City Registration Books Close With Late Flurry 7,275 Able To Vote

By JESS POINDEXTER, Reflector City Editor. As a result of activity recorded during the past registration period which closed in Greenville Saturday, 7,275 voters now are eligible to ballot in tomorrow's municipal elections.

6,325 white voters registered and 950 Negro voters registered. Interest High. Officials at both the City Hall and the Pitt County courthouse attribute the marked interest among Negroes in the election to the fact that one of their own race, William M. Myers, is a candidate for a seat on the new City Council.

Campaigning on the part of the 17 candidates vying for election has been rather extensive during the last few days, with many candidates resorting to newspaper and radio advertising. Others have adopted a direct mail campaign and some few are carrying on a door-to-door campaign.

Hand Beckons For Aid

Volunteers rush atop smoking debris following a chemical plant explosion at Peabody, Mass., as the hand of a victim, later identified as Francis Donovan, trapped in the wreckage beckons for help. Donovan was first sighted by Donald McCormick (left) and AP Staff photographer J. Walter Green, who made this picture and the one below it. In the lower photo McCormick (center), aided by other rescue workers carries Donovan from the smoldering wreckage. Donovan was one of 25 injured in the blast. There is one known dead. Reds Told To Accept Or Face Parley Break-Up Compromise Offered

By LEROY HANSEN, United Press Staff Correspondent. PANMUNJOM Korea (UP) — The United Nations told the Communists today to accept Pakistan as neutral custodian of Korean prisoners or face another break-off of truce talks.

"Time in these discussions is fast running out," Harrison said. "Are you prepared to accept Pakistan as the neutral nation? If not, we have no further issue to discuss with you."

President Sees Limit To Foreign Aid Reduction Will Send Solons Warning

By JOHN L. STEELE, United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower will warn Congress this week that a $1,800,000,000 spending cut is all the foreign aid program can absorb without jeopardizing free world security, informed sources said today.

budget and clear the way for tax relief, Republican leaders have eyed the foreign aid program as one of the few places where major savings can be achieved.

President Cites 'Tremendous Responsibility' Governors Given Briefing

By DAYTON MOORE, WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower today told governors of 45 states and five territories, gathered here for an extraordinary briefing on security and peace problems they must shoulder a "tremendous responsibility" for national welfare.

Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, led off for the administration with a report on the world situation as summarized from the files of his super-secret organization.

Mr. Eisenhower cancelled his usual Monday morning meeting with Republican congressional leaders to welcome the governors at the opening of the extraordinary two-day conference.

Says New Restrictions Playing Into Red Hands Dulles Against Trade Curbs

By RE XCHANEY, WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles told congressmen today that placing new restrictions on the reciprocal trade agreements program would play into Soviet hands.

12. "Our political, our security and our economic interests mesh," Dulles told the House Ways and Means Committee. "The fact is that the ability of other free countries to resist Communist aggression and their willingness to unite with us on certain common security policies depend largely upon their economic well-being."

Hunts Bodies Of 9 Lake Victims

HELENA, Mont. (UP) — A diver made ready today to search the chilly waters of Canyon Ferry Lake for the bodies of nine persons believed drowned when their small boat overturned.

The lone survivor, Mrs. Ed Akins of Helena, lost her husband, five children and parents-in-law in the mishap yesterday.

Lawmaker Urges Permitting Limited Usage Would Legalize Wire-Taps

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. Kenneth E. Keating (R-N.Y.) urged Congress today to legalize telephone wire-tapping for tracking down spies and saboteurs, but to ban its use for any other purpose.

He said in opening hearings on the problem by his House Judiciary subcommittee that such legislation offers the best solution to a "hopeless muddle."

He is sponsoring a bill that would permit FBI and intelligence agents working on a "national security or defense" case to intercept any telephone, telegraph or radio message once they have obtained a court order to do so.

Record Tax Collection In March Is 'Disappointing'

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Bureau of Internal Revenue reported today it collected a record $10,275,000,000 in federal taxes during March — always the year's biggest collection month.

Individual income tax collections for the month totaled $3,026,000,000. The decline will make it harder than ever for the new administration to balance the budget and clear the way for tax cuts.

"Spur-of-the-moment acts, designed to help particular interests, without regard to the whole, will not in the long run be beneficial," Dulles said.

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — Lt. Gen. Glenn O. Barcus, commander of the 5th Air Force, has flown more than a dozen Sabre jet missions over North Korea while announcing his presence to Red pilots by radio; it was revealed today.

South Koreans Protest Resumption Of Panmunjom Talks

MAIDENHEAD, England (UP) — Mrs. Mercy Coffee observed her 101st birthday Sunday and received as a gift from the municipal government one bottle of gin and one ounce of tobacco.

"This is General Barcus speaking," he said. "I have a message for you from the 5th Air Force. These little attacks today against military targets in the Pyongyang area are our response to your insulating propaganda lies over the Pyongyang radio."

Jaycees Again Plan For Beauty Contest

MISS GREENVILLE, 1952, Miss Patsy Smith (above), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Smith of Eastern Street, Greenville, was declared winner of the Jaycee Beauty Pageant last year and represented Greenville in the State Pageant last summer at Winston-Salem. Now a student at East Carolina College, Miss Smith received a scholarship as first prize in last year's contest.

Greenville Jaycees again this year will sponsor an entry in the Miss North Carolina Beauty Pageant to be held in Morehead City during the month of July.

Entry blanks for a preliminary contest to select a local representative, who will bear the title of Miss Greenville in the State contest, will be held next Friday night, May 8.

In addition to receiving an expense-paid trip to Morehead City for the State pageant, Miss Greenville also will receive a college scholarship and a number of valuable prizes.

The number of entries in the local contest will be limited to 12, and Bob Ross, general chairman of the local pageant, said the rules of the Miss America Pageant will apply to the Greenville contest.

Ross explained there will be three phases of the contest: an evening dress competition which will determine a contestant's poise, a bathing suit competition to determine beauty of face and figure; and a three-minute talent presentation to decide excellence in talent.

A contestant must be between the ages of 18 and 28 as of September 1, 1953; and never have been married, divorced or had a marriage annulled.

The Greenville contest, to be conducted in Austin Building on the

About Ready To 'Write Off' Peace Offensive

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — American officials are about ready to write off Russia's "peace offensive" as just another piece of Communist trickery.

The hopefulness about the world situation that prevailed in this capital a few weeks ago has all but vanished in the face of the new Communist aggression in Indo-China, continued stalling on a Korean truce, and a general lack of Soviet response to President Eisenhower's April 16 challenge to prove a will for peace with "deeds."

Officially, the Eisenhower administration is still clinging to the hope that the Kremlin's new leaders mean business about wanting to ease world tensions. Willingness to meet the Russians half way if they show the slightest evidence of sincerity remains a basic tenet of U.S. foreign policy.

But officials find it increasingly difficult to put any stock in the once plausible-sounding theory that Stalin's successors want a genuine settlement with the West.

Instead, there is a growing suspicion among them that Russia's real motive is to fling the West into prolonged "peace" negotiations that would slow down Western rearmament programs without producing any important Communist concessions in the cold war.

If that is the Communists' game, they were guilty of very poor timing in unleashing the current attack on the kingdom of Laos in Indo-China. This swiftly-paced invasion has shocked and alarmed American officials, who fear it may be aimed at bringing all southeast Asia under Communist control.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles denounced the "ruthless and unprovoked" attack in a statement Saturday, and revealed that new U.S. aid is being rushed to the French and native defenses.

Concern over the situation spread to Congress, where Chairman Dewey Short (R-Mo.) of the House Armed Services Committee said the United States should hit Communists "with everything we've got" if it looks like southeast Asia will fall to Red force. "We cannot allow southeast Asia with its rubber and rice to fall into Russian hands," he added.

DEAR VOTERS,

As a candidate for the City Council, I want to express my views on the questions that I believe are uppermost in the minds of Greenville citizens:

The qualifications that I would use in selecting a city manager would be education and experience.

I will definitely support the present health program, the sanitation laws now on the books, and any future plans that will lead toward better health in Greenville.

I am positively in favor of the contemplated bond issue for schools.

I believe the public utilities should be under the City Manager.

Because of my interest in the present and future of Greenville, I am definitely in accord with the present recreational programs and the plans for future expansion.

From my observation I know it would be advisable to have a qualified attendance officer for the city schools.

Your vote and support will be appreciated in the coming election.

Strength for the Day

FIRST AND SECOND FIDDLES
A few evenings ago I sat watching a group of musicians tuning up their instruments, and chatting gaily with one another before the orchestra concert, and I fell to wondering how much frustration and disappointment this scene represented. None of these players realized when he started to take music lessons that he would end up playing a second violin or plucking bass strings. No doubt the fond parents who sacrificed to have them take lessons dreamed of the day when their boy would be a virtuoso, some day he would stand before audiences and thrill them. I felt that the person who probably experienced the greatest frustration was the concert master. He was almost a conductor, but not quite. He missed distinction by an inch.

And yet how different are these musicians from all of us? Thirty, forty, fifty years ago we were going to set the world on fire. We were going to make a million dollars or paint great pictures or write literary masterpieces.

Well, here we are today, pushing along the little grooves where life has placed us. And as a matter of fact, why not? Is the orchestra conductor any happier than his concert master? The second violinists are probably as happy as the first, and the fellows who pound bass strings are happy as the concert pianists.

Day Of Decision For Greenville Voters

Tomorrow is a day of decision for the citizens of Greenville.

It is a day when the voters of the city will determine what five men from the field of 17 candidates will serve on the city council as a board of directors for city affairs for the next two years.

In the normal course of affairs in any two year period there are many important matters which must be resolved by municipal officials; there are many complicated problems which must be studied thoroughly and decided upon in the best interest of all the people.

Added to those pressing burdens, the five men elected tomorrow to Greenville's city council will have upon their shoulders the responsibility for coping with all difficulties which may be faced in the transition from the aldermanic form of government Greenville has had, to the new council form of government which becomes effective Wednesday.

The responsibility for selecting the five men from the field of 17 to serve on the city council is the sole obligation of the voters of Greenville, individually and collectively. It is a task which each registered voter must shoulder individually and not leave to a neighbor to do.

The Reflector urges each of the 7,000 registered voters in Greenville to go to the polls tomorrow and cast his ballot for the five candidates he feels will best serve the people of Greenville as members of the city council. The larger the vote is tomorrow, the more representative it will be of the desires and wishes of the people of the city as a whole.

There has not been an election in many, many years more important to Greenville's future than the one tomorrow. It is an election which demands the thought and the action of every voter in the city.

In the interest of good government and continued progress for Greenville, tomorrow's election behooves every local citizen to cast his ballot. Voting is not only a coveted privilege, but a grave responsibility.

Who "Went Astray" In The Presidential Election?

Let's get this little matter straight right now before the patchwork begun on a "family squabble" leads to more misunderstanding and a wider breach than we had to start with.

Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell has extended a welcome "back into the party fold" to Southerners whom he says strayed to the Republicans in the last Presidential election.

In effect the new national chairman is saying the party is willing to forgive and let the wayward brethren come back home. We suppose the only stipulation would be that they come back into the party and behave.

Actually, who should be welcoming back whom?

As we understood the breach in the Democratic ranks last year, it was caused by the fact that a large part of the party leadership veered so sharply away from the fundamental principles of the party that a good many Southerners — and Democrats in other sections of the nation also — chose to cling to the principles of the party foundation rather than to the wayward leadership which appeared. If some of the more radical factions of the party had held sway in the national convention, most of the Southern delegations would have been read out of the party.

As it was, most of the Southern Democrats bit their tongue and held the party ground. Mitchell has said the Southern wing of the party more than paid its way in the form of funds contributed to the last presidential campaign. A glance at the election returns will show that the South contributed the lions share of electoral votes to the Democratic candidate.

Had it not been for the Democrats in the South, the Democratic party would have suffered an almost complete collapse at the polls last November 4.

Instead of coming South to woo "errant party members" back into the fold, Mitchell probably could more profitably spend his time reiterating to the ultra liberals among the Northern Democrats the fundamental principles of the party, and urging them to adhere to these principles if they wish to continue a part of the great political organization.

The South was by no means the Black Sheep in the Democratic party fold last fall, and we don't believe the National Chairman should in any manner insinuate it was.

WASHINGTON—Although Manokov has shown signs of calling off the cold war, he has aroused new suspicions of his sincerity by launching a trade war that is designed to cripple or seriously weaken the economies of the United States and its European allies. He is dumping his goods at cut-throat prices which private, profit-making producers outside the Red orbit cannot match.

Taking quick advantage of the high-tariff trends of Congress and the Eisenhower Administration, Moscow has removed many of Stalin's restrictions on imports and exports from and to non-Communist countries. At a recent world trade conference at Geneva the Red delegation virtually tore down the iron curtain insofar as it applies to commercial transactions.

Although the Russians have made only slight inroads here, a House Agricultural subcommittee has uncovered evidence of an attempt to undermine our key potato industry, which is essential to production of food. As a result, the State Department has been asked to make a full investigation of this trade offensive in this country and Europe. So far it has been a hush-nush operation.

RUSSIAN PLAY FOR TRADE—Our European allies cannot ship strategic war materials to the Soviet without forfeiting American financial aid. But there is no bar against exchange of peacetime goods, which Europe cannot sell here because of high-tariff walls or inability to meet domestic competition.

It is this kind of trade for which the Russians are making their present play. In return, Moscow will furnish products sorely needed in the West—food, timber, metals, farm equipment, etc.

Full or partial restoration of East-West commerce means far more to the Reds than economic or financial gain. It would make her customers more dependent on Russia than the United States, perhaps to the degree of dispensing with our handouts.

All dictators, as Hitler demonstrated, regard trade as a weapon in total war. By cutting off vital supplies, they are able to weaken or cripple their enemies, or to force members of their trading enemy to remain neutral. By this means Der Fuehrer kept Italy and the Balkan nations in his clutches. They had given him too many economic hostages.

EXPENSE ALMOST NIL—Russia's totalitarian system enables her to engage in this kind of basic warfare at hardly any expense or sacrifice. Communist industries, as state monopolies, need not cover costs of production, pay taxes or show a profit. They operate and market their goods at the dictates of the Kremlin.

Thus, they manipulate prices, terms of payment and shipments on the basis of military considerations. They have used these tactics against the seemingly invulnerable potato industry, according to data in the files of the House Agricultural subcommittee. As evidence of the importance of this product, 170 pounds of it are needed for each acre that grows 300 bushels of potatoes annually. It is the food behind—or beneath—our food.

Nations dependent on Russia for this commodity would starve, if it were denied them.

THE POTASH MARKET—In 1950, for instance, potash in this country was in desperately short supply because of a strike at Carlsbad, N. M. Incidentally, as another possible arrow to the Reds' bow, the strike was staged by the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, which was later expelled by the CIO for being under Communist domination. Russia had never shipped potash here before the 1950 strike.

Profiting from the dispute, the Russians sold 65,000 tons of potash at East Coast ports for from $3.40 to $5.10 a ton. Now, with American production and imports sufficient for domestic needs, they are laying it out along the Atlantic Coast for as low as $2.70 a ton. That is less than the cost of production and transportation from the fields in New Mexico, Texas and Kansas. In World War I, incidentally, with German supplies cut off, the price rose to $500 a ton.

INVESTIGATION DEMANDED—American refiners and the farmers themselves would not buy this fertilizer, if they knew that the profits were helping to kill American boys in Korea. But the stuff is exported through the free port of Hamburg, and identifying marks are removed in transit somewhere. Thus there may be many other articles reaching this country by the same surreptitious route.

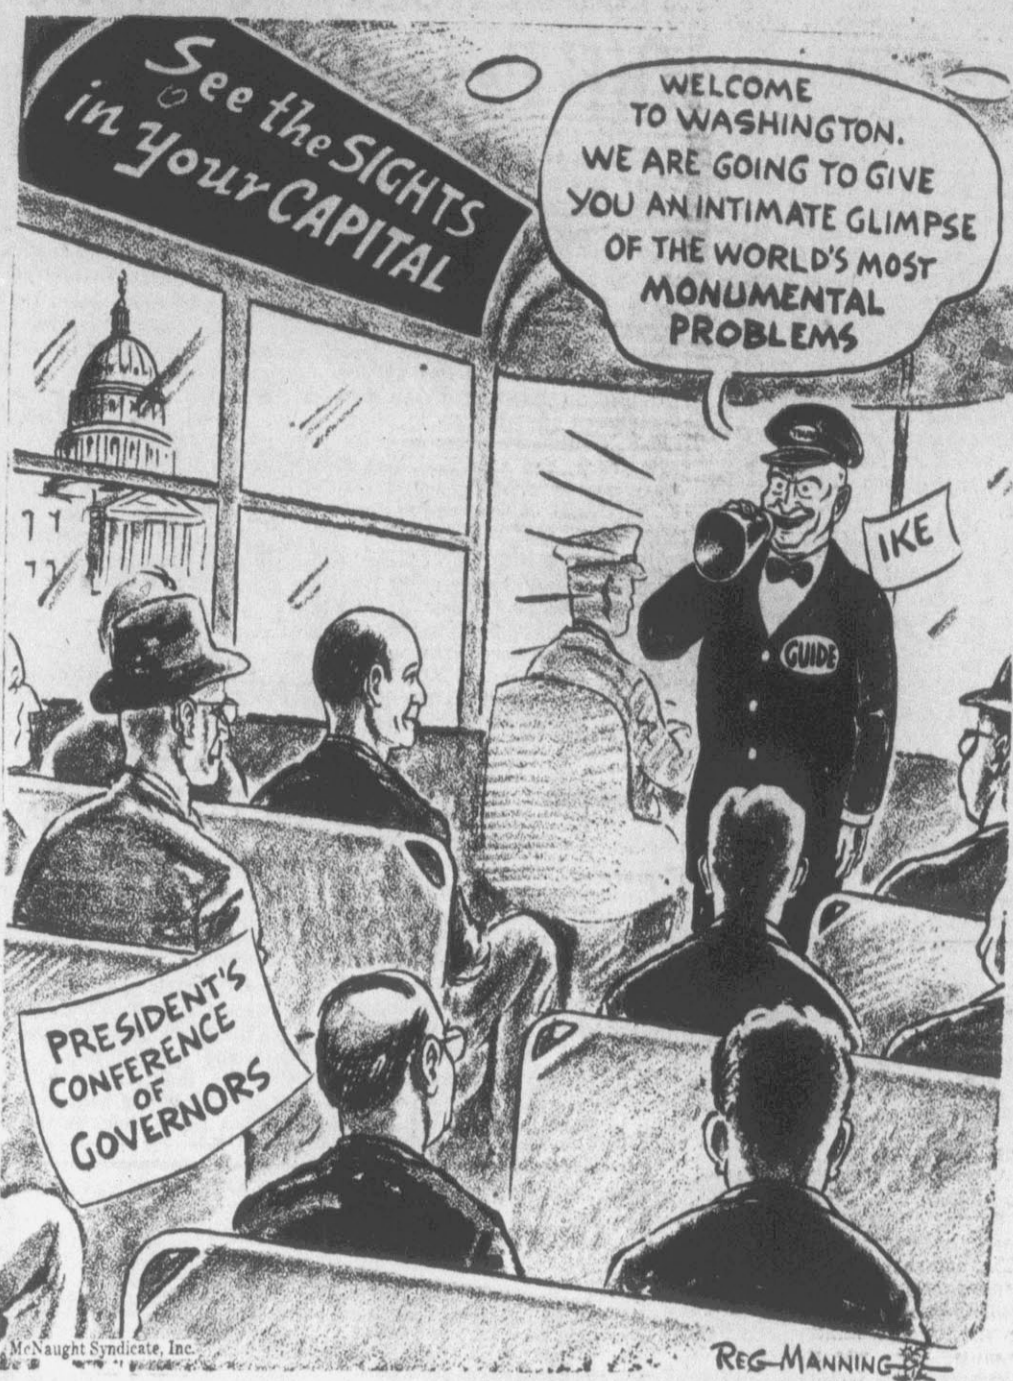

In view of this clever and covert attack on the industrial and agricultural resources of the non-Communist alliance, interested M.C.'s insist on a thorough, worldwide inquiry by the State Department.

The cause of freedom has been hearteningly advanced by a recent Supreme Court decision unbinding a Virginia law which lays down the principle that the right to work may not be denied either because of membership or non-membership in a labor union, and which makes illegal any agreement between an employer and a union barring a non-union worker from a job. The Court held, in effect, that any state has the legal authority to pass such a law.

Of this the Bedford, Virginia, Bulletin said: "No more important decision regarding the rights of the individual was ever made by the nation's highest court."—Industrial News Review RUNNING—There is no doubt about it, Senator Willis Smith is running for re-election. In a letter to Staley Cook, editor of the Burlington Times-News, and released for general publication, the junior Senator made his intentions clear. There is much more convincing evidence that he will be in the race and that he expects a contest. He has asked the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh to be used by his campaign organization in 1950 for the 1950 campaign. The semi-formal announcement contained in the letter to Editor Cook and the reservation of headquarters space would seem to remove any doubt about the Senator's intentions.

OPONENTS—The advance reservation for campaign rooms also indicates that Senator Smith anticipates opposition. As of now there is considerable uncertainty about who will be his principal opponents. There have been rumors that State Senator John D. Larkins Jr. of Trenton is casting wistful eyes toward the United States Senate. Harold Cooley, congressman from the fourth district, has been frequently mentioned as a possible candidate. Information from usually reliable sources is that Cooley is not interested.

SCOTT—Recent developments tend to remove former Governor Kerr Scott from the list of senatorial candidates. Opinion grows that Scott is looking toward 1956 and return to the governorship rather than to 1954 and the United States Senate. An interesting sidelight on that situation is the rumor that Scott may come out with an endorsement of Smith for the Senate in the hope that he might thus obtain support of the Smith folks for governor in 1956. That is not as unlikely as some casual observers might think. One of the handicaps Smith had to overcome in his race against Senator Frank Graham three years ago was the prevailing belief that he had supported Scott for Governor in 1948. Governor Scott, having appointed Graham to the Senate, was forced to give him all the support he could—which wasn't enough to keep him in office—even at the expense of going against another man who had supported him for Governor.

AROGANCE—Senator Smith in his letter to Editor Cook took cognizance of the story appearing in the Winston-Salem Journal under the by-line of Marjorie Hunter, legislative reporter for that paper, about a group of State Senators selecting a committee to call upon him and advise him to get out of the race in favor of John Larkins. He expressed surprise that any small group, even though they are members of the State Senate, assuming to arrogate to themselves the right to select a United States Senator. He said he would be glad to see any individual or any delegation from North Carolina any time listen to their suggestions—and then make up his own mind. He added that he could not be scared out of the race for the Senate by any suggestions or threats from minority groups.

ANOMALOUS—Fact is Senator Smith occupies a sort of anomalous position in North Carolina politics. The office dictionary defines anomalous as "deviating from the common order." That definition fits the junior Senator to a T. He had built up a lucrative law practice as a corporation lawyer and had served as president of the United States Bar Association before going to the Senate. That would seem on the surface to brand him as an ultra conservative. But—as a freshman member of the house of representatives in 1927 he supported liberal Dick Fountain for speaker, and he supported liberal Kerr Scott against conservative Charlie Johnson for Governor in 1944, after having backed candidates in previous elections who were rated as liberal rather than conservative. In the election last year he supported the straight Democratic ticket all the way, but was criticized for his refusal to join in castigation of General Eisenhower and other Republican candidates, and for his refusal to endorse the Stevenson statement in favor of giving New England textile mills preferential priority for government contracts over North Carolina manufacturers. His votes in the Senate have been cast generally for State rights as opposed to Federal control over such items as race and labor relations, control of coastal areas and kindred items.

ELECTION—Next year's primary and general elections may have some unusual features. The big stake will be a seat in the United States Senate. Of almost equal importance in the affected districts will be the races for the national House of Representatives and for membership in the General Assembly. It is quite likely that result of the election to be held later this year on $50 million bonds for State aid in school house building and the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court on the segregation question will have considerable influence on next year's voting. Introduction of the racial issue into the 1950 primary certainly had some effect on the outcome, although the relative amount of influence has not been debated. That question will not have as much effect next time, because whichever way the high court rules the decision will tend to remove the matter as a political issue.

ISSUES—On national level the issues will involve Federal and foreign policies, rather than domestic matters. In contests for the Legislature and county offices the issues will include State debt, the biggest in history, deficit spending and the matter of necessary increased taxes or slowdown in government services. Already there are indications that the "secrecy law" might be an

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS IMPORTANT AFFAIRS (Rocky Mount Telegram)

There's much of importance to these races for seats on the Board of Aldermen or the race for mayor. And such contests are in prospect all over North Carolina now. The real meat of the proposition, though, lies in the fact that the activities of approximately two million Tar Heels will be directly affected by the laws that the successful candidates for these municipal offices will be concerned with in the years ahead.

Lynn Nisbet, chief of the Bureau of Afternoon Dailies in Raleigh, points out that elections scheduled to be held in some 300-odd North Carolina cities and towns along about now will intimately affect nearly half the four million people living in the State. United States census reports indicate that approximately one-third of the population is urban, meaning one-third of the people live in towns and cities of more than 2,500. There are more incorporated towns with less than 2,500 than with that or more population, so it would appear that something like half of all North Carolinians live "in town" and will be directly affected by municipal elections of mayors, aldermen, commissioners or councilmen—depending upon the type of local government in force.

Majority of these municipalities hold elections on Tuesday after the first Monday in May on odd numbered years. B special acts some of them have other dates, and there are a few which have elections in even-numbered years. The fact is that approximately half of the people in North Carolina will be governed for the next two years by local municipal officials elected sometime between April 1 and June 30 of this year. The significance of these local elections is frequently overlooked. It is the rule rather than the exception for a small minority of the registered voters to participate in the elections. Yet, as has been pointed out on numerous occasions by speakers at meetings of the N.C. League of Municipalities, the town government is closer to the people than any other level.

North Carolina has just one governor. It has an even 100 sheriffs, and between 5000 and 6000 county commissioners. There are 14 members of the national Congress—two senators and 12 representatives. There are 170 members of the General Assembly—50 senators and 120 representatives. But there are more than 1,500 municipal aldermen, commissioners and councilmen with power to enact ordinances regulating the activities of some two million North Carolinians.

TAX INTERPRETATIONS (Wilson Times)

We can't for the life of us understand some of the interpretations of our tax collectors. No matter from what source our income stems, we must pay if we've shown gains in the course of the year. But Senator Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin settled a libel suit the other day, receiving $16,500 in an out-of-court agreement, and it's been ruled tax free. It was not money he had earned, the revenue department of Wisconsin held, but was payment for "injury to a man's character." Therefore, that department said, it was tax free. However, any way you want to look at it, it was income. That is, McCarthy was $16,500 richer at the end of the year than he was at the beginning of the year. At least, he had that much more to spend on himself and his family. Why, then, would it be tax free? Don't all of us, in the course of our daily work, suffer "injury to a man's character"? And can't we, consequently, claim that what we earn is tax free. It would be a boon to many of us who feel that, because of taxes, we're forever stripped of our cash. We simply can't spend a lot of paper wealth.

To qualify, perhaps, we should prevail on our bosses to withhold our pay, compelling suit. If, then, the boss settled out of court, would it not be in return for "injury to a man's character"? If in that way we could evade taxes, it might make the lawyers rich; but we could well afford to pay their fees out of the taxes saved. Would the same ruling have been handed down if McCarthy hadn't been a Senator? We sometimes wonder. Do the various revenue departments of the state have one program for a Senator and another for the rest of us? For income is income, regardless of where it comes from.

The Atomic Energy Laboratory at Oak Ridge is using radioactive phosphorus to find out which surfaces are most readily cleaned and what kinds of dirt and bacteria are most easily washed away.

The American Journal of Public Health reports that the radioactive material is fed to bacteria, a Geiger counter and X-ray film tests give, for the first time, a sufficiently accurate means for determining the effects of cleaning methods.

In one series of tests it was found that hard surfaces, such as glass, china and stainless steel, permitted better cleaning with 97 to 99 per cent of bacteria removed. Identical washings removed 56 to 91 per cent of bacteria from materials with softer surfaces.

This is the latest indication of the wide application nuclear research may eventually have in civilian use. Such tests could bring important improvements in clothes and dishwashing machines, detergents, eating utensils, food packaging and public health.

Another application of the new science to commercial problems will be the Department of Agriculture's use of radioactive materials to study the habits of insects, the effects of insecticides and insects' resistance to insecticides.

The two new outlets for atomic energy by-products can be considered "tracer" applications—similar to the petroleum industry's use of radioactive isotopes to trace particular chemicals or elements during a chemical process or to monitor the flow of liquids through pipes.

Other civilian applications of atomic energy include the much debated use as a power source, treatment of cancer and other diseases and the possibility of "cold" sterilization of foods.

The extent and variety of the commercial use of atomic energy and its by-products will increase rapidly as more information becomes available. And the initial cost, which weighed heavily on taxpayers, will be more than repaid.

MIDDLE AGED ARE PRIME MARKET AIMS
The belief that middle-aged persons constitute the best market is supported by figures published by the Bureau of Advertising, ANPA.

Twenty-seven per cent of those between 45 and 65 years old earn more than $5,000 yearly, compared with 21 per cent of those younger and 9 per cent of those older. Sixty-two per cent of middle-aged family heads earn between $1,000 and $5,000 compared with 70 per cent of those younger and 55 per cent of those older.

It is likely that the earning power of the middle group would appear even stronger if the breakdown were under 40, between 40 and 60 and over 60, since the younger group figure was probably strengthened by the high earnings of those between 40 and 45 and the middle group weakened by those between 60 and 65, whose earnings power had declined.

One company, at least, is aiming at the older-person market. This month Todd will introduce its Silver Curl, a long permanent designed especially for white or gray-haired women.

OPPORTUNITY FOR PERFUME MAKERS
People can recognize at least 10,000 odors but only 30 levels of intensity. This information does not come from a biologist or physiologist, but from a physicist, Dr. Raymond G. Hainer. He told a Conference on Basic Odor Research Correlation that since identification of different smells depends on various combinations of the reaction by 24 neurons in the human nose, some 16,000,000 different odors are theoretically possible. Actually, various factors reduce this to about 10,000 distinct odors.

NEW YORK (AP)—Most men spend their lives trying to learn to do one thing well.

Sherman Frank ("Big Red") Cruise, who broke his pocketbook in the Bronx on his own account and later busted his back in Burma for Uncle Sam, doesn't fit in any simple pigeonhole. It is hard to figure something this gusty, six-foot, 250-pounder hasn't tried — and done well.

"I guess racing has been my real business," he said. "The thing I love are speed, money and machinery."

"I like playing with an engine more than anything else in the world, but you can't make real money getting your fingers dirty, so I turned to promoting."

"Big Red" is one of the first two men to pioneer midget car racing in America and at 47 is one of the key figures in the nation's auto racing industry. "Of course, it's fast and dangerous," he said, grinning. "But I have promoted more than 500 races since the war—and there hasn't been a driver killed in one yet."

"Big Red" has always enjoyed living life at full throttle. He trained as a Navy flier at Pensacola, studied banking, engineering and economics. He went into Wall Street, made a fast buck, and got out before the 1929 boom fell apart.

Then he became a speedboat, hydroplane, and airplane racer and set a few records.

"In 1933 I started promoting midget car racing in the Bronx," he recalled ruefully, "and in two years dropped $168,000."

But "Big Red" always seemed to know where the greenbacks grow. By 1942, when he volunteered for war service, he was bossing 14 racing tracks.

"They shut down the tracks in seven days," he said. "The Navy turned me down as a flier, so I walked across the street and signed up with the Army Air Corps."

As a photographic pilot, Cruise flew in every war theater from Kiska to Burma, helped map Brazilian jungles and air-scouted beaches for the African and Sicilian invasions. While flying the "Hump" in 1945 he ran out of gas, parachuted and broke three vertebrae. It took 12 days for the rescue party to get him back to his base.

"I walked the first nine days," he said, "but couldn't stay on my feet the last three."

During a 17-week recovery period in a hospital near Miami, while awaiting discharge, he had a yacht basin built.

Today "Big Red" owns the yacht basin, a spurk plug business a 65-foot yacht, auto racing tracks at Allentown, Pa., and Washington, D. C. — and other oddments. He has logged more than 15,000 miles in the air, but no longer will take a plane up, and prefers to drive his $10,000 Jaguar sports car.

"I can fly any airplane in the world except the jets," he said. "But I stopped flying more than a year ago. Just scared stiff. Quit cold. Lost too many friends over the 12 years I flew."

"Now I'm just an old man who loves to live quietly in the country and take it easy in a 145-mile-an-hour sports car. And I'm getting so cautious I've only had it up to 120."

"Big Red" has two promotional dreams left. Next June he plans to pit 25 American stock cars against 25 foreign cars in a 200-mile race in a closed mile dirt track at the Langhorne Speedway near Philadelphia.

"I think the foreign sports car boys are turning into stuffed shirts," he said. "I'd like to see what they can do against Detroit stock models in a real race."

The other dream of "Big Red" is to build a non-profit "museum of speed" at Daytona Beach, where kinds can be permanently exhibited. For this purpose he bought the late Sir Malcolm Campbell's record-breaking vehicle of all famous five-ton "Seabird" racer.

"I also want to put in the museum an engine that will run forever," he said. "It never has been done. I bet it can be."

"Big Red" says the museum will be his last promotion, and hopes it will stand as a monument to the love of his furious life speeding men and machinery.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Next to an embassy tea or a garden tour, one sure-fire way to interest Washington women in a project, be it a benefit or a business, is to give them a fashion show.

Fashion-conscious Mamie Eisenhower, Pat Nixon, wife of the vice president; Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French ambassador, and top hostesses like Mrs. Morris Cafritz have lent their names and presence to any number of showings for charity and politics this spring.

A comparative newcomer to the capital scene, Cecile Naton, wife of a naval aviator, Capt. M.A. Naton, dreamed up a showing of local fashions to attract women to noon-day dining in a newly-opened restaurant, Billy Martin's Carriage House, in the old Georgetown section of Washington.

Handsome young Billy Martin, owner of the place, didn't lack for customers. The original Martin's, on the corner up the street, was established by his late father and still caters to a colorful clientele.

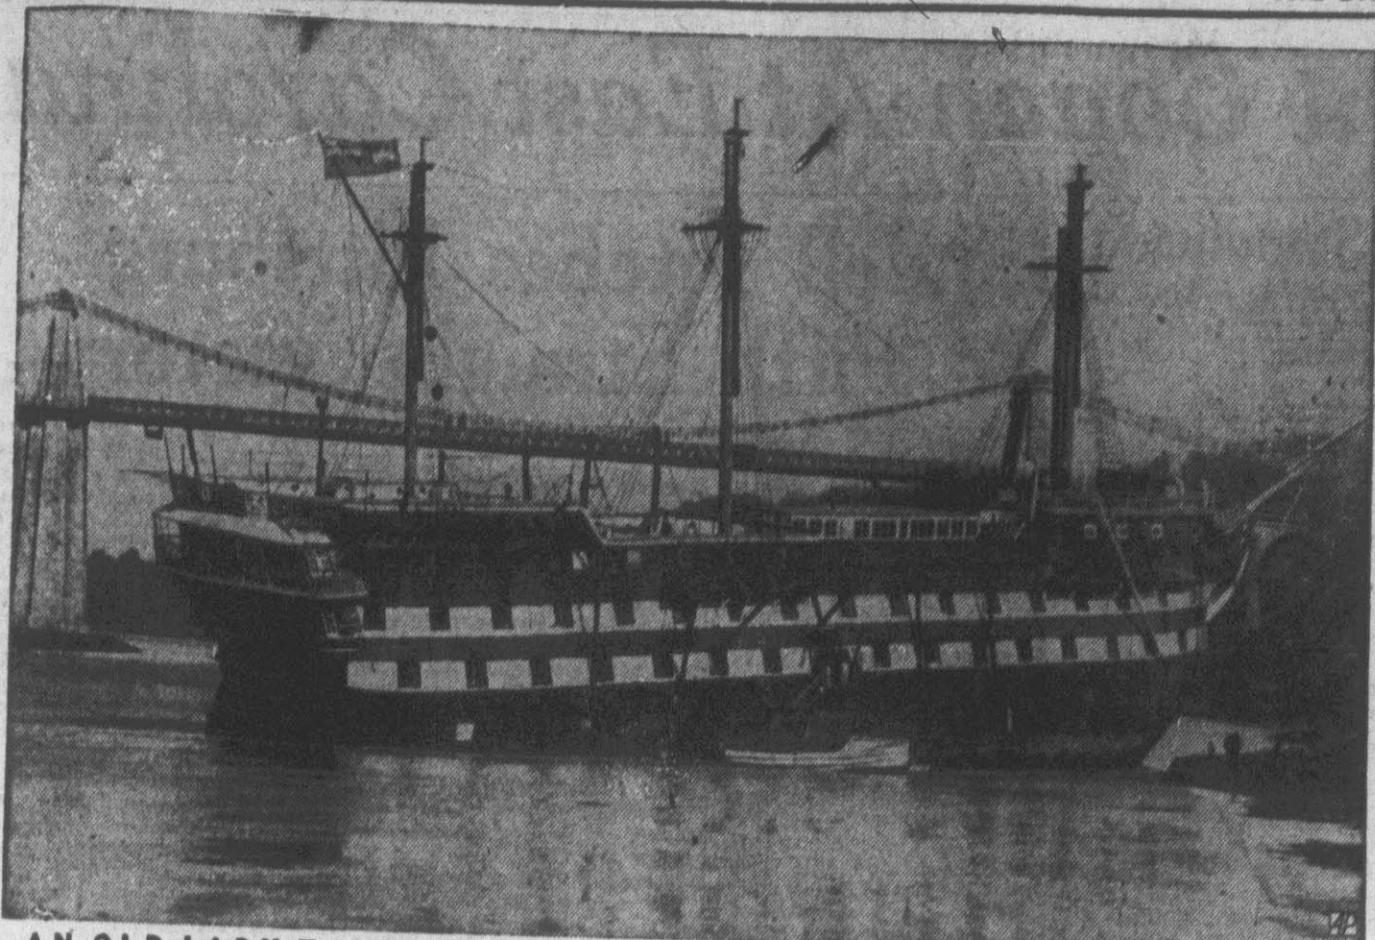

To a colorful clientele. Frequent diners include former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Justices Vinson, Frankfurter, Douglas and Black, Speaker Sam Rayburn, Sen. John Kennedy (D.—Mass.) and Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt (D.—N.Y.), as well as many screen stars Myrna Loy and Christine Griffith. Martin didn't care these customers, nor did he ever lean over backward to "butter them up."

There was no swish about the old place, and the crowd still stands in line and takes what's dished up. The new $225,000 Carriage House boasts furnishings once used in the residence of James Monroe's estate at Leesburg, Va., a 35-foot solid mahogany bar once used in Schlied's hotel, which occupied the premises from 1870 to 1900, and two lamps from one of President McKinley's carriages.

Mrs. Naton, chic and attractive Californian, a journalist and former advertising woman, is a wizard at whipping up fashion shows. Wherever she happens to "light" — whether it be Dallas, Newport, Honolulu, Seattle or Alaska — she has no trouble getting other Navy wives to pitch in and help.

Participating in the show was Force Col. Charles F. McKenna III, mother of two and a former Powers model; Mrs. G.H. Steele, wife of an Air Force major; Mrs. H.P. Badger, wife of a Navy captain, and Mrs. Z.S. Cummings, wife of an Air Force first lieutenant. All have given various parts of the world, all have a common interest — elting.

Army Psychiatrist Reports No Communist Sympathy Is Found

PHOENIXVILLE Pa. (UP)—An Army psychiatrist said today he saw no evidence of Communist sympathy among liberated war prisoners flown here in tight secrecy amid rumors their minds had been tainted by enemy propaganda.

visiting with relatives to attend the press conference.

Those who posed for cameramen and talked to newsmen insisted their outlook toward American life did not change while they were prisoners of the Reds.

Cpl. James L. Ball, 21, Bellburn, W. Va., said the reports they had been won over to Communism made the men "feel like criminals."

Another ex-prisoner, M-Sgt. Robert W. Shaw, 44, Vancouver, Wash., said he felt "bitter" about the whole thing.

The Army said on the arrival of a hush-hush flight of 20 of the former prisoners that "some" of the men "may have been the victims of Communist propaganda."

Smith said the report that the prisoners had fallen victim to a Communist "brain washing" apparently stemmed from "inconclusive studies" made in the Far East.

Of the 26 repatriated prisoners sent here for treatment, only 13 talked to reporters during the visiting period Sunday. Of the others, four were said to be so bitter about the publicity surrounding their return that they shunned further interviews with the press.

The others not interviewed included four stretcher cases and those who said they were too busy cause it was a part of a prison routine and not because it indicated any change in his way of thought.

"Signing it was just like taking chow," he said.

The deluge of relatives that descended on the quiet hospital grounds Sunday taxed the facilities for visitors. Cpl. Almond L. Nolan, Rexville, N.Y., was visited by 14 members of his family.

Mr. Gariand R. (Luke) Whitaker, 42, died at his home in Newport at 11:30 Saturday night after suffering a heart attack only a few minutes earlier.

Funeral services were conducted at Wilkerson's Funeral Chapel in Greenville on Monday afternoon at three o'clock by the Rev. M. R. Haire, Baptist minister of Davis, and burial was in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Whitaker was born and reared in the Greenville community, and was son of the late William R. and Lena, Swindell Whitaker. He was married to Rena Mae Taylor of Grimesland, and they have made their home in and near New Bern since 1942.

He is survived by his wife; three sons, Gariand, Stevenson and Jerry Whitaker; four daughters, Barbara Ann, Jean, Betty Jo and Delores Whitaker, all of the home; four brothers, James E. and Frank Whitaker of Greenville, Will Whitaker of Oak City, and Jesse L. Whitaker of Richmond, Va.

After 75 Appearances In Court, He Goes On Roads

A familiar face in City Court circles for the past 19 years will be missing for the next seven months at least.

Halled into court on a public drunkenness charge and charged in a second warrant with being a public nuisance over the weekend was Robert Harrington, alias "Hotshot."

This morning, City Court solicitor Eli Bloom pointed out to Judge Charles H. Whedbee that Harrington's appearance in city court today marked his 75th appearance for drunkenness.

Harrington's record also showed that it was his fifth appearance for being a public nuisance.

A further check of Harrington's record shows that the Negro man has been in city court a total of 85 different times since April 7, 1934, when his record began.

With this in mind Judge Whedbee ordered the man to a six-month road sentence for the public nuisance charge, and a previous 30-day suspended sentence involved.

For the drunkenness charge, Harrington was given a fine of $15 and costs of court.

Whedbee instructed the court clerk this morning after the Harrington case that all sentences for drunkenness would not only carry the 30-day suspended sentence but that the defendant must be of good behavior for a period of one year.

"Too many people have been taking advantage of the good will of the court and not observing these sentences," Whedbee stated.

Jim Mallory Named Assistant Coach At East Carolina

Upstart Pittsburg Now Throwing Curve Balls

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Easy there, you upstart Pittsburg Pirates, and stop throwing curves at the experts.

Remember, you were the boys picked to finish last again this year. But that "ray of sunshine" forecast by Manager Fred Haney a week ago after dropping four straight to the Phils is blazing right into the eyes of the opposition.

Fred put it this way at the time: "The Pirates aren't beating themselves. The Phils beat them. I see a ray of sunshine for our boys."

So you took the cue and began beating the other team—the Cubs two out of three... the Redlegs two straight and you laid the Cards out Sunday for your fifth consecutive victory.

You there, Pete Castiglione. You drove in two runs that sparked the Pirates in the 8-2 victory over the Cards. And Friday night you drove in three runs to pace the third straight victory.

And how about Wednesday when you batted two across in the ninth that beat the Cubs, 4-3? But did you have to humiliate the Chicago boys with a broken bat single?

Whoa, there, Johnny Lindell. Remember, you're all of 36 now. But still you handcuffed the Cards on four hits. Then you had to pile it on Eddie Stanky's boys by doubling home — of all guys — Mike Sandlock, who can match your years.

Sure, you were tired after throwing that knuckler for eight innings, you said. But then you used the alder and managed to strike out Ray Jablonski and Vern Benson in the ninth.

Next man up — Frank Thomas. Let's see — what was it the experts said about you? Oh yes, can't hit a curve. Leo Durocher still mutters about that grand slammer you poked off Dave Kosko that produced a 6-5 victory.

And exactly a week later, Frankie, you belted a two-run homer that sent the Cubs down, 4-2. And Sunday against the Cards you collected a homer, a single a double and batted in two runs besides the three

Pirates Play

East Carolina College baseball team, almost frozen out of a shot at the Eastern Division championship, will go after its eighth victory today at 2:45 when the Atlantic Christian College Bulldogs come to Greenville.

The Pirates have met the Bulldogs twice this year and have won both games. AOC is currently in the division's fifth place with a record of two wins and eight defeats. East Carolina has a 7-4 mark.

Jim Mallory, head coach at Elon College, will join the East Carolina College physical education department in September as a football and physical education assistant.

The selection of Mallory for the job vacated by Clyde Biggers was announced yesterday by President J. D. Messick and Athletic Director N. M. Jorgensen.

Mallory has been at Elon for five years. He came to Elon from Burlington High School where he had produced a state champion in football. Prior to his time at Burlington he had been line coach at Catawba College, serving under Chubb Kirklund where Kirklund was head coach.

Mallory's work with the football team at East Carolina will be in the capacity served by Biggers, that of directing the line. He has had extensive experience with line coaching and his lines at Elon were annually among the most powerful in the strong North State Conference.

At Elon, Mallory had a football record of 28 victories, 18 losses, and three ties. In addition to that, he has won three North State Conference baseball titles and his 1953 team is currently leading the East Division with an undefeated record in 10 games.

Commenting on the selection of Mallory, Elon's Head Coach Jack Boone said this morning that he was "very glad" to have Mallory on the coaching staff. He cited Mallory's record as a sound proof of Mallory's "thorough football knowledge" and ability to get the most out of his teams.

At Elon, Mallory could not be reached for comment but he has already announced his intentions of finishing the current year with Elon and then moving to East Carolina sometime during the summer so that he could start right in with Boone when football practice starts in September.

Mallory attended the University of North Carolina where he was an outstanding end on University football teams. He has also had considerable experience in professional baseball.

Lindell Pitches Pittsburg To Fifth Straight Victory

Ben Hogan Wins Mexico City Open

MEXICO CITY (UP)—Ben Hogan, an easy winner in his first "honey" for the June renewal of the U.S. Open, takes another warm-up this week in the Greenbrier Open at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

The master golfer didn't display the game here that gave him a record 274 in the Masters last month. But he had little trouble winning the 72-hole Pan American Open Sunday, with a two-over-par last round 74 and a 286.

The victory was worth $2,600 to Hogan in addition to an undisclosed "guarantee" which caused defending champion Lloyd Mangrum and several other U.S. stars to boycott the Pan American. Hogan denied he had asked $5,000 to play here.

Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., trailed Hogan by three strokes, finishing with a 73-289 to take the $1,900 second money. Marty Furgol of Houston, Tex., shot the best final round, a 69, and his 290 was good for the $1,400 third money.

After winning the Masters at Augusta, Ga., Hogan said his tournament play between now and June would be "honey" to get a taste of the keenness of competition for his bid to become the third player to win the U.S. Open four times. He begins play in the Greenbrier Thursday.

Native Dancer Offered Revenge His Derby Upset

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—Will Native Dancer gain revenge for his upset defeat in the Kentucky Derby by spoiling Dark Star's bid for the turf's triple crown?

Veteran horsemen, just recovering from the surprise of Dark Star's 25 to 1 triumph in Saturday's run for the roses at Churchill Downs, were busily debating that big post-Derby question today as both star colts were readied for shipment to Belmont Park.

Many of the hardboots very frankly said they thought the best horse, Native Dancer, didn't win the derby — even the official chart of the race declared the losing Al Vanderbil colt "probably was the best" in the field.

And these were stoutly arguing that the big gray colt will wreak revenge on Dark Star when the two clash on May 23 in the second "jewel" of the triple crown, the $100,000 added Preakness Stakes at Pimlico.

On the other hand, Dark Star's new legion of fans pointed out that the Preakness is a sixteenth-of-a-mile shorter than the Derby, and they argue that if Native Dancer couldn't overhaul Dark Star in the Derby, he'll never do it in a shorter race.

There's no argument at all that Native Dancer had what one trainer called a "rough trip" in the Derby — he was jostled by Money Broker on the first turn and then somewhat boxed in.

"My horse got sloughed on the first turn," said bitterly disappointed jockey Eric Guerin. "And, besides, he didn't seem to like the track."

Some Native Dancer fans were blaming Guerin for not keeping his previously unbeaten steed out of trouble. They said that he should have kept Native Dancer clear and that, by failing to do so, he cost the favorite at least four lengths.

But Vanderbil and trainer Bill Winfrey emphasized that they have "no complaints" about Guerin's ride, and they generously overlooked Native Dancer's bad racing luck with the joint comment that they have "no alibis" for his defeat.

The third triple crown "jewel," the $100,000 Belmont Stakes, is another three weeks after the Preakness — on June 13. That race is a mile-and-a-half — a quarter-mile longer than the Derby.

Gavilan Upset By Boxer Womber

NEW YORK (UP)—Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan, who was amazingly upset Saturday night by Danny (Bang Bang) Womber, will start training May 18 for his title defense against Art Aragon at Los Angeles, July 1, manager Angel Lopez announced today.

Lopez emphasized that the champion cannot even consider offers for a title match with the surprising Womber until after the Aragon fight.

Womber of Chicago registered the biggest boxing upset of 1953 Saturday night when he won the unanimous 10-round non-title decision over the great Gavilan at Syracuse, N.Y.

It was a terrific reversal because Womber had suffered four defeats and been held to one draw in his five bouts before the Syracuse triumph, whereas the champion hadn't been beat in 2 1-2 years.

The Cuban Keed had been campaigning so brilliantly that many experts rated him the best all-around fighter in any division.

Lopez, owner of a New York night club, said today, "Gavilan was considerably off form Saturday night. But I still believe he won the fight, which was close."

He explained that the champ was off form because he hadn't been able to train properly. "His mind wasn't on boxing because his wifeleanor and his baby boy were both in St. Clare's Hospital for operations," Lopez said. "Both will be out in a few days, we hope."

If the Keed beats Aragon at Los Angeles, will he consider Womber was challenger?

Dapper little Lopez grinned and replied, "we'll consider Womber if it looks like he can draw money in a title bout."

Gilliam On Base Safely 36 Times

NEW YORK (UP)—Rookie Junior Gilliam of the Dodgers was working today on a unique batting string — he's been on base safely in every game the Dodgers have played this season.

In 16 games so far, the second baseman has notched 18 hits and 18 walks — a grand total of 36 times on base. His regular batting average, which counts only hits, is .310, but his "on base average," including both hits and walks, is .474.

Lady Golfers May Be Catching Up

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—The feminine golfing contingent, professional division, is catching up with the men as an attraction and may surpass them in the near future, Louise Suggs, currently the No. 1 pro, said today.

"We are drawing bigger and bigger crowds," said Miss Suggs, the Atlanta miss who won the third leg of the Weatheravne tournament here Sunday with a two-day score of 149.

"In many places we are outdrawing the men, and we are asked back more often than the men," she said. "Already we are playing some $7,500 tournaments and we will be playing for $10,000 prizes soon."

Most of the women's tournaments now are for prizes of $3,500 to $5,000.

Miss Suggs, former women's national amateur champion, took a three-stroke overall lead here in the race for the Weatheravne trophy. She has 447 strokes for 108 holes, with 36 holes to go. The final of the tournament will be played at Philadelphia May 30-31.

Another Crown Goes To Mulloy

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP)—Gardnar Mulloy, who won the River Oaks Tennis Tournament title at Houston last Sunday, had a second Texas crown today.

Mulloy, of Miami, Fla., beat Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., Sunday, 1-6, 8-6, 6-1, 9-7, to win the second annual San Antonio Invitational Tennis Tournament.

Saigh Scheduled To Begin Term

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—Fred M. Saigh Jr., former owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, was to surrender to the U.S. marshal today to begin serving a 15-month prison sentence for income tax evasion.

Officials said Saigh would be taken to the federal penitentiary at Terre Haute, Ind., in custody of a deputy U.S. marshal.

Saigh's attorneys have paid $15,126 in fines and court costs levied last Jan. 28 when he pleaded no contest to two charges of evading $19,099 in taxes on his 1947 income and $14,949 joint income of him and his wife.

Messick Reviews Expansion Plans

Expansion and improvement both in the educational program and in buildings and grounds at East Carolina College will soon become evident as a result of appropriations made by the North Carolina General Assembly, President John D. Messick of the college told students Friday.

Speaking at a meeting attended by students and faculty members, Dr. Messick pointed out that appropriations provide for two new dormitories, improvements to existing buildings, additional library equipment, new walks and roads, additions to the faculty, and other items.

Expressing thanks to students for their interest in the college program, he told them that all at East Carolina owe appreciation to Governor W. B. Umstead, other state officials, members of the General Assembly, and friends of the college throughout the state for their activities in behalf of East Carolina and their interest in its welfare and progress.

As a result of recent appropriations, Dr. Messick said, two new dormitories will be built on the campus, one for men and one for women. Just as soon as the State Budget Office gives permission, he said, architects, who have already been contacted, will begin work on plans. Tentatively, he stated, these are already in progress.

He mentioned the fact that East Carolina has not for the past few years had enough dormitory space to take care of students at the college and that many applicants for dormitory rooms have been unable to secure them. The new buildings, he said, will help to meet this situation. An appropriation of $830,000 for each dormitory has been allocated he explained.

Funds have been allocated also for remodeling and improving buildings on the campus. Plans include, Dr. Messick said, conversion of the present library into a classroom building at a cost of $65,000, and of the basement of the Wright building into a student union at a cost of $50,000.

The student union will provide quarters for the college book store and soda shop. It will also include recreation rooms for men and women, a listening room where students may hear recorded music, a room for television equipment, and an area for games and other activities.

The present library, according to plans, Dr. Messick said, will be remodeled for use as a classroom building by the departments of mathematics and social studies.

A sum of $25,000 has been allocated for rewiring the Austin building and making various alterations there, Dr. Messick stated. The department of music will have its headquarters in Austin, according to plans, and several other departments now using classrooms in the building will continue to do so. Appropriations include $25,000 for roads and walks. Most of these, Dr. Messick explained, are needed to join new buildings to other parts of the campus system of driveways and sidewalks.

Appropriations include $50,000 for equipping the new Joyner Library now under construction on the campus, and $15,000 a year for the purchase of books.

Additions to the college staff, Dr. Messick explained, will include two teachers in the field of elementary education, one in special education and psychology, one in social studies, one in English, one in art and two in health and physical education. Other additions now planned are one dormitory counselor, two staff members and one secretary for the library, one general secretary for the faculty, and one other secretary.

In Recital

Bernard Ham of Portsmouth, Va., baritone, will sing Monday evening at 8 p.m. in a recital sponsored by the East Carolina College department of music and presented in the Austin auditorium. A senior at the college, Mr. Ham will give at this time his graduating recital.

Selections chosen for the program will include four groups of compositions of varied type. Announced numbers include arias from the operas "Martha" and "I Pagliacci," and songs by Richard Strauss, Brahms, Frank La Forge, and others. George E. Perry of the college music faculty, pianist, will accompany Mr. Ham.

Mr. Ham has participated in many musical events and programs while attending East Carolina. This spring he appeared as soloist with the East Carolina Orchestra, and played a leading role in an all-college presentation of Romberg's "The Student Prince."

Women In The Church

WOMEN IN THE CHURCH
By Mary Fowler

Miss Helen Keller, president of the John Milton Society since 1932, declared on the Society's 25th anniversary recently: "It is amazing that in 25 years the Society has been able to reach out to 66 countries in service to the blind of the world. I am proud of what the John Milton Society has accomplished."

A young Finnish woman, Miss Leena Wallenius, associate editor of the Lutheran newspaper "Kotina," published in Helsinki, is learning now to improve church publications and church publicity in graduate studies at the Syracuse University school of Journalism. She is studying with the support of the National Lutheran Council and the World Council of Churches.

"The Christian movement faces the rising power of communism; strained relations between East and West, the poverty and ignorance of people in Asia and Africa," Mrs. Frank G. Brooks, of Mount Vernon, Iowa, national president told a Board of Missions, recently. "Peoples are seeking 'freedom' though they understand it only vaguely. The old patterns on which we have been carrying on missionary work may be no longer adequate for our day. The old needs are present, but there is more urgency about doing something about them now because everything here people and ideas are on the move, the old standards and loyalties are being displaced, and secularism is growing. We are now thinking of both America and Europe as 'missionary areas' in the same sense that Africa and Asia are. We need to re-study this background — and re-examine and re-adjust our missionary work to meet the changes." One of the plans of the Methodist women, growing out of this conference, will be to "lift the eyes of the women of the local societies in 30,000 American towns and cities to see the needs of their communities, of America, and of the world in this new day" — and to help them direct their activities toward meeting these needs. "Methodist women must become world-minded and not parochial," one speaker said, "if Christianity is really to serve mankind."

Senate Foes Of Tidelands Bill In Last-Ditch Fight

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate foes of the "tidelands" oil bill rallied today to make a last stand at watering down the measure before it reaches a final vote tomorrow.

Backers of the bill to give coastal states title to the rich off-shore lands were confident, however, they have the votes to lick the remaining amendments. But one, sponsored by Sen. George W. Malone (R-Nev.), threatened to spark a lively public lands fight.

Malone was scheduled to bring up his proposal today. It would give all states with federal lands within their borders the right to develop and get the revenue from oil and other minerals in the lands.

Malone, who has opposed the tidelands bill, said his measure would "treat all states alike." He said it would give the so-called public lands states of the West the same benefits that coastal states will get under the bill.

A leading supporter of the tidelands bill predicted Malone's amendment would be defeated. But he admitted that it might attract some votes from western senators who have supported the submerged lands bill.

Backers of the bill expected little trouble in defeating an amendment by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) which would delay final action on the submerged lands question pending a study by a nine-man commission.

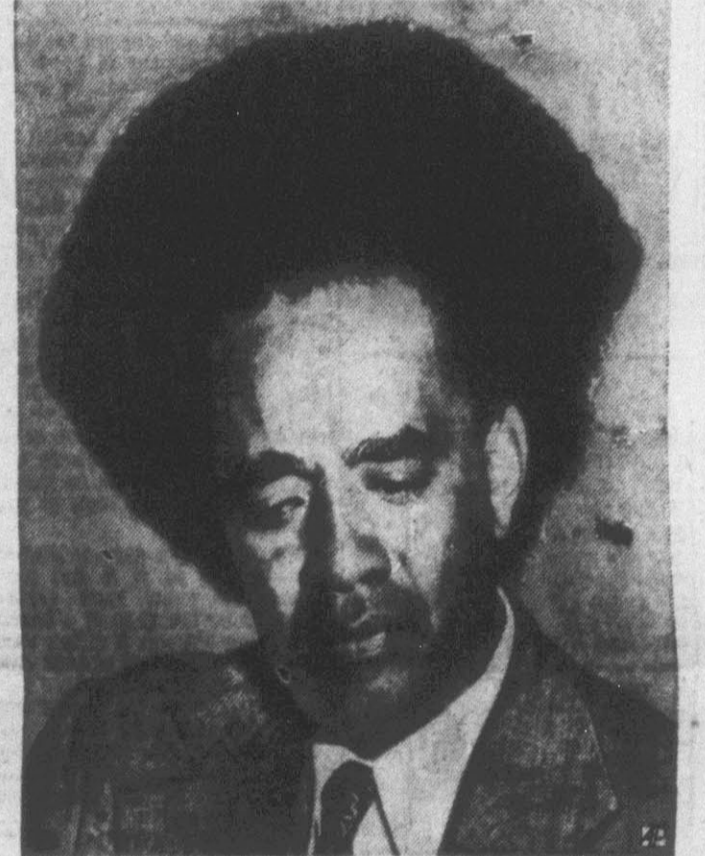

The Senate was scheduled to devote today and tomorrow morning to discussion and action on pending amendments. A final vote is set for 2 p.m. (EDT) tomorrow. Any amendments not acted on by that time will be left stranded.

Appears In Recital Tuesday Evening

George E. Perry, organist and faculty member at East Carolina College, will appear Tuesday evening of this week in a recital sponsored by the college department of music. Mr. Perry will play at 8 p. m. in the Austin auditorium. The public is invited. The program Tuesday evening will be made up of four groups of numbers. Selections include two Bach numbers, Samuel Barber's "Adagio for Strings," "Toccata for the Elevation" by Frescobaldi, and other works by noted composers of organ music.

"His general condition has improved," the bulletin announced. Eden underwent an operation for removal of gall stones recently. His condition was complicated by jaundice and a second operation for removal of a liver obstruction, was necessary.

Candidate for City Council—May 5, 1953

A Message To The Voters Of The City Of Greenville ROYCE JONES

Time has not permitted me to see each of you individually, to explain my platform, and to ask each of you to vote for me in the election tomorrow. I would like to take this opportunity to earnestly solicit your vote and support in tomorrow's election, and to state again just what I stand for in regards to the government of Greenville.

CITY MANAGER
The majority of the people in Greenville have expressed their desire for City Manager-Council form of government, in an election held in recent months. If elected I promise to make every effort to secure a qualified City Manager for Greenville and to lend him my support in an effort to give this type of government every chance to succeed in Greenville.

RECREATION
The Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Lions Club, the Moose Lodge, and other fraternal and civic clubs have for too long carried the burden of the recreation program in Greenville when the responsibility for recreation belongs to your city government. I fail to see how any member of the present government can claim credit for what facilities Greenville has for recreational purposes. As I see it without the work of the organizations mentioned above Greenville's recreation program would still consist of a few swings and benches in Cotanche Street "Park." I would like to see a new pool for white, and a new pool for colored become a reality, and not a group of drawings and figures.

INDUSTRY
Greenville, blessed with an excellent tobacco market, a fine college within its bounds, an abundance of natural resources and native skills, needs to attract enterprises and industries to Greenville to balance its economy. A regular income each week for several hundred people in Greenville would do wonders, I feel, for the people, for business and for the city. If elected I pledge every effort possible to get these industries for Greenville.

UTILITIES
This department of your city government, which takes in the majority of the city revenue from its sale of current, water and gas, under the present Plan "D" form of government, will not come under the supervision of the City Manager. I think this department should be under the city manager to give him a real opportunity to succeed in the management of the affairs of Greenville. I also feel that our rates are too high considering the fact that our utility employees are not too well paid, and that service furnished is not above average. I believe that a good City Manager could give better service at a lower rate, and be able to pay our firemen, street workers and utility workers and policemen a better wage.

I WILL SINCERELY APPRECIATE THE OPPORTUNITY OF SERVING THE PEOPLE OF GREENVILLE AS COUNCILMAN SUBJECT TO YOUR WISHES IN TOMORROW'S ELECTION. — THANK YOU.

Brindle had no choice. One of the cops had broken open a pair of handcuffs and was approaching Brindle. It was now or never. Brindle backed against the wall and held out his left wrist. He began to loosen his tie with his right hand. Before the cop could snap on the cuff, Brindle dropped his hand from the tie and dug into his holster. He jammed the cop backward with his left and pulled out the gun. "Hodi it--all of you!" Kidd stiffened. "Brindle, you crazy fool, give me that gun!" "No, pappy, not just now." Brindle reached down and tore the telephone wires out of the wall. The two cops, humiliated by their negligence, were edging closer. "Keep back," Brindle warned, with a wave of the gun. "I hate onto the street he looked at the gas indicator. Low. Maybe he could make it to Tijuana and tank up there. Time. How little there was when you really needed it. A slow gliding turn and the Border gates came into sight. A quarter of a mile. Once over the international line, he'd have less to worry about. And then it happened. A brown and cream sedan, screaming in second gear, skidded across the highway toward him. Brindle frantically spun his wheel. The crash was mixed with the explosion of shattering glass. He felt the car lift and twist. He twisted around and saw the other car, overturned, behind him. The Border officials would come streaming up in a moment. He tore the identification card off the steering shaft. Pushing out of the door, he dived off the edge of the road into low scrub. Brindle worked his way behind the wreckage and crossed the highway. After stopping to brush his suit and comb his hair, he began walking toward the Border. A crowd had formed around the two cars. Half a dozen motorcycles and two police cars had drawn up. On the far side of the highway, Brindle passed unnoticed. He stepped across the international line and entered. He was in Mexico and should have felt safe, but he didn't. U.S. officials weren't checking the cars into Mexico. Hadn't Lieutenant Kidd sent out an alarm, after all; had he actually been taken in by the Los Angeles ruse? Brindle hurried along the sidewalk as though he might be called back at any moment. Two old touring cars, neither of which looked as if it had been washed that year, were parked nearby under the arch of a board-ed-up filling station. A yellow card behind the windshield of each was marked Taxi. Brindle stepped into the back seat of the nearer car and quickly closed the door. He waited a few moments, but the driver made no movements to start the car. Brindle leaned forward. "Let's go." "Just a few minutes, senior." Brindle gave the driver's thin shoulder an angry shove. "You heard me. Get moving." The driver twisted around with sharp anger. His brown eyes held an expression of injured pride. Slowly he turned away and started the truck-like engine. Once over the bridge, Brindle began to feel easier about himself. If only Sally's disappearance had a simple answer. "Stop at the Telephone Ex-

Truman Family Returns After Vacation In Hawaii

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Former President Harry S. Truman, his wife and daughter Margaret were on their way to independence, Mo., today after a month-long vacation in the Hawaiian Islands. They boarded the Southern Pacific "Gold Coast Limited" last night for Kansas City, Mo. The Trumans arrived in San Francisco yesterday aboard the liner President Cleveland, sun-tanned and jovial after their stay on Coconut Island. Some 50 newsmen greeted the former first family, but were told they would receive no comment on developments in Washington. "As I've said before I don't want to do anything to embarrass this administration," Mr. Truman said. The former President parried all controversial issues, telling reporters to look up his stand on the issues while he was President. When asked about the McCarran Immigration Act, he said only that he had vetoed the bill. Mr. Truman did say however, he "was more convinced than ever" that Hawaii and Alaska should be immediately made states "if for no other reason than national defense." He said Alaska was the "Achilles Heel" of the U. S. Mr. Truman said now that he was well rested, he plans to complete work on his memoirs. "My memoirs will not be propaganda, but will be a history of my seven years and nine months in office," he said. He added that he would not make any political speeches or public appearances for "probably five or six months."

Floods Followed South's Latest Harsh Weather

ATLANTA (UP)—Heavy rain during a siege of destructive weather disturbances in the South has flooded a section of southern Louisiana, killing two persons and driving 300 families from their homes. Four rivers in the area just north of the Louisiana Delta region swirled over their banks yesterday after a 10-inch rainfall and covered an estimated 500,000 acres of cropland with six to eight inches of water. The flash flood washed an automobile from a road into six feet of water near Baton Rouge, La., killing two passengers listed as Mrs. Edna Boudreaux and five-year old Jack Boudreaux. Their deaths boosted the toll of six days of turbulent weather in the South to 43. The others died in tornadoes and storms that until yesterday had struck daily in the South since last Tuesday. Officials said the floods in the heart of Louisiana's rich truck farming region would add millions of dollars to the toll of storm property damage which already had been estimated at least $20,000,000. As the flood tapped into homes of areas around Hammond, Covington and Polson, La., National Guardsmen, Coast Guardsmen and state police were called out to help remove the families to safety. Sheriff Andrew Erwin of Tangipahoa Parish (county) said damage to the strawberry crop alone in the Hammond area, called the "strawberry capital of the world," would exceed $1,000,000. "This is the worst flood I've ever seen in this area in my life," he said. The flood Sunday came on the first day since last Tuesday in which tornadoes or other storms did not bring death to at least one Southern state, although thunder storms raged throughout the South. More stormy weather was forecast throughout today in the form of possibly violent thunder showers but there had been no new tornado forecasts. Twisters, winds and rain had contributed to 18 deaths in Georgia, 10 in Texas, seven in Alabama, four in Tennessee and one each in Louisiana and Mississippi.

paper has been improved upon. From the natural abrasives found ready-made, including sandstone, flint, emery and garnet, the modern electric furnace has come up with new diamond-sharp crystals that cut cleaner and last longer with one-tenth the time and effort.

We used to be content rubbing down wood surfaces with flint sandpaper, while fine cabinet makers used garnet (emery cloth being reserved for metals), but today it seems the thing to use is aluminum oxide or silicon carbide.

When it comes to any home workshop job from removing heavy scale from a piece of metal to putting a piano finish on a cocktail table, these seven abrasive grades are supposed to fill the bill. Sanding is a simple operation in spite of its importance. The abrasive is rubbed with the grain, but the craftsman never depends on his own fingers or his hand to produce the flat surface desired—even when it is a curved surface. He uses a sanding block, solid and square for flat surfaces, resilient such as sponge rubber for contoured surfaces—concave picture frames, etc.

Tacking a piece of sandpaper around a block of wood has long been an accepted custom. Today you can buy at hardware or paint stores metal or rubber sanding blocks designed to hold the abrasive and take quick replacements. For finishing grooves and other right places, wrap the sandpaper around a pencil, dowel or putty knife to fit the crevice.

A secret of the cutting surface of modern abrasive or "production" papers lies in the way they are made. Aluminum oxide is bauxite clay fused in an electric arc furnace at about 3,000 degrees. Its crystals are tougher, though not as hard as silicon carbide, which is made by fusing sand and coke. The latter crystals are next to a diamond in hardness, but are brittle.

Both types of crystals are molded into grinding wheels or coated on paper. Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing, one of the biggest producers, uses charges of electricity to turn the crystals sharp end out. The charged crystals jump into the adhesive of the paper, with large ends attracted, the grains having the same charge, leaving points outward. With all of them repel each other with an equalized force. This results in a uniform abrasive coating.

A fast cutting and durable abrasive is the closed coat type, but this is subject to clogging. The closed coat is a normal packed formation of granules, while the open coat comprises grains suspended on end with separations between them. The open coat abrasives are used where dust may tend to clog the cutting surface, although this type of coating is not as durable as the closed coat.

Special waterproof silicon carbide paper is made for wet sanding of special finishes. This is used to take such blemishes as cigarette burns or scratches off of varnished or lacquered surfaces. The wood is moistened with lubricating oil, or metal is wet with soapy water and the sanding block equipped with fine black waterproof paper is then used lightly.

An extra fine grade of this type paper is used to remove brush marks.

A comparatively little known and very useful abrasive is furniture rubbing compound. This is made of extremely fine abrasive dust mixed with oil. After it is used, the surface is cleaned and then finished with a coat of paste wax.

NO EXIT PROBLEM — It's easy to get in and out of this new Italian car. Just break open the front end which serves as a door for driver and passenger. Motor is in the rear.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

When a home handyman just gets going nicely it seems some debunker always comes along and says that the material or tool being used isn't the "real McCoy" after all. Take sandpaper, for instance—one of the most important tools in any handyman's kit. They say there's no such thing in the world as sandpaper. It never was made of sand at all, but of flint.

house, decorating woodwork, assembling and polishing knock-down furniture, or just keeping his workbench humming. Just so the sandpaper works. The payoff, however, is that modern sandpaper, which isn't sandpaper at all—the technicians call it abrasive—works better than the old-fashioned sandpaper, which wasn't sandpaper either. Like everything else in the world—except people and peace—sand-

(Continued from Page 4) Important issue in legislative races Comment by members of the 1953 Assembly and in editorial columns of many newspapers has indicated lack of popular concern about that matter. But it is the kind of thing that can be "blown up" far beyond its intrinsic importance as a campaign issue. If it does become an important statewide issue, chances are that some legislators who voted for closed doors may suffer. It is apparent that some members who voted for secret session when the question came to the floor of the two branches some weeks ago now regret the position taken then.

S. EUGENE WEST

For City Council

Wants Your Vote
May 5th

In this brief space I shall endeavor to touch upon some of the issues that are of deep interest and concern to all of us at this time, and to give a few reasons why I feel justified in asking for your support in the City-Council election May 5.

As a candidate for the office of councilman for the city, I have pledged myself to work diligently for continued progress and for efficient, progressive and IMPARTIAL municipal government for Greenville.

In the election of January 12, the citizens of Greenville expressed their preference for the Council-Manager form of government, and that form of government has my wholehearted support. In the interest of the best possible government, the city should have a trained, experienced city manager, and if a member of the city council, I shall endeavor to see that such a trained qualified man is hired as city manager of Greenville.

Greenville's government is a business which spends a half million dollars a year of taxpayer's money. It is big business and should be operated on sound business principles. Careful and long range planning must be applied to city improvements if the maximum benefit is to be received by the citizens for each dollar spent, and I shall strive to see that such planning is done for the city of Greenville.

I believe it is the duty and responsibility of a city to plan for its children and their future; by providing them with adequate schools, recreational facilities and other wholesome community influences. I shall endeavor to see that Greenville continues to progress in these phases of local government activities. Engineers already have prepared adequate projected plans for recreation facilities for both white and Negro citizens of Greenville, and I believe the facilities should be provided as rapidly as sound financial arrangements will permit.

I believe immediate consideration should be given the traffic and parking problems which confront the city of Greenville, looking toward an adequate and workable solution to the present situation.

In this campaign I have made but one promise. It applies equally to every citizen of Greenville. If elected I shall give my best and most conscientious service to see that Greenville has efficient, progressive and IMPARTIAL city government. Seniors of East Carolina College, in a class dinner Saturday evening in North Dining Hall on the campus, enjoyed a variety program climaxing with an address by Dr. J. D. Messick, college president.

Nearly 175 members of the Class of 1953 assembled for the event with Class President John Robert Klutz of Dudley presiding over the dinner, and Jerry Sandford of Goldsboro, program chairman, directing the features of the class meeting.

Dr. Messick was joined by Alumni Secretary James W. Butler in a plea for allegiance to the college, its program of service, and support for the various projects and foundation funds of East Carolina.

The invocation was spoken by Dr. Robert L. Holt, director of religious activities. Butler was introduced by Klutz and Dr. Messick by Donald Gaylor.

ALWAYS SOMETHING
TEHACHAPI, Calif. (UP)—Authorities have a different problem on their hands now that the California Institution for Women here has been abandoned because of earthquake damage. Instead of hunting prisoners who escaped by climbing the 12-foot fence around the institution, they search for thieves who break in and make off with equipment.

Thirty-Eight On Fourth Flight Of Freedom Airlift

TOKYO (UP)—Thirty-eight liberated American war prisoners left by plane tonight for the United States on the fourth "Freedom Airlift."

Two C-54 transports, each with 19 men aboard, took off for Travis Air Force Base, Calif.

The men had been scheduled to leave on a giant C-97 Stratocruiser but the flight was cancelled when the big plane developed mechanical difficulties.

Their departure will leave only 14 Americans out of 149 released by the Communists still waiting in Tokyo army hospitals for repatriation.

Czechs Announce New Amnesty For A Handful

VIENNA, Austria (UP)—Communist Czechoslovakia today announced an amnesty which will free a comparatively small number of criminals from its crowded jails.

But the decree, broadcast by Prague radio, apparently will keep bars American newsmen William Oatis and against Czech citizens, like Oatis, are accused of "political crimes."

Oatis, an Associated Press correspondent in Prague, was sentenced to 10 years in prison on July 4, 1951, on charges of spying against the Czech regime.

Today's 10-point amnesty will apply to certain groups of men, women and youths serving criminal sentences.

But the broadcast said it will not apply to persons, civilian or military, convicted of "sabotage or political crimes and activities against the state."

For City Council

If elected I shall give my best to see that Greenville has efficient, progressive and impartial city government. Your vote will be greatly appreciated.

Door-To-Door

Greenville Lions tonight launch their 1953 broom and doormat sale with a house-to-house canvas of the city.

Working in teams of two, Lion salesmen will begin their sale shortly after 7:30 this evening. Areas not covered tonight will be visited Tuesday night.

The articles to be sold by the Lions are brooms and doormats manufactured by blind workers in the state. Residents who do not expect to be home when the club's salesmen call, and would like to obtain a broom or doormat, are invited to notify a Lion and the item will be reserved for them.
