Twelve Red MIGs Shot Out Of Sky

Thirteenth Communist Jet Damaged In Series Of Blazing Battles

By ROBERT UDICK
United Press Staff Correspondent

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—American Sabre jets shot down 12 Communist MIGs and damaged a 13th today in blazing dogfights over North Korea.

It was the second time this month the Sabre jets had accounted for an even dozen jets. The record for a single day is 13.

Maj. James Jabara of Wichita, Kans., history's first jet ace now on his second tour of Korea at his own request, shot down two MIGs bringing his score to nine destroyed, three probably destroyed and seven damaged.

Communist pilots came out of their sanctuary beyond the Yalu River and indicated they wanted a fight. They got more than they bargained for.

Sabre pilots sent five hurtling to earth in morning battles and damaged another. The MIGs came back in the afternoon and lost seven more of the expensive jets in deadly duels with the Sabres.

Most of the action was above Sinuiju near the Manchurian border on the west coast of North Korea.

The kills today brought the score of MIGs shot down this month to 51. The record month was last September when 62 Communist planes went down.

Lt. Col. George I. Ruddell of Eugene Ore., had to swerve his Sabre to avoid being hit by a falling MIG.

"One lone MIG came out of a hassel that was going on over our heads and my wingman and I went after him," Ruddell said.

"He saw me coming and made a left turn. He snapped and went out of control but recovered at 18,000 feet. I kept closing in, firing as I went and closed to within 300 feet of him. He blew right out in front of me with a loud explosion. Chunks flew back and broke my windshield and dented my nose. I had to swerve in order to avoid hitting him. The last I saw he was heading down. I didn't see the pilot bail out."

The "big kill" came after night-flying Superforts from Okinawa and light bombers had worked over Red supply routes, troop concentration centers and frontline targets.

The biggest ground battle took place near Outpost Texas where 22 Chinese Communists were killed in a brief attack. South Koreans carried out two raids at the extreme eastern tip of the front, killing 27 North Koreans and destroying eight bunkers.

Diplomatic Aide Accused Of Blackmailing American To Be Spy

Romanian Expelled By US

WASHINGTON, (UP) — The United States today ordered a Romanian diplomat kicked out for trying to blackmail an American who risked the lives of his two sons by refusing to spy for the Communists.

The State Department told the Romanian legation to arrange "immediate departure" for Christache Zambeti, first secretary of the legation.

Zambeti, who came here in September, 1951, tried to blackmail V.C. Georgescu of New York into spying against America by offering special treatment for his two minor sons under Red control in Romania.

Georgescu, a naturalized American, rejected Zambeti's proposition and reported it to U.S. authorities.

In so doing, the State Department said, Georgesco risked the lives of his sons. The inference was that the Romanian Communist regime can be expected to retaliate through the boys.

Georgescu, a middle-aged, balding man with a thick accent, told reporters that he and his wife are gambling on world opinion preventing the Reds from harming the boys—19-year-old Constanton and 14-year-old Peter.

Speaking somberly and obviously under emotional strain, Georgescu admitted he has no real idea about what might happen to the boys.

"We thought if we put their fate in the hands of world public opinion they might not hurt them," he said.

Georgescu told of Zambeti's call on him last week. Zambeti said he had recently come from Romania and that Georgescu's children were well and healthy. He then added, according to Georgescu.

"Mr. Georgescu, if you want to see your children, this can be arranged and I am proposing to you the following deal. You may see your children within the year if you will accept to collaborate with us."

Georgescu asked what Zambeti meant and the Romanian official replied: "We want you to collaborate politically with the popular republic."

Georgescu said the word espionage was not specifically used but the State Department said Zambeti "attempted to subvert Mr. Georgescu to collaborate with the Communist regime of Romania to the detriment of the United States government.

"The price offered for this collaboration was to be the welfare of Mr. Georgescu's minor sons and their possible restoration to their parents.

"Mr. Georgescu's sons, Constantin and Peter, ages 19 and 14, respectively, were born in Romania and have been refused permission by the Romanian authorities to come to this country to rejoin their parents.

"Mr. Georgescu rejected the proposal of Mr. Zambeti and reported the matter to the proper authorities."

The note charged Zambeti "has engaged in activities incompatible with his status as an accredited diplomatic official."

Smith said "this government is impelled to declare Mr. Zambeti persona non grata."

State Department officials said emphatically that Zambeti engaged in attempted "blackmail."

They said it was "impinging that he tried to enlist Georgescu as a "spy" in exchange for guaranteed safety for his two sons, held by Romanian police.

They also said Georgescu risked the lives of his sons in turning over the information to the State Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Georgescu was formerly general manager of Romano-Americana Oil Co. in Romania, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. American oil properties were seized by the Communist regime after World War II and Georgescu with his wife left the country.

Pitt Board Awards Contract For Appraisals At $87,000

Revaluation Bid Accepted

By JESS POINDEXTER
Reflector City Editor

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners last night awarded a contract for the county's revaluation project to E.T. Wilkins and Associates, an appraisal firm which submitted a low bid of $87,000.

Meeting in special session at 8 p.m. for the purpose of opening three sealed bids on the appraisal project, members of the board voted to employ the Lincoln, Neb., company after inspection of bids showed its figure to be $22,000 lower than the second low bid.

Other bids submitted, companies represented and amounts, were: Cole-Layer-Trumble Company of Dayton, Ohio, $109,250; and J.M. Clemenshaw Company of Cleveland, Ohio, $120,935. The latter company's bid stated that if a utilities appraisal was not required, its bid might be reduced by $2,500.

Looked High

The commissioners said all of the bids looked higher than they had expected — two being outrageously high — but after short discussion they voted to accept the low bid and authorized Chairman F.F. Hendrix to exectute the contract.

County Attorney W.W. Speight reminded the board they might reject any or all bids, and advised the commissioners that the contract as presented by the Wilkins firm is in order. Hendrix and Fred E. Herrington, agent of the company, then signed the contract on behalf of their representative groups.

The county auditor, Reginald Gray, explained to the board that all three companies enjoyed very favorable references from areas in which they had worked, and brought out that the Wilkins firm also did a revaluation for Wilson County which was termed by officials there "very satisfactory."

Total Cost

Last night's contract award brings the amount of money the new revaluation and mapping project will cost the county to approximately $104,000. Previously the county had employed a mapping firm to prepare maps of all Pitt County cities and towns, cost to run about $35,000. Of that figure, the county bears half the expense and the cities and towns the other.

Auditor Gray disclosed there were approximately 20,00' actual listings in the county last year, and the figure is expected to be "between 21,000 and 22,000 this year." The revaluation company must visit and appraise every one of those property units.

"It doesn't seem to be so bad after all," stated Hendrix, "in view of the fact that it is costing the county an average of only $4.00 to have each piece of property appraised." The chairman declared the county has the funds and the entire project will be financed without increasing the tax rate.

Professional Job

Primary reason for going out of the county to get the work done, Hendrix went on, is because men of the professional training and knowledge of such a complex job are not available locally — especially with almost everyone involved in agriculture.

"The expense seems to be right in line with costs other counties have paid in areas previously inspected by the commissioners," the chairman declared. "In addition, it will be done by professionals, which gives Pitt the advantage of experience gained in carrying out the work in other counties."

According to terms of the contract, the company agreed to begin work on the revaluation of property in Pitt County at "the earliest possible date." Herrington said he feels the project will be completed by March 1, 1954, according to Auditor Gray.

May Extend Date

At any rate, the contract specifies work should be completed by that date if possible — if not, completion date may be extended to March 1, 1955. However if the project is not completed by 1954, all new construction in the county dating from the time the project was begun must be appraised along with the old property.

When completed, the project will give the county a very positive check on all property — land acreage and buildings — in the boundaries of the county, because all farms and other pieces of property will be sketched, in addition to a sketch and measurements of all buildings situated thereon.

Mapping of property in cities and towns all over the county already has begun, and of the total $35,000 to be paid to Rivers and Joyce Mapping Firm, the county will pay $17,500, and the various municipalities will make up an identical sum.

Claims Arbitrary Cutting Of Budget

By FRANK ELEAZER

WASHINGTON UP)—Rep. Melvin Price (D-Ill.) charged today that Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge used the "meat-ax technique" to slash Air Force funds, possibly overriding even Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

As evidence, he produced a letter, dated May 7, in which Dodge listed a $5,090,000,000 cut in air appropriation requests as an objective and told Wilson to "adjust your recommendations accordingly."

In a prepared speech, Price called the letter "arbitrary" and said it raised a "serious doubt" whether military leaders were being consulted on the reduction.

Price's charges came amid these other developments in the congressional furor over the deep cuts the administration has ordered in the defense budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1:

1. Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, said he was present when the National Security Council decided the overall defense cut, but that "I was not asked my opinion and therefore did not give it."

2. Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) said in a radio interview there was a question whether Wilson's proposals "are his or dictated by business interests seeking a reduction in taxes."

4. Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), former air secretary, said "some of the information coming out of the Defense Department from civilian experts is exactly opposite to that of some military experts."

5. Rep. Charles B. Brownson (R Ind.) charged in Baltimore, Md., that protests against the Air Force cuts come from "publicity-hungry, arm chair strategists charging into bloodless battle astride the Democratic donkey."

Price, a member of the house armed services committee, asked whether Wilson himself was "in full accord with the proposed cuts?"

"What were Secretary Wilson's recommendations to the director of the budget?" he asked. "Budget Director Dodge's letter is arbitrary. It applies the discredited meat-ax technique to the defense of the nation. In view of this letter I believe it is not out of place to ask: Who is secretary of defense?"

South Korean President Indicates New 'Complication'

May Boycott Truce Talks

By LEROY HANSEN
United Press Staff Correspondent

SEOUL, Korea, UP)—President Syngman Rhee indicated today the South Korean government might complicate the snarled truce talks by boycotting the Panmunjom sessions indefinitely.

Rhee called his cabinet to an extraordinary three hour and 45-minute session to discuss "certain measures" in connection with the recessed negotiations.

The boycott apparently started yesterday when the South Korean delegate, Maj. Gen. Choi Duk Son, failed to show up at Panmunjom.

Choi's explanation for his absence was that he was talking on a telephone at the Allied truce camp at Munsan when the negotiators helicopter took off for Panmunjom, leaving him stranded.

But Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai let his tongue slip during a interview with United Press correspondent Warren Franklin when he idicated Choi's absence from the talks was not accidental.

Pyun told Franklin that Choi "might persist in the actions he has just taken if that which made him refrain from attendance remains."

The foreign minister refused to comment on today's cabinet session, other than to say "certain urgent measures in connection with Pamunjom" had been discussed.

He refused to comment on queries about terms of the new United Nations proposal to break the war prisoner deadlock or what the plan contained that South Korea consider objectionable.

"I am really not supposed to know about it," Pyun said.

Pyun indicated the government has not changed its opposition stand to any kind of peace agreement that would leave Korea divided and permit Chinese Communists to remain on Korean soil.

For months Rhee and his government have led the Korean people in stormy demonstrations against an armistice that would leave Korea a divided nation.

Gen. Mark W. Clark, supreme commander of United Nations forces in the Far East, spent two hours with Rhee yesterday in an effort to convince him that an armistice in Korea must be obtained before the future of his nation can be settled.

Pyun reflected the apparent Korean confusion over what constitutes an armistice and what will be decided at the post-armistice peace conference.

"We will accept any armistice or peace plan provided it is conditioned on unification and withdrawal of the Chinese Communists from Korea," Pyun said.

Any other type of armistice, the foreign minister said, "would be the worse for Korea."

Reynaud To Try To Form Cabinet

PARIS UP) — Paul Reynaud, last premier before the fall of France in 1940, announced today he would try to form a new government to represent the French at the forthcoming Big Three talks in Bermuda.

The rightwing independent party leader announced after a 30-minute talk with President Vincent Auriol he will go before the National Assembly tomorrow to seek confirmation as premier.

Reynaud, 75-year-old head of the assembly's finance committee, was asked by Auriol yesterday to try to form France's 19th postwar cabinet to replace the fallen government of Rene Mayer.

Breaking with an old parliamentary usage which requires extensive negotiations with prosepective government partners and their parties, Reynaud declared:

"There will be no pre-investiture negotiations."

National Assembly Chairman Edouard Herriot was immediately asked to summon the lower house for the vote on Reynaud tomorrow.

Political observers predicted Reynaud would win without much trouble the 314-vote absolute majority he needs to be confirmed by the 627-member assembly.

They believed, however, he might run into serious difficulties later when trying to line up his projected "national union" government, which would include as wide a representation of parties as possible.

Reynaud decided to make a comeback try after leaders of two other parties refused to even try to form a government.

As economics minister, in 1948, Reynaud also proposed a plan for economic reform which caused the fall of the cabinet of Andre Marie. He called for broader executive powers as well as reorganization of the government services, the nationalized industries and the tax system.

Tear Gas Bomb Believed To Have Stopped Robbers From Breaking Into Safe

STOKES—Safe crackers failed in an attempted robbery at the Jerome Perkins general merchandise store here sometime during the night.

The front door of the frame building was discovered open this morning when employes arrived to open the store for business.

Investigating officers, Deputies Duke Andrews and Loyd Manning and Captain S. B. Dorsey stated the robber or robbers pried open the front door of the building in gaining entrance.

The robbers attacked the large upright iron safe, housed in the office of the store. The safe, standing some five feet in height, was burned and cut on one portion of the door. Officers believed the robbers were forced to leave the building when their cutting on the safe touched off a tear gas bomb concealed in the strong box.

In addition to the cutting torch, an axe, or some other blunt instrument had been used.

Investigation is still underway by the Sheriff's office, the Greenville Police Department, and the State Bureau of Investigation.

Rule Suicide Due To Spurned Love

CAPRON, Ill. UP) —A 19-year-old girl took her own life in a haymow because a farmhand turned down her proposal of marriage, a coroner's jury has ruled.

Marjorie Jane Whatles left a note that read "if I can't have Harry I don't want anybody."

She was found shot to death in a haymow late Sunday night.

Harry Collier, 28, said he had been dating the girl for some time but did not realize how young she was. When he learned her age he broke off their relationship.

Collier told the jury he spurned her plea of marriage the night she died.

Dogs 'Picketed' Humane Society

NEW YORK, (UP)—Two, five dogs picketed the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals last night.

Accompanied by 100 people the dog pickets carried signs outside a hotel denouncing the ASPCA for cruelty to animals by refusing to oppose a state law which permits the use of unclaimed stray animals for medical experimentation.

Inside the hotel, at the organization's annual meeting, President Hugh E. Paine agreed to appoint a committee to consider the matter

Russia Ends Hopes Of Attaining Austria Pact

LONDON (UP) —Russia's rejection of an invitation to resume four-power talks on the long-delayed Austrian treaty ended hopes today that the pact could be worked out before the Bermuda conference.

Jacob A. Malik, Soviet ambassador to the Court of St. James, turned down the proposal yesterday in a note to the British foreign office.

In rejecting the invitation, Malik said it would be "more expedient" to study the question of a treaty with Austria through diplomatic channels

Malik's indication that the Austrian problem was a topic for discussion for officials higher than the deputy foreign ministers invited to the conference in effect left the way open for talks on a higher level, possibly at a Big Four meeting of heads of state.

The United States already had made it plain that President Eisenhower wanted friendly action instead of soft talk from the Russians before sitting down to discuss with them methods of ending tensions.

Malik's statement, issued less than 48 hours before the latest conference was scheduled to take place here, was printed in the Soviet press and broadcast by Radio Moscow.

"There is no reason to suppose that the conference now proposed would give more favorable results than preceding conferences," Malik said in a Tass dispatch to Moscow newspapers.

Malik said the treaty question had been discussed on numerous occasions "but in spite of efforts of the Soviet side no agreement was reached in 1947" or in subsequent talks in 1950 and last February.

"I consider that it would be more expedient at present to study this question through diplomatic channels by means of a relevant exchange of opinion," Malik said.

SOVIET SLIPPING?

CHICAGO (UP)—Deputy Defense Secretary Roger M. Kyes declared today that Russia's war potential has "slipped" in spite of its massed armies and growing air and sea fleets.

Reds Disguised As Women Fire On French Unit

HANOI, Indochina (UP)—Communist soldiers disguised as women fought a sharp engagement with a French-led patrol in the Red River delta, it was revealed today.

The French command said the Viet Minh rebels suddenly whipped tommy-guns hidden under gayly-printed dresses and started shooting.

A Franco-Viet Nam patrol encountered the group of "women" Monday on a road six miles west of Nam Dinh and some 60 miles south of Hanoi.

The patrol noticed the group was striding in a mannish fashion. Summoned to halt, the rebels tossed off their disguise and went into action.

Several rebels were wounded in the short battle which followed but the Communists were able to withdraw, the high command said.

Officers Elected For Farmer's Day Festival; Date Not Yet Set

Plans for the 1953 Farmers' Tobacco Festival got off to a start yesterday as members of Farmers' Day Incorporated met and elected officers to head this year's celebration for Pitt County farmers.

Jack Wallace will head this year's festivities as chairman of the steering committee and president of the executive committee. W. Conner Eaves was named vice-chairman and J. Edwards, Jr., was elected secretary and treasurer.

The steering committee is composed of representatives from the exchange club, Lions club, Kiwanis club, Rotary club, Business and Professional Women's club, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Greenville Merchants Association, the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, and the Tobacco Board of Trade.

Reports of last year's Farmers' Festival were heard and retiring president Bancroft Moseley presented recommendations for consideration for the 1953 festival.

The dates for holding the festival were discussed but action was delayed pending the opening dates of the tobacco market. The selection of a place for holding the festival were also delayed. The steering committee will meet Monday, June 1, to set the date and place of festival and discuss preliminary plans.

Serving on the steering committee this year are the following representatives of civic clubs and organizations: Rotary — Alton Barrett, Connor Eagles, and Guy Evans; Lions—James A. Taylor, Dr. Warren Aldridge, and Thurman Jones.

Rosenbergs Again Ask Justice Vinson For Stay Of Execution

WASHINGTON (UP) — Counsel for Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, condemned atomic spies, today asked Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson to stay their execution so a fourth appeal can be made to the Supreme Court.

The court yesterday rejected for the third time an appeal of the husband and wife who were sentenced to the Sing Sing prison electric chair more than two years ago for slipping atomic secrets to Russia.

The move for a stay of execution was made by New York attorneys Emanuel H. Bloch and John F. Finerty. They conferred for almost an hour with court clerk Harold Willey while filing the necessary papers requesting the stay.

The papers asked that the execution be stayed until June 9—the last day for filing a re-hearing petition. Unless the stay is granted, the petition said, the Rosenbergs' "lives and liberties will be destroyed and the issues rendered academic."

With this fourth try, permissible under federal appeals procedure, Bloch appeared to be reaching the end of the legal maneuvers available to him. However, he has indicated he intends to take another clemency appeal to President Eisenhower, too.

The President, who already has turned down one such plea, gets advice in such situations from the Justice Department. The department has long said the Rosenbergs' chances for leniency might improve if they would tell the government all about the Red spy ring they aided.

The department said it has not made any outright promises to the couple but has merely emphasized that the president can commute a death sentence to life imprisonment right up to the last minute in the death chamber. Up to now the Rosenbergs, confined in Sing Sing Prison in New York, have shown no signs of talking.

Aides said formal notification of Monday's action will probably leave the Supreme Court Wednesday, reaching the Second U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York on Thursday. As soon as the papers are relayed to the trial court, possibly by Friday, a new date may be set for the execution.

Gray-Roberson Vows Spoken In Double Ring Ceremony

ROBERSONVILLE Sunday, May 17, the First Christian Church of Robersonville was the setting for a beautiful wedding. Large baskets of mixed white flowers and tall candelabra holding tapers were against a background of fern. Garlands of lace fern completed the arrangement. The pews were marked with white flowers and fern tied with satin ribbon.

Miss Jeanne Taylor, organist and Lang Martin, soloist, of Everetts, presented a program of nuptial music.

Miss Peggy Joyce Roberson and Jack Darlowe Gray were united in marriage at three o'clock in a double ring ceremony with Rev. Wilbur T. Wallace officiating.

The bride given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of nylon net with long lace sleeves and a lace yoke outlined with pearls. Her veil of finger tip length was of silk illusion attached to a cap designed in seed pearls. The prayer book with white streamers was topped with an orchid.

Mrs. Thomas Blatchley of Kansington, Maryland, aunt of the bride was matron of honor. She wore a dress of yellow net and lace with a five tier ankle length skirt. With this she had a lace bolero and carried aqua flowers. The bridesmaids were: Miss Jackie Frances Roberson of Portsmouth, Va., Mrs. Williams Evans of Tarboro, N. C., cousins of the bride; Mrs. Raymond Uzzell of Goldsboro, sister of the groom and Miss Sarah Lee Smith of Robersonville. Their gowns of aqua net were fashioned like that of the matron of honor and they carried yellow bouquets.

The honorary bridesmaids, Misses Barbara Grimes, Frances Crandall Delphia Rawls, Mariann Roebuck Patsy Roberson and Jean Ann Mobley all of Robersonville wore evening gowns in pastel shades and floral wristlets.

Abe Gray served as his brothers best man. The ushers were: Curtis Roberson, brother of the bride; Alton Gray of Faison, brother of the groom. Jesse Curtis of Williamston and Frank Hemingway of Bethel.

Mrs. Jab Roberson, the bride's mother wore a blue lace street length dress with navy and white accessories and a purple throated orchid. Mrs. Gray, mother of the bridegroom, wore pink with navy accessories and she had an orchid corsage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jab Roberson of Robersonville. The groom is the son of Mrs. Abe Gray and the late Mr. Gray of Stokes.

Mrs. Gray, a graduate of Robersonville High School, was employed at the University of Maryland. Mr. Gray attended East Carolina College and is now with the Du Pont Plant in Kinston.

Immediately following the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in their home on South Main Street. For this occasion the house was decorated wih white flowers. The guests were greeted at the door by Mr and Mrs. Herbert Pope who introduced them to the receiving line. Mr and Mrs. Laurence Coltrain presided at the register. The dining table with a cutwork cloth was centered with a pretty bowl of flowers and fern flanked by white candles in silver holders. Mrs. Wiley B. Rogerson poured the lime punch and Mrs. B. E. Anderson served the individual bridal cakes. The honorary bridesmaids served mints and nuts. Mrs. Hilda Warren and Robert Everett invited everyone into the gift room. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Davenport said the goodbyes.

The bridal couple left for a wedding trip to Tennessee. For traveling the bride wore a blue linen dress with white accessories and the orchid lifted from her prayer book. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Gray will make their home in Greenville, N. C.

Humphrey Hopes Public Opinion Will Help His Bill

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey predicted today that public interest whipped up by the long "tidelands" fight will help put across a measure to give the nation's schools the revenue from off-shore oil lands retained by the federal government.

The Minnesota Democrat said he is optimistic about the chances for Senate approval of the "oil for education" proposal on the second try.

Sponsors first offered it as a substitute for the administration-backed bill giving coastal states title to offshore submerged lands out to their historic boundaries, three to 10½ miles offshore. Defeated in that attempt, they are now trying to write it into follow-up legislation providing for federal control over the remainder of the continental shelf seaward of the state lands.

"I think we'll have much wider support in the Senate because of the impact of public opinion growing out of the earlier (tidelands) fight," Humphrey said. "There will be a delayed political reaction."

Humphrey is one of 25 senators co-sponsoring the educational amendment. It would set aside oil and gas revenues from the outer continental shelf for educational aid to all states. Some geologists estimate that the outer shelf contains billions of dollars worth of oil reserves.

The Senate Interior Committee wound up public hearings yesterday on a bill setting up a federal leasing machinery for the outer shelf, a shallow ocean bottom ledge running as far as 150 miles out to sea in the Gulf of Mexico.

Sen. Lister Hill (-Ala), chief sponsor of the oil-for-education proposal, told the committee yesterday that the revenue could be a "bonanza" to American schools.

"The revenues which will eventuate from the development of these resources can contribute importantly to giving to our '50 per cent' school system a degree of perfection hitherto undreamed of," he said.

Newsmen Discuss Press Freedom

CHICAGO (UP) — Newspaper executives meeting here for the 69th spring session of the Inland Daily Press Association gathered today for a panel discussion on press freedom.

The panel, led by J .R. Wiggins, vice president and managing editor of the Washington Post, will discuss the problem of keeping facts about local, state and federal government affairs open to newsmen and the public.

Deputy Defense Secretary Roger M. Kyes was scheduled to address the newspaper executives later today.

Yesterday, J C.. Penney chairman of the J .C. Penney Co., told the Inland that retailers "can't get along" without newspaper advertising.

"And they'd better not try," he said. "That's really the whole story—we can't do business without newspaper advertising. The newspapers are our market place where we come to cry our wares. It is they who give us an opportunity to bring before the public the advantages of shopping in Penney stores."

He said newspaper advertising was the cheapest way to persuade the public to buy.

"It seems perfectly natural to us that retailers can no more live without newspapers than newspapers can live without retail advertising," Penney said.

'Bomb' In Mail Fears Allayed

NEW YORK (UP) — Postal officials hustled some 30 employes to the street Monday night and called the police bomb squad when they heard a buzzing sound coming from two identical boxes.

Detective John J Barry carried the boxes to a vacant lot and unwrapped them.

Inside he found two toy telephone switchboards, both buzzing. Barry said the packages, being mailed to a toy shop in Evansville, Ill., were shaken up in handling and the batteries on both sets short circuited.

A grave responsibility rests upon the shoulders of the 1,247 voters of the Greenville school district who are registered for the $1,500,000 school bond election.

Most of those who registered for the special election probably already have made up their minds how they are going to vote on the matter. A few of the registered voters possibly are still undecided whether they do or do not favor the bond issue.

There is no question about the fact that the school district needs the additional school facilities which the bond issue will provide. Indeed, the district could put to good use facilities which could be had with twice the amount to be voted on.

Some voters have raised the question, can the school district afford to float a one-and-one-half million dollar bond issue for its schools. Frankly, we think the question more realistically should be phrased, can the school district not afford to vote the bond issue for its schools.

Already the school facilities of the district are taxed to capacity. While the facilities the school district has are in good condition, they just are not ample to take care of the continuingly increasing enrollment of the city schools.

It is apparent that next fall it will be mandatory that some local children go to school in temporary quarters. Even this year some undesirable rooms at the high school are having to be used for classrooms in order to take care of the children there. There are facilities in other schools which are overcrowded, and at South Greenville school it was necessary to put one group of children on a double shift in order to take care of them in the school.

Despite these handicaps, school operations in the Greenville district are meeting the needs of the children better than in many other places throughout the state where temporary classrooms and double schedules have become the rule rather than the exception.

Unless more facilities are provided for the local district, the present school system will become increasingly overburdened.

Just what the $1,500,000 bond issue will cost the district is difficult to tell exactly at the present time. It will cause an increase in taxes for the support of schools, but the exact rate can not be determined until the interest rate on the bonds and the valuation of taxable property in the school district are known.

It is certain that the local school district can not expect to get something for nothing. If the new facilities are to be had, local citizens are going to have to pay for them.

Though the thought of higher taxes is not a pleasant one, the community certainly can afford to pay a little more in taxes better than it can afford to allow its educational program to sink to a substandard level. The future of every community is dependent upon its youth, and the youth is dependent upon the educational program the community provides.

Justice Demands A Responsible Citizenry

A deplorable situation which came about during a murder trial in Wilson County provides food for thought for all the people of North Carolina.

In brief, some of the jurors hearing evidence given while a woman was on trial for her life got drunk and the judge had no choice but to declare a mistrial in the case.

It is obvious that such a procedure cost the county and the state a great deal of money. It is also obvious that a great deal of embarrassment has been caused to many individuals. It cost one deputy sheriff of the county his job. It cost the jury guard 30 days in jail for contempt of court, and it resulted in two members of the jury being sentenced for contempt.

More fundamentally, it must be pointed out that the work of the court is dependent upon the work of the citizenry whose responsibility in this free nation is to sit in judgment of their fellow men when a trial for violation of the law comes about.

Certainly the job of being a juror is not one to be taken lightly. It is a heavy responsibility for every citizen. Why some jurors would shirk such a obligation and become intoxicated while sitting in judgment, is something we just can not understand.

The happening in Wilson County is one which should not be taken lightly. A similar incident probably could have happened in any of the 100 counties in North Carolina. Nevertheless, it points up the fact that the court is no stronger than those who sit in the jury box, and it is dependent upon the citizenry for its efectiveness and the justice it metes out to the people who come before it.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE REAL LEGACY

The poet Milton once wrote that the command of one's self is the greatest empire to which a man can aspire and that consequently to be subject to his own passions is the most grievous slavery. "He who reigns within himself and rules his passions, desires, and fears, is more than a king."

A lack of self-restraint is one of the greatest handicaps with which one can be burdened. The man who lacks restraint goes through life fighting difficulties of his own making and often rendering success impossible, while others less gifted achieve great success because they are patient, calm, and self-controlled.

The greatest school in the world is the home. Many fine moral qualities can be taught—and are taught—in public schools, but character is almost always either made or unmade in the home. Here a child spends the greater part of his time. Here he has teachers more interested in him than anyone else can be. Furthermore, he receives individual attention which he cannot have as a member of a larger group.

Some branches of learning have to be left to the schools, but the things having to do with moral character are chiefly the concern of the home. Every parent should feel resting upon him or her the responsibility to teach self-control to the growing child. Better this than a big cash legacy.

Somebody Told Me . . .

A Unique Fund-Raising Effort

Friday night at eight o'clock at McGowan's Warehouse on Ninth Street I'll be looking forward to seeing you at the St. James Auction, one of the most unusual fund-raising campaigns in the history of Greenville, sponsored by the St. James Methodist Church.

This auction is unusual because instead of making demands on you it will offer you bargains. Some of the bargains will be a new '53 Ford, a new Chevrolet pick-up truck, a new Nash, and new Farmall tractor. Such items will be auctioned as a Bendix television set, power lawn mower, General Electric dishwasher, two Hamilton Beach Mixettes, one ton of fertilizer, a fishing tackle kit, six gallons of outside white paint, hand-painted china by Deanie Boone Haskett, and many other items.

Greenville merchants are continually called on for contriouttions of various kinds. In some Greenville stores there is a continuous flow of traffic by people seeking contributions.

Realizing this situation, the St. James committee on the auction conceived the idea of calling on manufacturers to contribute instead of local people. The cars, truck, and tractor have been made available at dealer cost by local firms to the church and all money above cost will be profit for St. James. However, the remaining items were outright gifts. For example, the money received for the Bendix TV acquired by Ruland Davenport will be full profit for the church.

So it boils down to this: Instead of asking the merchants for goods to sell at the church auction we have called on out-of-town suppliers. You, the buyer, will have the privilege of bidding on these items and doubtless getting them at bargains.

The St. James Methodist Church is Greenville's youngest. It now has services at the Third Street School but has plans for a church on the site between Fifth and Tenth Streets, approximately behind J. Key Brown's home.

The St. James building fund, which we expect to swell with the auction Friday, now stands at about $6,000.

Be sure to come by McGowan's Friday night at eight o'clock. You are under no obligation, but will no doubt have the opportunity to pick up some bargains and at the same time help to raise the St. James Building Fund.

And I hope to see you there.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

(Henderson Dispatch)

A carnival at Cherry Point Marine base is no worse than a carnival anywhere else, even at State and county fairs, so long as it is vitually the same thing. But that is not saying anything in its favor. General William Manley, post commander, says however, he sees nothing wrong with the snow, even though he admits it offers "games of chance," including throwing dice and spinning wheel games.

All of this is done for the benefit of the Navy Relief Society, and officer and enlisted personnel had an afternoon off to attend and spend their money. One source of information said the semi-monthly payday, which preceded the carnival and gambling event, loosed about half a half million dollars to the Marines, and the general estimated about $30,000 would probably be raised through spending by the men at the carnival.

While the general said he could see "nothing wrong" with it, it would appear that there is much wrong about the procedure. For one thing, it is a very questionable method of raising funds for a worthy cause, or for any other, for that matter. Thirty thousand dollars could have been raised without the shadow of gambling, if the Marines were willing to make the contribution, which amounted to approximately six percent of the payroll.

The Marine Corps is settling no commendable example for men who have entered its service when it encourages gambling for whatever cause, to say nothing of relief. General Manley said there was no roulette but gambling is gambling by whatever name may be applied. As commanding officer of the post, he never should have sanctioned this program. Instead of weeding out questionable and degrading conduct on the part of service men, here is an example of encouraging it.

Retailers Dissatisfied

By ELMER ROESSNER

Dealer helps furnished by manufacturers aren't helping dealers, Howard P. Abrahams, manager of the National Retail Dry Goods Association's sales promotion division, found in talking to retailers from New York to Key West.

Manufacturers, in not filling retailers' needs, are wasting millions of dollars a year in advertising materials and are missing out on more millions of dollars of free advertising, he found.

Retailers complain, he reported, that dealer aids don't look like retail promotions, that they cannot be adapted to the character and market of the store, that many attempt to hog space with their brand names, and that material is often sent to the wrong person at the wrong time.

Manufacturers and their advertising agencies, he said, should not consider retailers as "dealers" but as purchasing agents for consumers. They should understand the different store types, make their retail "helps" advertising look like store advertising, and give store identity to advertising.

Smaller stores, he added, should be given complete advertising mats and larger stores should be given thumbnail, rough layouts that their own advertising departments can adapt. Stores should also get fact sheets about the merchandise, good art work, reproductions of other stores' advertising when possible, and posters that conform with typical store signs.

Retailers want mailing pieces and display material that looks "retail"; they want selling instructions for their salespeople, and they want cooperative advertising programs.

And, Mr. Abrahams added, it might be a good idea to send the material to the right person in each store in ample time for effective use.

SECRETARIES WONDERFUL —AND A BIT RESTLESS

Executives may take their secretaries to lunch Wednesday or give them perfume without causing lifted eyebrows. For Wednesday is National Secretaries' Day.

As a warm-up for the day Gray Audograph Co., a manufacturer of dictation machines, made a survey and found that while almost no girl felt her job was too hard, secretaries seem to shift jobs a bit. Although 64 per cent have been secretaries for six or more years, 63 per cent have had their present job two years or less and 22 per cent less than a year. It also found that half the girls liked machine dictation best.

Fifty-six per cent of personnel directors polled said that today's secretary's biggest fault is lack of initiative and interest in her job.

ALL-WOOL BLANKET PRODUCTION RISES

The Wool Bureau wants it known that wool is not losing ground to competitive fibers in blankets.

While the output of all civilian bed blankets fell off 9 per cent in 1952, production of all-wool blankets rose from 3,501,000 in 1951 to 4,446,000 in 1952, the Bureau reports.

BRITISH TOOL SHOW

Another British bid for dollars begins today when an exhibition of British-made machine tools opens in a railroad car at Grand Central Station, New York. Later the car will be taken on a national tour.

Glamor And Excitement On Job

By HAL BOYLE

LONDON AIRPORT (AP) — People are uncertain enough when they are on the ground. But get them up in the air and anything can happen.

That is why, although the air age has lost much of its glamor, the international air stewardesses wouldn't trade their jobs for a secretary's desk.

"You can never tell what people will ask you to do," said Kay Landing. "Once Gorgeous George, the wrestler, wanted me to help pin up his curls."

Kay and Evelyn Conlon were stewardesses aboard the Pan American Stratoclipper in which I flew here to attend the coronation. Most girls who adopt this high-flying career [illegible] a few seasons, butu Kay and Evelyn have been at it more than seven years. Each has flown three million miles—the equivalent of 120 times around the earth—and touched every continent except Australia.

The work is hard and exacting-washing a baby's diaper up above the fleecy clouds is just as much a chore as it is at sea level-but it has its rewards.

"Aviation is still a man's world," said Kay, "and it is fun to be a girl in a man's world."

The girls find plenty of romance laughter and adventure, but few of them achieve the dream of meeting and marrying a multi-millionaire passenger.

"With the present tax situation it is hardly even worth while looking for one," laughed Evelyn.

"This is kind of a life appeals to escapist girls who don't want to have to depend on some poor miserable male to support them."

Most of the stewardesses do marry, of course, but their choice is more likely to be a member of a plane crew or the boy back home than a wealthy ticketholder.

The girls are like postmen on their time off. They earn from about $250 to $450 a month and they usually spend their savings on monthlong vacation [illegible] spots in the world they haven't yet seen.

"Just like any other tourist," said Evelyn, "we dream of a houseboat on a lake in Kashmir or loiling on a beach in Bali, and Bali is where I want to [illegible]."

These side journeys have had their moments of excitement. Once Kay was in a car that broke down while going through a vast game preserve in Africa.

"Six of us had to stay there with the windows shut [illegible] while lions and hyenas prowled around the car," said Kay.

"Yes," said Evelyn. "There was a wealthy stockman in the car, and I don't know why [illegible] land him before they were rescued. After all he couldn't get away with all those lions outside."

Neither girl sees her ocean-hopping job as much more dangerous than routine office work. It holds one lure dear to any woman's heart—bargain hunting in far places. All the stewardesses become wizard shoppers.

"You may wear a sari from Britain, French perfume, jade earrings from China, gloves from Rome, a suit from India, gold jewelry from Lebanon," said Evelyn. "But one thing is darn sure. Your underwear will come from the old U.S.A."

Stewardesses on international flights must speak one foreign language and have two years of college or business experience. But their basic requirement is "to be a good sport, to keep your sense of humor when the going is rough, and to be able to handle people, children as well as gownups."

What is the question most passengers ask them?

"Well, the elderly men always seem curious about whether we have a boy friend in every port," said Evelyn.

And do they?

"In New York Evelyn has more than one friend," said Kay noncommitally.

Radar For Speeders, Tree Planting, Odds And Ends

By LYNN NISBET

RADAR — Speeding motorists have encountered an inconspicuous Nemesis as to the result of a scientific gadget called radar. Originally conceived for the purpose of detecting approaching aircraft or sea vessels beyond the range of human vision radar has been adapted to many other uses. Not the least of these is its ability to detect speeding motor cars and clock the rate of speed. It is a sort of all-seeing but unseen eye, and when combined with two-way radio telephone facilities can make a monkey out of the motorist who swears he wasn't going but 45 miles an hour when the gadget proves he was making 65 or above.

WARNING — While the radar is a sort of peeping-Tom, maliciously intent upon catching the unwary, it is seldom utilized without public warning. Signs posted at the corporate limits of most cities and towns using the device, warn motorists that it is on the job. Numerous signs of like import are posted along the highways, particularly at points near other state lines, notifying drivers that they are subject to check by radar.

PATROL — The State Highway Patrol has five of the gadgets, one assigned to each of the patrol troops A,B,C,D and E. The exact placement of each is left to the discretion of the captain commanding the troop, and it is not until the end of month reports come in that the Raleigh headquarters office knows just where the radar operated or what its effectiveness seemed to be in controlling speed on the highways.

SPEED TRAPS — The use of radar could result in almost complete elimination of the vicious "speed-trap" collusion between law enforcement officers and unethical justices of the peace. Or, by improper use, it could contribute greatly to the more lucrative operation of such speed-traps for the enrichment of JP's who have more concern over costs collected from defendants than in the equal and fair administration of justice. It is a new thing, and its potentialities have not been fully revealed. Like all new and powerful things, it can become beneficial or vicious, depending upon the use made of it.

TREES — Some twelve million seedling trees were put out in North Carolina this year, in a co-operative venture of landowners, paper manufacturing companies and the forestry division of the Extension Service at State College and the State Department of Conservation and Development. Three million of the seedlings were furnished free from State and paper mill nurseries, while the rest were paid for by the landowners. More than half the total number of seedlings were loblolly pine, but there were 19 varieties represented in the total planting.

SOURCES — Champion Paper and Fibre Company of Canton, N.C. Pulp Company at Plymouth; International Paper Company at Georgetown, S.C., and Camp Manufacturing Company at Franklin, Va., donated most of the free seedlings, with 40-odd thousand coming from various school nurseries distributed over the state, mostly in the east. The free distribution was [illegible] by the Extension Service forestry section dealing mainly with 4-H Clubs, and the State Division of Forestry through [illegible]FA groups. The approximate nine [illegible] seedlings purchased were planted mainly by adult farmers under supervision of county agents.

BREAKDOWN — Distribution by varieties included 6,783,550 loblolly; 1,267,950 white pine; 1,189,000 slash pine; 821,800 shortleaf and 417,350 longleaf; 309,200 red cedar; 226,150 yellow poplar. Other varieties in smaller number included black locust, black walnut, sawtooth and white oak, Norway and red spruce, Douglas fir, cottonwood; Austrian, Scotch and maritime pine. The plantings were in all sections of the state, but mainly in the areas from which the paper manufacturers draw most of their pulpwood. That is understandable, since the purpose of their reforestation program is to assure a continuous supply of raw material for the plants.

CONSERVATION — It has not been possible to get anything approaching an accurate estimate on the number of trees cut this year. Certainly it would be far more than the 12 million planted. But there is definitely some attention to replacing the harvested trees.

SURFSIDE—The Surfside News, sprightly little weekly publication edited by Mrs. Isabel Murphy for the Dare County playground area, is welcomed back. Published during the summer months for the past five years, the little paper has in each edition some item of historic value as well as directory of places and [illegible] when interesting things are to happen. The first issue of the 1953 season is devoted to the Elizabethan Garden being built adjacent to Fort Raleigh on Roanoke Island.

HERE'S WHY — Some days ago this column had a paragraph about the confusing statistics respecting marriages and divorces in the south. The figures indicated that more southern women than men are divorced, although there is a greater percentage of married men in the South than in the country at large. The item came to the attention of Glenn Harden Springer-Miller of Alexandria, Va., and she offers an explanation. It is, she says, obviously because the southern gals are marrying Yankee men. The daughter of John Harden of BurMills, and a former editor of the Daily Tar Heel at Chapel Hill, Glenn married a Vermonter. That means one extra southern woman and an extra northern man to fit in the statistical tables.

LAZY LIBRARY — Newark, N.J., has gone just about the limit on the business of c[illegible] to the lazy man. A large metal box has been set up at the curb in front of the public library, with a slot for the return of library books. The motorist drives up, deposits his book, and [illegible] Once a day a library attendant collects the books and cle[illegible] them with the desk. The report says Newark librarians have found the bookkeeping simple and there are fewer overdue books.

Experts Suspect NATO 'Myth'

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The grand, anti-Russian alliance known as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is now appraised by studious members of Congress as a political and military myth, although its first organizer and commander occupies the White House.

After hours of testimony on Capitol Hill by General Matthew R. Ridgway, retiring chief of SHAPE, NATO has been written off by his listeners as a solid defense against a Red invasion of Western Europe. This suspicion has been supplemented by public statements of General Alfred M. Gruenther, who will succeed Ridgway at Paris. It also is borne out by confidential reports of touring legislators and businessmen.

RUSSIAN POWER MENACING—American leaders must still continue to express optimism over the eventual result of this experiment. But their honest statements belie their professional attitude. Ridgway concedes that the European Defense Community is "terribly inadequate," while Gruenther admits that Russian power is "terribly menacing."

A serious thrust westward by the Red horde would see the nations in its path fall more quickly than they did before Hitler's panzer divisions and his dive bombers. There is no force to stop or even hold them, and there appears to be no likelihood that the squabbling allies will build such a bulwark in the next few years.

SOVIETS UNAFRAID OF NATO RESISTANCE—It is post-Stalin internal stress and their enemies' growing dissension which deter the Reds from attack, according to military and diplomatic estimates. It is NOT the fear of any resistance that NATO's thin line could offer on the battlefield or in the air.

To present the picture in its realistic and affrightening framework, it is necessary only to quote Ridgway's warning that "for the United States to try to go it alone would mean inevitable disaster!"

This is the cruel problem which President Eisenhower faces after less than six months in the White House. It also is a situation concerning which the American people need more facts than they now possess.

DISPARITY BETWEEN FORCES APPALLING—Despite the expenditure of billions at home and abroad, the disparity between the opposing forces is appalling. It exists in every category of weapons and supplies in every field of combat. Nor is there any prospect of narrowing it, in view of sagging morale, political differences and proposed military economies in the Western world.

The allies, for instance, have approximately 20 divisions—six American, four British, and ten from the French, Dutch and Belgians. But the Anglo-American units are the only ones sufficiently equipped for all too brief action. Even they lack ammunition and gasoline, the most elementary needs of a fighting force. They could not fight for more than a few weeks.

MOSCOW PREPARES FOR OFFENSIVE—They are hopelessly deficient in modern planes, tanks and artillery. There are only twelve Sabre jets on our Western front, although they are our only type capable of defeating the Russian MIGs. The pipelines and supply dumps required to feed a mechanized army are not completed, due to a combination of French red tape, delays in shipment from this country and labor shortages.

As against this token organization, Moscow has 175 divisions in readiness. Thirty are stationed in the satellite countries of Eastern Europe, with 22 in East Germany alone. In fast and heavy fighting stuff—planes, tanks, motor vehicles, artillery—they are prepared for an immediate offensive.

500,000 GERMAN TROOPS NEEDED—All our experts concede that only the addition of 500,000 German troops will transform this will-o'-the-wisp outfit into an effective army. But Bonn has reluctantly approved the rearming treaty, and its validity must still be tested in court. Even if it survives this challenge, it will be several years before a West German force could appear in the field.

In view of Anglo-French eagerness to talk peace with Malenkov, there is a possibility that none of the 14 NATO nations will ratify the treaty, certainly not for a year or more. Their hesitancy derives from the fact that being on the spot, they know the overpowering strength of the Reds' war machine and the mythical nature of NATO's military and political structure.

Discuss Ending Draft Deferment For Guard

By JOHN W. FINNEY

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON UP — The Defense Department is considering eliminating draft deferments for teenagers who join the National Guard, it was disclosed today.

The proposal, made by Dr. John A. Hannah, assistant defense secretary for manpower, has already touched off protests from the National Guard Association and some would cut off the guard's main source of recruits.

At present, youths 17 to 18 1-2 years old are exempt from the draft if they join a National Guard unit. By remaining in the Guard for nine years, they can escape active military duty completely, unless the unit is called up in case of a national emergency.

The deferment program, established by the governors of the individual states, was set up under the Universal Military Training act as an inducement for men to enlist in the National Guard.

The act also provides that the secretary of defense may end the deferment if he decides there are enough men available to fill the ranks of the National Guard without this special inducement.

Hannah, in a recent memorandum to the three service secretaries, suggested that the time has come to cut off the exemption for national guardsmen. He pointed out that with nearly 2,000,000 men coming out of the services with a six-year reserve obligation still to be fulfilled, there should be an adequate number of personnel for the guard.

The memorandum, designed as part of a fact-finding survey, drew an immediate hostile reaction from National Guard circles, and Hannah has now pledged that no action will be taken without further study.

Hannah's proposal has had the effect of underscoring and bringing out into the open basic differences between the National Guard and the Defense Department over manpower and readiness policy.

A top Defense Department manpower expert expressed the opinion that the guard would be in a better state of readiness if its ranks were composed of trained men filling out their reservist obligations. Because of the limited military training in the guard, he contended that guard enlisted men have generally been unprepared when called to active duty.

'Four Sportsmen' To Sing On Own Show

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—That "Four Sportsmen" quartet, who parlayed a "hmm" into fame and fortune on Jack Benny's radio program, said today they're branching into their own show so they can really sing.

The four male crooners thank Benny hourly for giving them overnight success on his CBS program. But, they sighed, they can only give out with a cigarette commercial and a "hmmm" that's a running joke on the show.

Like Phil Harris, Dennis Day and other Benny alumni, they're taking the plunge on their own.

"Bob Crosby sings on the show, and Dennis Day, so they don't need us for regular songs," explained Guerney Bell, Bill Days, Jay Meyer and Marty Sperzel—only not all at once.

"We'll still stay with Benny, but we have our own transcribed radio show now so we can really sing songs."

The hit they made as Benny's foils have brought them a string of other sideline businesses, too.

The Sportsmen incorporated themselves and invested in a housing project, an oil well, a company in the Philippines, a helicopter and a play that flopped.

They've scored success on personal appearance tours, after a battle to convince booking agents they could do something besides a musical "hmmmmm." They also plan a series of television films.

"We went into these businesses together on our motto, 'United we sing, Divided we Fall,'" quipped Days.

The "hmm on the Benny show started as a joke.

"Don Wilson, the announcer, was to do the commercial and rather than make it a stereotyped thing, they decided to have a quartet do a hum. Then Benny could say, "For this I pay $500?' and faint," said Meyer.

The sportsmen already were singing as backing" for such name chirpers as Ginny Sims and Dinah Shore. The unknown quartet was hired for the Benny show. They were such a hit that Benny kept them on. On one program Benny threatened to sell them to rival Fred Allen, and CBS was flooded with irate letters defending the quartet.

One member of the combination has a pitchpipe to give the quartet their cue for the "hmmm."

"Once we missed the note, so on the next show Benny locked us in the closet and made us say the commercial 500 times," grinned Sperzel.

Chess Playing Is Taught By City

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Chess playing increased sharply in Salt Lake City after the appointment of a chess co-ordinator by the City Recreation Department.

This city and Milwaukee are believed to be among the few in the United States with full-time employes teaching chess.

Co-ordinator Sam Teitelbaum has free classes five nights a week at boys' and girls' clubs and also classes for adults.

'Old Veteran' Is But 21 Years Old

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Pfc. Frank Robinson Jr., at 21, is a veteran of six years in the armed services.

The young Marine started his military career at 13 when he "misrepresented" his age to join the Illinois National Guard. He served a two-year hitch in the Air Force before enlisting in the Marines, an outfit he "likes pretty well."

Wagner-Waldrop Takes 8-2 Win In Softball Opener

Wagner-Waldrop beat Southern Bread 8-2 and Carolina Dairies walloped the Granites 12-1 in the opening play of the Men's City Softball league last night in the recently completed field behind Third Street School.

A good opening night crowd was on hand for the opener in which Spooky Morgan pitched his team to victory, limiting the Southern Bread boys to five hits. Pacing the Wagner-Waldrop batters was Tucker with three safeties in four times at bat. Tripp, Southern thirdsacker, had a double and single to pace the losers.

In the second contest of the evening, wildness plus a few errors helped the Carolina Dairy team lay a sound beating on the Granites. Third-baseman Heller paced the victors with three hits, while Alexander of the Granites had a perfect night with three for three.

Tonight there will be two Pony League games at the new park with the first getting underway at 7:30.

Prison Baseball Teams Competing For State Title

Something new has been added to the baseball picture in North Carolina. Baseball teams composed entirely of prisoners in camps have been organized into leagues and are scheduled to play a regular round robin with other camp teams.

Greenville, along with the other towns in a radius of about a hundred miles, is competing for the championship of this end of the state.

Greenville Splits Games Over Weekend, 10-11, 4-0

Greenville's Tobacco Belt League entry divided two weekend contests with Walstonburg, losing here Saturday by a score of 11-10 and taking Sunday's game in Walstonburg 4-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Bill Hendrix.

Striking out 13 Walstonburg batters in the Sunday game, Hendrix was in serious trouble in only the seventh inning, when Norville led off with a triple to centerfield. The next batter flied out to third, and Norville was thrown out by second sacker McCormick of Greenville when he tried to score on a ground ball.

Hendrix contributed a long triple off the school building in centerfield to aid his own efforts. The blow scored Bobby Nunn, who had doubled, and gave the locals the winning run.

Saturday's game was a different story, for there were 21 hits and 21 runs by the teams. Greenville assisted Walstonburg in their scoring by committing 10 errors.

Saturday the local team travels to Stokes and Sunday Stokes plays a return game at Guy Smith Stadium at 3 p.m.

Ward Defending British Amateur Golfing Title

HOYLAKE, Eng. (UP)- Defending champion Harvie Ward and two-time former champion Frank Stranahan, two of the United States' top hopes to win the tournament for the fourth straight year swing into action for the first time today in the British Amateur golf championship.

Ward of Atlanta, Ga., and Stranahan of Toledo, O., were among 22 Americans slated for action in second-round matches. Two other Yanks—Jack Munger of Dallas, Tex., and Air Force Sgt. Dale Buettner of Toledo — were scheduled to play third-round matches.

Ward drew John Conley of Portmarnock as his first opponent, while millionaire Stranahan was matched against Ian Titley of Sandiway.

At least two Yanks are certain to be eliminated in the second-round action, because two matches bring together American rivals. In one, Ray Peterson of Glen Cove, N.Y., meets Frank Strafaci of Garden City, N.Y. — a case of two men who live within 15 miles of each other travelling more than 1,500 miles to meet in the opening test for each. In the other, Capt. L. D. Hine of Louisville, Ky., plays Capt. E. M. Stokes of Garden City, N. Y.

Munger and Buettner were among nine Americans who won second - round matches Monday, while another 12 Yanks were defeated.

The six other Americans winning second - round matches Monday included title hopes Jimmy McHale of Philadelphia and Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., along with Ernest Arend Jr., of Deal, N.J., Bob Abrahams of Addison, Ill., Air Force Maj. C. D. Henderson of New York, and Lt. Howard Culbreth, an Army officer stationed in French Morocco.

Honor Court

A Boy Scout Court of Honor for Pitt District, Boy Scouts of America, will be held in the courtroom at the City Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

Court of Honor Chairman Charles H. Whedbee will preside. He will present awards for advancement and merit badges.

The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Leg Injury Ends Derby Winner's Racing Career

NEW YORK (UP) — Just three short weeks after his upset triumph in the Kentucky Derby made him the toast of the nation, Dark Star came to the end of the racing trail today because of a leg injury.

Harry F. Guggenheim, owner of the brown colt who astounded the experts by beating heavily-favored Native Dancer in the Derby on May 2, announced that Dark Star suffered a "bowed tendon" during last Saturday's Preakness Stakes and will be retired to stud.

"I regret to say that Dark Star's racing career is at an end," said Guggenheim.

"Stable jockey Henry Moreno reported that, while running with great ease in the lead at the head of the stretch, Dark Star suddenly stopped. After cooling out, his leg filled and the injury to the main tendon became apparent."

Guggenheim, owner of Cain Hoy Stable, said that his three-year-old star would be turned out to "unwind" at Port Washington, Long Island, this summer "and will begin his career at stud in Kentucky in 1954."

Seixas Sole U.S. Hope Remaining In Tennis Tourney

PARIS (UP)—Vic Seixas of Philadelphia was the sole remaining United States hopeful today as he opposed 18-year old Lewis Hoad of Austrlia in the men's quarterfinals of the French International Tennis Tournament.

Jaroslav Drobny, self - exiled Czech, met tenacious Fausto Gerdini of Italy in the other quarterfinal match.

Seixas, second - ranked American star, became the only U. S. star left in the tournament when Enrico Morea of Argentina upset Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., -8, 6-3, 8-6, 6-3, Monday. Seixas is favored today but Hoad was rated a fine chance to spring another upset.

Nat Holman's Trial To Begin Wednesday

NEW YORK (UP)—The departmental trial of City College of New York basketball Coach Nat Holman, scheduled to start Monday, will begin Wednesday instead.

Holman, hygiene department head Dr. Frank Lloyd, and assistant basketball Coach Harry Sand are charged with "neglect of duty" arising out of the recent college basketball scandal. If found guilty, they face dismissal from the CCNY faculty and loss of pension rights.

Elks Shutout Moose 6-0 In League Game

Behind the combined six-hit pitching of Lucian Bryan and Joe Moye, the Elks were able to shutout the Moose 6-0 in yesterday's Little League game played at Elm Street Park. The win gives the Elks a three and three record for the season.

Charles Roberts, with two doubles, and Bobby Arthur, with two singles, led the Elk batters to the win. Riggs, the losing pitcher, contributed a double and single to the Moose cause.

In Minor League play the Red Sox continued their supremacy over the rest of the loop by defeating the White Sox 6-4 behind the pitching of Leo Starling.

Today the Jaycees and the Lions will be battling it out for top spot in the Little League standings. Currently the Jaycees hold a one game margin, but a win by the Lions would throw them in a first place tie with the present League leaders.

Marciano Scouts Charles In Bout In Arena Tonight

MILWAUKEE (UP) — Rocky Marciano will personally scout Ezzard Charles, one of the two top contenders for Marciano's world fights Larry Watson of Omaha, Neb., here in the Milwaukee Arena tonight.

It will be the first time Marciano has seen Charles fight. Charles watched Marciano's title bout with Jersey Joe Walcott in Chicago My 15.

Charles will meet Watson, an up and coming light heavyweight, in the feature 10-rounder. Watson will try for an upset victory to boost his national ranking.

Parnell Has 'Same Stuff' But Holds Six Victories

NEW YORK (UP) — The top pitcher in the major leagues, handsome Mel Parnell, today pronounced himself just as amazed as the horse-collared hitters.

Parnell one of the few veterans who survived the Boston bobby-sox movement, has won six games against no defeats. And modest Mel can't figure it out himself.

"I'm throwing the same old stuff," he grinned. "And I just throw it up there and wish it luck all the way."

Parnell, who will be 31 next month, insists that he has been "lucky to get off the hook a few times." Actually, he has been pitching sharp, steady ball.

He was taken "off the hook" twice, being lifted from starting roles before he could be tagged with the loss. In four of his wins he needed aid before the end, but three of those were in the very late innings. Two of his triumphs came as he went the route—with a pair of fine five-hitters against the Athletics and White Sox.

Mel won't say so, but you feel that he is expecting a comeback year from his 12-12 effort of last season.

"We have a different ball club this season," he enthuses. "It is better defensively even though we haven't had as much offensive power. But you'll be seeing a tough ball club before too many years."

But it is the sprinkling of veterans, like Parnell, which has steadied the surprising Red Sox youngsters. And Mel knows how to help steady the kids, because he had a tough time getting started himself.

After two years in the minors, he was halted by a three-year stretch in service. Back with Scranton in 1946, he quickly got on the ball with a 13 and four season and a glittering 1.30 earned run average. The Red Sox took him up for a short while in 1947 before sending him to Louisville and there it looked as if his career might be at an end.

The slender southpaw from New Orleans suffered a fractured finger on his pitching hand and sat out most of the season.

"I didn't know whether I could pitch in the spring of 1948," he recalls. "I was really bewildered."

But not for long. Mel quickly proved that he could and posted a 15 and eight record. The following season, 1949, he led the league with 27 victories and in pitching 295 innings. The next two years he rolled up 18 wins each season but last year tailed off to an even break.

Now, once again, things are looking up with a hustling ball club behind him.

NEW YORK (UP)—Chunky Max Surkont, just another in the legion of obscure big league pitchers who never had a winning season, put his name into the record books today with a feat that may be unmatched for years to come — he struck out eight straight batters.

The right hander of the Braves, generally a good spring pitcher who fades when the hot weather sets in, turned in his sixth straight victory without a defeat, topping Cincinnati 10-3.

In the second inning, he fanned pitcher Herman Wehmeier. In the next frame he whiffed Rocky Bridges, Bobby Adams, and Gus Bell. In the fourth his victims were Willard Marshall, Bob Borkowski and Grady Hatton. He broke the record in the fifth when Andy Seminick struck out but Roy McMillan ended the spell when he lined out.

The mark surpassed the previous record of seven set by Hooks Wiltse of the Giants in 1906 and equalled later by two Dodger pitchers, Dazzy Vance in 1924 and Van Lingle Mungo in 1936.

Surkont struck out 13 altogether and was aided to some extent by a fog which enveloped the field as proceedings twice were halted by rain. He gave up five hits.

The first place Braves swept both ends of a double bill from the Reds, winning the opener, 5-1 as Don Liddle pitched three-hit ball for his second win. Del Crandall's two-run triple put him ahead to stay in the third. In Surkont's victory, Ed Mathews drove in five runs with a pair of homers.

In the American League, the Red Sox and Yankees also made history by playing the longest nine inning game in major league annals going three hours and 52 minutes before Boston finally won 14-10 with a 20-hit barrage. The Yankees made 13 hits themselves. Mickey McDermott, the winning pitcher, collected four hits while Jimmy Piersall had an inside-the-park-homer, a double and single for Boston. Every Boston starter got at least one hit in the carnage.

The Dodgers made it three in a row over the Phillies coming from behind to win 11-9, while the Cardinals drubbed the Cubs 14-3 with 18 hits and the Giants again topped Pittsburgh, 6-3 as Ralph Kiner hit his 300th big league homer in a losing cause. In other American League games the White Sox handed the Browns their eighth straight defeat 7-5, and Washington beat Philadelphia 6-1. Cleveland and Detroit were idle.

Homers by Carl Furillo, Jackie Robinson, and Roy Campanella sparked the Dodgers as they came from behind at Philadelphia. Robinson's came with two on base as rookie Bob Milliken picked up his first big league win in a relief role.

The Giants made 12 hits in their easy triumph at Pittsburgh. Davey Williams collected three as relief pitcher Dutch Hiller gained the victory. Kiner became the 12th player in big league history to hit 300 or more homers.

Stan Musial had one of those days in Chicago when he hit two homers and drove in six runs but his room mate, Red Schoendienst, was almost as potent, connecting for a double and three singles to give Joe Presko his third win.

Washington scored all of its runs in the first inning on five walks and singles by Jackie Jensen and Ed Fitz Gerald then coasted to victory behind the six-hit pitching of Julio Moreno.

The Browns and White Sox battled three hours and 17 minutes in another marathon in which St. Louis used 23 players. Chicago clinched victory withtwo runs in the eighth on doubles by Nellie Fox and Al Carrasquel and an infield single by Jim Rivera to give relief specialist Luis Aloma his second victory.

Nixon Endorses GOP Campaign For 18-Year-Old Voting Rights

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon said today the nation's 18 to 21-year-olds proved in last year's election campaign that they are anxious—and ready—to vote.

He made the statement as Republican leaders began a drive to lower the voting age in all states from 21 to 18. The GOP high command recalled President Eisenhower's campaign statement that a man old enough to fight is old enough to vote.

Nixon said he knows of "literally thousands" in the 18, 19 and 20 year age bracket who demonstrated their intense political interest and voting qualifications by participating in the 1952 campaign "right up to election day."

"The tremendous interest which people in that age group showed in the last campaign was added proof that they were ready to assume this responsibility," he told a reporter.

"It would not surprise me if a higher percentage of that group would vote than any other if they were given the opportunity."

GOP National Chairman Leonard Hall started the ball rolling Monday with a statement which declared that "the youth of 18 today is better informed than 21-year-olds of 50 years ago." Hall added that:

"It is my intention to support all valid proposals in this direction with every effort at my command."

Initial congressional reaction to the plan was mixed. Chairman Chauncey W. Reed (R-Ill.) of the House Judiciary Committee said he "would go very slowly" with the proposal.

He said it is not a "fair criterion" to say that old enough to fight is old enough to vote because voting requires "discretion." He doubted whether an 18-year-old in—or just out of—high school has grown up enough to exercise the discretion.

Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.) also a Judiciary Committee member, said he has long supported an 18-year-old voting requirement.

"Those upon whom the obligation of citizenship are imposed should have the right to select the public officials who enact and administer their laws," Keating said.

Only Georgia now permits 18-year-olds to vote. A uniform 18-year-old law could be achieved by independent action of the other 47 states or by constitutional amendment.

The court's judgment was that Ruffin pay the eight worthless checks and $75 to Bissette's Drug Store on the camera. It was testified that the store could not sell the camera for new. He paid Bissette $75, $130 for the checks and $45 court costs.

The case of Fred H. White, charged with non-support, was transferred to Superior Court for jury trial.

Joseph C. Jordan, careless and reckless driving, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $35, costs deducted. He is not to drive a motor vehicle on a public highway for six months. For having a defective muffler, the court gave Jordan 30 days in jail, to be served concurrently with the other sentence, and pay $5 on court costs. He is not to drive, or permit his car to be driven, without proper muffler.

Queen Returns To Rehearsal Of Rites

By JACK V. FOX
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP) — The royal standard flew from Buckingham Palace today, announcing Queen Elizabeth was back in a London which has been transformed into a Mardi Gras city.

Elizabeth tried to slip quietly into the palace shortly before midnight after she had been driven alone from Windsor Castle, but a crowd of 2,000 spotted her.

Mounted police and motorcycle squads had to clear the way to the palace gates for the royal limousine.

Bright early morning sunshine brought crowds back to the palace gates today. The heat which had reached a May record of 88 degrees Monday broke as a result of storms which had wrecked coronation decorations in North England and Scotland.

Her coronation is only seven days away and Elizabeth has a jammed week ahead, with final rehearsals of her 2 1-2 hour part in the solemn Westminster Abbey service and greeting thousands of distinguished visitors arriving by plane and ship.

Little Prince Charles, heir to the throne, will hold a coronation party for 14 children in a suite on the second floor of Buckingham Palace on the biggest day in the life of his mother palace sources said.

Before entertaining his guests, the four-year-old blond prince will excuse himself briefly and put in an appearance at the Abbey. Then he will return to eat ice cream and cake and watch television with his guests.

Britain's young queen looked happy and carefree Monday on her last day of relaxation before plunging into the whirl of royal duties that will carry through most of the summer.

After a side-saddle ride of 15 miles through Windsor's great park with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, and her sister Princess Margaret Monday, 26-year-old Elizabeth put on a gay blue and white polka dot dress and went to the races at Hurst Park.

Painters, decorators and workmen all were out early today putting finishing touches to the great rows of stands along the six-mile coronation route.

Gardeners from royal parks began moving the first of 30,000 specially grown plants which will adorn the stands and buildings along the way.

Chicago Woman Is Cattle Expert

CHICAGO (UP)—Riding herd on some 35,000 cattlemen in the United States is the not-so-feminine job held down by a trim Chicago woman.

Emily Krahn has handled the affairs of the American Polled Shorthorn Society for 15 years.

An attractive, friendly woman, she's proved that women con conduct cattle affairs as well as men. Although city-bred, she worked into her job naturally.

"I was brought up on Chicago's South Side near the stockyards," she said. "During high school I worked part time with the Shorthorn Breeder's Association, and finally it became a full time job."

Much of her knowledge of cattle came from working under four successive secretaries of the parent organization, the American Shorthorn Association.

"I started out as a typist, and then began to take over more and more of the association's duties," she said. "Nearly everything I know about cattle I picked up from working with the different secretaries."

Her year-round job is to supervise the handling of pedigree registration and transfers of Polled Shorthonrs in this country.

Chapter 6

Inspector Carlton's face was cold. With exception of State's Attorney Gilmore, Mandell didn't recognize any of the other men in the office.

A soft-spoken man, with hair the color of rusty iron, seemed to be in charge, He indicated a chair. "Sit down, Mandell."

Mandell sat in the chair. All the men in the office looked tired. Inspector Carlton and the State's attorney looked angry. No one spoke for a moment. Then a white-haired man laid down the cigar he was smoking and stood in front of Mandell.

"How do you intend to plead, "This is a court?" Mandell ask-o'clock in the morning."

The red-haired man said. "Let's call it an informal hearing, Barney. And don't worry about your rights. They're being well protected."

"Who are you?"

"My name is Curti..."

"The man who called my hotel and left word that he'd call back?"

"That's right."

His hands still clasped behind his back, Appellate Court Judge Hiram Clay rocked heel and toe. "Let's put it this way, Mandell. If this were a criminal court and I were the presiding judge how would you plead? Did you or didn't you kill Cherry Marvin?"

"How many times do I have to tell you gentlemen? I don't know."

"How about the man you claim was waiting in your room when you got back to your hotel last evening?"

"What do you mean, how about him?"

"Was there actually such a man?"

Mandell bobbed his head. "Yeah. He stuck me up for six hundred bucks. And the reason I didn't report it was because I didn't want any reporters coming to the hotel before I found out how I stood with my wife."

"Attorney John Ebbling's daughter?"

"Yes, sir."

Mandell watched the white-haired man walk back to the desk and pick up his cigar.

"Well," Curtis asked.

"Judge Clay relighted his cigar. "I am inclined," he said between puffs, "to believe Mandell is telling the truth, in so far as he knows it. How about you, Joe?"

The state's attorney said dubiously, "It could be. It's a problem, gentlemen." He looked at Curtis "I suppose we'll have to go along But the newspapers are going to eat off our heads for admitting an alleged insane killer to bail."

Mandell sat very still in the oppressive silence that followed. He wished he knew what it was all about. There was too much brass in the room to suit him. He felt suddenly very small and very futile.

In front of the Detective Bureau, Curtis led the way to a gray Buick. "Get in," he said, and walked around to theother door.

Mandell got into the car. "Who hired you to spring me? Mr. Ebbling?"

Curtis pushed the starter. "No." Mandell rode, working on the knot of his tie. He was glad Rosemary had brought him clean linen and a clean suit. Gale was undoubtedly at the hotel by now. He hoped his talk with Mr. Curtis wouldn't take too long.

"It was nice of you to get me out."

Curtis smiled. "Perhaps I had an ulterior motive."

Mandell wished he knew what ulterior meant. He offered, "My f 'her-in-law is an attorney, too. He's a patent lawyer."

"Yes," Curtis said. "I know."

Turning north again he parked the Buick in front of a building on Wells Street and got out. Mandell followed him into the building. There was a bank of elevators but no night operator. Curtis pushed open a fire door and began to climb the stairs to the fifth floor. Then Curtis pushed the heavy fire door open and walked down a hall with no legend on the glass.

The office was small but clean. The only furnishings were a desk, two chairs, and a big steel filing cabinet.

Curtis closed the door. "You know, I ought to get more money. I had a time springing you." He had a nice grin. Mandell liked it. "Kind of wondering what it's all about, eh, Barney?"

"That's for sure," Mandell admitted. "How much was my bail?"

"It was plenty."

"Who put up the the money? Gale?"

Curtis sat in the chair behind the desk and put his heels up on the wood. "You aren't even warm."

"Who then?"

"For the time being, let's just say it was someone who is rather interested in you. Someone with a lot of weight."

Mandell half rose from his chair. Mandell half rose from his chair. "Not the guy who killed the blonde?"

Curtis lighted a cigarette and tossed the package across the desk. "No. That' still Inspector Carlton's baby."

Mandell sat back in his hcair. "Know something'?"

"What?"

"I don't think I killed her."

Curti blew out the match with which he had lighted the cigarette. "I'm inclined to doubt it, myself. Very much. And in setting the time of death at four o'clock, the coroner's office eased the pressure on both of us considerably." He changed the subject tbruntly. "What was your father's uame before he Anglicized it, Barney?"

ADRIAN, Mich. (UP)—Burglars tried their best to make off with a 450-pound safe, but had to abandon the project when they found they couldn't lift it onto a truck. Self-Government Goals Disrupted For 4 Towns

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (U.P.)—An advisory opinion from Rhode Island's supreme court has disrupted the self-government plans of four cities and even now one municipal administration may be holding office illegally.

The opinion was delivered to the state's lower house of the legislature in answer to a resolution asking the high court about the constitutionality of non-partisan, off-year election provisions in newly adopted home-rule charters.

The five-member court said the election provision in the charters of Newport, Woonsocket, Central Falls and Pawtucket were an unconstitutional grant of authority from the legislature which for more than 300 years has governed most city and town affairs.

The Big Questions

But in Woonsocket, a new reform administration had taken office under the new charter only two weeks previous. The city government was revamped under the home rule charter.

Is the city administration, elected under provisions now believed illegal, the city government by law? Or does the city organization revert to the old form of government, with ousted city officials still in office despite the election mandate to the contrary?

The court said the only way these questions could be cleared up was for the legislature to pass measures validating the election provisions of the various charters. But the legislature adjourned without taking any action. It will be called into special session shortly to handle the entire issue.

Elections at Standstill

Meanwhile, the ousted administration in Woonsocket is preparing to test the right of the new government to hold office. And preparations for city elections in the other cities that have adopted home rule charters are at a standstill.

Just before the legislature adjourned, it passed one resolution asking the court to rule whether a home rule amendment to the state constitution — under which the charters were granted — was adopted legally.

Seems two delegates to the convention in 1951 were seated by fellow delegates, instead of being elected. If the state supreme court finds the constitutional amendment adopted according to illegal procedure, it will take at least two years to go through the entire process again.

Keeping Women Cool In Summer Is Full-Time Job

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP— You'd be amazed at all the trouble people take to see that women keep cool in hot weather.

A fellow in a Madison Avenue office ordered his assistants to find a thermocouple, for instance. This is a device not normally used outside medical circles. But a rented thermocouple, a boxlike mechanism with a polish walnut covering and a small dial, now rests on the man's office window sill.

Properly used, it tests skin temperature. Once installed, the fellow turned the operation over to women assistants. They were to find out if a girl got warmer wearing a winter weight girdle than she would in one of the extra light weight mesh girdles.

A secretary volunteered to take the machine home and do a little testing on her own time.

The secretary reported her findings, and faces fell.

"I found," she said, "that the dial registered around 93 when I wore the heavy girdle for a while, and around 91 in the summer weight girdle."

This didn't seem very significant to Franklin Brill, who'd had the whole idea in the first place. A little more research uncovered the fact that the average skin temperature is about 93 degrees fahrenheit.

Just when Brill was ready to send the machine back to the laboratory, he found a medical journal which stated that a drop of even a fraction of a degree in skin temperature is enough to make a person have a sensation of coolnes

"Suddenly the two degrees seemed remarkable instead of insignificant," he explained cheerfully. "Everybody knows that air must get to skin before it can be cooled. So it's only logical that one of these new girdles made of nylon mesh and perforated material would be much cooler. You women dress so uncomfortably anyway."

"What about the skin temperature without a girdle?" he was asked. He frowned and changed the subject. Just happens that the nemo lightweight girdles that were tested were made by one of Brill's clients.

He hasn't sent the machine back yet because he feels the research isn't finished. He just found another article that explained that "skin temperature usually drops during heavy muscular work owing to diversion of blood to the active muscles."

The secretary who made the first test admitted she did a few exercises to hurry up the warmth testing. She'll try it again to be sure those two degrees were honest.

Lawmakers Voice Twin Opinions

OKLAHOMA CITY, UP)—Newspaperman Otis Sullivant, of the Oklahoma capital press corps, suffered a broken leg recently while horseback riding.

Monday the Oklahoma Senate passed two resolutions — one expressing its sympathy for Sullivant and a second expressing admiration for the horse's "display of courage."

Reports Are Made To Merchant Board

Two main items coming up before the Board of Directors of the Greenville Merchants Association last night were recommendations of the finance committee which were adopted and a report on the courtesy parking plan.

H. L. Ormond, chairman of the finance committee, reported that the committee had made a complete study of the dues of the association and made recommendations for certain increases of dues.

The recommendations were studied by the directors last night and adopted. It was stated increases would be made where deemed necessary and where increases have not been made in almost 10 years.

Jack Edwards Jr., in reporting on the courtesy parking plan, told the group it was most successful. Edwards read a number of letters from out-of-town persons commending the courtesy parking plan and expressing their appreciation.

It was also brought out that the Greenville Merchants Association had received honorable mention at the recent N. C. Merchants Association Convention on their activities report which was written on the courtesy parking plan.

J. H. Blount, state director of the North Carolina Merchants Association, reported on the N. C. Merchants Association convention, reviewing several talks and panels

In his report, Blount commented on the talk given by John Hazen of Washington, D. C., who discussed the spending of government money and a talk by ex-State Treasurer Brandon Hodges who spoke of the problems of the development of North Carolina. He also discussed a panel discussion which took up personnel problems from the standpoint of management.

Blount was congratulated by the directors for having been elected as a State of North Carolina sponsor for the N. C. Association of Credit Women's Breakfast Clubs.

Ferry's Failure May Draw Fine

EASTVILLE, Va UP) — The Pennsylvania Railroad faced a possible $3,000,000 fine today for failure to keep its Cape Charles ferry in operation.

Former patrons of the ferry between Cape Charles, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort called the railroad into the Northhampton Circuit Court yesterday.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs requested the heavy fine during the hearing called to determine whether Pennsylvania was guilty of contempt in the ferry service halt.

The railroad stopped using its ancient ferry Elisha Lee after March 1 when the Coast Guard ruled that the ship did not meet standards of seaworthiness.

Fight To Block Boosting Grants

WASHINGTON (UP)—The GOP economy bloc fought today to stop the House from boosting federal grants for both education and hospital construction above levels recommended by the Eisenhower administration.

The showdown came as the House scheduled a final round of voting on a $1,980,706,461 bill to finance the departments of labor and health education and welfare in the year starting July 1.

Democrats maneuvered Republicans into a spot where they had to choose on a rollcall vote today between supporting the $75,000,000 Truman request for hospital funds or backing the economy bloc's cut of $10,000,000 in the revised Eisenhower request for $60,000,000.

The Democrats accomplished this by a sort of sitdown strike Monday. After the House rejected, 87 to 83, a Democratic move to restore the $25,000,000 cut in the Truman request, the Democrats sat on their hands and refused to support a move by some Republicans to restore the $10,000,000 cut from the Eisenhower budget.

That enabled the economy bloc to beat down, 67 to 43, the motion by Rep. John W. Heselton (R-Mass.) and set the stage for another last minute attempt by Democrats to add the $25,000,000 on a recommital motion today.

Vote Re-Count Results In Draw

CHICAGO (UP) — In a recent mayoralty election in suburban Northlake, Ill., John P. Rausa got 1,102 votes while his opponent Joe C. Griffin got 1,100.

A recount Monday gave each exactly 1,100. Judge Daniel A. Roberts, before whom the recount was held, has suggested that the candidates draw straws for the job.

Boobytrap Fails In 25th Robbery

DALLAS, Tex. UP) — G. H. Ford, operator of a cafe which has been burglarized 24 times within four years, rigged a shotgun booby trap and pointed it at the window the thieves always used to enter the little restaurant. It was set to go off if anyone tampered with the window screen.

Ford reported to police Monday that burglars had stolen his shotgun and all the change from the vending machine after breaking through a different window.

When the policemen arrived Miss Butterfield said: "I think there's a mouse eating in my refrigerator"

Women In The Church

Women in the Church
By MARY FOWLER

Three Methodist women missionaries were among the six Korean missionaries interned in a communist prison camp in North Korea for almost three years, who are now on American soil. They had been liberated by the Chinese communist forces "at the good offices of the Soviet government." The returning missionaries — looking well despite their harrowing years —were given heroes' welcome when they arrived on May 13 at Idlewild Airfield, New York City. The Methodist missionaries, all of whom were captured on June 25, 1950, when the North Koreans first made their dash into Songdo (Kaesung) and southward, are: Miss Helen Rosser, R.N., of Macon, Georgia; Miss Nellie Dyer of Conway, Arkansas; Miss Betha A. Smith of Marshall, Missouri; the Rev. Lawrence A. Zellers of Weatherford, Tex, whose wife is now in Langdale, Alabama; the Rev. A. Kristian Jensen, of New Cumberland, Pa., whose wife son, and daughter are now living in Madison, N.J The Roman Catholic clergyman is Father William R. Booth, of the Maryknoll Missioners, a native of New York City.

The Rev. Miss Lydia Gruchy, native of Paris, France, and the first woman ordained as a full-fledged minister of the United Church of Canada, has been given an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree by St. Andrew's College in Saskatoon, Sask. Church officials say she is the first woman in Canada to be so honored by a church college. Pastor Gruchy studied for the ministry after her brother, after her brother, a divinity student, was killed in action during World War I.

Concern over the Eisenhower administration's opposition to signing United Nations covenants, such as those of genocide and the political rights of women, was expressed by the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Board of Missions recently. Meeting in New York, representatives of 1,722,000 Methodist women urged church members to write their congressmen Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, and President Eisenhower concerning their beliefs and desires in these matters. A resolution drafted by the Division's Christian Social Relations Department said that United States refusal to sign such covenants would confuse and distress people around the world reaching out for democratic opportunities.

Chambermaid Is Left Sum In Will

NEW YORK, (UP)—An elderly socialite gave her Irish chambermaid a 50-cent tip once a week for 15 months and then left her $33,700 in her will.

Mrs. Bridget Hennessy, 50, a maid at the Delmonico Hotel, learned of the bequest after Mrs Mary Dandy Dean Campbell, 78, was found dead in her two room apartment in the hotel last week.

"I had always thought she was not well off," Mrs. Hennessy said. She had seen Mrs. Campbell every day for 15 months and had helped the arthritic woman with her shopping and cooking. Once a week she received a 50-cent tip.

After Mrs. Campbell's death, hotel officials found a number of bankbooks and savings bonds among her possessions and a handwritten will. The will provided that the money in her bank accounts be given to the persons whose names were listed in the bankbooks and on the bonds.

The name of Mrs. Henessy, a native of County Kilkenny Ireland, and wife of a city maintenance worker, was on four bankbooks with deposits totaling $33,700.

Hotel officials said Mrs. Campbell had few visitors in her apartment, which she had occupied for many years. They said she was listed in the New York Social Register as Mrs. Edwin P. Campbell, and was the daughter of the late Gen. George B. Dandy.

Ford And UAW Reaches Accord

DETROIT (UP)—Ford Motor Co. and the CIO United Auto Workers Union jointly announced today agreement on changes in their five year contract even more liberal than the General Motors settlement reached last Friday.

The Ford settlement boosts $100 monthly pensions to $137.50. The GM agreement made no change in the $100 pension. Ford also granted additional lesser benefits.

Ford, like GM, agreed to hike wages of skilled workers 10 cents an hour, to incorporate 19 cents of the current 24-cent cost-of-living increase into base pay, to increase the four-cent annual improvement wage increase to five cents and to establish a new cost-of-living formula based on the government's new price index.

Ford topped GM by boosting pensions, by granting die sinkers and pattern makers a 20-cent pay boost, by giving retiring employes accrued vacation pay and by providing that retired employes can purchase group hospitalization insurance.

The agreement takes effect June 1 for some 150,000 Ford workers. There will be no change in cost-of-living allowances, now pegged at five cents, until September.

Too Much Death For Her Vows

DETROIT (UP) — Mrs. Parnita Lewis won an uncontested divorce Monday when she told Circuit Judge Lila M. Neuenfelt the marriage vow "till death do us part" came true sooner than she expected.

She said that living in the funeral home owned by her husband's family made her depressed and morbid. She was granted restoration of her maiden name, Hangs.

Morse Assigned To Minor Senate Committee Jobs

WASHINGTON, (UP) — Sen. Wayne Morse, whipped in a four-month fight to regain his choice Senate committee seats, today reluctantly accepted assignment to two minor committees.

The Senate by a 49 to 36 vote yesterday refused to enlarge its Armed Services and Labor Committees to give the Oregon independent his old seats there. He was assigned instead to the District of Columbia and Public Works Committees.

Morse said he would serve on the two committees he tried to avoid. He said it was the duty of every senator to serve on committees.

His new assignments were the price of rebellion. Morse, an early backer of Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Republican nomination, turned against his party's candidate last fall. He bolted the GOP and supported Democratic nominee Adlai E. Stevenson.

But Morse declined to join the Democrats. When the 83rd Congress convened, he announced himself as the "independent party" and said the Senate itself, not the Republicans or Democrats, should assign him to committees. With his eight years of seniority, he felt he should get his old committees again.

But the Republicans, with a slim majority of 48 senators, took the choice seats for their own members and left Morse openings on only the Public Works and District of Columbia committees, usually reserved for freshmen. The Democrats refused to bump any of their 47 senators out of choice jobs to make way for Morse.

He forced a Senate vote on the issue Jan. 13, but it merely confirmed this arrangement.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK UP)—Prices declined slightly on the stock exchange early today in slow trading. Losses throughout the list were limited to very small fractions.

With nothing in the news to sway prices either way, dealings were quiet and sales in the first hour totaled only 220,000 shares, compared with 230,000 in the same period yesterday.

A few high-priced stocks showed losses of more than a point. Allied Chemical accounted for a good part of the loss shown in the industrial average. It slipped 1 3-4 points to 68 1-4. Amerada Petroleum dipped 1 3-8 points to 168.

Elsewhere, steel shares moved irregularly. Bethlehem Steel improved 1-8 to 52 1-2 and U. S. Steel was off 1-4 to 39 1-8.

Texas Pacific Coal & Oil was one of the few stocks that countered the trend. It rose a point to 39 1-2.

Missouri Pacific preferred, which slumped 4 1-8 points yesterday, rose 1 1-2 points to 44 1-8. In the main carrier group, prices moved within a very narrow range. Utilities dipped a few cents and oils were mixed.

Business Firms Offer Membership In Club

The East Carolina College "Pirates Club" is shooting for a charter membership of 1,000 before the first home football game this fall. More than 500 memberships already have been subscribed.

Memberships in the Pirates Club are selling at $15 each, and a comprehensive drive is now underway throughout Pitt County to increase income from that source to be used in various athletic activities at the college.

In return for a membership in the Pirates Club, subscribers receive reserve tickets to all home football games, and a chance to purchase choice seats for basketball games to be played next winter.

It has been reported that many requests have come in as to where memberships in the Pirates Club may be obtained, and in response the committee has set up business places in Greenville that are authorized to accept and issue receipts of membership.

They are: The Daily Reflector, The Frank Wilson Store, Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, Woolard and Webb Insurance Agency, Chamber of Commerce, J. A. Collins and Son and Wagner-Waldrop Motors.

In Farmville, Pirates Club memberships may be obtained at Center Hardware, or from Sam Stell, and in Washington they may be purchased at Stewart Jewelers, Kugler-Nicholson, the Bank of Washington, Jimmie's News Stand and the Elks Club.

Seek New Stay

WASHINGTON UP — Counsel for two North Carolina Negroes convicted of murdering a white taxi driver near Greenville in 1949 today asked Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson for a stay of execution so that a third appeal can be made to the Supreme Court.

The petition was filed by O. John Rogge, New York attorney, for Bennie and Lloyd R. Daniels. Rogge asked that Vinson hold a hearing in his chambers.

The pair last was turned down by the court on Feb. 9, when Justice Stanley F. Reed wrote a lengthy opinion disposing of the argument that there was racial discrimination in picking the trial jury.

Trucks Damaged In Collision On Old River Road

Two trucks were each damaged to the extent of about $200 in a collision early this morning on the old river road two miles north of Greenville.

Investigating officer Highway Patrolman James W. Boykin listed the drivers as Wiley Hinton Williams, Cotanche St., Greenville, and Johnny David Sims, South Pitt St., City.

Boykin said the gasoline truck driven by Williams made a left turn into the yard of Leroy Allen when Sims attempted to pass, colliding. The officer said Williams stated he gave a turn signal and Sims stated he did not see the signal because of the dusty road.

No charges were placed against either driver.

Further Uses For Nuclear Shells In Offing

By ROBERT BENNYHOFF
United Press Staff Correspondent

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—Congressional and military observers today foresaw atomic mortars, bazookas and cannons for naval ships.

The nation's leaders declared themselves highly pleased over the successful firing of the first atomic artillery shell, which exploded 500 feet above Frenchman Flat Monday.

The half ton of streamlined steel with an atomic warhead was fired from a 280-millimeter cannon, "Amazon Annie," and screeched seven miles across the desert before exploding with the force of 10,000 tons of TNT.

The new A-shell, fired on the proving grounds 65 miles northwest of here, greatly impressed both congressional observers and military leaders who predicted it would revolutionize the fighting of wars.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-N.Y.), chairman of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy and one of the congressional observers, declared following the test, "we have added another major weapon to our atomic stockpile."

"This has been one of the most dramatic demonstrations we have had to date on the enormous advances which have been made in atomic weapons development," Cole said.

Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman - designate of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, declared himself "highly satisfied with the success of the test," adding that he now foresaw atomic guns for naval ships similar to the Army's atomic cannon.

Rep. E. W. Hiestand (R-Calif.) toured the target area above which the atomic shell exploded.

"From all appearances of the target area," Hiestand commented "I'd say the atomic shell is extremely accurate."

He added he could see no reason why atomic shells couldn't be designed for use in naval guns aboard battleships, cruisers and other vessels.

Other congressmen who witnessed the test suggested the scientists might next be able to build atomic mortars and bazookas.

Hiestand and other congressional observers reported that about half of the 16 pieces of railroad equipment, including a 45-ton diesel locomotive spotted among the target array, had been toppled by the shell burst. Those left standing upon sections of railroad track suffered varying degrees of damage.

Out of 10,322 chest films read at Raleigh which were taken in Pitt County by the four mobile x-ray units, 289 persons have been called to the local health department to have larger films made.

The number of 70 mm films which have been read are those pictures which have been taken through May 23. More than 1,000 persons in Pitt County have had chest x-rays.

Of the 289 recalled for x-rays, 144 have already had larger films made. Eighteen persons were recalled because of unsatisfactory films and 126 because of heart defects showing up in the picture. One hundred and 42 films have been sent to a sanitorium for reading and 53 reports have been received from the sanitorium.

Of the recalls, 18 negative reports have been mailed back and out of the total number of persons having x-rays made at the mobile units, 9,789 negative reports have been mailed.

Pitt County still ranks third in the state in tuberculosis rate with 147 patients in sanitoriums, at home, in hospitals, and other institutions and with 539 tuberculosis contacts.

Of the number of patients in Pitt, 64 are white and 83 are Negroes, being treated at hospitals and 86 are being treated at home. Of those being treated at home, 14 are under a private physician's care and 75 are under the care of the Pitt County Health Department.

Six are being treated in veteran's hospitals; 40 in state sanitoriums; four in state hospitals; and four in county sanitoriums.

Among white people, there are no cases in children under 15 years old but there are four in Negro families under 15. Other age ranges in the white race are as follows: 15 to 30, nine cases; 30 to 42, 13 cases; 42 to 55, 21 cases; 55 and up, 19 cases; and two cases with no age given.

In the Negro race age ranges are as follows: One to 15, four cases; 15 to 30, 13 cases; 30 to 42, 24 cases; 42 to 55, 24 cases; 55 and up, 18 cases; and one case with no age given.

The contacts in the county, which total 539, show that 220 are white and 319 Negro.

Describes Great Size Of Dacron Plant And Needs

A $40 million plant now stands in what used to be a corn field, according to Ray Lowe, assistant manager of the DuPont Dacron plant at Grifton, who was speaker at the Greenville Rotary Club last evening.

Speaking on the work of the new plant, Lowe gave a description of the facilities that are in operation on the 635 acres of land between Grifton and Kinston. The assistant manager said that the plant is served by two miles of railroad and three miles of highway on its premises.

To describe the size of the plant, Lowe stated that there was one corridor in the building 835 feet long, about the length of three football fields. Generating its own power, the DuPont plant can generate enough electricity to furnish a city of 25,000 inhabitants with power.. Wells on the grounds can make available 2,000,000 gallons of water a day.

The plant consumes 65,000 tons of coal a year for the purpose of generating power and burns 60,000 gallons of fuel oil a day.

One thousand persons can be fed in less than two hours in the plant's cafeteria, which prepares all its food in its own kitchen, according to Lowe. There are two fulltime doctors and six registered nurses to help maintain the best of health among employees.

Over a half million dollars payroll is paid the 1500 workers at the Dacron plant each month, Lowe told the Rotarians in his talk.

The speaker went through the process of converting raw materials into dacron and illustrated the various steps on a wall chart and by showing actual samples of the material.

Dacron's properties and uses in the textile industry were the final phase of Lowe's talk. He pointed out the good and bad qualities of the fabric, and demonstrated some of his points by showing various items of clothing made from the dacron.

Concluding his address, Lowe said DuPont has grown in the technological advance in America as a result of private enterprise and constant research to advance better living. He praised Greenville citizens for their warm-hearted reception of the newcomers to Eastern North Carolina.

A graduate of the University of Oklahoma, Lowe has worked with DuPont for seven years and now lives in Greenville. Program Chairman Jim Butler introduced the speaker.

'Should Have Gone Home' Says Judge In Sentencing

"Boy, you should have gone on home when you had the chance," Judge Henry L. Stevens told a Grifton Negro in Pitt Superior Court yesterday, just before he sentenced him to serve not less than 20 nor more than 25 years in the State's Prison.

The Warsaw jurist directed his remarks to Booker T. Payton, 30-year-old Negro who came into court and entered a plea of guilty to second degree murder in connection with the shotgun murder of his brother-in-law, Melvin Jones.

Originally Payton was charged with murder in the first degree, but a guilty plea to the lesser charge was accepted on behalf of the State by Solicitor W. J. Bundy.

It was brought out in testimony that Booker T. and his brother, Preston, 35, went to Jones' place to "get a drink of whiskey." An argument ensued, and Booker T. left the house, took a shotgun from Preston and shot Jones as he came through the front door into the yard.

The incident happened the Saturday night before Easter Sunday, and Jones died next day from wounds in the stomach. Booker T. admitted on the stand that he had a previous criminal record. He said he attempted to take a blackjack from an officer when he was "very young."

Payton's brother, Preston, was charged in a bill of indictment with being an accessory before the fact of murder on the strength of his statement that he went to his home and obtained the shotgun which, in the hands of Booker T., inflicted the fatal wound.

Judge Stevens directed a verdict of not guilty in the case of Preston, and told him to go home and stay out of trouble.

The case of Sylvester Vick, in which he was charged with larceny of an automobile, was nol prossed with leave.

Yesterday's session of Superior Court was concerned with the hearing of all jail cases. Court adjourned at noon, and opened this morning slated to sit through Friday on civil cases.
