie with the Clemson Deacons. The Tar Heels bowed 10-2 to North Carolina State, to drop into a two-way deadlock for second place with Duke's Blue Devils.

Wake Forest, meanwhile, ran its victory streak against all competition to seven games by whipping Elon College, 2-1, in a night battle. The Deacons have yet to be beaten this year.

Only one conference game is set for today. Clemson's Tigers (3-2) go to Furman (2-2), Virginia Tech and George Washington were scheduled to get together in the national capital to open Northern Division play, but the game has already been postponed because of the weather.

Other baseball action today finds Dartmouth at Maryland, Hampden-Sydney at Richmond, Ithaca at North Carolina State, Wake Forest at Elon again, and Fairmont State at West Virginia.

Rain caused cancellation on postponement yesterday of three games involving Northern teams, including the William and Mary-Quantico Marines, Ohio University-Washington and Lee and Michigan-Maryland scraps.

Three big innings gave State its victory over North Carolina, the victorious Wolfpack bunched three runs in each the first, fifth and sixth frames and added a single run in the eighth on a collection of 14 hits.

The loss was the first for Bill Lore, who had carved three victories. State chased him in the fifth inning. Jim Hardison was the winner for State although he needed relief from Jack Yvare in the sixth.

North Carolina's tennis team, fresh from yesterday's 7-2 conquest of Sewanee, entertain Dartmouth today. Davidson, trounced by Presbyterian, 7-2, face touring Kalamazoo. Richmond's tennis team goes to Hampden-Sydney.

In other tennis action, Duke walloped Dartmouth 8-1, and Colgate downed Washington and Lee by the same score. South Carolina tripped the College of Charleston, 8-2.

Only other activity today is a couple of golf matches. North Carolina State meeting Elon College at Raleigh, and Maryland invading Navy. Yesterday, The Citadel golfers routed South Carolina, 20-7; Ohio University outclassed Virginia Military, 8-1; Colgate whipped Washington and Lee, 6 1-2 - 2 1-2, and Davidson beat Wofford, 20-7.

Dartmouth's jockey team was too much for North Carolina 18-5. In track, South Carolina defeated Georgia, 79-53.

BIG SURPRISE

CHARLSTON, W. Va. (UP)—Manager Rogers Hornsby sprung his biggest surprise of the spring today when he named Clarence (Bud) Podbielan to pitch the Cincinnati Reds' opener against the Milwaukee Braves next Monday.

Podbielan, slender 29-year-old right hander, had a 4-5 record with the Reds last season but has been their most effective pitcher this spring. Hornsby announced that he would work Podbielan nine innings against the Detroit Tigers at Columbus, O., Thursday, "in his final tune-up."

WASHINGTON (UP)—Both teams' opening day pitchers were chosen today at the Washington Senators prepared to entertain the Brooklyn Dodgers in their 1953 debut before the hometown fans.

Manager Bucky Harris nominated Bob Porterfield (18-14 last year) to pitch for the Senators against the New York Yankees next Monday while Charley Dresen named Carl Erskine (14-6) to face the Pittsburgh Pirates at Brooklyn on Tuesday.

Club spokesmen said that regardless of the value of the Negro players the decision of league directors at Greenville, Miss., last Monday to oust the club was illegal and violated contracts.

Leslie O'Conner, a member of the executive committee of the National Baseball Association who helped write the Cotton States League charter, declared, "this situation presents a problem that could imperil the existence of baseball."

The Greenville Delta Democrat-Times commented editorially, however, that its editors were not "convinced that a third rate baseball league is any place to make a fight for equal rights because entertainment, and not need, is involved."

HARD FEELINGS MUTUAL

RICHMOND, Va. (UP)—The hard feelings were mutual today as the Philadelphia Phillies sought their fifth straight victory over the Boston Red Sox.

A free-for-all was temporarily averted in Roanoke, Va., Tuesday when Karl Drews of the Phillies and Russ Kemmerer of the Red Sox exchanged "dusters." Catcher Sammy White of the Red Sox, who admitted he called for Kemmerer's "duster," and shortstop Granny Hamner of the Phils nearly came to blows when both teams left their dugouts and milled around home plate.

OUTFIELD REUNITED

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—The New York Yankees regular outfield was reunited today with the return to action of center fielder Mickey Mantle and right fielder Hank Bauer.

Mantle, sidelined with a rash and Bauer, out of action with a bad back, were expected to play regularly from now on. They returned to the lineup in Nashville, Tenn., Tuesday as the Yankees routed Nashville, 9-1.

KEY MAN NOW

TOPEKA, Kan. (UP)—Manager Marty Marion indicated today that veteran Bob Elliott has become a key man in his plans for the St. Louis Browns with the sale of infielder George Freese to the Detroit Tigers.

Freese, drafted from the Dodgers' Mobile farm club where he hit .313 last season, was regarded as almost certain to remain with the club until Elliott began to flash his spring form. The Browns play the Chicago Cubs today.

ONE-TWO PUNCH

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)—Stan Musial and Steve Bilko were forming a thunderous one-two batting punch today as the St. Louis Cardinals transformed a low-scoring home game into a 6-4 victory over the Dallas Eagles.

Musial, his batting average now crowding the .400 mark, hammered out four hits and Bilko, who has just about clinched the regular first-base job, hit a tremendous home run Tuesday to lead the Cardinals to a 6-4 victory over the Dallas Eagles.

Giardello Calling For Graham Fight

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Middleweight Joey Giardello, flushed by his upset unanimous decision over welterweight contender Ott Turner, called today for another match with Billy Graham. "This time in his own backyard."

"I prefer fighting Graham next," said the flashy South Philadelphia pianist who lost to Graham in New York March 8, after beating Graham twice before, "but I am willing to fight anybody that comes along."

Giardello was the aggressor in the way in the highly partisan battle between foes from opposite ends of the city before an arena crowd of 7,371, which included Graham, the leading foe for Kid Gavilan's title.

Fox Fur Breeders In Popularity Dilemma

By DOROTHY HEESACKER
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO (UP)—American fox fur breeders face a dilemma—partly because of Mamie Eisenhower and Queen Elizabeth.

Both ladies, it is reported, like fox pelts for coats and jackets. But for the past decade or more, fox furs have been out of style. Now, fox breeders believe that fox may come back into fashion when it becomes known that Mrs. Eisenhower and the queen are fond of it.

Paul L. Reinhardt, owner of a fox farm at Burlington, Wis., said a sudden upsurge of popularity could drive fox fur practically out of the market.

A little more than 10 years ago, almost 500,000 fox pelts were sold annually. This year, only 15,000 pelts will be marketed and next year only 10,000.

If demand rises suddenly, the supply of pelts will drop because "we'll have to stop killing the animals and start breeding."

Therein lies the fox breeders' dilemma—whether to cash in on the new market by killing foxes and selling their furs, or to keep the animals as breeding stock and wait until later seasons to catch the market. In the latter case, the farmer may lose out if fox suddenly goes out of fashion again.

Reinhardt said it would take time to enlarge present stocks of foxes and train people to care for them.

The American Fox Breeders Association lists only 150 farms, fewer than 100 of them big operators. At the start of World War II there were 3,000 farms.

It costs about $35 to raise a fox from its birth in April to pelting in December.

Reinhardt has 80 pairs of breeding foxes—considered a big operation by present standards. When he started 25 years ago, Wisconsin was the center of the industry. Now it has only about a dozen farms. Colorado leads with 40.

This year's total production will be auctioned—the usual method of marketing fox fur—in New York on April 17.

"That auction will tell the story about the future," Reinhardt said. "If it's good, I might in several years get a chance to earn back the $100,000 I lost during the war."

Each of the six incorporators now heads a standard broadcast station in the area which will eventually be served by the proposed TV station to be operated by North Carolina Television, Inc.

Officers of the new company elected at a meeting here this morning are W.R. Roberson, Jr., president, H.W. Anderson, vice-president and William S. Page, secretary.

The proposed TV station will utilize one of two VHF channels available; the particular channel being dependent upon an engineering study now being conducted. When completed, the station may be received by all present TV sets in the area without the necessity of a converter.

"Since all of the incorporators have had years of experience in serving the Eastern part of the state with AM stations, it is the new company's intention to bring network, film and local TV programs to the residents of this same area," said President Roberson. "The exact location of the proposed station," he said, "will depend upon the results of an engineering survey as reported to us by our engineering consultant."

New TV Station In Eastern N. C. Being Planned

Wilson. — A group of Eastern North Carolina radio broadcasters announced today the formation of North Carolina Television, Inc., a new company formed to construct and operate a television station in Eastern North Carolina. Application for certificate of incorporation was filed yesterday with the Secretary of State.

Each of the six incorporators now heads a standard broadcast station in the area which will eventually be served by the proposed TV station to be operated by North Carolina Television, Inc.

Citizens Clean Park For City

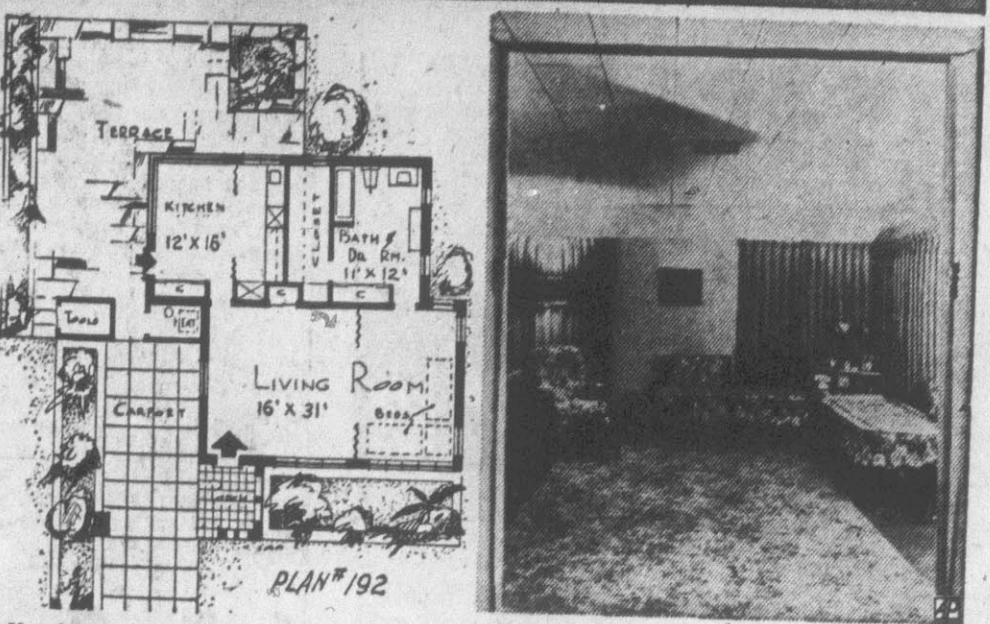

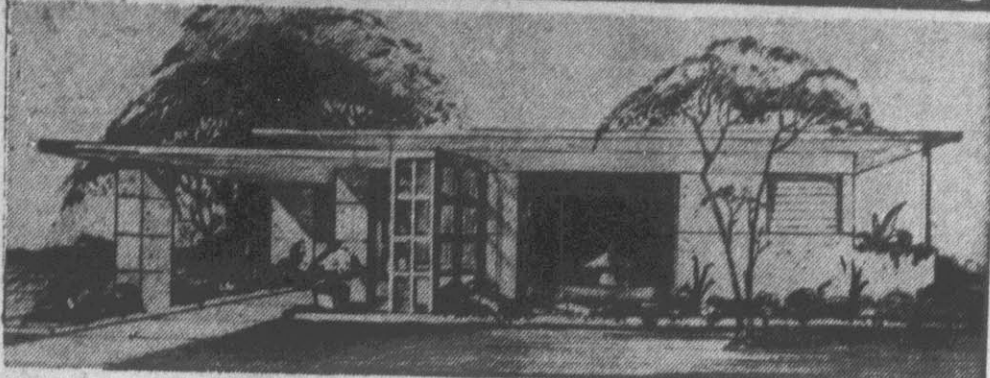

ATLANTA, Ga. (U.P.) — Keeping up a woodland park need not be a matter for the city budget-makers to worry about, residents of the Druid Hills area here decided this spring.

They had trouble in previous years with 75-acre Fernbank Forest, but this year they decided to take the woods and weeds in hand themselves.

On the first spring-like Saturday, 75 residents — including doctors, professors, Boy Scouts and students — turned out and gave the park a clean-up job. James A. Mackay, chairman of the Druid Hills Civic Association, said the same procedure would be followed every Saturday.

COVERED BRIDGES
CONCORD, N. H. (UP) — New Hampshire has 56 covered bridges. Grafton County has the most—14. As far as towns go, Swansey leads with four. Conway, Cornish, Warner and Winchester have three each.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newfeatures
A RETIRED COUPLE, a working couple, or a business woman with limited time for housework—all require a minimum house with maximum comfort. This design 192 by Paul T. Haagen, 360 No. Michigan Ave., Chicago 1, Ill., is geared to those specifications. Architect Taagen contends there is a place for a house that is equivalent to a small apartment. This house was built for Mrs. Jennie Goodman, postmistress at Laredo, Tex. The bedroom end of the living room is shown in the photo.

Jersey Housing Hits New Peak

TRENTON, N. J. (UP) — New Jersey has more housing per person than at any time in the history of the state, according to the New Jersey Association of Real Estate Boards.

Citing the official report of the census bureau, the board said New Jersey showed an increase of 285,515 in the number of dwelling units between 1940 and 1950, compared with a population gain of 214,569.

The board noted that surplus dwelling was general throughout the state. It pointed to a joint review by state officials and Rutgers University which showed that in each city the gain in dwelling during the 10-year period far exceeded the population growth.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT
SALTILLO, Mex. (UP) — H.L. Lights, the student newspaper at Saltillo High School, boasts it is the only such publication with a foreign correspondent. She is Virginia Ann Means, a 1952 graduate who now resides with her parents, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ralph E. Means in Sendai, Japan, and contributes a monthly column to the paper.

ANNOUNCEMENT

My announcement for the new City Board was in no way against some of our fine citizens who have filed for office but if the voters feel that I am qualified and their choice, I would like to be one out of the 5 to aid in selecting the best City Manager possible and offer my service to him for what it is worth.

For information to those not familiar with my past achievements while in office, I would like to say that I have personally promoted and finished over a mile of new City Streets, opened 3 dead end streets, cleaned out many unsightly places and active in all plans to make a better city. Also as Chairman of your Sanitary Department, my record stands for itself and yet leaves much to be done. As Chairman of Parks and Playgrounds, I've added several new sites, actively aided in 2 new parks. As Chairman of City Recreation Commission I built up a budget from $4,500, to $30,000 with much still to be done in this field. Yes, most of this work will be left to the City Manager, but a man with my experience, knowledge of the city, etc. should be of value to the new board and City Manager.

We certainly have the opportunity to choose some good men for our new City Government and with the new plan the best won't be any too good.

Make Do

AP Newfeatures
A SAFE, splinter-free play pet for a toddler can be made out of one sheet of tempered hardboard 3/16-inch thick. The 4 by 8-foot panel is cut down the center to provide two strips each 24 inches wide. Ten bolts with washers and wing nuts are used for fastening. Five holes are bored through overlapped ends for the bolts. The 16-foot strip is then bent to form a large hoop and the other ends are fastened. Center bolt is inserted first. The pen, weighing only 35 pounds, and about 5 feet in diameter, can be rolled from room to room and out into yard. If fitted with legs (1 by 2 strips, 30 inches long) it will be raised for free circulation of air.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Industrial issues led a further recovery on the stock market today.

The gains in this division added to those of yesterday wiped out nearly 24 per cent of the losses of the six sessions ending on Monday. Ralls in the same period wiped out nearly 28 per cent of their loss and the general average showed a comeback of 24 per cent.

Market experts said this was in line with the usual market procedure of rally after an over-sold market condition. They anticipated some further tests of the recent lows before the market becomes fully adjusted.

Net gains today ranged to more than a point in a long list of issues. Trading, however, fell off sharply. Sales in the first hour totaled only 390,000 shares, against 700,000 yesterday.

Issues recently under pressure made the best showing. The air-crafts, among these, were up a point or more in several instances. Steels met good support. Oils were up fractions to more than a point. Ralls ruled strong with gains running to a point. General Motors led a rise in its section.

Banker Explains Savings Bonds Are Still 'Best'

J. H. Waldrop, vice-president of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company at the last meeting of the Kiwanis Club, said U. S. Savings bonds are still the world's safest investment.

"Every time a new purchaser buys a U. S. Savings Bond he or she becomes a shareholder in the government," the Greenville banker declared.

"The American Bankers Association, representing 14,000 banks in this country, has pledged new efforts to sell more bonds to more buyers," he added.

"These bonds provide one of the most popular methods of saving money," Waldrop said 13 per cent of the total national debt is now owned by owners of "E" Bonds and one-fifth by the owners of all types of government bonds.

In addition to the "E" Bond, there is a new "H" Bond that pays the same interest as the "E" Bond in six-month intervals. "The longer one keeps the bond the higher interest until it matures in nine years and eight months," the speaker explained.

Waldrop said that from 1941 to 1952, 43,000,000 Americans had bought $50,000,000,000 worth of Savings Bonds and they still own $39,000,000,000 worth of them.

In North Carolina, the speaker explained, the people bought $1,100,000,000 worth of bonds and they still own $744,000,000 of them.

Pitt County citizens have bought $17,061,000 of bonds and still own $11,490,000 of them up to January, 1953. The banker said, "Since the interest on 'E' Bonds has increased to three per cent semi-annually, and they mature in nine years and eight months instead of ten years, their sale has increased considerably. 'E' Bonds that mature can be kept for another 10 years and continue to draw interest. A bond bought for $75 increases to $100 in the first 10 years and to $133.33 in the next 10 years and eight months," Waldrop explained.

In closing his talk the speaker advised the buying of Savings Bonds from your bank whenever you have available funds. He advised joining the "Bond-a-month Plan" at your bank. He stressed the importance of getting on the payroll savings plan, and having something deducted for Savings Bonds.

John A. Collins, Sr., who had charge of the program, introduced the speaker. Vice-President J. Bryan Brown presided.

Maps Proffered Griffon Council

GRIFTON—Composite wall maps, reduced maps, and detailed maps were presented to the Griffon Town Council Monday night but action on purchasing the maps for Griffon was delayed for further discussion.

W. M. Speight, county attorney, Reginald Gray, county auditor, and Bill Johnson, a representative of the map company, appeared before the Griffon Council Monday night and explained the use of the maps.

The maps are coordinated with the revaluation of property program in the county. Speight said the assessors must have the maps to assess property but a company and will be available to the towns at half the cost.

The council delayed action on purchasing the maps and will hold a special meeting in two weeks at the school. It will be a public meeting.

The board discussed the purchase of fire fighting equipment, contingent on a donation of $1,000 from Lenoir County. The fire fighting equipment will be used for rural fires in addition to those in town. The fire department will give service in Lenoir County.

A number of routine matters were discussed by the board.

President Asks Year's Extension Of Trade Act

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration wants a year of reciprocal trade bargaining under the present rules while it works out its own foreign commerce and tariff policies.

The President said so yesterday in a special message to Congress, asking that the Reciprocal Trade Act, a legacy from the Roosevelt and Truman administrations, be extended a year beyond its expiration date, June 12.

Pending is a bill by Rep. Richard Simpson (R-Pa.), an influential member of the House Ways and Means Committee, which would extend the act, but with amendments curtailing the President's freedom to cut tariffs in making trade agreements with foreign countries.

The reciprocal trade program has recently been attacked in Congress by members who contended it went too far in exposing American business to foreign competition.

Scouting such a fight ahead, Senate Republican Leader Taft of Ohio, said he was agreeable to the one-year extension and thought it was "all right to postpone the fight, if there is going to be one, and let this 'Trade, Not Aid' idea stew for awhile and see what comes of it."

"Trade, Not Aid" is a slogan used by those, in this country and abroad, who believe U. S. direct aid to friendly nations might be replaced wholly or partly by measures making it easier for foreign countries to sell their goods here and so earn dollars.

Democratic support for the one-year extension was predicted by Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, provided "there are not a lot of amendments added."

President Eisenhower said in his message "a thorough and comprehensive reexamination of the economic foreign policy" was imperative.

He said the U. S. trade policy "as well as that of other countries should contribute to the highest possible level of trade on a basis that is profitable and equitable for all."

The President said also his administration would consult Congress frequently as its program develops.

Office Moved During Repairs

The Sears Roebuck order office in Greenville has set up temporary quarters at 511 Dickinson Avenue while extensive repair work is done to the company's permanent office location at 321 Evans Street.

Mrs. Erma Allen, manager of the local order office, said this morning the building occupied by Sears Roebuck on Evans Street is being enlarged and will be completely modernized. The Greenville branch will still remain an order office, she said, but the enlargement of the building will enable the office to carry a great deal more merchandise.

The renovation is expected to take approximately two months.

Make Large Haul In Liquor Raid

It appears that Greenville bootleggers are beginning to replenish the supplies of whiskey depleted last weekend by bumper sales during Easter.

Pitt County ABC officers made an unusually large haul last night for a raid made inside the city limits, when they confiscated 48 jars — 24 gallons — of "white" whiskey from a coal bin at the residence of Mary Ella House, 308-B First Street.

J. M. Ward, officer-in-charge of the local force, said this morning ABC officers searched the premises of the 34-year-old Negro woman and found a coal bin at her home locked up tight.

After gaining entrance to the coal storage bin, Ward stated, officers found four cases of illegal liquor of the extremely odorous variety. Each case was contained in a wet burlap bag, he said.
