

Take-It-Or-Leave-It Proposals Are Ready

'Final' Truce Offers Set

By LEROY HANSEN

United Press Staff Correspondent
MUNSAI, Korea (UP) — The United Nations' chief negotiator arrives here today with "take it or leave it" war prisoner proposals to use in the last round of his truce fight with the Communists.

Before leaving Tokyo by plane for this Allied truce camp, Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison held a final conference with Gen. Mark W. Clark, Far East supreme commander, on tactics to be followed. Harrison warned North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief Red negotiator, three weeks ago that "time in these negotiations is fast running out."

It was thought here the "final" Allied offer, a revised version of the May 26-point formula rejected by the Communists, would set a deadline for agreement or disagreement on the one issue blocking an armistice—disposition of prisoners who do not wish to go home.

The revised proposal to be handed to the Communists Monday when the eight-day recess in the talks ends apparently will take such a firm stand as to risk disapproval of America's Allies. Washington dispatches hinted.

Observers here speculated unofficially the new offer would attempt to compromise major differences in the existing U.N. and Communist plans, the latter an eight-point proposal which the Allies believe eventually would force prisoners to go home against their will.

The only big issue standing in the way of a truce is the method by which that fate of anti-Communist Allied captives would be decided.

Exactly what would be the alternative of the U.N. "ultimatum" in the event the Reds reject the "take it or leave it" proposal was a matter for conjecture. It probably would mean the return of heavy fighting.

President Hopeful Bermuda Talks To Be Informal Affair

Would Be Unencumbered By Usual Army Of Experts And Advisers; Prefers Discussions Be On 'Friendly' Side

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower believes next month's Big Three conference in Bermuda should be an informal get-together of friends, unencumbered by the usual army of experts, advisers and technicians, administration officials revealed today.

These officials told a reporter the President is thinking in terms of having "very few" aides accompany him to the conference with British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and the still unnamed French premier. The British and French delegations also are expected to be small, officials said.

Still up in the air is a date and a site in Bermuda for the Big Three meeting. Officials spoke of increased chances that it may be postponed until late in June if France has trouble forming a government. The collapse of the government shortly after the conference plan was announced has left the French temporarily without a premier.

Informants said June 15 had been considered as a tentative date until Premier Rene Mayer said he couldn't make it because he had scheduled a trip to Turkey. American officials were in the dark on whether a new French premier would be committed to go to Turkey before meeting with Mr. Eisenhower and Churchill.

Authorities familiar with White House planning for the meeting said it is regarded as a chat "between friends" who will make no commitments nor follow any precise agenda in surveying their relations and policies toward the Soviet Union.

This is something like the famous wartime conferences between Churchill and the late President Roosevelt. It is Churchill's favorite way of doing business with other statesmen.

Rivers, Harbors, Flood Control Funds Affected Appropriations Slash

WASHINGTON (UP)—The House Appropriations Committee today approved $398,884,100 for rivers, harbors and flood control work in the year starting July 1.

This is $262,640,000, or 39.6 per cent, less than the Truman administration asked in January and $80,606,000 less than the Eisenhower administration asked.

It is $153,022,500 less than Congress appropriated last year for the purpose.

The committee slashed deeply into construction funds, approving only $251,496,000. The Truman budget asked $491,295,000 and the revised Eisenhower budget requested $324,000,000.

The bill will be called up for House debate Tuesday. A final vote is expected Wednesday or Thursday.

In a formal report accompanying the bill, the committee complained that local communities are not paying their share of the cost of water resources projects.

Even in purely local flood protection projects the report said "the local contribution seldom, if ever, approaches the participation required by law on these beach erosion works."

"Such a condition is not healthy for the economic well-being of the nation," the report said. "Nothing is more destructive to local communities than continual dependency upon the federal government for federal assistance might well be needed during periods of depression, such need is extremely questionable at the present time."

The committee approved the full Eisenhower budget request for $52,540,000 for construction and maintenance work on the Mississippi River and its tributaries. That was a cut of $10,200,000 in the Truman budget.

It deleted all funds for Niagara power development. The Truman budget had requested $699,000 and the Eisenhower budget $100,000.

It was the seventh regular money bill for fiscal 1954 sent to the House floor by the committee. It boosted to $1,800,000,000, or about 10 per cent, the cuts which have been made so far in the Truman budget by the committee and the House.

The cuts made by the House and the committee in the revised Eisenhower budget now total about $780,000,000.

In addition to the funds for the army engineers, the bill also carried $4,870,000 for cemetery expenses of the quartermaster corps and $12,237,500 for the Canal Zone government.

Little Tragedies, Heartbreaks Among Victims

Personal Side To Big Flood

Floods have driven 30,000 persons from their homes in southwest Louisiana. The following dispatch tells of the impact of this exodus on one Cajun family which sought refuge from the lowlands.

JENNINGS, La. (UP)—Mrs. Hilda Duchon, a shy Cajun mother of four, wonders what southwest Louisiana's worst flood in 40 years has done to her new refrigerator. The refrigerator had to be left behind with the family's other possessions when reddish torrents from the Mermentau River swirled into her farm home alone with thousands of others in the picturesque land.

"It was our pride and joy," she said.

Her four children ranging from 11 months to six years old, hung onto her skirt in a refugee center here.

"We had saved a long time for it. We just bought it a few weeks ago. It was a wonderful thing for us."

Mrs. Duchon is an attractive woman of 35 who speaks in a soft, accented voice. She and the children fled Friday before dawn when flood waters reached their yard. Her 30-year-old husband, Frank, remained until the last minute. He fled today as water climbed into the one-story white frame home.

"We got out by boat to a 'high way' that wasn't flooded," Mrs. Duchon said. "Then they brought us into Jennings in a big truck."

"We left in such a hurry that the children were not able to carry any of their toys with them. They weren't scared of the water. They're used to that. But they miss their toys."

"I don't guess there will be any left when we get home. I don't know when that will be."

"I did run out and put my chickens on top of the coop before we left, but I don't know how they lasted in that terrible water... poor things."

"We had a wonderful garden started, but all we got out of it was a mess of radishes. A few beans were just beginning to blossom. It wouldn't have been 'before' we could have had fresh beans."

All their furniture, she predicted will be ruined.

"But I don't mind that as much as losing my refrigerator," she said. "There will be an immense cleaning job. We might be able to save some of it. But I don't expect we'll have anything left. We came out with practically no clothes except what we had on."

Nearly 2 Million Have Fled Homes

WASHINGTON (UP) Dr. Robert L. Johnson, chief of the State Department's foreign information program, said today that nearly 2,000,000 persons have fled Iron Curtain countries to freedom.

In address before the All-American Conference to Combat Communism, Johnson said more than 150,000 Iron Curtain refugees "have crossed this great divide in 1953."

"These are the people the Soviet party members and their satellite henchmen have instructed, indoctrinated, and intimidated," Johnson said. "Yet they still come."

As a result of how the Soviets are "draining" satellite areas of food and other commodities, Johnson said no one in Poland "needs to be a communist" to realize that the high prices he pays for bread and meat "are what make the lower prices possible in the Soviet Union."

The new chief of the Voice of America and other foreign information programs warned that the primary effort of Soviet policies is to "isolate the United States, and to undermine confidence in our strength, the sincerity of our stated purposes, and our leadership."

He said that Russia and its European satellites were spending about $1,500,000,000 each year on direct propaganda and that Red China had budgeted almost the same amount for the same purpose.

Tobacco Festival Meeting Called

An organizational meeting for Greenville's 1953 Farmers' Tobacco Festival will be held Monday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce offices at 5 o'clock.

The meeting is being called to elect officers for this year's farmers' festival and a steering committee. Bancroft Moseley, general chairman of the celebration, stated that not all of the committees would be appointed at this meeting.

Various groups and civic organizations have been asked by Moseley to appoint three representatives from each to attend the meeting.

Organizations asked to send representatives are the Exchange Club, Lions Club, Kiwanis Club, Rotary Club, Business and Professional Women's Club, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Tobacco Board of Trade, the Greenville Merchants Association and the Chamber of Commerce.

Thought Police Were Bandits

MAISON, Wis. (UP)—A Persian doctor thought the policeman chasing him was a "road bandit" and therefore escaped paying a speeding fine.

Dr. Manucher Javid told Superior Judge Donald Kaatz yesterday that road bandits are plentiful in his native Iran. The police car following him looked dangerous, he said, and he thought only of getting his family home quickly.

Tickets 'Lost'

CHICAGO (UP)—More than 2,000,000 tickets issued to Chicago motorists during the past five years have disappeared, a judge said today.

Judge Joseph H. McGarry said the tickets, issued to persons charged with illegal parking, apparently vanished while they were being taken from one court to another.

The city may have lost millions of dollars of revenue as a result, McGarry said.

Hot Again

After two fairly cool days—Wednesday and Thursday—the temperature soared into the 90s to remind that the "good old summertime" is not around the corner—it's here.

Highest temperature in this area yesterday was 90. Lowest last night 73—hottest night in a May in many years, Mrs. Carl L. Maiden, local observer for the U.S. Weather Bureau, reported. At 8 a.m. today the mercury registered 79 degrees.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 83 degrees. Lowest that night 60, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 71.

President Notes Valor Abounds

WASHINGTON (UP)—When you look at Jane Froman, Ben Hogan, or Duane E. Dewey, the President said, "I sometimes wonder what the rest of us have to be scared of in America."

Mr. Eisenhower was talking about sheer courage in an informal address at a White House photographers dinner in his honor last night.

Jane Froman is the singing star who made a comeback in spite of crippling injuries she suffered in a plane crash. Hogan was nearly killed in an auto accident but won back his title as the king of golfers.

And Dewey is the Marine corporal who received a Medal of Honor from Mr. Eisenhower recently for throwing himself on a hand grenade to protect his buddies.

Miss Froman was one of the many stage, screen and radio stars who entertained the President and the photographers. The others included Ezio Pinza, Danny Kaye and George Murphy, who served as master of ceremonies.

There was supposed to have been a toast for the President. But Mr. Eisenhower suggested something different.

So the performers and the guests—cabinet officers, congressmen, and Supreme Court justices—saluted "the fighting forces in Korea."

Miss Froman, Hogan and Dewey were cited by the President as persons "who meet life as it is and refuse to be defeated." Of Miss Froman, he said, "what an example she is to America."

Mr. Eisenhower spent nearly four hours at the party. And he thanked the photographers for daily courtesies he said they showed him.

Atom Artillery Test-Firing Set Next Monday

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—The Frenchman Flat atomic test site was being prepared today for the world's first firing of an atomic artillery shell, utilizing a king-sized Army cannon, on Monday.

The huge cannon, brought here from Fort Sill, Okla., will hurl the shell from a distance of about seven miles from the detonation area, with the missile expected to explode at an altitude of about 500 feet.

The Department of Defense said approximately 575 staff officers, including many high-ranking generals and 2,400 troops will witness the blast from foxholes 4,500 yards from the target area.

Following the nuclear blast, the troops will carry out an atomic training maneuver.

More than 100 congressmen were expected to arrive this weekend to witness the tests.

SOMETHING NEW
FORTH WORTH, TEX. (UP)—Arthur F. Rhea reported a case of chinchilla rustling to Fort Worth police. He said thieves made off with four of his chinchillas, two males and two females, worth $4,000.

Divers Say Airliner Found On Bottom Of Gulf Find Plane Sunk In Sand

MOBILE, Ala. (UP)—Divers' reports of finding a plane "entombed in sand" at the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico stirred hope today of recovering some of the 29 bodies still missing in a crash that killed 46 persons.

Divers Roland L. Riviere, 53, and his son, Roland Jr., 25, said they are confident they found the main fuselage of the National Air Lines DC-6 which crashed into the gulf near the entrance to Mobile Bay last Feb. 14.

"The plane is lying on its back, entombed in sand," said the young Riviere, who with his father volunteered their services in a search financed by relatives of the missing victims. Many of the relatives planned to gather here over the weekend.

"The landing gear's twin wheel type—is sticking up about four feet out of the sand. But we didn't see any sign of clothing or bodies, or anything like that. It was very, very dark, because the water was rough."

Airline and Civil Aeronautics Board officials immediately began arrangements to get better diving and salvage equipment to raise the hulk next week from the 49-foot depth. The Rivieres have been using breathing devices but not protective suits.

The Rivieres yesterday brought up a 30-foot square metal section containing a window and one escape hatch which Capt. E. J. Kershaw, National Airlines vice president in charge of operations, said appeared to be a segment of the DC-6.

The Coast Guard cutter Black

Thorn went to the spot the Rivieres had marked with a buoy but found its equipment was not big enough to raise the main hulk.

The younger Riviere described the underwater find when he reached New Orleans after he and his father had spent an hour surveying a 2,000 square foot area littered with bits of wreckage.

"We're definitely convinced it's the National plane," he said. "There's no other airliner down there. When they bring up that hulk they're going to find 'National Air Lines' printed across the side."

Reviere said he and his father believe "some of the bodies may still be preserved" because "the water is cold enough down there" but they said the bodies are probably mutilated by marine scavengers.

He said that if an attempt is made to raise the hulk before divers gather the bodies and bring them up "in sacks" many of them may become torn apart.

Sec. Wilson Faces Dissension On Own Team Over Air Force Cut-Back

WASHINGTON (UP)—Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson faced a brush fire of dissension on his own team today over his decision to slash funds for the Air Force.

Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbot said frankly yesterday that he was "disappointed" at the reductions even though it was his "duty" to accept them.

Only a matter of hours earlier, the Air Force gave a congressman an "official statement" warning that cuts would mean fewer airplanes, poorer equipment, fewer men, and a "drastic" cutback in aircraft production.

Both the statement and Talbot's comment were made public by Rep. Samuel Yorty (D-Calif.) as congressmen heatedly debated whether the cutback would endanger the nation's security.

Wilson, who has sought to curb independent statements by the individual services, remained silent on the Air Force criticism.

Sen. Homer Ferguson demanded that he produce the officials responsible for the "official statement" so they can be questioned by his Senate military appropriations subcommittee which is studying the whole defense budget.

At issue, is the administration's decision to whack $5,000,000,000 off the Truman-recommended request for new Air Force funds for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Yorty who received the Talbot and Air Force statements in reply to queries, called for Wilson's removal because he is "circumscribed" by dollars, profits and "grossly exaggerated economic strain."

Local Streams Get More Fingerlings

OVER 6,000 BASS—Pitt County Game Warden Joe Teel is pictured yesterday as he placed part of the 3,000 bass in Tar river, as the Wildlife Commission restocked three streams in the county. The fingerlings being put into the Tar were released at the Oyster landing yesterday while others were put in Tranters creek and Panthers creek. Some weeks ago several thousand fish of all types were released in the streams around the county. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

Clearing Korean Skies Brings Out Jet Planes

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—Clearing weather sent American Sabre jets and Communist MIG-15s into battle today as the Fifth Air Force reported the second heaviest seven-day toll of the Soviet-made fighters.

In the first air battle reported today, Lt. Col. George I. Ruddell of Eugene, Ore., the war's 31st jet ace, damaged one enemy fighter. Fifth Air Force said that in the week ended last night the speedy Sabres had knocked down 26 MIGs, although bad weather had grounded the jets two days and the Communists refused to fight on two other days.

In the three fighting days, the Sabres shot down 26 MIGs, probably destroyed two and damaged nine. The previous high was in September, 1952 when 31 MIGs went down in one seven-day period.

One Sabre was lost in air-to-air combat and two to operational failure and "other causes."

Ground fighting flared along the rain-soaked battlefield even before the skies cleared.

Chinese Communists slammed into South Korean positions in the Christmas Hill sector of the eastern front, regaining a long ridge which the ROKs had taken yesterday in stubborn fighting.

South Korean infantrymen mounted four counterattacks but the Chinese picked up reinforcements and held the position. Then the ROKs pulled back to let their own fighter-bombers batter the Chinese.

Eight ROK division troops repulsed a Chinese battalion in the vicinity of Capitol Hill. The attack was supported with 8,300 rounds of artillery fire.

ADA Spokesman Asserts Eisenhower Is Allowing Policies Of McCarthyism

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Herbert H. Lehman (D-N.Y.) accused President Eisenhower today of letting "McCarthyism" endanger Allied cooperation in the world fight against Communism.

In a keynote speech at the sixth annual convention of Americans for Democratic Action, the New York senator expressed concern over the recent verbal exchange between Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and British Labor party leader Clement Attlee.

"The time has come when the administration must make its choice between appeasing the irresponsibles at home and breaking up the unity of free men abroad," Lehman said.

"If the administration continues to try to achieve unity in the Republican party, even at the price of sacrificing the unity of the free world, the administration will have a terrible accounting to make with history."

"The issue is not between Britain and the United States, but between McCarthyism and America's role of leadership in the free world. The two are inconsistent. To attempt to reconcile them is to invite disaster."

ADA members showed more disposition to attack the Wisconsin senator than to open a frontal assault on the President.

National Chairman Francis Biddle in his report on the past year's activity said it was "a particular pleasure to report that we have taken an occasional crack at Sen. Joseph McCarthy—and shall continue to do so."

The chief criticism leveled against Mr. Eisenhower was that he has failed to exercise leadership.

Lehman contended the internal threat of Communism is nothing compared to "the external threat of Soviet imperialism" and said it will take "the unity of all free peoples everywhere to meet that danger and overcome it."

Umstead Refuses Grant Clemency

RALEIGH (UP)—Gov. William B. Umstead refused to set aside the death sentence yesterday for Clyde Brown, Winston-Salem, Negro convicted of the rape of a 17-year-old white high school girl three years ago.

Umstead is also studying a last-minute appeal for another Negro, Raleigh Speller, 49, convicted of raping a 40-year-old Windsor white woman in 1947. Brown, Speller and cousins Bennie and Lloyd Daniels are also scheduled to die in the state's gas chamber Friday.

Umstead told Hosea V. Price, Brown's attorney, that he could find nothing in Brown's case "which would justify executive clemency."

Price had asked to have the sentence commuted to life imprisonment.

Brown's conviction was reviewed and upheld by the State Supreme Court and on two separate occasions by the U. S. Supreme Court, and Umstead pointed out that "prior to the trial of this case in the superior court of Forsyth County, Brown had admitted his guilt."

Attorneys for the Daniels cousins, convicted of the robbery-slashing of a Greenville, N. C., taxi driver, said they expect to complete action "early next week" in another step in the three-year legal battle to save them from the gas chamber.

The State Supreme Court said last Wednesday that their cases have not yet been appealed under the state's post conviction act and the attorneys said they "are in the process of assembling material along that line."

Theft Is Theft, Even By Guest

MEXICO CITY (UP)—The Mexican supreme court has ruled that theft is theft, even in a case where a dinner guest steals his host's silverware.

Rejecting the appeal of a man convicted of pocketing his host's table utensils, the court observed that such a crime was "more serious than simple robbery because the host has no reason to expect the theft."

THE MOMENT OF ACHIEVEMENT

Four minutes to four by the Chapel clock. Four years of effort now crowned with success. This is the moment of achievement.

Three minutes to four. The illusion begins to fade. Here, outside the ivy-covered walls the future looms more important than the past.

Two minutes to four. A sense of fear. Can a diploma guarantee happiness through all the years to come?

One minute to four. Futility! Education can't insure happiness. Life is a succession of uncertainties.

Four solemn strokes of the Chapel clock. The Chapel clock! There is life's one certainty. God! And with divine Love rewarding human faith, who need fear the uncertainty of life or years of education are no substitute for minutes of spiritual searching. Diplomas are important, but the discovery of Faith is the real moment of achievement.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL

ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For the sake of the community and nation; (2) For the sake of the children's sake; (3) For the sake of the Church itself; (4) For the sake of the individual's soul. Regular attendance and support are the keys to a rich and meaningful life.

Carmen Dunn Bride Of Joseph Albea

Wedding Solemnized In Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church

In a ceremony marked with dignity and simplicity, Miss Olive Carmen Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Worth Dunn of this city, became the bride of Joseph William Albea, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Albea of Greenwood, S. C. The rites were performed in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church on Saturday, May 18, at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of the bride, officiated.

Prior to the ceremony Mrs. Paul Toll, organist, presented a program of wedding music. She played "Evening Star" (Tannhauser) by Wagner; "Romance" by Rihinstein; "The Swan" Saint Saens; "Dreams" by Wagner; "If I Could Tell You" by Firestone; "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" by Bach; Theme "Etude E Major" Chopin.

Mrs. Moye Dall of Greenville was soloist. She sang "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee" Gounod. During the ceremony "Ave Maria" by Schubert was softly played. For the benediction Mrs. Dall sang "O Perfect Love" by Barnby. The traditional wedding marches from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn were used.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, Mr. S. W. Dunn, who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of white tulle with fitted bodice and nylon tulle, topped with fitted lace jacket, and long tight sleeves ending in a point on the hand. The bouffant skirt was ruffled at the bottom with nylon tulle. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a cloche of tulle and caught on each side with a spray of orange blossoms.

She carried a Bible topped with a white orchid interspersed with lilies of the valley and satin streamers. Mrs. Sydney W. Dunn Jr., sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She was attired in a white length gown of pale pink tulle with a shirred bodice of a darker shade of pink which was covered with pale pink lilies. She carried a nosegay of pink flowers.

Honorary bridesmaids were the Misses Catherine Loran Smith, Marie Ann Scheller of Greenville and Durham, Ann Duke, Zelma Boyd, Peggy Barrow, all of Greenville, and Peggy Brown of Randleman, N. C. Mesdames George Fuller of Greenville, Alvin Bennington, sister of the groom, of Greenwood, S. C. They were attired in pastel evening dresses and wore carnations in their hair. Mr. H. P. Albea, father of the groom, was best man.

Ushers were Lieutenant (jg) Sydney Worth Dunn Jr., brother of the bride, Messrs. Murray M. Parker, cousin of the bride of Asheville, N. C., George W. Fuller, Max R. Joyner of Greenville.

Mrs. Albea graduated from the Greenville City Schools and attended East Carolina College.

The bridegroom attended Greenwood, S. C. city schools. He has just returned from a 12-month tour of duty with the First Marine Division in Korea.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Dunn entertained in honor of the bride and groom in the church Fellowship Hall.

Mrs. E. J. Bedworth, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hendrix assisted in receiving the guests.

Rev. and Mrs. Leon Russell introduced the guests to the receiving line, which was composed of the bride party. Traditional green and white were used as decorations.

After the bride and groom cut the first slice of cake, guests were served from an appointed table by Mrs. M. W. Maxwell and Mrs. Lee Proctor, aunt of the bride.

At another table which was centered with white flowers Mrs. Frederick Brooks and Mrs. J. B. Smith served punch. The honor attendants served bridal nuts and mints.

Goodbyes were said by Miss Peggy Brown and Ed Stephens.

For traveling the bride changed to a "middy" suit of navy wool with a white blouse. Her hat was of an original design in white straw with a face veil. Navy shoes, white bag and gloves topped her ensemble. At her shoulders she wore a white orchid lifted from her bouquet.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Albea will reside at the Marine Air Station, Cherry Point, where the bridegroom is stationed.

School Bond Issue Given Support Pledge By Club

The Greenville Kiwanis Club at its weekly supper meeting last night, pledged its support for the $1,500,000 school bond issue at the special election on Tuesday June 2.

J. B. James, chairman of the City School Board, spoke in behalf of the bond issue to enlarge the school facilities. He declared passage of the school bond issue will be a step forward in improving human relations. The attorney said "loyalty and loyalty for our youth should inspire us to register and vote for the school bond issue." He reminded that Saturday (today) is the last day voters may register.

"We have a wonderful school system in Greenville, but the population is steadily increasing. It is imperative that we enlarge the schools because families in numbers are moving in, and I am certain that the Kiwanians will use their influence to carry the election on June 2," James said in conclusion.

City Supt. June H. Rose spoke briefly and emphasized the rapidly increasing demand for additional school facilities. He reminded that the "little village of Greenville" is a thing of the past, and that we have come to the crossroads where there will be a more equal division of industry and agriculture. Rose predicted that some day Greenville will be the "capital of Eastern Carolina."

School trustees J. Knott Proctor, Dr. S. M. Crisp and Joe Taft were present at last night's meeting.

Public relations Chairman Dr. Howard Grady had charge of the program and introduced the speaker. Vice-President J. Bryan Brown presided for President Leo W. Jenkins. Dr. John O. Reynolds is acting secretary while David C. Moore Jr. is recovering from a recent illness.

The first meetings will be held in the western part of the state.

J. O. Teel of Greenville, district game and fish protector, said the meeting for the Second District, which includes Pitt and some adjacent counties, will be held in New Bern Thursday, June 4. The conference will be held in the city court room at 7:30 p. m. Sportsmen are invited to attend the public meeting. The last regional meeting will be District 1. Strength for the Day

GUIDE OF THE AGES

John Stuart Mill was one of the great political economists of all time. Unfortunately, however, his father inculcated in his son a disbelief of the Bible. Mill with all his greatness was to remain throughout his distinguished career a skeptic as regards religious matters.

But he did make one statement about religion which has often been quoted. "There could be," he declared, "no better rule whereby to decide questions of ethical propriety than for a man to ask himself, 'What would Jesus of Nazareth have done in such a case?'"

Through the ages, the influence of Jesus has become the most remarkable circumstance in human history. Go any place in the world today and you will find the name of Jesus revered. The Mohammedan has little use for Christian theology and no use at all for the Christian Church and its leaders, yet even the Mohammedans reverence Christ as a wise man. Gandhi, who remained always an adherent of the Hindu religion, read the New Testament every day and claimed Jesus as the wise and infallible guide of human conduct.

Yet, this much belief never makes one a Christian. The New Testament claims much more for Jesus than wisdom and moral perfection.

ECC Belongs To All Of Eastern Carolina

It is most encouraging to note from time to time that many communities throughout Eastern Carolina are coming more and more to regard East Carolina College as "their" institution in the same manner that the people of Pitt County regard it.

East Carolina College's rapid advancement up the ladder of achievement in recent years has gained for the institution wide regard not only in this section, but throughout the state and nation.

An editorial published recently in the Rocky Mount Evening Telegram praised the advancement of the college and the men behind that advancement; and went on to say: "Our advice is not to sell East Carolina College short. In fact our further advice is to get behind the program Dr. Messick, et al, are trying to develop at Greenville and lend a hand wherever possible in helping ECC accomplish what we believe to be its mission: Providing an excellent institution of learning in many fields for our section's youth."

That certainly is sound advice for people all over the eastern part of North Carolina.

The Telegram pointed out there has been some talk of the inauguration of an agricultural department at East Carolina to serve the people of the great agricultural section of the state. If such a thing becomes a reality, it will prove a tremendous boon to East Carolina College as well as to Eastern North Carolina. In the words of the Rocky Mount newspaper's editor, East Carolina College "is capably staffed, is rapidly acquiring excellent equipment and is, in fact, becoming Eastern Carolina's University."

The Reflector reiterates its often expressed conviction that not only the people of Pitt County, but the citizens throughout Eastern North Carolina have every right to take great pride in East Carolina College and its program.

It is gratifying to see that the pride and interest which Pitt Counties and a few other people throughout this section of North Carolina have taken in East Carolina College is now spreading to the vast majority of the citizens of the section.

If East Carolina is to reach its potential, not only as an educational institution, but as an institution of service for the betterment of this great section of the state, it must have the support of the people all over this great area we call Eastern North Carolina. It is indeed significant to note that this spirit of sectional support is rapidly advancing.

Impatience To See The 'New Light' On The Subject

It is very worthwhile "spare time" work being done by the Utilities Department of the city in installing the new system of street lights on Evans Street in Greenville.

The new lighting system—which is designed to light the streets rather than to ornament them—when it is completed will be like that of at least two other Pitt County towns, and will be a great help to the city of Greenville.

After the lighting system is tried on Evans Street between Third and Fifth Streets, it is likely that the Utilities officials will see fit to extend the new lighting system throughout the business district of the city. There is no doubt that the new system will shed more light on the "after dark" appearance of the business district as it is now lighted.

It is interesting to note, we think, that the Utilities Department is using its employees to install the new street lighting system in "spare time"—that is between other jobs.

After thinking the matter over, it is logical to agree there is no big rush for the new lighting system to be installed. Perhaps it is wise not to sidetrack other major projects to get the lighting system put up in a hurry. After all, the city has gotten by with the present street lighting system in the business district since 1922.

Even so, when something new is being constructed for the betterment of the community, there is always a subconscious impatience to see the finished product and the effect it has upon the community.

Good Advice That Will Be Ignored

Is science now going to kill off the fine traditions of

Shoulders back,
Tummy in,
Chest out, and Chin in?

Dr. Paul C. Williams, bone specialist and professor of orthopedic surgery, says the above formula of "proper" carriage conflicts with the law of gravity and the structure of the human anatomy.

That leaves all the lads and lassies who have trod the earth in a slouching posture much closer to nature's design than we who "walk tall."

All kinds of dreadful things have been happening to those who have lived by the stern dictates of standing straight, says Dr. Williams. And some of those symptomatic results he describes makes us feel right sad over what has happened to people who went through life conscientiously refusing to slump.

But people who try to save the human race from itself are seldom, if ever, heard. And Dr. Williams' ideas will be ignored by drill sergeants, bathing beauties, health instructors, drum majors, short people and sweater-girls.

Chests "not out", indeed!

National Whirligig

Every Saturday this veteran Washington correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' queries of general interest on national and international politics and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"Don't you think that Attlee had a nerve to attack President Eisenhower and the United States in the House of Commons?" inquires Mrs. T. F. of Dallas, Texas. "It seems like a poor return for everything we have given them. In addition to the fact that they would have been defeated in two great wars without our help."

Answer: It is unfortunate, and it will not help to improve Anglo-American relations, that the former Prime Minister's speech was so misunderstood on this side of the water. It is also unfortunate that most of the angry replies on and off Capitol Hill were voiced before a full report of his remarks had reached this country.

A careful reading shows that he did NOT criticize this country, our Constitution, President Eisenhower, or Senator McCarthy. Attlee was seeking to still controversy by giving his people an elementary lesson in the Constitution's provisions with respect to the conduct of foreign affairs.

He was explaining that Congressional control over appropriations and appointments and treaties makes for confusion and seeming inconsistencies. Many American Presidents have made this same complaint.

BRITONS DON'T UNDERSTAND—The British have never understood the restrictions under which a President operates in the field of foreign affairs. In their country, the party in power and the opposition usually come to a prior agreement on major decisions affecting the empire or national security. Churchill and Attlee have no basic difference of our great leaders.

Wilson and F.D.R. have been extremely helpful because of this misunderstanding. When the Senate refused to ratify the League of Nations in defiance of Wilson, the British—the people, that is—thought that they had been double-crossed, and did not forgive us for many years. F.D.R.'s secret deals and agreements again gave them the impression that the Executive was all-powerful.

IKE'S MOTIVES MISCONSTRUED—Now that Eisenhower gives greater heed to Capitol Hill sentiment in recognition of this divided authority, his motives and actions are misconstrued. The foreigners do not realize that he must win a majority in Congress for appropriations necessary to implement his policies. It was this difficulty which Attlee was trying to explain.

Finally, we must become more accustomed to plain speaking about our actions. For years politicians have won local elections by twisting the British lion's tail. We cannot blame them if they use the technique of plucking the eagle's tail feathers for the same purpose. A great nation, like a great individual, cannot afford too thin a skin.

NEW TOP BRASS WILL OBEY ORDERS—"Do you think," asks S. R. of Concord, N. H., "that Eisenhower deliberately picked MacArthur men as members of the new Joint Chiefs of Staff?"

Answer: Many people here have that opinion. Three of them served in the Pacific area which MacArthur commanded in World War II—Admiral Arthur W. Radford, General Matthew B. Ridgway and General Nathan Twining. All three subscribe to the deposed officer's belief in a more aggressive strategy in Korea.

However, I do not believe that Ike had the MacArthur-Bradley controversy in mind when he selected them. He chose them because of their ability and general aggressiveness. He knows that, despite differences of opinion, they will obey his orders as Commander-in-Chief.

Dr. Jekyll, Mr. Hyde

Somebody Told Me

For the story behind the Daily Reflector carrier boys I talked to the Circulation Manager, J. E. Keziah, the other day. When our 15-minute conversation was over I was practically ready to quit my job and take one of the Reflector routes.

Mr. Keziah directs the operations of 33 carriers in Greenville and 17 in Farmville. Ayden, Grifton, Stokes, Robertsonville, Winterville, Grimesland, Bethel and Vanceboro. He was born and raised in Monroe, N. C., and has many years' experience in the newspaper business.

Frankly, I was surprised to learn how rewarding the job of carrier boy is. There are four Reflector carriers who make over $18 a week. Twelve or more make $15.

The Reflector pays the boys 33 and one-third per cent of their income. This amounts to ten cents per paper per week.

The Little Merchant plan used by the Reflector has proved successful by the leading papers in the country. There is no better training for a boy than to run his route as his own business selling and collecting. Some Reflector carrier boys have savings accounts that run up into the hundreds of dollars.

Mr. Keziah is interested in keeping harmony between the subscriber and the carrier boy. "We guarantee delivery," he says, "by urging anyone who hasn't received their paper by six o'clock to call 3356 and we'll see that they get a paper."

In order to give better service, he urges all subscribers to pay their carrier boys promptly. By paying promptly, he emphasizes, the jobs become more attractive and better boys are attracted. Better carriers make for better service to you, the subscriber.

Mr. Keziah is also interested in hearing complaints about deliveries, so he can make corrections accordingly. "It's very important to make complaints promptly, when the circumstances are fresh in the mind of the carrier boy. If we report promptly, we can make corrections promptly."

Mr. Keziah points out that there's only one route in Greenville that cannot be made in an hour and a half. For aggressive boys the job looks great. Are there openings?

"We can always use qualified boys," he promises. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

GOVERNOR — Governor Umstead presided over a meeting of the Board of Buildings & Grounds in his office at the Capitol Thursday, the first official action at the big executive office desk since January 10. For the past three months, however, he has been carrying on the necessary functions of the office from the Mansion. Except for the fact many members of the General Assembly were disappointed at inability to discuss matters with him—a situation which probably contributed to the long drawn out session—there is little indication that his illness has interfered with the handling of public business.

APPOINTMENTS — The Governor is about to wrap up his schedule on major appointments. A great many people who were interested in this or that particular appointive position have manifested impatience because the Governor has not gotten around to that special item. It is of record that he stated before his inauguration and before his illness that he would not make these appointments until after the Legislature adjourned, except in those instances where confirmation was required or emergencies developed. When folks are impatient time moves slowly, and it is hard to realize that just three weeks have elapsed since the sine die adjournment of the 1953 General Assembly. During that three weeks the Governor has made nearly all the appointments for places in which terms of incumbents expired before July 1.

AT WILL — Several top positions are terminable at the pleasure of the Governor. Some of these have been filled, the latest and in many respects the most important, was that of motor vehicles commissioner. Appointment to that post of Ed Scheidt, retired FBI man, whose tenure as agent in charge of FBI offices at Charlotte, New York and Detroit, proved his ability as a law enforcement officer and executive administrator, met almost unanimous approval among those with whom your reporter has talked. Remaining to be filled in the "at pleasure" positions are an assistant director of the budget, a director of purchase and contract and a director of conservation and development.

TREASURER — The term of the commissioner of revenue ran out on January 1, and there are a few other over-due individual and board or commission appointments. Delayed announcement of the resignation of Brandon P. Hodges as state treasurer informed the public of what the Governor and the treasurer had known for several weeks, that here is another top level appointment requiring almost immediate attention. In absence of authoritative information from responsible sources your reporters has not indulged in speculation on individual or personal appointments.

INJUSTICE — Such speculation with publicity given prospective or suggested names can be embarrassing to all parties involved, and in many instances work real hardship on some of them. There is justification for talking about what a group of people may do, whether or not this or that man will offer himself as a candidate for election by the people.

It is not difficult to get mass impression, but without specific information of authority to quote, it seems unfair to speculate on the intent of one man, or at most two—the appointive authority and the probable appointee.

JUDGES — Besides the several administrative positions mentioned in the foregoing paragraphs the most important appointments left in the Governor's file are the superior court special judges. For many years the maximum number of special judges permitted was eight. No appointments are required. The recent Legislature increased the optional potential to twelve, after a stalemate developed between Senate and House over whether to increase the number of judicial districts or to permit more than one regular judge in some districts. Evidence adduced at committee hearings on the judges' bills, neither of which was enacted, afforded proof that at least twelve additional judges are needed. Under the law, it is left to the discretion of the Governor as to how many and who will be named. As to the number, opinion is general that twelve will be appointed. As to who, well, there will be no lack of Willing Barkises, but the names are left to Governor Umstead.

FELLOWSHIP — Every section, almost every community, has its own peculiar manners and customs. Nearly everywhere there is a mixture of business and pleasure, and there are stories about how social events influence public affairs. The gossip columns are full of stuff about New York night clubs and Washington social circles.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

"OH, IF I WERE 19 AGAIN!"

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Interviewed on his 69th birthday, former President Harry Truman gave vent the other day to an expression of heart by men and women who are passing into the twilight years—"Oh, if I were 19 again!"

That's a good topic to think about at this season when so many young men and women, most of whom are very near to 19, are finishing high schools all over the land. What lies ahead? How best can they use their talents? What should be done?

Of course, Uncle Sam has a ready-made answer for most of the boys. There's that matter of military service which perhaps can prove a good conditioning agency before the youngsters get into the more serious business of going to college or entering upon some phase of work. It's no secret that many of our youths are wholly unprepared mentally and from a standpoint of years to enter college and get the most out of their sojourn there.

Naturally, it's much easier to look backward 40 or 50 years and reflect upon the wisdom of the course taken when one was 19. Unfortunately, there's nothing that can be done about it then. Hence, it becomes of vital importance for a person who is 19 or thereabouts to make the decision. Fortunately, there are many ways of determining what is the best to be done. We have our counselors both in high school and college and they no doubt render an invaluable service to youth.

Still there is much that the individual must accomplish on his own before he starts off on his course in life. That's the reason we like the term "commencement" as applied to our high school graduation exercises. It is, of a new life for many youngsters. Then, we have college commencements, too, and they also denote further steps along the way.

As long as people live, however, there will always be those—most of us, too—who will wish that we could be 19 again. Certainly we would make the best of many opportunities that confront those of 19 but which do not seem evident at the time.

That is all the more important, we think, for young people to avail themselves of the counsel of older persons. Not one person, but a number of persons, because they have been that way before; they will be glad to help young people escape the pitfalls that lie along the way.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Latest government figures show that total personal income in the United States in March was 7 per cent higher than a year ago and that all retail sales were 9 per cent higher. But sales by eating places were only 4 per cent up.

One of the reasons why the restaurant business is not keeping pace with the rest of the economy may be the fault of management.

Your correspondent has eaten in 126 restaurants in almost that many cities in the past six weeks. Some of the restaurants were wonderful, truly offering adventures in good eating. But a regretfully large part of them seemed to be conspiring to encourage eating at home.

One of the most offensive, yet common, practices is that of leaving stacks of dirty dishes on racks and tables in the dining room. In one of the otherwise finest hotels in the Southwest, the garbage from a 10-person banquet was left piled up on a service table a few inches from another party and it stayed there all through the meal. In countless other restaurants there were similar onslaughts on diners' appetites.

Failure to get lipstick off glasses and cups is another common offense, so is the failure to rye spotless silverware.

Cooking in these United States is generally pretty good, in quick-lunches as well as in elaborate restaurants. But there is still room for improvement in many places; foods could be prepared with a little less grease and French fried potatoes could be crisp more often.

Another annoyance is the jangling on menus of dishes that aren't there. An eastern restaurant listed almost 200 dishes on its menu but it had only spaghetti and a few kinds of chicken and veal. A diner in one of New Orleans' most famous restaurants ordered snapper turtle soup. "I don't know why they keep listing that," the waiter said. "We never have it."

You can have coffee before, during or after meals in most eating places in the country, but it is almost impossible to get it with the main course in New York City. One can plead with threaten or wheedle a New York waiter and the coffee will still come last.

If restaurants tried as hard to find out what the public really wants as do, say, men's and boys' furnishing stores, they might increase their sale. The "fishing stores" sales were up 14 per cent in March.

WORLD SOYBEAN CROP CLOSE TO RECORD

World production of soybeans last year was 669,000,000 bushels, only 1,000,000 bushels under the all-time record crop in 1950, the Foreign Agriculture Service estimates. The Balkans, which suffered a drought, was the only area not to report record harvests.

HOW TO USE ELECTRONICS TO TEACH IN SCHOOLS

A booklet, "Teaching with Radio, Audio, Recording and Television Equipment," prepared with the assistance of the U.S. Office of Education, has been published by the Radio-Television Manufacturers Association, Washington, D.C. It describes ways in which these media can be used in educational work.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love. What many a middle-aged fellow has been thinking of all winter.

Love is a subject the middle-aged man isn't supposed to concern himself much with. By now he is expected to have his affairs of the heart settled, and to devote himself to more serious matters.

The middle-aged man is the workhorse of our civilization. His cold days are past, he is too young to be put out to pasture, and the world counts on him to bend into his harness and plow a straight furrow, and no nonsense about it.

This is what most middle-aged men do. They accept the harness whether it chafes them or not, and quietly go about their duty, until they drop or are retired.

But even a workhorse must remember his colts' fire. And it would startle many a placid family if they could see the day-dreams that go on behind the tired eyes of their stolid middle-aged brethren. They seem so dull and commonplace as he plods from home to job, from job to home.

Why, in his mind, he's not taken-for-granted baldy with a paunch. He's the eternal lover, a gay boy, a play boy, a free-wheeling Romeo who loves 'em and leaves 'em, and goes on laughing to the next one.

What are you doing, Jones? says the boss. And the boss vanishes. But only for the boss is gone. The stenographer is blithely by and back on "that day-dream. Boy, if she only knew. Jones has loved her and forgotten her before she even reaches the water cooler.

The world forgets the heart has neither season nor reason, and that most people all their lives are in love with love and hate responsibility. Poor middle-aged Jones is still fond of his wife. But he resists the fact that he bought her the first steak dinner of his own free will but more or less had to buy her the next 999 on account of marriage.

And so Jones starts dreaming of how wonderful it would be to be free again. Actually he really does not want to, and would be frightened if he were.

Most middle-aged men who break up the patterns of their married life find it is no fun to be a colt again—a colt with a bald head.

But the married man who makes that mistake is one of the real tragic figures of our times. He is one who, having passed life's peak and started down, reaches second adolescence before he gets to his second childhood.

Young puppy love is heart-breaking enough; but middle-aged puppy love is mind-breaking as well as heart-breaking. And it gets no sympathy from the mob. People may pity an old fool, but they despise a middle-aged fool, and he usually gets to feel that way about himself, too.

He takes himself a new, young love and finds that isn't really what he wanted. He is not afraid of her and her youth as he was afraid before of growing old. In Connecticut last week they hauled a 48-year-old father of 12 kids into court for annoying a 20-year-old single girl with "love letters." On letter was 465 pages long and the prosecutor called it "drivel," which any 465-page love letter would have to be, even if Shakespeare wrote it.

"There was never any serious purpose in my mind," said the father. "I thought that maybe she'd say 'Hello,' and down deep in my heart I knew I'd be scared if she did."

There is a moral in this for all middle-aged fellows who suffer from what some doctors call "40-year male fever." Stick to your plowing and keep your daydreams to yourself. If you want to avoid the world's laughter and writer's cramp.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — It is not so-called necessary for the chief justice of the United States and his wife to accept invitations to parties, no matter by whom the function is given, or where.

Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson and his gay and popular Roberta can even turn down a White House invitation if they choose, but the Vinsons love parties, and although they have cut down their social program considerably in recent years they still manage to get around to a great many more than the average couple.

"Once you get on the merry-go-round, it's difficult to get off—and sometimes you don't want to," Mrs. Vinson told me. "However, I only go to two or three luncheons a week now, and we never go to day-time things when we have a dinner or night-time engagement."

The Vinsons are about the most popular couple in town. Custom prescribes that all heads of foreign diplomatic missions give for formal dinners in their honor, but the chief justice has served in all three branches of the government and so gets invitations from friends in every social circle in the Capital.

It was only recently that Mrs. Vinson discontinued her weekly "at home," a custom dropped by other "official" wives during the war. She told me she didn't want to be "archaic." However, many women still call to ask if she is receiving and scores leave their cards at her apartment.

A recent illness and the death of Mrs. Vinson's mother were mostly responsible for the curtailment of the couple's social whirl. "We both love people and always enjoy ourselves when we go out," Mrs. Vinson explained, "but we had to call a halt sometime. I can remember when we went to a dinner or reception every night and I went to three or four functions a day. "One late afternoon a new butler, wishing to announce me to a hostess, didn't quite catch my name. "Mrs. Lincoln?" he repeated. "No, I said, amused. "I just look like her today. This is my fourth party this afternoon."

At home now with the Vinsons is their son, Fred Jr., a lawyer. Visiting them is their new daughter-in-law, Margaret, wife of their younger son, Jim, who is setting his basic Army training at nearby Fort Belvoir, Va. "Nothing can induce Fred Senior to go out Sunday nights," Mrs. Vinson said. "I've seen him turn down some pretty important invitations to keep his weekly bridge date with Fred Junior and his friends." The friends are Brian Bell Jr., sports writer son of the late Associated Press bureau chief and South Carolina gubernatorial candidate, and former clerk of the House of Representatives. "They play for blood," Mrs. Vinson said.

Grade-School Children Study Needs Of Proper Food In Classroom Work

By CAROLYN FLEWELLEN
State Board of Health Nutrition
Consultant

"Say Mom, guess what?" Jimmy burst into the house with his books. "We weighed Nip and Tuck today and Nip is gaining lots faster and looking so much healthier than Tuck. Tuck drinks that bottle drink but it sure isn't making him grow like the milk does Nip!"

And what is this sixth grade youngster so excited about now? A real experiment feeding two little white rats at school has taken his complete fancy.

Greenville and Pitt County school children are learning that food makes a difference! Through classroom projects, such as those pictured above, out elementary teachers are guiding their children to better eating habits and better health.

Eighteen classrooms in Greenville and Pitt County schools have conducted their own animal experiments this spring. The boys and girls become real scientists and have fun doing it.

For example in studying about Vitamin C foods that boys and girls need, such as citrus fruits, tomatoes, and raw cabbage, they feed little guinea pigs to see the difference Vitamin C food makes in their diets. They feed both guinea pigs the same diet but give tomato juice only to one.

Then as they watch them grow they find the guinea pig receiving tomato juice growing faster and in better health because he is getting his Vitamin C in tomato juice each day. These experiments were conducted in the following classrooms:

Mrs. Blue's 5th grade at Third Street, Mrs. Franklin's 8th grade at West Greenville, Mrs. Jackson's 6th grade at Bethel, Mrs. Cozart's Biology class at Grimesland, Mrs. Roundtree's Home Ec class at Pitt County Training School, Mrs. Lawrence's 8th grade at Falkland, and Mrs. Cain's 6th grade at Chicod.

Other classrooms are using the little white rats like Nip and Tuck to test the value of milk in their diets. When one little white rat receives milk and the other does not, the children can see the difference in their appearance and their growth very quickly.

These children have also been interested in doing an experiment to take that milk apart — finding out what is in it to make boys and girls have strong bones and teeth. These classrooms have been Mrs. Clark's 6th grade at the Training School (pictured above), Miss McKnight's 6th grade at Epps High School, Mrs. Rouse's 6th grade and Mrs. Flanagan's 4th grade at Third Street School, Mrs. Hodges's 4th grade at West Greenville, Mrs. Tucker's 6th grade at Grifton, Miss Venter's 6th grade and Mr. Roundtree's 8th grades at Pitt County Training School, Miss Bass's 5th grade at Farmville and Miss Love's 6th grade at Bethel School.

Another interesting experiment showing the value of whole grain cereals was conducted with white rats in Mrs. Speight's 4th grade at Farmville.

Mrs. Mitchell's 8th grade at Epps High School also used an animal experiment for their unit on calories.

In addition to these nutritious units being taught with experimental animals, teachers in the city and county schools have led other classroom activities in nutrition. The younger children love to have food parties in the classroom.

Two fifth grade students weigh the white rats they used in experimenting with milk. One animal was fed on milk, another on food lacking nutritional value. A chart was kept by the students showing the rats' gain, and lack of gain, in weight throughout the experiment. The boys above are students in Mrs. D. M. Clark's room at the Training School. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

A sixth grade room at Chicod School also carried on experiments showing the weight progress of guinea pigs and kept a chart to show results of the experiment.

Many teachers have found this a means of developing a favorable attitude toward foods boys and girls need for health.

Often the school can accomplish more than the home in changing attitudes toward food. The youngsters will drink milk and like it — when they see other children drinking it at a "party" at school. And no child wants to be left out of a "vegetable party" at school when they eat with relish what they themselves have prepared.

South Greenville School children have even grown their own vegetables this year by having a garden with turnip greens, cabbage, lettuce, radishes, onions, and carrots. Miss Rich and her 4th grade have had a wonderful time as real little gardeners. And they have furnished the vegetables for their "parties."

Good eating habits have been especially emphasized in health teaching in local schools for the past two years. On the request of the County Health Department and the county and city schools, I have been working with the teachers of city and county schools in promoting better eating habits.

A survey of eating habits of children from all sections of the city and county last year revealed that only 23 percent of our children receive an adequate amount of milk each day, and that only 18 percent receive a serving of green leafy or yellow vegetables each day.

The teachers recognize so easily that the poorly nourished child and the child who comes to school without breakfast can not learn and make the progress of the alert child who receives a well balanced diet. Thus nutrition education becomes a part of regular school activities. By helping our children to "learn to eat," our teachers are working toward healthier boys and girls of the future.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH

In Police Court Friday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found James H. Bullock of Henderson guilty of destroying personal property at the Greenville Hotel on Dickinson Avenue.

The court allowed Bullock to submit a plea of forcible trespass. Prayer for judgment was continued on payment of $5 on court costs and $25 to the Greenville Hotel. Testimony was that Bullock damaged a mattress, a sheet and a bedspread.

Probable cause was found in the case in which Charles W. Horton was charged with forgery and cashing a forged check at the College View Cleaners for $31. The check was on the Apex Restaurant and the Durham Bank and Trust Company. The bank refused payment. Horton, ordered held under $1,000 bail for grand jury hearing, could not provide bond and was taken to the county jail.

Hubert Bigelow, Negro, larceny of a coat from Oran Gray, was ordered to pay $5 court costs and $10 into the court for Gray's coat.

Speeding: Maxie C. Jackson, $15; Herbert D. Bland, $15.

Chapter 4

A gaunt man in his middle fifties, Inspector Carlton of homicide warmed his cold hands at the thumping radiator in front of the window.

Without turning around he said, "All right, Barney. Let's have it. How did it happen?"

"I don't know."

"You mean you were so drunk you don't remember?"

"No sir."

"What do you mean?"

Mandell shifted his weight on the chair. "I mean I don't know how it happened. I went into the bathroom to take a shower and there she was."

Joe Mercer of the Blade backed out of the bathroom. "You can still pick 'em, Barney. I'll give you credit for that much."

Carlton looked at Lieutenant Rose. "What did you tell me he said her name was?"

"He claims he doesn't know her name."

"My Sainted Aunt," Carlton said. "What's her name, Barney?"

"I don't know."

As fat a man as Inspector Carlton was thin, with a deceptive Buddha-like smile. Lieutenant Rose looked up from the personal trivia he had found in a green cord purse under a camel's hair coat.

"Her name is Marvin, first name Cherry. She was a part-time model. And she lived at the Tansfield Arms Hotel."

The assistant coroner came out of the bathroom.

"How about the time of death?" Carlton asked him.

"Off hand, four or five hours ago." The coroner's man put on his hat and coat. "She's your baby."

"Where did you meet her, Barney?" Inspector Carlton asked.

"In Johnny's Bar," admitted Mandell.

"I thought you were married to Gale Ebbeling."

"I am."

"Then how come you picked up this girl?"

Mandell started to explain. He couldn't. How can you explain hurt? How can you explain how you feel when, after you've been away from her for two years, your wife promises to be waiting in a certain hotel—and isn't?

"Well?" Carlton asked.

Mandell got to his feet. "For God's sake, get this over. Take me down and lock me up. So I killed her. I don't remember it. I don't remember having anything to do with her."

No one laughed. No one even smiled.

Inspector Carlton dropped his coat. "How long have you been drinking, Barney?"

"Since the bars opened this morning."

"Why?"

"Because my wife wasn't here to meet me like she promised she would be."

"Just got out of the sanitarium, didn't you, Barney?"

"Yes, sir. This morning."

Inspector Carlton looked at Graziano. "You see him come in with the girl, Jim?"

Graziano said, "No. Mandell was alone every time I saw him."

Lieutenant Rose pushed Barney back in the chair. "Sit down. Relax, son. It will be some time before we start for the Bureau."

Inspector Carlton said, "Now let's get back to another angle, Barney. This man you say was waiting when you came into your room this evening. Can you describe him?"

"No, I can't. It was dark."

"And when you came to, your wallet was gone?"

"Yes, sir."

"With how much in it?"

"Around six hundred dollars."

"You called the desk and reported you'd been held up?"

"No."

"I see," Carlton said. "You're lucky, Barney. The average man can't get clipped for six hundred dollars and not bother to report it. I know I'd raise the roof. Now, about this similarity in perfume. Before I got here, you told Lieutenant Rose that the dead girl used the same perfume as your wife."

"Yes, sir. She did."

"That was what attracted you to her in the first place?"

Mandell corrected him. "No. She was attracted to me."

"So you came up to the room, got into a drunken quarrel about something, and before you thought you popped her so hard you broke her neck."

Mandell began to sweat again. "I don't remember."

Inspector Carlton lost his temper. "Stop lying to me. Did you or didn't you kill her?"

"I don't know. I don't think I did. No matter how drunk or crazy a man is, he'd remember a thing like that."

Lieutenant Rose and Inspector Carlton conferred. Then Rose sat on the bed and laid a fatherly hand on Mandell's knee.

"What were you going to do with her, Barney?"

"I was going to hide the body."

"Why didn't you?"

"I realized that was crazy thinking."

"And you aren't crazy?"

Graziano said hotly, "Cut it out, Rose. What are trying to do, send the kid to the chair?"

Elks Tally Twice In Sixth To Beat Exchangites 7-6

Rallying for two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning, the Elks edged out the Exchangites 7-6 in a Little League contest yesterday afternoon. The win threw the Elks into a tie for fourth place with the losers.

Lucian Bryan relieved Merrill Bynum in the fourth inning and was credited with the victory. The loser, Bill Clapp, pitched the entire game.

First baseman Joe Moyer of the Elks was leading batter for the game with a double and two singles in four times at bat. Harry Forbes, Bynum and Howard Garner each had two hits apiece for the winners. Contributing two hits in a losing cause was Exchange catcher Dick Evans.

In Minor League play the White Sox saw to it that the Yanks did not hit the win column by defeating the cellar-dwellers 2-1. Bennett was the winning pitcher for the White Sox. Jenkins had a homerun and double for the losers, while Cozart paced the winners with a triple.

Big, Little Men In Golf Lead In National Tourney

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—finished second in his last previous start in the Ardmore, Okla., Open, was in that same spot again with a 143.

Boit, who led the field with a brilliant 67 Thursday, went from the sublime to the ridiculous in the second round as he scored 14 strokes to a 41-40-81—the highest score of the day. As a result, he broke and threw clubs and golf balls in disgust and wound up in a seven-way tie for 22nd place.

Heafner worked a magic putter for five birdies and one bogey Friday to post a 33-33-67 over the par 35-35-70 river-bordered layout.

Barber, too, had a hot putter, using only one putt on three greens and taking no putts on the 12th, when he chipped in from eight feet off the green. The La Canada, Calif. pro didn't threaten a single green as he posted a 36-33-69.

Bracketed in a seven-way tie for third place at 144 were Harry Todd of Dallas, Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., Ben Hogan of Fort Worth and Palm Springs, Calif., Al Bessellink of Grossinger, N. Y., Ted Kroil of New Hartford, N. Y., Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., and Peter Thompson, of Melbourne, Australia.

Weighting 144 3-4 pounds to Martinez' 146, Danny won his 20th victory in 22 professional bouts.

It was a close fight, fought at such a terrific pace that both youngsters were lurching on leaden legs in the torrid 10th round.

It was so close the ring officials disagreed.

Lanky, black-haired Giovannelli was almost "out on his feet" in the sixth round, and he was on the floor for a count of seven in the ninth session; but his persistent attack, his long left jab and ripping barages to the body earned him his 12th straight victory.

Assault and Citation got past the Preakness, the Belmont was easy.

Pensive was the only horse which failed to make a clean sweep after winning the first two. Burgoon King and Bold Venture suffered injuries and never got to the post for the third leg after scoring Derby-Preakness doubles.

On the other hand, the Preakness has been the stumbling block which tripped up Zev, Twenty Grand, Johnstown Shut Out and Middle-ground. Each won the Kentucky Derby and later the Belmont. But they failed in between in the Preakness.

That is the tradition Dark Star faced. Native Dancer—just as he was in the Kentucky Derby when he was beaten for the first and only time in his 13-race career—was the people's choice. He was quoted at 3-5 in the overnight line and is likely to be less when the small but classy field parades to the post at 5:45 p.m., e.d.t.

Prisoners Given Increased Wages

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UP)—Officials of the Wisconsin penal system took note of the higher cost of living today.

The state Welfare Board authorized wages for prisoners working inside prison walls to be boosted from 25 cents a day to 35 cents. Those working on prison farms and forestry projects will get 40 cents instead of 10 cents a day.

MENOMINEE, Mich. (UP)—Authorities suspected today that a two-year-old girl was abducted and left to die in Upper Michigan woodlands while hundreds searched for her.

Sheriff Edward Reindl said it was "impossible" that little Beverly Bradley had wandered in rough timberland for two days before she was discovered Friday.

"It looks almost inevitable that someone had been holding her captive and left her in the woods a few hours before she was found," he said.

"And I don't think the someone meant her to be discovered," he added.

A Coast Guard helicopter crew spotted Beverly lying on her face behind a stump in the woods around Carbondale, Mich. She was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital here, where she was reported "resting quietly" today.

The pretty, long-haired child did not talk much during the hours following her discovery and Reindl said he did not think she had yet told the story of her ordeal.

Reindl listed the following facts as backing up his suspicion that Beverly had been the victim of an abductor:

1. A search party had passed by the spot where Beverly was found only three hours before her discovery. One of the searchers told Reindl "he looked at the exact spot where they found her later."
2. None of Beverly's clothes were wet, and her shoes were not soiled, although the child had been supposedly wandering in marshy woodlands which were lashed by storms following her disappearance. "There was mud and water all around her," Reindl said.
3. Although the woods are infested with vicious swarms of mosquitoes, "Beverly hardly had a bite on her." Moreover, she was not scratched by brambles.
4. Beverly was dressed only in red underpants and T-shirt when she was found. Her doll, which she was playing with when she disappeared from the cottage, was lying nearby. Her jeans were found five feet away from her.

Sheriff Resting In Pitt Hospital

Pitt County Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson was reported to be "resting very comfortably" at Pitt Memorial Hospital this morning after being admitted late yesterday afternoon.

Law enforcement officials said the sheriff evidently was affected by a mild form of heat prostration, and of his own volition, entered the hospital for observation and check-up.

His wife stated he probably will remain there for the next two or three days, and will rest at home possibly for the remainder of next week.

Only in 1943 did the government of Italy arrange to have at least one telephone in every town which has a post office, and many small hamlets without post offices still do not have phone service.

Pitt Farm Bureau Giving Sum For N.C. Peanut Growers Association

Arch J. Flanagan, president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, announced today that the County Bureau has donated one cent per acre, based on the 1953 peanut acreage allotment to be used by the North Carolina Peanut Growers Association Inc.

Based on an allotment of 7,069.6 acres the money to be turned over to the Association amounts to $70.70 for the county.

Flanagan said that this money will be used to finance the operation of the peanut growers' association until such time as a referendum is conducted among peanut growers and funds collected directly from the producers.

He pointed out that peanut producers are in about the same position that flue-cured tobacco growers were in at the time the Tobacco Associates program was first launched in North Carolina. Both programs will be similar in their operations.

Flanagan stated that the Pitt County Farm Bureau is very happy to have the opportunity of being of service to the peanut growers in Pitt County by this donation.

Workmen hurried construction of stands and put up the last banners and bunting of gold, scarlet, blue and royal purple along Piccadilly, Fall Mall and other sections of the coronation parade route.

Shopkeepers and householders everywhere took up royal ciphers and portraits of their queen either in their windows or over their doors.

The city was in its gayest mood since the war. Colorful uniforms of commonwealth and colonial troops attracted attention, and the bright summer clothes of visiting Americans offset the dullness of London dress.

Almost 2,000 tourists, mostly women, waited outside Buckingham Palace for hours last night hoping for a glimpse of the young queen even though police had "them repeatedly she would not leave."

Black Shank In Pitt Is Reported

Black Shank, the dread tobacco disease, has been detected on three Pitt County farms, it was learned today.

County tobacco specialist Sam Weeks reported that there had been disclosures of three infested fields made to his office and that he had checked and confirmed all three reports.

In all three cases, the crop affected covered an area estimated by Weeks at between three and three and one-half acres.

Weeks pointed out that while there may be more black shank existing in the county, the three cases mentioned by him are the only ones which he has had reported and found to be black shank.

The tobacco specialist also pointed out that all three fields infected by the disease were planted with non-resistant types of tobacco.

Generally speaking, the tobacco picture in the county was believed to be good. Frequent rains over the past week in most sections of the county have got the new crop off to a good start.

Most farmers were reporting good stands of plants for the 1953 crop in almost every instance.

ington cocktail parties. The North Carolina version is an out door barbecue, or maybe a fish-fry or an old fashioned picnic. The particular setting may be different, the general idea is the same. Whether it is a cocktail party with imported hors d'oeuvres on the banks of a small river, or a barbecue under the shade of trees at the edge of a cotton patch, the fact is that a lot of public business is transacted or potentially influenced by these quasi-social gatherings together of folks.

PIERCE — Latest of these regular or semi-organized gatherings your reporter has run into, although it has been going on for a long time, is the John Pierce Fellowship Club. That informal outfit staged its annual barbecue at Raymond Turnage's Contentment Camp on Contentment Creek near Ayden on Wednesday. There were 227 registered members and guests, including Herbert Bonner, congressman from the first district; Henry Bridges, state auditor; Sam Worthington, newly appointed utilities commissioner; Maynard Hicks, new highway commissioner; and a dozen or more other state, district and local public officials.

POLITICAL — It was not a political meeting in the true sense, and yet there was more genuine politics (in the true meaning of the term as governmental administration) than might be found at some party convocation.

It was typical of America, and especially of North Carolina, in that the big shots and the little folks mingled together without distinction as to rank, and with good fellowship as the only criterion for participation in all the events. President Eisenhower's speech to the people and the more formal one to Congress had more worldwide significance in news value, but no more real importance in the preservation of true democracy in the world, than did the fellowship barbecue at Contentment Camp.

FLASH GORDON.....by Mac Raboy and Don Moore

DIVING HEADLONG INTO THE PIRATE MOON-STATION, FLASH'S ROCKET SHIP PERCES THE THIN WALL AS IF IT WERE AN EGGSHELL. HIS CRAFT CAREENS CRAZILY ACROSS THE VAST MAIN CHAMBER OF THE STRUCTURE, BUT HE FINALLY MANAGES TO BRING IT TO A STOP. AS HE CLAMBERS FROM THE CABIN, HE HEARS THE OMINOUS HISS OF THE MOON-STATION'S AIR SUPPLY ESCAPING THROUGH THE GAPING HOLE IN THE WALL! THERE IS NO TIME TO LOSE! HE MUST FIND DALE AND ZARKOV BEFORE THEY SUFFOCATE IN THE VACUUM!

CORNERED IN AN INNER COMPARTMENT WITH THEIR PRISONERS, MARC AND STELLA SEAL THE AIRTIGHT DOORS IN TIME TO SAVE SOME OF THE DWINDLING OXYGEN SUPPLY. WHILE THEY DON SPACE HELMETS, MARC OUTLINES A PLAN TO STELLA: "I'LL GUARD THE CAPTIVES. YOU FIND GORDON--OFFER TO LEAD HIM TO HIS FRIENDS. THEN WE'LL AMBUSH HIM!"

ROUNDING A CORNER IN THE CENTRAL CORRIDOR, STELLA SUDDENLY ENCOUNTERS FLASH. "DON'T SHOOT!" SHE PLEADS. "I AM ON A FRIENDLY MISSION! YOUR FRIENDS DALE AND ZARKOV ARE SAFE! I WILL TAKE YOU TO THEM!"

BUT FLASH IS ALERT FOR TRICKERY AND REFUSES TO FOLLOW THE PIRATE QUEEN. ENRAGED, SHE SNATCHES A TINY NEEDLE-GUN FROM HER HOLSTER. BEFORE SHE CAN FIRE, FLASH LEAPS FORWARD AND GRABS HER WRIST.

AS STELLA'S SCREAMS REVERBERATE THROUGH THE STEEL CORRIDORS, MARC SLIPS OUT OF THE AIR-CHAMBER AND RUSHES TO HER AID. WITH THE STRENGTH OF A FRIGHTENED TIGRESS, STELLA SWINGS FLASH AROUND SO THAT MARC CAN FIRE WITHOUT ENDANGERING HER! "MARC! SHOOT!" SHE CRIES. NEXT WEEK - PIRATE DOOM

THE JUNGLE WAR SURGES ON AS TRIBE AFTER TRIBE JOINS IN.

TWO MORE DAYS, AND WE WILL DESTROY THE WAMBES!

OSSEWEY, WAMBESI, LOROGU— DROP YOUR WEAPONS! THERE WILL BE A TRUCE WHILE YOUR CHIEF'S PALAVER.

TRUCE!

THE PALAVER GOES ON FOR DAYS—THE PHANTOM SITS CALMLY, HOLDING HIS TRIGGER TEMPER IN CHECK, AND SOOTHING THE CHIEFS.

AND PEACE RETURNS TO THE JUNGLE.

IF THEY EVER FIGHT AGAIN—AND THEY PROBABLY WILL—WILL YOU DESERT THEM?

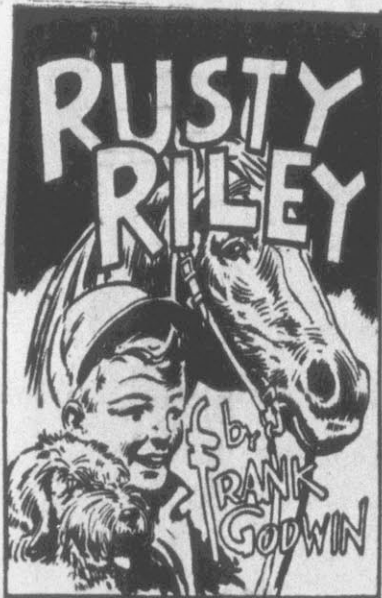

NO, DIANA. I'VE GOT TO REMEMBER THAT THIS IS PART OF MY JOB AS THE PHANTOM. PATIENCE—

SOMETHING AILS THAT POOCH...HE'S ACTING QUEER!

I THINK HE WANTS US TO FOLLOW HIM, SHERIFF!

WOOF! WOOF! WOOF!

BY JINGO, YOU'RE RIGHT, SAM! C'MON, LET'S SEE WHAT'S ON HIS MIND.

HE'S RUNNING TWARD THAT OLD SPRING HOUSE!

HECK! HE JUST WANTS TO PLAY! LET'S GO!

WAIT A MINUTE...I AIN'T SO SURE...THERE'S A FRESHLY WHITTLED STICK THROUGH THE HASP ON THIS DOOR!

IT AIN'T BEEN TOO LONG SINCE THIS DOOR WAS FASTENED...ANYHOW, IT WON'T HURT TO TAKE A LOOK!

MEANWHILE, ON THE HIGHWAY

OH, FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE! DON'T GO CHICKEN NOW! AS SOON AS WE CROSS THE BORDER, WE'LL DITCH THIS WAGON AND BE SAFE!

OH, JEEPERS, MISS DOOLEY, I THINK I HEAR MY DOG FLIP!

AND VOICES! MEN'S VOICES!

A FEW MINUTES LATER

YES, SIR...HIS NAME IS MEL, AND HE CALLED HER TRIXIE... THEY'VE GOT A 1950 'BLUEBIRD' STATION WAGON...I DON'T KNOW THE LICENSE NUMBER.

AND ONCE AGAIN TO THE HIGHWAY.
