In Memoriam
We, the members of the Round Table, do on this the twenty-first day of April, 1953, pause to pay homage to our beloved friend and co-worker, Mrs. Margaret Shields Everett, who was a charter member of our Round Table and chairman of the first constitution committee.

Whereas, we admired and loved her for her faithful and loyal devotion to her friends, for her deep religious conviction; for her kindness and radiant spirit; and for her sincere interest and desire to lend her time and influence in service not only to her church and to her community but to work in organizations promoting education and culture throughout the state and nation;

Now, therefore, be it resolved: First, that members of the Round Table mourn with deep sorrow the passing of Mrs. Everett, March the twenty-eighth, 1953; her memory we hold in high esteem; her years of joyful service will ever be treasured by all those whose privilege it was to know her.

Second, that we extend to her family our heartfelt sympathy and commend them to Him "who doeth all things well".

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be recorded in our minutes, a copy be sent to her family and a copy be sent to the Daily Reflector.

Glib-Tongued Bad Check Artist Active In County

A light-skinned Negro with a smooth line, a sporty cap and a "rubber" check is operating in Pitt County, Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson reported this morning.

The sheriff today warned Pitt County merchants to be on the look-out for a glib-tongued young Negro who is known to have passed at least two "bogus" checks in the county in the last week.

A description of the character in question as compiled from reports of merchants taken in by his line shows the Negro to be about five feet 10 inches in height, weighing approximately 160 pounds, with light tan complexion and wearing a sport cap.

Two Checks

Two instances of his operation, as reported to the sheriff took place in Ayden and Winterville. On Wednesday, April 15, he cashed a check for $50 at J. R. Craft's store in Ayden Monday of this week the unidentified Negro took Cecil Weatherington's store in Winterville for $45.

Needless to say, both checks by the two merchants turned out to contain a higher-than-average degree of elasticity.

The check passer's "modus operandi" as described by the sheriff is to enter a store, buy a quantity of groceries with a check purported to be his "boss man's" and take the balance of the check in money.

The check given Craft was forged with the name of G. L. James, and was written on the National Bank of Ayden. The check cashed by Weatherington was signed with the name of Z. T. Winton, and was drawn on the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company of Greenville.

Left Groceries

In both instances the Negro left the groceries "to be picked up a little later." He never returned for the purchased staples.

The sheriff stated he already has checked with the Greenville Police Department, who yesterday arrested a Milton Taft, local Negro, on a charge of forgery. Taft is not the man for whom we are looking, he added.

"I want to warn the merchants of Pitt County to be careful in cashing checks presented by unknown persons, especially by a Negro meeting the above description," Sheriff Tyson declared.

Unaccustomed Harmony In Politicking Of DAR

WASHINGTON (UP)—In an atmosphere of unaccustomed harmony, the Daughters of the American Revolution turned today to the nomination of new officers and the business of forming DAR policy on national and international affairs.

The disappointment of some delegates at the 62nd continental congress and the relief of others, no contenders have entered the field against Miss Gertrude S. Carraway, New Bern, N. C., newswoman, for the post of president general.

Politicking might develop a dark horse nominee before tonight's formal nomination session, but all signs pointed to the most peaceable election in the society's history. The 18 other candidates for high office likewise are unopposed. The Daughters meanwhile prepared to throw their weight behind a Senate resolution introduced by Sen. John W. Bricker (R-O) which would clip the President's treaty-making powers.

Resolutions renewing the DAR attack on the United Nations and world government, and urging continued activity against subversion also were in the making.

Bricker, a speaker at last night's session, said the Eisenhower administration's "most serious mistake" to date is the objection voiced by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles against his proposal.

Strength for the Day

NOT JUSTICE BUT MERCY
 Among the people of Persia there is one statement that will precipitate a knock-down drag-out fight every time. The most insulting thing one Iranian can say to another is, "May your house not fall down." The intimation of course is that if there was any justice in the world, your house would fall down upon your wicked head.

Have you ever thought about what would happen to you if there were no mercy in God's universe but only justice? How would you cry to the hills to fall upon you and the sea to cover you? If you ever get to worrying about the fact that some people do not think highly enough of you, just recall that if you and I got our just dues, we really would have something to weep about. Justice would do worse than bring our houses down upon our heads; it might even bring the heavens down upon our house.

"May your house not fall down." The Iranians hate this malicious statement because it tells them off in no uncertain terms. We have nothing in our language which entirely corresponds to this statement in the Persian language but we have experiences which correspond to it.

What you and I need is not justice but mercy, and what you and I should in turn give to others is not what they deserve but the mercy which we hope God will continue to accord us.

Other End Of The Line Must Come First, Boys

Efforts to force Congressional action on a bill of Rep. Daniel Reed which would reduce personal income taxes 10 per cent effective July 1 apparently are weaker than was calculated a month or so ago.

It was shortly after the Republican controlled Congress convened that the GOP representative from New York announced he was determined to force the issue to cut income taxes this year. For a few weeks it looked like the cut might be possible and in keeping with the expenses of government. But then it became apparent that the Republicans were not going to be able to shave the federal budget as much as they thought.

The administration and Republican Congressional leaders — much as they wanted to give the people an income tax cut — did not want to do it at the expense of an unbalanced budget which would put federal operations just where they had been under Democratic control. . . in the red.

With his bill cooped up in the House Rules Committee, Rep. Reed is attempting to bring it to the floor for direct action. It will take a total of 218 signatures by House members to bring about such action, and so far Reed has succeeded in obtaining only 34 of the required number. That's a far cry from the requirement, and it is not likely that 218 Representatives will join Reed over the protest of Republican leaders, the White House, and the Democratic leaders who are willing to see the Republicans fight among themselves.

In spite of Reed's attempts at a personal income tax cut, it looks like the American people are going to have to wait for tax reductions until more progress is made at the other end of the line — government spending.

As The Reflector has said before, that is the only sound thing for the Congress to do. If they are anxious to give the people the benefit of lower taxes, they must first get to work and weed out the waste that is still going on in the sprawling bureaucracy of the federal government.

What Is A 'Symbol Of Needless Luxury'?

President Eisenhower's announcement that the Presidential yacht Williamsburg is going into mothballs apparently did not hurt anyone's feelings except perhaps those of the officers and crew of the yacht who will be sent to new assignments.

The statement in the Williamsburg announcement which asserted the yacht is a "symbol of needless luxury," however, sounds a little note which we doubt was in good taste. There is no question that the Williamsburg was a luxury for the Chief Executive which was not absolutely necessary. It can not be denied that the $600,000 a year spent to man and operate the Williamsburg will be used more wisely by the government for more essential things than a Presidential yacht.

Yet this "symbol of needless luxury," while apparently a dig at ex-President Truman, may backfire on President Eisenhower himself.

A man who shoulders the killing job of President should not be condemned by taxpayers if the government affords him a medium which affords brief respites from the burdens of everyday work in the White House. In the case of ex-President Truman, the Williamsburg afforded this enjoyable relaxation and recreation. In the case of President Eisenhower, it appears that golfing trips to Augusta will be the outlet for recreation.

If President Eisenhower's first few months in office are any indication of the trend he will follow in pursuing the game of golf, there will be many flying trips to Augusta, Ga. for golfing week-ends. Of course these golfing expeditions are financed by the government just as the other trips taken by the Chief Executive. And while in the long run the cost of these flights to Augusta may not amount to as much as it cost to maintain the Williamsburg, they too, could be termed a "symbol of needless luxury."

Frankly we don't begrudge President Eisenhower his golfing trips any more than we begrudge President Truman having a Presidential yacht. But we do think it is a little unfair — and perhaps in poor taste — for one Chief Executive to inflame the government's money has been squandered on the medium of recreation for one President, when at the same time a great deal of money is going to be spent by the government for his own recreation and relaxation.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The first serious opposition to President Eisenhower's major policies has begun to raise its lowly head on Capitol Hill after only three months of the new Administration. Although not a concerted movement, or inspired by personal or partisan bitterness, it is all the more threatening because of the absence of those factors.

It reflects a vague dissatisfaction over his apparent refusal or unwillingness to provide strong and decisive leadership. On the Democratic side, the critics include both the so-called "Truman liberals" of the Humphrey-Lehman-Neely type, and several Eisenhower Democrats, although they do not agree even in their reasons for needing Ike.

Men like Byrd of Virginia and George of Georgia wish that Ike would take a more determined stand in order to justify their preference of him to Stevenson. A more satisfactory Eisenhower performance is an essential for vindication of their 1952 judgment.

Finally, the more partisan Democrats squirm over editorial and political comment to the effect that they are giving a GOP President more support than many of his own men, as in the Bohlen confirmation controversy. They realize that they cannot build up issues for the 1954 contests, if they turn over their opposition responsibilities to a bloc on the other side of the aisle—the Bricker-Bridges-McCarthy group, for instance.

PARM GROUP SUSPICIOUS—The anti-Eisenhower chorus sings several different tunes, which explains why their appearance at such an early date has not been generally recognized on or off Capitol Hill. In the aggregate, however, they constitute an influential force.

The Republican farm group in both House and Senate, although still friendly to the White House, are suspicious of Secretary Benson's long-range agricultural viewpoint. They fear that, when the present price support legislation expires, he will leave the farmers to the mercy of the market place, as the Chicago platform suggested.

KNOWLAND-BRIDGES FACTION UPSET—The Knowland-Bridges faction, also well disposed toward the White House, is upset over indications that Eisenhower and Dulles are weakening on their campaign declarations for a firmer and more aggressive policy in the Far East. In their admiration for Chiang Kai-shek, they demand no concessions to the Reds or to Britain's willingness to deal with Mao Tse-tung.

KNOWLAND was so upset by the off-the-record Dulles conference on the future of Korea and Formosa that he forced a repudiation from the White House. Even this backdown was not completely satisfactory. The pro-Chiang bloc knows that a new Far Eastern program envisaging a general settlement has been under serious consideration. It will be revised, if Korean negotiations result in a permanent truce there.

CONCERN OVER BUDGET-BALANCING—Conservative Democrats are also restless. The Russell-Johnson faction are deeply concerned over budget-balancing plans that contemplate a reduction in defense and foreign aid appropriations. Secretary Wilson's proposed reversal of previous industrial expansion schedules for defense has frightened bewilders them. And the belated repudiation of this cutback bewilders them.

Senator Byrd demands a Pentagon reorganization because of disclosures in the ammunition shortage investigation. He insists that Ike step hard on some friendly military toes. The Virginia also wants a more positive White House expression in favor of budget-balancing before tax cuts.

Somebody Told Me

By J. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

A new story elsewhere in tonight's Reflector tells the facts that bear repeating: Motorists who have overparked in Greenville parking metered areas since Saturday are 110 per cent honest!

Saturday the Greenville Merchant's Association's Courtesy Parking Plan went into effect. Since then, Greenville policemen have loaned 62 nickels, or $3.10, to motorists who were overparked in order to prevent their getting parking tickets. Each motorist, who was loaned a nickel was supplied with an envelope and requested to return the nickel by depositing it in one of the green boxes located midway in each metered block.

Yesterday afternoon I emptied the 24 boxes in downtown Greenville and recovered $3,411.50, percentage-wise, the motorists are 110 per cent honest.

Figures can be used to show interesting facts based on the 62 nickels loaned by Greenville policemen. Only 4.8 per cent, or three of the 62, did not return anything. If you want to look at the situation adversely, you could say that 4.8 per cent are dishonest.

But on the other hand, 14.5 per cent returned dimes instead of nickels, giving the Greenville Merchant's Association an interest rate of 10 per cent. These honest people swung the pendulum in the other direction, resulted in profit in spite of the three slackers.

It was interesting to note that in the space on the envelopes with the blank for "name," several of the returners wrote in theirs: A. J. Garris, C. D. Phillips, James Lester and W. W. Manning. Two of the returners were from out-of-state—one from Virginia and one from South Carolina. Normally, out-of-state cars tend to ignore local parking regulations. Besides getting their nickel, think of the free advertising we'll get when they go home!

Several returned the money less envelope. Although 62 envelopes were supplied, only 62 were returned. Obviously, some motorists were interested in repaying the debt but were also interested in keeping the envelope as a souvenir.

One motorist told me: "I have a glove compartment full of parking tickets. Never paid any attention to them. But if somebody thinks enough of me to lend me a nickel, I'll pay it back." And he did just that.

And I thank you.

ACTIVITY — Delay in handling administration patronage matters both Federal and State has tended to lessen general population interest in politics, while at the same time stimulating activity among the leaders—particularly the jobseekers. Republicans have been more active, at least in public manifestation, in efforts to get the patronage machinery to work and put good Republicans in the Federal jobs now held by Democrats. But those desiring State jobs, including several Federal employees who have been or expect to be ousted, have not been idle.

REPUBLICANS — A session of the State Republican Executive committee held in Charlotte a few weeks ago served to further confuse rather than clear up the matter of who will handle patronage in this State. Another meeting of the full committee has been set for Greensboro next Thursday. Meantime top brass in party leadership have been holding off-record conferences seeking to work out their differences. One such was held in Charlotte last Saturday, about which very little has been learned. The Republican administration is three months old and so far only one appointment of consequence has been announced in this State, that of Fate J. Beal of Lenoir to be assistant district attorney in the West.

DEMOCRATS — The Democrats have had no formal committee meeting, but attendants at the Jefferson-Jackson Dinner a couple months ago and numerous visitors around legislative halls showed acute interest in appointment jobs. There are signs of restiveness at delay of Governor Unstead in giving any indication of his choices for the several important positions which are now filled by carry-overs after expiration of their terms, as well as for the numerous major appointments due before July 1. The Young Democratic Clubs have scheduled a state convention at Asheville for May 2 at which National Chairman Stephen Mitchell will be the featured speaker. Usually senior party leaders use the YDC gatherings for conferences and trial balloon flights.

RESPECT — The group including several members and former members of the General Assembly, statewide elective officials and a reporter or two. The casual talk got around to the "secrecy law" recently enacted and the apparent lack of public concern about it. One of the officials thought he had the answer, and he did not at all like its implications. "Fact of the business is," he said, "the people generally have lost respect for both the legislature and the press."

REASONS — While he felt it is deplorable, he confessed there is some reason for the public attitude. The General Assembly has shown no respect for direct mandates of the constitution about redistricting for membership in the Congress and the Legislature. In such matters as the farcical Saturday sessions and claiming full pay for Sundays the legislators have not built up prestige for their fairness and regard for the public interest. For many years there has been growing disposition on part of newspapers and radio commentators to color news stories and mix personal opinion and conclusion with factual reporting to such extent that the public has lost confidence in the accuracy of the news.

TWO SIDED — The episodes leading to enactment of the law permitting secret sessions of the appropriations committees had elements justifying the public's lack of respect. A few reporters admittedly were indiscreet if not deliberately unfair in stories about committee sessions, while some legislators claimed unjustified immunity for statements just as unfair and foolish. When the bill to bar the public including reporters from the committee came to the floor, both branches of the Assembly voted about five to one to deny the newspapers direct access and the public which had equal as much at stake the right to be heard. The only vote of record was in the House on the question of suspending the rules to prevent a hearing, thus denying the press the right which is customarily extended even to operators of illegal business. The man who said both the Legislature and the press had suffered loss of public regard had something.

POLICY — Authorized spokesmen for the Allied Church League have confirmed reports first published in this correspondence several weeks ago that no really serious effort was contemplated at this session of the General Assembly to get a statewide referendum on liquor. It was announced the other day that the dry group will soon hold an important strategy meeting with the view to formulating policy for the next Legislature. It was intimated that a different approach might be made to the subject. There are indications that such approach may be toward more complete regulatory control, temperance rather than prohibition, obtained through education rather than attempted use of force.

PROTEST — J. M. Baley Jr., Republican state chairman, has come up with the usual protest that the method of nominating Superior Court Judges by districts

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 If you are Joe Deakes or one of his 72 million competitors, you are going to keep on paying as much taxes in the future as you are today.

In this department yesterday, it was pointed out that the present Administration cannot safely lower the level of defense spending. It can, and probably will, eliminate some of what the Republicans term "frills" of government, and thereby reduce government spending slightly. Even if the reduction in Federal spending is, in total, large, it will be small in relation to the total budget. Since the present Administration is opposed to more borrowing, it cannot, therefore, decrease its other major source of revenue — taxation.

Oh, there may be some minor trims in rates in the wage-earner brackets, there may be some easement in the onerous excess profits tax, and some of the nuisances may be taken out of various excises. But by and large, the level of Federal taxation will continue much the same as it has in recent years.

Furthermore, for any piddling decreases in Federal levies, there will be corresponding — and more — increases in state and local taxes. States and cities are beset with higher costs of labor and materials and they are being pressured by demands for more services, in schools, hospitals, roads, relief and protection.

There are reasons to believe that, within the next ten years or less, state and local tax levies will be doubled. Many cities are on the verge of bankruptcy today. All this adds up to the fact that if you are paying 20, 25, 50 or even 80 per cent of your income in taxes now, you can expect to pay the same per cent as long as you live — or as long as your income continues.

Don't shoot your correspondent. He is only telling you what he learns and knows. In fact, you might send him a vote of thanks.

Because, now that you know you are going to have to keep on paying at approximately the present rates, you can plan your business and personal affairs more soundly. Whether you work, manufacture or sell, you are going to have to scale your prices to meet the kind of levies you are meeting today.

Anybody doing business on the supposition that taxes are going to be less at some future date is flirting with bankruptcy or jail.

NEW FOOD PACKAGING METHODS AID CONSUMER
 Developments in packaging and preservation are continually improving the quality, variety and cleanliness of the foods we eat and reducing prices by cutting spoilage and shipping costs. Packaging fresh foods in plastic ics has gained tremendously in the past few years. At the National Packaging Exhibition now being held in Chicago it was reported by George C. Miller, Bakelite sales executive) that in the last three years use of polyethylene film — an important material in packaging — has increased approximately 300 per cent. About 2,800,000 pounds are being used for packaging each month. An additional 968 per cent increase is predicted by 1956.

Also revealed at the exposition is a new nondrip cap (developed by American Can Co.) particularly adapted for packaging heavy-pouring products such as syrups, edible oils, wax, liquid starch, etc. The nondrip cap is actually a thin metal bottle with nozzle and cap.

A third development, though still in the research stage, is the use of volatile chemicals to protect perishable fruits and vegetables. Experiments conducted by Purdue University under sponsorship of A & P Food Stores) indicate that small quantities of trichloroethylene and tetrachloroethylene can reduce peach and strawberry losses due to molds and rot by 50 to 75 per cent.

This method, if commercially feasible, would be of great value since about one-fifth of fresh fruits and vegetables — worth some $75,000,000 — are destroyed by molds and rot after harvest.

CORPORATE DIVIDENDS 5 PER CENT AHEAD OF LAST YEAR
 Cash dividends of corporations rose from $1,893,100,000 in the first quarter of 1952 to $2,050,000,000 in the same quarter this year, the Department of Commerce reports.

Finance industry dividends rose sharply — from $225,900,000 to $251,900,000.

Biggest gain among manufacturers was registered by oil refining firms which paid stockholders $243,100,000 compared with $236,700,000 in the first three months of last year.

"NOW IF I WERE THE BOSS. . ."

Salesmen of one meat packing firm (Armour & Co.) will get a chance to do something dreamed of by practically every employee at one time or another.

In May some 300 honorary sales managers elected by other salesmen will take over at their respective branches for a week. The regular sales managers will go back to selling during the time they are being replaced. The honoraries will be competing for a week's trip to the head offices to act as honorary general branch house or general plant sales managers.

These probably will be some very relieved minds when the whole thing is over with.

Hal Boyle's Column

BY HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—The trickle of American prisoners now being freed in Korea is a sad reminder of the thousands listed as missing—who will never return.

Most of them were listed in the early stages of a war that will soon be three years old, and the nation owes them a debt it can never repay.

Today the United States has perhaps the finest army in its history stationed in Korea. That army that has grown the sacrifice demanded of the individual soldier has tended to lessen.

It wasn't that way in the beginning. A few thousand soldiers had to serve as the spearhead of 15 million unprepared Americans. And most of those soldiers are gone.

They didn't like the job they were given. Each outfit had perhaps too many over-weight sergeants, too many under-age privates who had joined the army for security—not to die in an obscure peninsula called Korea.

Their resentful attitude was summed up by one:

"What business have we got fighting here anyway, and why do I have to be the 'one'?"

They had no idea what they were going up against. They really thought it would be nothing more than a police action of a few days or weeks.

"We actually thought all we had to do was stand on a hill and show our American uniforms and these little brown Gooks would turn around and run right back where they came from," a captain said later.

But they deployed in the rugged hills, and they were vanguards of a 300,000-man, North Korean army headon. They tried to form a continuous line of defense, and there were too few of them.

They were shattered time and again, pulling their remnants back to a new hill and trying to form a new line. Each stand decimated them but each stand slowed the enemy and gained precious hours and days that enabled the Army to rush over more troops and supplies.

The American people were shocked to see their troops defeated in the field. If they had known how pitiful small numbers were, they might perhaps have paid more honor to those gallant few who truly saved Korea.

For their stubborn withdrawals forced the surprised enemy to pause, delay, and sidestep.

"If the Reds had they were up against," said a colonel, "they could have crashed right through us, taking their losses all at once, and had the whole peninsula in three weeks."

Some day the full valor of those over-weight sergeants and the green young privates will be known, and their terrible sacrifices appreciated. They were mostly regular Army men, and mostly men now in many a young West Point officer who would have been a general in 1975. The Army paid a heavy price in leadership

Washington Letter
 By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Mrs. Jefferson Patterson was still a student at Vassar College when she went to the rugged mountain country of Kentucky in 1928 as the first courier of the now-famed Frontier Nursing Service, set up by her aunt, Mary Breckinridge.

In those days there were no roads at all there, and the sick and expectant mothers scattered over the 700-mile area had to be reached by horseback. Mrs. Patterson remembers vividly one week-long mile trek through snow and freezing weather to visit the Service's first center. "The manes and tails of our horses were stiff with icicles," she said, "and it took us a while to thaw out too."

There's a hospital and a resident medical director at Hayden, Ky., now with 20 graduate nurses. The service, which has one of the few graduate schools of midwifery in the world, is now bringing a second generation into the world. It has 12 Jeeps and an ambulance, but there are still only a few roads, and much of the traveling is by horseback.

Young volunteers are still needed to handle the horses, Jeeps and ambulance and serve as guides to the physicians, and nurses. Interested laymen come from all over the world to study the work of the service.

Hopping into the saddle and donning blue jeans as volunteers for six weeks starting in June, will be two pretty Washington girls, Marjorie Cabot, 20, daughter of Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. John Moors Cabot, and Paula Granger, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Granger.

Mrs. Patterson, born in New York, the daughter of the late John C. Breckinridge, a U.S. Diplomat, studied photography and later made the only film record of the nursing service. In 1939, she went overseas as a free-lance photographer-journalist. "She was doing radio broadcasts in Berlin when she met and married Jefferson Patterson, first secretary of the American Embassy, in France, Belgium, and Great Britain before the U.S. entered the war. The mother of two children, Patricia, 4, and Mark Julian, 2, she is currently active in the Washington committee of the Frontier Nursing Service. This is one of several organizations raising funds for the Service.

"So unusual is the technique developed by the Service that people come from all over the world to study the first hand re-application in their own areas," Mrs. Patterson said.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

We're not enthusiastic about stand-by controls. For almost any President can create an emergency overnight if he chooses to. Did not Roosevelt in the 12 years that he was in office have one almost every year? Once the President declares that an emergency exists, he can call into being the stand-by legislation Congress has voted for his use. We'd much prefer to see those stand-bys given only after the emergency is generally recognized. For most Americans are tired of being pushed around. Most of them, too, voted for a change in the last election to get away from that very thing.

Those onerous controls. In the last 20 years we've had many national emergencies. Some were genuine and some were highly questionable. But every new emergency called for more executive authority. When Congress passed over that authority, it was wary. It put expiration dates on every act. But in almost all cases when the authority was about to expire, the executive has asked for an extension. Eisenhower so far has run true to form he asked for an extension of rent controls the other day. He wants it to run for five months.

Now of course rent controls have been eased considerably in the last

Interior Secretary Has Another Row On Hands

By JAMES D. SHACTER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay, who already had two fights on his hands, found himself in another row today over his "new team" appointments to the Interior Department.

This time, the scrappy ex-governor of Oregon is fighting in the heavyweight class. His opponent is John L. Lewis.

Informed sources disclosed that the United Mine Workers president has appealed to the White House to block McKay's plan to install Thomas Lyon of Salt Lake City, Utah, as director of the Bureau of Mines.

Lewis, who feels that he and his union have a special interest in the bureau, was reported to have complained in a letter to presidential assistant Sherman Adams that Lyon has "no working knowledge of the coal industry." Lyon is now head of the metals expansion division of the Defense Materials Agency.

As of today, McKay was standing his ground. An Interior Department spokesman said the secretary would stick by his choice of Lyon, regardless of Lewis' protest. But sources close to Lewis said the UMW chief regards the issue as "the lives of coal miners versus political jobs." That pronouncement was taken here as a warning that Lewis might call a coal strike, if need be, to demonstrate his displeasure. He did it once before, when President Truman named a Bureau of Mines director he didn't like.

Lewis shortly after McKay's bag of troubles added to the list. He charged that his firing as director of the Bureau of Land Management was "motivated by political considerations."

Clawson, whom McKay had ousted for "insubordination" after he refused to accept a demotion, asked the secretary to keep him in office. He said McKay had "set back for 20 years or more a sound program of conservation and management of the federally owned lands and resources" by his action.

Clawson said he referred to his own ouster and that of Albert M. Day as director of the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Day also has charged that his removal has prompted by "special interests."

Lewis' protest against Lyon recalled the UMW's two week memorial strike in the spring of 1949 in opposition to Dr. James Boyd's nomination to head the Bureau of Mines.

Newest National Park Is Popular

MIAMI, Fla. (U.P.)—Tourists who want a first-hand look at alligators, tropical birds and rare animals in their natural habitat are flocking in ever-increasing numbers to the nation's newest national park 41 miles south of here.

Everglades National Park drew 168,000 visitors during 1952, an increase of 25,000 over the previous year. New attendance records are expected to be set this year. A total of 24,716 visitors saw the park in January, an increase of 5,401 over the same period last year.

One of the newest features of the biological park is the national chain is the self-guided tour. As visitors enter the park they are handed a guide sheet which tells them of interesting points along the route. Sight seeing boats made trips into areas inaccessible to automobiles.

South Florida's climate gives the park an advantage over other national parks in that it may be visited in comfort throughout the year.

Curbside Justice On Jersey Road

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (U.P.)—Police on the 118-mile New Jersey Turnpike have substituted "curbside justice" for "reciprocity" in their campaign against out-of-state traffic violators.

Authorities discovered that "reciprocity"—an agreement between states for punishing violators that cross state lines—was being bogged down by paper work. Motorists violated summonses after getting out of New Jersey and escaping penalties unless caught here again.

Now, police either take violators directly before a magistrate to post bond or pay a fine, or arrange by radioing to headquarters to have a local violations clerk meet them at a nearby interchange.

The clerk can administer "curbside justice" only if the driver pleads guilty and only on certain offenses. The standard fine for speeding is $1 for each mile over the 60-mile-an-hour limit plus $5 costs. More serious infractions that demand a hearing must be handled by a magistrate.

Wide-Open Club; Especially Roof

FORTH WORTH, Tex. (UP)—Golfers at the Colonial Country Club, severely damaged by fire recently, are being greeted these days with signs such as these: "It's all right to burn up the course, but this is ridiculous." "Everything is open—especially the roof." "Red hot putters for sale." "Don't let the sparks get in your eyes."

To Women Who Have Changed Shampoos During the Past Year

If you have changed your shampoo in the past twelve months, you've had lots of company. For like yourself, literally millions of women are constantly switching from one brand to another, almost all with unhappy results.

Of course there's a good reason for all this coast-to-coast shopping around—two reasons, in fact:

1. A great many shampoos now on the market are so-called "all-purpose" shampoos.
2. Hair conditions differ just as skin conditions do. And each requires a different type of shampoo.

After all, what is an "all-purpose" shampoo but a shampoo that tries to be a "jack of all trades." The result: it ends up being "master of none." On the other hand, your hair is as individual as your skin. Your hair is either dry, oily, normal or tinted and bleached. So how could any "all-purpose" shampoo be right for all these types of hair?

There is only one sensible, scientific solution to the shampoo problem: 4 DIFFERENT SHAMPOOS FOR THE FOUR TYPES OF HAIR.

These 4 custom-formulated shampoos are now available for the first time. They bear a famous name—Aquamarine Shampoo by Revlon. While each is expressly formulated for a different type of hair, all work their wonders through a new exclusive shampoo principle—magnetism.

An uncanny new shampoo ingredient, discovered by Revlon chemists, called "Magnetol" gives you complete control over your hair immediately after shampooing. It is almost as though each bottle came complete with a hairdresser; your hair is so amazingly manageable.

Old Charitable Trust Still Active

MIDDLETOWN, R. I. (AP)—After 277 years, a charitable trust which Rhode Islanders believe is America's oldest, is still donating its profits for the relief of the poor and the education of children.

When John Clarke, physician-minister, died in 1676, his will provided that his farms in Middletown were to be held in trust. Any profits from them were to be used "for the relief of the poor and the bringing up of their children with learning of their children with learning."

The trustees are still carrying out John Clarke's wishes. During 1952, they gave $300 to the widow of a former pastor, $50 each to five students, and $300 for distribution by the Rev. Wilbur Nelson, pastor of the United Baptist Church, John Clarke Memorial, of Newport.

After taxes and expenses, rental of the farms—now taxed for $41,600—yields about $1,300 a year.

East Carolina Slugs Out 15-2 Win Over ACC Bulldogs

Sports Reflections BY Jimmy Ellis

Despite the fact that it has become almost "old stuff" to Greenville residents and sports fans, the Little League baseball program still manages to come up occasionally with an incident that is both novel and refreshing.

The latest of these "incidents" is in the form of a letter to Reflector Editor Dave Whitchard. It's from a potential Little Leaguer who is doing a little advance wondering about the publicity connected with the Little League program.

To attempt to describe the genuineness of the letter is something that can't be done so we'll just print it as we received it:

Dear Sirs:

I am a little boy nine years old and I am going to try to play Little League baseball this year. I like very much your Little League Star drawings about Little League stars. Daddy said I might be a star someday. I hope so. When do the drawings start again? Soon I hope. I like them very much. I thought the one about Billy Cox was the best because Billy Cox was the picture looked a little bit like him but it did not show the scar on his face but I liked the drawing very much. I am saving them.

A friend,

Tommy Ginnswell

For Tommy's information, the drawings of the Little League stars will be resumed as soon as possible. And they'll include the real stars of the Little League baseball program. But that bit of information isn't really what we wanted to get over in comments about the letter.

Reading between the lines, it isn't difficult at all to see what the program has done for that particular boy who might be classed a representative youth of Greenville.

The program has offered him the opportunity to prove himself in a number of ways. He has the chance to prove himself to his fellows—perhaps the most important thing in his life. He has the chance to learn to play not only baseball but to use the somewhat trite expression the "great game of life" according to the rules that have been set up by others who have gone on before him. He has the chance to prove his sportsmanship and to help others improve their own.

The Little League program—not just Greenville's but the national program—has been severely criticized in the past few months. There are some "experts" who think the regimentation—so-called—is not good for growing youngsters. These critics have expressed themselves as feeling that too much emphasis has been put on winning and the boys aren't being taught how to be good losers.

If we remember correctly, the American Way of Life—a highly-developed idea but still one that exists in the minds and not on a paper—is something that teaches people to strive for the best through cooperative efforts and to accept that which they can attain by putting forth the best efforts at one's command. If that idea is followed, then nobody loses. Everyone doesn't win the grand prize but nobody loses by doing the best he can.

We think that Tommy Ginnswell has shown that the Little League program can give youngsters something constructive. We don't know how much connection Tommy has had with the Greenville program but if we needed any further proof we have to turn no farther than younger brothers who are right now taking advantage of opportunities being offered them.

Little League baseball's regular season will get underway pretty soon. There are at least 63 new boys who are eager to step into the positions vacated by graduates of the program last year. They don't play the best baseball in the world but they do a good job with Abner Doubleday's game.

Grimesland Wins 5-2 From Belvoir

GRIMESLAND—Some unusual but effective relief pitching by second baseman Jerry Gaskins set Grimesland out of two tight spots here yesterday and opened the way for a 5-2 victory over Belvoir. The victory was Grimesland's fifth in six Pitt County Conference tries.

Nelson came to the pitcher's mound on only two occasions in the game but his efforts were good enough to rattle the side on both occasions. He first went to the mound in the second inning when starter Tom Hodges got in trouble. Gaskins pitched to only one and struck him out to retire the side. Hodges went back to the pitcher's mound and rolled along smoothly until the fifth inning when he got into trouble again. Gaskins went to the mound and duplicated his second inning feat to save the day again.

William Watson, Belvoir's ace right-hander, suffered almost continually from the Grimesland batters. The host team scored twice in the first inning but didn't wrap the game up until the fifth when they scored three times.

Lloyd Elks started the big inning when he reached first safely on a fielder's choice. Randolph Tripp reached first on an error, sending Elks to third, and setting the stage for a stolen base by Tripp. Bobby Andrews then delivered a single that scored Elks and Tripp with the runs that broke Belvoir's back. Bobby Ward kept the rally going by reaching first safely on an error by the third baseman with Andrews scooting around to third on the play. Billy McRoy then came through with a single that scored Andrews. McRoy was the top hitter of the afternoon with two hits in three trips to the plate. Belvoir's Bell got one of his team's three hits off Hodges.

Grimesland will put its record on the line this afternoon when the team travels to Choccol to meet the league-leading Choccol Hornets. Choccol has a 7-1 mark against conference opposition and today's winner could easily take the conference championship this year.

Score by innings:
Belvoir 10 00 1-2 3 3
Grimesland 20 030 x-5 6 4
Watson and Bell; Hodges, Gaskins (2, 5), and Elks.

B. Cline, Boyd Webb Share Hitting Honors

Pirates Gain Sixth League Victory With 21-Hit Barrage Against Three Bulldog Hurlers; Meet Elon Today

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Editor

WILSON—With righthander Martin Byrd turning in some highly-effective pitching and timely hitting, East Carolina College's Pirates had no trouble at all in swamping Atlantic Christian College 15-2 yesterday in a North State Conference ("Eastern Division") baseball game played in Wilson's Municipal Stadium.

Byrd, a senior from Tabor City, gave up only four hits—three of them in the last two innings—to the hapless Bulldogs. In addition, he struck out three, walked five, and didn't permit a runner past second base until the eighth inning.

In the batting department, the big righthander had a pair of singles that chased home four of East Carolina's runs. His first hit came in an eight-run outburst in the fifth frame and sent home Paul Jones and Bill Cline and his second hit, an eighth inning blow, scored Burney Stevens and Jim Corbin.

Plenty Of Help

Byrd had plenty of help in the hitting department—two of his teammates got three hits, another three got a pair, and all but two of the 15 players who saw action got at least one hit.

Bill Cline and Boyd Webb, a pair of Gastonia boys, shared out three hits apiece to rattle the honors in the batting department. Bill Hardison, W. C. Sanoerson, Charlie Cherry, and Byrd each got two apiece to rate right behind Cline and Webb in the 21-hit spree.

The Pirates jumped all over ACC's Louis Todd right from the start. The little righthander gave up a single run in the first inning and had little rest after that. The bottom fell out from under him in the fifth when the Pirates got eight of their runs.

In the big inning, Cecil Heath started things with a single through the hole between first and second. Heath stole second and Major Hooper promptly filled the vacant base by gaining line on an error by the second baseman. W. C. Sanoerson chased Heath home with the first run of the merry-go-round when his fly ball into leftfield was dropped by the leftfielder. Hooper held at third long enough to let both Gaitner Cline and Paul Gay sky-out to leftfield but he finally got to come in when Todd uncorked a wild pitch.

Webb Hits

Boyd Webb kept the rally going by dumping a single over shortstop to third on Paul Jones single through the box and scored on Bill Cline's double into the far reaches of left-centerfield. Jones held at third but he and Cline both rode home on Byrd's solid single down the leftfield line.

Heath, batting for the second time in the inning, reached for the second time when he reached first safely on a fielder's choice. Randolph Tripp reached first on an error, sending Elks to third, and setting the stage for a stolen base by Tripp. Bobby Andrews then delivered a single that scored Elks and Tripp with the runs that broke Belvoir's back. Bobby Ward kept the rally going by reaching first safely on an error by the third baseman with Andrews scooting around to third on the play. Billy McRoy then came through with a single that scored Andrews. McRoy was the top hitter of the afternoon with two hits in three trips to the plate. Belvoir's Bell got one of his team's three hits off Hodges.

Sixth Win

The victory was East Carolina's sixth in eight conference games and their second win of the year. The Pirates were scheduled to meet Elon this afternoon at 2:45 on the college diamond in another conference contest. Elon is currently leading the division with a perfect record.

Yankees Said Interested In Acquiring Infielder Pesky

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees, with more pitchers than he can use, is ready to trade a few of them for a utility infielder who can spell slowed-down Phil Rizzuto.

The player the Yankees are reported to be interested in is Johnny Pesky of the Tigers, a seasoned handyman who can be relied upon for a steady performance if Rizzuto starts showing his 34 years during the dog days of July and August.

Stengel discreetly shies away from any talk of the need for replacing Rizzuto. But "the Scooter" is a key man in four Yankee world championships, is suffering from a variety of physical ailments and has slowed down noticeably in the field and on the bases.

When it comes to pitchers, however, Stengel readily concedes the Yankees are loaded. In lining up his pitching rotation for four days in advance, the cagey Yankee skipper complains he can't give the rest of his staff all the work they require.

And he admits he faces a tough job in deciding which pitchers to cut loose in getting down to the 25-player limit less than four weeks hence. "It's hard to cut this squad," Stengel said Tuesday after Allie Reynolds' impressive six-hit, 1-0 victory over the Red Sox. "With all these postponements, I can't look over all the pitchers I want to."

"I plan to start Vic Raschi, Johnny Sain, Ed Lopat and Ed Ford in the next few games," he continued. "But where does that give me a chance to look over guys like Bob Kuzava or Tom German, or Ewell Blackwell, or Ray Scarborough?"

"I'll have to cut this squad down, but right now I dunno just how I'm gonna do it," Stengel went on. "Of course," he added, "it's easier to cut 'em than it is to buy 'em or trade for 'em when you need 'em."

The Yankees realize that no club in the league will trade them a top-flight infielder who will make them even stronger than they are. At the same time, the world champions are not too anxious to unload their surplus pitching talent on a rival pennant contender.

That's what makes a deal for Pesky attractive.

The Bulldogs' other tally came in the ninth when Jerry Williams led off with a double and scored on Harris' second single of the afternoon.

Simmons' Victory Forecasts Dodgers Trouble With Lefties

NEW YORK (UP)—Crafty Curt Simmons of the Phils exploited a weakness today which could prove fatal to the Dodgers—they may run into trouble this year against left-handers.

In 1932, the Dodgers were simply murder against lefties and few clubs even dared to start a south-paw against them. During the entire season, the only lefty to start and get the route with a victory over Brooklyn was Harry Perkowski of the Reds. The others were pretty badly racked up.

But Tuesday night Simmons spun a five-hit, 7-1 victory in which he cashed in on a homer by Del Ennis and on a barrage of other early inning safe blows. At the same time Simmons struck out Roy Campanella three times and Duke Snider twice.

At Pittsburgh, the Giants were pushed temporarily into last place when the Pirates stopped them 5-4, behind the pitching of Bob Friend, who scattered seven hits.

Cal Abrams, not noted as a long ball hitter, poled a homer in the fifth when Pittsburgh went in front to stay.

The Reds won a home run battle from the Cardinals, 5-4 at St. Louis as a pair of homers in the fifth by Bobby Adams and Wally Post with a runner on base more than offset similar blasts later by rookie Ray Jablonski with two and on by Peanut Lowrey with the bases empty.

In the American League, the Yankees whizzed into a first place tie with the Browns by defeating the Red Sox, 1-0 on six-hit pitching by Allie Reynolds and a timely homer—first in Yankee Stadium this season—by Joe C. Collins. Marv Grissom was the loser on a five-hitter.

The Browns tumbled from sole possession of the lead by losing a 4-3 decision to the Indians at Cleveland as Bob Lemon scored his second win in a row, a seven-hitter in which he stopped the losers in the late innings. Rookie Dixie Upright hit a homer for St. Louis.

Billy Pierce of the White Sox chalked up his second victory in a row, even though he was hit hard in the fourth inning, emerging with a 7-5 margin over the Tigers. Chicago took advantage of three Detroit errors to score three unearned runs.

Charlie Stobbs, the lefty who had the misfortune to serve up Mickey Mantle of the Yankees with the longest home run ball on record, was a little more efficient against the Athletics, limiting them to five hits in a 5-1 victory at Washington.

The Cubs and Braves had an open date in the National.

Stranahan Leads North-South Play

PINEHURST, N. C. (UP)—The North-South Amateur Golf Tournament reached the "survival of the fittest" stage today as morning and afternoon rounds were scheduled in the annual fairway marathon.

Defending champion Frank Stranahan and co-medalist Billy Campbell headed the list of 32 players who survived Tuesday's opening round, which saw Walker Cup stars Jimmy McHale and Bob Knowles fall by the wayside.

Stranahan, too, almost was caught up in the wave of opening rounds. But the Toledo, O., musician managed to eke out a 1-up victory over Dale Morey of Martinsville, Ind., while Campbell, of Huntington, W. Va., struggled to a similar triumph over Johnny Dyniewski of Philadelphia.

McHale, also of Philadelphia, lost to H. H. Haverstick Jr., of Lancaster Pa., 2 and 1, and Knowles, of Aiken, S. C., succumbed to little known Curtis Persons of Memphis, Tenn., 1 up.

Bosox Kiddie Corps May Bench Dimaggio

Doc Carlson Quits Job At Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Dr. H. C. Carlson, who often warned of the "cancer of coaching," took his own prescription today and retired as head basketball coach at the University of Pittsburgh.

The white-haired creator of the game's "figure eight" said his retirement was prompted by the ban on spring drills by the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference and by the insistence of his son that he "take it easy."

"I guess it's time to quit," Dr. Carlson said. "I had planned to stay on for another year, but I decided to call it a game right now."

The basketball coach-author and practicing physician will not sever his ties with the university. He will remain as director of men's student health.

But before departing from the game he coached 31 years, the doctor took a shot at present-day basketball.

"The science has gone out of the game," he said. "It's not coaching anymore—it's recruiting."

Capt. Tom Hamilton, Pitt athletic director, said Carlson's successor would be chosen either from alumni coaching high school or college teams or from a crop of "comers" in the game. He said Carlson's coaching aides would be given consideration.

By OSCAR FRALEY
NEW YORK (UP)—The "Kiddie Corps" movement of the Boston Red Sox threatened today to wipe the magic name of DiMaggio out of the major leagues for good.

Dom (the Little Professor) DiMaggio, younger brother of the immortal Joe, had thought to come into his own after the 1932 retirement of the famed Yankee Clipper. But circumstances and an unfortunate break have him riding the bench in what may be his last season of baseball.

The Little Professor, a bespectacled miniature of big Joe, is a bitterly unhappy man at the moment.

For almost a decade he labored industriously but virtually ignored in the shadow of his brother's superior accomplishments. When Joe stepped down prior to last season, Dom was left to carry on the family name under the big top and had high hopes of finally gaining his rightful recognition.

Yet, at the start of this season he was stricken with an eye infection. Before it responded to treatment and he was able to join the Red Sox in spring training, a trio of rookies had grabbed tenaciously at their opportunity to win a big league job. At the moment they're still out there and Dom is fretting on the bench.

"It would be a helluva note if this lasted all season," he growled. "It might, too."

Because Lou Boudreau, the Red Sox manager, was one of baseball's boy geniuses and he has a solid belief that his young rookies can make the grade.

"We're willing to gamble for one or even two years on these kids," he explained. "If we stick with them it could mean a pennant for us by 1935."

The "kids" to whom he referred are 22-year old shortstop Milt Bolling and — threatening DiMaggio's return to the lineup — outfielders Gene Stephens, 20; Tom Umphlett, 21, and Jim Piersall, 23.

"I like the way these kids run and throw," Boudreau commented, "and they give you 100 per cent all the time."

So, too, has DiMaggio during his 10 years in the livery of the Hub millionaires. But at 35, the Little Professor is beginning to slow down.

"Dom said he might retire at the end of this year," Boudreau explained cautiously. "Then he changed his mind. Well, we are forced into the position of looking ahead a couple of years."

Sugar May Go Off Ration List

EASTBOURNE, England (AP)—Sugar executive Ian D. Lyle predicted here Britain will deration sugar early in 1954 "at the very worst." There was no official Food Ministry comment on the prediction.

refiners Tate & Lyle, told a convention of soft drink manufacturers he based his hope on improved sugar crops, especially in South Africa and Australia.

British Guiana is the only English-speaking country in South America.

Suspicion Grows That U.S. Got Another 'Pig In A Poke'

By PHIL NEWSOM United Press Foreign News Editor

There's a growing suspicion that the West may have bought another Communist "pig in a poke" at Pannunjom.

And not because of the growing number of horror stories dealing with the deaths of hundreds of Allied prisoners during the Bataan-like death marches.

But rather from the strong and ugly evidence which is accumulating that the Reds intend to hold onto scores of our most critically wounded; the most seriously ill.

If that is true, it would be a most serious breach of the Red promises made by Communist negotiator Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho on April 6 and 7.

"Our side," he said, "is prepared immediately to repatriate directly to your side all the sick and wounded prisoners of war who are entitled to be directly repatriated or accommodated in a neutral country."

What of the deeds? Well, listen to what Pvt. Joseph Picerno of Jamaica, Long Island, had to say:

"There were quite a few prisoners worse off than me," he said. "One had his leg off. One man is paralyzed on both sides. They were left behind. He didn't know why."

Then there was Pfc. Wilbert Warring of Philadelphia who said: "There were over 50 left in the hospital when I left. Some who could not walk were left behind."

And there were Sgt. Albert Howard of Nashville, Tenn., and Cpl. Howard E. Purvis of York, S. C. who said: "There are still sick and wounded in our area—sicker and worse off than we are... I guess they were too sick to come."

Pvt. Louis Kerkstra of Byron Center, Mich., who told how two fellow victims of tuberculosis were left behind, may have had an explanation.

"The way I believe," he said, "they took me and one other fellow because we were in better condition than the other TB cases and they knew we would hit the press first."

The accumulation of evidence indicates Communist leaders may be using Pannunjom as a "showcase" to display well-nourished prisoners who have received relatively good medical treatment, or possibly those they hoped had swallowed at least some of the Communist propaganda line.

The stories of the returned prisoners called sharply to mind the first shocked reaction of the West to the Communist announcement that only 606 United Nations men—including only 120 Americans—would come back through the present exchange.

Adm. John C. Daniel, chief U.N. negotiator described that figure as "incredibly small." The Reds replied that there were no more.

What then of the stories of Pvt. Picerno; of Pfc. Warring; of Sgt. Howard; of Cpl. Purvis and Pvt. Kerkstra and of the others who came back?

The free world can take its choice—the words of the Communists or of the returned soldiers.

Rescuers Given Medals Of Valor

CENTRAL FRONT, Korea (AP)—Medals of valor have been given two South Korean army sergeants who slithered within 100 yards of Red lines and rescued half-frozen Airman Clarence Mosley, the U.S. Air Force's only quadruple amputee of the Korean war.

Lt. Gen. Glenn Barcus, Fifth Air Force commander, pinned bronze stars on Sgt. Bae Won Bong and Sgt. Joh Il Ha this month for the feat.

Mosley, of Paterson, N.J., lay helpless in the snow for five days after bailing out of a blazing B-26 bomber last December 5. His hands and feet were frozen and had to be amputated. He has been returned to the U.S.

Police Prevent Infant Marriage

AHMEDABAD, India (AP)—Police intervened at a nearby village to prevent the projected marriage of a 12-month-old bridegroom to a nine-month-old bride.

Officials said parents of the babies arranged the marriage soon after the children were born. They planned to conduct the ceremony with the mother and father of each child taking turns holding their tiny offspring during the long Hindu ceremony.

Police took both sets of parents to a magistrate who issued an injunction against the marriage until they reach the legal age: fourteen years for girls, 18 years for boys.

Some 325,000 Indians in the U.S. and Alaska received medical treatment from the government in 1952.

Jobs Found For People Past 60

BOSTON (U.P.)—People over 60 years of age who cannot find employment due to their age, and thus feel lost and forgotten, are discovering new places in industry.

Sunset Industries, Inc., a new Boston organization still in the experimental stage, has opened formerly closed business doors for many elderly persons.

A non-profit corporation, Sunset Industries hires only people 60 or over and is directed by an impressive group of business and professional men. It is encouraging self-respect among New England's fast-swelling elder generation and is lessening the rise in old-age assistance costs.

Several large companies are cooperating in the back-to-work endeavor by releasing sub-contracts for completion under the old-timer work project. Sunset has started "60-plus" shops in Eastport, Me., and Boston. A new shop is being opened in Haverhill, Mass.

Eastport's shop is a woodworking plant employing men, and the Boston and Haverhill ventures employ elderly women who handle a battery of sewing machines. New Hampshire, which has the country's largest percentage of old folks, is under consideration as a future harbor for the new industry.

ICC Officials Probing Wreck

DILLON, S. C. (UP)—Interstate Commerce Commission officials launched an investigation today into the derailment of a Miami-New York Atlantic Coast Line streamliner in which at least three persons were killed and nearly 150 injured.

Investigators were sent to the wreck scene, about three miles south of here, from Washington and Atlanta and the ICC announced that a hearing will be held at Rocky Mount, N. C., Friday.

The injured in the Monday night accident included 87 from the New York area returning from Florida vacations and taxed the capacity of hospitals at cities in this tobacco belt area.

The fast ACL streamliner, the Champion, leaped from the rails as it passed over a sliding switch before midnight. One unit of the diesel engine plowed into a field, catching fire, while the passenger cars piled up in a jumbled mass of steel.

Rescue workers worked through the night to remove the bodies of the victims and free the injured while ambulances rushed the victims to hospitals.

The fireman, C. A. Hunt, was identified as one of the dead. Two others were a Negro dining car waiter and another Negro, unidentified.

Whether there were any more fatalities was still not certain as the ACL told passengers and its employees not to talk about the wreck.

Most of the slightly hurt and uninjured passengers boarded a makeup train to continue the trip north.

More Confused Traffic Ahead

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Already confused downtown traffic conditions may become more confusing if a new system called "traffic scramble" is okayed by officials.

Under traffic scramble, all auto movement would stop while pedestrians cross from every side at once.

Drivers Returning Parking Loan Coins With Interest

Not only are motorists returning nickels loaned out by the Greenville Merchants' Association, but they are paying them back with interest.

Jack Edwards, association member who had charge of installing the "courtesy parking plan" locally, said this morning motorists found overparked by police seem to have taken appreciative advantage of the plan.

"To date the Merchants' Association has loaned out 82 nickels totaling $3.10," he pointed out. "Strangely enough, when latest collections were made we found that $3.41 had been returned — a profit of 31 cents."

According to Edwards, two of the envelopes returned containing "loaned" nickels came from motorists driving out-of-state automobiles. On one envelope was scribbled a simple, graphic "thank you."

Paid With Interest:

Edwards reported three slackers who returned envelopes without nickels, but he cited 10 instances wherein delinquent parkers paid back a dime instead of the requisite nickel. He added that some envelopes were missing, "probably for souvenir interest," but their nickels were in the box.

Collections from the 24 boxes located at various points of vantage throughout Greenville showed five boxes to be empty, with the amount in others ranging from one nickel to a high of 40 cents.

The Greenville Merchants' Association expended approximately $98 — including $25 in nickels sent to the police department — to put the parking plan into operation locally.

In substance, details of the plan are that when a policeman finds a car overparked he inserts a Merchants' Association nickel into the meter and attaches an envelope requesting that the nickel be returned to the windshield of the automobile.

This, far, the proposition is showing a slight dividend.

Dance Band Has Large Audience

Ray Anthony and his Recording Orchestra, playing at a concert-dance at East Carolina Monday of this week, brought to the campus a group of spectators and dancers which filled the Wright auditorium to capacity.

The program was presented by the college Entertainment Committee as the last of a series of nine attractions given during the school term of 1952-1953. Arrangements for the appearance of the popular dance band at the college were made by the East Carolina Entertainment Committee, headed by Dr. Richard Todd as chairman.

Those present to enjoy the evening of music and dancing included students and faculty members at the college and their guests, and patrons of the Entertainment Series from other localities in eastern North Carolina.

An hour-long concert opened the evening's program. Dancing until midnight followed.

Turn Down Plea For Hearing On His Invention

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Edward J. Thye today turned down inventor Jess M. Ritchie's plea for immediate hearings on the pepping merits of his controversial battery chemical, AD-2.

The Minnesota Republican, chairman of the Senate Small Business Committee, said "I still can see no good in holding committee hearings at this time."

Thye postponed the planned hearings last Saturday after Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks decided to keep Dr. Allen V. Astin on for a while as director of the Bureau of Standards. Weeks had fired Astin, because the bureau had allegedly been unobjectionable in testing AD-2.

Thye said there is no point in holding hearings until the committee gets the reports of two groups of non-government scientists Weeks named to investigate AD-2 and the bureau.

First To Defend New State Song

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (UP)—As the Oklahoma House advanced to final passage of a bill making the title song of the Broadway musical "Oklahoma" the official state song one House member complained the song "can't be sung."

Rep. C. D. Wilson of Miami, Okla., jumped to his feet and said he'd prove it could be sung. As he opened his mouth to sing Rep. George Nigh, sponsor of the bill, jumped to his feet and yelled: "If he sings it, he'll kill my bill!" Wilson sat down.

Back To Work, President Has Satisfied Look

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower went back to work today with the satisfied smile of a man who has twice broken 90 on one of the nation's toughest golf courses.

The heavy load of official business awaiting him at his White House desk left him little time to gloat over the "immeasurable improvement" in his golf game that he achieved during an eight-day vacation at Augusta, Ga.

Mr. Eisenhower looked refreshed and rested despite the attack of food poisoning which he suffered last Thursday. He plunged immediately into White House duties, scheduling a meeting with the National Security Council today and a session with Republican congressional leaders Thursday.

Customers Are Held Accountable

BUENOS AIRES (UP)—Sluff jail sentences and fines were ordered today for customers who fail to let police know when the grocer charges too much.

The police edict, latest move in President Juan D. Peron's nationwide crackdown on profiteering and corruption, provides imprisonment up to one month and fines of 100 pesos ($7.50) for guilty shoppers.

The same condition maintains in several senatorial districts where nominations are made in single counties under rotation agreements while election is by the district at large. So far as the advantages to the Republican party are concerned, it makes little difference how the candidates are nominated so long as the election is by the whole state. What the Republicans would like to have is district election. That is not practicable or fair under the system of rotation, whereby the judge has the same authority in the district to which he is assigned to hold court as in the one where he lives.

Talks To Club On Primitive Man

"Discoveries made during the last twenty-five years, and especially in the last fifteen, have increased our knowledge of early man immensely, and changed many interpretations," Dr. Theodore H. Eaton, Jr., of the East Carolina College science department told members of the college Faculty Lecture Club Monday of this week at a meeting in the Flanagan auditorium.

Dr. Eaton's lecture presented a consensus of views expressed within the last three years by leading anatomists and anthropologists who have examined available evidence on prehistoric man.

Greater interest in pre-history than ever before, he said, has followed a procession of widely publicized discoveries, beginning with the South African Taungs child in 1925. To previous evidence about the Java Man, the Heidelberg Man, the Piltdown Man, Neanderthal Man, and the Cro-Magnons of France have been added, he said, such discoveries as the Peking race from caves in China and new finds of Java Man.

"The present tendency," Dr. Eaton stated in interpreting these facts, "is to reduce the number of species and genera proposed for these new discoveries. This is because anatomists have over-emphasized differences between one type and another, and because a large number of new finds have helped to fill gaps between those known before."

Conviction grows, he continued, that all early kinds of man so far known should be placed in the genus Homo. "It is considered clear," he explained, "that Neanderthal Man was not a species separate from the modern, but was one of several early racial groups; many intermediate specimens demonstrate this."

"Finally," he said, "the evidence on relative ages is becoming much clearer. We now know that man of the modern kind (Homo sapiens) existed in Europe more than 100,000 years ago."

House Democrats Urge President To Take Stand

WASHINGTON (UP)—House Democrats supporting an administration request for more public housing urged President Eisenhower to take a "clear" stand today against a Republican drive to halt the program.

Public housing was the major issue as the House was called into session to begin voting on Congress' first money bill for the 1954 fiscal year which begins July 1.

A showdown vote was expected by mid-afternoon on a Republican-backed rider to prohibit any new federal commitments to subsidize low-cost housing after June 30.

House Democratic whip John W. McCormack said the President before the vote should publicly disavow—or admit—assertions by several GOP economy advocates that he would not be offended if the program were killed.

Some forms of life can survive at absolute zero — the total absence of heat, scientists believe.

Southern Bell Official Disappointed By Boost

RALEIGH (UP)—H. G. Booth, state manager for the Southern Bell Telephone Co., said today the company is "extremely disappointed" with a $1,648,056 annual rate increase granted it by the State Utilities Commission.

The increase, granted yesterday, fell $1,778,000 short of the amount Southern Bell had asked, and Booth charged that "our needs for additional revenue have not been met realistically."

"Although the company in this proceeding sought a minimum of its revenue requirements, nevertheless the amount of revenue authorized is even less than half the amount requested," he said. It is the sixth rate increase for Southern Bell since 1946.

Booth said the public will be "concerned as is the company" because of the fact that the earnings "provided for by the commission order are so low that the company well might not be able to attract at reasonable cost the large sums of new capital required to finance the construction program which not only has been planned for North Carolina but which actually is underway."

Of the amount granted, toll increases amounting to $891,000 a year will go into effect immediately.

The remainder, $757,056, is to be apportioned "equitably" among other classes of service in regular exchange rates. A breakdown of company proposals to put this into effect must be submitted for approval of the commission.

A determining factor in allowing the increase, according to the majority opinion, was the "never-ending demand for telephone service . . . by thousands who are sitting and begging for telephones."

"While this demand continues it is not believed to be the policy of the state, nor in the public interest to curtail expansion of telephone service," the commission said.

'Career Day' At School Is Staged

AYDEN—"Career Day" for junior and senior students at Ayden Negro High School last week was a success and will be repeated.

Principal J. W. Ormond and faculty members sponsored the event in order that boys and girls graduating from Ayden High School might get first hand information on their various fields of interest. Consultants were brought in for addresses, panel discussions and individual conferences.

In the forenoon conferences were held during a chapel session. The High School Chorus sang several songs.

F. R. Jones, director of guidance, Sampson County Training School at Clinton, spoke on "The Need for Choosing A Vocation." R. S. Atkins, field representative in the Division of Apprenticeship, N. C. Department of Labor, Raleigh, made an address on "Trades."

Luncheon was served the visiting consultants and the students.

Consultants who participated on the program were: J. C. Burney, insurance; Robert Moseley, armed forces; Richard Powell, law; D. D. Garrett, business and politics; R. S. Atkins, trades; Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, home making; Miss Hazel Jordan, secondary education; Miss Lula Harris, public health nursing; Rev. H. R. Reeves, ministry; L. R. Redden, agriculture; Grata Norcott, mortuary science, and Mrs. Madeline Blount, elementary education.

The program was climaxed by a question and answer period at which F. R. Jones served as coordinator.

Chicken 'Turns' Into Hamburgers

NEW CANAAN, Conn. (AP)—Mystery surrounds the disappearance of a pound of coffee and two tins of chicken from the car of a resident here. Mrs. James Eddy bought the coffee and chicken at a local store, and placed them in the front seat of her car. At home she opened the package and found, much to her surprise, two hamburgers with onions. Immediately she phoned the store where she bought the coffee and chicken and asked if the package could have been switched by mistake. But the proprietor told her that he didn't sell hamburgers with onions. Later the same day a woman from the neighboring town of Darien called the store. She found the coffee and canned chicken in a bag in her car when she arrived home. But she wanted to know if anyone had seen her package which contained curtains. Investigation showed that neither car was ever parked near the other. This ruled out any possibility of misplacement of the packages. New Canaan's Police Chief, Henry Keller, surmised that it must have been children playing a prank, but admitted the occurrence was very mysterious.

Road Markers In Maine Have Colorful Story

CALAIS, Me. (AP)—Those measured mile markers are not products of the motor age -- at least in Calais, Maine. Nearly a century ago, James Shephard Pike, who took pride in his horses, wanted to know how fast he could get into Calais from his home beside the St. Croix River 12 miles below the city. So Pike, who had returned home after serving at U.S. Minister to the Netherlands during President Lincoln's Administration, set up 12 markers. He had no speedometer, so he measured the circumference of a carriage wheel, tied a bit of cloth around one spike, and had a man count the times the "flag" came up. In this way he laid out the markers accurately. Pike had the gray granite markers-cut from a quarry operated by his brother. Road-builders later changed the course of the road. Later the markers were touched up and some were moved closer to the new road. Although there are four main human blood groups, it is estimated that blood-group factors are capable of 132,710,400 different combinations.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP) — Trading dropped to the second lightest of the year on the stock market today. Prices held in a fractional area with a half dozen exceptions, none of them spectacular.

The dullness helped steady the market because brokers said it indicated an unwillingness to sell stocks.

Prices came back from early lows in many instances. Rallies were as small as the market was dull but often they were sufficient to bring prices to the previous close or a bit above.

Several of the chemicals managed to score gains, including duPont, Dow, Mathieson and Spencer. Allies lost a point. Steels returned to the previous close. Motors were narrowly irregular. Some rails firmed, notably New York Central, the most active stock on the board.

Among the wider changes, Aluminum Ltd. and American Car & Foundry gained more than a point. F. E. Myers lost more than a point to equal its low. Superior Oil rose to 50, up 5 points, which for that stock is like a fractional rise in an ordinary issue.

Small gains appeared in Amerada, Bethlehem Steel, Caterpillar Tractor, Consolidated Vultee, Goodrich, Pacific Western Oil, Texas Gulf Sulphur and 20th Century-Fox Film.

Smoke And Flames Billow High Over Lumber Mill

Leaping flames and billowing smoke are shown pouring from the devastating blaze which swept through North Side Lumber Company here late this morning. Flames swept through the planing mill and later caused the walls of the dry kiln (pictured at left) to collapse. It was estimated that more than 300,000 feet of lumber were destroyed in the blaze. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Fire Chief Gardner was high in his praise for the employees of the mill and other local citizens who helped in fighting the fire. "We couldn't have handled it by ourselves," Gardner declared. "The employees of the mill and the other local citizens who pitched in to fight the fire were a great help."

Shortly after firemen arrived at the scene of the fire flames were leaping a hundred feet or more above the planing mill and smoke billowed hundreds of feet into the air. The intense heat from the inferno could be felt across the Bethel highway which was some 300 yards from the blaze.

At one time during the fire fighting Fireman Ray Smith discovered his hair had been set afire by the heat from the blaze. Sparks from the blaze set fire to the seat of a tractor driven by Willie Cannon which was being used to make a fire break in the huge piles of lumber.

High Praise

Fire Chief Gardner was high in his praise for the employees of the mill and other local citizens who helped in fighting the fire. "We couldn't have handled it by ourselves," Gardner declared. "The employees of the mill and the other local citizens who pitched in to fight the fire were a great help."

Previous Fire

Today's conflagration is the second serious disaster in five years to happen at the Northside Lumber Company's business site lying along the Bethel Highway in Greenville's city limits.

On August 24, 1948, a hot summer afternoon was converted into a raging inferno in that immediate area as hungry flames devoured approximately 250,000 feet of high-grade lumber and equipment, causing damage estimated at between $80,000 and $100,000.

Then, as was the case today, Greenville firemen were seriously hampered in their efforts to bring the fire under control by a lack of ample water pressure on city water mains. Firemen finally brought the 1948 blaze under control after two long, heated hours.

That destructive fire of five years ago was discovered about 3:30 in the afternoon. It was reported to have kindled from a fire in the boiler room, which ignited shavings and spread destruction over the surrounding area.

Company officials stated that a portion of the equipment lost in the flames was insured, but that there was no insurance on the large quantities of lumber.

Annual Play For Children Will Be Going To Kinston

Approximately 5,000 school children are having the time of their lives this week as they attend "Robin Hood," presented in a series of performances by the Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina College as their annual play for young people. Sponsors of the production are members of the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women.

A series of six local performances began at the Eppes School in Greenville April 16, when more than 1,200 Negro children saw the play. Matinees for pupils in other city and Pitt County schools drew large audiences to the College Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and adults and college students saw the drama Monday night. The closing performance here will take place Thursday afternoon.

Friday the Teachers Playhouse will take the play to Kinston. There it will be given in matinee and evening performances at the Grainger High School.

Douglas Mitchell of Greenville and Ann McCrary of Durham as Robin Hood and Maid Marian head a cast which includes many of those famous in the romantic legends of the famous outlaw. Percy Wilkins of Benson, as Guy of Gisborne, plays the villain of the piece.

David Lee of Tarboro, Marvin Brown of Rockingham, Kenneth Borden of Mt. Olive and Thomas Pierce of Rocky Mount make up the band of the Merry Men of Sherwood Forest. Clarence Poe Mooring as Friar Tuck and Ralph Rives of Enfield as the Sheriff of Nottingham are turning in hit performances.

Others in the cast of approximately thirty students include Gerald

Abandon Search For Survivors In Airliner's Crash

OAKLAND, Calif. (UP) — Searchers today abandoned all hope of finding the bodies of four missing persons who died in the flaming crash of a DC-6B airliner in San Francisco Bay.

Coast Guard cutters and helicopters covered the area of the crash thoroughly but were unable to recover the four bodies in a day-long search.

Eight persons died and two survived when the Western Airlines plane, making a short seven-minute hop across the bay from San Francisco, crashed mysteriously Monday night. Four bodies were recovered almost immediately.

A crew of five and five passengers were aboard the plane, which discharged 44 passengers at San Francisco airport only a few minutes before the disaster.
