Dubious Korea Welcome Awaits U.S. Trouble Shooter

By RUTHERFORD FOATE
United Press Staff Correspondent
TOKYO, Thursday (UP)—President Eisenhower's personal trouble shooter goes to Korea today, as the war enters its fourth year, to make a new—and possibly final—attempts to get Korean President Syngman Rhee to accept an armistice.

quarters in event that mobs try to storm them.

But there was also a slight softening of the South Korean truce attitude.

Rhee said in an NBC television interview that his conference with Robertson "may open new channels so that the settlement of the peace talks may be more agreeable to us and perhaps more honorable to the United Nations."

Rhee also promised Gen. Mark W. Clark, supreme U.N. commander, to notify him in advance if he withdraws South Korean troops from the U.N. Command in event that an unacceptable armistice is signed.

Rhee's foreign minister, Pyun Yung-Tae, one of the most clamorous opponents of the armistice, said Rhee might accept if the political conference after the truce is limited to "three or four months."

Robertson will deliver a personal letter to Rhee from Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. It is reported that the letter contains a promise that the United States will enter a security pact with South Korea if Rhee agrees to the truce. The Communists observed the last day of the third year of the war by losing a 6,000-man attack on United States and South Korean positions. American Sabre jets shot down six Russian-made MIG-15 jet fighters.

Rhee, who rebuffed Clark's attempts to change the South Korean government's adamant stand against the truce, ordered the entire population of his capital to pour into the streets tomorrow in protest.

Robertson refused to disclose publicly the contents of his secret message for Rhee but it was believed to be a "compromise plan" in answer to Rhee's own three-point proposal for peace.

Washington sources said the U. S. flatly rejected Rhee's demands for a time limit on a post-war political conference to settle the problem of a divided Korea, withdrawal of all foreign troops, particularly the Chinese Communists, and a security pact with the United States.

It was believed Robertson had with him a guarantee from President Eisenhower that the United States would agree to a mutual security pact if Rhee supported the armistice.

Rhee expressed a willingness to sit down and talk with Robertson, yet he showed no sign of wavering from his stand against the truce recently negotiated by the United Nations and the Communists.

The 78-year-old president ordered all of Seoul's 1,000,000 citizens to pour into the streets Thursday, third anniversary of the Korean war, and demonstrate peacefully against the truce.

Even though Rhee remained immobile, Robertson appeared cheerful as he arrived here to receive a first-hand report from Clark before proceeding to Seoul.

"Despite all the difficulties, we still are hopeful that we may be able to remove the misunderstandings standing in the way of achievement of peace in Korea," he said on his arrival.

Clark and his personal diplomatic adviser, former U. S. Ambassador to Japan Robert Murphy, went to the airport to greet Robertson and his party, which included U. S. Army Chief of Staff J. Lawton Collins, Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs Carl McCord and Kenneth Young head of the State Department's Northeast Asian Desk.

U.S. Officials Counting On Prayer And Persuasion Rhee Price Unacceptable

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Administration officials said today they were banking on "prayer and persuasion" to check South Korea's violent campaign against a Korean truce.

They called President Syngman Rhee's latest price for cooperation completely "unacceptable." They still hoped he could be talked into lowering it.

These officials spoke up as a 20-man Swedish delegation to supervise an armistice headed for Washington on their way to Tokyo.

The South Korean mess would encourage other members of the truce commission to follow suit.

There was no hint as to what retaliation the Allies might undertake against Rhee and his supporters if they carry out threats to ignore an armistice. For the administration the answer to the big question remained, "we are determined to get a truce."

While still hopeful Rhee could be persuaded to support a truce, officials said it was "obviously impossible" to meet these demands although they might be used to bargain some more during the next few fateful days.

Rhee has threatened to continue the war unless foreign troops are pulled out of Korea and he has demanded an American-South Korean defense pact before an armistice. He also would resume the war if a political conference did not settle the "Korean problem" after three months of negotiations.

Officials pointed out that withdrawal of foreign troops would leave the North and South Koreans pitted alone ready to fight at the slightest provocation. Furthermore, they said President Eisenhower's offer to start negotiations on a defense pact was contingent upon Rhee's support for an armistice after it is signed. Neither was there any disposition to consider starting the war again if a deadline set by Rhee were not met by political conferees.

Rep. Martin Seeks Getting Bill To House Floor Maps Strategy For Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (UP)—Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R.) said bluntly today he will use "every possible means" to get the administration's excess profits tax extension bill to vote on the House floor.

Martin said he first will attempt to get 13 members of the House Ways and Means Committee to sign a petition to force Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-N.Y.) to let the committee vote on the legislation.

Reed is adamantly opposed to the extension. He abruptly cancelled a meeting of his tax-writing committee today because he feared it might be used to force a show-down.

That action in calling off the meeting, Martin said, was Reed's answer to the President's appeal.

The excess profits tax situation was the main subject at the White House meeting, Martin said. He said that the "unanimous sentiment" was that the House "should go ahead and utilize every possible means of getting it to the floor."

Martin said a "great many" Democrats had assured him they will vote for extension.

The Ways and Means Committee hand been scheduled to go ahead today with another in its long series of hearings on a broad revision of the federal tax system. But with the excess profits tax due to expire next Tuesday, Reed apparently figured the administration forces might be ready to make a "now or never" move.

Forced Labor In Russia Again Reported To UN

GENEVA, Switzerland (UP)—A United Nations committee charged today forced labor exists in Russia "in its fullest form and in the form which most endangers human rights."

The U.N. Committee on Forced Labor accused the Soviet Union of violating the U.N. charter by operating compulsory work camps to attain its own political and economic ends. Bulgaria, Romania and Czechoslovakia also were accused of running similar systems for the same reasons.

City Council To Discuss Budget

Budget matters are scheduled for consideration at a meeting of the Greenville city council slated for tomorrow night in city hall.

The meeting, set for 8 p.m., will be the second regular session this month as prescribed in Article I, Section 1 of the city's charter.

The charter calls for a "regular meeting... on the first day of each July, and on the first Thursday in each month and the last Thursday in each June."

Suggest Special Session Of UN

LONDON (UP)—Britain favors calling a special meeting of the United Nations General Assembly soon if South Korean President Syngman Rhee continues to block a truce, authoritative diplomatic sources said today.

Prime Minister Churchill was said to feel that such a session would demonstrate to Rhee that world opinion condemns his actions in releasing prisoners and insisting on continuing the war.

'Little Coronation' For Queen Elizabeth Staged By Scotland

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UP)—Queen Elizabeth II rode in state today from her Holyroodhouse Palace to St. Giles Cathedral and, in a dramatic moment likened by some Scots to a "little coronation," held in her hands the ancient crown of Scotland.

It was believed to be the first time since the union of England and Scotland in 1707 that a British monarch had touched the crown of Scotland and jewels centuries older than crowns used at the June 2 coronation.

More Polio For Caldwell County

LENOIR (UP)—Dr. William Happer, Caldwell County health officer today reported five new cases of polio, bringing the county's total to 41 for the year.

Happer said one child was hospitalized at Charlotte while four others, two whites and two Negroes, were taken to an Asheville hospital.

Asks Tenth Man To Try Form French Gov't

PARIS (UP)—President Vincent Auriol asked Independent Party leader Joseph Laniel today to try to form a new French cabinet following refusal of businessman Antoine Pinay to seek the long-vacant premiership.

Laniel, a little-known conservative, was the 10th man approached by Auriol in his effort to end the five-week crisis and form a government in time for the Bermuda Big Three conference.

Fourth Year Of War In Korea Starts

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—Two full Communist regiments assaulted Allied positions on the central front today as the third year of the Korean war ended.

From 5,000 to 6,000 Reds drove into American and South Korean defenses a round Sniper Ridge and Boomerang Hill just west of Kumhwang.

One attack failed under strong American resistance, but the second assault lasted past sun up.

Gasoline, Fuel Oil Prices Rise For Pitt Pumps

Pitt County found gasoline prices higher this morning while farmers found the price of fuel oil used widely for tobacco curing likewise had gone up.

Effects of the increase in gasoline, fuel oil and kerosene prices felt by major oil companies began being felt here Monday when at least one company raised its prices. A few others followed yesterday, and by this morning practically all service stations were showing new prices on their gas pumps.

Scapegoats Sought As Riots, Firing Squads Still In Evidence Plan Purge In Red Germany

BERLIN (UP)—Threats of a sweeping purge of East Germany's Red regime were made today by frightened officials seeking scapegoats for the continuing, violent anti-Communist revolt.

Red courts, down to the level of justices of the peace, were working overtime dealing out death penalties and other harsh punishment to lower-echelon Germans tagged with responsibility for the uprisings.

Communist Premier Otto Grotewohl told a mass meeting of East Berlin workers that responsibility for "past errors" would be fixed within 14 days and hinted broadly that high members of the government would bear the consequences.

Indications of a bitter power struggle for power within the East German party also were seen in Grotewohl's speech, in which he revealed he had been under strong pressure to resign as premier. He said he refused.

The pressure was believed to have come from Moscow-trained vice premier Walter Ulbricht, long Grotewohl's rival for party control.

Further evidence of internal confusion were seen in sharply contrasting orders, promises and directives as frantic authorities worked at cross-purposes to cope with the spreading, eight-day-old revolt.

Grotewohl ordered the release of scores of East Germans arrested for participating in anti-Red riots and promised that only the "genuinely guilty" would be punished. Notorious "Red Hilde" Benjamin, the woman vice president of the Soviet zone supreme court, ordered extended court sessions and empowered police and justice courts to deal out death penalties to anti-Communists.

Martial law was tightened in the vital uranium belt today amid new outbreaks of bloody rioting.

UP COMES THE NEW, DOWN GOES THE OLD.—With the installation of the new "white way" type of lighting which gives the main street of Greenville a daytime appearance at night, the poles which supported the old lighting system comes down. Since the first of the week, crews of the Greenville Utilities Commission have been taking down the old green light poles. (Reflector Photo by Muriel Shotwell)

Wants No Two Cats To Have Same Name

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, (UP)—Some people are catier than cats, and you can ask Mrs. Fannie O. Mood of Arlington, Va.

Mrs. Mood, who works for the Cat Fanciers Association, has been registering cats from all over the country for nine years. Hardly a day goes by but that she runs into a ticklish situation. It seems that no two blooded cats dare run around wearing the same name—registration-wise.

"Five or six times a week I get names like Tabby, Whitey, and Blacky from several people at the same time," she said. "I don't have to make a search to tell the folks that these are common names. Then what do I have on my hands? A good, old cat fight among people."

That, she added, goes for diplomats, senators, and Supreme Court justices, who wish to register their felines.
Mrs. Mood ran into a rather odd one just the other day. She got the suggested name of "May Ling" from two Chinese owners of cats.

"I had to explain that that wouldn't do," she said. "It had to be 'May Ling' for one or the other. That started something and during the fight that followed I was glad that I didn't understand Chinese."

The cat registrar had one tendency, though on which there was no challenge and needed no looking up. The owner had picked the name of "Sir Christopher Screecham Sr."—a Siamese kitten. Another one which was little trouble was a Siamese called "Stinky."

Mrs. Mood must keep records of all of the blooded registrations, cataloging the breeding.
"That makes it pretty rough on Mr. Mood," she confessed. "The poor fellow doesn't even have room for his slippers. My cat files fill two rooms in my house. I have 8,000 registrations a year, all filed by name and breed. In all these years that has added up to quite a stack of paper."

The brown-haired Mrs. Mood had something to say about alley cats: "I don't like that term," she said. "We call them 'domestic short hairs' and we register them, too. But let me tell you that the owners of the 'short hairs' get just as riled over their pets as the wife of a senator."

About a year ago, Mrs. Mood received a dandy request to register an animal named "Scheherazade."
"It sounded a little silly," she said. "They'll probably call him 'Blacky'."

Girl Subdued Snarling Bandit
LOS ANGELES (UP)—John L. Johnson, 30, approached theater cashier Claudia Crawford, 19, and snarled: "Gimme all your money. This is a stickup, baby."

"That's what you think," Claudia snapped back, grabbing Johnson's gun and knocking him down with a hard right cross to the jaw.
When police arrived, Miss Crawford had a head lock on the gunman who was wailing "Get me outta here. . . Get her away from me."

To Women Who Have Changed Shampoos During the Past Year

If you have changed your shampoo in the past twelve months, you've had lots of confusion. For like yourself, literally millions of women are constantly switching from one brand to another, almost all with unhappy results.

Of course there's a good reason for all this coast-to-coast shopping around—two reasons, in fact:

1. A great many shampoos now on the market are so-called "all-purpose" shampoos.
2. Hair conditions differ just as skin conditions do. And each requires a different type of shampoo.

After all, what is an "all-purpose" shampoo but a shampoo that tries to be a "jack of all trades." The result: it ends up by being "master of none." On the other hand, your hair is as individual as your skin. Your hair is either dry, oily, normal or tinted and bleached. So how could any "all-purpose" shampoo be right for all these types of hair? There is only one sensible, scientific solution to the shampoo problem: DIFFERENT SHAMPOOS FOR THE FOUR TYPES OF HAIR.

These 4 custom-formulated shampoos are now available for the first time. They bear a famous name—'Aquamarine Shampoo' by Revlon. While each is expressly formulated for a different type of hair, all work their wonders through a new exclusive shampoo principle—magnetism.

An uncanny new shampoo ingredient, discovered by Revlon chemists, called "Magnetol" gives you complete control over your hair.

Immediately after shampooing it's almost as though each bottle came complete with a hairdresser; your hair is so amazingly manageable.

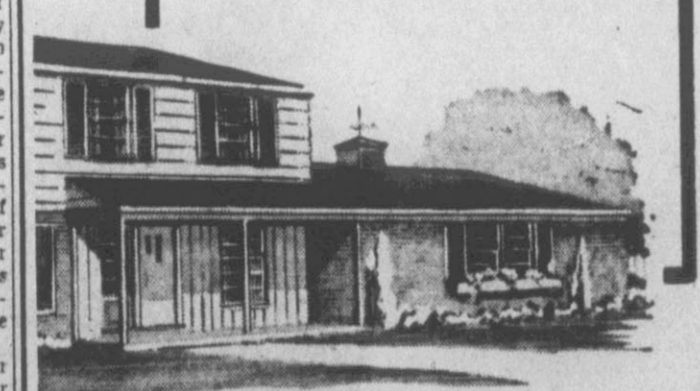

Here's how "Magnetol" works: As you probably know, when your hair is thoroughly cleaned, many important natural oils have been removed along with the dirt. "Magnetol" replaces these oils, because this incredible ingredient is magnetically attracted to hair. In other words, clean hair actually attracts "Magnetol" to it, and thus "Magnetol" practically becomes part of the hair-shaft, so that your hair has more "body" immediately after your shampoo. In fact, it becomes as beautifully manageable in minutes as it would be two or three days after an ordinary shampoo!

This we promise: you'll never again say, "I just washed my hair and I can't do a thing with it." You know which type of hair you have. Every woman does. Now at long last you can do something positive about it. Simply ask for Aquamarine Shampoo for Dry Hair . . . Oily Hair . . . Normal Hair . . . or Tinted and Bleached Hair. You'll get what you've always been looking for—a perfect shampoo for your type of hair . . . a shampoo that cannot fail to give you shimmering, beautifully clean hair, alive with dancing highlights . . . hair that is manageable instantly instead of 2 or 3 days later.

Unbreakable plastic bottle — so safe, so economical to use. $1.25 each. No Federal tax.

Injured Boy's Life Is In His Own Hands

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UP)—A 15-year old boy who suffered a broken neck in a diving accident held his life in his own hands today—one move of his head could kill or paralyze him. Patience was the only hope for Derald Abram, doctors said, and the youth's parents, three brothers, two sisters and close friends stood a 24-hour vigil in his hospital room to make sure he lies motionless. To make it easier they soothed him with steady, quiet conversation. The boy fractured his neck Sunday while swimming in the St. Croix River near Minneapolis. Doctors said he must not move his head for two weeks. Heavy sandbags pressed against his temples and narcotic sedatives were administered steadily to ease his intense pain. His brother, Dale, who spent Monday "on the watch" said "we all take our turns — mother, father, sis and relatives." "I know I'm praying for him every minute," Dale said. "I imagine we all are." "There's nothing much we can do to amuse him or be sure he lies still," the brother said. "We talk to him and quiet him. He's pretty brave but sometimes he complains about the pain in his back." The boy's father, Edward, a St. Paul bus driver, and Mrs. Abram spend every spare minute with their son. Derald, during periods of consciousness, told how the accident happened. "I was running into the river from shore and I dived into the water, but it was too shallow," he told his mother. "I felt an awful pain. I opened my eyes and my head was buried in sand. When I stood up the water was only up to my knees." Doctors said when the swelling in the boy's neck goes down they will use weights and pulleys to keep his head in place.

Tobacco Men Of Pitt Will Attend Raleigh Session

Pitt county will be represented at a one-day meeting of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corporation in Raleigh next Friday. It was disclosed today by S.C. Winchester, county agent.

The session will open at 11 a.m. in the Sir Walter Raleigh hotel. It will be the Seventh Annual Stockholder's meeting for the five flue-cured states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia and Florida.

Included on the agenda will be an address by Dr. D. W. Colvert, newly named dean of the School of Agriculture, North Carolina State College; annual reports of the president and manager of the corporation; and election of three new directors for the five state board.

Pitt county is represented on the board by J. E. Winslow of Greenville, named two years ago for a three-year term.

Others expected to attend from Pitt include W.A. Allen of Farmville, Mark H. Smith of Bell Arthur, Mr. Winchester, and Assistant County Agent S.J. Weeks.

Named as delegates from the county are the following: Dr. M.T. Friselle, Ayden; G.D. Cox and J.B. Speight, Winterville; Arch Fianagan, Farmville; Carl Scott, Tarboro; and J. P. Davenport Sr., Pactivus. Alternates are Mark E. Dixon, Ayden; Vernon White, Winterville; W.A. Allen, Farmville; J.B. Bunting, Bethel; and Hugh C. Winslow, Greenville.

President of the corporation is Carl T. Hicks of Greene county and L.T. Weeks of Raleigh is general manager.

James A. Walker, supervising teacher of art in the Greenville public schools and the East Carolina College Training School and a member of the summer faculty at East Carolina College this year, is now exhibiting water color paintings at the United States National Museum in Washington, D.C., and the Creative Gallery, 57th Street, New York City.

The Greenville artist, whose paintings have attracted favorable attention in art circles both in and out of North Carolina, gave this year one-man shows at the Sheppard Memorial Library in Greenville and the Norfolk, Va., Museum of Fine Arts. He has exhibited also at the State Art Gallery in Raleigh, the High Museum in Atlanta, Ga., and elsewhere. Several of his paintings have been placed in private collections; and his "Hecate's Slave" was purchased by the Norfolk museum for its permanent collection.

"Clowns," a highly imaginative study, will be on display through June 28 at the 56th Annual Exhibition of Water Colors at the National Museum. Two water colors "Composition, No. II," an abstraction, and "Woodland," a scene from nature, are being shown at the Fourth Annual Exhibition at the New York gallery, which will extend through July 1.

A Challenge For Every Community

A challenge has been thrown out to every community. The sooner Pitt intensifies its program to gain industry, the better off it will be.

Indeed, the challenge has been thrown into the lap of every county and community throughout the South.

H. McKinley Conway, Jr., director of the Southern Association of Science and Industry predicted in an address at Chapel Hill that more than 3,000 new multi-million dollar manufacturing plants will be constructed in the South during the next decade.

That is not just Chamber of Commerce talk. It is the opinion based on statistics and extensive surveys of the SASI. It is not an irresponsible, optimistic prediction to inflate the ego of the people of Southern States.

Conway said if estimates prove correct, the decade between now and 1963 will bring the South up to the national average in per capita income, reverse the flow of college graduates from the region and relegate the importance of the tenant farming system.

If the decade of growth is to be upon the South, the people who make up the individual communities will have to be on their toes to see that progress in their region does not pass them by.

Industrial growth is evident throughout the Southern states now even more than it has been in recent years of progress. Some communities have landed industry, while others have watched it go into other areas. Practically all communities, particularly in North Carolina, have profited by the industrial growth.

In Pitt County, agriculture is the mainstay, and probably will remain the mainstay of economy. Nevertheless, there are few who would assert the county has all the industry it can support, and all the industry it can handle without an adverse effect upon agriculture, commerce and other business.

To get its share of this predicted influx of industry to the South, each community must sell itself to industry. Each must put forth a more concerted, more positive effort to gain the industry needed to give it a well balanced economy.

In Pitt County efforts to gain industry have increased many times what they were several years ago. But there is still need for more intensive effort toward that goal. As the predicted decade of industrial growth wears on, competition between communities for industry will become more keen. More work, more inducements will be needed.

These efforts to gain a reasonable share of industrial growth can not be left to one group or one community. It is going to take the work and support of many people in every community. The sooner Pitt intensifies its program to gain industry, the better off it will be.

Will Europe Shake Free Of Russia's Grasp?

The wave of nationalism and desire for freedom now sweeping through East Germany may have been underestimated earlier by official and casual observers in other parts of the world.

One point, however, which has not been underestimated, is the speculation of the extent to which the Russians would go to put down the rebellion.

An estimated 800,000 Russian troops supported not only by guns, but by tanks and other weapons are seeking to put down the uprising of the German people. A large number of Germans already have been slain in the uprising, and literally thousands are on the Russian list for automatic arrest in connection with the outbreaks.

The Reflector a few days ago stated its belief that the uprisings could only be used by the free world as a card in the poker game of international politics. We are still of that opinion, but we are wondering just how well that card is being used, or what comprehensive plans are being made to use the card in the future?

To put the rebellion down, the communists are using force and offering an olive branch of less work, more pay, an end to religious persecution, and better living conditions to the East Germans. These terms, they know and the world knows, are only temporary, hollow promises from Red aggressors whose yoke will be heavier than ever once the people are back under the iron fist.

Perhaps out of this rebellion could come the unification of Germany which long has been sought. But it can come only if Western nations put pressure upon the Russians from outside the iron curtain while the East Germans put on the pressure from behind the barrier.

Perhaps from this rebellion there could come more independence to other European nations which have too long struggled under the Russian heel. But here again, Russia will not take the initiative to relinquish any of its grasp.

While Soviet warlords are feeling the "pinch" of man's unquenchable desire for freedom, the Western World should bring to bear every cold war pressure it can muster. It is an opportunity the like of which the free world has not experienced since the close of World War II.

It is an opportunity that is unlikely to come again if it is allowed to slip by this once.

U.S. In World Trade Struggle

WASHINGTON—A fierce revival of competitive struggles for world trade is forecast by diplomatic and economic experts in the wake of a Korean armistice and even a partial settlement of disputes with the Russo-Chinese communists. It threatens to diminish markets for American goods simultaneously with booming farm surpluses and peak industrial production.

Despite the Eisenhower Administration's pledges on behalf of reciprocal trade and a lowering of tariff walls, even the friendliest nations like Britain and France are suspicious of our intentions. They believe that a Republican regime at Washington foreshadows a high-tariff policy and their fears have been borne out in many respects.

U. S. FACES COMPETITION—They are already planning to negotiate agreements with Russia, China and the satellite countries. In fact, it was in anticipation of a resumption of trading that they have continued to recognize Peiping even during the bloody Korean conflict.

In addition to London and Paris interests, the United States will face stiff competition from a reviving Germany and Japan and from several South American countries. Their commercial needs mesh, for they can supply the Soviet with manufactured articles in return for timber, minerals and food.

BARTER MAY BE NECESSARY—For various reasons the United States will enter the race under severe handicaps.

Our assumption of leadership in the Korean fighting and in the cold war generally, although under United Nations auspices, has made us extremely unpopular with the Russian and Chinese Reds and with their controlled puppet countries. They will not go out of their way to do us any commercial favors.

Moreover the high prices of our exports, both agricultural and industrial, will place us at a disadvantage. Our rivals can and will undercut us in many lines. Finally, if necessary, they will engage in outright barter with nations lacking hard cash.

EUROPEANS NOT REASSURED—President Eisenhower's pledges have not reassured the Europeans. In view of certain inconsistent actions by the White House, Ike has named a protectionist to the U. S. Tariff Commission, and will probably be forced to name another of similar beliefs, if Congress adds another member to this agency. He has decreed tighter restrictions on better imports.

Moreover, foreign businessmen laugh when it is pointed out that the Roosevelt-Hull-Truman tariff cuts under the Reciprocal Trade Agreement Acts gave them a larger market in this country. Although in force for 19 years, these statutes have furnished almost no help, they maintain. This reaction will come as a surprise to many Americans, especially the GOP-ers on Capitol Hill.

TARIFF PICTURE MISLEADING—Democratic free traders have estimated that our general tariff level has been reduced to about 12 per cent, and that is probably true. But this calculation includes many goods on which the duties are extremely low. It gives no true picture of the height of the wall remaining against many major European exports.

It is, for instance, 28 per cent on whisky, 58 per cent on woolen cloth, 32 per cent on dyed cotton cloth, 30 to 35 per cent on chinaware, and 7 1/2 to 30 per cent on bicycles. In addition, red tape and a horribly complicated set of regulations tend to increase the duties even higher.

It is no exaggeration to suggest that, once peaceful barges blow in Korea and possibly elsewhere around the world, both friendly and hostile nations will gang up against Uncle Sam in this back-alley commercial scrap.

BLEAK PICTURE—This presents a bleak prospect not only for the White House, but also for every home in the land, especially the workers' and farmers'. Should relative peace come, many industries will have to shift from defense to normal production. But they will need foreign outlets to consume the tremendous output, resulting from enlarged plants and increased efficiency. Our farm surpluses are already burdensome. Thus, we will need overseas markets as never before.

Sombody Told Me... Showing It's A 'Small World'

This could be called one of those "It's a small world" stories. Some time ago I printed a story about my father-in-law's father, the late Nath Fleming of Woodleaf, N. C.

Mr. Fleming was the magistrate during his day and married almost everybody who got married in that neck of the woods. When grooms asked him the amount of the fee he would usually say, "Well, you can just pay me whatever you think she'll be worth to you."

The groom in this story as I got it paid Mr. Fleming the amazing sum of ten cents.

That's how the story stood until last week when Dick Culbertson came by the store to correct me. Mr. Culbertson is a native of Woodleaf but has been in various parts of the country working for DuPont. Recently, his work brought him to the Griffon plant and he's living in Greenville. He read the story and was simply interested in my getting the accurate version.

"The way it actually happened," Mr. Culbertson told me, "was that the groom gave Mr. Fleming a dollar for the ceremony. Exactly one week later he came back to Mr. Fleming and said, 'Mr. Fleming, you asked me to pay you what I thought she would be worth to me, and I paid you a dollar. Now that I've found out the true facts, I'd like to have 90 cents change.'"

This is a true story, which Woodleaf residents will keep alive throughout the years. In fact, the Woodleaf community will keep it alive even if 90 per cent of the residents move away.

Back in 1947 Wife Rachel and I went there for one of famous reunions that come every year. But this one was special, because it was combined with the celebration of the 100th birthday of the Presbyterian Church in Woodleaf.

Never have I seen a place, and I must include Greenville in this statement, which has so much community spirit. Although I am a complete outsider, except for my association with the Flemings, I have received an invitation to the Woodleaf reunion every year since 1947. As yet we have been unable to attend, but we are looking forward to the opportunity to go back there. The attraction is not the interesting stories about its residents, like the groom who paid only a dime, but the genuine hospitality from a warm community.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

RISE IN INTEREST RATES (Wilson Times)

Most students of economy have read Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations," but not all adhere to its tenets. Instead, some substitute the "reflationary" ideas of John Maynard Keynes, the man who sold Roosevelt on the program of "Compensatory spending." In that way only, according to Keynes, could the American economy get back to something like a normal state.

A. D. Shackelford, president of the National Bank of Wilson, sent us an editorial from the American Banker which incorporated an editorial from The New Orleans States dealing with interest rates. If simply stated, it's as common as the ABCs. If tossed around by New and Fair Dealers, it becomes highly complex. For we've never been trained right. It simply doesn't occur to us that money is a commodity like anything else. Only the bankers know that.

Now let's take a look at what Roosevelt did with money. He withdrew its gold support first, giving it its first hypodermic. Revaluing the gold, he printed more money to offset it, the second hypodermic. By creating federal lending agencies designed solely to keep interest rates low, he gave it the third hypodermic. What it cost us we'll never know until someone makes a thorough study of money and its influence on society for the period. But it did, or so they thought, enrich the "have nots."

Not until Korea was that fallacy exploded. It sent prices skyrocketing, compelling the printing of more money. That it would have gone on endlessly, cheapening the value of the dollar, was patent until the Federal Reserve stepped in. It refused longer to peg government bonds. As they dropped in value, up went interest rates. For a two-and-one-half per cent interest bond yields 2.77 when it can be bought over the counter for 90.

It's in the nomenclature that we get confused. If potatoes, services and money are commodities, then interest rates and wages are one and the same thing. The first represents payment on borrowed capital, the second payment on hired services. Why, in a managed currency period should the first be held down while the second is allowed to soar? If, as Adam Smith emphasized, money is looked on as a commodity, interest becomes its natural corollary. It is as vital as money itself.

No one connected with the administration, it seems, has taken the trouble to show the need for higher interest rates. But when you pay two per cent for money, you can afford to take long chances on installment selling. When that interest rate doubles, you're more cautious. You may take chances, but you'll check credits more carefully. As we demand bigger down payments, and installment sellers have to as money gets harder, we not only end the inflationary spirals, but slow the tendency to go in debt for the things we use now.

We're glad Mr. Shackelford sent us the editorial. For we've found a lot of people who fear "hard" money days again. But how soft can soft money get before it vanishes altogether? How are we ever to check price spirals if we go on with soft money programs? Though we're inclined to doubt it, it might have been necessary when it was first resorted to. But the day of its need is long past. That realization broke in on us suddenly with the advent of the Korean war.

Around Capitol Square

Aviation Milestone; Turnover Of Farm Agents Noted

AVIATION — At 11 o'clock Monday morning a group met in the Governor's office to plan observance of the 50th anniversary of the first airplane flight. At the same time in a building just across the street the State Board of Agriculture was considering regulations affecting the dusting of crops by airplanes. Behind those two simple news items is a half century of unbelievable advancement. Nobody thought when a couple of crazy bicycle mechanics from Ohio got a contraption to fly through the air for a few hundred feet near Kitty Hawk on December 3, 1903, that fifty years later vastly improved descendants of that crude assembly of wires and boards and carburetors would be in common use for the mass killing of humans and of bugs.

MAGIC — The story reads like an essay on black magic and there is neither time nor space, and certainly not the capacity to retell it here. The juxtaposition of the two meetings in Raleigh Monday serves to emphasize the fact that 50 years ago most of the bugs which the airplane dust-ers are now fighting were as little known to common folks as were the geo-political questions which now seem to require the mass sacrifice of human lives.

BIRTHDAY — Observance of the 50th birthday of aviation will center at Kill Devil Hill on the outer banks of Dare county in North Carolina, but it will be worldwide in scope. A national commission headed by Gen. J. H. Doolittle, a North Carolina state commission headed by Miles Clark are co-operating in the project. Quite naturally there is a little bit of jealous rivalry among these several groups, as well as with other committee representing private aircraft manufacturers and airline operators. There is general disposition not to let petty rivalries interfere with a magnificent celebration next December.

REGULATION — There are also serious problems involved in the regulatory ordinances about the use of airplane crop dusters. Orville and Wilbur Wright would have thought the person who told them that 50 years later a prominent lawyer from the mountains would appear before a State board to help work out reasonable regulations for the use of a plane in killing bean bugs was just as crazy as the outer bankers of that day thought the Wrights were. But Lee Whitmire of Hendersonville was on hand Monday to see that any rules adopted by the Board of Agriculture were not so stringent as to put the dusting planes above Henderson county's bean fields out of business.

TURNOVER — Head men in the State College Agricultural Extension Service are a big concern about the turnover in county farm agents. That last year's elections brought an unusually large number of new county commissioners into office, and some of them were elected on campaign promises to replace the incumbent county agents. Of course, that comes under the head of campaign promises which cannot be kept, because the selection of a county farm agent and his pay is a county subject embracing Federal and County participation. Many other campaign pledges which cannot be kept, because of inherent possibility of considerable "nuisance value."

CONFUSION — The situation is aggravated right now by the confusion over national trends with respect to the farm program. Numerous farmers with whom your reporter has talked during the past few weeks are disturbed about possibility of break-

Business Today

Productivity Studies

By ELMER ROESSNER
Business executives may be wise in developing sound methods of measuring the productivity of their operations. It looks as if productivity will be the key factor in new labor negotiations.

Organized labor has made the rise in productivity the basis of demand for pay increases in several industries. The address of Elmer E. Walker, general vice-president of the AFL Machinists, before the recent American Management Association conference, has been interpreted as a board policy declaration to management.

He said labor will continue to press for higher wages as long as its productivity increases, adding, "Once we realize that output per man-hour is likely to grow about 1 per cent a year in the long run, it is not surprising that labor should want its fair share of increasing output."

Productivity is a ticklish matter for management. For one reason it can be measured in terms of physical volume or dollar volume. If measured in dollars, productivity will seem to rise as prices go up or decline when prices drop, even though output is constant. If measured in physical volume, productivity may rise as prices fall, creating an embarrassing position for a manufacturer who has tied his wage scales to productivity.

For another reason, most available productivity figures are industry-wide. So when productivity rises an average of 3 per cent in an industry, plants in which it has risen only 2 per cent may be asked for wage increases that will be very costly. On the other hand, plants with a 4 per cent rise will increase their profits even though their wage increases based on a 3 per cent rise.

So it will be a good idea for management to know exactly what its productivity rates are in terms of both dollar and physical volumes and to devise systems for calculating the rise at intervals.

It may also be a good idea for management to make sure employees understand just what productivity is. There is a tendency for some to confuse productivity with production and this may lead to demands for pay rises when

Bridge Players - Be On Guard

By BELMAN MORIN
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP)—About four years ago, something called canasta reached these shores, probably by slithering down a ship's hawser in the dead of night.

Soon after, came the two-headed cousin, samba, yuck-yucking and drooling.

Now, this nation has had fevers before, but they have always run their course and vanished in fairly short order. It has survived such innocent lunacies as the helmet hat, bell-bottom pants, yoyo, the maxie, and gold fish swallowing contests.

But this canasta-samba business goes right on, and I am beginning to view with alarm.

They say bad money drives out good, and apparently that goes for games, too. Try and find a proper rubber of bridge these days. That placid ash-tray comes in with the coffee, and another dreary evening begins.

It has occurred to me that these two travesties of skill and intelligence bear some resemblance to what is known as Russian bank.

Could it be, do you suppose, that their true names are canastavitch and sambaskapok? If it possible that they were introduced by Russian agents in order to tear down the moral fibre of America, undermine our institutions, debauch our young people, and paralyze the brains of their parents?

It seems so obvious. Bridge has the classic beauty, balance and symmetry of a Greek temple.

To play the game to the hilt, calls for a top I.Q., great force of character, shrewd judgment of opponents, keen intuition, dash, daring and panache. A nation of bridge players, therefore, would be a dangerous enemy. Moscow knows that as well as anybody.

By contrast, canasta and samba require nothing beyond the ability to sit, and to distinguish a spade from a diamond.

They are, if I may say so, preeminently pastimes for women. You don't have to think, in fact, it's better not to. Even at a crucial point, the ladies can go right on yattering about Jimmy's croup and the lovely dollies Louella got for $1.98.

So now try to picture a nation composed entirely of canasta and samba players. It would be soft, effeminate, fuzzy-headed, push-over for the first tough customer that comes along. Do you think the Kremlin hasn't thought of that?

It is no coincidence, I believe, that canasta did not appear here until the Russians had run into some serious setbacks in the cold war. When we picked up and handed them with the Berlin airlift and beat their guerrillas on the Greek border, it became obvious that we weren't as soft as we looked.

That was the moment-picked to ship over the Red three's, wild jokers and deuces, the arguments about the closed-versus-open canasta, and the nonsensical business of drawing two and discarding one. Oh, they knew what they were doing, all right.

It had been reported, and accurately, that Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was then a five-star general, and his chief of staff in NATO, Gen. Al Gruenther, are both hot bridge players. The plot could hardly be plainer.

If the Reds could get these two to forsake bridge for canasta, the Western Defense Alliance would never come into being, and in fact, the whole struggle would be over, then and there.

They have accused us of attempting germ warfare in China. I think it is high time for the United Nations to go formally into the question: Who introduced canasta and samba into the United States?

If the responsibility can be pinned where I suspect it belongs, the Russians will be dead ducks in world public opinion.

act, there was the opinion of the attorney general and other factors. Back of all that remains the basic fact that it was the director of the budget who was largely responsible for the pay grant.

OTHERS — A few instances vited from the record of previous Governors emphasize the budgetary of the chief executive. There was the time when Governor Scott by-passed the director and board of conservation and development to name a director of State advertising. Before that, Governor Cherry had exercised his authority after refusal of the budget bureau to act, in raising the pay of highway employees. And there was the time when Governor Broughton as director of the budget, signed an authorization for regional advertising, after the advertising committee and the assistant director of the budget had declined to approve the program. These are only a few of the many instances which could be cited proving that lack of constitutional veto authority does not seriously hamper the Governor of North Carolina in furthering his plans for operation of the State.

New Factors Influence Pitt Public Assistance Grants

Considerable changes have taken place with those who receive public assistance grants in Pitt County, announced welfare superintendent K.T. Futrell.

Futrell said many factors are influencing the number receiving public assistance from the county, such as the Lien Law in old age assistance; income of family; labor demand during harvesting season; and the possession of a television set or automobile.

Old Age Assistance
During April and May, for old age assistance, 24 cases were approved and 22 cases closed; and during this time, 48 cases were reviewed and decreased while 58 cases were reviewed and payments increased.

As of May 31, 1953, 894 were receiving old age assistance. The average grant for old age assistance has increased from an average of $21.00 in June, 1952, to $26.00 in June, 1953.

Aid to Dependent Children
In the aid to dependent children program, 11 cases were approved, 70 cases closed, while 58 reviews were made with 84 being decreased and four increased. The average grant per family for aid to dependent children increased from $42.00 in June, 1952, to $47.00 in June, 1953. As of May 31, 1953, 156 were receiving aid to dependent children.

Futrell said the drop in aid to dependent children cases was due to the demand of labor during the harvesting season for women and older children. "With the opening of school," he said, "those cases closed in May probably will re-apply and be reinstated if eligible at that time."

An analysis of the 186 cases receiving aid to dependent children as of April 30, shows parent deceased for 204 children, or 33 percent; parent incapacitated for 131 children, or 21 percent; parent deserted for 142 children, or 23 percent; parent in prison for 110 children, or 17 percent; with 37 children in 18 families, or six percent of the total born out of wedlock.

Futrell said it is also significant to note that during the year of 1952, 1,264 live births were recorded in Pitt County with 16 percent, or 217, born out of wedlock, while only six percent of children, as of April 30, 1953, receiving aid to dependent children were included. The non-financial service cases of May 31 number 931 of which 288 are cases of children, of the children's cases, 19 were in adoptive homes, 21 in free foster homes, 43 in relatives' homes, 176 in parents' homes, four in correctional institutions, five in boarding homes while the others were in different institutions elsewhere.

Blind and Disabled
For aid to the blind, two cases were approved and five cases closed. For aid to this group, the average grant rose from $39.00 to $36.90 during the fiscal year for the 129 receiving aid. For the totally and permanently disabled group, 15 cases were approved, five revised, and eight closed. In this group, 129 were receiving aid as of May 31.

Other Services
Adult parole service concerned 45 different persons. Futrell reported a total of 146 persons, convicted in court, paid into the office the sum of $3,428 which was paid out to as many families.

Duplicate Their 1903 Honeymoon
CHICAGO (UP) — An elderly Iowa couple enjoyed a second honeymoon today in the same hotel they visited on their first wedding trip in 1903—and found the key they snatched then still fit the honeymoon suite lock.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Shank of Des Moines were taken by surprise when they arrived in Chicago Tuesday. Their request for reservations at the venerable Congress Hotel on Michigan Avenue had opened the door for a royal welcome. Representatives of Albert Pick Jr., of the hotel met them in a 1903 Holman. They were driven in the ancient, rope-driving auto through Loop streets to the hotel. Then they were ushered into the honeymoon suite for a stay of a week to 10 days. The Shanks were wed in Des Moines June 26, 1903 and began their honeymoon the next day in the same hotel suite. Friday they will celebrate their arrival and their anniversary by reopening Peacock Alley, a Congress night spot popular in the gaslight era, but closed for some time. Mrs. Shank a former light opera star, felt a little light-hearted after her welcome. She sang snatches of songs played at their wedding in 1903 and coyly refused to give her age. She did admit she was "a little younger" than her 80-year-old husband. When Mr. and Mrs. Shank were married it was the custom for bridal couples to take the key to their hotel room home with them. Indulgent hotel managers then changed the locks. The Shanks had the key they stole 50 years ago in their luggage. The Congress had changed the lock to make sure the key fit. The ancient Colosseum at Rome is only a shell of its ancient self, having been used as a stone quarry for the churches of Rome in more recent times.

Rambling WITH LANG

By MELVIN LANG

Wrestling seems to be gaining prestige with a rapid rate here in Greenville. Since the Hardee-Worthington group began its weekly attractions, the attendance has climbed with a speed that is almost phenomenal.

When the matches were first brought to Greenville, only about 400 persons attended the bouts. At its last meeting, however, over 900 spectators were present. A large percentage of those present are from outlying towns in the Greenville area, particularly from Washington and Beaufort County.

One of the best reasons for this rise can be attributed to the calibre of the performers sent here by Babe Sharkey, former world's champion now placing contemporary grapplers in spots across the country.

Before the contract was signed with Sharkey to bring the wrestlers here, he was told that only the best in the business would be able to get the local fans interested in the sport — a comparatively new attraction in this immediate area. He has complied with the local demands in sending the best at his disposal, which includes some of the country's top ranking matmen.

Tonight's card, for example is one of the best to be found in the wrestling world. Heading the attraction is 214-pound Baron Michael Leone, a native of Italy who has been in the game since he was 16 years of age. He will be pitted against a former boxer who has gained a wide following since switching to mat antics, Matt Murphy.

The Swedish Angel and Dick Lever are paired for the semi-final bout. Two preliminaries are on the same program, with Jim (The Bull) Austeri and Frank Thompson paired in the first and Colonel George Harbin and Charro Astec will meet in the other Hardee and Worthington are also attempting to arrange a bout between the Baker Brothers and Smith Brothers for a date in the future. Each is considered to have reached the top in their profession.

Tonight's performances will be held in the New Enterprise Warehouse. The opener will begin at 8:30 p.m.

Officials of the Kinston Soap Box Derby announced Saturday that the 8th running of the annual event has been postponed because of a conflict with dedication ceremonies at Stallings Air Base. Originally planned for June 28, it will now take place on July 12.

Site of the race, open to all boys between the ages of 10 and 15, will be the Queen Street Hill. Prospective participants should go by their local Chevrolet dealer, with a parent or guardian, and sign a registration certificate.

One of the more interesting facts about the race is that all cars must be built by the driver, with a maximum of ten dollars on construction expenses. Wheel sets for the cars are furnished by the Chevrolet Division of General Motors, however, and are not considered in the $10 limit.

Drivers have until July 1 to enter the Kinston race, which is jointly sponsored by the Kinston Jaycees, Harvey Motor Company of Kinston, and the Kinston Daily Free Press.

Merrill Bynum pitched a good ball game for the Elks, allowing only four safeties. He was touched for two runs in the first inning, however, that proved to be his downfall. Bynum also gave up to a pair of walks. He also fanned ten Jaycee hitters and retired the side on strike-outs in the second.

Buddy Murray led off the bottom of the first inning for the Jaycees with a long two-bagger. Shortstop Dick Nobles walked, but Allen popped up to the second-base man for the first out. Arthur Andrews, third baseman and clean-up batter for the Jaycees, came through with a single then, that eventually won the game as Murray came home.

Nobles scored another run in the third. With one away, he walked and advanced on a single by Allen. When the Elks centerfielder allowed the ball to get past him, Nobles scampered home.

The contest was one of the best played thus far in Little League competition. Allen's teammates backed him up with an errorless performance, while the Elks committed but one miscue.

Allen Hurls 3-0 No-Hit Game Over Elks

Jaycee Star Has Perfect Day As Elks Lose First

Walker Lee Allen, righthander for the Little League Jaycees, humbled the highflying Elks yesterday afternoon by pitching a perfect, 3-0, no-hitter.

Allen fanned twelve batters in twirling his masterpiece, and did not issue a single base on balls. He had perfect control of the game from the very beginning, as he did not allow a single Elks player to reach base safely throughout the six inning game. No opposing batsman was able to get the ball out of the infield, as he retired the side in order.

Merrill Bynum pitched a good ball game for the Elks, allowing only four safeties. He was touched for two runs in the first inning, however, that proved to be his downfall. Bynum also gave up to a pair of walks. He also fanned ten Jaycee hitters and retired the side on strike-outs in the second.

Yanks Lose To White Sox But Assures First Place For July Fourth In American

Benton To Pitch Against Macclesfield For Red Sox

FARMVILLE—Veteran Red Benton was picked yesterday by Farmville manager Pete Piestrak to go against Macclesfield here tonight.

A righthander, Benton has received decisions in nine games during the current season. He has seven victories to his credit.

The game tonight will be the first of a four-game stand by the Red Sox. Going outside the league for its competition, Farmville meets Mt. Olive in an exhibition contest Thursday evening. Macclesfield is back again Friday night, and Wilson continues Bright Belt League competition on Saturday night.

Barry Jones, one of the mainstays for the now defunct Ormondsville club of last season, is expected to lead the locals batting attack. Jones is currently batting the way with a batting average of .372. He is handling first base for the Farmville club.

A hold-over from last season, Millard Webb, is second in the team batting department and will also play at second base. He is hitting at a .345 pace. Playing shortstop will be Bill Kennedy, with a .316 average.

Manager Piestrak rounds out the infield at third base. The husky fielder has been rapidly raising his average with every game, and has currently pushed it to a .285 mark. He added seven points to his batting average against Rocky Mount last Sunday. Another Ormondsville and Campbell College product is doing the catching for the Farmville team, Red McDaniel.

Sam Stell, Streeter Twigwell, and Paul Gay are expected to fill the outfield positions tonight. Stell is the leading hitter of the outfield trio with a .319 average. Twigwell is hitting .287 while Gay is going with .289. Tommy Cole, a regular for Wake Forest's Demon Deacons during the recent collegiate season, is a good bet to see action during the contest at either an infield or outfield post. He has posted a .319 mark so far this year.

Piestrak has several capable pitchers to call on in the event help is needed for Benton, headed by Vincent Jones. Jones is the league's leading pitcher with a 6-0 mark. Joe Jones, a former hurler for Syracuse of the International League, with a 4-3 record, Art Sirois, 1-1, and James Hardison, 2-0, round out the strong pitching staff. Sirois has also seen pro experience with a Class C club in New York.

Will Organize Square Dancing

The Greenville Recreation Department today announced that an adult square dance club is being organized here.

The group will hold its next meeting Thursday night at 8 o'clock on the tennis court at Elm Street Park. In case of bad weather, the meeting will be held in the NYA building, across from the tennis court, Director Warren Carroll stated. The club is being organized in response to numerous public requests, Carroll added.

Present plans provide for the square dance club members to be instructed in the basic fundamentals of quadrille square dances. Persons interested in the project are invited to attend the meeting Thursday night.

NEW YORK (UP)—Bank on the Yanks to come up with the nearest trick of them all by "clinching" the pennant on tradition after losing to the White Sox in their saddest performance of the year.

The Yankees gained a half-game in the race in their 11-3 defeat while Cleveland lost a pair to Boston 6-4 and 3-1, putting New York 11 full games in front in the American League race and assuring them of being in first place on July 4, the traditional date on which the leader is supposed to go on and win the pennant — and almost always does.

Things were more complex in the National League where the St. Louis Cardinals were making a three-team race out of the battle that previously featured only Milwaukee's madcaps and the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Cardinals slugged Giant pitching for 15 hits and a 15-8 triumph Tuesday night to move within 3 1-2 games of first place.

Rookie Milt Bolling doubled home the winning run for Boston in the 21st night game in the 10th inning after George Kell walked and moved up on a sacrifice to give Mickey McDermott his eighth victory in a duel with loser Bob Chalkers in which each gave up five hits. Dick Gernert's two-run triple in the eighth inning of the afternoon game provided the 6-4 winning margin for Willard Nixon, who gained his fourth decision.

Steve Gromek made his first start for Detroit, after being tagged for nine runs in one inning in a relief role against Boston, but this time he was on the ball, holding Philadelphia to four hits in a 6-3 victory. Bob Nieman hit a two-run homer for the winners.

The Browns rallied late to defeat the Senators 4-3. Roy Sievers hit a sixth inning home run and the Browns scored twice more in the seventh and once in the eighth to offset a two-run Washington rally off Satchel Paige in the ninth.

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (UP)—Eight American men and five U. S. ladies try today to advance to the third round of singles competition in a Wimbledon tennis championship that so far has been sticking close to form.

Four of the Yank losses were favorites in their matches, but two of the men, Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., and Grant Golden of Wilmette, Ill., were underdogs.

Bartzen, an Air Force sergeant, was up against fourth-seeded Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt, and Golden against Sven Davidson of Sweden. John Ager of Black Mountain, N. C., was a toss-up against another Swedish player, Staffan Stockenham.

However, Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, seeded second, was favored over Vladislav Skonecni, the self-proclaimed Polish player; fifth-ranked Gardner Mulloy of Miami, Fla., over Alfred Huber of Austria; seventh-seeded Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., over Don Butler; unseeded Bud, Pat of Los Angeles over E. Tsai of Hong Kong, and Hugh Stewart of San Marino, Calif., over Z. Nikolitch of Yugoslavia.

Ken Rosewall, the 18-year old Australian seeded first, faced an easy assignment in Robert Abdesselem of France.

as Clyde King picked up an error third inning relief.

Warren Spahn lost a heart-breaker at Milwaukee, giving up only two hits and striking out 12 white obscurity. Bob Hall blanked the Braves on just six safeties. Carlos Bernier drove in the winning run in the eighth with a single after Spahn walked Preston Ward and pinch hitter Johnny Lindell.

Robin Roberts picked up his 12th victory of the year to put himself well ahead of his 28-game victory pace of 1952 when he held Chicago to eight hits in a 6-1 Philadelphia victory. Roberts had won only eight games at this time a year ago. Del Ennis drove in four runs with three hits,

The snow in the alley was deep. The car stalled twice. After they reached the streetcar tracks it was better. The snow plows had been there.
Mandell rode in the back seat, between his mother and Rosemary. He felt embarrassed. Much more embarrassed than frightened. He hadn't meant this to happen. All he had wanted to do was tell his side of the story. He was big enough and old enough to walk alone. Walk right into the Bureau, take a deep

John fiddled with the radio. "One thing is for sure. You're hot as a pistol, Barney. They sure want you bad."
The radio squawked. Mandell winced.
"Was that the matter?" Rosemary asked him.
Mandell forced himself to breathe through his nose. It sounded like that parrot.
Ma patted one of his hands. "Is everything going to be all right, Barney?"
"Yeap. Sure, Ma." Mandell said. Ma patted Mandell's hand again. "Is everything going to be all right. Has something to do with Uncle Vladimir. A smart man he was, Pa said."

bright feather fluttered from heaven. The corners of his mouth turned down. Gale hadn't loved him, even then. All it had been was an act. He said:
"At a milk-fund fight. She was one of the Junior Leaguers in charge of something."
"Is she," Rosemary said. "You made the advances, Barney?"
Mandell shook his head. "No. Looking back I can see she practically threw herself at me."
John grinned sourly from the front seat. "Of course, you ducked?"
"No," Mandell admitted. "I did not."
Pat Doyle came out the door of the hotel's bar accompanied by Joe Mercer.
"Running true to form, eh, Barney?" he asked. "When the going got really tough, you came running home to Mamma."
Mandell looked at his fingernails.
"Is all a mistake, Joe," Ma told Mercer earnestly. "Friends with Barney again you must be. Just like the old times." The old lady tried hard not to cry and only partially succeeded. "Barney needs his friends."

"Id as soon be friends with a skunk."
Ma pleaded with him. "But is all a mistake, Joe. Before Barney is going to that place, he is giving his wife money, a lot of money and telling her so much a week she should send to me."
Mercer's eyes brightened with interest. He pushed his hat on the back of his head. "You can prove that, Barney?"
Mandell shook his head. "No, I can't prove I gave any money to Gale. But the bank records will show I drew thirty-eight grand the day before I had myself committed. And the records at the fish bowl should show I turned up there with one."

"And the thirty-seven grand?"
"I gave it to Gale. With instructions to mail Ma seventy-five a week."
"Who call her on it?"
"What did she say?"
"She said I was nuts, that I never gave her any money."
Mercer was still suspicious. "Why should a dame like her, with all the Ebbling money behind her, chisel a guy like you for thirty-seven grand?"
"Here you have me."

"Maybe the Ebblings didn't have as much dough as they let on."
"That's an idea," Mercer admitted. He looked back at Mandell. "How about that mess out there last night? You shoot the old man, Barney?"
Mandell kept his temper with an effort. "No."
"Can you prove it?"
"No. I can't prove anything. Gale's going to say I killed the old man. She's already said it. But I didn't. I haven't killed anyone. And I haven't ever been crazy."
Mercer glanced with regret at the curtained window of the warm bar he had just left. Then he opened the front door of the car and got in beside John. "O. K. Let's roll. It looks like I done you wrong, Barney. Either I've got a story here or I should be in a snake pit."
Pat pulled away from the curb and pointed the hood of the small car toward the Bureau. As he did, the radio awaked.
"ALL cars, attention. Attention all cars assigned to find Barney Mandell. Remember the code on Mandell is one-o-one."

Joe Mercer whistled softly. Mandell asked, "What this new one-on-one business? That the code for shoot first and ask your questions afterward?"
Pat slowed the car and looked at him over his shoulder. Thoughtfully. "No. That's code for 'Fragile. Handle carefully. Bring the guy in wrapped in cotton.' Maybe I should ought to get in back and hold you in my lap."

Trinidad (Trinity) in the West Indies was so named by Columbus because of the three mountain peaks on the island which are seen by visitors arriving from the east.

Greenville Tobacco Men Win Association Posts

Three Greenville tobaccoists were elected to major offices of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association and the Tobacco Association of the United States at meetings held at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. this week.

J.S. Ficklen, president of E.B. Ficklen Tobacco Company, was elected treasurer of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association. L.S. Ficklen, vice-president of E.B. Ficklen Tobacco Company was elected to the tobacco festival board of the organization.

Charles W. Howard, president of Greenville Tobacco Company, was elected to the board of governors of the Tobacco Association of the United States.

Among the principal speakers at the meeting was J. Con Lanier of Greenville, executive secretary and general counsel of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association and the Tobacco Association of the United States. In an address to the group, Lanier asserted the leaf trade must remain unified and alert to the designs of Congress and prepared to fight for what it deems to be the rights affecting a million tobacco growers in the South.

Conventions Lure County Officials

Conventions were the order of the day at Pitt county court house this week.

Three members of the Pitt board of commissioners, including Chairman F. F. Hendrix, together with County Auditor Reginald Gray were in Asheville for the first four days attending sessions of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners. In the Pitt delegation also were M. Brown Hodges and C. C. Harris. They were expected back sometime today.

Meanwhile, on the opposite end of the state, three Pitt county ABC officers were at Carolina Beach attending a state meeting of ABC officers. They were H.B. Lilly, Jim Ward, and Richard King. They were expected back in the office Friday with the closing of the convention today.

Old Clothing Drive Scheduled Sunday By Greenville Jaycees

Give clothes for the needy of the world!

This, in simplified phrasing, is the call being issued to Greenville humanitarians and just plain good citizens as members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce prepare to launch their clothing drive here Sunday.

At least 25 Junior chamber members will spread out over the city Sunday afternoon to collect any clothing and other goods from the porches of all who will heed the call.

A committee, working under General Chairman Ashley Hudson and Chairman of the Truck Brigade Frank Strawn, has divided the city into zones, each of which will be canvassed by truck beginning at 2 p.m.

Jack Edwards, chairman of Jaycees publicity, said today 10 or 12 trucks have been contracted for collecting the donations.

All donations will go to the Joint Agencies of the Overseas, a Committee of the Church World Service and the North Carolina Christian Rural Overseas Program, with offices in Durham. They will be redistributed to the needy in Korea, Japan, Okinawa, India and Pakistan, Palestine, and peoples throughout western Europe.

New Jet Planes Slated In Europe

PARIS (UP)—The first squadrons of new sweep-wing jet fighters comparing favorably with anything the Russians are flying will start to arrive in Europe this fall, aviation authorities said today.

Their arrival from the United States will mark the start of a giant program to replace some 2,000 "obsolescent" Thunder jet fighters now equipping Western air forces in Europe.

The replacements will be the completely new F94F planes believed capable of carrying "baby" atom bombs.

By the time they arrive the F94F's may hold the world speed record presently in possession of an American P86 Sabre of the type used in Korea. Republic Aviation, builder of the P94F will try to crack the record this summer.

Post Office Gradually Improving Mail Service

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Post Office Department is working up gradually to its goal of improving the mail service.

The department has made several improvements in recent months. More will follow as the new management team finishes various studies of the huge postal operation, a spokesman said today.

In his State of the Union message last February President Eisenhower set twin goals for the new post office administration: Improve service and lower costs.

As a step toward both, the department has ordered closing of 60 small rural post offices in North Carolina and Virginia and extension of rural delivery service to their patrons. It is studying other areas where this program could be put into effect.

In the urban field, it has ordered later mail box collections in 29 cities to speed up delivery time for letters. Post office windows also will remain open longer as a convenience to customers.

It has taken these other steps to improve service: Added a helicopter shuttle route between New York City and New Jersey for handling air mail, started a program to make more lock boxes available in post offices and allowed customers to omit printed labels on sealed parcels.

The latter step, a spokesman said, was designed to remove a "source of irritation" when customers don't have a label handy. They'll still have to write the slogan, Contents, merchandise, may be opened for inspection" on the wrappers.

Even the design of post office buildings is under study. The department hopes to "get away from the monument look" in new or remodeled buildings and make better use of their space.

Batory Skipper In British Prison

LONDON (UP)—Capt. Jan Cwiklinski, who quits his command of the Polish liner Batory, was lodged in Brixton prison here today while the government considered his plea for asylum as a refugee from behind the Iron Curtain.

It was understood that the period of "consideration" was purely routine. The Batory's medical officer, a Dr. Taklaker, who walked off with Cwiklinski, already has been released with permission to stay in Britain.

A spokesman for the Gdynia-America Shipping Line, owners of the Batory, said he had no information about Cwiklinski.

"We know nothing more than what is in the newspapers," he said. "We did not even know the captain was in London."

Polish friends in Newcastle-on-Tyne disclosed how they aided the escape of Cwiklinski, the skipper who brought Red ball jumper Gerhard Eisler to Britain from New York.

They got him away from the shipyard, where the Batory was under repair, and put him on a London-bound train. He hid out in London for three days and gave himself up yesterday.

William J. Speight Funeral On Thursday

Mr. William Joseph Speight, 40, died at his home in Grifton at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. He had been stricken with a heart attack about four hours earlier.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon by his pastor, the Rev. Horace Quigley of Grifton, and burial will be in the Grifton Cemetery. Members of the Men's Fellowship of the Grifton Christian Church and the Grifton Lions Club will be honorary pallbearers.

Mr. Speight, son of the late Michael Anderson and Pearl Wood Speight, spent all his life in Green County until he moved to Grifton eight years ago. He operated a store in Grifton and also farmed. He was a member of the Board of Deacons of the Grifton Christian Church, President of the Men's Fellowship of the Church, and a Charter Member of the Grifton Lions Club.

Surviving are his wife, the former Helen Sellers of Green County; two sons: Lowell and Lawrence Speight of the home; two brothers: Clarence Speight of near Hookerton and John Wesley Speight of Maysville; and two sisters: Mrs. Charlie Albritton and Mrs. Rossie Gray of near Hookerton.

Dr. Leon Russell, pastor of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church is chairman of the sewing committee for the drive. He lists the following as things citizens can give:

- (1) Clothing — for men, boys, women and girls, infants, and hats (only felt hats that can be rolled since all clothing is baled).
- (2) Shoes (tie together) — all ages. Women's should have "B" width with low heels. Rubbers and galoshes with wear left.
- (3) Household and other articles — quilts, blankets, sheets, pillowcases, towels, washcloths.
- (4) Sewing Materials — needles (in packages), sewing and darning thread, buttons, safety-pins, thumbtacks, scissors, elastic.
- (5) Yard goods and knitting wool.
- (6) Food — canned goods, dried fruits and vegetables.
- (7) Kits — school kits, seed packets, medical kits, tool kits and sewing kits.

Dr. Russell, in summing up the donation drive goal, commented: "This is a cry to the United Churches in America: Human suffering in the world today has reached a new high. Millions of women, men and children are in desperate need of good warm clothing and nourishing food. These millions of fellow humans require the assistance of American Christians in their struggle for survival."

Evicted Widow In Police Court

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A frail 75-year-old widow, who kept a 26-hour rocking chair vigil in front of the home from which she had been evicted, faces a police court hearing today on a vagrancy charge.

Officers took Mrs. Margaret Hespenthal into custody Tuesday afternoon after she stalked out of an institution for the homeless aged shouting defiantly, "This is no place for me."

The gray-haired woman was evicted from her $10-a-month flat Monday because she was $140 in arrears for rent. Flanked by her rickety furniture, Mrs. Hespenthal rocked in her chair on the sidewalk for two days and a night despite entreaties by neighbors that she accept shelter.

Social workers arranged for Mrs. Hespenthal's admission to the institution but she walked out a few hours later. She was booked by police when she adamantly refused to return.

Neighbors said Mrs. Hespenthal, a former domestic, had lived in the neighborhood for 35 years. Her home was described as "neat as a pin."

Neighbors supplied Mrs. Hespenthal with food and coffee but she refused to leave her belongings.

Because Mrs. Hespenthal had a savings account, she was denied public assistance. However, she was assured aid when her savings were depleted. She said her money was gone.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Amy Tutwiler Ennett; two brothers, Andrew D. and L. B., both of Swainboro.

Mobilizes His Political Army Against Rivals

L. PAZ, Bolivia (UP)—President Victor Paz Estenssoro has mobilized his political army to deal with the "subversive activities of reactionary (anti-government) parties," it was announced today.

The MNR (government) party said that its "minutemen" have been ordered to report to their bases "with arms and ammunition" following the discovery and frustration over the weekend of a "plot."

The hardy street fighters of the MNR overcame regular army garrisons to sweep Paz to power in last year's bloody Easter week revolution. Since that time, pro-government labor unions have created a special "workers' militia" to defend the regime.

Romulo Pleads With Rhee To 'Reconsider'

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Gen. Carlos Romulo, former president of the U.N. General Assembly and Philippines presidential candidate, has appealed to President Syngman Rhee to "reconsider his attitude toward the armistice."

Romulo made his appeal in a speech Tuesday before the Eighth World Congress of the Junior Chamber International. He said he is convinced the U.N. policy is the "course of sober statesmanship on the Korean problem."

"The U.N. has successfully repelled the Communist aggression," he said. "We have restored the authority of the Republic of Korea over a larger territory than it controlled at the beginning of the war. We are prepared to deal firmly with any renewal of aggression."
