

Allies Are United On Proposal

Details Of Secret Korean Truce Offer Beginning To Be Revealed

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The new United Nations plan for a Korean armistice proposes that only India's troops be sent to Korea to guard prisoners refusing to be sent home following a truce, informed sources reported today.

The U.N. plan rejects the Communist proposal that Red Polish and Czech troops be dispatched to Korea to guard the unwilling prisoners.

The Allies — and particularly South Korea — had objected to the presence of large numbers of Red troops at prison camps. They fear the Reds will intimidate or coerce prisoners rejecting communism.

However, the Allies will be going with previous plans to appoint a neutral five-nation commission that would supervise the handling of the prisoners, the sources said.

The commission would be made up of representatives of Sweden, Switzerland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and India.

Details of the plan began unfolding here after President Eisenhower stated last night that prisoners would not be repatriated by force nor would they be "coerced or intimidated in any way."

British Prime Minister Winston Churchill announced Britain's "complete support" for the basic plan.

The President's statement said the plan had the "full accord" of U.S. allies but South Korea is still objecting to its terms.

Sen. Robert A. Taft, in a special read for him in Cincinnati, Ohio, last night said that the "united States might as well forget the U.N. as far as the Korean war is concerned."

The White House declined comment on Taft's statement except to say that the President had no advance knowledge of what Taft had planned to say.

In response to a question, press secretary James C. Hagerty also said that the President's statement last night was not aimed at Taft.

The Allied powers were said to be optimistic over chances that the new plan would break the truce deadlock.

Meanwhile, the "play of U.N. units" put the Reds on "notice" that the new plan is the best chance for peace they will get.

It was in effect a formal notification that the split on truce policy that has plagued the Allies for nearly two years had been healed.

Greenville Woman Heads State Association

Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, first president of the Greenville Credit Women's Breakfast Club, was elected president of the North Carolina Association of Credit Women's Breakfast Clubs at the annual convention held in Winston-Salem, last week, in conjunction with the N. C. Merchants' Association convention.

At the installation luncheon, the Greenville club was in charge of program, decorations and favors, and Mrs. Margaret Boykin, hostess committee chairman, used the occasion to color and theme. President Elinor Norris, of the Greenville club, presided. Invocation was given by Mrs. Earline Coghil, and welcome by Mrs. Frances Cassick.

Following her acceptance address, Mrs. Copeland presented her State sponsor for 1953-54, J. H. Blount of Greenville and Mrs. Blount; Wesley Harvey, president of the Greenville Merchants Association, and Mrs. Harvey; Mrs. Cora Powell, secretary of the Greenville Merchants Association; the assistant secretary, Lois Edwards Fleming; Mrs. Cassie Sawyer, Mrs. Ethel Baker, Curtis Perkins and L. S. Garrix, all of Greenville.

Retiring President, Mrs. Ethel Wilkinson, of Charlotte, presented the gavel and a gift to the new president, and a beautiful arm bouquet of American Beauty roses, a gift from the Greenville club, was presented by Mrs. Frances Cassick, the new State corresponding secretary.

At 4:30 p.m. President Copeland held her post-convention board meeting, and outlined the program for the coming year's work. At the Annual Merchants' Association Banquet on Tuesday evening, Mrs. Copeland presented the State Trophy to the Rocky Mount club, and their president, Mrs. Wilda Vics, received it in their behalf.

Other awards won were: State Project by Winston-Salem, Scrap Book by Charlotte, first prize; Greenville, second prize, and Fuquay-Varina, second prize; Attendance by Asheville, first prize and Greenville, second prize. Outstanding Breakfast Clubber of the State award, given by Mrs. Allis May Holland of Raleigh, was won by Irene Picklesimer of Thomasville, secretary of the State's newest club.

Appointive officers chosen by Mrs. Copeland as State president were: State Sponsor, J. H. Blount; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frances Cassick, both of Greenville; state historian, Mrs. Vallie Henderson of Raleigh and state parliamentarian, Mrs. Mary James of Reidsville.

Attending the convention from the Greenville club, in addition to Mrs. Copeland, were: Mrs. Lettie Bilbro, Mrs. Elinor Norris, Mrs. Margaret Boykin, Mrs. Frances Cassick, Mrs. Ethel Baker, Mrs. Earline Coghil, Mrs. Cassie Sawyer and Mrs. Cora Powell.

American Officials Anxiously Seek Solve Possible Truce Block Rhee 'Revolts' At UN Offer

By LEROY HANSEN United Press Staff Correspondent SEOUL, Korea (UP) — United States diplomatic and military officials teamed today in attempting to end an angry revolt of the South Korean government against the new United Nations truce proposals.

The South Koreans have not disclosed publicly their reasons for opposition to the truce proposals, but it is reported that they want, first, to get all Communist forces out of Korea after an armistice has been concluded, and also to leave the way clear for the later unification of South and North Korea. It is reported also that Rhee is angry because he was not told of the new U.N. proposals before they were made until a few minutes before the U. N. truce proposals were made to the Communists Monday.

A South Korean army spokesman bluntly contradicted President Eisenhower's statement yesterday that "our allies" support the new U. N. truce proposals.

South Korea, he said, is one of the allies and decidedly does not support the proposals.

It was pointed out here that if the Communists reject a truce, it even if they had agreed with the U. N. on its terms.

Government sources also indicated South Korea may pull all of her troops from the battlefield if the United Nations sign a truce leaving this nation divided.

The army spokesman said Gen. Choi Duk Shin, South Korean delegate on the U. N. truce team, would continue to boycott the meeting unless changes are made in the new and "final" proposal.

"If the situation is the same on June 1 as it was on May 25, the general will do the same thing," the spokesman said.

Choi refused to attend last Monday's meeting when both sides met following an eight-day recess. The meeting again was recessed until next Monday.

Asked why Choi boycotted the session, the informant said "it is apparent he found some phrase that is not acceptable."

He also revealed Choi had written Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief U. N. truce delegate, a letter of "more than five pages long" outlining South Korea's stand on the truce negotiations.

Rhee's cabinet was reported to have decided yesterday upon a seven-point course of action which might be taken if South Korea refused to accept a truce agreement which she disapproves.

All the points were not disclosed but two of them were said to be a decision to "demonstrate" at the Korean waterfront with a small-scale unauthorized attack, and a withdrawal of all ROK troops from the battline.

At present, the ROK army constitutes two-thirds of the United Nations' troops on the 155-mile front.

There was doubt in some quarters that Rhee's government actually would take such drastic measures.

However, Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Eighth Army commander, met for 40 minutes today with Korean defense minister Shin Tae Yung. Taylor requested the meeting and said it concerned "administrative and military matters" only.

Taylor's headquarters said the general urged Shin to use his influence to win Korean government support of the new proposal.

South Korea Air Base Bombed By Enemy Aircraft

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—Communist planes sneaked through Allied radar curtain today and dropped bombs on a United Nations air base near Seoul in the biggest Red air raid since the early days of the war.

The propeller-driven planes, possibly as many as 15, struck and went away before they could be intercepted. There was no immediate estimate of damage caused by the raiders.

As the enemy aircraft neared their target, the Allied base at Kimpo, 15 miles from Seoul, was alerted. "Red" air raid alert was sounded. The planes were "all clear" 25 minutes later.

The Reds, obviously attempting to retaliate against continued Allied hammering of their supply lines and strike at the cause of their heavy jet plane losses, carried light bombs.

A Fifth Air Force spokesman said radar spotters reported five planes at first, but the screens later showed 15 tracks.

It was believed the raiders were light planes similar to the antiquated craft used by Communist "bedcheck Charlies" who harass the Allies from time to time.

A brilliant "bomber's moon" which permitted the Reds to stage their pre-dawn raid also aided Allied pilots. U. N. night bombers ruined 70 trucks and hit an enemy airfield at Sunan that may have been the home base of the Kimpo raiders.

Twelve B-29 Superforts from Okinawa also went on a moonlight excursion, dropping 130 tons of bombs and causing "may large fires" in a 55-acre supply area five miles north of Kyom Po.

South Korea Air Base Bombed By Enemy Aircraft Taft Proposes 'Go It Alone'

CINCINNATI, O. (UP) — Sen. Robert A. Taft proposed Tuesday night that the United States "forget the United Nations" in settling the Korean war and take "a completely free hand" in dealing with Communist expansion elsewhere in the Far East.

In a statement which he admitted would "shock a good many people," the Ohio Republican leader said the United Nations had shown itself to be an ineffective means of preventing military aggression. He suggested a conference be called to amend the U.N. charter.

Taft's foreign policy views were contained in an address read for him by his son, Robert A. Taft Jr., at a silver anniversary dinner of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. Taft himself is in a Cincinnati hospital undergoing treatment for a hip condition. "I believe we might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned," Taft said. "I think we should do our best now to negotiate this truce, and if we fail, then let England and our other Allies know that we are withdrawing from all further peace negotiations in Korea."

Even the best truce settlement that might be reached in Korea would be "extremely unsatisfactory," he said. It would "release a million Chinese soldiers, who no doubt will promptly be moved down to southern China for use against Chiang Kai-shek or against the French in Indochina."

He said he believed the United States should have insisted long ago on a general peace negotiation with Communist China to end the threat of further Red expansion in Southeast Asia.

"I believe we might as well abandon any idea of working with the United Nations in the East and reserve to ourselves a completely free hand," Taft said.

Taft traced developments in U.S. foreign policy in recent years which he said showed the nation "to rely on military alliances to meet threats of Communist aggression rather than on the United Nations."

"This statement is going to back a good many people who still believe in the United Nations," he said. "I believe in the United Nations myself, but not as an end in itself, but as a means to an end. It does have many methods by which, through peaceful persuasion, it can deter and prevent war."

Local Tobacconists Are Elected By Association

B. B. SUGG, JR. New President W. L. WHEDBEE Secretary-Treasurer

Two Greenville tobacco officials, B. B. Sugg, Jr., and W. L. Whedbee, yesterday were elected president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the Eastern Carolina Warehouse Association.

Assembling in Rocky Mount for their annual meeting, members of the group also selected three other Pitt County men to serve in prominent positions in the warehouse association.

They are: R. E. Rogers of Greenville and R. D. House of Farmville, elected to the Eastern Association's board of directors; and Johnny Carl-

French Evacuate Defense Sector

HANOI, Indochina (UP)—French troops evacuated a key sector of the "little Maginot line" defenses 30 miles south of Hanoi today and regrouped behind new fortifications for an expected mass Communist onslaught.

The French high command announced that French Union forces manning the steel-and-concrete chain of bunkers at Yen Vi, pulled out of the positions during the night and fell back on lines closer to Hanoi.

The evacuation was completed early today.

A French spokesman said the withdrawal was carried out without enemy pressure. Before moving out the French garrison blew up eight Yen Vi fortresses, he said.

The move came only one week after the Yen Vi garrison beat off repeated large-scale assaults by Red "banzai" units of the Vietnam 320 Division.

French command sources said the evacuation was in line with tactics of the new Indochina commander, Gen. Henri Navarre, to "tighten" the defenses of the vital Hanoi Delta area.

They said the move was in preparation for an expected major Communist bid to capture the rice-growing Delta area, one of the richest in southeast Asia.

Million Pennies On Display Has Special Guard

WOODRUFF, Wis. (UP)—Volunteer guards, state police, local officers and county officials volunteered to mount an around-the-clock guard around a collection of pennies gathered by teenagers who wanted to see "a million of something."

Youngsters at the consolidated school here began collecting the coppers after the high school geometry class pestered the teacher to see "a million of something—anything."

The teacher suggested they collect pennies and when the million figure was reached, contribute the money to a worthy cause.

Yesterday the magic figure was surpassed when an armored car laden with 650,000 shining pennies arrived from Milwaukee a collection point in the drive.

Washington, N.C. Will Get Big Mill

WASHINGTON, N. C. (UP) — A New York textile firm has purchased a 40-acre tract for a multi-million-dollar plant here, city officials said today.

The National Spinning Co. said the proposed mill which will manufacture knitting yarn, will employ about 500 persons when in full operation. The first of its three buildings is scheduled to be finished by next fall.

The city approved a $1,250,000 bond issue six weeks ago to provide water and sewage facilities for the anticipated plant.

Mother Confident Will See Her Two Sons - - Someday

NEW YORK (UP)—The mother of two Romanian boys whose safety was threatened in a Communist blackmail plot said today she was sure she would see them alive again—"because I believe in God and I believe in my new country."

Mrs. V. C. Georgescu, an attractive red-haired woman of 45 called on President Eisenhower to help get her sons from behind the Iron Curtain.

"I have never given up hope that I will see my sons again," she said in an interview. "I believe in God and I believe in my new country. I hope all American mothers who understand my sorrow will write letters to President Eisenhower to ask him to help me."

In a low, firm voice marked with the trace of an accent, Mrs. Georgescu told how a member of the Romanian legation offered her husband a chance to see the boys again if he would "collaborate politically" with Romania's Communist government. Her husband refused.

"Of course, he was right," she said. "He didn't ask me before he made his decision, but I told him he did the right thing. The boys wouldn't respect him if he did anything else."

Mrs. Georgescu clenched her hands nervously as she talked about the boys, Constantin, 19, and Peter, 14, whom she and her husband left in Romania early in 1947 when they came to the United States on what was supposed to be a two-month business trip.

During the past three years, she said, she has had no word from them except their signatures scrawled on the backs of receipts for money the parents send each month.

"I don't feel we are farther from seeing them because of my husband's decision," she said. "They (the Communists) would always hold them back to be able to put pressure on my husband."

Congress To Study Relaxing Of Curb On Private Atomic Power

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—Republican leaders said today Congress will give long and careful study to the administration's history-making proposal to let private industry in on the development of peacetime atomic power.

It appears likely that Congress eventually will pass legislation relaxing the government's tight monopoly on construction and operation of nuclear reactors. But Chairman W. Sterling Cole (R-N.Y.) said his congressional Atomic Energy Committee will hold extensive hearings on the plan beginning next month, and the bill probably will not be brought before Congress next year.

The Atomic Energy Commission started the legislative ball rolling yesterday by submitting to Cole's committee a proposed bill which would authorize private firms to build and operate atomic power plants, and even buy and sell atomic energy as such as the fissionable elements uranium 235 and plutonium under government licensing and supervision.

The commission said the time has come to bring the fabled "know-how" of American private industry to bear on the problem of producing atomic power that will be "economically competitive" with power produced from coal, oil and hydroelectric plants.

The AEC has already learned how to build atomic engines that can produce electricity. The big unsolved problem is bringing down the cost, and that is a field in which private competitive enterprise has had a lot of experience.

The long-range impact of opening up a great new source of power for American industry apparently were up for top-level discussion at President Eisenhower's meeting with the National Security Council today.

Seize Un-Taxed House Cigarets

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Treasury agent seized 131 packs of tax-free cigarettes from the House restaurant in the Capitol yesterday.

He also cleared up the big mystery of how the taxless smokes got there in the first place: Somebody had mistaken Congress for the National Training School for boys.

The fact that the restaurant party "zed by scores of congressmen" selling tax-free cigars came to light Monday when a reporter bought a pack that didn't have the familiar blue eight-cent tax stamp. But it still cost him 70 cents.

Revenue agent F. J. Gaffney said the restaurant received a shipment of 50 cartons actual, consigned to the National Training School for Boys here. It sold 369 packs.

Albert Spalding, Noted Violinist, Dies Suddenly

NEW YORK (UP)—Albert Spalding, 64, who retired three years ago after a 45-year career as a concert violinist died at his home last night of a cerebral hemorrhage.

The Chicago-born artist was stricken as he and his wife were preparing to go to dinner. He died within a few minutes.

Spalding was a member of a family famous as manufacturers of sporting goods. His father, J. Walter Spalding, was a partner in the A. C. Spalding & Bros. Co.

He made his formal debut as a violinist in Paris in 1905 after being graduated from the Bologna Conservatory in Italy. At 14 he was the youngest student to graduate from the conservatory since Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart.

Russia Announces Execution Of Four Accused As Spies For U.S.

By HENRY SHAPIRO MOSCOW (UP)—The Soviet press announced today the execution of four American spies charged with being dropped by parachute from an unmarked U. S. bomber on Ukrainian soil last April 26 with espionage equipment.

Investia, the government organ, and other Moscow newspapers devoted two columns of type to a communique from the ministry of internal security announcing the four had been shot to death.

The communique identified the men as Aleksandr Lakhno, Aleksandr Makoy, Sergei Gorbunov and Dmitri Remiga. They were tried by a military tribunal of the supreme court of the Soviet Union.

According to the communique, Lakhno and Makoy, who were caught immediately were saboteurs who gave fictitious names of "Vasil Vasilchenko" and "Leonide Mackovsky," respectively.

The ministry said the four men were agents of the Nazis during World War II. Lakhno, the communique said, was unmasked as a traitor who betrayed five Soviet patriots to the Germans who had them shot.

Lakhno and Makoy "confessed" they were parachuted into Soviet territory by American intelligence with diversionist terrorist assignments," the communique said.

Lakhno and Makoy testified the two other agents, who were as-sted on the same day, had been given the nicknames "John" and "Dick" by the Americans. Lakhno said his nickname was "Aleks" and Makoy's was "Pit."

The communique said the agents "carried shooting instruments, four short wave radio transmitters, American-made radio signaling instruments for guiding aircraft, secret writing materials and equipment for making counterfeit Soviet documents, large amounts of Soviet and foreign currency and anti-Soviet propaganda material."

The announcement said the defendants testified U. S. intelligence had sent them to spy training center at Bad Wiessee near Munich by studying under the guidance of American intelligence officers.

Scout Jamboree Board To Meet

The Jamboree Committee of East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America, has called a meeting to be held in Rocky Mount Sunday afternoon, May 31.

The meeting will be in the form of a parents' conference, held separately from a conference with the boys, and then a joint conference of Jamboree Scouts and their parents.

Littlejohn Faulkner, former mayor of Wilson, is formulating plans now which will be announced later.

Interesting information is that to place in the Jamboree. The late registrants may be assigned to places in the Jamboree. The late registrants will be made up into the troop of Troop No. 21. Leaders of the troop already chosen are Frank E. Meadows Jr. of Rocky Mount, as scoutmaster, with Albert Rabi Jr. and Billy Griffin of Roanoke Rapids. Rabi is a Duke University student and Griffin is a student at the University of North Carolina.

The East Carolina Council Jamboree Committee, reminds that opportunities are available for travel and camping. The Boy Scout Jamboree is the great event in the lives of Boy Scouts, Meadows said.

Applications are still being received at the local Boy Scout Executive's office in Wilson.

Damage Suit In Its Second Day

Presentation of evidence in a $75,000 damage suit growing out of the accidental death in 1951 of Fred E. Mayo, Bethel native, went into its second day in Pitt Superior Court here this morning.

It was alleged in the plaintiff's complaint that Mayo was killed in an automobile-truck collision, said collision to be the result of negligence on the part of the truck driver, George Riddick.

Catharine Mayo and others have brought suit for $75,000 in damages against Riddick and Lloyd A. Stallings, Clifton Stallings and Jack Stallings, trading as Stallings Lumber Company of Gatesville, N. C.

According to evidence presented in the case, a car driven by Mayo collided with a tractor-trailer at a spot approximately one mile north of Bethel.

Riddick was not killed instantly but died next day in a Tarboro hospital. The automobile in which he was riding alone was completely demolished.

The case is expected to consume all of today's session and possibly carry over into tomorrow morning. There are nine lawyers in the case, six for the plaintiff and three for the defense.

In drilling deep oil wells, more time is used taking tools out of the well to change bits and putting them back than in actual drilling.

Baskette-Owens Vows Spoken In Double Ring Ceremony

FOUNTAIN—In a ceremony of beauty and dignity, the marriage of Miss Dorothy Marie Owens, 2327 Monument Ave., Richmond, Va., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim F. Owens of Fountain, and Horace J. Baskette of Richmond, Va., son of Mrs. Fitzhugh Baskette and the late Mr. Baskette of Norfolk, Va., was solemnized Sunday afternoon, May 24, at four o'clock at the Fountain First Baptist Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Richard L. West, pastor.

The church with its background of fern, gladioli, baby's breath illuminated by the soft glow of many cathedral candles made a lovely setting for the impressive double ring ceremony. As the guests assembled, Mrs. Wyley Yelverton, organist, rendered a program of nuptial music. To the soft accompaniment of the organ, Bob Knox as soloist sang "I Love Thee" by Grieg, "Because" by D'Hardelot, and "Wedding Prayer" by Dunlap as a benediction.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a full length gown with a train of white lace and tulle over satin. The bouffant skirt had a front panel of ruffled lace. Her veil of illusion fell from a cloche of chantilly lace and seed pearls. The bride's attendants were Mrs. Susie Owens Clifton of Blackstone, Va., sister of the bride, as matron of honor, and Mrs. Joyce Proctor Beamon of Walstonburg and Miss Emily Ann Owens, Little Miss Patricia Owens of Fountain, niece of the bride, as flower girl.

The matron of honor wore a gown in ankle length picture dress of blue nylon net over taffeta with a scalloped bertha around yoke. Her other attendants wore ankle length dresses of pink nylon net over taffeta with a scalloped bertha around yoke. They carried bouquets of gladioli buds and mixed flowers.

Mr. Hugh Baskette, brother of the groom, was best man.

Ushers were Mr. Gordon V. Owens of Farmville, brother of the bride, and Mr. Howard Baskette of Norfolk, Va., brother of the groom.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Owens entertained at a reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Baskette.

Mrs. Baskette received her education at Snow Hill High School in Snow Hill and Smithdeal-Massey Business College, Richmond, Va.

Mr. Baskette received his education at Grant High School in Norfolk, Va., and William and Mary College Extension in Norfolk.

Later in the afternoon the couple left for a wedding trip to the mountains in the western part of North Carolina. The bride wore a navy silk shantung suit. After the wedding trip the couple will make their home in Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Owens and Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Proctor entertained at a cake cutting for the Owens-Baskette wedding party at the Proctor home Saturday night following the rehearsal.

The home was decorated throughout with gladioli and other spring flowers.

The guests were invited into the dining room and were served lime punch and tiny decorated cakes, mints and nuts. The centerpiece was all white flanked with white candles.

After several musical selections by Mrs. Bob Beamon the bride presented her gifts to her bridesmaids. Goodbyes were said by Mrs. Proctor.

Immediately following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Baskette were entertained at a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Owens at their home. Guests were greeted at the front door by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Owens and introduced to the receiving line by Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Owens.

OWENS. In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Horace Baskette, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Owens, parents of the bride, Mrs. Fitzhugh Baskette, mother of the groom, Mrs. Lawrence Clifton, Mrs. Bob Beamon and Miss Emily Owens.

The guests were invited into the dining room by Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Trevathan. The table was covered with a white linen tea cloth and centered with a lovely arrangement of white flowers. At one end of the table was a four tiered wedding cake which was cut and served by Mrs. Ben H. Owens. At the opposite end Mrs. R. A. Fountain served punch. Others assisting in serving were Mrs. Clifton Galloway, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Turnage, Mrs. C. L. Owens, Mrs. M. D. Yelverton, Mrs. Philip M. Cory, Miss Wilma Grace Owens and Mrs. Jesse Proctor received in the gift room and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Owens presided at the register.

Compliments Daughter At Informal Party
GRIFTON—On Saturday morning Mrs. Eleanor Gower was hostess at a delightful informal party at her home here from 10 till 11 to compliment her daughter, Mrs. Dale Smith of Gadsden, Ala. The home on Queen Street was decorated throughout with a variety of summer flowers. Greeting guests at the door were Mrs. Tom Gower and Mrs. Cecil Cobb. Informal conversation ensued. In the dining room the table was covered with a linen cutwork cloth and centered with a bowl of pink sweetpeas. Mrs. Robert Mewborn served Coca-Colas and guests served themselves to party sandwiches, sweet rolls and potato chips. During the calling hour around 35 guests were received including close friends of the honoree, neighbors and newcomers to Grifton.

Joint Hostesses To Wesley Philathea
The Wesley Philathea Class held its regular monthly meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Rosa Lee Joyner. Assisting hostesses were Miss Addie Congleton, Mrs. Catherine Adams, Miss Lill Wilson and Mrs. Nita Tripp. Eighteen members were present.

Mrs. K. T. Futrell led a most inspirational devotion. She used as her topic, "God in the Bible." She said, "The Bible is the rule book of life, and yet we fail to read and study and be governed by it in our daily living, as we should."

Woodrow Wilson said, "When you have read the Bible you will know that it is the Word of God, because you will have found it the key to your own heart, your own happiness, and your own duty." David said, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." Psalm 119:105.

After devotional, Mrs. V. P. Scoville, president, presided over the business part of the program. The outstanding part of this program was that of sending a representative of the Wesley Foundation to Lake Junaluska as a delegate to the Youth Assembly. The Lydia Wooten Class

Education Leads Way For Prosperity

A successful industry grows through the plowing back of profits into new plants and equipment and new and better personnel. The same holds true for education; and the "profits" of education in the past fifty years stagger the imagination of anyone who has read or lived through that period of change.

In North Carolina, the growth of education and effect upon the state have been so remarkable as to inspire its being held up as an example to educators from all over the nation.

Roy E. Larsen, Chairman of the National Citizens Commission for Public Schools, cited the importance of public schools and their unheralded impact upon the economic well-being of this democracy before the American Association of School Administrators recently gathered in Atlantic City. North Carolina's progress, in these at-first-glance unrelated fields, formed the cornerstone of his theme.

Former North Carolinian Walter Hines Pates, scholar, journalist, publisher, and Ambassador to Great Britain, once said "I believe that by the right training of men we add to the wealth of the world. All wealth is the creation of man and he creates it only in proportion to the trained uses of the community; and the more men we train, the more wealth everyone may create."

Larsen echoed this credo, and pointed to fifty years of educational growth in North Carolina and its accompanying growth of economic wealth to prove the point.

The total picture — the total effect of what schools mean to the nation — seldom is understood as a veritable cornerstone of our way of life.

"As a person professionally concerned with the way in which the life of our nation is reported," says Larsen, "I am often distressed and disturbed to note the failure of some of our important contemporary commentators to give education the credit it deserves for this country's tremendous growth since the turn of the century."

To support his own conviction, Larsen turned to North Carolina, which at the turn of the century was a poor state, "and yet today ranks as one of the leaders, not only of the South, but of the nation, in statecraft, in industry, and in education."

In the North Carolina of 1900 people did not "believe" in public education. There were 29 illiterates for every one hundred of the population over ten years of age. In the value of manufactured products N. C. ranked twenty-second; in the value of farm property, the state also ranked twenty-second among the other members of the nation. There were only nine public libraries; the combined circulation of the five most popular periodicals published in N. C. in 1900 was a mere 37,000. There were no professional teachers in the public schools; only thirty (of the more than 2,000 districts in the state, all urban, considered education worthy of levying a school tax for the support of the schools. Almost all the school attendance was on the elementary level; with only 30 public high schools, a mere 2,000 youngsters out of a total school age population of 658,000 were enrolled in them!

"The change in the next generation and a half was staggering," noted Larsen. By 1950, school attendance was up to 73 per cent, with most of the increase coming at the high school level. There were 155 times as many high school graduates as in 1900; total average daily attendance in elementary and secondary schools stood at 798,000 instead of the 207,000 of 1900.

Education had changed from "a luxury for the few to a necessity for the many." The effect this general cultural and educational growth had on the material prosperity of North Carolina in the course of fifty years is even more stupendous. Production of electric energy — (a good measure of overall growth, Larsen noted) — had jumped from a 1902 production of 8 million kilowatt hours to an astounding 9 billion, 108 million kilowatt hours in 1950 . . . and still rising fast. While the value of farm property the nation over a little less than quadrupled, the value of farm property in North Carolina increased eleven times. The value of manufacture for the nation increased some 14 times during this period . . . but in North Carolina it increased 40 times.

But behind these outward manifestations of wealth, lay the vast growth of the educational system. In 50 years the total value of school property in North Carolina has increased 210 times; teachers' salaries have increased 34 times and the total expenditure for education has increased 133 times. As in the national picture, North Carolina's educational effort has had a tendency to compound itself by stimulating the growth of cultural outlets . . . in themselves educational.

Generally speaking, the public education system has created interest and demand for more and better production of material goods. "Better living" standards have risen to new heights with each advance of the peoples' knowledge.

Frederick Lewis Allen, author of "The Big Change," which sketches the major changes taking place in the first half of the century, summed up these thoughts by saying "if you thus bring advantages to a great lot of previously underprivileged people, they will rise to their opportunities and, by and large, will become responsible citizens."

Larsen, in his talk, went one step further by adding that to open up the purchasing power of the people, "you must provide the great majority of citizens with the skills necessary for the production of wealth and with the varied interests and tastes necessary for the consumption of the many products of an industrial society."

'Tight Money' Policies To Stay

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The "tight money" policy adopted by the Eisenhower Administration on the advice of Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey will not be abandoned because of protests from "easy money" politicians on Capitol Hill or the warnings of certain conservative financiers in Wall Street. Washington still believes that the inflation rather than deflation and stable dollar is major threat to a sound economy.

Although the increase in interest costs had been put into effect by private lenders before Secretary Humphrey issued securities with the highest rates in 20 years, the Treasury's action induced many other hesitant institutions to boost their charges for loans. It has now begun to affect small borrowings throughout the country, not simply in such money centers as New York, Chicago and San Francisco.

In short, the little fellows—home buyers, consumers, farmers—are beginning to suffer from the pinch, as they always do in a state of economic transition. The cost of money has shot up just at the time when building operations, farm borrowing and automobile purchases normally reach a seasonal peak.

It is the complaint from these elements which underlies the demand of 20 Democratic members of Congress that the Treasury and Federal Reserve immediately reverse their "operation deflation." Besides fattening great financial interest, the Sparkman-Gore-Fulbright faction maintain that the ordinary borrowers are being squeezed and stripped of their wartime savings and investments.

DEFLATIONARY MOVEMENT CONSIDERED TOO SPEEDY—This Capitol Hill criticism was attributed by White House advisers to more partisan politics until it was recently reinforced by cries from financial circles unusually friendly to the Eisenhower Administration. Although sympathetic to the deflationary movement, they now insist that it has become too speedy and severe. They question the tempo, not the idea.

later became Dewey's Superintendent of Banks. Had the New Yorker been elected in 1944 or 1948, it is probable that Bell would have been named Secretary of the Treasury. He is now editor of a weekly business magazine.

Writing in a recent issue, Bell urged caution on Washington. Using a familiar simile, he said it was good to learn that the government could apply brakes to the economic and monetary automobile, but that the passengers should not be thrown through the windshield by too violent an application. His comment, in view of his background, caused considerable excitement and restudy of the problem around the White House.

NEED FOR CHECK ON MONEY FLOW—Secretary Humphrey's review has not shaken his belief that the forthcoming flow of Federal and private funds should be checked and directed by government action. High interest rates, in his opinion, must be relied on to insure prudent borrowing and spending of all the money in the air.

Washington alone will lay out $36 billion a year on the defense build-up. $48 billion if the Korean war continues, not to mention an $81 billion backlog of unspent funds. Plant expansion and repair is running at a rate of $27 billion a year, or $500,000,000 more than 1952. Manufacturers' output is 10 per cent higher than a year ago, with heavy forward orders still to be filled. Home construction has not slackened.

Employment and wages are at such heights that national income is still rising. It hit the figure of $285 billion in March, or 30 per cent above the level of a year ago. This peak purchasing power explains why, despite unprecedented production volume, there are no heavy manufacturers', wholesalers' or retailers' inventories. In some lines, especially automobiles and home appliances, industry cannot satisfy the buying demand.

Boom conditions and philosophy should last at least another year or two, barring unforeseen war, and Humphrey discounts the fear that real peace would provoke a recession. Therefore, he does not believe that making money more expensive by 1 per cent or a fraction thereof will wreck the nation.

Cliff Is Looking For Camera Bugs

Cliff Rhodus, the parts manager at Stafford Oldsmobile Company, admits he's over 60, but regardless of age he has about as much zip as you can find in a young man. In my business dealings with him what I enjoy most is asking him frequently if his hair is bothering him by falling in his face. If you've ever seen Cliff, he's bald as an eagle. But he doesn't mind being kidded about it.

The other day I was talking to Cliff and he told me, "What Greenville needs is a Camera Club. Let's find out if there's any interest in it."

Cliff would like to know if there are camera bugs like himself who would enjoy forming a club for the purpose of exchanging information and ideas about photography. Such organizations also serve as a means for exchanging or acquiring equipment.

Cliff started his camera hobby only a year ago, but already has four cameras, an enlarger and his own dark room which he calls "The Dog House." He explains, "When my wife decides there's too much camera junk in the house and runs me out I can always go out to the Dog House."

One of Cliff's products appeared in the Presbyterian Magazine recently. It was a picture of the Rev. C. D. Patterson of the Greenville Meadowsbrook Presbyterian Church, with the church in the background.

When Cliff was telling me about his visual aids work with the church I said, "When you must be the supervisor of the Visual Aids Department."

"I AM the visual aids department," he said.

In this job he presents any type of film strip, slide or motion picture used in the church's educational program.

Cliff would like for anyone interested in forming a Camera Club to contact him by calling 36575 at night or 2016 in the daytime. In a Modern Photography magazine Cliff showed me there is a regular column called "The Camera Clubs," which tells of activities around the country by these organizations. Some have experts come in and lecture on various phases of photography. Others have auction sales once a year for the purpose of disposing of equipment and buying more advanced cameras and developing equipment.

If you are a camera bug like Cliff give him a ring at one of the above numbers. Perhaps a meeting place could be found and dark-room facilities set-up for those interested in photography.

And I hope to see you at the St. James Auction Friday night at eight o'clock, McGowan's Warehouse on Ninth Street.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

SOME FEAR DEATH (Wilson Times)

We can't tell you why, but it's the ignorant who most fear death. But as they grow older, as they become conscious of the fact that changes are slow in the making, they fear death less and less. To some it's a lasting sleep that they welcome as others might welcome ordinary sleep. For many of the mysteries of the world are still unknown. To the younger people they offer a challenge. But as we grow older, as we approach that three score and ten, we're willing to leave some of the discoveries of those mysteries to the younger men whose're forever probing the universe.

Life, of course, is sweet. It's so not of humans alone, but of all living things. That's particularly so as long as we're in health. But let us show that age in life where we reach signs of trying and we slow down, if we're wise. For the strenuous life wasn't made for elderly people. They may like to fool themselves, but they'll give up as time moves on. None, we're sure, ever sits to wait for death. But many, we know, face life unafraid. They contribute their share toward world betterment as long as they can, always hoping, as that same New England poet said, to "leave footprints on the sands of time."

The Statesville Newspaper Deal - - Farm Speed-Up

By LYNN NISBET
LOSS-GAIN — North Carolina loses an afternoon newspaper and Statesville gains the opportunity to move forward with a progressive daily. Negotiations which have been underway for months culminated last week in the Statesville Daily Record group, headed by J.P. Huskies and Mrs. Pauline Middleworth, acquiring the Statesville Daily from Pegasus Bryant. Saturday's issue of the older Daily was its last, although the new owners will continue publication of the semi-weekly Landmark.

Another item in the loss-gain column is that while Statesville gains in potential advantage of one really good afternoon daily instead of two less good competitive publications the town loses the distinction of being the only community in the country of less than 20,000 population with two entirely independent afternoon daily newspapers.

FORWARD — The decks are pretty well cleared now for Statesville to take its proper place among the North Carolina communities of comparable size with a lively daily newspaper. The Record folks have bought a new printing press capable of handling many more pages much faster and have added other mechanical equipment, which along with additions to the staff personnel will make possible better service to advertisers and readers than has been rendered under the divided responsibility of two daily newspapers in one relatively small town.

TECHNICALITIES — Amounts of money involved in the deal, are of no special interest outside corporation and Chicago brokers, as of no special interest outside of newspaper circles, and of no real concern outside the small group involved in the negotiations. The people of the Statesville area are to be congratulated upon outcome of the long drawn-out conferences among the principals. One newspaper can serve the community much better than two, and there is no occasion to fear the imposition of monopolistic policies. There will be enough competition provided by afternoon newspapers at Charlotte and Hickory and Salisbury and Winston-Salem and half a dozen other points to guarantee the consolidated Statesville daily will stay "on the ball."

"LAID BY" — We passed by a corn field the other day in which the stalks were a little more than knee-high. Roy Purser, business manager of the State mental hospital, casually remarked that the field had been "laid by." The other passengers in the car, having been raised on farms, knew what he meant; but some of us oldtimers found difficulty in appreciating the fast moving modern technique. When a field is "laid by" it means that cultivation of the crop has been completed and it will require no further attention until harvest time. Boyhood recollections of striving to meet a laying-by goal on July 4 had to be adjusted to laying-by in May. Memories of head-high corn blades whipping the face and throat in 100 per cent temperature, with gnats and flies dividing attention between the mule and the plowman; also had to be adjusted to the scene of a farm girl riding a tractor which pulled equipment "laying-by" two to six rows at a time.

GRASS — Even more radical adjustment must be made in the attitude toward grass. The boy used to wonder why grass flourished so luxuriantly in corn and cotton fields and would not grow in pastures. One reason might have been that in those days the average farmer didn't think of turning to pasture any land that would produce a crop. Now some of the most fertile acres are devoted to pasturage, grass, seeds are planted and the stuff is fertilized to make it grow. Meantime the scientists have pretty well licked the menace of row crop field grass and weeds by developing chemicals which can be applied with preplanting fertilizer and which prevent germination of grass and weed seeds, while apparently increasing germination qualities of corn and cotton and bean seeds. Ain't science wonderful? In old times the last plowing in the field was to get some of the alien vegetation out of the middles. In those corn fields which were being laid-by the other day there was not a sign of a sprig except the healthy young corn stalks.

HOLLYHOCKS — That isn't all. Many of the farm homes as well as those in the towns had flower gardens with towering hollyhocks in full bloom with hues ranging from snow white to brilliant red and deep saffron. Hollyhocks used to bloom in late July and early August. Here they were demanding recognition ten days before June.

AHEAD — Everything seems to be moving faster, with humans trying as diligently as corn and hollyhocks to get ahead of competition. So we have fur sales in August, Christmas decorations up before Thanksgiving, and spring millinery displayed around New Year day. Not to be left behind, the American Legion Auxiliary and War Mothers organizations were on the job last Satur-

Concern Over FTC

By ELMER ROESSNER
Some American manufacturers are deeply concerned over what appears to be a new and changed view of the Federal Trade Commission on the use of famous American manufacturer names on Japanese-made sewing machines.

When trade was resumed with Japan after the war, the Japanese began to export large numbers of sewing machines heads here. The Japanese have considerable experience in manufacturing them since the sewing machine is as important a part of the Japanese household as the refrigerator. It is of the American home. Furthermore, many of the basic American patents had expired. Prices were lower than American machines because the heads had been made with low-cost Japanese labor.

American importers of these machines names similar to those of U.S. Appliance and motor companies. Admiral, Majestic, Hudson, Zenith, Cadillac and equally famed names appeared on machines.

In some cases, when the machine heads were mounted on tables and in cabinets, the legends "Made in occupied Japan" and, later, "Made in Japan" were concealed by the woodwork.

The "unfair competition" screams of American manufacturers were soon heard in Washington if not in high heaven, and the FTC brought a series of actions against American assemblers and distributors.

Several distributors agreed to drop the well-known names and to make sure that the country of origin was clearly visible. Other firms resisted and more than a dozen cases went to hearings.

Now the FTC has found in one case that the use of the name "Royal" does not lead people to believe the machine is made by the typewriter company, and, as long as the machines displayed the country of origin and the name of the Royal Sewing Machine company, it is all right with Washington. Following this, a number in another case found that the use of the names Hoover, Eureka and Mercury were okay on machines as long as the "Made in Japan" line was clearly visible.

There will now be a long wait from those companies that agreed without fighting, to drop their names. But that will be nothing compared to the wall of American sewing machine makers to the FTC and to their Congressmen.

URGES CORPORATIONS TO REVIEW INSURABLES
Corporations must constantly review the insurable values of company properties, A. J. Benning, director of insurance, Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co., warned the American Management Association's national insurance conference.

The reason, he said, is the changing values of buildings. Construction costs, more than doubling since 1939, have enhanced the value of many existing structures. He recommended the application of cost indexes to the original cost, whenever possible, to determine insurable values.

CONTEST TO DEMONSTRATE SKILL—AND IRONS
Next month's college graduates can face the rigors of non-academic life on from $200 to $400 a month.

A survey of 131 universities and colleges by Northwestern National Life shows average offers of $290 to $310 a month for liberal arts graduates, $310 to $330 for business administration majors, and $325 to $375 for engineers, with some getting $100 and over a week.

In London, Joe, The War Is Over

By HAL BOYLE
LONDON (AP)—An open letter to any ex-GI Joe from the London he used to know:

Dear Joe,
I came over here to see the queen get her crown, and I've been here three whole days, and not one little kid has said, "Got any gum, Chum?" I tell you, it gives you a lonesome feeling.

The old town sure has changed from wartime days—when a guy in an American uniform with a carton of cigarettes under his arm could walk the streets and feel like a king.

Remember how beat-up and battered London looked then? Well, now she looks like some old family aunt who has come into a little money, got her face lifted, put on a new paint job, bought herself some glad rags—and started looking for a boy friend. It's fun to see the old girl smiling and having a good time, after all the years of tears.

The British are going about this coronation the same way they fight a war or make tea—methodically and thoroughly. They will do the job right, even if the queen becomes eligible for an old age pension before she finally gets her crown.

You know how fast we throw up some wooden stands in America for some local festival, such as running the mayor out of town. Well, the coronation stands look like they had been built for ages. They are held up by miles of metal piping, and the English have taken as much care in building them as the French did with the Eiffel Tower.

I checked the wooden seats, too, Joe, and they are so smooth that if any visitor gets a splinter in his you-know-where, well—it'll be such a scandal some poor carpenter will probably be drummed out of the empire.

Until now the British have taken the coronation festival in stride. A few diehards have even been heard to growl in their beer, "It's all ruddy nonsense."

But now they are getting into the spirit of the thing. It's been a real vitamin shot for the British people, and they are quite excited. Of course, Joe, they know they aren't like us. We are proud of our country out loud, and they are proud of their empire in silence. You really need a slow motion camera to catch a big opening of an Englishman showing any emotion of any kind.

I guess it's hard to say which has really stirred them up more—the coronation or the strain of three days of perfect weather. They are looking up the history books to see if they ever had three straight days of sunshine before, and the uneasiness probably will remain until the next fog arrives.

But Joe, you should be here now. I got news for you. Brussels sprouts are out of season. In the restaurants they ask you if you wouldn't like some fresh strawberries. How do you like that, Joe? Strawberries instead of Brussels sprouts. You came here 10 years too soon, kid. But that hotted potato you left behind you is still on the menu, 10 years soggy.

Remember how we used to wear an arm out in a block saluting the top brass out at Eisenhower Plaza, where Gen. Ike had his headquarters? Well, I went out there in a cab and drove around the square for old times' sake, and the yellow housefronts were freshly painted, and I didn't see a single American uniform. Not even one tired old abandoned colonel.

Boy, that gave me an eerie feeling. But if they finally got all those colonels out of town, swivel chairs and all, I guess the war must really be over and what we are having is peace.

Pony League Opens Season With Wild, Woolly Games

Two wild and woolly baseball games ushered in play in the Pony League last night, as the Ford-O-Matics pushed across a run in the bottom of the seventh to edge the Bright Leafs 12-11. In the second contest the Independents walloped the Red Men 17-2.

A large opening night crowd saw Wayne Edison blast two home runs and a double in four times at bat to pace the winners in the first contest. John Arnold homered for the Bright Leafs and had one single to pace the losing Bright Leafs.

A one-sided slugfest by the Independents was the story of the second game of the evening. Firstbaseman Mike Riddick had four hits in six times at the plate for the winners. Also contributing hits for the victors were Hudson Miller, Lindy Dunn, and Oscar Stoneham—each collecting two.

Wade Jordan was the only Red Man to get more than a single off the offerings of Dunn. He lashed a double in the fifth inning.

Tonight at Third Street there are two games in the Men's Softball League on tap. Garner-Wynne-Manning meets Home Builders in the opener at 7:30 and Southern Bread engages Carolina Dairies in the second game.

Willie Pep 'Empty'; Looks At Big Money

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)— Hopefully aiming once again at the big money, little Willie Pep admitted today that he was just about "empty."

That means, in the parlance of the fight game, that the more than $250,000 he earned as he danced his way to the featherweight championship of the world is gone.

With Wee Willie, one of the greatest of the boxing masters, it wasn't wine, women and song. Willie never went for the joy water. But two matrimonial catastrophes took $50,000 and most of the rest went to the deaf ivory ears of "Little Joe."

Vic Seixas Faces Another Busy Day In Tennis Tourney

PARIS (UP)— Vic Seixas, the lone U. S. survivor in the men's singles of the French International tennis championships, faced another busy day today in the doubles competition.

The power-packed Philadelphia team with veteran Gardnar Mulloy of Miami against Enrico Morta of Argentina and Armando Vieira of Brazil in the quarter finals of the men's doubles.

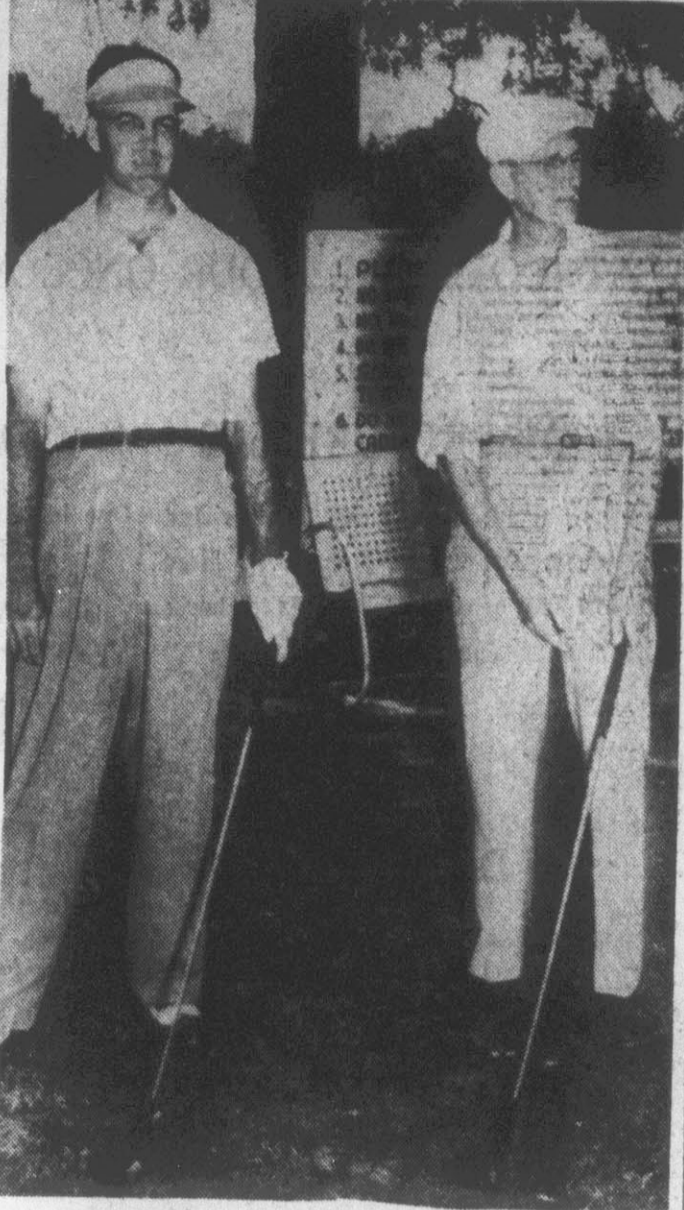

In the mixed doubles, Seixas and Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., hoped to gain the semi-finals against Mrs. Jean Rinkel and Geoffrey Paish, both of Great Britain.

Club Championship Play Begins

Reynolds May (left) and Dr. Billy Brown (right) are just before beginning semi-finals play for the Club Championship at the Greenville Golf and Country Club yesterday afternoon. W. L. Allen and Simon Moya are also battling for the right to play in the finals Saturday and Sunday afternoons. May is the defending Club Champion. Today's 18 holes of match play by the two pairs will determine who will meet for the title during the week-end.

Spahn Tosses Shutout As Braves Beat Reds

By MILTON RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UP)— Those cynics who are waiting for Milwaukee's bubble to burst may run out of patience long before the Braves run out of gas or winning pitchers.

Southpaw Warren Spahn, a little wry of seeing "boys" like Don Liddle, Bob Buhl and Johnny Antonelli do "men's" jobs for Milwaukee, took matters in his own veteran hands Tuesday and hurled a four-hit 6-0 victory against Cincinnati.

By gaining his fourth triumph of the season, the 31-year-old Spahn increased Milwaukee's National League lead to a game and a half and continued to fulfill a prediction made years ago by shrewd old Casey Stengel.

It was Stengel, who upon seeing Spahn for the first time while he was managing the hapless seventh-place Braves in 1942, declared: "There's one kid who is going to be a big help to the Braves one day."

Spahn, who returned to action only four days ago after being sidelined since May 14 with a pulled side muscle, was in exceptionally fine form as he struck out three and walked only two. Only Gus Bell and Bob Borkowski were able to solve his deliveries, each getting two hits.

Joe Adcock and Jack Dittmer hit successive doubles for Milwaukee's first run in the second inning while singles by Sid Gordon, Dittmer, Del Crandall and Spahn accounted for two more runs in the fourth.

The second-place Cardinals lost a half-game in the standings by splitting with the Cubs, St. Louis winning the opener, 6-3, and Chicago capturing the nightcap, 3-2.

Larry Doby smashed his sixth homer of the season in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday night to furnish Cleveland with a 9-8 victory over last-place Detroit.

The population of the United States is increasing at the rate of 1.71 per cent a year.

Americans Face Tough Opponents In British Meet

BOYLAKE, Eng. (UP)— The 19 Americans "still alive" in the British Amateur golf championship faced a rugged day of competition today with both third and fourth-round matches on the schedule.

Only one of the Yanks — Air Force Sgt Dale Buettler of Toledo, O. — already has won his third-round match. He was slated to meet R. F. Cottingham of England in a fourth-round test.

The other 18 Americans, including the "big four" of Harvie Ward, Frank Stranahan, Jimmy McHale, and Bill Campbell, all must play third-round matches and then, if successful, fourth-round matches before nightfall.

No more than 16 of the Yanks could advance to the fourth round, because two third-round matches were all-American affairs. In one, McHale, the Walker Cupper from Philadelphia who is currently a popular favorite for the title, meets R. J. Abrams of Chicago, while in the other, Joe Walter Case of Hendersonville, N. C., played Charles Darwin of Cookeville, Tenn.

Ward, the defending champion from Atlanta, Ga., romped to a 7 and 6 victory Tuesday over John Caldwell of Ireland. His third-round opponent today was John W. Howard, an English club star.

Stranahan, of Toledo, O., who won this title in 1948 and 1950, narrowly escaped Tuesday when he won the 18th and 17th holes to beat Ian Patey former English champion, 2 and 4. He appeared in for another tough session today against Dr. Frank Deighton of Glasgow, Scotland.

If Ward and Stranahan both win their third-round matches, they will collide in a fourth-round match in the afternoon.

Campbell, former legislator from Huntington, W. Va., was matched in the third round against Gerry Owens, former Irish internationalist. Bob Sweeney of Palm Beach, Fla., the 1937 winner of this tourney, meets Jimmy Behan, a tourney veteran from Chesire County.

Charles Knockout Of Watson 'Proof' For Another Shot

MILWAUKEE (UP)— Ezzard Charles, former heavyweight champion, said today that his easy knockout victory over Larry Watson was "just further proof" that he was entitled to another shot at the heavyweight title.

Charles dropped Watson to the canvas six times before the Omaha Neb. light heavyweight went down for the final time in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-round bout at the Milwaukee Arena Tuesday night.

Rocky Marciano, the current heavyweight champ, was at ringside. He had never seen Charles fight before and said he was "impressed" by Charles' style.

Charles didn't show him too much however, as he put Watson away without using his explosive right hand. Charles relied almost entirely on his left hand, battering the outweighed and outclassed Watson with jabs and hooks.

Wrestlers Fight Tonight

Tonight sports fans in this area will be given the chance to see professional wrestling matches at the New Enterprise warehouse at 8:30. Three events make up the evening's entertainment.

Main program on the card is an Australian Tag Team Match which pits Joe Wolfe and Ace Freeman against Jim Austeri and Al Getz. The one-hour bout will be the best two-out-of-three falls.

Special attraction of the evening will have Prof. Roy Shire fighting Tony Cosenza in a one-fall, 45 minute match. Opening the evening's fight program will be Irish Jack Moore grappling Frank Hickey.

Hugh T. Hardee and Woodrow Worthington, local businessmen, have made arrangements for the bouts and have booked them through former World Champion Texas Babe Sharkey.

The New Enterprise warehouse will be the scene each Wednesday night at 8:30 for wrestling matches which will include noted television stars, girl wrestlers, midget wrestlers and big-name stars.

Conversational Art Has Expert's Advice

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY, United Press Staff Correspondent (NEW YORK UP)—It used to be enough for a girl to be a good listener in conversation with a man. Now she's supposed to be a lively conversationalist too, though the author of a new book on "How to Carry on a Conversation" admits a woman is restricted by a few "don'ts."

questions to test "how conversable" a reader is, beginning with "Is easy for you to begin a conversation?" That's the hardest part for both men and women, Dr. Nutley states. The same rules for getting out of that conversational stalemate apply to both sexes.

Removed 50,000 On U.S. Payroll

WASHINGTON, UP)—The Eisenhower administration lopped about 50,000 persons off the federal payroll in the first three months it was in power, it was disclosed today.

The Civil Service Commission estimated that the number of federal employees totaled 2,506,600 on May 1. On Feb. 1—just 11 days after President Eisenhower's inauguration—the total was estimated at 2,556,500.

The drop in April was 21,700 employees, the greatest monthly cut-back since the start of the Korean war.

The Civil Service Commission attributed the bulk of the decrease to cuts in the personnel of the Defense Department and other military agencies and of the Economic Stabilization Agency.

Within the continental limits of the United States, it said, the federal payroll covered 2,324,400 on May 1, a drop of 19,300 from the April 1 total.

The commission said that overseas employment also declined about 2,400 from April 1 to a May 1 total of 182,200 workers.

Exercises Under Way At Robersonville High School

ROBERSONVILLE—Rev. Wilbur Wallace, pastor of First Christian Church, preached the baccalaureate sermon at Robersonville High School Sunday morning.

High School students presented a program of instrumental and vocal music.

Marshals were Mary Glyn Norman, chief; Betty Jean Davenport, Joyce Worsley, Barbara Roebuck, Shelby Jean Ayers, Tommy Roberson, Gene Martin, Dan Clark and Charles Johnson.

J. Everett Miller of Raleigh, assistant superintendent of public instruction, will deliver the commencement address Thursday night at 8:15.

Class night exercises were held at the school Tuesday night.

Tonight (Wednesday) night the Robersonville Music and Glee clubs will present a special program of music.

Last Friday night, the Robersonville High School band, under direction of Ernest G. Black, presented its spring concert in the school auditorium.

"Robersonville High School is concluding one of its best years," a school official stated.

THE HEART OF JULIET JONES

POGO

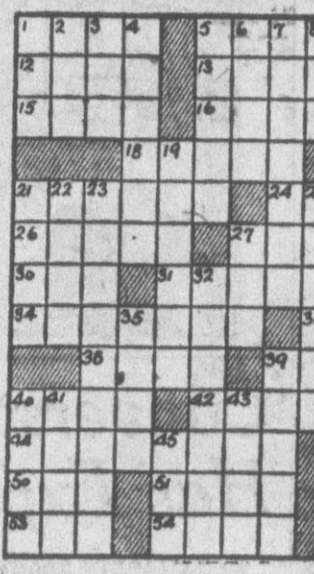

TO KISS, OR KILL

Chapter 7
"Your family name wasn't always Mandell, was it?" Curtis asked.
"Born in Gdansk in 1897 and married to Sofia Bjela, a Czech, in 1922." He blew smoke at the ceiling. "One-time professor of advanced physics at the University of Poland. Later taught at the Sorbonne. Emigrated to Sao Paulo, Brazil, in 1943, where he opened his own consulting laboratory. Deceased as of September 14, 1947, a widower without issue.
Mandell was apologetic. "I didn't even know he was dead. We kind of lost track of him during the war." He leaned forward in his chair. "But how come you know so much about my uncle Vladimir? What's he got to do with springing me?"
Curtis snuffed his cigarette. "We'll come to that."
There was something vaguely familiar about the other man's face. Then Mandell realized what it was. A weight. He'd felt the same weight before. Many times. Mostly, he'd felt it at night, lying sleepless long after Lights Out had sounded, or crouched alongside a half-track, listening to the heavy stuff in the distance, knowing that whatever happened to Barney Mandell was up to the eagle perched on his chest.
"You're a fed," he accused.
Curtis smiled. "That's right. "F.B.I.?"
"Who's the government want of me? I paid my tax."
Curtis nodded. "A lot of tax, Barney. But this isn't exactly a tax matter."
"Then what is it?"
Curtis lit a cigarette from the butt of the one he was smoking. "Right now, let's say we've been trying to contact you for some time."
"I haven't been hiding."
"No," Curtis agreed. "We've known where you were all the time. But owing to some rather clever razzle-dazzle, we didn't realize who you were." Curtis shrugged. "There are, after all, some three million people of Polish extraction in this country, and it seems that your father didn't bother to legalize his change of name."
"No. I don't think he did," Mandell said.
It was hot in the small office. He wished Curtis would make his point and let him go to Gale. None of this seemed to have anything to do with the dead blonde.
Curtis opened the drawer of his desk and took out a Polish-language paper printed in Chicago. "Ever read this, Barney?"
Mandell shook his head. "No, I can't. I can talk it a little, but that's all."
"I see," Curtis said. He put the paper back in the drawer. "How do you feel about this country, Barney?"
Mandell smelled the wilted carnation on his lapel. It was still faintly fragrant. "How do you mean, how do I feel about this country? It's my country. I like it."
Curtis nodded. "Yes. I think that can be assumed. Up until this late unpleasantness concerning Cherry Marvin, you've been a good citizen. You have an excellent war record. You never made better than pfc, but you earned an infantryman's combat badge, a bronze and silver star three battle stars, and a purple heart. That right?"

are, after all, some three million people of Polish extraction in this country, and it seems that your father didn't bother to legalize his change of name.
Curtis pushed back his chair and stood up. He walked to the dawn-dulled window. An el train was passing. He watched it into the next station before he spoke. "About a lot of money, Barney."
"Turning, Curtis sat on the sill and looked at Mandell thoughtfully. "And about something even more important than money."
Mandell wasn't impressed. "There's nothing more important than money. I know. I was born back of the yards. My old man didn't make much. After he died, it got worse. I went hungry when I was a kid. I saw her go without a warm coat all one winter. Go without a lot of things. That's why I got into the fight game. So I got my brains beat in. So what? It's the only quick-money business open to a guy who's not too bright to begin with. But is bright enough to want to stay on the right side of the law. Naw. Don't give me that. There's nothing more important than money."
Curtis laid the cigarette on the sill and stood up. "I hope..."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks moved aimlessly early today in dull trading. Changes throughout the list just before noon amounted to very little. A number of stocks held at their previous close. Also, a few divotals failed to trade in the first hour.

New York Central accounted for a good part of the early volume, appearing in large blocks. It opened on 7,000 shares at 24 1/4 and later rose to 24 1/2, up 1/4. Also in the carriers, Atlantic Coast Line was a weak spot on lower earnings. It dipped 1 1/4 points to 103 1/4. Missouri Pacific preferred rose 1 1/2 points to 44 1/4.

In the main industrial group, steel shares did little. Bethlehem Steel was unchanged at 52 3/4. U. S. Steel was down 1/4 to 39 1/4. Chrysler slipped 1/4 to 75 1/4, in a narrow automotive section. General Motors held unchanged at 61 1/4. Seaboard Oil highlighted in its section with a gain of a point to 78 1/4. Standard Oil of New Jersey eased.

Queen Presides At Banquet For Commonwealth

LONDON (UP)—Queen Elizabeth II presides today at a great banquet, sitting at the exact spot where a British king was convicted of high treason 304 years ago and then beheaded.

Survival of the monarchy was exemplified by having the gracious young queen's chair placed at the main table on the same position where King Charles I heard a "high court of justice" doom him.

The lunch of 750 representatives of the commonwealth — premiers and lawmakers — and parliamentary association was the first formal occasion leading to the 26-year old queen's coronation next Tuesday.

At Elizabeth's side today was one of her most ardent admirers, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, along with other commonwealth premiers—Canada's Louis St. Laurent, Australia's Robert G. Menzies, New Zealand's Sidney Holland, Southern Rhodesia's Sir Godfrey Huggins and Mohammed Ali of Pakistan.

The queen was accompanied to Westminster hall by her husband the duke of Edinburgh. The duke, with a busy schedule, used a helicopter again today to fly to and from Buckingham Palace.

The duke's first such flight yesterday delighted Londoners. Pictures and headlines were splashed across all newspapers.

The biggest coronation rehearsal yet—with 700 persons taking part—was held in Westminster Abbey today.

Great military figures and noblemen of the realm carried dummy regalia, including St. Edward's crown, scepter and orb, through the great church.

Their progress was checked by stopwatches.

The coronation choir of 400 men and boys and an orchestra of 60 players attended the rehearsal and 22 trumpeters practiced fanfares while another gigantic crowd massed outside the abbey.

An elegant group of celebrants from coronation balls and night capes over fullskirted gowns and men in evening clothes, mingled last night with informally-dressed tourists and townsmen outside the palace hoping for a glimpse of royalty.

They lingered for several hours and their patience was rewarded when chic Princess Margaret, jeweled and in a long low-cut silken gown, returned to the palace at 2:15 a.m. from a ball.

Another Napkin Sale For Hearing Aid Program

AID FOR HARD OF HEARING:—Members of the Greenville Exchange Club are shown preparing boxes of napkins for sale in their annual program which will benefit the hard of hearing in Pitt County. Last year the proceeds made on the sale went to purchase an audiometer which has been used to test the hearing of hundreds of County school children this year. Members of the local club will make a house-to-house canvass of the city Thursday and Friday night in behalf of the program. Shown working on the project are Jack Wallace, Jimmie Wells, and John Newell. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Pitt County school children retarded in their studies because of poor hearing will be given a helping hand by the Greenville Exchange Club again this year.

Last year the club staged a house-to-house napkin sale from which the proceeds were used to purchase an audiometer for the testing of school children's hearing.

Since its purchase, hundreds of school children have had their hearing checked. In some cases defective hearing has been uncovered and found to be the cause for poor classroom work on the part of some of the children.

This year the Exchange club is again going to sponsor a napkin sale starting on Thursday night. The funds raised this year will be used towards the correcting of the poor hearing cases found among the school population.

Thursday and Friday night members of the Exchange Club will canvass the city in a door-to-door sale.

A spokesman for the club urged local citizens to respond to the drive since it is for the benefit of the Greenville school children as well as school children all over Pitt County, and this drive is a means by which the retarded children may be aided.

Orders were issued today by the Council of State for payment of an extra $2.00 per day to 12 Pasquotank County jurors who spent 75 long days in Pitt County during a trial held eight years ago.

The 1953 legislature passed a bill to pay the 12 jurors who sat on the trial of Dr. Leon Meadows, former East Carolina College president charged with misuse of college funds, the extra jury fee as provided in a measure introduced by Rep. Bascomb Sawyer.

The entire sum amounts to $1,800 but Sam O. Worthington, Pitt legislator, succeeded in having the financial burden of payment shifted from his county to the state of North Carolina. Payment is to be made from the contingency and emergency fund.

The Meadows trial, held in 1945, was the longest criminal trial in the State's judicial history. At the time of the trial Pitt was paying its jurors $3.00 per day, but the daily stipend has since been increased to $5.00.

Windsors Arrive In France Today

LE HAVRE, France (UP)—The duke and duchess of Windsor returned to Europe today, but unlike most visitors these days, they were not going to the coronation of the duke's niece, Queen Elizabeth II.

They arrived here with tourists on the liner United States. Most of the Windsors' fellow passengers were enroute to London for the June 2 ceremonies.

The duke said he would not be in London during the coronation. He says he does not think it fitting for a former British king to attend the ceremonies.

Dionne Quints Are 19 Tomorrow

NORTH BAY, Ont. (UP)—The father of the Dionne quintuplets said today they will observe their 19th birthday tomorrow without one boy friend among them.

Olivia Dionne said the five famous girls had been "much too busy for that sort of thing."

The girls are studying at the Familial Institute at Nicolet, Quebec.

Gen. Collins Has New Appointment

WASHINGTON, (UP)—President Eisenhower today appointed Gen. J. Lawton Collins to represent the Joint Chiefs of Staff on the military committee and the standing group of NATO.

Collins, outgoing Army chief of staff, will replace Gen. Omar N. Bradley who will retire this summer as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Council Of State Paying Pasquotank Jurors Extra For Long Pitt Trial

Valuable Gear Untouched, But Tires Are Taken

BELL ARTHUR—An incident that took place here Monday night leads a casual observer to assume that tires are more in demand by thieves than is valuable irrigation equipment.

Officers of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department reported this morning that robbers stole tires, wheels, hubs, and hubcaps right off a parked trailer which was loaded with irrigation piping.

Deputy Elmer Haddock's investigation report listed the farmer who lost the two tires and wheels as being D. E. House, farmer of Bell Arthur community. The trailer was left sitting with the axle flat on the ground.

The deputy said he found tracks that showed the tires had been rolled down the road, but none of the missing equipment was recovered yesterday. The investigation is being continued.

Colored Civic League To Hold Membership Drive

W. J. Chancy, chairman of the Colored Civic League membership committee, outlined plans for a city-wide membership drive at Tuesday night's meeting. Plans call for dividing the city into zones, and "team captains" will be assigned to each zone. A "kick-off" lemonade party will be held at the Sycamore Hill Baptist Church at which time workers will be assigned to respective duties.

W. P. Norcott, reporting for the Public Welfare and Economic Committee, stated that group had approached Mayor Webber questioning the procedures used in appointing a representative for Negroes to the recreation commission.

Luke Hemby and George Garrett, reporting jointly on Recreation, observed that the playgrounds are "poorly equipped" and help is insufficient. The solution to this problem was believed to lie in more volunteer workers.

C. C. McGlone, reporting for the Maintenance and Repair Committee, stated property on Cotanche and Reade Streets is in need of repairs, noting also that there is a paving and gutter indebtedness of $171.49.

The resignation of Mrs. Penetta Thomas as chairman of the Refreshment Committee was accepted and she was given a standing vote of thanks for her past services.

President D. D. Garrett presided, and urged members to "stick together for the common good."
