Tornado Toll Rising

By CARTER BRADLEY United Press Staff Correspondent WACO, Tex. (UP)—Tedious brick-by-brick rescue digging in the tornado-leveled section of Waco slowly increased the death toll from Monday's storm today as a flood threat to the city abated.

At least 87 persons, all but two of them identified, were known dead here, up to 50 others were unaccounted for and some 320 were on the injured list. Nine other dead had been counted in a similar storm at San Angelo, Tex., for an overall figure of 96.

The tempo of the search through the heaps of rubble turned more and more to hand-to-hand digging as all bulldozers which had been plowing into the debris were called off the job because of the slim possibility there might still be someone alive underneath the wreckage.

The search was concentrated this morning in the basement of what was once the six-story Dennis furniture store where bulldozer operators thought they heard screams.

After the bulldozers were quieted, no screams were heard, but rescue officials sidled the heavy machinery for individual digging with the aid of small power lifts and a few draglines.

This central Texas city of nearly 100,000 was the biggest sufferer, but two days of turbulent weather throughout the Texas-Louisiana-Oklahoma area had claimed at least two other lives.

Meanwhile, predictions that the usually sluggish Brazos River which bisects Waco would hit a flood stage of 28 feet today, failed to materialize and the weather bureau said the danger had been averted.

Other sections of Texas, however, suffered from the results of heavy rains ranging up to seven inches as rivers and creeks hit fast peaks and then subsided.

Pumping operations were only part of the struggle in Waco today. City engineer Brahm Jones said only 15 out of the 30 major buildings wrecked by the tornado have been touched by rescue operations. However, most of the building owners said there were no persons in their buildings, he added.

A twister struck Colfax, La., last night, crumpling a church and killing an elderly Negro woman, Nelly King. About 300 persons had fled services in the church earlier in the evening, but only 30 were there when the tornado bore down.

At last count the number of Waco injured totalled about 320. In San Angelo, 190 miles to the west, 130 persons were reported injured, and the department of public safety said two were not expected to live.

Rescue work continued through the night. Even though power had not been fully restored, portable searchlights made the scene almost as bright as day.

The twister at Colfax—the 21st to batter the nation since last Saturday—killed Nelly King and injured three others. More than 200 persons had been attending a church meeting a few minutes before the twister hit, but the meeting broke up and only about 30 were in the building at the time.

The Louisiana tornado went on to hit Dry Prong, La., where it destroyed several buildings. No injuries were reported at Dry Prong.

Waco Mayor Ralph Wolf said rescue work will continue on an around-the-clock basis. Only a small part of the wreckage—which includes the remains of a six-story furniture store, L. J. Theater and many smaller buildings—had been cleared away.

Damage in Waco was estimated at from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000. The Red Cross estimate ranged up to $5,000,000.

Wary volunteers at Waco were joined by National Guardsmen, Air Force and Army units, naval reservists and highway patrolmen Army engineers helped in the demolition of some of the buildings so badly damaged they could not be allowed to stand.

A British military spokesman said all defense measures and security precautions are being taken and leave for troops has been curtailed. He said armed escorts have been detailed for vehicles.

"In view of the normal responsibility of all commanders to insure the security of troops under their command, special precautions are being taken to meet the requirements of the present situation," the spokesman said.

He said these precautions include preparation of troops and fortified outposts, most of which were constructed during troubles in the Canal Zone 18 months ago.

The spokesman said certain Canal Zone areas would probably be ruled out of bounds to British troops.

Defense preparations grew from Egyptian Premier Gen. Mohammed Naguib's warning that his country is ready to fight to the last man to drive the British out of the Suez Canal zone.

The recent conferences between Naguib and the British on evacuation of British troops from the Egyptian "strong man" called for removal of all foreign troops.

Britain had asked for assurances that British personnel be left behind to take care of expensive equipment in the zone and that the area would be made available to her in the event of war.

Naguib said today that he and his officers said good-bye to their families last July "when we undertook it; movement to purge Egypt of corruption.

"That farewell stands until Egypt is completely liberated or we die for the fatherland," he said. "We will not spare any effort nor shrink from any sacrifice to achieve our national rights."

British In Suez Area 'Digging In'

Military Preparations Made As Tensions Rise Over Parley Breakdown

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—British troops in the Suez Canal Zone dug trenches today as tension caused by the deadlock in Anglo-Egyptian treaty talks spread throughout the garrison.

A British military spokesman said all defense measures and security precautions are being taken and leave for troops has been curtailed. He said armed escorts have been detailed for vehicles.

"In view of the normal responsibility of all commanders to insure the security of troops under their command, special precautions are being taken to meet the requirements of the present situation," the spokesman said.

Generals Concur Peril Unabated

PARIS (UP)—U. S. Gens. Matthew B. Ridgway and Alfred M. Gruenther agreed today that there has been no letup in the Russian threat to Europe, and said American atomic weapons will be available in case of war.

Ridgway, retiring Allied supreme commander in Europe, and Gruenther, who has been chosen to take his place, expressed their views at a joint press conference at Allied headquarters near Paris.

The two four-star generals were asked their opinion of the latest Soviet "peace overtures."

"General Gruenther and I see alike on this Soviet peace offensive, and as soldiers there is no information known to us to indicate a lessening of the (Russian) threat," Ridgway said.

As he spoke, he pointed to a map of Europe behind him, on which the Iron Curtain showed as a broad red line dividing the continent.

"D'abord (I agree)," Gruenther said with the broad grin that has become his trademark in years as chief of staff of the Allied command.

"Or atomic weapons, Ridgway said that "if we are attacked, I take it that every weapon in our arsenal will be used."

He emphasized that the atomic training courses now being given Allied officers in Germany are "essentially defensive." Gruenther added that the officers are being "introduced to the use of all types of atomic weapons for tactical support."

Gruenther said he is "deeply aware of the difficult task of following in the footsteps of President Eisenhower and General Ridgway" in the top European command.

He said he plans to concentrate on two problems which are now the weakest links in Allied defenses.

1. "Priority No. 1 is the air problem," he said. "We probably are farther behind on air than in any other field."

2. Logistics—The problem of supplying armies, navies and air forces strung along a 3,000-mile front.

Korea Truce Formula Quickly Turned Down By Communists

Reds Reject New UN Plan

By ROBERT VERMILLION United Press Staff Correspondent PANGUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The United Nations gave the Communists a detailed formula for ending the Kor an truce deadlock today, after hearing and reading it, the Communists said the proposal threatened to wreck the entire armistice negotiations.

Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief U. N. negotiator, handed the Washington-approved plan to North Korean Gen. Nam Il, the Communist chief delegate, at a meeting in the truce hut.

Gen. Mark W. Clark, supreme U. N. Far East commander, brought the plan, a counter-proposal to the eight-point Communist formula, to Harrison in a dramatic flight Tuesday to the Allied base at Munsan.

"The Communists did not like it but suggested we meet again tomorrow," Harrison said after the one-hour and 40-minute meeting.

The U. N. truce formula contained 10 articles and 26 paragraphs in addition to a preamble. The Communist plan contained only eight paragraphs which the U. N. considered vague.

The Allied plan calls for repatriation within two months after an armistice of all prisoners who want to go home and release on the effective date of an armistice of all Korean prisoners refusing to be repatriated.

The plan would turn over to a five-national neutral commission proposed by the Communists all Chinese prisoners who refuse to go home. India would serve as chairman of the commission and supply armed military police forces. Poland, Czechoslovakia,

Sweden and Switzerland would serve as commission members.

It would release to civilian status in Korea all prisoners who still refuse to be repatriated after two months in custody of the neutral commission. Then the commission would be disbanded.

Under the Allied plan, the Communists would be permitted to interview the prisoners for two months to allay their fears about what might happen if they returned to the Communists.

If the Communists should fail to persuade the reluctant prisoners during that period, the captives would be free to go where they wish. Under no circumstances would the prisoners be forced to go home against the will.

Those who desired to return to Communism after hearing part or all of the "explanations" would be repatriated speedily at the Pangunjom prisoner-exchange site.

The remainder of the Allied formula contained details of establishing the neutral custodial commission, formation of a demilitarized custodial camp at Panmunjom and handling of prisoners.

Nam called the new plan a "step backward" reflecting an attitude that "threatens the prospects of the whole armistice negotiations."

Harrison called the new proposal which had been drafted in Washington by representatives of nations involved in the Korean fighting, an "excellent basis for an armistice."

Leaders Warn President Of Political Setbacks

Republicans See 'Trouble'

WASHINGTON (UP)—Republican congressional leaders have warned President Eisenhower that the GOP is being hurt politically by gloomy administration pronouncements on chances for balancing the budget.

Informed sources said the White House meeting Tuesday that he can "kiss the 1954 congressional elections goodbye" if members of his cabinet continue throwing cold water on public hopes for early tax relief.

Informants said Mr. Eisenhower listened quietly, with a frown on his face, as the complaints were raised at his weekly legislative conference with Senate Republican leader Robert A. Taft, Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr., and other GOP leaders of the House and Senate.

Congressional Republicans, who feel that the party must win next year's campaign gets underway, were upset by Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey's statement last week that the administration has abandoned hope of balancing the budget for the 1954 fiscal year which begins July 1.

Their chagrin turned to consternation when Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson told a House subcommittee Tuesday that it may take two or three years to bring the government's income and spending into "reasonable balance."

Humphrey, who sat in on the White House meeting, assured the lawmakers that Wilson's forecast was unduly pessimistic. He said he is confident that a balance can be achieved by July 1, 1954, the start of the 1955 fiscal year.

Informants said neither Humphrey nor Mr. Eisenhower gave the lawmakers any clue as to whom the administration believes taxes can be cut. But Humphrey said the administration will send formal tax proposals to Congress next week.

New Staff Chief Set Stage For Renewed Wrangling

New Service Quarrel Seen

By CHARLES CORDETT United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—Adm. Arthur W. Radford's nomination as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff set the stage in Congress today for an epic new unification fight and a bitter wrangle over the GOP administration's military plans.

The Pacific fleet commander, who led the "admirals' revolt" against unification policies in 1949, was expected to win Senate confirmation. But powerful Democrats on the Senate Armed Services Committee said he will first be "thoroughly examined" on his views on the Air Force's Strategic Air Command, keystone up to now of American retaliatory striking power.

Old unification sores are certain to be picked open in these sessions. And the controversies will spill over into appropriations hearings where Democrats are preparing an assault on Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson's proposal to slash projected Air Force goals from 143 to 120 wings.

Informants said Wilson will be the main target of Democratic fire. The argument will be made on Capitol Hill that Radford was his personal choice to head the joint chiefs, and that the selection was not cleared in advance with other Pentagon officials, including Secretary of the Navy Robert B. Anderson.

President Eisenhower sent Radford's nomination to the Senate Tuesday along with that of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, present North Atlantic Pact commander, to be army chief of staff. Mr. Eisenhower said he also will name Adm. Robert B. Carney, 6th fleet commander and chief of NATO forces in southern Europe, to replace Adm. William M. Fechteler as chief of naval operations.

Fechteler apparently will leave the post soon, although he had been appointed to a four-year term expiring in August, 1955. Carney supported Radford in the 1949 fight against the Pentagon emphasis on strategic bombing planning.

"In view of last week's nomination of Gen. Nathan F. Twining to succeed Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg as Air Force chief of staff, Tuesday's announcement means that a completely new joint chiefs of staff will soon take over.

Republicans generally praised the nominations. Senate Republican leader Robert A. Taft said the new chiefs would be able to give a "complete new look to our military program." Taft has been urging a thorough turn-over of the joint chiefs for some time.

Radford will succeed Gen. Omar N. Bradley, who called the admiral and his followers "fancy Dans" when they attacked unification policies and the B-36 bomber program in 1949.

Radford now will apparently preside over the joint chiefs when they make a completely new study of defense plans which Wilson said will cover the size of the armed forces, their missions, weapons, and strategic plans. The study will lay the groundwork for the fiscal 1955 defense budget.

Military observers were skeptical, however, that the new chiefs could satisfy the age-old congressional yearning for a lot more defense for considerably less money.

Congress Bristles As Foreign Policy Split Looms

Atlee's Views Stir Storm

WASHINGTON (UP)—Members of Congress bristled with resentment today at former British Prime Minister Clement R. Atlee's attack on the American government and its foreign policy.

Both Republicans and Democrats said Atlee was way out of bounds when he told the House of Commons Tuesday that "some elements" in this country want to continue the Korean war.

The former labor prime minister also criticized the U. S. constitution as an outmoded "isolationist" document, and said the division of powers which it creates in the U. S. government makes it questionable "which is the more powerful, the president or Sen. McCarthy."

None of this was well received on Capitol Hill.

Chairman Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said "no one has any right" to question this country's sincere desire for peace in Korea and all over the world.

He advised Atlee to "remember that this country has already spent $40,000,000,000 to work for peace" through the Marshall Plan and other foreign aid programs.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said Atlee's speech will stimulate the congressional drive for sharp cuts in the pending $5,800,000,000 foreign aid bill.

He angrily told a reporter that Atlee had struck "a terrific blow at the hand that feeds Britain."

Sen. John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) was more grieved than angry. "It is a tragedy of our times," he said, "that the English-speaking nations cannot get together on Asiatic policy."

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill's call for new big-power talks threatened today to provoke the most serious Anglo-American split on foreign policy since World War II.

Washington has remained notably silent during the two days since Churchill's proposal was advanced in Commons debate, while other leaders in Britain and Europe expressed growing approval of the idea.

Even Laborite leader Clement Attlee, head of the opposition in Parliament, has expressed approval of the call for a new big-power conference. He and Churchill agree that they might help to establish "personal relationships" with Soviet leaders on which peace could be built.

The whole tone of the foreign policy debate, which ended last night, indicated Britain sees more hope than the United States in the Russian "peace" moves which followed Josef Stalin's death.

Churchill's stand was especially surprising since he has been customarily more alert than many other world leaders to the dangers of communism.

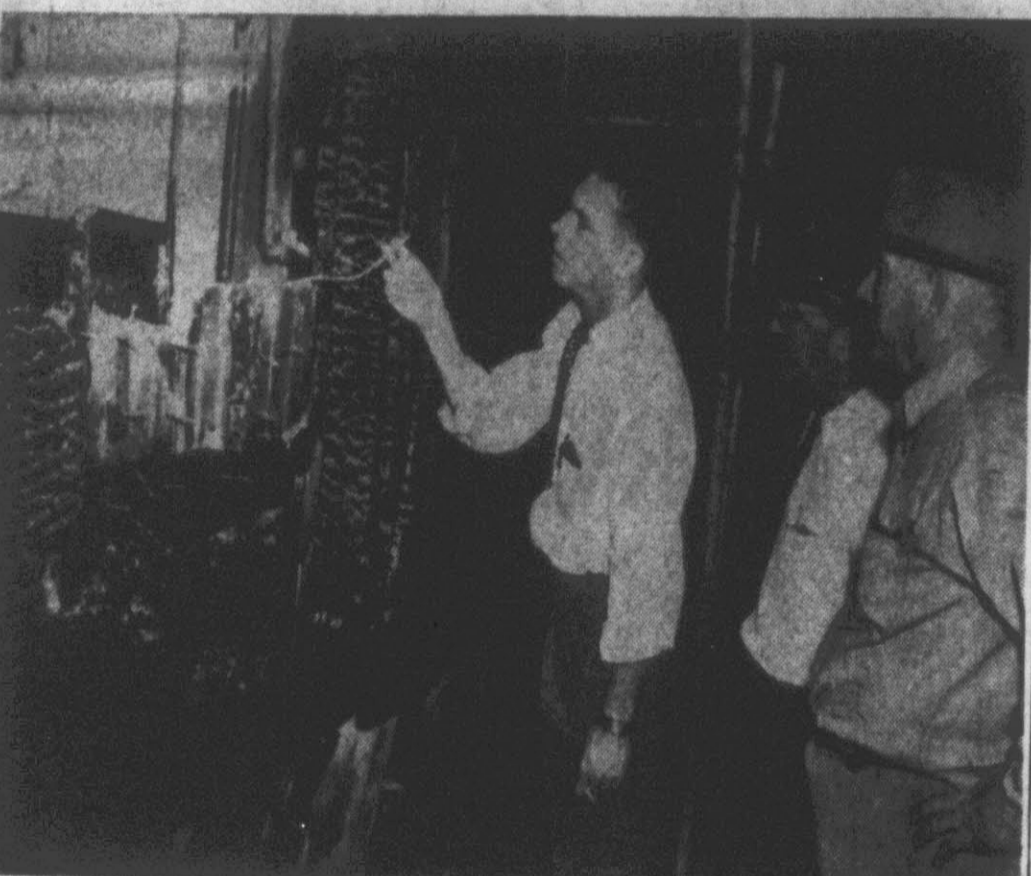

Armed Tel Aviv Grets Dulles

TELAVIV, Israel (UP)—United States Secretary of State John Foster Dulles arrived here today to confer with Israeli leaders on Mid-Eastern problems amid unprecedented security precautions.

Streets of the capital bristled with guns, troops and police on guard against Communist or other factional demonstrations.

Dulles flew here from Egypt where a hostile press angrily attacked his fact-finding tour and charged the United States with a "conspiracy of evil" with Britain. Dulles was accompanied by Mutual Security Director Harold Stassen.

Fire Damages Tar River Oyster House

Police Chief S. G. Gibbs (left), Fire Chief George Gardner and Captain Paul Crawford of the state prison camp look over the spot where the Oyster House fire started yesterday. Chief Gibbs holds an oil line found in the area where the fire began. Parts of the wood in the most heavily damaged section was impregnated with oil of some type, according to the officers.

A familiar landmark along the Tar was severely damaged by fire yesterday around 12:30 p.m.

The Tar River Oyster House, known to many Pitt Countyans for years, was nearly destroyed by fire originating in the unused building.

When fire equipment from Greenville arrived on the scene the middle part of the wooden structure was engulfed in flames and black smoke poured skyward.

Firemen, however, managed to soon bring the fire under control.

Owner of the building, Jack Teel, who has been running the oyster house for many years, reported to firemen and police that the building had not been in use for some time. He also told officers that several weeks ago someone set fire to an outbuilding belonging to him, destroying it.

Teel told officers that he found the front door of the building open when he checked it several days ago and had replaced the lock with a new one, which was still intact at the time of the fire yesterday.

Shortly after the blaze had been quieted, police and firemen launched an investigation into its origin.

Investigators from the state prison camp were called into service and searched the area for the person or persons believed to have fired the fire.

No estimate of the damage was made at once.

Wholesale Food Prices Decline

NEW YORK (UP)—Wholesale food prices on May 12 declined for the first time in six weeks, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., announced today.

The Dun & Bradstreet index fell 0.2 percent from 100.00 on May 11 to 99.80 on May 12. It had risen 0.3 percent since prices dipped 0.5 percent on March 31.

Wholesale prices were 0.8 percent above last year's figure of 99.38 and 7.7 percent over the pre-Korea index of 92.96, the agency reported.

French Troopers Crack Red Lines

HANOI, Indo China (UP)—French paratroopers wiped out an enemy company in an air-supported drive ripping deep into Communist positions near the French stronghold on the Plain of Jarres in Laos, it was announced today.

A French high command spokesman said two companies of paratroopers drove 15 miles into "no man's land" to crack Viet Minh Communist positions southwest of the French defenses on the plain.

Utilities Rates May Be Lowered By Study

A slight reduction in electric power rates may be forthcoming for consumers served by lines of Greenville utilities.

It was announced in a meeting of the local Utilities Commission here Monday that the firm of Slaughter, Saville and Blackburn Inc. had been requested to make a study of local power rate schedules to ascertain if a reduction in rates would be feasible.

Utilities Superintendent Martin Swartz today elaborated on the study of rate schedules of the local utilities which is now under way. Swartz said the firm had been asked to study the rate schedule and that it is "anticipated that a slight reduction in all rate schedules will be possible. He added that the domestic rate schedule of the local utilities definitely will receive a slight reduction. Swartz emphasized that any reductions which are forthcoming after the present study is completed will be slight.

He said the firm has been requested to study the present rate schedule of the Greenville Utilities and make recommendations for changes in the schedule to local officials.

Swartz added a "reduction in any case will be slight because we cannot afford to affect the net income from utilities too much because of the obligations to be met including the (money) turnover to the city."

The superintendent said he is sure there will be no rate reductions in the local electric power charges before July 1, but it is hoped that the study can be completed and the recommendations considered in time to make any reductions effective at the beginning of the fiscal year July 1.

As time goes on, Swartz said, he hopes it will be possible to make other reductions in rates charged for local power. He said further reductions may be possible in the future provided the utilities cash turnover to the city's general fund is not increased, and there are no unusual capital outlays necessary.

Swartz emphasized that the contemplated reductions in rates do not stem from any reductions in operation costs on the part of the local power plant. He said, however, that if increases in power consumption continue as it has over the recent years, the growth of the gross business of the utilities will make possible rate reductions.

Swartz added a "reduction in any

A.A.U.W. Holds Last Meeting of Year

The Greenville American Association of University Women was entertained Monday night in its last meeting of the school year at the home of Mrs. J. L. Fleming on James Street. The meeting combined business and an informal supper—sandwiches and a delicious dessert and coffee served by the hostess.

In the absence of the retiring president, Mrs. Walter Krausnick, the vice-president, Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, opened the meeting and presented the new president, Mrs. D. S. Spain Jr., who spoke briefly of plans for next year.

After the business of the evening, Mrs. Spain and Mrs. R. L. Humber recently delegates to the state convention of the AAUW in Asheville, gave the highlights of the convention.

It was announced that the branch had bought a travel clock for a gift to Mrs. Walter Krausnick in appreciation of the contribution she has made to the work of the branch by her untiring service as president during the past three years. A guest of the evening was Mrs. Austin of Rock Hill, S. C., mother of Mrs. George Perry.

Miss Henderson Gives Clio Club Program

The Clio Book Club was charmingly entertained on Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Robert Lang at her beautiful new home in Brookgreen. The president, Mrs. Sigill, welcomed the guests, Mrs. Sidney Dunn and Mrs. Lawrence Smith, and presided over a short business meeting. She reminded everyone of the importance of voting on June 2 for the school bond issue.

The hostess then presented Miss Dorothy Nell Henderson who gave a delightful glimpse of her beautiful draperies, wallpapers and color schemes. She graciously answered the many questions on decorating a home.

Following the book exchange and program, Mrs. Lang served a delicious salad course.

Maj. Benjamin May Chapter D.A.R. Meets

FARMVILLE—The Major Benjamin May Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution were entertained on Saturday afternoon, May 9th, at the Chapter House with Mrs. T. Eli Joyner Sr. and Mrs. T. Eli Joyner Jr. as hostesses. The Chapter House was artistically decorated with arrangements of magnolia leaves and colonial figurines on each mantel. Roses were used in profusion with the interest centered on the table arrangement of growing orchids and copper lustre.

The devotional, led by Mrs. E. B. Beasley, was honoring Mother's Day. She read from the Bible portions of the 31st chapter of Proverbs, and a special selection of poems in keeping with the theme.

The "Star Spangled Banner" was sung in unison, accompanied by Mrs. Haywood Smith at the piano, after which the pledge of allegiance followed.

Mrs. W. C. Murray gave an interesting, comprehensive and pictorial report of the Sixty-second Continental Congress held in Washington at which Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Murray were delegates. She described the opening of the Congress as truly a pageant of color and drama. She gave in detail the business and social events of the week showing newspaper pictures covering the high spots of the meeting and ending with the installation of Miss Gertrude Carraway of New Bern as President General of the National Society, D.A.R. for the next three years.

Mrs. John B. Wright Jr. then read the stirring and dramatic address entitled "Individual Responsibility" which was given by Mrs. James B. Patton, the retiring President General.

Mrs. Murray and Mrs. Wright presented a very interesting scrapbook of the Congress to the Chapter. A musical program was rendered by Miss Nancy Jane Carroll, soloist, with Mrs. Haywood Smith as accompanist. Her first selection was Toselli's "Goodbye." She then sang "Mother Machree" by Alcott and Ball, honoring her mother, Mrs. Ellen N.

Carroll, the regent, and in keeping with the thought of the day.

Special guests were Mrs. Paul W. Matheson of Winter Garden, Fla., Mrs. Nonie Barrett and Miss Nancy Jane Carroll.

Delicious refreshments of ice cream in flower motifs and matching petite fours, salted nuts and mints were served by the hostesses assisted by Mrs. Matheson, mother of Mrs. T. Eli Joyner Jr.

Dr. Haney Speaks On Alcoholic Studies

The Fireside Club met Tuesday night at eight o'clock at the Eighth Street Christian Church.

Mr. Robert Moyer, president, presented the slate of officers for the next year, who were unanimously elected: Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Laughlinhouse, co-presidents, and Mrs. W. L. Allen.

Mr. Ty Wagner gave the devotional.

Dr. Haney led the group in prayer. Dr. Haney gave a talk on "The Yale Summer School of Alcoholic Studies." He attended 68 lectures on Social Study of Alcoholism. He stated that there are four to six million people who have to have alcohol to get along. Very few young people from 15 years to twenty years drink. The majority of the drinkers are from 35 to 55 years of age.

He also emphasized the wonderful work the AA is doing. The way to help alcoholics is to study their personalities to know him and work with him.

After a general discussion with the group, the hostesses for the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Milo Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Forrest Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Haney, Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Tetterton, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Forrest, served delicious refreshments.

Mrs. Phillips Hostess To Lector Book Club

Mrs. Kenneth Phillips entertained members of the Lector Book Club last Tuesday at a luncheon in the private dining room of Silo Grill. A two course luncheon was served. A color note of red and white was carried out. The centerpiece was a mass of red roses and red glads. Two low oblong arrangements of red glads and white roses on either side of the centerpiece extended to the ends of the table.

After luncheon, Mrs. Thomas Wilson, president, presided at the business meeting. Mrs. Phillips' program was in the form of a quiz entitled "The Bible Tree of Knowledge." The questions concerned both the New and Old Testament. The club has been studying the Old Testament this year after completing the New Testament last year.

Mrs. R. S. Moyer was guest for the luncheon and meeting.

White-Breedlove Vows Spoken In Formal Ceremony

Miss Grace Breedlove of Nashville and Oriental, daughter of Mrs. J. W. Breedlove of Nashville and Mr. Sherod Smith White son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. White of Greenville were united in marriage on Saturday, May 9th in the Nashville Baptist Church. The vows were pledged at eight o'clock in the evening in a formal ceremony of beauty and simplicity with Rev. Durham Speck officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated with floor baskets of white gladioli, carnations and snapdragons.

The altar was banked with Oregon fern and simlax interspersed with seven branch candelabra holding cathedral tapers.

Prior to the ceremony a program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Bob Stantfield of Nashville, organist, and Mrs. Joseph Downing of Kipling, soloist, who sang, "Through The Years," by Vincent Youman, "Still As The Night," by C. Bohm and "The Lords Prayer," by Malotte.

Given in marriage by her brother, Bill Breedlove, the bride wore a gown of white satin styled with an empire waistline outlined in seed pearls, long sleeves that ended in full points over the hands and the full satin skirt was accented with inverted pleats extending into a cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of seed pearls and she carried a cascade of white asters centered with a circle of white brides roses and showered with stephanotis.

Miss Peggy Breedlove, sister of the bride, who was maid of honor, wore a dress of aqua nylon net over taffeta with fitted bodice and matching net bertha and a cloche of aqua nylon net.

Mrs. Frank Penney, sister of the bridegroom, and matron of honor, wore an aqua dress of lace and nylon net with matching lace bertha. She wore a cloche of aqua lace and net. Both honor attendants carried aqua lace fans edged with matching asters blended from shades of light illusion, centered with a cluster of dark pink and showered with gypsophylla and matching satin ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Bill Breedlove of Charlotte, Mrs. M. E. White, Jr. of Greenville, Mrs. Jack Matthews of Rocky Mount, and Miss Doris Edwards of Morganton. They wore dresses of yellow lace and nylon net like that of the matron of honor and carried yellow lace fans edged with matching illusion, centered with a cluster of asters in blended shades of lavender and showered with gypsophylla and matching satin ribbon.

Miss Marsha Penny, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a dress of white organdy over white taffeta and carried a white basket filled with red rose petals.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother M. E. White, Jr. as best man.

Ushers were James and Tommy Breedlove of Nashville, Bill Sutton of Maryland, Tommy Diener of Norfolk, Junius, Rose of Jacksonville and Frank Penny of Richmond.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of mauve lace over taffeta with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a gown of French blue styled with lace bolero and matching accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

For the wedding trip the bride wore a suit of beige gaberdine with matching hat and blouse and benedictine shoes and bag. Her corsage was green orchids.

Mrs. White is a Home Economics graduate of East Carolina College, Greenville, who for the past two years has been employed as Home Demonstration Agent in Pamlico County.

Mr. White, an alumni of East Carolina College, served two years in the U. S. Army and is now employed by the Commercial Credit Company in Greensboro.

Following the wedding trip the couple will be at home in Greensboro.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was given at the home of the bride. Guests were greeted upon arrival by Bill Breedlove and Mr. M. E. White, Sr., who presented them to the receiving line composed of the bridal couple, mothers of the couple and wedding party.

Mrs. Roy Walston and Mrs. Linwood Insoce presided at the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sellers directed guests to the dining room where Mrs. W. D. Tharrington and Mrs. Lloyd Mills presided at the punch bowl.

Mrs. Gene West and Mrs. Elmer Bolden served the wedding cake.

The table was covered with an imported embroidered linen cloth and white tapers burned in a crystal chandelier surrounded by floating anemone daisies.

The wedding gifts were beautifully displayed in the den adjoining the dining room presided over by Mrs. Effie Vines Gordon.

The home was decorated throughout with white gladioli, snapdragons, and stock artistically arranged in carrying out the wedding motif.

Approximately 300 guests paid their respects.

Goodbyes were said to Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Hollowell.

Near One-Third Of Goal Reached By Pirates Club

A report of the 22 committees soliciting memberships in the Pirates Club released today by President E. E. Rawl, Sr. shows 31.3 per cent of the charter membership goal of 1,000 members has been reached by the club.

The Pirates Club was recently organized by a group of local citizens to support the athletic program at East Carolina College. The campaign for 1,000 charter members in the club was undertaken by local citizens who formed the stadium committee which obtained funds for the construction of the East Carolina stadium a few years ago.

Through noon yesterday, reports from the 22 committees showed 344 charter memberships for the Pirates club already have been written by the local committees. In addition, work began this week on the formation of Pirates Club chapters in Farmville and Washington.

In the report released today, the committee composed of Lee Folger and Royce Jones stood in first place in committee standings having secured 112 per cent of their quota of 50 charter memberships for the club.

Each charter member of the Pirates club receives, among other things, a season ticket to the home football games of the East Carolina team next fall. A portion of the money from the 1,000 charter memberships in the club has been designated for the purchase of 1,200 additional seats for the college stadium. Athletic officials at ECC have pointed out that greater seating capacity is needed at the stadium if East Carolina is to schedule home games with more prominent football teams than have previously played here.

Blasting Caps No Safe Plaything

With the approach of the summer months, Pitt Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson warned children and grown-up of the county not to play with blasting caps.

He pointed out that summer is the time when boys and girls face the greatest danger from blasting caps. "Blasting cap explosions that hurt children last year increased twelve and one-half per cent in summer months over those occurring in fall and winter," Tyson said.

That was because more caps are always used in the months of open weather to detonate explosions that do essential construction, mining, quarrying and field clearing jobs, he explained. "Then too, Tyson said, 'more boys and girls play outdoors where caps go astray, get lost or stolen.'

"A child picking up a blasting cap is in deadly danger," Sheriff Tyson said, urging boys, girls, or grown-ups untrained to handle explosives, to report to the nearest sheriff, deputy sheriff, or other peace officer, the finding of a cap.

"Caps are bright, metal tubes, about as big round as a pencil, one and one-half to five inches long," he said, "and they're made of aluminum or copper. Exposure to air and moisture, outdoors, can dull aluminum and darken copper, but the sensitive explosive inside is still dangerous until detonated."

Credit Women's Course Is Ended

Speaking to the full club membership, several bosses and sponsors on Tuesday night at the City Hall, Attorney Sam Underwood completed the Credit Women's Breakfast Club's last lesson on Commercial Law. His topic was Criminal Law, Bankruptcy and Torts.

Mr. Underwood explained that law, and especially North Carolina law, is based on English Common Law, except where changed by legislative action by statute; and defined law as the basis devised to protect the rights of all peoples and to prevent tyranny and establish justice. Criminal law treats of crimes against property and person and is graded by legislature as to degree in order to more nearly achieve an equality of justice to all.

Bankruptcy and Torts were defined, treated briefly, and examples given for illustration.

Following the half hour devoted to questions from the class, Mrs. Elliott Johnson, educational chairman, thanked Mr. Underwood on behalf of the club and presented him with a gift of appreciation.

Local attorneys who gave of their time as instructors were: lawyers Cavendish, Hite, Harrell, Gaylord, Speight, Con Lanier Jr., Watson, Bundy and Underwood.

Strength for the Day

WHAT MAKES RELIGION GENUINE?
 Did you ever meet a religious person who didn't believe in God? The query appears absurd—self-contradictory. How can a person be religious and not believe in God?

There are plenty of people who lug about with them all the appurtenances of religion without having any real religion in their hearts. For religion, when we get right down to brass tacks, is primarily a trust in God. If we have that trust, we have everything true religion has to offer. We have belief, confidence, faith, kindness, and right conduct. We may have belief but no trust—even good conduct, and no trust in God. But once we have trust in God, we have every quality which true religion would cultivate in the human heart.

So it is true that some people can be religious and yet not believe in God. They go to church, read their Bible, pray—but they do not trust. At the basis of all satisfactory human relationships lies the trust that persons have in one another. All satisfactory relationships between God and man reside in our being able to trust in Him who, by his very creation of us, indicates that He trusts us. Trust is so important that we may put it in the forefront of the spiritual life.

So Much Money Needs The Attention Of All

Just a little more than a week remains in the registration period for the special school bond referendum to be decided June 2.

When the proposed bond issue comes to a vote on the designated day, it will be the prerogative of the voters registered for the special election to say whether or not a $1,500,000 bond issue is floated by the Greenville school district.

The Reflector, as already noted, is strongly in favor of the bond issue being floated for the school district. The money is urgently needed to provide adequate facilities for the constantly increasing enrollment in the city schools.

At the same time, we do not believe it should be left up to a relatively handful of local citizens to determine whether the schools should have the much needed, $1,500,000 or whether they should do without it. Unless the registration for the special election increases decidedly during the next week and a half, that will be the case.

Through yesterday there were slightly more than 115 people registered for the special election. That figure represents less than 1.4 per cent of the citizens in the school district who would be eligible to vote in the election if they register. In Greenville alone there are more than 7,200 eligible voters. And the school district includes a small amount of territory outside the corporate limits of Greenville, which means upwards of 8,000 people should be eligible for the election.

The point is that this special school bond referendum requires a special referendum. Only those who register before the special registration period closes May 23 will be eligible to cast a ballot on the $1,500,000 question.

The vast majority of the people in the Greenville school district are presumed aware of the urgent need for the additional school facilities the bond issue would provide. For that reason we feel that the vast majority of the people are in favor of the bond issue.

Yet the spending of one-and-one-half million dollars is no small undertaking for the Greenville school district. The money will have to be paid back over a long period of time and with interest. And the money will have to come from the pockets of local citizens in the form of a school tax.

To reiterate: we believe the school bond issue should be approved by the voters of the Greenville district. But at the same time we believe the decision on a matter of such consequence should not be left to a relatively few of the many people concerned.

A Tour That Should Be Profitable For City

The decision of Greenville's councilmen to visit other cities in North Carolina which operate under the council-manager form of government seems a wise step.

Obviously the members of the council are new at their elected job of directing the affairs of city government. Only one of the five members has ever been a member of a municipal governing board, and none of the new councilmen have had first hand dealings with the council-manager form of government.

Naturally the Greenville council will not be able to learn everything about council-manager government by visiting the four cities they propose to visit. But during their conferences and tours of other cities, they will no doubt learn a great deal more about council-manager government operations than they now know. Chances are they will be able to gather valuable information which will enable Greenville to profit by mistakes in other cities when the form of government was changed.

It is apparent that the new city council in Greenville is not going to rush into the matter of hiring a city manager. We believe that decision is wise, and even though it takes a few months for them to find a top notch manager, Greenville probably will be better off in the long run.

Until such a manager is hired by the council, it is going to be up to the mayor and other councilmen to direct the operations of the city and supervise them. The information they can glean from other cities will be valuable at the present as well as in the future.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Secretary Douglas McKay's decision in favor of private rather than public development of Hells Canyon Dam has been denounced as a "sellout to the power trust," although he has emphasized in private and official talks that his action was based on realities rather than ideologies. He prefers immediate construction of sorely needed power facilities for the growing Northwest instead of a prolonged politico-economic controversy.

The Truman-Chapman program envisaged government development of Hells Canyon resembling such vast projects as TVA, Grand Coulee and Bonneville. They argued that their plan would provide far more electricity than the McKay system, which would permit the construction of several smaller private dams along the Snake and Columbia Rivers by the Idaho Power Co.

TEST OF NATIONWIDE ISSUE—As a result of years of agitation by Truman, Chapman and the late Harold L. Ickes, together with their political and newspaper supporters, the dispute has been transformed into a sort of "Custer's last stand" on the question of public versus private power. The Eisenhower Administration's decision had been awaited as a test on this major nationwide issue.

With the quarrel over tidelands oil, Hells Canyon became the stage for the first showdown between the GOP and its opposition since the election. Ickes' opponents now charge that he has inaugurated a systematic policy of "giving away" natural resources worth many billions of dollars to selfish, private interests—oil, power, land, mineral, timber, etc.

With related problems, it will undoubtedly become the dominant issue in the 1956 and 1958 campaigns, especially in the Far West, the South and the Southwest.

Indeed, since many other regions still have undeveloped resources of one kind or another, although not of a magnitude rivaling Hells Canyon, the question packs as much political dynamite as disputes over taxes, tariffs, prices and foreign policy.

In view of two wars' drain on our national and natural wealth, and the prospect of further exhaustion in a World War III, the conservation problem becomes a dramatic and dynamic issue.

COMPLEX QUESTION—Neither Eisenhower nor McKay view their decision on Hells Canyon as a radical departure from broad and historic policies of conservation. In fact, there is a tendency in official quarters to feel that their attitude has been reported faithfully, although they do not charge deliberate misrepresentation. The question of power development is extremely complex.

In the first place, McKay has not taken a hard-and-fast stand against Federal, local or state construction, operation and transmission of power. He believes that each problem should be judged and handled separately, depending on economic, engineering and geographic conditions. If he were to explain his attitude in a few words, here is what he might say:

U. S. TO STAY IN FIELD—"I favor private development wherever it will not interfere with the orderly development of natural resources. It is probable that the Federal Government will handle vast projects on the main river stems, with the related activities of flood control, navigation and irrigation. There also will be room for public power units, cooperatives and municipalities to handle their specific local problems.

"The United States is not getting out of the power and reclamation field."

PRACTICAL SOLUTION SOUGHT—With respect to Hells Canyon, McKay says that he seeks a practical rather than a political solution.

If the Federal Power Commission grants the Idaho Power Co.'s application to build several small dams, he points out, they will be built and placed in operation within a few years. And the expanding Northwest needs power NOW, or as soon as it can get it.

Congress has turned down the Hells Canyon project once, and shelved it once. In view of its present conservative mood, as revealed in the tidelands vote, it will not approve it for many, many years. A major negative factor will be money. Federal construction will cost almost $1.5 billion, while private development will not dent the Treasury or add to the public debt.

Unlike his predecessors, McKay prefers to solve an issue on a practical basis rather than preserve it for its possible vote-getting aspects.

DIVIDING THE CUSTOMER'S DOLLAR
 Who gets the most out of each dollar that customers spend with American business?

The answer varies substantially from business to business, of course. But it is commonplace today for typical enterprise, and especially the larger enterprises to pay more money to government in taxes than to any other group or agency.

Last year's financial experience of a leading oil company is very much in point. Here is what happened:

Its employees received 14 3-4 cents out of each customer's dollar. And they were well paid indeed—the average was $5.810 per employee.

Profits came to 8 1-4 cents of each customer's dollar. But only 3 1-2 cents was paid out to the shareholders. The remainder, 4 3-4 cents was plowed back into the business to help pay for expansion and the replacement of worn-out equipment.

Federal, state and local tax collectors got 18 1-2 cents out of every dollar customers spent for the products of this company. In short, government received more than five times as much as the owners of the business—and one-quarter more than the employees.

Many other companies report similar experience. Vote-seeking politicians often use attacks on business as their stock in trade. But it's the tax dollars of such businesses, as this oil company that pay a very large part of the huge costs of government.—(Industrial News Review)

What Other Papers Are Thinking

INVESTIGATION OR INTIMIDATION
 (Greensboro Daily News)
 Senator Joe McCarthy's handling of the senatorial investigation of James Wechsler, editor of the New York Post, raises a question of import to all editors and all citizens: What is the purpose of the investigation?

Is it to ferret out Communist influence, or is it to intimidate a newspaperman who has criticized McCarthy, and so to intimidate the press?

The ostensible purpose of the hearing was to investigate a couple of books which had been written by Wechsler and which were placed in our overseas libraries. Wechsler had belonged to Communist organizations when young, but he turned from them in 1940, and since being editor of the Post he has been attacking Communism, Nazism, Fascism and McCarthyism with impartial vigor.

The investigation did not concern itself with Wechsler's books although the main question was supposed to be whether these books served Communist ends.

It concerned itself with Wechsler, and McCarthy spent much time browbeating him. Yet McCarthy seems to have no objection to former Communists; some of his best friends, such as Louis Budenz, are ex-Communists.

Did McCarthy then browbeat Wechsler because Wechsler had criticized him? If so, is this a warning to other newspapermen that it is dangerous to speak ill of McCarthy?

Wechsler says that the proceeding is "the first in a long line of attempts to intimidate editors who do not equate McCarthyism with patriotism."

If so, it is high time for other senators to make it the last attempt. Also it is time for the press to make it crystal clear that its main business is not to be intimidated.

The Old Snipe Hunt

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Monday afternoon when I talked to Hartwell Campbell of Greenville's coming television station, WNCN, he was all smiles. "We are slated to go on the air September 1st," he said, "and already we have sold three hours of advertising per week." Some stations have gone on the air with as few as 10 hours a week sold.

Programs scheduled to come in on WNCN through the facilities of the Columbia Broadcasting System are The Perry Como Show, Arthur Godfrey and his friends, the Chrysler Medallion Theater, and the Prudential Life Insurance show, "You Are There." The Medallion Theater is a dramatic presentation something on the order of the Robert Montgomery Presents program we get from Norfolk now. "You Are There" is a program I have either seen or read about, because it seems familiar to me. The program is a dramatic reproduction of a historic event filmed almost realistically enough to convince anyone that he was there, for example, when Rome burned.

As previous news releases have announced, CBS will be the basic network for our TV station, which means that the network must foot the bill for construction of microwave relay stations that will bring us the live show.

With CBS as a basic network we are assured of good show. However, in order to have an ideal set-up, it would be desirable to get the top shows from the four TV networks, CBS, NBC, ABC and DuMont. In order to investigate the possibility of this set-up, Campbell spent part of last week in New York.

Both NBC and ABC were very receptive to his visits and seemed sorry that WNCN has already signed CBS as a basic network.

No papers were signed, but it's safe to assume that programs will be available from all four networks.

In the near future three of Radio Station WGTC's engineers, Bill Eiks, Hester Adams and Chief Engineer Hank Tribley will be farmed out to WTAR-TV, Norfolk, in order to gain experience that will help in the operation of WNCN-TV. "The Norfolk station," Hartwell says, "has been very gracious to take us in."

What could possibly happen to keep us off the air by September 1st? The main concern is delivery of equipment, which has been promised by RCA. If the telephone company fails to complete the microwave system on time we can still use kitescope. In other words, we can still have network shows slightly delayed. Actually, we have no reason for concern. No delays are anticipated. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

SLOW — The executive committee of the board of trustees of the Consolidated University is infected with the same virus of delay and deferred action which afflicted the General Assembly and the Governor. The meeting held in Raleigh Monday morning, which had been expected to make recommendation to the full board of a chancellor at State College adjourned without positive action. It has been almost a year since Col. John W. Harrelson advised the trustees he would like to retire on June 30. Indications are that the trustees when they meet in full session early next month will ask Col. Harrelson to remain on the job for another 60 or 90 days while they complete screening of prospective successors.

CLOSED — Monday's meeting was held in the Governor's office with the door closed tight. That door is rarely closed, although nobody barges into a conference around the Governor's desk without an invitation. Also by common consent it is recognized that closed or secret sessions of committees and boards are justified, in fact necessary, when matters involving the personal habits, qualifications and character of persons are being discussed. That is vastly different from discussion of dollars or of general policy affecting all of the people in equal degree.

IMPOSITIONS — The dividing line between topics appropriately confidential and essentially public is sometimes difficult to draw. Undoubtedly there have been impositions and indiscretions in both areas. It seems certain that the people have been denied some information to which they were entitled, and there have been instances when publication of statements about the qualifications of those under consideration for important public positions have done the individuals great injustice. Solely as factual reporting and not by way of criticism, it should be stated that all the deliberations of the faculty-trustee committee and the executive committee of the board respecting a State College chancellor have been so secret that the public does not even know the names of the prospects.

CONTRAST — Almost at the same time the General Assembly of North Carolina was repealing a 28-year-old statute requiring that appropriations committees deliberate in public, and substituting the "secretary law" for such discussions, the legislatures of other States, particularly Washington and Texas, were moving in the opposite direction toward freedom of information about public business. The current issue of Editor & Publisher, a weekly magazine for newspaper publishers at New York, has two editorials on the subject. One commends the Pulitzer award to two North Carolina non-daily newspapers, the Whiteville News-Reporter and the Tabor City Tribune, for their fight against the secret Ku Klux Klan.

TEXAS — The other deals with the Texas resolution, and significantly that editorial appraises directly from the scriptural quotation of John 3X, 20: "Blessed are they who have not seen, yet have believed." E&P points out that the Texas Senate and House have gone on record as: (1) Urging Congress and the state legislatures to provide for full disclosure of information; (2) Urging all national, state, county and city government officers to conduct publicly the public's business (3) Warning all citizens that free government may be subverted by secret proceedings; (4) Calling for revocation of President Truman's executive order of Sept. 25, 1951; (5) Stating that all government documents should be confined to agencies having to do with national military security; (6) Asking for a continuous, concurrent review of all acts classifying information to prevent abuse; (7) Urging uniform definitions of various secret categories used in classifying information.

GENERAL — The provisions of the Texas resolution comply in all general terms with contentions of North Carolina newsmen, in recognizing that where national defense, common security and personalities are involved premature publicity may be harmful and self-record, if not secret, meetings are almost necessary. But where rivalry among state institutions for major share of the money to be appropriated, or personal rivalry for prestige on part of minor officials, is the issue there is no excuse for secrecy. Those are matters that taxpayers, individually and en masse, have full right to know about.

RESEARCH — The average person may find it difficult to understand how the erratic fluctuation of water pressure in a city could be used to prove the varying effectiveness of advertising media. The people whose job it is to study such matters have found close relationship between water pressure and television advertising. Let a couple of paragraphs

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Weekends in the country are providing a breather for increasing numbers of Washington working couples, from top officials down to government girls and their husbands. It may be a many-voiced family estate or just a small rented cottage in nearby Maryland or Virginia, but it gives them a retreat from the hectic whirl of the capital.

Typical retreaters are Dr. Stuart Porter of the World Health Organization (WHO) and his wife, Mildred, secretary of the Library of Congress. They have an attractive log cabin 65 miles away in southern Maryland on the Chesapeake Bay.

There is nobody who works hard needs to find a balance in living," Mrs. Porter laid me, "whether it's pattering around on wheels through old book stalls. You save doctor bills, marriage and sanity and get a proper sense of values."

You may have to stretch your budget, but you don't need a fortune to find this balance, says Mrs. Porter. What you might spend on a trip to Bermuda or some other forgotten vacation spot in a year-round town, the Porters go to their retreat almost every week-end, in winter. A large fireplace, a decorative old Franklin stove and an electric radiator give them ample heat.

The Porters met in Michigan during the early '30s, when both were working for the Works Progress Administration. She was an administrative employe and he was an historian.

They came to Washington 11 years ago when Dr. Porter was made director of Administration for the National Archives. He was also editor of "Military Affairs," a quarterly periodical dealing with the art of war. Later, before joining WHO, he worked for the U.S. Displaced Persons Commission of the U. S. Mrs. Porter joined the Library staff about the same time. Her son James, 19 is with the Seabees at Newport, R.I.

In Washington the Porters live across from the Library in a renovated 1860 house where Dr. Porter is building up a collection of old books and she indulges in her flair for cooking. Their small country garden is interesting. Herbs for seasoning plots here and there. Radishes and asparagus are scattered in separate little lettuce border flowers planted at the foot of trees. Corn, rhubarb and asparagus occupy another spot.

"We have a wonder 'Linn,'" said Mrs. Porter, "and when we come back late Sundays, we're ready and willing to give ourselves up to the job of the week ahead."

AT A MIDWEST AIRPORT (AP)

—A man who travels regularly by air today no longer lives at home. He spends most of his life at airports.

The slogan of the air age is the same as the Army's: "Hurry up and wait."

A fellow might just as well divorce his wife and marry an airplane. You don't have time in one life to wait for both of them to get ready.

The airplane is an instrument of hurry which is supposed to get you from city to city. It doesn't do that at all. It gets you from one reformed cow pasture to another. Then you sit down and wait for your baggage, which supposedly is in the belly of the plane but actually follows by ox-cart.

Then, when you and your suitcase are reunited, you borrow a compass and set out for your real destination—the city.

All airports are wasteful in utility. They all look exactly alike and have one thing in common: no matter which direction you go from any of them you are bound to get closer to civilization.

The typical airport has a soft-drink machine which is empty, and a pinball machine that is broken but will accept your coin anyway. It has a few hard oak benches, a newsstand with yesterday's papers, and a lunchroom stocked with tidbits left over from the Spanish-American War.

There is absolutely nothing to do at an airport except take off your shirt and contemplate your navel, and if you do that they arrest you. A man who can invent something you can do while waiting at an airport—anything at all—is sure of a niche in the Hall of Fame.

The least they could do is put a widow's walk on the roof, so a passenger could pace back and forth and scan the skies, waiting for his ship to come in.

My theory is that the air age has brought America to the crossroads. Sooner or later we are to have to choose between living at airports or in cities. The prospect of commercial jet plane travel will probably force a solution. The jets will require airports so distant from any settled place it will no longer be practical to make the journey from airport to city.

Since the big aluminum sky birds can't adjust themselves to man, I think man might as well start adjusting himself to them.

It is high time we started gradually deserting our out-of-date cities, and began building new temples of culture around our airports.

What good does it do to zip through the air from Chicago to New York in three hours, if a man can watch his fingernails grow while he is trying to get from the airport into town?

Fifty years from now Manhattan, Chicago, St. Louis and Los Angeles probably will be abandoned, crumbling symbols of the past, inhabited by woodchucks and visited only by the more adventurous tourists, willing to undergo any hardship to get a snapshot of a quaint, former way of life.

Yes, sir, the bright new cities of the future will be ringed around the big new cow pastures, where the sky birds nest. The airport will be the city.

The trouble with the sky birds today, stuck at an airport with nothing to do between planes, is that he was born just a half century too soon.

Public construction expenditures during the month totaled $887,000,000, only 1.3 per cent higher than the corresponding month in 1952. The rise was small partly because of an 11.1 per cent decrease in public construction of residential buildings and a 19 per cent decrease in hospital and institutional buildings.

Expenditures for the four months ended April 30 total $6,681,000,000, a gain of 5.7 per cent. Private construction was up 6.9 per cent to $6,723,000,000 and public construction was up 3.3 per cent to $2,908,000,000.

WAR PRISONERS STILL RETAIN JOB RIGHTS.
 The Universal Military Training and Service Act states that an inductee forfeits his re-employment rights if he voluntarily renounces his service more than four years. The rule, however, does not apply to Korean War veterans remaining in service more than four years, due to imprisonment by the enemy, Secretary of Labor Martin P. Durkin has ruled.

It also applies to reservists at National Guard members.

Post-Korea veterans, incidentally, are being placed in jobs at a rapid rate. According to Durkin, local offices of state employment services placed 50,684 veterans in jobs during the first quarter of this year. In special job counseling assistance was given to more than 28,000 veterans during that period.

THREE-WAY TIE-IN AIDS MERCHANDISING.
 A novel promotion-aid program for the photographic industry is being sponsored by Photo-Graphic.

To encourage retail photography equipment stores to spend money on merchandising, "Photography" will run a feature story on one phase of photography each quarter. Manufacturers can participate in the plan by running at least a one-third page ad in "Photography" and by paying $150 towards merchandising kits — including window streamers, stickers, counter card newspaper mats, check lists and window display suggestions.

The retailer, to participate, must promise to use the kit and feature the particular phase of photography and the equipment being promoted.

The plan is on an exclusive non-city basis, except in the ten largest cities. So far, eight manufacturers and more than 250 dealers have joined up.

Girl Indicted In Hospital Swindle

JACKSON, Miss. (UP)—A pretty X-ray technician has been indicted for larceny on charges she swindled a hospital of $10,000 in blood donor payments with the innocent aid of her boy friends.

Deputies went today to the Columbia, Miss., home of blonde Heien Hood to return her here for arraignment.

The 27-year-old medical student, described as a "brilliant" scholar, talked her college boy friends into filling out forms which specified $25 would be paid by the Baptist Hospital where she worked, for blood donors, police said.

She told them that student nurses had contributed blood but would not get paid for it under hospital rules but they could get their money this way.

The boys, unaware of their part in the swindle, would receive $5 of the $25 while the rest, ostensibly collected for the nurses, would go to Miss Hood, it was charged.

The attractive woman who holds both bachelor and master degrees in science and who is a member of a prominent South Mississippi family was indicted on three grand larceny bills returned yesterday by the Hinds County grand jury.

Two Seniors Named For GHS Graduation Addresses On June 1

O. E. Dowd, Greenville High School principal, announced today that seniors Elizabeth Ann Williams and Frank Brooks will make the graduation addresses at commencement exercises for the high school on June 1.

The graduation, in which 82 seniors will receive diplomas, will be held in the flight auditorium at East Carolina College Monday night, June 1, at 8 p.m.

The two seniors will speak on the new junior-senior high school program for Greenville. In addition to the addresses, the glee clubs of Greenville High School and the band will present musical numbers with solos.

J.B. James, chairman of the Greenville City Schools Board of Trustees will present the seniors with diplomas.

Rev. Wallace I. Wolverton, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, will deliver the commencement sermon on Sunday night, May 31, at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

At this time Rev. J.A. Neilson will give the invocation and Ray Evans, president of the senior class will preside.

In connection with the 1953 commencement exercises, "Class and Awards Night" will be held Friday night, May 29, in the Greenville High School auditorium at 8 p.m. Awards will be presented to the outstanding seniors of this year's graduating class. The seniors will present some form of entertainment in both music and drama.

It Cost $499 To Rob Supermarket

WHITTIER, Calif. (UP)—It cost burglars $499 to rob the supermarket owned by Donald Nixon, brother of Vice President Richard Nixon.

The burglars smashed their way into the store and fled with $1 when a barking dog frightened them away. They left $500 worth of burglars tools behind.

Simpson Clubs Are Joint Hosts For Barbecue

SIMPSON—The Simpson Ruritan Club and the Home Demonstration Club were joint hosts at a barbecue supper at the Community Building last night.

Proceeds from sale of tickets will be used to pay for completion of the Community Building. The Simpson clubs sponsor two suppers a year—one in the spring, another in the fall—for the benefit of the building fund.

The building is a large structure with unusually high ceiling. It has kitchen facilities, a spacious dining hall and a stage for presentation of plays and holding public speaking.

Messick Speaks At Ruritan Club

FACTOLUS—Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina College, guest speaker at the Factolus Ruritan Club Monday night discussed "Relations of Adults and Children and Their Future."

He emphasized the old injunction, "You can't live independently if you want to get along in this world. Today's competitive everyday life demands that a person be alert at all times and decide what you want to be, aim on a straight course toward good service and success."

The college president stressed the point that every citizen should take an active part in the life of their own community and the state and nation.

Ruritan President Jack Tripp presided over the meeting and welcomed the high school seniors and bus drivers.

Erskine Duff, Pitt County Boy Scout official, and Lester Dollar, field scout executive of Greenville, were present and invited the Ruritan Club to sponsor organizing of a Boy Scout cub pack at Factolus. President Tripp appointed as a committee C. F. Laughington, Lester Simmons, B. W. Baker, Harold Chauncey, S. O. Bowers, Jr., W. J. Little, W. R. Edwards, W. V. Pendleton and Noel Lee. The committee will investigate the matter. A meeting about organization of the cub pack will be held May 27.

President Pete Harris of the Senior Class responded to the message of welcome. W. V. Pendleton introduced the bus drivers.

Principal Jack Edwards of Stokes High School introduced special guests at the Ruritan meeting.

The musical program included selection by the Five Jacks—Jack Edwards, Jack Edwards, Jack Tripp and Jack Messick and Jack Warren.

High school seniors present were: Janice James, Warren Whitehurst, Jean Knox, Barbara James, Lindsey Briley, Fletcher Wilson, Eleanor Copeland, Hilton Vielson, Marga Johnston, Janice Taylor, Jesse Beacham, Selma Briley, Mac James, Evelyn Knox, Billie Sue Stokes, Rae Lee Arnold, Carolyn Everett, Pete Harris, Herbert Smith, Jack Warren, David Roberson, Lonnie Gray and Cecil Butler.

GHS Marshals Named For Next School Term

By SUDIE MAY SPAIN
Dinah Porter, Greenville high school junior, will serve as chief marshal for next year. Nine other juniors will assist her at all school activities.

Other marshals are Billy Bost, Curtis Patterson, Sylvia Weeks, Ann Wilkerson, Sarah Taylor, Bruce Tyson, Ann Ruffin, Mary Sideris, and Judy Allen.

Marshals are determined by their scholastic averages only. Averages of students through the ninth, tenth, and seven and one half months or five marking periods of the eleven grades are ranked; the ten having the highest grades become marshals.

Duties of the marshals are to usher at commencement, dramatic and musical programs, and all other activities when they are called upon.

Marshals are selected from the junior class each year just before commencement. In this year's junior class there were five people besides those selected marshals whose grades averaged above 95 per cent. They are Frances Cahoon, Dorothy Jackson, Virginia Smith, Sam Winchester, and Carole Robbins.

"To have in a class that number of people with such high averages is very unusual," stated O.E. Dowd, principal.

Citizens have approved a bond issue for part of the $1,041,000 project, but another group took the case to the State Supreme Court after getting an injunction to stop work. The hospital building committee, headed by R.A. Thompson, completed the signing of all contracts for the project last week after long litigation.

However, city building inspector Deye Southerland refused yesterday to issue a building permit to the general contractor on the grounds that "the proposed change and additions do not conform to the requirements of the zoning ordinance of the city of Kinston."

Three local plaintiffs had brought litigation last May charging the zoning code would be violated. However, in February, Judge John J. Burney ruled that there "was no violation of the zoning laws."

Pony Express Is Still In Business

WASHINGTON (UP)—The pony express was still going today. Assistant Postmaster General John C. Allen told a House Appropriations subcommittee recently there still are a number of routes in Kentucky "where the mail is delivered on horseback" while in Philadelphia 29 horse-drawn vehicles are still in use.

"The postmaster feels he can get the mail through the heavily congested downtown district of Philadelphia quicker with horse-drawn vehicles," Allen said.

Oil of cloves was widely used in the ancient world.

District Show Of Rose Society In Rocky Mount

Rocky Mount—Everything is in readiness for the Carolinas District Show of the American Rose Society which will be held here this Friday at the Ricks Hotel. It is being sponsored by the Rocky Mount Society.

Hundreds of choice blooms from all over the Carolina will be on display in what is believed to be the largest rose show ever held in the two states. However, most of the blooms will come from Eastern Carolina. Everyone who grows roses is eligible to compete in the show, according to Dr. S. F. Horne, President of the local society.

Persons who will enter arrangements of roses will have to contact Mrs. L. G. Hooks before the day of the show in order to be eligible to compete. Rose growers entering other classes do not need to make any arrangements. Containers will be furnished for all classes except arrangements.

NEW FORM OF COMPETITION—Sculling champion Jack Kelly, Jr., competes in National Apprenticeship Bricklayers contest at Minneapolis. He was eliminated early in running.

Phantoms Rally To Defeat Washington Pam-Pack, 3-2

WASHINGTON—After trailing by two runs for seven innings, the Greenville Phantoms rallied for three runs in the eighth inning to defeat Washington 3-2 here yesterday.

The Phantoms pulled their rally with two men out. Doug Morgan started the rally on its way by driving out a pinch-hit single that was followed by a walk to Dixie Hobbins. Bobby Nunn then scored both Morgan and Hobbins with a tremendous triple to centerfield. Nunn himself scored when the throw to the plate was wild.

Bobby Windley, pitching for the Pam-Pack, had the Phantoms completely baffled until the eighth-inning rally. He had given up only four hits in the first seven innings of the contest and had struck out eight before the Phantoms struck for their runs.

Bill Hendrix, the "regular" hurler on the Phantom staff, went the distance for the Phantoms. He was touched for five hits and a walk but he struck out four batters.

Bobby Perry and Dallas Evans played their last high school game for the Phantoms. Both are seniors and both will graduate this spring. Perry was the regular leftfielder and Evans was the rightfielder.

Monday Game
In a make-up affair played Monday in Edenton, the Phantoms pulled another of their rallies to edge the Edenton Aces 5-4 in another Northeastern Conference game.

The winning rally, a sixth inning affair, came as a result of wildness by the Edenton pitcher and timely singles by Charles Joyner, Jerry Phillips, Bobby Conway and Bobby Nunn.

Dave Dickinson, making his first start for Greenville, issued only one walk during the game while striking out four and giving up 10 hits.

Congressional Group Ends TV-Radio Talks

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Senate subcommittee has completed its hearings on television and radio legislation in baseball, but may need a couple of weeks to prepare a report, Chairman Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) said today.

The week-long hearings came to a close Tuesday, and Johnson said the subcommittee will act as soon as possible on his bill to ban TV or radio broadcasts of one team's games in the "home territory" of another.

Highlighting the final hearing was an exchange of opinions on the lawfulness of handling play-by-play accounts of baseball games. The principals were Lou Carroll an attorney for the National League, and Texas broadcaster Gordon McLendon.

Carroll told the subcommittee McLendon is obtaining information on major league games "in an authorized manner" and is presenting "distorted" play-by-play broadcasts to his listeners.

McLendon, once associated with the now-defunct Liberty Broadcasting Network, was quick to defend his stand. He testified that his network formerly stationed a man in New York to relay information obtained from television and radio accounts. He said a Texas court has ruled that the practice is legal.

Carroll conceded the ruling by the Texas Appeals Court, but pointed out it applied to one station's broadcast of another's account of a stock car race. He said the court was not advised of the "common law copyright" which applies to play-by-play accounts of sporting events.

Attorney Nathan R. Kobey of Denver, formerly owner of the Wichita club in the Western League, also testified before the subcommittee. He accused the Justice Department of acting "like a quack doctor" in forcing the big leagues to agree to unrestricted broadcasts of games, thereby trying to "cure a disease that has never been discovered."

Kobey pointed out baseball is not a likely spot for monopoly, adding that the entire annual income of all baseball clubs is about $80,000,000, ordless than that of a big New York department store.

Marciano Breaks Training; Expects Eight-Round Win

HOLLAND, Mich. (UP)—Expecting a knockout victory about the eighth round, champion Rocky Marciano broke camp here today and headed for Chicago and the big fight.

He and his handlers were happy that he had finished the longest training grind in heavyweight history without any late injury before his return encounter with Jersey Joe Walcott at Chicago Stadium Friday night.

Not even a trickle of blood came from his nose during the final two rounds of sparring with Willie Wilson Tuesday. It was a nose hemorrhage that had caused postponement of the title fight from April 10 to Friday.

He has boxed a record of 228 rounds since he began training on Jan. 6. And he did roadwork even during the two weeks vacation caused by the postponement. He jogged four miles on the road here this morning.

"I'm confident of winning," he told reporters. "And I expect the win to come midway in the fight."

He added that even if the bout surprisingly lasted its full 15 rounds, he was ready to go the distance and win on a decision.

In their previous clash of Sept. 23, 1952, Walcott had been ahead on points when he was knocked out in the 13th round. But even if this bout goes 15 rounds, Rocky said, "I'll be ahead this time because I've learned a lot this time and I don't believe he can show me anything new he didn't use last time."

The champ was genuinely bitter against Felix Bocchicchio, Jersey Joe's manager, who had been quoted as saying Rocky looked "punchy" last week as a result of blows received in the September fight at Philadelphia.

Dick Evans Halts Jaycees As Exchange Wins By 7-5

Dick Evans came through with the big pitch of the day yesterday and pitched his Exchange team to a 7-5 Little League victory.

Evans went into the final inning of the Little League contest with a 7-2 lead but got himself into hot water quickly as the Jaycees began one of their last-minute rallies. Evans gave up three hits before he could retire the side.

The Exchange ace got his support so far as runs are concerned early in the game. A four run fourth inning, sparked by doubles by Jeff Fountain and Sammy Pollard, wrapped up the game for the Exchange team.

Tommy Braxton, Exchange's third baseman, was top hitter for the day with three singles in four trips to the plate. He also reached base the other time he was at bat as a result of an error by the Jaycee third baseman.

Sammy Pollard had two hits—a double—for the Exchange while Walker Allen rapped out three for three to lead the Jaycees.

In a minor league game played yesterday afternoon, the White Sox defeated the Yanks 16-4. John Lyons pitched the victory for the Sox.

Dom Din, Maggio Quits Bosox; Ahoskie Native Takes Place

BOSTON (UP)—The name of Dom Maggio was missing from major league baseball rosters today for the first time in 18 years.

Dom Di Maggio, Red Sox center-fielder and last of the famed three Di Maggio brothers, announced he had quit the game for good.

The bespectacled "Little Professor," who had been relegated to pinch-hitting roles in his 14th season with the Boston club, said Tuesday night he was retiring because he didn't want to be a "hanger-on."

It was generally assumed that Dom's unusually slow progress in rounding into shape plus Manager Lou Boudreau's policy to go along with rookies prompted Di Maggio's somewhat premature retirement.

The success of young Tom fielder brought up from Louisville, Umphlett, Boston's new center-apparently had much to do with Di Maggio's retirement.

"I believe I could have played at least one more year of good baseball," he said. "But under the circumstances, I prefer to turn my interests elsewhere rather than be a hanger-on."

Regarding future plans, Dom said only that he would take a short trip to his native California and return to live at his Wellesley, Mass., home.

Dom's eldest brother Vince played on five National League clubs from 1897 to 1946. "Johnnie Joe," the Yankee outfielder, earned himself a future niche in baseball's

Jolly Cholly Has Pleasant Problem With Seven Hurlers

By CARL LUNDQUIST
NEW YORK (UP)—Jolly Cholly Grimm says it is a "nice problem"—like deciding which bank to deposit a million dollars in—but the boss of Milwaukee's Braves had to figure out today how to make room for seven good starting pitchers.

Suddenly he came up with two new ones, rookies Bob Buhl and Don Liddle, who qualified sensationally by pitching two-hitters in their first major league starts.

Buhl pitched an 8-1 triumph over the Giants Tuesday night after Don Liddle pitched a 4-1 victory in the second game of a double sweep Sunday.

Buhl, the ex-GI from Saginaw, Mich., who pitched for Grimm had a one-hit shutout until he was hit in the ninth and yielded a run on Bobby Thomson's double, two walks and a long fly. The slugging Braves gave Buhl 14-hit support, Del Crandall and Johnny Logan collecting three apiece. The Braves, by winning their third in a row now are only half a game behind Brooklyn and a game behind the first-place Phils.

Now, along with his two new "phenoms," Grimm has a staff of starters that includes Max Surkont (4-0), Johnny Antonelli (2-1), Warren Spahn (2-1), Jim Wilson (1-0), and Vern Bickford (0-2), but a consistent tough pitcher despite a slow start. All that and Lew Burdette, who is acknowledged to be one of the league's best relief men.

Buhl wasn't the only star hurler Tuesday night. Whitey Ford, another ex-GI just missed a no-hitter when Earl Wynn, his opposing pitcher, tapped a slow roller down the third base side in the sixth inning as the Yankees drubbed Cleveland, 7-0. Ford just missed fielding Wynn's ball, but it was a legitimate hit since he had beat when third baseman Gil McDougald gloved the ball. Irv Noren hit a two-run homer and Mickey Mantle a two-run triple as the Yankees again humiliated their so-called closest contenders and Ford picked up his third straight victory.

In other National League games, the Phils took first place by defeating the Cardinals, 6-5, and Chicago topped Brooklyn 6-4 in 11 innings. The Pirates were rained out of a 5-1 three inning lead at Cincinnati. In other American League games Washington topped Detroit, 10-1, Chicago edged Boston, 9-7 in 10 innings, and St. Louis beat Philadelphia 7-3.

Tris Phils made five runs in the ninth, one on a bases-loaded walk, two on an error by pitcher Stu Miller, and two on a double by Richie Ashburn to cushion Jim Konstanty to his third victory. Konstanty and Karl Drews yielded four Cardinal runs in the bottom of the ninth, three on homers by Steve Bilko and Solly Hemus, but Andy Hansen extinguished the fire. Willie Jones hit a Philly homer.

Dee Fondy's two-run 11th inning homer gave the Cubs an uphill victory as Roy Campanella earlier doubled in two rallies for Brooklyn to bring his amazing runs batted in total to 40.

Washington edged 15 hits, including four by Wayne Terwilliger and three by Pete Runnels in his fifth straight victory, a six-hitter for Connie Marrero.

Chicago fought uphill to beat Boston on Ferris Fain's two-run double in the 10th after George Keller tied it up with a two-run homer for the Red Sox in the ninth. Al Carrasquel earlier hit a grand slam homer for Chicago and Dick Gernert and Ted Lepcio homered for Boston in the bat battle.

Bobo Holloman, shooting for a second straight no-hitter against the A's, had nothing but trouble as he gave up three hits, three walks, and two runs before going out with a blistered finger in the second. But Don Larsen pitched five-hit relief ball to gain the victory over A's ace, Bobby Shantz. Les Moss hit a homer and double in the 14-hit Browne attack.

Southern Opens Raleigh Tourney

R. LEIGH, (UP)—The Southern Conference baseball tournament opens here tomorrow with three games on tap between top teams in the Northern and Southern divisions of the loop.

Last minute confusion over which team should get the No. two spot in the Southern Division was cleared up by R.A. (cap'n) Dick Smith of Washington and Lee, chairman of the conference baseball committee. He ruled that Duke should get the nod over Clemson and Wake Forest.

Teams battling for the championship will be George Washington and Maryland from the Northern Division, each with an 8-2 season record and .800 average, and North Carolina, 11-3, .786, and Duke 9-5, .643, from the Southern Division.

Clemson and Wake Forest thought last Sunday would be counted. He said conference rules provide that regular season games must be completed three days before the opening of the tournament.

Clemson and Wake Forest closed out their seasons Monday. Athletic Director Roy Clagston of N.C. State College will direct the double elimination tournament here.

Top-seeded George Washington meets Duke in the opener at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow. North Carolina meets second-seeded Maryland at 4 p.m. and the losers of the two afternoon games meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow night.

One game will be played Friday afternoon, two Friday night, and Saturday.

No Outside Money In Sight For Next Year's Senatorial Primary In State

By LYNN NISBET

RALEIGH—Despite continuing rumors that large sums of outside money might be available to finance next year's primary campaign for the nomination of a United States senator, weight of evidence indicates that most of the financing will have to be done by North Carolinians. That is usually the case, although there have been a few campaigns when reports of outside contributions seemed to be true.

It is accepted as certain that North Carolina will elect a Democratic Senator, whether Willis Smith is re-elected or replaced by someone else. Since the big issue from national viewpoint is control of the Senate, the degree of liberality or conservatism of the Senator is of minor importance.

Republicans organized the present Senate and control it by the narrow margin of one vote, plus the help of one independent, Wayne Morse of Oregon. Of the 32 Senators whose terms expire next year, 22 are Democrats, 10 Republicans. With Democrats needing to gain one seat for a tie and two for a majority, and the Republicans needing only to hold what they've got to be ahead and gain only one seat for a clear majority, it seems obvious that the big fight and the big money will come in the November election rather than in the nominating primaries.

There have been rumors about big business groups throughout the country being willing to put up thousands of dollars to assure the re-nomination of Senator Smith. Similar rumors have been going around about big national labor unions and farm organizations putting up huge sums for Kerr Scott or somebody representing his philosophy of government against Smith in the primary. These rumors would seem to stem from wishful thinking, rather than factual knowledge of conditions.

It has been a long time since a non-presidential year national election had as much significance as the one coming up, or when the results of party primaries in any one state had as little importance. So the big folks with national viewpoint are likely to leave the state primaries to the homefolks.

Take a look at the expirations next year. The Democrats whose tenure ends are: Clinton P. Anderson of Illinois, James O. Eastland of Mississippi, Allen J. Ellender, Sr. of Louisiana, Allen J. Fear, Jr. of Delaware, Guy M. Gillett of Iowa, Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, Lester C. Hunt of Wyoming, Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado, Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, John L. McClellan of Arkansas, Burnet B. Maybank of South Carolina, James E. Murray of Montana, Matthew M. Neely of West Virginia, A. Willie Robertson of Virginia, Richard B. Russell of Georgia, Willis Smith of North Carolina, John J. Sparkman of Alabama and Thomas R. Underwood of Kentucky.

The Republicans whose terms expire are: Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, Guy Gordon of Oregon, Henry C. Dworshak of Idaho, Homer Ferguson of Michigan, Robert C. Hendrickson of New Jersey, Karl E. Mundt of South Dakota, Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Andrew F. Schoepel of Kansas, Fred A. Seton of Nebraska, and Margaret Chase Smith of Maine.

All ten of the States which have expiring Republican senatorial terms have continuing Republicans in the other seat. Six of the States in which Democratic senatorial terms end also have Republicans in the other place. They are Colorado, Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Montana. This would indicate that the Republicans have better prospect for holding or gaining strength than do the Democrats. And, again it emphasizes the point that the general election next year rather than the party nominating primaries will hold the interest of the big folks at national level. That is true, even when it is admitted that party line voting is less regular than it used to be and that in some instances Republicans vote like Democrats and vice versa.

Senators are elected for six-year terms, governors and presidents every four years. That means sometimes a senatorial election comes the same year as a Governor and a President are chosen, sometimes in off years, and it is historically true that off-year senatorial elections are most heated. For instance, the Bailey—Simmons senatorial race in 1930 outclassed for main interest the contests for that office in 1932, when Bob Reynolds beat Cam Morrison—but most attention was on the Ehringhaus—Fountain race for Governor. Many people do not even remember that Bailey and Fountain and several others were in a senatorial primary in 1936, because the Hoey—McDonald race for the governorship overshadowed everything else. Only the discriminating political historians recall that there was a senatorial primary in 1938 with Bob Reynolds and Frank Hancock playing major roles, or in 1942 when Dick Fountain again challenged Senator Bailey, or in 1944 when Clyde Hoey beat the suffing out of Cam Morrison.

Even the historically important senatorial primary in 1948 between William Umstead and Melville Broughton takes second rating to the gubernatorial race that year between Charlie Johnson and Kerr Scott. Then came 1950 and the humdrum political campaign in modern times. The first primary in appointment; former Senator Bob Reynolds, challenging the east-west policy to get into the race; and Willis Smith. It was apparent from the start that the contest was between Graham and Smith, but Reynolds vote and the $900 cast for Olla Ray Boyd prevented a nomination. Although more than $9,000 behind, Smith called for a run-off and won by 20,000.

It was the most vigorously fought primary in State history, with each side pulling out the stops on methods not before used in this State and with bloc voting by Negroes to greater extent than ever before adding to Graham's total and arousing the farmers and small town people of the east to give Smith large majorities.

Nobody will ever know how much money was spent in that campaign. Many estimates ranged above half a million dollars. A considerable portion of the financing came out of state sources. The situation then was greatly different from now. The Democrats had control of the administration and the congress, with virtual certainty of holding that control. That being true, the kind of Democrat nominated was more important than result of the November voting. The political philosophy of Frank Graham and Willis Smith of ferred more contrast than the difference in party platforms. Similar situations prevailed in other States, with result that the big money boys at national level were more concerned with primaries than with the fall election. The Democratic national committee, dominated then by the New Deal - Fair Deal group, took a hand in several State primaries—including North Carolina.

There are no indications of such national committee participation next year. Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell in Asheville the other day not only promised full energy to recapture Congress in 1954 and the presidency in 1956, but also urged that factions within the State take no steps that would disrupt party harmony.

All of which adds to something like this:

Old Stock And Bonds Possibly Have High Value

NEW YORK U.P.—If you have some old stocks or bonds that grandpa said weren't worth a nickel, take another look at them. You may have a fortune in your attic.

R.M. Smythe and Company estimates there is more than a billion-dollars' worth of unclaimed paper lying in attics and strong boxes.

The firm's job is to track down "cats and dogs"—the broker's name for washed-up and washed-out securities. The president of the firm, Godfrey Bligh, says there's many a case on record of supposedly worthless stocks turning out to be valuable.

Burned Stocks Redeemed
For example, there's the American-owned mining company that folded in Mexico in 1930. Eighteen years later, the Smythe company discovered the Mexican government had awarded the company a large sum of money.

However, all the records for the company had been destroyed and nobody knew who the stockholders were. One holder was finally located and paid $1,600. But the others are still unknown.

Bligh tells another story about a woman who had inherited a large bloc of mining stock. Her broker said it was worthless and she promptly burned it. However, the Smythe company traced the stock through old records and finally paid the woman $3,500 for the charred remains of her holdings.

Wallpaper Fortune
Some aren't that lucky, however. One lawyer has Smythe experts look over the contents of his strong box after 12 years and they discovered he had some irrigation bonds that had been worth $5,000 just five months before but since had become worthless.

However, even Smythe sometimes makes mistakes. A doctor wanted to paper his den with old stocks and bonds. The company sold him a big batch of fancy paper for $40. In the collection were some shares in a coal mine.

Several years later, oil was struck on the site of the old mine. The company decided to cancel out the old stock before issuing new shares.

A company representative visited the doctor's house and solemnly stamped canceled all over the walls. For this the doctor got a tidy sum—$40,000.

FTA Chapter At College Readies Summer Program

The Robert H. Wright Chapter of the Future Teachers of America at East Carolina College has organized for work during the 1953 summer session and has chosen officers to head chapter activities for the twelve weeks term.

Virginia Harris of Littleton, East Carolina sophomore, has been chosen as president of the organization of the summer, and a. Glenn Civils of Kingston as vice president. Emma L. Hooper of the department of English is faculty advisor of the campus chapter.

Carolyn Brothers of South Mills, president for the regular 1953-1954 term, will represent the Robert H. Wright chapter at the FTA College Leadership Conference and National Delegation Assembly this summer, according to plans. The meeting will be held at Miami Beach, Florida, June 24-July 3 and will be attended by FTA representatives throughout the nation.

School Needs In Southeast Said Far From Met

ATLANTA U.P.—A government agency estimated today that it will take $1,208,000,000 to provide sufficient new school construction in six Southeastern states to take care of just present needs.

The states covered are Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina and Tennessee. Total value of school plant facilities in the area during the 1949-50 school year was only $803,000,000. The government report was based on estimates of the Federal Security Agency's office of education made in 1952.

The estimates placed the school building needs as follows: Alabama $269,000,000, Florida $191,000,000, Georgia $218,000,000, Mississippi $127,000,000, North Carolina $300,000,000.

Speeder Caught From Airplane

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—It. Art Hamilton, a highway patrolman catches speeders the easy way—from an airplane.

Hamilton is the official pilot of the Oklahoma patrol's light traffic plane, which first went into service in 1949 as an aid to prevent traffic jams.

Before long, he was radiating information on traffic violations—such as passing on hills and curves—to ground units. Offending motorists, to put it mildly, were flabbergasted.

Speeders were more of a problem, though. He could see them easily enough from the air, but clocking speed of an automobile from an airplane presented a problem.

Finally, he hit on the solution of clocking time over a measured course with a stopwatch, and converting the reading into miles per hour with a mathematical chart.

On the last, radar showed 70 miles an hour. Hamilton figured 69. The speedometer showed 75.

Gov. Johnston Murray revealed Hamilton's operations at a governors' conference several months ago at New Orleans. Shortly afterwards, Louisiana authorities bought a plane of their own and Hamilton went to that state to teach patrolmen the finer points of using an airplane in the battle for traffic safety.

wrestling and Hollywood entertainment quality, gave it away. He saw "Hamlet" on a neighbor's set and said "If I am assured of an equivalent offering but once a month I'll buy a television set again."

"My husband," wrote an amazed housewife of Tulsa, Okla., "who has often said that he does not care for 'long-hair' programs, never moved from his chair... and was very complimentary."

An Alliquippa, Pa., man liked the program, but suggested that "there was not quite enough difference in age apparent between Hamlet and the uncle." He also suggested that Hall "take a meataxe" to a ventriloquist on a preceding program who did a burlesque of Shakespeare.

But the ultimate in praise may have been that from a high school freshman of Chicago, who wrote: "We have just finished 'The Merchant of Venice' in our English class. I must admit I got very little out of it, but now I feel I can go back to school and really enjoy Shakespeare's plays."

Texas Educator Named New President Of ACC

WILSON (UP)—Dr. Travis A. White, 43-year-old Texas pastor and educator, was named today as the new president of Atlantic Christian College here by the college board of trustees.

White, pastor of the First Christian Church of Lubbock, Tex., succeeds Dr. D. Ray Lindley. White will come here to assume his new duties July 15 while Lindley leaves June 1 to become administrative vice president of Texas Christian University.

The appointment was announced at noon today by trustees chairman Thomas J. Hackney of Wilmond. Hackney said that James M. Moudy, academic dean of the college, will serve as acting president until White arrives.

White will be the seventh president of the college which was founded by the North Carolina Disciples of Christ in 1902.

A native of Hammond, La., he was graduated from Texas Christian University in 1932 and received his B.D. degree in 1934. He did further graduate work at the University of Chicago in 1935 and at Union Theological Seminary in 1941, and received an honorary degree of doctor of divinity from Texas Christian in 1949. He has also held pastorates in Dallas and Paris, Tex., and in Little Rock, Ark.

From his residence in Lubbock, White issued a statement announcing that he is happy to take over the ACC presidency.

"My decision to accept this great responsibility," he said, "grows out of three-fold conviction:

"First, that the independent church-related college has a significant contribution to make to the democratic processes we cherish so much in our American way of life;

"Second, that the leadership of our community, state and nation for the future is to be found in the college; of today, and that no man can devote his life to a more significant responsibility than helping those who are to be our leaders to a Christian conception of life and a sincere desire to put it into practice in every relationship of life;

"And third, Atlantic Christian College has a significant contribution to render to the citizenship of the area it serves and a responsibility to the churches of the area to provide a well-trained consecrated leadership."

Meet Again In Post-War Years

PITTSBURGH (AP)—When Paul Benson was serving with the U.S. Army in Germany he frequently went to Air Force dances at Frankfurt. One of his favorite partners was pretty red-haired Erna Marie Loeblich of Grosskrotzenberg.

Benson came home in 1946 and resumed work with the Naturalization and Immigration Service in Pittsburgh. His job for citizenship interviewing applicants was examining a list of applications and noticed one from Grosskrotzenberg. Benson arranged to handle the interview and asked about Erna.

It wasn't necessary, however, for the Mrs. Davis applying for citizenship turned out to be Erna, now married to a railroad worker and living in Pittsburgh.

Second Tongay Child Said Safe

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Bubba Tongay, surviving member of the swimming aquatons, is in "no danger" from his father who is charged with second degree murder in the death of daughter Kathy, a juvenile officer said.

W. Ira Hazlett said yesterday he has "been working diligently" to uncover evidence that Bubba has been mistreated but "so far I have failed to find a witness that the boy has been beaten by his parents."

"After what's happened," Hazlett added, "he's not in any danger."

The seven-year-old son of Russell Tongay accompanied his parents as they sought seclusion from publicity in south Florida.

Bubba's five-year-old sister, Kathy, died from a mysterious blow police said, and Tongay has been charged in connection with her death.

The husky ex-Coast Guardsman has denied beating the girl, who with Bubba formed a child swimming act, and claims she was fatally injured in a dive from a 33-foot board.

Kathy was buried Monday night in a secret ceremony at Anclote, a West Coast fishing village near Tarpon Springs where the Tongays formerly lived.

Entertainment Is By Alphabet

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP)—The alphabet has always been used in Washington for bureaus and agencies but Vermont uses it for social activities.

Women legislators were entertained at the home of Rep. Ailene Ward of Moretown whose names began with the letters A through L were guests at a buffet supper one night while M through X attended the next night.

There are 34 women in the Legislature.

Shakespeare A 'Hit' In Television Debut

By JACK GAVER

United Press Staff Correspondent NEW YORK (UP)—The next time J. C. Hall finds an idle $100,000 in his corporate pants pocket he is likely to walk up to the TV betting window and place the whole wad on Shakespeare to win, preferably with Maurice Evans up.

At least, he had better, if his mail of the past two weeks is any criterion of what the public expects from his NBC Sunday program now that he has spoiled video viewers with a two-hour presentation of "Hamlet," starring Evans.

The costly production, with a cast that a Broadway producer couldn't afford, brought an avalanche of enthusiastic mail the like of which no one in television can remember.

"The prospect of more entertainment of this type is just as keen to me as it appears to be to the whole national TV audience," said the Kansas City, Mo., greeting card manufacturer.

"We haven't made any plans for additional Shakespearean productions as yet, but we're going to make every effort to present more of this kind of entertainment on the Hall of Fame series as soon as it is practical to do so."

Some of the appreciative correspondents went beyond the general "thank you" and "best ever" notes.

Accessories Mixed For Dogs, Damsels

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (U.P.)—Teenagers are wearing dog collars and dogs are wearing diamonds.

The muddled situation on Fifth Avenue has dog and damsel accessories so mixed up that a pup hardly dares to call his collar his own.

On the heels of an outburst of "puppy love" dog collars worn on bobby soxers' ankles came a big hotel fashion show for dogs.

There was for instance, a long-haired dachshund wearing a blue denim rain coat. Denim is very good this season, Rover.

Ben King, the Christian Dior of the dog collar world, designed all the leather accessories for a new kennel shop in a Fifth Avenue store.

Okinawa Suffers From Tree Loss

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—The forests of southern Okinawa were among the casualties of the bitter fighting of the Pacific campaign in World War II.

Before the invasion of the island by American troops the Japanese had cut down many of the trees for fencing and other construction.

These once barren stretches of ground have now been invaded by weeds, some of them native to America—brought in with supplies used by American soldiers.

The dandelion, bane of countless American gardeners, was among the plants arriving with the troops. And a new imporation is the sweet potato weevil, unknown in Okinawa before the invasion, and now a threat to the chief crop of the island.

Less dangerous than the weevil is the giant small which arrived either with Americans or Okinawan repatriates who had fled the island during the invasion.

The destruction of so much of the plant cover by war has greatly disrupted the economy of Okinawa, based on crops of sweet potatoes, rice and sugar cane.

"If I run into trouble inside, I'll manage to switch on a light. That's your cue to break in any way that you can."

He moved to one of the kitchen windows, cut through the screen, released the lock and tried the window. It moved.

He opened the door, slowly, quietly. Light sounds of breathing. Then the rustle of covers. He stopped. Quiet again. He moved in and kicked a loose shoe on the floor.

"Who's there?"
"Don't turn on the light. It's Max Brindle."
The bed light snapped on. Brindle looked at the windows. Shades down. A soft light; maybe Kidd wouldn't notice it.

They know about your friends in the bedrooms."

She held the gun steadily. "You're lying," she said.

"Durst isn't here, is he? Of course not. He left you holding the bag."

Her breathing was hot and rapid. "Shut up!"

"Okay, sister, it's your funeral." (To be continued)

Formosans Hope Okinawa Will Be Given To Them
TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalists apparently hope that Okinawa and the rest of the Ryukyus, strategic Pacific islands between Formosa and Japan, one day will come back to Chinese rule.

Evidence of this was provided by a letter sent to Foreign Minister George Yeh by the control Yuan, Free China's highest watchdog body.

The letter, inspired by press reports that Japan intended to discuss with the United States the "problem of the Ryukyus," asked Yeh to pay close attention to the situation.

The Nationalists all along have claimed the Ryukyus were part of the Chinese empire before they were taken by Japan.

Final Cruise On Special Yacht

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower will cruise on Chesapeake Bay this weekend after a speech at Williamsburg, Va. It will be his second and last use of the yacht Williamsburg, which he is giving up as an economy gesture. The vessel will be turned over to the Navy at the end of May to be used for cruises by Korean veterans for one month after which it will join the mothball fleet. Mr. Eisenhower plans to sail from the Navy gun factory dock at 4 p.m. EDT Thursday. He plans to leave the yacht at the naval mine depot at Yorktown, Va., Friday morning, and drive to Williamsburg. He will speak at the college at noon EDT. Leaving Yorktown that afternoon he will cruise in Chesapeake Bay Saturday and arrive at the Annapolis Naval Academy at 9:15 a.m. EDT Sunday. He will spend the day at the Naval Academy, probably addressing the midshipmen in the dining hall, and plans to leave aboard the Williamsburg at about 6 p.m. EDT for an overnight cruise back to Washington.

New Lifesaving Technique Now In Use

NEW ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION TECHNIQUE, the Nielsen "back-pressure arm-lift" method, which has now been adopted as standard by the American Red Cross, the Armed Forces and the National Safety Council, is demonstrated in these scenes from a new motion picture, "Seconds Count," produced by the Aetna Casualty and Surety Company. The 10-minute movie, which portrays a step-by-step demonstration of the Nielsen method, may be obtained without charge for showings by contacting local Aetna representatives or through the company's public education department of Hartford, Conn. The "back-pressure arm-lift" method increases chances of revival since it pulls fresh air into lungs as well as expelling air from them. In administering it, rescuer rocks forward exerting pressure on victim's back (top photo) and then rocks backward grasping victim's arms (bottom photo), repeating cycle 10 to 12 times a minute.

College Band Offers Concert On Saturday

Among chief attractions at the annual "pops" lawn concert offered by the East Carolina College band Saturday of this week, May 16, will be the appearance of three senior music majors as guest conductors and the first performance of a march by a sophomore music major at the college.

The program will be presented by the college department of music as an event of the Forty-fourth annual commencement exercises at East Carolina. The band will play at 4 p.m. on the lawn of the east campus near Fifth Street. Herbert L. Carter of the music faculty, band director, will conduct the program.

Three seniors who are band members have been selected as guest conductors for the afternoon. They are Victor Van Hook of Nashville, Leonard Starling of Rocky Mount, and William Williams of Swan Quarter, all music majors at the college.

Also a feature of the afternoon will be the first performance of a march by John Robert Watson of Greenville, sophomore at the college. The selection is entitled "King - Christian March" and is a lively composition arranged for band performance. Watson is leader of a band in Pinetops, N.C. Among performers with the band at the lawn concert will be a number of former members who will be present on the campus Saturday for events of the annual Alumni Day at East Carolina.

The afternoon's program will be made up of light, popular music. as president of the New Hanover County Club. She has also participated in several productions by the Teachers Playhouse, college dramatic club.

Import Of U.S. Books Show Rise

NEW DELHI AP)—India's book imports from the United States have jumped in the past year, a United Kingdom's expense commerce minister T.T. Krishnamachari says.

Book imports from the U.S. during the period from April, 1952, until February 1, 1953, totalled 16,880, compared to 11,931 through out the year ending April 1, 1952. In 1950-51, 7,601 books were imported from the U.S.

The United Kingdom shipped 12,682 books to India during 1950-51, 11,706 in 1951-52, and 9,448 in the 1952-53.

Open Door Policy On News Noted

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UP)—A "more or less open door policy" toward newsmen prevails at the White House today according to Merriman Smith, United Press White House reporter.

Smith, who addressed the annual Sigma Delta Chi gridiron banquet at Indiana University last night, said the Eisenhower administration seemed to be making a "genuine effort" to keep the nation informed about the President.

Smith "dean" of the White House press corps, gave presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty chief credit for "the more or less open door policy toward press and radio that prevails at the White House today."

Smith told how, during the early days of the new administration, "there were some people close to the President who definitely opposed" this policy.

One man tried to "influence the people around the President to take away the press room in the White House and banish reporters to another building where they could wait like well-behaved automatons for someone to bring them mimeographed handouts," the White House correspondent said.

"It's most unwise and arbitrary proposal died in infancy," Smith said, "and the White House reporters for the most part are pleased with press relations today."

"If all federal officials were as cooperative with reporters as Jim Hagerty, ... newsmen would have little to complain about," he said.

"WHAT HAPPENS when television hits Houston? For one thing, water pressure drops regularly, whenever the commercials are being beamed over the TV airwaves. This was one of the findings of a water pressure study conducted in Houston, Texas, last Business Week. City engineers began noticing the phenomenon a couple of years ago. Water demanded during evening and early nighttime was getting strangely erratic. One minute, consumption would run at normal levels; then for a no apparent reason it would drop by as much as 10 per cent. It would stay down for perhaps half an hour. Suddenly it would shoot up far above normal.

"THIS MYSTERIOUS force, continues Business Week, was something that (1) had gained power only in recent times, and (2) was able to affect a large part of the population simultaneously. Only television had the requirements. Apparently, TV viewers were waiting for the end of each show, or for the middle commercial before heading for the kitchen and other environs. Engineers proved their theory by checking program schedules against pump charts. Others cities in which similar water pressure changes have been noted are Toledo, Chicago, Boston and Los Angeles."

Demos Prepare Speaking Tours

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Democratic National Committee announced today that former Vice President Alben W. Barkley and 14 other Democrats will take part in an "extensive speaking" program in nine states during the next several weeks.

They will appear at a variety of meetings, including Jefferson-Jackson dinners, conventions of Young Democrats, and women's club sessions. They will hit Michigan, Maryland, Oregon, Ohio, Virginia, Mississippi, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma and Indiana. The speakers include Sen. Olin D. Johnston, South Carolina.

College Art Student From Wilmington Exhibits Work At Austin Building

Joan Edwards of Wilmington, senior student of art at East Carolina College, is now exhibiting at the college examples of her work in art classes.

The exhibition is being shown under the sponsorship of the college department of art and may be seen in the Alumni Office in the Austin building. The collection of paintings and other art work is attracting favorable attention among visitors.

Among items displayed by the young artist are "Sailboat," an oil painting; "Dragon," a block print; "Man and Vines," an etching;

"Camellia," done in oils on velvet; several pencil and charcoal sketches; a group of drawings in India ink; and examples of work in ceramics and weaving.

Miss Edwards has recently completed work as a practice teacher in art in four Greenville city schools, where she taught more than 600 students in sixteen classes from the first through the twelfth grades. After her graduation this month, she will begin work in June as a teacher in the Caswell Training School.

She is a graduate of the New Hanover High School in Wilmington and has served at East Carolina

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks declined irregularly in slightly increased trading during the morning dealings today.

A small percentage of the issues traded moved outside a fractional area. The more active issues favored the upside, notably Pacific Western Oil, up nearly a point and Necco at a new high.

Oils appeared to be meeting some support after several, including Phillips and Pure Oil, had set new lows for the year. Texas Pacific Land Trust and Amerasia were the soft spots.

Aircraft sagged with Bendix off a point and Douglas down nearly a point each.

Rails lost a few cents on the average but small gains were held by such issues as New York Central and Pennsylvania. Missouri-Kansas-Texas preferred rose 1 1/2 points to 46 3/4.

Steel issues held around the previous close. Auto eased. Several chemicals strengthened. Notably Spencer which was up more than a point. G. R. Kinney, recent strong spot, declined more than two points. International Business Machines and American Sugar lost a point each.

Utilities stood out by scoring a small average gain in the first hour of trading.

News Agencies In Argentina Hit By New Measure

BUENOS AIRES (UP)—A government order today prevented the three American press associations from distributing news from abroad to their client newspapers and radio stations in Argentina.

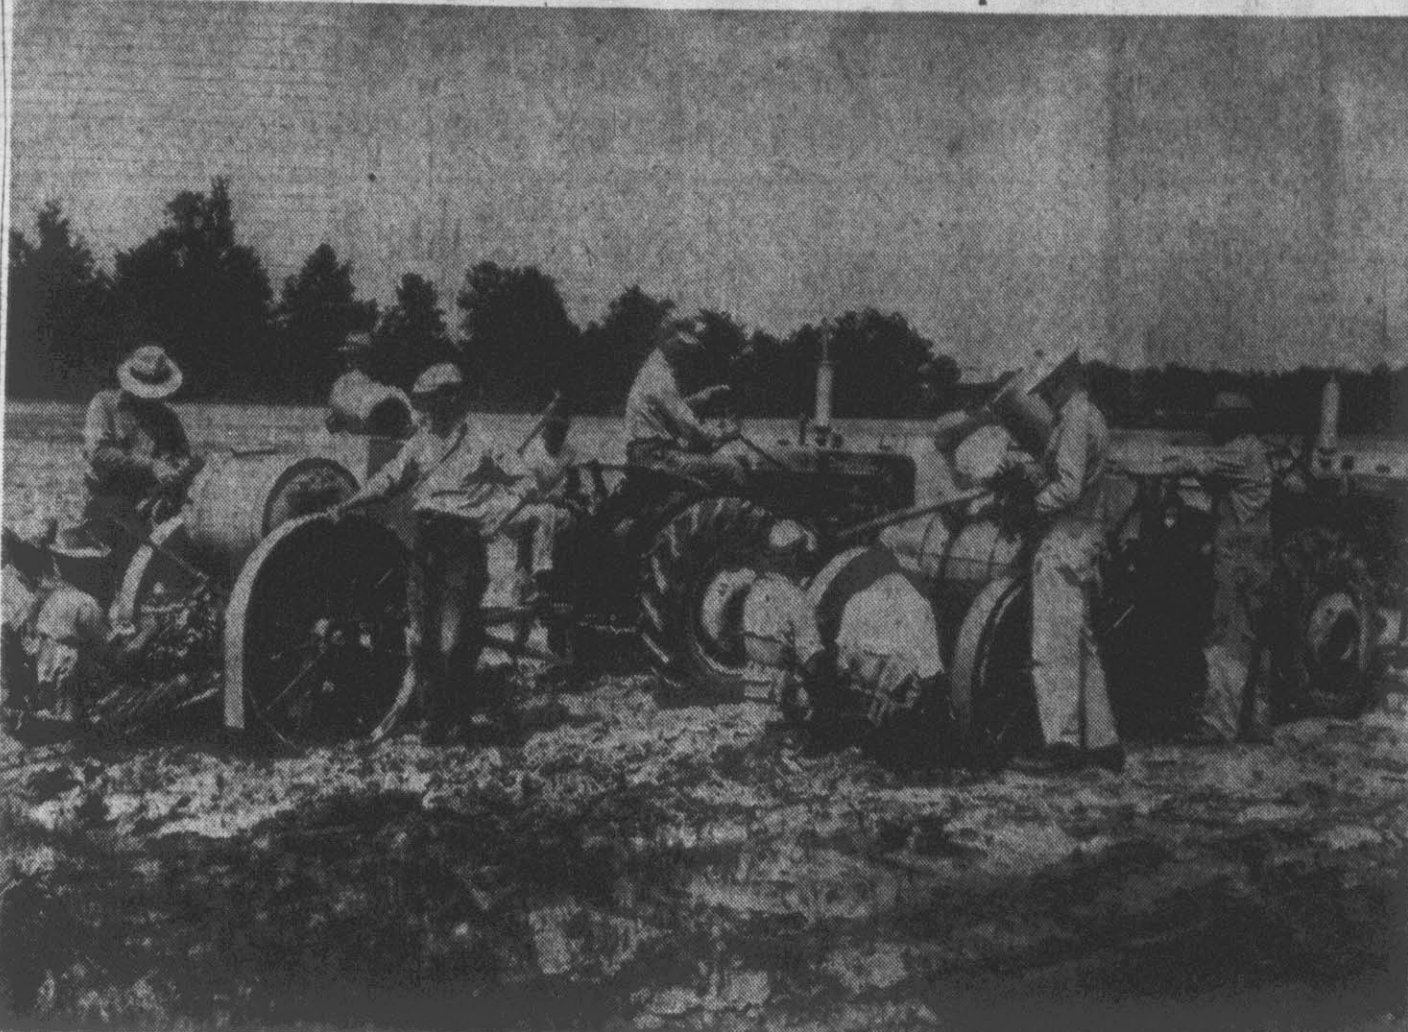

A Post Office Department order issued Tuesday deprived the United Press, Associated Press and International News Service of radio facilities for receiving news from abroad.

The action was the most drastic yet taken in connection with President Juan D. Peron's campaign against the American news agencies. He opened the campaign in a May Day speech in which he charged that the American news agencies were engaged in "a campaign of defamation against Argentina."

Pactolus Ruritan Members Set Tobacco For Hospitalized Farmer

Members of the Pactolus Ruritan Club came to the aid of a disabled farmer of the Pactolus community yesterday and set his 1953 tobacco crop for him. Working as a club project the men set tobacco on the W. R. Fornes farm. According to a club spokesman, Mr. Fornes is in a hospital and his wife and 15-year-old son are attempting to farm the 70-acre farm by themselves. Taking part in the transplanting operation yesterday were, in addition to the Ruritan members, Jimmie Whitchard, Simon Corbett, C. D. Corbett, Jimmy Fornes and Roy Nelson. Club members aiding the distressed farmer were: Jack Tripp, E. L. Latham, Noel Lee, D. R. House, Preston Wollard, Harold Chauncey, Jim Chauncey, Lester Simmons, Hulbert Simmons and Burney Baker. ## Wheat Acreage Report Requested

By ROY HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County wheat growers have been requested by the county office of the PMA to fill out a report on wheat acreage in order that acreage and production data can be used to bring farm program records up to date.

It was pointed out by a PMA official that if production and marketing controls are proclaimed for the 1954 crop of wheat, this data would be needed so that each farmer growing wheat now might receive an equitable allotment representing his fair share of the market.

With wheat supplies beginning to outstrip demand, production controls for the 1954 wheat crop will probably be necessary in the next growing season, it was pointed out.

The Secretary of Agriculture is required by law to proclaim, not later than July 1, a national marketing quota for wheat whenever the total supply exceeds the normal supply by more than 20 per cent. Normal supply means the estimated domestic consumption plus exports, 15 per cent.

An acreage allotment for the 1954 crop must be issued not later than July 15 for the next growing season.

When marketing quotas are effective, the quotas are converted into and operate through acreage allotments. In such cases, proclamation of both marketing quotas and of acreage allotments may be made at the same time.

Except under emergency conditions, proclamation of a national wheat acreage allotment is mandatory whether or not marketing quotas are required. These may be done away with by the Secretary of Agriculture because of a national emergency or a material increase in exports at any time.

If growers approved marketing quotas, price supports on the 1954 crop of wheat would be available to cooperators at 90 percent of parity. If growers failed to approve marketing quotas, they would be subject only to acreage allotments but the price support would drop to 50 percent of parity.

Since 1943, wheat crops have exceeded a billion bushels in every year but one. Present indications are for a billion-bushel crop again this year. Without some kind of acreage adjustment, farmers would almost surely produce another billion bushels or more next year. While the population of the United States continues to increase, the per capita consumption of wheat has declined. During periods of relatively high income people tend to eat more meat and milk, eggs and less grains.

Open House At Hospital Marks National Week

National Hospital Week and the birthday of Florence Nightingale, founder of nursing, was held yesterday at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Visitors to the hospital were asked to register and were served punch and cookies in the lobby from a table which had a doll dressed as Florence Nightingale served as a centerpiece in addition to flowers.

Members of the Greenville Service League and hospital nurses served as receptionists during the day. Approximately 150 persons had registered by early afternoon.

Yesterday, May 12, is observed annually by Pitt Memorial as the birthday of Florence Nightingale and as a day set aside in National Hospital Week. This day was also observed at old Pitt General Hospital.

As an added feature, small dolls dressed appropriately as doctors and nurses at Pitt Memorial were on display. The costumes of the dolls also depicted styles of nursing uniforms as early as 1902 and the various styles worn at different nursing schools throughout the country.

Last year, 222 persons registered in the observance.

On the final lap all seven cars smashed together.

Ordained And Installed As Pastor In Special Service

Rev. Herbert Dale was ordained and installed as the first regular pastor of Ballards Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning, May 3, at a special 11 o'clock service.

Dr. J. W. Hassell, chairman of the Presbytery's Ordination Committee, was in charge of the service, and officiated at the baptismal service for the Rev. and Mrs. Dale's infant son, John Herbert Dale.

Dr. Harold Dudley, General Secretary of the Synod of North Carolina, preached the ordination sermon. Rev. C. D. Patterson, pastor of the Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church, gave the charge to the preacher and Elder J. C. Corbit of the Farmville Church charged the congregation.

The Piney Grove Baptist Church Junior Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Ned Kinsaul with Miss Shelley Wayne at the piano, sang two selections appropriate to the service. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dale. Immediately following the service a picnic lunch was served on the church grounds.

Rev. Dale is a native of North Dakota. He is a graduate of Linfield College and Westminster Theological Seminary in Philadelphia. He served in the United States Army Air Force from 1943 to 1946.

He is married to the former Miss Harriet Brown of Davidson, N. C.

Funeral services will be held at Sycamore Hill Baptist Church Friday, May 15, at 2:30 p.m. All members of Morning Light Tent No. 458 are asked to meet in the church basement at 1:30.

Colored News
The Matron's Social Club will meet Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Gracey Anderson on Douglas Ave.

Mrs. Hattie Redmond West departed this life Monday night, May 11, 1953, at her home, 605 Tyson St., after a lingering illness of thirteen months.

Surviving are two daughters, a foster daughter, one sister, one brother, an aunt and an uncle.

Funeral services will be held at Sycamore Hill Baptist Church Friday, May 15, at 2:30 p.m. All members of Morning Light Tent No. 458 are asked to meet in the church basement at 1:30.

Rev. J. F. McLaurin, pastor of Phillipi Christian Church of Greenville, his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Gilson of New York City and Rev. Winslow of Baltimore, Md. were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Gardner Sunday.
