Get Eleven MIG 15's In Wild Fight

Damage Six Others In Dogfight; Violent Ground Fighting

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—American fighter pilots shot down 11 MIG-15s and damaged six others in wild dog fights over North Korea today as the war erupted violently in the air and on the ground.

American and South Korean infantrymen killed or wounded 1,070 Communist troops in hurling back 4,500 attacking Chinese along the central front.

Paced by MIG-killing Sabre jets, fighter pilots streaked up and down MIG Alley from dawn to dusk, engaging the Red jets whenever they wanted to do battle.

Capt. Manuel Fernandez of Miami, the world's leading jet ace, downed his 14th MIG. Only a few hours earlier, Capt. Joseph McConnell Jr. of Apple Valley, Calif., had shot down his 13th to move into a tie with Fernandez.

The rivalry between Fernandez and McConnell, who fly in different wings of the 5th Air Force, seemed to spur on their fellow pilots.

It was the fifth day of intense fighting on the ground.

The 8th Army said a full Communist regiment of about 3,000 men lashed into South Korean positions southwest of Kimson but fell back with heavy losses.

Two more Chinese battalions rushed U.S. Third Division positions northeast of Chorwon but the tough Americans hurled them back.

Nearly 1,000 Chinese, crawling off hills in waves, tried to capture outpost Harry in the Chorwon Valley leading to Seoul. About 200 were killed or wounded before they gave up the attack 6 1/2 hours later.

"They never got closer than 80 yards," said Col. Russ Akers Jr., of Washington, D. C. "We fired everything at them. The enemy didn't get through our artillery and mortars."

Bids Awarded On Construction At Greenville School

Bids for the construction of new additions to the Third Street School were accepted yesterday by the Greenville school trustees.

Low construction bid of $28,511 was awarded to the Dunn Building and Supply Company of Greenville for the general contract. The bid for electrical contract went to Dick's Electrical Company of Wilson with another Wilson firm, R. E. Deans, receiving the contracts for heating and plumbing.

Low bids of $1,557 were received for the heating and $1,483 for the plumbing.

Superintendent J. H. Rose in making the announcement about the awarding of the contracts stated that the new additions are expected to be completed for use next fall.

The new construction calls for two large classrooms and additional toilets and showers. Both of the two class rooms will be devoted to primary use.

Rose announced that the bids are about in line with what was expected by the local school authorities.

Postpone Atomic Test; Rain Seen

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—An atomic test scheduled for today but postponed because of rain and cloudy skies may be re-scheduled for Sunday morning.

The Atomic Energy Commission said it hoped to know by this afternoon whether the test, ninth and next to the last in the current spring test series, could be held Sunday morning.

Accuse Each Other Of Not Wanting Peace

Negotiators Recess

By ROBERT VERMILLION PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—Truce negotiators accused each other today of not really wanting a Korean armistice and the United Nations recessed the talks until next Wednesday.

Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, head of the U.N.C. delegation, proposed the recess at a 67-minute meeting unless the Communists had "something constructive to offer."

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief Communist negotiator, demanded that the Allies withdraw their "absurd" proposals for settling the deadlocked issue on exchanging prisoners who do not want to go home.

Then he consented to a recess until May 20.

Harrison said he wanted the recess for "administrative reasons." The deadlock, light as it was last Oct. 9 when the talks were broken off, still centered around ultimate disposition of prisoners refusing repatriation.

Harrison insisted that the U.N.C.'s 26-point plan submitted May 13 was a basis for negotiation while Nam stuck to his claim that the eight-point Communist proposal of May 7 needed no alteration.

Harrison tried to answer Red objections to parts of the Allied plan but Nam retorted that the U.N.C. was plotting to retain rather than free the prisoners.

"Whereas our side insists on no coercion either to prevent or effect repatriation," Harrison said, "your side clings to its extreme position of attempting to coerce unwilling prisoners to return to their masters."

"Thus the hope of our side that you were sincerely seeking an armistice under terms which would accommodate legitimate viewpoints of both sides seems to have been unwarranted."

Under the Allied plan, North Korean captives would be freed on armistice day. Chinese prisoners would be turned over to a neutral five-nation commission for not more than two months. After that period they would be free to go where they choose if they still resist repatriation.

The Chinese plan would turn the prisoners over to a political conference for final disposition, a point which the Allies object to because prisoners might agree to go home rather than remain in custody indefinitely.

Nam accused Harrison of resorting to "fabrication and slander" in supporting the U.N.C. proposal.

He said the U.N.C. had failed to justify releasing of all Koreans, especially since the Allies, in agreeing to resume the talks last April 16, had stated they favored turning over all reluctant prisoners, including Koreans to the neutral commission.

Republican Senators Charge Illegal 'Propagandizing' Trouble For Aid Program

WASHINGTON (UP)—The administration's $5,828,000,000 foreign aid program ran into trouble in Congress today as some senators charged officials with illegal "propagandizing" for the program.

Republican Sens. Robert A. Taft (O.), and Homer Ferguson (Mich.), told a reporter that they are "appalled" by the number of pamphlets and brochures published by the State Department and Mutual Security Administration in connection with the program.

"It's coming out of our ears," said Ferguson. Taft agreed, saying that an outright violation of the law may be involved since the MSA Act forbids use of foreign aid funds for dissemination of "general propaganda" in support of the program.

Ferguson said it would take a "strong man" to lift the amount of such data already produced.

Chairman Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.), of the Foreign Relations Committee on which Taft and Ferguson sit, said that he has ordered that all such material be sent the committee for study. "We are going to the bottom of this matter," he said.

Besides "propaganda" charges, there were these other developments:

1. The House Foreign Affairs Committee recessed its hearings on the bill when administration spokesmen were unable to produce detailed figures on how the new funds would be spent on a country by country basis. Chairman Robert B. Chipperfield (R-Ill.) said "No figures, no hearings," while the officials said they would try to produce by Tuesday.

2. Wiley told Technical Cooperation Administration officials to "simplify" their presentation and come up with some "hard" balance sheets.

3. Administration officials were openly concerned that Congress will use the current dispute with Britain and India over Korean war policies and the fear of Red China's entry into the United Nations as a reason for cutting back the program.

4. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and some other legislators roundly criticized the step surrounding the administration's presentation of its case. Almost all of the congressional hearings thus far have been conducted behind closed doors and some of those friendly toward the program maintain this has made it impossible to present a "hard case" for the bill to Congress and the country.

Worthington Named To State Commission

Pitt County's veteran legislator, Sam O. Worthington yesterday stepped down from his law maker's role to assume commissionership on the State Utilities Commission.

Worthington's appointment was made by Governor William B. Umstead yesterday and had been in the making for some time.

This morning in an interview, Worthington said that he will leave for Raleigh to assume his new duties on June 1st.

"This thing comes more or less as a surprise to me," Worthington said.

"I did not seek the appointment. I appreciate the confidence the Governor has in me, and I hope I will be able to render service which will justify the confidence placed in me," the new Commissioner said.

Worthington, who began law practice in Greenville in October of 1921, has been a member of the Legislature since 1939, having been elected in 1938.

In further comment on his new job Worthington said, "I don't expect to lose contact with people here and expect to be around a lot."

When asked what salary the new post would carry Worthington replied, "I don't know exactly, around $9,000."

"I take the job openly and without any attachments anywhere. I will do the best that I can," Worthington commented.

The new commissioner said that he does not plan to move his family to Raleigh at this time. Neither does he plan to close his law firm here. His intentions are, he said, to bring

India's Call Adds Heat To Debate

Expect Heated Congressional Debate On Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (UP)—Indian Premier Jawaharlal Nehru's call to the Allies to drop their latest proposals for a Korean cease fire added new coal today to heated foreign policy debate in Congress.

Legislators, already angry at recent speeches of British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and opposition leader Clement R. Attlee, said that Nehru's statement made even more "essential" rejection of the Communist proposal for solving the prisoners of war issue.

Nehru said yesterday that the Communist terms were "much more likely" to produce agreement than the Allies' own counteroffer.

Chairman Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.), of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee claimed that Nehru was "exhibiting the same animosity in dealing with international communism as some of the statesmen of the past."

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) who yesterday called for a cease fire in the trans-Atlantic bickering among the Allies, said:

"I'm not too much concerned about the interim negotiations for an armistice in Korea.

"In the end the Communists are going to agree with our proposal for repatriation of prisoners and also probably to the unification of Korea. Their final price will be admission of Communist China to the United Nations and a seat on the U. S. Security Council.

"This is the real danger. Such a step would mean the eventual disappearance of all Asia behind the Iron Curtain. That is what I am afraid of."

Rep. John M. Vorys (R-?) of the Foreign Affairs Committee said Nehru: "By his statement, he almost disqualifies his country to be accepted as a neutral in disposing of the prisoner issue."

"The question is not which plan is 'much more likely' to produce agreement, but which plan is more likely to do justice and promote peace."

Airmen's Bodies Are Recovered

HEMSBACH, Germany (UP)—The recovery of four U.S. airmen's bodies from a tangled wreckage today increased the tragic toll of yesterday's three-way air collision to seven dead.

Four survivors among the 11 men in the jet fighter and two transports involved in the crash are in an army hospital at Heidelberg, where all but one of them are reported in "good" condition.

German sources said the most seriously injured of the survivors lost one leg in the crash. The other leg was so badly mangled that it probably will have to be amputated.

The collision occurred during a formation flight exercise, when a group of about 18 C-119 Flying Boxcar transports lumbered into the path of 16 speedy F-84 Thunder jets.

1st Lt. William A. Bradshaw, 27, of Chicago, who saw the crash from the ground, said the jets broke formation and scattered in an effort to avoid the big transports.

"One of the Thunder jets couldn't get out of the way in time," he said. "It butted one C-119 and then bounced off and ripped into another."

A 12th Air Force announcement said the pilot, 1st Lt. James W. Chilton, Sandy, Ore., suffered only slight injuries in the triple collision.

The three transport crewmen who survived are 1-C Michael Battiste, of Philadelphia; A-1 C. T. W. Biggs, of Apoka, Okla., and 2-C Charles L. Cason, of Willow Grove, Pa.

POW On 'Belated Honeymoon' Trip

HONOLULU, T. H. (UP)—Capt. Zach Dean of Douglas, Kan., last repatriated American war prisoner to leave Tokyo, interrupted his honeymoon today for a "belated"

Dean, who arrived here Friday with his wife, Abigail, said they would spend three or four days visiting "nightclubs and beaches" around Honolulu.

The Deans were together only 11 days after their marriage in Tokyo in February, 1951. Dean was captured on April 22, 1951.

Rabbit Attacks Three-Ton Truck

CALGARY, Alta. (UP)—A rabbit attacked a three-ton truck yesterday.

Coal miners Gus and William Wisk said they saw the 12-pound jack rabbit cross a road ahead of them, then veer back and "attack" their truck.

It missed, tried again, and crashed through a closed window of the cab. One of the men dashed to the floor of the cab and killed it.

The men were treated at a hospital for possible rabies infection.

Handed Over To American Officials After Two Years

William Oatis Freed

NUERNBERG, Germany (UP)—American newsmen William N. Oatis, free after serving two years and 22 days in a Czechoslovak Communist prison as a "spy," crossed Germany today on his way home.

The correspondent, who had become a symbol through the western world of the hatred of communism for a free press, was released by decree of the Czech president.

Oatis was taken out of the grim Prague Pancrac prison this morning and delivered by Foreign Office officials to the United States embassy.

Oatis crossed the border at the check point of Waidhaus this afternoon and sped on toward Nuernberg 65 miles away.

Czechoslovak President Antonin Zapotocky pardoned Oatis, 39, in accordance with a recent amnesty law. Zapotocky said he was releasing Oatis because the newsmen's wife had pleaded for his freedom in a letter sent six months ago through diplomatic channels.

The lead Associated Press correspondent left Prague by automobile with embassy counsel Nat B. King of St. Louis, Mo. and vice consul Christopher A. Squire.

Oatis had breakfast at Prague with U. S. Ambassador George Wadsworth before leaving the capital where he was serving as Associated Press bureau manager. Oatis was made against him.

While Oatis was eating with Wadsworth, the Czechs took passports for Oatis, King and Squire to the Foreign Office and had them stamped with exit visas.

The high commission in Bonn here gave only bare details of Oatis release. There were no indications of the circumstances under which the reporter was granted a pardon, other than Zapotocky's announcement about receiving Mrs. Oatis' letter.

In Washington, the State Department declined to discuss the Czech motives in releasing Oatis whose arrest on April 23, 1951 and two-day farcical trial before a court in Prague outraged the free world.

He was sentenced to serve 10 years. The State Department particularly avoided any reference as to whether the United States had agreed to take off trade and other restrictions which it placed against the Czechs.

Acting Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith officially broke the news to Mrs. Oatis at her home in St. Paul, Minn. She had been married to Oatis only three months at the time of his arrest.

"Three cheers," she cried. "I'm delighted, practically inarticulate."

Mrs. Oatis' letter to the president of Czechoslovakia, forwarded through the Czech embassy at Washington, was a tender plea written in long hand on one sheet of paper. Observers here, however, were convinced that the letter was not the real instrument behind Zapotocky's action.

Instead they believed the United States probably agreed to new negotiations to lift some of the restrictions against the Czechs.

By removing the restrictions, the State Department would permit money to flow into Czechoslovakia again. Americans would be permitted to travel there. Czech air lines again would be permitted to fly over West Germany.

More recently the U. S. Act against Czechoslovakia by holding a Czech plane used by a group of Czechs in a flight to freedom. The State Department previously had made a concession to an Iron Curtain country to gain release of an imprisoned American.

In 1951, the government won freedom for Robert Vogeler, jailed in Hungary on a framed-up espionage charge, by agreeing to return some of Hungary's property in occupied Germany and to reopen closed Hungarian consulates in the United States.

Last Minute Plea Filed For Two Daniels Cousins

Bennie and Lloyd Ray Daniels, Negro cousins, sentenced to die in the state's gas chamber May 29, filed last minute appeals to the State Supreme Court late yesterday.

The Negroes, convicted in 1949 of the slaying of William Benjamin O'Neal, Greenville taxi driver, have been on death row in Central Prison, Raleigh, since their conviction.

Herman Taylor, Raleigh Negro attorney, who appeared for the defendants in the trial here, has based their latest appeal on grounds that new evidence as to how Pitt County goes about drawing its juries and that the new evidence is sufficient to warrant a new trial for his clients.

The United States Supreme Court has refused twice to reverse the death sentence and last month refused to hear the case again. Governor William B. Umstead has been furnished with their records but has not indicated whether he will intervene in the Negroes' behalf.

The State will reply that Taylor's so-called new evidence is old stuff which court after court has already passed upon. Assistant Attorney General Ralph Moody says that will be the essence of the State's argument when it formally files its latest plea as merely rehashing old arguments and presenting them under the guise of new evidence.

Should the State court reject his petition Taylor presumably will appeal.

ECC Alumni Award Given To James Whitfield Of Raleigh

James Lawrence Whitfield, state editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, began early in life to write his career in printer's ink. Today at East Carolina his accomplishments as a journalist and his services to the college received special recognition when he became 1953 recipient of the annual Alumni Award to an outstanding graduate.

Dr. A. D. Frank, a member of the Faculty Advisory Committee of the Alumni Association, presented the award at Alumni Day ceremonies which began the Forty-fourth annual commencement on the campus. Whitfield is the fourteenth graduate and the fourth alumnus to be so honored.

As a boy in Greenville, Whitfield began to show a predilection for news work. When many boys are content with idle hours at the old-fashioned swimming hole or on the corner baseball lot, he was already sharpening his pencil and thinking of copy and by-lines and of the strenuous life of the journalist. As a ninth grader at the Greenville High School, he became local correspondent for the News and Observer; Norfolk Newspapers, Inc.; and the United Press.

A popular and energetic leader among his fellow students, he gained experience by participating in school journalism. He helped organize a high school newspaper "Green Lights" and became its first editor, and with his staff won for the paper national honors. In the Southern Interscholar Press Association, an organization including twelve Southern states and the District of Columbia, he served as thirteenth president.

His ability as a student leader was evident in varied activities. He was president of the senior class first chairman of the student government association, and a member of Quill and Scroll and the Beta Club. Entering East Carolina, he majored in English and history. Though his grades were in the upper brackets, he found time for news activities both on and off the campus. In spite of his youth and his heavy schedule as a student, he handled competently work as a correspondent and as news editor of the Greenville News Leader.

He was soon chosen as sports editor of the college bi-weekly, the Tecco Echo, and during his junior year was made editor. When re-elected to the position, he became the first East Carolina student to head the staff for two consecutive school terms. He was sports publicity director of the college News Bureau and directed publicity work at East Carolina in the summer of 1946.

The versatility evident in Whitfield's high school activities showed up again at East Carolina. He organized weekly radio programs and became the first student radio director at the college. He was secretary of the senior class and of the men's student government association; vice president of the YMCA; and a member of various organizations, including Phi Sigma Phi, national honorary education fraternity. He was instrumental in organizing 500 students into the first campus Young Democrats Club.

Even after he was inducted into the army in 1941, Whitfield was able to combine journalism with his new duties. Advancing through every enlisted rank, he was discharged in 1945 as a master sergeant. During the period he spent two and a half years in the Canal Zone, and, after returning to the States, served as a liaison representative for the Army War College on the staff of Headquarters, Army Ground Force.

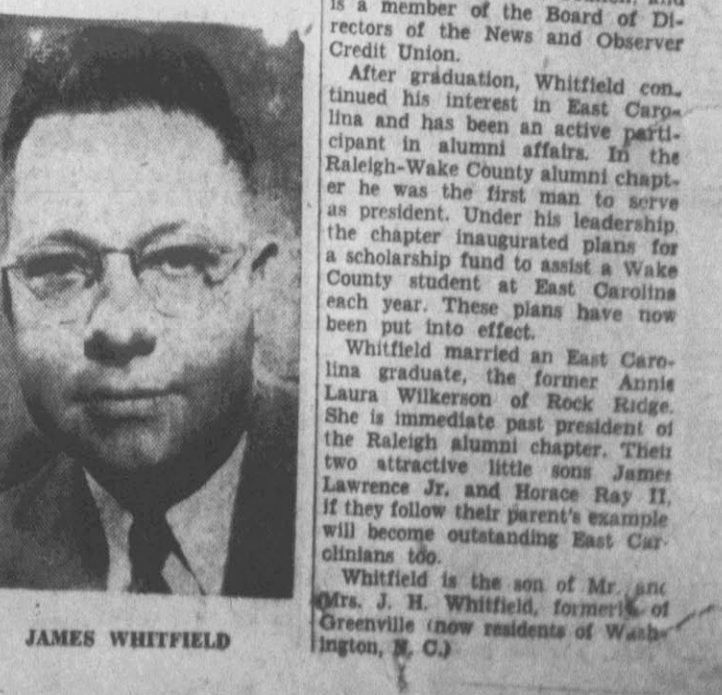

Throughout his army career, he did special news coverage for the War Department. In the Canal Zone he helped organize Jungle News Service which gathered news throughout the Isthmus. Illustrating the newsmen's interest in the new and the old, one of his stories written at this time dealt with a cold water whale in tropical waters and has been made a part of whale history at the Smithsonian institution.

After leaving the service, Whitfield returned to East Carolina to complete his education. He received the B. S. degree in 1946. He joined the staff of the Raleigh News and Observer as assistant state editor in August of that year, and, since then, has become state editor. He is also North Carolina correspondent for the Washington, D. C. Times Herald, is active in the Associated Press News Council, and is a member of the Board of Directors of the News and Observer Credit Union.

After graduation, Whitfield continued his interest in East Carolina and has been an active participant in alumni affairs. In the Raleigh-Wake County alumni chapter he was the first man to serve as president. Under his leadership the chapter inaugurated plans for a scholarship fund to assist a Wake County student at East Carolina each year. These plans have now been put into effect.

Whitfield married an East Carolina graduate, the former Annie Laura Wilkerson of Rock Ridge. She is immediate past president of the Raleigh alumni chapter. Their two attractive little sons, James Lawrence Jr. and Horace Ray II, if they follow their parent's example will become outstanding East Carolinians too.

Whitfield is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Whitfield, formerly of Greenville (now residents of Washington, D. C.)

McMillan Freed Of Violating Law In Leasing Land

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. John L. McMillan (D-SC) was found innocent today of violating federal law in leasing land from the Interior Department.

Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy ruled McMillan innocent in a decision announced by district court clerk Harry M. Hull.

McMillan was indicted on a charge that in seeking an oil lease in Utah he violated a law which bars members of Congress from making contracts with the government. Violators may be subject to a maximum penalty of $3,000 fine.

McMillan applied for a lease on March 30, 1950, on some oil land in Utah and made a $740 deposit.

The Interior Department ruled later that McMillan could not have the lease, the congressman asked for a refund of his money.

Judge Kennedy said in his decision that "no effort was made apparently on the part of the defendant to conceal his identity or his position."

Kennedy said McMillan had been advised by "able and skilled counsel" that he was not violating the law.

McMillan waived a jury trial and the case was heard by Kennedy on March 23. The judge ruled that "he earnestly believed in his right to apply for and hold the lease under the provisions of the statute."

Kennedy said the laws applicable to the case are "somewhat clouded in doubt." But he said "there is no actual showing of criminal intent" on McMillan's part and that he feels the congressman "would never have been convicted by a jury."

All the circumstances, Kennedy added, warrant "a verdict of not guilty and judgment of acquittal."

The judge praised McMillan as "a man of the highest type of character" who occupies "a position of honor and trust in the legislative department of the government."

Radio Hams In Greenville Reach Out Over The World

Radio operators of ham stations the world over exchange cards with their call letters on them such as the one above. The letters tell the receiver that his station was heard by the station on the card at a certain time on a certain wave length and other information.

By ROY HARDEE
Reflector Staff writer

A little-known band of Greenville men might very well play a key role and provide the missing link if a state of emergency ever arose in Greenville, Pitt County or anywhere in the eastern part of the state.

They are the ham radio operators.

Not much is known about the operations of the ham operators except by their immediate neighbors and other hams who operate on the air waves the world over.

Five of the active hams now owning sets live in Greenville with one other operator living a short distance from Greenville on the Falkland highway.

The value of the ham radio operator has been rising steadily in obtaining aid in times of disasters or other emergencies.

Recent tornadoes striking in the plains area around Waco, Texas, which leveled countless number of houses and left in its wake hundreds of dead and injured this week are an example of the work which the radio operators can play.

Local hams monitoring the air waves report having heard one station in Waco deliver over 125 messages in one day at the height of the storm's destruction. The ham stations were the only means of contact with the outside world for getting in needed aid, or delivering death messages, since Waco and vicinity was cut off from any form of outside communications.

The amateur radio station operators cite the part played in the Texas City disaster several years ago and the Florida hurricanes as well as recent storms along the North Carolina Coast which isolated Wilmington as showing the role local hams would play in the event of any type of emergency.

Most of the local hams have been in business for some time and are old hands at being station operators and contacting persons the world over.

To be able to operate a radio station over the air waves, any interested person must go to Norfolk and take a license examination test.

A first-class license exam carries a requirement of 13 words per minute in code and a lengthy theory test on the operation of radio. However, the bars have been let down somewhat on the requirements for beginning hams. Anyone just starting out can take a test with a code requirement of only five words per minute and a short theory test and obtain a license for one year.

This license is good for one year only, and at the end of which or any time before the licensee must take a new exam for the first-class permit. During the one year which his beginner's license is valid he may operate a station of limited power and range as provided by the Federal Communications Commission which regulates the operations of amateur radio operators.

Once a ham obtains his license it is good for five years of active operations.

A wide variety of wave lengths are open to the hams who can operate on a power output upwards of 1,000 watts, but no more than that.

As one ham put it, "Some people think that a station is an expensive item to build but actually the simpler sets are not. Most of the hams started with simple units which cost less than $50 to build and put on the air. This, of course, is due largely to the fact that most of the equipment was hand-made by the operators at a large saving."

Locals hams operate on both code and "phone," some dividing their time about half and half.

None of the Greenville hams are members of the North Carolina Ham radio operators network at the present time. This system is made up of operators all over the state who get together each night at 7:30 over the air waves.

One station is appointed as the control station and a roll call of the stations on the net is made. This is one of the better set-ups which would be put in operation in the event of an emergency.

While most hams devote only spare moments to their hobby, the air lanes are usually filled with stations and contact can be made with almost any part of the state or nation in a matter of minutes.

However in the event of an emergency arising in Greenville or vicinity, then the local radio operators could break in on the net and immediate contact would be made for any service needed.

The range and contacts which local stations have covered is unlimited. One operator put it this way when asked how far away he could talk with another operator, by saying "How far is far?" A good question.

The foreign lands are as familiar to most of the operators as the net-work shows aid programs seen and heard by most local citizens on television and radio hookups daily.

When a ham puts out his call on the air it usually takes only a short length of time before a net of four to ten stations or more are joined together and have communications established covering many states.

Local ham operators who are putting out their call letters over the waves and bringing the name of Greenville, to distant parts of the world are: Roy Phelps, who operates with call letters W4MPF; Layton Clark, W46L4; Hank Tribbley, W4JVF; Heber Adams, W4GDF; Bill Smith, W4JFU; and Dewey Ellis.

In addition, Smith has a transmitter and receiver station which is specially designed to operate with the Civil Air Patrol units in the event it was ever needed.

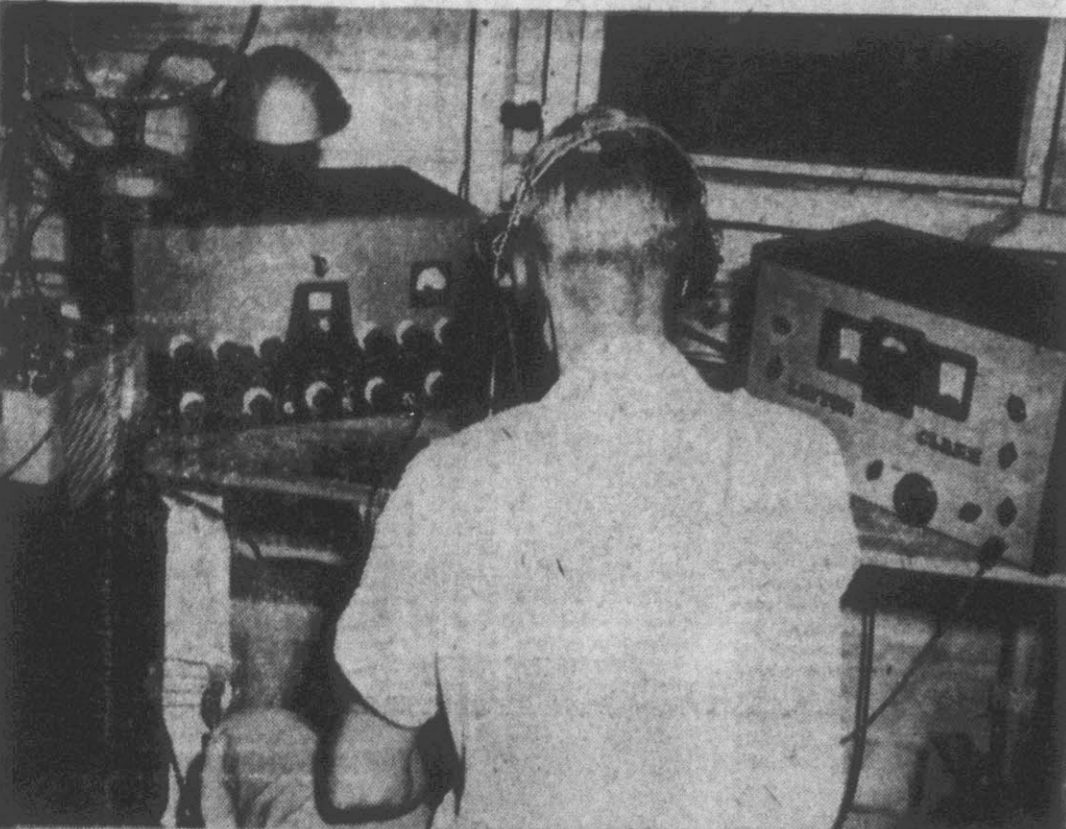

Phelps is working on plans for a mobile unit which will be mounted on a car and can be operated from any point. This would prove

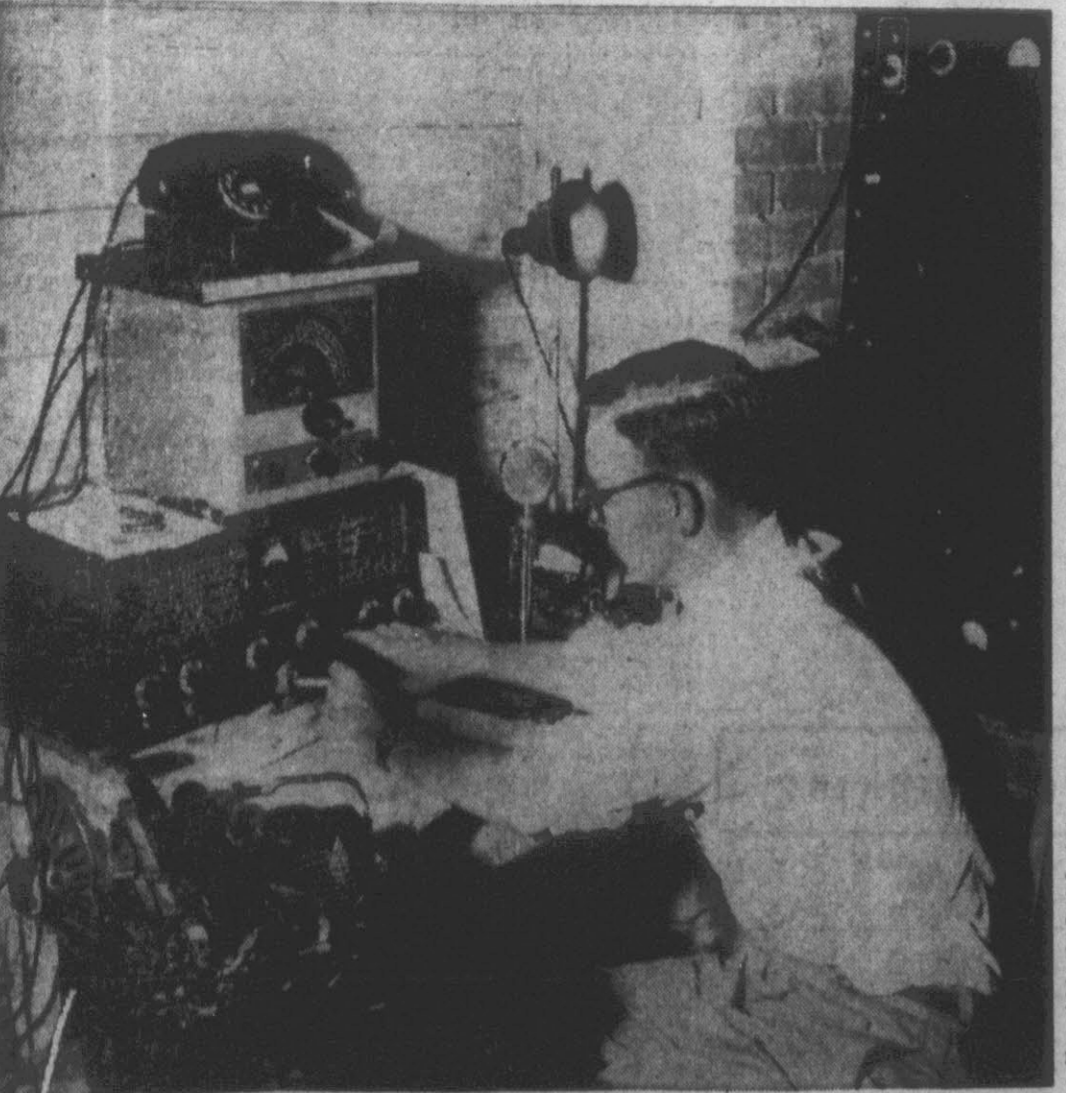

Bill Smith shown above, has one of the most complete outfits of any of the local hams. Smith, able to transmit and receive on a number of wave lengths at the flip of a switch, built all of the equipment shown above by hand. In addition Smith has a unit which is tied in with the Civil Air Patrol for emergency use.

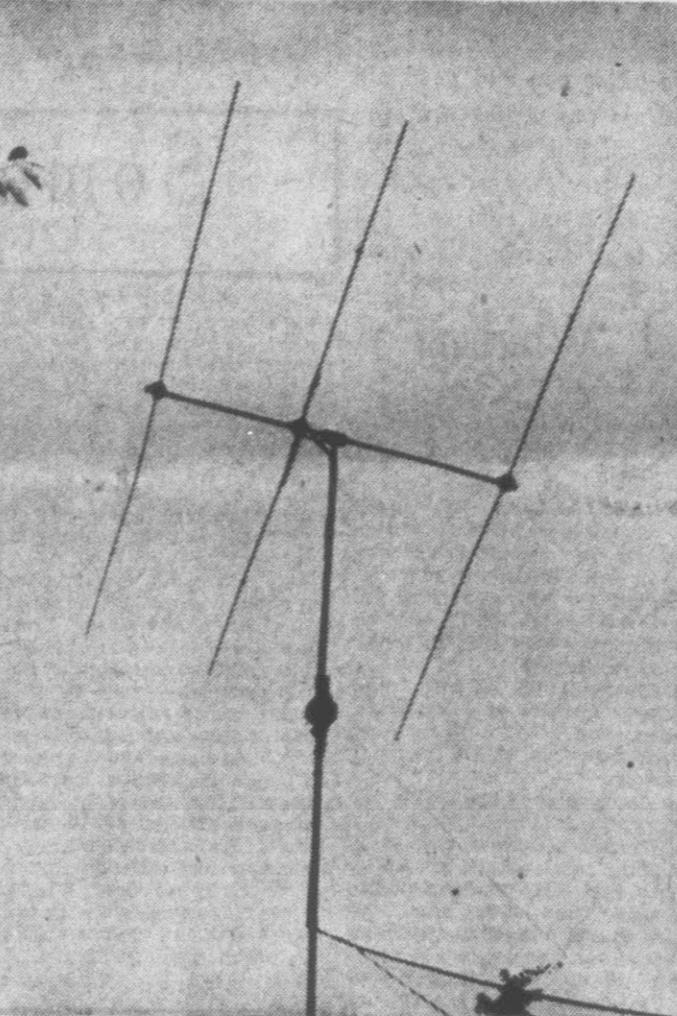

Another ham operator is Hank Tribbley, local radio station engineer and announcer. Shown with Hank is his young daughter Nancy. Hank has had a ham license for nearly 20 years starting back in his high school days.

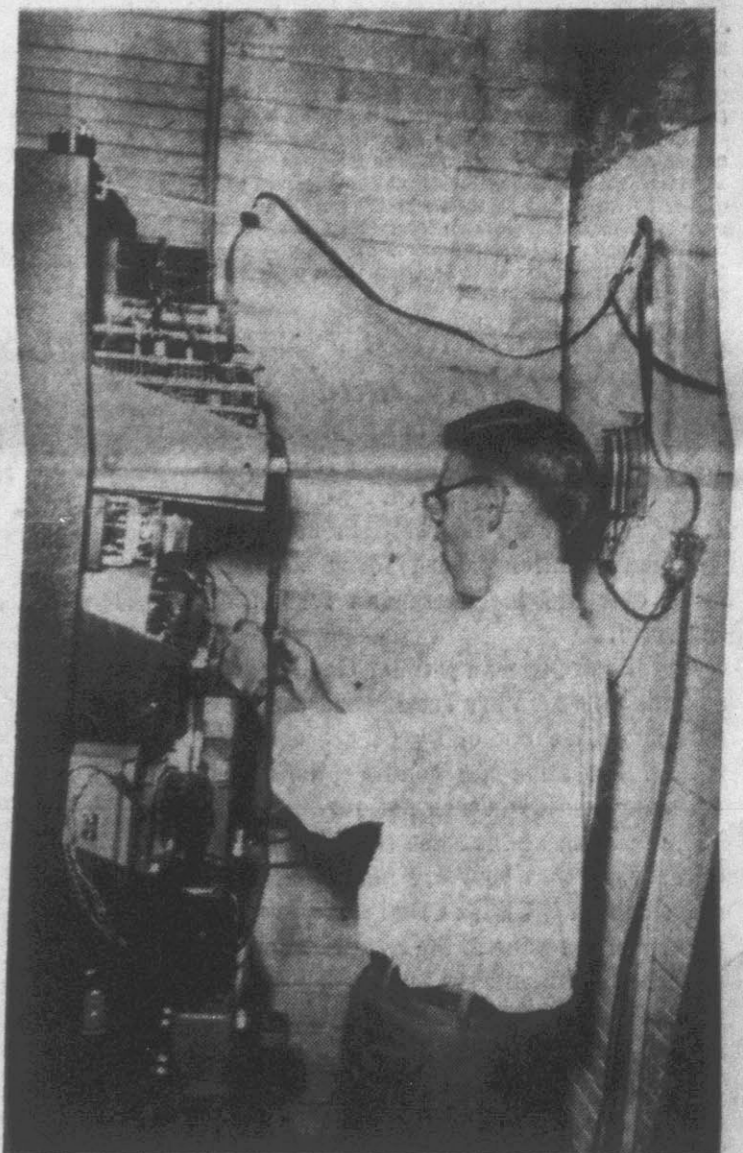

Layton Clark, shown with head phones on is shown in operation at his home. Clark has a tape recorder to his left on which he can record certain messages which he desires for later use.

News from Greenville's amateur radio stations travel to all parts of the world over aerials such as the one pictured above. Beams vary with the operators and the type of sets which they operate, some having a greater coverage than others.

Roy Phelps examines some of the many parts which go into the making of his transmitter for his "ham" radio station. Most hams, like Roy, built their own stations and equipment.

of invaluable service in the event of an emergency, especially one which would render a power failure.

Most of the operators could be on the air using emergency power sources within a short time after a emergency arose despite a power failure.

Most hams when they establish contact with an operator whom they have not been in contact with before, send a card with their call letters and information as to when the contact was made.

Several of the Greenville operators have thousands of cards from all parts of the world, persons with whom they have talked.

Recently, Roy Phelps was working his set when he received a message from Turkey giving information about a son of J.W.H. Roberts. Until the message was received from Phelps, Roberts had not known where his son was.

Another local ham, Layton Clark, reports that he used to establish contact with a soldier overseas weekly in order that the man's wife who lived in Washington could talk with him.

As required by law, the station operators keep a careful log of the stations which they make contact with while operating over the air lanes.

When not relaying messages from one part of the world to another, or aiding in an emergency the hams are usually "talking shop" on the air.

Many ideas are exchanged and many friends made not only by the hams but from cities the world over.

One interesting story told by Phelps is that he established contact with an operator in Mexico who was employed by a wealthy Mexican there to operate a station in his name.

In later talks, and by mail he learned that the man has set up his station complete in every respect and hired a full-time engineer to work the station just because he enjoyed radio as a hobby. The station remains on the air most of the time.

One local ham reports having worked as many as 38 different countries in one night or a total of 120 various stations.

Through the medium of radio, Greenville ham radio operators are putting Greenville's name on the map, establishing friendly relations as well as offering a means of emergency communications set on call when and if it might be needed to aid the citizens in this area.

Strength for the Day

THEY ARE EASILY SPOILED
It is amazing how often great men spoil their children. The Biblical character Samuel had unworthy sons. Eli, the high priest whom Samuel succeeded, came to ruin because of the evil of his children. David pampered Abolom and found himself at last driven from home by his ingrate son.

Benjamin Franklin spent his life giving people wise counsel on all subjects. He had one son, and he allowed him to become an insufferable brat who finally repudiated his father, betrayed his native country, and died hated by his fellow men.

Why, Oh why, are people such fools? We can understand this dire state of affairs when we see people who have no intelligence spoiling their children and making them as stupid and evil as themselves. But that the great leaders of thought in many generations have spoiled their children and allowed them to become the plagues of their fellows rather than their saviors—is beyond comprehension.

When we see the Heavenly Father planned to bring his only begotten Son to glory, we observe the ideal. We read in the Bible that Jesus learned obedience by the things he suffered. Our love is too imperfect to impose these high ideals relentlessly upon our loved ones. God never punishes anybody; least of all did He pamper the Only Begotten. Such pampering is the folly of his creatures.

Egyptian Situation Forms A Dark Cloud

The festering situation in Egypt over the Suez Canal holds no prospect for rest in the Middle East until it is settled. And the lack of prospects for an easy settlement of the Egyptian situation indeed forms a black cloud over the Mediterranean section of the world.

Egypt's strong man premier Gen. Naguib and his followers are determined they are going to drive out of Egypt not only the British but all other non-Egyptians who have any holding in their nation.

The British at the same time are just as determined that they are not going to be driven out of the Suez Canal zone, and will surrender the zone to the Egyptians only if specific agreements are reached on the control of the vital slit of water, and its defenses in case of another war.

Great Britain realizes the importance of the Suez Canal to the livelihood of England. She realizes that if the canal should be blocked to her ships, the vital supplies which form England's life blood would be seriously curtailed.

When the United States sought through Secretary of State Dulles to pour oil on the ruffled waters in Egypt, the effort brought a sharp and unconciliatory rebuke from Naguib's government. It pointed emphatically to the fact Naguib is unwilling to have any compromise on the Egyptian question.

The Egyptian situation, in our evaluation, has resolved itself into a case of locked horns between the British and Naguib's forces. Through diplomatic channels it is possible that the horns of the two forces may be unlocked without creating too great a disturbance; but it is also possible that each side feels that it has not gone too far to back down one inch.

Certainly the situation is not conducive to the harmony which is much needed among the Western Nations at the present time. To say the least, it offers the possibility of reaching the proportions of a wider breach and more hostile moves on the part of both sides before a settlement is reached.

Perhaps, Mr. Attlee, You Shouldn't Throw Stones

Unjustified charges hurled at the United States by Britain's former prime minister Clement R. Attlee dealt a serious blow to Anglo-American relations.

Certainly there is no foundation for the charges of Attlee that the United States has any desire in international affairs other than the desire for peace.

As for the former prime minister's views of the constitution of the United States, so far as we are concerned, he can go soak his head in a pot of socialist tea. It is evident that his stated views on the greatest political document ever written are all wet.

The unprovoked verbal attack by the former prime minister on the United States is indeed a slam at not only the American government and its policies, but likewise a slam at the American people.

Since Mr. Attlee issued his degrading, derogatory statement at the United States we do not think it is amiss to remind him of a few factors which are irrefutable:

It was under Mr. Attlee's leadership that England was dragged into the economically stagnant bog of socialism and doubtlessly would have succumbed had he remained at the helm long enough.

It is Great Britain, not the United States, who has recognized the government of Red China for purely economic purposes. It is British interest—not American interests—who are plying a lucrative trade with Communist China and other communist nations, furnishing them with many goods which directly or indirectly are helping the communists prosecute their aggression against the free world.

It is British interest—not American interest—that is receiving the profit from this trade, and therefore more justly could be accused of wanting the war in Korea and other parts of Asia to continue so their profits might continue to mount.

Think carefully, Mr. Attlee, if your finite mind permits: Is it not British interest rather than American interest which is playing both sides against the middle in this Asiatic strife and reaping monetary profits at both ends?

Rest assured, Mr. Attlee, we shall consider your criticism for any constructive values it may have. But at the same time we shall consider the source of the criticism—and the actions of the source which speak much more loudly than the words.

Hold forth the bitter cup and good old Uncle Sugar will sip and grimace at the wretchedness therein. But remember, the day will come when Uncle Sugar has had his belly full of your bitter cup, and you may be called on to drink from the same goblet.

National Whirligig

Every Saturday this veteran Washington correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—What is your estimate of the amount of additional money the American people must pay in interest as a result of the Eisenhower Administration's action in boosting the interest rate on its recent bond issue by one-half per cent? inquires T. U. of Brooklyn, N. Y. "Is it a sellout to the bankers as so many Democrats charge?"

A SLOGAN FOR DEMOCRATS—Answer: Senator John J. Sparkman, of Alabama, the Democrats' vice-presidential candidate last year, and therefore, a reputable party spokesman, has placed the total tribute at $5 billion a year.

With many other Democrats, he brands the interest increase as a pay-off to what are generally known as the "Wall Street and bankers' groups." It will be a Democratic slogan next year and in 1956.

However, Sparkman apparently reaches this figure by strange arithmetic. What he has done is to apply a 1 per cent increase in interest to almost all outstanding debt—Federal, state, county, city and private. The total of that indebtedness is, roughly, $600 billion. A 1 per cent jump in the interest on that sum would come to $6 billion a year.

But Sparkman's grandiose figuring is questionable. In the first place, it is doubtful if the interest increase will average more than one-half per cent. That cuts his figure in half. Secondly, he applies the 1 per cent figuring to the total public debt of about $265 billion.

He forgets that the Treasury must always keep about $100 billion of this amount in short-time, easily liquid securities at extremely low interest rates, possibly 2 per cent or less.

Sparkman, who is no financial brain, also disregards the billions already tied up in long-term contracts (mortgages for instance) on which the current rates cannot be changed. Finally, interest rates will settle at a rate based on supply and demand of money rather than on Federal decisions.

REACTION TO BENCH RULING ON LATTIMORE—What is the reaction, asks M. S. of Houston, Tex. "to Judge Youngdahl's dismissal of several portions of the indictment against Owen Lattimore, who has been accused of cooperating with the State Department in selling out China to the Communists?"

Answer: The reaction is extremely adverse in many legal, political and Congressional circles. It is the belief, insofar as I have found it, that Judge Youngdahl should have permitted Lattimore to be tried on all counts, and without any prior comment from the bench on the validity of the accusation.

After all, the Johns Hopkins professor had been charged with lying—namely, perjury—and not with being a foreign spy or sympathizer. That was a question for a jury, not a notably liberally-minded judge, to decide. It was a question of fact, not law.

CAREFULLY CONDUCTED INQUIRY—More-over, the McCarran Committee of the Senate spent more than five months in assembling evidence against Lattimore, his friends and associates, and the Institute of Pacific Relations. Reporting that he was a "conscious, articulate instrument of the Soviet conspiracy" (in China—Ed. note), it recommended that he be indicted. There was no criticism of objection in House or Senate.

Former Attorney-General James P. McGranery submitted the McCarran findings to a Federal Grand Jury, and they brought in the seven-count indictment after the usual exhaustive inquiry. Incidentally, the Senate Committee's 65 witnesses included diplomatic, military, intelligence and even Soviet experts. It was not a shoot-from-the-hip proceeding, but a carefully documented and conducted investigation.

Youngdahl may become the real victim. A "liberal" Republican who gave up the Minnesota Governorship to accept a Truman appointment, it is presumed that his ambition is the Supreme Court of the United States. His decision in this case might keep him from realizing that hope, for he would never be confirmed by the Senate. To confirm him would be to condemn their condemnation of Lattimore.

Whom did you work for during the first four months of this year?

You'll say that you worked for yourself, or for some business or other. But, in a very real sense, you worked for government! The nation's total 1953 tax bill will be as much as the wages, rents, interest and dividends received by all of us during the January 1 to April 22 period!

Read that again—and then decide whether economical government and eventual tax reduction are in your personal interest.—(Industrial News Review)

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

During the past few months quite a few people have asked me various questions about this column; in fact, enough have asked me to justify my answering some of the questions in print.

Nine out of ten are written the night before they appear in the Reflector. Occasionally I get as much as a week ahead and naturally when I'm going out of town I write up the columns in advance.

Most columns are written in the den of our house on the corner of Maple Street and Shady Lane. Sometimes I sleep on an idea and get up early the next morning and put it together.

Many people encourage me to write columns assailing some individual or group for doing wrong or failure to fulfill a duty. My theory is that the editorial columns of the Reflector is the place for such material, so I refer such comments that come my way to them.

Life is too short, I think, to spend it squabbling. During four years I have had words with only one person over the column. This column is written as a hobby; my business is automobile parts. The Reflector pays me on a per-inch basis.

My goal during the four years of publication of this column has been to come up with something interesting five times a week without consulting other publications. Even the big-time columnists do not claim to have something readable every day, so I certainly don't. However, in recent months I have been able to get by almost 100 per cent without aid from other publications.

From comments I hear most people differ on my personal columns, about Wife Rachel and the family. Some do not like like these but others do. Since I particularly enjoy writing them I continue them in spite of some negative comments.

W. R. seldom reads the column before it comes out in the paper. Therefore, quite often she doesn't know what will be said about her until it's published. As I remember, one time during the four years she has complained, so you can see that she is very good natured about my public teasing.

Quite often I am amazed when I find that certain individuals read this column. Many times I have tried to estimate how many do. The Reflector has about 5,000 subscribers. If two reach each paper and one out of ten read this column that would be 1,000 readers. Whether that estimate is off or not I do not know, but it's as close as I can come.

One thing is probable: More women read it than men; for perhaps it's just that more women comment. This remains a mystery to me.

Your comments, negative or positive, are welcome. If you like all of the columns my taste differs from yours, for there are some that I do not like myself. Naturally I do my best to keep those at a minimum.

And I thank you. Why does that comment come every time? Mostly it's an expression of my appreciation for your interest but partly it's a trade mark, put there with the theory that a trade mark helps to sell a product.

BIG JOB — The way they approached problems in their first formal session and personal interviews with all but two or three of the new commissioners indicate that the 15 men who took over management of North Carolina's public roads and bridges have no illusions about the difficulty of the task confronting them. "Frankly, I'm a wee bit scared," admitted one of the new men. "Even before starting to work I already realize that the view from the inside with attendant responsibility is different from the outside view without obligation." The same idea was voiced by one of the newly elected university trustees, who was present as an interested spectator at ceremonies inducting the new highway commissioners into office, and who had just finished a three-day indoctrination tour of the campuses at Raleigh, Chapel Hill and Greensboro. "I've already learned," he said, "that there is more than empty honor attached to university trusteeship; there's a lot of real work."

RED LETTER — Thursday was a red letter day in the history of highway development in North Carolina. Effectuation of Governor Umstead's reorganization plan by increasing the number of divisions and commissions from 10 to 14 is the first major change in 16 years, the third most important since the state highway commission was established. For several years prior to 1921 the state commission was largely advisory while counties had responsibility for financing road building and maintenance. Upon issuance of the $50 million bonds for state highways in 1921 the commission became an important administrative agency, with enlarged membership and greatly increased authority. In 1937 the state was divided into ten special highway divisions with one commissioner for each and a commissioner at large, who was ex-officio chairman. That arrangement prevailed until this week when, under authority of a 1953 act, Governor Umstead increased the number of divisions to 14. The change-over in affected counties which go into new divisions will be gradual, but is expected to be also pretty rapid.

PROBLEMS — During the 20's the chief problem of the highway commission was construction of primary roads. In the first half of the 30's the big job was maintaining these highways and assimilating into the state system 40-odd thousand miles of secondary county roads. The problem was aggravated by the worldwide depression. Advent of the New Deal idea of federal aid influenced many decisions of the State commission during the last half of the 30's decade. Just when it seemed that the whole program was working smoothly, Hitler's ambitions for Germany to take over the world interfered with progress in North Carolina more than anybody at the time realized. From 1939 through 1945 road work in this state was geared to national defense and international preservation of democracy rather than to the domestic needs of North Carolinians. It was not until late 1946 and early 1947 that major attention could again be given to our own special needs. Conside-erable progress was made in 1947 and 1948 in catching up on maintenance and increasing both primary and secondary road construction. The 1949 General Assembly authorized a vote and the people approved the issue of $200 million for secondary road construction. That precipitated one of the greatest road building sprees in the history of any state.

MAINTENANCE — The bond money for secondary roads left more regular highway revenue for the improvement of primary routes. By-passes and clover-leaf intersections blossomed all over, while more than 20,000 miles of secondary roads were being blacktopped or stabilized. There are still some primary highways to be built and several thousand miles of additional secondary roads are desired. But the highway commissioners who took over Thursday realized that their big job is maintenance—holding it usable—conditioning the roads, we have, rather than expanding or extending into new mileage. And, everybody knows that maintenance is drudgery while new construction is romance. The 11 men who went out of office this week had the romance; the 15 who succeeded them will have the drudgery.

HAPPY — So it was that perhaps the two happiest men at the swearing-in ceremonies of the new commission Thursday were Wilbur Clark and Jim Barnwell, the only two members of the retiring commission whom your reporter saw in the capitol. They were the Scott-appointed commissioners who took over Thursday. They were the Scott-appointed com-

Business Today

The heart of a company is the people in it and their potentialities.

While a capable business leader can maintain his company in a high position for a long time on his own ability, sooner or later responsibility must fall on the junior members. And if they are not properly trained to manage, then the firm is in grave danger.

The pitfalls of the lack of management talent in depth are outlined in a new book, "Reaching Out in Management," by William B. Given, Jr., Chairman of the Board of American Brake Shoe, and the comprehensive report on the company's program to eliminate those dangers is well presented.

Basically, the program encourages reaching out by every member of the company. This means that every employee, from top to bottom, must broaden his view and reach out towards higher positions, greater responsibility and a wider range of interest in and outside the firm—cutting across departmental lines wherever possible.

This is the antithesis of the departmentalized company in which the chain of command is laid out like a family tree and every man listed is squeezed and pushed until he fits his own little box perfectly.

The concept aims to stimulate employees to push against their superiors while spreading their interest and activities into other departments in order to learn and help. At the same time, employees are judged strongly on their ability to help those below them.

In many organizations executives are inclined to hold down those who threaten their positions. But this deterrent to progress has been overcome to an extent at Brake Shoe, the author believes. In a sense, an employee is told, "You aren't going up until there is someone to take your place, and if one isn't forthcoming reasonably soon, the only direction you are going is down or out."

The reaching out need not stop at company affairs, either; the author believes Mr. Given's company expects self-development to include greater interest, understanding and help for co-workers, subordinates and superiors in their personal lives.

In one respect the problem of applying this philosophy to smaller companies is not as complicated. With fewer employees, better communication with each other is possible. When one department is within a few steps of half a dozen others, interest naturally expands.

But the small plant is more likely to be a one-man show. The head of a large company knows, or should know, that he can't handle everything by himself. Moreover, the big firm has greater resources for coping with mistakes and financing employee education programs.

TRAVELING SALESMEN ACCIDENT RECORD POOR

Traveling salesmen ranked 62nd in automobile safety in an insurance survey reported in "Sales Management." Only amusement and recreation workers and the unemployed had worse records.

Liquor salesmen as a group ranked 58th; automobile and implement salesmen ranked 59th; sales people in stores, 33rd; insurance and real estate agents, 25th. The safest drivers were county agents, farm demonstrators and extension workers.

The generally poor record indicates that an opportunity to reduce expenses is being overlooked. The cost of insurance is a sizable item in travel expenses. Since accidents increase insurance premiums, higher cost-per-mile of traveling salesman is an end result.

Besides, good road safety by a company impresses the public even more than good plant safety. TOY MONEY BAGS

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—It is the big moments that make our little lives memorable.

To a woman her wedding day, the day she gives birth to her first child, and the day she buries her husband—these traditionally have been the great landmark moments, although now a fourth is getting more popular: the day judge gives her alimony.

The big moments with men are different. When a man marries he hardly senses what is happening to him. He is too stunned even to cry—"Help! Let me out of here!" and he is in a similar daze when he first becomes a father.

A woman's treasured moments are always allied to tears, a man's generally are tied to his peacock pride, to a goal won.

Perhaps you can find some of your own best-remembered moments among the following:

1. The day you let go of the sofa and took your first uncertain step alone. Learning to walk is the biggest mistake a little man will ever make, and naturally he can't forget it. He will have to wear shoes the rest of his life, and never ceases secretly regretting that he ever got up off the floor.

2. The day your first tooth falls out. The gaping cavity in your mouth leaves a lasting hole in your mind. It is your first deep lesson in mortality, your initial intimation that you won't last forever, and there is no final security.

3. The day your kindergarten sweetheart breaks the news your torrid affair is over, she is going to marry an older guy in the first grade, but she will always think of you as a brother. This teaches you that there is no real justice in this world, honest merit is rarely recognized, and sex is a snare.

4. The day you put away your marbles and put on your first pair of long pants. Now you are sure at last you will really grow up, and you wonder why dad laughs and mother weeps.

5. The day you cash your first pay check and know that never again will you ever have to ask anybody for money. Except maybe your boss, the bank and your father-in-law.

6. The day your best girl gives you a present. This both thrills and terrifies you, because if you have any brain at all you know by now that a woman doesn't spend her money on a man for nothing, and sooner or later she will catch you.

7. The frightening day when heart in mind, you tell your employer, "You've got to get more money for me for nothing job—and he gives you your first raise. It is only $5, but no amount of money you ever make afterward will give you as satisfaction. You have dared the lion in his den—and won.

8. The day your son beats up the kid next door. After four generations of black eyes, it is nice to know the family finally has come up with someone who can do something besides fight just causes.

9. The day you win a Thanksgiving turkey in the office raffle. It is wonderful to know that, after all, your luck can turn, and maybe life really hasn't got you behind the 8-ball forever.

10. The day when, after 35 years of losing arguments with your wife, she suddenly crumbles and says, "Dear, I am wrong and you are absolutely right. Let's do as you say."

This brings your life to a peak. After that there isn't much left for a man except to take his pension, start baby-sitting for his grandchildren and look fondly back through the gathering mist at his big, big moments.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Though she gave up her home here when she went to Luxembourg in 1949, the wealthy Mrs. Perle Mesta, the recently retired—U.S. Minister to the little duchy, is expected to come back and recapture her title as the town's No. 1 hostess.

After her last visit to the capital in November two rumors were rife: (1) the oil-rich Oklahoma widow had bought a mansion; (2) she was buying property and planned to build a house suitable for her special brand of celebrity entertaining. Sleuths couldn't track these reports down.

Then there were rumors that Mrs. Mesta had several jobs awaiting her. A newspaper had offered her a job as a columnist. Radio and TV companies were after her. A steel company had made her an offer.

Latest reports seem to be from the lady's own pen—that after attending the coronation and entertaining old friends in her elegant suite in the British capital, she may visit Russia and then do a series of magazine articles.

She's said to have written friends she plans to give lectures in 10 leading American cities, the proceeds to go toward financing scholarships for Luxembourgian students to American schools. A niece, she started soon after taking over her diplomatic post. Even after that, it's said, she won't return to Washington until she spends some weeks at Sea Cliff, her permanent address at Newport, R. I., where in the past she has entertained headline personalities at fabulous house parties.

Mrs. John Foster Dulles, wife of the secretary of state, is finding high favor with old timers in the capital who spell "society" in capital letters because she is such a stickler for form. Her dinner parties in the French provincial house the Dulles' have brought here are small, elegant and perfect in detail. She returns visiting cards promptly and in person

Grifton PTA Holds Regular Meeting

GRIFTON—Fourth, fifth and sixth grades participated in an interesting program on Tuesday night when the PTA met for its regular meeting. Gilbert Quigley led in the devotional. Announcement of the nature of the program was made by Alice Fay Dixon.

A skit, "May Day," which was written by Martha Hart of the sixth grade, was presented. Contestants for the May Queen were Emily Nelson, who did acrobatics; Linda Koon, who represented beauty; and Joyce Garris, representing song. As flower girls Wilma Patrick, Esther Hill Coward and Balle Newborn took part. Music by the rhythm band and dances by a number of pupils were added features for the queen's pleasure. Emily Nelson as Lily was chosen to reign because of her kindness to the flowers.

At the business hour Mrs. Walter Patrick presided and heard reports from various committees. Mrs. Robert Newborn and Principal A. F. Tyson gave reports for the lunchroom.

It was suggested by Mrs. Paul Braxton that the PTA take care of costumes to be used from time to time. It was agreed that the PTA would buy or secure suitable containers to take care of these. Mrs. Braxton, Mrs. William May and Mr. Paul Bradley were asked to have charge of this. Mr. Play W. Sellers, Public Information Consultant of the N. C. Board of Health from Greenville, made an important announcement and remarks in regard to the Pitt County Chest X-Ray survey which will be held in Grifton June 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13 at Tucker Brothers Service Station. All adults are urged to get X-rays at this time.

Mr. Wiley Gaskins of the school board announced a public meeting of the local board with Superintendent of Pitt County Schools D. H. Conley on Thursday night to inform and discuss plans for the Grifton school expansion and bond issue which is coming up on June 6.

Principal Tyson announced the closing school program. The baccalaureate sermon on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock will be by Rev. Grady Burgess, Missionary Baptist minister of Greenville. On Monday night the graduation address and presentation of diplomas and awards will be held. The speaker will be Mr. Charles A. Kline, chief supervisor of the DuPont plant near here.

Woman's Club Installs New Officers

The Woman's Club held its regular monthly meeting for May in the club house with Mrs. J. B. Spillman, vice president, presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. J. H. Moore. The meeting was opened with the reading of the club collect in unison.

Reports were given by the secretary, Mrs. C. A. Scruggs, and treasurer, Mrs. J. C. Galloway Jr. The various committee and departmental chairmen submitted their annual reports which were read. Of particular interest was the report by Mrs. J. Hicks Corey, chairman of the committee on Conservation of Natural Resources, on the progress being made on the development of Green Springs Park located on East 5th Street. At the conclusion of the reports Mrs. Spillman commended the chairmen, their committees, and the club membership on the progress and work accomplished during the year. She expressed the sincere appreciation of Mrs. Moore and herself to the retiring officers and to the club members for such fine cooperation and support during their tenure in office, urging that the same spirit be shown the new officers who were then presented: president, Mrs. R. P. Rogers; first vice president, Mrs. J. Vance Perkins; second vice president, Mrs. H. B. Moore; recording secretary, Mrs. J. B. Spillman, treasurer, Mrs. George Clapp; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Howard Fuller, and historian, Mrs. W. H. Woolard.

In accepting the gavel Mrs. Rogers expressed her gratitude for the confidence placed in her by congratulating the members on the club's accomplishments in the past and challenging each member to do her part in the coming year to strengthen the club and thus make its projects and goals even more far reaching and successful than before.

Members were then reminded of the immediate need for expansion in the city schools, physical set-up and urged each member to register for the vote on the school bond issue. This is a special registration. The books will be open through May 23 at the City Hall, and voting will be on June 2.

After the adjournment of the business meeting a lovely tea hour was enjoyed with Miss Lella Higgs as chairman of hostesses. Clear fruit punch, iced cakes and nuts were served from a beautifully appointed tea table. The centerpiece consisted of a miniature May Pole wound in pastel ribbons which extended out to form a circle. At the end of each ribbon was a miniature corsage; each made up of different spring flowers. On the rims of the crystal punch bowl, placed at one end of the table, and the silver platter of cakes at the opposite end were beautiful sprays of white roses.

The flowers on the mantle were a most attractive arrangement of pink and white colors effectively complementing the portrait of Mrs. Moore which hangs above it. The entrance door to the club house was most welcoming with a May basket arranged with sprays of red roses.

Those assisting Miss Higgs as hostesses were Mesdames S. M. Crip, J. H. Blount, B. B. SUGS, J. J. White, W. I. Wooten, Leighton Blount, L. B. Garris, Phil Goodson, Gless Hearne, T. E. Hooker, E. W. Birth Party and General Meeting At Presbyterian Church

The Women of the First Presbyterian Church held their General Meeting and Birth Party in the Sanctuary on Monday night May 11th.

Mrs. Bryan Brown was leader, and opened the meeting with prayer followed by a beautiful solo, "Bless This House" sung by Mrs. Dink James. Mrs. Brown read, as Devotional, verses from Hebrew and James, closing in Prayer.

Mrs. J. W. Hassell, a former Missionary to Japan, was introduced by Mrs. Brown, and gave a most interesting talk on her first experiences and hardships of years ago when Missionaries came home having no place to live while on furloughs. Seven years later when she returned to America with her family for a year they were fortunate enough to live in one of the Furlough Homes, "Mission Court," in Richmond, Va. These apartments completely furnished and so very homelike, are "havens of rest" for tired missionaries who so deserve comfortable homes after hardships in foreign fields. There are only eleven such apartments in the South at the present time, North Carolina and Virginia united in building Mission Court at Richmond, stated Mrs. Hassell.

As Furlough Homes was the Birth Day Objective this year, a collection was taken at this time for this worthy cause.

After a short business meeting, presided over by the President, Mrs. Lawrence Smith, Mrs. Walter Cox gave interesting highlights of a meeting of The Alberman Presbyterian, which met in Goldsboro recently.

Mrs. Smith closed the meeting with a prayer. Refreshments were served and a delightful social hour was enjoyed in the Ladies' Parlor.

Edwards And Cox Star As Kiwanis Defeat Exchange

Bobby Edwards and Billie Cox pitched and batted the Kiwanis to a 9-3 victory over the Exchange team yesterday in Little League action.

Cox started out on the mound for Kiwanis and pitched three hitless innings. Edwards then took over and finished the game, giving up two of the three Exchange runs and all of the four hits. Edwards led the batters for the afternoon with a double and two singles while Cox slugged a home run and a single.

It was Cox's third inning homer that provided the actual margin of victory for the Kiwanis. He hit it as the leadoff batter in the inning.

Kiwanis started its assault on Exchange hurler Billy Clapp almost as soon as they got a chance to bat. They scored twice in the first inning once in the second, once in the third, three times in the fourth, and twice in the fifth.

Exchange's four hits went to Billy Neal James, Tommy Braxton, Dick Evans, and Sammy Pollard. Pollard's double was the longest hit of the three.

In a Minor League preliminary to the Little League contest, the Capitals defeated the Yanks, 9-2, to move into a three-way tie for first place with the White Sox and the Red Sox. All three teams have 2-1 records.

The loss was the third straight for the Yanks.

In the Little League's first statistical release, Walker Allen of the Jaycees is leading both the hitters and the pitchers. He has five hits in six trips to lead the batting with an .833 average and has two wins and no losses to lead the pitchers. Billy Cox and Bobby Edwards are in second and third places, respectively, in the batting. Cox is hitting .800 and Edwards has a .727 average.

No Surprise Over Quick KO Victory

CHICAGO (UP)—If there was any surprise, disbelief or disagreement today over Rocky Marciano's victory over Jersey Joe Walcott to retain the world heavyweight crown, it was not in the Marciano camp.

"I hit him a good, sharp punch," Marciano said. "I surprised me that the opening came that quick and I was waiting for him to get up. But there was no doubt to me it was a good punch."

"I knew he went down pretty good. I knew it hurt him. I don't think he quit."

"The punch was better than the last one," Rocky said in reference to his blow which won the heavyweight crown in the 13th round at Philadelphia last Sept. 26.

"I staggered him with a high left hook and then shot a right uppercut to his jaw."

"It was the right that did it. It traveled further and was sharper than the one in Philadelphia. I felt when it landed he had to go down," Marciano said.

"Manager Al Weill agreed with his 28-year-old Brockton, Mass. destroyer. The 2:25 first round knockout didn't surprise him, he said."

Greenville's and Farmville's Little League baseball teams have been franchised by National Headquarters in Williamsport, Pa. The leagues are two of 2,500 leagues now in the program organized in 48 states, Alaska, Canada, Hawaii, Cuba, the Dutch East Indies, Puerto Rico and the Canal Zone.

Only Three Horses To Oppose Dancer

NEW YORK (UP)—Native Dancer, who suffered interference in his upset defeat by Dark Star in the Kentucky Derby, should find plenty of racing room for his lightning speed in today's $25,000 Withers Stakes at Belmont Park.

Only three colts were named to oppose Alfred Vanderbilt's husky gray colt in the mile run.

RALEIGH, (UP)—Duke's surprising Blue Devils, who got into the Southern Conference baseball tournament by the skin of their teeth, go after their second straight league crown tonight against the University of North Carolina.

Duke handed the Tar Heels a stunning 7 to 2 upset in the first semi-final game of the double elimination tournament yesterday. Carolina stayed in the running by routing George Washington 15 to 0 in the second game.

Should Duke win the contest at 7 p.m. tonight that will be the end of matters. However, if the Blue Devils lose, a second game will be necessary to decide the crown.

Duke teed off in a home-run spree against the Tar Heels in the first game yesterday as George Carver effectively tamed the feared Carolina batting corps.

Both Carolina scores came on home runs—one in the second and another in the fifth by Bruce Holt.

But Duke rose to the occasion in the second inning as Billy Lea stepped up and slammed one over the wall. While teammates were still congratulating him, Dick Brewer lined out another four-bagger.

From then on it was all Duke as the Blue Devils shelled three Tar Heel pitchers with a 14-hit assault. In the second game, North Carolina's Don Marbury turned in his fourth win without a loss for the season as he held George Washington to only three hits while his teammates were grabbing 10 for 15 runs, aided by six big Colonial errors.

Marbury whiffed 10 GW batters and walked only two. The rampage started in the top of the first inning when GW pitcher Jerry Marvel walked two men and then gave up a hit. A fielding error brought in two Tar Heel runs and Carolina splurged on from there.

The only Carolina to solve Marbury's hurling was Bo Austin who got two of GW's three hits.

Campanella Aims For Three Titles

NEW YORK (UP)—Baseball, as well as racing, has its "Triple Crown" and Roy Campanella of the Brooklyn Dodgers is trying to become the first catcher ever to win it.

The stocky righthanded slugger took the lead today in the three major offensive departments—batting average, home runs and runs batted in.

Campanella topped the league with a .378 average and had belted 10 home runs and driven in 40 runs. His average tops Johnny Wyrostek of the Phillies by one point.

In the American League, third baseman George Kell led the batting lead with a .398 mark followed by Pete Suder of the Philadelphia A's (.373) and Al Rosen of the Cleveland Indians (.349).

First baseman Dick Gernert of the Red Sox led in home runs with six and first baseman Walt Dropo of the Detroit Tigers led in runs batted in with 22.

Among the pitchers, Max Surkont of the Milwaukee Braves led the National League and Mel Parnell of the Red Sox topped the American, each with a 4-0 record.

Referee Defends Count On Walcott

CHICAGO (UP)—Jersey Joe Walcott's "short count" was in his mind and not on the clock, Referee Frank Sikora said today.

Controversy Raging Over Walcott's Count

CHICAGO (UP)—Torril controversy over Jersey Joe Walcott's alleged "short count" rumbled today through this city where Frank Tunney allegedly got his "long count" against Jack Dempsey 26 years ago.

And the controversy echoed throughout the nation, where millions witnessed by television heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano's first-round knockout of 38-year-old Walcott Friday night in Chicago Stadium before 16,034 fans.

It was the rottenest deal of my life, declared the ex-champ from Camden, N.J. after Referee Frank Sikora counted him out at 2:25 of the first round amidst loud boing of the fans, who temporarily appeared roused enough to storm the ring.

After the bewildered and angry ex-champ rose from his haunches, where an explosive right uppercut to the chin had dumped him, time-keeper Fay Young added to the confusion by announcing the time of the kayo as 1:25 of the first round, which would have been the shortest kayo in heavyweight title history.

Young might have let 1:25 stand had not George Bozarth of the United Press rushed over to him and said, "I think the time should be 2:25 because the big clock on the first balcony showed more than two minutes when Walcott was felled."

The official 2:25 was only the sixth shortest kayo in heavyweight title competition.

"I want another shot at Marciano," Walcott declared today. "I wasn't hurt at all. I sat there waiting for a hand signal from Felix. I thought I had plenty of time. I heard the count of seven. Then Sikora pushed me back and waved his hand I was out."

Felix Bocchicchio, Walcott's manager, and Angelo Malandra, their attorney, will present a formal protest to the Illinois Athletic Commission on Monday.

They protested informally and with gusto to Chairman Livingston Osborne at the ringside. But Osborne said the knockout looked "all right to me." He said Sikora had counted Joe out fairly in the ring, but "We'll consider your protest Monday."

Local Lady Golfers Take Trophies During Tourney

Bobbie Ramsay of Washington won out in the finals of the East Carolina Ladies Golf association tournament recently held in Washington. Runner-up in the field of 36 was Jeannette Attmore of Washington.

Four Greenville women were competing among the golfers from Kingston, New Bern, Rocky Mount, Wilson, and Washington, with Mary Stuart James and Jane Sauve playing in the championship flight.

Greenville women receiving trophies were Jane Sauve, winning the runner-up cup for the first flight; Millie Wright, runner-up trophy for the third flight; and Nettie B. Herling, the consolation trophy for the fourth flight.

Joe Paid Better Despite Knockout

Walcott received $250,000, a flat guarantee while Marciano's 30 per cent of the net and of $300,000 television revenue amounted to only $166,038.

Johnny Behr, ex-referee and a member of the three-man commission, said, "In my opinion we shouldn't even consider the protest. He was counted out, and that's all there is to it."

Knockdown time-keeper Mike Murphy declared, "The count could have gone to 12, and he still wouldn't have been up. He was counted out by a wide margin."

Promoter Jim Norris said the kayo appeared all right to him and that he figured now Walcott was finished as a fighter, "although I'm not the one to retire him."

Norris was disappointed with the gross gate of $331,795, which failed considerably to better the world indoor record of $422,918 set by middleweight Rocky Graziano and Tony Zale in Chicago Stadium, July 16, 1947.

Marciano, who scaled 194 1-2 pounds to Walcott's 197 3-4, was surprised when Jersey Joe failed to get up in the first round. But he said "I believe my right uppercut tonight was a much harder punch than the one that knocked him out at Philadelphia."

The Philadelphia kayo, 1st at Sept. 23, was achieved in the 13th round.

Marciano, the 28-year-old "blockbuster" from Brockton, Mass., proved himself perhaps the hardest hitter in heavyweight history when he achieved his ninth consecutive kayo. It was the 39th knockout in 44 straight professional victories for the first perfect-record heavyweight champion.

Neither Rocky nor Jersey Joe had done much damage before the unexpected finish. Walcott kept at long range, instead of trying for a first-round kayo as he had done at Philadelphia, where Rocky was felled in the first round.

Joe backed away and contented himself jabbing at Rocky's nose, which was injured in training to cause a postponement of the fight from April 10. Marciano marched forward and slid in under Joe's arms a couple of times with short hooks to body and head before Joe could tie him up in clinches.

As they were mixing near Marciano's corner, Marciano drove a left hook to the body and a tremendous right uppercut to the chin. It almost lifted Joe from his feet and he sprawled backward on his haunches.

count him out, yet. Remember that Armed and the mighty Exterminator were under the same kind of a saddle before they hit the racing jackpot.

Rex Barney, the wild man from Omaha whose lack of control carried him completely out of baseball may try to work his way back. He has arranged to work with Hollywood of the Coast League and, if all goes well, "will take another fling at it."

Bobbie Dilday, captain of the Michigan State baseball team would rather play baseball than do anything else. Well, almost anything.

With the Marines in the Pacific in 1948, he was selected as an all-service player for a championship tournament in China. On the day the team was to leave Guam, Dilday received his orders for rotation to the states and eventual separation from service.

ROBIN ROBERTS Puts On Show

NEW YORK (UP)—Naturally, Robin Roberts wants his Philly team mates to get him as many runs as possible, but on days when they don't the big righthander really puts on a show.

Roberts, who has a remarkable knack of pacing himself to a situation, wants to achieve his goal of 30 victories this season and if necessary he will pitch even more than the 380 innings that Manager Steve O'Neill is asking from him.

Thus when the Phillies give him a substantial early lead he perhaps unconsciously takes a little of the zing off his fast ball, although it still is swift enough to blow down most of the hitters.

But Friday, when the Phils had to battle tough eight scoreless innings before downing Warren Hacker of the Cubs 1-0, with a run in the ninth, Robby was magnificent. He gave up six hits in achieving his fifth victory against two defeats. He struck out four and walked nobody.

The run that sent Hacker down to another disheartening defeat came when Earl Torgerson doubled and Granny Hamner singled him home. Hacker scattered seven hits in losing his fifth game. The Cubs now have gone 28 innings without scoring a run for him.

The "Miracle Braves" Milwaukee variety, won their sixth straight game and their eighth in the last nine, 4-3 over the Pirates. Max Surkont made it five in a row in his own personal victory string with a seven-hit effort. The victory with the Phils and it came when Sid Gordon hit a two-run homer in the eighth to erase a 3-2 Pittsburgh lead.

The Cardinals put an end to a pitching jinx for the second day in a row when they defeated Preacher Roe of the Dodgers, 9-3, after he had beaten them 10 straight times. In the previous game they stopped Carl Erskine, who had a string of seven straight successes over them. A six-run second inning, climaxed by Steve Bilko's two-run homer, wrapped it up for young Harvey Haddix, who gained his third victory with relief from Stu Miller. Roy Campanella hit his 11th homer for Brockman and Billy Cox got his first.

The Giants burst out of a hitting slump with an 11-inning 7-3 victory at Cincinnati in which Al Dark's double and Bobby Thomson's three-run homer supplied the margin. New York made 11 hits as Monte Irvin also homered. Bob Marquis hit a Cincy homer. Hoyt Wilhelm won his third relief start in 16 appearances giving up one earned run in five innings.

Virgil Trucks of the Browns, who hurled a no-hitter against Washington exactly a year ago, was touched for eight hits by the Senators Friday night but coasted to a 4-0 victory after Dick Kyhseki walked a two-run homer in the first inning. Losing pitcher Walt Masterson wild-pitched another run across in the fifth and the Browns added a final run in the ninth. It was Trucks' fourth victory.

Fans Disgruntled Over Fight Result

For the second time within three weeks, the living room tranquility of millions of homes throughout the nation was disrupted by a televised fight.

The confused first-round finish of the world heavyweight title fight, in which Rocky Marciano knocked out Jersey Joe Walcott, produced a deluge of bewildered and indignant telephone calls to newspaper offices and radio stations across the country.

"The public got cheated again," bitterly complained one fan who phoned the United Press office. "I'm glad I wasn't one of those suckers who paid $50 for a ringside seat."

In Memphis, Tenn., the Commercial-Appeal related: "One guy phoned, really mad, and said, 'I've been a southern-boy all my life and I think that Negro got roused.'"

The NBC television switchboard in Washington, D.C., reported a flood of telephone calls, "all of them extremely unfavorable," within minutes after the end of the fight.

The Pittsburgh Press reported this complaint from a disgruntled televisioner: "I don't know if the blame was in the count or Walcott's handlers, but somebody really smelled the place up."

In Omaha, Neb., a man told the World-Herald: "I am sending you $50 to begin an investigation of boxing."

"It was a stinking fight" and "the worst thing that ever happened in boxing history," a Des Moines, Iowa, newspaper deskman was told.

Three-Way Battle In Southern Track

DURHAM, (UP)—It looks like a tight three-way battle between Duke North Carolina and defending champion Maryland in the finals of the Southern Conference track and field meet here today.

Field events were scheduled to get underway at Duke Stadium at 3 p.m. and track events at 3:30. The Terrapins placed 14 men in 10 events as the meet got started yesterday, but Duke's sensational sophomore Joel Shankle stole the show as he led the qualifiers in three events.

Shankle outdistanced the field by more than a foot with his broad jump of 23 feet one and three-quarter inches. He won the high hurdles with a time of 14.9 and the low hurdles in 24.1.

Fearless Fraley Reports Leo May Be Out Of Job By July 4th

By OSCAR FRALEY United Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (UP)—Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:

There is an increasing feeling among those close to the New York Giants that Leo Durocher may be out as manager as early as July 4 with Francis Frisch as the leading candidate to take over.

The club hasn't been ticking and looks "flat." Some observers trace this to Durocher's amazingly confident attitude and his apparent desire, voiced last winter, to be back among the Hollywood cameras.

They insist that Leo has lost his famed drive and, as evidence point to the fact that now his most bitter outburst consists of "feeling sorry for the players." In the old days, he considered every loss a personal affront and felt sorry only for himself. Then he replayed every game in long clubhouse sessions. Now he is one of the first to leave the park. So, they say, it soon will be "California, Here I Come."

Manager Casey Stengel of the world champion Yankees has tabbed the Chicago White Sox as a greater threat than the Cleveland Indians—and White Sox Manager Paul Richards agrees.

"We're not giving those Yankees anything," Richards insists. "Those uniforms don't scare us. Richards feels that his club is faster than the 'go-go' Sox of 1951 and bases his hopes on the aging Yankee pitching staff. As to whether young Whitey Ford can take up the slack, he argues:

"Ford hasn't pitched against enough good clubs yet to tell whether he is going to be that good." overlooking the fact that Ford won the only game which the Sox have dropped to the Yankees in four starts this year.

Uncle Miltie, the winter book favorite for the 1951 Kentucky Derby by now has been reduced to the status of a stable pony. But don't count him out, yet. Remember that Armed and the mighty Exterminator were under the same kind of a saddle before they hit the racing jackpot.

Rex Barney, the wild man from Omaha whose lack of control carried him completely out of baseball may try to work his way back. He has arranged to work with Hollywood of the Coast League and, if all goes well, "will take another fling at it."

Bobbie Dilday, captain of the Michigan State baseball team would rather play baseball than do anything else. Well, almost anything.

Mrs. Lula Allen received the flower for being the oldest mother present, Mrs. Jarvis Tripp Jr. the youngest mother, and Mrs. Matthew Vandford for being the mother with the most children—twelve.

We were very glad to see Mrs. E. O. Williams at services. Mrs. Williams has been ill for some time and we have really missed her.

Judy Humbles received her seventh year attendance pin the other Sunday. Judy is one of our young members who has been attending Sunday School regularly since they were a month old.

Rev. and Mrs. R. N. Hinnant were Saturday night visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Elvy Forrest and dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Avery Sunday.

We had a large attendance for Sunday School this past Sunday—173. Our Sunday School has really grown in number for the past several years and we are proud of it.

The Junior Auxiliary met Monday night at the home of Mrs. Francis Cassick on Eastern Street, and although we had only a few members a very enjoyable meeting was held.

Mrs. Jane Tripp led the devotion and rendered a very inspiring program on the subject. Following the program new and old business was discussed and delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Cassick, assisted by her daughter Carol.

Congratulations are in order to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Tyson, who are the proud parents of a little girl, Patricia Ann.

Mrs. Bernice Causey has returned home after spending some time with her daughter in Algiers, La. On her way back she spent the weekend with her son in Norfolk, Va.

We have been missing Mrs. J. H. Tucker at Sunday School. Do hope she will soon be able to be back with us.

Demonstration In Land Clearing Set

Three demonstrations are planned in Pitt County next week on chemical land clearing it was announced this morning by Sam Winchester, County agent.

The three method demonstrations are planned to show how woodland that is overgrown with undesirable hardwoods such as sweet gum, maple, willow and such can be killed by the use of chemicals applied as a spray.

Winchester said that the demonstrations are ones which every farmer in Pitt will be interested in and he urged all who can to attend one of the three demonstrations scheduled to be staged in the county next week.

The use of a combination of 2-4-D and 2-4-5T as a foliage spray to kill small trees and bushes, and the use of 2-4-5T as a basal spray to kill larger trees will be demonstrated, along with equipment suitable to do the job.

The locations of the three demonstrations will be Tuesday morning, May 19th at 10:00, on the Clarence Little farm located on the Farmville Highway (US364) near Piney Grove Church; Dal Cox dairy farm, Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 located on rural road leading to Black Jack from the New Bern Highway; and on Wednesday morning at 10:00 on the Allan Stokes farm located at Stokes town.

Winchester pointed out that the demonstrations will be of special interest to agricultural workers, dairymen, vocational agriculture teachers and veteran instructors.

Capitol Square

(Continued from Page 4) missioners from the old third and fifth divisions. Quite naturally they exhibited some sadness at leaving their posts of responsibility and opportunity, but they smiled more than they cried about getting out from under a tremendous load.

QUESTIONED — Both expressed some doubt about the wisdom of reducing the size of the divisions with particular reference to the use of federal aid funds. Fourteen divisions instead of ten means that each will get less money. For maintenance purpose that will not make much difference, since the allocation is on a formula of county population, mileage and automobile registration. It will make a lot of difference, they say, in utilization of federal aid funds for major construction and re-routing projects. That opinion is offset to some degree by the general belief that federal aid is not going to be as important during the next few years as it has been in the past; and that in any event it might be that wider distribution to more small projects would result in greater good to more people than concentration on one or two big jobs, however important they are to the affected areas.

ALL-STATE — That gets us back to the basic thought that the North Carolina Highway and Public Works Commission is a State agency, not primarily concerned with national or local advantage. Consensus among those attending the swearing-in ceremonies of the new chairman Tuesday and the 14 commissioners Thursday is that the new arrangement will better serve the whole state, without sacrificing too much of either national or purely local advantage. If it does work out that way most North Carolinians will be pleased.

French Warplanes Relieve Red Pressure In Laos

HANOI, Indochina (UP)—French warplanes roared over the jungles of Laos today to relieve Communist pressure on the tiny outpost at Muong Khoua which has been under constant attack for five weeks.

Capt. Pierre T. Hedlier, commander of Muong Khoua's garrison of 40 French and loyal Indochinese troops, radioed for help yesterday as the Red invaders moved up mortars to pound at the isolated position.

French fighter-bombers wrecked the mortar positions today, while transports dropped supplies to the beleaguered garrison.

Muong Khoua is less than half an hour by air from Luang Prabang, the ancient royal capital of Laos, but the 90 miles of jungle between the two places has been transformed into an impassable swamp by rains. There appeared to be little hope of reinforcing the outpost until the dry season.

The air attack was the only fighting reported in Indochina today. Elsewhere, the chief preoccupation was the economic adjustments made necessary by the devaluation of the piastre.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

In Police Court Friday, Judge Charles H. Whebedee found Mack M. Ebron, Negro, 317 1-2 West First street, guilty of failure to yield right of way.

The court gave him 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of court costs and $182.25 to the court clerk for medical bills of Don Strader. The judgment also provides that Ebron is not to drive a motor vehicle for three months unless he makes restitution for property damage.

William M. Johnston and Agnes H. Landing, charged with failure to stop at a traffic light, both cases not pressed.

The case against Armester Moore, Negro, charged with improper license, was not pressed with leave.

Carl Anderson, Negro, 40, who lives on the Amos Edwards farm, was fined $10 for being drunk on a public street.

Theodore Wilson, Negro, no operator's license, 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $25 and costs.

Frank R. Reid, who is charged with driving a motor vehicle while drunk, asked for a jury trial and the case was transferred to Superior Court.

Heat Record

Yesterday (Friday) was the fifth consecutive day in May when the temperature ranged in the 90's. "This has been the hottest May since 1944, when there were five consecutive days on which the mercury ranged in the 90's," Mrs. Carl E. Maiden, local observer for the U. S. Weather Bureau, reported.

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 91 degrees. Lowest last night, 65, and at 8 a. m. today it was 75. It was partly cloudy during the forenoon today.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 91 degrees. Lowest that night 55, and at 8 a. m. next day it was 59 degrees. Nearly half an inch of rain fell during a thunderstorm that day.

Bond Issue Is Explained To Exchange Group

At the Greenville Exchange Club's meeting at the Woman's Club last night, June H. Rose, superintendent of city schools, spoke in behalf of the proposed city school bond issue to enlarge school facilities.

The school official traced the growth of Greenville from a sleepy village to its present progressive and expanding proportions as an important town in Eastern Carolina. Rose pointed out that "we are approaching the 1953 school term with several hundred more students than places for them in present city school buildings. He said 3,985 white and negro children are expected to enroll in the city schools next fall, in comparison with this year's 3,670 pupils.

Rose urged the Exchange Club members to help to get out the vote for passage of the city school bond issue on Tuesday, June 8.

Mrs. W. J. Stell, a member of the City School Board, spoke briefly and reminded the club members that "Greenville school students are receiving the best training and that High School graduates are well prepared for college or employment." She enumerated some of the achievements of the Greenville schools, pointed out the lack of facilities and urged her hearers, "to help to get out a big vote for the city school bond election in June."

Vice-President James Moye, who presided, reminded that the Exchange Club will hold its paper napkin sale on May 28 and 29. The members will make a house-to-house canvass. Proceeds of the sale will be used in the club's "hard of hearing" program. Last year the club bought an audiometer to test persons with defective hearing and gave it to the schools.

Last Minute Plea . . .

The Daniels cousins were convicted of first degree murder in Pitt County Superior Court and were sentenced to death by Judge Clawson Williams, trial judge. The verdict and conviction followed evidence to the effect that the Negroes O'Neal did not return from the trip and next day his brutally beaten body was found near his abandoned taxi at a lonely spot near Grimesland. In signed confessions presented as evidence the Negroes admitted the slaying with robbery as the motive. The crime and the ensuing trial created much interest in this community.

Since being sent to Central Prison for execution the Daniels cousins have been kept alive, so far, by a series of court maneuvers that have carried the case through the state courts, district federal courts and to the U. S. Supreme Court three times.

ARMED FORCES DAY

Celebrate Armed Forces Day In Mammoth Parade

WASHINGTON (UP)—The nation's men and women in uniform marched down the main streets of America today in a mighty demonstration of the armed forces' "power for peace."

From major cities to small towns the military displayed its growing might in the fourth annual Armed Forces Day.

Millions of Americans lined parade routes and flocked to military installations to pay tribute to the military and to gaze at the strange weapons of the jet and atomic age.

In a special message, President Eisenhower paid tribute to members of the armed forces throughout the world. "Thousands of you are in the front line of freedom in Korea," he said. "Others perform the multiple defense tasks vital to the security of America and the free world." He offered them "a salute—and the homage of a grateful nation."

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said the free world has achieved a "posture of defense" that allowed re-examination of the arms program "in the light of economic capabilities." And the administration believes, he said, that "Uncle Sam's big old pocketbook has been open just too wide."

The military's observance of Armed Forces Day, this year set on the theme of "power for peace," ranged from mammoth military parades to "open houses" and demonstrations at smaller military installations.

In ports around the nation the Navy lowered gangplanks to let the public tour fighting vessels from the small, sleek torpedo boat to the battleship. Overhead streaked the latest Air Force jet fighters and intercontinental bombers. And on the ground, the Army displayed its latest weapons, from tanks to the new atomic artillery gun—moored on a barge at the foot of Manhattan Island. One of the largest parades was in New York, where 25,000 persons trooped down Fifth Avenue.

In Washington, 5,000 troops and civilians marched down Capitol Hill and along Constitution Avenue—the Capital's historic avenue of parades—past the Washington Monument.

Reviewing the military panoramas were Wilson and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, as well as cabinet members, high ranking military officers and congressmen. In places of honor were 10 wounded veterans from Korea, now patients in military hospitals.

At an armed forces dinner Friday night, Wilson said there is no indication the Communist danger has "appreciably lessened" and that the rearmament program must continue even if peace comes in Korea.

Mr. Eisenhower sent his message to the same dinner. He is on a cruise aboard the yacht Williamsburg.

Bradley warned the nation against putting "economy ahead of security." He predicted that even if the Korean war ends, the United States will have to spend about $36,000,000,000 a year for defense and military aid for an indefinite time.

Bar Association Gives Grants To Traffic Courts

CHICAGO (U.P.)—The American Bar Association reports it has received a $7,500 grant to expand its national campaign to improve traffic courts.

Albert B. Houghton, Milwaukee, Wis., chairman of the ABA special campaign committee, said the grant was from the all State Insurance Co., Chicago.

Houghton predicted about 750 cities will take part in a traffic court contest to determine national leaders of improved courts in the last year. The judging will take place during the annual ABA meeting in Boston in August.

Also part of the traffic court program is a series of traffic court conferences, held in various cities throughout the country, to bring together traffic law enforcement officials, judges, educators and others for instruction courses on enforcement practices, court procedure and legal interpretations.

DR. VON NUCLEUS' ARRIVAL AT THE HOSPITAL WHERE LITTLE WINCY LIES ILL HAS CREATED UNPARALLELED EXCITEMENT, TO SAY THE LEAST.

YES, HIS FIRST ORDERS WERE TO REMOVE ALL THE LEAD SHIELDS.

BRING ME ADDITIONAL DEXTROSE, SOME DISTILLED WATER—AND, OH, YES, TWO QUARTS OF MILK.

THIS GUY LOOKS LIKE A QUACK TO ME. AH, AH! EASY, CHIEF.

"WE DOCTORS HAVE KNOWN ABOUT DOCTOR VON NUCLEUS FOR YEARS! HE HOLDS DEGREES FROM EVERY MEDICAL SCHOOL IN EUROPE," SAYS THE MEDIC.

"HIS SUCCESSFUL BRAIN OPERATIONS OF THE EARLY TWENTIES WERE ASTOUNDING, AND HIS NUCLEAR RESEARCH DATES BACK TO THE FIRST WORLD WAR."

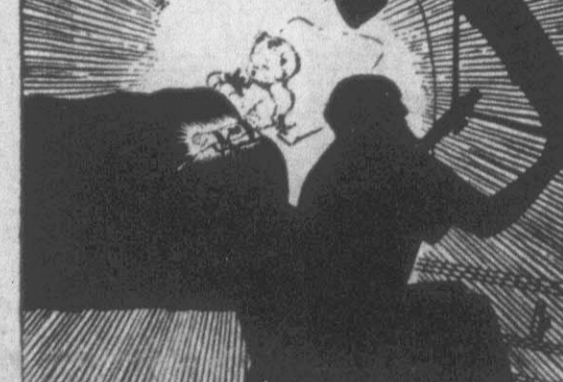

WILL YOU NEED ONE OF US TO ASSIST? ONLY IN THE HALL, GENTLEMEN.

I SHALL LOCK THIS DOOR. I MAY BE OUT TOMORROW, OR THE NEXT DAY, OR THE NEXT—

HOPALONG CASSIDY

By DAN SPIEGLE

....YOU DON'T REMEMBER?.... YOU TRIED TO THREATEN MONK, BROOD AND ME LAST NIGHT WITH THIS UGLY WEAPON AND HAD TO BE SUBDUED.

THEN THE OTHERS ARE GONE! YOU SENT THEM TO THE DEXTER MINE TO AMBUSH CASSIDY AND THE RANCHERS!

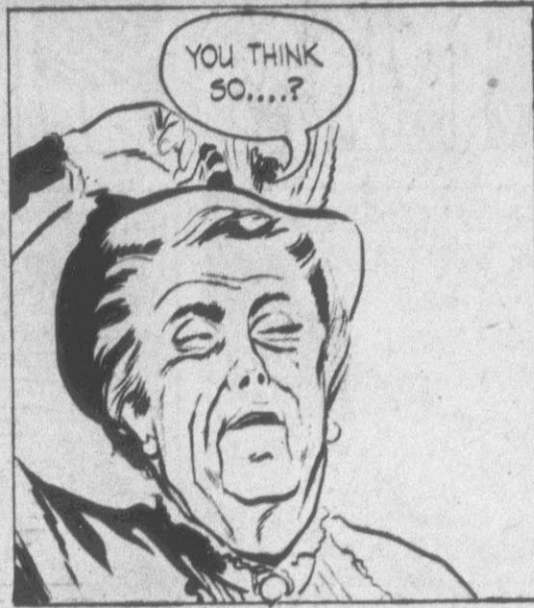

I'M AFRAID YOU'RE IN NO POSITION TO INTERFERE, MARVIN. THE DOOR IS LOCKED AND I HAVE THE KEY.

YOU DON'T HAVE THIS GUN!

THAT WON'T HELP.... IT'S NOT LOADED.

THEN YOU'RE UNARMED! THERE'S NOTHING TO STOP ME FROM MAKING YOU CAPTIVE!

YOU THINK SO...?

THERE'S NOTHING... EXCEPT A HATPIN!! IT'S SWIFT, SILENT.... AND LEAVES NO CLUE!

MEANWHILE, NORTH OF BUCKSKIN, A CARAVAN OF CATTLE HERDS MOVES IN AN ENDLESS CHAIN INTO LOST HILLS.....

THIS IS FAR ENOUGH! TURN BACK THOSE HERDS! YOU'RE TREADIN' ON PRIVATE LAND!

SORRY, MONK. I HOLD A CLAIM ON THIS MINE PROPERTY FROM THE LAND OFFICE.

JELLISON MUST'A MADE A MISTAKE. ABIGAIL FOGG BEAT YOU TO IT! YOU'LL MOVE YER CATTLE BY TH' FERRY, OR NOT AT ALL!

THAT'S MIGHTY BIG TALK FROM JUS' TWO GALLOOTS! MOVE ASIDE! WE'RE DRIVIN' THROUGH!

FLASH GORDON..... by Mac Raboy and Don Moore

ZOOMING HIS ROCKET HIGH OVER THE PIRATE STRONGHOLD, FLASH TELECASTS AN ULTIMATUM: "MARC! RELEASE DALE AND ZARKOV IMMEDIATELY OR YOUR BASE WILL BE BLASTED OFF THE FACE OF THE MOON!" BUT MARC'S ONLY ANSWER IS A BURST OF GUNFIRE AND A TERSE COMMAND TO HIS CREW: "LAUNCH A PURSUIT ROCKET!"

THE PURSUIT CRAFT ROARS INTO THE AIR, BUT THIS TIME THE PIRATES ARE NOT ATTACKING A CLUMSY, HELPLESS SPACE-FREIGHTER. FLASH CIRCLES WITH A SWIFT CHANGE OF COURSE, AND BLASTS THE PIRATE CRAFT WITH A SINGLE LETHAL ATOM-CHARGE.

WATCHING FLASH ON HIS TELESCREEN, AND ENRAGED BY THE LOSS OF HIS ROCKET SHIP, MARC BROADCASTS A GRIM THREAT. "THIS IS MY LAST WARNING, GORDON!" HE SNAPS. "LAND YOUR ROCKET AND SURRENDER, OR YOU WILL NEVER SEE DALE AND ZARKOV ALIVE AGAIN." DESPITE THE THREAT OF MARC'S ELECTRO-GUN, DALE CRIES OUT: "SAVE YOURSELF, FLASH. THERE'S NO HOPE FOR ZARKOV AND ME!"

TEMPORIZING WHILE HE TRIES DESPERATELY TO WORK OUT A PLAN, FLASH PRETENDS TO FOLLOW MARC'S ORDERS. "CLEAR THE ROCKET-PIT FOR MY LANDING," HE SAYS, AS HE POINTS HIS SHIP DOWN TOWARD THE MOON-BASE.

SUDDENLY A STRATEGEM CRYSTALLIZES IN FLASH'S MIND. GLIDING TOWARD THE ROCKET-PIT, HE TAKES A DESPERATE GAMBLE. CHANGING COURSE AT THE LAST MOMENT, FLASH AIMS HIS CRAFT LIKE A HUGE GUIDED MISSILE DIRECTLY AT THE THIN SHELL OF THE MOON STATION. THE SPOT HE HAS PICKED AS HIS BULL'S-EYE IS LOCATED AS FAR AS POSSIBLE FROM THE AREA IN WHICH DALE AND ZARKOV ARE HELD CAPTIVE. THERE IS A THUNDEROUS BLAST AND A BLINDING FLAME AS THE ROCKET RIPS INTO THE MOON-STATION! THEN ALL IS DEATHLY QUIET!

The PHANTOM

By LEE FALK and WILSON MCCOY

WORU, WHY DID YOU TELL ME THE STORY OF MY PARENTS AND THE CHAIN NOW? BECAUSE YOU TRIED TO BRING PEACE IN THE JUNGLE WAR AND FAILED, YOU WERE ABOUT TO QUIT THE JUNGLE.

"WHEN YOU WERE A LITTLE BOY, YOUR FATHER TOLD ME--" WORU, WHEN I'M GONE, AND HE'S THE PHANTOM IN MY PLACE, A TIME WILL COME WHEN HIS PRIDE'S HURT-AND HE LOSES PATIENCE.

"THEN, WORU, TELL HIM HOW I WON HIS MOTHER-HOW I SPENT MONTHS AT THE WELL, WEARING-DOWN THE CHAIN A LITTLE EACH DAY--"

SOMEDAY HE MAY NEED TO FORGET HIS PRIDE-HE MAY NEED A SYMBOL OF PATIENCE. THEN-TELL HIM ABOUT THE CHAIN.

PATIENCE? HAVE I BEEN TOO HASTY? YES, BECAUSE YOUR PEACE-MAKING EFFORTS FAILED, YOU WERE FURIOUS. THE WAR IS STILL ON.

YOU ALONE CAN STOP IT, BUT EVEN YOU, MIGHTY GHOST WHO WALKS, MUST USE PATIENCE-AND HUMILITY.
