Six Girls Win Coveted Honor At Scout Court Of Awards

Six Girl Scouts were awarded the Curved Bar at the annual Court of Awards which was held Sunday afternoon at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

The coveted Bars, which were pinned on each girl by her mother, were presented by Mrs. E. L. Henderson, past Girl Scout Council Assistant, to Ann Moore, Martha Jane Pierce, Helen Hawes, Susie Pope, Gail Clapp and Betsy Karnask. The Curved Bars represent the highest rank in Girl Scouting and are indicative of much work and many achievements on the part of the recipients.

At the same ceremony 58 Brownies "flew up" to the rank of Girl Scouts. These young people, who have been Brownies, or junior scouts, for three years, became eligible for scouting rank upon reaching their tenth birthday and upon the passing of certain requirements during their last year as Brownies.

First Class badges were presented to eight Girl Scouts, while 41 Scouts were awarded Second Class badges. More than 200 scouts and leaders took part in the Court of Awards, with parents and friends as spectators at the ceremony.

Mrs. B. B. Sugg Jr., president of the local Girl Scout Council, extended a welcome to the guests and scouts following the opening ceremony. After the presentation of colors by Ann Moore, Martha Jane Pierce, Helen Hawes and Susie Pope, Betsy Karnask read a poem and the invocation was given by Mary Retha Hice.

Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, Council Assistant, explained the significance of the awards to be given by troop leaders and impressed the audience with the work of the scouting movement in Greenville. She then called upon each troop leader, who in turn presented her group and made the awards which had been earned during the year.

Leaders of the four organized Brownie Troops are Mrs. Sherman Parks, Mrs. W. A. Wright, Mrs. John Whitchard, Mrs. Sam Winchester, Mrs. Troy Dodson, Mrs. W. R.

Guice, Mrs. David Beatty, Mrs. R. E. Tunnell and Mrs. L. R. Finch. Leaders of the six scout troops of the organization are Mrs. Morris Brody, Miss Coletta Lahr, Mrs. W. L. Rotarians Hear Plea To Back Bonds Issue

Greenville Rotarians last night heard appeals from members of the Board of Trustees of Greenville City Schools for support of the $1,500,000 school bond issue to be decided here in a referendum June 2.

Dr. S. M. Crisp, member of the school board, asserted in his address to the Rotarians, "If a person believes in the worth of Greenville and believes in the worth of the children, the time has now come to do something about it."

He said the school officials now find themselves "up against the problem of how to take care of children next year. We will have to make some sort of arrangements for next year, but we must have money to build buildings during the coming year so that in the summer of 1954 we can have some space to take care of these children."

Dr. Crisp reviewed briefly the history of the building program of the Greenville schools since 1903 when the first building was erected. The record of the board of trustees of the school and the use of funds entrusted to it "is good enough to warrant the continued confidence of taxpayers of the school district." In spite of limited funds for operations and building purposes, he stated, the people of Greenville have had for their children over the years "a school program that stands out in this state and is generally regarded as good as any in the state."

The speaker traced the building program of the city schools from 1903 to the present, asserting the city has received more than its money's worth for funds spent on construction and equipping school facilities. The facilities the district now has, he said, are in excellent condition, but more facilities are needed.

The number of children who will enter local schools next fall will total between 825 and 850, Dr. Crisp stated, and the white and Negro high schools of the city this year will graduate only 118 pupils this spring.

School Board Chairman, J. B. James, who introduced Dr. Crisp last night, reminded Rotarians of their activities in behalf of the Greenville school program in past years, and the standing Greenville has held in public school education in the state for many years. He referred to an article printed in a state newspaper in 1922 which referred to Greenville as the educational center of Eastern Carolina, and asserted Greenville has continued to maintain its standing.

"Now we're asking you for aid," James declared. "We're asking you to register this week and vote for the school bond issue June 2."

Other members of the city school board of trustees present at the meeting were J. M. Taft and J. Knott Proctor. Mayor W. L. Whedbee was also present at the meeting.

Lighting Equipment Is Planned For Third Street Playgrounds

Chairman Tyson Bibro of the City Recreation Commission reported to fellow commissioners last night that $2,500 turned over from the Greenville Utilities Commission would be used for installation of lights at the Third Street playground.

The money was given to the city with a recommendation that it be given to the Recreation Commission. Warren Carroll, city recreation director, said lights would be installed at Third Street in order that night softball games could be played. Carroll said the city softball league would use the grounds for two games three nights a week—Monday, Wednesday, and Friday—and the Pony League would use the ground for games on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Commends Commission Mayor W. L. Whedbee, a guest at the commission meeting last night told the commission that after looking over the recreational facilities in the city that "everything looks fine and the commission has done a lot with the money it has been provided."

Whedbee also said an important need at this time was swimming pools for the city. He advised the commission to work out details for the swimming pools and present them to the council for consideration. Whedbee told the group that the council would determine if bonds could be floated for the construction of pools.

The mayor also recommended that Heber Tripp be given a life-long honorary membership on the recreation commission. This recommendation was accepted.

No Assistant
Mrs. Emily Johnson, chairman of the personnel committee, reported that her committee had been unable to find a permanent or temporary recreational director to replace Mrs. Betty Gordon who resigned last month.

Carroll reported that Mrs. Gordon's work was being carried on by shifting part-time personnel.

It was reported that no further word has been received from the National Guard about the recreation offices being moved out of the building. Carroll said the offices would be moved, when notified, to a part of the old NYA center if the building at Elm Street park is not completed when they are ready to move.

Summer School Scheduled Open Here On June 4

Summer school in Greenville High School will be held again this year beginning Thursday, June 4, at 9 p.m.

Students interested in attending summer school are asked to contact the high school office within the next few days and report to the high school auditorium the morning of June 4.

Courses in English, math, and history will be taught in grades nine through 12. The course taught will depend on the demands of the students enrolling. The term will last from six to ten weeks, depending upon which course is taken and how well a student can work. Students are urged if they have a reason for going to summer school, to make their plans now and consult their teachers or the high school office for further information.

A student wishing to enter school from outside the Greenville High School district must have a letter of recommendation from his high school principal before he may enroll. Nominal fees will be charged for every course taken.

Summer school is planned each year for three reasons: To allow students who are retarded in any work an opportunity to make this work up and become regular in their work; to allow students who want to lighten their courses for the coming year in order to get in band, music, art, or other subjects; and to make it possible for students who want to graduate from high school early to get off work during the summer.

To be eligible for the accelerated program, a student must have a three (3) average and a reason for wanting to finish early.

Strength for the Day

WHICH WILL YOU TAKE? We live today in a man-centered age. Our forebears through many centuries lived in a God-centered age. Generation after generation, man's best thought was given to the study of theology.

This God-centered world of the past took itself very seriously, and what was more important, it took God very seriously. None of us of course would want to go back to those ancient days, but the secularism in which we live today makes us yearn sometimes for the interests and the spiritual certainty of many of our forebears.

God's declaration, man's opinion—which will you take? Yet there has not been a time for centuries when men were more in the bondage of fear than at this present moment.

A Hazy Picture That Doesn't Get Clearer

Pitt County people these last four months have watched closely the words and actions of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and the Eisenhower administration.

Well they should, for what is done about the farm program in Washington is likely to be felt directly in almost every pocket-book in Pitt County.

To discern the agricultural policy of Secretary Benson and the Republican administration is something, try as we might, The Reflector has been unable to grasp to its own satisfaction. Frankly, it was hoped the presence of Mr. Benson in Pitt County might shed a little light on the subject; but now that he has visited and gone, the picture is just about as hazy as it was before.

In the nation's capital a battle is raging over farm program appropriations. The representatives from farm regions are seeking greater appropriations than the administration—including the Secretary of Agriculture—thinks necessary.

But here in Greenville this week-end the Secretary himself told a newsman, "We need to start where we are and expand the service." The service to farmers he was speaking of. Expanded services and sharp curtailment in appropriations may go hand in hand, but we find it difficult to see just how.

The farmers, as Mr. Benson said here, realize the "dangers in too much support" of farm products by the federal government. In all fairness, it must be pointed out that the man who earns his living from the soil—particularly in Eastern Carolina—realizes an even greater danger, economically, in too little government support of agricultural products.

Farmers generally, just like other citizens, want to see less costly operations in the federal government. They certainly do not object to less dollars being spent on the agricultural program if its effectiveness can be maintained. Yet they want reasonable assurance the farmer will not be left holding the bag as has been the case in the past.

The Secretary of Agriculture has expressed the belief that an effective farm program can be carried out with less funds than now being expended. He has not, however, outlined just how such a program would be carried out, and how the effectiveness of the present farm program would be maintained under such a procedure.

Until Mr. Benson clears up these vital questions and outlines in specific terms how such a program would operate, we doubt he will have the support of farmers.

In view of the situation the farmer occupies in the nation's economy, The Reflector agrees with the "show us, please" attitude farmers in this section have maintained toward a proposed new agricultural program.

Oatis' Release A Victory But Not A Guarantee

The release of William Oatis from a Czechoslovak communist prison is indeed a victory for the United States. A victory; but at what price, we do not yet know.

On the surface it would appear the former Associated Press bureau chief in Prague, who two years ago was sentenced by the Czech government to 10 years on trumped up charges of spying, was released because a letter from his wife found a soft spot in Czech President Zapotocky. Such could be the case, but it is seriously doubted that the communists have become that soft-hearted.

Speculation has been voiced that Oatis' release came as a part of an agreement worked out secretly between the United States and Czechoslovakia whereby Oatis' release would result in the lifting of many restrictions on trade and travel between the two nations imposed by the U. S. following the imprisonment of Oatis.

An agreement along those lines was worked out between the United States and Hungary for the release of Robert Vogeler in 1951.

The Reflector joins the rest of the nation in hailing the release of Oatis. After two years of constant effort, at least this American citizen will be subjected to no more injustice than that which the communists already have dealt him.

His being held a prisoner by the communists under a sham trial shocked the free world and aroused its anger. At the same time the imprisonment of Oatis clearly indicated the communist hatred for a free press.

The release of Oatis came late, but not too late to be of value to him, and to his nation. Nevertheless, the release of Oatis should not be considered by the American people or the free world as a gesture of friendship by the communists. There has been no assurance that other Americans at some other time will not be subjected by the communists to the same treatment Oatis received. Indeed, there are still Americans held by the communists under sentences which were as far from just as that received by Oatis.

WASHINGTON—The seemingly irreconcilable split between the conservative and Democratic wings of the Democratic Party will be highlighted when the Americans for Democratic Action hold their annual convention within a few blocks from the White House next week end. It will be the first formal assemblage of opposition elements since the 1952 election.

The leftist ADA-ers have insisted on sounding their new war cry against the protests of hard-headed advisers of all factions. They have rejected suggestions that it is too soon to resume partisan warfare, in view of the Republicans' brief period of office holding. They will not listen to warnings that their action is premature in that it will aggravate intra-party differences.

Since it was this group which tried to ride roughshod over the Southern section at Chicago last summer, the name of no distinguished Democrat from this area appears on the program as participant or speaker. On the contrary, such down-with-Dixie figures as Senator Herbert H. Lehman of New York, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Walter Reuther, CIO president, will be the star performers. All three are politically anathema to the South.

NOT LISTED—Significantly, the agenda does not list the appearance of Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell, Stevenson's spokesmen, any Harry S. Truman intimates, or even Senator John J. Sparkman of Alabama, the 1952 Vice-Presidential nominee.

In his official call for this sixth annual convention, ADA Chairman Francis Biddle criticizes and challenges the position taken by many Democratic conservatives toward President Eisenhower's domestic and foreign programs. The former Attorney General's indictment reads like a paraphrase of Truman's whistle-stop denunciations of Eisenhower in last fall's contest.

"RULE OF BUSINESS"—In what seems like an attack on proposals for economy, a more businesslike system of government, elimination of Communists from Federal service and a more balanced structure of defense at home and abroad, the Philadelphia lawyer says:

"There are those who, under the banners of 'economy' and 'getting government out of business,' would restore the rule of business over government, sabotage the social reforms of two decades, cut down our national defense, plunder our natural resources and roll back our hard-won gains in individual freedom and opportunity."

"There are those who, under the banner of 'anti-subversion,' would spread the reign of smear and fear through our legislatures, our communities and our schools, hack away at our traditional freedoms of expression and conscience and turn our land into the home of the fearful."

MORE BLASTING—There are those who, under the banner of "liberation" and "alone if necessary," would undermine the structure of world unity created by free men, scrap the undertakings we have given the cause of freedom in Europe and Asia, find in unilateral action the new isolationism of American imperialism and hasten the world into the agony of atomic war.

"In the United States there are signs that the McCarthy madness has aroused the country's conscience. The awakening has begun; the time for a large-scale counterattack is at hand."

SHREWD P.D.R. JR.—National politicians, incidentally, are intrigued by the fact that Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. is not scheduled to take an active part at the convention. Although an ADA vice-president and usually prominent at their sessions, he may not appear.

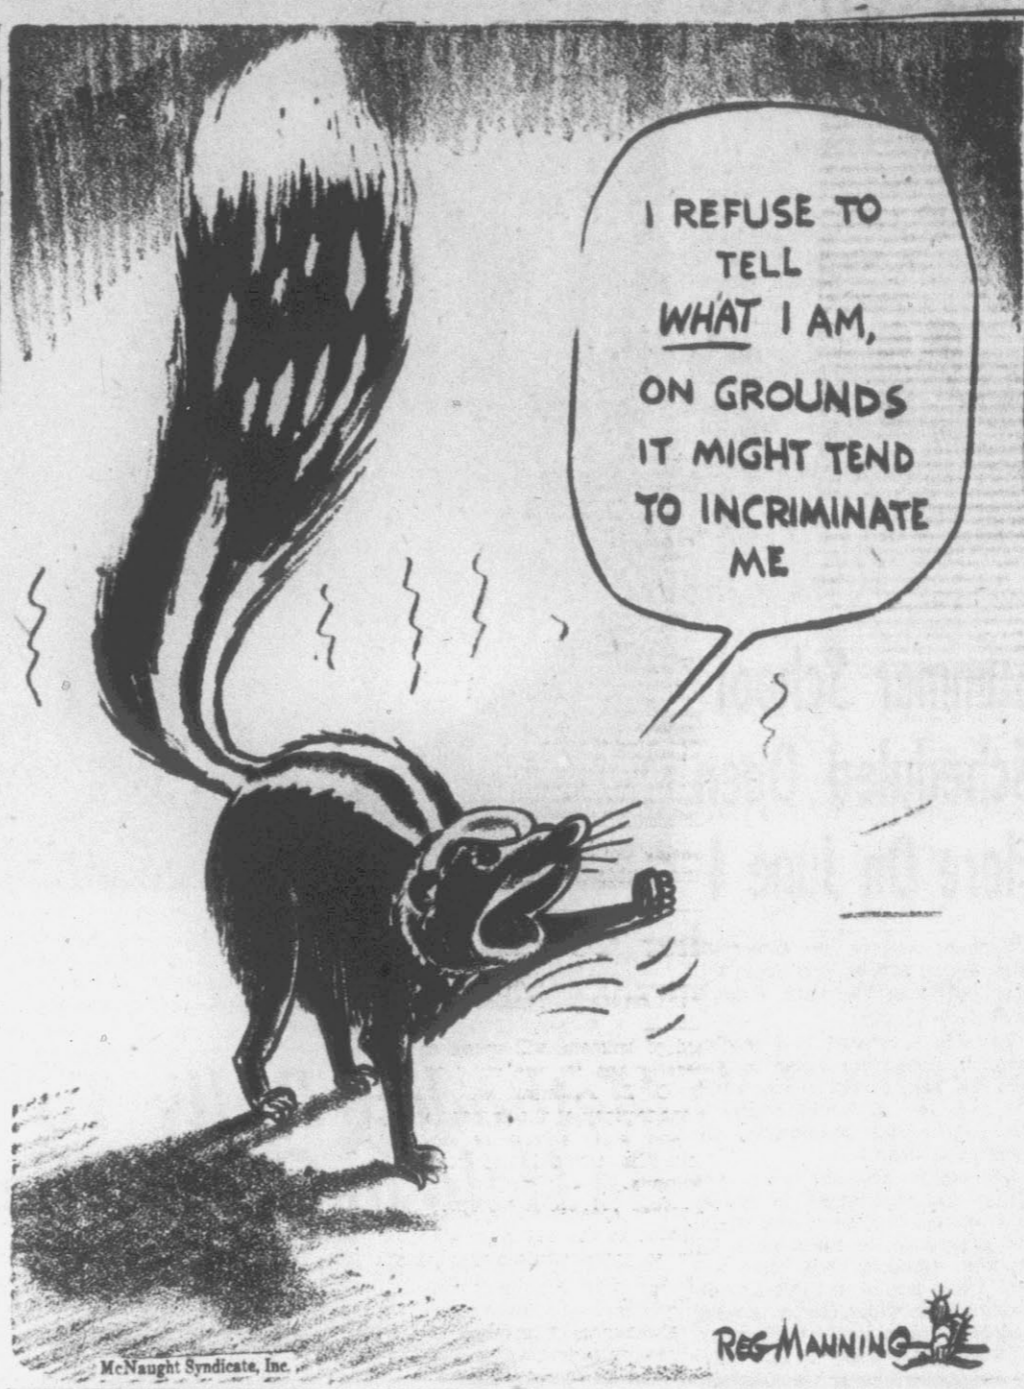

Their suspicion is that he prefers to dissociate himself from the more radical clique lest it jeopardize his chances for higher office—Governor, Senator, possibly President. Like his father, he is a shrewd one.

PRICE OF COMPLACENCY Arkansas Gazette—The truth of the matter is that so long as this national complacency toward teachers' pay exists, we are going to have a shortage of good teachers. And so long as we have that shortage, even the most ambitious of school construction programs will fall to solve the problem of inadequate instruction which finally is the key to the public school operation.

Science has now developed a gadget that coughs for people. Handy gadget for attaching to the phone when calling the boss to tell him you feel too lucky to show up at the office today.

A Rose By Any Other Name—

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Yesterday I attended the funeral of my uncle, H. M. Edwards, in Washington. His untimely death was caused by cancer. While a student at the University of North Carolina I did some work for the American Cancer Society, which consisted of writing news releases about their activities.

Cancer kills 2,859 persons every year in North Carolina. Twenty-two million Americans now living die of cancer, if present rates continue. But let's look at this problem from a brighter angle: Over 67,000 men, women and children with cancer were saved last year. A comparison of similar age groups with the past shows that the death rate in women from cancer is actually dropping.

The answer is in research. With generous contributions from the American public, the American Cancer Society will eventually find a cure for this dread disease. In the meantime, what can we do? The American Cancer Society has listed the seven danger signals for everyone to keep in mind: 1. Any sore that does not heal. 2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere. 3. Unusual bleeding or discharge. 4. Any change in a wart or mole. 5. Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing. 6. Persistent hoarseness or cough. 7. Any change in normal bathroom habits.

These danger signals do not always mean cancer, but they should hurry you to your doctor. In fact, it's a good idea to see your doctor once a year for a general checkup.

Let us consider the oyster first. A conscientious, motherly oyster may emit several million eggs at a single spawning. It is sink or swim almost from the start for them. And life being what it is, if even one manages to survive long enough to grow a shell to protect him from the cold, cruel world—he is a mighty lucky young bivalve.

Now take songwriters. How many are there? 160,000,000 in America right now—and more born every minute," said Bob Hilliard. "Everybody in this country writes at least one lyric in his lifetime."

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET SHORT—SIGHTED—The indictment of N. C. Webster, ex-bursar of A&T College at Greensboro, on charges of embezzling more than $100,000 over a period of several years points up to the unpeeped time a short-sighted legislative policy. Webster denies that he took any money from the college. So did Dr. Meadows, who was convicted of using East Carolina Teacher College funds for his own use some years ago. So have other institutional employees whose accounts were found short when the State auditor got around to the job of checking them.

UNBALANCED—The legislators during past years have not been very zealous in maintaining a balance among the various departments of state government. A look at the appropriations bills will show that some agencies have fared very well, others of comparable importance—but perhaps less lobbying power—have not been permitted to meet the demands made upon them. That is true of the social service agencies as well as among the administrative offices, but it is principally the administrative groups that concern us here.

BUDGET—The budget bureau has insidiously advanced its position to one of powerful force in policy making in areas of activity remote from purely budgetary problems. Personnel and functions of the budget offices have been increased more than perhaps any other department in the state setup. The past three legislatures—1949, 1951 and 1953—to go no farther back have generously increased appropriations for the budget bureau. The 1953 appropriation is almost 50 per cent more than of 1949, and if the personnel costs are added it is almost double. During the same time the appropriations for the State Auditor's office have been upped about 20 per cent and for the Revenue Department about 7 per cent. The increase in the auditor's office is due mainly to higher salaries and inflationary pressures, since the department now has only two more employees than it had in 1940. The revenue increases were due to the same factors of inflation, but also there have been several additional employees—though still not enough to do the job required.

SUPERVISION—The question seems to be "not only the need of closer supervision over tax collection and public spending, but mainly one of which agency shall do the supervising. More and more and more the budget folks are moving in to take over responsibility, although under the laws as they have been written for many years the State Auditor is charged with the obligation of checking on public expenditures. The developing situation with respect to this overlapping of authority is another argument in favor of a complete study and reorganization of state government.

BIBLES—There is no always a flurry around state capitol offices to find enough Bibles when more than half a dozen people are being sworn into office at one time. An inquisitive reporter raised the question of why that scarcely occurred, when it should be obvious that the Books would be needed. The answer was that apparently some officials assumed ownership of the particular volumes upon which the oath had been taken—and just carried it off-home after the ceremony. Members of the General Assembly are told that the

Later he opened a merchandising office in a Broadway building in the middle of Tin Pan Alley. As the cobwebs gathered around his desk, Bob listened to the tunes drifting in his window.

Business Today

If this column has been more erratic than usual during the past few weeks, it was because the writer has been on a swing around the country, and typing on a portable propped on a suitcase is not conducive to maximum clarity.

The big and obvious conclusion to talks with businessmen in 24 of 48 states is that the country is not only prosperous but almost everyone expects that the prosperity will increase.

The average businessman is much less interested in what Wall Street prophets and Harvard economists have to say about future trends than he is in what's going on in his own community. And there he usually sees abundant prosperity and the kind of growth and expansion that promises even more.

The typical business executive, in the South as well as in the old-line Republican states, usually represented himself as having great confidence that the Eisenhower policies will permit business to swell the prosperity of his field or his community.

Characteristic was a Texas executive, a Democrat who had voted for Ike, who said: "Roosevelt and Truman spending has done great things for this part of the country. It expanded our plants, industries and public works. Now we feel we have become of age. We want to go ahead on our own. We think we will get even further without nursing from Washington."

While this makes for economic strength, it may not be for political stability. Those who spoke that way seemed to be saying, "We are betting this works but if it doesn't, we want to go back to free-handed government spending."

Perhaps that is an oversimplification. But if it is not, it implies this threat to the present Administration: If there is any sizable business set-back in the next few years, the very men who swung the election to the Republicans will swing back to the Democrats.

And if that is true, both the Republican Administration and the Republican Congress are very definitely on trial.

TAX MEN CHALLENGE BUSINESS DEDUCTIONS It will pay businessmen to be able to substantiate claims for deductible expenses, income tax reports.

An analysis by Commerce Clearing House of 9,000 cases brought before the U.S. Tax Court between November, 1951 and January, 1953, showed that 450 cases involved deductions for travel expenses, 320 involved medical deductions and 600 involved miscellaneous business deductions. Better get receipts and hang on to them.

SMALL FURNITURE STORES' RATIOS UP Small furniture stores have been doing better than their larger competitors, judging from the National Retail Furniture Association's report on members' 1952 experiences.

Operating expenses for large and medium stores were up 5.6 per cent, while they were down 2.8 per cent for small stores. Large stores' profits fell 19.5 per cent, medium stores' were down 15 per cent, and small stores' were up 2.8 per cent.

However, on a dollar instead of a percentage basis, the large and medium stores still made a lot more than the small fellows. Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—A baby oyster and a young songwriter in America today have about the same chance of success. The odds are more than 1,000,000-to-1 against either.

Let us consider the oyster first. A conscientious, motherly oyster may emit several million eggs at a single spawning. It is sink or swim almost from the start for them. And life being what it is, if even one manages to survive long enough to grow a shell to protect him from the cold, cruel world—he is a mighty lucky young bivalve.

Now take songwriters. How many are there? 160,000,000 in America right now—and more born every minute," said Bob Hilliard. "Everybody in this country writes at least one lyric in his lifetime."

"There are fewer than 10 active lyric writers now alive earning $25,000 a year," said Hilliard. "It is a cruel thing to say, but it is your third hit that makes you a songwriter—not your first one."

Bob, a tall, pleasant man of 35 who never took a music lesson in his life, is high among the top 10 in the field. Starting with "They've Got an Awful Lot of Coffee in Brazil," he's turned out at least one hit song a year since 1946. He wrote the lyrics for the Broadway musical, "Hazel Flagg," three movies, and is now teamed with his wife on a new musical, "Land of the Laughing Dollar."

Among his more than 350 songs are "Civilization," "Dear Hearts and Gentle People," "Bouquet of Roses," "Stop, You're Killing Me," "Thousand Island Song," and "Send My Baby Back To Me."

"Anybody with normal intelligence who will work at it hard enough can write a hit lyric," Bob said flatly. "But to keep turning out hits you can't treat songwriting as a hobby. You have to make it a 24-hour-a-day job."

He himself averages better than a song a week, sometimes turns out two or three in a single night.

Hilliard first tried to get rich selling a vitamin coffee product he patented some time after finishing high school.

"I went broke trying to buy all the mice the pure food and drug people wanted me to test the coffee on to see if it had any food value," he recalled wryly.

Later he opened a merchandising office in a Broadway building in the middle of Tin Pan Alley. As the cobwebs gathered around his desk, Bob listened to the tunes drifting in his window.

Hilliard has made a discovery about success that always astonishes successful people.

"It is that success is always insurmountable—you always have one more problem. You think when you reach a certain goal, everything will be easy from then on. And it isn't that way at all. There is always something more to be done."

I asked Bob what song of all the songs ever in the history of the world he would most like to have written himself.

"Jingle Bells," he said. "It is a happy song and I like anything that has to do with parties and enjoyment."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS WASHINGTON—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the World War I president, has given most of her husband's books, papers and other historic data to the public but still clings to the typewriter upon which he so constantly relied.

Now in her early 70s and living in comparative retirement in a gracious mansion on S Street here, she is Edith Bolling Galt, widow of a wealthy Washington jeweler, when she was married to Wilson in December 1918.

Wilson's library, totaling more than 9,000 volumes, for which the Library of Congress constructed a special walnut-paneled room under her direction, was Mrs. Wilson's most generous gift. The library, which consists of books used by the President back to his childhood, was housed until 1946 in the S Street residence.

Mostly a "working library," it includes books Wilson studied as an undergraduate at Princeton University in the late '70s, law books he used at the University of Virginia in 1880 and books he used while practicing law at Atlanta, Ga., in 1882 and through his teaching days at Princeton, his years as president of the University and later as President of the nation.

Mrs. Wilson added some 300 volumes of her own to this collection—books about her husband, sent to her by friends and biographers. In addition, she has given the library's manuscript division a collection of Wilson papers she has been building up over the past two decades, another group of some 10,000 items.

Mrs. Wilson also has donated many articles to the Smithsonian Institution. Her latest contribution consisted of gifts she received as First Lady. These include a piece of rare Venetian rose point lace, presented by the Italian legation at the Versailles peace treaty conference, to which she accompanied her husband in 1918-19, and a fan with allegories of peace routing the dragons of war, worked in lace, the gift of the late Queen Elizabeth of Belgium on her visit to the U.S. in 1920.

Mrs. Wilson's jet and sequin-embroidered black velvet inaugural gown long ago took its place in the museum's collection of presidents' wives' gowns.

Because of illness, and more recently a sprained ankle, the still handsome former first lady appears infrequently in public—mostly to attend functions at the Washington Cathedral, where the body of her husband is interred, or at the Congressional Club, of which she is an honorary member.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

TRAVESTY UPON JUSTICE (Henderson Dispatch) To sit as jurors upon a long drawn court trial is little less than an ordeal, and citizens who are called upon to serve in that capacity are entitled to sympathy. They have ours. Whiling away time evenings when the twelve are kept together pending their verdict is admittedly something of a problem.

But if reports to the court in the hearing of homicide charges against a Wilson county woman are true some of the gentlemen who made up that jury engaged in conduct at night that constituted a travesty upon justice indeed. Reports were that there had been drinking and that an officer saw four or five of the jurors approaching him, one staggering, one cursing and another complaining that his head hurt. The officer declared further that one of the jurors wanted to sign a warrant against his brother, who was serving with him.

Such conduct, if engaged in, is a disgrace to justice and ought not to be tolerated. Judge Joseph W. Parker, who was presiding, properly held that the jury was unfit to sit in judgment upon a woman's life, whatever the charges against her and no matter what the seriousness of the testimony. His order for a mistrial and discharge of the jury will be approved by good citizens who have respect for the law and who wish to see justice done. Those who hear the evidence are charged with responsibility of rendering a verdict, but if the officer painted a true picture of what went on in the hotel where the men were quartered for the night, as the court concluded he did, this jury was unfit. Better that the defendant go scot free than that justice be entrusted to men in such condition, who have no more respect for the law nor themselves than was reported of the Wilson group.

The investigation might properly go a step farther, too, in an effort to determine where the jurors got the liquor they had been drinking, if they had been. Whoever furnished it to them, if any one did, ought to be dealt with by the court the same as the jurors. Incidents of this type cannot enhance the confidence of the public to say nothing of defendants, in unbiased administration of justice.

Student-Parent-Teacher Council To Elect Officers At Thursday Meet

The election of next year's officers of the Student Parent Teacher Council will be held Thursday night at a meeting of the SPTC in addition to a discussion on the proposed new senior high school.

Mrs. W. J. Stell, member of the board of trustees, will speak on the general plans for the building and Rev. C. D. Patterson will discuss the inadequacy of the present building and what should be done to relieve the crowded and congested conditions.

Another speaker will discuss what is needed in the new high school in order to meet requirements of the boys and girls at the senior high school level.

Industrial Boom Hurts Farming

PADUCAH, Ky. (U.P. @)—Western Kentucky farmers have deserted berry patches and orchards for jobs in such industries as the atomic energy plant here.

As a result, fruit production, once the biggest money crop for farmers in the area, has stopped almost completely. In only a few years—since World War II—the area has shifted from a farm economy to an industrial economy.

Many thousands of farmers have taken jobs at the new atomic energy plant, in chemical plants, and with the many other industries that have located in the Paducah area—one of the chief "boom towns" in the county.

"Atomic Boom" The "atomic boom," as it is called locally, is reflected in fact that strawberry production in the Jackson Purchase area has dropped to only 250 acres. In previous years production has totaled 5,000 acres, along with more than 2,000 acres of peach orchards and 1,000 acres of apple orchards.

The McCracken County Strawberry Growers Association once was the largest strawberry co-operative in the world, and shipped more than 1,000 carloads of berries to northern and eastern markets. Now, the area produces only enough to supply local demand. Land formerly used for strawberries has become pasture. Orchards have become the sites of trailer camps or subdivisions to house an estimated 20,000 defense workers in the area.

A spokesman of the council said the meeting scheduled for Thursday night was most important since the council would be planning for the future of Greenville high school boys and girls.

The meeting will be held in the high school library at 8 p.m.

Microphone Has Sturdier Build

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the newest developments in microphones is designed to withstand television gunshot blasts yet is highly sensitive. Designed by RCA engineers for TV, radio and film studios, it admits sounds coming from the front but rejects those from sides and rear, making it highly directional.

The designers say it can withstand the blast of a 45 calibre pistol fired only five feet away, making it valuable for use in who-dun-its and other drama.

Disney Doubtful Over 3-D Films, But Enters Field

By ALINE MOSBY Hollywood (UP)—Walt Disney unveiled the first cartoon in three dimensions today, but he said he thinks 3-D might be a fad that will fizzle out.

Disney has led the cartoon field from Mickey Mouse to his full-length animated stories such as "Peter Pan." Now he's best other cartoonists to the punch with the first "depthie" drawings. He hopes to put Donald Duck and the rest of his cartoon family in 3-D, providing the idea lasts that long.

"Nobody has the answer yet about 3-D," said Disney. "If the novelty holds up, we'll make more. We have some more 3-D cartoons in the works now, but we don't know whether the novelty will last long enough for even those to get into the theaters.

"There's a nuisance to wearing the polaroid glasses, and people won't go now unless there's a good story. We won't do a full-length feature in 3-D. That would take too long to get out."

Disney's entry in the 3-D marriage-rounder is "Melody", the first in a new cartoon series called "Adventures in Music." The characters are his familiar birds and animals. But the backgrounds are more stylized, in the manner of his vigorous competitor, UPA, which made "Gerald McBoing Boing." The system used in a 3-D cartoon is similar to that for a live 3-D movie, including two strips of film and two projectors. The viewer sees depth and perspective, but the cartoon characters look only as round as the animators draw them.

"This isn't new to us," Disney went on. "We've had a little research project on 3-D since 1940. "Recently some 3-D 'cartoons' of just abstract designs made by a Canadian were released, but 'Melody' is the first true cartoon with a plot and characters."

Disney's animators are also busy drawing a cartoon for Cinemascope one of the wide-screen system that does not require the audience to wear glasses.

"We're keeping up with the times," he smiled.

Few Attending Term Of Court

With the exception of jurors and witnesses in cases, attendance at yesterday's session of Pitt Superior Court was "mighty" sparse.

Two divorces were heard and granted before Judge Henry L. Stevens of Warsaw, jurist presiding. Both involved white couples and were granted on the grounds of two years separation.

They were in the cases of Mamie Smith vs. Charlie J. Smith; and Helen Stocks vs. Bennie Stocks.

Court adjourned at noon yesterday, but was back in session this morning at 9:30. It is slated to last through Friday.

In Italy hotels are divided into four classes, luxury, first, second and third, there being only 40 of the luxury class.

Jaycees Defeat Elks 6-4 To Take First In League

Elks Outhit Winners, But Jaycees Take Advantage Of Several Miscues To Win League Contest

The Jaycees took over sole possession of first place in Little League play yesterday afternoon as they turned back the Elks 6-4. The win gives the league leaders a 3-1 record.

Although the JC's were outhit 8 to 4, they were able to outscore the losers by taking advantage of several errors and wild pitches. Leading batters of the game were Harry Forbes and Lucian Bryan, each collecting two hits. Both of Bryan's blows were doubles. The Jaycees' four hits were scattered.

Andrews, the game's winning pitcher, had a shutout going into the fifth inning, but an Elk uprising had to be halted by reliever Walter Allen. Losing pitcher for the contest was Bryan.

Today's game features a battle for a tie for first place. At present the Lions and Kiwanians each hold a 2-1 won-lost record and are tied for second place.

In Minor League play yesterday the Capitals took over top spot in the league standings by defeating the White Sox 6-3. Edwards had two hits for the winners. Today the Red Sox play the Yankees.

Boxer Hopes Win Over Champ Earns Contention Spot

NEW YORK (UP)—Young Arthur Persley of New York hoped today that an upset victory over interim featherweight champion Percy Bassett would earn him a spot among the contenders in the lightweight division.

The 10-round decision over Bassett of Philadelphia at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena was the 14th straight for Persley, whose previous wins this year were over Harold (Baby Face) Jones, George Dunn, and Roy Andrews.

Match Play Begins In Women's Amateur Golf Championship

Sox Play All-Stars

Wake Forest's College All-Stars journey to Farmville Wednesday night to engage the Red Sox in a contest scheduled to get underway at 8 o'clock.

The college nine is composed of varsity players from the past season and includes such stars as Frank Werner at first base and Rip Coleman on the mound. These two stars are slated to see duty at Kansas City, Yankee farm club, when the school year ends.

Red Benton, former Rocky Mount manager and hurler, is scheduled to do mound chores for the Sox.

No More Grudge Against Yankees Says Courtney

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Clint Courtney's grudge against the Yankees has "cooled off," he admitted today but he's ready to battle them again at a moment's notice "if they try any more of those monkey shines on me."

Anxious to forget the near-riot he incited in St. Louis April 28, when he slid high into Yankee shortstop Phil Rizuto, Courtney insisted he isn't looking for any further trouble.

"I'm a peaceful fella," he said, "and the only time I'll fight is if someone starts with me. Baseball is my living and I ain't gonna let anyone take it away from me."

Courtney, here with the Browns for a scheduled doubleheader against the Yankees last Sunday, scanned the 42,596 fans who filled the stands at Yankee Stadium and talked about the crowd which was expecting to see another flare-up.

"You know something," he said thoughtfully, "that guy (George Weiss) (general manager of the Yankees) oughta give me a share of the gate receipts for drawin' a lotta these people out here."

Courtney grinned as he spoke but he was deadly serious when he got into the game as a pinch-hitter in the 10th inning and singled home a run that put the Browns temporarily ahead.

"I'll say this much," he continued after the game, "a lot of those Yankees sure ganged up on me in that fight in St. Louis. Bob Cerv come charging out of the dugout and really walloped me a good one."

"But he's back in the minors now and I'm here. That's what counts. And that (Allie) Reynolds didn't take very long to get at me, either."

"Sure," admitted the bespectacled Brownie catcher, "I've taken some beatings in my time — and I may take some more — but I ain't gonna let anyone stomp all over me."

"If the Yankees leave me alone, I'll leave them alone. But if they keep coming at me, I'll accommodate 'em. They ain't gonna bully me."

Numerous fans sent money to Courtney to help him pay the $250 fine assessed against him for his part in the brawl.

Experts Shrug Off Royal Bay Gem's Win In Preakness

BALTIMORE, Md. (UP)—The same experts who shrugged off Dark Star's victory in the Derby trial three weeks ago were giving the same treatment today to Royal Bay Gem's victory in the Preakness Prep — and for the same reason.

Royal Bay Gem a notoriously slow starter, confounded the bettors by leading all the way to win the "Prep" Monday at a mile-and-a-sixteenth.

Oddly enough, Derby champion Dark Star, who ran in front all the way in the run for the roses, failed to come from behind this time and couldn't overhaul the tiring Royal Bay Gem in the stretch.

Promoters Negotiate September Title Bout

By JACK CUDDY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Promoter Jim Norris and Manager Al Weill were slated to begin negotiating today for Rocky Marciano's September title defense, now that Jersey Joe Walcott's "short-count" protest has been rejected.

Completion of the negotiations may require weeks. Al Weill will demand "big money" this time for Rocky's second defense, since the champ's purse for last Friday Chicago fight with Walcott was only $166,038. Jersey Joe's flat guarantee was $250,000.

The Illinois Athletic Commission rejected his "short-count" protest Monday and blasted his hopes of having Friday's bout ruled a "no contest" so that a charity rematch could be ordered.

Racket Swingers From 21 Nations Playing In France

PARIS (UP)—One hundred and fifty-eight of the world's top racket swingers from 21 nations will compete in the International Hard Court Tennis Tournament of France beginning at the Roland Garros Stadium today.

In the men's singles, 110 players from 20 nations will strive to grab the coveted crown held by Jaroslav Drobný, self-exiled Czech now playing for Egypt, who is strongly favored to retain his title and to become the first player since the war to have won the tourney three years running.

Drobný was seeded number one at the bottom of the draw, while at the top, as seeded player number two, was veteran American star Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla.

Tennis Tournament!

Any high school student who wishes to participate in a men's and women's singles and doubles tennis tournament next week should sign up with City Recreational Director Warren Carroll or Miss Carolyn Clapp at the Elm Street Park between the hours of 4:30-5:30 this week.

Pairings for the tournament will be announced Friday.

Already signed up for the singles competition are Billy Johnson, Elmer Schoneman, Clark Nobles, Cleas Oakley, Bill Taft, Gene Brown, Jerry Drum and Mack Respass—all boys. Girls include Gayle Clapp, Terry Tripp and Sally Beard.

Braves Shut Out Phillies 4-0 To Gain Tie For First Place

NEW YORK (UP)—Those Milwaukee Braves are tough enough to beat right now, but what's going to happen when ace pitchers Warren Spahn and Vern Bickford get back into action along with the strong-armed kids who have been carrying them to victory after victory?

Most teams would run head-on into trouble if they lost a pair of aces like Spahn and Bickford for almost three weeks, but the Braves seemed to be getting along better without them.

In fact, Spahn, who has been out with a pulled side muscle, said "it is going to be tough to break back into the starting rotation again."

It was Charley Grimm's prize ex-G.I., rookie Bob Buhl, who pitched his second fine game in a row Monday night, a seven-hit, 4-0 victory over the Phils as Milwaukee made its seventh victory in the last eight games, and moved back into a first place tie.

Buhl was given a one run lead in the first inning on a triple by Bill Bruton and a single by Ed Mathews and that was all he needed. In the third Ed Crandall hit the longest homer yet to be delivered in the new Milwaukee park, a 400-foot blast into left center. He also drove in the final two runs with a single in the eighth. The Phils suffered the loss of starting pitcher Karl Drews when he was hit in the knee by a line drive in the fifth. He suffered torn ligaments and may be out for some time.

The Reds topped the Dodgers 3-1 in 10 innings on Ted Kluszewski's home run and the Giants defeated the Cardinals 8-6 in other National League games. The Senators blanked the White Sox, 9-0 while Detroit topped Boston 5-2 then lost 8-5 at Boston in American League games. All other teams had open dates.

Kluszewski put an end to an evening of frustration for Brooklyn, which tied a major league mark by leaving 18 runners on base in the first nine innings as Bud Podbielan yielded 13 walks, a hit batsman, a wild pitch and six hits but bore down to hold off any scoring after Jack Robinson doubled home a first inning run. Andy Semick hit a homer for Cincy's other tally.

The Giants cashed in on a four-run rally that included a three-run homer by Monte Irvin for his victory at St. Louis. Earlier Hank Thompson hit a two run Giant homer. Red Schoendienst homered for the Cards and Stan Musial drilled three singles.

Connie Marrero, Washington's cigar-smoking Cuban right hander pitched five hit ball and struck out nine in winning a duel with Joe Dobson. Dobson had only one bad inning, the sixth when Washington scored all of its runs and two errors figured in, a single by Wayne Terwilliger, a double by Mickey Vernon, and a single by Dutch Volmer scored one run. Errors by Fred Marsh and Dobson delivered the others as Washington made its eighth victory in the last 10 games. Catcher Mickey Grasso suffered a split index finger on his right hand and will be lost to Washington for a week or more.

Detroit built up its best streak of the season, winning its third game in a row in the opener behind five-hit pitching by Ned Garver and timely hitting by Steve Souchock and Walt Dropo. Each hit a double and triple, although Souchock had to leave in the fifth with a pulled leg muscle. In the second game Boston poured over six runs in the first inning and enabled Mel Parnell to coast to his fifth straight victory, also a five-hitter in which he needed relief from Ellis Kinder. Boston made 12 hits, combining four of them with four walks in the big opening inning in which three Detroit pitchers could not stem the tide. Ted Lepcio drove in three runs with two hits. Floyd Baker made three hits.

Bowlers Battle It Out For Title In Masters Meet

CHICAGO (UP)—A select group of bowlers fought it out for the Masters Invitational Tournament on Coliseum Alleys today while entrants in the American Bowling Congress marathon meet failed again to unseat the leaders.

The ABC, now in the last days of its three-month existence, has not produced a change in the leaders in the first four division since early April.

Monday's best scores were turned in by Wesley Peterson, Chicago in singles with a 698 and Michael Walensa and Arthur Stuhl, Chicago, with 1208 in doubles.

In the star-studded masters field, nationally known teaglers fell by the wayside in a surge of upsets.

Dick Hoover, Akron, O. former national match game champion and ABC titleholder, lost to Ed Brostus, Chicago. June McMahon, Fairlawn, N.J. twice national match game champion went out at the hands of Bill Blanks, Seattle, Wash., and Ned Day, West Allis, Wis., holder of a carload of crowns, was defeated by Curtis Minten, Menomonee Falls, Wis.

Golfers Try To Beat Boros On Big Golf Day Saturday

By JULIUS BOROS
U.S. Open Golf Champion
LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (UP)—I beat Fearless Frayley

Come Saturday, 120,000 golfers are going out on what Life Magazine has designated as "National Golf Day" to try to beat me and win bronze medals which say: "I beat Julius Boros."

But, as I said, I'm off to a flying start. I beat Fearless Frayley at Deepdale today and, while I don't believe it is a victory which will be embellished in bronze, the odds against me Saturday now are only 119,999 to one.

It wasn't easy.

To win this one, my main idea was to come out of it alive. It was a triumph attesting more to my endurance and agility than to my golfing prowess. You won't really understand this unless you have played with old Fearless.

There is a man who defies all natural laws of both golf and gravity. From his boomerang drive right up to his palpitating putter, the best way to describe him is "menace." The only spot you're safe in over 150 yards away, because in 18 holes he never once hit one farther than that.

But then, even at a distance of 150 yards you aren't really safe. Because old Fearless can wind up and leave a putter farther than Sam Snead ever hit a drive. I've seen him who laid eggs farther than Frayley's drives, but if Tommy Bolt wants to risk the club throwing world championship, I've got an 8 to 5 favorite to dethrone him in old Fearless.

Modesty forbids my mentioning that I had a 68, which is five under par at Deepdale. Things are going to be a lot more difficult at Oakmont Country Club in Pittsburgh, where I'll play my National Golf Day round on Saturday.

But I must admit, despite those odds of 119,999 to one, that I anticipate an easier time of it on the weekend. I'll be playing with Lew Worsham and, this time, I'll be fairly certain of escaping injury if I stay in back of the player. Today no spot with his radius of 150 yards was bombproof.

Special Tax Problems Will Someday Be Heard

By REX CHANEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Get ready, those of you with special tax problems. A congressional committee soon will listen to them.

Such problems as:
Working wives and working widows who have the expense of a baby-sitter...

Hard-pressed fathers with a son and-or a daughter in college... Families with abnormally high medical expenses...

These are among the groups who have complained to their congressmen that they aren't getting a fair break in federal income taxes. The House Ways and Means Committee, which originates all tax legislation, will be ready to hear their suggestions and recommendations in a series of tax revision meetings starting June 16.

The committee wants it clearly understood, however, that it will not consider such basic matters as individual and corporation income tax rates, individual income tax exemptions generally, or the excess profits tax on corporations.

In the case of working wives and widows, the question will be whether any or all of the expenses of a baby-sitter should be deductible for income tax purposes. Should they be considered business expenses.

In the case of a son or a daughter in college, the question is whether father should be entitled to a special concession from Uncle Sam—perhaps an extra $600 exemption. Also, if a teacher goes to summer school in order to better her chances for promotion, should she be given special consideration for her additional expenses? The committee is ready to hear the evidence on that.

Some taxpayers have complained that the present restrictions on deductions for medical expenses are too stringent. They feel that they should be permitted to deduct all medical expenses, not just those allowed under present law. Existing law says the taxpayer can deduct only those expenses that exceed five percent of gross income, up to a maximum of 20 percent.

These and many other problems will be taken up by the committee in hearings that may continue, at intervals, for several months. Chairman Daniel A. Reed, (R-N.Y.) hopes to have a bill ready to present to the House early next year embodying such changes in the law as the committee approves.

Believe Mother Put The Torch To 3 Children

ATLANTA, Ill. (UP)—Authorities said today they believed a mother, who hated her young son, put the torch to the boy, two other children and herself in a murder-suicide plot.

They quoted the grief-stricken father as saying the woman "hated the sight of the little boy" because his birth had been difficult and he was delivered by caesarian section.

The charred bodies of Mrs. Esther Pauline Foley and her children, Michael Lee, 5, Mary Lou, 3, and Frances Gale, 10 months, were found in a burned garage and tool shed near their farm home Monday.

Logan County Sheriff Clair W. Smith said "it evidently was a murder-suicide although we don't know quite how she did it yet."

"We are not through with our investigation — and we are not quite satisfied," he added. Smith was asked if there was any evidence that the 23-year old mother had tied her children in the shed and answered "that's what we've been looking for so hard."

He said containers of gasoline and other inflammable liquids had been stored in the shed. Mrs. Foley's 66-year-old husband, Don, told Smith and County Coroner Donald G. Holland that the woman had previously threatened to kill her children and herself. Foley said his wife's dislike of Michael Lee arose from her difficulties during his birth.

Four other Foley children escaped death in the blazing garage. They were at school at the time of the tragedy.

Begin Hunt For Missing Plane

NEW YORK (UP)—Coast Guard Air Force and Civil Air Patrol rescue planes began a search along the New England coast today for a twin-engine private plane missing with three persons aboard, including a reporter for the New York Herald Tribune.

The plane disappeared Monday on a flight from Princeton, N.J., to Westerly, R.I. It was believed to have turned away from the Westerly Airport because of fog and headed back toward Princeton.

Passengers aboard the plane were Mrs. Bernard Peyton Sr., of Princeton, wife of the president of the New York Air Brake Co., and her son, Bernard Peyton Jr., 25, a reporter and feature writer for the Herald Tribune. The pilot of the Beechcraft plane, owned by the elder Peyton, was Arthur Muhs of Pennington, N.J.

Peyton Sr. said his wife and son were flying to visit Mrs. Peyton's mother, Mrs. Malcolm Anderson of Watch Hill, R.I.

Germans near Seicheprey, France. A counter-attack rescued them after 80 had been killed, 150 taken prisoner and 400 wounded. Each year, on the anniversary of the battle, city officials take part in a ceremony on New Haven green.

'Thursday night I prepared my accident—By that time, you understand, I knew my son was rotten and beyond help, and I wanted to repay the three of them for what they had done to me. I had fixed a small charge of dynamite in a crag near the edge of the cliff. I made Harry go for a walk with me, so that later there would be no doubt that I was missing, and got into an argument with him. He left me in a rage, and I continued to stare a piece of my jacket and fixed it on a nearby branch.'

'Yes,' Brindle put in. 'Frances found it later that night.' Ranson straightened. 'Then I stayed out of sight and kept reading the newspapers, of course, this cost my son's life, but perhaps it was better that way.'

'Tell me,' Ranson asked, smiling again, 'how did you know I was alive?' Brindle smiled, too. 'I suspected it from the first. The old man's body was discovered about eighty-five miles south of here. Your 'accident' took place on Thursday night. The body was discovered late Sunday, three days later. Unless you were fitted with an outboard motor, you couldn't have gotten very far—certainly nothing like eighty-five miles. Rocks and seaweed, for one thing, would have slowed you up.'

'Do the police realize that?' 'Probably,' Brindle answered. 'But they haven't the slightest notion what to do about it.' Ranson laughed. He shuffled the items before him. A moment later Brindle saw his veined hand cross the glass fence, and it had money in it. 'Good luck to you, Mr. Brindle.'

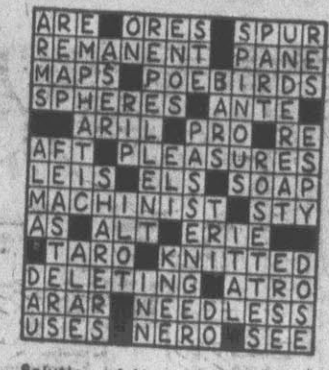

Brindle stepped into his apartment. He hadn't yet counted the money. Almost before he could close the door after him, the phone rang. He walked across the room and picked up the receiver. 'Hello.' It was Sally, and she was angry. 'Max, I suppose you know I got fired. You've either got to give me a job or marry me.'

He looked at the uncounted money in his hand. It looked like a considerable amount. Maybe he could afford a secretary. 'Okay, baby you've got a job.' He could almost hear her snizzle. 'You beast!' she cried. 'What?' The phone was dead. She had hung up.

He walked into the bedroom, wondering what he'd said that had annoyed her. He'd offered her the job. What was she kicking about? As he was taking off his shoes, the answer penetrated his mind. For a detective, fella, something inside was saying, you're awfully dumb about women. He told the voice to chase itself. He pulled the shades, undressed and went to bed. He'd count the money tomorrow. (THE END.)

Lower taxes and fire insurance rates are not the only ways in which this city has profited from its volunteer company. It also has a $75,000 park and recreation center, constructed and paid for by the firemen.

No Change Wanted
The park features a lighted softball diamond, a full playground and equipment, wading pools for the children and a craft house where adults and youths alike can apply their hobbies or bring their painting.

"There is nothing like this side of Memphis," said Cliff Langford, editor of the Blount County Commercial. "It didn't cost the city a cent. The firemen solicited funds and did all the work personally."

There were some suggestions recently that the city should be "progressive" and inaugurate a full-time fire service. The clamor against the proposal was immediate and spontaneous.

"We can't think of a better way to save taxpayers money and have fun at the same time," Langford summed it up.

Reds Talk Peace While Building Tools Of War

By PHIL NEWBOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

The Reds talk "peace," but there is no sign yet of any dismantling of their enormous war machine.

Red industry beats out more swords than plowshares, and the youth of Russia and Red-dominated Eastern Europe learn to pull the trigger before learning the virtues of the straight furrow.

The Communist organization which rules by minority depends on force to keep itself in power. Much of its strength inevitably must be directed against its own people. So the existence of a massive war machine is not necessarily proof of aggressive intent against the rest of the world.

However, it does not seem the handmaiden of peace and the steady build up of Red armed strength seems especially out of line with the Red "peace offensive," and the simultaneous reduction of armament programs in the United States and Europe.

Military sources in NATO and in Yugoslavia say the entire Communist camp is continuing at top speed the reorganization and modernization of its armies begun late in 1949.

In addition, the last few years have brought a spectacular build-up in the Russian Navy, which in size is now second only to that of the United States.

Town Lacks, And Has No Need For Fire Department

CLEVELAND, Miss. (U.P.)—This bustling little delta city of 7,000 does not have a single fireman on its payroll and spends nothing for fire protection.

Yet it leads cities in its class in fire safety and it has the lowest fire insurance rate granted by the National Association of Fire Underwriters. And it has a fire department which would cost any other city $100,000 a year to equip and maintain.

The fire department here not only is composed entirely of volunteers but also of men who pay $1 annually for the privilege of belonging.

Its members are the city's most prominent, wealthy and respected citizens—headed by Mayor F.L. Bishop.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK, (UP)—Stocks declined slightly early today in slow deal/wid

All departments joined in the modest sell-off. With the exception of a few stocks, losses were limited to small fractions.

Trading was at a snail's pace. Sales in the first hour totaled only 210,000 shares, the same as in the initial hour yesterday. Investors generally held off making any further commitments pending President Eisenhower's budget-tax message tonight.

Atlantic Coast Line showed one of the widest changes. It slipped 1 1/2 points to 102 1/2. Other carriers did very little.

Chrysler was a weak spot, falling to a new low of 75 1/2, off a point. General Motors eased.

Steel shares held within a narrow range. Youngstown Sheet & Tube firmed. Bethlehem Steel was off 1/4 to 52 1/4, and U.S. Steel also eased.

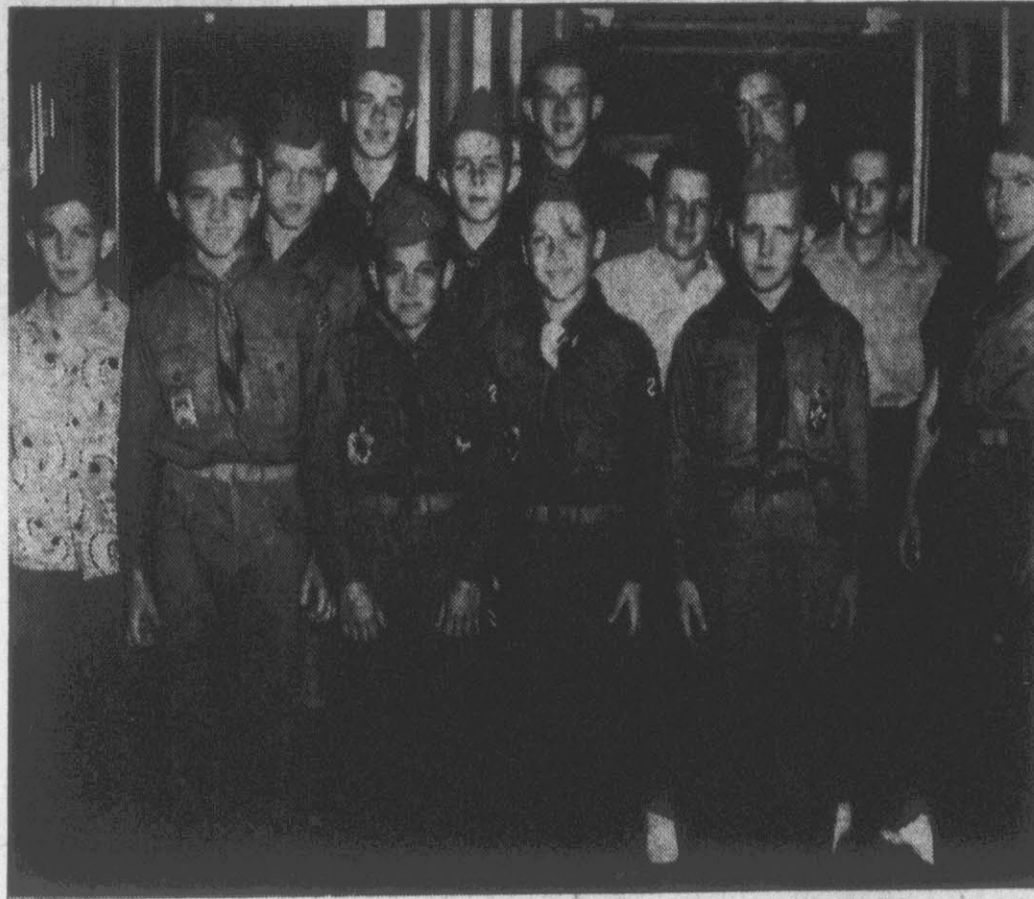

Small gains were noted in Woolworth, Boeing Aircraft, Allied Chemical and Kennecott Copper.

Scout Patrols Are Theater Guests

Two patrols of Winterville's Boy Scout Troop 200, under the leadership of Mark McLawhorn, were guests of the Colony Theatre yesterday. All Pitt County Boy Scout patrols who received blue ribbons at the Tarboro Camporee were invited as guests of the theatre. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee.)

Pitt SPCA Unit Elects Officers

By CHESTER WALSH

The Pitt county unit of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals at its annual meeting at the City Hall last night elected Mrs. J. Lindsay Savage president.

Bill Drum is the retiring president. Mrs. W. L. Allen was elected vice-president; Mrs. D. H. Conley, secretary, and Jonathan Overton, treasurer. Directors are: Bill Drum, chairman; Dr. Walter C. Humbert, W. G. Smith, Dr. C. F. Keuzenkamp, Mrs. F. G. Copeland, W. Arthur Tripp, Mrs. Arthur Tripp and Miss Ada Jones. Dr. Joseph Batesman and Dr. Alex Viola will serve as advisors.

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Pitt county health officer, discussed the city-county program started last September to control rabies and to insure vaccination against hydrophobia in all dogs in the county.

"The new registration of dogs in the county," he said, "requires a current valid vaccination certificate of dogs and the registration system now is on a calendar year basis."

The health officer reported a successful county-wide clinic conducted by three Pitt county veterinarians from April 1 through May 11. It is estimated that 3,200 dogs in the county were vaccinated against rabies, bringing the total number of dogs vaccinated during the year to 4,100.

Dr. Humbert said a house-to-house survey now is being made to determine ownership of an estimated 2,000 dogs that have not been vaccinated. The speaker described the humane method of disposing of diseased or injured or wounded dogs at the county dog pound. Willie Bell of Belvoir is the county humane officer.

Humbert cited some instances in which rabies epidemics caused by mad dogs had been devastating. He described a new serum used by the medical profession on people bitten by mad dogs, and said it is much safer to use. The speaker emphasized the point that if a dog is immunized against rabies, every year it is considered to be adequately protected against rabies.

The SPCA group last night gave a vote of thanks to Elisha E. Jones, humane officer for the city of Greenville for excellent service. President Savage announced that the next meeting of the SPCA will be held the first Monday in October. At that time she said, the members will start a program to solicit new sustaining members of the society. The main objective of the SPCA is support enforcement of laws against cruelty and bad treatment of animals. It was stated. Mrs. Chester Walsh served as secretary for the meeting.

Upward Trend Of Business Said Running Strong

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Commerce Department reported to the upward trend of U. S. business activity is still "strong."

Most lines of business are enjoying the "usual" springtime lift. The department said in its May "survey of current business."

Department economists reported manufacturers are selling virtually everything they produce, and producers of goods for civilians use are receiving new orders at a rate which matches the high rate of selling.

The survey said the pile-up of produced goods in inventories has been "comparatively small," in contrast to last October, November and December, when production was rising rapidly but much was going onto the shelves.
