Closes Out Long Session Exchanging Compliments

Long Assembly Ends

RALEIGH (UP) - The 1953 General Assembly formally closed its longest session since the depression year of 1935 at 9:04 p. m. last night and most of the legislators said they believe they've done a good job. In a marathon session which began at 10 a. m. the assembly wrote into law a bill to provide a seven-man State Milk Commission and defeated a last-ditch attempt by dry forces to get a recorded vote on a statewide liquor referendum. Most of that action came in the afternoon, however, and during the night session the legislators were the victims of their own last-minute rush actions. They had sent so many bills to the enrolling office that the adjournment had to be adjourned until the enrolling office completed the final draft of all the bills and sent them back to be ratified. Lt. Gov. Luther Hodges drove over to the executive mansion to say farewell to ailing Gov. William B. Umstead as both houses held brief intermittent sessions whenever anything came up. As adjournment time neared, the doors to the two chambers were opened so that Hodges and House Speaker Eugene T. Bost could see each other and bring down their gavels at the same time. Rep. William B. Rodman of Beaufort, chairman of the House Finance Committee, said "it's been a magnificent session." He praised Bost for a "fine job" and moved a rising vote of thanks for the speaker. Hodges praised the senators for their "courtesy and thoughtfulness." Rep. Phil Whitely of Wake praised the work the legislature had done in tightening traffic laws and particularly a bill allowing a speeder's license to be revoked. "I think we've done a pretty good job," Whitely said. "And I think we really made a lot of progress with the traffic laws. That anti-speeding bill is going to save a lot of lives." Whitely and some others were more dubious about the milk com-

LaFayette Miller Is Executed

Pronounced Dead Ten Minutes After Entering State Gas Chamber

RALEIGH (UP) - Convicted slayer Lafayette Miller was put to death in the state's gas chamber at Central Prison today. Miller was pronounced dead exactly 10 minutes after he entered the small cream-walled chamber at 10:01 a. m. EST. He struggled briefly against heavy straps as the colorless gas filled the chamber. A total of 25 witnesses, including 12 official witnesses, watched the 22-year-old Washington, N. C., Negro pay with his life for the shotgun slaying of Harvey Q. Boyd, a white farmer at Chocowinity, N. C., Thanksgiving Eve, 1951. The execution ended a long fight by his attorneys to save his life. Miller wore only a pair of white shorts as he entered the chamber. He held a prison chaplain "I'll be all right." Gov. William B. Umstead refused twice to interfere in the case, the last refusal coming last Wednesday. Miller's conviction was upheld by the State Supreme Court. The U. S. Supreme Court refused to review the case when it appealed on grounds his constitutional rights had been violated. Miller was first convicted in a sensational trial in Beaufort County except to get a few names from those sitting by the windows of ambulances. The second trial included 12 bitter cases. Of the 41 passengers, only four volunteered to meet the press, including Alexander C. Luther, Toms Creek, Va. Their stories were much the same as those told by the first group of prisoners to fly home, except P. C. George Gray, a Negro, who said the Chinese Communists "treated minority groups better" than occidentals. He said, however, that no greater effort was made to indoctrinate minority races than others.

Still Holding 375 Ailing Prisoners, UN Declares 'Bad Faith' Charged Reds

By LEROY HANSEN PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP) - The United Nations accused the Communists today of holding back at least 375 ailing Allied war prisoners and warned that refusal to free them could wreck the armistice negotiations. It was indicated that at least 160 of the sick and wounded men may be Americans. The Communists rejected the accusation as "a willful slander not worth refuting." Rear Adm. John C. Daniel told the Communists at a meeting of liaison officers that the U. N. has "indisputable evidence" they are holding more than 234 non-Koreans and 141 South Koreans, all fit to travel, who should have been freed under the recent exchange of sick and wounded prisoners. Daniel said his evidence came from personal reports by freed U. N. prisoners who listed 375 ailing men all fit to travel, who were left behind. He said he knows the total really is higher. Demanding that the Reds hand over the remaining men, Daniel said: "If you fail to carry out in good faith the April 11 agreement for the repatriation of sick and injured captured personnel... the U. N. command can have no choice but to question your sincerity with respect to reaching and carrying out agreements on broader questions confronting the armistice negotiations." A second threat to the negotiations developed at a meeting of the truce teams. The U. N. proposed Sweden as a neutral country to take charge of the 46,918 Communist prisoners who refuse to go home. The Communists rejected Sweden. They said that the custodian country must be Asiatic. But they refused to nominate an Asiatic country unless the U. N. agrees that the anti-Red prisoners be transported to it, awaiting final disposition, instead of being kept in Korea. "Your attitude increasingly casts suspicion on your objectives in these negotiations," U. N. Senior Truce Delegate Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison said. Thus in today's two brief, bitter meetings, a temporary stalemate was reached. The truce talks entered a critical stage. There could be a new deadlock, a new rupture—or a sudden dramatic turn for the better, with the Communists nominating an acceptable Asiatic country as prisoner custodian and agreeing that the anti-Red prisoners be kept in Korea. The Communists asked for resumption of the truce talks. It is believed here they really want an armistice. It is hoped they are just stalling now, acting tough as a face-saving maneuver before they get down to business. The truce teams will meet again at 11 a. m. Saturday (10 p. m. Friday a. d. t.). No date was set for another meeting of the liaison teams of prisoners.

News Blackout On Homeward Flight Of 63 Soldiers Secrecy Cloaks Returnees

HONOLULU, T. H. (UP) - The Army lowered a curtain of "security and compassion" today on the homeward flights of soldiers released from Communist prison camps in North Korea. A news blackout descended on the schedules of two planes carrying 63 returnees to the United States from Tokyo. They were the second and third plane loads of ex-prisoners to cross the Pacific. The second plane load, carrying 41 returnees, was believed scheduled to take off for Travis Air Force Base, Calif., at 8 p. m. (C-97 transport landed at Hickam Field here yesterday after a 17-hour flight from Tokyo. The third plane load, carrying 22 ex-prisoners, had been reported due here late last night, but news-

Board Prepares To Turn City Gov't Over To Council Wednesday Aldermen Conclude Final Business

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor It is beyond medical aid: the aldermanic form of government for Greenville has only five more days to live. Meeting last night the Greenville Board of Aldermen posed for an official portrait, passed several verbal bouquets back and forth and then settled down to dispose of a last-minute flurry of city business. The city's prime governing group was concerned primarily, members said, with turning the reins of city administration over the new City Council next Wednesday morning unfeathered with old commitments. John G. Clark, member of the Greenville Utilities Commission, appeared before the board and presented a resolution passed by the commission to the effect that the utilities group could not legally donate money to any source other than the city proper. Approved Donation The resolution submitted, which was approved by the board of aldermen, provided that the Utilities Commission will turn over to the city each year the sum of $2,500 in addition to the regular annual appropriation of $80,000. That donation is to be used for various forms of recreation. Clark explained to the board that in the past various civic clubs and charity groups have made requests from time to time for money to be used for beneficial projects. "We are in sympathy with those groups, but if we donate any money for such purposes we immediately become liable," he stated. The utilities vice-chairman went on to say that $2,500 would be turned over to the city this year, and another $2,500 would be forthcoming next year. "We cannot earmark that money for any specific purpose, but we respectfully suggest that it go to further the recreation program." New Sub-Division Development of another sub-division adjacent to the city limits was brought to light last night when Lynn Ropbuck Jr. came before the board and requested that Colonial Heights, a development lying east of the city on Tenth Street, be brought into the city limits. Ropbuck said the property is being developed by himself and his wife, and James Keel and D. G. Nichols and their wives. It reportedly will open up approximately 75 new building lots, and conceivably will enter the city limits at a later date. Ropbuck was informed by the board that a resolution has already been passed by that body relative to incorporating new areas. Members explained that before a subdivision can be incorporated, streets must be graded and drainage installed to specifications previously laid down. The board approved the map, which the previous night had been approved by the City Planning Board, but postponed action on proposed incorporation. Sum For Portrait Miss Jessie Moye came before the board and requested that as a parting gesture it appropriate a specific sum to be used for obtaining an artist to do a copy in oils of Gen. Nathaniel Greene, for whom the city of Greenville purportedly is named. The portrait would be hung in the city hall, and Miss Moye said the cost of an artist's commission would be $500. The board voted $250 toward the project and expressed the hope that the new council would continue with the project. A member of the City Recreation Commission, Lester Truham, asked the board to approve moving a number of lights from a track adjacent to Guy Smith Stadium to Third Street School. The lights are to be used for city softball. The board approved the request subject to additional approval by the City School Board. Armory Deeded Last night the Board of Aldermen approved a proposition to deed its interest in the Armory to the N. C. National Guard. It was done with the understanding, however, that should the Armory cease to be used for military purposes ownership would revert back to the city and county. The work of W. H. Watson, Greenville attorney, as the city's representative to the Eastern Airport Authority was praised highly by the board last night, and subsequently Watson was named a permanent member of the authority. Bills Paid Bills in the amount of $75 for J. H. Harrell and $10 each for T. E. Joyner Jr. and W. H. Phillips, all members of the Pitt County Board of Elections, were approved and ordered paid by the board. That was for services rendered relative to the "Plan D" referendum held in the city last January. It was agreed upon by the mayor and members of the board that pay for all board members should stop as of May 15. Appointments made were: City Planning Board, Mrs. D. M. Clark re-appointed for a five-year term; City Recreation Commission, John Bizzell appointed to succeed Dr. H. B. Kelly. The board voted to contribute $100 to the Pitt County Cancer Fund, and recessed the meeting until Wednesday morning, at which time a short meeting will be held just before the new council takes office.

Bulgarian Claims West Not Easing Global Tension Russia To Push Armaments

By HENRY SHAPIRO United Press Staff Correspondent MOSCOW, (UP) - Defense Minister Nikolai Bulganin told cheering May Day crowds thronging Red Square today the Soviet Union must strengthen her armed forces because the western powers so far have done nothing to lessen global tension. Bulganin called on the west for deeds not words. He spoke from a rostrum where other Russian leaders stood. Bulganin prefaced his address with a review from an open limousine of thousands of troops in the square and along streets leading into it. "The Soviet government will welcome any steps on the part of the governments of other countries genuinely aiming at the easing of tension in the international situation and would like to see the peaceful statements made by the leaders of these governments supported by deeds," he said. Foreign observers saw something in common between Bulganin's speech and the floats, posters and slogans exhibited all over the capital. The theme of the day was "amicable settlement of international controversies," "lasting peace," and "international collaboration."

Sixteen Dead In Georgia Tornado

WARNER ROBINS, Ga. (UP) - Tornadoes which smashed into this base town and several other middle Georgia peach belt communities left at least 16 persons dead and an estimated 350 others injured today. The Red Cross counted 16 dead, most of them in Warner Robins, and said the toll might go considerably higher because 18 of the injured in hospitals here and in nearby Macon, Ga., were in critical condition. Field workers said 365 homes were demolished and 135 damaged, leaving between 1,000 and 1,200 persons homeless. The scatter-shot tornadoes descended shortly before dusk yesterday, two of them on Warner Robins, World War II air base now converted into an air force maintenance center. Other storms struck Ft. Valley, Milledgeville, Marshallville and Buena Vista. But nearly all of the death toll and most of the damage occurred here. The tornadoes dipped down as many of the town's residents were returning home from work yesterday. Bill Griffin of the South Ziegler section of Warner Robins said he was sitting in front of his brother's house when he "heard it coming." "I thought it was an XC-99 (a large cargo plane)," he said. "My brother got up and saw the funnel shearing off the tops of trees. "I thought it would veer, but then I saw it take the top off the house down the street. There were seven of us in our house, and three got under one bed and four under another before the tornado roared over us. "The house was torn down around us, but none of us was hurt much."

Reviews Municipal Progress During Past Two Years Mayor Cites Civic Accomplishments

Despite sidewalk discussion to the contrary, "this administration has not been without its accomplishments." That statement made last night by Mayor Lester D. Page reflects the tone of his farewell message to the Board of Aldermen. The aldermanic form of government goes out of existence locally next Wednesday morning, to be succeeded by a council-manager type. Mayor Page set something of a precedent last night when he delivered an official farewell address to the board. "Gentlemen," he said, "I wish at this time to review some of the accomplishments that we have achieved during the past two years." He then proceeded to treat each city department individually, emphasizing in each instance various things done during the past two years that reflect favorably on his administration. Expressed Appreciation "First, I would like to express my deep appreciation for the cooperation of our gentlemen in carrying out our responsibilities," he told members of the board. "With minor exceptions we have worked together splendidly, and I feel achieved quite a bit for our city and its citizens as a whole. I did not expect when I came into office as mayor for us to agree on all things, because that would be contrary to our democratic way of life." and the individual's right to think and do that which he feels is best." CITY CLERK - The city clerk, H. H. Duncan, and members of his office staff were commended by the mayor for their work during his administration. The mayor cited various steps taken to modernize the department and said that now the clerk's office may be considered up to date in every respect. FIRE DEPARTMENT - During the administration, Mayor Page said, additions to the Fire Department have prevented the fire insurance rate in Greenville from being raised. He cited as accomplishments in that respect the new fire station in West Greenville, a new fire truck, 14 new fire alarm boxes, 2,300 feet of new fire hose, addition of four full-time firemen, and three two-way radios for fire fighting equipment. POLICE DEPARTMENT - A modern fingerprint and identification department in that department under Capt. S. B. Dorsey has been installed. Traffic congestion on downtown streets has been greatly relieved by the one-way street system. Steps have been taken to secure off-street parking for the city, and action of the present legislature should have great bearing on that problem. STREET DEPARTMENT - We have installed during the past two years 106 catch basins and 35 manholes. We have laid curb and gutter for approximately 25 blocks, paved 46 blocks of streets, or approximately 14 thousand feet, or nearly three miles of paving. Installed more than 6,500 feet of concrete storm sewer ranging in size from 12 to 36 inches. Have purchased five new trucks, one Elgin sweeper and rebuilt one old sweeper. SANITATION PROGRAM - With the aid of the Pitt County Health Department we have caused the installation of 1,200 new toilets in the city. Cooperating with the city, the Utilities Commission has installed 18 to 20 miles of sanitary sewer and water mains. I feel sure that in the near future sewer and water will be available for those who desire to hook up. CITY PLANNING - We have authorized a reevaluation and mapping project in cooperation with the Pitt County Board of Commissioners which should bring about a more fair tax rate within the city, and should be of great value in future planning. We have laid the ground work, with the commissioners, for the Eastern Airport Authority, so that our present airport may be sold to some major industry. RECREATION PROGRAM - We have increased the recreation budget considerably during the past two years, but we have not been able to do all in that respect we would like to have done. We have had maps made for parks and swimming pools, and they are drawn in detail, which should be invaluable for those projects when funds are available. No Tax Increase "These improvements have been made without increase in the tax rate, and without favoritism for any individual or group," the mayor said in closing. "We have discussed other projects and I know as well as you that we would prefer to have accomplished more had it been possible."

Ranks Of Voters Continue To Swell As Registration Period Nears Final Day

The number of names on Greenville's election registration books continued to mount today as the deadline for registration draws to a close. A check at mid-morning showed a total of 470 new names have been added to the city's registration books since the current registration period began April 22. Of the new registrants 287 are Negroes and 192 are whites. A breakdown of the new registrants at the two polling places for the city election showed 104 Negroes and 100 whites had registered at the court house for wards one and two; and 183 Negroes and 92 whites had registered at the city hall for wards three, four and five. Registration books will be open at the polling places tomorrow from 9 a. m. until sundown at which time the registration period will close. When the registration period opened April 22, there were a total of 6,441 eligible voters registered on the city's election books. Of that number 544 were Negroes. The new names added to the registration books through mid-morning today brought the total registration for a municipal election in Greenville to 6,920 voters of which 6,089 are whites and 831 are Negroes. Activity in the registration period this year has surpassed that of any regular registration period in Greenville in many years. Only those citizens whose names were not already on the registration books were required to register during the period in order to be eligible for Tuesday's election. Registrars at the two polling places reported, however, many people who already were registered, had checked to see their names were properly on the books.

Another Bomb Missed Peron

BUENOS AIRES (UP) - A powerful bomb was exploded today about a block from the Palacio Del Congreso where President Juan D. Peron was delivering his "state of the union" address inaugurating the 87th session of the Argentine Congress. The blast, one of a series which rocked central Buenos Aires since the early hours today, was set off three minutes after Peron began his address before a Chamber of Deputies, packed with government officials and foreign diplomats. DISASTER AREA WARNER ROBINS, Ga. (UP) - The federal government today declared the city of Warner Robins neighboring communities a disaster area in the wake of a tornado that cut a half-mile path 400 feet wide through the city.

President Hopes To See Colorado

WASHINGTON (UP) - The President hopes to get away for a vacation in Mrs. Eisenhower's home state of Colorado this summer, if the press of business in Washington isn't too great. He told his news conference yesterday that the speed with which Congress finishes its work would have a bearing on his plans. He promised to notify the White House reporters who travel with him just as soon as he is able to say anything definite.

Bad Food, Cold, Lack Of Good Medical Care Fatal To 2,538

TOKYO (UP) - Bad food, the cold and lack of medical care killed 2,538 prisoners at notorious "Death Valley" and at a Communist camp on the Yalu River, a California sergeant said today. Sgt. James F. Daniel, 30, of Alameda, Calif., said exactly 931 died during 78 days in "Death Valley" and 1,607 more died from January to August of 1951 in Camp No. 5 at Pyoktong. Daniel said his fatality statistics were accurate because the prisoners kept records of the men who died in the two camps. The Chinese confiscated the lists but he remembered the figures, he said. Daniel was captured at Kumuri with 200 wounded men, 71 of them hurt seriously, when the Chinese Communists ambushed an ambulance convoy in the U. S. 2nd Division's retreat on Dec. 1, 1950. "We left the 71 seriously wounded men on the ground when they marched us away," he said. "We were taken to Death Valley. A total of about 3,000 men, mostly 2nd Division Americans, were there. From Dec. 15 to March 14, 931 men died. A record was kept. They were taken by the Chinese when we left that camp. The men died of bad food, cold and lack of medical care. "We were transferred to Camp Five. Three men in my group died on that seven-day march. "There was an estimated 3,000 men in Camp Five, of which 1,607 died from January to August of 1951. We kept records. The Chinese took them, too. "Daniel said conditions in "Death Valley" were horrible. "We could sit and feel the lice crawling over us," he said. "Two American doctors and one British doctor tried desperately to save men but with no food and the meager medical supplies given them by the North Koreans and the Chinese it was an impossibility." Fewer men died after the beginning of the truce talks in June, 1951, he said.

Demo Leader 'Welcomes Back' Straying South To Party's Fold

By JAMES W. GUNTER United Press Staff Correspondent BIRMINGHAM, (UP) - Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell today extended a welcome "back into the party fold" to Southerners who strayed to the Republicans in the last presidential election. "Some have realized the error of their ways already," Mitchell said here. He said all are welcome to return to their traditional party affiliation. Mitchell came here in part of a campaign by Democratic Party leaders to "re-solidify" the South, whose Democratic tradition was broken by President Eisenhower's landslide last year. The GOP carried four Southern states. He sounded the welcome to errant party members last night in the first of two major speeches designed to help woo voters back to the Democrats in the next election. He will speak at Asheville, N. C., Saturday. His plans called for conferences with party leaders of eight Southern states. Mitchell said he wants to raise money in the South to help pay off the party debt, which he said has been reduced from about $578,000 after the election to "less than $200,000." He said party leaders want to share the burden "equitably among all states." He said the South paid a large share of the last campaign expense and "to a large extent the money has not been spent in Southern states." Mitchell, in his address last night and at a press conference, likened the Democratic party to "a family in trouble." But defeat, he said, "has brought us closer together." Mitchell said the Eisenhower administration thus far has given the Democrats "not much to oppose," but indications are the Republicans in the long run will prove to be second best for the American people. "We think war and peace much too important to be partisan about," he said. "Foreign policy is the overshadowing issue of the day and the administration position so far has been pretty much the Truman foreign policy position." But he pointed to falling farm prices and increased interest rates and said "the folks are concerned about the fact that they are likely to work harder for less money this year than they did last year."

Winners Selected in HD Club Dress Revue

Changes in styles from 100 years ago were reviewed yesterday at the annual Home Demonstration Dress Revue in which 60 home demonstration women of Pitt County took part.

As added feature to their annual dress revue of clothes made by home demonstration women, a number of the women were dressed in clothes of long ago as an example of how styles have changed. Mrs. Howard Moyer, president of the county council, narrated the show.

The women acted as models for clothes they had made and some of the women made clothes for their children and grandchildren which were modeled by the "smaller" folk.

At the end of the judging, the winners were announced and prizes were given them by a representative of Blount-Harvey company who sponsored the dress revue. The winners were:

Children's Division: Mrs. W. S. May, first; Mrs. James Allen, first runner-up; Mrs. Beattie Padden, second; and Mrs. Loni Crawford, third. Casual clothes: Mrs. Joe Joyner, first; Mrs. Lizzie Vandorfer, first runner-up; Mrs. D. M. Isaacwell, second; and Mrs. James Allen, third. Church clothes: Mrs. Lizzie Vandorfer, first; Mrs. Howard Moyer, first runner-up; Mrs. S. B. Luckert, second; and Mrs. A. D. Leonard, miscellaneous clothes: Mrs. Eibert Davenport and Mrs. E. C. Lewis.

Other taking part in the show were: Mrs. E. C. Case, Jr., Mrs. Jennie Johnson, Mrs. Willard Wooten, Mrs. Levi Worthington, Mrs. D. R. House, Mrs. Jamie Wilson, Mrs. Jarvis Tripp, Mrs. Lester Garris, Mrs. J. Aron Moore, Mrs. A. H. Stone, Mrs. W. K. Hanson, Mrs. R. R. Lyon, Mrs. C. B. Joyner, Mrs. Willie Kuehrew, Mrs. Fred D. Judges were Mrs. Nora Lee Craft, Mary Em Lee, Mrs. Eunice Casey, and Mrs. Lucille Mayo.

Winners in the recent 4-H dress revue were represented by Josephine Cusick, assistant county agent, who modeled their winning ensembles.

The old style clothes were collected by the Littlefield Home Demonstration Club. Mrs. R. Grady Smith served as pianist. Jeanette Gardner sang "There Are Styles."

The program yesterday at the Red Oak Community building was opened with the singing of "It's a Good Time to Get Together," led by Mrs. J. Paul Davenport. Mrs. E. C. Lewis, county clothing leader, welcomed the guests who were recognized by Mrs. Howard Moyer.

Strength for the Day

Nothing is more unfortunate for a child than to encounter circumstances early in life which turn his or her thoughts inward. This mental disposition once created may go on to plague and sometimes to ruin one's adult happiness.

The truth is that as long as we live in ourselves we live in the midst of an arid desert. People who start out solely to enjoy themselves and up by having no joy whatsoever. They soon develop a profound sense of injury. They harbor grudges and imagine all sorts of plots being laid to undermine their happiness, comfort and authority.

Frequently also such people get to worrying about their health, until they imagine that they are contracting successfully every conceivable disease. If they have plenty of money, they sink into idleness and spend a great deal of time thinking bitterly of how they are being imposed upon by parasites and robbed by excessive taxation.

You may be foolish enough to give your child a rattlesnake to play with, but do not be so foolish as to train him in such a way that his thoughts turn inward. For if he continues thus to brood over life, the biggest legacy in the world will not make him happy. Help him to turn his thoughts outward.

A Minute For An X-Ray; Time Well Spent

Something like 1,000 Pitt Counties each day are taking advantage of the opportunity to have their chests X-rayed in the mass X-ray program now going on in the county.

Mobile units are at work in various sections of Pitt and will continue their work through early June. The units were brought to the county under the auspices of the Pitt Tuberculosis Association and the local health department. Their purpose here is to X-ray some 38,000 people throughout the county in an attempt to detect tuberculosis cases.

It takes only a few moments to have an X-ray made. It cost nothing to the individual, and it could be of incalculable benefit.

The response to the mass X-ray program in the county in the first few days of the program has been encouraging, and we hope the response continues as good throughout the period the X-ray units are operating here. A minute for an X-ray is certainly time well spent.

Raleigh Boys Pack Up And Head Back Home

The curtain has been rung down on the 1953 General Assembly in North Carolina. The lawmakers have packed up their things, left Raleigh quiet, and headed back to their home communities.

Behind them, the lawmakers have left a flock of new statutes to go into the record books and literally tons of paperwork. They have discarded many proposed laws and regulations that a good many people thought should be enacted, and they have slammed through some laws which in all probability will not be in the best interest of the people of the state as a whole.

Probably the most notable achievement of the 1953 General Assembly is the record budget which has been adopted for the next biennium. The budget in itself is significant, but even more so is the fact that it has been undertaken without an increase in state taxes for the coming two-year period.

Before the General Assembly convened, there was a great popular demand for holding the line against state tax increases. In the governor's mansion and in the General Assembly there was a strong feeling that no new taxes should be put on the books. The General Assembly is over, and we have no new state taxes upon us.

It was a heated session in many spots and a session of the General Assembly that apparently lacked the leadership to get things done in an orderly, efficient manner. Individually, the capabilities of representatives compare favorably with those of past years. But collectively they couldn't seem to get their heads together. There was no one leader or one small group of leaders around whom the members would rally.

The state's public schools, educational institutions and mental institutions were provided for by the General Assembly through appropriations and bond issues—some to be approved by the voters.

The dry forces of the state were again unsuccessful in their attempt to bring the liquor question to a referendum although they apparently had more strength in this attempt than they have in the past several sessions. Even so, the legislative committees which considered the dry's referendum bill were unwilling to let it out of committee with a favorable report.

Then too, there was the question of secret sessions of appropriations committees which the General Assembly reinstated after going along for more than 25 years with the statute which required appropriations committees to meet in open session. The secrecy legislation was a blow to the people's ability to ascertain what is done with their money by the General Assembly, and the precedent set may be an even more serious blow to the peoples' "right to know" in the future.

All in all the General Assembly of 1953 accomplished many things. In doing so, in our opinion, they pulled a great many boners also. It will take some time before the entire session of the 1953 General Assembly can be summarized and evaluated.

From observations while the legislature has been in session, however, we would venture the opinion that the final analysis will show the '53 General Assembly far down the list of those which have been of great consequences to the state of North Carolina.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The Democratic opposition on Capitol Hill now believe that they have discovered President Eisenhower's weakness as a political leader and executive, and they are hitting directly at his supposed vulnerability. In their opinion, he is not too resolute, too positive or too sure of himself in his new role.

As evidence, they cite his backdown when a Senate group insisted on a more sweeping condemnation of the Yalta Pact than he wanted. He immediately abandoned the project. They note the publicly conflicting Eisenhower and Dulles views on a final Far Eastern settlement.

SPRIT OF COMPROMISE—They recall the White House repudiation of the Wilson program for narrowing the base of the war production plant and schedules. They have been impressed by his refusal to clash with or chastise Senator "Joe" McCarthy, including his mild spanking of Mutual Security Administrator Stassen for saying that the Wisconsin Senator was "undermining" foreign policy.

On major appointments, too, they think that they discern a spirit of compromise, if not vacillation. In several instances, he has been forced to pass over his original choices for important posts because the mere mention of their names had stirred intra-party controversy. He is so determined to satisfy influential personalities and factions that he seems to be susceptible to shifting sources of pressure.

TIDELANDS OIL RESOLUTION—This analysis of the President's character, whether it be accurate or merely imaginary, lay behind the long Senate filibuster against the oil tidelands resolution. Although the Federalists in this fight knew that they were waging a lost cause, they staged it solely for its psychological effect on the man in the White House as they measure him.

The states' rights philosophy behind the tidelands claim has inspired similar offensives by other groups. Pending before Congress are many proposals to dispose of all government property to private interests or to the states.

These include such holdings as power plants, mineral lands, national forests, Federal mortgages, etc. Many have Administration approval. It has become known as the "Eisenhower counter-revolution."

ATTEMPT TO FRIGHTEEN IKE—The demonstration against the Eisenhower-backed tidelands program, seen in this light was an attempt to frighten Ike. It was designed to make him waver and retreat from conservative Republicans' insistence on disposing of a maximum amount of Federal property and national resources. They draw some satisfaction because both the President and Secretary McKay have seemed to be irresolute and contradictory in statements on this issue.

The anti's have also demonstrated, although without success, against the naming of ex-Representative Albert M. Cole of Kansas as Federal Housing Administrator, ex-Representative Joseph E. Talbot of Connecticut as a Tariff Commissioner, and Edward F. Howray of Virginia as a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE—Talbot has shown himself as a high-tariff man in his House votes. Cole had fought most Federal housing measures. Howray has frequently appeared before Federal Trade as an advocate of big business.

Their opponents had no hope of blocking confirmation. Resorting to a military maneuver, they simply sought to force Ike to withdraw from his position as reflected in those appointments. Specifically, they aim to make him balance these selections with contrary-minded men in filling future vacancies.

The inspiration for this sort of psychological warfare is hardly complimentary to the President. But even some of his friends concede that he has invited this kind of flank attack.

TOBACCO GROWERS PAY-OFF—The normally solid farm bloc recently fell apart in a House controversy for the first time in years. Political rather than economic considerations accounted for the crackup, however.

The measure would have provided a $5,000,000 retroactive payment to tobacco growers in Southern Maryland. Last year they voted not to participate in the price support and acreage allocation program. But now, with the free market price 10 cents lower than the Government's loan figure, they have changed their minds. Secretary Benson backed the peculiar scheme.

Southern cotton members, however, charged that the pay-off was designed to re-elect the Republican incumbent in this normally Democratic territory. They joined with urban Democrats to defeat the proposal overwhelmingly, despite support for it from the Republican leadership and wheat growers. Benson's approval raised further doubts of the Administration's stability and determination.

Selected Short

CORVALLIS, ORE., GAZETTE-TIMES: "Perhaps the best suggestion for government loans to small business, is that the government should not make them, but guarantee them, as it now does loans to veterans. That was the recommendation of the Hoover Commission. Small business would get help, banks would get the business, and politicians and influence peddlers would be frozen out."

SHELDON, IOWA, MAIL: "The Post Office, despite all opposition, continues to print names and addresses on stamped envelopes for forty-four cents per thousand. A Congressman doesn't have to be a printer to realize no one could set type, get a press ready, and run 1,000 envelopes through it for that price."

"Liberalism implies freedom and individualism," writes Bob Munger in the American Student, official publication of Students for America. "... true liberalism stresses the dignity of the individual rather than the omnipotence of the state."

Keep that in mind next time you hear the term "liberalism" applied, as it usually is, to some plan for giving government more and more power over the individual citizen, at the expense of our rights, responsibilities, and freedoms.

No word has been more misused in recent years—none has been more distorted. The true liberal philosophy holds that government is the servant of the people, not the master.

I Can't Continue This Game

Somebody Told Me

By E. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

How does Tuesday's city election stack up at this point? It seems that there are going to be 17 councilmen instead of the required five. Every candidate seems to have a chance, which makes the job of predicting the election a difficult one.

One street-corner expert told me yesterday, "I don't care how qualified a man is," he said, "he absolutely will not have a chance unless he works." At least one candidate I know of has even made a door-to-door canvass of the city soliciting votes.

In elections you normally think of the candidate promising the voter the moon in order to get votes. But in this election it appears that the reverse applies. Greenville voters seem to be promising every candidate their vote. Therefore, somebody must be exaggerating.

This election seems to be a very serious one from all angles. In the High Point city election there is a candidate with a keen sense of humor. He's a used furniture dealer named Jake Harris. Jake is distributing a big card headed up "Vote! Vote for Jake Harris for City Council."

Then Jake outlines his platform:

1. Put some good common sense and used furniture in City Hall.
2. Give prisoners softer beds and fine food (charge $3 a night).
3. Get all the old mads married off this year.
4. Reduce taxes, lower grocery bills and dog license.
5. Make no promises I can't keep.

TRADING—Some of the shrewdest political horse-trading, beg pardon it's cow trading, ever witnessed around the capitol has been in progress for weeks over the milk commission bill and the signed to rearrange and increase the number of judicial districts and to establish a commission with power to regulate production and distribution of milk had passed the Senate, where a lot of trading was charged, and come to the House calendar for the same day. The milk bill was displaced in favor of the judges bill. An amendment to that measure had the effect of substituting a previously passed House bill for extra judges without extra districts, which had been killed in a Senate committee.

He was adopted by admitting one challenger vote and by the Speaker breaking a tie. The amended bill passed second reading but third reading was objected to, so it went over for a day.

COWS—That one vote margin and the fact that the milk bill was still to be considered and was expected to be very close in number of votes afforded ideal trading points for both sides in each matter. So far as your reporter was concerned an actual deal was made in which a judge was traded for a cow, but there was many humorous quips about it. The situation occasioned re-telling the story about former Governor Cameron Morrison's famous wisecrack that "one pedigreed bull is worth three county commissioners."

Whether a judge or a cow had more value around Raleigh Wednesday depended upon the degree of interest in the milk bill or the judges bill.

SERIOUS There were also many rumors about more serious trading, with charges that appointments to good State jobs were being dangled before legislators who were reluctant to go along with the House idea for no re-districting, which apparently has had full endorsement of Governor Umstead. As this is being written the chances are good that some adjournment will come before the judges matter is settled, and the same system of 21 regular, 8 special and a few retired emergency judges, will be continued for at least two more years.

TESTIMONIAL—The House of Representatives took a few minutes time-out from a busy period to pay tribute to Rep. Bruce Etheridge of Dare county, who first came to the Legislature in 1903—fifty years ago. The rules were suspended to permit immediate adoption of a resolution by Rep. Joe Hunt of Guilford citing the numerous public services of the 74-year-old statesman, affectionately called the "Duke of Dare," and for the sergeant at arms, Cousin Wayne Spruill, to present a medal in behalf of an unnamed friend attending the long service.

INCONSISTENT—Consistency is said to be a jewel, and it is a rare one around legislative halls. Previous sessions have authorized votes on the sale of alcoholic beverages in some very small communities. The current session has declined to do, except in one instance. Two towns using every candidate their vote. Obviously Jake is using the campaign as a medium of advertising his used furniture business. Admittedly, it's a cheap form of advertisement. Old Ray Boyd of Pinetown is known all over the state for running for Senator or Governor on various occasions. It's the cheapest advertising he could possibly get for his hog farm down in Pinetown.

Even though the injection of a little humor into the campaign would be enjoyable, it's gratifying to know that Greenville is dead serious about this job of selecting qualified councilmen. Be sure to vote Tuesday.

And I thank you.

BLACKJACK—Another peculiar thing about the authorization that any election would ever be called. Some of the people on the Banks wanted the law to use as a blackjack to force a few unsavory beer and wine outlets to close. It was intimated that while existing statutes may be ample for the purpose, enforcement of them on Hatteras has been difficult, and the added threat of an election is expected to encourage officials to enforce the law and operators of the so-called joints to obey it.

SECURITY—That joint appropriation subcommittee which had so much trouble holding secret meetings ought to take lessons from another group—ships on Hatteras Island, with aggregate population of about 500, were accorded the right to vote on the sale of beer and wine. These beverages are now sold in Hatteras and Kinnakeet townships, so the effect of the act is to give the right to vote them out. The Assembly which has been accused of being dominated by the liquor interests thus decreed that one small community may vote to ban the sale of beer and wine, but in three other instances had voted not to allow larger communities to vote on establishment of ABC stores. Proposals for such votes in Blowing Rock, Lake Lure and Valdesa had been killed.

My wife arrived in Paris on a Saturday night on her first trip abroad. Our Paris state had an important softball game scheduled for Sunday and they were short one player.

Bright and early next morning a voice shouted outside our hotel window: "Mrs. Boyle, can Boyle come out and play with us?"

Frances turned and looked at me in utter disbelief. "The team really needs me, dear," I mumbled. I jumped into my clothes and ran out quickly. Well, it was a tough game, but we finally won 6-to-5 in a late rally.

The team, hot and sweaty, all came back to the hotel, and we fought the game all over again as we celebrated with champagne. Frances just stared at me in silence. When the other players left, I saw the expression in her eyes and said lamely: "Honey, I knocked in the winning run."

"Do you realize," she answered, "that you are probably the only man in history heartless enough to desert his wife on her first morning in Paris just to play an old softball game? I still don't believe it."

And I know what she will say when I tell her I have retired from the game.

"Rover, as far as I am concerned you can go right on playing until you break all the bones in your silly head. A girl can only have her first morning in Paris with you and you made me spend it alone."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—The industry of American women workers, and the way they dress and manage their homes and still hold their own with men workers, have made a big impression on a group of Austrian women trade union leaders visiting the U.S.

Goals of women workers of both countries seem to be the same, according to two of the women, Genevieve Brown-Elliott, Mrs. Rosa Weber, secretary of the Women's Department, Federation of Austrian Trade Unions, and husky, humorous, blue-eyed Gertrude Warnock, head of the Women's Department, Austrian Textile, Garment and Leather Workers' Union.

"We want to teach our women they can fulfill their place in society," said Mrs. Weber, who represents some 350,000 women workers in the Federation's 16 member unions. "We strive for better vocational training, protective legislation and equal rights. We've already made considerable headway."

Equal pay for equal work is already achieved in principal, she said. For white collar workers and municipal and government employees there is only one wage scale for both sexes. Excellent maternity protection is also provided for all except domestic workers. The maternity law came into effect in 1937, when women were being drafted into industry.

"We want to draw more women into the unions and make them strong," Miss Warnock said. "We want to see employment provided for all workers. Last winter it was bad. In times of unemployment women are the first to lose their jobs."

Mrs. Weber and Miss Warnock, both 33, are from the Russian zone of Austria. They say the people as a whole stand behind their elected government, are free to move from zone to zone, have more fear of the Russians than of the Communists whom the Russians are backing.

Miss Warnock says 42 per cent of the Austrian voters are labor people. Of the 16 members of Parliament, labor has 73, of whom eight are women. The Austrians, who are here under sponsorship of the Mutual Security Administration, have spent six weeks at Bard College, N.Y., and in New York City, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago and Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Mrs. Weber, whose husband works for the Municipal Gas Works of Vienna, worked up to her present job through the Union of White Collar Workers, by whom she was first employed in 1946. Miss Warnock was a worker in the ladies garment industry in the fashionable Karntner Strasse, Vienna's "Fifth Avenue," until she was bootlegged out for union activities.

Business Today

The emphasis on new materials, new machinery, new wrappers and new products at the recent packaging exhibition in Chicago stole the spotlight from a phase that's growing more vital—the size and shape of packages.

Today, size and shape can have as great an effect on sales and costs as materials used, the packaging method or the design and colors.

Sales of many products are stimulated by appearance in various package sizes. Small portions have increased sales for a variety of products, including facial tissues, milk, breakfast cereals, candy, sandpaper and tea (in bags). It's no paradox that larger packages also help move merchandise. Economic-size bread, cereals and soaps have their special appeals.

But some lines can suffer from too great a variety in size. Variety for the sake of novelty may confuse the buyer and thus delay purchases. Also, inventory problems and expense of packaging can offset a sales advantage.

Proportions are important. A package can be made to look bigger than it is. King-size cigarettes, for instance, contain little more tobacco than regular sizes—but they look like a lot more. A pound of coffee in a bag takes more space than a pound packed in a tin; still, the tin looks larger.

Proportions are now being tailored to display needs. Most retailer's space is so highly valued that merchants have little patience with products that are too wide, too high or too deep. The odd shape that doesn't stack well is another element that frustrates dealers in this era of self-service.

There are exceptions. Unusual packaging for an old product can be a boon—girdles in tins, for instance, or beer in cans instead of in bottles. Points to watch for are the expense of special machinery required for unusual packaging and probable market acceptance for something different.

Subdividing a product within the package can increase its appeal. Butter, and in many states, margarine, is sold by the pound but wrapped in the more convenient quarter-pound size. Bakers offer crackers subdivided into four separate packages. Cooking chocolate is packaged into four sizes within the larger carton.

chocolate is packaged in table-spoon sizes within the larger carton.

Manufacturers of products that can be sold in small and inexpensive sizes are giving greater attention to five-and-ten-cent store outlets and sales through vending machines.

Pricing strategy is an element of packaging planning that needs constant consideration. A slightly smaller package that can sell for 98 cents instead of 41.03 gets more customers simply because consumers are more inclined to part with 98 cents than with $1.03, even though they may get the same amount, penny-for-penny.

Candy makers found this out and many, hit by rising costs, merely reduced the amount of candy in a bar rather than boost the price to 4 or 7 cents where it would encounter greater consumer resistance. That there are no fixed rules on this point—as in most package planning—is indicated by the fact that here, too, some candy manufacturers successfully meet this pricing problem by going at it the opposite way, by jacking up the content and increasing the price to 10 cents.

BAIT ADVERTISING SCORED BY ABBB—The Association of Better Business Bureaus has reaffirmed its stand against bait advertising and selling practices—particularly in the new and used vacuum cleaner and sewing machine fields. Its recommendations include:

1. A specific appeal to sewing machine and vacuum cleaner manufacturers to eliminate such practices;
2. Consideration by the bureau of possible new legislation and amendment to the advertising law;
3. Referral of all findings on bait advertising to appropriate agencies for suitable action, and
4. Preparation of a publicity package on bait advertising and selling practices suitable for local bureau use designed to protect consumers from unfair, costly and unwarranted practices.

NEW PRODUCTS KIT: A fishing equipment kit that contains "everything but the fish" is being introduced by Walco Products Co., 2300 W. 49th St., Chicago 9, Ill. It can also double as a store display for alert merchandisers.

Building the Church at Ephesus

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 18:23-21:14

St. Paul asked the Christians in Ephesus if they had received the Holy Ghost? They said no. Asked by what baptism they were baptized, they answered, "John's." Paul baptized them in Jesus' name and they received the Holy Ghost.

Paul preached boldly in the synagogue at Ephesus and then in the school of Tryannus. God wrought many miracles by his hands, so that even pieces of his wearing apparel were taken by the sick and they received healing.

So powerful was Paul's preaching that all Asia heard of Jesus, and those that practiced magic arts brought their books and burned them publicly, counting the price as 50,000 pieces of silver. "So mighty grew the word of God."

Paul felt he was directed to go to Jerusalem. He warned his followers that they would probably never see his face again. He knelt and prayed with them, then tearfully they kissed him goodbye. MEMORY VERSE—I Corinthians 3:11.

Building the Church at Ephesus

THROUGH PAUL'S TEACHING, ALL ASIA HEARD OF JESUS CHRIST

Scripture—Acts 18:23-21:14

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. ONLY A few scattered villages remain on the site of the once great Greek city of Ephesus in Asia Minor, in which place Paul spent three fruitful years on his third (and last) missionary journey.

There are still the remains of the great temple of Diana and some other ruins which were once great buildings.

The very first verse of our lesson today tells of a Jew named Apollos who was an eloquent man and full of the scriptures. You remember in our last lesson we were introduced to Paul's friends and fellow Christians, Aquila and Priscilla. Hearing Apollos speak in the synagogue, these two realized that he only knew of the baptism of John the Baptist.

Aquila and Priscilla took him to their home, therefore, and instructed him more perfectly in the ways of God. Apollos became a very useful man by publicly showing by the scriptures that Jesus was Christ.

In Ephesus Paul found certain disciples, and he asked them if thus burned amounted in our money to about $5,500.

Ephesus was the center of the worship of the Roman goddess, Diana, and pilgrimages were made to her great shrine. During these pilgrimages silversmiths made and sold silver images of the goddess to the pilgrims, making a good profit thereby. There was a guild of such silversmiths. Through Paul's preaching so many were converted to Christianity, that the sale of these statuettes fell off so alarmingly that one of the outstanding men of the guild called his fellow workers together, telling them that Paul preached that there were no gods made with hands.

The whole city was filled with confusion, and great multitudes rushed into the vast theater and began shouting, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." They caught two of Paul's disciples, Gaius and Aristarchus, and took them into the theater. His friends would not allow Paul to enter. The town clerk, evidently a person of importance, quieted the confused multitude and dismissed them.

MEMORY VERSE

"For other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ."—I Corinthians 3:11.

they had received the Holy Ghost, and they said, "We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost."

"Unto what then were ye baptized?" asked Paul. They answered, "Unto John's baptism." "Then," said Paul, "John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people, that they should believe on Him, which should come after, that is, on Christ Jesus."

So Paul baptized them in the name of Jesus and the Holy Ghost came upon them. For three months Paul spoke boldly in the synagogue, but when some hardened persons spoke evil of his work he departed and for two years disputed daily in the school of one Tryannus. Special miracles were wrought by God through Paul, so that such things as handkerchiefs, aprons, worn by him were taken to the sick and they were healed.

Superstition flourished in this city, and hearing of Paul's success in casting out evil spirits, certain exorcists thought to do the same by calling the name of Jesus. The seven sons of the chief of the priests did so on one man possessed of such a spirit. The spirit said to them, "Jesus I know, and Paul I know, but who are ye?" And the man so possessed sprang from his bed, leaped on the impostors and so wounded them that they fled naked.

Many so-called magicians heard of this episode, both Jews and Greeks, and all were afraid. Many believed and confessed, and they brought many of their books of magic and burned them in a great bonfire. The value of the books

No great time later Diana had not one worshiper in Europe and Asia, while the followers of Jesus Christ were numbered in the millions.

We can mention only briefly the miracle that Paul performed over the body of the young man who went to sleep in a window and fell "from the third loft," and was taken up for dead. Paul brought the young man to life again.

After three years in Ephesus in which time he did a tremendous work for God, Paul felt he was directed to go to Jerusalem.

He journeyed to Macedonia, Greece, Troas and Miletus. From there he sent for elders of the church at Ephesus, and they came to him. To them he gave a resume of his life as a Christian preacher and teacher: "Serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and with many tears and temptations, which befell me by the lying in wait of the Jews: And how I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, but have showed you, and have taught you publicly, and from house to house."

Then he told them that he was going to Jerusalem, "not knowing the things that shall befall me there." And he said that in all probability they would never see his face again. He commended them all to God, and told them to remember the words of the Lord, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

He then knelt down and prayed with them, and all wept sore and kissed him, "sorrowing for the words which he spoke, that they should see his face no more."

BY Jimmy Ellis

After going this far without being bothered by wet weather, the East Carolina College Pirates stand a good chance of having a game postponed because of the rain.

As this is being written, the prospect of playing today's scheduled game is mighty slim. The heavy rains of yesterday afternoon and last night have thoroughly soaked the college diamond and the cloudy weather of early morning isn't helping to dry the playing surface at all.

The game today with Guilford can be made up if it has to be postponed. The Quakers are coming back to Greenville next Wednesday and its possible that neither of the teams will lose any ground in their chase after the league leading Elon Christians.

Flight now, the Pirates stand the best chance of catching the Christians. They have a 7-3 record in conference play and have been playing lately (the last two games) as they have not played before this year.

If the heavy hitting which has characterized the last two contests can be continued until next week when the two games with Elon are scheduled, then the Pirates might have a good chance of overhauling the defending champs. One strike against the Pirates, though, is that they haven't been able to hit anything in the two games thus far with Elon and both of the contests were played on the East Carolina diamond.

The rainy weather puts an ironical twist to the situation, the Pirates are facing. When the season first got under way the Bucs were unable to reach their peak as early as they wanted to because of the coldness that persisted throughout late March and early April. Now that they're in shape, they can't take full advantage of it because of the rain.

The Pirates have several hot candidates for All-Conference positions this year. Perhaps the most outstanding of the lot is second baseman Cecil Heath, one of the unsung heroes of the team.

Heath is one of the leading hitters on the team and there's not a second baseman in the league who can match his fielding ability.

The little sophomore from Wilmington stepped right from the basketball floor to the diamond, too, without a great deal of rest. But he hasn't been adversely affected a great deal.

Perhaps the best tribute that can be handed Heath came last week when the Pirates were going through their pre-game workouts prior to playing Elon. Jim Mallory, the boss man of the Christians and a fellow who has been in the baseball world for a long time, pronounced Heath as "one of the best I've ever seen."

He's a money player, that Heath is. He'll come up there in the clutch and break your back.

Another leading All-Conference candidate is third baseman-outfielder Gaiter Cline. The slugging sophomore from Gastonia has been one of the more consistent hitters on the team and both his batting and fielding has been outstanding.

Jimmy Byrd, the ace righthander from Kinston, is up for consideration again along with W. C. Sanderson, first baseman from Seven Springs. Both Byrd and Sanderson were members of the All-Conference squad last year along with the graduated Fred Soles.

The Pirates have had a strong team this year but, as baseball teams will, they've had their bad days. They've got six chances to make up for those bad days, though, and give serious challenge to Elon for the conference crown.

Greenville's negro semi-pro entry in the Carolina-Virginia League will finally get its season underway Sunday. The Giants will meet Bayboro in Guy Smith Stadium in a contest scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m.

Both teams have had impressive records in exhibition games thus far and both stand to be among the stronger teams in the league this summer.

Native Dancer To Find Out What He Will Run Against

By LEO H. PETERSEN
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—Native Dancer, never beaten in his racing career, will find out today what he has to beat to win the Kentucky Derby on Saturday.

It looked like 11 other three-year-olds would be named to compete against him but only four of them were given a chance to bring his brilliant string of 11 straight triumphs to an end.

They are Correspondent, whose chances were enhanced because Eddie Arcaro will be up on him; Royal Bay Gem, a stretch-running horse who seldom has been able to get going soon enough; Dark Star, winner of the Derby trial; and Straight Face, a son of Count Fleet who was one of the best horses ever to win the Derby.

In addition to those Invictor, Sky Defense, Money Broker, Ram O'War, Social Outcast, Ace Destroyer, and Curragh King are expected to be entered.

The hope was that the task of the 11 others was hopeless, for Native Dancer has looked so well and done so well that he was 1 to 2 in the early Derby line.

Correspondent was considered his chief threat at 4 to 1. One reason the California speedster was the second choice in the probable field was because Arcaro will be riding him. The banana-nosed king of the jockeys has won five Derbies more than any other rider, and as a result his mount always draws a lot of support. But there is more than the Arcaro sentiment going with Correspondent. He won the Blue Grass Stakes at Kennebec, Ky., and has shown a lot of speed. No one will know until after the Derby at a mile and a quarter.

Game Scheduled
If weather permits, East Carolina College's Pirates will go after their eighth North State Conference (Eastern Division) victory today on the East Carolina diamond.

The Pirates are scheduled to meet the Guilford Quakers at 2:45 on the college diamond but yesterday's rains may have made the playing field too wet. If the contest is called off, then it will probably be made up as part of a doubleheader that could be played on May 6 when the Quakers are in town again.

East Carolina currently has a 7-3 record against conference foes.

Jones Wants Win Over Jim Herring

NEW YORK (UP)—Ralph (Tiger) Jones of Yonkers, N. Y., will be seeking revenge and a higher ranking in the middleweight division when he faces Jimmy Herring of Ozone Park, N. Y., tonight in a return 10-round bout at St. Nicholas arena.

Jones, currently ranked No. 9 in the middleweight class, is a slight favorite to reverse a setback at the hands of the clever, fast-punching Herring last summer.

The nation's television fight fans, still disturbed over last week's mismatch between light-weight champion Jimmy Carter and Tommy Collins, should be treated to a more even battle tonight. Jones is a rugged, hard puncher, while Herring depends on speed and a good left hook.

In their first meeting, Herring gained the decision by outboxing the Yonkers "Bulldog" at a Brooklyn fight club.

Grimesland Wins Against Bethel

GRIMESLAND—Grimesland High School ran its Pitt County Conference record to seven wins against two losses here Wednesday afternoon by swamping the Bethel Indians 17-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Gaskins.

With Bobby Andrews hitting four-for-four and Billy McRoy getting three-for-three, Grimesland started scoring almost as soon as it got a chance and never let up. The biggest part of the scoring, however, was done in a big third inning when Grimesland got 12 big runs.

Three Bethel pitchers gave up 17 hits in losing the contest. Grimesland's next home game will be Monday when Winterville comes to town for a Pitt County Conference contest.

Preacher Roe Feels Good; May Win 20 Games Again

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—There was bad news today for the rest of the National League as unpretentious Preacher Roe allowed that he "might win almost 20 games this season."

"I feel that good, anyhow," drawled the man who is known as Elwin to the folks back in Ash Flat, Ark. "I'm heavier and stronger than I was last season and feel like I can pitch every fourth day, for a while, anyhow."

The reason for the Preacher's slow smile and optimistic words is that his "spring miseries" are behind him.

It seems that almost every spring, or during the winter, something happens to the Preacher. Once it was a skull fracture suffered while refereeing a basketball game. Somebody didn't like the way the Preacher called fouls and popped him so hard that his head couldn't withstand the resultant contact with the hardwood floor.

Last spring, as another example, the Dodger squad was progressing well in spring training when a photographer asked Roe to demonstrate how to hit the dirt in the sliding pit. The affable Preacher did, and strained his back.

It bothered him all season and the best he could do was appear in 159 innings. His record was a misleading 11 victories against only two defeats. Actually he completed only eight of the 27 games he started.

"Sometimes the boys got me off the hook by scoring some runs after I had been taken out for a pinch hitter," he said. "They won some for me that way and later managed to pull out others that looked like they were lost."

It was quite a comedown from the previous year of 1951 in which

Youngsters Star In Yank Victory Over White Sox

By CARL LUNDQUIST
NEW YORK (UP)—Fred Haney, Pittsburgh's "Pollyanna" who insists the Pirates aren't as bad a ball club as a lot of people think, rode the express elevator up to Seventh Heaven today because of a two game winning streak.

What is so exciting about two straight wins? Well, that just equalled the longest winning streak of the 1952 Pirates, so if the Bucs could just win again today from Cincinnati, there would be dancing in the streets out Pittsburgh way.

Rookie Frank Thomas broke up Thursday's game with the Cubs, hitting a two-run homer in the ninth to give the Bucs a 4-2 triumph. The kid right fielder also hit a grand slam homer last week to provide a victory over the Giants.

Moreover, the Pirates are building a reputation as a team that rallies late and in the clutch—usually hall marks of contending clubs. They were behind until the eighth when they tied the count on doubles by pinch hitter Johnny Lindell and Carlos Bernier. Then Thomas delivered his homer after loser Paul Minner gave up his only walk of the game to Danny O'Connell. Minner drove in both Cub runs with a triple. Elroy Face, the little right hander Pittsburgh picked up in the baseball draft meetings from the Dodger organization last winter, was the winner in a relief role.

In other National League games, Bobby (Hero) Thomson hit a ninth inning homer to give the Giants a 1-0 decision over the Braves; the Dodgers made it four straight victories with a 7-4 series sweep over Cincinnati, and the Cardinals-Phillies night game at Philadelphia was halted after five innings because of rain with the scored tied at 1-1. All the action counts in the official averages, but the game must be replayed completely.

The Yankee youth movement took over in a 6-1 victory at Chicago that featured steady eight-hit pitching by Whitey Ford and a homer, triple and single by rookie outfielder Bill Rema, who was making his first big league start.

In the only other American League game, three-hit pitching by Virgil Trucks and Bob Elliott's three-run homer in the seventh gave the Browns a 3-1 night triumph over the Washington Senators. The Philadelphia at Detroit game was rained out and Boston and Cleveland had an open date.

DETROIT: Pat Manal, 147, Syracuse, N. Y., outpointed Al Andrews 153, Chicago (6).
NEWARK, N. J.: Felix Redondo 137, Bayonne, N. J., stopped Jim Scalero, 137, Stamford, Conn. (5).

American League Boss May Levy More Fines

CHICAGO (UP)—American League President Will Harridge, who Thursday imposed the heaviest mass fines in league history, may get a chance today to levy another imposition.

The victim this time probably will be Chicago White Sox Manager Paul Richards, who objected vehemently Thursday to a ruling by Umpire Jim Duffy which gave Mickey Mantle, the youthful star center fielder of the New York Yankees, his fourth home run of the year.

Mantle's ball apparently hit the wall in left center field, about halfway to its top. And as Mantle pulled up at second base, Duffy waved him around to score the first run of the game.

Then Richards went into action, apparently jostling Duffy severely in making his protest. The action ended with Richards waved out of the game and with the Sox manager waving "down with Duffy" as he headed for the dugout.

"There was a kid in the first row of the bleachers who caught the ball in his hands," Duffy said, "and he dropped it right to the top of the wall. So it had to be ruled a home run."

Richards didn't see it that way, and said he guessed he was thrown out of the game "on general principles."

Duffy refused to state whether his report to Harridge would accuse Richards of pushing or jostling him, but all the indications from the umpire as well as his working mate, Bill Grieve, were that Richards will be so accused.

Harridge probably will deal roughly with the Sox manager, if such jostling is charged as baseball rules prohibit such action. Harridge levied the first fines of the 1953 season Thursday, imposing a tab of $250 on St. Louis Browns catcher Clint Courtney, $250 on Yankee infielder Billy Martin and Browns infielder Bill Hunter, and $100 each on Yankees Allie Reynolds, Gil McDougald and Joe Collins.

The impositions came from a 10th inning fist fight involving the players at St. Louis Tuesday night.

Softball Meeting

Managers of teams which play in the summer softball league will meet at the Armory tonight at 7:30.

Plans for the coming season will be collected and starting date and plans for regular season play will be discussed. Each team is requested to have at least one representative at the meeting.

Rangers' Goalie Wins Calder Prize

MONTREAL (UP)—Lorne (Gump) Worsley, the New York Rangers' tiny but talented goaltender, won the Calder Memorial Trophy today as the National Hockey League's 1952-53 Rookie of the Year.

The five-foot, seven-inch, 145-pound Worsley was honored by a close margin over left wing Gordie Hanigan of the Toronto Maple Leafs by a panel of 18 writers and broadcasters, three from each NHL city.

Worsley 23, started the season in the Ranger goal because Chuck Rayner was sidelined by a leg injury. But the rookie did not impress while tending goal in 15 of New York's first 16 games and was sent down to Saskatoon of the Western League for more experience.

When Rayner, in turn, failed to play up to his old standard, Worsley was recalled again on Jan. 7 and performed brilliantly in the Rangers' hapless cause. During the last 33 games of the season, "Gump" yielded only 2.67 goals per game.

FALL RIVER, MASS.: Tony Anthony 151, New York, knocked out Johnny Brown, 156, New York (2).
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.: Luther Rawlings, 147-1/2, Chicago, stopped Andy Anderson, 146 1-3, Indianapolis (5).

Douglas Shares Golf Lead

MEXICO CITY (UP)—Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., shared the lead, with a 35-year-old Mexican caddy at the start of second round play today in the Pan American golf tournament.

Margarito Martinez, a husky bag-toter from Mexico City, and Douglas each turned in three-under-par 69's in Thursday's opening round to take a commanding lead over favored Ben Hogan and other stars from north of the border.

Hogan, the center of a dispute which found some U. S. players "boycotting" the tournament, opened with an even-par 72. But the tiny Texan was not the only player who experienced trouble over the tough Mexico Golf Club course.

Art Wall Jr., of Pocono Manor, Pa., was the only other contender to break par. Wall shot a one-under-par 71, which left him two strokes back of the leaders. Tied with Hogan at 72 were Chandler Harper, Johnny Palmer, George Dickinson Jr. and Augustin Martinez, a brother of Margarito.

Fred Haas Jr., got off to a good start with a 34 on the front nine but wound up with a 73, which tied him with Tommy Bolt, Jack Harden, Marty Furgol and Douglas Higgins.

A lifelong resident of Greenville, sincerely interested in the welfare and progress of Greenville and its Citizens.

ROYCE JONES For COUNCILMAN

I wish to restate my sincere opinion that the City Manager-form of government can not be successful unless the City Manager has a chance to effect savings in the Greenville Utilities Department. The Fire Department, Street Department and Police Department have very little revenue, but our Utilities Department represents Big Business, and the real savings to be made by the City Manager will have to come within that department.

I submit, for your inspection, a statement of the contributions of the power plant of Kinston, which operates under the City Manager, to the various departments and agencies. This statement is furnished each taxpayer in Kinston.

THE FOLLOWING IMPROVEMENTS WERE FINANCED FROM THE PROFITS OF THE KINSTON POWER PLANT WHICH ELIMINATED THE NECESSITY OF INCREASING THE TAX RATE TO PROVIDE THESE SERVICES TO THE COMMUNITY:

THE STRAW DONKEY CASE

By A. S. FLEISCHMAN

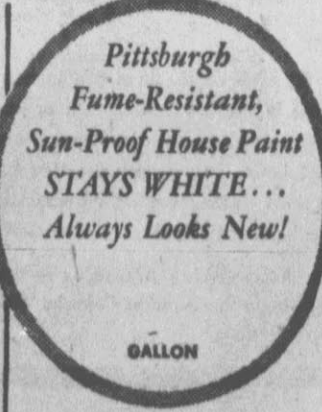

Chapter 20
"Oaks got to his feet. 'Well, I just thought maybe I could help.'
'Look, there is something you can do. Got your car in town?'
Oaks nodded.
Give me a lift to Point Loma. I left my car out there."
Oaks smiled. "That's not what I had in mind, but come on."

"This guy I tailed for you, Oaks, asked. 'He mixed up in this?'
'Y-ah.'
'I happened to run into him at the bank yesterday afternoon.'
Brindle's head shot around and the throbbing made his eyes spin.
'What bank?'
'San Diego Trust and Savings.'
'What time?'
'About two-thirty.'
Suddenly the key made sense. Why hadn't he realized it before? A safe deposit box!
Oaks stopped alongside Brindle's coupe parked across the street from the Ranson home. 'Thanks, Paul,' Brindle said, getting out. 'That tip meant something to me.'
He sped back to town, left the coupe in the lot and strode hurriedly to the San Diego Trust and Savings Bank. In the foyer of the vault room, he waited while a middle-aged blonde behind the record desk checked the signature of an old woman who was irritated at the formality.
She tore a printed slip from a pad. 'Sign, please.'
Brindle pushed the slip aside. 'I found a key,' he said. 'I think it belongs here.'
'What's the number?'
'Four-thirteen.'
She turned to a Cardex file and nodded. 'You a boy scout?' she asked. 'You're saving this guy three bucks.'
'How so?'
'We've an appointment to drill his box tomorrow. Lost both keys. 'What time?'
She studied him with amusement. 'Let's have the key.'
Brindle straightened with mock bewilderment. 'What key?'
'I thought so. What are you—a dick?'
'Eleven o'clock.'
'The guy's name Durst?'
'No,' she purred. 'Ranson.'
Brindle stared at her. The wheels started round in his head again. 'Do you believe in ghosts?'"

Broom And Mat Sale Set

A door-to-door sale of brooms and door mats will be conducted by members of the Greenville Lions Club next Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Lion Club President Bruce Sugg, in making the announcement of the drive dates, stated that all parts of the city will be covered in the two-night sale by the Lions.

However, he pointed out that in the event that someone desiring a broom or mat are not at home at the time a salesman from the Lions arrive, they may call any member of the local club and the broom and mats will be placed in reserve for them.

Both the brooms and door mats are items made by blind persons in the state. Cost of making the brooms, included in the selling price of the items, will go to the blind for their work and time. Other money cleared under the two-night sale will go for work of the local Lions Club.

Thirty teams of two men each will cover different sections of the town on Monday and Tuesday nights. Sugg announced, starting sometime after seven o'clock.

The brooms to be offered for sale are on the average two inches longer than most brooms offered for sale at market prices. They are made of kiln dried corn (straw) which prevents stitching from getting loose as well as preventing the corn twisting on the handle when it gets dry after being used in a warm house.

Three coats of lacquer on the handle prevents warping, splitting and will not harm small children who might teethe on the handle. This has been used instead of paint as paint would cause lead poisoning of small children if they teethe on it.

The door mats are of strong and rugged construction and will hold up under rough usage.

Still Lacking In Investigate Two Acreage Reports

The county office of the PMA today disclosed that a number of farmers operating under the Federal Crop Insurance program have not filed their acreage reports for 1953.

James T. Meredith, committee secretary, pointed out that since all have been notified of the tobacco allotment for this year, it is necessary for the insured to file their papers with the PMA office.

The Federal Crop Insurance sales campaign which closed Saturday, April 25, was reported to have been a complete success.

While striving for a goal of 2500 members, the final unofficial tabulation shows that approximately 2200 members were signed. This is the highest number of insured under the program in the past three years.

In this respect, Pitt led all counties in North Carolina in sales of new applications during the last week of the crop insurance program with a total of 357.

Fingerlings Are Placed In River

Pitt County Game and Fish Protector J. O. Teel and specialists from the North Carolina Wildlife Commission released 600,000 fingerling rockfish in Tar River yesterday.

The baby fish were released in the river in the vicinity of Falkland. They were sent her from the state hatchery on Roanoke River near Weidon.

Release of the young rock was a part of an extensive program of restocking inland North Carolina streams, Teel said.

Capitol Square

(Continued from Page 4) the other group can be located. It seems that the meeting of North Carolina State Senators, which Marjorie Hunter, legislative reporter for the Winston-Salem papers, said was to select a committee to urge Senator Willis Smith not to run for re-election was so secret that even those supposed to attend didn't know anything about it.

The Winston-Salem Journal carried a front-page feature story Tuesday telling about plans for the meeting, without mentioning names of persons or places. No other capitol reporter knew about it and at least a dozen Senators of those most likely to be involved on basis of past experience and political affiliation denied knowledge of any such movement.

Senator Smith's office at Washington didn't know about it, nor did any of several Raleigh people interviewed and who were in position to know about such things if they happened.

PROPAGANDA—The primary in which a United States Senator for a full 8-year term will be nominated is just 13 months away. The time for filing notice of candidacy is less than 11 months off. So it is time for propaganda to begin flowing. Ever since the 1950 primary in which Willis Smith defeated Senator Frank Graham, who had been appointed by Governor Kerr Scott, it has been recognized that the 1954 race would be in many respects a continuation of the 1950 campaign. Many people have assumed that former Governor Scott would run against the incumbent Senator. The current propaganda course is to confirm that impression and to add the idea that Smith cannot win.

POLITICS—Senator Smith is not a politician in the generally accepted meaning of the term, which is a glad-hander and a promoter of everything any segment of the people say they want. Therefore many of these accusations to that method of campaigning honestly think he cannot be re-elected. There are others who just as honestly doubt that he really wants to stay in the Senate. On the other hand, events of the past few weeks indicate that Kerr Scott may be less interested in the Senate than he was a year ago and that he may be more interested in coming back as Governor in 1956. At least, it is an interesting situation.
