Reds 'Misunderstand Or Misinterpret' Not Trying To Agree

By ROBERT VERMILLION United Press Staff Correspondent FANMUJONG, Korea (UP)—Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison said today the Communists either "misunderstood or deliberately misinterpreted" the Allies' plan to settle the war prisoner dispute.

Both sides agreed to another meeting Saturday at 11 a.m. (10 p.m. e.s.t. Friday). The disagreement centered around the functions of a five-nation neutral commission which would take custody of Allied captives who do not want to go home and the Reds' plan for a post-armistice political conference to decide the fate of these prisoners.

Harrison told Nam. The North Korean general assented. "Right now they are standing firm," Harrison said. "Both sides agreed to another meeting Saturday at 11 a.m. (10 p.m. e.s.t. Friday). The disagreement centered around the functions of a five-nation neutral commission which would take custody of Allied captives who do not want to go home and the Reds' plan for a post-armistice political conference to decide the fate of these prisoners."

Cold War Cost Is Set At $36 Billion Even After Korea

General Bradley Estimates Spending For Defense And Foreign Military Aid For 'Long Run Of Cold War'

WASHINGTON (UP)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley said today that even if the Korean war ends the United States will have to spend around $36,000,000,000 a year for defense and foreign military aid "as far into the future as we possibly can see."

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said on Monday that he hopes to get defense spending down to $40,000,000,000 annually in the fiscal year starting July 1, 1954. "Bradley saw no possibility for appreciable cuts thereafter. "To those who would put economy ahead of security, who are wishfully hopeful in regard to Communist intentions, my prediction of cost must be a gloomy one," he said.

House Group Slashes Spending Plans Cut Again At Budget

WASHINGTON (UP)—The House Appropriations Committee voted today to slash federal spending for health, education, welfare, and labor programs. It recommended that these programs—exclusive of public assistance grants required by law—be cut $132,481,291 or 17 per cent below the original Truman request and $82,431,900 or 9 per cent below the revised Eisenhower estimate.

The bill provided $9,000,000 for the National Labor Relations Board, a cut of $500,000 from the Eisenhower estimate. It provided $1,064,000 for the National Mediation Service and the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service was allotted $3,210,000.

Education—$60,500,000 for payments to school districts, $2,500,000 for endowment of colleges, $20,600,000 for vocational rehabilitation. Health—$207,909,200 for the Public Health Service; $50,000,000 for hospital construction; $61,586,000 for the National Institute of Health. In a report prepared by a subcommittee headed by Rep. Fred E. Busby (R-Ill.) the committee also moved to crack down on any future federal attempts to "propagandize." It asked that the Office of Education submit to the committee copies of all new publications, press releases and radio scripts that are issued.

Senator Smith Urges Conference Appeals For 'Big Two' Talk

By JOHN L. STEELE United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. H. Alexander Smith appealed today for an early "Big Two" conference between President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Winston Churchill to close the U. S.-British rift over Korean war policy.

Smith deplored the "exchange of epithets at transatlantic range" which has strained U. S.-British relations during the past week, and said the situation has deteriorated to the point where dramatic moves, such as an Eisenhower-Churchill meeting, are needed to save the day.

Mr. Eisenhower replied to both British statements in his news conference Thursday. He said he had seen no evidence of good faith from Russia that would warrant the meeting proposed by Churchill. And he pointedly remarked that "I have met no one in the United States who does not want peace."

Bombers Devastate Red Training Center

CIO And Industry Close To Agreement Less Than Six Cents Apart

By J. ROBERT SHUBERT PITTSBURGH (UP)—The steel industry and the CIO United Steelworkers stood less than six cents apart in their important wage increase negotiations today and a union official predicted confidently that a settlement would be reached in two or three days.

Germano added he believed it would take only two to three days to reach settlement. J. L. Mauthe, president of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, said he had no comment on Germano's statement. "I have not heard the result of the negotiations," Mauthe said.

Industry spokesmen warned, however, that a wage boost for the nation's 1,200,000 steelworkers would be followed by increases in steel prices. The steelworkers currently receive an average of about $2.16 an hour, or about $88 per week, the highest wages in the industry's history. Since World War II they have had five previous wage increases.

Investigation Into British Trade Hinted

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy threatened an investigation of British trade with Red China today as his feud with former Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee raged angrily across the Atlantic.

McCarthy pulled out every emotional and oratorical stop in assailing a House of Commons speech in which Attlee said "some elements" in America did not seem to want peace in Korea and that it was hard to tell sometimes whether McCarthy or President Eisenhower is the more powerful.

From London, Attlee immediately laid down a counter-barrage, issuing a statement disputing charges the Wisconsin Republican made.

Army Buying Land For Missile Sites

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Army is quietly purchasing tracts of land around many of the nation's major cities to use as launching sites for its new anti-aircraft guided missile, the Nike. Tight secrecy surrounds the list of cities chosen to be protected by the superonic missile, which the Army claims to be "the best anti-aircraft weapon now available."

The Army has stated that Nike batteries will start guarding "principal population and industrial centers" starting this summer. Army sources disclosed today that Army Engineers already have surveyed and started buying property for the secret installations. A large cleared area is required for a Nike launching site. So-called "booster bottles," which assist the rocket in getting into the air, fall back to earth a few seconds after the takeoff. For this reason, the area surrounding the launching platform must be free of homes or inhabitants.

Greenville is to have a hospital. Dr. E. T. Dickerson of Wilson and Dr. W. I. Wooten, K. B. Pace and Chas. O.H. Laughinghouse of this city today perfected plans which guarantee a hospital for Greenville and the county.

These gentlemen who are the promoters and to whom a charter has been granted are hopeful that every physician in the county will take stock in the new project. With every road leading out of Greenville hard-surfaced, with Grifton, Shelmerdine, Grimesland, Pactolus, Stokes, Bethel, Penny Hill, Falkland, Bruce, Farmville, Arthur, Ayden, Winterville within from 15 to 45 minutes of Greenville by automobile, there is not the slightest doubt but what the institution will thrive with capable people in charge.
For several years the need of a hospital in Pitt County has been felt and now that it has been definitely decided to erect one, will strike the cord of approval in the minds of every citizen of the county.

Municipal Government Class Visits New Bern, Attend Board Meeting

Members of a class in municipal government at East Carolina College visited New Bern this week and were guests there at a meeting of the city board of aldermen. More than twenty members of the college class made the trip, for which arrangements were made by Larry M. French, junior from Kinston. Dr. Kathleen Stokes is instructor of the class.

Students discussed New Bern's city manager form of government with City Manager C. L. Barnhardt before the board meeting. Mayor George H. Roberts of New Bern welcomed the East Carolina group in behalf of the board of aldermen. He told the visitors that it is a splendid thing when young people are interested in municipal government. City government, he said, should be a major concern of citizens, for it influences their lives greatly and touches people in their daily activities and "sometimes in a very tender spot."

Dr. Stokes expressed appreciation for the welcome received by the students. She told the board that New Bern has been chosen for the first trip the class had made outside of Greenville.

Unscheduled Raid For Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH UP—The Pittsburgh Fire Department's air raid emergency plan got an unscheduled test Thursday night.

Maintenance men at the Bell Telephone Co. building accidentally tripped a switch that sounded an air raid alarm at Fire Department headquarters. Firemen on duty there swung into action immediately.

The alarm was relayed to five fire stations previously designated as alert bases and their squad cars raced to air raid positions. An "all clear" came a few minutes later when the error was discovered.

GOD SO LOVED
The Book of the prophet Hosea is one of the most beautiful and influential in the Bible. It tells the story of a man who wore his heart out agonizing over the fact that the people of Israel had forsaken God. His own life had been a tragedy. His wife, Gomer, after bearing him children, had deserted him and gone after many lovers. Hosea, who had forsaken Jehovah and gone after strange gods, had forsaken his wife and gone after strange gods. Hosea's wife ended up in the slave market, and Hosea purchased her, brought her back to his home, subjected her to a period of discipline, and then restored her to a place of honor as his wife. So, he declared, will God do with his people Israel. They will be carried away captive—as they were—but they will be led back to their native land again.
The prophet Hosea appeared to die and pass off the stage, but his words, his religious concepts, and his wonderful outlook come back into the Bible again in the teachings of the Christian gospel. Hosea's message is the very core of sound religion. God loves his children and seeks after them—persistently and with a mighty purpose.

Peace Through Power And Much Sacrifice

On this eve of Armed Forces Day it is well to recall that the historical practice of the United States has been to allow its military strength to fall into near-oblivion after each conflict.
Whole armies shrank to scattered regiments; fleets became mere squadrons; financially the services were barely kept in existence by reason of economies or optimistic waves of pacifism. Even as recently as the close of World War II, the nation's defense establishment was permitted to crumble... rather dismantled... in haste; a process which we came to regret at leisure.
It seems unlikely now that for many years to come the armed forces will play a secondary role in our everyday lives. The security of our homelands and free peoples will require constant preparedness until such times as we again breathe easily.
Such preparedness touches closely upon the lives of every family whose sons are able to serve in the Army, the Navy, the Air Force and sister forces. Every wage-earner who contemplates the national budget and wistfully watches a large share of his yearly earnings vanish in the form of taxes, knows the greater portion of this money is destined for national security.
Save for a small nucleus of professional men, the Armed Forces of this country have always been made up of the youths and men who were summoned from private lives to man the ramparts. They are members of our own family or our neighbors' families. They are part of us.
General J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, reminds Americans everywhere that our nation has good reason to be proud of its men and women in uniform; "their devotion to the welfare of their country and their spirit of self-sacrifice are worthy of our finest American traditions," he says.
Tomorrow we pay tribute to those men and women in uniform who represent a very special American sacrifice to the cause of security and peace through the one means which the rest of the world must respect: Power.

A Start Toward Lower Power Rates, Anyway

News that a reduction in electric power rates may be ahead is a welcome word to those people of Greenville and other areas in the County served by lines of the Greenville utilities.
Local utility officials apparently are sure that a slight reduction will be had in domestic rates charged by the local utilities, and there probably will be reductions in other rate schedules.
The rate schedules of the local power plant are under study, and by July 1, there probably will be somewhat lower rate schedules put into effect.
Particularly in the past few years, the power rates of the local utilities have been a subject of much conversation and criticism. Hardly a day goes by that someone in some conversation does not make reference to "high" rates for electric power in the area served by the local utilities plant.

Although it apparently is not common knowledge hereabouts, the rates charged for power by the Greenville utilities compare favorably with the average of rates charged for electricity by private power companies throughout the nation. At the same time it is true that the rate schedule of the Greenville utilities is higher than the average of rates of power companies which operate in the states adjacent to the government TVA power network.

We believe electric power consumers served by lines of the Greenville utilities can rest assured they will receive some reduction in rates after July 1 of this year. They should keep in mind, however, that the reduction probably will not be great.

At least this first reduction in local power rates is a start, and as time goes on, perhaps consumers in this area will receive the benefit of other rate reductions which may be possible from time to time.

Has Russia Adopted An Idea From U.S. History?

Russians in past months have persistently claimed for their countrymen inventions and other major benefits of mankind which for years have been accepted as the work of men of other nationalities.

Now it appears that the Soviet government has torn a page from American history and are quietly making it a prominent part of their own policy.

It was the boisterous, powerful Teddy Roosevelt who half a century ago warned his fellow Americans this nation must talk softly but carry a big stick. The statement applied to the United States position in international affairs.

Since Malenkov has come to power in Russia, the peace talk has been more soft-spoken, yet more diplomatic and to some more meaningful than it was under the Stalin regime. At the same time the pitch of production of war material and the creation of a military machine behind the iron curtain has not lessened. Indeed, it has been stepped up.

In his May Day address, Malenkov talked of peace and good will toward the free world. That talk took the spotlight. Yet buried inconspicuously in his address was mention of new peaks in military production and military build-up which must be met by Russia during the coming year.

Do the two go hand-in-hand?
Russia may appear to be talking softly now; but there is no doubt that she is redoubling her efforts to build a powerful military stick with which to win her way in the world if she can.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The Eisenhower preference for the town meeting kind of government rather than the Roosevelt-Truman explosive experimentation lies behind his Administration's slow start. It accounts for its failure to act in accord with earlier expectations. It underlies a gnawing disappointment even among supporters and sympathizers.
The reforming Republicans have discovered, and admit it somewhat sheepishly, that they cannot rebuild or reorganize the United States Government in a few months. They now doubt whether they can achieve any major change from the Truman program in their first year, whether the problem involves a truce in Korea or balancing the budget.
IKE BELIEVES IN PREPARATION—Whereas F.D.R. and his successor created commissions and alphabetical agencies with assembly-line speed, and demanded immediate solutions or at least plausible answers. He has postponed action pending prior investigation. He believes in the slow approach instead of the sudden attack as he strives to shift from left to right in driving the Federal machine. In politics as in war, he maintains, proper preparation is half the battle.
As New England elders summoned the local inhabitants to a town meeting to mull over parochial affairs, so Eisenhower is asking advice from his neighbors, including Congress. He favors the deliberative rather than the dictatorial technique, even though it be more cumbersome and dilatory.
That is the principal difference between the "first 100 days" of 1933 and 1953.
THOROUGH GOVERNMENTAL OVERHAUL—Pending and proposed studies embrace every conceivable problem. In the aggregate, and especially if the forthcoming recommendations result in Congressional enactment into law, they will constitute the first thorough overhaul of the Federal government, including its relations with states and cities and individuals, in many years.
These surveys include a nonpartisan inquiry into Federal-state duplications and overlappings; government reorganization along unfinished Hoover lines; a "broad-gauge study into the question of what our foreign economic policy should be"; a far-reaching revision of the Federal tax structure; an attempt to disengage the Federal government from operations and activities once reserved for private interests, the states or state compacts.
Perhaps the most important but least publicized effort in this streamlining and balancing act is Eisenhower's personally instigated investigation of the vexing question of "Administrative Law." This vast body of statutory rules and regulations, which determine the procedure and affect the decisions of the scores of alphabetical agencies, lies behind the long delays and the huge cost of government. It weighs heavily on every citizen and corporation.
There was relatively little of this kind of law until the New Deal. Now, it touches everybody. Intermittent hearings must be held, first by the examiners and then by a commission panel. Every interest, no matter how remote, must be given its day. Then there may be appeals to the courts against commission findings and rulings. Years elapse between the first and last acts.
STUDIES DESIGNED TO SAVE BILLIONS—In numerous instances of record, several key participants—petitioners, lawyers, witnesses, commission members—have died during the lengthy proceedings, forcing reenactment of the drama. It is no exaggeration to say that no branch of the Government needs trimming-down to much as this excessiveness.
All these town-meeting studies have a single purpose, according to the White House and their individual sponsors. They are designed to save many billions of dollars, and to make the Government as efficient as private corporations in the discharge of public business.
Basically, they are expected to decentralize and redistribute Federal power, and restore it to the people.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.
When I strike oil I'm going to have a wardrobe that will require half a dozen closets. In the meantime, clothes take a back seat on my list of things. But it's interesting to see a report on the average man, listing his wardrobe. This survey probably isn't average as it claims to be, because it was based on a survey of 4000 readers of men's magazines:
7 suits (4 regular, 3 summer);
2 coats (topcoat and overcoat);
1 raincoat;
3 hats (2 regular, 1 summer);
64 shoes (3.9 regular, 10 summer);
24 shirts (14 regular, 10 summer);
12.7 shorts; 12.9 undershirts;
3 belts; 2.6 suspenders; 2 gloves;
38 neckties;
20.6 socks.
Median cost was $1,260.69. Of this total the biggest item was $585.76 for suits and coats. The shirts cost $111.86, the shoes $107.82, and the neckties $94.24.
These figures on men are interesting, but if any were available on women, it would be even more astounding. Yesterday I was talking to a salesman, W. H. Walters of Richmond, whose wife has recently taken a job in a department store there. She gets a 15 per cent discount on all purchases because of her employee status. "If she works for about two years," he says, "she'll be able to pay for what she's already bought."
It's the accessories that run into money when a woman buys. She can buy a dress at a very reasonable price, but then she must have shoes and pocketbook to match. Pretty soon the dress becomes a minor item.
Bing Crosby is a good example of a man with means who enjoys wearing old clothes. Remember when he was refused a room in a hotel because the clerk didn't recognize him and he was dressed like a tramp?
It all depends on how much vanity you have. It's a good thing plenty of people have it to support our clothing industry in a manner that it can offer to us at mass production prices clothes for the low income bracket.
And I think you.

Around Capitol Square

COST MINUS—It is accepted practice in construction contract circles, especially where government units are paying the bills, to have agreements on a cost-plus basis. Such agreements contemplate that the contractor will keep accurate account of all costs, and the agency for which he is working will pay that amount plus an agreed upon percentage of profit, usually ranging between 5 per cent to 10 per cent. There has developed a practice in areas of institutional service rendered by government which is the reverse of the cost-plus and might be called a cost-minus policy. That is where State institutions charge less than actual cost for paying patients in hospitals and students at educational institutions.
HOSPITALS—Federal, State and local governments have subsidized the construction and equipment of general hospitals to the tune of many millions of dollars since the end of World War II. In numerous instances there are also direct appropriations of public money for operation and maintenance of these hospitals. Most of this tax money goes to care for indigents, while regular patients able to pay are usually charged enough to meet the actual cost of the care given them. Along with that idea of adequate charges in general hospitals there has grown up the concept that the State should provide facilities for victims of mental diseases and tuberculosis; and that services rendered by these special class institutions should be essentially free.
INADEQUATE—So it is that hospitals for tuberculous patients have a per capita cost of between $4 and $5 a day, but charge back to individual patients or counties only 50 cents a day. State hospitals for the mentally ill have a cost of more than $3 per-day per patient, but millions of recipients of these services pay the rate of about $1.50. There are those who think that patients able to pay ought to bear the full cost of their custodial care and treatment. At the same time, there are factors involved which raise difficulties about assessing and collecting an adequate amount. There seem to be no such problems with respect to charges for out-of-state students at educational institutions.
EDUCATIONAL—The recent Legislature appropriated something like $250 million for public schools and some $35 million for educational institutions above public school level. Practically everything connected with the public schools is supposed to be "free", in the sense that, no pupil is expected to pay tuition or for regular textbooks or for ordinary athletic facilities. Almost none of the services offered in the colleges and universities is entirely free, since every student is supposed to pay tuition and other fees. The $35 million tax money appropriated is intended to make up the difference between actual cost of the services and the fees collected from students.
OUT OF STATE—Again, it is not contemplated that any non-residents of the State will attend the public schools, while a substantial portion of the student enrollment at colleges and universities consists of out-of-state pupils. That brings up the bothersome but very important question of the differential in charges for tuition levied against in-state and out-of-state students. Figures furnished the legislative appropriations committee by the several colleges showed that an aggregate of 15.36 per cent of total enrollment for the fall term in 1952 was out-of-state, and that there was wide variance in the charges made by North Carolina institutions for educating these "foreigners." It was further shown that our tax-supported Negro colleges had relatively smaller differential in out-of-state charges and relatively higher percentages of non-resident enrollment. The joint appropriations committee recommended, although authority for action is vested in the boards of trustees, that out-of-state fees be increased at most institutions.
EXAMPLE—For example, A&T College at Greensboro has the highest percentage of out-of-state enrollment, 26.1 per cent. In-state tuition has been $130.50 and out-of-state $261.00. The committee recommended that the out-of-state rate be raised to $360.00, the same as at the university. A like rate was recommended for N.C. State College at Durham, which has a 14.1 per cent non-resident enrollment and present out-of-state rates of $202.50 to $205.00.
PROBLEM—This business of admitting out-of-state students in North Carolina colleges has many angles. One facet is that it seems unfair to collect taxes from North Carolinians to educate boys and girls from other states. Another facet is that without contact with students from other sections, the "barbels" would be bred and would miss one of the most important features of a college education—the broadening contact with outsiders. The people of the whole state are proud that the standing of their schools attract so many students from other parts of the country. Some of the institutional heads are loath to raise fees because the increase would tend to discourage out of state enrollment. At the same time it is apparent that North Carolina taxpayers have been bearing too large a part of the cost of educating the out-of-staters. The legislators felt that adjustments are in order.
MAPS—While institutional fees seem designed to attract students from other states, the

What Other Papers Are Thinking

NO, OH NO (Wilson Times)
We're all for economy until our pants are touched. Then, look out! Harold Cooley put on a demonstration of that sort in Washington the other day. He resented seeing a cut of some $4,100,000 in the vocational educational program. It's almost the equivalent of 21 per cent. But if we're ever to balance the budget, where are we to start? If each Congressman can keep his pants how can we ever hope to reach the point where national taxes can be cut? We're not saying that vocational educational training isn't a good thing. But must it always be carried on at government expense? Many a novice becomes a plumber by first becoming a plumber's helper. Many a Linotype operator starts as a galley boy. What's more, they're earning while they're learning. And, if the truth were known, he's a better plumber or a better operator as a consequence. Why, then, all the furore over the cutting of the budget? Could we not, with an easy conscience, go back to the old way?
We don't know how it is with plumbers, but we have great difficulty finding young boys who want to become printers. And that is hard to understand. For printers are not only earn better-than-average wages, but they can count on 52 weeks of work a year. There are no seasonal layoffs. In the vocational schools, it's true, some skills can be learned. But seldom, we're sorry to say, do we get good printers from them. If, then, the other graduates are as bad, why shouldn't we dispense with the vocational schools altogether? Of course, when you start cutting you're going to offend Congressmen. For all of them, have their pets.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
This is the time of year when businessmen begin climbing the rostrum, alongside politicians and educators, to give advice to graduating students.
If anything, they will be more eager to tell the stories and views this year than last. As mentioned in this column before, the class will be relatively small and very much in demand. Everyone wants to reach the student and, this spring, business in this is not only competing with itself but with other fields.
Most industry has centered its attention on the technically trained—engineers, chemists, accountants, lawyers, etc. Some concerns are even beginning to worry about the dearth of liberal arts students.
One reason is that firms are putting science majors right into the technical jobs instead of semi-technical, preparatory jobs. The latter are being filled with liberal arts students. This isn't as awkward as it seems, since most A.B.'s have some background in math, chemistry, physics of other sciences.
Of greater importance, however, is the growing concern of many companies over shortages of potential executives. Usually, top management men have a general, not specific background. More companies than ever have a preponderance of executives who rose from the sales department, which in turn draws heavily on the liberal arts student ranks.
Some both technical and non-technical majors are in strong demand. It can be expected that businessmen will be more eager than ever to give their pitch to the graduates.

It hasn't always been like this. During the depression, many a businessman was reluctant to expound on the capitalist system before a group of graduates who might be facing a bleak future. In that period, business didn't have the answers and the speaker knew it—and his audience knew it. In fact, most of the nation, including industry leaders, blamed business for the economic slump. There was often a doubt whether the speaker's generation had a valid right to tell the upcoming generation what to do.
Right now many a commencement day orator—and his generation—are looking, and looking hard, for the bright young men who may eventually keep them out of economic troubles like those of a couple of decades ago.

WHALE OIL OUTPUT DECLINE THIS YEAR
Whale oil production will decline from 460,000 short tons in 1951-52 to 420,000 short tons this season, and sperm oil production will drop from 80,000 short tons to 55,000 short tons.
There were 16 whaling expeditions, including seven Norwegian, three British, two Japanese and one each from South Africa, Russia, the Netherlands and Panama. The preceding season there were 19 expeditions.
This season's expeditions produced about 372,000 short tons. The remainder will come from various shore-station operations.
Whale oil and sperm oil are used as lubricants, and for tanning leather, tempering steel, soap making, illumination, oleomargarine (in Europe), insecticides, sheep dips and edible oils.

Just the other day she was tired and sat down on a bench in the back yard. And the things that understand Mama, the children and the dogs that ruin the lawn she is trying to bring back from an over-wet spring, clustered around her.
There's within her such a mixture of "so-ly-you-get-out-of-here" and "Come-back-you-know-I-love-you." And a little girl from the next block, nuzzling up to her, said:
"Mrs. Boyle, why does your family make you work so hard in the back yard?"
Mama is laughing yet at that.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE
KANSAS CITY (AP)—Once a girl is a mother she just has to keep on growing something.
Well, if you ever bought a house and tried to grow grass around it, I'd like to have you meet my mother.
She has been trying to grow grass around a house for more than 30 years. You can't sell her the Brooklyn Bridge, but if you can convince her you grow grass on that bridge she will bargain for the seed.
All Mom started with was the fact of a fair, green, clean lawn, in her time, a meadow quiet and undisturbed. And I suppose she has always had a yearning to get back to the peace of it. So she goes on planting... some day to get back.
She was the eldest of nine Irish girls and an Irish boy, born on an Irish farm where Irish pride jotted above the stones of Irish poverty.
The girls came over to help settle western America, all nine of them. It was the boy who stayed at home to keep England from earning all of Ireland, and tilled the stony land and died there, while his sisters lived across the seas.
And there was a great crowd to greet the girls when they reached the United States—all gathered at Ellis Island, and all trying to get in, too.
I have passed the Statue of Liberty many times in my life, going and coming, and I think I own a part of it. My mother has never taken it for granted. She has never passed it going the other way, and doesn't want to. When she mentions the Statue of Liberty her mouth frames a kiss.
But Mama did bring from Ireland something she is always reaching back to—to her the dream of the fair lawn of youth. She has always kept a green farm thumb in the city, and a sweet growing mind. She has liked to see things come to flower, including her five children, and has never lacked the energy to kick a bud into bloom.
But it is that fair green lawn she yearns for. And so for 32 years she has fought to make a lawn before, behind, and around an eight-room, old-fashioned house here which Dad bought for $5,000. Mom now threatens to give it away and actually is willing to part with it for a million dollars-cold cash, no sentiment involved.
The spring has been rainy in the Midwest, and the grass has come up in patches. All dogs and children in the neighborhood are afraid of Mama, and they love her, too, because when she is strong she orders them off the possible lawn of her dreams, and when she is tired she sits down in the old scabby back yard and will talk to them.
Mama has always been that way. When she raises her voice, everybody runs away. When she is weary, everyone wants to cluster around her. This is the hardest single fact about one human being I have tried to figure out. She is 65 and I am 42, and I still don't know how she can boss children and dogs that way, and make them all love her.
She fights that lawn so hard we have to forbid her the lawnmower. She says you can't hire kids today to mow it, but she has always told that grass herself, though her face grows red and she has been told not to do it. My sister, Dolores, when she hears her pulling the lawnmower out of the basement goes down and says, "Mama, now you know better. Stop it."
But nobody can stop Mama from putting in her tomato plants. Wonderful crop last year. I have offered to take her back for a visit to Ireland, and see again the farm she was born on. She says:
"Ireland isn't modern. I would rather see the rest of America."
But you know how passionate a feeling for growth the people from the Old Country have. Mama has had five children, she has been a widow for 15 years, she is 65 years old, and she is

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Mrs. Katherine G. Howard, the little woman from Beacon Street, Boston, remembered by millions of TV viewers as secretary of the 1952 Republican convention, has a big voice now in civil defense planning for the nation.
Wife of Charles P. Howard, attorney and former Massachusetts State senator, and mother of two grown children, the charming and brainy Mrs. Howard recently was named by the President as assistant administrator of the Federal Civil Defense Administration. Already she is being heard by womenfolk over the country.
"Civil defense is the responsibility of the community, especially women and homemakers," she says. "Civilian defenses must be reduced to manageable proportions. Women are great managers because they have to be. We'd like to see more women daytime wardens. We'd like to see them take a more active part in home preparedness against possible air raids."
Public knowledge of the need for survival action, she says, has increased in the past months. Today more than four million persons are serving in local and state Civil Defense Corps, collectively known as the U.S. Civil Defense Corps. Howard says more than $2 million adults know a few of the simple things they should do to protect themselves against atomic attack.
Mrs. Howard is advising women to set up air raid shelters in the basements of their homes, completed with food, water and medical supplies; to clean out their attics to eliminate fire hazards and to have baking soda on hand to mix with water for burn treatments. She also urges them to remember to tune in radio channels 640 or 1240 in case of attack.
Mrs. Howard, who commutes between her Boston brownstone home and her new Washington apartment, expects to be an on-the-scene witness of an atomic bomb test at Yucca Flats, Nev. soon. After that she will visit Federal Civil Defense offices in San Francisco and Seattle. Although she was born in Bufton, Ga., and grew up in North Carolina, Mrs. Howard's parents were New Englanders. She is a Smith College graduate, active in civic and community work and a leading Boston socialite. Beginning her political career as a precinct worker, she has been a member of the Republican National Committee since 1945 and was once its secretary. She was the only woman member of the Eisenhower campaign Strategy and Policy Committee.
Nevertheless, it isn't at all difficult to picture this very efficient woman knitting pink and blue afghans for baby carriages, collecting antiques and liking to cook. She had won prizes for flower arrangements. In addition to her apartment here and her house in Boston, she oversees the management of a large summer house overlooking the sea at Marblehead, Mass. She also is interested in the restoration of a 125-year-old house in Goshen, N.H.

Dulles Trip Shows How U.S. Prestige Slipping

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

It might be said that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles asked for it and he is getting it. Egyptian officials were polite about the results of his visit to Cairo but Egyptian newspapers still are in an uproar over what they interpret as United States support for the "imperialistic" policies of Great Britain.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli officials were glad to see Dulles, but met him with what amounted to a small army and with such security precautions as to suggest actual fears for his safety.

Yet, to the question "Was this trip necessary?" the answer seems to be yes.

The United States and Britain are in sharp disagreement on methods to be used in the Middle East but they are agreed on the dangers inherent to the area.

Both are agreed that the billions spent for the defense of Europe and free Asia could go for naught, if a broad and clear highway down the center was left open to Communist aggression.

So it is important for this administration to understand as thoroughly as possible the problems and internal conflicts facing it in the Middle East.

It is a fast and exhausting trip that Dulles and Mutual Security Administrator Harold Stassen have undertaken, and one of its most important phases still lies ahead.

That is their visit to India which daily assumes a more important position in world affairs.

One of Dulles' most important tasks in India will be to establish friendly relations with Prime Minister Nehru.

Both the former U. S. Democratic administration and Ambassador Chester Bowles were popular in India. Through their help in the last two years alone, India has received $100,000,000 in Point Four aid for such projects as dams, irrigation schemes and food production.

The Indians will want to know what further help they can expect under the Republicans, whom they suspect of being "reactionary" and "big business."

It is possible that Dulles may try again to persuade Nehru to accept aid under the Mutual Security Act, under which funds to India could be increased but which also would involve military commitments — a condition the Indians have avoided steadfastly.

There are other items which could lead to discord. One is Nehru's outspoken criticism of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the U. S. refusal to recognize Red China. Nehru regards NATO as a threat to world peace and our failure to recognize Red China as a refusal to face facts.

Dulles, on the other hand, may urge Nehru to take a more positive role in Asiatic affairs by pointing out that his so-called "neutrality" actually gives Asiatic leadership to Communist Mao Tse Tung by default. Dulles might point out also that too often "neutrality" means appeasement or actual collaboration with a potential enemy.

Official Accused Of Mistreating School Students

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP)—A county school official today pondered over the "r. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" description of a principal whom irate parents accused of beating children and then "loving them up."

Principal J. W. Rollins was accused by a delegation of parents of beating the children "unmercifully" before a microphone to serve as an example to other pupils at the Adamsville, Ala., grade school.

Mrs. H. W. White described Rollins as having a "Jekyll and Hyde" character. She said she witnessed brutalities on several occasions but when county officials visit the school, she said, he is "so sweet saccharine wouldn't melt in his mouth."

Rollins, who was present at the hearing yesterday before Supt. I.F. Fimmons of the Jefferson County schools, denied these and substanti-

Lawn Mower Can Cut Grass With No Attendant

LONDON (AP)—Commander H.S. Pugh a retired British naval officer, has invented a device which enables an unattended motor lawn mower to get on with the job. But there is a snag. It only works on circular lawns, and does not touch any odd corners—so the new device may also start a fashion in round lawns.

Pugh's device was demonstrated recently. The unattended mower ate up the grass in an ever-widening circle until the mown patch was 120 yards across.

The device consists of a cylindrical "tether" attached to the mower. The tether is fixed to a point on the ground and the mower set in motion. As the mower proceeds the wire coiled on the tether pays out, and the machine runs in ever-widening circles.

Sports Reflections

BY

Jimmy Ellis

As is all-too-often the case, most of the spotlight of interest in sports activity is being concentrated on one big event. The event holding the center of attention is a boxing match scheduled for tonight in Chicago.

The fight will rematch two men, one a champion and one an ex-champion, who have fought each other before.

The champion, Rocky Marciano, is favored to beat the ex-champion and challenger, Joe Walcott. There are several factors involved.

First, and perhaps most important, Marciano has done it before. He did it a year ago to take the once-coveted heavyweight boxing championship away from the old man of the sport.

Second, and also highly important, the champion is young, vigorous, and able to more readily absorb the terrific pounding that comes in such a fight. He lacks the experience of the challenger but what he lacks in experience he makes up for in aggressiveness and sheer strength.

Third, the man he is fighting is one who has been around the fight game for a long time and who long ago passed into the "twilight zone" of his career.

Fourth, the champion is mad.

That last point stems from a lot of talk that has been coming from the camp of Jersey Joe Walcott, the challenger. It concerns the first fight between the two, which Marciano won in a decisive manner to say the least.

Walcott has been yelling, along with his manager, that Marciano won the fight because of dirty tactics. He claims the "Brockton Blockbuster" butted him with his head, used "every dirty trick in the book" to win. The talking about the alleged tactics of Marciano didn't start immediately after the first fight. They were started not so long ago when the challenger discovered that it might sound good and make for good advance publicity for tomorrow's battle. This fact, in itself, makes the accusations look somewhat questionable.

Walcott has also gone on record as saying that Marciano is "punchy," a not-so-complimentary description attached to fighters who would do well to start something else before they (literally) get killed.

But, mad or not, Marciano is still the favorite. He has tradition in his favor in addition to the other psychological and physical factors. No deposed champion has ever regained the heavyweight title. Not even the once-great Joe Louis, who is now stumbling through a soft-shoe routine for his chow money, could get it back once he lost it.

Boxing is an unusual sport. There's a lot more to it than meets the eye—as anyone who has ever been associated with it can readily admit. There's something new to learn every day, whether you're a boxer or a spectator.

But, despite its highly individualistic quirks and mannerisms, we believe the handwriting is on the wall for two men who will fight each other tonight for the heavyweight championship of the world. We believe, and earnestly, that despite all his charges of what happened in the last fight that Joe Walcott will not regain the title he once had.

We believe that Rocky Marciano—the best of a sorry lot of heavyweights—will keep the title. We believe that he has too much of a lot of things and enough of the others to keep the cage Walcott from coming back.

We think the old man with the long white beard and the scythe has finally caught up with the brown man from Camden, N. J. We think that young Rocky Marciano will prove it tonight in Chicago.

Rocky The Slugger, Wily Jersey Joe Meet For Title

CHICAGO (UP)—Rocky Marciano, the first perfect record heavyweight champion and perhaps the hardest puncher in ring history, will make his first defense of the title tonight against wily old Jersey Joe Walcott, who was defeating "The Rock" when knocked out last September.

Unbeaten, until Marciano, who ended in slugging with both fists, will try to prove that his knockout at Philadelphia on Sept. 23 was no mistake—that he can again blast the 29-year old "miracle man" into the resin dust, despite the latter's ring guile and explosiveness.

Their contrasting styles and prowess under the Philadelphia stars provided one of the ring's all-time great battles, and they could achieve another classic tonight during their 15-round fight at Chicago Stadium for sport's most valuable trophy—the million-dollar crown.

Balding, bull-shouldered Jersey Joe, father of six children, may be keyed to the highest pitch to become the first man in ring history to recapture the heavyweight crown. He desperately wants the glory and gold attached to such a victory for his family and himself.

Whether the ancient warrior from Camden, N. J., will attempt to repeat his knockdown of Rocky in the first round and try for a kayo in every session thereafter is one of the big questions of the contest. The second oldest challenger in the annals of his division may conserve his energy and try to keep away from the ever-advancing Rock and outpoint him.

There's no question about 28-year old Marciano's plans. The "blockbuster" from Brockton, Mass., has but one style—slide in and punch.

Despite Walcott's magnificent performance while losing the title, Marciano was a lopsided favorite at 17-5 today. And there was little or no support for the Camden challenger from writers or boxing men.

Moreover, the fight was proving a disappointment, although not a loss, to promoter Jim Norris. With an admitted advance of only $387,000 this morning, Norris and his International Boxing Club would be fortunate to best the indoor world record gate of $422,918, established in Chicago Stadium by middleweights Rocky Graziano and Tony Zale, July 16, 1947.

When Norris made the return match and guaranteed Walcott a flat $250,000, he expected a sellout of 19,440 fans and $712,000. More than 16,000 spectators may be in the stadium tonight, but probably less than 14,000 will be cash customers.

There were two reasons for the disappointing sale: (1) The bout is being televised and broadcast nationally, except for TV blackouts in the Chicago-Milwaukee areas, and (2) The bout was postponed from April 10 because Rocky suffered a nose injury in training.

Norris cannot suffer a loss, if his advance sale figures are correct, because the TV-Radio sponsor is paying $300,000. Also some

Bryan Pitches Three-Hitter As Elks Defeat Moose, 11-1

Fraley Imagines Thoughts Formed In Boxers' Minds

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Fighters, they say, are insensible machines devoid of feeling whose muscles extend even to the area between their ears. But this is a fallacy which forms the working basis of a brutal business.

Men who make their living in the ring are, unless they stay with the trade too long, just like any other workman. They have their private lives, their loves and their laughs—and their thoughts, too.

Thus it is that, as heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano and former champion Jersey Joe Walcott climb through the ropes at Chicago tonight with the big title at stake each will entertain a thousand thoughts until the business at hand claims his undivided attention.

Nobody can say what another man is thinking and these are men steeled to cover their emotions until one hand or the other is raised in victory. But knowing both of them, it could go something like this:

"Well, Rock, this is it! The old guy over there looks pretty good, eh? But he looked pretty good the last time, too, and that right hand of his they're trying the glove took good care of him."

"Seems like a long time since last September, doesn't it? Well, not so long ago, at that, but a lot sure has happened. Funny, how I couldn't get used to everybody calling me 'champ.' Felt kind of funny for a while, but now it sure sounds good."

"You can take this guy, just like you took him before. Just keep crowding him and pouring it on. Sooner or later, wham, and you're still the 'champ.'"

"This is it!"

And over on the other side of the ring, eyes gleaming out of a mask-like face, the words could be running through the close-cropped head of the "old guy" something like this:

"Well, this is the last time, Joe. This is the one for the road. If we win it, we go out in a blaze of glory. And if something goes wrong, we still got nothing to worry about."

"How many times have I sat here like this, with all that noise out there, the lights glaring down and this tight feeling in my belly waiting for the bell to ring? A hundred, or a thousand?"

"Why kid myself, I'm glad this is the last one."

"So that guy sitting over there is younger, but he can't fight like you can, Joe. You can take this guy and you know it. Maybe he knows it, too, unless he gets lucky again. But this time you don't let him get lucky. This is the last one and you're gonna give it everything you've got."

"This is it!"

Then they'll start punching.

Lucian Bryan held the Moose to only three hits while his own mates were pounding 10 yesterday in an 11-1 victory for the Elks in Little League play.

Bryan had very little trouble in notching the victory for the Elks. He stayed out of serious trouble except for the fourth inning but his own caution was doubled by his teammates who pounded out all of their hits off Finch of the Moose.

Carl Bedstead, with two singles in three trips, and Harry Forbes with two singles in four trips were the batting leaders for the Elks. They both got big hits in a five-run third inning for the Elks to break the back of the Moose offense.

Bryan lost his shutout in the fourth inning when Finch was hit by a pitch, moved to second on an infield out, and chased home on a single by Ronald Riggs.

In the big third inning for the Elks, Forbes started struck out but Bedstead threw the fat right back into the fire with another single. Bryan walked and Merle Bynum cleaned the bases with a two-bagger. Charles Roberts and Bobby Arthur followed with singles which, combined with an error by the catcher, accounted for the other two Elks runs.

Riggs, with a single, and Tommy Henderson and Topping, with a double apiece, got the three Moose hits.

Expect Records In Coliseum Meet

LOS ANGELES (UP)—American and foreign track stars were on hand today for the 13th annual Coliseum Relays and several world records were expected to be erased from the books.

A crowd of more than 32,000 also was expected at the track and field classic tonight which will feature 12 gold medal winners from the 1952 summer Olympics in Helsinki.

Olympic champ Mal Whitfield was the man experts pick to have the best chance of setting a new global 880-yard mark.

Other Helsinki champions competing are Lindy Remigio, 100 meters; Andy Stanfield, 200 meters; George Rhoden, 400 meters; Walt Davis, high jump; Jerry Blife, broad jump; Bob Richards, pole vault; Harry O'Brien, shot put and Sam Iness, discus.

Stanfield, Rhoden, Whitfield and Herb McKenley plan to team in the mile relay.

George Eastman has his Manhattan College sprint relay team on deck. They are considered a big threat in the 440-yard and 880-yard relays.

But many fans looked forward to what may be one of the greatest mile races ever run. Scheduled for that event were Georgetown's Charley Capozzoli; Fred Dwyer, Villanova; Len Truex, Ohio State;

The 1953 Pony League baseball schedule will open on Tuesday night, May 26, at the Third Street School athletic field.

The starting date for the league was determined at a meeting of the league supporters last night in the Armory.

The supporters also decided to have doubleheaders each Tuesday and Thursday night. The first game of the two will get underway at 7 p.m.

Chisox Loom Big In Yankees' Path

NEW YORK (UP)—The swift aggressive Chicago White Sox replaced the Cleveland Indians today as the No. 1 stumbling block in the New York Yankees' path toward a fifth straight pennant—without less an authority than Casey Stengel concurring.

"They're the team that's beaten us three out of four," Stengel said after the White Sox 7-5 victory Thursday. "They run and they drive. I've warned my players to watch their running but they run anyway. They're going to be tough all the way and maybe they'll be tougher than the Indians."

Stengel attached one proviso to his analysis of the team's ability to stay in the race all the way.

"He (Paul Richards, manager of the White Sox) has been struggling with his pitchers all season," Stengel said. "I'm not sure he's got enough pitching to make a fight of it all the way."

Odedy Richards posed the same question about the Yankees' ability.

"To beat the Yankees you've got to out-pitch them," Richards said. "How long can Allie Reynolds, Vic Raschi and Ed Lopat go on? They can't go on forever, even if they do wear Yankee uniforms."

Stengel blamed Thursday's defeat on himself but was angry at pitcher Tom Gorman for failing to keep Minnie Minoso closer to first base in the eighth inning. Myro stole second but was trying to make third on an infield out and the White Sox did not score in that inning. Nevertheless, Stengel seemed to feel Gorman's failure was symptomatic of the Yankees' play against the White Sox.

"I warned 'em," Stengel said. "You tell 'em and then the guys go ahead and take the base."

"I'm so mad I can't see straight."

Casey took the blame, however, for the winning run in the ninth when Sam Mele singled and punch runner Bob Wilson scored from second base.

"I shoulda pulled in the outfield when he sent in the pinch runner," Stengel said.

Plans Announced For Ladies Open

NEW YORK (UP)—The U. S. Golf Association today announced entry and tournament plans for its first women's open championship which will be held at the Rochester (N.Y.) Country Club, June 25-27.

The tournament is open to women professional or amateur golfers with handicaps of not more than five strokes, but former USGA amateur champions are eligible regardless of handicap.

Entries must be received at USGA headquarters in New York by 5 p.m. e.d.t., June 15. The entry fee is $10.

The championship will be at 72 holes stroke play. The competitors will play 18 holes each of the first two days but only the 36 holes will be eligible for the 36-hole final.

A total of $7,500 will be distributed among the first 12 distributors who finish the tournament with the winner getting $2,000. Second place will be worth $1,250 and third, $1,000. The amateur with the lowest score will receive a gold pin.

Louise Suggs of Cincinnati, O., won the 1952 open with a 284 at the Bala (Pa.) Golf Club.

Mrs. Harrison F. Flippin of Ardmore, Pa., chairman of the USGA Women's Committee, will be in charge of the June event.

Spec Shea's Hurling Has Senators Winning

By CARL LUNDQUIST
NEW YORK (UP)—Washington's six-game winning streak threatened to stretch out like a Senate filibuster today, thanks to Spec Shea, who went from a stomach ache to a sore arm to a pain in the neck with the Yankees, but feels just dandy right now.

Shea, one of three Yankee castoffs on the pitching staff of Bucky Harris, a Yankee castoff himself, turned in a six-hit, 2-1 victory over the Browns Thursday night to put the Nats up to the .500 mark and only a game out of fourth place.

That he was out there at all, he thinks, is a tribute to the faith of Harris, who gave him another chance when it looked like he might be all through in baseball. That was last season when Shea hurt his arm with the Yankees in spring training and claimed he never had a chance to show Casey Stengel he was okay again.

Just how "okay" Shea was shown when he was traded to Washington and wound up winning 11 games. But trouble struck again this season.

His arm trouble kicked up again and he was out for the first two weeks. Now back in action, he has scored two big victories.

Shea had trouble with the Yankees right from the start when he developed appendicitis as a rookie on view from Oakland in 1946 at Panama. Since the Yankees didn't own him yet, they didn't want to pay the $200 medical bill, but Shea said he'd quit if they didn't. They did reluctantly and were glad of it later when he was 1947 Rookie of the Year. Then came the sore arm and finally the pain in the neck. That was what Shea said Stengel gave him.

In his six-hitter, all singles, he also drove in a run with a double while Mickey Vernon delivered the other with a single.

In the National League, Milwaukee came from behind in the ninth to down Pittsburgh 3-2 and go into a tie for first place, the Cards drubbed Brooklyn 8-3, and the New York-Cincinnati and Philadelphia-Chicago games were rained out.

In other American League games the White Sox again stopped the Yankees 5-5, Boston topped Cleveland in 11 innings 7-5, and Philadelphia edged Detroit 5-3.

Jack Dittmer's bases loaded single with nobody out gave Milwaukee its eighth triumph in nine home games and its fifth in a row. Jim Wilson pitched three-hit ball for his second win to edge loser John Lindell, who yielded six hits, two in the fatal ninth.

The Cardinals finally touched up Carl Erskine, who had beaten them seven straight times, putting on an extra base hit, spree that included two homers, by Red Schoendienst, two doubles by Enos Slaughter, and a double by Ray Jablonski as Gerry Stieglitz pitched six-hit ball for his fourth win.

Harry Byrd, the 1952 Rookie of the Year for the A's, finally pitched his first complete game, holding the Tigers to seven hits as Dave Philley hit a homer and double.

The White Sox won a draggy game from the Yankees in which 35 players broke into the lineup. They came from behind with four runs in the seventh, three on a homer by Sherman Lollar, and won it in the ninth after the Yankees tied it at 5-5 on Don Bollweg's homer. Singles by Lollar, Al Carasquel, Sam Mele and Nellie Fox gave Chicago its two marginal runs.

Youngsters Jimmy Piersall and Ted Lepcio teamed up to beat Cleveland. Piersall delivered Lepcio from second with a single after Ted had been on base for the fifth straight time, once with a homer. Jim Lemon, Joe Tipton, and Al Rosen hit Cleveland homers.

Word To Wise

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The man who refereed the last Marciano-Walcott fight today warned television boxing fans: "Don't go to the kitchen for another glass of beer unless you do it between rounds" of tonight's heavyweight championship battle at Chicago.

Charlie Daggert, an ex-fighter and a referee with 27 years of experience, predicted another sudden and explosive knockout, but he wouldn't venture to guess whether champion Rocky Marciano or Jersey Joe Walcott would land on the canvas.

Daggert, whose card had Walcott ahead 7-4-1 before the pride of Brockton, Mass., slammed the challenger down for the count last September, advised televisioners to watch every punch in every round.

"Anybody who goes out for another beer during any round is liable to miss the one punch that'll give you a new champ or leave us the same one," Daggert said as he prepared to watch the fight via television at his Philadelphia home.

Horsemen Flock To Hollywood

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UP)—Horsemen flocked to the racing secretary's office at Hollywood Park today for the first time in four days with entries for the delayed start Saturday of the track's meeting.

The track and representatives of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association, after a bitter three-hour meeting with the California Horse Racing Board, worked out a formula Thursday settling demands of the stables for increased purses.

Under the compromise the track did not yield in its refusal to grant 40 per cent of its share of wagering in purses but increased the money for the horses from $2,600,000 to $2,820,000.

Amendment Calls For Closed Shop Contracts

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of Labor Martin P. Durkin's recommendations for amending the Taft-Hartley law call for legalizing closed shop contracts, an informed source said today.

His program also is understood to urge abandonment of the non-Communist affidavit requirement in the act and enactment of more general legislation to deal with Communism in the labor movement.

Durkin is expected to send these and other proposals to the White House for whatever use the administration wants to make of them in asking Congress for labor legislation this year.

Both the House and Senate Labor committees have concluded hearings on proposals for amending the Taft-Hartley law without receiving recommendations from Durkin or the administration.

Throughout these hearings Durkin has been in an embarrassing spot. As President of the AFL Plumbers' Union, he favored the election of the Democratic presidential nominee, Gov. Adlai Ste-

Stargazers Build An Observatory

SEATTLE, Wash. (UP)—Two months ago someone got the idea it would be nice for the Seattle Amateur Astronomical Society to have its own complete observatory.

The idea caught on and there's a good chance the observatory, complete with a 12½-inch reflector telescope, will be finished this summer.

Each Saturday members turned out to survey and clear the one-acre site on a 600-foot knoll near Seattle. The site above Beaver Lake, was donated by a member, A.P. Patton.

Grading has been completed and construction of the actual building with donated materials has begun. The dome to house the large telescope will be 20 feet in diameter.

Even the telescope mirror was built by a club member and financed by member donations. J.R. Perry, who has ground mirrors for professional observatories, was the expert in the telescope department.

The society plan public use of the observatory. Annual "star nights" will be held and special showings will be opened for unusual astronomical phenomena.

Duke University Coach Speaks At Banquet

Athletic Director Boley Farley shakes hands with Duke football coach Bill Murray at a banquet held last night honoring members of Greenville athletic team. Shown with the two are Superintendent J. H. Rose and Principal O. E. Dowd. (Reflector Photos by Roy Hardee.)

Greenville High School athletic team members were feted at a banquet last night at which head football coach Bill Murray of Duke University, was guest speaker.

Head football coach Bill Murray of Duke University was the guest speaker at the annual High School Athletic banquet last night.

Between 50-60 football, basketball, golf and track team members were present for the banquet staged in their honor last night.

Coach Murray was introduced by High School Athletic director Boley Farley.

Murray used as his topic "Unselfishness" as the term would apply to students in sports from a team standpoint.

"There has never been a good team which was not made up of unselfish boys" Murray pointed out.

If a team is to be successful then every member must cooperate and pull together.

"There are the players who play simply for 'themselves' and they can wreck a team and need to be curbed from the team either by their coaches or themselves for the best interest of the team" the football head stated.

"Unless you approach each game with spirit then you will not be worth anything to it. Those who violate the training, rules set up by the coaches have aided no one and only harmed themselves," Murray said.

"You must believe that the man in charge knows what he is doing for you and the other members of your team to be successful" Murray said in closing.

Urges Teachers To Reevaluate

Dean Leo W. Jenkins suggested to Martin County teachers this week a "spring cleaning" at the close of the school year. "Perhaps once a year toward the end of school," he said, "we might well take time to reevaluate what we have done."

Dean Jenkins appeared as principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Martin County unit of the North Carolina Education Association. His talk suggested various aspects of education which might well be reconsidered in the light of the experience gained during the school year.

"It is estimated," he said, "that 65 percent of all the jobs in the U.S. require about three days' training. This would lead us to consider the advisability of teaching how to think rather than emphasizing minor skills."

Using the best of the past to help solve the problems of the present, we must determine whether we have confused the term "self-expression" with "license," he said, and "whether we have spent undue time in flatterring youth." Honest and just discipline, he stated, is appreciated by students.

He questioned the value and efficiency of testing and suggested that teachers remember that it will remain "a weak and inadequate tool until the time comes when we are able to measure motivation."

High School Band To Present Annual Spring Concert Tuesday

The Greenville High School Band will present its annual spring concert Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the College Theatre on the East Carolina campus.

The 68 piece band under the direction of James E. Rodgers will present a variety of music in its concert which will include 11 compositions.

High school musicians under Rodgers' direction will open the program with "Amparito Roca," Spanish March by Jamie Texidor, followed by "Pais Angelicus, The Nation's Prayer" by Cesar Franck.

"A Trumpeter's Lullaby" composed by Leroy Anderson, is a composition for band featuring solo trumpet. Anderson has become noted for his ability to single out certain sections of the concert orchestra and highlight their contribution to the music by skillfully idiomatic writing. The piece, "A Trumpeter's Lullaby" was written by Anderson as a result of a request from Roger Voisin, principal trumpet of the Boston "Pops" Orchestra.

"The Shawl Dance," written especially for a motion picture production number, will be included in the first half of the concert as will "L'Arlesienne Suite No. 2" by Georges Bizet, and the famous "The Captain March" by John Philip Sousa.

After the concert intermission, the band will play "His Honor March" by Henry Fillmore, followed by the presentation of "Caliskin Calisthenics" by David Bennett. The latter composition is a solo for trap drums and band. As the work gets under way and the drum solo assumes its desired importance, the significance of the title becomes apparent. The drummer is offered a rather exciting part, requiring a comprehensive knowledge of the routines and considerable ingenuity.

"TV Suite" by Harold Walters will be a novelty number presented by the high school band in its four parts. The first portion of the composition portrays the agebrush saga, the second part a "whodunit," the third part a hayloft hoe down, and the fourth part a big name band.

Bayou Bequine by John Morrissey is another number included in the concert.

Final number in the concert will be "March of the Steel Men" by Charles Belsterling. Featured in the number will be down stage trumpet parts by Sam Worthington, Myron Teel, Donald McArthur and Charles White; and down stage trombone parts played by Tommy Smith, Jerry Phillips, Mickey West and Bob Howell.

Tickets for the concert are being sold by members of the Greenville High School Band and will be on sale at the door of the College Theatre the night of the concert. A prize is being offered for the band member who sells the largest number of tickets for the concert.

Non-Residents Welcomed To Get X-Rays In Pitt

Non-residents visiting or shopping in Pitt County are "more than welcome" to a chest x-ray at one of the units, Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Executive Secretary of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, said today.

She said that many visitors have already been x-rayed at the four units operating in the county.

A number of people who live outside the county have asked hostesses at the units if the x-rays are free only to Pitt County residents, according to Mrs. Spilman. The visitors who wished it were x-rayed and assured that their reports would be mailed to their home addresses.

"I guess we will add these wise visitors to our x-ray total," Mrs. Spilman said. "There is an estimated adult population of 41,000 in the county. To date we have x-rayed 11,843 people of our goal set at 30,000 at the onset of the survey. This means that we still have to x-ray some 18,157 residents if our program is to be a success."

"I urge everyone who hasn't done so to come to one of the units and get his chest x-ray—a process that costs nothing, takes but a moment, and requires no undressing. Tuberculosis is the concern of every one of us because it is a serious public health problem in this county. And it will remain a grave problem here as long as a single case of tuberculosis exists in the community."

The x-ray program opened on April 26 and will continue until June 18, 1953. Sponsors of the program are: The Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, the Pitt County Health Department, and the N. C. State Board of Health, and it is endorsed by the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society.

Newsmen Toured Savannah River H-Bomb Plant

By TOM PRICE
United Press Staff Correspondent
AIKEN, S. C. (UP) — Newsmen got a look today at the inside of the vast Savannah River H-bomb plant near here, described by the duPont Co. as "the largest single construction job in history."

The Atomic Energy Commission and duPont, which is building the $1,300,000,000 plant for the government, played host to visiting newspaper, radio and wire service representatives in a day-long seminar "designed to acquaint those attending with the day-by-day operations" of the AEC and duPont at the plant.

Newsmen reported at 8:50 a.m., at the permanent administration building on the edge of the sprawling reservation which spreads over large chunks of South Carolina's Aiken and Barnwell counties, and takes a smaller bite out of Allendale County.

Reporters attending the seminar had little idea of just what they would see and hear inside the 202,000-acre reservation, which covers 315 square miles, 15 miles south of here and 20 miles south-east of Augusta, Ga.

The AEC said the seminar would be "devoted to a general outline of organization and presentation of programs, activities and procedures at the plant for the long-range benefit of news writers and editors."

Otherwise, there was little inkling of just what would be put on

The area in the Savannah River will manufacture materials for a hydrogen bomb. The plant's permanent personnel is expected to number nearly 8,000.

Before the AEC moved into the area, 87 per cent of what is now the plant reservation was woodland. The other 13 per cent was open, including pasture and crop lands.

Acquisition of the plant site necessitated the evacuation of Ellen...

ton population 600 in Aiken County, Dunbarton 241 in Barnwell County and several other smaller communities.

The AEC said it selected the South Carolina site for the plant because the region was a low population area near high population communities, with ideal terrain free from floods and major storms.

Large quantities of pure water were also available from the Savannah.

map makers go blithely along with psychologic suggestion that he people here ought to leave. For years your reporter and a small number of others have waged verbal war on the policy of designating highways crossing state lines as "To Washington" or "To Atlanta" or somewhere else. It would require very little effort to turn the pointing arrow around heading traffic into instead of out of the state and let the legend read "From Washington" etc. Same number of miles, same accuracy of information; just a bit of difference in psychology. Why spend money advertising for people to come to North Carolina and then subtly suggest that they get the heck out?

Brindle swung around. Durst stood smiling in the doorway. The gun in his hand looked much larger than Frances' black hole more deadly, and the bronzed finger at the trigger frigidly confident. His thin lips were bloodless.

Durst opened the drawer of the night table beside the bed and withdrew a small bottle. "An overdose of phenobarbital will put you away nicely. No noise. No mess. No tell-tale slugs."

Living as Christians

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I and II Thessalonians.

Paul writes to the church in Thessalonica while he is in Athens with Timothy and Silvanus, greeting them with: "Grace be unto you, and peace, from our Lord Jesus Christ."—I Thessalonians 1:2.

"We give thanks to God for you all, making mention of you in our prayers; remembering your work of faith, and labor of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ."—I Thessalonians 1:2-3.

Paul writes: "study to be quiet, and to do your own business, and to work with your hands . . . that ye may walk honestly toward them that are without, and that ye may have lack of nothing."—I Thessalonians 4:11-12.

To mourners Paul writes: "Sorrow not, for if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him."—I Thessalonians 4:13-14.

LIVING AS CHRISTIANS

LIVE VIRTUOUSLY, LOVE ALL MEN, COMFORT THE SORROWING

Scripture—I and II Thessalonians.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. EVERY AGE has its problems, and to those who are alive in any certain period of time—ancient or modern—the problems encountered in that age seem the most appalling of any time.

It was so in St. Paul's day as it is in ours. Never has a small portion of the world been able to live so comfortably, as now, but at the same time, millions are enduring hunger, without shelter, in fairs, and in constant fear of what may lie ahead.

Facing the perplexities of today, we too are tempted to think and say that they are the worst the world has ever known; and this after nearly 2,000 years of Christianity!

How does a true Christian live? Paul's letters to the congregation at Thessalonica, that great Macedonian city, should give us the answer as to our conduct. If all those who profess Christianity followed the rules he lays down in those two fine chapters, how much further we might be to the kingdom of God.

Paul, Silvanus and Timothy were together in Athens when Paul wrote his epistles to the letters to that church were written a year or two later. Some of the church's adherents had died in the meantime—either by martyrdom or not—we do not know. Paul told those who were bereaved that they should not sorrow as did those that had no hope.

"For if ye believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him."—I Thessalonians 4:14.

"For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep."

"For the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first."

"Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord."

"Wherefore comfort one another with these words."

In chapter five of his first letter he warned the Thessalonians to be ready for the second coming of Christ. It would come sud-

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Railroad shares rose to new highs for a month in an irregularly higher stock market today.

Gains in the carriers, leaders yesterday, ranged to more than a point in Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard Air Line, and Rock Island. New York Central continued to feature the group in turnover. Small gains were set by that road and by Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, and Union Pacific.

Industrial issues dipped a few cents because a few of the issues in the average had minor declines, including Chrysler, Standard Oil (N.J.), DuPont, Goodyear, and Union Carbide.

Utilities scored a tiny gain. Steel held steady in the major issues. Motor balanced off small gains and losses. Oils were steady in most instances and Superior of California ran up 10 points on one sale to 530.

New highs for the year and longer were set by Nesco, most active stock, American Car & Foundry, Bucyrus-Erie, General Electric, Inter-Continental Rubber, Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway, and Westinghouse Air Brake.

Claims Mother Pushed Children In Death Well

DOUGLASVILLE, Ga. (UP)—A small, frightened girl who was rescued from a well in which her mother and two brothers died, said the mother pushed them all in and then jumped in herself.

Six-year-old Patricia was the only member of farmer Robert A. Foran's family whom he was able to save by lowering himself through a 28-inch wide opening to the water level 20 feet below. Deputy Sheriff Clyde Gable said.

The shocked and hysterical child was quoted as saying that "mother put me in the well," after first tossing in two smaller sons.

Authorities planned an inquest into the deaths of Mrs. Pauline Foran, 24, and her two other children, Michael, 3, and Davis, 1, whose bodies later were recovered by Douglasville firemen.

Gable said Foran told him he believed they were already drowned in 10 feet of water when he entered the well after returning to his farm from a business trip.

He said he grabbed his half-conscious daughter from the water and carried her to the surface in one arm while gripping a chain with the other and shoving upward against overhanging rocks in the well siding.

He rushed Patricia to a hospital, stopping enroute to notify the fire department about the others. At the hospital Patricia gave her account to Frank Granger, a technician.

She said that when she saw her mother lose the boys in the water to the chicken house to escape, but her mother caught her and threw her in.

Referendum On School Bonds Gaining Interest

Interest in the $1,500,000 school bond referendum for the Greenville School district apparently is on the incline.

E. R. Conway, registrar for the special referendum, reported this morning that the number of citizens registering for the election has shown a marked increase in the past two days. Conway said 51 persons registered for the special election yesterday, and 38 registered on Wednesday. Previously, he added he had registered only about 15 persons each day.

A total of 16 persons had registered by 11 o'clock this morning, and the registrar said he expected at least 50 voters to add their names to the registration books before the day is over. At 11 o'clock this morning a total of 235 people had registered for the school bond referendum.

The registration period for the election opened May 2 and will continue through May. Only those voters who register during the special registration period will be eligible to cast a ballot in the election June 2. Registration books are open at the city hall each day except Sundays from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Attorneys Seek To Prove Acts

WILSON, N.C. (UP)—Attorneys for a pretty, 30-year-old brunette on trial for murdering her husband sought today to prove unnatural sex advances by him had driven her temporarily insane when she shot him to death.

Frail Mrs. John L. Crocker, clutching a rosary, broke into sobs when she described yesterday the alleged acts of the well-known civic leader before his death last Aug. 26.

Mrs. Crocker was followed by 27 character witnesses. The defense testimony continued into a second day today.

Mrs. Crocker first denied she could have possibly "shot and killed Jack" because "I loved him so much," but later said she did not remember because "everything was so hazy."

"The next thing that I was fully aware of was when I reached the state hospital," she said.

Mrs. Crocker wept almost uncontrollably as defense attorney Watson Thompson drew from her details of her husband's alleged acts which she said climaxed her emotional troubles cause by his drinking.

She said Crocker had been "drinking all day and was out with another woman all day" prior to his death.

Dr. George W. Melchoir, director of a clinic where Mrs. Crocker was held under guard after the shooting, testified he had removed her ovaries surgically three weeks before Crocker was killed. He said she suffered nervousness and pain while confined to his clinic.

Workshop Plays For Term Ended

Student members of the Teachers Playhouse at East Carolina College closed their series of weekly workshop plays for the 1952-53 term by presenting this week selected scenes from the popular stage and screen play "The Heiress" Ralph Rives, graduate student from Enfield, directed the production.

Barbara Grimes of Robersonville had the title role in "The Heiress." Playing opposite her in the part of her faithless lover was James L. Thompson of Durham. Others who had important roles include Billye R. Gandy of Cleveland, David A. Lee of Tarboro, Lena Taylor of Sea Level, and Imogene Jennette of Mount Olive.

The workshop series of short dramas has been a major part of the work of the Teachers Playhouse this year. The productions have been directed by student members of the group and presented with student casts. Weekly performances have been open to the public, and audiences from the campus and the city have attended.

The series has been given under the supervision of Dr. Lucile H. Charles of the English department, director of dramatic arts at the college.

Rescue Workers Stop Operations

WACO, Tex. (UP)—Rescue operations in this tornado-wrecked town were shut down Thursday night for the first time since a twister devastated 36 downtown blocks Monday.

A total of 112 dead had been counted here when operations closed for the night. Ten more dead were counted at San Angelo, 190 miles to the west, from a tornado which struck the same afternoon.

Waco businessmen were allowed back in the wrecked area for the first time Thursday. Other persons in Waco wept as they buried the dead. Some relatives, injured in the storm, have not yet been told of relatives' deaths. Some children do not know their parents were killed.

Mourners kept up a steady procession to and from funeral homes as the task of digging out and burying the dead continued in the schools were to reopen Monday, except for one that was demolished.

Texas Gov. Allan Shivers telegraphed President Eisenhower Thursday asking for a "preliminary allocation" of $2,436,000 in federal emergency funds. Damage in Waco was estimated at $50,000,000 by William L. McGill, state chairman of the Disaster Relief Committee. San Angelo damage estimates varied from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000.

Besides the emergency allocation, the President was asked to invoke Public Law 875 under which stricken Waco could receive up to $5,000,000 federal aid if matched by local funds.

Besides the damage and 14 deaths, some 320 persons were injured in the Waco storm and 130 at San Angelo. Waco hospitals reported 200 still under care.

Good Will Note From Eisenhower Sent To Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (UP)—U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today gave youthful King Hussein of Jordan a personal message from President Eisenhower expressing American goodwill toward this Arab kingdom.

Dulles, here on a Middle East fact-finding tour, saw the king following a 30-minute conference with Premier Fawzi Pasha el Moukhl.

Fawzi, it was disclosed, argued there could be no peace between Jordan and Israel and no talk of a Middle East defense plan until individual problems of the Arab states are settled.

Find Right Hotel But Wrong Man; Still Searching

CHICAGO (UP)—The score today for weary Joe Castro was 100 hotels down and 1,225 to go.

The search for the hotel that Castro checked into Wednesday went on, but meanwhile, Castro and his family were put up for the night by the Travelers Aid Society.

About the only thing Castro learned yesterday was that there was another man named Joe Castro in Chicago.

Castro, his wife and daughter arrived from Stockton, Calif., registered at a hotel, left their baggage and went out.

Then they forgot the name of the hotel and couldn't find it in the confusion of the country's second largest city.

The Travelers Aid Society and the hotel association went to bat for Castro and started a telephone check of Chicago's 1,385 hotels.

At about the 60 mark they joyfully learned that the Devonshire Hotel had a Joe Castro registered. But when the family was taken to the Devonshire they shook their heads.

Wrong Joe Castro.

Changed Today

"Forty Years Ago Today" steps up ten years to "Thirty Years Ago Today" in The Reflector's little column of reminiscence.

Reason for the change is a gap in the files of The Daily Reflector which came about with the loss or destruction of a group of issues covering this period of just forty years ago.
