Big Calendar Laid Aside For Fiscal Debate

House Begins Bonds Fight

RALEIGH (UP) — The House of Representatives, sporting a calendar almost as thick as a good-sized novel, laid the calendar aside today for a knock-down fight on three big bond issue bills totaling $85,000,000.

The bond bills, proposed by Gov. William B. Umstead, call for $50,000,000 for public school building; $22,000,000 for mental hospitals and $13,000,000 for other improvements. They were set as a special and continuing order of business in the House today.

From here on out the accent will be on money as the biennial rush to pass the appropriations bills and get home begins.

The House met an hour early last night as Speaker E. T. Bost attempted to get the members to clear off some of the other bills on the calendar to make way for the bond issues. However, the members had to spend the first 35 minutes chatting until enough showed up to form a quorum.

The Senate, as usual, met only briefly and cleared off its calendar quickly, giving final approval to a House bill to establish the Eastern Carolina Airport Authority for Nash, Pitt, Edgecombe and Wilson counties.

Despite a couple of lengthy verbal battles, House members also made pretty good progress.

They passed and sent to the Senate a bill by Rep. Richard Sanders of Durham to make ownership of an automobile sufficient proof of guilt in parking violations, but the measure was passed only after penalties under the bill were lowered almost to the vanishing point.

It provoked a storm of protest when Sanders told the House that enforcement of parking violations is impossible under present law. The State Supreme Court has ruled that present law actually provides that an eyewitness must be able to testify that a person parking a car in violation of ordinances actually parked the car and left it there.

Rep. Sam Worthington of Pitt charged it "would bring on more trouble than anything else we could do here."

When it looked as if the bill would be scrapped, Rep. R. Lee Whitmire offered an amendment to make maximum penalties under it no more than $1. That melted all opposition.

The lower chamber also got into an argument over a bill by Rep. Roy A. Taylor of Buncombe to authorize creation of two-year community vocational colleges under the state board of education.

It finally passed second reading on a vote of 5 to 46.

In other action, Rep. J. Y. Jordan of Buncombe introduced a bill to make charity hospitals, other than governmental ones, liable to damages for negligence of their employes. The State Supreme Court had held in a recent case that charity hospitals can not be sued for damages.

House Investigators Dig Into Witness' Past

Grunewald Record Probed

WASHINGTON (UP)—House tax investigators disclosed today they are checking into the citizenship records of Henry W. Grunewald, the $100,000 a year private investigator with many friends in high places.

John E. Tobin, counsel for the House Ways and Means subcommittee investigating tax scandals, told reporters that his staff is checking Justice Department records on Grunewald's entry into this country and his acquisition of American citizenship.

The stocky, balding, 60-year-old Grunewald was born in South Africa. He testified yesterday that he came to this country as an immigrant in 1906-or 1907.

The subcommittee showed interest in his entire career, including the period in the 1920's when he was a prohibition agent and a special investigator for the Justice Department.

But most of Grunewald's testimony dealt with the last 10 years when he listed among his friends such government officials as Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.), Senate president pro tempore; George J. Schoeneman, former revenue commissioner; Charles Oliphant, former chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Bureau; and Daniel A. Bolich, former assistant revenue commissioner.

After questioning Grunewald for two hours, the subcommittee recessed its hearings until Thursday when Grunewald will return to the witness chair.

At yesterday's public hearing the subcommittee disclosed that Grunewald had testified at an earlier secret session that in his capacity as a private investigator he made "certain inquiries" about the federal district judge who fined John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers $3,500,000 in 1946. The fine, which the Supreme Court reduced to $700,000, was imposed by the late Judge T. Alan Goldsborough.

Grunewald testified according to the transcript of the secret session, that he was hired by Lewis' union on recommendation of Bridges. He declined to say what kind of an investigation he made, but did say that he got a $16,000 fee.

Taft Says Military Program May Be Revamped

Urges New Defense Study

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (UP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft said Monday night he and President Eisenhower believe a complete revamping of the nation's military program could lead to a $10,000,000,000 reduction in defense spending by next year with a subsequent tax cut.

He called for a "complete impartial investigation" of military spending aimed at reducing the defense bill from the present proposed $47,000,000,000 to "something like $37,000,000,000."

President Eisenhower has avoided discussion of actual figures in connection with plans to trim the military budget. He has spoken generally of getting rid of duplication and unnecessary expense without endangering national security.

Taft outlined his long-range hopes for military economies in an off-the-cuff talk before a "Freedom Forum" meeting here.

He said he and Mr. Eisenhower agreed on a possible $1,000,000,000 military spending cut during the election campaign last year.

Taft told a press conference in Washington last Saturday the administration hopes for a reduction of $4,000,000,000 in the present military budget. Presumably he feels a complete revamping of the military program could result in another $6,000,000,000 cut next year.

The present program was "thought up" by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and others, Taft said, and "maybe they're right."

"But I don't think they are," he said. "If a complete impartial investigation were to conclude that the present military program is necessary for our national security, then I would be willing to change my mind."

He also charged that newspapers are contributing to dissension in the Republican Party that could "wreck the Eisenhower administration." Eastern newspapers, he said, would like to "throw out 50 per cent of the Republican Party."

"They condemned Secretary of State Dulles when he dismissed (former ambassador to Russia) George Kennan," he said. "It was simply a matter that Kennan believed in containment, and Mr. Dulles did not."

On the other hand, Taft said, "the Chicago Tribune and other midwestern newspapers would like to get rid of the other 50 per cent of the party."

McCarthy To Continue His Ship Deals Without State Dept. OK

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Joseph McCarthy said today he has no intention of checking with Secretary o. State John Foster Dulles before investigating foreign trade with Red countries.

He said, oowever, he would keep Dulles "informed" of what his Senate investigating subcommittee finds.

The Wisconsin Republican said the subcommittee soon will branch out to investigate ships under British, Italian, Norwegian and other foreign flags carrying goods to Red China or between Soviet bloc ports — if they have agents in this country.

McCarthy made it clear he would not follow the advice of Mutual Security Director Harold E. Stassen.

After a conference with the senator yesterday, Stassen said in a prepared statement that he had advised McCarthy that "all questions of contact by his committee—with any foreign nationals or governments should be cleared with the secretary of state and his advice should be followed on the manner to proceed."

McCarthy said he never saw this statement until newsmen showed it to him.

"I assume he meant to emphasize that," said McCarthy, "because the press release was written before he came here."

Stassen called on McCarthy after the Senate asked him to "personally assure" a group of Greek shipowners in London that he did not object to the non-Communist trade agreements the subcommittee has been obtaining. McCarthy said it developed that Stassen was "Not in position" to make such a statement. This, he said would be up to Dulles.

$62,160 Budget Is Outlined For Pitt Work With Blind

Tentative Approval Given By Board Of Commissioners In Yesterday's Session; Sum In Line With Past Outlays

By JESS POINDEXTER
Reflector City Editor

A recommended budget totaling $62,160 for work with the blind in Pitt County during the next fiscal year was tentatively approved yesterday by the County Board of Commissioners.

Pitt Welfare Superintendent K. T. Futrelle submitted the tentative budget request to the board at its regular monthly meeting and said the proposed 1953-1954 budge' has been set up "about in line with what it was last year."

According to reports of welfare workers this morning, the county pays only a small portion of the overall $62,160 annual expenditure. They said Pitt County's part of the budget request would be only $10,966.

Futrelle's budget request provided for a total of 140 blind cases, and the requested average monthly payment to each recipient is $37. Cost of the project would be borne by Federal, State and county participation.

Proportionate Payment

Welfare officials said of the monthly payments — which may vary from $15 to $55 in each case — would be broken down proportionately. The Federal government pays the first $15 and half the remainder, while the State and county share equally in paying for what is left after Federal participation.

Of the total $62,160 annual expenditure, $5,180 would be paid out monthly. Each agency's part, monthly and annually, would be: Federal, $3,640, $43,680; State, $770, $9,240; and Pitt County, $770, $9,240.

The county's portion of payment for salaries and travel expenses of caseworkers for the blind would be $144 per month or $1,728 for the entire year — setting the total cost to the county for the blind aid program at $10,968.

County Auditor Reginald Gray explained this morning that the Board of Commissioners have registered only tentative aproval of the submitted budget request, and some changes may yet be made in the overall budget before it meets with final approval by the board.

Perkins Re-Appointed

At the same time it was brought to the board's attention that the term of office of one member on the Pitt County Welfare Board expires April 30. The commissioners re-appointed J. Vance Perkins for another three-year term on the board. Perkins has served on the welfare board since April, 1950.

At the request of Mark Lassiter of Snow Hill, the Board of Commissioners went on record recommending that H. Maynard Hicks of Snow Hill be appointed to the State Highway Commission from the Second Division. The division contains several eastern counties including Pitt.

A committee of freeholders appointed by the board to investigate claims registered by Mrs. Vina Simmons that she has lost several turkeys to wild dogs made its report and recommended that Mrs. Simmons be reimbursed a total of $91.42 for damages.

The turkeys reportedly were destroyed in November, 1952, by a pack of wild dogs. The commissioners voted to reimburse Mrs. Simmons in that amount if any money remains in the county dog fund at the end of the current fiscal year.

Appointed Constable

The Board of Commissioners, all members of which were present, appointed B. D. Forrest to fill the unexpired term of Roy Dixon as constable of Chicod township.

Willie Pate, county sanitarian, was authorized by the board to bury all dogs exterminated in the county's dog control program in a grave to be dug near the Pitt County Home.

An expenditure of $100 was voted the Pitt County Federation of Home Demonstration Women with which the group may apply to the purchase price of a new piano. The request for funds was made by Mrs. Dorothy Moye of Farmville, federation president.

Miss Jesse R. Moye of Greenville appeared before the board and asked the commissioners to accept a portrait of William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, to be presented for use of the county by G. H. Sturm of Greenville.

The portrait of Pitt is to be hung in the courthouse at some location to be determined by the Board of Commissioners. The Earl was the staunchest defender of the American cause before the British Parliament during the Revolution, and Pitt County was named for him.

It was voted at the meeting to give all county employes who have been in county employ at least 12 months an annual vacation of two weeks. All employes in service less than 12 months are to receive a one-week vacation.

As a result of the board's action yesterday, all offices in the Pitt County Courthouse will close at 12 o'clock noon each Saturday beginning Saturday, May 2. Heretofore, county offices have remained open until 1 o'clock on Saturdays.

Monday, May 18, was designated as the day the Board of Commissioners will sit as a board of equalization and review. At that time, all citizens of the county who have complaints to air relative to the evaluation of property may do so in the commissioner's room at the courthouse.

Reports of various county officials were made at the meeting yesterday.

New Mercy Plea To Gov. Umstead

RALEIGH (UP)—The attorney for LaFayette Miller said today he would make a second appeal to Gov. William B. Umstead for mercy but would not make any further court appeals to save the life of the young Negro.

The U. S. Supreme Court last week denied a hearing on Miller's case requested by local Negro attorney Herman Taylor.

Miller was convicted in January, 1952, of shooting Harvey C. Boyd through a window of the young farmer's home as he and his wife prepared for bed Nov. 21, 1951. He put the victim's wife in the trunk of the couple's car and drove off but highway patrolmen stopped him a short time later and released her.

Three Negroes were on the trial jury which convicted him, but Taylor contended there had been racial discrimination on selection of the grand jury which indicted him as well as in picking the trial jury.

The date of execution in the state's lethal gas chamber will automaticaly be two weeks after the decision of the Supreme Court is certified to the State Supreme Court.

300-Pound Lion Will Lose Tail

PALISADES PARK, N. J. (UP)—A 300-pound lion goes under the surgeon knife today to lose its tail.

The lion, a two and-a-half-year old named Papoose, got his tail caught in the door of his cage at the Palisades Amusement Park. Veterinarians said the tail was so badly mangled that amputation was necessary.

Earle Purtle, owner of the lion, said the tail would be bobbed to the length of that of a boxer dog.

"He'll never be the same," Purtle said.

Bad Weather For Convoy Of Ailing Prisoners

Concern For POWs

By LEROY HANSEN
United Press Staff Correspondent

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP) — United Nations officers expressed concern today for the health of sick and disabled Allied war prisoners now riding toward freedom.

Light rain fell along the 200-mile lone "freedom road" from Chonma on the Yalu River to Panmunjom and more bad weather was predicted for tonight.

The officers presumed that the 68 Communist ambulances and trucks in the convoys were unheated and the prisoners would be uncomfortable in temperatures which reached a low of 22 today.

They pointed out, too, that "freedom road" had been pockmared by 33 months of constant Allied bombing and the ride would be a bumpy one.

But the U.N. base camp at Munsan and medical teams here were prepared to receive the prisoners and provide them immediate care when they are exchange next Monday.

Helicopters and ambulances were waiting to take the released prisoners to the field hospital at Munsan and from there to the big modern hospitals in Japan. From Japan they will be flown to the United States.

U.N. officers believed the Reds had stuck to their announced schedule and dispatched the first convoy of 20 ambulances and trucks on its way from Chonma at 4 p.m. e.s.t. Monday.

Three additional trucks were scheduled to join them tonight in the battered road junction of Yongsong, 50 miles north of the Red Korean capital of Pyongyang.

The Communists did not announce the number of prisoners in the convoys, but Allied authorities speculated no more than 408 could be transported, if each vehicle held six persons each.

Fifth Air Force reconnaissance planes including jet Shooting Stars F-86 Sabrejets and B-26's flew continuously over the convoy route in search of the vehicles and to warn off Allied bombers that might erroneously fly into the area while looking for enemy targets.

With the first movies of the prisoner exchange already made, it was up to Gen. Mark W. Clark in Tokyo to take the next step toward settlement of the whole Korean armistice question.

Clark still had not answered the Communist request for immediate resumption of the main truce talks, which were recessed last October.

The American Red Cross announced in Tokyo the freed prisoners would be permitted to make free telephone calls to their families as soon as they receive clearance from medical officers.

Scale Down Ground Units For More Air Power

NATO Emphasis Is Shifted

By CHARLES CORDDRY
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)— Military authorities have scaled down their plans for more Allied ground divisions in Western Europe this year and will put major emphasis on building up Atlantic Pact air power.

Defense Department sources reported these developments as Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, prepared to fly to Europe today for North Atlantic Treaty Organization conferences which will decide 1953 strength goals.

U. military planners expect the NATO Allies to fix a goal of 5,500 airplanes. But they apparently are reconciled to accepting a small increase in numbers of ground divisions. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, chief of staff to NATO Commander Gen. Matthew B Ridgway, said recently the West European defense forces are approximately at their 1952 goals of 50 divisions and 4,000 airplanes.

While Ridgway's headquarters has been represented in Paris dispatches as wanting about eight more divisions added this year, some military men in the Pentagon will not be surprised if a lower target is set. Some sources said the figure might remain at 50, where it is now, with this year's effort directed mainly at making those divisions more effective in terms of trained men, equipment and supporting units.

A one-time tentative goal of 96 divisions by 1955 appears to have been abandoned altogether.

Final figures for 1953 will be fixed by the NATO Council which begins meeting in Paris on April 23. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey will join Wilson at the conference.

Several factors apparently influenced a shift in emphasis to air power for this year's NATO build-up.

Gruenther reported on his recent visit here that some countries in Europe were reaching a limit on contributions they could afford to make to NATO. He specifically named France, which has been scheduled to put up the bulk of ground forces.

Dulles intimated to a congressional committee in testimony just made public that America might send more military aid to Indo-China at the expense of Europe. That would be mainly aid for ground forces.

Pitt Education Board Endorses Trustees' Resolution

Approve School Bond Issue

By MURIEL SHOTWELL
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education unanimously approved a resolution presented to them by the board of trustees of the city schools asking for an election for the issuance of bonds for school construction and equipping.

The resolution was presented to the county board by J. H. Rose, superintendent of the city schools, who appeared at the board's meeting yesterday morning with the city school trustees. They also requested the county board to file their resolution with the county commissioners.

Following approval of the resolution, the county board turned the resolution over to the county commissioners who passed it and set the date for the bond election for June 2.

Rose pointed out to the county board that the school needs of the city include a new senior high school for white students and a new elementary school for white children, additional classrooms and a gymnasium for Eppes High School, land and lunchroom for Fleming Street School, and 10 or more classrooms and a lunchroom for South Greenville School.

Grifton Bond Issue

The county board also passed on a resolution from the Grifton school district committee requesting they ask the county commissioners to call for an election on a school bond issue totaling $110,000.

The petition submitted to the board and turned over to the county commissioners contained the names of 174 qualified voters from Grifton. The funds from the bond issue, if passed, have been earmarked for erecting, enlarging, altering, and equipping school buildings and purchasing land.

Chicod Petition

Another petition was presented to the county board from Chicod which asked for a district election to learn if taxpayers favor paying for the services of a public school music teacher. The petition was approved by the board and sent to the county commissioners for final approval.

The petition was signed by the local district committee which is composed of L. C. Venters, chairman, L. D. Stanley, Glenn Wall, and L. H. Gaskins.

The board approved the purchase of an acre of land for the Stokes Negro School for addition to the school campus. The land to be purchased adjoins the Perkins tract on which the school is located.

Strike Cuts Into Auto Production

DETROIT (UP)—Auto and truck production at Ford Motor Co. was cut in half today by a key supplier plant strike and Chrysler Corp. stopped assembly of Plymouth, Dodge and DeSoto cars here because of labor trouble.

More than 45,500 employes of the two giant auto firms were idle, with 30,000 of the laid-off workers employed by Ford. More layoffs at Chrysler appeared imminent.

The Ford strike was the most serious. A 14-day walkout by workers at Ford's Monroe, Mich., parts plant may eventually idle more than 70,000 workers because of parts shortages.

Twenty truck drivers at Chrysler were responsible for laying off 15,500 workers at the company's Detroit plants. The drivers set up picket lines protesting the company taking its dies from a strike-bound supplier firm to prevent a shortage of body mouldings.

This stopped final assembly and some other operations at DeSoto, Dodge and Plymouth. The Chrysler division continued operating but it was doubtful that production could continue beyond nightfall.

Assembly Drops Its Endorsement Of World Govm't

RALEIGH (UP)—The General Assembly finally passed a long-debated bill last night withdrawing its 1949 support of world government.

However, it didn't touch a 1941 resolution "expressing hope" that some form of world government could be established eventually.

The Senate passed the resolution some time ago repealing its support of world government, but it lay buried deep on the House calendar. Rep. Wayland Floyd of Robeson County called it up out of order and began to read to the House reasons why it should be passed.

Speaker E. T. Bost cut him short. "If you'll quit talking," Bost said, "they'll pass this."

Floyd sat down and the measure passed.

Govm't Expected To Act Soon To Raise Rates

Home Loan Interest Rise

By RICHARD E. MOONEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government is expected to act soon, possibly this week, to raise interest rates on home loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration or the Federal Housing Administration.

A highly-placed official said the move is in the works, but refused to give details. VA loans now carry a 4 per cent interest rate, FHA loans a 4 1-4 per cent rate.

Some financial circles expect both to go up to 4 1-2 per cent. But there is also speculation that the only increase may be 1-4 per cent on the VA rate, to bring it in line with the existing FHA rate.

The government suspended its own purchases of mortgages Monday in apparent preparation for the change. Private lending institutions, taking the cue, probably will be reluctant to accept any more mortgages at the present VA or FHA terms until they know what the government is going to do.

However, home-buyers may be able to negotiate loan contracts with an "escalator" clause allowing the interest rate to go up if and when the government acts.

An increase in mortgage rates would fit in with the Eisenhower administration's "hard money" program for beating inflation with tight credit policies. As part of this program the Treasury is borrowing $1,000,000,000 this week at 3 1-4 per cent interest the highest it has paid in 20 years.

The government backs more than half the mortgages made these days, guaranteeing to pay off at least four-fifths of the mortgage if the owner defaults.

The Federal National Mortgage Association, until Monday, purchased these VA and FHA mortgages in areas where there were shortages of private mortgage money and re-sold them where money was plentiful.

Congressional sources said the move would "dry up" the supply of money available for mortgages. They said the government would have to act fast, or risk upsetting the home-buying market just as the 1953 building season is getting underway.

Jurors Ran Up Big Dinner Bill

LAUREL, Miss. (UP) —A county court jury here ran up a $42.50 bill for a single meal and Judge Lunsford Casey disallowed it as "excessive."

Besides steaks up to $4.50 each, one item was: "two cocktails, $2."

The jury was trying man for illegal possession of intoxicating beverages under the state's prohibition law.

Cost Of Pitt X-Ray Survey To Run About Ten Cents A Person

Ten cents per person, or a total of $3,800 for the entire county, is the estimate of local costs for the community x-ray program April 25 through June 18, Mrs. J.B. Spilman, executive secretary of the Pitt County TB Association, said today.

Every adult 15 years of age and over will be offered chest x-rays without charge in a drive to uncover every unknown case of tuberculosis and prevent spread of the disease in this area. Other chest disorders, such as lung tumors and certain heart disease may also be detected.

The cost of the cooperative community project will be borne by the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association through the proceeds of Christmas Seals Sale. The local health department, the North Carolina State Board of Health and local civic clubs and organizations in the county are contributing their services to this project. It is endorsed by the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society.

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, local health department director, pointed out that financial expense of the program cannot compare with the great savings which the campaign will mean to individuals and the community as a whole.

"Every case of tuberculosis is estimated to cost the community $14,000 to $15,000. The majority of people x-rayed during the survey will have clear films indicating that their lungs are sound," Dr. Humbert explained. "But of the cases of tuberculosis we find, most of them will be in an early stage."

If early cases of TB remain unknown and untreated, they progress to a more serious stage, when they are more difficult to cure and sometimes fatal, Dr. Humbert explained. "Undiscovered TB is a danger to the community as well to the victim himself, since tuberculosis is communicable at any stage of its active career."

"An x-ray program like the one in our county is about to launch will result in a saving to the community not only in dollars, but in human resources, the basis of every community's real wealth," he said.

A "Hitch Your Wagon to A Star" theme was used in the favors, menus and other appointments. A three course dinner was enjoyed. Toastmaster for the evening was Bernard McLawhorn, junior class president. He gave the welcome, and in response John Robert Lewis gave a speech.

Others taking part on the program were Mary Dawson, Mac Lancaster, Phyllis Haddock. The juniors sang and presented to the seniors and faculty their gifts.

Members of the class of '53 are Peggy Abbott, Clyde Adams, Kenneth Branch, Hilda Buck, Beulah Burroughs, Joyce Cannon, Louise Cannon, Louise Corey, Rufus Craft, Jean Daugherty, Mary DaWson, Clarice Edwards, Rogers Harris, J. 'Wedding' Plans Are Completed

Greenville Rotarians devoted most of their meeting last night to ironing out last minute details for the womanless wedding which will be staged for the benefit of Girl Scouts in the Austin Auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock.

J. B. Kittrell, general chairman of the womanless wedding project, reviewed the cast and arrangements for the production briefly for the Rotarians, and then members of the club adjourned to Austin Auditorium where they went through their final rehearsal before tonight's presentation.

Tickets for the production have been on sale by Rotarians and will be on sale at the door tonight.

Guests of the Rotarians at last night's meeting were W. M. Scales of Greenville and visiting Rotarians Randolph Eagles of Tarboro, Faust Johnson, Gilbert Davis, Roy Turnage, Wilbur Ormond and Bill Bullard, all of Ayden.

Approximately 60 Rotarians, appropriately costumed, will participate in the womanless wedding tonight. Principal members of the cast will include Phil Goodson as the bride, and Alton Barrett as the groom. Other Rotarians will portray the parts of bridesmaids, groomsmen, members of the brides family and members of the grooms family, distinguished guests, and other members of the wedding party.

Dr. and Mrs. Haney Joint Personality Topic For Aries Club

Mrs. W. D. Barbre was gracious hostess to the Aries Book Club on Thursday evening, April 2, at her home on East Fifth Street.

Miss Grace Outland, president, presided over the business session, during which time plans were made for programs for the coming year.

Club members expressed regrets over the illness of Mrs. Wendell W. Smiley, club sponsor.

Mrs. W. C. Goodwin presented the program for the evening. She chose as subjects for her "Favorite Personality" Greenville's own beloved Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Haney—a personality composed of two people so close that their joint deeds are as one.

There are many outstanding personages in many fields, but Mrs. Goodwin chose to narrow her range of selection to someone known individually, rather than to some shadowy subject whose deeds are recorded but are no closer than the touch of paper.

Dr. Haney was described as a man of humor, a kindly person, one who is aware and competent to help avert trouble as well as to give consolation, qualified to deal with family counseling, tolerant and approachable, and using a common sense approach to all problems. Mrs. Goodwin stressed the fact that Mrs. Haney is integrated in any accomplishments Dr. Haney may have rendered and spoke of the children who have grown to be commendable responsible echoes of their parents.

Club members listened with interest as Mrs. Goodwin touched briefly on the lives of the Haneys in their native state of Kentucky, their education, courtship, marriage and life during World War I.

She reviewed briefly the outstanding work accomplished at his pastorate in Richmond, Va., where he remained for 20 years and described his work as National Director of War Services of Christian Churches in the U. S. during World War II.

In closing Mrs. Goodwin spoke of Dr. Haney's commendable accomplishments since he accepted the Greenville pastorate in 1943. That was ten years ago, and in that time the Eighth Street Christian Church membership has more than doubled.

"To me," she said, "this accomplishment speaks loudly for my joint personality. The message is always there, but, being humans, the voice we hear and vision it through flavors our acceptance."

Following this interesting and inspiring program, the hostess served delicious refreshments before the meeting adjourned.

Dr. Stokes Speaks Before Club On World Affairs At April Meet

Members of Woman's Club of Greenville enjoyed a very full and interesting program at the regular monthly meeting for April which was held at the club house. Mrs J. B. Spilman, vice-president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, who is on an European trip at present.

The meeting opened with the reading of the collect in unison. The usual order of routine business was followed and committee reports heard. Mrs. J. Vance Perkins, from the Art Festival Steering committee, presented completed plans for the festival which is now in progress and urged each member to cooperate as she was called on and to publicize and attend the full week of events on the program. Art exhibits are open from 9:30 a.m. - 6:00 p. m. daily through Friday at the Sheppard Memorial Library, Woman's Club building, and Armory. Programmed events are scheduled in the various city schools, E. C. C. and Woman's Club.

Mrs. Spilman introduced a representative of the Mobile T. B. X-ray Unit who explained the work of the unit and urged all to cooperate both by being x-rayed and by impressing on others the importance of taking advatage of the services offered. The X-Ray Unit will be in Greenville during the last week of April and will be open from 10:00 a. m. through 4:00 p. m. daily.

Mrs. Spilman announced that the dates of the convention for N. C. Federation of Woman's Clubs were May 6th, 7th, 8th to be held at Wrightsville Beach, and that the Greenville Club had a quota of 3 voting delegates. Mrs. R. P. Rogers incoming president, Mrs. S. H. Mitchell, chairman of the Garden Club and Mrs. Spilman were chosen to serve in this official capacity.

The program for the afternoon continued the theme for the year - "Our American Heritage." Mrs. W. C. Harris introduced Dr. Kathleen Stokes of the Dept of Social Studies, E. C. C. Dr. Stokes ably and charmingly spoke on America's Relation to World Affairs." She prefixed her talk (given during the Easter season) by stating that "America joins in faith with all mankind during this season. Jesus stressed the uniqueness and dignity of the human soul. We in America can only consider a just peace. She reminded that "world affairs are changeable from day to day and presented some of the politics of the "Cold War," pointing out that the chief political issue today is "communist or non-communist control?" Part of the "cold war" is carried on by revolutionary movements - i. e. - keeping different groups and peoples in a constant state of unrest and turmoil. Such situations are created and used toward the end result of the communist plan for control of the backward and underprivileged groups in the present world struggle. The revolutionaries utilize their ideas and values to establish their work while at the same time assailing our leaders. There is much "double talk" and hypocricy practiced in attempting to sway these susceptible and weak groups of peoples. "The remote control of these movements is what has become known as the "cold war" and the centers from which such control can be directed is from Russia and the U. S. The communist revolutionary movements often utilize our techniques to change and improve the backward agricultural state of the weaker countries while at the same time working them into the Russian methods of control." In closing Dr. Sokes stressed that to secure a just peace, "we must renew our faith in our American way of life - to live and think and act democratically."

Following this timely discussion, Mrs. Lloyd C. Mills, chairman of hostesses invited the group to the beautifully appointed tea table which was arranged with lavendar and yellow as a predominant color scheme. Grape juice and fruit punch, delightful and attractive seasonally decorated cookies, mints and nuts were served and arranged around a very artistic and beautiful centerpiece of yellow spring flowers and purple iris. Yellow tapers were lighted to complete the arrangement and bouquets of seasonal blossoms were used effectively on the mantel and throughout the room. Those assisting Mrs. Mills were Mesdames W. H. Woolard, S. E. West, F. E. Worsley, T. S. Womble, R. L. Thompson, oJs. G. Tabar, L. L. Rives, J. G. Reddick, Bertha Parker, Cora Powell, T. J. Moore, Nan Moore, Lee H. Moore, R. P. Rogers, Marshall Du Val and J. H. Boyd.

Lions Hear Talk On Korea And Its Recent History

Korea, its land, people and the type of fighting going on their now was discussed before the Greenville Lions Club last night by Ward James, Greenville High School teacher.

James, an infantry officer in World War II, was recalled at the outbreak of the Korean War for service and completed a tour of duty there before being discharged and coming to Greenville.

James told how Korea long has been a disputed area in which the Russians and Japanese continued to fight over for hundreds of years, with the Japs winning in the last conflict.

Thus when Japan surrendered, Korea came under the protection of the American and Russians jointly.

"The Russians knew what they wanted when they demanded that the 38th parallel be the dividing point, as they knew that it could not be defended against an attack" James said.

"Human life to the enemy forces is of no value whatsoever" James declared.

The country there was entirely different to that which United States troops had been used to fighting in and that made for heavy losses in both mennad materials to start with" James stated.

Lack of roads on which United States military forces were used to operating on were sadly lacking. In fact, James pointed out, there was only 18 miles of Black Top roads in the entire Republic of Korea.

"The only modern conveniences found in the land, those of scattered rail, power and sanitation facilities, were the direct result of the occupation by the Japs," the speaker declared.

These were all constructed by forced labor at the time the Japs occupied the land following their last conflict with the Russians.

"America at the start of the Korean war, as now, was carrying the burden of the fighting and supplying the materials and weapons for the others," the former Army officer pointed out.

Jimmie Harris, chairman of the Elm Street Park fund-raising drive, reported that contributions are still lagging far behind.

An early report reveals that only around $3,600 of the sought-for $14,000 has been raised.

Harris stated that the Lions' solicitors will continue to attempt to raise the needed funds, a report to be made later.

President Bruce Sugg presided over the regular meeting.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP) — Dr. V. Willman of St. Louis University reported that experiments indicate cold applications are more effective in controlling bleeding wounds than commonly-used hot packs. Willman reported his findings in tests on dogs at a meeting of the Society of University Surgeons here.

Strength for the Day

HARD—BUT NECESSARY

It is always hard for a person to forgive an injury. The difficulty of forgiveness was classically set forth in the cross of Christ. The sufferings of Christ indicated what God had to suffer in order to forgive the sins which mankind had wantonly committed against the divine sovereignty.

It is hard to forgive an injury and hard to forgive the person who injured us. But I venture to say that you will discover the person hardest to forgive is yourself. A very bitter form of hatred is self-hatred. It is the cause of many suicides. Usually we do not realize that hatred of self is just as wicked as hatred of one's neighbor, and, if you hate yourself, you hate somebody whom God loves. Furthermore, self-hatred ravages your soul just as completely as does your hatred of an enemy.

St. Paul urged the Ephesians to forgive one another even as God in Christ Jesus had forgiven them. Self-hatred is not repentance; it is a form of cruelty inflicted upon one's self and in which, the psychiatrist assures us, some people take morbid delight. It is utterly wrong, utterly childish, and utterly unprofitable.

"Forgive one another"—that includes yourself.

A New Era In The State's Financial Status?

North Carolina's General Assembly has done a good job so far of holding the line against new increases in state taxes during the next two years. During the campaign there was widespread sentiment expressed against state tax increases, and most of the state officials pledged their support to keeping taxes where they were.

As the current session nears its conclusion, it is apparent the sentiment still prevails among the lawmakers.

As the line against new taxes holds, it is also becoming apparent the state may have to dig into its $17 million surplus fund to meet necessary expenses for the next two years. Indeed, there are some legislators who are rather sure the surplus funds will be wiped out entirely in meeting the budget for the coming biennium.

The state government, of course, is not a money-making business. Taxes paid by the people should go back to them in the form of government services. That is what will be done if the surplus funds go to pay operating expenses during the next two years in lieu of increased taxes to meet those demands for funds.

The situation which confronted the General Assembly this session may mark the end of an era of surplus funds which has, in the past few years, made the problem of financing the state's operations somewhat easier to handle than it is proving this session.

Revenues above estimates and appropriations during several years have accounted for North Carolina surplus fund. Now, however, it appears that revenues may no longer soar above what is anticipated — and they may even fall short of bringing in the dollars counted on. With that prospect in view, it is readily seen that the problem of allocating the state's spending puts more pressure on the General Assembly than in recent sessions.

There is no reason to assume that North Carolina can not get by without increasing taxes for the next two years; but if the cushion fund disappears in that time — and revenues from tax schedules fall off — the time will come when the state must either find more revenue sources, or trim considerably its living expenses.

If surplus funds of the state are depleted during the next two years, members of the General Assembly will find themselves with their backs to the wall when it comes to planning the state's fiscal program two years from now.

Instead of operating with reasonable assurance that the state's income will exceed its expenses, North Carolina two years from now may find itself in the entirely different position of wondering whether its income will meet appropriations, or whether appropriations must be cut back to make sure the state does not find red figures in its balance column at the end of a year's operations.

A Distasteful, But Necessary Program

Americans dislike the game of playing at war.

By and large, the American people can not get enthused over practice air raids, learning what to do in case of an atomic attack, or preparing for an emergency which they feel may never come.

Perhaps that is one of the principal reasons that nation's civil defense program is faced with the rough sledding it is encountering not only on a national level, but on state and local levels as well.

The American people are intelligent. They are well aware that enemies of the United States have planes capable of striking American cities. They are well aware of devastating results atomic attacks have caused on other cities. They still remember casually the suffering and slaughter which took place in British, German and other cities before the Atomic Era at the close of World War II.

Yet, with all this information, most American people feel that an air attack just "can't happen here." About the best reason they have for such a feeling is that it has never happened before. But all the evidence points to the fact it could happen in the United States without much difficulty.

Whether the American people like it or not — and we say again most of them do not — it is for their own welfare that civil defense programs have been organized, and efforts are being made to develop programs to cope with any emergency. If the day of such an emergency arrives, there will be chaos even with a well organized civil defense program. The confusion and loss of life on such an occasion will be even greater if a civil defense program fails to work as it is planned to.

Civil defense, distasteful as it may be, is a necessary evil in which the American people in this age must take an interest for their own welfare.

In this day and time no people can be assured of immunity from the horrors of war in their own community. While the "playing at war" should be held to a minimum, there is a certain amount of it which must be endured for the safety of the American people. The sooner the people as a whole accept it, the better prepared they will be for something which could happen to any community in the United States.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Dr. Arthur Burns, President Eisenhower's new economic adviser, is no bubbling or bubble-headed prophet. Unlike Leon H. Keyserling, Truman's aide in this field, he will not forecast a national income of almost a trillion dollars a decade hence. He will not even echo Herbert Hoover's prediction that "we have reached a new plateau of permanent prosperity."

In the former professor of economics at Columbia University, the White House and the American people have, perhaps for the first time, an utterly truthful and realistic economic scientist. He is completely nonpolitical and nonideological. As in his private work, he feels that his assignment is to study why we have booms and busts, how they can be anticipated and how they can be cushioned when they strike.

Perhaps his finest recommendation for an admittedly difficult and unpleasant job is that he was eulogized on the Senate floor by Senator Taft, the Republicans' conservative leader, and by Senator Sparkman of Alabama, an erstwhile enthusiastic Truman Fair Dealer and Adlai E. Stevenson's running-mate last November. Those two rarely agree on anything or anybody.

CAUTIOUS ADVISER—Dr. Burns, who has been a prolific writer on economic problems, assumes his new position with a mixed attitude toward the long-term trend of American business and industry. With characteristic caution, he refuses to make long-range forecasts. But he agrees with most economists that current conditions will endure through 1953, and with only a 5 or 10 per cent decline in 1954.

He does not believe that the cycle of ups and downs has been licked. But he feels that, with proper preparation and application to the problem, depressions like that of 1929 can be avoided.

"For the present," he said in his most recent statement, "obituaries on the business cycle are romantic expressions of human impatience, not records of solid achievement. They serve neither the nation nor economics, and they may prove seriously harmful, if they lead to any relaxation of the scientific work on business fluctuations now going forward in universities and other research centers."

REASONS FOR OPTIMISM—Dr. Burns' optimism for the immediate future is based largely on the more equal distribution of national income that has been achieved in the last 25 years, which in itself is partial safeguard against severe crackups. In 1929, for instance, top bracketeers enjoyed 34 per cent of total personal income, as against 18 per cent now. He regards that as a "social revolution."

He has a pat on the back for the sometimes forgotten consumers. He considers them an extremely important factor in influencing economic trends and conditions. By their buying habits, he notes, they can determine the depths of a deflation and the peaks of inflation. Of the housewife and her market basket, and the husband with his desire for a home, a car, refrigerator, television, etc., he says:

"The consumer, rarely a heroic figure in economic affairs, scored a modest but noteworthy success in the struggle against inflation during the past year (1951). He had numerous allies—an array of price and wage controls, credit restrictions, regulations concerning the use of raw materials, and a battery of stiff taxes.

"Yet the consumer's role transcended all the others. . . . Largely as a result of the lull in consumer buying, the past year was characterized by a degree of overall stability that few economists had anticipated."

Whereas, his predecessors stressed government spending as the principal foundation for economic stability, Dr. Burns will emphasize that an equally important factor is how and when people spend their money.

SEE GOOD TIMES THROUGH 1954—Although Russia's peaceful gestures have stimulated fears of heavy budget cuts and a possible recession, private and public economists discount that possibility. With Dr. Burns, they see relatively good times through 1954, and possibly 1955.

Based on current appropriations and authorizations, the Government will spend $50 billion on defense for each of the next three years. Industrial expansion is estimated at $25 billion annually, though it may fall off slightly. Farm receipts should not drop more than 5 per cent from the present level. Personal income will have more real value from a decline in prices.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

The Reflector's coverage Saturday of the status of Greenville TV's station inspired me to find the answers to a few more questions about the project. Yesterday I talked to the two key men: Station Manager A. Hartwell Campbell and Gene West of the company building the station, the P. S. West Construction Company.

Hartwell says that everything is progressing to his satisfaction. Quite often I have been confronted with this question: "Will Greenville receive network TV from a coaxial cable or from microwave relay stations?" Yesterday Hartwell gave me an interesting insight on this situation.

Actually, it doesn't matter which method is used to bring the live shows to us here. Recently, more stations are using micro-wave. WTAR-TV, Norfolk, uses microwave relay stations, spaced about 30 miles apart.

Arrangements for the network hookup, whichever method is used, will be made by the network with the Telephone Company. Furthermore, the expense of the hookup will be borne by the network. Even after installation, the monthly cost of transmission from a network runs about $4,000.

The hookup will most likely be made from Richmond or Greensboro. Why not Norfolk? For the simple reason that Norfolk is basically an NBC network and Greenville is negotiating with another network. When papers are signed, this network will be officially named. If you must know in the meantime, call me and I'll give you my unofficial opinion.

The $64 question is: When WNCT goes on the air what percentage of the programs will come from the network? This is a question no one can answer, but it seems safe to estimate that well over half of the time will be filled with network shows.

Many others will be film products, of network quality. For example, the Fireside Theater is a film program that WNCT could buy and resell to local sponsors. And of course there will be some local shows.

Campbell reports that money is coming in fast from the 336 persons who subscribed for stock. At present there is no stock available, with a waiting list of over 20 interested in buying.

Gene West, concerning the building of the station, says, "The only critical item is the steel bar joists, but we have been promised delivery of a sufficient supply in ample time. We ordered the joists the day after the contract was let."

Gene says that he plans to close in the working area of the station as soon as possible so the equipment can be installed. "We can finish the front and the offices," Gene says, "after the working area is closed in."

The P. S. West Construction Company has headquarters in Statesville but has been operating in Greenville for the past seven years. Gene West first came to Greenville in 1934 to build the Dixie Warehouse, then returned in 1946. His company has done close to $1 million in contracting for East Carolina College.

And I thank you.

REVENUE STUDY — Rep. W. B. Rodman didn't put in these words, but the effect of his statement to the House finance committee the other day was that he wanted the advisory budget commission to do the job contemplated for it when the Executive Budget Act was adopted in 1925. He said he and Senate Finance Chairman Claude Currie were working together on a resoluation or a bill authorizing a thorough study of the tax structure of North Carolina, with a view to finding new sources of State revenue and equalizing the burden on sources now tapped by the State tax collector!

SPENDING — The original budget act contemplated a balanced budget arrived at through careful consideration of tax sources, tax rates and total probable revenue on the one hand; and distribution of all tax moneys collected to the various State agencies, departments and institutions on the other. Historic fact is that very little attention has been given to the revenue angle since 1939, when the act then in effect —which was essentially the same, as had been in effect since 1933 was declared by legislative fiat to be "permanent." But every two years the budget group has given careful consideration to the spending end, by personal inspection visits to the institutions and prolonged hearings on requests for money by all agencies, departments and institutions.

LOP SIDED — That 15 year old policy has resulted in a lop-sided situation in which recipients of tax money are studied, but payers of tax money are not. Rodman and Currie, along with Governor Umstead and a lot of other folks, feel the time has come to do some real work on that phase of the matter. The only real question is whether it should be done by an independetly appointed commission or by the statutory advisory budget commission. It's a big job for whatever group undertakes it, because not only must the 15-year lapse be bridged but the very significant matter of the relationship between Federal, State and local unit taxing areas is due for complete study.

SPEAKER — It is a common experience of lawyers in the legislature to address the presiding officer as "Your honor" and committees as "gentlemen of the jury." Rep George Long of Alamance made a different kind of tongue-slip the other day. He addressed Finance Chairman W. B. Rodman as "Mr. Speaker." When the slip was called to his attention, he said the chairman was acting so much like the speaker, it just came natural.

POTENTIALS — Long about this stage in every sessions there begins talk about candidates for speakership of the next House. There has been less activity this year than usual, but several names are cropping up in side-line gossip. Most frequently mentioned, and with apparent substantial support, is Larry I. Moore Jr., of Wilson. It is not a new role for Moore. Several times during his previous seven-session tenure he has been suggested, but has always stepped aside for a friend. Other members from whom trial balloons are being sent up are W. B. Rodman of Beaufort, Oscar O. Barker of Durham and John Regan of Roberson.

GEOGRAPHY — If the east-west rotation system is continued for speaker the position will go to an easterner next time. The rotation plan has long since been abandoned for Lieutenant Governor and was broken last year for Governor. There has been no suggestion of leaving the plan with respect to President Protem of the Senate and Speaker of the House.

CO-OPERATIVES — The co-operatives are under fire again. The attack this time is indirect but nonetheless significant, as indicated by three incidents last week. Sen. Robert Morgan of Cleveland offered a bill providing for all 'unclaimed dividends or other distributions" due any person by any co-operative or marketing association organized under subsections four and five of G.S. 54, should automatically escheat to the University after one year. Sen. Calvin Edney of Madison next proposed that rural electrification membership associations be taxed on the same basis as other public utility companies.

DISCRIMINATIVE — Then Waldo Cheek, commissioner of Insurance, told a committee Friday that he did not feel as a State official he could promulgate a regulation or sponsor legislation

What Other Papers Are Thinking

McCARTHY'S DEFENSE
(Wilson Times)

Some 28 writers, actors and publishers resent the fact that Senator Joseph McCarthy's book, "McCarthyism, the Fight for America," has had few reviews, favorable or unfavorable, whereas Owen Lattimore's book, "Ordeal by Slander," received wide recognition. And perhaps they have a right to criticize the press. For the press, we must remember, is made up of humans, and humans everywhere, whether on newspapers or otherwise, are inclined to express their prejudices. And many of those humans disliked McCarthy's wild charges. For he enjoyed Senate immunity; the persons he attacked didn't.

That McCarthy has done some good we'll all admit. At least, he focused attention on a few of the Communists in government. But did he always know what he was talking about? Didn't he more or less vindicate himself after the Hiss conviction? And will he feel similarly vindicated if Lattimore goes to jail? But whatever happened to the many card-carrying Communists he said were employed by the State Department? Did McCarthy expose any great numbers? And in what little exposures he did make, was he not helped by the hysteria of the nation largely produced by the loss of China to the Communists?

America didn't wake up until that occurred. In our complacency, we took for granted that the Chinese somehow could withstand the Communists. When they didn't, when Chiang Kai-shek had to abandon the mainland, we were alarmed. For had not Moscow extended her territory all the way to the Pacific? And did the Communists not pose a problem for us in our efforts to hold Japan and the Philippines? It was then that the nation turned its blasts against the Truman administration. It was then that Dean Acheson came under fire. And it was then, we're sorry to say, that McCarthy gained and held the limelight, making the page lines for the first time.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Big business may have a lot of learn from small business these days in the field of organization and manufacturing control.

In larger companies — it was pointed out at the recent American Management Association meeting by Columbia University's Dr. Ernest Dale — manufacturing controls have multiplied so fast that in some firms "it takes two tons of paper to produce one ton of product."

Delegation of responsibility and decentralization, Dr. Dale noted, is often accompanied by an overall control system which requires numerous reports and statistics; a constant assessment of quantity, quality, cost and delivery objectives, and an elaborate communication system between management and production sections by telephone, teletype, visits and meetings.

He urged a return to "a few simple controls which are consistent with one another, which are checked only after considerable intervals of time and which take into account the overall, long-range objectives" — a good description of the management function in a well-conducted small business.

The very fact that big business has a greater supply of money and specialized brains often encourages carefully thought-out, complicated management systems which are self-defeating in their complexity and rigidity.

Smaller companies are frequently prevented from tying themselves up in red tape knots by their lack of time, facilities and money. They cannot afford to maintain executives and staffs to keep track of every nut and bolt and every fact and figure that might affect their business. Thus, they are often forced to make decisions on broad and long-term trends without guidance of detailed studies.

Another speaker at the AMA meeting, W.W. Gilmore, an official of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company, advocated the same approach to the narrower field of production controls. Production control, he emphasized, is a state of mind, not routines, procedures and forms. Basically it is: how much you want, when you want it and how much flow time is required to get it.

The simpler you can keep any form or routine, Gilmore said, the more effective it will be.

This advice should go double for small firms that try to imitate the organizational and production control setups of their bigger brothers. Many times detailed control has certain advantages for large concerns. But they can afford the luxury — few small businesses can.

1953 EMPLOYMENT HEADS FOR NEW HIGH

This year employment will probably reach a new peak of more than 62,600,000 some time during the summer, according to the Department of Labor.

A canvass of the country's principal labor markets indicates that in five major areas labor shortages exist. Seventy-eight areas have a balanced labor supply. 82 areas have moderate surpluses and 17 have substantial surpluses. A year ago the figures were 5, 47, 101 and 21, respectively.

If the present forecast is correct, there should be no drastic labor shortage. Seventy-eight of the 151 areas replying will have moderate employment increases and 32 areas will have substantial increases — largely due to seasonal factors.

Farm and resort labor shortages may occur in some spots but a larger-than-normal increase in nonagricultural workers is expected to supply most new demand.

TECHNICAL INDUSTRIES TURNING TO WOMEN GRADS

The latest tactical move in the battle to obtain newly graduated student in technical fields centers around women seniors with math or science backgrounds.

A survey by Northwestern National Life Insurance Company indicates graduating co-eds are in demand as engineering assistants. With engineering grads harder to come by than ever, the trend to have engineers do strictly engineering work and employ nontechnical graduates to handle semi-engineering duties and paper work is continuing, according to the report.

WASHER: An automatic home and car washing kit features a transparent plastic handle containing its own built-in detergent chamber which produces a foaming action. The kit also contains a mop head and bottle of detergent (and is available from Ricar Corp., 620 E. 180 St., New York).

Going Backstairs

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON UP — Backstairs at the White House:

One of the most persistent White House gate-crashers in many a moon had the police in a dither recently. The zany, a man with a burning desire to talk to President Eisenhower, climbed over the high iron fence at the White House three nights in succession.

Police promptly apprehended him each time. The first two times, the man seemed relatively harmless. He was sent away with a warning. But after the third time; the Secret Service decided this was entirely too much fence-climbing and had the man held for mental observation.

These days, the number of screwballs who try to crash the White House or send threatening letters is very low. But they seem to be much more determined. During the FDR era, the Secret Service handled as many as 7,000 cases a year of this type, many of them involving threats on the life of the President and mostly involving crank letters.

When Mr. Truman occupied the White House, there was one year when about 3,500 cases came to the attention of the Secret Service. But for the past year, they have decreased sharply.

Experts on these queer mental cases expect business to pick up once the administration has been in office for a year or so.

The White House police tell this story about the Easter Monday egg-rolling on the south lawn:

A woman showed up at the gate leading a small goat on a leash. The police informed her of the rule that only adults accompanied by children 12 years old or less could be admitted to the party.

"I've got every right to come in," the lady stormed, pointing down to the goat. "Here's my kid."

The President was playing golf at Burning Tree some weeks back. Presidential assistant Sherman Adams dashed up to him on the fifth tee with what he considered to be a matter of urgent business requiring the chief executive's immediate attention.

"The world certainly won't come to an end if I go ahead and finish my round of golf," responded the President, picking up his clubs and going on with the game.

A member of the White House staff, confirming that this took place, said, "that was early in the administration-it wouldn't happen now."

"Do you mean that now, the President would stop his game?"

"No, Adams wouldn't rush up to him with business on the golf course."

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Want to take up silversmithing and make your own jewelry at home? Bozorth Scaife Casey, an authority on the art, says $10 will buy the basic tools and that with a few simple lessons you're on your way.

"Bo," the pretty young wife of an English lawyer and mother of an infant daughter, Carlie, turns out salable and gift works in silver from a tiny bench in the kitchen of her one-bedroom apartment in nearby Virginia. She also teaches silversmithing to men, women and children at the Y.W.C.A.

You can get the tools from a jeweler's supply company. You will need a mouth blow-torch, which uses fuel in tablet form, for soldering; lead block for shaping of silver pieces; jeweler's saw and frame for cutting; pliers, files, and such as well as "findings," like chains, earring backs and catches. Silver for a ring, pin or pill box costs under a dollar, for a button less than 10 cents.

Bo has her own hallmark registered with Great Britain's Assay Office, which has granted certification to eligible silversmiths since the 15th Century. "Before the office would even examine my work I had to convince it I was dead serious about being a silversmith and not just a hobbyist," Bo told me. The daughter of a U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey official, Bo was educated in some 47 different schools scattered abou the world. She first got interested in silver craft while a student at Syracuse University. She took lessons from a former foreman of the famous Tiffany's.

She continued her studies after her marriage at a trade school for arts and crafts in England. Her first piece, an exquisite, intricately-worked bowl, was done entirely by hand and gauged completely eye, but she says it was as nearly perfect in line and evenness as can be achieved. "I didn't take it to the Assay Office," she said, "because I was terrified they'd damage it. If a piece isn't up to their standards they can and will destroy it."

Bo says many women are careless about buying silver. "They wouldn't dream of buying a dress put together with chain-stitching," she says. "Yet they buy silver soldered with lead that may come apart. They should look over the joints for smoothness and differences of color, also for evidences of 'pitting.'" Bo is as good a seamstress as she is a silversmith and makes Carlie's dainty little frocks. She's also a good cook. However, while she can whip up heavenly soufflés and crepe suzettes, her mother once told her she didn't know how to boil an egg.

Southeast Asia Fears New War To Follow Korea

Officials in Southeast Asia are watching Korean developments carefully but many are pessimistic about the future even if peace should come. Veteran United Press correspondent Harold Guard, on a tour along the fringes of the Communist world, tells in the following dispatch from Singapore what is worrying these officials.

By HAROLD GUARD
United Press Staff Correspondent

SINGAPORE (UP)—Many officials in Southeast Asia are worried that a Korean peace may touch off another shooting war in the Far East.

These officials warned against expecting peace in Korea—even if it should come—to lead to the end of the shooting in Indo-China and Malaya.

All authoritative sources consulted during a two-week visit in Malaya and Singapore were doubtful about the outcome of Korean peace moves. Military commanders were frankly pessimistic about Communist intentions in Asia.

Officials unanimously recommended stiffening rather than relaxing any Western defense measures anywhere between Malaya and Hong Kong.

They stressed the need for setting up some sort of NATO-type defense for the Pacific.

From all available information there appeared to be no doubt British high commissioner Sir Gerald Templer is prepared to take the most drastic measures to forestall any sudden action by embryo Malayan nationalist organizations.

This threat to Malayan unity played directly into Red hands, authoritative sources warned, and might encourage a southward incursion to replace the spent Communist efforts in Korea.

One high military official said, "no time must be lost in coordinating all anti-Communist military efforts in the Far East. Call it an extension of NATO, if you like, but that is what is needed quickly."

He deplored the futility of the Western powers fighting "separate wars" in Korea, Indo-China and Malaya. He also was critical of South Asian countries wasting resources trying to establish fighting forces, particularly air forces.

One service chief cited individual efforts by Pakistan, India, Ceylon, Thailand and Indonesia to establish air forces.

"Individual efforts are most wasteful and ineffective in wartime," he said. "All the South Asian countries could more profitably provide adequately equipped airfields and bases and thereby help the western powers maintain a balanced air force in the area.

"Presently everything is all-bits and pieces. Things are not in good shape and we can't waste more time getting things shaped up like NATO."

Service chiefs said "there are still political hurdles to overcome" before a Pacific NATO set-up can be achieved.

"We have been trying a long time to get over them," they said. "It is possible the Korea peace moves will make them even more insurmountable."

Arrested Congressman Plans 'Protection' Bill

By PAUL SOUTHWICK
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Rep. Clare E. Hoffman said today it is time Congress did something to stop traffic cops from taking advantage of out-of-state motorists picked up for speeding.

The 77-year-old Michigan Republican, recently nabbed for speeding near Hagerstown, Md., told a reporter he's going to introduce a bill to protect motorists who get caught like he did, far from home.

He said his bill would require an immediate court hearing for out-of-state traffic offenders who ask for it.

Hoffman said a Maryland cop flagged him on April 2 when he was doing 60 miles an hour near Hagerstown where the limit is 50.

"I asked him to take me to court," Hoffman related. "But he said the judge had gone home. That was at noon."

At first the police asked him to put up $52 in collateral, Hoffman said, but later they cut that to $26.45.

Most people that far away from home will give up the collateral without a hearing if they can't get court action right away, Hoffman explained.

The outspoken Allegan, Mich., congressman admitted to the House Monday that maybe that speeding violation wasn't the primary cause of his trouble with the Maryland state trooper.

"It was the wrong time for exercising my freedom of speech and speaking to an officer," he explained to laughing House members.

Hoffman asked for, and was unanimously granted, House permission to respond to a Hagerstown court summons to appear to pay the speeding fine.

Congressional precedent requires a member to get House approval before accepting a court summons. The practice is derived from the constitutional clause guaranteeing congressmen against arrest while Congress is in session except in certain cases like treason.

Hoffman said he brought the matter up because "I don't think officers should be so severe with members of Congress."

"It's not only a question of how congressmen are abused," he added, "but also how any citizen traveling a highway sometimes is at the mercy of an officer."

Fines Druggists For Illegal Sales

NE WBERN (UP) — Three Kinston druggists, who pleaded guilty to charges of selling nembutal and sulfa drugs without a doctor's prescription were given light fines in Eastern District Federal Court here yesterday.

Alexander Hogan, Henely Suddreth and Ernest G. Buchanan were fined $25 on each of three counts against them. Judge Don Gilliam of Tarboro said they all have good reputations and "I think these men will be more careful from now on."

Hogan said under cross-examination that 83 per cent of his supply of the drugs was unaccounted for when federal authorities checked his stock.

He added that "if the drugs are so dangerous the manufacturers shouldn't be allowed to sell them. They ought to be taken off the market."

Hogan pleaded guilty to the charges and attorneys for the other two men said the testimony of their clients would have been "substantially the same."

The maximum penalty for the charge is a year in prison or a fine of $1,000. Gilliam said he hoped the case would be publicized as a warning.

Pirates To Meet High Point Here Tomorrow In Contest

The East Carolina College baseball Pirates will try to climb back onto the victory wagon tomorrow afternoon at the college diamond when they play host to the High Point College Panthers. The game, which is slated to start at 2:45, will be a North State Conference (Eastern Division) contest.

The Pirates were knocked off the top perch in the league standings last week when Elon edged them 3-2. Before that game, they had won in each of three tries against conference opposition.

Righthander Jimmy Byrd is expected to start for the Pirates tomorrow. The team co-captain will carry a 2-0 record into the contest. He has defeated ACC and Guilford thus far this year despite reports that he is suffering from an arm ailment which keeps him from pitching at top speed.

The rest of the Pirates' line-up is expected to remain much as it has been for the four previous conference games. Sonny Russell is expected to be at first, Cecil Heath at second, Paul Jones at shortstop, and Charlie Cherry at third in the infield. The outfield will probably be composed of Paul Gay, Gaither Cline, and W. C. Sanderson. Bull Britt and Bill Cline will divide the catching duties, something they had done all year long.

The Pirates have been slow rounding into top hitting shape thus far this year and low scores of previous games reflect the situation. Most of the more recent practice sessions have, however, been devoted almost xclusively to batting practice.

Following tomorrow's game with the Panthers, the Pirates will take off on another two game road trip this weekend. On Friday, they'll be at Guilford and on Saturday will move to High Point for a return match with the Panthers.

Ike To Take On Ben In Augusta Golfing

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—President Eisenhower planned to play golf today with Ben Hogan, the 1953 Masters tournament champion.

This news was regarded by reporters covering the President with a measure of reservation because they reported it Monday afternoon, only to find that the President had played instead with Jack Westland, the 1952 amateur champion and a Republican congressman from Washington state.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty guaranteed that one of the most famous foursomes in golf history would tee off today with the President trying out his game against Hogan, Byron Nelson, the former Masters champion and still a great par-master, and Clifford Roberts of New York, chairman of the club where the President is staying.

Hogan was crushed that he turned down a chance to play with the President Monday. This, however, was not the case and the sharp-shooting champion had to wait until today to play with Mr. Eisenhower because the President had made a previous commitment with Westland.

Other big sports news came from the linkside "White House" during the night. The President will, after all, see the Capital's version of the opening day baseball game Thursday between the New York Yankees and the Washington Senators.

Mr. Eisenhower about two weeks ago publicly declined to go to the opening day game originally scheduled for Monday afternoon. Baseball fans took this as a direct affront.

Rain, however, was on his side and forced postponement of the game. Consequently, the President will appear at the game next Thursday afternoon and throw out the first ball after he speaks at the Statler Hotel to members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

The White House declined to disclose Mr. Eisenhower's score against Westland, but word seeped through the caddy curtain that the chief executive was still trying to break 90.

Pirate Netters Win Third Shutout Match

GUILFORD COLLEGE—The East Carolina College tennis team won its third straight shut out victory by defeating the Guilford College netters 7-0 here yesterday.

Famous Doctor Operates Friday On Babe Zaharias

BEAUMONT, Tex. (UP6 — A "bold, internationally - renowned" surgeon, with four assistants, will operate on famous athlete Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias Friday for a "malignancy."

"Malignancy" is a word usually used by physicians in describing cancer.

The name of the surgeon was not revealed. But a spokesman for the five doctors said he has sufficient knowledge to cope with whatever might arise once the operation is begun.

The specialist will arrive in Beaumont Friday morning, bringing an assistant with him. He will also be assisted by three Beaumont doctors.

The spokesman would not discuss Mrs. Zaharias' future golf career. She was hospitalized Thursday only four days after she won the Babe Zaharias Open golf tournament in Beaumont.

The spokesman said he thought the "malignancy," in the lower rectal region, could be corrected by surgery. But he said there is no way of knowing whether it might return.

Mrs. Zaharias won fame in 1932 as a teen-age track and field star in the Olympics. She was a star basketball and baseball player before she turned to golf. She once pitched an exhibition game for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Majors Start Action In All Parks Today

By CARL LUNDQUIST

NEW YORK (UP)—Whether out at the old ball game or in at the old television or radio set, it was "play ball" today and millions of Americans were mighty glad of it.

At last the major league season was underway and, for one day at least, the newest club in the business, the Milwaukee Braves, reigned supreme. They were all alone in first place.

They got there simply because they won the only game played Monday. At Cincinnati, before 30,103 opening day fans, the transplanted Braves defeated the Reds, 2-0, on three-hit pitching by muscular Max Surkont and timely hitting, base-running, and fielding by rookie Bill Bruton.

While there were cheers with beers for the Braves in old Milwaukee town, the other ballyhooed opening game between the Yankees and Senators at Washington was rained out. That gave right hander Richard M. Nixon, a vice presidential relief hurler, at least a year of rest, since President Eisenhower, also a right hander, agreed to take over Thursday and throw out the ceremonial pitch when the Yankees again return to the nation's Capital.

Today the Braves come home in triumph to open officially the new Milwaukee Stadium before a sellout of 36,000 fans as crafty lefty Warren Spahn opposes Gerry Staley, the veteran right hander of the St. Louis Cardinals. That will be the biggest crowd anywhere in the National League.

At Brooklyn, the champion Dodgers take on last year's pitiful Pirates with cool Carl Erskine opposing little Murry Dickson in a battle of right handers before 30,000. The Cubs, who have high hopes of crashing the first division, opened at home against the Reds with Bob Rush, the fire ball right hander opposing old Ken Raffensberger, the lefty magician from Cincinnati. More than 25,000 were expected. In Philadelphia, Robin Roberts, the number one winner in the majors, opposed oldster Larry Jansen of the Giants as another 25,000 were estimated to be on hand.

For the Yankees, quick Vic Raschi will try to continue his great hex over the Athletics. He now has a 24-4 lifetime mark over them and will be opposed by lefty Alex Kellner, who once in a while troubles the Bombers. The Yanks guessed that 40,000 would attend their festivities.

The biggest crowd, upwards of 50,000, will turn out at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium to see the intrepid Indians try once more to dethrone the Yankees. Rated as best bet to win if the Yankees fail, the Ohioans sent Bob Lemon, a 22-game winner to the box to oppose Saul Rogovin of the White Sox. At Boston, the Senators pitted their strong armed right hander, Bob Porterfield, against slim Mel Parnell of the Red Sox before 15,000 fans, while at St. Louis, in the first night game opener there in American League history, the Browns and Tigers will shoot old teammates at each other. For the Browns it will be ex-Tiger Virgil Trucks, a two-time no-hit pitcher last year and for Detroit it will be Ned Garver.

Thorpe Buried In Native State

HAWNEE, Okla. (UP) — The widow of Jim Thorpe, one of the world's greatest athletes, said today she hopes Jim's Olympic medals can be placed in the $100,000 mausoleum shrine that will be built here.

Jim was buried Monday in Fairview Cemetery, near where he was born some 30 miles northeast of Shawnee in 18888. One folded hand held an Indian testament, a book he treasured.

His body was placed temporarily in a mausoleum in the cemetery. It will be removed to the shrine when it is built by Shawnee citizens and Thorpe's Sac and Fox Indian tribe.

Thorpe died two weeks ago in Lomita, Calif., after a heart attack.

Thorpe's medals were taken from him when it was discovered he had played a few semi-pro baseball games. The U. S. Olympic committee ruled this made him a professional.

Thorpe tried many times to have the medals returned. His widow, Patricia, had pleaded, too. But they have never been returned.

Some 500 persons followed the funeral procession to Fairview Cemetery, where Thorpe's casket was placed in a mausoleum.

Trucks Excited By Opening Day

The following dispatch is by Virgil Trucks, star pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, who has hurled two no-hitters during his career. He is scheduled to pitch the opening game for the Browns Tuesday night, the third time he has hurled an opener, and here he tells how it feels.

By VIRGIL (FIRE) TRUCKS
As told to the United Press

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—You tell yourself it's just another ball game, exactly like 153 others to come, but try as you might, you can't keep your heart from skipping a little faster any time you draw the opening day assignment.

You're anxious to make a good start . . . you want to get off on the right foot . . . you dream of 20 victories and this one, you say to yourself, is going to be the first.

Yet, when that opening bell rings and you walk out to the mound for your warmup throws, you suddenly feel all alone on the hill. The batter steps in, the catcher gives you the sign and you're ready to go to work.

Me? I've been pretty lucky each time I've drawn the opening assignment. I won them both and, man, let me tell you there's no greater feeling in the world. The opening game isn't the pennant clincher or a world series contest, but it sure feels like one.

Vanderbilts Worried Over Horse That Isn't Worried

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — Everybody was nervous in the Vanderbilt stable today except the cause of it all, a burly gray colt called Native Dancer.

"I sleep well, but I wake up nervous," explained trainer Bill Winfrey as he watched the Kentucky Derby favorite move around his roomy stall.

"Me, too," chimed in Alfred G. Vanderbilt, the young owner. "But I have to admit it's nicer to wake up worrying about him than to have a colt you don't care if anything does happen to."

Right now there is additional cause for worry. The Dancer was slated to make his first start of the year at Jamaica Monday. The race didn't "fill," meaning there were not enough rivals to have the race. So now they were plotting a "work" race for him against another horse from their stable.

"He has to have one good work between now and Saturday when he makes his first start of the year in the Gotham Handicap," explained Winfrey. "We aren't too worried, though, because he has been working excellently."

"Of course, there's nothing like a race to sharpen a horse for racing," Winfrey admitted. "Still he has grown tremendously over the winter and has been working like a true champion."

They know that the big gray colt has a lot of work cut out for him in the next few weeks and they wanted him really "ready."

Thus it is that the Dancer will be practically "cold" when he goes out for the mile-and-a-sixteenth Gotham Saturday, to be followed on successive Saturdays by the Wood Memorial and the Kentucky Derby. Then he heads into the Preakness and Belmont in search of the Triple Crown.

And the fact remains that the Dancer never has gone a mile-and-a-quarter—the Derby distance.

He won all of his nine races last year, his last time out victory being in the mile-and-a-sixteenth Eastview Stakes at Jamaica last fall. Despite his smashing form, and an indication that he can "run all day," he hasn't gone that all-important Derby distance.

The Vanderbilt entourage, nervous as it is, thinks that the Dancer is a cinch. But as the man said, you can't ever tell.

Expect Full House At Fights Tonight

CLEVELAND (UP) — Promoter Larry Atkins predicted a packed Arena crowd of 10,000 tonight for the "best fight show here in years," featuring welterweight champ Kid Gavilan in one bout and Chico Vejar in another.

Gavilan fights Livio Mineli, former European welterweight champion, in the 10-round non-title feature. But equalling the headliner for interest is the 10-round welterweight rematch between drama student Vejar and Tony Cimmino, of Bayonne, N. J.

It is Gavilan's first fight since he stopped collegian Chuck Davey in a Chicago title match last February, and, while it is a non-title tilt against the talented Italian, Gavilan's manager, Angel Lopez, is not taking the match lightly.

"We consider Mineli tougher than Davey," he said.

This probably is the last fight for Vejar, who was notified by his draft board in Stamford, Conn., that he will be inducted into the Army April 21. Vejar had been signed for a return bout with Vince Martinez at Madison Square Garden May 22.

Little Leaguers Practice With 22 Hopefuls Present

Tryouts for positions vacated by older boys on Little League teams began yesterday with 22 hopefuls reporting and 14 boys already under contract but not assigned to any Little League team.

There are a number of boys who are under contract that did not report yesterday. They are asked by Recreation Department and Little League officials to attend the next practice session so that their playing abilities might be observed and so that they can be assigned to a team for the coming season.

Any one desiring to tryout for any of the teams is reminded that they may do if they do not reach their 13th birthday before August 1, 1953.

A Small Fry League will be established for those players who do not make a Little League team. The boys who report to the Little League practice sessions but who fail to be assigned to a Little League team will be the ones who will form the Small Fry organization.

Ex-Olympic Ring Champ Retains Unbeaten Record

NEW YORK UP) — Olympic champ Floyd Patterson nursed an aching set of ribs today but he was mighty thankful that his perfect professional record still is intact.

The 19-year-old belter from Brooklyn was forced to go the limit for the first time as a pro in his clash with veteran Dick Wagner of Toppenish, Wash., Monday night at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena. And, when the eight-round battle was over, the youngster was glad to settle for a split decision.

He banged the rugged Wagner with the same stunning head punches that finished his five earlier rivals in five rounds or less, but Wagner shook them off and came plodding forward walloping his own blows to Patterson's midsection and left side.

Patterson had been a 3 to 1 favorite, although Wagner had a nine-pound weight advantage at 175 1-2 pounds to Patterson's 166 1-2.

Nature Photographer Will Give Program

Fran William Hall, master nature photographer, will present the latest in the current series of Audubon Screen Tours, "The Four Corners," at the Austin auditorium Wednesday night at 7:30.

Under sponsorship of the Greenville City Schools, the Greenville Woman's Club, and the Science Club of East Carolina College, the screen tour is being presented as a part of the Community Arts Festival.

The famous "four corners" are where the states of Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, and Utah come together. Hall, in his color motion picutre and lecture, takes his audiences to this unusual wilderness filming its gargantuan beauties and some of the wildlife inhabitants in action:

Life cycle of the 17 year locust; a deadly scorpion caught close-up; the race runner which can grow a new tail to replace the one it has lost; the battle of wasp against wasp; the dreaded tarantula; the darkling beetle walking on its head; a rock squirrel coming forth to play; and "Yuk, Yuk", the pet fawn, engagingly posing for his picture—these and others are portrayed amid scenic grandeur.

Hall, of Northfield, Minnesota, is a master of nature photography. His lifelong interest in natural history has been combined, since 1935, with the pursuit of photography as an art and a science.

Since 1940, except for several years of technical work with the Air Force in the field of electronic engineering, he has been head of the department of photography at Carleton College. His lecturing under the auspices of the National Audubon Society has taken him to every state of the Union and most of the provinces of Canada.

From boyhood on, Fran Hall has found the study of birds, insects, and wild creatures of tremendous interest. Today through his color films and lectures he is able to pass this interest along as he shares his conservation studies with Audubon Screen Tour audiences.

Capitol Square

that affected other health and hospital insurance companies and exempted the co-operative Blue Cross organizations. Back of all these proposals is the idea that when co-operative organizations go into the open market to compete with profit-motive private enterprise they should be accorded equality of treatment. The co-ops insist that there is not real discrimination in the status they have held through the years, and that they are not competing in the open market but rendering service on mutual cost-sharing basis to their members only.

NOTICE — The REA tax and escheats bills probably will get little consideration by this Assembly because of the time element. Their chief significance is found in the fact they constitute notice to co-ops that they are not going to be allowed to get by a session without somebody calling them to account. One of these years some such bills will be offered early in a legislative session and the co-ops will have to prove their right to continued tax exemptions, unless they adhere very strictly to the mutual membership cost sharing idea without providing competition for taxpaying profit-motive enterprise.

THEORETIC — The theory of the co-operatives, whether marketing or purchasing or credit union banking or utilities service or insurance, has long been accepted as an integral and important phase of American economics. The twilight zone between the pure co-operative and a competitive operation is often subject for dispute. So far as your reporter can learn, nobody wants to disturb the pure co-operatives. There are many people, including sponsors of the pending bills in the Senate, who want the division more clearly defined than it seems to be under existing State and Federal laws.

Storm Warnings No Call For Panic

ATLANTA, Ga. (UP)—A tornado warning does not necessarily foretell an actual twister, the Atlanta Weather Bureau advises.

Noting that "considerable unnecessary concern" has been shown over tornado warnings in the South, the bureau said some clarification was in order.

Two types of warnings are released by forecasters. The first is announced when weather conditions are ripe for tornado development. A second warning is released when an actual twister is spotted.

"There is no reason for persons to become panic-stricken when an initial warning is issued," the bureau spokesman said, "but certain precautions should be taken."

These include taking occasional glances at the western sky, since tornadoes usually move in from the west, and keeping tuned to a local radio station.

Weathermen point out that tornadoes, unlike hurricanes, are sudden storms that cannot be accurately forecast. The best that modern weather forecasters can do is pinpoint areas where conditions are favorable to development of the dreaded twisters.

Puts A Limit To His Predictions

CLINTWOOD, Va. (AP)—This winter's 22nd snow at Clintwood took a little polish off Ed Reed's reputation as a weather prophet. Reed, 76, makes his living as a bank janitor, but makes his reputation as a free-lance weather forecaster. Part of the citizenry in this Southwest Virginia town have followed Reed's weather predictions in past years and claim he was almost 100 per cent accurate.

Each fall Reed consults the signs and predicts how many snows will fall during the succeeding winter. He does it by counting the number of fogs in August, among other things. In 1951, for example, he said Clintwood would have 24 snows. When winter ended and exactly 24 snows had fallen, Reed's stock reached a new high. Last fall Reed predicted 21 snows for the 1952-53 winter. Instead it snowed 22 times.

Reed sent his friends the following message:

"I said there'd be at least 21 snows. I ain't responsible for no more snows than that."

"Having a wonderful time!"

Merry-Go-Round Has Its Bandits

PALISADES PARK, N.J. (U.P.) —There's one merry-go-round in the country that offers a change of pace this year.

"Rodeo" is the name they've given the new ride at Palisades Amusement Park here. Basically it is the carrousel, which hasn't changed much through the ages, but there is a sort of shooting gallery attached.

"Instead of reaching out for the old-fashioned brass ring," explained Irving Rosenthal, owner of the park, "the children are armed with toy electric-eye pistols with which to center of the carrousel. When a hit is scored, a bell rings."

The new ride was designed and built by Norman Bartlett of Buffalo, N.Y., and Uleta, Fla. The only other ride of this type at present is in an Ontario, Canada, park.

"The amusement ride business began in America, when Michael Dentzel, a German immigrant, imported the first "merry-go-round to Philadelphia in 1814," Rosenthal said. "His son, G.A. Dentzel, built the first domestic merry-go-round in 1867. Merry-go-rounds today run from $5,000 to $60,000 in price, and the mammoth merry-go-round at our park can carry some 400 people on a single ride."

Young Chinese Are Returning From Overseas

HONG KONG (AP)—Young Chinese by the hundreds are entering Red China through Hong Kong from overseas Chinese communities. On two days this month more than 430 Chinese students and workers went behind the bamboo curtain after arriving from Pakistan, India, Malaya and Indonesia.

Most of them say they are convinced that China has a new and lofty destiny and that they want to work toward it. Some are from families of communist or leftist sympathies who are dissatisfied with life abroad. Some are recruited by the Reds for special activities. Some simply are unemployed youths who want to try life in China and managed to wangle free or cheap transportation.

Romania 'Sets' Birthday Rules

VIENNA (AP)—Communist Romania has laid down the rules for celebrating the names of great men.

"Only the 50th, 60th, 70th and 80th birthdays of persons with special merits toward the State and society, shall be celebrated," said a recent decree.

After they have died, "the commemoration of great men who have brought glory to the fatherland by their remarkable state activities, by their discoveries and achievements in science, technics, literature and art shall take place only on the 25th, 50th, 75th, 100th, 150th and 200th anniversaries of their birth and after that every 100 years."

'Buckeye State' Is Official, Now

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Despite some snide remarks, all in fun, about its odor the buckeye tree is to become the official state tree for Ohio. Ohio long has been known as the buckeye state, but it never has been official. The state legislature, 150 years after the state was founded, has just got around to making an official designation.

The measure provided some legislative fun as it passed the Senate. Although he voted for the bill, Sen. Arthur Blake, a farmer commented that the buckeye tree is "scrubby," that it "stinks" and that its fruit poisons cattle.

Sen. I.E. Baker, chairman of the committee approving the bill for passage, agreed but added: "Even as bad as it stinks, I'm for it."

Tall Ones Meet In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Representatives of the nation's king-size citizens will meet here June 25-28 for the annual convention of the American Affiliation of Tall Clubs.

More than 600 of the loftier men and women are expected to attend the convention to further a fight for the rights of tall people. A beauty contest, talent show, fashion show, dinners and an excursion to Atlantic City will be included in the program

Mrs. Peg Hager, president of the Tower Club of Philadelphia which plays host to the convention said one of the chief aims of the Tall Clubs is to persuade merchants to carry clothes that fit the big man and woman as well as average-size people. The clubs keep members informed on stores that do carry the taller lines.

"We've made progress," said Mrs. Hager, who stands six feet, two inches. "It's a wonderful feeling to be able to go into a store now and buy something that wasn't made for a woman five-foot-two."

Mrs. Hager said the goal of her club is primarily social. "It is a necessary outlet for tall people, who feel self-conscious being around people of ordinary height all the time."

Hill In Middle Of New Airport

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—An airport centering around a 100-foot hill has been designed by Raymond B. Rogers, Portland commercial artist. Rogers thinks such an airport would solve problems with jet planes which require more takeoff space.

Planes would take off from the top of the hill and gain quick acceleration. They would land from the opposite side and decelerate by running up the hill.

Airport buildings would be located in the hill, permitting three stories underground for handling cargo and passengers.

THE STRAW DONKEY CASE

AP Newsfeatures By A. S. FLEISCHMAN

Chapter 5

'And that's where your uncle met his death?"

"At that spot it's a sheer drop of at least sixty feet.

"The papers say his body hasn't yet been recovered. How can you be sure he's dead?"

"No one could survive a fall like that, not with the rocks and the waves."

"If he went over, I suppose you're right." Brindle lit another cigarette and blew a sharp double column of smoke through his thin nose. "Did you actually see the body?"

"No," she replied steadily. "The tide had carried him out." She reached into her bag and produced a pale green envelope. "But there's this."

She tossed the envelope on the desk. Brindle picked it up and tore open the top, pouring the contents onto a sheet of business stationery.

"Where did you find this?" Brindle asked, examining the three brittle pieces of charred matter. They had been a small section of cloth, carelessly burned. The weave could be made out, and a spot of color here and there was visible. Without a doubt, a piece out of Ranson's brown and white hound's-tooth jacket.

"While Harry was shaving this morning, I slipped into his room. I found that in his ash tray."

Brindle poured the ashes back in the envelope and placed it in the top left-hand drawer. "Did you tell the police?"

"No."

She turned on a smile that was nine-tenths sneer. "You're bright," she said. "What if I'm wrong about Harry? Do you think I want my suspicions on the front page?" "Why are you so anxious to pin the thing on your cousin Harry? How about your other cousin—Philip? Where does he fit in?"

Her eyes scared him again. "I'm not trying to pin it on anyone," she breathed.

"Forgive me if my suspicion is showing. But what about Philip?" he asked.

"He's not in town. He went to Ensenada last Wednesday on his boat. I'm sure he didn't have anything to do with Uncle Peter's death."

Brindle rolled his cigarette back and forth between thumb and index finger. "Don't be too sure," he smiled. "He's a very logical suspect. He has a motive; Harry hasn't. Philip probably is the only one of the three of you that didn't know about the new will. So he killed Ranson, thinking he could study bigger and better fishes with his share of the inheritance."

"Look," she said, emphasizing each word with a tap of her finger on the desk, "as far as you are concerned, Philip doesn't fit into this at all."

Brindle stared at her with narrow eyes. For a long moment the smoke from his cigarette was the only movement in the room. Finally he pulled the thick packet of bills out of his vest pocket and tossed it on the desk.

She looked at the money, but made no move toward it. She smiled, sweet and innocent. "You win," she said. "Take the money. But when you snoop, remember you're on a murder case. If you run across a few family secrets, look the other way."

After she'd closed the door, the money still lay on the desk. Brindle stared at it and grinned. Fifty bucks a day, he told himself, might be cheap at that. He stuck the money back into his pocket, took his beige raincoat off the clothes tree, put on a brown felt hat and locked the office after him. Striding down the hall, he got into the coat and lit the last cigarette in his pack.

The drizzle outside was light. He snapped up his coat collar and walked left on Broadway at a determined pace. He turned in at the Union-Tribune office. The public newspaper file was being used by a blonde in slacks and a kerchief. Brindle stood to one side and waited.

The Union Building entrance adjoined the newspaper office, from which it was separated by glass partitions. Brindle saw a man of medium height in a gray topcoat stride into the entrance from the sidewalk. He seemed to be in a hurry, but he stopped glanced into the newspaper office and then turned.

The blonde took an envelope and pencil out of her purse, jotted down something, and closed the black cover of the newspaper file.

Brindle looked up the tide schedule in the previous day's paper. The tide had been lowest at six-five p.m., and highest at twelve-forty seven a.m.

He glanced up. Through the glass partition he saw the man in the gray coat, loitering now, no longer in a rush. The way he was leaning against the wall might have passed for slouching if it hadn't been for the sharpness in his eyes and his neat, quick movements as he took out a cigarette and lit it. He had a cleft chin and his sharp nose looked a couple of sizes too small for his face.

Brindle closed the file and walked through the door that opened into the building entrance. He stopped at the elevators and pressed the buzzer. When the car came, he got in and the man in the gray coat followed.

Brindle got out on the third floor. They gray coat continued with the car.

When the doors had closed Brindle smiled to himself. Maybe he had been wrong about the guy. He waited a moment and pressed the down buzzer.

The stairway door opened. The gray coat man passed a disinterested look toward Brindle, and continued down the hall. At an insurance office, he opened the door and walked in.

Brindle grunted. The elevator came and he got in. On the ground floor, he waited a moment at the street entrance. When hurried footsteps sounded from the stairway, he walked onto the sidewalk and started up Broadway. He stopped for a moment to buy a pack of cigarettes, turned left on Fourth Street, and proceeded to the Pacific Building.

Before the man could join him, Brindle was in the elevator and on his way up. He stepped out on the fourth floor, and after passing a miscellany of office doors, finally stopped at one marked: Paul Oaks, Private Investigation.

Weight Contest Ended When He Swallowed A Ball

NEW YORK (AP)—The death of Herbert, the Walrus, the result of his gulping down a child's rubber ball in the Bronx zoo, put an end to an international get-fat-by-eating contest.

As everyone figured Herbert, a male, was a sure winner. He was gaining about two pounds to one over Tove, the girl walrus of the Copenhagen zoo. Both were working on about the same diet. But in the walrus world, it's the boys that get fat first.

Herbert's record was that his weight went from 240 pounds to 770 in one year, two months and 19 days — reported after the weigh-in at Bronx zoo Jan. 6. In the days that followed before his death he picked up another 188 pounds. It took Tove two years, four months and seven days to go from 99 to the same 770 pounds, according to a report from Copenhagen.

Blames 'Ju-Ju' For Being Drunk; Advised Try Church

By CHESTER WALSH

"Judge, I don't mind paying the fine for being drunk, but I want to tell you that woman put the 'ju-ju' on me, and I had to drink whiskey to get rid of her spell."

Snodie (alias Shorty) Little, middle-age Negro with a frequent police record for entanglements with the "cup that cheers," said he wanted to tell about being conjured. Judge Charles H. Whedbee and Solicitor Eli Bloom agreed to listen.

Snodie Little said "that woman" (unnamed) had conjured him. He told the court that his food tastes bad; he had terrible dreams since "that woman was a witch and had put the spirit of the devil on me." Little said the woman had gone so far as to put the spirit of the devil in his liquor and "there ain't no fun getting drunk."

When told that the court could not do anything to the woman by way of punishment, Shorty wanted to know if he "could fine her for conjuring me."

At this stage of the trial, Solicitor Bloom asked Little why he did not "use his 'mo-jo' conjurer on the woman." The Negro said "she sprinkled powder on me and in my path and my 'mo-jo' wouldn't work."

Judge Whedbee suggested to the defendant that he go to some Christian church and that would do some good and help him to forget about the witchery. Little had to serve 30 days in jail or pay $30.

Ben Mills was fined $100 and costs for driving drunk and his driver's license was ordered revoked for a year.

James Anderson, assault on a female (his wife), case dismissed on payment of court costs.

L. L. Hodges, worthless check for $645.50 to Allen Implement Company, six months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of check and court costs. Testimony was that the check was in payment for a tractor. Hodges gave notice of appeal to Superior Court.

Jesse Anderson, Negro, assault on a female (Dorothy Wilks, Negro) was not guilty. Judge Whedbee found the prosecuting witness guilty of contempt of court and gave her 10 days in jail.

Clydia Johnson, Negro, hit-and-run driving, $25 and costs. A charge of driving without an operator's license was combined with the other case.

Annie Lee Jones, Negro, assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill (a knife), 12 months in jail, sentence suspended on condition that she pay $25, costs deducted. The judgment also provides that she is not to harm, molest or threaten Albert Lee Jones or go on his premises for two years.

In the case of Washington Chapman, Negro, temporary larceny of an automobile, was found guilty of trespass and fined $10.

Jesse J. Duncan, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for sale, three months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $100, costs deducted. The judgment also provides that he is to remain of good behavior for a year and he is not to have any non-tax-paid whiskey in his possession during that time.

No operator's license: James Lee Short and Albert Gray, Negroes, each $25 and costs.

Herman Lee Isler, Negro, defective brakes, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $15 on costs. For driving without an operator's license, the court gave Isler 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $25 and costs.

George S. Turner, a mechanic, housebreaking and being drunk, was fined $15 for being drunk and the case charging housebreaking was nol prossed with leave. Testimony was that Turner broke into the home of Wyatt Brown, 625 Dickinson Ave., about 9:30 Sunday night. In court yesterday, Judge Whedbee said Turner was lucky to be alive after breaking into a house at night.

Drunk: Elias Foreman, Negro, $10; Allan T. Murphy, $10; John H. Davis, Negro, 30 days or $10; Hubert Teel, Negro, $10; Joseph T. Gaskins, Negro, 30 days or $10; Webb McCarter, Negro, $10; I. Edward Congleton, 30 days or pay $10. The court's judgment also provides that he is not to enter any place where alcoholic beverages are sold or send any person into such place to make a purchase for him. Roland Tyson, $10; Dorothy Wilks, Negro, 30 days or $10; Leon Siders, Negro, $10; Henry Gray, Negro, $10.

Cases Heard In Superior Court

Judge Henry L. Stevens of Warsaw disposed of a variety of cases yesterday as he presided over the first day's session of the April criminal term of Pitt Superior Court.

Charged with careless and reckless driving, Jack N. Wright pled not guilty but was found guilty in jury trial. He was sentenced to six months on the roads, suspended on condition he pay $92.80 for the use and benefit of L. M. McLawhorn and pay costs of the court.

Other cases heard were:

John Vincent Jr., abandonment and non-support, nol pros with leave.

Ward Jackson Laughinghouse, driving drunk, entered a plea of guilty to failing to stop before entering the highway and prayer for judgment was continued upon payment of court costs.

John Swinson, assault with a deadly weapon, pled not guilty and at the close of the State's evidence the court directed a verdict of not guilty.

James R. Edwards, larceny, pled guilty and sentenced to two years on the roads, suspended, and defendant placed on probation for five years on condition he pay costs and pay Jack Collins the sum of $271.25.

Court is scheduled to be in session through Thursday.

Child Runs Into Path Of Vehicle

AYDEN—A three-year-old child was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when she ran into the path of an automobile two miles South of here.

Patrolman James W. Boykin, investigating officer, listed the injured child as Betty Joyce Phillips, of Route 1, Ayden.

The child was struck by an automobile operated by Willie M. Bell, 22, of Route 3, Ayden, who was headed in the direction of Ayden on a rural paved road at the time of the accident.

The youngster was rushed to Pitt Memorial Hospital where her injuries were declared to be a fracture of the skull. Boykin stated that her condition was serious in view of reports received from attending doctors.

According to Boykin, the child ran across the road headed for her grandfather's house. No damage was reported to the car.

World Inflation Level Subsiding

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—International Bank President Eugene R. Black said today the inflation which has plagued the world since the outbreak of the Korean war has begun to subside.

Black told the United Nations Economic and Social Council that "inflationary pressures persist." But he said general inflation has "to some extent subsided and a period of adjustment appears to be setting in."

The financier said declining production and investment in industrial countries might have "adverse effects on the export earnings of some underdeveloped countries."

On the other hand, he said, "competition among industrial countries to supply needed goods and equipment will probably grow keener."

"This may have the effect of encouraging the flow of direct private investment and private credits," he said. "Clearly, ...there will be no slackening in either the demand for, or the urgency of, economic development."

Since he last addressed the council in Chile a little more than two years ago, Black said the world economic situation "has changed very radically, almost reversed itself.

"The postwar backlog of demand for goods and services in the industrialized countries has been in large part satisfied," he said. "And the critical shortages which plagued efforts to rebuild and expand industrial capacity have generally been overcome."

Injured Woman Said Improving

A report received this week from a Charleston, South Carolina hospital revealed that the condition of Mrs. Virginia Thomas was considerably improved.

Cpl. C. E. Whitfield, who investigated a fall which Mrs. Thomas had from a speeding automobile, reported that an operation performed on the woman there last week had been successful.

The operation was performed to remove a crushed piece of bone from her back which was pressing on her spinal cord, the officer stated.

Mrs. Thomas received a broken back and fractured skull in a fall from an automobile being driven by Walter T. Cone, on March 21.

The operation was performed three days following Mrs. Thomas' removal from Pitt Memorial Hospital to the South Carolina hospital which is located near her home.

Housewives Spot Mystery Planes In Defense Test

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UP) — Two housewives in a Connecticut observation post spotted a "mystery" bomber and three jet planes flying toward New York in a hugh-hush test of east coast defenses.

A spokesman for the Eastern Air Defense Force disclosed that the planes, painted to resemble Russian aircraft flew into range of military radar and civilian observation units last Saturday.

Air Force jet interceptors were sent aloft to approach the unidentified planes. With guns stripped for combat, the four jet fighters made contact with the "invaders" by radio and blinkers and established their identity as friendly.

New England Has Freak Snowstorm

BOSTON (UP) —A freak April snowstorm whipped New England today, snapping power lines and snarling traffic. At least two deaths were attributed to the storm.

The worst jam of cars occurred along a 10-mile stretch in central Massachusetts where hundreds of motorists were stranded for nearly 12 hours.

The snow, rain and sleet, accompanied by high winds, caught most of the region with its "plows down." Up to six inches of snow and slush brought traffic to a standstill. In one section of Connecticut, nine inches of snow fell.

In Tense Tehran Violence Flares

TEHRAN, Iran (UP) —Violence and bloodshed erupted in this tense capital today as the pro-Communist Tudeh party staged a series of forbidden demonstrations urging passage of a government-sponsored bill to curb the powers of the shah.

One demonstrator was killed, 20 were injured and 25 were arrested in the series of street brawls.

Police and troops fired over the heads of the demonstrators who massed in front of the parliament demanding approval of the measure originally introduced by Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

Retreating, the mob stoned a truck of the American military mission. The only occupant was unhurt.

The bill would curb the shah's powers and take all control of the army from him. The aged premier threatened to resign, and plunge the country into a crisis, unless he got his way.
