

Rep. Bonner Sees Frequent Clashes Inside GOP Ahead

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor Rep. Herbert G. Bonner predicted here today that the basic political ideas of President Eisenhower and leaders within the Republican Party will clash often during the next four years.

"It seems to be a question of whose ideas prevail during the present administration, the president's or Ben. Robert A. Taft's," the First District congressman said this morning while enroute through Greenville to attend the John Pierce Fellowship gathering on Contentnea Creek.

"President Eisenhower's fundamental political philosophy and thinking is more in line with the past administration than that entertained by party leaders," Congressman Bonner pursued. "The president has a cabinet and congressional leadership which thinks one way, while he himself thinks another."

Essentially, he went on, members of the cabinet and leaders of the party have shown by their statements they favor big business and think very little about the rank and file of citizens.

The congressman, who drove down from Washington yesterday and plans to return tonight, commented briefly on President Eisenhower's most recent address to the country made last night. He said even the president's cabinet was not acting in line with his policies.

In regard to the president's endorsement of extending the excess profits tax, Congressman Bonner declared, "I had hoped he (the president) would let excess profits last year lapse; it works undue hardship on newly-established businesses. He added, however, that it is not too

Early Tax Relief Dead; Eisenhower

By MERRIMAN SMITH United Press White House Writer WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower told the American people Tuesday night that his hopes for early tax relief have been dashed by "Communist guns" and Democratic "waste."

In a nationwide radio broadcast, he blamed Russia and the former Truman administration for forcing him to ask Congress to maintain present tax rates until next year, even though he considers them "too high."

His 30-minute speech was a direct appeal for public support of the five-point tax program which he will submit to Congress in a formal message soon, perhaps today. The program calls for a six-month extension of the excess profits tax now due to expire June 30; indefinite postponement of the cuts in excise and corporation ingress enacts his tax program. He declined to promise a balanced budget by any specific date, declaring that his efforts to achieve one "will depend on some gradual improvement in the world situation." He held out no hope for an early easing of East-West tensions.

"There has been, to this moment, no reason to believe that Soviet policy has changed his frequently announced hope and purpose—the destruction of freedom everywhere," he said. "We live in an age of peril."

This country therefore has no choice but "to arm and be ready for the worst." Mr. Eisenhower said his recent "carefully calculated" cuts in defense spending were based, not on any optimism about the motives of Russia's new leaders, but on the grim realization that the danger of war may hang over the world "for a long — an indefinite — period of time." This country must tailor its defense program to that long haul, he said, lest it spend itself into bankruptcy and hand Russia a bloodless victory in the global struggle between freedom and Red tyranny.

This was Mr. Eisenhower's first direct report to the people. He spoke from the renovated and ancient kitchen in the basement of the White House, surrounded by heavy curtains to kill the bouncing sound off the masonry walls of the room.

After his radio speech, he appeared on the television networks in a filmed, capsule version of the speech. In this sequence, he summed up his program simply: "What we are trying to do today is to find a program of security that costs the least, and then

Polish Pilot In Russian MIG-15 Flies To Freedom

ROENNE, Bornholm Island (UP)—A daring Polish pilot crash-landed his Russian-made MIG-15 jet plane in a clump of trees on the strategic Danish island today in a flight to freedom from communism.

Had the MIG landed in South Korea, the pilot would have collected $100,000. Gen. Mark Clark, Far Eastern United Nations commander, has offered $50,000 to any Red pilot who hands over an undamaged MIG to the Allies in Korea and a $50,000 bonus to the first one to do so.

The young lieutenant, second Polish airman to land a MIG on Bornholm in two months, broke away from a formation of jet planes over the Baltic Sea in making his dramatic escape.

He circled the island for 35 minutes before picking out what he thought was a safe place to land. The pilot set the heavily-armed jet plane down on a rocky field. The MIG bounced crazily, hopped across a road and crashed into a grove.

The pilot pulled himself uninjured from the cockpit and immediately asked troops from Almgard who ringed the area to grant him political asylum. He spoke in Polish, the only language he knew. Eyewitnesses said the plane's wheels were down when they saw it zoom over the camp. The pilot swung out to sea then returned and tried to land in a rock-filled field.

The plane bounced on the rocks and hopped over a road before crashing into a small grove. One of the jet plane's wings was broken but no other visible damage was noticed.

Troops at the camp were alerted when the MIG roared overhead. It was the second Russian-made jet to land on this island. Last March 5, Polish Lt. Franciszek Jarecki flew the first MIG-15 to freedom, setting it down here and asking for political asylum.

During the next three days Poland sent three angry notes to Denmark demanding return of the plane, but the Danes rejected the protests on the ground that Jarecki acted voluntarily.

Fear 'Whammy' Faces Jamming

JACKSON, Miss. (UP)—Mississippi highway patrolmen feared today their up to date method of detecting speeders may run into trouble.

Patrol officials said they had been warned that some drivers were trying to use short wave transmitters to "jam" the patrol's radar detection service.

Firemen Slowed By City Council

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UP)—Hardware store proprietors checked their stocks of fire extinguishers today.

The San Jose City Council has ordered a 10-mile per hour speed limit for fire trucks on certain residential streets.

Heroic Rescuer May Get Mumps

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Patrolman Robert Vienot braving smoke and flames which overcame 20 firemen, dashed into a burning apartment house and emerged unscathed with a small boy in his arms.

Then Vienot was ordered to a hospital for observation. The boy had the mumps.

Congress Reluctant To Hold Off Tax Cuts Another Year Eisenhower Leadership Facing Test

By REX CHANEY United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower faced a major test of his political leadership today in trying to persuade a reluctant Congress to hold off tax cuts until next year.

High-ranking Republicans and Democrats of both houses pledged their support of his five-point tax program, which would add about $1,000,000,000 to the government's income during the 1954 fiscal year. But there were rumblings of revolt from many rank and file members of the President's own party, who feel they are politically committed to early tax relief. The disappointed GOP lawmakers drew little comfort from Mr. Eisenhower's statement that he is willing to let a 10 per cent cut in personal income taxes take effect Jan. 1, as scheduled under present law.

The consensus was that Mr. Eisenhower's proposals for extension of the excess profits tax and postponement of scheduled drops in corporation and excise taxes will encounter mighty tough sledding in the house, where all members are up for reelection next year.

Mr. Eisenhower spelled out his tax plans in a nationwide radio broadcast Tuesday night. Mr. Eisenhower said that even the limited tax relief he proposed for next year "would not have been possible but for the economies that have been made and are being made by this administration."

The President said it would not be prudent to cut personal income taxes before Jan. 1, as has been proposed by Chairman Daniel

French Smash Mass Attack By Vietnam Reds

HANOI, Indochina. (UP)—French and Viet Nam troops smashed a new mass Communist attack today on the vital French "Maginot Line" defenses south of Hanoi.

The assault by Vietminh rebel forces was their second large-scale attempt in a week to breach the steel-and-concrete defense works guarding the rice-rich Hanoi delta.

The French high command said tank-supported French union forces beat back the new attack early today at Duc Khe, 30 miles south of Hanoi, after a six-hour battle.

A command spokesman said the French position was assaulted by several battalions of the crack Vietminh 320th Division.

The enemy retreated from Duc Khe, leaving numerous dead in mine fields and barbed wire entanglements surrounding the French bastion.

The action was fought only two miles from Yen Vi, another French position in the Indochinese "Maginot" fortification line which was attacked by Communist troops last week-end.

The French routed the attack on Yen Vi Sunday and inflicted "terrible losses" on the 5,000-man attacking Red force.

The new French victory on the Red River line came as two fresh enemy divisions were reported advancing from Thai country bases, northwest of here, to join the battle for the strategic Hanoi delta.

Doubtful Of Defense Cut

WASHINGTON (UP)—Democrats adopted a "you've still got to show us" attitude today toward the administration's claim that it can give the nation more air power for less money.

Their concern over deep cuts in the Air Force budget was not eased by new assurances from President Eisenhower and Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

In a nationwide radio broadcast Tuesday night, Mr. Eisenhower conceded "calculated risks" were involved in the programs of all three armed services but said "we are giving major emphasis on air power."

Almost 60 per cent of all defense funds for the fiscal year beginning July 1, he said, will be used to promote a "steady growth in the size and efficiency" of the Air Force and naval air arm.

Wilson told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee Tuesday that in spite of spending cuts the administration planned to boost the numerical strength of the Air Force by 30 per cent and increase its "combat effectiveness" even more. He was recalled for further questioning at 2:30 p.m. e.d.t. today.

Eisenhower Invited By 'Sir Winnie' For Visit

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill invited President Dwight D. Eisenhower today to visit Great Britain some time during his term in the White House.

A questioner asked Churchill in the House of Commons about inviting the President here to help reconcile Anglo-American differences.

"Few things would give more pleasure to her majesty's government and the British people than that President Eisenhower should visit us in these islands, as he so often did during the war," Churchill said.

"And I earnestly hope that this great event may occur during his tenure of the presidency of the United States."

Churchill paused and continued: "If I thought there was any chance of his being able to detach himself."

At this point he was interrupted by a shout of "McCarthy!" from a Labor member, referring to Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin. Churchill hesitated seeming not to understand what had been said. Then, amid cheers, he said: "I did not drag him (McCarthy) in. I think it is a great mistake to mix up the head of the great American republic with a politician or a

Fourth Pitt Traffic Death For This Year

AYDEN—Pitt County recorded its fourth highway traffic death of 1953 yesterday when a 41-year-old farmer died of injuries suffered when he was knocked from his bicycle on NC 102.

Larry Vandford of Route 1, Ayden, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital at 5:10 yesterday afternoon of injuries suffered when he was struck by a car driven by Shirley Kinlaw Dennis, 24-year-old Ayden school teacher.

Patrolman Paul C. Whitley, investigating officer, stated that the fatality occurred just west of Ayden about 1:30 yesterday afternoon.

Whitley quoted the teacher as saying that she attempted to pass the man riding the bicycle when he cut into the path of her car.

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse stated that the man died of internal injuries. The coroner this morning did not know whether an inquest would be held, pending further investigation into the accident.

FELLOWSHIP BOUND—First District Congressman Herbert G. Bonner of Washington was snapped as he visited Greenville this morning enroute to the annual gathering of the John Pierce Fellowship Club on Contentnea Creek. He will drive back to the nation's capital tonight, but while in the city he predicted clashes between President Eisenhower and Republican party leaders during the next four years. Stratojets Revealed Making Historic Distance Flights In Special Missions

WASHINGTON, (UP)—A B-47 Stratojet bomber has made a 12,000-mile nonstop flight in 24 hours to break "all distance and endurance records" for jet aircraft," the Air Force announced today.

Details also were given on two other historic Stratojet missions—the first jet flight over the North Pole and a 3-hour 38-minute west-to-east Atlantic crossing by two of the atom bombers.

On its 12,000-mile flight, the B-47 was refueled three times from tanker planes and dropped a five-ton dummy bomb at the half-way mark to simulate a long-range strategic mission. The test hop, which averaged 600 miles an hour, was carried out over the southern and western United States "last year." It equaled half the distance around the world. The Air Force described these other "firsts" for the six jet medium bombers which are beginning to replace slow piston-engine B-29 Superforts of the Strategic Air Command.

A B-47 made the first jet flight over the North Pole on a roundtrip from Eielson Air Force Base, Alaska, more than a year ago. It was piloted by Col. Richard C. Neely, Salt Lake City, Utah, accompanied by Col. J.G. Foster, New York, co-pilot, and Capt. D.J. Haney, Copperhill, Tenn., a radar operator-navigator.

Two B-47s of the 300th Medium Bombing Wing, MacDill Air Force Base, Tampa, Fla., spanned the ocean from Limestone, Me., to Fairford, England, last month in

3 hours 38 minutes. They averaged 555 MPH on the 3,120-mile flight and were not refueled in flight. The Air Force announced that "several wings" of the Strategic Air Command are now undergoing B-47 training. It said the Stratojet can carry atomic bombs "faster and higher than any other strategic bomber in its class."

B-47s and B-36 Superbombs give the SAC, the announcement said, the ability to "strike swiftly and repeatedly from many bases at target systems of great magnitude."

Air Force plans call for production of more than 2,000 Stratojets at an estimated cost of $5,000,000,000. The number already produced, and those now going through assembly lines may total more than 800.

Legionnaires Elect New Officers; Plan For Installation Ceremony Next Month

Members of Pitt County Post 38 of the American Legion elected by acclamation last night Ed Harris of Greenville to the post's top office of commander.

Harris replaces W. Comor Eagles of Greenville, who has served in the capacity of commander for the past year.

In electing the 32-year-old Harris post members adhered to an unofficial agreement that has existed within the post since the end of World War II — that of choosing a veteran of the second world conflict as commander on alternate years.

Harris, who resides at 409 Hickory Street, served with the Army in the Pacific Theater of operations during the most recent war. He joined the local post in 1947, soon after his discharge from the service.

Active Post During the past year the new commander has served as chairman of the Legion House Policy Committee, and has taken an active part in the renovation of the Legion Home and basement recreation rooms.

Harris and all other new officers elected last night will be installed in official ceremonies jointly with new officers of the post's Ladies' Auxiliary at a meeting next month at the Legion Home. Other officers elected last night are: first vice-commander, Thurman Dail of Greenville; second vice-commander, Sidney Moore of Bethel; third vice-commander, Asa Moore of Winterville; adjutant, C.E. "Polly" Williams; treasurer, J.K.

Hester; service officer, Louis W. Gaylord, Jr.; sergeant-at-arms, Rob Jones; chaplain, Dr. H.G. Haney; and historian, Jess Poindexter.

Post members voted last night to empower all local legionnaires who attend the State Convention at Wilmington in June to cast the post's vote, each member standing to be designated a delegate and to cast a proportionate part of the total vote.

Grave Decoration Sam Whitehurst, chairman of the Grave Decorations Committee, reported at the meeting that preparations are now being made to decorate the graves of deceased veterans who are buried in various cemeteries throughout Pitt County.

"We have been able to locate 192 graves of veterans who have been killed in action, died of wounds or who passed away after being discharged," Whitehurst stated. "Next Saturday, May 30, is Memorial Day, and that morning all the graves on our records will be decorated."

The importance of holding a Memorial Day Service in the city Saturday morning was discussed last night, and outgoing Commander W.C. Eagles appointed a committee to work out details of such a memorial service. The committee is composed of Dr. H.G. Haney as chairman, and members Coop Williams, Lester

Tribute Is Paid To Farmville Teacher

FARMVILLE—At its meeting last week at Wrightsville Beach, the Woman's Club convention paid tribute to Miss Annie Perkins, one of Farmville's best loved ladies who attended the assembly as a delegate from the Literary Club.

The tribute was read by Mrs. Tommy Tucker, president of the Junior Woman's Club at the request of convention officials.

The tribute follows:
"To mold the minds and character of young children is a great calling. I am happy for the privilege of paying tribute to one who for half a century trained little minds in their first school year—Miss Annie Perkins of Farmville: teacher, club woman, churchwoman, and a public-minded citizen."
"She has built her own monument in the hearts of approximately 4500 children who were under her tutelage, and made for herself a special place in the hearts of the parents of these children who, representing three generations, began their quest for knowledge under her capable direction."

"She taught school in Pitt County for 50 years and in Farmville 43 of these years without losing a day on account of illness; however, she did absent herself from school to attend district meetings and North Carolina State Federation meetings."
"On May 22, 1946 Farmville threw open wide its gates to a throng of men, women and children to pay a tribute of love, honor, and high esteem to one known by all affectionately as "Miss Annie." Dignitaries of national prominence spoke and in observance of her day, the school had a half-holiday."

"In 1921 the school board in recognition of her long and faithful service desiring to perpetuate her memory and achievements, gave the name "Perkins Hall" to the beautiful auditorium in the new school building and had an oil painting of her placed there."
"Two great loves of Miss Annie's life are, teaching and club work locally, and in the district and in the State Federation. She was a charter member of the Farmville Magazine Club, now Farmville Literary Club organized in 1904 and federated in 1910."

"She was one of the organizers in 1920 of the 10th District, now the 15th and served as its first president. She has been president of the Farmville Literary Club several times and of the Woman's Club there. For three years she was recording secretary of the State Federation; has been its Finance chairman; and is at present on the Sallie Southall Cotton Loan Fund Board."

"We of Farmville, the Farmville Literary Club, the Junior Woman's Club, the Social Service League, the 15th District and the State Federation are proud to pay her homage tonight for her loyalty as a teacher, clubwoman and Christian."

"We here are very happy that Miss Annie is being honored so and now Mrs. Munn will present her award."

Each morning when the boys board the bus in front of their home the lambs try to join them. Such goings-on are for girls named Mary—not for boys. Hence the abrupt pitchout. (AP Wirephoto.)

20 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
May 20, 1933

At the meeting of the Kiwanis Club Friday night, President Fitzgerald turned the program over to Kiwanian Henry Rivers who presented Dr. R. H. Wright, president of the Teachers College. He told of the progress since its first session of 1909. He covered the approximate cost and location of the new dormitories, gymnasium, library and the homes to be erected for the members of the faculty. At the completion of the present program, which covers a period of two years, the institution will be able to take care of 712 students.
Closs Hearn being a visitor to the club was asked to give a little information relative to the city's proposed recreation center which is to be placed on Fifth Street beside the high school building. He stated that if present plans are carried out and there was no doubt but what they would be, that in the early fall the playgrounds would be ready for the equipment that the Kiwanis Club had pledged themselves to be responsible for.

Bundy Will Speak At Five Events

FARMVILLE—Sam D. Bundy, Farmville High School principal, will have a series of five speaking engagements next week of which three are at commencement exercises.

County Schools See Record Number Of Graduates For Term Just Ended

By MURIEL SHOTWELL
Reflector Staff Writer

Approximately 400 Negro and white boys and girls received their diplomas this week from the schools of Pitt County, making this graduation one of the largest on record.

The boys and girls of Pitt County schools, dressed in caps and gowns, marched down the aisles in the auditoriums of their respective schools Monday night to receive their diplomas and the good wishes of school officials and teachers.

This year there were 257 graduates from the white schools of the county and 130 graduates in the Negro schools. From the white schools, it is estimated that more than 125 of the students will further their education in colleges, professional or trade schools.

D. J. Conley, superintendent of the Pitt County schools, today expressed his appreciation to the people of the county for their interest in the schools.

"During the school term just ended there has been much evidence of increased public interest in the schools of Pitt County," he said. "This interest has been apparent in our several communities through programs designed to improve the instructional program, school plant, and other agencies related to the school. The people of Pitt County have given generous support to the various school programs offered to the public. The attendance has been most gratifying."

The school superintendent also commented on the schools' graduation exercises by saying they were featured by talks by outstanding leaders in education and community improvement programs.

"Large and enthusiastic audiences

Graduation exercises at Belvoir-Falkland High School Monday night were representative of the same scenes which appeared at other high schools in the county Monday evening. Approximately 400 Negro and white students received diplomas from the county schools and some of them plan to further their education at colleges, trade schools, and professional schools. Bruce Joyner, most improvement in ninth grade scholarship; Gray Heath, most improvement in 10th grade scholarship; Jean Melton, most improvement in 11th grade scholarship; and Craig Harris, most improvement in 12th grade scholarship.

Gerald Davis received the award for the most improvement in Spanish which was given by Mrs. J. I. Morgan in memory of her husband. Faye Mewborn received the award for the most improvement in math which was given by J. Y. Monk Jr. in memory of his father and mother.

The DAR Citizenship Award, presented by the Major Benjamin May Chapter of Farmville was given to Jean Moore. The Danforth Foundation Awards to the most outstanding boy and girl were given to Charles Fitzgerald and Jean Moore.

Charles Fitzgerald also received a $25.00 cash award from the Farmville Rotary Club as the "best all round." The most improvement and best project work in home economics, a $10.00 cash award, was presented to Shirley Gray.

Piano awards went to the following: Noel Lang, most improvement in elementary grades; Carolyn Harris, most improvement in grades eight through 12; and Linda Mewborn, best performance in piano for elementary grades.

The awards were presented by school principal S. D. Bundy.

Young Air Force Man Arrested For Bad Checks

A 21-year-old Air Force man was arrested Monday for the wave of forged checks passed in the Greenville area in the latter part of 1952.

Arrested was William F. Ruffin, 21, of 304 Magnolia Street, Goldsboro, now home on leave.

He was taken into custody by Goldsboro city detective Archie Colter and held for Greenville police officers who went to Wayne County to serve the eight warrants on the man charging him with the alleged forgeries.

Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs this morning said that the man was a former East Carolina student, and was attending school here at the time the checks were being passed.

However, before the passer could be apprehended by local police he left town, quitting school and went into the Air Force, Gibbs said.

The checks were for varying amounts, ranging from $5 to $25.00. All told, the checks amounted to $130.

The checks were passed on local merchants from October through December of last year.

Ruffin was released under a $2,000 bond which was posted for his appearance here in City Recorder's Court.

Junior Guild Of Rocky Mount Will Sponsor Antique Show May 26, 27

ROCKY MOUNT — The Rocky Mount Junior Guild will sponsor an antique show at the Home Demonstration Curb Market at Braswell Park next Tuesday and Wednesday, May 26 and 27.

The show will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mrs. Hugh Battle, Jr., general chairman, said this will be the largest antique show held in Rocky Mount in a long time. She said 15 dealers from Eastern Carolina will have displays of antique furniture, silver and bric-a-brac. A collection of silver from London, England, will be on display.

Proceeds of the antique show will go to the Junior Guild Building Fund for the Children's Museum, temporarily located on Church Street. Building plans are now under way to move the museum to Sunset Park. The museum is open to the public without charge. It houses exhibits of wild life studies and various animals, Indian relics, furnished doll houses and exhibits of special interest to children.

The museum is visited by children of other cities and out-of-state tourists. Publicity Chairman Mrs. Sue M. Hayworth stated.

children, Bill and Earle, left Sunday for a trip to Key West, Florida. They will visit on their return with Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Tucker at Tampa, Fla.

Mrs. Edward Williams, Mrs. Francis Townsend and daughter Kay of Wallace were the weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Josh Worthington.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Cox, Mrs. L. O. Cox, Billy, Steven and David Cox spent the weekend at their cottage at South River.

Strength for the Day

THE POWER OF TRUST
Everybody likes to be trusted. Mention has been made before in this column of the unsophisticated elderly woman who, finding herself in a disreputable section of a big city one evening and feeling that she would be robbed, handed her pocketbook over to a burly chap who gave every evidence of being a thief, and asked him to keep it for her until she returned. Of course he did. The old girl was a wise psychologist. She knew that people like to be trusted—even thieves.
A woman who had spent much of her life in Egypt, recently told a story bearing on this same point. She had arranged for a certain trustworthy Egyptian to bring her little daughter home from school each evening in a taxi. One evening when there was a mix-up and the child's arrival was delayed, the mother went to the taxi center. There she confronted the worst-looking lot of cut-throats anybody ever saw. When she inquired about the little girl (who by the way came home a few minutes later), everybody was voluble with information. Practically every driver had at some time or other driven the little girl home and pride was written over the face of each man that this American mother should trust her little daughter with him—which of course was anything but true.
The outstanding fact of the Christian religion is that God trusts us, and in so doing trusts the unworthy.

Another Milestone For The Class Of '53

This week and next week almost one thousand young men and women in Pitt County will mark another milestone in their lives.

For many the milestone will mark the end of their formal education, and the beginning of the process of carving a niche for themselves in the world of adults. For others it will mark the end of their high school days and the beginning of a tour of study in institutions of higher learning to fit them for their life's work.

To all those younger citizens who are members of the graduating class of 1953, The Reflector offers its congratulations. Many have distinguished themselves in scholastic work and in leadership. All have distinguished themselves in the process of maturing and taking advantage of the educational opportunities which have been offered. They represent another crop of youngsters who are putting on the garments of adulthood, and will gradually assume the responsibilities for their communities and their nation as it is passed down from aging hands.

At East Carolina College 316 graduates already have been awarded their diplomas. Throughout the Pitt County administrative school system some 400 high school seniors have been graduated as members of the class of 1953. Within a relatively few days they will be joined by more than 100 other seniors who will graduate from the two high schools in Greenville.

As these graduates adjust themselves to the new stage of life in which they find themselves, they must remember that their responsibilities to their fellow men and to their communities are of extreme importance. They have learned to assume responsibilities in their years of learning, and gradually they will be asked and expected to assume heavier responsibilities—not only personal responsibilities, but responsibilities of the community as well.

To the graduating seniors we wish good-speed and a pleasant journey through the years and decades which lie before them. The challenges are here to be met, and the opportunities are there to be accepted and exploited.

Last Chapter In 'The Klan Saga'

What should be the last chapter in the sordid story of revived Ku Klux Klan activities in North Carolina has been written. In U. S. district court this week Judge Don Gilliam found 19 men guilty of kidnapping and flogging as a result of Klan activities. Seven received prison terms in the district court and seven others were put on probation. Five more men already serving time for their Klan activities were given sentences to run concurrently with those they are now serving.

North Carolina's fight against the revived, white-robed Klan in the past two years has been a remarkable one. The dispersement and utter devastation of efforts to rebuild the organization into a modern terrorizing group is a feat in which the citizens as a whole in North Carolina can take pride.

It was two years ago when the hooded men began anew their nightriding and flogging in a few sections of the state. Generally the people of the state were quick to rise up against it. Officers of every branch of the law enforcement agencies in the state combined their efforts with federal authorities to stamp out the creeping cancer of terrorism which reared its head in Tar Heels.

Even in Pitt County—where fortunately there was no move toward kidnapping or floggings—the letters KKK, the significant cross and threatening notes appeared in several individual instances. They proved to be the work of a few individuals rather than a concerted effort on the part of any group. Fortunately they amounted to little and were quickly cleared up by law enforcement officers.

The attempt to resurrect the Klan in North Carolina brought indignation from the vast majority of the citizens of the state. That plus the diligent work by law enforcement officers, and the firm hand of the court put an end to the terrorism the hooded men attempted to spread.

It is apparent now that North Carolina has freed itself from the threat of the terrorizing organization. An unflattering saga has been written into the modern history of the state. But now the final chapter is finished.

With it, the Klan has been stamped out once more, and we hope North Carolina never again will have to go through the process of putting down an attempt to revive it.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The Eisenhower reorganization of the national defense establishment and budget constitutes the sternest warning Washington has ever delivered to our European allies that they must assume far heavier responsibilities in the anti-Russian alliance than they now carry.

It has served a not too subtle notice on our friends, especially England, that the United States will give more thought to its own national security than to world commitments in the future. He has swept out men with European service and attachment, replacing them with leaders characterized by Secretary Wilson as "more global-minded."

Three of our new military chiefs—Admirals Arthur W. Radford and Robert B. Carney, and General Nathan Twining—are virtual strangers to London and Paris.

MORE CONCERN FOR ASIA THAN EUROPE—Secretary Wilson himself has explained that military economies will provide a defensive rather than an aggressive force. Although the foreign aid appropriation for Europe still represents the lion's share of that item, the funds allocated for Southeast Asia have been almost doubled as against a cut in the NATO allowance. The totals for England and France have been reduced heavily.

The new Joint Chiefs of Staff have shown more concern for Asia than for Europe, especially Admiral Radford, who heads the new board, and General Twining, who will have charge of the Air Force. Statesmen and military leaders in continental capitals are especially uneasy on this score.

RIDGWAY ANGRERS NATO ASSOCIATES—General Matthew W. Ridgway's service in Japan and Korea is balanced by his World War II assignment to the European theater and his command of NATO. But the new Army Chief of Staff frequently angered those who step up their contributions to the Western defense community. At one time he was the target of a vicious campaign in the press for his removal. Gruenther also has a waspish tongue, although he accompanies his admonitions with a disarming smile that Ridgway does not possess.

INTERPRETATION OF NEW FOREIGN POLICY—The reduction of military funds also determines the nature of the forthcoming output of weapons. It emphasizes the plan to concentrate on new and old armaments of defensive rather than offensive value, as Wilson notes.

Instead of battleships or huge but sacrificial aircraft carriers, large sums will be spent on atomic submarines, which are primarily a defensive arm. Instead of overloading with big costly bombers, which Radford has condemned as "putting all our eggs in one basket," the concentration will be on fast fighters and guided missiles able to repel an attacking fleet or air armada.

The new program will be interpreted abroad as a return to isolationism on this side of the water. Indeed, it already has been so described in confidential exchanges between European embassies here and foreign offices overseas. In reality, it is a friendly but meaningful ultimatum to our lagging and nagging allies.

HUMPHREY NEEDS PUBLICITY ADVISER—Secretary Humphrey and his Treasury staff need a smart publicity adviser, in the opinion of Republican colleagues in the Cabinet and on Capitol Hill. From a political and psychological standpoint, they botched the job in announcing that Uncle Sam would raise the interest rate on long-term bonds to such a high figure as 3 1/4 per cent.

The post has been denounced as a sellout to the bankers by the Democrats, who have made it a partisan issue. The opposition will blame it for heavier charges on every small consumer or buyer in sight. It is a natural, in view of the composition of the "millionaires' Cabinet."

Humphrey could have anticipated and spiked the enemy's guns. He had an easy out. He could have explained—but has not yet—that New York banks and life insurance companies began to curtail loans and increase interest rates weeks before he did. They did so because money is scarcer than it has been in many years. Lenders are turning away business for lack of funds.

Thus, as Humphrey should have noted, his action was an effect rather than a cause, although now he gets the blame for "robbing the poor for the rich."

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.
Our family moved to Greenville in 1928 when I was four years old, and ever since I can remember I've seen Ed Worthington cutting grass. Yesterday I decided it was high time that I wrote about Ed.
He was cutting a lot on the corner of East Fifth and Maple when I talked to him. "Yes, sir," he said. "I've been cutting grass for 25 years."
"Full time?"
"Absolutely," he said. "I figure I make as much doing this as I could anything else."
Ed has raised eight children with this occupation, so it must serve him well. All of his children but two are grown now.
"I usually have more work than I can do," he says. "In fact, it takes me until Christmas to catch up." Ed says that the cold weather doesn't bother him, because he keeps moving around enough to keep stimulated. During his 25 years of yard work he's been sick only twice. "Outdoor work is good for you," he says, "and I think it helps me feel good."
Ed's assortment of yard tools is something to behold. He has 20-odd instruments and most of them have been redesigned by him to meet his needs. For example, he has an ordinary shovel bent into a square shape for cutting grass next to a sidewalk or curbing. He accidentally broke one of his shovels and declares it was the best thing that ever happened. With this tool he can trim around shrubs better than he could with any tool built for the job.
Ed never used a power mower until 1949. He now uses a 20-inch rotary type mower with a two horsepower engine. Originally, he had the reel type but found that the rotary type was much more practical because it will cut higher grass.
With his rotary mower Ed can cut grass so that it will not be necessary to rake it. The trick is simply this: He makes one sweep of the grass in the normal forward direction. Then, on the next sweep he goes backward, which not only cuts but spreads the grass previously cut so that no raking is necessary.
Ed says, "I was the first man in Greenville to make a full-time job of yard work." He has many customers that he has been serving for most of the 25 years he's been in the business. Ed seems to enjoy his work and the results he gets show that he is enthusiastic about doing a good job on every yard. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET
APPOINTMENTS—Governor Umstead has pretty well caught up with the major executive appointments required to be made by statutes enacted in 1953 and previous sessions of the General Assembly. There remain half a dozen individual and several multiple board appointments to be made before July 1. None is expected to be announced this week, because the Governor is leaving a few days off from the job.

VACATION—To some folks it might seem strange that he would need a "vacation" since he has not been in his office due to a heart attack three days after his inauguration in early January. Those who know how much work he has done from his bed and sitting room, under the handicap of doctor's orders not to do any work, can well understand the need for rest period. The fact is, as best your reporter can appraise and evaluate information at hand, Governor Umstead is far from a well man—in the sense that he cannot do full time duty in his office. But he is just as far from a sick man in the sense that he is not conversant with developments outside or his recognition of the responsibilities resting upon him. Certainly he has suffered from lack of contact with everybody who wanted to see him. Just as certainly, his decisions may have been influenced by that failure of broad contact. There is no doubt, however, that his decisions have been his own and he has not failed in the full compliance with the obligations devolving upon him.

COMPLETED—He has announced appointment and had been confirmed by joint action of the General Assembly of members of the board of education. He has effectuated the legislative act authorizing him to name a commission and jointly with that commission to increase the number of highway divisions, and he has named the 14 new commissioners and a chairman for the highway and public works department. He has filled in the banking commission, including two new members authorized by the Legislature. He has appointed a new board of elections, and filled in the board of agriculture and the utilities commission.

UNFINISHED—He has also made numerous appointments to boards of trustees of State institutions and to various examining, licensing and regulatory commissions. But his appointive job is far from finished. He still must name a director of the department of motor vehicles, a commissioner of revenue, a director of purchase and contract and fill several other positions at any time he pleases. Before July 1 he must appoint three members of the parole board authorized by the recent legislature; an assistant director of the budget and two budget advisers; a director of conservation and development and 15 members of the board for that department; and several other policy-making or administrative officials.

JUDGES—The Governor also must appoint before July 1 a number of superior court judges—somewhere between four and sixteen. After rival bills for restricting regular superior court judges and authorization for additional elective judges in six districts failed of passage, the late Assembly provided for a maximum of 12 special judges, with virtual requirement that four be named. It is expected that the Governor will appoint the full quota of 12 special judges, and that he may have

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
A traveler about the country may note that state boundaries are marked with official signs, but they are often more impressively marked with rows of taverns, liquor stores, cigarette shops, gas stations and other commercial enterprises.

These are the "first chance" and "last chance" vendors of the nation. Where one state has stricter liquor laws than a neighbor, just across the border will be many taverns and package goods stores. Where one state has higher cigarette, gasoline and sales taxes than the commonwealth next door, across the border will be places selling goods at lower prices.

These state-line stores not only garner profits from tourists but also residents of neighboring states all at a loss of sales by merchants in nearby states where taxes are higher and restrictions are more severe. In some states, residents think nothing of driving twenty miles to cross a state line when the local taverns are shuttered.

The effects spread, too. Many families, crossing into a neighboring state to buy cheaper cigarettes and beverages, also do their weekly shopping on the visit. Thus high taxes and restrictions cost the grocery, butcher and department stores sales, as well as hitting the dealers in tobacco and grog.

This "Balkanization" of the United States dramatically proves one thing that many legislators have been inclined to overlook these days: that excise taxes can drive business away. Perhaps some day the states can get together and make gas, cigarette, liquor and sales taxes more nearly uniform. But until that day comes, state-line businesses will thrive at the expense of businesses in high-tax areas.

Incidentally, an autoist traveling across the country can save a pretty penny by stocking up on cigarettes in low-tax states—usually the ones that grow the stuff—and on beverages where the tax is low, such as in Washington, D.C. But don't drink while driving.

NEW BOOKS PUBLISHED FOR MANAGEMENT
Speeches at the January session of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, dealing with successful retail operations, have been compiled in "These are the Speeches," a 204-page book by the N.R.D.G.A. 100 W. 31st St., New York 17 (at $3 to nonmembers).

Other new books of interest to business management include: "The Nation's Leading House Magazines," an informative directory of 1,400 publications (Gibbs Press, 19 E. 48th St., New York 17, 181 pages, paper, $19.95); "Income Stabilization for a Developing Democracy," a symposium edited by Max F. Millikan (Yale University Press, New Haven 7, at $5).

REACH BOARD: A 12-ounce, 22-inch-long plastic beach board, said to support up to 150 pounds, has been developed by Shelton Rubber Products Co., Splice, Conn. For buoyancy, its sponge-like interior is filled with myriads of tiny cells containing nitrogen. Said not to be affected by strong sunlight or weathering, it will not absorb water nor break in normal use. It's made in fadeproof blue, red and yellow.

MIDGET: A powerful telescope, just one foot long and weighing only 24 ounces, is being produced by Bausch & Lomb Optical Co., Rochester, N.Y. The user can see the major craters on the moon and the four moons of Jupiter.

MIXER: A Dutch firm (Handelsondermaatschappij S.H.I.L.A.C., Jan van Nassastraat 87, The Hague) is offering a kitchen mixer that hooks on to a water faucet. The blade wheel is turned by water pressure. The price costs about the same as the price of conventional mixers.

CABINET: A circular unit that holds just 33 inches of floor space while refrigerating and displaying up to 13 cases of bottled beverages is being marketed by Jewett Refrigerator Co., Inc., 2 Leitchworth Buffalo, N.Y. The maker claims that its revolving shelves can be adjusted to fit any size bottle and that its triple pane glass will remain free from clouding condensation.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Joe Korson picked up her phone at the Library of Congress and heard a woman sing two lines from a quaint old song. "Can you tell me what that is?" asked the woman. "My grandfather used to sing it."

"It had something about mountain dew in it and I recognized it as a song native to North Carolina," said Mrs. Korson, reference librarian in the Folklore Section. She picked up the song out from some 80,000 on file.

Mrs. Korson gets many questions over the phone from musicians, teachers, scholars, writers, historians, students, tourists. In addition she gets letters from all over the world. A Swedish writer asked for recordings of American Negro work songs.

"People are extremely interested in American folk songs," Mrs. Korson said. "It can usually answer their requests."

Mrs. Korson believes the interest is due mainly to the many records and books on folklore in libraries set up abroad by the U.S. Information Service. Soldiers coming back from overseas, she says, having heard folk songs of other countries, are eager to learn their own. In the library's vast collection are songs of railroad workers, cotton pickers, early settlers, Revolutionary and Civil War days, songs about American Indians, cowboys, mountaineers and sailors.

Mrs. Korson, who has been with the library 10 years, first got interested in folk music through her husband, George Korson, now editor of the Red Cross Newsletter and a former newsman. She met him in Morristown, N.J., in 1925 while a law student.

Her husband, born in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., collected minor songs, later published by the University of Pennsylvania Press. "Minstrel of the Mine Patch," she helped him make recordings of songs for a book, "Coal Dust on the Fiddle."

"The music is modest, but I can tell you she is one of the best-informed persons on American folklore today," George Korson told me. "Now I draw on her knowledge."

But why, you may wonder, does a woman pick up a phone and hear a woman sing? The answer is that the Library of Congress has a vast collection of folk songs and is making them available to the public. The SUSQUEHANNA

AP Newsfeatures
It was while using the Susquehanna as his flagship, that Commodore Matthew Gilbrath Perry contributed his most outstanding service to posterity. In July of 1853, Perry, after considerable difficulty, was able to land at a Japanese port and deliver a letter from the President to the Japanese emperor and March 31 of the following year, a fleet of four ships headed by the Susquehanna, anchored off Yokohama. Perry was ceremoniously greeted by the Emperor and a treaty of peace, amity, protection of American seamen and trading rights at the ports of Hakodate and Shimoda was signed. Relations between the Western World and the Orient had entered a new era.

To Diet, Or Not To Diet; One Railroad Starting Experiment

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures
The Pennsylvania Railroad, in a highly daring and perhaps potentially explosive experiment, has inaugurated a special dining car service. It is a 470-calorie meal for dieting passengers: tomato juice, broiled chopped sirloin with carrots, lettuce salad with a non-fattening dressing, two crackers, a grapefruit-half, tea or coffee with saccharine on the side.
If the railroad manages to corral enough dieting passengers to make this project popular and profitable, it is logical to assume that it will spread through the public eating places of the nation.
At that point, I predict, a large segment of the working population will be made acutely unhappy. I have made a personal survey, and can state that some 99.4 per cent of the adult population are either thinking about going on a diet, are in one of the first two days of a diet, or are talking about a new diet.
Of course, there are two kinds of people interested in diets: those who want to put on weight and those who want to take it off. The first are such a minority as to be practically non-existent. Among those who want to lose weight there are two groups: those who have been placed on strict diets on the orders of their physicians, and—this is the huge majority—the group which diets for a hobby. Many of these are men and women who collect recipes, the way gourmets collect recipes, who are constantly giving a one-or-two-day whirl to a new painless weight-losser like an all-ice-cream, all-bread, all-hard-boiled-eggs-and-ketchup deal or to some complicated formula in which the secret lies in eating one-half of an anchovy before each meal.

If the Pennsylvania Railroad's service is a success, it is going to affect these fad dieters, who are apt to be the ones who patronize restaurants. If the idea of a dieter's meal, on a table d'hôte basis, is to be incorporated into the menus of many eating places, the result is bound to force diet-talkers to put up or shut up. Maybe both.
As an old diet-talker in good standing (I've one of the world's finest collections of eat-and-grow-thin diets), I am pretty certain that if I were to find a prix fixe luncheon next at my favorite luncheon place, the word "diet" would never cross my lips.
On an average of 12 times a year, I begin a week full of fine, high-minded determination to lose a few pounds via some new simple diet I've culled from a magazine, newspaper or drawn from the eager lips of a friend. It's always a Monday morning. By noon on Monday, I'm hungry and make my way to a restaurant.

And there it inevitably ends. There's not a thing on the bill of fare which fits my diet. You can't eat lettuce and tomato just like that—salt is forbidden and obviously French dressing isn't allowed. And besides, it costs so much more to order a la carte that it's ridiculous. You can't go home for lunch and you certainly can't bring your lunch to work—that means sandwiches and everyone knows how fattening they are.
So, in the interests of economy and convenience, the easiest thing to do is order the chicken Tetrazzini on the three-course lunch, and postpone starting the diet until Tuesday. So it goes and I can blame the restaurant.
However, I am pretty certain that I'll do some fast rationalizing the first day my restaurant features a carefully organized inexpensive low-calorie luncheon to help me in the battle against the scales.
I predict failure for the Pennsylvania project, but I think it would be interesting if it succeeded and caught on. I'm sure what subjects we'd find to fill the conversational void once diets were removed. But I'm sure we can find good reasons for not ordering it.

AFL Now Preparing To Fight Administration

By ALAN ADAMS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The top command of the American Federation of Labor got set today to declare open political warfare on the Eisenhower administration.
The move got underway as the 15-man Executive Council, headed by AFL President George Meany, opened a five-day conference on a wide variety of problems.
Informed sources said the council would draw up an attack on the GOP-controlled Congress for an "isolationist" foreign policy and a "give-away" domestic program. They said administration officials also were in line for the sharp criticism, perhaps destroying President Eisenhower's hopes of winning labor's cooperation.
At the same time, the council was due to tackle the problem of what to do about the racket-ridden AFL longshoremen's union. The sources predicted the group would recommend expulsion of the waterfront union for failure to clean house as demanded by the AFL leaders.
Last February, after New York crime hearings unveiled corruption along the waterfront, the council set a series of demands on the union, including an order to clean its membership of criminals. Union President Joseph A. Ryan, now under indictment for extortion of union funds, turned

Red Newspapers Are Not Mailed

HONG KONG (AP)—The Chinese Communists now have limited the number of newspapers that can be mailed to foreign countries. During the first year of the Red regime, Communist papers from most cities of China could be sent to Hong Kong and other outside points. They adhered to the party line but contained regional news which was not so closely censored.
Last year all papers except selected ones from Peiping, Shanghai and Canton were taken from the list. However, other papers still "leak" out of China into Hong Kong and it is possible to obtain a fair cross-section of information.

NEW YORK (UP)—The two-week old daughter of Metropolitan Opera singer Patrice Munsel held her first news conference today, while her mother held her famous soprano down to a lullaby.
The baby yawned, let out a couple of high-C yells, and burped. Miss Munsel, in real life Mrs. Robert C. Schuler, invited one reporter and a batch of photographers to her penthouse in Manhattan to meet Heidi-Ann, 22 inches and eight pounds seven ounces of squirming infant.
The baby behaved like other babies two weeks old, although there were hints she was mugging for the cameramen and might grow up into show business, too.
"Babies have it easy," said the father, 33-year old television director and producer. "But they're sure rough on parents."
Every time a photographer's flashbulb flashed, Pappa mopped his brow. Miss Munsel hummed "Brahms' Lullaby" to the baby and explained that was about all the singing permitted at the moment. "I'm scared to do any real practicing," said the Spokane-born Met

Sports Reflections

BY
Tommie Lupton

Jim Ellis, who has been serving as Reflector sports editor, has gone home for the summer and will not be with us again until the beginning of college next fall. We will be filling in for Jim for a few weeks.

After having waited a big portion of last year and having anticipated the putting up of lights on the softball field back of Third Street School this spring, the participants in the Men's Summer Softball League are finally seeing their dreams realized.

Work was scheduled to begin today, and indications are that play will begin next Monday evening. A fence is also being erected around the softball field. Each player pays one dollar toward the construction of the barrier around the outfield.

We feel that much more interest will be shown in the league this year, and if any of you sports fans wish to pass an enjoyable evening you should drop by the Third Street field to watch a few ball games.

Not plugging just one of the many sports activities of the City Recreational program, we would like to mention some of the other means of entertainment.

Spectators gather each afternoon of the week, except Saturdays and Sundays, at Elm Street Park, where they can witness Little League and Minor League baseball games. To those of you who go to those games we can tell nothing, but to those who have been missing the contests should drop out some afternoon and see the boys really put on a fine exhibition of baseball.

There are girls softball games each afternoon on the fields at one of the three grammar grades in the city and at Elm Street Park. Males are not the only ones in the swing of the great American pastime.

There are several composition tennis courts out at Elm Street Park that are being used daily. Plans are underway right now for a doubles and singles tournament between boys and girls of the city.

Greenville built these courts for your use, and everyone should take advantage of the facilities. A large number of persons in this community are taking advantage of the activities available, but there is still room for more participants.

Coached by Bill Kittrell, Greenville's entry in the Tobacco Belt League got off to a good start this past weekend when they took two games from the Farmville team in the semi-pro loop.

Games are played each Saturday and Sunday.

Local golfers are engaging the New Bern linksters on the Greenville Country Club course today. Should Greenville turn back New Bern, whom they lost to Sunday, the loop would have three teams tied for top position. Kinston would be the other team.

Such a situation would call for a playoff.

PINETOPS—The Pinetops Horse Show, sponsored by the Lions' Club and American Legion Auxiliary, will be held here Sunday, June 14, at 1:30 p.m.

Col. R. E. Barrett of Branchville, Va., has been engaged to direct the show. He is known throughout the southeast for the excellent quality of horse shows he has helped to direct. Judges have not yet been chosen.

The Horse Show Committee has been assured of the participation of some of the outstanding show horses of the Carolinas and Virginia in the various classifications. In addition to regular events, there will be special exhibitions by some highly-trained horses.

Mrs. N. L. Sugg and Mrs. A. F. Baker, heading the Horse Show Committee for the American Legion Auxiliary, report satisfactory progress is being made in their part of the preparations. R. L. Dunn, chairman of the Advertising and Finances Committee states his committee is lining up the programs and the lists will contain the names of noted horses and men and women appearing in horse shows.

The event will be held in the Pinetops baseball park, starting at 1:30 p.m. Grounds Committee Chairman Dr. A. W. Hedgepeth has announced the ring has already been constructed and soon would be erected at the site of the show.

Norman Hayes Has Shot At Pot In Bout Tonight

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—Norman Hayes, ranked 10th in the middle-weight division, gives Jesse Turner his first shot at bigger money when they meet in a 10-round nationally televised bout at the Arena here tonight.

But Turner will have to be especially sharp to make his opportunity pay off for the Boston, Mass., fighter will have the advantage of both experience and weight.

Staton Pitches One-Hitter As Kiwanians Beat Lions

Lions' Pitcher Spoils Bid For No-Hitter With Single In Third Inning; Staton Strikes Out Ten

Charles Staton pitched and batted his Kiwanian teammates into a first place tie with the Jaycees as he led the Lions to one lone hit in defeating them 4-2 in a Little League contest played yesterday afternoon.

Opposing pitcher Bobby Edwards spoiled Staton's bid for a no-hitter by rapping out a single in the third inning. The Lions scored their two runs in the fifth inning on two errors and two bases on balls.

Leftfielder Albert Crawford and Staton had a perfect day at bat as they each had three hits for three times at bat. One of Crawford's hits was a double. Jimmy Churchill accounted for two more of the Kiwanians' hits.

Staton struck out ten Lion batters in the game which was called at the end of five innings because of rain. In the first and fourth innings he retired the side via strikeouts, though, walking nine men.

Today's Wednesday afternoon doubleheader has the Lions vs. the Exchangees at 4 o'clock and the Moose vs. the Jaycees immediately following.

In the Minor League the Red Sox walloped the Yanks 10-5 to retain first place in the standings. Jenkins had two hits for the losers, while Ross, Starling and Williams made two safeties apiece for the winners. There will be no Minor League game today.

EC Alumnus Smith Joins Coaching Staff September 1

Earl Smith, for the past seven years director of athletics and head coach at Campbell College, will join the physical education department of East Carolina College on September 1, it was announced Wednesday morning by Dr. J. D. Messick, ECC president.

Smith, a graduate of East Carolina College with an A. B. degree in 1939 and an M. A. degree in 1946, will be on the coaching staff in football and basketball and other sports assignments as well as teaching in the physical education department.

In his coaching career in North Carolina high schools, Smith developed some strong teams and advanced rapidly in his profession, later serving as Recreation Director at the U.S. Coast Guard Station at Elizabeth City, N. C., while on his 18-month tour of duty while in the U. S. Navy during World War II. Smith coached high school teams at LaGrange, Linton, and Burlington, and for the past seven years coached all major sports at Campbell, two years ago dropping football.

During his student days at East Carolina, Smith was a letterman in football, basketball, and baseball. Returning in 1945-46, Smith was basketball and baseball coach in the first post-war teams at the college.

Native Dancer In Conversation Of Horse-Racers

BALTIMORE, Md. (UP)—Native Dancer was practically the only topic of conversation today as turf-conscious city got set for the 7th running of the Preakness at Pimlico Saturday.

Most racing experts simply referred to the Dancer as "The Big Gray" while discussing the $100,000-added run for the black-eyed susans. But everyone knew what they meant and the other six probable entries were all but forgotten. The Pimlico track management gloomily conceded that the Dancer might be installed at even shorter odds than the 7-10 on him when he lost the Kentucky Derby to Dark Star by a head. Such a circumstance could result in a minus-betting pool.

Clyde Trout, trainer of the three-year-old Royal Bay Gem, who surprised by whipping Dark Star in the Preakness prep, frankly admitted he did not think his horse would win Saturday.

"I think he'll finish third," Trout said. "We might do better, you can't let a victory in a prep send you too high."

Jockey Jimmy Combest was more confident. "He beat the horse that beat the Gray in the Derby," Combest said, "and at Pimlico we're running on a soft track—the kind of track Royal Bay Gem likes."

But no one was putting much stock in the results of the prep. It was a furlong shorter than the mile and three sixteenth Preakness and it was believed that Dark Star did not go all out. The only definite result of the prep was a sharp drop in the stock of Col. respondent. The widely ballyhooed California colt finished a poor fourth.

Women's Amateur Champ Meets First Grave Test Today

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UP)—Defending champion Kathy McKinstry of Lakeland, Fla., faces her first serious test in the Southern Amateur women's golf tournament today when she meets Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., in the second round.

Both women turned in easy victories in the opening round of match play Tuesday. Miss McKinstry whipped Mrs. Carl Robbins of Ft. Smith, Ark., 7 and 6, while Miss Faulk downed Jo Ann Prentice of Birmingham, Ala., 6 and 5. Polly Riley of Ft. Worth, Tex., who shared medalist honors with Miss Faulk, advanced with a 5 and 4 victory over Mary McCutcheon of Jasper, Ala., and Dot Kirby of Atlanta eliminated Mrs. Maurice Olick of Baltimore, Md., 5 and 4.

Major Leagues Today Find Homer Hitting Takes Jump

NEW YORK (UP)—Fine pitching and superfine home run hitting make strange bedfellows but that is the situation today in the major leagues.

Figures prove that there have been a much greater number of low hit pitching performances in the majors this year compared with last. Yet a checkup discloses that, substantiating the theory that there is more jackrabbit in the ball, homer hitting also is up tremendously.

As of the same number of games last season, there had been a total of 264 homers compared with 337 this year—an increase of 73.

Once known as a pitching league, the National has taken the long distance play away from the American League at the moment. In 99 games, the National has struck 184 homers, an increase of 47 over the number last season. In a total of 115 games the American League has belted 153 homers, which is 26 more at the same stage of 1952.

The individual surprise is, of course, chunky Roy Campanella of the Brooklyn Dodgers. He leads both leagues with 12 homers after 27 Brooklyn games. Last season at this stage he had but three, and finished the season with 22.

Campanella's performance indicates that last year's co-champions with 37, Ralph Kiner and Hank Sauer, will have to hustle to catch him. Kiner, a notoriously

Roberts Gains Sixth Victory As Phillies Take First Place

NEW YORK (UP)—The skeptics who don't believe Robin Roberts can pitch the 380 innings prescribed for him by Steve O'Neill this year might take note of the fact today that he could pitch close to 470 at his present pace.

The Philly fireball man Tuesday night turned in his eighth complete game and gained his sixth triumph with a five-hit, 6-3 victory over the Reds in which he struck out seven batters. In addition to his eight games, he also went five innings in a rained out game to give him a total of 77 innings pitched so far in 25 games played by the Phils. Moreover, he was rained out of two other starts.

Thus, with the season less than a sixth complete, the ex-Michigan State bonus boy could easily go well over 400 innings—provided, of course, his arm doesn't drop off en route. And he insists he never yet has been even a little tired as the workhorse of the Philly staff since 1950.

Willie Jones and Elchie Ashburn hit homers for the Phils while Cincy collected all of its runs on homers by Willard Marshall and Ted Kluszewski in the fourth inning.

The Dodgers knocked Milwaukee out of a first place tie with the Phils by defeating them 4-1 on the pair of two-run homers by George Shuba and Duke Snider as Russ Meyer pitched a seven-hitter and gained his third victory. A record crowd of 36,439 jammed the new Milwaukee ball park.

The resurgent Giants put over three 10th inning runs to defeat the Cubs 6-4 at Chicago as Al Coplan pitched two-hit relief ball for three innings to gain his third victory. It was the fourth victory in the last five games for the Giants and was achieved off-luckless Warren Hacker, who suffered his sixth defeat. A double by Don Mueller, singles by Corbin and Davey Williams, and a five-run single by Monte Irvin provided the three runs. Randy Jackson hit a 10th inning homer for Chicago and Irvin hit an earlier one for New York.

A double by Stan Musial and a scoring fly by Solly Hemus gave the Cards two unearned runs after a pair of errors by Danny O'Connell in a 2-1 victory over Pittsburgh. Gerry Staley pitched five-hit ball before being relieved by Stu Miller to achieve his fifth victory as Johnny Lindell lost a fourth one. He struck out eight batters and yielded but six hits.

Hank Bauer's two-run homer in the 11th following Mickey Mantle's third double gave the Yankees a 4-2 victory over Detroit as Johnny Sain edged Ted Gray in a duel. Sain struck out five and walked none and Gray struck out nine as they turned in a pair of eight hits. Bob Nieman homered for Detroit.

Oatis' Crime Was Only Observing U. S. Rights

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

William Oatis comes back to the United States the central figure in "cause celebre."

Yet Oatis, who spent nearly two years in a Czechoslovak prison on trumped up charges of spying, is not alone nor is his case unique. The right to know and to understand is such a basic freedom in the United States that seldom is it given more than a passing thought.

Article I of the constitutional Bill of Rights specifically guarantees freedom of religion, speech, press and the right to peaceably assemble.

We use it everyday in exercising our right to question and to disagree.

Yet today approximately 800,000,000 persons or about one-third of the earth's population live under dictatorships which make a mockery of these basic freedoms... which, in fact, skillfully employ the instruments of information to spread their distortions.

Not a newspaper, radio station or magazine but which is subject to iron-fisted control, with every writer or contributor a propagandist whose sole duty is to promote the viewpoint of the dictatorship, regardless of the facts.

For the writer to do anything else would be to invite and receive at the very least a long prison term.

Oatis' crime, and the one to which he "confessed," was that he reported the news of the Communist Czech regime. He committed the crime of asking questions.

For that he went to jail.

Eight weeks ago, two other American newsmen on holiday undertook a sailing trip between British Hong Kong and Portuguese Macao. They were Richard Applegate, former United Press correspondent in Korea and, at the time, a correspondent for the National Broadcasting Company in Hong Kong, and Don Dixon of International News Service, also a veteran of Korean reporting.

Both men had reported on the truce negotiations at Panmunjon. As they moved out of Hong Kong harbor, a Red Chinese gunboat seized them and their boat.

Fragmentary reports since say they, too, now are being held as spies.

Neither case is unusual for newsmen working behind or close to the Iron Curtain. Two newsmen employed by an American company in Berlin, went into East Germany on an assignment three years ago. It was the same as if the earth swallowed them. Neither has been heard from since.

Police Of Three States Hunt For 'Crazy' Murderer

FITZGERALD, Ga., May 20 (AP)—Police of three states today hunted a "crazy mad" Georgia farmer who killed one person, critically wounded two others and warned he would slaughter his wife's entire family.

Sheriff G.A. Cauley blamed a divorce suit brought against Lige Gibson, 50, for the shooting spree in which two of his wife's sisters were wounded and the husband of one of them killed.

"Gibson seemed to think his wife's relatives were responsible for the break-up of their marriage," Cauley said. "He threatened to kill them before when he and his wife separated."

Cauley sent warnings to members of the woman's family believed living in Jacksonville, Fla., and Montgomery, Ala., that Gibson might be "coming their way."

He quoted a 16-year-old son as saying Gibson had vowed to "wipe out" his wife's relatives. The Sheriff added that the killer was reported headed toward Jacksonville probably armed with a .22 caliber rifle and a .38 pistol.

He described the South Georgia farmer as "crazy mad" and said three more rifles and a shotgun were found at his home here.

Cauley said Gibson first drove to the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Cullen B. Lancaster about 45 miles north of here, shot and killed Mrs. Lancaster and pumped five slugs into her husband's body.

Lancaster told officers from his hospital bed that Gibson got out of his truck, said, "well, it looks like Frances has left me," and began shooting.

As Lancaster lay critically wounded in his front yard, he scrawled the license number of Gibson's truck which was relayed to sheriffs of every county between here and Jacksonville.

Gibson returned here to the home of Mrs. T.L. Fulch and, as his wife—visiting her sister—looked on in terror, shot her five times as she cowered in a closet.

Mrs. Gibson's suit for divorce was scheduled to come up for a hearing today and Gibson had been under a peace warrant obtained by his wife a month ago when she left him.

Suppose Your Son Is Engaged To Heiress

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Your son is about to marry an heiress. Strangers keep tracking the spotless linoleum in the living room to ask you questions.

You were older than your son is now when you came to this country from Italy to marry a childhood friend who had left Italy seven years earlier. This was the country where anything could happen.

Now everyone wants to know how you feel about the unbelievable thing that has happened. Your youngest son, Anthony Di Bonaventura, 23, is going to marry Sara Delano Roosevelt, granddaughter of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the adopted daughter of John Hay Whitney. One day she'll inherit more money than you ever dreamed about seeing in your lifetime.

Mrs. Fred Di Bonaventura, a plump, smiling woman of 59, tried to explain how it felt to be this mother. She talked in the kitchen of the cramped apartment one flight up from the street and just a few doors from her husband's barber shop. The living room, already half filled by a grand piano, was crowded with reporters and photographers and stifling hot from bright lights set up for television cameras.

"I didn't dream for my children," she said slowly. "I just tried to see they had as many opportunities as we could give them."

She and her husband moved here from Follansbee, W. Va., 17 years ago when they discovered that Anthony and his two older brothers and sister had unusual musical talent. Anthony has been called a piano prodigy. He graduated from the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia last week just before his romance with the wealthy socialite was announced officially.

"She is a very nice girl," Mrs. Di Bonaventura said, referring to her son's 21-year-old fiancée. "Maybe the money will make problems. I don't know. To have a good marriage a husband and wife must work as a team. My husband and I work together for our children. What I have to do I do, and he does what he must do."

She suggested to Anthony that he and Sara bring her parents over for dinner one night two weeks ago. Mr. and Mrs. Whitney drove in from their 900-acre estate on Long Island, walked up the flight of worn stairs, in through the apartment door that opens into the kitchen and leads down a narrow hall into the dining room and living room. Mrs. Di Bonaventura cooked and served the meal herself "and washed up the dishes as I went along."

The Whitneys are nice people, she said. There was nothing to be nervous about. Her motherly concern, which showed itself in her repeated offers of coffee and cookies to reporters and photographers, extends to all people, including the rich.

Anthony was noticeably nervous and apprehensive. His father merely looked at the strangers in the living room and sighed. There had been so many interruptions at his three-chair barber shop that he just looked the door and came home for the day.

"I'm losing money," he said.

Mrs. Mullen, who recently became associated with the Croom Company, joined Johnson in expressing appreciation to those who helped make the gift possible.

RUSTY RILEY

dell ducked. But sixteen straight ryes and two years of inactivity slowed him. The other man was both fast and sober. There was a burst of pain as the gun struck his head. Then all was dark and silent.

When Mandell came to, he was lying on the floor, between the door and the bed. He sat up and felt for his wallet. It was gone, and with it the last of his money except for the bills and change in his pants pocket.

He got to his feet and, turning on the ceiling lights, looked at his reflection in the dresser mirror. The man with the gun knew his business. He'd made a jump the size of a walnut but he hadn't broken the skin.

He slipped out of his rain-soaked topcoat and jacket and threw them over a chair. Then, looking at his reflection, he opened the top drawer of the dresser and drained what the maid had left of a partly filled pint of whisky.

He was acting like a heel. He knew it. He hadn't even called Ma or Rosemary. Whatever happened to him he deserved. But he had to square away with Gale before he could make any plans.

He started for the bathroom to wash his hands and picked the phone from its cradle instead. "Switchboard," a girl's voice trilled.

Mandell counted the crumpled bills in his pants pocket. "Send up a boy with a pint of rye."

He got up and paced the floor, wiping the sweat from the hair on his chest with his palms. Then he thought of taking a shower. He took off his pants and shorts and socks and padded barefooted into the bathroom.

He was reaching for the shower faucet when he saw her. His mouth gaped open. His eyes bugged slightly. The doctors were wrong in assuming he was cured. The hallucinations were beginning again.

He could swear there was a girl in his bathroom. She was lying on her back on the tile, one leg straight, one white knee raised. More, she was the little blond with whom he'd walked out of Johnny's Bar that afternoon.

And she was dead. Mandell backed as far from her as he could. His chest hurt as he tried to breathe. She couldn't be dead in his bathroom. They hadn't come to his room. Or had they? Sweat blinded him. He grabbed a towel from the rack and wiped his eyes. Then he forced himself to kneel on the tile beside the girl.

He thrust a shaking hand forward and froze as someone rapped sharply on the hall door of his room. "Room service." (To be continued)

President Sends Own Plea For School-Skipper

RICHMOND, Va. (UP)—Isabel Ware, 14, skipped classes at St. Catherine's Episcopal School for girls Friday to meet President Eisenhower and watch him receive an honorary degree from the college of William and Mary at Williamsburg, Va.

Faced with explaining her absence she confided in her father, Dr. H. Hudnall Ware of the college board of visitors. He explained Isabel's predicament to Mr. Eisenhower.

Monday the student council accepted Isabel's excuse which read: "Coul' we not excuse the absence today from the school of Isabel Ware. She was at a ceremony I attended."

It was signed, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

ANY SUGGESTIONS? BLACKPOOL, England (UP)—Postmen here asked for suggestions today on how to keep the seat of their pants dry while riding bicycles in wet weather.

They admitted defeat at a meeting called to discuss the problem.

If present trends continue, California will challenge New York as the most populous state in the United States about 1970.

THE HEART OF JULIET JONES

POGO

BLONDIE

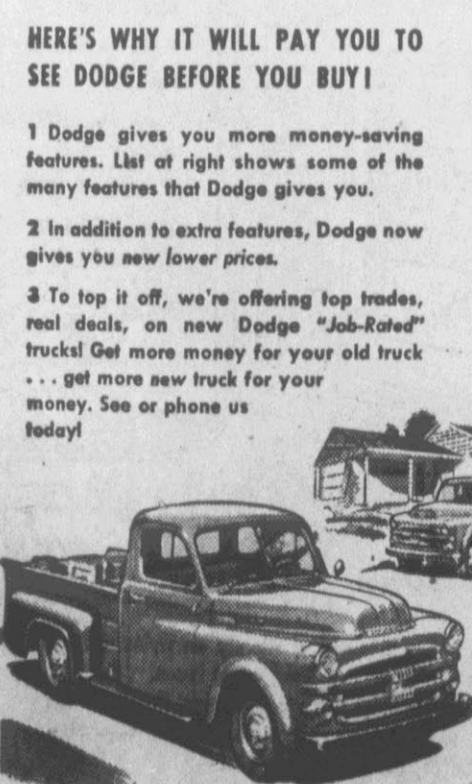

TO KISS, OR KILL

By Day Keene

Chapter 1 You never can tell what a big, tough boy will do when he finds a blonde in his bathroom. Especially if he is a heavyweight fighter who was born back of the yards, is married to a million dollars, and has a psychiatric record. He might do a number of things. He might yell for her to get out. He might yell for his wife. He might blow what's left of his top. He might even so what Barney Mandell did, come to his addled senses. It really happened, in Chicago. It happened to Barney Mandell on the afternoon of the day he was released from the asylum as cured because he hadn't wrung a parrot's neck in two years. Oh, yes. The blonde was dead. Barney held down a bar stool that was Gale? Mandell rapped his glass on the wood again. The barman shook his head. "Not in here." "Why not?" "Because you've had plenty." "Who says so?" "I do," the barman said. Mandell's shoulders bunched under his coat. He started to argue and changed his mind. It could be the barman was right. The chances were at the barman had never been in an asylum. "Just as you say," he said. "No hard feelings?" He decided to go to his hotel on the chance that Gale had phoned or written. On the corner of Dearborn Street, he paused to look furtively in the plate-glass window of a restaurant. He hoped the psychiatrist was right. He didn't look crazy. He never had. Still, they said a man couldn't tell when he was walking on his heels. There was a crowd under the metal marquee of his hotel, waiting for the rain to stop; an even larger crowd in the lobby. A flight promoter he knew stopped him on his way to the desk and insisted on shaking hands. "Hi there, Barney. It's good to see you." Mandell said, "It's good to see you," and walked on. The room clerk gave him a phone slip with his key. For a moment he thought it must be from Gale. It wasn't. A Mr. John Curtis had called and would call again, but he hadn't left his phone number. Mandell rode up in the elevator, trying to place the name. He unlocked the door of the room and walked in. "It's about time, Mandell," the man sitting on the bed in the unlighted room said. Mandell closed the door and leaned against it. He reached for the light switch by the door and the man stood up. Mandell lowered his hand. He asked, "What's the big idea?" The man said, "Empty your pockets on the bed." "Why should I?" The man took a step in the dark. "Come on, now. Don't give me no trouble, punchy." "Don't call me that," Mandell said. The man took another step and swung the gun in his hand. Man-

Ups And Downs Set Travel Mark

NEW YORK (U.P.)—A 67-year-old elevator operator here claims he has had more ups and downs, measured in miles, than any person in the United States.

He is Charles Desmond, who has spent 46 years running elevators, the last 21 in the world's tallest building, the Empire State.

Desmond, grandfather of 12, estimates that he has gone up and down the equivalent of going around the world one and a half times, which may be tops so far as anyone can know for certain.

Desmond's first job as an operator was in the garment section of New York City. In 1910 he started his career in skyscrapers at the 47-story Singer building here, the world's tallest at that time. He has been at the Empire State since it opened in May, 1931 and has no idea when he will retire.

The only time an elevator ride made him sick was his first trip to the 80th floor in the world's fastest elevators at the Empire State. Since then it never has bothered him, he said.

JETFUZZERS

TORRINGTON, Conn. (U.P.)—First Lieut. Laurence G. Reicher, stationed with the U. S. Air Corps at Ladd Air Force Base, Alaska, wrote his parents that jet planes serve a dual purpose. The exhaust from a F-84 jet fighter engine provides heat for hot dog roasts, he said.

Dorm Raiders Met By Dean

ATLANTA (UP)—The leaders of a 150-student force of "panty raiders" at Emory University stopped short after rushing through the door of a girls' dormitory Monday night.

They ran into Dean E. H. Reice who had been warned of the panty raid plan. The dean promised disciplinary action today.

Judge Analyzes Horn Tooters

NEW YORK (UP)—"Horn-happy motorists," said Brooklyn Magistrate Charles Solomon, "are likely to be psycho-neurotics venting their frustration."

The judge, after lining several indiscriminate horn tooters a maximum of $2 Monday, said they use their horns to express "immaturity, intolerance, discourtesy, and general infantile selfishness."

THE PHANTOM

Mining Town Is A Doomed City

JEROME, Ariz. (UP)—This once-thriving mining town perched precariously on an Arizona mountain-side seems destined for economic death.

Jerome once was a city of 15,000 population with 3,500 persons employed at its copper mine.

But hard times came to the community. Declining ore production brought reduced mine activity, and residents found their homes and business places gradually settling and crumbling.

The town is so built that each level of buildings is virtually at a 45-degree angle to the other. When someone said he was "going down town" in Jerome, he usually meant it literally.

With jobs hard to get and residents moving away because of unsatisfactory living conditions, the community appears destined to become another ghost town of the West.

A study is being made by the legislature to determine if several buildings owned by the Phelps-Dodge Corp. can be converted for use as a tuberculosis sanatorium, but there is opposition to the proposal and Jerome may wind up with nothing to keep it going.

Some of the old-timers are still hanging on, although they admit they may live long enough to record the death of their town.

New Roads, Cars Posing Challenge

CHICAGO, U.P.—New roads and new cars are posing a challenge to drivers, the Chicago Motor Club reports.

"New driving techniques are needed if drivers are to remain safe operating today's high horsepower cars on the new horse-speed roads," the club said.

The new expressways being built in various parts of the country are the "dead opposites" to most roads, the club pointed out. They have minimum speed laws instead of maximum speed limits.

The first maxim of expressway driving, experts said, is that "laggard is hazardous."

"They said the greatest psychological hazard to modern motorists is "high-speed hypnosis." Smooth, modern roads with no sharp curves or steep grades, and the quiet purr of modern engines combine to lull the driver into being less alert.

Under these ideal conditions, the club said, speed "tend to creep up beyond safe limits."

EDUCATIONAL HAZARD
NEWARK, N. J. (UP)—School authorities in this city of 500,000 are searching for a way to stop damage by students to Board of Education property. The bill for replacing broken windows alone last year amounted to $25,000. This year, with delinquency on the increase, $31,000 was set aside for new glass.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Aircraft manufacturing issues, with gains ranging to more than a point, featured in very narrow and quiet stock market early today.

President Eisenhower's message had little effect on the market. However, some Wall Street quarters were disappointed over the President's request for extension of the excess profits tax.

Transactions in the first hour totaled only 220,000 shares, with the aircraft manufacturing issues accounting for a good part of this volume. In the same hour yesterday, sales totaled 210,000 shares.

Douglas Aircraft was the bellwether in its group. It spurted two points to 45 1/2. Boeing aircraft ran up 1 3/4 points to 42 7/8. Others here rose fractionally.

Steel shares moved narrowly. U. S. Steel was up 1/4 to 39 1/4 and Bethlehem Steel held unchanged at $2 24. Automotives held steady.

Railroad equities did little. Nickel Plate firmed on a 10 per cent stock dividend proposal.

On Lookout For Two Fugitives

Law enforcement officers in the eastern part of the state were alerted this morning to be on the lookout for two escapees from a Halifax County prison road gang.

Reported as having escaped by the Highway Patrol station in Williamston this morning were: William Thomas Herring, 25 of 146 West Gum Road, Greenville, and Matthew T. Marshall, 22 of 2106 Bay Street, Morehead City.

The two were reported to have escaped from a road gang while working between Lewiston and Aulander around eight o'clock today.

Highway patrolmen in the area as well as local law enforcement officers were alerted to the escape and a dragnet set up for the two.

Description of the two were listed as: Marshall, six feet, 178 pounds, fair complexion; Herring, five feet, 11 inches and weighing 170 pounds.

Cars Damaged In Collision Tuesday

Two cars were heavily damaged yesterday morning when they collided on NC 11 near the open air theater around 9:15. Patrolman Paul C. Whitley reported today.

Whitley listed the drivers of the cars as being Edward House of 1003 Evans Street, Greenville, and Johnny Hunter, of Rte. 1, Hertford and Greenville.

Whitley stated that the House car pulled onto the road to make a left turn and collided with the approaching car driven by Hunter.

Damage to both cars was placed at $700. There were no arrests nor injuries in the crash.

Now Chemicals Can Be Used To Clear Land

Farmers of the Black Jack community are shown at one of three demonstrations held in Pitt County yesterday and today, showing the process of chemical land clearing. Above, County Agent Sam Winchester points out the spray rig which can be fitted to any tractor for applying the chemicals. The demonstration was conducted at the Dal Cox Dairy Farm. The use of chemicals in clearing small trees and bushes and even larger trees, was shown at the sessions. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

Two Accidents In City Yesterday

Two automobile accidents were reported in Greenville yesterday by city police.

Two cars collided at Dickinson Avenue and Wade Street yesterday afternoon at 5:45 when one vehicle was forced to stop for traffic and was hit from the rear by a second.

Police listed the drivers as being Clifton Hugh Edwards, 27 of Greenville and Thad Willis, 24 of Route 4, City.

Damage to both vehicles was listed as $375 by Lt. W. E. Peterson.

No injuries were listed and there were no charges preferred.

Slick tires and wet highways were cited as the cause of an accident on North Green Street yesterday at 6:45.

Investigating officer C. D. Doss listed the driver of a car which collided with an electric light pole as being Charlie Wilson Daniels, 22 of 408 East Eighth Street, Greenville.

According to the officer, the car driven by Daniels pulled out to pass a car and went into a skid, damaging the car about $450.00. No charges were made.

Large Turn-Out At Band Concert

Nearly 500 music lovers attended the Greenville High School Band's annual spring concert at the College Theater last night.

An appreciative audience was generous in its applause of the talented young musicians composing the 68-piece band and the soloists, Principal O. E. Dowd said. Many out-of-town people attended the concert.

James E. Rodgers, director, who has developed the Greenville High School Band into one of the best school bands in North Carolina, diverted much of the applause for him toward the young musicians.

Proceeds of the ticket sale will be turned over to the band's general fund.

So far, 13,571 persons in Pitt County have been x-rayed by the mobile units from the tuberculosis section of the State Board of Health.

Yesterday, a total of 343 persons were x-rayed. The totals are: Lang's Cross Roads, 74; Gardenville, 37; Five Points, 114; and Fourth and Evans, 120.

Larry L. Vandiford Funeral On Thursday

Mr. Larry L. Vandiford, 41, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital at 5:10 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. He was struck by an automobile at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon while he was riding a bicycle on N.C. Highway No. 102 about two miles west of Ayden.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home of a sister, Mrs. Guy Moore, near Ayden at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon by the Rev. C. L. Patrick, Free Will Baptist minister of Snow Hill. Burial will be in the Ayden Cemetery.

Mr. Vandiford spent all his life in Greene County until about a year ago when he moved to Pitt County.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Vandiford of near Ayden; three brothers, William Vandiford of Bell Arthur, Euel Vandiford and Allen Vandiford of Maury; and six sisters, Mrs. Guy Moore and Mrs. Roman Williams of near Ayden, Mrs. William Duncan of Tarboro, Mrs. Sterling Dickinson of near Farmville, Mrs. Rufus Guy of Farmville, and Mrs. Mack Beaman of Greenville.

Jaycees Prepare Install Officers

J.B. Brame, retiring president of the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Bob Rouse, Jr., retiring vice president of Jaycees district eight, will take charge of the installation of new officers of the Greenville Jaycees tomorrow night.

The meeting will be held at 7 o'clock at the Rotary building.

Ben L. Rouse will be installed president of the local Jaycees; J.B. Kittrell, Jr., first vice president; Jimmy Warren, second vice president; Sam White, secretary; Walter Whitehurst, treasurer; and Gene Ward, state director.

Other new directors to be installed tomorrow night will be Jim Lanier, Alex Biggs, Frank Dall, Riddick Revelle, and Warren Aldridge.

Retiring President Charles Horne urged all members of the club to be present at the meeting. In addition to the installation of new officers, a large group of new members are slated to be inducted into the club tomorrow night.

reality he is not sympathetic with the programs.

Even though he remains as secretary of agriculture, Bonner contended, if he lacks conviction in that regard it is only natural that the farm program will not function for the greatest possible advantage to the farmer.

Present farm legislation, which includes farm support prices for tobacco at 90 percent of parity, will continue for the next two years, regardless of the enthusiasm or lack of it registered by those assigned to carry out farm programs.

The First District representative in the Congress attended this afternoon the John Pierce Fellowship Club's annual gathering at Camp Contentnea Creek. With him was his secretary, Henry Oglesby of Grifton.

3 Nights Of Graduation Exercises To Start May 29

Three nights have been set aside at Greenville High School to honor the graduates who will take part in the events.

Friday, May 29, will be Class and Awards Night at which time the Class of 1953 will feature the production of a one-act play entitled "Doomsday" and written by two seniors, Ann Stokes and Agnes Markham.

Some 30 or 40 members of the senior class will take part in the play. The production, management, and staging will be entirely under the direction of the senior class supervised by Ward James, adviser and teacher.

Awards will be presented to the seniors by Superintendent J. H. Rose of the Greenville City Schools. The band and choral groups will provide music for the occasion.

The second night of the exercises will be the Baccalaureate Sermon on Sunday, May 31. The invocation will be given by Rev. J. A. Neilson, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church.

The president of the senior class will introduce the minister, Dr. Wallace I. Wolverton, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church who will deliver the sermon. The boys' glee club, the band, and mixed chorus will provide music for this service.

The Class and Awards Night and

The Baccalaureate Sermon will be held in the Greenville High School auditorium and both programs are scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock.

Highlight of the activities will be Monday night, June 1, when the seniors graduate. The program will be held at 8 o'clock in the Wright Building at East Carolina College.

Elizabeth Ann Williams and Frank Brooks, members of the graduating class, will deliver the principal addresses which will center around the new junior-senior high school. It has been the custom of the Greenville High School to have a student participation commencement and speakers from the senior class were chosen to make the addresses.

The invocation will be given by Tom Smoot, president of the senior class. Diplomas will be awarded to the 82 members of the class by J. B. James, chairman of the City School Board of Trustees, assisted by O. E. Dowd, high school principal. Remarks and announcements will be made by J. H. Rose.

Music will include a solo by Claudette Edge, "Spirit Flower," and the girls' glee club will sing "My Love Is Like a Red, Red Rose." The mixed chorus and alumni will sing "Send Forth Thy Spirit," and the Battle Hymn of the Republic will be given by the band and mixed chorus. The band will also play "The Lord's Prayer."

Capitol Square

I thought wanted to be an absolute dictator, Bill Umstead would not be in the list of those considered, because I regard him as an outstanding exponent of democratic principles. The fact remains, that in turning over to him the full responsibility for reorganizing the highway set-up, appointing more than half the judges, as well as the full boards in several other departments which have heretofore been staggered, we have made him almost a dictator—whether he likes it or not." The man added that he was not surprised that Governor Umstead needed a rest between decisions respecting some of these appointments, because the other Governor in state history has had such important decisions to make.

ON THE JOB—There may be grounds for disagreement as to how much of this unusual authority Governor Umstead sought and how much was thrust upon him without his consent. The factual record will show that he has been on the job, ready and able and willing to assume responsibility for decisions and appointments, even though physical disability prevented his being at his office. The record to date will also show that he has not played politics with appointments to positions which did not have direct relationship to policy-making and effectuation of his particular program. Some of his predecessors in the Governor's office have not made that distinction so clear. The situation might be summed up in the statement that Governor Umstead is not a well man, not nearly so well as some of his friends might wish, but not nearly so ill or incapacitated as some of his non-friends would like to have the people believe. He hasn't been able to attend his office regularly, which is unfortunate for everybody; but he has been on the job as Governor—and there is no reason to think he won't be for some time to come.

Legionaires...

Turnage and Louis W. Gaylord, Jr. It was decided, however, that a service definitely will be held on Memorial Day.

Also on Memorial Day, "Buddy" poppies will go on sale in the county. The Ladies' Auxiliary will have charge of the sale on "Poppy Day," and all members of the post were urged by the commander to give the ladies active support and aid.

Boy Scout Troop

Activation of the Legion-sponsored Boy Scout Troop was discussed, and members authorized an expenditure of $95 for equipment to be used by the troop. Sam Whitehurst, member of the Boy Scout Committee, reported that the troop, though recently re-activated, brought back two ribbons for excellence from the Scout Camporee at Tarboro.

Members of the Scout Committee are: chairman, F.M. Stokes; and "Polly" Williams, Claude Manning and Whitehurst.

It was announced that the Pitt County American Legion Agricultural Fair will be held in Greenville the second week in October. Approximately $3,300 in premiums will be offered for exhibits, and members expressed the hope that it will be the biggest fair yet.

Last night's meeting was held at the Legion Home on Evans Street in Greenville.
