

Eisenhower Does Not Share Taft View -- 'Forget' UN

By JOHN L. STEELE United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)— President Eisenhower said flatly today that he does not share the view of Sen. Robert A. Taft that the United States should forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned.

1. He said the Big Three meeting in Bermuda—tentatively set for mid-June—might be delayed by the failure to form a new French government.

2. He does not necessarily believe the Bermuda conference will lead to a later meeting with Russia, despite British and French hopes that it will.

3. He opposes admission of Red China to the United Nations under present circumstances wherein the Chinese government supposedly is subservient to Moscow.

4. He sees no evidence of a rising tide of isolationism in this country. He said the bulk of the American people feel there is no safety for a free country standing alone.

5. He said no solution of the Korean war should be adopted which, according to our consciences, is basically unfair to South Korea. In connection with the truce talks, President restated his unchangeable position that there be no forced repatriation of prisoners. He said the Allies stand together on this principle.

6. He said the President's discussion of Taft's speech this week—in which the senator advocated independent action by the United States if the Korean truce negotiations fail—was touched off by the opening question of the news conference.

7. He said that if a nation wants to go it alone in one place, it has to go it alone everywhere, and that in any long term partnership, the partners have to share the ups and downs.

8. He said he has had years of experience in dealing with coalitions and realizes there are certain occasions where action by one nation or one authority might be better.

Heaviest Korea Fighting In Months Is In Progress Chinese Assault Outposts

SEOUL, Korea, (UP)— The heaviest fighting in six months raged on the Korean battlefield tonight as waves of Communists attacked United Nations forces guarding the western and east-central fronts.

A regiment of Chinese—possibly 3,000 men—struck western front outposts west of Korangpo at 8 p. m., while earlier reports said a battalion attacked outposts Carson and Vegas, and another battalion struck Outpost Berlin.

Intense Communist artillery and mortar fire accompanied the attacks. Farther to the northeast, a position known as The Hook also was reported receiving heavy shelling, usually the prelude to an attack.

At 8:30 p. m., the Chinese were reported to be "on the move" on Vegas, a bloody outpost position where U. S. Marines were hit several months ago. It is now manned by foreign U. N. troops.

Meanwhile South Korean troops were locked in a 20-month-old battle with part of a 6,500-man Chinese force that hit 14 outposts along the central front last night.

An 8th Army spokesman said the attacking force was estimated at "elements from three different regiments." Earlier reports had indicated only 3,000 Reds involved.

Intense mortar and artillery fire blazed along the front in support of the Red attacks. Late reports said the Reds attacked 14 outposts and captured five. Both sides were still battling for possession of four others and the South Koreans held firmly to give.

Finger Ridge, on the central front, took the brunt of the assault. Soldiers of the 8th ROK Division were shoved from four of the five outposts attacked there.

One of the outposts captured by the Reds was situated to the west of Finger Ridge. The other was located east of the ridge. Hand-to-hand fighting took place at both outposts.

Former Critic Favors Powerful Strategic Force Admiral Backs Big Air Arm

WASHINGTON (UP)— Adm. Arthur W. Radford once a critic of the Air Force, said today that as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff he will favor "a very efficient and powerful" long-range strategic air force.

Radford, former Pacific commander nominated by President Eisenhower to the nation's top military post, told the Senate Armed Services Committee that time and military developments have changed some of his views.

This referred to his stormy role in the 1949 "admirals' revolt" against the Air Force B-36 bomber program and his views in 1947 on armed services unification.

As Radford testified, slowly and carefully, his future Joint Chiefs colleagues sat by awaiting their turn. They are Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, the President's choice for Army chief of staff; Adm. Robert B. Carney, prospective chief of naval operations; and Gen. Nathan Twining, nominee for Air Force chief of staff.

Radford, attired in sharply pressed sea-going khaki and with four rows of ribbons on his chest, told the legislators that as chairman of the Joint Chiefs he would work as boss of a "defense team" dedicated solely to the nation's security.

"The appointment came to me as a surprise," he said. "I did not seek this office nor did I permit anyone to seek it for me. I will endeavor to work solely for what I consider to be the best interests of the United States."

Four years ago Radford said the B-36 program offered no guarantee against an attack on the United States. He said then that "the threat of atomic retaliation will not prevent it, and may even invite it."

Testifying today, he said that "in general" he believed that he said nothing in that dispute that he did not then "honestly believe." But, he added, in the four ensuing years "there have been developments—improvements in material" and various other changes that "caused me to modify my position."

As for the unification fight, he said he thought better alternatives than the unification bill finally approved were available. But once the bill was put into law, he said, "I've tried to make it work."

Bishop Rebukes Group Objecting To Merger

NEWTON GROVE, N. C. (UP)— The bishop of the Raleigh Catholic diocese refused to interview parishioners of the Holy Redeemer Catholic Church here until after merger with a nearby Negro Catholic church, a letter to parishioners revealed today.

He cited the isolated situation of the churches in the diocese as causing him to order the merger, and said if the situation existed elsewhere he would do what I am doing now in these places.

"I am correcting an abuse which should not have endured this long," he said. Holy Redeemer has a congregation of nearly 300 and the St. Benedict's membership is approximately 80.

Atomic Artillery Shells Said Set For Production WASHINGTON (UP)— Rep. John Jarman (D-Okla.) said today congressmen attending the atomic cannon test in Nevada Monday were told the United States "is now in a position to mass-produce atomic artillery shells."

Jarman was one of more than 100 House and Senate members who witnessed the first atomic firing of the 280-MM cannon. He said the new weapon gives the army "unlimited fire power."

"Of course, all the missiles used to date in the various experiments have been built by hand," Jarman said, "but information was disclosed to us that the United States is now in a position to mass-produce the shells on our assembly lines."

A "Frameup" WASHINGTON (UP)— Romanian diplomat Christache Zambei asserted today that his expulsion from the United States on spy plot charges "is only a frame-up."

Zambei, first secretary of the Roman legation here, said he plans to leave New York for Europe tomorrow by plane. The State Department expelled Zambei on charges that he tried to blackmail a U. S. citizen, V. C. Georgescu of New York, into spying for the Reds.

Reached by telephone for the first time since he was ordered out of the country, Zambei said he had been framed. "This is only a frameup," he said, adding: "That's the only statement."

Veteran Chosen 'Father Of Year'

NEW YORK (UP)— A 33-year-old World War II veteran from Newark, N. J., was chosen "Worker Father of the Year" today by the National Father's Day committee.

Frank Fischetta, an employe of the Ronson Art Metal Works, Inc., and a member of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), was named to represent the country's 80,000,000 workers on Father's Day, June 21.

Fischetta was married in 1939 and is the father of two daughters and a son. He received the award for his work with neighborhood boys' clubs.

The disclosure irked some high Air Force officials who thought it silly and imprudent for a lieutenant general to be out flying a jet fighter over the enemy and risking his life.

CAIRO (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson arrived here early today by air from Saudi Arabia on a five-day visit to Egypt.

Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi was waiting at the moon-flooded airport to greet the Democratic leader when the Dutch airliner bringing him from Dhahran touched down shortly after midnight.

"I am happy to be in Egypt," Stevenson said in response to a greeting from Fawzi. "It took me over 50 years to get here."

2 Daniels Cousins Reprived Chief Justice Vinson Grants Stay Of Execution For Pitt Slay-ers

RALEIGH (UP)— Two Negroes on death row in Central prison here will go to the gas chamber tomorrow, but two others have won a last-minute reprieve for a third appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson granted a stay of execution yesterday to Bennie and Lloyd Ray Daniels. The cousins were convicted of the 1949 robbery-slaying of William B. O'Neal, Greenville, N. C., taxi driver.

However, time and legal remedies seem to have run out for Raleigh Speller, convicted of raping a white woman at Windsor in 1947, and Clyde Brown, convicted of zapping a teen-aged white girl at Winston-Salem in 1950.

Gov. William B. Umstead has refused to set aside the death sentences for Speller and Brown which are scheduled to be carried out tomorrow.

Attorney Herman Taylor said that he expects to have the papers ready "about the middle of June" in his third appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court for the Daniels cousins.

The high court will recess June 15, however, and Taylor said the case "probably won't come up before next fall."

Justice Vinson did not hold a hearing on the stay application. He acted on the basis of papers submitted by O. John Rogge, New York attorney representing the cousins.

The basis of the new appeal is the same for Speller and Brown as for the Daniels. It is racial discrimination on the jury.

ROK Armistice Delegate Asks Report Be Forwarded To Eisenhower South Korea Lists Truce Objections

By LEROY HANSEN United Press Staff Correspondent SEOUL, Korea (UP)—South Korea's armistice delegate officially announced his nation's attitude toward the new United Nations truce proposal today and asked that it be sent to President Eisenhower and U. N. Commander Gen. Mark Clark.

Gen. Choi Duk Son, the ROK delegate who boycotted Monday's truce session, handed Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief U. N. armistice delegate, a letter "more than five pages long."

He asked Harrison to pass the letter on "in the proper channels at the proper time." He indicated he meant it was to be relayed to Mr. Eisenhower and Clark.

"I presented to Gen. Harrison the letter explaining our point of interest in the troubled peace talks," he said. "I regret I cannot reveal what was said. The reason is well known to you. I deeply regret I am not free to talk about certain matters which are classified and put in secrecy by the U. N. Command."

Choi gave no indication that his letter included any counter-proposals or separate truce plan, including points which South Korea feels are necessary for an armistice.

Nine South Korean assemblymen also conferred with Harrison to present a similar protest of the Allied truce plan.

Their visit occurred amid unconfirmed reports that President Eisenhower would appeal directly to South Korean President Syngman Rhee as a last resort to prevent South Korea from withdrawing from the truce talks scheduled to be resumed at Panmunjom next Monday.

The assemblymen told Harrison at an hour-long meeting that the United Nations was "surrendering" to the enemy in its new proposal by permitting Communist troops of Poland and Czechoslovakia to enter South Korea as guards of anti-Red Chinese and North Koreans.

Informed sources in Washington said however, that the new plan would permit only India to send troops to Korea.

Editor Says West Would Lose All Support In Orient Opposes Yielding On Issue

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—If the United Nations yields to the Communists on the prisoner repatriation issue, there will be no sympathy for democratic nations anywhere in the Orient, Roy W. Howard, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, said here.

"If we turn back one North Korean prisoner who does not wish to be turned back, never again can we expect an enemy soldier to desert to the United States in any future and perhaps greater crisis," Howard said.

Howard, who is president and editor of the New York World-Telegram and Sun, spoke to approximately 300 members of the San Francisco Advertising Club which met Wednesday to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the San Francisco News, founded in 1903 with a circulation of 150,000 copies.

Howard called on the American press to watch with care and to "raise hell" with any attempt at appeasement in the Korean negotiations. He alerted the press to beware of "any pressure of British brain washing on our people in Washington."

He said a truce agreement calling for a return of North Korean or Red Chinese prisoners who do not wish repatriation would indicate the fate of future Communists who might wish to desert to the free world.

Howard keyed his brief off the cuff speech with the question: "What is behind the truce situation?"

Saying the answer was "relatively simple," Howard explained the Communist world is working "on a Russian executive mandate aimed at splitting the democratic nations." "Anyone who does not think that the Russians want a global collision between the Communist world and the free world, is living in a fool's paradise," he warned.

"If there is a United Nations then, or if there are democratic nations then—and there will be democratic nations—Russia knows that there will be a harking back to what happened in the relatively small test tube that is Korea."

Howard said that in his opinion, there would be "no spontaneous eruption against Communism within Russia." But, he added, that in the Iron Curtain countries there was "some resentment" against Russia and Communist practices.

Thousands Of Honor Guests And Sightseers Attend Pre - Coronation Gathering

By JACK V. FOX. United Press Staff Correspondent LONDON (UP)— Queen Elizabeth II presided today at the first gala garden party of the coronation year at Buckingham Palace.

Seven thousand guests from the United States, the commonwealth and much of the rest of the world, filled the vast palace lawns, under brilliant spring sunshine.

A great crowd gathered outside the palace to see the distinguished guests arrive while behind the spike-topped walls the queen moved gracefully among the throng, nodding and smiling to the visitors.

Long striped awnings covered tables where guests took tea and cakes, iced coffee and lemonade. Military bands played throughout the two-hour party.

Meanwhile another large crowd, so large that police reinforcements were called to break it up, gathered at the entrance to Westminster Abbey, where Queen Mother Elizabeth, Princess Margaret and other members of the royal family were rehearsing their own procession.

Police had to clear a path through dignitaries, but before they could do so the Earl and Countess of Harwood were engulfed by good-natured sight-seers and had to struggle through to the entrance.

Police warned householders to make sure windows and doors were locked if they were going to watch the coronation rehearsal procession. Crowds jamming London were continuing to swell today as airliners from the United States circled London's two airports for as much as an hour awaiting their turn to land. Throngs packing streets almost paralyzed traffic.

London and Northolt airports were scenes of confusion. Hundreds of visitors lined up for customs and immigration clearance as planes bearing more visitors dropped overhead.

Tourists were started when 24 Negroes at London airport suddenly prostrated themselves in homage to their arriving chieftain, Ademiri Oni of Ile, Nigeria. He wore a magnificent golden robe.

Police expressed growing concern over the milling of tourists and townsmen in the streets.

The rush-hour traffic jam was so heavy last night that buses stood still for 15 minutes and thousands of weary, unhappy workers got out and walked home.

Main event today was Queen Elizabeth II's garden party on the grounds of Buckingham Palace.

Bright morning sunshine promise to make the party a gala affair, and admission was sought so eagerly that the American embassy in London allotted only 15 invitations, diplomatically withholding identities of the recipients lest others be jealous.

Mrs. Perle Mesta, until recently minister to Luxembourg, said she was going and confided she hoped to meet the queen, who will receive curtsies and bows of thousands.

Elizabeth rested this morning after a busy Wednesday during which she tried on the five-pound St. Edward's Crown which had been reduced in size to fit her head.

Six Scotland Yard men brought the great crown—a circlet of gold studded with diamonds, rubies, emeralds, sapphires and pearls—to Westminster Abbey and then whisked it off to a vault where the crown jewels are kept.

Royalty and celebrities mingled until the early morning hours at a coronation ball at Albert Hall.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill appeared at midnight with Mrs. Churchill. The Duke of Norfolk, who as earl marshal is in charge of the coronation, brought a party that included the Duchess of Kent.

Distinguished visitors arriving today included Mrs. Fleur Cowles, wife of the well-known newspaper and magazine publisher, and California Gov. Earl Warren, his wife and their three pretty daughters.

Gen. George C. Marshall, president Eisenhower's chief delegate, and Gen. Omar Bradley will meet Gen. Matthew Ridgway when he arrives from Paris Saturday.

British newspapers, which devoted almost all of their news to the coronation, expressed horror last night at a dinner dance given at Scarborough for Amalgamated Union foundry workers.

Just as the orchestra was beginning to play "God Save the Queen," the guests stopped the music and sang "The International," the Communist anthem.

and Gen. Omar Bradley will meet Gen. Matthew Ridgway when he arrives from Paris Saturday.

Pirates Club Is Building Up New Chapters In Area

Two more individual units are being added to the East Carolina College Pirates Club. A Pirates Club chapter was formed in Washington Tuesday under the sponsorship of the Washington Kiwanis club, and a unit is slated to be organized in Bethel next week.

These Pirates Club units will be in addition to the organizations in Greenville and Farmville.

On Tuesday in Washington a group of businessmen met with Pirates Club President E. E. Rawl Sr. of Greenville and after hearing the purpose of the club explained in detail decided to undertake its organization.

Milo Gibbs of the Bank of Washington was elected chairman of the unit and Clarence Rawls was elected co-chairman. The first two Pirates Club memberships in Washington were purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Cherry, parents of Dick Cherry, star quarterback of the East Carolina football team. Although no definite goal for memberships was set by the Washington unit, Rawl said it was agreed that well over 100 memberships in the club could be obtained in the city.

Washington will have at least three members on the Pirates football squad this fall, and Beaufort County has an even 100 students at the college. "I have never had such a warm reception and seen such enthusiasm as was manifested at this meeting," Rawl said. "They seem as sincerely proud and interested in East Carolina College as does Greenville."

Revised Bible Sales Top Spillane's Rugged Tales

CHICAGO (UP) — The revised standard version of the Holy Bible and mystery writer Mickey Spillane's hard-hearted hero Mike Hammer are the literary sensations of the day—in that order.

Delegates at the convention of the American Booksellers Association here said the booming sales of the new translation of the Bible were a testimony to American interest in religion.

A representative of a pocket book firm that competes with Spillane's publisher was a little less definite about the New Yorker's success.

"Spillane's phenomenal, but don't ask me why," he said.

A spokesman for the New American Library, which publishes Spillane's stories about Hammer, a tough private detective, said "nothing quite like it has happened in the history of mysteries."

William J. Walton of Thomas Nelson & Sons said the new edition of the Bible published last September had sold an estimated 2,300,000 copies, at $6 to $10 a copy.

The New American Library spokesman said Spillane's seven published books have sold between 16 and 17 million copies, at 25 cents each.

Walton told of an accident his firm suffered in publishing the new version of the Bible, and predicted it would be a headache for years to come.

He said a printer got some plates reversed and about 1,000 faulty copies got into the hands of customers.

"You'd be reading along in Genesis and suddenly find yourself in the middle of Luke," he said. "It may be years before we hear from some of them, though. You never know when they'll get around to reading those particular passages."

Greenville Not Alone In Backing ECC

Efforts for the betterment of East Carolina College are becoming more and more prevalent in Eastern North Carolina as time passes.

Last week The Reflector pointed to an editorial from another newspaper of the section urging sectional support for the college located in Pitt County. But the story of support for the college is not one to be told in a few words, or in a few days or months.

It is a continuous story to which new paragraphs are to be added almost daily.

The Pirates Club is an organization which was organized by a group of Greenville businessmen in February for the support of the athletic program at the college. One of its first goals was to obtain 1,000 charter memberships and with a portion of the money therefrom to purchase 1,200 new seats for the college stadium.

The burden of supplying those 1,000 charter memberships has not been left entirely to Greenville. From all sections of Pitt County individuals have lent their support to the college through the purchase of a membership in the Pirates Club. And it goes even beyond Pitt County to other communities in Eastern North Carolina.

Particularly in Farmville have local citizens rallied behind the Pirates Club and the support of East Carolina College as they do whenever their help can be used. An individual chapter of the Pirates Club has been formed by Farmville citizens and its athletic program.

In Washington steps are underway for the formation of a Pirates Club chapter in that town for the support of East Carolina College, and so it goes all over this region.

The $100,000 Pitt County Memorial Scholarship fund for ECC which is gradually inching toward its goal has been supported by people not just in Greenville, but throughout every section of Pitt County.

Such unified cooperation and unified support from every quarter of Pitt County and Eastern Carolina is giving the college a tremendous boost which it has never had before. It is bringing home to individuals in every section that East Carolina College does not belong to any one community or any one handful of people. It belongs to all the people of this area, and through the support of all of the people it will continue to prosper.

Not Even Wilson Can Satisfy Everybody

Secretaries of Defense, and we've had several since the office was instituted, are inevitably victims of dilemma posed by ever-conflicting demands.

There is pressure from military experts, authorities on armament, and policy-makers who fear ultimate results of allowing the nation's military potential to slip so far that safeguarding democratic peoples' freedom is all but impossible.

On the other side are demands for less spending (and hence, less taxation), real concern for the government's ability to maintain indefinitely an over-sized military establishment, and always there are some wishful thinkers who hope that by breaking off the armaments race the rest of the world would follow suit.

Defense Secretary Charles Wilson is just as enmeshed in the conflict as was Louis Johnson, who fell victim to happenings over which he had no control. Both Johnson and Wilson "got orders" to cut expenses; Johnson followed orders and was caught with his defenses down. Wilson, attempting to do the same on a smaller scale, faces memories of the earlier fiasco linked to arguments against the step.

Adding an odd twist to an already confused picture, Charles Wilson was selected for the cabinet post largely on the basis of his productive genius. At the time, war production was snarled and a streamlining of the process was urgently needed to fill the heavy requirements. Now, confronted by demands for economy, the Wilson know-how is partially eclipsed by the recommended reduction of appropriations.

To us, it does not appear particularly economical nor wise to direct a flat slash in budgeted defense spending. The element of waste and needless luxuries seem almost always to remain while outlays for actual armaments suffer the full burden of false economizing.

There must be planning for the "long haul." It has been attempted, but immediate needs, policy revisions and perhaps even political expediency have brought about frequent changes in defense planning.

Full war production is out of the question, and someone must decide what will be the happy medium offering the most defense for the least money. Wilson, the man who nominally bears that responsibility, does not have the last word on that question.

As a result, no one is happy with the "happy medium."

Somebody Told Me . . .

Interesting 'Lunch' In Farmville

Every time I'm in Farmville around lunch time I always stop by Bonnie's Cafe for dinner. You couldn't call it lunch because he feeds you too much.

Bonnie Allen believes in a casual, informal operation. The first time I ate with him I walked in and asked for a menu, simply because I didn't know any better. Bonnie doesn't have menus.

Then I asked him if the hamburger steak was good. "If it isn't good," he said, "you don't have to pay for it." When Bonnie is in a more jovial mood he says, "If it isn't good I'll pay you double time for the time you spend eating it."

Bonnie's operation is entirely a family affair except for one waitress and three helpers in the kitchen. Until he enlisted in the Navy, Randolph Allen, 19, helped in the Cafe. Now Mrs. Allen; Carroll, 16; and the Allen twins, Kaye and Faye, 10; all don aprons and pitch in.

To watch the Allen children operate is a real show. Carroll, nicknamed "Hump" as a baby because he was bow-legged, is the smooth type. Nothing seems to upset his routine. The twins, Kaye and Faye, are real businesslike even at the age of ten. Bonnie says he doesn't have any trouble keeping his family working, while they are on duty, but he admits that they frequently ask for time off.

In Farmville Bonnie has such a following that he can close up his entire operation in the summer, reopen in a week or so and find his customers anxiously awaiting his return from vacation.

It seems that I never get a check in Bonnie's, so I asked him what his policy is on giving them. "Everybody is supposed to get them," he said, "but if they don't it's OK. All you have to do is tell us what you had and we'll be satisfied. We trust people."

Bonnie contributes his success to having only a few dishes to offer, thereby keeping waste and overhead down. In addition to breakfast, he serves only fried steaks, barbecue, stew beef, and backbone stew. Frankly, I've never tried that backbone stew, but they say it's terrific, no matter how unappetizing it sounds.

In these days of a hustle-bustle it's a relief to see a casual operation, and that's the only way to describe Bonnie's. And I thank you.

APPLAUSE FOR NEA'S SOUND POSITION

The National Education Association is to be congratulated on its refusal to be drawn into a "world conference of teachers" promoted by the International Syndical Federation of Education and for its clear statement that any communist taint of teachers is inimical to the American system of free education.

"Members of the Communist Party," said the NEA, "should not be permitted to teach in our schools. We do not admit such persons to membership in our organization. In our view, teaching in our schools and colleges.

Anyone who submits to the communist discipline has, as NEA said, already lost his intellectual freedom. A sympathizer with communist aims has, in a measure, also given up his independence of thought, because the communist dogma admits of no deviation. Without intellectual freedom, there can be no academic freedom.

The NEA, therefore, has taken a sound position when it refuses to enter a conference in which, it is convinced, educational problems will not be approached with an open mind.

Going On That Annual Tour Of Blue Ridge Parkway

By LYNN NISBET

TOURING — For the next two or three days your reporter will be with a party of travel writers and promoters for the final portion of a week's tour of the Blue Ridge Parkway. The tour, which is becoming an annual event, is sponsored by the Carolina Motor Club and the Blue Ridge Parkway Association. The latter group is made up of chambers of commerce and civic clubs in communities adjacent to the Parkway between Roanoke and Waynesville. More than 40 travel promoters, writers and photographers from at least a dozen states assembled at Roanoke Sunday night and began the trip early Monday. First night stopover was at Natural Bridge, second at Doughton Park, third at Linville and two at Asheville.

COVE "GE" — Repress — ves were from motor clubs, newspapers and magazines, including those of worldwide circulation, located in the states of New York, Delaware, Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Florida, Michigan, North Carolina, South Carolina, and the District of Columbia. The tour is arranged for leisurely travel, with frequent stops for enjoying the scenery and two or three side trips—such as to Charlottesville and Natural Bridge in Virginia; Mount Mitchell, Biltmore House and Cherokee Indian Reservation in North Carolina. The visitors will find plenty to write about, chief item of interest being the Parkway itself.

UNIQUE — Nowhere in the world is there a park like the Blue Ridge Parkway, for it is in fact a park. It is a new concept in public recreational development. It is a park built in a dream highway that is 470 miles when completed connecting Shenandoah National Park in Virginia with Great Smoky Mountains National Park in North Carolina. "ready 218 miles of it is paved, and the motorist can drive from the Shenandoah Park at Asheville by using four short Federal highway by-passes.

STATISTICS — It is impossible to convey by words and figures an adequate idea of the marvelous scenic route, but the figures are impressive. Construction was started in 1935, soon after the Great Smoky Mountains National Park was opened, and following a running congressional battle with Tennessee over location of the proposed route. Total cost of the project has been estimated at $80 million, about half that amount having been spent so far. In addition to Federal funds the State of North Carolina has contributed about $2 million worth of rights of way. The road was constructed and is maintained by the National Park Service.

ENGINEERING — The pavement is 36 feet wide, but the right of way averages 425 feet each side of the center line and requires about 125 acres per mile of road. Maximum grades are 8 per cent, and these for only very short distance. Maximum elevation is 5,676 near Mount Mitchell. The lowest point in North Carolina is 2,000 feet at French Broad River near Asheville, but the lowest on the entire route is 50 feet at the James River in Virginia. There are eight tunnels on the completed portions all in North Carolina, the longest being 746 feet near Asheville. When completed the Parkway will have 27 tunnels, all but one in this state. There are 50 parking overlooks along the North Carolina portion of the route, several with picnic facilities.

INCOMPLETE — The first section west of Asheville to be paved is the five mile spur from US-19 at Soco Gap to the park entrance at Helictoga. There are three had been opened for limited travel on unpaved but graded roadbed for the fall color season only, a short spur off US-276 at Wagon Road Gap, between Waynesville and Brevard. From the Virginia line at Cumberland Knob to the intersection of US-70 at Green five miles east of Asheville, the only unfinished links are about five miles between Deep Gap and Grandview, where travel is over US-421, and about 15 miles between Blowing Rock and Linville, where US-221 serves as an equidistance and direct auxiliary route. From Asheville to Cherokee and the park entrance the route is over US-19. These roads have steeper grades and sharper curves, but the roadbed is just as good and the scenery as fine.

OUR OWN — The Great Smoky Mountain Park lies about half in North Carolina and half in Tennessee. Because headquarters offices are at Gatlinburg, and large part of the visitors come from the west, there have been complaints that Tennessee has "stolen" the park from us. That accusation is unfair, but even if admitted in evidence it is offset by the fact that the Blue Ridge Parkway is essentially a North Carolina asset, although nearly half its lineal mileage is in Virginia—the mileage being approximately 220 in Virginia, 250 in North Carolina. The lowest point in this state is three times as high above sea level as the lowest in Virginia. The highest point in Virginia, at Apple Orchard Mountain is just a little less than three quarters of a mile, not much above the average elevation for North Carolina's part of the route where travelers do not feel they are on a hill until they get more than a mile above the level of the Atlantic ocean.

BLUE RIDGE — At that, Virginia can claim more of the parkway on the Blue Ridge Mountains than we can. That's because Virginia has no mountains except the Blue Ridge, whereas the parkway leaves the Blue Ridge in this state near Buck

Business Today Farm Ramifications

By ELMER ROESSNER
One of the most perplexing and fast-growing problems confronting the Administration is the agricultural situation. Both the Presidential golf scores and the sales of aspirins to his top advisors are likely to go up, up, up.

Plantings this year have been vast. With the exception of cotton, large if not bumper crops are expected in all major farm commodities. Only a rare series of tornados, dry spells, wet spells and infestations between now and harvest time can prevent another big year.

On top of this, there is a huge hold-over of farm produce, both in government and private hands. The Government holds about $1.5 billion worth of the major 1952 crops—cotton, wheat, corn—and there are warehouses full of butter and other commodities.

These huge stores tend to depress prices. Since early last year many commodities have sold below government support prices. The Government's index of prices received by farmers has dropped from 290 in April, 1952, to 259 in April, 1953. Prices farmers would have declined slightly, but there are indications that they may rise. Farm wages have been rising and farmers face loss of more labor to industry.

As long as there is danger of war, it is imperative to keep farms prosperous and close to maximum productivity with big crops and high prices the farmer must pay, this will cost billions—and at a time when the Administration is trying to reduce government expenses.

Robert A. Taft, Senate majority leader, has called for a complete revision of the farm program. This, he said, might result in some "politically unpalatable" decisions. Ending the Government support program would be disastrous, he said, but continuing support at 90 per cent of parity would force drastic controls on plantings.

Cutting price supports would be painful to an Administration pledged to assist the farmer; imposing limitations would be equally painful in view of pledges to reduce Federal controls.

However, the farm policy will, in the end, be determined in Congress rather than in the White House. And all senators and most representatives have important blocs of farm voters in

Pub-Crawling Costs And Costs

By HAL BOYLE
LONDON (AP)—The museums and art galleries here all close by dusk. This leaves only one place for culture-hungry American visitors to go after dark—a night club.

It is a poor place, however, to study the English in their native haunts. Most night clubs during this coronation prelude are inhabited solely by American tourists, except for an occasional lost and wandering Australian. Only a wealthy Englishman can afford to go and laugh at the Americans at play.

Night clubs are pretty much the same the world around, and those are noted for their strict adherence to a mellow old British tradition of long standing—that is, the house never buys a drink.

It is hard, indeed, even for a customer to buy what passes for an ordinary drink in America. The bartender doesn't use a jigger. He uses a thimble, and the thimble would be tight on the finger of a lady midget.

After he pours a drink, the waiter then tries desperately to rush it to the table before it evaporates.

Most Americans order "a double Scotch," and in most night clubs this one will get most of the bottom of the glass. If a customer wants a drink that will begin to melt the ice, he calls for "a double double."

A wise tourist leaves his wallet behind when he goes to a night club. Instead he carries along a medium-sized briefcase stuffed with one pound notes. If you pay the check at one night club and decide to go on to another, you first stop by at your hotel and fill up the briefcase again.

The fatal mistake of the average night club tourist is to think of pound notes as dollar bills, because they go so fast. By the time he realizes a pound is worth $2.80 he usually has to tab his dear old aunt back home for money to bail him out.

After the regular night clubs close at 2 a.m., any tourist still solvent but yearning for bankruptcy can get his wish by going to one of the "modernized" drinking of Britain's wartime, "bottles clubs."

These are so exclusive your pound makes you a member. Another pound gets you in. And it is then that your pocketbook begins to take a real "pounding."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

Every once in a while we read that science has discovered a drug which, injected into the veins, makes it imperative for a person to tell the truth. We all ardently hope that if such a serum has not been discovered, it will be some day. We could nominate quite a few people who could benefit by an injection or two.

Truthfulness and lying are both mirrors of a man's character. When a person tells a lie, it is not just his words which are false; the whole man is lying through his misstatements or his broken pledges. Likewise when a man speaks the truth, something more happens than the mere utterance of his words. His character expresses itself. The liar not only tells lies—he is a lie. The truthful man is that enviable type of person whose simple words reveal an uncomplicated and sincere spirit.

There are a thousand different ways of telling lies and living them. Some people are under constant fear lest the falseness of their lives will be exposed. Nothing else gives such a sense of inner peace as to know that one is honest not only in his speech but in his impulses and desires.

Nothing else confers more quiet happiness upon the heart than the realization that one carries about with him at all times a clean and quiet conscience.

'Time For A Change' -- But When?

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—"When is Eisenhower going to become President?"

Although Ike is still personally popular and on political probation, the numerous partisan and non-partisan elements which voted for him almost eight months ago can no longer conceal their disappointment. In his lack of leadership and accomplishments, ranking a close second to the critical question already quoted is the ironic query:

"When are we going to get that 'change' I voted for because I agreed with the Republicans that it WAS 'Time for a change'?"

Although regret rather than bitterness underlies most of these accusations of do-nothingism, they reflect a disillusionment so sudden that it alarms party leaders on and off Capitol Hill.

It is also the more disturbing because it is expressed by so many different groups in the electorate—Taft conservatives, normally Republican but hard-headed farmers, labor spokesmen, sympathetic liberals and nonpolitical voters.

The only answer which Eisenhower admires can give to this indictment is understandable, but not satisfactory to the complainants. It is:

"If you turn away from Ike, where will you turn? Do you want to go back to Truman?"

THOSE NARROW MARGINS—President Eisenhower's difficulty stems from the fact that he was not elected as a Republican. The GOP's narrow margins in House and Senate testify to that conclusion. He could have been elected as a Democratic nominee.

A confused and bewildered people voted for him because they thought that he would provide firm and sound leadership. In that respect he has failed, according to recent private and public tests of sentiment.

of today, he has made good only on the last count. His failure on the other issues accounts for another frequently heard comment on his White House record, to wit:

"If we are going to have a New Dealer in the White House, let's have an out-and-out Democratic New Dealer! We can fight him!"

DISSATISFIED VOTERS—Hardened Republicans concede that they would lose control of House and Senate, if an election were held today. They base their belief on continuing canvasses of the groups which rallied behind Eisenhower, not behind the Grand Old Party, last November. Here is the latest analysis of the attitude of these voters:

TAFT CONSERVATIVES: Sore over admitted inability to balance the budget in 1954, and possibly not in 1955 fiscal year. Upset over small reduction in Administration request of funds for foreign aid. Cannot understand Ike's failure to demand Taft-Hartley revision placing more responsibility on unions. Probably would not bother to vote, if election imminent.

FARMERS: Angry because they think that they alone have suffered from deflationary tendencies. While their income has dropped from fall in prices, labor has taken no cut in wages. On the contrary, workers are receiving pay boosts in industries dominated by Eisenhower friends. Pro-Ike bankers are getting higher interest. Suspicious of Benson's demand for "more flexible" price supports.

WHAT ABOUT LABOR LAW CHANGES?—Labor: Although their unions backed Stevenson, millions of individual members plumped for Ike. Expected him to be fair. Now disappointed at his failure to insist on Taft-Hartley changes, which he promised in campaign. Does not like the general behavior of his "millionaires' Cabinet," especially that of Wilson and Humphrey.

RACIAL MINORITIES: Ike got large vote here because of good reaction to his pledge to substitute a "liberation" policy for the Truman-Acheson-Kennan program of "containment." Now, the "liberation" idea has been abandoned because of diplomatic difficulties. It angered London and Paris, which think it "impractical."

In view of these reactions, and in view of the GOP's scant margins in House and Senate, it is extremely doubtful that a pro-Eisenhower Congress could be elected today.

Worth Noting

Farm output has risen 40 per cent in the last two decades despite a sharp decline in farm population, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States reports. At the time of World War I, the farm population in the United States was around 32 million. By 1952 it had declined to less than 23 million, a drop of nearly 30 per cent. Use of new machines and methods in farming account for the increase in output.

New Words Are Coined In Analysis Of Traffic

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—If you're an automobile driver, watch out for tenique and velocitation this summer.

That's the warning of L. S. Harris, who has taken a few liberties in the way of word coinage to come up with these two items.

Harris, nationally known traffic expert and executive director of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Tenique is a word he created from a combination of tension and fatigue.

Tension results from the frustrations and hurry-up of modern traffic. Fatigue, he says, figures in about one-third of all accidents and comes from overlong spells at the wheel without rest.

"Tension warps driving judgment and fatigue slows down reflexes," Harris explained. "Thus when the tenique driver must make a quick traffic decision he is likely to make the wrong one because of the tension and he is certain to act too slowly because fatigue has put brakes on his reflexes."

Harris added that, in his opinion, the best antidote for tenique is rest and refreshment. He suggested a halt of at least 10 minutes every two hours, a cup of coffee for new alertness, and a little walking around to ease tensions and to loosen taut muscles.

Unconscious Speed
Velocitation, he continued, is his word for an avocational ailment that many motorists contract on superhighways and thruways.

"Fifty or sixty miles an hour seems pretty exciting at the outset of a run along a superhighway," he said. "But as the miles slip by the monotony and the effortless and decisionless motoring conditions begin to work on the driver. Unconsciously he treads a little harder on the accelerator and the speed mounts to dangerous rates without his being aware of it—unless he glances at the speedometer.

"Traveling too fast for sure handling of the car, the velocitation sufferer is wide open for trouble in any traffic emergency. When the symptoms are detected the smart driver will make a rest stop, proceeding only after speed perspective become normal again."

The traffic authority also had some advice about driver physical fitness.

"We are all aware of the need for the peak mechanical condition of our cars for safety's sake," he said, "but we pay too little attention to our own fitness. The mechanical perfection of a car is nullified when a driver who is fatigued or sleepy is at the wheel. The driver automatically turns into a service station now and then on long trips to have tires and water checked and to refuel. He should take stock for himself on long trips and when the need for rest is evident, stop and rest. His system needs refueling also."

Black Market Is Still Flourishing

VIENNA (AP)—Headache powders and razor blades can be obtained almost only on the black market in Communist Poland.

Readers of Warsaw newspapers recently complained about a shortage of both state-produced items. Shortly after, police announced the arrest and imprisonment of three black marketeers peddling these items on the streets.

Flag Is Presented Sea Scout Ship

Monkeys Detest Flying Machines

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—The 300 or so howler monkeys on Barro Colorado Island in the Canal Zone are extremely skeptical of mechanical progress and especially of the airplane.

Whenever one of man's "super-hawks" swoops low over the island, the monkeys voice their objection to this unwarranted encroachment of their domain with a harsh chorus of blood-curdling yells.

This monkey domain is a six-square mile wildlife area in Gatun Lake of the Canal Zone administered by the Smithsonian Institution.

The monkeys who inhabit the island are big, black-bearded, and extremely ugly animals who are distributed over the area in six clans, in confined territory.

Weird Howl
Ordinarily there is no communication or warfare among the clans, but when a common danger threatens—or when an airplane flies too low—all clans raise a concerted chorus.

The weird howl, which can best be described as a cross between a dog's bark and a mule's bray magnified many times, is made possible by the peculiar throat structure of the beasts.

Besides using the howl as a weapon of defense the monkeys also bray in concert to the rising sun or full moon.

The monkeys have been conditioned, of course, to the usual perils of the jungle such as a hawk or eagle preying on unattended young. They understand these dangers fairly well and know how to cope with them. Since the airplane is something new and strange in their experience it is also a danger—a "monster" which must be scared away with the same howl which frightens the hawk.

Special Coronation Bibles Will Be Sold

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Queen Elizabeth II will take the oath at her coronation June 2 on a Bible produced by Oxford University Press at Oxford University especially for the ceremony.

The coronation Bible, authorized King James version, is printed in 34-point Ehrhardt type on India paper. It has 1,440 pages, is about 1 3/4 inches high, 10 1/2 inches wide and 2 1/4 inches thick. It is bound in scarlet Nigra morocco with a white leather panel on the front.

The binding, designed by Lynton Lamb, British artist, consists of sets of six gold lines, interlacing in strap work and continuing around sides. The front bears the royal arms, cipher and year of coronation. The scarlet ground is powdered between the interlacing lines with the crown and cypher, tooled alternately in blind and gold.

Twenty-five copies of the Queen's Bible were printed, but the other 24 are bound in slightly different style. They will be placed on sale this summer—seven copies in the United States. The price is expected to be about $500 a copy.

After the coronation, the Queen's Bible will be exhibited in Goldsmiths Hall in London and then returned to Westminster Abbey.

The coronation Bible will be carried with the regalia in the procession into Westminster Abbey and will early on the morning of June 2 and placed on the altar.

After the communion service, the Queen will make her oath upon it and kiss it, then the Bible will be brought to her chair and presented to her by the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland while the Archbishop of Canterbury says:

"Our Gracious Queen: to keep your Majesty ever mindful of the Law and Gospel of God as the Rule for the whole life and government of Christian Princes, we present you with this Book, the most valuable thing that this world affords." Then the Moderator says: "Here is Wisdom: this is the royal law; these are the lively Oracles of God."

The Bible is then returned to the altar.

Sugar Paper Is Brazil Project

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The Brazilian Sugar and Alcohol Institute has announced plans for two new plants to make cellulose and paper from bagasse (sugar cane after the sugar is squeezed out of it).

One plant will be financed in part by a special assessment on each sack of sugar. The estimated cost of the plant is $4,000,000. It will produce both cellulose and paper.

Bible Words to Live by

It is not easy to select any one Bible verse as being of more help than others; but I think I would choose the fifth verse of the second chapter of Philippians.

"Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus."

Here in one brief sentence, the master preacher of the Christian Church states the aim of the Christian life. We cannot, of course, attain to the mind of Christ in so far as quantity is concerned, because He is divine and we are human; but through His marvelous grace, it is possible for us to have in us the same characteristics of holy and sacrificial living which came to such expression in His earthly life. It is a high standard and calls for divine help, but if there were enough people in the world with the mind of Christ; it would sweeten and elevate human society and result in a sane and orderly world.

The Degree of Pocahontas met in the Red Men hall with 20 members present and two visitors from Greenville, Mrs. Callie Rue Williams and Mrs. Cassie Sawyer. The hall was arranged with colorful flowers. Some of the old members were back, who hadn't been with us in quite a few months. These were Mrs. Reppie Buck, Mrs. Retha Kittrell, and Mr. Thurman Vincent. The elective chiefs were escorted to their respective stations, by Mrs. Grace Buck and Mrs. Annie Fleming.

One of the members, a Great Chief, Mrs. Marion Vincent, Great Pocahontas of North Carolina, was escorted to the Council Brand. The Council was called up and two other state officers, Mrs. Ethel Lee Williams, Great Judiciary Committee, and Mrs. Reppie Buck, Great Board of Appeals, were escorted to the Council Brand, also the Council Deputy, Mrs. Grace Buck, who were each presented with a corsage from the presiding Pocahontas, Mrs. Frances Dixon. They were escorted back to their respective stations and the council was called down.

A rising hand of congratulations, honor and thanks was given in honor of the Great Chief, two state officers, the council deputy, Miss Beatrice Smith, who represented the council to the Great Council meeting in Greensboro, and to Mrs. Lizzie Mae Beddard, who has just filled a term of Great Guard of Tepee, at the Great Council meeting and to all members who worked so hard and faithfully to help the council be represented well, at the Great Council Session.

Miss Beatrice Smith, council representative, gave an interesting report on the Great Council Session. Mr. Thurman Vincent spoke a few words, the visitors gave a short but enjoyable speech, and the Great Pocahontas gave an interesting talk and she also showed the council several gifts, along with a beautiful little token of love and friendship; a little boat from Winterville Council, which was presented to her when the High Honor of Great Pocahontas was bestowed upon her in Greensboro. For the Good of the Order she also read a poem, "The Little Things." Myrtle Avery's name was drawn out for the jack-pot.

After the meeting adjourned, everyone enjoyed delicious ice cream, cookies, and potato sticks, served by the Pocahontas, and the refreshment committee.

Said To Be Saddest Face In All History

NASHVILLE, TENN. — The face of Christ with his disciples at the last supper, as depicted by Leonardo da Vinci, is said to be the saddest face in all history. A new interpretation of that face is being seen by thousands of visitors to the newly consecrated Upper Room Chapel here.

The chapel, built in connection with the new headquarters building for The Upper Room, the world's most widely used devotional guide, features a great woodcarving of Leonardo da Vinci's Last Supper.

Hailed as a work of art with breath-taking beauty, it is hoped that it will inspire visitors to bridge the centuries and at least for a few minutes of meditation and prayer commune with Christ as he said: "This is my body which is broken for you." The chapel is open daily for prayer and meditation.

facts, and has rejoined a number of international organizations. On the other hand, it still has no formal relations with very important Asiatic neighbors — including the Philippines, Indonesia and South Korea and still technically is at war with Russia and Red China.

Japan also has made no progress toward settling its war reparations bill. Negotiations with two most insistent creditors, the Philippines and Indonesia, are at a standstill. Its airplanes still fly no international lines.

Its shipping sails the seven seas but, like the rest of Japanese industries, faces some of the stiffest competition in world trade history. Japanese holdings of pound sterling also have fallen sharply — from 126,000,000 pounds last June to about 55,000,000 as of the first of this month.

At home, Japanese business men also complain about the U. S. system of placing contracts by competitive bidding. They claim they are forced to quote such excessively low bids that sometimes they are below actual cost of production.

Not enough is being done to replace worn out and out moded equipment which might otherwise increase the efficiencies of Japanese industries.

Added to all this is the fact the Japanese know they eventually will be called upon not only to get along without U. S. war orders, but also will be asked to carry the main load of their own defenses.

For that reason Japan soon will open negotiations with the United States for mutual security aid. But meanwhile, Japan is gloomily aware that the hardest part of her comeback trail still lies ahead.

Coronation Festival Taking On American Holiday Air

The coronation of Queen Elizabeth II is a British national event of deep religious, emotional and political significance. But it is also a major tourist attraction that has drawn so many Americans it has taken on a bit of the appearance of an American holiday. In the following dispatch United Press Staff Correspondent Robert Musel describes the pre-coronation London scene and introduces some of the thousands of Americans here for the event.

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP) — Ploccadilly was like Broadway today and the Strand might have been at Hollywood and Vine or Lakeshore Drive from all the backslapping and handshaking that was going on among Americans here for the coronation.

"It's a small world," was uttered so frequently at Les Ambassadeurs Club that owner John Mills asked an American correspondent if it was some new form of American greeting.

"Tell me," said songwriter Frank Loesser, as he stood at the door of Sleg's Club, looking at the faces turned toward him, "didn't I just leave all you guys at Dave Chasen's?"

Frank, who is here for the London premiere of "Guys and Dolls" on Thursday, complained that if it were not for the prices in pounds and shillings he might still be in Hollywood.

"I must return some time when we give this place back to the Britons," he said.

It was hard to go anywhere without running into a famous American name or face. Sleg found himself serving such celebrities as Mrs. Perle Mesta, Harvey Firestone, Mac Krelindler of New York's 21 Club, ballad singer Burl Ives, comedian Fred Wayne of Akron, O., producer Fred Finkelhoffe, the husband of Ella Logan. Half of Hollywood seemed to be draped along the bars of the magnificent Les Ambassadeurs (the former mansion of the Rothschild family) or the Casanova which serves ice water in gold goblets, or the Albany House, whose beamed ceilings have echoes to the coronation toasts of clubmen back to 1640.

Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall dined Tuesday night in Les Ambassadeurs marble dining room with director John Huston and actor Peter Lorre.

Hildegard Neff and David O. Selznick and Jennifer Jones were at the Savoy. So was Mrs. Douglas Chandor, widow of the famous Texas artist.

Film producer Arthur Freed passed through the lobby of the Savoy, stopping to flash a quick look at the crown prince of Iraq and Prince Charles of Sweden. Joseph E. Davies, former ambassador to Moscow, and his hress wife also were seen about town, as were Danny Thomas, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, singer Vivian Blaine and actor Sam Levene.

Ives claimed a record for spotting three maharajahs in the lobby of the Savoy at one time.

Former Mayor Oscar Holcombe of Houston, Tex., signed the visitors' book at Les Ambassadeurs with a proud flourish.

There was Mrs. Marcy Crawley of Cincinnati who got her picture in the papers because she left the Queen Elizabeth looking cool and lovely, and seven-year-old Polly Townsend, of Louisville, Ky., who hobbled off the great liner with her leg in a cast.

"I broke it two weeks ago," Polly said, "but I wouldn't let that keep me from the coronation."

Morocco Cork Is Enjoying Boom

RABAT, French Morocco (AP) — Wartime shortages led Morocco to start exploiting the output of its million acres of cork oak trees. Now it's big business and last year $2,400,000 worth of cork was exported.

Cork is the bark stripped from the trees. It is removed every year and grows back in the next 12 months. The stripping tends to improve the quality of the cork and a tree may live for 150 years.

Much of the cork is used for local wine and bottling industries and large amounts are sent to France for bottling wines. A special veined variety is used to make the expanding champagne corks. Lower qualities are ground up, and with a binding medium, turned into cork board for commercial uses.

Tropical rain forests are about half the world's forested areas says the National Geographic Society.

Japanese Concerned By Possible Korean Truce

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor
Japanese businessmen are not happy about the prospect of the Korean war coming to an end.

They fear that an end to the war also will mean the end to United States orders for steel, this and other implements of war which now are bringing about $1,000,000 per day into the Japanese economy.

Even the possibility that the return of peace might open up increased trade with Red China is not enough to still their fears.

Nor is the knowledge that world tensions inevitably will mean a continuation of war orders for at least a time, even should a peace in Korea be concluded.

The difficulty lies in the fact that after 13 months of postwar independence Japan still has not solved any of its basic international problems.

Diplomatically, it has resumed relations with 49 countries, has semi-diplomatic relations with eight more, has concluded one fisheries agreement, a number of aviation agreements and trade

New Theory For Limestone Origin

CHICAGO (UP)—A University of Illinois geologist offers a new theory for the formation of thick layers of limestone and shale that underlie large areas of the United States, Europe and Asia.

Prof. Harold R. Wanless believes the rise and fall of the seas created the limestone, known to be formed under water, and the shale, a non-marine rock.

Heretofore geologists have believed that the land moved up and down, permitting sea water to spread over large areas of the earth.

But Wanless believes the changes in the sea level resulted from the successive growth and melting of enormous glaciers in the southern hemisphere.

In Southwestern U. S. He believes the limestone and shale deposits are too far from known unstable land of the time to have resulted from earth movements.

The limestone deposits are found around the globe in the northern hemisphere and were formed 200,000,000 to 300,000,000 years ago. All contain fossils of sea animals abundant at that time but now extinct.

Wanless' study of rock formations in this country shows that thick layers of limestone occur that thick layers of limestone occur in southwestern United States and that this area was almost continuously under water for more than 30,000,000 years.

The deposits extend as far east as Pennsylvania, becoming gradually thinner, and as far north as Wyoming.

Pay Swiss For Seized Property

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — The Soviet Union's European satellites last year paid Switzerland more than 10,000,000 dollars compensation for Swiss property seized under Communist nationalization measures.

The annual report of the Swiss Political Department disclosed that Romania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Poland were compensating the former Swiss owners of assets and property nationalized by the Communist governments in accordance with agreements concluded with the Swiss government. Swiss citizens whose property was seized in Yugoslavia were also receiving compensation, the report disclosed, but no compensation agreement could be reached with Bulgaria and East Germany.

On holidays, as every day...
Refresh without filling

Pepsi-Cola is the light refreshment for today's celebrations, today's new kind of hospitality

The modern idea of a holiday is a treat for everybody—including a hostess who can relax and join the fun. For the first rule of modern entertainment is that food and drink be plentiful without being heavy, or hard to prepare.

Today's guests prefer it that way. Even the heartiest appetites among them favor the lighter, less filling dishes—to the benefit of their looks, their figures and their health. And today's best hostesses respect this wholesome modern taste.

As Pepsi-Cola respects it, too! Because Pepsi, too, has kept up with the times. That's why today's Pepsi-Cola is dry (not too sweet), reduced in calories—and why Pepsi is today more popular than ever.

This holiday refresh yourself and your guests without filling. Get your week-end supply of Pepsi-Cola today—by the carton or the case.

Love picnics?
Take Pepsi along ice-cold in this handy, handsome picnic cooler. Ask your Pepsi-Cola Bottler where to get one.

Extension Of Doctors' Before Senate Today

WASHINGTON (UP)—Legislation to extend the so-called doctors' draft law for two years was expected to win Senate approval today.

The present law is due to expire July 1.

The version before the Senate differed in two important respects from the two-year extension of the present law approved by the House

May 12.

The Senate Armed Services Committee Wednesday inserted a provision in the bill so that medical men called to uniform a second time would serve a shortened period, depending on their prior service.

The Senate committee also continued the present $100 a month bonus pay for physicians and dentists and extended it to cover veterinarians. The House had voted to drop the bonus.

Under the second call provision, approved by the Senate committee, medical personnel with less than six months service since Sept. 16, 1940, could be called for an additional 24 months. Those with less than nine months in uniform could be called for 21 more months, and so on down to those with 15 to 18 months prior service, who could be recalled for 14 months. Those with more than 21 months service during or since World War II would be exempt.

The prior service could count time in the armed services before becoming a physician or dentist, but it would not include service training at school.

The House bill provides 17 months liability for persons with 12 months or more service. Those with a shorter time in service could be recalled for 24 months.

The law, enacted in 1950, has resulted in only a few physicians and dentists being drafted. It serves as a "persuader" so that those subject to call apply for commissions and are ordered to active duty as reserve officers, not as draftees.

We are confident that the balance of the industry will meet its responsibilities without delay so that their employees can be afforded the same benefits as those negotiated in the last week by the UAW."

Chrysler, like Ford, boosted maximum pensions to $137.50 a month including social security benefits, upped the sinkers and pattern makers by 20 cents an hour and provided that retired workers could obtain group hospitalization insurance.

Pay Tribute To Overseas Groups

WASHINGTON (UP)—The 62nd annual convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs today honored 5,500,000 overseas members at a special International Day program.

The convention was scheduled to hear reports from foreign delegates on women's club activities in Germany, France, Denmark, Greece, Peru, Cuba, Italy, India, the Philippines, Jamaica, Canada, Hawaii and the Canal Zone.

Ben. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.) was the featured speaker at a luncheon.

The Resolutions Committee completed work on a new batch of resolutions to be sent to the floor for action Friday. They included a policy statement on educational television, a plea for appointment of more women to government jobs, and a resolution calling for federal legislation to help track down "absconding" parents.

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Oveta Culp Hobby urged the clubwomen Wednesday night to use their influence in home communities to support government economy even when it affects pet local projects.

Cases Heard In City Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH

In Police Court Wednesday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee passed judgment on two defendants, charged with duelling with a pistol and a knife.

Dan Banks and J. F. Warren had a "neighborhood quarrel" about their children. After the disturbance they wore out warrants for each other and were haled into Police court.

Banks was charged with assault with a deadly weapon (pistol). Warren was charged with assault with a deadly weapon (knife). Judge Whedbee continued judgment in both cases. He taxed Banks with a $20 fine, costs deducted, and Warren with $10 on court costs.

The judgment also provides that Banks is not to go more than two feet south of his residence on Wade street, and that Warren is not to go more than two feet north of his house on that street.

William B. Sheppard, Negro, assault, 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $10 to Dr. J. A. Battle and $10 on court costs. The judgment also provides that he is not to molest or harm James Belcher, Negro.

No operator's license: John G. Buck, prayer for judgment continued on payment of court costs ($5), and he is not to operate a motor vehicle without an operator's license. Robert Lee Drake, Negro, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $15 on court costs and he is not to drive a car without a license.

Speeding: Charles R. Martin, $15; William H. Williams, $15; John E. Phillips, Negro, $20, costs deducted; Willie Huff, Negro, $20, costs deducted; Robert H. Weaver Jr., $15.

Careless and reckless driving: Lonnie E. Strickland, guilty of driving to left of center of highway, prayer for judgment continued on payment of $10. Charles J. Conway, Negro, 30 days, suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted and he is not to drive for six months.

Leo D. Williams, failure to stop at a stop sign, prayer for judgment continued on payment of $5 on court costs. The judgment also provides that he is not to drive a motor vehicle for six months unless he makes restitution for property damage.

In the case of Bonnie R. McGowan, charged with making an improper left turn, he was fined $5. The judgment also provides that he is not to drive for six months unless he makes restitution for property damage to Losee L. Andrews.

Levi Green, Negro, failure to yield right of way, 30 days in jail, suspended on condition that he make adequate restitution for property damage to Earl Shirley, and pay $10 on court costs. He is not to drive a motor vehicle for six months.

UAW Plans For Extending Drive

DETROIT (UP)—The CIO United Auto Workers Union, having won major contract changes from the "big three" automakers, today laid plans for seeking similar concessions from smaller auto firms.

Chrysler Corp. Wednesday followed General Motors and Ford in changing its five-year contract with the UAW to incorporate 19 of the 24 cents of cost-of-living increases into base pay, hiking wages of skilled workers 10 cents an hour, boosting the four-cent annual improvement wage increase to five cents and switching to the government's new price index in computing cost-of-living pay raises.

Walter Reuther, UAW president, and Norman Mathews, director of the union's Chrysler division, said, "with the lead being taken by the major corporations in our industry, we are confident that the balance of the industry will meet its responsibilities without delay so that their employees can be afforded the same benefits as those negotiated in the last week by the UAW."

Chrysler, like Ford, boosted maximum pensions to $137.50 a month including social security benefits, upped the sinkers and pattern makers by 20 cents an hour and provided that retired workers could obtain group hospitalization insurance.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID C. BARFUTNER, AP Real Estate Editor

A good way to break your neck while staying "safe at home" is to try to fix things yourself on a rickety ladder, or by leaning out of an upstairs window, or by getting bored with all the "don'ts" the accident-prevention people think up.

Home has often been called one of the most dangerous places, but it is surprising the number of people who brush off this thought as lightly as whisking off a bug. It seems that preventing accidents in uninteresting. It would be so much more exciting to know how to cause them.

So here are some tried and tested tips on how to hurt yourself plenty right in your own home. These tips will enable you to use your hospitalization plan and some will give your dependents lump sum payments from your life insurance.

These are very sound tips, because they killed off more than 28,000 persons in the past year and injured more than 4 million. In fact, they are so effective that they have prompted the National Association of Home Builders to try to spoil this gruesome sport by urging its members to build more accident-free homes this year.

"How many people met accidental death or suffered injury in homes that you built last year?" the association asked its members. Then its Design and Construction Committee enumerated safety measures which catch the imagination better when we turn them around.

So here's how:
Hang yourself up in the bedroom. This doesn't have to be the safe place it seems. Design this room and place its furniture so there can't be a straight unimpeded path between door and bed and you'll have lots of excitement. Place your electrical outlets as far as possible from beds, lamps, heating pads or electric blankets and you'll have cords galore to trip over. Never provide any fire refuge for upper floor bedrooms.

Skip on your closets and other storage space so you'll have thousands of items to obstruct halls, floors and stairs. Place no lights in closets—try matches or candles instead. And be sure to have closet shelves, hooks and rods of the flimsiest type—when they break, they'll most likely connect with your eye.

And for upstairs window, you'll find that window sills less than 30 inches from the floor are very thrilling. When a window sticks slightly, then gives way quickly, you can lose your balance and take a header. It's silly to have windows that can be cleaned from the inside because it's much easier to fall when sitting out on the sill. And grilles across the windows of a nursery or bedrooms for teetery older people only cage persons in.

Bathrooms can be enlivened considerably by never placing sturdy grab bars above the tub and in the shower. Electric light switches near the bathtub or lavatory are much more clever than an electric chair, especially when you have a wet hand. And for a real black breaker, try a slippery bathroom floor.

Among the more refined ways to fracture vertebrae are by using stairs without handrails, lacking anti-slip coverings and preferably without lights work the best. Make the treads less than 9 1/2 inches deep and for an added hazard let the ceiling hang down less than 6 feet 8 inches above the tread. Have a door opening directly at the head of stairs or steps to catch the unwary. Or plan your upstairs bathroom where anyone approaching it from a bedroom in the dark will pass the stairs and possibly pitch down.

If these perils sound too tame, try the subtle contrivance of inadequate electrical wiring. This carries a higher guarantee for mishaps, because 70 per cent of all house casualties are falls and collisions with objects and many of these can be caused by poor lighting. Improper wiring or faulty fixtures also open up the way for more shocks and burns. String as many cords as possible to every electric outlet. If the fuse fails, use a heavier fuse until you burn the house down.

But of course, you can get the best accident batting average of all in the kitchen. "Statistics say this is the most dangerous room in the house," the builders were told. You can keep it that way by cluttering the work aisle, compelling the housewife to pivot in her steps on a slippery floor, make it easy to get burned at the stove, and have cabinet doors that open where they can gouge anybody's scalp.

TV And Tax Cut Movie Boxoffice

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UP)—Television and the 20 per cent federal admission tax were blamed by the Film Daily Yearbook today for the $108,000,000 drop in movie boxoffice receipts in 1952.

Receipts for last year were $1,170,000,000 as compared with $1,278,000,000 for 1951, the movie trade magazine reported yesterday. The magazine said there also had been a cut in studio workers and production of films. A move attempting to repeal the federal tax now is before Congress.

Chapter Eight
Mandell flung himself forward. The floor was wood and oiled. There was a familiar whine over his head and a splinter pierced his cheek as he tried to make himself small. Another bullet thudded into the desk. Still another thudded into flesh. Four more shots followed in quick succession, bracketing Mandell's head.

Mandell got to his feet. In throwing himself forward, he'd scraped his leg on the desk. He limped to the door and looked out. Where the man had stood there was a bright spot of blood on the freshly washed tile, and another spot farther down the hall.

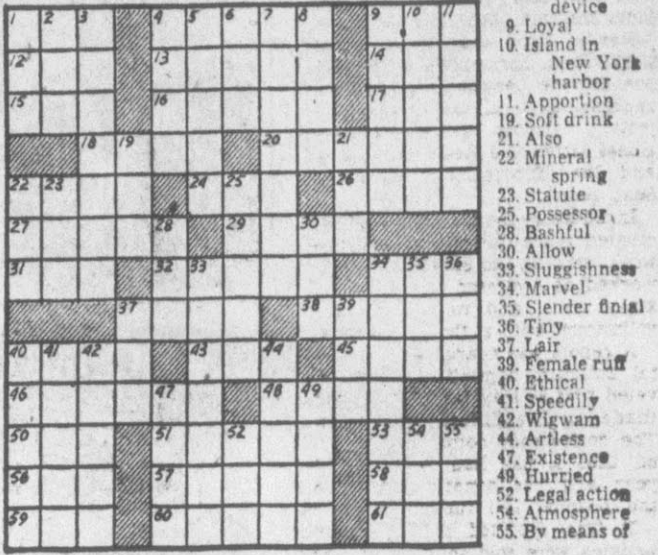

He was sorry Mr. Curtis was dead. He wished he could tell him how sorry Mr. Curtis had been decent to him. Mr. Curtis didn't think he had killed the blonde.

from the desk, lighted one, and laid the package back. The smoke tasted hot and raw. So Mr. Curtis was dead; he was sorry. But no matter who was dead, a man had a right to see his wife. Especially when he hadn't seen her in two years and she had flown all the way from Bermuda to be with him.

Service League Reviews Year's Accomplishments; Reports Made

Gathering for their annual meeting yesterday, members of the Greenville Service League heard their activities for the year reviewed by Mrs. E.H. Williford, league president, who also recognized those heading up the activities.

Before reporting on all of the projects Mrs. Williford reminded that the league was celebrating its 15th anniversary. "The Service League was organized to aid the community and to help those less fortunate," she said. "Starting with a small thrift shop 15 years ago we are now an incorporated charitable organization." During the business meeting, Mrs. Reynolds May was installed as treasurer of the Service League along with Mrs. Wesley Harvey and Mrs. David Hardee who will serve again next year as recording and corresponding secretaries.

A monthly report was heard on all 12 projects, in which the league participates.

In making her annual report Mrs. Williford revealed through records kept by Mrs. Harvey that 51 members this year gave 5,794 hours of volunteer service and that 10 new members taken in this year worked a total of 910 hours.

One of the most outstanding projects reported was the Charles O'Hagan Laughinghouse Hospital Bed Fund which has this year taken care of 20 patients at a cost of $1,395.74. Mrs. R.C. Stokes, Jr., chairman of the fund, reported that since 1939 when the fund was established, 274 patients have been taken care of at a cost of $10,399.07.

Mrs. Williford stated in her report that Mrs. W.S. Bost as projects chairman has carried out the "Star of Hope and Faith" in her work. From her report it was said the Service League has been well represented in all community projects, including the Community Chest Drive, the Red Cross Drive, and the Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale.

In addition, the league has participated in the sale of blind people's work, sent toys to spastic children, worked as hostesses at the mobile x-ray unit, and undertaken the volunteers' work at the bloodmobile.

A report was heard on the hospital activities committee which revealed that 80 tray favors had been made on five different occasions. The coffee shop committee reported that it has had a successful year and has donated money to the hospital bed fund.

It was reported that over 600 articles were sold this year at the thrift shop by 48 volunteer workers who worked a total of 456 hours. At the coffee shop, there were 41 volunteer workers working a total of 1,730 hours.

Complete layettes, numbering 23, were delivered this year and through the lending chest, wheel chairs and crutches were kept in constant use. Through the emergency charity fund, 19 families were helped with food, bedding, and clothing in addition to giving 12 baskets of food at Christmas.

Mrs. Williford also reported that two girl scouts and two boy scouts have been sent to girl and boy scout camps for a week through the girl scout committee.

The recreation committee reported that the league will have the task of furnishing the recreation building at Elm Street Park.

Other activities of the Greenville Service League this year include helping in the organization of a league at Grifton. During the year, a committee helped revise the league constitution and recommended four amendments.

Mrs. Williford recognized officers of the league which include Mrs. J. Bryan Brown, first vice-president, who reported that three new members had come into the league this year.

Members of the advisory council were recognized by the president who said they had given advice, encouragement, and help throughout the years. Mrs. T.I. Wagner was welcomed as a new member of the council.

Service League Presents Two Awards For Work During Year

Holding their coveted awards for work with the Greenville Service League are Mrs. E. C. Wilkerson and Mrs. H. L. Ormond who were designated yesterday as out standing members of the league for this year. Mrs. Wilkerson was presented the President's Tray as an outstanding board member and Mrs. Ormond was presented the Silver Service Cup for outstanding participation in activities. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Lupton)

Designated as outstanding members of the Greenville Service League, Mrs. H. L. Ormond and Mrs. E. C. Wilkerson were yesterday presented the two coveted league awards made at the league's annual luncheon.

Mrs. Ormond was presented with the Silver Service Cup, the same cup she presented to the league in 1949 to be given each year to the most outstanding member. The cup is given yearly to the person who has not only given the most hours of service but on the basis of their variety of activities, their willingness to work, and usefulness in the community.

The presentation of the cup was given by Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, advisory board member. The selection of the award is made by the Board of Directors.

Mrs. Kittrell also read an honor roll of league members who have in the past year given 100 hours or more service to league activities. The honor roll included Mrs. A. W. Bryan, Mrs. Charles Flanagan, Mrs. Jesse Moye, Mrs. H. L. Ormond, Mrs. Ed Parkinson, Mrs. Orval Phillips, Mrs. Robert Ross, and Mrs. Lecky Wilkerson.

The President's Tray, which is passed on annually to the most outstanding member of the board was presented to Mrs. Wilkerson. The presentation was made by Mrs. Wyatt Brown who stated that Mrs. Wilkerson, a charter member, was one of the most valuable members of the board. The President's Tray was first given in 1948 by Mrs. J. T. Little, a past president.

Proceeding the presentation of the two awards, a lively entertainment program was held by Mrs. J. H. Moye, program chairman. The program consisted of contests between members of the Service League and two recordings featuring Service League members was played. The door prize, a cake, was won by Mrs. George Lautares.

Six members of the Gritton Service League were present at the business meeting and luncheon. They were introduced as Mrs. Lynn Gow, Mrs. Audrey Tyson, Mrs. Doris Rasberry, Mrs. Polly Coffman, Mrs. Maren House, and Mrs. Edna Fletcher.

Traditions Of England's Coronation Have Wry Side

The writer of the following dispatch is the son of British Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill. He is an internationally known journalist who will do a series of dispatches for the United Press that will carry through coronation day. He will be inside Westminster Abbey on Tuesday in his official capacity as a gold staff officer, one of the officials responsible for seeing that the peers and peeresses are in their proper places.

By RANOLPH CHURCHILL
Written For The United Press
LONDON (UP)—When Queen Anne was crowned 250 years ago, the first person to do homage was her husband, Prince George of Denmark. He was followed by the archbishop of Canterbury.

This has long been thought unseemly and this year at the duke of Edinburgh's own suggestion he will do homage to his wife, Queen Elizabeth, after the archbishop of Canterbury has done so.

Homage is done by removing the coronet and handing it to a page, knocking down, placing the hands in those of the queen and uttering the words:

"I become your liege man of life and limb, and of earthly worship; and faith and truth I will bear unto you, to live and die, against all manner of folks. So help me God."

Those doing homage then rise, touch the crown and kiss the queen's hand. The duke of Edinburgh, the duke of Gloucester and the duke of Kent will kiss the queen on the cheek because they are royal dukes.

Everyone else will kiss her hand.

Some time ago, a friend asked Sir George Bell, garter king of arms, and in consequence master of ceremonies inside the abbey on coronation day, whether divorce was an obstacle to admission to the abbey. "Good gracious" he replied, "what do you think this is? Ascot?"

This retort emphasizes one of the strangest anomalies of English social life. The "guilty party" in a divorce case is not allowed to stand in the royal enclosure and see his sovereign's horse win a race at Ascot in the middle of June, but two weeks earlier, if his station in life or luck in the ballot permits it, he may see her appointed and crowned in the Collegiate Church of St. Peter in Westminster. That is still the official name for what is commonly called Westminster Abbey.

The official explanation of this inherently droll situation is that Ascot is only a social occasion, whereas the coronation is "full state ceremonial." Many of the queen's ministers have been divorced and it is obvious that they must be allowed access to court and state functions. For if they were denied such access they could not discharge their duties of advising the sovereign.

Since, however, ascot is a purely social affair, there is no reason why the queen should relax the social ban on divorced persons which so rigidly maintained by her great-great-grandmother, Queen Victoria, unless she sees good reason to do so.

Ads are now being placed on parking meters. Philadelphia is believed to be the first large city to try it.

Thumbs Down On Idea Of Keeping Red As Hostage

WASHINGTON (UP)—The State Department today turned thumbs down on suggestions of outraged citizens that this country hold Romanian diplomat Christache Zambeti as a hostage until Romania frees the sons of V. C. Georgescu.

A spokesman branded the idea "gangster tactics" and said the United States could not be a party to such a move.

Zambeti has been ordered out of the United States for trying to blackmail Georgescu a naturalized American of Romanian descent, into spying against the United States for the Communist regime in Romania. Zambeti told Georgescu he might get to see his two teen-age sons held in Romania if he would "collaborate politically." Georgescu spurned the offer and went to the FBI and State Department with the story.

The incident aroused angry reactions among congressmen and private citizens, who called for stern U. S. action to safeguard Georgescu's sons.

One proposal called to the department's attention was from a war veteran, Henry Bern of New York, who urged that Zambeti and "every member of the Romanian legation" be held "until the Romanian government delivers unharmed the sons of Georgescu to America."

But a department spokesman said the United States couldn't do that.

"Zambeti was an accredited diplomat and we recognized him as such," the spokesman said. "Under U. S. law accredited diplomats have diplomatic immunity and cannot be arrested."

By the same token, he pointed out, American diplomats in Romania have similar immunity. If the United States held Zambeti, it would open the way for the Romanian government to take reprisals against the U.S. officials in their country.

Negotiation Ends Damage Suit

Attorneys in the $75,000 damage suit being heard in Pitt Superior Court yesterday called a halt to proceedings and retired to the back room to settle the suit by negotiation.

Both factions agreed that should the plaintiff, Catharine Mayo and others, recover the sum of $10,000 that amount would be considered satisfactory. Judge Henry L. Stevens signed the order to that effect.

The suit was brought against George Riddick and Lloyd Clifton and Jack Stallings, trading as Stallings Lumber Company of Gatesville, N.C. It was alleged that a truck driven by Riddick caused by negligence the death of the plaintiff's husband, Fred E. Mayo.

In the case of W.K. Kittre vs. Anthony J. Collins, it too was

Lecturer Will Be Here On Sunday

The local congregation of Jehovah's witnesses is concluding a special week of Bible activity with a public lecture, "Practical Love in a Selfish World" Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Kingdom Hall, Falkland highway, 2 miles west of Greenville, N.C.

W.D. Couch a traveling representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of Brooklyn, N.Y., will deliver the talk. Mr. Couch has been a traveling representative of the Watchtower Society for 10 years and recently has visited 11 southeastern states in the interest of Bible education.

Mr. Couch during the tour has encouraged local ministers to attend the coming World Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses to be held at Yankee Stadium, New York next July 19-26. He said that delegates from all over the world will be attending this Bible convention. A similar convention was held in 1950 with more than 123,000 delegates attending, and it is expected with better traveling facilities many more will be attending from foreign countries. Also he told the local group that many thousands will be accommodated at a trailer city to be located near Plainfield, N.J.

Old Dime Novels That Cost Nickel Valuable Today

BLACKSTONE, Mass. (U.P.)—A local textile worker, Eli A. Messier, has a multitude of bobbies, but his pet pastime is collecting dime novels that once cost a nickel.

The 54-year-old Messier devotes a large share of his spare time to collecting old newspapers, cigar bands, ancient coins, circus programs, pictures of historic railroad engines and English one-shilling novels.

But his collection of so-called dime novels, dating back nearly 50 years, is valued at more than $5,000. The paper-bound volumes fill the four walls of a den, most of a living room bookcase and virtually all of his basement.

Newspaper Most Valued

The collection of more than 6,500 volumes includes several complete sets among them a Frank and Dick Merrivell series, 100 numbers of Bill's Frontier Library, a Jesse James series, a set of Horatio Alger stories, a complete Great Western Library and all 60 volumes of a Deadwood Dick series.

Messier has only room for the modern comic books which he says grew out of the old dime novels of more than 40 years ago have taken important places in American literature," said Messier. He cited Jack London, O. Henry, Joseph Alsop and others.

"Many of my dime novels only cost a nickel when they were on the market," says Messier. "You can't get a comic book for that."

Messier's books are worth from 35 cents to $50 each, depending on age, condition and attractiveness to the nation's 400 other dime novel collectors.

Pet Deer Serves As A Watchdog

HORNELL, N.Y. (U.P.)—A pet deer serves as "watchdog" for the Arcieri family here.

The family found a fawn beneath an evergreen tree in May of last year and reared it on a nursing bottle.

The deer never is confined, except during the open season on deer, with special permission of the Department of Conservation.

The animal is as good at watching over the house and property as any dog, according to Mrs. Arcieri. It will play with neighborhood dogs until they become rough.

A quarter of the five boy babies born in 1900 in the United States died before they were 25 years old; today a quarter of the boy babies born are not likely to die until they are more than 59 years old.

Ragged Band Of Survivors Arrive

HANOI, Indochina, (UP)—A ragged band of French soldiers arrived today in Luang Prabang, Royal capital of Laos, after a six-week, 180-mile trek through unexplored jungles to escape the Communists.

The 14-man group, remnants of the first post to fall before the Red invasion of Laos, straggled to a heroes' welcome in the French-held city.

Proudly, they still carried their weapons.

The all-European group included several Germans from the Foreign Legion.

The weary soldiers said they often had to fight off pursuing Viet minh Communist guerrillas. Once they were attacked in head-high grass. Another Red attack came as they bivouacked without even a fire to frighten off wild beasts.

The group escaped April 12 when the Communists captured the Samsaneu fort, 120 miles southeast of Hanoi.

They followed a route through country rising to 8,500-foot mountain peaks. The last part of their trip took them down the Khan River, where they were able to float on rafts.

News of the Saga came as Gen. Rene Cogny, new commander on the northern front around Hanoi, appealed for "more than 30" American helicopters to evacuate wounded and for liaison missions.

He said lack of helicopters cost the lives of "numerous" wounded who could not be saved in the Laos fighting.

Colored News

Ladies Delight Chapter 10 O.E.S. wishes to remind all members that the district meeting will be held on Friday at 10 o'clock.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff today postponed for another week the contempt of Congress sentencing of Henry W. Grunewald, Washington wire puller.

Holtzoff said he wanted a physician's report on whether imprisonment of Grunewald would endanger his health.

The judge made it clear, however, that unless the doctor finds that imprisonment would endanger the health and possibly the life of the busy man about Washington, he would send Grunewald to jail.

Holtzoff also said he would probably impose a fine in addition.

The maximum penalty for contempt of Congress, to which Grunewald had pleaded guilty, is one year in prison and $1,000 fine.

Denmark Voting On Revision Of Constitution

COPENHAGEN (UP)—Denmark voted today on a new constitution that would make a lanky, 13-year-old blonde schoolgirl the heiress to the 1,000-year-old throne of Harald Bluetooth.

The weather was fine and warm. supporters of the new charter hoped it would help bring a large turnout to the polls. The referendum will be valid only if a minimum of 45 per cent of the nation's 2,586,000 eligible voters cast ballots.

The Danish throne is now reserved for kings only. The new constitution would make it possible for a daughter—specifically Princess Margrethe—to succeed a king who has no sons.

Margrethe is the eldest of three daughters of King Frederik IX and Queen Astrid.

Actor Concedes Many Cocktails Before Fight

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UP)—Film actor Steve Cochran conceded he drank "possibly 10, but no more than 20" cocktails before he struck former boxer Lenwood (Buddy) Wright, 31, over the head with a softball bat "in self defense."

The movie tough guy went to court yesterday to answer Wright's $405,000 damage suit charging Cochran inflicted "permanent brain injuries" on the ex-boxer during a party at the actor's home on New Year's Day, 1951.

Air Raid Tests Ended Too Early

BROCKTON Mass. (UP)—The all-clear had sounded. Brockton's citizens emerged from their shelters and resumed their usual activities. Then, five minutes later, the jet planes that were supposed to participate in yesterday's practice air raid roared overhead on their simulated bomb run.

Backstairs Glimpse Of White House Doings

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer
WASHINGTON (UP)—Backstairs at the White House: President Eisenhower is a red-hot chop suey fan. But being President, he can't visit Chinese restaurants without causing a commotion. So he sends out for food.

Virtually every Saturday afternoon when the President is in town the telephone rings at the Sun Restaurant.

Manager Jer Folk takes the call. It is a member of the White House staff.

"Please send chop suey, fried rice and egg fooyung for eight to the White House."

Folk sees that the order is prepared with special care. He is instructed to see that the chop suey, fried rice and egg fooyung reaches the White House piping hot and at 7 p. m., about the hour the President usually returns from the Burning Tree Golf Club.

Thomas E. Stephens, counsel to the President and acting appointment secretary, earned the nickname of "Burbank" around the White House when it was discovered that he grew mushrooms in the clothes closet of his apartment.

Now they're calling Stephens "Bucking Tom" for something that happened the other afternoon in the small White House Gymnasium adjoining the swimming pool. The President was changing clothes before going out to the back lawn to hit some practice golf shots. Stephens was in the gym with him running over a few business details at the end of the working day.

While chatting, the secretary idly flicked at a switch on the side of the contraption. The electric nag went into action, heaving "nd bucking while Stephens bellowed, "Get me off this x x x thing."

Mr. Eisenhower laughed so hard that he had to squat down on the floor while Stephens wailed over the sound "the motor, "How do you cut it off?"

Stephens finally relocated the switch and quickly dismounted, vowing never again to get mixed up with a horse that eats volts instead of oats.

George Murphy, the actor, was in town recently for the dinner given by the White House news photographers for Mr. Eisenhower. He says the President told this story on himself.

It was during the North African campaign and the then-General Eisenhower needed a new pair of shoes. Minus his cap and with a raincoat covering his uniform, the general went into a supply tent and asked the sergeant for new footwear.

"Come on, bub, what's your size?" growled the sergeant. "I ain't got all day."

The general told him and the supply clerk disappeared in the back of his tent. While he was gone, the general removed his raincoat, thus exposing his four stars.

The sergeant returned in a few minutes with the shoes, took one look at the star-studded Eisenhower shoulders and gasped, "Holy mackerel, the Milky Way."

Reynaud Reform Plan Rejected

PARIS (UP)—Wartime leader Paul Reynaud failed in his comeback bid for the French premiership today as the National Assembly rejected his drastic plan to cure a "sick" France.

The assembly early today refused Reynaud's request to become France's 19th postwar premier by a 38 vote margin, leaving the nation without a top administrative official.

Reynaud issued a statement saying: "The ills plaguing France are old and deep and they are aggravated every day. Other men before me tried to reverse the stream. I tried again. But the majority prefers words to deeds."

The right wing independent leader needed an absolute majority of 314 votes. He received only 276 votes to 235 against him. There were 89 abstentions and 27 deputies did not vote.

President Vincent Auriol was expected to turn next to former Premier and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault in an effort to end the government crisis which started a week ago with the fall of Rene Mayer's cabinet.

The 74-year-old Reynaud, who was premier at the defeat of France in 1940, bluntly told deputies in an all-night session before the vote they were falling down on their job.

He referred to France as the "sick man of Europe" and demanded a constitutional reform to prevent the constant fall of governments which he said "gravely reduces" the prestige of France abroad.

Reynaud warned he would not form any government before such a reform project is enacted and set a time limit of next Saturday for its passage.

The proposed law would have required new elections if any government was overthrown within 18 months after it took office.

Reynaud also called for budget cuts, the issue on which his predecessor fell, and criticized French businessmen for their "devil take the hindmost" attitude.

Child Bride Faces Court Hearing

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP)—A 16-year-old expectant mother faced a juvenile court hearing today in connection with the fatal shooting of her airman husband during a squabble over split milk.

Mrs. Patsy Lou King, who was married at 14, has been free under $500 bond since shortly after the May 10 death of her husband, James R. King, 21, of Mason, W. Va.

Mrs. King told police that her husband was shot as they struggled for a pistol following an argument which began over milk spilled on their six-month-old baby, Kathie. She said she had picked the weapon up only to lay it down on the bed when her husband, an airman stationed at the Birmingham Air Force Base, ordered her to. She said they both then reached for the

$100,000 Suit Is Filed In Behalf Of Son Against Dad

CHICAGO (UP)—A suit on file in Superior Court today showed a one-year-old boy has sued his own father for $100,000 damages for negligence in an auto accident that injured the child and killed his mother, brother and aunt.

The suit was filed on behalf of young William Matsoukas Jr. by Herbert Nudd, described in the action as the plaintiff's "next friend."

The child still lives with his father.

An attorney said the boy "might be allowed to appear in court."

The elder Matsoukas is insured, his attorney said, and the judgment would be paid by the insurance company if it is rendered.

Attorney John G. Phillips said the suit is based on an Illinois Supreme Court decision Nov. 20, 1952, that held that an individual could sue a member of his own family or his spouse.

The Illinois high court ruling is in general conflict with English common law which holds that members of an immediate family cannot sue each other because it amounts to suing oneself.

It was not known when a hearing of the suit would be held.

The action grew out of an auto accident last October in Kendall County. A car driven by William Matsoukas Sr. collided with one driven by David Thill, 25, of Stockton, Ill.

Thill is also a defendant in the suit.

The one-year-old plaintiff's mother, Elizabeth, 28, his brother, Spiros, 23 months, and his aunt, Mary Nudd, 22, were all killed in the mishap.

William Jr. was "permanently injured," the suit said. Phillips said the boy suffered a skull fracture.

The attorney said the boy's father was "driving much too fast under the foggy, drizzle conditions" the night of the accident.

Firemen Away, Station Afire

ATLANTA, Ga. (UP)—A fire broke out at Fire Station No. 3 Wednesday while its firemen were busy with another blaze.

Half a dozen trucks from other fire stations responded to the alarm and had put out the fire by the time men of No. 3 returned from their call.

The MacDonalds will take advantage of the New York Central's family ticket offer for their trip to Springfield, Mass. This allows children under 12 to ride free if accompanied by their parents.

The fare came to $155.81 for the MacDonalds and their eight children—all but one under 12.
