Four Of Greenville Family Are Injured

Four Greenville people were injured, two seriously, in an automobile accident one block from the business district in Morehead City yesterday morning.

The Morehead City police department identified the injured Greenville people as Mrs. Reynolds M. Mrs. L. B. Garris, Mary May, age 11, and Louis May, age 14.

Police Sgt. S. B. Edwards who investigated the accident said Mary May, most seriously injured in the accident, suffered a broken arm and internal injuries. He said the 11-year-old girl underwent an emergency operation in the Morehead City hospital yesterday and was still in serious condition today.

Mrs. May, he said, suffered a broken collar bone and other injuries. Mrs. Garris' injuries were listed by the investigating officers as shock and bruises, and the report said Louis May also was treated for shock. Sue Parrish, 12, of Beckridge, Va., a passenger in the May car at the time of the accident, was listed as receiving either a fractured or badly sprained ankle.

Arnold Borden of Morehead City, driver of the automobile which collided with the May car, was also confined to the hospital, but the investigating officer said he did not know the extent of the man's injuries.

Police Sgt. Edwards said the automobile driven by Mrs. May was going east on Arendell Street in Morehead City, when the car driven by Borden approached from the rear at a "terrific rate of speed." Borden, the officer said, apparently attempted to pass two automobiles, but in so doing went off the left shoulder of the street. The Borden car went out of control and crashed into the May car, throwing it into a telephone line pole and a tree.

Borden's car struck a second automobile parked on the street before coming to a stop, the officer said.

Police said no charges have yet been made against Borden, pending the outcome of the condition of Mary May. Officer Edwards said the accident occurred at 9:22 Thursday morning.

Senator Smith's Death A Blow To State

The death of Senator Willis Smith is a blow to North Carolina and to the Senate of the United States in which he was considered one of its busiest members.

While a controversial figure in North Carolina politics since the bitter battle with Frank Graham for the post he held in the Senate, Willis Smith proved an able and capable member of the highest legislative body in the land.

It is not an exaggeration to say that with the death of Senator Smith, the Senate lost one of the keenest analysts of national and international problems. Though a member of the Senate only a little more than two years, Willis Smith had gained for himself a reputation and stature at least equal to the esteemed position he held among the legal profession of the nation.

Throughout his political career, which began in Raleigh in the '20's, Willis Smith had been considered a conservative Democrat. He served three terms in the North Carolina House of Representatives, and was elected Speaker of the House in the 1931 session. After being elected to the United States Senate in the turbulent political battle of 1950, he continued to follow the conservative Democratic line even though it brought much criticism from ardent Truman supporters and other more liberal Democrats in North Carolina.

Willis Smith was the only North Carolinian and one of the few Southerners to head the American Bar Association. He was considered one of the foremost legal experts in the nation.

In spite of the fact he dabbled little in politics between 1931 and 1950, he was appointed in 1933 a member of the commission preparing rules for federal courts in North Carolina. In 1946 he was appointed by Supreme Court Justice Jackson and the War Department as official observer at the Nuremberg war trials. In 1947 President Truman appointed Smith to the President's Amnesty Board, and in 1951 he was U. S. delegate to the Interparliamentary Union in Istanbul, Turkey, and chairman of the American delegation to the Interparliamentary Union meeting in Bern, Switzerland.

Senator Smith served his state and his nation well during his years in public life. His contribution to the state and nation will be long remembered, and his absence from the place of leadership he assumed sorely missed.

A Good Program If Carried Out

North Carolina's new Motor Vehicles Commissioner has outlined a four point safety program for the state, keyed by a stricter law enforcement program by members of the State Highway Patrol.

Commissioner Ed Scheidt, in our opinion, has picked the right key around which to build a better record of safety for North Carolina's highways.

His assertion that in the future patrolmen will spend more time patrolling the highways and less time attending to "routine" duties sounds good. But we don't see exactly how that is to be done if patrolmen likewise are going to operate the more intensive driver education and training programs and mobilize the public opinion behind a safety program.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
PRACTICAL MEN MAKE TROUBLE

So-called "practical men" have a marked contempt for dreamers, artists, academicians, and saints. The practical man thinks that people like this have a screw loose somewhere. If he had his way, he would enlarge the insane asylums, and fill them with well-meaning folk who believe as pathetically in need of the strait jacket or the padded cell.

A good case can be made from the scrolls of history demonstrating that so-called practical men have got us into most of our serious scrapes. Alexander the Great was practical; so were Julius Caesar, Napoleon, and Hitler. Communism has not only a philosophy for human society but a plan for changing society in such a way as to better human conditions. Of course when it is put into practice, communism ends up with concentration camps, purges, and murder garnished with sious assertions about the rights of the people.

It was Disraeli who declared that practical men are men who practice the blunders of their predecessors. Heaven preserve us from impractical dreamers who can lead us into every conceivable scheme to impoverish and enslave us. But heaven preserve us equally from the practical men who are quite sure that they could manage world affairs with their left hands, if society was only wise enough to put them in power. And God help us when they do get in power.

Freed Europe Appears Possible

By RAY TICKER

WASHINGTON—The mutinies behind the iron curtain in East Berlin and Czechoslovakia have changed the diplomatic atmosphere of the world in favor of the United States. It is one of our greatest victories since the outbreak of the cold war, in the opinion of the White House and State Department.

The spreading revolts against the Russian police state, and prospective rebellion in Red China, demonstrate to such skeptics and critics as Sir Winston Churchill and similarly minded Europeans that America has come of diplomatic age. Our foresight in that field matches our supremacy in financial and military matters.

It is one of the most important and untold stories of the 20th century, assuming that these outbreaks against Communist rule and suppression herald the beginning of the end of the Red empire. Informed experts on Russia entertain that viewpoint.

BERMUDA CONFERENCE POSTPONEMENT—The most immediate and practical effect of the civilian uprising may be the postponement, more or less permanently, of the Eisenhower-Churchill conference in Bermuda. Ike never did like the idea or Churchill's corollary proposal for an eventual meeting with Malenkov.

The President agreed to go through with the Bermuda pow-wow mainly to iron out differences between London and Washington, which revolved around the two nations' future policy toward Moscow and Peking. Eisenhower has refused to regard the Bermuda session as a necessary prelude to another vodka-and-caviar bout with the Russians.

Now, even though the current anti-Russian demonstrations may be suppressed by military brutality, Eisenhower has new arguments against an appeasement gesture. As Washington recently has asked 10 Downing Street, why negotiate with a dictatorship which may be nearing its end?

CONTRASTING VIEWPOINTS—The American and

Some "routine" duties patrolmen are now performing may be cut out, but there will still be courts to be attended, vehicles to be inspected, titles and licenses to be checked, and time spent by members of the patrol in cooperating with local law enforcement officials.

A stricter enforcement of traffic laws will benefit the state's safety program as will educational and driver training programs designed to gain public support for safer highways. Yet the highway patrol as it now stands can not be expected to do it all and still spend more time on the road.

The Reflector often wonders if at least a part of the answer to North Carolina's highway problem does not lie in having sufficient personnel to do the job of strict law enforcing on the highways.

In Pitt County, for instance, there are six patrolmen and one corporal specifically assigned to work in the county. It is their job not only to attend to routine duties mentioned above, but likewise it is their job to patrol the 444.2 miles of paved highways and 515.6 of non-hardsurfaced roads in the county. That is an average of 137.1 miles for each patrolman to keep under his scrutiny.

On the state level there are 523 members of the highway patrol and more than 66,000 miles of roads, which means an average of at least 126 miles for each patrolman including those whose jobs are principally office jobs.

The new Commissioner has outlined a relatively simple program, but it should prove effective, if it can be adequately carried out.

British positions vis-a-vis Russia have been far more conflicting than is generally realized. The contrasting viewpoints existed under both Truman and Eisenhower. In fact Harry S. Truman deserves a great deal of credit for the anticipated diplomatic coup.

The basic theory of Truman's policy of containment and entrenchment—the Turbo-Greek reinforcement, the Marshall Plan, NATO, the resistance in Korea and our military buildup—was that it would cow Russia and stave off World War II, at least until the West was better prepared than it was in the 1946-47 period.

Truman also argued that this display of power and determination by the democracies would give hope and help to the imprisoned peoples of Eastern Europe, the Balkans, the Middle East and the Far East.

Only a few days ago, in what may be his farewell appearance as an Administration spokesman on Capitol Hill, General Omar N. Bradley attributed the Berlin riots to this American counter-revolution. In several talks to Congressional groups when he commanded SHAPE, Eisenhower himself expressed this theory.

HARD-BOILED ATTITUDE BEST—Both Churchill and Prime Minister Nehru have questioned the wisdom of this hard-boiled attitude toward Russia, especially the now abandoned Eisenhower-Dulles idea of "liberation" on numerous votes, the Arab and South American blocs in the United Nations have lined up against us.

In general, they have favored agreement with the Reds, if not appeasement, largely because of Russia's supposed monolithic strength. Semi-humorously, Churchill once told American friends that he wished he had never coined the phrase, "the iron curtain."

"You folks," he added, "take it too seriously! We must co-exist with the Russians!"

Now, in view of widespread internal dissonance within the Communist Empire, the American diplomatic viewpoint appears to have been more correct and prophetic than the opinion of Europe's profession-

Out Of The Same Cloth

Somebody Told Me . . .

You Too Can Help Other 'Kims'

Today's column is very timely, because Sunday the Junior Chamber of Commerce will be canvassing the city to pick up old clothes for overseas relief. Have your old clothes on your doorstep by two o'clock and the JC's will come by and pick them up.

This is timely because today I have a letter from Mrs. Tommy Sellers of Greenville, whose husband is a Major in the Marine Air Arm and is serving in Korea. Dot and her two daughters are living here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Copeland on the Falkland highway.

The reason for the letter from Dot is that she spends a lot of time down on the river and I have found it impossible to interview her in person. Her story is about just one child overseas who needed help desperately. Sunday you can help others, and adults too, simply by putting your old clothes on the doorstep.

Dot says, "After a rather long day here is a little of the story of the little Korean boy Kim.

The first I heard of Kim was from Tommy, when he wrote 'We have a little Korean boy that takes care of our hut; cleans up, makes beds, etc. He isn't as big as Sharon (Dot and Tommy's older daughter) even though he is 16 years old. I gave him a Milky Way bar this afternoon and I thought he was going to cry. He speaks just enough English to say 'Hello' and 'Goodbye', but he is very intelligent and honest. He speaks Korean, Chinese and Japanese, fluently. I will send you his picture as soon as I get my film developed.'

Soon after this I sent Tommy a package (full of books and half of the Colonial Stores) and in this package I included a book that Sharon wanted Kim to have, 'The Story of Jesus.' Tommy wrote that Kim was very thrilled to have the book and had spent the whole day pouring over it. His uncle speaks English and is helping Kim to read it. Kim asked Tommy if he might write to Sharon and thank her and also if he might send her a doll.

When Christmas came we received a card from Kim and also a written message thanking Sharon for the book.

Tommy wrote us before Christmas that the boys in his hut had taken up a collection to buy a bike and that he was going to get him one in Japan when he went on rest leave. Tommy arrived in Japan during the holidays and the Japanese were celebrating the New Year and all the shops were closed for several days. So Tommy finally got a bike by buying it from a boy at the gates of the Imperial Palace. We sent Kim a bell to put on his bike.

This story of Little Kim will be continued.

And I thank Dot. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

SILENT TOM?
(Asheville Citizen)

Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark was on shaky ground when he rejected an invitation to appear before a House investigating committee and answer certain charges raised about his term as Attorney General.

The ground, in Mr. Justice Clark's words: "Your invitation involves a high principle of great importance, the preservation of the independence of the three branches of the Government." That is to say, the separation of powers among the executive, the legislative and the judicial authorities.

The shakiness thereof, according to our own construction: The subcommittee is not seeking to question the Justice about his judicial performance; if it were, the proper course would be impeachment. It is seeking, rather, to develop information about certain alleged tax fraud cases during the term of Attorney General Clark, which it has a right to do.

The subcommittee is headed by Rep. Kenneth Keating of New York. Unfortunately, the Keating Committee's own co-investigators are not entirely clear as an investigative body. Recently it subpoenaed Federal District Judge Louis Goodman of San Francisco in an effort to question him about court activities. Judge Goodman appeared, but only to present a letter signed by the Federal judiciary of California protesting that under the Constitution, review of judicial matters must be conducted by the courts, not Congress.

Supreme Court Justice Clark can make no such defense. There has been a good deal of dark rumor about the Justice Department under his stewardship. If it is true, as former Deputy Attorney General Peyton Ford contends, that rumors and charges arise out of "misunderstandings," why then Mr. Justice Clark owes it to the country and to his own reputation to testify. Silence will only entomb a lasting suspicion that something, after all, was wrong in the Attorney General's office under Tom Clark.

Around Capitol Square

Cooperation High In Developing Of State's Prosperity

DEVELOPMENT—The North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development is charged by the statutes with major responsibility for performing the functions implied in its name. Through its several divisions the department is engaged in conserving and developing the natural resources—forests, minerals and streams—and promoting the artificial resources of commerce, industry and travel. Other State departments, particularly agriculture, highways and wildlife resources, cooperate in these conservation and promotional activities.

REGIONAL—In addition to the state-wide agencies there are several regional governmental units, and numerous quasi-public organizations, with the same overall objectives. The North Carolina National Park, Parkway and Forests Development Commission is primarily a mountain area agency, although its jurisdiction includes Croatan National Forest in the east and presumably will take in the Cape Hatteras Seashore Recreation Area when that project is effectuated. The State Ports Authority is primarily concerned with development of deep water ports at Morehead City, Wilmington and Southport, but its scope includes inland rivers and service to shippers all over the state.

NON-GOVERNMENT—Many local chambers of commerce have extended promotional activities beyond their immediate community borders. This seems to be especially true of Asheville, Charlotte, Wilmington and Winston-Salem. Then there are several areal organizations supported by groups of communities. Outstanding in this field may be mentioned Western North Carolina Associated Communities, comprising eleven counties in the southwestern corner of the state; and the South Eastern North Carolina Beach Association, including the coastal area of the South Carolina line.

SPECIALISTS—These several agencies are engaged for most part in specialized activity. The parks commission in the West and the beach association in the east are primarily concerned with recreation. The ports authority and the associated communities are concerned with commercial and industrial development. The C&D department is split into several divisions, each with special responsibility for one or two major projects, but supervision of a central board and the department director. The two divisions most active in promotional work and with respect to cooperation with regional and local groups are those of commerce and industry and state advertising.

The advertising division has subsidiary news and travel bureaus. Other divisions in the department are concerned with conservation and utilization of forest, mineral and water resources, and they also cooperate with local and regional agencies.

LIMITED—Paradoxical as it may sound, the broad scope of State cooperation tends to limit what can be done with respect to any one section or particular project. The State wants vacationers to come to North Carolina, but it is up to the fountain and coastal folks to get them into those particular areas. The State is concerned with getting industry located in all the 100 counties. Whether the new plant goes to the east or the west, says Duke or Carolina power, or the rails of Coast Line, Seaboard or Southern, is of little consequence to C&D.

COOPERATIVE—It is obvious that while mutual cooperation is necessary the burden of locating industry or attracting tourists must be borne by the regional and local groups. There have been times when local folks expected too much of the State and have been less zealous in their own behalf than they should have been. State officials have had to turn down requests for publicity personnel and assistance in the management of local dramas, festivals and even new business organizations.

RESPONSIBILITY—Reports from all around indicate that the local folks are assuming more of the responsibility which is really theirs. The Western North Carolina Highlanders, Inc., successor to the W.N.C. Tourist Association, under direction of Bart Leeper; the South Eastern North Carolina Beach Association, under leadership of Jack Farrell; the several groups in the Dare county area of which Aycock Brown is the sparkplug; chamber of commerce at Asheville and Wilmington, piloted by Art Jones and E.M. Camak, respectively, are manifesting greater determination to do their own job, calling frequently upon the State for aid but not depending upon Raleigh to carry the load. Conversely, the more they do for themselves, the greater becomes the obligation of the State to lend a hand. That is one

Business Today Psychological Effects

By ELMER ROESSNER
There is a danger that we may be talking ourselves into a recession. While government spending, interest rates, the ratio of available products to needs, the weather and other more or less tangible factors bear directly on the economic well-being of a nation, attitudes and expectations have a deep influence. Some economists believe that recessions are largely psychological.

There are some less-than-cherished opinions bearing on the public psychology today.

A business publication says: "The most general view of the second half of 1953 is one of slow and supported weakening, rather than total stability or slow advance."

The bulletin of a respected bank states: "A further up-trend in industrial production over the next six months is unlikely."

A business reports service declares: "Business activity will slacken moderately during the next six months."

A corporation treasurer told a recent management meeting that business should search personnel for "fifth wheels" and let them go now while the other employment opportunities exist. "Don't discover them when you are trying to cut expenses in a depression."

These examples are not a cross section; there is a large body of opinion that foresees sustained prosperity for considerable time ahead. But these excerpts pose the question: What if a large number of business executives accept them as gospel?

Well, they will slow down their buying, trying to live off their inventories as far as possible. They will be tempted to postpone plans for expanding plants and markets. They will try to trim their payrolls where possible. They will resist wage demands more firmly, thus leading to strikes.

Such steps, of course, would tend to diminish the volume of business, total personal income and spending. They would tend to spread fear among consumers leading to postponement of purchases. Then each of the sources quoted could say, "We told you so."

It is important to be realistic about probable courses of future events. It is equally important not to lapse into a run-to-the-hills psychology.

TEACHING FOREMEN SOLVES LABOR PROBLEM

Facing a serious labor shortage, a Bridgeport, Conn., firm decided to recruit newly arrived Puerto Ricans, many of whom could not speak English. But in stead of trying to teach the recruits English, it sent its foreman to college.

The firm, H. O. Canfield Co., maker of precision molded rubber parts, enlisted the help of Dr. Alfredo Kraessel, of Bridgeport University. He organized classes to teach, not conventional Spanish, but functional language necessary for the operation of the factory. He also gave lectures on the history, characteristics and customs of Puerto Ricans. Then newspaper ads brought the first of 100 workers into the plant.

The experiment began badly. The trouble, curiously, was that the foremen expected too little instead of too much from the new men. But as workers and foremen began to understand each other better, production increased and Puerto Ricans are now working in every department. They have signed up with union, too. ## Courtesy Adds To Road Safety

By BELMAN MORIN

FOR HAP-PIER—If the facts and figures could ever be compiled, I believe it would be found that most traffic accidents are not the result of speed, lack of judgment, drinking, or driving with one arm around a doll.

Each of these undoubtedly contributes to the grand total.

But, in my book, the top cause for tragedy on the highway is plain lack of courtesy.

Something queer seems to happen to many people when they get behind the wheel of an automobile. The same man who will politely hold the door for a lady, or struggle to get his hat off in a crowded elevator, takes a strictly the-hell-with-you-Jack attitude once he starts down the road in a jockey. Anybody know why?

For one thing, I suppose, there is a sense of power. To be able to direct a couple hundred horses and two tons of metal engender a sense of release.

There are many people today who feel frustrated, insecure, and inadequate for this harsh world. For them, perhaps, an automobile is the great equalizer.

The little man who takes a beating in his office, and will be ragged and pushed around by the bride when he gets home, is on even terms with prices and potatoes once he starts down the road.

All the inferiorities, suppressed emotions, and plain spite seem to surface then. This, I think, is the explanation for the commoner forms of highway nuisances, to wit:

The road-runner—This is the guy who can't stand having anybody in front of him. If you start to pass him, he will speed up. Or, he will pass you, then drop to his normal cruising speed, which is usually somewhat slower than yours. Better let him stay in front; he will only race you to the next curve otherwise.

The eyes-front-only bird—He has a rear view mirror above the windshield, one on each door and two more on the fenders. But they are solely for decoration. He never uses them. Thus, on a crowded parkway, rolling at 45-plus, he will start out of his lane without a second thought. Sometimes he never lives to have another, either; but neither does the driver beside him.

The corner-cutter — Center lines on the highway mean nothing to him. Taking a curve, he is too lazy to keep from drifting across into the lane of traffic going the other way. May be rest in peace under that quiet headstone.

The straddler—Usually, this is a dear old lady who can't quite make up her mind. Some times, she isn't so old either. For one reason or another, women drivers tend to resent highway lanes. They will get the white line running squarely under the middle of the car, and hold that course, grimly. No amount of horn blowing moves them over, and it is worth your life to try to pass on the right. Nothing can be done about it.

The time-is-money driver—He is waiting to come on the parkway. There isn't another car behind you for three miles, but does he wait? He does not. He glares over his shoulder, guns the motor, grinds his teeth and roars out in front of you. From his point of view, it's strictly your problem at that point.

Space does not permit listing all the menaces.

Some people, of course, are just naturally bad drivers, with poor coordination, slow reflexes, or faulty eyesight. A true driving test—and few cities have them—would bring out these handicaps.

But the letus today do not show whether a man or woman will exercise common courtesy on the road. Or whether he is likely to air the grudges and complexes he acquired elsewhere by acting like an oaf in traffic.

Checks Awaiting Tobacco Growers

This is another list of names of tobacco farmers of 1947, 1948 and 1949 seasons who have not claimed their checks from the North Carolina Flue Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corporation of Raleigh.

The checks were not delivered because of changes in addresses and other reasons. Farmers who find their names listed should communicate with the Stabilization Corporation in Raleigh. Growers should send their identification cards and the pink agreement and receipt.

If these are not available, they should send warehouse bills and copies of settlement memorandums describing tobacco delivered to the Stabilization Corporation the years in question. In addition, they should send their marketing quota numbers for the several years and names of landlords or tenants for the years in question.

Truman Leaving Capital Today

WASHINGTON (UP)—Former President Truman, winding up a five day visit to the Capital, planned to leave by train for Philadelphia today at 2 p.m. e.d.t. He will make a speech on national defense before the Reserve Officers Association in Philadelphia tonight, then continue to New York for a visit of several days.

Christie, pale and nervous, heard a bewigged British judge in the Old Bailey courtroom, sentence him to hang for the December strangling of his wife, Ethel.

The meek-looking former clerk was tried only for Mrs. Christie's slaying although a startled courtroom had heard him admit fiendish sex killings of seven other women, including Mrs. Timothy Evans.

Mrs. Evans' husband had been accused of strangling her and their 14-month-old daughter in the dreary tenement building where Christie lived for 15 years.

Evans went on trial in 1949 only for the slaying of the child. Christie testified, as chief prosecution witness, that Evans had killed both his wife and daughter.

Christie denied he had murdered the child but his admission he had garrotted Mrs. Evans in a sex orgy brought reaction in parliament.

Labor MPs said they would demand a full-scale inquiry into whether there was a miscarriage of justice in the Evans case. The House of Commons next week will hear the argument for an investigation of the truck driver's execution.

Christie has 10 days in which to appeal his death sentence.

Unless he wins clemency, he will retrace next month the "last mile" to the gallows from which Evans' limp body dangled almost four years ago.

Curiosity Costs Wrecked Truck

PASADENA, Calif. (UP)—Tonnie Maddox's truck was struck from the rear and overturned when Maddox stopped to investigate a small shining flying saucer he saw in the road.

Maddox, uninjured, climbed from the upside down cab of his truck and gazed disconsolately at the flying saucer: An automobile hub-cap.

War's End Was His Final Hope

CHICAGO (UP)—A young Army lieutenant, forseeing his own death on a dangerous patrol, seized a moment in the last hours of his life to write his wife of his prayers that "they will sign a truce so these young kids can get away from this blood and death."

Lt. James Fox, 25, felt what was in store for him when he sat down June 13 to write a "last letter" to his wife in Chicago.

"I have been picked to go on a 12-man patrol with the mission of capturing prisoners and enemy equipment," he said in a letter revealed today. "We will be going deep into enemy territory."

"This will be my last letter to you. That I know, because it will not be mailed unless I am killed tonight."

A few hours later Lieutenant Fox, graduate of the University of Notre Dame and a law student at Chicago's University of Loyola, was dead on enemy ground.

His letter showed his last hours were filled with hopes for an end to the Korean conflict.

"Pray that all this shall end soon and always remember that I love you from the bottom of my heart," he wrote his wife.

"This is a brutal war and I pray each night that they will sign a truce so these young kids can get away from this blood and death. They are thrown in here at 18 and 19 before they even know what life is all about. It's a cruel war to have to grow up."

He told his 25-year-old wife, Jean, "I have no fear of going on this

WITH LANG

By MELVIN LANG

The remodeled Southern Conference meets in Roanoke, Va., this afternoon and tomorrow. It is possible that East Carolina College will be considered as a new addition to the ten-member league.

Dr. N.M. Jorgensen, East Carolina Athletic Director, and Dr. John Reynolds of the E.C.C. faculty are representing the local school at the meeting. Before leaving Greenville yesterday afternoon, Dr. Jorgensen stated that he and Dr. Reynolds were going to Roanoke to present their case before the Southern officials.

It is doubtful that new members will be taken into the conference at this time. Seven members have already withdrawn because of its bulk, and the remaining ten will think twice before taking more schools into their ranks.

Rumors have been circulated that Virginia would be asked to join the Southern. It is entirely possible that the Cavaliers will be invited. Virginia is a national power in nearly every sport. With the exception of West Virginia and a few others, none of the Southern schools compete on a major scale in all events. The only attraction that the Southern Conference could hold for Virginia would be the natural state rivals who are also members of the league. William and Mary, Virginia Tech, Virginia Military Institute, Washington and Lee, and Richmond are all in the Southern, and play Virginia in at least one athletic event.

If the Southern Conference does take in a new school, East Carolina would be a natural. The Pirates have climbed rapidly in the sports world after a war-time layoff. With the student enrollment steadily increasing, East Carolina could easily take its place along with the present Southern colleges.

League Directors of the Bright Belt League met earlier this week in Wilson and decided to hold the league All-Star game in Farmville on the night of July 10. Farmville, leading the league by seven full games, will play a group of players selected from the other five teams.

Wilson owner-manager Lee Rice will direct the All-Star team. Fred Pittman of Stantonsburg and Ambler Davis of Rocky Mount will assist Rice.

Coastal fishing has gained a wide following in recent years among local anglers. The Reflector will start a daily tide chart next week in an effort to aid the fishermen who will visit the salt water areas. The chart will contain information on the most frequent construction is rapidly proceeding on the South Greenville playground center and will soon be finished. It will be an important addition to the recreational facilities for the children in that area.

Farmville's exhibition game with Mt. Olive last night had billed a former Red Sox catcher as playing with Mt. Olive. Ralph Britt usually does play on a full-time schedule with the Wayne County club but he just did make it to Farmville in time to make an appearance last night. It seems the Selective Service is interested in him, and he was called for an armed forces physical yesterday.

Streeter Tugwell has been doing a good job filling in as catcher for Farmville in the last two games. The regular catcher, Red McDaniels, was spiked in a game in Rocky Mount last Sunday and has been unable to take his usual turn.

Another item on the Farmville team: Interest has increased in the Farmville area to such a point that the merchants are having trouble getting advertising space on the Saturday night radio broadcasts over Wilson "radio station" WGTM. The Red Sox have one of the widest followings of a semi-pro club anywhere in eastern North Carolina.

The American Legion in Wilson has gone to a great deal of trouble in sponsoring the Grand National Stock Car Race to be held at the fairground speedway in Wilson Sunday afternoon. Alton "Cigar" Hadcock, of Greenville, has done a good job promoting the event. Wilson officials are expecting a capacity crowd of over 5,000 spectators. The top racers from all parts of the United States are expected to take part in the 200-lap race.

Stock Car Race To Be Held On Wilson Track Sunday

WILSON—Top drivers of the stock car racing circuit will make their appearance here Sunday afternoon for the Grand National Stock Car Races at the Wilson County Fairgrounds Speedway.

Herb Thomas of Olivia will probably be billed as the favorite by pre-race selectors. Thomas has led the national ratings during most of the current racing campaign, and seems to be getting stronger in every race.

Tim and Fonty Plock will also be on hand for the 200-lap event, which carries a purse of $4,600 for the winners. Fonty won the recent Raleigh "300", driving a '33 Hudson. Tim finished third in the official scoring of the Raleigh affair.

Wilson officials announced yesterday that another Raleigh winner and national leader, Speedy Thompson, had entered the big race. Thompson came in second in Raleigh behind Fonty Plock.

The race is sanctioned by NASCAR and is sponsored by the Wilson chapter of the American Legion. Alton "Cigar" Hadcock serves as promoter for the local races.

Other drivers who have already signed for the race are Dick Rathman, Lee Petty, Dick Passwater, Buck Baker, Herschel Buchanan, Jimmy Lewellyn, and Bill Blair. Several other racers who are high in the national standings will also be on hand for the grueling test.

Time trials will start at 12:00 and run until 2:45 p.m. The race will start promptly at 3 p.m.

All cars in the race will be late models, between 1949 and 1953 editions. Except for safety precautions and motor tune-ups, they will be the same as the one which you drive to the race.

There is virtually no distinction between tame and wild reindeer.

Chicago Beats Yanks, 4-2; Stengel, Mantle Feuding

Casey Threatens To Bench Mantle If Yankee Flash Keeps Going After Long Ball; Indians Win, 15-4

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Casey Stengel's temper boiled over again today against Mickey Mar. Je. his double-duty beauty, "who ought to quit trying for them 500-foot home runs."

"He's gonna strike out more than anybody who ever played with the Yankees and right now he ain't a cleanup hitter any more so I'm moving Yogi Berra in there," Stengel grumped.

"He ought to quit trying for those long hits and just meet the ball. But he won't do that, so now he's gonna hit third and if he don't hit there he may have to sit down awhile."

Stengel, the two-plateau expert, who often is also a two-plateau conversationalist, was doing some convincing straight talking as he discussed the four-game 1 o s i n g streak of the world champion streak that has lost their big lead to nine games.

"We just ain't hitting," he said. "The way we're going right now we can't beat anybody. And we gotta go up against a lot more good pitching with Cleveland coming in right after Chicago and trying to bump us off."

Stengel's criticism over Mantle's free-swinging for extraordinary distance as an indirect slap at the Yankee ballyhoo department, which has whooped up much propaganda over switch-hitting Mickey's various "tape measure" homers this year.

The White Sox, by edging the Yankees 4-2 with a ninth inning rally Thursday, made it nine victories in a row at Yankee Stadium since July 19, 1952. Lefty Bily Pierce twirled a five-hitter and Nellie Fox was the big hitter with a two-run homer and a ninth inning single which touched off a rally in which he scored the deciding run on another single by Minnie Miñoso. The White Sox set a record by using five first basemen, Ferris Fain being ordered out of the game for arguing with Umpire Charley Berry to set off a chain reaction that found catcher Sherman Toller, third baseman Fred Marsh, pitcher Pierce in the ninth, and finally outfielder Sam Mele at the bag.

Pierce returned to the mound to retire the side after his brief stint at first, when reliever Harry or ish got into trouble. Yogi Berra hit a two-run first inning homer but the Yankees had no luck against Pierce thereafter.

Cleveland gained a game with its 16-hit 15-4 spree against the Red Sox in which Al Rosen and Larry obby each drove in five runs. Doby hit two homers, a double and single and Rosen homered, doubled, and singled. Dick Gernert hit a Boston homer. Art Houtteman gained his first victory for Cleveland, giving up 11 scattered hits.

The Athletics topped the Tigers 5-2 and St. Louis won its fourth game in a row, 3-1 from Washington.

Brooklyn came out of its slump with a 12-3 victory at Cincinnati that put the Dodgers within two games of Milwaukee, which lost 4-4 to Pittsburgh in 12 innings as the Pirates swept a three-game series. In other National League games, the Phils moved into third place with a 13-2 victory over Chicago and the Giants defeated the Cardinals 9-4.

Bob Hofman hit a pinch hit grand slam homer in the Giant victory in which Daryl Spencer also homered and Hoyt Wilhelm pitched two-hit relief ball for 2-1-3 innings to gain his fifth victory. Stan Musial made three of the 10 St. Louis hits including a homer.

The Phils trotted out their new $100,000 bonus rookie, Ted Kazanski, at shortstop and he sparked them both at field and at bat, driving in four runs with two doubles and a single. Jim Konstanty coasted to his seventh victory. Richie Ashburn, Mel Clark and Willie Jones also made three hits and Gran Hamner homered for the Phils while George Metkovich hit a Chicago homer. It was the 11th straight victory for the Phils over the Cubs this year.

The Dodgers made five homers by Wayne Belardi, Carl Furillo, Gil Hodges, Duke Snider, and Pee-wee Reese in their 16-hit triumph over Cincinnati, which collected a pair of homers by Bobby Adams and Jim Greengrass. Preacher Roe pitched seven-hit ball for his fourth victory.

"Pinch hitter Johnny Lindell tied the score for Pittsburgh with a three-run homer in the ninth and the Pirates made two more off loser Bob Buhl in the 12th on a walk to Johnny O'Brien plus singles by Danny O'Connell and Frank Thomas and a double by Dick Cole.

Harry Byrd struck out eight batters and held Detroit scoreless until the ninth to achieve his eighth victory for the Athletics, while lefty Harry Brecheen and ancient Satchel Paige collaborated on a 10-hit job to give the Browns their victory at Washington.

Mt. Olive Loses Exhibition, 5-2

FARMVILLE—Three runs in the fifth inning provided the winning margin for Farmville's Bright Belt League team as the Red Sox defeated Mt. Olive, 5-2, in an exhibition game.

Joe Jones pitched the win for Farmville, receiving credit for his fifth win of the over-all season. He was relieved in the eighth by Johnny Hinson, who faced seven men and fanned three of them. He gave up one hit.

Bob Smith of Mt. Olive collected a triple, while Farmville's Streeter Tugwell and Bill Kennedy each hit doubles. They were the only extra base blows.

Stewart Carries Wimbledon Hopes

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (UP)—Sky-Scraper Hugh Stewart, one of America's brightest young hopes for the future, tries to halt the forward surge of the favored Australians in the feature match of today's action in the Wimbledon tennis championships.

Stewart, who made steady progress through the first three rounds while the spotlight was on more famous entrants, was matched in the fourth round of men's singles against 18-year old Les Hood of Australia, with the winner going into the quarter-finals.

The only other American scheduled for action in men's singles today was seventh-seeded Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif. Larsen was favored over Torsten Johansson of Sweden.

Second-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia and fifth-seeded Gardner Mulloy of Miami, Fla., teamed for a third round match in men's doubles of Felicissimo Ampon and Raymond Deyro. Also scheduled for second round doubles matches today were Stewart, teamed with Armando Vieira of Brazil against the Australian team of Ian Ayre and Olive Wilderspin; Budge Patty of Los Angeles and Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt against another Aussie team, Jack Arkinstant and Barry Green and Bernard Barzen of San Angelo, Tex., and Gran Golden of Wilmette, Ill., against the Danish team of Kurt Nielsen and Torben Ulrich.

Bob Perry Enters NCAA Semi-Finals

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UP)—Top-seeded Ham Richardson of Tulane clashes with Bob Perry of UCLA today in the semi-final round of the NCAA tennis championships.

In the other semi-final, Ron Livingston of UCLA meets Gil Shea of Southern California.

Richardson won his quarter-final match Thursday over John Rickson of California, 6-1, 6-2.

The advance of Perry and Livingston, plus the placing of two teams in the semi-finals of the doubles already has clinched the team title for UCLA with eight points against five for Southern California.

Two Games Held In Pony League

Pony League activity last night had the Rulanes beating Red Men, 9-3, and the Ford-O-Matics losing to Bright Leaf, 13-5.

The league-leading Rulanes exploded for eight runs in the fourth inning to come from behind to take their eighth win of the year against only one loss. Errors and walks, however, were the big factors in the big scoring spree, as the Red Men pitchers issued five base on balls and the infield committed two errors.

Mack Roebuck and Ike Riddick got the only hits, singles, in the inning. Bright Leaf scored whenever it wished in the second contest. Six runs, with a double by Ralph Johnson leading the way, were scored in the first, followed by a trip in the second. One in the fourth and three more in the fifth finished the scoring.

Joe Wingate homered for the losers in the fourth inning with two men on.

Collins Future Held By X-Rays

BOSTON (UP)—X-ray examination of Tommy Collins' swollen right hand may tell today whether his TKO by veteran Teddy Red (Top) Davis was his last fight.

The 23-year-old Boston featherweight began an automatic 30-day suspension under Massachusetts boxing regulations designed to protect knockout victims.

He went down under the Hartford, Conn., battler's left and right hooks and Referee Eddie Curley topped the fight at 1:29 of the 10th and final round at Boston Garden Thursday night.

Both Collins' hands were swollen but the swelling in the left hand could be explained by the fact that he fought off the rugged Connecticut veteran almost exclusively with that glove after the fifth round when he appeared to have injured his right.

UNASSISTED DOUBLE PLAY—Wally Westlake of the Cleveland Indians is an easy out at the plate as Ed Fitzgerald of the Washington Senators becomes the first major league catcher in four years to score an unassisted double play. Umpire Scotty Robb calls the play. With Bob Feller, Cleveland pitcher at bat in the sixth inning of the first game of a doubleheader in Washington and Westlake on third, the Indians tried a squeeze play that didn't work. Feller struck out for the front end of the double play and Fitzgerald put the ball on sliding Westlake to complete it. Cleveland won, 5-2. (AP Wirephoto)

Lions Defeat Elks, 3-1; 3 Teams Tied For Second

The Lions moved into a three-way tie for second place in the Little League yesterday by beating the Elks, 3-1. The Lions, Elks, and Jaycees each have won three games and lost two.

Lionnie Steton hurled the win for the Lions, allowing but three hits to the Elks. The losing team scored its only run in the second inning, on a single by Charles Roberts and an error by the Lions third baseman.

Aubrey Harrison scored the Lions' winning run in the third inning. He reached base on a fielder's choice and then came home on successive errors. The third Lion run was scored in the fifth. Carl Whitfield singled and advanced on another single by Steve Nobles. Charles Puryear was safe on an error, and Allen Jackson walked.

Paul's Joy in Christ

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

During Paul's imprisonment in Rome for two years before his martyrdom he lived in his own house, but was continuously chained to a Roman soldier, even while writing epistles to the various churches.

Paul was allowed visitors with whom he pleaded the cause of Christ. The soldiers guarding him heard this talk, as Paul writes to the Philippians, "my bonds become manifest in Christ in all the palace."

Paul writes of sending his "brother and companion," Epaphroditus to Philippi. He had been very sick. Paul writes, but "God had mercy on him, and not on him only, but on me also, lest I should have sorrow upon sorrow."

Paul ends his epistle to the Philippians by thanking them for gifts brought to him by Epaphroditus. He called them "an odor of a sweet smell, a sacrifice acceptable, well pleasing to God."

PAUL'S JOY IN CHRIST

HE REVEALS HOW BELIEVERS CAN REJOICE EVEN IN TRIBULATION

Scripture—Philippians.

TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS come to all peoples of all races, colors and modes of living and in all times, from the beginning of man's residence on earth up to our own times.

In any century there are those who take their griefs with courage and cheerfulness, and those who permit them to overshadow their whole lives.

We all have friends who take their troubles bravely, who can think of others who are worse off than themselves, and try to lighten their burdens instead of thinking only of their own. Also, those who permit adversity to overcome them completely, making them mournful companions who can talk only of their own griefs and insist that they never can be happy again.

St. Paul, even while he was imprisoned for two years with the prospect of a cruel death ahead, could yet be joyful and impart his joy to others. During his imprisonment he was continuously chained to a Roman soldier, the guard being changed every six hours.

Under those circumstances, how could a man be joyful? Paul

Knowing that death may be near, Paul wonders which would be best. "For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ, which is much better; nevertheless to abide in the flesh is more needful for you."

Thinking of those who would suffer if he died, he is willing to live on, and even has hope that he might again visit the church and his beloved brethren in Philippi.

He then cheers his followers by telling them to "stand fast in the spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel. And in nothing terrified by your adversaries. . . . For unto you it is given in the behalf of Christ, not only to believe on Him, but also to suffer for His sake."

From chapter 2 of Paul's epistle we quote these rules for Christian living: "Fulfill ye my joy, that ye be like minded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind."

"Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others." "Do all things without murmurwas, and part of his happiness came from the fact that he was spreading the Word, for many of these Roman Praetorians were led to believe in Christ from hearing Paul and his visitors expound the Gospel.

He writes to the church at Philippi that "I would ye should understand, brethren, that the things which happened unto me have fallen out rather unto the furtherance of the Gospel; so that my bonds to Christ are manifest in all the palace, and in all other places."

Then he tells how many of the brethren in the Lord, becoming more confident by Paul's attitude, are bolder to speak the message without fear. Some, he writes, "preach Christ even of envy and strife; and some also of good will." Those who preached in contention were not sincere, hoping to add to his affliction, Paul writes. "But the others preach of love, knowing that I am not set for the defence of the Gospel."

"What then? notwithstanding, every way, whether in presence or in truth, Christ is preached; and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice."

ings and disputings."

Paul speaks of his "brother and companion," Epaphroditus, who had been very sick, "nigh unto death," but he had recovered and Paul had sent him to Philippi, from which he returned with gifts for the apostle, for which Paul thanks them warmly. It may have been that even the bare necessities of life were sometimes denied the prisoner.

"Finally, my brethren, rejoice in the Lord. . . . this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press forward unto the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

"Rejoice in the Lord always; and again I say, Rejoice."

For the younger children this lesson may be difficult. A map showing Rome where Paul was and also Philippi in northern Greece, would be helpful. Also ask them how they would manage to live for two years with another person chained to them? Emphasize Paul's words about taking their troubles (yes, children do have them) courageously, knowing that Jesus will help them to bear whatever may come.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks moved aimlessly early today in slow dealings. Price changes were limited mostly to the fractional zone with a number of leading issues holding at their previous close.

Dealings were slow and sales in the first hour totaled only 360,000 shares, compared with 290,000 in the same period yesterday.

There was nothing in the day's news developments to snap the market out of its lethargy and investors generally awaited further economic developments in Washington.

In the main industrial group, steel shares were backward. U. S. Steel was off 1/4 to 38 3/4 and Bethlehem was down 1/4 to 51.

International Business Machines highlighted in the "blue chips" with a gain of three points to 235. Automotives did little as fractional losses were registered by Chrysler and General Motors.

Railroads were neglected. Southern Railway new, Santa Fe and Southern Pacific dipped slightly.

Polio - Stricken City Doles Out Its Vaccine Carefully

MONTGOMERY, Ala (UP)—Health officers doled out their precious supply of polio vaccine today while awaiting a government decision of whether 71 cases of the dread disease here warrant mass injections.

If the Office of Defense Mobilization decides to declare this central Alabama city a polio emergency area the scarce gamma globulin will be made available in quantity. Pending such a decision the supply is strictly limited and rationed.

Montgomery county, with three polio victims already dead, is one of two hard-hit areas of the South. The other is Caldwell County in North Carolina, where there have been 44 cases reported and one death.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has termed Montgomery as possibly the hardest hit community in the nation on a population basis. Montgomery has a population of 106,500.

County and state health officials decided yesterday with officers from the U. S. Public Health Service in Atlanta, to request emergency status for the county.

The area had been limited to about 17,000 cubic centimeters of gamma globulin. This supply, enough to inject 2,000 persons, has been limited to persons under 16 years old and expectant mothers in households in which the disease has already appeared.

Montgomery's main polio treatment center has in use eight iron
