

ROK Delegate On UN Team Claims Reds Already Have Said 'No'

Truce Plan Said Rejected

By LEROY HANSEN United Press Staff Correspondent SEUL, Korea, (UP)—The South Korean delegate on the United Nations truce team said today the Communists summarily rejected the U.N.'s new proposal made May 25.

Nations organization, "which is a belligerent itself." Choh said Nam II termed this "inconceivable." He said it is "not practical" to bring foreign troops into South Korea to guard prisoners even with the consent of the ROK government, and warned that "unexpected violent action" might be taken against them.

tempt thereby to effect forcible retention. Hence, these propositions of your side cannot be agreed to by our side." Choh indirectly revealed two other points of the U.N. proposal. 1. He said the U.N. had withdrawn from its position that Korean prisoners be released after an armistice, and condemned this as a "major concession."

to summon his cabinet there Saturday to plan the next move if South Korea formally withdraws from the truce talks when they resume at Panmunjon on Monday. Rhee voiced violent objections to any truce which would leave Korea divided or permit Chinese Communists to remain on Korean soil. Korean sources said President Eisenhower must act quickly to prevent a situation wherein the tough Allied, - trained South Korean Army would disregard a cease fire agreed to by both sides in the war.

Red Assault Gains Ground As Bloody Fight Still Rages

SEUL, Korea, Saturday (UP)—Chinese Communists driving ahead in their heaviest attack in eight months last night forced American and Turkish troops off three vital outposts guarding the western invasion route to Seoul. The Reds have hurled 20 battalions—more than 15,000 men—against a score of Allied key points along the western and east central fronts.

Shattering Allied artillery barrages, rifles, automatic weapons and close-support strikes by United Nations aircraft turned the hills above Seoul into a haze of smoke, flame and dust. There was no immediate report on the fate of a "small force" of Americans that was boxed in by its own artillery after losing Elko. The protective artillery screen apparently was being used to shield their withdrawal.

First Such Referendum In Fourteen Years School Bond Vote Tuesday

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor An election on a school bond issue totaling $1,500,000, the first such referendum to be staged in Greenville School District in 14 years, will be held here next Tuesday, June 2, at the City Hall. As the result of a special bond registration which ended last Saturday, 1,247 citizens in the district have placed their names on the registration book and will be qualified to ballot in Tuesday's election.

Defaced Ballots Void "Voters should mark clearly their opinions on the ballots," Rose declared this morning. "If a ballot is defaced or marred to any appreciable degree it will not be counted, so if a mistake is made voters should return the marred ballot to the registrar and obtain another." Rose said he is not definitely informed as to precisely how much tax increase will be necessary to retire the bonds, but there "will be an increase." He said the new valuation program in the county and the national administration's view on interest rates will have a marked effect on how much the tax increase will be.

chairman of the Greenville City School Board for many years, said Tuesday's referendum will be the culmination of a project held under consideration by the board for many years. "Personally, for the benefit of the district as a whole, I hope the issue is approved," he asserted. Expansion Curtailed The chairman explained that the board has had blueprints on hand for sometime as it has realized the pressing need for expansion of local school facilities—but expansion has been curtailed because of the critical national situation. "Greenville is expanding steadily in population, and we owe an obligation to the city's children to give them the best education possible," James stated.

Two Executed In Gas Chamber Of Central Prison

RALEIGH (UP)—Two Negroes were executed in the state's gas chamber at Central Prison here today for rape, but one maintained his innocence to the last. Raleigh Speller, 51, of Bertie County, and Clyde Brown, 22, of Winston-Salem, were strapped in twin chairs in the glaringly lighted chamber and the deadly cyanide gas pellets fell at 10 a.m. Speller was declared dead seven minutes later and Brown was pronounced dead at 10:10 a.m. Chaplain W. H. R. Jackson said that neither man made a final statement but that Speller maintained his innocence to the last. The two men were strapped in the chairs, with stethoscopes taped to their chests, when witnesses filed into the tiny chamber opposite a double glass window facing the condemned men. A young Negro girl was among the 25 witnesses present. Brown nodded to one of the witnesses as they entered and then the heavy masks were slipped over the men's faces. Prison officials said a sister of Brown came with an undertaker to claim his body. The Rev. David Andrews, a 28-year-old white Methodist minister, sat for seven hours on the Capitol steps yesterday in protest, but abandoned his announced intention of conducting a 24-hour vigil. Andrews said he is opposed to capital punishment on both moral and religious grounds and plans to try to get the next General Assembly to outlaw it. Several other persons, both white and Negro, called on Gov. William B. Umstead yesterday in an effort to get him to intervene. The governor said he could find no legal grounds to stop the executions. Speller was convicted of raping a Bertie County white woman in 1947. Brown was convicted of raping a 15-year-old Winston-Salem girl in 1950.

Eisenhower-Taft Split Said Only A 'Skirmish'

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate Republicans said today the split between President Eisenhower and Sen. Robert A. Taft on foreign policy represents a skirmish but not a war. Sen. John W. Bricker (R-O.), one of Taft's closest political allies, told a reporter that airing the differences is "wholesome" because it "tears away the secrecy prevailing in the past." No open break between the President and the Senate Republican leader was anticipated by responsible GOP legislators despite Mr. Eisenhower's blunt "no" to Taft's suggestion that the United States "forget about the United Nations" for as far as the Korean war is concerned. There was some comment among the President's friends on Capitol Hill that Mr. Eisenhower may henceforth express himself more often and more vehemently on current issues. His firm reputation as the beginning of "more positive leadership" from the White House. Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.), and other Democrats hailed the President's news conference statement of Thursday as one confirming basic U. S. foreign policy as they understand it. "I think the President's remarks reflect the view of the overwhelming majority in Congress and the preponderant thinking in the country," Sparkman said. "It laid down not only a good policy, but the only policy which we can follow."

ment of Thursday as one confirming basic U. S. foreign policy as they understand it. "I think the President's remarks reflect the view of the overwhelming majority in Congress and the preponderant thinking in the country," Sparkman said. "It laid down not only a good policy, but the only policy which we can follow." Mr. Eisenhower, in his first public difference with Taft since taking office, declared that "no single face of the Russian threat. He observed that "if you are going to go it alone everywhere." He called for even closer cooperation among the Allies despite irritations and frustrations which Mr. Eisenhower said he shared. Taft touched off the current debate Tuesday night when he said in a speech read to a Cincinnati audience by his son that the U. S. as now constituted could never prevent aggression and that this country might just as well "abandon any idea of working with the United Nations in the East, and reserve to ourselves a completely free hand."

Delay Seen For Bermuda Parley

WASHINGTON (UP)—France's war postponement of the Big Three talks in Bermuda until the end of June, administration officials said today. The American British and French talks were announced five days ago but arrangements have been stalled while the French try to form a new government. The plan had been to get the meeting underway about June 17. President Eisenhower admitted Thursday at a news conference that the French cabinet snarl might cause a delay. Some officials familiar with French politics and the intricacies of arranging international talks speculated the Big Three talks will be postponed about two weeks. The Bermuda conference between Mr. Eisenhower, Britain's Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill and whoever is chosen as French premier will attempt to reach a joint decision on the advisability of a future meeting with the Russians and patch up Allied differences on other problems. Mr. Eisenhower left no doubt that he still does not share Churchill's enthusiasm for a formal meeting with Russia. The President said he did not necessarily believe the Bermuda meeting would lead to East-West talks. He took the position that Western unity was the primary objective. Planning for the American portion of the talks is expected to move faster with Dulles' return here tonight from a three-week tour with Foreign Aid Chief Harry E. Stassen of 12 Near and Middle Eastern countries. Mr. Eisenhower has steered away from any commitments to meet the Russians pending evidence of their good faith in Korea, Austria and elsewhere. Now that the Kremlin has refused to talk about an Austrian peace treaty, the administration believes it unlikely that East-West tensions could be eased by high level talks.

Out-Of-Season Forest Fires In County

Rogers Re-Named Chief Engineer

RALEIGH (UP)—The State Highway Commission met here today and reelected W. H. Rogers Jr. as chief engineer. Rogers served during four years under Chairman Henry Jordan during Gov. Kerr Scott's administration. Earlier he had served as administrative assistant to the present commission chairman, A. H. Graham, when Graham held the office under Gov. Gregg Cherry. The commission was scheduled today to review low bids on 33 highway construction projects in 35 counties. The low bids submitted for the work in Tuesday's letting totaled $4,911,616. ELKS CONVENE MYRTLE BEACH, S. C. (UP) South Carolina Elks have a three day state convention here today with approximately 1,000 members and guests attending.

Daughter Of The Late Sir Stafford Cripps To Wed West African Tribesman

LONDON (UP)—Peggy Cripps, 32-year-old daughter of the late Sir Stafford Cripps, has announced her engagement to an African tribesman from Britain's Gold Coast colony in the jungles of West Africa. The auburn-haired bride-to-be, still wearing the green and white print dress she donned for Queen Elizabeth's garden party yesterday, appeared at a press conference last night with slight, bespectacled Joseph E. Applah to confirm reports that she and the Negro will marry. "There have been rumors of our engagement, which were untrue at the time," she said, "now they are true." Applah, looking up at his 5 foot, 9 inch fiancee, beamed and produced an antique rose diamond engagement ring from a pocket of his smartly-cut brown suit. The couple met in the clubrooms of the West African Students' Union in the Chelsea district, London's Greenwich Village—an organization which Applah headed in 1951. When reporters asked whether their romance was "love at first sight," Miss Cripps replied "Not at first sight—maybe fourth. It just came at first sight," and added, "not grew." Asked whether they plan a family, Miss Cripps answered: "Yes, I shall get into trouble if I don't have one." Applah said the couple will encounter no color bar in the Gold Coast, indicating that they plan to make their home there. "Peggy's family, my family, and all of our friends have congratulated us," he added. Applah is an Ashanti tribesman—one of what Webster's dictionary calls "a warlike race of Negroes, divided into various tribes, some, what skilled in cotton weaving, goldbeating and agriculture."

Secret Dress Rehearsal Of Coronation Is Held

LONDON (UP)—Twelve hundred persons, including seven nobles and noblemen, women with prelates and medieval pikes, and ladies in waiting in gold and white gowns, went through a secret dress rehearsal of the 2½ hour coronation ceremony today. Hundreds of policemen held back a crowd of 8,000 persons who waited outside Westminster Abbey under overcast skies in hope that Queen Elizabeth II herself would attend. But neither the queen nor her husband, Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, appeared. The Duchess of Norfolk "stood in" for the queen. Sir Eric Mieville, an old friend of the royal family, acted for the duke. The Duke of Norfolk, who as hereditary earl marshal is in charge of the coronation ceremony, said proudly afterward: "I make no apology for publicly thanking my wife and congratulating her on a superb and supreme performance." A corps of 350 newsmen, who will be present at the actual coronation, attended the rehearsal under a written pledge to keep secrecy. The secrecy pledge was imposed partly to prevent disclosure of any possible "bobbles" in the rehearsal—and which still may occur in the ceremony itself, to be viewed by millions of persons all over the world by television.

A preview of the sort of thing that might occur happened outside the abbey today to 12-year-old Winston Churchill, grandson of the prime minister. He is a coronation page. His sword slipped out of its scabbard and a policeman had to help him retrieve it. The crowds got a preview of coronation day proceedings as goldenrobed officers appeared in their court costumes, followed by guards and officers in full dress uniforms, nurses who will be on duty at the abbey, members of the 400-voice choir and 350 newspapermen who will cover the big story. Using dummy regalia rather than risk some accident with the priceless crowns, swords and scepters in the confusion of rehearsal, Earl Marshal Duke of Norfolk shepherded the great company of peers and dignitaries in a split-second schedule. The music of the service swelled through the great church which has been the scene of coronations for just short of 900 years. Its transformation into a blue gold scene of splendor was complete. ON COMMISSION RALEIGH (UP)—Gov. William B. Umstead appointed William Joshi of Raleigh and J. Spencer Bell of Charlotte yesterday to two-year terms on the General statutes Commission.

Telephone Company Reveals Local Expansion Plans

Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company will spend over half million dollars to improve and expand its facilities in Greenville, according to plans made public today by Frank Harrington, local manager for the company. Harrington said that plans are complete, and that preliminary engineering work will begin soon, on projects which will provide additions to the firm's outside cable plant throughout Greenville, to expand present central office facilities and to construct a new long distance operations building. Harrington also reported today the recent completion of a major rural telephone project to serve the Bell Arthur section of Pitt County and to provide additional service along Highway 264 towards Ballards Crossroads. That project involved placing about 14,000 feet of 51 pair telephone cable along the highway to Ballards Crossroads, strung about 60 miles of open wire and placing over 200 new telephone poles. Cost of the rural project is expected to exceed $26,000 and the company expects to serve about 43 new subscribers through the project. New Facilities Construction of planned cable facilities in Greenville will begin at the present telephone office at Washington Street and Dickinson Avenue. From that point, cable will be placed underground to the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Sutton Lane and to Washington and Fourth Streets, according to the telephone manager. Aerial cable, connected to the underground facilities, will then be placed along Evans Street, out Evans Street Extension, and along East Tenth and Charles Streets in Southeast Greenville. Aerial cable is also to be placed north along Greene Street to cross the Tar River to the Meadowbrook section and along the Bethel Highway. Other outside plant is to be placed along West Fourth Street and other streets in Northwest Greenville and out the Winterville Highway. Harrington said when they are placed in service the new cable lines will provide new or improved telephone service to applicants in many new construction south of Greenville will provide relief in the Lake-wood Pines section and will also serve the television station, WNCN.

now under construction. For service to WNCN, the proposed cables will contain special channels for television transmission, Harrington added. New Building Construction of the new long distance operations building, to be located at Pitt and Fifth Streets, is planned to begin by early 1954. When completed and placed in service, the new office will contain all of the Greenville long distance operating facilities. The transfer of those operations to the new office will then provide space in the present central office for additional local dial system apparatus which will be added as needed, Harrington pointed out. The manager said that the company has just added 8 new long distance switchboard positions to better handle the ever-increasing message loads and he said that more dial equipment will be added within coming months to work in connection with the planned cable additions. One addition of central office equipment was completed early this year, he concluded. "The result of the expansion and improvement program announced today by the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company will be more and better telephone service in the Greenville exchange area. Since the end of World War II the number of telephones here has increased by more than 100 per cent and the demand is still growing. Our expansion program is designed, at least in part, to meet Greenville's increasing telephone requirements," Harrington concluded.

30 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
May 29, 1923

James Wheless, 13 years old, is a Farmville school boy, who is doing promising things in the development of the poultry industry on his own initiative. He saw the possibilities of what could be accomplished through the aid of an incubator. He did odd jobs until he had enough money to purchase a small brooder and set 180 eggs. The other day the "wooden mother" produced 128 chicks. Young Wheless kept his project to himself, for the reason, he explained, that he wanted to surprise his parents and friends. The other day he gathered a small crowd and invited them to attend his "surprise birthday party." When the chicks were counted, the spectators were astonished with the results, and he was warmly praised. Since he has demonstrated in a small way what can be accomplished, he contemplates using a large brooder. This is another striking evidence that the basis of advanced agriculture must be trusted to the boys and girls, many of whom in the Farmville section are going to follow Wheless.

The photograph at the right shows Mary Dunn Beatty and Ronald Le. das in another scene from the revue. Mrs. Vance Arnold will accompany the dancers in their various numbers in the revue. The entire revue is under the direction of Mrs. Marie Wallace, head of Marie's School of Dance.

Joint Hostesses To Lydia Wooten Class

The Lydia Wooten Class held its regular meeting on Monday night, May 25, at the home of Mrs. J. Ricks Corey with the following assisting hostesses: Mesdames O. E. Dowd, W. A. Darden, I. J. Edwards Sr. and J. L. Evans.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Paul Batchelor. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report was given. The Lydia Wooten and Wesley Philathea classes are paying expenses for an East Carolina College girl to attend Wesley Foundation Conference at Lake Junaluska.

The devotional was given by Mrs. David J. Whichard III, the class teacher. The topic, "A Good Neighbor." Scripture reading was the story of the Good Samaritan. Several poems were also used to illustrate how all could be good neighbors.

After a short social hour members were invited into the dining room to find a beautiful birthday cake and many presents as a surprise to Mrs. Whichard. Delicious refreshments were served, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Safety Council Warns Of Toll Over Weekend

CHICAGO (UP)—The National Safety Council predicted today that 240 persons will be killed on the nation's highways during the Memorial Day weekend starting at 6 p. m. tonight.

The expected toll would be as bad, and perhaps worse than that of Memorial Day holidays in the past, a council spokesman said.

Exact comparisons were not possible because this is the first two-day Memorial Day holiday since the council started keeping casualty records on the period in 1946, the spokesman said.

Ned H. Dearborn, council president, said the predicted death rate "cannot be taken lightly."

"We hope the estimate is too high, and it will be if everyone looks upon Memorial Day as an opportunity to honor the dead by protecting the living," he said.

Heavy traffic was expected during the weekend, although not necessarily of record-breaking proportions.

About 800,000 cars were expected to leave New York City alone tonight. The New York Central Railroad scheduled 30 extra trains for tonight, as well as extra coaches on regular sections, and the Pennsylvania Railroad added extra sections to Washington, D.C. and more coaches at all points in its system.

Capacity or near-capacity bookings were reported by airlines. Trans-World Airlines ordered extra flights to Indianapolis, Ind., to take care of persons traveling to the annual Memorial Day auto race there.

Hopes for a light holiday death toll were dampened by the Safety Council's report that traffic deaths last month set an all-time record.

Highway deaths claimed 2,804 lives, 10 per cent over last year's April and topping the 2,630 records set in 1952 and 1951.

Napkin Sale Off To Hopeful Start

The Greenville Exchange Club's sale of napkins to benefit the hard of hearing in the county got off to a good start last night.

Early reports show that around 600 bundles of five packages each, were sold in the first evening's sale.

In tonight's sale the Western and Southern part of town will be covered. Most of the eastern section of the county was canvassed in the drive last night.

The sale which is being conducted for the second year, will benefit the hard of hearing in Pitt County among the school population.

Last year the drive raised enough funds to enable the Exchange Club to purchase an audiometer, an instrument used in detecting defective hearing.

Since it was bought and placed in use more than 250 school children have been tested this year by the instrument.

With the funds raised this year by the sale the club hopes to be able to provide needed hearing aid equipment for those children found to have defective hearing.

Again club members pointed out that in the event anyone who desires to purchase napkins and are not at home when the Exchange Club members arrive they may contact any club member and the napkins will be placed in reserve for them.

Bradshaw Wins SBI Promotion

RALEIGH (UP) — James F. Bradshaw Jr., the State Bureau of Investigation's supervising agent for Eastern North Carolina, will become assistant SBI director here Monday.

Bradshaw will be succeeded by former Kinston Police Chief George E. Canady. The SBI's Eastern District headquarters will be moved from Burgaw to Kinston.

SBI Director James Powell said Lewis E. Williams and Richard W. Turkelson are being assigned to the newly created narcotics squad. Turkelson will be stationed at Hickory and Williams at High Point.

Small Twisters Strike 2 States

By UNITED PRESS
Two small tornadoes skipped through two states yesterday ripping out power and communications in Newcastle, Wyo., and sending roofs flying and leveling a cafe in Liberal, Kan.

No deaths or injuries were reported in Newcastle, but the power failure blacked out the community of 3,500 persons for more than two hours.

The small twister that hit Liberal flattened a new cafe under construction and bounced along a 30-unit motel, lifting the roofs of most of the units.

There was a report of tornado activity in west Texas with winds up to 65 miles per hour. A severe thunderstorm smashed at Dalhart, Tex., in the Panhandle.

At Pecos, Tex., 320 miles south of Dalhart, insurance agents said damage from a violent hailstorm and wind late Wednesday and early Thursday caused an estimated $650,000 damage in Reeves County, mostly to cotton crops.

Hailstones the size of golf balls cut a 10 mile swath in 3,500 acres of cotton in the area.

Coupled with the hailstorms was a heat wave which set temperatures soaring to 107 degrees at Presidio, Tex.

Elsewhere in the nation showers and thundershowers spilled down on the plains from Kansas to North Dakota and from North Dakota eastward into Minnesota.

Scattered showers and snow flurries in the higher elevations were reported from the west-central Rockies and driving rains fell on northern California and some parts of the Washington coast.

Thieves Entered Barn, Removed Corn And Sacks

GRIMESLAND—Thieves entered a barn on the farm of J. R. Moyer near here Wednesday night and made off with a quantity of corn and approximately 50 empty guano sacks.

Investigating officers, deputies "Duke" Andrews and Elmer Haddock said today the exact amount of corn stolen has not been determined but is thought to be "about 25 bushels."

The empty sacks, they theorized, probably were taken for sale elsewhere, and were not necessarily full of corn.

An investigation into the theft is being continued by the two officers.

Ninth Graders Move Up To Senior High

More than 140 ninth grade students at Greenville High School today moved up into senior high school at commencement exercises held at the high school.

The ninth grade students, girls dressed in white and boys in white shirts and dark trousers, this morning marched up the aisles of the high school auditorium to the Professional played by the high school orchestra.

O. E. Dowd, high school principal, read the names of the ninth grade students who were moving up into senior high school and they were accepted by J. H. Rose, city school superintendent.

The program centered around a theme, "Building For Tomorrow" which began with the "Prologue" by Frances Adams, president of the freshman class. Josephine Hendrix spoke on "Today Determines Tomorrow" and was followed by Nelson Blount speaking on "The Tool With Which We Build." Ronita Respass and Henrietta Swayne followed with "The Building Must Grow" and "Building For a New World."

The program opened with a hymn by the student body, "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee" followed by the invocation by Preston Cannon. A trio composed of Audrey Lykens, Josephine Hendrix, and Phyllis Faber sang "Boats of Mine." The program ended with "The Star Spangled Banner."

Bond Vote Will Answer The Question

Are citizens of the Greenville school district anxious to meet local school needs for expanded facilities, or are they willing for the schools to continue to operate under the increasing handicap of too little space?

That question will not be answered until Tuesday night when the ballots in the $1,500,000 school bond election are counted. But we hope the count shows voters of the district are heavily in favor of meeting local school needs.

It is going to be up to the 1,200 voters who registered for the special bond election to speak for the 3,700 students of the Greenville school district and the other 17,000 people who live in the district. If the answer given at the polls Tuesday is not in the affirmative for the $1,500,000 school bond issue, the outstanding educational program maintained in the public schools of the district for many years will have suffered a terrific set-back.

At the present time there are some 3,700 children attending the schools of the district. Next fall when the new school year begins, there will be over 4,000 children enrolled in the schools of the district. Even now there are 158 children of the school district who are attending classes in temporary buildings. In addition there are a number of children who have had to attend school on a "double shift" because of insufficient facilities to handle the enrollment of the district.

With the school enrollment in Greenville expected to be up some 400 next fall from what it is now, it is apparent that the number of children in temporary buildings or on a "double shift" will have to be increased next year. Unless some additional facilities are ready by September 1954, the number obviously will increase even more as it will in ensuing years.

Even though the school bond issue will have to be repaid out of a special tax levy in the district, local citizens can ill afford to turn thumbs down on this pressing need for more school facilities.

The Reflector joins many others hereabouts in urging a vote for the youth and the future of the community — a vote in favor of the school bond issue.

Isolationism Is Dead; Leave It Buried

Isolationism as a philosophy toward international relations is an outmoded doctrine which in the present-day close community of nations can only lead a country to disaster.

Senator Robert A. Taft's "go it alone" proposal for the United States in the Korean War, while it is not outright proposal for complete isolationism, leans heavily toward the old isolationist point of view. Under present world conditions the United States nor any other nation could long survive if it attempted to build a huge protective wall to cut itself off from the rest of the world.

Certainly the situation in Korea has reached a crucial point. Certainly it is revolting to the United States to send its men and materials into a war, finance the efforts of its allies in the war, and then find itself balked by those same allies when the time for a reasonable settlement arrives.

For the United States to "go it alone" in Korea irrespective of the views of its allies, would destroy the nation's whole league of friendships with other free nations of the world. It would thrust us immediately into the isolationism of bygone days.

To withdraw from the Korean conflict now and leave the battle in the hands of our floundering allies — as often has been the temptation in the past three years — almost certainly would lead to the fall of Korea and probably all Southeast Asia to communism. And there again, this nation would be thrust into isolationism.

President Eisenhower stated the nation's position aptly when he pointed out "If you are going to go it alone in one place, you of course have to go it alone everywhere." Bitter lessons of history have taught that the United States, powerful as it is, can not go it alone everywhere and still survive the seige of time and aggression of enemy nations.

Such a solution would be folly to attempt, and it is indeed a tragedy as well as folly for a man in Mr. Taft's position to propose such a thing. In our estimation Sen. Taft's proposal can do no good, and yet the repercussions from it may prove a handicap which will be difficult for the United States to overcome in a brief period.

Selected Short

President Eisenhower has made a balanced budget one pillar of his domestic policy. The President wants to cut taxes, but he gave top priority to the balanced budget.

That position is sound—both morally and financially. It demonstrates a willingness to meet obligations. It shows awareness of the menace of inflation. All of us would like lower taxes. That is all the more reason for strong leadership to make us face the need for sacrifice required for living within our national means.—(Nat'l Association of Manufacturers) day that Ike romped through the state from Boston to the Berkshires. In short, Saltonstall and Lodge forgot that a Senator must be an errand boy as well as a statesman, a servant as well as a leader.

Two others in the 1954 class—Bridges and Ferguson—have made a similar mistake, although not to the same degree as "Salty". In extension, it should be noted that, as minority members during the Roosevelt-Truman regime, about the only things they could deliver to the voters were speeches on great affairs of state. They had no patronage.

APPRENTICE'S LESSON—Ironically, a young, shock-haired slip of a politician, who first ran for public office last year, has taught an elementary lesson in practical statesmanship to the distinguished 60-year-old Saltonstall. He did not have to tutor Chairman Hall, who knows all the tricks and will use them next year.

This master at high and humble politics is Senator John Fitzgerald Kennedy, son of the former Ambassador to England and 1952 victor over Lodge. Kennedy's forte is also foreign affairs. His book, "Why England Slept," furnishes an excellent insight into why Hitler achieved such striking military triumphs in the early years of World War II.

YANKEELAND PROBLEMS—But this concern has not kept him from giving attention to everyday economic problems that beset Yankee land, especially the emigration of textile and other industries from this original citadel of manufacture to the New South. He has led the movement for Congressional or Federal action to restore the economic balance between the two sections.

He wants the Taft-Hartley Act modified so that employers' harangues to southern workers against "pot-bellied" Yankee union organizers shall be declared an unfair labor practice. He argues that this arouses racial, regional and economic prejudice. He wants Uncle Sam to readjust trucking and railroad rates he regards as discriminatory. He also charges taxation favoritism to plants emigrating to Dixie.

Asking The Boss For A Raise

Somebody Told Me . . .

'Playing Doctor' Worked Fine

This business of being a parent consists of constantly dreaming up ways to meet the challenges that arise. Take for example, this business of visiting the doctor. If you have children, those visits get to be almost routine unless you are exceptionally lucky.

And quite naturally the child begins to howl at the very idea. That is, unless you can use super salesmanship on the child. Wednesday afternoon our daughter, Nancy, 31 months, was treated without a peep. It may never happen again, so let me brag about it before the plan flaps.

The elevator is a big factor in the sales job. The child associates elevators with doctors, so you have to break down elevator fear. Frankly, I accidentally stumbled on a method. One day Wife Rachel and I were visiting in the hospital and Nancy wasn't allowed in. So at intervals we kept her occupied.

"During my 'sitting' time we rode up and down on the elevator. You know, those elevators are operated by the passenger so there was no imposition on the operator for us to ride and down. All we did was run the hospital's electric bill up and contribute to the wear and tear. But the mission was accomplished: Riding an elevator became an enjoyable project and remains so.

The other step is even more fun than riding on an elevator. It's called, "playing doctor." At first the parent takes the role of the doctor and wears an imaginary stethoscope. "Let's listen to the little girls," you say with all of the gusto you can muster.

For five solid minutes you wander around on the chest and back, all of this time making eyes at the ceiling as if you are making important discoveries. Even at two and a half, the patient enjoys your concern.

Then you dramatically punch the stomach here and there. Next looking at the ears is a big deal because you employ the imaginary flashlight. Nancy especially enjoys my turning up her nose to see what's there.

But opening the mouth to say "Ah" presented a problem at first. However, when we started having a contest to see which one of us could stick out our tongues the farthest it became a great game.

The most enjoyable part of the game is to let the child be the doctor and you be the patient. You must anticipate this; the child will be rougher on you than you were on him—or rougher than the doctor is on him.

"Playing doctor" really paid off, but if Nancy screams on the next visit you'll never hear me admit it. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

ECC: A UNIVER Y FOR THE EAST (Rocky Mount Tele.) Dr. J.D. Messick, capable president of East Carolina College, makes no bones about it when he says he wants the Greenville Institute to assume the proportions of a university for all of Eastern Carolina. In this connection, it is interesting to note that a Rocky Mount man, Mr. Arthur L. Tyler, has been named to the No. 1 spot on the college's Board of Trustees. As vice chairman, Mr. Tyler ranks behind only Dr. Charles Carroll, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who is officially listed as chairman of the Board.

Through the recent action of the General Assembly, East Carolina College has been given expansion program. It is understood that not only new buildings, but new courses and additional aid to students, in the form of scholarships, soon will be available for East Carol College. Most of the expenses for the new look at ECC are being borne by the State. It is true, but private individuals and certain communities also are lending a hand, particularly with the scholarship problem.

There has been some talk, but it is supposedly still in the conversation stage, that an agricultural department would be founded at the college. This would be good news for this great farming section which has come to look to ECC for many things, but has not received her share in one of the most important phases of this section's existence: farming. With all due respect to the work that is being accomplished by N.C. State College and its Extension Service, there seems but little reason why an agricultural department could not be established at East Carolina, where many day students could take advantage of the training even while attending to their own farm chores at the same time, something which is impossible to do at N.C. State because of the distance involved.

East Carolina College has growing leaps and bounds. It now ranks with the leading colleges in the state and ranks well with other southern institutions of higher learning. It is staffed, is rapidly acquiring excellent equipment and is, in fact, becoming Eastern Carolina's University. We believe that all of Eastern Carolina is proud of this fine institution and we believe that placing such men as Mr. Tyler in position of influence should further boost ECC.

Our advice is not to let East Carolina College short. In fact, our further advice is to get behind the program Dr. Messick, et al., are trying to develop at Greenville and lend a hand wherever possible in helping ECC flourish what we believe to be its mission: Providing an institution of learning in many fields for our section's youth.

more than half the administrative units—87 out of the total 172—had joined the state fund for insurance protection. The rest of the administrative units buy insurance from private companies.

LIMITATIONS — North Carolina laws limit the amount a privately owned insurance company may carry on one risk to 10 per cent of the policyholders surplus. In practice very few companies approach that limit, but distribute the coverage through re-insurance. The School Fund has $443,000 in the equivalent policyholders surplus, and under the same limitations would not be allowed to have more than $44,300 on any one risk. Actually, however, since the Fund carries the entire risk and many buildings included have insurable value of a million dollars or more each, the need for some re-insurance is evident. So the recent General Assembly amended the act to authorize the Insurance Division of the State Board of Education to buy outside coverage when it seemed advisable to do so.

LOSSES — The School Fund paid a loss of $194,000 for one fire at Franklinville early this year. The increasing loss ratio is shown by the report that for the first year of operation, July 1, 1949, to June 30, 1950, the Fund collected premiums aggregating $128,331.26 and paid losses in the amount of $15,925.69, a loss ratio

Business Today National Sales Tax?

By ELMER ROESSNER The Treasury, in its study of a national sales tax, may find that there is a tremendous amount of opposition to it among businessmen. Secretary George M. Humphrey has disclosed that, in a broad examination of revenue problems, it is considering such a tax as an alternative to the excess profits and other taxes due to expire.

These expiring taxes, President Eisenhower told Congress last week, will eventually mean a loss of $8 billion a year in Federal revenue.

A certain sales tax would have to be hefty to make up that sum. Total retail sales for the year ending April 1 were $167 billion, according to Department of Commerce figures. Of this, $40 billion were sales of stores in the food group, which presumably would be largely exempt from such a sales tax leaving $127 billion on which to levy. Let's assume sales will continue at those figures.

A 1 per cent tax would gather in only $1.27 billion, less the cost of collection, which might be quite heavy. Even a 6 per cent rate would bring in less than the needed $8 billion.

A 6 or 7 per cent rate would be crushing on retail trade, so it can be assumed that if a sales tax is decided upon, rates will vary on different types of goods, or that other taxes will supplement it.

Even a 4 or 5 per cent tax, especially when laid on top of state or city sales taxes, which now range up to 4 per cent, would be restrictive on sales. This would be especially true in the basement.

"I used to sit in the shelter at night and wonder if we would ever be together again. I don't think I could go through all that time again. No, I couldn't. As you get older there are some things you cannot do."

"When I left the gas works—I had got along well there—they gave me a tribute. They said that if any of my sons after the war wanted employment they would give it to them. And now I have five sons at the gas works, all in good jobs."

"My husband is a postman, 33 years in service. But he loses a lot of time through illness. He was gassed in the First War. He works at night, and sleeps in the day. He gets up at 9 o'clock and tries to get in bed by 10, because my day starts at 4 o'clock in the morning."

"Week ends is the only time you have pleasure. On Saturday night I go out with the boys and have a drink. But I do it in turn, as there are 11."

"We're a happy family. We all seem to agree, and I think that's a good thing, isn't it?"

"The war seems to have altered things in this country. Conditions are better. Babies look better, and mothers take a little trouble with them than they used to. They're tidier."

"We seem to be getting plenty of everything. I really think in three years time people in this country will be better off than they have ever been."

"No, I'm not going to the coronation. I'll watch it on television. We have our own set. My husband, my two boys at home and I each watch it for 30 shillings a week to pay for it."

"I've seen two coronations, but there never was the feeling at those that there is at this one. They're all doing something about it."

"I think she's loved by everybody—the queen. She must be. Royalty is something we've always had and looked to. But people of our class don't see a lot of royalty, although they do visit us occasionally. Of course if we could see more of royalty, if we went to Buckingham Palace and stood outside."

"But I like the royalty, and I think everybody else do."

"But I like the royalty, and I think everybody else do."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS THE MAN BEHIND THE WHEEL All during these summer months, millions of Americans are riding in their automobiles along the highways of the nation, hastening to or from a vacation. Every day, tragically, some of them will die in needless accidents.

Driving a car is a phase of human conduct like other activities. Like the rest of our conduct, it reflects our nature. Our driving may be inconsiderate, thoughtless, reckless, or even wicked; it may be careful, competent, or admirable. All of us express our natures in our daily living. And if we drive a car, that is merely one form of expression.

It can, however, be a very dangerous form. Ordinary rudeness, such as not tipping one's hat or crowding ahead of others through a doorway, may be unpleasant, but it is seldom fatal. But when a man becomes rude and aggressive with a ton or two of steel moving a mile a minute, the consequences may be frightful indeed.

Human life is not only sacred; it is divine. Only God can give it, and not all the efforts of scientists have ever found a way to create it, or to restore it once it has been destroyed. No amount of money, good will, or remorse can replace a life snuffed out in an accident. Remember that, when next you sit behind the wheel.

National Whirligig
GOP Off-Year Election Outlook

By RAY TUCKER WASHINGTON—In his very first scouting of Republican chances of retaining control of Congress in the 1954 elections, National Chairman Leonard W. Hall has run into unexpected difficulties. His early bird work so soon after becoming the party's generalissimo is accounted for by the interest which the supposedly non-political President Eisenhower shows in next year's judgment of his record.

The GOP must re-elect 11 incumbents facing the voters in order to preserve its one-man margin in the Senate. It must defeat several sitting Democrats in order to gain a firmer grip on the upper chamber, which must ratify foreign agreements, underwrite financial advances to our allies and approve diplomatic appointments. It is this body—the men like McCarthy, Bridges, Ferguson, etc.—which has given most embarrassment to the White House in the foreign field.

Discrepancies In Value And Valuation Of State Property

By LYNN NISBET STATE PROPERTY — If it were necessary for the State of North Carolina to list property for taxation, as it is for privately owned corporations, somebody would have one whale of a job in determining the value. The Budget book carries a table of real estate holdings, including lands and buildings, at a value of $367,731,692 last July. But that valuation is fixed on such absurd bases as $8,110,209 for the state capital and office buildings around the square—upon which more than $8 million has been spent within the past ten years. It counts the entire highway system at $298,999, despite the fact that more than $300 million has been spent on the highways within the past five years. Difficult as it might be to appraise the value of the dirt owned by the State, the real task comes in the question of coverage for insurable property.

INSURANCE — A report made to Governor Umstead about two months ago by Waldo Cheek, commissioner of insurance, on the status of the State Property Fire Insurance Fund points out some of the problems. It also notes that currently there a total of $220 million coverage on insurable property owned by the State. Through a plan of re-insurance on risks in excess of $50,000 and other policies adopted by the department, this coverage has been obtained at a very attractive premium rate.

"COVERAGE—The report notes that originally the State Fire Insurance Fund was not intended to cover personal property unless housed in State-owned buildings. Neither did it cover motor vehicles, farm machinery, boats, or animals. Cheek observes that with some $300,000 worth of textbooks and an equal amount in new automobiles stored in rented warehouses pending distribution, as well as millions invested in motor equipment the inadequacy in coverage is obvious.

AUTOMOTIVE — The State owns at least 16,100 motor vehicles, exclusive of "tractors, bull dozers and boats. The list includes 7,400 school buses valued at $17,020,000; 6,900 passenger cars valued at $8,280,000; and 1,800 trucks valued at $1,800,000—an aggregate value of $27,100,000.

NON-FIRE — Some 300 of the state-owned passenger cars are also insured against theft and other hazards under a fleet policy bought through the agents' association. Theft and damage insurance is being arranged for other state property, such as art pieces, historic relics, and similar items of considerable intrinsic value.

SCHOOLS — One of the chief insurance problems is what to do about the schoolhouses which do not belong to the State but are covered under the School Insurance Fund established by authority of a 1949 act. At date of the Cheek report to the Governor of 12.4 per cent. But for the entire period of operation, July 1, 1949, through January 31, 1953, the premiums collected amounted to $985,719.51, and losses paid $360,862.87, a loss ratio of 37.6 per cent.

RATES — There was vigorous protest in 1948 when the General Assembly, under leadership of Senator Edwin Pate of Scotland, himself an insurance executive, adopted the self-insurance policy for general state property. There was a more bitter fight against establishment of the School Insurance Fund in 1948, as being too socialistic for North Carolina. Both steps were taken to combat what legislators and the board of education members felt were exorbitant rates being charged by the private companies. The result was that the companies discovered they could carry the risks for a lot less than had been charging, and in most instances now the premiums paid private companies for excess coverage are essentially the same as the premiums required by the state agencies.

QUESTION — Serious thought is being given to the question whether the School Fund should continue in the risk-carrying business, and there are some who believe the State might well move out of that phase entirely. There has been no suggestion, however, that the State retire from a competitive position with respect to guaranteeing that gains made through lower premiums rates be preserved and maintained. There is no danger that the state's insurance will be turned back to private companies for the imposition of whatever rates they might like to impose.

EXPERIENCE — In any event, it is apparent need for a more thorough and credible experience record on public school losses. The experience classification under which rates are fixed embraces all "educational institutions," including private schools, colleges and universities. It would seem that public school plants, often consisting of just one building, might carry a lower risk rate than colleges and universities where exposure to fire hazard is greater. The whole field of insurance on state-owned property and school houses in which the state has invested many millions of dollars needs studying, along with many other phases of governmental activity. Some of the practices now in use have, like Topsy, just grown. Certainly, a plan that worked well when the aggregate investment was a few million dollars in scattered places, should not be expected to work so well when the amount is in the billion dollar class and the hazards greater.

per cent. But for the entire period of operation, July 1, 1949, through January 31, 1953, the premiums collected amounted to $985,719.51, and losses paid $360,862.87, a loss ratio of 37.6 per cent.

RATES — There was vigorous protest in 1948 when the General Assembly, under leadership of Senator Edwin Pate of Scotland, himself an insurance executive, adopted the self-insurance policy for general state property. There was a more bitter fight against establishment of the School Insurance Fund in 1948, as being too socialistic for North Carolina. Both steps were taken to combat what legislators and the board of education members felt were exorbitant rates being charged by the private companies. The result was that the companies discovered they could carry the risks for a lot less than had been charging, and in most instances now the premiums paid private companies for excess coverage are essentially the same as the premiums required by the state agencies.

QUESTION — Serious thought is being given to the question whether the School Fund should continue in the risk-carrying business, and there are some who believe the State might well move out of that phase entirely. There has been no suggestion, however, that the State retire from a com-

The Way of Christian Love

PAUL ADVISES AFFECTION TO SOLVE CHURCH CONTROVERSIES

Scripture—1 Corinthians 12-13.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

OUR LESSON assignment today comprises two of the most beautiful and helpful compositions in the New Testament. We know from previous lessons that the church in the great city of Corinth was far from harboring a spirit of brotherly love.

There was strife there, lawsuits were brought by brother against brother. There were schisms, jealousies, immorality, boastfulness. The church certainly needed Paul's lesson of love.

In all the centuries since Paul's time there have been bitter divisions in Christian churches. The same faults that marred the Corinthian church have often been disrupting influences in the churches of today.

Disagreements over the interpretation of our Holy Bible; over church doctrine and practices; jealousies, quarrels of many kinds, are often rife. Every minister in every Christian church might well devote one sermon a year to the 13th chapter of 1 Corinthians, to remind members of what Christian love means.

Our commentator devotes his words to the 13th chapter of our lesson, but I think lessons are to be contributing his or her bit to help make the world a pleasant place in which to live.

"But covet earnestly the best gifts; and yet shew I unto you a more excellent way," Paul ends the 12th chapter of this epistle. The better way is love.

"Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not love, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal."

"And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not love, I am nothing."

"Even if I give all my goods to feed the poor, or give my body to be burned, without love, it profiteth me nothing."

"Love suffereth long, and is kind; love envieth not; love vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up; doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil."

"Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things."

"Love never faileth; but wheth-

be learned also from the 12th chapter, where Paul points out that each person is gifted in a different way.

"There are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit. And there are differences of administrations, but the same Lord. And there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh all in all."

Some have the gift of wisdom. Paul writes: to another faith is given; to another gifts of healing; to another the working of miracles; to another the gift of prophecy; to still another a gift of "diverse kinds of tongues."

Paul points out that no one need be envious of another because the latter has a different gift than himself. As all the parts of our bodies are necessary to us, but constitute a single body, so all the gifts of the various members of a church are necessary to the proper functioning of that body.

If we each use the gifts bestowed upon us—working faithfully, day by day to do our best, the business executive, the machinist, the laborer, the career woman or housekeeper need not envy, or be puffed up either about his or her position in life. Each or there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away."

"When I was a child, I spake as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things," writes Paul.

Childish things—are not envy, jealousy, hatred, peevishness, childish things that we should put away from us when we grow to physical adulthood? And are not these the faults we should help our children to outgrow?

"And now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love."

Members of church congregations might well read (and reflect) on those words of Paul's, and forget their differences, settling them in love rather than aggressiveness.

Disputes between married couples might end happily if they remembered the words of Paul, "Love suffereth long and is kind; doth not behave itself unseemly."

Parents who chide or punish their children would probably get better results if they too remembered that "Love never faileth."

'High-Handed' Rhee Causing UN Headaches

By PHIL NEWSOM United Press Foreign News Editor

South Korea's high-handed President Syngman Rhee is throwing a monkey wrench into United Nations machinery—and not for the first time.

Rhee, 78, is a man of many contradictions. He is Korea's foremost advocate of democracy, and at the same time its not always so benevolent dictator.

He also is, in his own eyes, Korea's indispensable man. Rhee currently is boycotting the Korean truce talks. He says Korea will recognize no peace reached without "adequate" Korean representation, and that his forces will continue to fight if a truce leaves Korea divided.

Rhee's truculence has caused trouble before. In 1949 he had neither arms nor an army. But he was proclaiming publicly his intent to invade North Korea—and win unification by force if necessary.

It was just so much oratory, but the Communists used it a year later as a mask for their own aggression against South Korea. A year ago Rhee suddenly slapped martial law on South Korea, setting aside constitutional government. He professed to see a Communist conspiracy behind the battle lines.

It was coincidental, however, that at the same time he was at loggerheads with the Korean assembly, which then was empowered to elect a new president and which was certain to overthrow him.

He demanded election by popular vote. In the ensuing row, he threatened to pull South Korea troops out of the line to enforce his martial law. He had 12 of the opposition assembly men arrested, one on a charge of murder and the other 11 on charges of conspiracy.

It was regarded as more than a coincidence that he thus assured himself a winning vote in the assembly. Simultaneously, he was warning the United Nations to keep hands off Korean internal affairs. Now, once again, he is causing trouble, but this time with more than oratory.

Rhee has no air force to speak of and no artillery. But he does have 14 tough, American-trained divisions, with two more forming.

If he decides to launch an attack to the north against U.N. orders, he could keep the war going indefinitely.

Rhee is strongly influenced by a number of people. He is a great admirer of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Constantly beside him is his Austrian-born wife. She keeps tabs on his police organization and is held in awe by all South Korean generals and politicians.

A South Korean of influence is a former premier, home minister and vice presidential candidate, Lee Bum Suk. He says openly that any "outside decision," such as peace at the present battle line, cannot be binding on South Korea.

And he says that in spite of such a peace, he would muster an army of 1,000,000 men and send it to the Yalu.

Bright Leafs Beat Red Men As Independents Score Win

Only Three Hits Given Up By Two Winning Pitchers In Last Night's Pony League Contests

The Bright Leafs handed the Red Men their second loss of the new Pony League season last evening by the score of 9-2. In the second contest of the night at Third Street Park, the Independents won their second game in as many tries by turning back the Ford-O-Matics 9-3.

Pitcher Arnold of the Bright Leafs had a homerun to aid his efforts in the win. Contributing two hits in the victory was catcher Duff, who had a double and single in four times at bat. McGee and Sugg were the only Red Men who were able to get on base with a hit.

Eleven Red Men were out by way of strikeouts, and Arnold issued only two walks in gaining the win.

Behind the one-hit pitching of Ike Riddick, the Independents romped to victory over the Ford-O-Matics in the second game. First baseman Mike Riddick, leftfielder Dunn and shortstop Roebuck each had two hits for the winners.

Riddick struck out eleven of the losers' batsmen and issued seven free tickets to first. Fields was the pitcher credited with the defeat.

Tonight at the Third Street Park the two games on the Softball League slate are Garner-Wynne-Manning versus Granite at 7:30 and Home Builders versus Wagner-Waldrup immediately following.

Vukovich Plans For Win In Race On Memorial Day

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UP)—Bill Vukovich planned today to get what he missed by 10 minutes a year ago—a win in the annual 500-mile Memorial Day race.

The front-running daredevil and his race car last May 30 slammed into the wall of the Indianapolis Speedway only eight laps short of victory, when he was 25 seconds in front of the field.

He led the pack of 33 race cars for 150 of the 192 laps he covered and Saturday when the race goes on again before an expected audience of 175,000, he wants to do the same thing for the full distance.

"I'm going to try to stay in front all the way, if possible," he said. "I don't plan on many pit stops. Two are the most."

Vukovich was rated a standout favorite in the fastest field ever to reach the starting line for the annual speed and endurance test.

He will open the scramble from the inside position in the first of the 11 rows of three cars each, earning the favored spot by his qualifying speed of 138.392 miles per hour for four laps, or 10 miles, on the asphalt and brick oval.

His qualifying time was the second fastest in history, and he set it on the first day of trials. The full field qualified at an average speed of 136.435 miles per hour, compared with 135.504 for the 1952 list.

It was ill luck that sent Vukovich against the wall. The accident occurred when a steering rod broke, and his misfortune put Troy Ruttman in front to win the prized trophy and its cash accompaniment.

Boston's Parnell Loses First; Brooklyn Edges Giants By 7-6

By CARL LUNDQUIST
NEW YORK (UP)—It was a good time today to watch certain managers closely to prevent suicide leaps.

The waters of the East River must have looked tempting to Leo Durocher of the Giants when he drove home over the Brooklyn Bridge after another maddening defeat to the Dodgers, 7-6. And Eddie Stanky of the Cardinals might have felt like jumping in front of the train instead of boarding it for St. Louis Thursday night after a 10-10 tie in Cincinnati in a game they should have won nearly an hour before it was halted by a curfew agreement.

Al Lopez might have felt safer with bars on his hotel windows at St. Louis after his Indians blew a 7-5 decision to the lowly Browns Sunday because castoff Bob Elliott went wild and drove in six runs with a grand slam homer, a single and an infield out.

Ditto for Lou Boudreau in Philadelphia where he watched Mel Parnell finally lose to the Athletics, 6-1, after beating them nine straight times.

Fred Haney at Pittsburgh could not have felt too chipper when his Pirates couldn't win with 15 hits against Jim Konstanty, who struggled to a route-going 9-8 victory for the Phils, simply because he didn't have ace reliever Jim Konstanty available to take over for him.

There was we again for Bucky Harris at Yankee Stadium, where he is used to it, as Bob Forterfield was pounded instead for his fourth defeat, 7-2.

The other teams had off days, sparing their managers frustration.

The Giants lost their second straight last ditch battle in Brooklyn when Hoyt Wilhelm couldn't keep his knuckler from dancing past catcher Ray Noble, who had been imported from Minneapolis expressly to handle it.

Peeewe Reese struck out in the 10th but reached first safely as the ball eluded Noble. A late throw on a bunt by Duke Snider failed to nail Reese at second and both runners moved up on a wild pitch. After Jackie Robinson was purposefully passed another knuckler to Roy Campanella got past Noble and Reese whizzed in with the winning run. Earlier Snider had driven a triple and Wayne Belardi had hit his first homer for Brooklyn in the pinch role. Tookie Gilbert homered for New York.

The Cards blew an 8-4 lead acquired mainly as rookie Ray Jablonski drove in five runs with a

Moye Meets May In Finals For Local Golf Champion

Defending Champion Reynolds May will match strokes with Simon Moye, Jr., at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the first 18 holes of the Moye shot under-par golf Tuesday and Wednesday to defeat W. L. Allen in the semi-finals, while Reynolds May was beating Dr. Billy Brown in a close battle in the other semi-final match.

The week-end match presents two golfers with impressive tournament records. May has averaged 75 strokes per tournament round during the seasons play in 12 different tournaments. He is former Coastal Golf Association Champion as well as winner of the Greenville Championship on several occasions.

Moye won the Greenville Championship in 1946 and was runner-up in 1947. His total average for the Coastal Golf Association this year was 76 strokes per match, just one behind his opponent in the finals.

The play for the club Championship is match play, and thus far the tournament both golfers battling in the finals have been shooting good golf.

Saturday and Sunday May and Moye will be playing over the local links in a two-some and spectators are invited to watch the match. There is no admission charge.

Boxing Guild Wins Battle With TV Fight Promoters

NEW YORK (UP)—The International Boxing Guild has won its battle with television fight promoters for a guarantee of at least $4,000 for main event fighters appearing on coaxial cable TV bouts.

The agreement, which was reached Thursday, will be effective Sept. 15.

In its original demand, the guild asked a $5,000 minimum for each main event.

Each fighter on the Friday night TV shows now receives $3,600. On other TV bouts, the purse for each principal ranges down to $1,000.

single and homer, giving him 31 for the year and a runner-up spot in the league to Campanella's 51. Two-run homers by Grady Hatton and Andy Seminick in the eighth and ninth tied it at 8-8. Then Cincinnati Manager Rogers Hornsby had a chance to blow his top when reliever Bubba Chynoweth went sky-high with two singles, a wild throw, a hit batsman and two walks to give St. Louis two runs. Jim Greengrass singled home two for Cincy in the 10th. The game will have to be replayed entirely later.

Rookie Dave Hoskins, who had twice beaten the Browns in relief, gained a start but couldn't hold down Elliott or Vic Werba, who also homered. Bobby Avila hit a Cleveland homer.

Parnell, who had won six straight and hadn't lost to Philadelphia since April 20, 1951, was beaten on a five-hitter by rookie Marion Fricano, a former upstate New York soccer player. Tom Umphlett homered for Boston's only tally and the A's sewed it up for Fricano with three run rallies in the second and sixth.

Whitey Ford pitched his fourth straight victory, a five-hitter, and also drove in two runs with a single as his league leading earned run average dropped to 2.09 for the Yankees.

The Phils made a 7-3 lead acquired mainly as Konstanty stood up as Konstanty took his pounding, yet scored his fourth victory.

Red Sox Tops In Minor League

Greenville's Minor League Red Sox are entrenched in first place in the league standings. The Sox, above, have won five games, while losing only one. Trailing closely behind are the Capitals with a 5-2 record. The Capitals beat the White Sox in yesterday's game, 15-2.

Ward Advances To Finals Today In British Meet

By HENRY THORNBERRY
HOYLAK, Eng. (UP)—Defending champion Harvie Ward of Atlanta charged into the semifinals of the British Amateur golf tournament today with a 5 and 4 victory over C.W. Windrow of England.

Ward met Bobby Perowne, British Walker Cupper, in the afternoon semifinals. Perowne beat W. Draper of England in the quarter finals today 4 and 3.

Ward is the lone surviving American in the tournament, and he breezed to victory as easily today as he did in two top-sided matches yesterday.

He took a 6 up lead over the English candy maker on the first nine holes this morning, mostly because of the Brits' wild shots from the tee. For Ward it was strictly a matter of taking it easy.

The man Ward is favored to meet in the finals is Joe Carr of Ireland. Carr took another step forward this morning with a 1 up quarterfinal victory over J.T. Lambie of England.

Cecil Beamish of Ireland beat a Dixon Rawlinson of England, 4 and 3, in the other quarterfinal.

Ward won six of the first nine holes this morning, and then went seven up on the 10th. He lost the next two. But then they halted the following two to close out the match.

Ward has had only one tough match in the tournament—a 1 up victory over Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., in the fourth round. He won his second round match over John Howard of England, 7 and 6; his fifth round over Alan Turner of England, 7 and 6; and his sixth round over G.B. Wolstenholme of England, 5 and 3.

Windrow was wild on the first nine, and continued that way on the 10th when he hooked his drive into the rough. He won the 11th when Ward three-putted, and he won the 12th by chipping three feet from the hole while Ward missed a nine-footer.

Both sank four-footers to halve the 14th, ending the match.

Big Ten All Set Today To Extend Bowl Contracts

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UP)—The Big Ten was set today to extend the Bowl contract for another three years, but it wanted to use its own method to determine which conference team shall complete.

Faculty representatives voted Thursday presumably by the anticipated margin of 6 to 4, to accept the invitation from the Pacific Coast Conference to renew the contract.

However, apparently because of requests from Illinois and Purdue to change the method of selection of the team, the negotiating committee selected to iron out details of the contract was directed to attempt to secure an arrangement whereby each conference picks its representatives on its own terms.

The current contract requires that no team from either conference plays more often than once in two years. Under the original five-year contract the Pacific Coast sent its champion annually while no Big Ten team could compete more often than once in three years.

Both Illinois and Purdue favored the "one in three" clause and hoped to write it into the new renewal of the agreement.

Win By Jaycees Throws Them In Tie With Lions For First Place In Standings; Each Has 5-2 Record

Yesterday's 5-1 wallop over the Exchangeites gave the Jaycees a first place tie with the Lions in Little League play. Both top two teams have a 5-2 record.

The JC's Arthur Andrews effectively scattered four hits, to gain credit for the victory. He fanned five Exchange batters and walked only two players. The only extra base blow off his offerings was a double by Dick Evans.

Pitching was not all that Andrews was doing in yesterday's win, for he had two hits to pace the Jaycee batters at the plate. Walter Lee Allen, Buddy Murray and Richard Nobles had doubles for the winners.

Losing pitcher Evans got out seven JC stickmen by way of the strike-out route and issued four bases on balls.

Currently in a tie for third place, the Elks and Kiwanians will go to each other today at Elm Street Park at 5 o'clock.

Former Champion Leads In Western Golf Tournament

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—Freddie Beale, of New Orleans, La., and former champion Marly Furgol, of Lemont, Ill., led the way into the second round of the Western Open golf tournament today after opening two strokes off par with identical 68's.

But from the top stars down to the amateurs, it was generally agreed that the revamped, 6,574-yard Bellverre course was no push-over. The usual complaint was that it is too hilly and has tight, narrow fairways.

Among those who shot par golf were Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., a pre-tourney favorite, and the veteran Ardmore, Okla., pro Dutch Harrison.

A description of the first or second pictures in each roll will identify each batch. Include your exposure data where the lighting conditions were unusual so you can benefit in the future from your experience.

Wherever possible let signs, signposts, billboards and well-known landmarks tell their own story. And, since this is a personal record, don't hesitate to get the personal in the pictures by having your wife a member of your party, or yourself in them. It needn't be obvious or stiffly posed; on the contrary candid-type pictures of the actual role of sightseer-looking, examining or even resting—will be authentic and still personal.

A full pictorial story of any trip will include answers to typical questions you can expect on your return like "Where did you stay? Where did you eat?" and show the hotel you stopped at, the restaurant and other typical street scenes. While you're at it, include a shot of the hotel doorman, the taxi driver, news vendor, etc. In all cases, vary your shots by coming in for close-ups as well as getting the long shots to establish the scene or locale.

Just one word of advice about the idea of anyone being able to pick up a foreign camera, while abroad, at incredible bargain prices. "Don't!" There are too many angles of import restrictions, servicing, metric markings and resale values of which the casual buyer is simply not aware. Editor John Wolbarst goes into these dangers at greater length in the June issue of Modern Photography.

Well, you can get back to packing. Now I wish I had followed the urge to finish the line, "I prefer instant coffee because..." # Former Congressman Says Probes Cut Into Red Ranks

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UP)—Former Rep. John S. Wood said today that partly as a result of work done by the House Un-American Activities Committee he headed, Communists have decreased in number from more than 80,000 to about 20,000 in the United States in five years.

Wood said that in addition to its primary duty of reporting to Congress on Communist activities, the committee "has done a patriotic service of inestimable value in alerting the people as to what communism and Communists really are, how they operate and how we can resist their inroads."

Wood said in an address before the Georgia Bar Association that while a member of the Un-American Activities Committee he refrained from discussing its work in public but that "now I am glad to speak out frankly."

Wood retired from Congress in January. He was chairman for almost six years of the controversial House committee now headed by Rep. Harold H. Velde (R-III). "It is no longer subject to debate that our national security is threatened by the world-wide Communist conspiracy," Wood said. "It seeks to poison every phase of our life."

He said that there is still much work to be done on Communist control in the United States "because the American people generally know very little about how the Communist party operates. The theory of communism may be summed up in a single phrase—abolition of private property."

Wood said the movement "always has been, is now and will be in the future completely controlled and dominated" by the Kremlin. He said that "encouraging signs of progress" against communism "should not alter our resolve to adopt an aggressive and militant policy toward the Communist party."

He said he knows of a Pittsburgh, Pa., labor union composed of 2,800 "loyal American members," but which was "invaded by a Communist party infiltration group and soon completely dominated by these intruders." He said the Red group never totalled more than 22 and at times had only 19 members. Wood said that he learned from the many witnesses who appeared before his committee that one or more of ten factors usually contribute to the "making of a Communist."

He said these factors included promises of personal advancement, "misguided reliance" on the Communist claim of being the workers' champion, attraction to communism's offer of a "one-package" solution to the world's ills, personal hardship, lack of faith in the democratic system, participation in Communist front groups, influence on students by Red college teachers, and influence of prominent persons who sometimes innocently are led into the Communist cause.

Open House Marks Start Of New Business In City

Open house today and tomorrow at Herring's Radio and "TV" Service, located in a new building at 1006 Dickinson Avenue, will mark the official opening of the most recent addition to Greenville's business enterprises.

The proprietor of the radio and television repair service, 42-year-old Robert M. Herring, Jr., says he is primarily interested in service, but will have new equipment in that line for sale.

"We feel that we have the most modern test equipment in Eastern North Carolina," declares the proprietor, "and we are prepared to render service to consumers, dealers and distributors alike." He adds that the company will offer pickup service, with two trucks in use at all times.

Herring urged that all citizens of the city visit his new business either today, tonight, tomorrow or tomorrow night, because he will be open until 9 p.m. on both dates. "We want people to come by and see just what we do have to offer," he states.

Having been engaged in the radio repair business for 18 years, Herring moved to Greenville from Beaufort, in Carteret County, where he operated the same type business as the one he has constructed here.

He is married to the former Miss Effie Creech of La Grange, and they reside at 1804 South Elm Street. The couple has two daughters, Bobby Jane, 18, and Patricia Anne, 16. The oldest girl plans to enter East Carolina College next fall, and Patricia is a student at Greenville High School.

Colorful Pageant Of Coronation To Be Among Greatest In Modern Times

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (U.P.)—The coronation of Britain's 24-year-old Queen Elizabeth II June 2 promises to be one of the greatest pageants of modern times.

Some 7,500 of the select will see the long religious rites in Westminster Abbey, scene of all British coronations, since William the Conqueror was crowned in 1066.

In addition more than 2,000,000 persons, representatives of all parts of the world are expected to line the procession route to hail the Queen before and after the Abbey ceremonies. And uncounted millions will receive details of the solemn event by radio and television. This will be the first time Abbey ceremonies are televised.

The ancient ceremony—its beginnings actually predate Christianity—will be a grueling two and a half hours for the young Queen.

The next rite is the presentation of the Queen's ring, "the ensign of kingly dignity." It goes on the Queen's left hand in a garment of pure white. Then, as she sits in King Edward's chair, with four Knights of the Garter holding over her a canopy of gold the Colobium Sindonis (a sleeve-fourth finger of her right hand. Following this, the Archbishop gives her the sceptre of the Cross—and the sceptre of the dove, "rod of equity and mercy."

Finally, the actual crowning with St. Edward's Crown, a magnificent ermine-circled gold crown, with twin pearl and jewel encrusted golden arches meeting above the purple velvet cap inside. The circlet is so heavily laden with jewels it weighs nearly seven pounds. Only for the few minutes during the coronation ceremony will it be worn. As the Archbishop puts it on her head all those in the Abbey shout repeatedly, "God save the Queen," and the peers and peeresses and the kings-of-arms put on their coronets.

Homage
The trumpets blare again and the great guns of the Tower of London are fired to tell the crowds the Queen is crowned.

Then follows an anthem, presentation of the Bible to her, and the impressive ceremony of homage from her husband, Prince Philip, the Archbishop, the bishops, and peers. The head of each order, removing his coronet, kneels and says: "I, Duke of . . . do become your liege man of life and limb, and of earthly worship, and faith and truth I will bear unto you, to live and die, against all manner of folks. So help me God."

The communion service follows, with Elizabeth removing her crown, and finally she retires to St. Edward's chapel. There she takes off her robe of state and puts on a robe of purple velvet. She also puts on the imperial crown of state—much lighter in weight but studded with no less than 2,783 diamonds, 277 pearls, 17 sapphires, 11 emeralds and five rubies.

Still holding the orb and the scepter with the cross, the newly crowned queen leaves the Abbey while the national anthem swells forth.

The long ritual of coronation is over.

Cool And Fair

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 77 degrees.

Lowest temperature here last night was 49, and that's 12 degrees below normal for this time of the year. Mrs. Carl E. Maiden, local observer for the U. S. Weather Bureau, reported. At 8 a.m. today it was 63. No rain.

In contrast to the 12 degrees below normal here last night, the highest temperature in Greenville Tuesday was 97 degrees, and that's 14 degrees above normal. Lowest point the mercury reached that night was 54, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 74. No rain.

N.C. Business Activity Tops April Of Year Ago

RALEIGH—North Carolina business activity as reflected in 19 economic indicators showed a decline in April as compared with March but showed an increase as compared with April a year ago, according to the results of a survey by North Carolina Research Institute and published in its weekly publication, North Carolina Facts, released today.

In releasing the results of the survey, the publication announced that a similar issue dealing with current business activity in North Carolina will be published once each month.

Six economic indicators were compiled from approximately 30 North Carolina towns and cities: Bank deposits, postal receipts, building permits, electric meters, telephones, and express shipments.

Additional indicators tabulated were total State revenue collections, income tax collections, sales tax collections, gasoline tax collections, ABC store sales, new corporations chartered, passenger car registrations, truck registrations, receipts from farm marketings, life insurance sales, non-agricultural employment, and average weekly earnings of manufacturing employees.

Although total State revenue collections and income tax collections registered a sharp drop in April as compared with March, it was pointed out that this drop was to be expected in view of heavy income tax payments always made in March.

On the other hand, the report reveals an item of considerable significance in that income tax collections for April this year were off about 19 per cent as compared with April a year ago.

Gasoline tax collections also registered a decline for the year, although a much less decline than income tax collections. On the other hand, sales tax collections showed an increase of 15 per cent in April as compared with March and an increase of six per cent as compared with April a year ago.

Fifty-eight seniors will be graduated at the final program scheduled at 5 p.m. on the front campus. The speaker will be ACC's recently appointed president, Dr. Travis A. White of Lubbock, Texas.

Dr. White, minister of Lubbock's First Christian Church, will assume his duties here on July 15.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, Dr. D. Ray Lindley, the college's retiring president, will preach the baccalaureate sermon at First Christian Church of Wilson.

The final meeting of the trustees will be held in the Clarence L. Hardy Library Sunday at 3 p.m.

A reception for the seniors and their families will be given by the faculty Saturday night at 8 o'clock in Harper Hall.

The degrees will be presented to the seniors by Dr. Lindley and this action will close three years of service as president of Atlantic Christian. He will leave Monday to assume his duties as administrative vice-president of Texas Christian University.

Highway Travel Shattered All Records In '52
WASHINGTON (UP)—A record number of 53,258,570 automobiles, trucks and buses crowded America's highways in 1952.

The total figures out to about one vehicle for every three Americans.

The Commerce Department said 1952 registrations reported by state agencies totaled 43,810,531 automobiles, an increase of 2.6 per cent over 1951. Truck registrations totaled 9,207,897, an increase of 2.3 per cent, while there were 240,142 buses, a rise of 4.2 per cent.

Registrations by states included: Alabama, 777,285; Florida, 1,178,682; Georgia, 1,021,722; Louisiana, 755,590; Mississippi, 524,062; North Carolina, 1,171,015; South Carolina, 673,270; Tennessee, see 933,900; Virginia, 1,034,011.

Spiritual Significance
Every move, every word must be remembered. Although the Queen's responses are short, she must speak from cue, must remember without prompting just which of the symbols is to be touched, accepted or handed back to one of the officiating clergy, and at what point she is expected to kneel, sit, face the people in the Abbey or stand for robing.

The event is more than a colorful pageant. Every move has deep spiritual meaning and the whole service emphasizes that the life of Elizabeth henceforth is dedicated to God and to her more than 600,000 subjects.

Here is what goes on in the Abbey, in a ceremony which has changed little in 1,300 years.

The service is held in the open space in front of the altar. The space—just for the coronation—is covered with a rich blue and gold-carpeted platform known as "the theater."

The theater is furnished with a chair of estate; an oak throne, known as the coronation chair, made by King Edward I in 1300 to contain the famous Stone of Scone, and a throne mounted on five steps.

The Anointing
After Elizabeth, dressed in crimson robes, has walked in procession up the nave to the theater, she is greeted with the traditional shouts of "God Save the Queen" and is recognized by the throng in the Abbey.

Trumpets blare, the regalia for the ceremony is carried up by the lords to be placed at the altar, and the Archbishop of Canterbury administers the oath to the monarch.

Now comes the anointing—the most sacred part of the ceremony, signifying glory, holiness and fortitude.

For this, Elizabeth steps into a chair on one side of the Abbey and puts on a garment of pure white. Then, as she sits in King Edward's chair, with four Knights of the Garter holding over her a canopy of gold cloth, the Archbishop puts sacred oil on her brow and palms using the ancient spoon and ampulla, oldest objects of the regalia.

The Queen then takes her place in the coronation chair, facing the altar, and is draped in a full long robe of white linen and lace called chapel at one side of the Abbey and less garment rather like a bishop's cloak.

Next, Elizabeth receives the symbols of her majesty, beginning with the golden spurs of St. George, symbolizing knightly chivalry, which are brought from the altar and touched to her hand, and a sword in a purple velvet scabbard, which is girded about her.

St. Edward's Crown
As the sword is girded, the Archbishop tells her, ". . . with this sword do justice. . . protect the Holy Church of God, help and defend widows and orphans. . ."

The Queen is robed again, this time in a royal cloth of gold, and, seated, she is presented with Orb of the Cross, signifying the sovereignty of Christ over the world.

Gout And Genius Often Linked, Is Doctor's Opinion
FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Don't laugh at people who have gout, laud them.

That's the idea of Dr. John M. Church, who's made a study of the disease once believed to be caused by excessive eating and drinking.

"Maybe that explains why gout sufferers never got sympathy—it was regarded as something like a hangover," Dr. Church said, "and people laughed at it."

Gout is really a form of arthritis and extremely painful.

Some of the victims of the disease—driven by intense pain—have contributed something really creative to the world, the doctor's research showed. Victims like Alexander the Great, Lord Tennyson, Martin Luther, Sir Isaac Newton, Samuel Johnson, John Milton, Charles Darwin and Gen. Winfield Scott.

Would 'Amplify' Beams Of Light
NEW YORK (AP)—A problem before electronic engineers at the RCA laboratories is the development of a true amplifier of light.

At present the method is to convert light first to electricity, amplify it, then turn it back to light. Engineers say this is the reason for many of today's complications in television.

They hope some day to find a way to create a device that will make it really possible to amplify light directly.

HE FOUND OUT
JACKSON, Miss. (UP)—Police charged Robert E. Dickey of Houston, Tex., with burglary when they found him watching a "crime does not pay" show on a television set stolen from a store.

If Sun Shines On Coronation Day, Peers Will Sweat

By RANDOLPH CHURCHILL

Despite the fact that special air conditioning equipment has been installed which will change the air every hour, it is bound to become disturbingly warm when 7,500 people are packed into it.
None of the distinguished guests is likely, however, to be as cramped and uncomfortable as the two officers—a lieutenant colonel and a captain—who will be confined in a narrow but perched in a corner of the triforium high above St. Edward's Chair in which the queen will be crowned. This wooden hut was described by an official as being "a kennel too small for a medium Alsatia dog."
The job of these officers is to give the signal by radio for the troops to fire the great guns at the split second when Queen Elizabeth II is crowned. While the archbishop is slowly lowering the crown onto the queen's head the colonel will be whispering into his subordinate's ear "one, two, three, four, five—yes!" Then from Hyde Park and the Tower of London the guns will thunder to let the people know that their queen has been crowned.
During the appointing of the queen in the abbey the canopy will be held by four Knights of the Garter—Viscount Alandale, the Duke of Wellington, the Earl Porteseus and the Duke of Portland.
One of the most striking figures in the abbey will be the young, and exquisitely beautiful duchess of Devonshire. Recently, in an old box at the duke of Devonshire's palatial home in Derbyshire, she found the red velvet coronation robes and tress worn by a previous tuchess of Devonshire.
The dress is made of the same red velvet as the robe, and is cut very low over the shoulders.
The duchess wrote and asked the earl marshal whether his regulations permitted her to wear such a low-cut gown. He replied that anything which had been worn at a previous coronation would be entirely suitable for this one. So the duchess will be the most décolleté of all the peresses.

Psychologist Turns Wary Eye On Television And Its Audience

By JACK GAVER
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—For better or worse, a psychologist has turned his attention to television to find out what makes both audiences and performers tick.
Harold Greenwald, the expert in question has first considered the appeal of Todd Russell and why audiences like him. To anyone who has seen the affable Russell at work, the answer is rather obvious and scarcely needs to be explained through application of psychology.
However, venturing into a new field, Greenwald probably felt it was necessary to start with some fairly easy subject such as the human star of the popular "Rootie Kazootie" puppet show on the ABC network and the head man of the CBS network's "Wheel of Fortune" program.
Russell, Greenwald discovered, has above average ability to express complicated and difficult ideas in simple language. He has superior verbal ability, but is able to reach people of little or no formal education.
Russell identifies himself close with his work. On or off camera he is the same. For example, in taking a projective test of Russell, Greenwald found that the performer kept "seeing" characters of the "Rootie Kazootie" program.
"He has a vivid enthusiasm of a kind that most men lose in their teens," Greenwald explained, "and a sensitivity to other people with a great need to communicate and to be accepted and liked by others. He is sincere."
Of the speculation in psychological circles that TV audiences often identify performers with father or mother figures, Greenwald concluded in Russell's case that:
"It is clearly indicated that he registers as a good-natured kid brother figure—always ready to help out."
In running tests of TV viewers, Greenwald found that:
"The audience seem to be able to identify themselves most closely with a person who reminds them of a non-threatening personality in their own childhood background. They accept most willingly a performer when convinced of his sincerity."
Tests that measure the audience or TV empathy factors may as yet not be able to predict artistic success, but they can help eliminate those who are hopelessly unfit for the medium."

Cortisone Helps Prevent Damage To Young Hearts
By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—Large doses of the hormone cortisone, given to children soon after their first attack of rheumatic fever, will prevent apparent heart damage, two groups of medical scientists told the annual meeting of the American Rheumatism Association today.
Drs. Lawrence Greenman, F. A. Weigand, and T. S. Danowski of the Pittsburgh Children's Hospital said that 90 per cent of children tested who had but one attack of rheumatic fever which lasted less than two weeks recovered fully with cortisone injections.
Of the one-attack children who had rheumatic fever from two to six weeks, 86 per cent recovered without evident heart damage. But when the duration was stretched to more than six weeks before the cortisone treatment began, only 7 per cent recovered from the fever without damaged hearts.
Dr. Greenman said 90 children were studied in all. He and his associates had also treated rheumatic fever children with the hormone ACTH, but the number was too small to be indicative. Of the two who had rheumatic fever from two to six weeks, the heart of one was returned to normal. Three patients who had the disease more than six weeks failed to respond.
Dr. Mary G. Wilson, speaking for herself and four associates in the department of pediatrics, Cornell University Medical School, said the early administration of cortisone or ACTH "favorably alters the natural course of active rheumatic fever by arresting the inflammatory process before there is any irreversible damage to the heart."

Her group worked with 33 children whom they treated with the hormones for an average of seven days. She said "in the majority of patients there was termination of the attack with reversal of chamber enlargement of the heart and a return of the normal heart reserve without overt clinical evidence of increased heart damage."
These were positive reports to the rheumatism and arthritis specialists on the "wonder" hormones. A negative one was made by Dr. A. Bradford Hill and Dr. J. H. Kellgren of England, who said they had found aspirin just as effective as cortisone in treating rheumatoid arthritis in the early stages.

Doctor Approves 'Genteel Vices'

NEW YORK (UP)—For a graceful old age, a physician said last night, a person should have a few genteel vices.
Dr. Russell L. Cecil, addressing the American Geriatrics Society, prescribed specifically for old folks:
Alcohol—It dilates the blood vessels which are likely to become constricted with age. (Cecil said a patient who took her first drink at 80 and grew to be an incorrigible alcoholic was unusual.)
Tobacco—Not necessarily good for anyone, but the pleasures outweigh the dangers, particularly if one is over 60.
Eating—Obesity should be avoided at all costs, but that shouldn't cut down the pleasure of eating proper food.
Drugs—Barbiturates and bromides should be prescribed freely to relieve the insomnia which make many people unhappy.
Laziness—Just for the pure luxury of it, provided there's some exercise too.
Cecil said he does not approve of such vices as lying and stealing—at any age.

Panty-Raiders Of State College Again Rebuffed

RALEIGH (UP)—N.C. State College students, angry at the way police crushed their attempted panty raid Wednesday night, returned to the Meredith College campus last night, but were unable to snatch a bribe.
Sixty-two students involved in the earlier raid were scheduled to appear in city court today to face charges of unlawful assembly, resisting and obstructing police in the line of duty, creating a disturbance, participating in a riot and moving toward an object with destructive intent.
Other students rallied around a bonfire on the State campus here before marching on the quiet Baptist girls' school last night.
Donald Hoffman of Passaic, N.J., a textile student, said few of the students were serious about the raid.
Howard Well, YMCA representative on the State campus, tried unsuccessfully to persuade the students to return to their dorms. However, the students began drifting back at about midnight.
One student who declined to give his name said the raid was to pay back Raleigh police for their "rough handling" of students during the previous raid.
Police Lt. L.C. Massey said officers were tipped off on the raid and police were waiting at Meredith when about 150 State students appeared at the entrance.
United Press correspondent Tom Howard, on the scene, reported the students were "howling like a bunch of maniacs." Howard said a group of students pushed a railway boxcar into the middle of a street near the college but police made them push it back into place again.
Howard quoted one youth as saying a policeman had shot over his head while the youth was escaping from the Meredith raiding ring.

THE HEART OF JULIET JONES

POGO

TO KISS, OR KILL

By Day Keene

Chapter 9 Mandell stood where he was a moment longer, then walked down the hall to the steel door opening on the fire well. He was in too deep now to turn back. On the fourth-floor landing Mandell paused, remembering that the killer fled down the fire well. He walked on more slowly. He had nothing to fear from the killer. Or had he? He looked at the expensive watch he'd bought after his fight with Gus Lesenovich. The man had been gone for ten minutes. He opened the fire door into the foyer. A uniformed starter was changing a name in the directory on the wall. He nodded when he saw Mandell. "Good morning," Mandell answered. He started to take his hand out of his pocket and remembered looking after him. Mandell walked on, even faster. It might be fifteen minutes before Mr. Curtis was found. It might be an hour. It might be five hours. When he was found, the police would pick him up again, but until then he would be with Gale. He passed the Palace Theatre and waited for the light to change an hour. It might be five hours. When the light turned green, he walked on with the crowd, and a sudden gust of wind tugged his expensive, two-year-old hat from his head. Mandell grabbed for it and missed. A man walking west tried to stop it. The man behind him caught it and picked it up. A stolid, unsmiling man, he automatically brushed it with his sleeve. Then as if suddenly frightened, he pushed the fawn-colored hat into Mandell's extended hand and hurried on, alternately looking back over his shoulder and down at the sticky substance on his fingers. Mandell stood rooted to the pavement, looking at his hat, ignoring the jostling crowd around him. Part of the hat's underbrim was smeared with blood as the sleeve of his topcoat. But it hadn't been blood that had puzzled the starter. It hadn't been blood that had frightened the man who picked up his hat. There were two neat round holes punched in the crown. Bullet holes. The light changed from green to red. Car horns blasting in his ears, Mandell walked on to the curb. The blood was easily explained. The blood belonged to Mr. Curtis. But how explain the two bullet holes? A new fear nagged at Mandell's tired mind. Had the killer been shooting at him or at Mr. Curtis? Which one of them had the man in the doorway meant to kill? At whom had the man been shooting? Outside of Mr. Curtis' shouting, "Down! Hit the floor, Barney!" no words had been spoken. There had been only the click of the light switch and the burst of shots. But the two shots that had punched holes through the crown of his hat hadn't been fired at Mr. Curtis. Mr. Curtis had been standing in front of the window, near the file case, on the far side of the room Mandell looked across the street at the windows of his hotel, the hotel where Gale was waiting, back of one of the closed windows. He felt suddenly drained and cheated. He couldn't go to Gale. When Gale saw the blood on his topcoat and the bullet in his hat, she would ask more questions than the police. He felt in his pocket for a cigarette and found he had none. He had no cigarettes and no money. After all the thousands of dollars he'd made, he couldn't even buy a package of cigarettes, a cup of coffee. He walked on, scanning the store fronts. A few doors south of Chicago Avenue he found a pawnshop open. "Yes sir. What can I do for you?" Mandell slipped his watch from his wrist and laid it on a purple velvet pad on the counter. "It'd like five hundred on the watch." "That's a lot of money," the pawnbroker said. He screwed a jeweler's glass in his eye and pried off the back of the watch. The pawnshop was warm and smelled like a pawnshop. Mandell shifted his topcoat to his other arm. "I paid two thousand dollars for it. There are six diamonds in the dial." The pawnbroker reversed the watch and looked at the diamonds through his glass. Then he took the glass out of his eye, pressed the back on the watch, and laid it on the pad. "I can't go for five hundred, mister. But I can let you have three hundred." "I'll take it," Mandell said. The pawnbroker filled out a ticket and gave Mandell a card to sign when he got the money from the safe. Out on Clark Street again, Mandell bought a package of cigarettes in a drugstore, then stood on the corner of Chicago Avenue, debating what to do. "Flipping his cigarette into the street, he thrust two fingers into his mouth and whistled down a cruising cab. "Wentworth and Thirty-eight," he told the driver. "I'll tell you where from there." As he settled his bulk against the leather upholstery, he added, "And somewhere along the line, I want to buy a box of candy and some flowers." "Right," the driver said. He knew his celebrities. "Say, you're Barney Mandell, aren't you?" Mandell rode holding his topcoat on his lap. "That's right." "They let you out of jail huh?" "So it would seem." (To be continued)

AN ECONOMICAL NEW KIND OF CAR!

With the HUDSON JET you can outperform any other car in the lowest-price field!

CALL IT A CHALLENGE IF YOU WANT TO—BUT IT'S A FACT!

We don't ask you to take our word for what this compact new kind of car will do. Because on any road, street, hill or highway you select, we'll outperform and outdemonstrate any other make of car in the lowest-price field.

What's more, this compact companion of the fabulous Hudson Hornet will do it with less gas, oil, tire wear and maintenance than any of them! You think that's a powerful statement? You're right! But the Hudson Jet is the most powerful performer you've ever seen!

Because it's wonderfully compact, it's a delight to handle, drive and park in today's traffic... and there's ample room for six.

GIVE US 15 MINUTES AND WE'LL PROVE IT!

Standard tires and other specifications and accessories subject to change without notice.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks registered a recovery today, the first in a week.

It was a feeble rally accompanied by lighter volume as traders moved cautiously in advance of the weekend shutdown.

Railroads performed best of the major groups. The steels ruled firm, coppers steady to firm, and oils irregular. All of the aircrafts made fractional advances. Utilities alone were down.

Southern Railway opened strong. It sold at 95 1/4 up 1 1/4 points and later dipped to 94 1/2. Delaware, Lackawanna & Western firmed on a few sales. Great Northern preferred was up nearly a point. New York Central gained a half and gains of nearly a point were set by Northern Pacific and Southern Pacific.

In the oils, Amerada lost 1 1/2 points, the widest change. Pacific Western Jersey Standard and Socony-Vacuum eased slightly. Sinclair equaled its low and then registered a small net gain. Chemicals were steady to firm with duPont up 1/2 point. International Telephone was active in the electronics at a small gain. Willys-Overland featured the market in turnover and sold down a fraction.

Air Chief Differs With Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (UP)—General Nathan F. Twining, President Eisenhower's choice to head the Air Force, has warned Congress he is worried about the nation's home air defenses, it was learned today.

Informed sources revealed that Twining told a closed meeting of the Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday there definitely are not enough fighters and interceptors to protect the United States against an enemy air attack.

The disclosure, underlining his opposition to Air Force budget cuts the President has endorsed, came just before the committee approved his nomination as chief of staff.

The committee also unanimously approved Adm. Arthur W. Radford, once a bitter Air Force critic, as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Army chief of staff, and Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations.

Chairman Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.) said he would be "surprised" if there is any opposition when the nominations go before the Senate for confirmation next week.

Twining's warning on home defenses came after an earlier statement during a public committee session that appeared to put him at odds with the man who appointed him—Mr. Eisenhower.

In an exchange with Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.)—a former Air Force secretary, Twining said budget cuts proposed by the new administration, will "delay" achievement of the 143-air wings goal he believes essential to national security.

Scarcely more than an hour before, President Eisenhower told a news conference that the $5,000,000,000 slash in the new fund request of the Air Force would not endanger the nation's security.

Radford was reported to have discussed a blockade of the Chinese coast as a possible course of action if truce talks fail. But he said it would not be feasible now because it would involve the British port of Hong Kong.

Young Pupils Staged Their Own Circus

Pupils in the two second grades at Third Street School are shown dressed in costumes for a circus held at the school Wednesday. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Approximately seventy students of the Second Grades of Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Worthington, with the assistance of their music teacher, Mrs. Joan Gray, gave an outstanding Circus performance for their parents and the general public, on Wednesday afternoon from two o'clock until three-thirty, ending their entertainment with pink lemonade punch being served their audience.

Material for the Circus was the outgrowth of subjects and stories studied during the school year about circus, animals and the life, customs and music of foreign countries. Mrs. Worthington and Mrs. Perkins, allowed the children full scope of their imagination in the interpretation of the animal acts, sounds, and the large animal heads used in the animal parades and acts were made by the children.

Bootleg Still Is Found By ABC

After nearly a month of searching, local ABC officers struck pay dirt yesterday. The first illicit distillery to be uncovered by County ABC officers this month was found yesterday in Carolina Township.

A three-man raiding force composed of Jim Ward, H. B. Lilley and J. L. Taylor discovered the still, which was not in operation—in the Post Oak Road School section.

The still was a 50-gallon copper unit complete with 150 gallons of mash. Included in the outfit was a 50-gallon cooler barrel and a five-gallon doubler. The still was fired with homemade oil burners.

Funeral On Saturday For Mrs. H. H. Wilson

Mrs. Susie Brown Wilson, 84, wife of Henry H. Wilson, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dan Dove Jr., 1816 Grace Street in Wilmington, Friday morning following a long illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Andrews Mortuary in Wilmington Saturday morning at ten o'clock by the Rev. William Crowe Jr., pastor of the Wilmington Presbyterian Church, and burial will be in the Brown family cemetery near Greenville at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Wilson, daughter of the late Benjamin and Frances Lewis Brown, was born in Pitt County near Greenville. She was a former resident of Columbus, Ga., and went to Wilmington a few years ago to make her home with her daughter.

Short Sleeves Now Permitted

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Commerce Department has struck a blow for male freedom.

Assistant Secretary James C. Worthy issued this memorandum to collared employees:

"During the hot summer season, comfortable clothing is important to efficiency. Those of you who wish to wear neat short-sleeved shirts without ties while at work, may do so without objection by the department."

horses doing rope tricks, and solos of "Marriage of Fly and Bumblebee" and "Bo-Peep and Lost Sheep" were enjoyed.

The Marine Hymn, played by the rhythm band, lacked nothing in rhythm, timing and pep, and, taking into consideration the number of children performing, their behavior, acting ability, and enjoyment of their own circus, their teachers, as well as the children, made a tremendous hit with their Circus, and certainly showed the results of a full and well rounded school year.
