MacArthur Says Bomb China Threat Could End War Would Poise Threat

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur today gave the nation a peek at his celebrated secret plan for ending the war in Korea. The main feature: A threat to bomb Communist China. "A warning of action of this sort provides the leverage," he said, "to induce the Soviet to bring the Korean struggle to an end without further bloodshed."

and sustain large military forces in the field. This in turn would greatly weaken the Communist hold upon Asia. "MacArthur said Russia is not "blind to the dangers" confronting it in the Far East so that a threat of a "Red China debacle... might well settle the Korean war and all other pending global issues on equitable terms."

"The overriding deficiency incident to our conduct of the war in Korea was not in the shortage of ammunition or other materiel," he said, "but in the lack of the will for victory." Ammunition was critically short when the Allies had their "backs to the sea" in the early months of the war, he said, but there was hardly any optimism. That didn't come, he said, until the Inchon landing turned the tide.

General Assembly Votes Final Okay For State Budget

Record $620 Million Outlay Plus Contingent Pay Boost For Teachers And State Employees Awaits Only Signatures

By EDWARD S. CORNISH RALEIGH (UP) — The General Assembly gave its final approval today to the state's record $620,000,000 budget for the coming biennium plus a contingent pay boost for teachers and state employees.

Only signatures of the Senate president and House speaker remain to make the measure law. Both the House and Senate voted approval today to the report of Senate-House conferees named after the upper chamber raised technical objections to a House salary amendment.

UN Proposes Exchanges Continue 'Til War Ends More GIs Returned

By EARNEST HOBERECHT PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP) — The Communists returned 40 Americans today and promised 17 more for tomorrow as the United Nations proposed that the exchange of all prisoners be continued until the Korean war ends.

Both sides have now agreed to deliver more prisoners than they first promised under the current exchange agreement. The U. N. proposal to continue the exchange for the duration of the war will test the truth or falsity of the Communists' claim that they now mean to return "all" sick and wounded prisoners in their hands.

The agreement was signed here April 11. Under it the U. N. agreed to hand over 6,033 Communist prisoners in exchange for 605 U. N. Prisoners, including 120 Americans. Today the Reds handed over 40 Americans, four Britons, four Turks one Canadian, one Netherlander and 50 South Koreans.

Dulles Warns That U.S. Growing Impatient NATO Army Treaty Urged

PARIS (UP) — The North Atlantic Treaty council unanimously approved a U. S. resolution urging quick ratification of the European army treaty today when Secretary of State John Foster Dulles warned American aid to Europe depends on fast action.

Dulles told delegates from 14 nations to the 11th meeting of the council of ministers that speedy approval of the treaty was "indispensable" for Europe's defense.

Germany while the Germans sit by as spectators, but we Americans don't want to." With the resolution for ratification on the record, the ministers were expected to get down to the business of determining the military strength of their nations this year and in 1953.

Freedom Village, Korea POWs Charged With Torture, Starvation

FREEDOM VILLAGE, Korea (UP) — Freed American war prisoners told bitterly today of the deaths of at least 745 American soldiers at the hands of the Reds, and of a "Death Valley" where dead GIs were carried out by "the Korean carloads."

Their stories raised to a nearly 3,000 the number of United Nations prisoners which liberated POWs have charged died of torture, starvation and neglect. It was the largest single total of American victims yet reported.

Americans Tell Of 'Carloads' Of Dead GIs POW Death Reports Mount

police, Ind., said 400 sick and injured Americans died on a winter march in 1950. Pfc. Ambro W. Vampran, Maurepas, La., said about 100 men out of 300 to 400 on one march died of sickness in 1951.

Pfc. Vernon R. Rohnbaugh, 21, Bismarck, W. Va., said four men died or were killed during a march that began May 18, 1951, and ended some time in June.

Pfc. Wayne E. Huebener, 20, Franklin, N. H., said he saw a man killed by a Chinese guard. "He was pretty bad off — out of his head," Huebener said. "My buddy was carrying him up the mountain. He fell and a Chinese came up and hit him over the head with a rifle butt and pushed him over the side of the mountain."

Plane's Crew Parachuted To Safety; Stowaway Is Carried To Flaming Death

CHEHALIS, Wash. (UP) — Ten men who parachuted from a pilotless C-97 said today they "had no idea" that a mystery "stowaway" who was carried to his death when the plane crashed, was aboard the transport.

Meanwhile, a search for a missing C-46 with four men aboard continued in the fog-shrouded Cascade Mountains.

Ground War Flares Up And One MIG Downed

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — United Nations forces turned back 14 separate Communist attacks on the battlefield today in a day of air-ground action that produced America's fifth double-ace of the war.

"I fired from 1,500 feet and clobbered him good," McConnell, of Apple Valley, Calif. said. "He broke off the attack and went into a tight spiral. The MIG's wingman was trying to get on our tail as I fired again in the spiral. I must have hit him in the ammunition bay because there was a huge explosion in his nose section."

Indo-China Reds Advance Fast In Invasion Drive

HANOI, Indo-China (UP) — Advancing Viet Minh Communist forces were reported less than a day's march from the royal citadel city of Luang Prabang today in their invasion to "liberate" the kingdom of Laos.

Military sources said another rebel spearhead was driving unopposed toward Vientiane, Laos' only other big city, which lies far to the south near the Thailand border.

Life and Work of Dr. Sloop Reviewed For Aries Club

On Thursday evening, April 16th, Mrs. T. G. Bealight Jr. was hostess to the Aries Book Club at the home of her mother, Mrs. C. P. Pierce.

Miss Grace Outland, president presided and welcomed Mrs. Carl Pierce, guest.

Following routine business Mrs. Fred Saue presented a short subject on fishing, giving some interesting and unusual facts about fish and their habits as related in a pamphlet issued by "The Rod and Gun Club of the Air."

For the second in a series of "Favorite Personality" programs Mrs. W. Z. Morton Jr. discussed Dr. Mary T. Martin Sloop, Crossnore's First Lady and American Mother of the year in 1931.

Mrs. Morton's personal interest in her subject combined with the wealth of material gathered from both printed materials and persons having had personal contact with Dr. Sloop made this a most interesting program. Club members were given an intimate glimpse into the life of an outstanding North Carolinian who has seen her childhood dreams of being a Medical Missionary come true in the hills of North Carolina.

Dr. Sloop was brought up within the shadows of Davidson College, attended college in Statesville and finally graduated from Medical School.

Her first home after her marriage to Dr. Eustace Sloop in 1908 was at Plumtree, where together with purpose high they began their lifetime work with the mountain folk who were, at first, suspicious of their modern medicine and surgery.

Later, moving to Crossnore, they could not ignore conditions which medicine could mitigate only partially. There the Sloops have defeated those forces which they saw as enemies of education. By seeking money and old clothes, by prayers and miracles they have built a school at Crossnore for the mountain children.

Although Mrs. Sloop has only two children of her own (both now doctors at Crossnore) she has worked with and aided in the education of more than 3000 mountain children.

In closing Mrs. Morton said: "North Carolina will be eternally grateful to Mrs. Sloop, who has truly done her part in making an education available for those who live far back in the hills of North Carolina." Following the distribution of books tasty refreshments were served by the hostess.

During colonial times a ship load of iron pyrites, a comparatively worthless mineral, was shipped to England from the United States in the belief that it was gold.

Tithing Movie Will Be Shown

The sound and color movie, "God Is My Landlord," will be shown free at a union meeting at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church Fellowship Hall Tuesday night, April 28, at 8 o'clock.

Raymond J. Jeffrey, author of the book from which the movie was made, will show the picture here.

"God is my Landlord" has been declared one of the most interesting religious pictures ever made.

The movie is based on Perry Hayden's colorful and spectacular six-year Biblical Wheat Experiment in which Jeffreys participated, conducted in Tecumseh, Michigan, to prove the rewards of tithing. It was one of the most elaborate projects of its kind ever conducted in history. The late Henry Ford who backed the experiment, said before he died, "The great tithing experiment that we conducted in Tecumseh, Michigan, will outlive and eclipse all of my other accomplishments."

Many world celebrities in religion, business, industry and the professions, took part in this religious demonstration, including Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, James L. Kraft, R. G. LaTourneau, Bishop William R. Arnold, Harvey Fruehauf, Dr. Galen Starr Ross, the late Walter A. Mater and hundreds of other household names of every faith, creed and color.

Time For That Picture To Be Made Again

Spring is here, and the thoughts of many citizens turn to taking pictures of the great outdoors as it bursts into the beginning of another year of growth.

For Pitt County this particular spring, there is another sort of picture taking which should be kept in the minds of the people. The kind of picture making we are speaking of is a picture of one's inner respiratory system . . . a chest X-ray.

Two mobile units of the State Department of Health moved into Pitt County and set up operations today. Their purpose is to make chest X-rays of as many individuals as possible in Pitt County. The mass X-ray campaign is being conducted under the auspices of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association and the local health department.

A goal of 38,000 X-rays has been set for Pitt County, and while the X-rays will cost the local association approximately 10 cents each, they will cost the individual not a red cent. The X-ray service is absolutely free to those who take advantage of it.

The purpose of the mass X-ray program is the detection of tuberculosis among the people of Pitt County. The original mass X-ray program staged in the county several years ago proved valuable to the county as a whole and to many people individually in whom the disease might not have been detected until much later.

It cost nothing to have an X-ray made; it takes little time to have it made, and the benefits which could come from it by the detection of the dreaded tuberculosis are incalculable.

During the period the X-ray units are in Pitt County they will visit virtually every community. The Reflector urges the people of the county to take advantage of this opportunity to have an X-ray made.

WASHINGTON—Secretary Ezra T. Benson is not so unpopular with the actual producers of food as the political farmers on Capitol Hill and in the professional lobbies at Washington make him out to be, according to numerous surveys of grassroots sentiment. The men who raise corn and cattle understand his problems, as well as their own economic difficulties, better than most Congressmen, whose principal concern is raising votes.

As their desertion of the Stevenson-Truman Party indicated last year, the hard-headed farmers have never been entirely happy over the system of Federal regimentation, even though it meant money in their pockets. They did not like the minutiae of controls, allocations, quotas, etc., which placed them at the mercy and direction of sometimes unsympathetic bureaucrats.

FARMERS ENJOY RELATIVE PROSPERITY—They recognize that they have enjoyed relative prosperity since early in World War II, despite high costs and taxes. They expect their ups and downs, although they want protection against the ruinous, bankrupt prices of the thirties, when it was cheaper to burn grain than to haul it to market.

But they think that they cannot be forever dependent on subsidies or guarantees from Uncle Sam, as butter producers are learning to their sorrow. Dairy-men are losing their customers to rival products, perhaps permanently.

OVERSUPPLY LEADS TO PRICE DECLINE—Moreover, the more discerning realize that they are partially responsible for their current troubles. They raised excessive amounts of corn, wheat, cattle, etc., in the face of warnings that these surpluses would lead directly to a sharp decline in prices. Many of the people now squawking about falling meat prices are lawyers, bankers, businessmen, who sought to make the same sort of killing on the rising agricultural prices that they do in Wall Street.

It is no exaggeration to suggest that real farmers are not so sore at Benson as they are at themselves, and at vote-getting policies which led them to their present impasse.

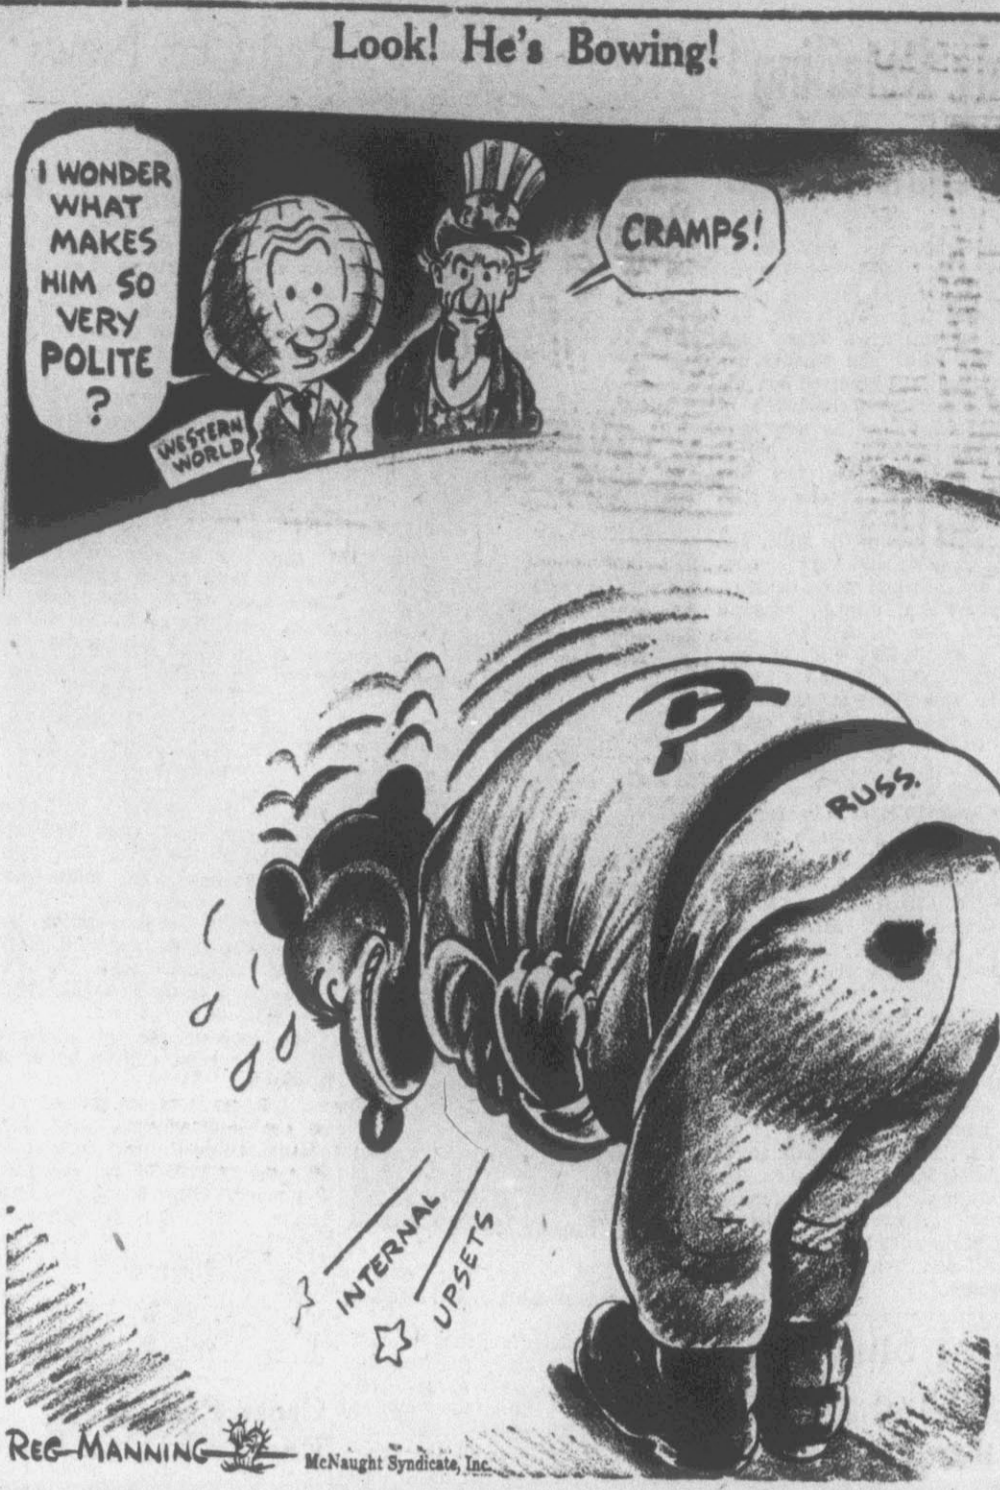

Their present hope is that the Mormon elder from Utah, whose honesty and sincerity they recognize, can devise a more realistic program against the day when the present system of parity and price supports ends.

BENSON SETS ECONOMIC FORCES IN MOTION—As Secretary Benson has discovered, cattle raisers have already taken automatic action to improve their situation by setting in motion certain natural economic forces. It will require some time before they stage even a partial recovery, but when the conditions they are now creating come to a climax, it will be bad news for price-conscious consumers. Beef will go up again.

With the government lending $1.58 on each bushel of corn it acquires from producers of this staple, the price has become too high for feeding it to cattle. Or, to put it another way, the price of beef has fallen too low to warrant transforming corn into meat.

RESULT OF PRICE SHIFT FROM CATTLE TO CORN—As a result of this deliberate shift from cattle to corn, the price of all meats will rise because of future shortages. The staggering surpluses of corn will depress the price of that product. And then, again through the play of historic economic factors, it will become profitable to return to the production of cattle. That is the normal cycle.

Benson's current problem, as it has been that of so many predecessors, is to try to level off these peaks and valleys. Whether he can do so through governmental action is still an unanswered question. But it may help him in his task that he was a marketing specialist before stepping into his present hot spot.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Last week there was a salesman in the store with an accent that I found hard to recognize. "Where are you from?" I asked. "Asheville." "I mean originally." "Holland." Dirk Sluicker, representing Weaver Manufacturing Company, has an unusual background. His father came to Enka, N. C., near Asheville, to serve as an engineer in a rayon plant when Dirk was eight years old.

Four years after he came here Dirk's father decided he should return to Holland for his education, which he did. In 1939 he returned to the states, upon finishing his schooling, and later served in the U. S. Army.

Dirk makes this comparison of schools in the two countries: "In America we try to pass every possible student. In Holland they try to flunk all they can. There's just not much opportunity over there. You might say there's not much room at the top, so the schools make it very difficult to get degrees that make a man eligible for the top positions."

Dirk went on to say, "You have to stop to consider that Holland is about one-third the size of North Carolina, with a population of eight million people. Here we have unlimited resources and they have very few."

"But let me tell you about a misconception the Dutch have of us over here. They think everybody in America has plenty. They fail to realize that we have to work hard over here to make money."

"Once in America, the Dutch mix very well. In New York there's Chinatown, an Italian colony, a German colony, and so on. But you never hear of a Dutch colony because the Dutchmen over here mix right in with Americans, leaving the feeling of nationalism behind."

"Maybe that's because Holland is a pure democracy. The Dutchman, above all, thinks a man is entitled to his own opinion and rights. There are 82 political parties in Holland and the Queen is merely a national symbol with no political pull."

According to Dirk, the greatest program to better relations between America and Europe is the student exchange plan. "With that plan," he says, "you can do more good than with American dollars. The students, after having been over here, can carry back more good will than the dollars will buy."

And I thank Dirk.

CLOSED DOORS—The widely divergent, if not directly conflicting, positions of the newspapers and the joint appropriations committee on the question of secret sessions were aired at public hearings this week. Representatives of the N.C. Press Association was accorded the courtesy of a hearing on bills to repeal the secrecy law—a courtesy denied them when the act was rushed through under suspension of the rules. So it was not until this week that the public's side of the matter could be presented. There was no indication that the committee or the whole Legislature will repeal the secrecy act, but numerous legislators have privately confessed a degree of remorse because of earlier refusal to grant the newspapers the same courtesy of being heard which is almost universally accorded to affected groups—including slot machine operators and track dogs.

PERSONAL—Questions asked by committee members during the discussions brought into the open what had been swept out of personal resentment of a few legislators against a few reporters. Specifically it was resentment against the News and Observer's handling of legislative news stories, rather than objection to general news coverage, or regard for the public good. The Raleigh paper was not mentioned by name, but repeated mention of biased news stories and pictures of a padlocked door hearing the number 513 (the appropriations committee room) which appeared only in that paper made it clear the N&O was the main target.

PARTICIPANTS—Speaking against the closed sessions and seeking to emphasize that the issue transcended any one publication or the exasperation of a few legislators were former Senators Irving Caryle of Winston-Salem and Julian Alshbrook of Roanoke Rapids, both of whom are lawyers; Francis Beaty, a business man of Charlotte, and D. Hien Ramsey, publisher of the Asheville Citizen-Times. Carrying the ball for committee questioning were Senators Hugh Horton and J.W. Copeland; Representatives Ed O'Herron, Tom White, Carl Venters and George Randall.

DIFFERENCES—Without attempting to quote any individual, the different positions as voiced at the hearings can be summarized. Only members of the committee had anything to say at Wednesday's meeting. The Tuesday hearing was set for the newspaper-radio-public group, but questions and statements from the committee took almost as much time as the formal presentation by the speakers.

AGAINST SECRECY—This is not an issue between the Legislature and the reporters. It involves the fundamental right of the people to know and why their tax money is being spent. Secret sessions behind closed doors give rise to suspicion. The processes of democracy are slow, and the temptation to take short cuts is always there. But since the Democratic principles upon which the United States and North Carolina were built are under attack from many outside influences it is foolish to furnish their enemies an added weapon. The essence of democracy is open covenants openly arrived at. This is the people's business and is not comparable to management of private enterprise. The war for American independence was fought against the idea of taxation without representation. Public officials who have the power to spend tax dollars are trustees of the people who paid the money, not owners of the money. If too many dollars are spent the ownership of property becomes burdensome. If too few dollars are spent public services are rendered impotent and stagnant. So the people have inherent right to know not only how but why their money is spent. Neither the legislators nor the reporters have the right to compromise the rights of the people by agreement to keep information from them. It is not enough that decisions be wise; they must be wisely arrived at through debate and free exchange of ideas. Secret sessions constitute a sin not only against democracy itself, but against the reputations of the legislators participating in them. Great principles should not be compromised or sacrificed because of the personal exasperation of a few individuals.

FOR SECRECY—The committee needs a chance to discuss and consider appropriations in quiet surroundings, without interference by outsiders. The public is entitled to know the final conclusions, but has no right to other committee members in reaching their conclusions. Premature publication of statements in debate might well result in confusion and expense to the taxpayers. The

What Other Papers Are Thinking

BETTERING OUR SCHOOLS (The Wilson Times)
 We quite thoroughly agree with Governor Umstead; if we're to continue segregation, our colored schools must be equal to our white. In some sections that will require considerable catching up. For the Governor, like governors all over the South, is trying to beat a Superior Court decision. Will it adhere to its old dicta, that the schools may be segregated if equal facilities are provided; or will it hand down a new one, outlawing segregation entirely? It will be a bad day for North Carolina if the latter comes about. For it could be the means of throwing a lot of colored teachers out of work.

All of this non-segregation fuss has been stirred up in the North. They're fighting, they think, for their Southern brethren. But when we go up North we find the colored children and the white children going to the same schools, but we seldom find any colored teachers. It's so in many other lines, too. The colored man in the South is frequently aided by his white brethren; the colored man in the North isn't. Thus, if we're hunting for wealth among the colored people, it's confined almost entirely to the South. No one puts any road-blocks in the way. But let the colored man in the North try to get a taxicab license, let him appear before any of the commissions or boards and he finds the going rough.

We think that our intelligent colored people see all that. They would like at some time to end segregation, but they fear that their people aren't ready for it yet. Thus, they would prefer the status quo, at least until the economic welfare of the colored race is considerably bettered. That, too, is the Governor's stand. The white man who doesn't take that position is foolish. For if all our colored workers earned a minimum of $2,600 a year, they would be in the market for many more things than they're in the market for now. It would help all of us. But, best of all, it would give a race that without question has been discriminated against an opportunity to catch up on its living standards.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
WASHINGTON—High taxes are with us forever. We think that point has been made in this column over the last several days. One of the amazing things in Washington—in spite of the fact that its supporters promised deep cuts in Federal Taxes—is not alarmed over the probability that it will be unable to cut taxes by more than token amounts.

This is the pattern of thinking behind this attitude: Currently, the Federal Government is taking behind this around $58 billion a year of income taxes. That is, taking that much spending power out of the hands of the earners and putting it into the grasp of generous government spenders.

Now suppose that by some miracle, such as a revolution in Russia, the Government was able to reduce its spending by half. It could halve the Federal tax bite and, in so doing, transfer $28 billion of spending power from the Government back into the hands of private citizens.

We would cheer. But for what? The Government would have spent that money fast—in fact, it often spends money before it is collected. But in private hands, currency would move slower. Much of it would be placed in banks and trusts, and hence be available for lending for development; some would linger in checking accounts and mattresses.

In general, there would be a de-acceleration of money. The velocity of money is important. During the depression of the early thirties, everything slowed down—de-accelerated. And you know what happened until a fellow came along with a program. And the guts of Franklin Delano Roosevelt's program was to get the money—which was there—flowing faster.

Dwight David Eisenhower's advisors remember this. They want to see money hopping from one account to another, from one pocket to the next. Even though the tax take is a small part of the national income, they are not afraid to keep it where it will be moving rapidly. High taxes are less of a burden for government than sluggish spending.

THEATERS CAN BE WHITE ELEPHANTS
 Movie theater closings may pose serious problems for communities particularly the smaller ones. If the inroads made by television, drive-in theaters and increasing operating costs continue.

Smaller businesses, often depend on nearby theaters to maintain traffic—and potential customers can melt away when the lure of the movie theater is gone. Moreover, a theater, if not properly maintained, is a costly building doesn't improve the tone of any neighborhood.

When another use is found for a closed theater, it is often out of keeping with the neighborhood and this, too, depresses values. E. P. Holm, of the National Association of Real Estate Boards emphasized recently that the single-purpose nature of a theatre

CONVICTIONS FOR TAX EVASION UP SHARPLY
 While the number of individual and corporate income tax returns filed has increased from 37,000,000 to 55,500,000 between 1942 and 1952, the number of convictions for tax evasion rose from 36 to 598, according to Commerce Clearing House. Fines imposed increased sharply during the ten years from $135,000 to $2,913,328.

STOCK BOND SALES AT 23-YEAR HIGH
 Corporate pension fund purchases of approximately $1.3 billion pushed individual purchases of stocks and bonds in 1952 to $3.9 billion—highest since 1929—the Securities and Exchange Commission reports. New liquid savings amounted to $14.6 billion bringing total liquid savings to $359 billion. Personal debts totaled $288.9 billion.

WASHINGTON LETTER
 By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Mrs. Hiram Cole Houghton of Red Oak, Va., former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC) and one of America's more active civic women, not long ago received an antique Salem rocking chair from a friend.

"This is for your rocking chair days," the friend wrote, thinking I was quite ready to settle down." Mrs. Houghton told me with a twinkle, "I had held one responsible office after another and during my presidency of the Federation, 1960 to 1952, I traveled to some 23 countries and all over the U.S. — more than 400,000 air miles. But I'm not ready just yet to rock away."

On the contrary, Dorothy Houghton, wife of an Iowa banker, mother of four and grandmother of eight, has just embarked on a new and even more responsible job. As assistant Mutual Security Administration (MSA) director for refugees and migration, she will study problems involving refugees in Western Europe, the Middle East and Far East as well as domestic problems.

Mrs. Houghton, who says her new post is a "challenge," will act as a liaison between MSA and voluntary workers to acquaint the public with refugee problems. "Science has made the world a neighborhood," she said, "we have to go further and make it a brotherhood."

Believing that clubwomen are this country's best ambassadors, Mrs. Houghton men president of the GFWC for four years in the Operation Tours. In 1950 a party of 40 went to nine European countries, in 1951 a group of 63 to Mexico and Guatemala and a party of 24 to Greece, Egypt, and Portugal. In 1952 she headed a group of 28 to nine South American republics.

"We studied the problems and plans of the people and listened to their dreams," she said, "Over the teacups we found out similarities were greater than our differences. We made friends and we came to believe that countries wouldn't go to war with each other if their women got to know and love each other."

Many of the friends she made on her travels still correspond with Dorothy Houghton. Stamps from the letters she has received fill a whole album of her nine-year-old grandson, John Williams, at Red Oak.

Strength for the Day

WHAT CAN YOU CONTRIBUTE?
 Dr. Grenfell, known as Grenfell of Labrador, used to love to tell the story of a boy down in Berea College, Kentucky, who heard from a fellow student that the people of Labrador were unskilled, without industry, and that nobody seemed to be able to solve the economic difficulties of these people.

So the young fellow made a decision. He himself was handy with tools. He knew how to construct looms and how to operate them. He took himself therefore to Labrador, instructed the people how to make looms, taught them how to use them, and today the weaving industry carried on by the people of that section of the country largely supports the welfare and religious work carried on amongst them.

You may say that you do not have much to give by way of bettering the status of your fellow men. But it is of importance that you give what you have. There is no such thing in this world as a useless individual. There is no one whose abilities, be they ever so meager, cannot be enlisted in some cause for human helpfulness.

The least anyone can do is to pray for the success of welfare projects. But don't stop there. You have hands, feet, eyes—best of all you have a brain. And what is probably most important of all, if you will stir heaping tablespoons of enthusiasm into whatever you try to do, you will be amazed how much you can accomplish.

They Say The Public Should Not "Know"

The people of North Carolina are not entitled to know the reasons behind what appropriations committees of the General Assembly do with taxpayers money.

That was the consensus of the expressions made in Raleigh Wednesday as the Joint Appropriations Committee voted 29 to 14 to hold fast to the secrecy legislation recently passed. The proponents of cloak-and-dagger in appropriations sessions also took advantage of the occasion to level unfounded charges at the press of North Carolina for what was called "inequity and unjustness to the assembly."

The members of the Joint Appropriations Committee who want to take the state's money matters behind closed doors away from the view of the public tried to make the press of the state the whipping boy for their actions. They gauged their comments to bring about that effect.

North Carolina's newspapers have not suffered because of the secrecy legislation which was passed to keep the people in the dark on money matters. It is the people of North Carolina who have suffered from the revocation of their "right to know" by the secrecy legislation hastily enacted by the General Assembly. The longer the right to know about the state's money matters is denied the people by the General Assembly, the greater the loss will be to the people of the state.

To be sure, it is a sad day in the history of democracy in North Carolina when the members of the General Assembly stand in awe of the people of the state knowing the truth about what goes on in legislative committee meetings on money matters. Apparently that day in North Carolina's history has arrived. For the majority of the Joint Appropriations Committee have stood by their determined position that the citizens of the State should not be allowed to know the whole truth on money matters. They have ordained that the doors on the state's money matters should remain shut. That the deliberations concerning the state's money should be done in closed committee rooms into which the light of public scrutiny could not seep.

The legislators say they have nothing to hide from the people. But they have gone to great lengths to see that the people will not know what goes on in deliberations over the state's money.

The legislators say they want the people to have the facts. But they lock the door in the public's face so the facts as they are brought out can not be known save by those behind the locked doors.

The legislators assert they are the representatives of the people. Yet they maintain the people whose business they are conducting have no right to know the long and important story which lies behind what is done with the people's money.

It is the legislators — not the press nor the people — who by their own words and

Paul's Conflicts in Corinth

On his second missionary journey Paul went to Philippi, Greece, carrying the gospel to Europe. As there was no synagogue, he sought the river bank where Jews worshiped. A rich woman, Lydia, was converted there.

In Philippi Paul and Silas were beaten and thrown into prison. An earthquake broke open the prison doors. The keeper knelt at the disciples' feet in thanking them when he found no one had escaped.

Journeying to Athens, certain philosophers asked to hear about the new gospel. They took Paul to Mars Hill, where he, noting that they had built an altar to "The Unknown God," explained the gospel to them.

In Corinth Paul spoke boldly. Enemies seized him and took him before the Roman ruler, Gallio, who told the Jews that their religious differences were not in his province, and drove them out. MEMORY VERSE—I Corinthians 9:12.

ENEMIES ASSAILED HIM, BUT HE HAD GOD'S PROTECTION

Scripture—Acts 18:26-28:22

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. ONE OF the most interesting things about traveling is the people you meet. In his many missionary journeys Paul met many people—some opposed to him; others were his converts and friends. There were also some who had heard of the new gospel and were curious to hear its teacher.

were those who made money by exploiting the girl. However, when the evil spirit left her they could no longer do so. These men took Paul and Silas to the magistrates saying, "These men, being Jews, do exceedingly trouble our city. The magistrates tore their clothes and beat the two men, then threw them into prison, telling the jailer to keep them secure.

In the very beginning of our lesson we are saddened by the parting of two good friends and fellow missionaries. They were Paul and Barnabas who had made the first missionary journey together. It was Barnabas, you recall, who had interceded for Paul when the members of the Jerusalem church distrusted him. As they were about to begin their second missionary journey, Barnabas was determined to take John Mark with them; Paul, however, seems to have distrusted Mark and, as Paul and Barnabas couldn't agree, they separated. Barnabas taking John Mark with him, and Paul taking Silas. Later we read in I Corinthians (9:6), Paul wrote that he and Barnabas "are of one mind," and he also learned to trust Mark.

That night Paul and Silas prayed and sung, and an earthquake shook the prison so that the doors flew open. The jailer, awakened from sleep, thought his prisoners had escaped, and rather than face his employers he was about to kill himself with his sword, but Paul cried out to him that no one had fled.

On the first part of Paul's journey—to Derbe and Lystra—he met Timothy, son of a Jewess, who was a believer, and a Greek father. This is the same Timothy to whom Paul addressed such affectionate letters, and who is said to have been the first bishop of Ephesus. "And so were the churches

Seeing that this was true the man fell on his face before the two Christians, then took them to his house, bathed their wounds, fed them, and he and his household were baptized. We have not space in one lesson to cover all the episodes assigned. Everywhere they went they made converts, both Jews and Gentiles, but they also made enemies who stirred up the common people to mistreat them. In Thessalonica where they preached, they were driven out and went to Berea where they were courteously received at first, but their enemies followed them and Paul went to Athens.

MEMORY VERSE "We bear all things, that we may cause no hindrance to the gospel of Christ."—I Corinthians 9:12.

The episode in Athens is one of the most thrilling in the history of Paul's travels. Athens was a dissolute city at the time, but full of curious people—those who loved to dispute philosophies and religions. They took Paul to Mars Hill where he addressed them: "Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious. For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, 'To the Unknown God.' Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, Him declare I unto you."

When Paul told the Athenians of the Resurrection, some mocked and others said, "We will hear thee again of this matter." Certain men did believe, however. In Corinth, Paul's next stop, he met Aquila and Priscilla, his wife, both Christians, and as they were tentmakers, he stayed with them. Here Crispus, ruler of the synagogue, believed in the Lord. Here the Lord spoke to Paul in a vision, telling him not to fear, as he, the Lord, was with him. Enemies assailed him even here, dragging him before the Roman ruler, Gallio, accusing him of persuading men "to worship God contrary to the law."

However, Gallio was not the man to offend anyone if he could help it, so he said that it was a matter of wrong doing he could pass judgment, but as it was a religious matter among the Jews themselves, it was out of his province. And he drove the accusers out of the judgment seat. "DEAD" MECHANIC

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP)—After much investigation, police solved the case of the "body" in the trunk of an auto reported by an anonymous woman caller. The "corpse" turned out to be a mechanic, hired by a motorist to ride in the trunk and locate the source of a bothersome squeak.

Declares Opera Sadly In Need Of Public Support

By HARMAN W. NICOLS United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—According to Rudolf Bing, the opera hasn't long to live unless the public kicks in with some long green.

Bing is general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, which opens a three-day stand here Monday.

"All opera companies come up with a deficit—even when they are sold out," he says.

This sort of entertainment has been ailing for a long time, and the Metropolitan wheel admits it. There are several factors involved. For one thing, says Bing, the opera has lost a lot of front-run performers because they can make more money in other fields, like television.

"We are starting on tour," Bing adds, "but we couldn't leave New York without a guarantee because of our contracts with the unions. We'll pick up some money in the little places where 'Carmen' and the others are not too well remembered, but likely we'll lose money in the big spots."

"Why," a reporter asked, "do you have to charge $12 for the orchestra seats in Washington when you only get $8 in New York?" Bing thought a minute.

"Well," he said, finally, "folks in Washington make good money. It's not that we are greedy, but we are trying on this tour to make our expenses, if at all possible. That's why we chase the Capitol theater instead of Constitution Hall. We have more floor space on the stage and I understand there are more seats."

A couple of reporters working in Washington and knowing about government salaries let out a squawk.

"Another thing," said Bing, picking up the ball again, "we thought we would have to ask for more shower and wash basin facilities after our last performance so that the performers could wash off the grease paint quicker. We have to catch transportation to Atlanta with very little time to spare. We expected to get nicked for the cost."

The management of the Capitol said Bing was off base on that one. The theatre has plenty of water and enough showers and basins so that the performers can scrub in a hurry if they have to.

Decree 'Dignity' For Burlesque

TOKYO AP—Japan's burlesque queens are going to have to scrub their own backs from now on—at least in public.

The owners of Tokyo's leading burlesque theaters, at a recent meeting, decided to withdraw one of the fixtures of local strip shows—the bathing scene.

Sports Reflections

BY

Jimmy Ellis

If the fishing contest conducted by Williams Sport Shop is any true measure then fishing in this area was mighty poor last week.

The contest had only one entry last week, a ten-and-a-half ounce bream. The fish was caught by Mrs. Grace Smith and took the prize offered for the week.

Usually, the popular contest has several entries a week but not so last week. Either the fish weren't biting or the fishermen stayed home out of the cold weather. Just which one of the situations is true isn't exactly known.

Despite the lack of entries in the contest there were reports drifting in of good rock fishing in the upper Tar River. Reports say that the rock are being caught in the Tarboro and Old Sparta areas with bud worms and cut bait doing the best jobs of attraction.

The speckled robin are also biting like mad at this particular time. Pretty good catches of the little fish are being reported, an indication that they are more plentiful in this area than in other rivers and streams in Eastern North Carolina.

The Sport Shop plans to announce the monthly winners of the contest next week in addition to the weekly prizes. Entrants in this week's contest will be eligible for this month's grand prizes.

Regardless of how hard you try, it's difficult to keep away from talk about baseball. The biggest reason you can think of is the young fellow who plays centerfield for the New York Yankees.

Mickey Mantle, a second-year man in the majors, hit his second "big" homer of the last week yesterday. The blow came against the Boston Red Sox and assured the Yankees of a sweep of the series with the Sox.

The homer yesterday did more than win a ball game. It helped to shut up the critics of Mantle. These critics had been concerned since last week's record-shattering homer.

against Washington with Mantle's ability to adjust himself. Yesterday's performance should be proof enough of his adjustment abilities.

One of the greatest tributes that can be paid to the young star came sometime ago from Joe DiMaggio, the man Mantle succeeded as Yankee centerfielder and one of the all-time greats of baseball.

Someone asked DiMaggio how long it would take Mantle to fill DiMaggio's shoes. Joe replied, "He filled my shoes a long time ago."

The fight for health being waged by Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias is one that should make everyone sit up and take notice.

The great woman athlete was put into a hospital two weeks ago, suffering from what the doctors termed a "malignant growth." She underwent an operation last Friday, an operation that was a four-hour grind.

Fans of the Babe were afraid that her athletic career was ended. They feared cancer, something that inactivated hundreds of people. Today, the Babe is already up and around in her hospital room. She's talking of going home in two or three weeks and even resuming her athletic work.

Her ability to stand up to her troubles in this present crisis is something that isn't a new idea. It has marked her life throughout its 38 years. She has always been known to be "tough as hickory and a fighter in the famed traditions of her native Texas."

As an indication of her greatness, one need only to take a look at the athletic record she compiled as an amateur. As an amateur, Babe competed in 634 contests. She won 632 of them.

One of the losses was in Olympic basketball where she came in second. The other was in the Olympic high jump division. She set a new record with her leap but was disqualified for using what she called the "Texas Roll."

Marciano Promises Quicker Knockout Of Joe Walcott

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Rocky Marciano promised today to knock out Jersey Joe Walcott "much quicker than the last time" as a means of clinching his place among the all-time greats of the ring.

"I'm not saying when it will happen," the Champ said by telephone from his Holland, Mich., training camp. "But I'm going to win quicker than the last time, much quicker."

The Rock, who did it in the 13th round to win the title the last time, spoke with firm conviction as he prepared for his May 15 defense at Chicago against the agile veteran from Camden, N. J.

And it was Manager Al Weill, tapping in tandem on the conversation, who explained why Marciano is eager for a quicker kayo in this one.

"We know Rocky is great, one of the best of all time," he said. "Well, we want to clinch it."

"Besides," he added, "I'm not in shape to keep climbing up and down those stairs into the ring between rounds. It's hard work and I want to go home early."

The kindness of prize fight managers and their courageous adherence to the theory that "the other guy can't hurt us," is a legend of the mitt game. So you can discount Mr. Weill's troubles and tribulations.

But when you digest the first part of Al the Vest's statement you have the real reason why Marciano's camp is shooting for a quicker knockout than the one of last September.

For after the last fight, there was a rising crescendo of claims that the Rock was the long-awaited "new Dempsey." These allegations came from those who stood to make or were making a quick buck out of the newest killer of the ring.

There were on the other hand, a spate of numbers who thought that possibly the Rock was lucky to land his Sunday Sleeper on Jersey Joe's graying whiskers. They pointed out that Joe was busily collecting the winner's margin of points when the curtain came down.

Thus you come to the inevitable conclusion that Rocky wasn't doing much more than holding his own, if that much, when he lowered the boom and took the ultimate decision out of controversial status. And when you remember that Joe was 38 then, at least, it seems permissible to deduct young Rocky from the "Dempsey" class.

Now that Walcott is 39, at least as well as at least, Marciano's job is well defined. To earn a refurbishing of those "killer" claims, he will have to put the old gent away—and swifter than the last time they went to the post.

Mickey Mantle Slugs Homer As Yanks Defeat Bosox, 6-3

Stewart And Lew Lead In Tourney

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—Earl Stewart Jr. and Lew Worsham, considered by the touring professionals as one of the game's greatest money players, teed off in the second round of the rich Tournament of Champions today, holding a one-stroke lead over the select field.

With only seven strokes separating 19 of the 20 men in the $35,000 event Sam Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., practically bowed out of competition when he shot a 79, the race still was wide open.

Because it is going to take a lot of guts to ram down those putts with a $10,000 first prize staring them in the face, it was believed that the noted big-money players, such as Worsham, Lloyd Mangrum, Al Bessellink, Julius Boros and Dr. Cary Middlecoff would be among those still battling for the title on Sunday.

Stewart compiled a four-under-par 68 Thursday on the Desert Inn Country Club course with only 23 putts for 18 holes. He was out in 35, back in 33. Worsham used just the reverse procedure—33-35. He missed a five-foot putt on the 18th that would have given him undisputed leadership.

Close on the heels of the leaders came Jackie Burke and Dave Douglas with 69. Mangrum, Jim Turnesa and Chandler Harper each had 70. Ted Kroll and Jimmy Demaret had 71.

Norfolk Drivers Return To Wilson

Stock cars, drastically modified for greater speed, are running every Sunday at the Wilson Speedway under the sponsorship of the American Legion.

The half-mile oval is located at the Fairgrounds there. Next Sunday will mark the return of the Norfolk state of drivers to the track.

Joe Weathers, last year's number one ranking driver in the United States, is coming down to accept a challenge allegedly delivered by "Speedy" Thompson of Monroe, at present the number two ranking driver in the nation.

Time trials have been discontinued this year, and races will qualify for position in the main event by the order in which they complete heat races.

Warm-up period begins promptly at 1 o'clock, and heat races begin promptly at 2:30.

All Wilson races are sanctioned by NASCAR, National Association of Stock Car Automobile Racers.

NEW YORK (UP)—Might as well get used to reading about Mickey Mantle because that new Golden Boy of the Yankees is going to be making big baseball news for a long while.

The alarmists were saying that the Commerce Comet was being put on the spot by the excitement over his record 5 2-foot homer run in Washington last week. The Mighty Mick was supposed to be bringing for the fences under more pressure than before, shooting for more distant wallops.

The Yankee publicity department measured various distances and found it would be possible for him to blast a homer out of Yankee Stadium, if all conditions were just right—and it wouldn't have to be as long as the one he hit in Washington.

Then it was noticed that he had gone into a slump after the big blast and the alarmists said it might "ruin him" for the 1953 season. That was before Thursday's latest miracle performance by Mantle.

With a ton of mental pressure on him with two out in the ninth, the score tied at 3-3, and two on base, Mantle stepped up to the plate, took one swing and delivered a 400-foot homer off Ellis Kinder that gave the Yankees a 6-3 series sweep over the Red Sox.

The world champs, who have won seven of their 11 games, had it won 3-1 after Yogi Berra's two-run homer in the eighth but rookie Tom Umpflett nullified that margin with a two-run triple off the tiring John Sain in the top of the ninth. That left it up to Mantle and he came through.

The Athletics topped the Senators, 6-4, at Washington as Bobby Shantz scored his first victory after two losses to the Yankees, while Detroit ended a five-game losing streak with a five-hit 8-4 victory over the White Sox by young Bill Hoelt.

In the National League, the Phillies beat Brooklyn, 6-1 in a night game at Philadelphia, while the Giants slunk home in shame after losing two out of three in Pittsburgh, the finale by a struggling 6-5 margin. The Cubs rallied late to top the Braves, 6-2, on a four-hitter by Warren Hacker.

Robin Roberts pitched the Phillies into undisputed possession of first place in the National League while helping his team sweep the three-game series from Brooklyn. He was deprived of a shutout when Peevce Reese homered in the first inning but the Phils tied the score in the second and then rapped rookie Johnny Podres for three runs in the fourth on Grady Hamner's homer and Richie Ashburn's two-run double. Stan Lopata also homered for the Phils.

The Indians and Browns in the American and the Reds and Cards in the National had open dates.

Softball League Gets Sixth Team

The number of teams in Greenville's newly-formed softball league was raised to six last night when the Greenville Marble and Granite Works was accepted as a member of the league.

Two teams that were expected to have representatives at the meeting last night failed to do so and were given until May 1 to make a formal application for entry. Teams already in the league, in addition to the one accepted last night, are Home Builders, Garner-Wayne-Manning, Carolina Dairies, Wagner-Waldrop, and Southern Bred.

The six teams already in the league have given until May 1 to post their sponsorship fees and an assessment of one dollar per player. The money collected will go for construction of a fence around the diamond at the Third Street School. Dan Gordon was appointed chairman of the committee which has been named to obtain materials for the fence.

The uniform for the coming season will be softball T-shirts, matching caps and long trousers. The type of shoes worn will be up to the individual players, representatives to last night's meeting at the Army dorm.

In other business conducted by the managers, a motion was passed that there be only one action this year with due consideration given to any newcomers to Greenville or any "hardship" cases who could not report to a team earlier.

The managers of the Little League teams for the coming year are Bill Kittrell, Elks; Carl Pearce and Jack Cobb, Kiwanis; Neely James, Exchange; N. A. Roebuck and Johnny Fuell, Lions; Ford McGowan, Jaycees; and Bruce Koonce, Moose.

The boys who were purchased are as follows. They should report to their respective managers at first opportunity.

Exchange: William Brown, Hammond Beale, Louis Dall, Burton Jenkins, Charles Taft, and Larry Roberts.

Lions: James Churchill, Dick Heller, Linwood Cates, Lonny Staton, and Alan Jackson.

Jaycees: Lynwood Bridgers, Sonny Hodges, Peter Hunt, Gene Nobles, and Marvin Buck.

Moose: Ronald Riggs, William Stancell, James Daniels, and Kenneth Joyner.

Elks: Charles Roberts, William Jenkins, Ray Corbett, Denny Hardee, and J. G. Proctor.

Kiwanis: James Earle Henderson, Donald Speight, Jack Foley, and Skip Wright.

Sonny Russell Named Most Valuable Player

Captain Sonny Russell was last night named as the first recipient of a Most Valuable Player trophy to be awarded each year to a member of the East Carolina College basketball team.

Russell was presented the award at a banquet sponsored by the Circle K club of the college, the sponsoring organization for the trophy. He was given a handsome trophy and his name was engraved on a plaque which will become a permanent fixture at the college.

The All-State and All-Conference forward from New Bern was picked for the honor by teammates who were honored along with Russell at the banquet. Voting was done by secret ballot at the end of the basketball season.

Russell led the Pirates to one of their most outstanding records during the past season. He scored 496 points in 24 contests and was practically unanimous choice for both of the all-star teams he named to the All-Conference selector was the fourth straight for him and moved into a category occupied by only two other former North State Stars.

Presentation of the trophy was made by Mitchell Saleed, a member of Circle K and president of the East Carolina Student Government Association.

THE STRAW DONKEY CASE

By A. S. FLEISCHMAN

Chapter 14
Brindle awoke later than usual the next morning.

a part of it. It looked as though Ranson had hired him last Wednesday with that purpose in mind.

He dressed, fitted one of the thug's guns in his holster, and got his car out of the apartment garage.

He stopped for a cup of coffee. Harry West had promised to see him sometime before noon.

A man was sitting in front of the desk, his back toward the door.

Brindle stepped into the room. The shade hadn't been raised and the office was in gray shadows.

Harry West. Dead. Brindle left the shade drawn. He walked back to the door and locked it. Then he turned on the light.

A dry corduroy hat lay on the floor. West had evidently not been out in the rain. And the body was becoming limp. Rigor mortis had come and was on its way out.

bruises on his neck meant strangulation, though he was generally banged up.

Brindle looked about the office. It was a mess. Desk and file drawers had been flung open and paper strewn everywhere.

The straw donkey? Brindle had cut it open, found nothing, and thrown the pieces away. He wondered now if that had been a mistake.

He stiffened as the door knob rattled. This was no time to be found with the body. He wanted more time to think, to tie up loose ends.

He waited until the mailman had finished with the end offices before making a sound. It was no time to read the mail, but he picked through them.

A key. A donkey. If he had to be sent anonymous gifts, why couldn't they be hundred-dollar bills?

He put the key into his pocket, took a last look around the office and switched off the light.

He got the car out of the lot and drove to Point Loma almost by instinct alone.

When he punched the bell the whine of a vacuum cleaner died inside. The maid, in a white uniform, came to the door.

"Max Brindle," he said. "Tell Mr. Durst I want to see him." He made a move to go through the door, but the maid held it firmly.

"There's nobody at home," she told him. "I'll tell him you called."

"Do that," he snapped, as the door clicked shut in his face.

He was halfway to the landing of flagstones to the sidewalk through the front window Brindle could see the maid back at work in the living room.

No one at home? Maybe. He hoped not.

He retraced his steps and tried the back door. Open. Quietly he let himself through. The vacuum cleaner was still droning. Good.

He moved through the service porch, the kitchen, and finally stopped short of the dining room. The stairway, between the dining and living rooms, was only a few steps off, but open to the maid's view if she should turn around.

There was nothing to do but take a chance—now.

when the cleaner ground to a stop. The maid lifted an end table and floor lamp out of her way.

Brindle kept going, his fingers crossed, the sound of his footsteps muffled by the rug. At the stairway, he hesitated. Under the strain of his hundred and ninety-five pounds, it might creak. He'd take a chance. It creaked.

His eyes flashed to the maid. She snapped a switch and the vacuum cleaner began to hum again. She hadn't heard the noise. He took a few more steps and was out of sight.

Can Be Happy Without Women

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The five Burke brothers — total ages 386 years — believe men can be happy if they stick together and keep away from women.

James, 72, Thomas, 75, Michael, 77, John, 80, and Pat, 82, all live together in a single-story thatched cottage at Killeen, County Clare.

"All for each and each for all" is the motto that governs their lives. They do all their housework, even baking their own bread.

"Don't think we're woman-haters," said Pat. "We just want to do our own business in our own way."

Climb Is Easy, Descent Tougher

DENVER (AP) — So what goes up must come down, eh? Just try telling that to a balky horse, says Donald Dean, 22, of Denver.

Dean borrowed a horse from a friend and rode to the top of Table Mountain near Golden, west of Denver. But when he started down, the horse apparently decided the going was too steep and refused to budge.

So Dean built a fire and tried to keep warm during the night until searchers reached him the next morning. The other horses coaxed Dean's steed into making the descent.

OVERSIGHT NEW LONDON, Conn. (UP) — Donald Chapman saw smoke pouring out of the back of his truck and drove to a firehouse only to find there was no water there — only fire trucks. A pumper truck was called in from another fire house, however, and the fire was put out.

The name of the famous diamond can be spelled Kohlnor, Kohlnoor, or Kohlor and means "mountain of light."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks rallied modestly today after three days of decline.

Industrial and railroad averages gained a few cents. A decline of more than a point in Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line brought the utility average down slightly.

Sales in the first hour held even with yesterday's total at 420,000 shares.

The upturn was seen as a normal reaction after a drop to new lows for the year. Market men were not greatly impressed with it, however, since the volume did not rise.

The main list moved narrowly and a large number showed declines. Special issues moved widely as did selected issues in major groups.

Oils and rails had contrasting movements. In the latter, St. Louis Southwestern fell five and Texas & Pacific four points, while Peoria & Eastern gained two. Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Railway and New York Central had fractional gains.

RALEIGH (UP)—Central North Carolina live poultry:

Federal Crop Insurance Program Deadline Near

Tobacco growers in Pitt county will have until Saturday, to make applications for Federal All-Risk Insurance protection.

After April 25, applications cannot be accepted for the 1953 crop year said James T. Meredith, secretary to the County PMA Committee. "We in PMA want every eligible farmer to have a chance at the program, therefore, the PMA office will be open on Saturday until five o'clock for the convenience of any farmers who desire to join the program", Meredith said.

The county secretary explained that under the federal contract, a valuation approximately the total production cost is placed on the acreage ahead of the planting date. If the crop is destroyed or damaged by drought, drowning, hail, wind, fire plant disease, insects, hurricane or tornado to the extent that it does not sell for as much as the coverage, the policyholder receives the differences in a less claim check.

Crop insurance on tobacco was first available in North Carolina in counties of Surry, Vance and Wilson, starting in 1945. Since the inception of the program on an experimental basis it has been permitted to expand gradually until there are now twenty-three counties operating under the program.

Meredith pointed out that Pitt County has had Federal Crop Insurance since 1948 and that during these recent years many farmers have shared in the protective benefits of the program. The peak loss year for the program in Pitt county last year, when 163 insured owners of damaged crops were paid the sum of approximately $70,000. Drought, disease, hail and fire were the main causes of loss. According to Meredith, there were 1,688 active contracts in Pitt County in 1952. It is too early to know the final count for the 1953 insured program, but indications are that it will amount to more than 2,000 persons participating.

As pointed out previously, Meredith explained that the coverage per acre is calculated to be the average cost of production, and the rate is based on the expected loss over a period of years.

Since the premiums can be used only to pay losses any accumulated premium reserved is accredited to the county and used as the basis for reducing premium cost.

When a county meets its required premium reserve level there is a premium discount of 30 per cent declared.

A few counties are now enjoying the 30 per cent discount, Pitt being among them, Meredith pointed out.

When an insured has seven consecutive years without a loss he receives a premium discount of 25 per cent in recognition of his individual good experience. This remains in effect until he is paid a loss claim, Meredith pointed out.

The 25 per cent discount is in addition to the 30 per cent discount, if in effect, for county-wide good experience. Since the cost of production has been increasing in recent years, Meredith explained, the coverage has kept pace and is now $336.00 per acre for a premium cost of only $8.20 per acre.

Meredith said that the price support program and the Federal Crop Insurance program are a hand-in-hand proposition.

In order to benefit from price support it is first necessary to produce. In other words, the farmer who loses most or all of his crop benefits little or none from the price support program, but if his crop failure was caused by one or more of the many hazards covered by a crop insurance policy his entire investment is not lost and he can try again on the same money.

UNC Foundation Chapter Elects New Officers

New officers of the Pitt County chapter of the University of North Carolina Education Foundation were elected last night at the annual meeting of the group.

Howard L. Hodges Jr. was elected president of the group. Lee Folger, vice president, and Tom Webb, secretary-treasurer.

Principal speakers at the meeting were Chuck Erickson, athletic director at the University, head basketball coach Frank McGuire, football line coach Marvin Bass, and George Hogan, executive secretary of the Education Foundation.

Erickson discussed for members of the local chapter the athletic program at the University and Bass discussed the outlook for the University football team this fall. It was the consensus of the group that the discarding of the two-platoon system in football will not have an appreciable effect upon the team at Carolina. Bass said the University is not expecting a spectacular team this fall, but is concentrating on good, hard football which should produce a good team for the season.

McGuire discussed at length the basketball situation at Carolina, evaluating the past season and discussing the prospects of the coming season. He asserted the prowess of Carolina's basketball next year will be determined to a large extent on whether the Southern Conference will permit freshmen to participate in varsity sports. The question is to be decided at a meeting early in May.

Commenting on Southern Conference basketball, McGuire asserted the top teams in the conference play as fast a brand of basketball as is played in any conference in the nation.

Wrong Line

An Atlantic Coast Line freight train and an automobile operated by a Griffon native were involved in a road crossing accident Wednesday morning.

However, a Highway Patrol report listed the accident as involving a Norfolk and Southern Railroad train and was reported as such in Thursday's Reflector.

Investigation of the accident which injured Holton Bruce Dail, 27, of Route 1, Griffon is still incomplete, C. E. Whitfield said.

The accident occurred East of NC 11 at Hanrahan around nine o'clock Wednesday morning.

Newspapers do not give full reports, and the partial or biased comment-stories give the wrong impression to the public. Libel laws are not adequate to protect members of the committee who may be erroneously quoted or by misplaced emphasis put in untenable positions. Subordinate officials giving information to the committee are entitled to protection, and to have anything kept off the record which they do not want published. The appropriations committee of the General Assembly is just like a board of directors of a private corporation, and reporters are not permitted at those meetings. Executive sessions have become established practice for many public boards, commissions and committees and the fact they have been held is authority for continuing and extending the practice. Most other states permit closed door sessions and North Carolina should not be different.

DISAGREEMENT—Where the news folks and the lawmakers disagree is upon the relative importance of the exceptions and the mistakes. The legislators apparently think exceptional violations of ethical practice justify closing the doors against all the people while the newsmen contend that the exceptions should prove the rule and that basic principles should control on the common law ground that it is better for one guilty to escape than for many innocent to be punished.
