House Committee Military Budget Is Below Requests

WASHINGTON (UP)—The House Appropriations Committee approved legislation today providing $4,441,150,000 for the military services to spend or obligate in the 1954 fiscal year starting July 1.

The measure, which was $8,284,790,500 below former President Truman's budget requests and $1,337,422,500 below the revised requests of President Eisenhower, carries funds for a third huge new aircraft carrier for the Forrestal class.

The bill also carries funds for the "interim goal" of a 120-wing Air Force as proposed by the Eisenhower administration. The committee rejected the arguments of the Truman administration that the goal should be set at 142 wings.

The Republican-controlled committee found the course outlined by the new administration for the Air Force to be "sound and reasonable."

Following is a breakdown of the requests of the departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, together with the funds voted by the committee and the requests of the presidents: Truman and Eisenhower.

ARMY: Truman request $12,100,000,000; Eisenhower request $12,387,000,000; committee voted $12,382,000,000.

NAVY: Truman request $11,499,850,000; Eisenhower request $9,782,963,000; committee voted $9,783,000,000.

AIR FORCE: Truman request $16,078,000,000; Eisenhower request $11,283,000,000; committee voted $11,048,000,000.

The big cut in the Air Force was made despite opposition testimony by Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, retiring Air Force chief of staff.

Vandenberg said it would take time for the United States to match Russia's air strength "even if our production were slightly greater" than Russia's now.

He told a House Appropriations subcommittee in secret session that the Soviets have been "piling up" planes ever since World War II.

In addition to the funds for the three fighting services, the bill carried $1,019,500,000 for the secretary of defense and $257,500 for the National Security Council and National Security Training Commission.

The total appropriations voted by the committee were 15.4 per cent below the Truman requests and 3.7 per cent below those of Mr. Eisenhower.

The committee voted $2,000,000,000 for "advance financing" of the Korean war, but said that it and when a true is agreed upon the Defense Department should take immediate action to place in reserve "such amounts as can be dissociated from Korean operations."

The committee conceded that the funds it voted do not guarantee that this nation will be safe in the event of war.

"It is altogether unreasonable to believe that this or any other nation can in this atomic age provide for 100 per cent insurance for its protection against the disaster of an attack," the committee said.

The committee said the Air Force budget called for 110 wings to be activated by the end of the 1954 fiscal year, but that Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson had said 114 wings should be activated. In addition, the new appropriations provide for the support and equipping of 7 wings and 8 flying squadrons of the Air National Guard and the partial equipping of 26 wings of the Air Reserve.

The committee said the Air Force "bank account" for ultimate spending under the legislation would total $36,500,000,000, or more than two and a half times the estimated expenditures for fiscal 1954. The remainder will be spent in future years.

The Army money included $4,708,859,000 for personnel, $4,328,884,000 for food, clothing and military operations, and $3,224,633,000 for procurement and production.

The Navy money included $2,541,000,000 for personnel, $1,075,000,000 for the Marine Corps, $2,300,000,000 for aircraft and related facilities, and about $2,400,000,000 for ships and related facilities.

The Air Force money included $3,495,000,000 for planes, $3,050,000,000 for maintenance and operations and $3,270,000,000 for personnel.

Vandenberg, outspoken opponent of the administration's cutback Air Force budget, made his remarks after Subcommittee Chairman Ernest W. Scrivener (R-Kans.) quoted a "top secret" report that the United States is now producing jet fighters and bombers faster than Russia.

The subcommittee made the "military intelligence" estimate and the Vandenberg testimony public Friday.

Figures on Russian aircraft production were deleted from Scrivener's "top secret" report but some information on U. S. air plans was disclosed. This included the estimate that 2,241 airplanes of all types will be removed from planned production to conform with the administration's new reduced 120-wing goal.

Planned Bermuda Meeting Again Postponed Churchill Reported Ailing

By JACK V. FOX
LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill must take a rest for at least one month and the Big Three Bermuda conference set for July 8 has been postponed indefinitely as a result, it was announced today.

A statement issued at No. 10 Downing Street, Churchill's official residence, said that the 78-year-old prime minister has called off his trip to Bermuda on medical advice and will ease up on work for at least a month.

The "grand old man of the British commonwealth" was to have sailed for Bermuda in a warship next Tuesday.

Downing Street said the decision to postpone the Bermuda conference was made after consultation with the United States and French governments.

In Washington President Eisenhower said he believes Churchill's illness means only a "temporary deferral" of the conference.

A bulletin issued by Churchill's physicians gave no specific information on his condition except that he needs a "complete" rest from his exacting duties.

He will remain at his country home, Downing Street said. He will look over the more important official documents, and major decisions will be referred to him.

The No. 3 man in the cabinet, Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler, will preside at cabinet meetings.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, the No. 2 man, and Churchill's political heir, has been ill for months. He is now in the United States, convalescing after an operation at a Boston clinic.

Butler has increasingly been suggested as prime minister when Churchill retires, because of Eden's persistent illness.

Churchill telephoned President Eisenhower and French Premier Joseph Laniel yesterday and told them his doctors had advised him he must rest.

The three statesmen agreed that the Bermuda conference, at which Churchill planned to press for a four-power meeting with Soviet Premier Georgi M. Malenkov, must be postponed.

The medical bulletin on Churchill said he "has had no respite for a long time from his very arduous duties."

"We have therefore advised him to abandon his journey to Bermuda and to lighten his duties for at least a month," two physicians said.

The news that Churchill must give up nearly all his duties for weeks started Britain. He has been untiring in a career extending over more than 50 years as a soldier, statesman and historian, and has served six sovereigns.

Withholding Of Price Supports Up For Study

RALEIGH (UP)—The question of withholding price supports on Carolina-Virginia tobacco sold on Georgia-Florida markets will be studied Wednesday at a special meeting in Waycross, Ga., it was announced today.

The issue was raised here at the seventh annual stockholders meeting of the Flu-Cured Stabilization Corp. yesterday when Frank Williamson of Darlington, S.C., chairman of the tobacco committee of the South Carolina Farm Bureau, asked that the co-op oppose such action.

Williamson withdrew his proposed resolution after it was brought out that the corporation must comply with policies set by the Commodity Credit Corp.

Some farmers in the Carolinas and Virginia take tobacco to Georgia for early sale before the Carolinas and Virginia flu-cured markets open.

James E. Thielen, director of the tobacco branch, Production and Marketing Administration, said the Waycross meeting will be devoted to discussion of problems of tied and untied tobacco. Tobacco is sold loose on Georgia-Florida markets.

'Real Progress' Believed Made By Eisenhower Aide Optimism Over Rhee Talks

By ERNEST HOBERECHT
SEOUL, Korea (UP)—President Eisenhower's "truce expeditors" held a crucial 40-minute meeting with South Korean President Syngman Rhee today.

Shortly after the session ended it was announced Assistant Secretary of State Walter Robertson had canceled his scheduled Sunday visit to the Korean war-front.

An American spokesman gave no reason for the abrupt change in plans. But it was assumed Robertson was planning another conference with Rhee, probably tomorrow.

The unexpected development heightened optimism that Rhee and Robertson were making real progress toward an agreement clearing the way for South Korean acceptance of a truce.

But it was optimism tempered by the knowledge that the Communists haven't accepted the armistice because of the escape of 27,000 Red war prisoners.

Gen. Mark W. Clark sat in on the top level conference in the afternoon. He had no statement to make.

Then Rhee consulted with his prime minister and several other ministers before calling an emergency meeting of the ROK cabinet.

After the long cabinet session, Rhee was host at a dinner for top U. S. and South Korean officials, including Robertson and Clark.

The Eisenhower delegation held the earlier meeting with the aged South Korean president to get his reaction to a save-the-truce plan submitted by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

When the conference broke up, there was increasing optimism that Clark and Robertson were making headway in winning the 78-year-old president's support for the recently finished truce document.

"If things keep going the way they are, it shouldn't be long," a member of Robertson's party said.

Neither Robertson nor Clark would comment on the conference as they hurried past newsmen to a staff sedan, but Rhee immediately called an emergency meeting of his cabinet.

A "misunderstanding" by some U. S. senators in Washington had led to reports that Mr. Eisenhower planned to send another diplomat to a point outside Korea for a subsequent meeting with Rhee.

But Dulles assured Robertson before today's session that President Eisenhower was backing him up in his mission to stop the fighting in Korea as battles raged on the east-central and western fronts.

Korean sources said Robertson and his party went to Rhee's presidential palace today to get the president's reactions to Dulles' compromise offer which Rhee had read to his cabinet before the session.

Robertson's meetings with Rhee, as well as those of Clark which failed to win the president's support, brought loud complaints from the Communist truce team at Kaesong near Pannumun.

South Korean Prime Minister Paik Too Chin and Foreign Minister Pyung Yung Tae sat with Rhee at the meeting.

The meeting was preceded by the arrival in war-torn Seoul of top military and diplomatic officers in the Far East.

Clark flew in from Tokyo with Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, the United Nations' chief negotiator at Pannumun, and diplomatic adviser Robert Murphy.

British Maj. Gen. Stephen H. Shoresmith, accompanied by the U. N. commander and Murphy in order to keep Prime Minister Winston Churchill informed.

Harrison stepped into a helicopter at Kimpo Airfield and went back to the Allied truce base at Munsan, where service troops were preparing to carry out the prisoner exchange known as "Big Switch."

Clark refused to tell newsmen whether he had brought his reply to the Communist demand for the recapture of the North Korean who now are mingling with South Korean civilians in the port of Pusan or living in nearby hills.

Charges N.C. Milk Producers Hurt

RALEIGH (UP)—State Agriculture Commissioner F. Ballentine has charged that "recent price reductions to milk producers are threatening the milk industry in North Carolina."

Ballentine, a dairyman himself, said the price cuts will destroy surplus milk supplies outside of a few localities and work a hardship on many farmers.

Since May 1 processors and distributors over the state have cut prices to farmers by 20 to 25 cents per hundred pounds.

"This recent wave of price reductions," Ballentine said, "is a shortsighted move that may result in serious injury to the entire milk industry of North Carolina."

He called the reductions "unwarranted" and said the producers and distributors have "attempted to justify their action on the basis of the usual seasonal surplus of milk in May and June."

The fact is, Ballentine said, that the seasonal peak of milk production has about passed and in a few more weeks there probably will be no surplus except in a few localities.

If the situation continues, Ballentine said, "it will discourage milk production at a time when we are attempting to expand it."

Housing Bill Is Called Up

WASHINGTON (UP)—An administration-backed housing bill which builders contend "doesn't go far enough in stimulating construction" was called up for action in the House today.

It would continue for another year most major features of the federal housing program scheduled to die at midnight Tuesday. It also would authorize the Federal Housing Administration to insure an additional $1,500,000,000 worth of mortgages.

But it would not lower the minimum down payment on FHA-insured mortgages as requested by the builders. A similar bill approved by the Senate Tuesday carried a provision which would permit the President to lower down payments if he considers it necessary to stimulate home-building.

The administration did not request that authority. However, a move to insert the same controversial provision in the house bill was anticipated on the House floor.

The House Banking Committee approved the housing bill earlier this week and the House itself was expected to pass it, possibly today.

Hold Upper Hand In EPT Struggle

WASHINGTON (UP)—Administration forces appeared to hold the upper hand today in their fight to extend the excess profits tax for another six months, but they conceded that the outcome was far from certain.

The present excess profits tax law expires at midnight Tuesday. President Eisenhower and his congressional lieutenants have pulled out all the stops in an effort to get it continued until Dec. 31.

A showdown vote in the House is scheduled to come Monday. A majority of the Republicans are expected to go down the line for Mr. Eisenhower. A majority of the Democrats are expected to try to block the legislation because they don't like the way Republican leaders got it to the House floor.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. told newsmen he expected the Democrats to be defeated in their move to prevent House consideration of the bill. He said he didn't expect more than 25 Republicans, diehard opponents of the excess profits tax, to vote with them.

Rep. J. Percy Priest (D-Tenn.), acting Democratic leader, predicted that most of the 211 Democrats in the house would vote as a unit in opposition to consideration of the bill. But he said there would be some Democratic defections—perhaps enough to carry the day for the Republicans.

Former President Fears Pocketbooks Influencing Judgment Truman Warns Against Defense Cuts

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Former President Truman warned the Eisenhower administration Friday night against "cutting corners on our national security" just from a desire to lower taxes.

"I think that those who talk about our defense program being too big may be letting their pocketbooks obscure their judgment," Mr. Truman said.

In his first major speech since leaving office in January, the former president attacked President Eisenhower's decision to cut the defense program which Mr. Truman submitted to Congress.

But although he voiced his deep concern for the defense program cuts, at the same time he said the Democrats in Congress will certainly back up the President when he "fights for his international policies against the growing forces of isolationism."

His speech was delivered to the national convention of the Reserve Officers' Association.

"It is only natural to wish that we didn't have to tax ourselves so much for defense," he said. "This is perfectly human. We would all like lower taxes. But I warn you soberly and plainly: Do not be misled by the desire for lower taxes into cutting corners on our national security."

Mr. Truman also assailed what he called the "reckless and isolationist wing" of the Republican Party. He claimed the Democrats saved Mr. Eisenhower's foreign aid program in the House over the opposition of a majority of GOP members.

He had some criticism too for the Republican administration's higher interest rates and "hard money" policies. He jibed at the administration's increased interest rates on government bonds.

Mr. Truman said the health of the national economy is not measured "simply by whether the interest rate is high—important as that may seem to some folks."

As for the defense program, he said his old Chiefs of Staff had based the nation's defense goal on estimates of when Russia would have enough atom bombs to put this country "in the gravest kind of danger."

He noted that Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, retiring Air Force chief of staff, testified recently nothing has happened to change those estimates.

He indirectly challenged state-ROSEVILLE, Calif. (UP)—Police Chief Emmet McCrory said today "we just can't allow these party raids to go on" after arresting a 17-year-old for stealing pants from a clothes line. "After all," he reasoned, "there isn't any college here."

ROKs Regain Ground In Smashing Counterblow

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—South Korean infantrymen regained today territory south of Capitol Hill lost to Communists during the past three days as the east-central front.

Counterattacking troops of the ROK 3rd Division smashed their way to the top of Lookout Mountain which overlooks the old United Nations outpost line.

Other South Korean troops battered new defense lines denied by more than 8,000 Chinese Communists in a drive along a 13-mile front last night and early today.

The 8th Air Force estimated the Communist assaults cost them 1,910 killed and 1,080 wounded during the 24-hour period ending at 6 p.m. yesterday.

Large enemy troops massed north of Lookout, and the ROK defenders braced for a battle.

The Chinese took five hills on the east-central front and held three more on the west with tremendous artillery support after knocking a hole in U. N. defenses on both sides of the winding Pukhan River—the area where the "battle of the bulge" started last week.

Separate attacks by a regiment and two battalions of Chinese pushed the ROKs back to secondary defensive positions as savage hand-to-hand fighting raged on the four-mile front east of the river.

On the west side of the Pukhan, in the vicinity of battered Christmas Hill, heavy fighting continued.

South Korean troops on the west side of the river fought off a night, but the ROKs got off the hill as Chinese artillery made it untenable.

The 5th Air Force sent up 132 fighter bombers and 11 light bombers on morning support missions but low clouds obscured the battles.

The weather was clear in Mt. Alley and 64 Sabre jets went MIG-hunting. They reported shooting down two and probably destroying a third in air battles near the Yalu River.

Oppose 'Shrine' To Rosenbergs

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UP)—Some 3,000 Veterans of Foreign Wars have asked for a state law to prevent erection of a "shrine" to executed atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg.

The veterans, holding their annual state convention here, unanimously adopted a resolution urging the legislature to amend the state cemetery law to "prohibit the erection of any shrine, monument, marker or any object of similar description at any grave in a cemetery or any other place where in the body or bodies of a person or persons have been adjudged guilty of treason or espionage against the government of the United States."

Eisenhower Sees Only Brief Delay For Conference

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today he believes that Winston Churchill's illness means only a "temporary deferral" of their scheduled meeting in Bermuda with French Premier Joseph Laniel.

In a message to the British Prime Minister, Mr. Eisenhower said: "I am deeply distressed to learn that your physician has advised you to lighten your duties at this time and that consequently you will be unable to come to Bermuda for our talks."

"I look upon this only as a temporary deferral of our meeting. Your health is of great concern to all the world, and you must, therefore, bow to the advice of your physicians."

The President addressed the British leader as "Dear Winston" and signed his message " Ike."

Southern Japan Flood Toll Now Over 200 Dead

TOKYO (UP)—The death toll in southern Japan's record floods rose to 205 today as the heaviest rainfall in 61 years lashed already devastated areas.

Kyushu headquarters of the Japanese national police announced that casualties late today stood at 205 dead, 220 injured and 680 missing.

No casualties were reported among American military personnel stationed in Kyushu, Japan's southernmost island, but 35 American servicemen at a rest hotel at the foot of Mount Aso, Japan's largest volcano, were isolated with only two days' provisions. A helicopter may evacuate them if a landslide could not be cleared.

American soldiers and sailors teamed with Japanese police and rescue workers to pick up families precariously perched atop rocks and trees and to rush relief supplies to stricken areas.

East Berlin Political Prisoners Shipped Out Russians Deport Anti-Reds

BERLIN (UP)—The Russians have begun mass deportation of anti-Communists arrested during last week's rebellion against Red rule in Soviet Germany, it was reported today.

At the same time, the West Berlin newspaper Telegram reported the death of a 16-year-old German boy shot down by Soviet sentry while he was watching Russian soldiers repair a tank.

Press reports, quoting recently-arrived refugees, said a 12-car freight train apparently loaded with political prisoners was sighted in Red Germany this week, moving east toward Communist Poland.

The refugees said also that the Russians are concentrating freight cars in rail yards in Berlin's eastern suburbs.

The West Berlin Morgenpost reported more than 15,000 Germans were arrested during the rebellion. The newspaper said also that Soviet martial law has been clamped on 18 German cities and four rural districts.

The official U. S. occupation newspaper Neue Zeitung said German Communist leaders have appealed repeatedly to Russian Maj. Gen. P. T. Dibrova to end military rule in Red Berlin, but that he refuses to do so until "peace, order and security" are fully restored.

The Russians did relax their bayonet regime slightly today by reducing the daily curfew in Soviet Berlin to four hours a day—from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. The curfew was in force from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. each day.

Meanwhile, the Reds rushed action on their "declassification" program, apparently hoping to enlist popular support for the regime that is now sustained only by the guns and tanks of some 300,000 Russian soldiers.

The Red radio and the official Communist news agency ADN reported today that the following measures have been ordered to appease the angry millions who rose last week against their Red rulers:

1. The release of anti-Communists imprisoned for fighting the sovietization of their homeland, and of farmers jailed for failure to meet crop quotas. So far only 675 have been reported released.
2. The return to their former owners of private enterprises nationalized by the Communists. Fourteen such businesses have been denationalized in Rostock alone, ADN said and "a number of others will be returned soon."
3. The extension of loans to businessmen who had been brought to the brink of bankruptcy by tight credit controls. Such loans were reported running 40 per cent above May levels in the city of Chemnitz, but no actual figures were given.
4. Dismissal of tax charges brought against businessmen and farmers as a means of confiscating their property. The dropping of 2,000 such cases were reported by ADN.
5. Reduction of train fares for workers, effective July 1, and a promise of quick action to increase production of oleomargarine.

Solons Plan Attend Sen. Smith's Rites

RALEIGH (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon will head a 37-man congressional delegation here tomorrow for the funeral of Sen. Willis Smith (D-NC).

Services for the senator, third from North Carolina to die in office in seven years, will be held at Edenton Street Methodist Church at 2:30 p. m. Dr. Howard Powell will officiate. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery.

The Senate adjourned out of respect to Smith yesterday. Smith succumbed to the effects of a series of heart attacks at 4:30 a. m. at Bethesda naval medical center outside Washington.

The House adopted a resolution expressing "profound sorrow" and named the entire North Carolina House delegation to represent the chamber.

In addition to Nixon, the Senate party will be composed of Sen. Clyde R. Hoey (D-NC), Democratic

Gamma Globulin Rushed By Plane

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UP)—A large shipment of gamma globulin arrived by air today as the number of polio cases in stricken Montgomery County swelled to 71.

More than 100 doctors were ready to begin mass injections of GG starting next Tuesday as the federal government declared the county an emergency polio area.

The inoculations of all children under 10 years will mark the first test of gamma globulin against a polio outbreak already in progress. Heretofore, GG injections have been given on an experimental basis only.

Over 3 Million Loans Backed Up

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Veterans Administration announced today that it has guaranteed more than 3,000,000 GI home loans since the program was established nine years ago.

V.A. said it had made $3,041,187 home loans as of May 26 totaling $19,730,000 to World War II and Korean veterans. It has guaranteed or insured about half of the $19,000,000.

Back Into Arms Of Holdup Man

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UP)—Confronted on a quiet street by a gun-toting holdup man, Robert Maize, 35, ran for the shelter of a shrubbery thicket.

Behind the thicket was a stone wall. Maize jumped in and bounced right back into the arms of the gunman.

The robber took $85 from Maize, son of Streets.

Complete Plans For JC Clothing Drive

A commonplace necessity of life most Americans take for granted—clothing—to many European war-imperished people today still is a luxury.

The Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce has taken the view that Greenville citizens, wherever possible, would like to share their own comforts with this deplorably large part of the world's less fortunate.

As a consequence, local citizens will be given that chance when the Junior Chamber launches its city-wide clothing drive Sunday.

Working in cooperation with committees of the Church World Service and the Christian Rural Overseas Program, the Jaycees have employed 10 to 12 trucks for a house-to-house canvass of the city.

Apportioning each section into zones, with a team assigned to each, the town's young businessmen will set out on their crusade at 2 p.m. They will watch the door steps and front porches of every home closely and will stop at any and all where bundles of clothing and other goods, such as canned items, sewing kits, dried vegetables, have been placed.

They have asked the cooperation of all who will give to leave these goods where they can be seen, to assure no passing up of any donations. The gifts will be collected by a central Jaycees committee and forwarded to central offices of the CWS-CROP for redistribution to peoples throughout western Europe and other points of need, such as India, Pakistan and Korea.

James Olorog, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Olorog of Route 3, Greenville, was struck yesterday morning on a road just outside of Forterstown by a pickup truck driven by James F. Elks, 39, of Route 3.

The child received a slight brain concussion and is reported to still be in a semi-conscious condition. However, doctors reported today they are pleased with his condition. The boy was hit as he crossed the highway, running to the mailbox across the road where the mailman was parked.

No charges were placed against the driver by investigating officers, Highway Patrolman Cpl. C. E. Whitfield and James W. Boykin.

Cardinal J. Francis McIntyre will perform the marriage rites. Rev. Harry Meade, Miss Blyth's priest, will officiate at the nuptial mass.

Six hundred guests, including stars Joan Crawford, Jeanne Crain and Jeff Chandler, were invited to witness the ceremony.

It is believed that turkeys were first eaten in Europe at the wedding feast of Charles I of France in 1570, although many authorities think the European table use of turkeys appeared earlier.

O.E.S. Chapter Held Initiation Ceremony

The local chapter of the Eastern Star was visited Sunday by Worthy Grand Matron Mrs. Bernice Bjonerud of Wilmington and Vernin J. Spivey of Williamston, Worthy Grand Patron of the Grand Chapter of North Carolina's Order of the Eastern Star.

A formal initiation was held in a candlelight setting and baskets of summer flowers in the emblematic colors. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Strickland of Bell Arthur and Richard David of Greenville were received into the order. Mr. Elbert Bennett was admitted by affiliation from the Aurora Chapter.

Preceding the initiation, the chapter was formally opened with the officers' march. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kennedy presided in the East. American, Christian, Old North State and Order of the Eastern Star flags were presented by Mesdames Julia Harris, Martha Forrest, Doris Pollard and Blanche Smith. As the Worthy Grand Matron and Patron were escorted to the East, Elbert Bennett sang a welcoming song, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ethel Tucker.

Mrs. Bjonerud reviewed her gravels in the Grand East, speaking briefly on the subject "Mistakes." Vernon Spivey, W.G.P., assisted with the initiation.

Other guests introduced, escorted to the East and welcomed, were: Mrs. Maude Bavor Voe of Kinston, Past Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of N.C. O.E.S.; Mrs. Dora Clayton of Kinston, Grand Representative of the Grand Jurisdiction of Oregon; Mrs. Ray Bisette of Grifton, District Deputy Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of N.C. O.E.S.; Miss Alya Ray Taylor, Grand Committee Member; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Jackson, Worthy Patron and Worthy Matron of the Grifton chapter; Mrs. Annie Warren, Worthy Matron of the Kinston chapter; Mrs. Esther Spivey, the Grand Wife.

The following Past Matrons and Patrons were recognized: Mesdames Mollie Brown, Carrie Munford, Vera Sutton and Miss Alya Ray Taylor; Mr. Richard Nelson of Grifton and Joseph Palmer of Greenville.

A solo, "Beautiful Star" was sung by Mrs. Annette David, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Blanche Smith. The music was composed by Richard David, the words by Mrs. David. The song will be published and adopted as an O.E.S. song and used in chapters throughout the state.

MRS. BLANCHE BJONERUD and VERNON J. SPIVEY

Following the meeting, refreshments were served in the Frederick Stokes dining room.

The table was arranged with flowers and greenery banded through the center. Lighted tapers were used in the appointments.

Mrs. Josephine Rawls and Mrs. Beulah Brown poured green punch; assorted cookies and nuts were served from the table. Mrs. Susie Ragsdale was co-chairman with Mrs. Rawls.

At six-thirty a buffet supper was served in the dining room. Tables were arranged to form the letter "M" for the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Mildred Kennedy. Bud vases of flowers adorned the tables.

The invocation was given by John Carrington. Mrs. Kennedy gave the welcome, and Mrs. Ray Bisette gave the response. Mrs. Kennedy presented Miss Alya Ray Taylor, chairman, and Mrs. Queenie Clark, co-chairman of the supper committee, assisted by Mesdames Eva Corbette, Annie Stokes and Martha Forrest.

The parlors, dining room and chapter room were enhanced with tall baskets of gladioli, dahlias, hydrangeas and other mixed flowers and greenery in the emblematic colors by Mrs. Sadie Carrington and Mrs. Eula Cannon.

Don't Fall For 'Something For Nothing'

Some of the larger states of the nation—New York particularly—have fostered the proposal of all states turning their unemployment funds over to the federal government for centralized federal administration.

On the surface, that may sound good. Devised into slightly below the surface, it begins to appear more of a scheme for some states to pull the old "something-for-nothing" trick on sister states.

In New York, where hordes of shifting population are collecting millions in unemployment checks, unemployment funds are almost constantly drained. In North Carolina, on the other hand, the unit which administers the unemployment fund of the state finds itself sitting on $178,146,692 under the law can be spent only for unemployment compensation claims.

Even with this large surplus fund, money from employers throughout the state still pour in to the office at a much more rapid rate than unemployment claims gnaw away at the fund. During the first four months of this year, the fund showed a gain of $2,367,597.

The amount of the fund and its continued growth speaks well for North Carolina's employment situation. Yet it seems the constantly growing fund could be put to work in some manner for the State.

Certainly it does not seem advantageous for North Carolina to pour its funds into a federal pool to be syphoned off by other states which find their unemployment claims sapping away unemployment funds.

With the condition in which North Carolina finds itself in respect to unemployment compensation funds, it seems advisable that it throw its weight against any move to put all such funds of the various states under one centralized federal agency. At the same time some investigation should be done to see if this bountiful windfall of funds can be put to some good use for the state rather than remaining untouched save for paying unemployment claims.

Too Many Drivers, Too Few Horses

The longer President Eisenhower works to get his legislative program through Congress, the more apparent it becomes that Republicans have too many people in drivers' seats and not enough horses pulling together.

House Republican leaders executed an adroit maneuver to blast loose the bill for extension of the excess profits law over strenuous objection from Republican Rep. Reed.

Now that the legislation has been brought to the floor, even the Republican leaders admit they are going to need support from Democrats in the House to get the President's legislation passed.

Whether that Democratic support will be forthcoming remains to be seen but it is likely the House will follow President Eisenhower's request for excess profits tax extension.

Since Eisenhower came to the White House, it has been obvious that the Republican strength in Washington has been split in various directions. The administration tion has been unable to muster the full support of the slim Republican majority in Congress to move the tide of legislation as rapidly as it would have liked.

Perhaps the apparent lack of unity of purpose among Republicans in Washington stems from the many years when the individual Republicans in Congress paddled their own canoes to some extent for lack of forceful leadership. Out of this period of being on the "outside looking in" there have come a number of Republicans who feel they have gained the position of leadership by virtue of years of service and are unwilling to submit to conflicting views of "newcomers."

Whatever the cause, the Democrats still to a great extent hold a vital stabilizing factor on national legislation by virtue of their strategic balance-of-power position between Republican factions.

It is a position which the leaders of the present "minority" party can use to advantage in helping to determine the course of national legislation.

Is Inflation 'Good'?

By ELMER ROESSNER
Now that the Government's something akin to deflation, many people are asking, "What's the matter with inflation anyway?"

One reader says, "Inflation helped pull us out of the worst depression the country has ever known and helped us to win the biggest war the world ever experienced. I think inflation is good. Let's have more of it."

Deliberate inflation is a radical remedy. Like appendectomy and morphine, it can cure specific ailments, or relieve pain. But saying we ought to have more inflation—when no grave need exists—is like saying every one ought to have more appendectomies and morphine.

Our reader's argument is parallel to the thought that since wars have set men free, we ought to have more wars.

Inflation is, in effect, a ripper tax. In cutting the value of the dollar in half, it tore half the value of savings, insurance and other credits; it took away half the buying power of those who lived on pensions and other annuities.

Inflation was brought about, partly by plan and partly unavoidably by increasing the money supply through borrowing. There are times when that, like appendectomies, is necessary. There are times when a family, when necessary, may have to borrow a sum equal to its total earning power for one or two full years.

But a family that kept on borrowing at that rate, while it might enjoy the inflation it created for itself for a while, would run into difficulties. So would nation families.

This, of course, does not mean that deflation is good. It is just as cruel as inflation. Just as inflation helps debtors, deflation hurts them by piling up their debts. It tends to dry up capital available for borrowing at all except highest rates of interest. It can have a strong braking effect on business.

A "sound money" policy, we assume, is one that steers between either inflation or deflation. It's a narrow, difficult strait. But it may be worth the pilot's sweat and agony.

AVERAGE HARDWARE STORE

MADE $37 A WEEK IN '52

Hardware stores did not do as well in 1952 as they did in 1951, according to the annual survey of the National Retail Hardware Association. It shows the average store made a net profit of 2.3 per cent on $90,115 in sales. The year before it made 3.95 per cent on $90,115 in sales.

The 1952 figure works out to $2,793.80 a year, or about $57 a week.

GAS INDUSTRY PLANS

$4 BILLION EXPENDITURES

Four billion dollars in capital investment will be made by the nation's gas utility and pipeline industry in the next four years, the American Gas Association reports.

About $1.9 billion will be spent on transmission facilities, $1.4 billion for distribution expenditures and $677,000,000 for production, underground storage and general facilities.

EXECUTIVES' BENEFITS

MORALLY QUESTIONABLE

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has scolded for its failure to rule on the tax status of deferred compensation contracts between companies and executives, by V. Henry Rothchild New York Corporation lawyer, in addressing the American Management Association.

Meanwhile, he said, many companies are offering executives tax-free perquisites, such as executive dining rooms, company autos and planes, housing, home financing and educational opportunities.

Somebody Told Me . . .

Progress Report On TV Station

For the latest report on WNCT-TV, Greenville's coming TV station, I talked to Station Manager Hartwell Campbell yesterday. Hart reported that the building is on schedule, the prefabrication of the tower is progressing, and equipment for the station is arriving as days go by. Twelve shows have been engaged.

Hartwell went to Chicago this week to check on the tower. Plans are expected to arrive Monday for the foundation of the tower, following analysis of the soil in the area around the tower. "By the time the foundation for the tower is laid," Campbell says, "the tower can be shipped."

The station continues to line up shows. Many are shows that Greenville televisioners are seeing now when reception permits us to pick up Norfolk. The list now includes Arthur Godfrey, Perry Como, the Chrysler Medallion Theater, You Are There, the Seelster Big Top, the Wednesday night fights from CBS, wrestling, Edward R. Murrow, Favorite Story, Boston Blackie, The Unexpected, and Fireside Theater.

Television equipment valued at over $60,000 has already arrived. Two cameras, valued at $15,000 each, and two projectors for showing film on TV, valued at $6,000 each, head the list. The projectors are not much larger than a standard home movie projector, but are far more complex. Most of the audio equipment has been received, including microphones, mike stands, and turntables.

Campbell is constantly faced with decisions about the station. Yesterday he asked me, "Had you rather see still news pictures of events three hours after they happen, or film three days later?" In my opinion, it would depend on how much action was involved in the particular news event in question. So it's a hard decision to make, deciding on which type of equipment to buy. That decision, along with thousands of others, keep our station manager jumping.

Seldom has there been a project in Greenville in which there is so much interest. People from all over Eastern Carolina ride over here regularly to check on the progress of the station. Already the station keeps Greenville on the tongues of many people. And this is only the beginning of the good it will do us.

And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

THE TREND IS TO CITY

(Lentor County News)

The current trend in Eastern Carolina is following the national pattern of city governments with a rash of towns breaking out in the city manager plan. Greenville, North Carolina, and other towns are following the lead.

does not mean, of course, that the city is being operated for less money today than six years ago, but it does mean that many Kinstonians are getting more services and that these services are costing them less per individual than under the old hit and miss system. The city manager plan has been a success in many ways.

in its history. The same also goes for the maintenance of the parks and cemeteries. And under Kinston's city manager government North Carolina's outstanding recreation department has been developed for Kinston.

Trivialities Keep Lawmakers In Washington Tied Up

By LYNN NISBET

WASHINGTON—Your reporter has spent a day or two in Washington, which continues to be the real capital of the world. In the geography book, D.C. stands for the District of Columbia, which is a sort of hybrid offspring of congressional legislation, being neither a State, or a territory, nor yet a possession. The folks who operate in and from Washington have large voice in controlling affairs of the world—but they do not have the right to vote on matters of local application. It would not stretch analogy too far to say that the D.C. also stands for "Distracted Confusion."

ISSUES—The Congress and the various departments of the Federal Government are concerned with big problems. It is difficult to translate these problems to terms of special interest to North Carolina in many instances, very easy in some others. Your reporter was especially interested, as it is believed the readers of North Carolina newspapers are concerned, with how the actions might affect our own local economy and politics. Agriculture is the basis of our economy, and indirectly is the major item in congressional and administrative action here.

INVOLVED—Conversations had with several members of the congressional delegation and with even a larger number of their office staffs emphasized the far-reaching involvement of farm produce in almost every national or international question. Whether the wheat given to Pakistan will be used to relieve the hunger of the poor in that country, or as another contribution to support the established government has some relationship to the market price of wheat grown in Ireland and Catawba and Rowan and other North Carolina counties. Several Tarheel representatives had fully made up their minds to vote for the wheat deal until they learned that only 50 per cent of it was to relieve hunger and 70 per cent to aid a comparatively weak government to maintain itself.

WASTEFUL—The North Carolinians in Congress are convinced that the present administration is more confused than the preceding Democratic regimes. Herbert Bonner, of the first district, has waged a long and hard—and only indifferently successful—campaign against waste in military spending. He said he was very happy when President Eisenhower told him that he was going to do something about it, and he would cut several billions off the air force appropriation. Further investigation revealed that the cuts did not touch the items of waste, but tended to reduce effectiveness of the fighting power of the air force.

POSTOFFICES—Tarheels are acutely conscious of efforts being made to reduce the deficit in the postoffice department. There is real doubt in the minds of all them with whom your reporter talked, including the only Republican—Charles Raper Jones—who is abolishing fourth class postage rates will provide the answer. There seems more ready acceptance of the raise in post-office rents, although several congressmen said they have had vigorous protests from down home against that raise.

POOLISH—Every one of the delegation had some story about foolish and absurd requests from constituents. One member had an urgent request that he intercede with the military in order to get a soldier from Korea who was under an operation and wanted her brother with her at the hospital. Another request was for the congressman to have an exception made to the blanket civil service order so that a kinsman would not be bumped off a relatively unimportant job. The fellows are trying to answer all these requests, even though in most instances the answers are that there is just nothing they can do about the conditions complained of.

PERSONALITIES—Senator William Smith was then in the hospital with what was first thought to be a mild stomach or digestive upset but turned out to be a heart attack. As a result not much could be learned from his office about governmental or political developments. Thurmond Chatham had been called home for the funeral of a friend connected with his mills, and his secretary—Hal Thomerson—was down in the district. Jack Spain, Senator Hoyt's administrative assistant, was vacationing in the State and the Senator was all tied up with finance committee meetings and other matters. Several of the congressmen were tied up in committee meetings, but the office forces were carrying on with routine operations.

TOO MUCH—Herewith is a bit of editorial observation: The people expect too much of their elected officials. In addition to requiring attention to important matters of State, there is growing disposition to expect governors, senators and representatives to be on call 24 hours a day 365 days a year for extra services like making speeches and crowning assorted queens of this or that festival. It is a killing pace these officials are expected to maintain. The things that got Senator Broughton, Joe Blythe and Senator Smith with fatal heart attacks, Governor Umstead with so far non-fatal but a seriously handicapping attack, were not so much the formal and official duties they performed, onerous as these duties were. Rather it was the demand made upon their time and energy for activities not directly pertinent to official duties but assumed as requisites for such high office; to wit, the making of speeches at this and that and the other public meeting—most of which are tremendously important to the group involved and regarded as important by the officials, but actually having little importance on the overall governmental or official situation.

Worth Noting

READING PUBLIC MATURER

(The Pensacola Journal)

Is the reading public becoming more mature? Obnoxious or not, that is the approach of some of our leading magazines. But the fact is, anyway, that the reading public is becoming more mature. The box score on magazine newsstand sales as shown in Tide, sales and advertising magazine, would seem to prove that.

Almost without exception, magazines dealing with the family and personal relations make top reading for the American public. There is only one magazine outside this scope, the Saturday Evening Post, which maintains a fairly steady position. It stands third on the list in 1952 for a loss of .91 per cent from sales in 1951, despite its move up from fourth place. The Ladies Home Journal stood first in 1952, as it did in 1951, though its increase in sales was 10.4 per cent. On the other hand, to quote but one magazine, Life slipped from third in 1951 to eighth place in 1952, for a loss of 9.9 per cent.

NEED FOR REFLECTION

General MacArthur when he came back to this country, I suppose to have said that the more one has of the things of this world, the more one needs of the things of the spirit. I am sure that is true. I am sure that is true. I am sure that is true.

Changes take place so slowly that we are often not conscious that they are taking place. There is a real reason to believe that some things in this country have become flagrantly bad without our being conscious of it. Once in a while the headlines shock us, or we hear the story of some scandal in which we move, or there is a large embolism or a shocking social event in which people sink down to the level of animals.

But we shrug our shoulders and say that these things are the exceptions. And of course they are. But they are not the exceptions which prove the rule—they are the exceptions which call our attention to the sinister and alarming source that much of American life is taking.

National Whiplashes

Committee Chairman's Status

By RAY TUCKER

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest, national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"Why and how does the chairman of a committee of Congress get so much power?" inquires R. E. of Tulsa, Okla. "I have in mind Representative Daniel A. Reed of New York, who uses his authority to defy President Eisenhower and the House leaders on taxes. Is it because of his personality or the system?"

Answer: Woodrow Wilson, I think it was, once wrote that the most powerful group of people in the United States Government are the chairmen of the major committees, meaning those dealing with taxes, tariffs, interstate commerce, foreign affairs, the judiciary, etc. and he was right.

A man becomes head of a committee only through long and hard service, which is known as seniority. He has immense prestige among older and younger men. He usually knows more about his subject than any other member of his committee or of the House or Senate.

He can refuse to call a committee meeting, if it suits his purpose, or to report out a bill after a majority of his committee has voted in favor of it. In this field he is almost an absolute czar.

SOURCES OF STRENGTH—He has several sources of strength and power. For one thing, he can do many large and small favors for fellow-members. Few challenge or defy him because every member hopes to become a chairman some day, and to enjoy all the authority thereof.

If they break down that power in protest against the way Reed is using it now, the office will meet nothing when they attain it. Nobody wants to destroy the system, or the status quo.

CHAIRMAN TAKES THE RAP—It frequently happens, although it isn't true in this instance, that a chairman takes the rap for fellow-members, who do not want to stand up and be counted on a certain issue.

I have known times when a chairman, although he favored a controversial measure, kept it in his pocket to spare embarrassment to individuals or to the Party. I also have known times when the very leaders, including Presidents, who advocated committee action publicly and for political purposes, were begging a chairman to do just the opposite.

Dan Reed is a powerful and determined individual. But it is the system, and the members' acquiescence in it, which enables him to defy both Ike and the Martin-Halleck leadership.

OVERALL FIGURE $50 BILLION—"How much money have we given or loaned to foreign nations for economic and military aid since the end of World War II?" asks M. T. of Passaic, N. J.

Answer: Our total advances to 40 countries since June, 1945, have been $41 billion, or almost the same amount we contributed to our Allies during World War II. President Eisenhower has asked for another $5.8 billion for the fiscal year of 1954. With other indirect assistance, I would put the overall figure at more than $50 billion.

Six of the $41 billion has gone for arming and uniforming foreign troops, while $35 billion has been spent on economic aid. Europe has received about 80 per cent of this money, Asia 6 per cent, Latin America got only $800,000,000, while the Near East and Africa have had about $400,000,000.

OUTRIGHT GIFTS—Almost $28 billion was handed over as outright gifts, and will never be repaid. Repayments on the reimbursable $13 billion amount to about $2.4 billion, or 25 per cent.

Although the money has been put to good use, save for the usual and expected waste in vast governmental projects, the staggering cost to American taxpayers accounts for the Capitol Hill refrain: "How long, Oh! That, how long!"

Pitt Towns Are Being 'Put On The Map'

By Howard Lindsay
There's no getting around it. A lot of Pitt county towns are being put on the map these days.
Not because a movie star has decided to include them as stop-offs in a southern itinerary. Nor has any large manufacturing concern contracted to locate a new plant in any of the seven or eight municipalities affected.
Applying the phrase in a more literal than figurative sense gives a better clue. And the upshot is that civil engineering specialists are hard at work in Pitt-County court house on a more than $34,000 re-mapping program affecting most of the county's corporate property.
Such a program will give a detailed map of each town showing boundaries and dimensions of each piece of property, and its proper owner.
That work has been under way now since last March. Holding a contract for the mammoth assignment is the Greenville civil engineering firm of Rivers and Joyce. Headed by Roger Mann, the mapping crews have set up temporary headquarters in the basement of the county court house and have gone about their tasks with a will.

Beginning with a staff of nine, including one full-time draftsman and two other part-time specialists, the corps has expanded with the volume of duties and have taken on two additional helpers since March.
The all-important question of who will foot the bills was decided early in the game when the county worked out an agreement with the company and each town wanting its area mapped whereby costs are to be divided equally between county and municipality.
To date, seven out of eight towns contacted in the county have given their nod of approval and the one remaining still has the proposal under consideration. The one exception is Grimesland where the matter is expected to be taken up again soon by the town board.

Total cost of the program has been set at $35,000, providing all towns accept, with the county to pay half and the town half in each case. A breakdown by towns shows the aggregate cost as follows: Greenville, $22,300; Farmville, $4,000; Ayden, $3,200; Bethel, $2,000; Winterville, $1,200; Grifton, $1,200; Fountain, $800. The proposed figure for Grimesland, still weighing the matter is $800.
Invaluable aids to the mappers are previously filmed aerial photographs. These help the draftsmen after field surveys have been conducted to obtain, by house-to-house interviews, names of present owners, former owners (or grantors), and approximate date of transfer. With this information, the deed researchers can find the deed for the latest exchange and a description of the property boundaries. The draftsmen then locate the approximate lines of the plot on an aerial photograph and fit each piece into a scaled separate map of the area in which it belongs. Their job, in many ways, is like putting together pieces of a giant jigsaw puzzle.

Here's what each town will get after the project is finished. First, a comprehensive index wall map covering the entire town and a one-mile radius outside to provide for expansion; each index map is keyed to show how the larger-scaled (close-up) maps fit into the pictures as a whole.
For Greenville, the key map will be scaled to dimensions of one inch to 1,000 feet, while index maps of other towns will be scaled down to one-to-500 feet.
Smaller areas will be more minutely covered in maps scaled at the rate of one-to-100 for each town. These will give the property boundaries of each separate piece of land, its dimensions, and the names of present owners up to December 31 of this year.

Both county and towns will be furnished sets of these with the key maps included in the overall costs. In addition, the county will have a card index, filed by section, block and lot number of the names and addresses of current owners and a citation in which deeds of the property are recorded. All of this information will be available to the towns.
By paying out additional fees, towns sometimes arrange for extra maps covering areas outside the town limits or perhaps enlargement of certain sections of the town, such as a one-to-50 scale plotting of a business district.
In any case, work is moving along in all of the seven towns having their property mapped. About 80 per cent of Greenville now has been covered, and in other towns, percentage of work completed lines up about like this: Winterville, 80 per cent; Bethel, 30 per cent; Grifton, 10 per cent; Ayden, 10 per cent; Farmville, 10 per cent.

For Fountain, begun earlier than the others, about nine-tenths of the job is done. Goal for the project is March 16, or earlier, keeping the time-table within the 12 months from date of contract signing provided in the agreement.
County Auditor Reginald Gray lists a main advantage of the program as being an aid to more economical, accurate and fairer taxation. This includes, or is additional to, other benefits he points out, such as: adequate reference possible formation of drainage districts; an incentive for towns interested in planning and zoning; means of establishing ownerships for assessments and designating previously undeclared land; and a vehicle for the forthcoming county-wide evaluation program.
The towns, he points out, will share in all of these and reap additional profits of their own. Chief among these, he says, will come in numbering houses, possible planning and zoning, plotting utilities, including water and sewer lines, and making paying assessments.
In these bright predictions come to pass, citizens in all the towns should be able to add enthusiastic assent to the auditor's summation of the entire program as "something that's been needed for a long time."

THEY MAKE THE FILES — Here's where the information goes which eventually helps make up those annual alphas known as tax notices. The tax cards and tax sheets being prepared above by Miss Betty Lou Warren and Harold Alford. Mr. Alford will be retained by the county after the mapping program to keep the revised records up to date. (Reflector Staff Photo)

NOW, WHAT IS YOUR NAME?—This is the first step of the mapping project now being carried on for seven Pitt County towns. Kent Lee, engineering aid, and Clarence Butler, engineer, both with the Greenville firm of Rivers and Joyce, interview a property holder, Mrs. J. L. Outlaw, 206 Washington Street, for pertinent data. Knowing the name of the present property owner and the former owner will give researchers the information they need for finding the property's description and dimensions. (Reflector Staff Photo)

TO KISS, OR KILL

By Day Keene

Chapter 24

Inspector Carlton walked across the stage and back. He opened his mouth to speak. He couldn't. Instead, he took his hat from his head and threw it on the floor of the stage. He peeled off his top coat and threw it after his hat. The physical action brought release to his tongue.
"Good God Almighty! Just how dumb do you folks think we are? You say Ebbing was shot last night. One wound, the one he died at, was over twelve hours old. The other was made after he was dead. We recovered two slugs from the body. One was a seven-point-six-five-millimeter slug. The other was a standard forty-five fired from Treasury Agent John Curtis' gun." Gale got to her feet, panting. "That can't be so. It can't be. Barney killed Father. I saw him. Her voice rose hysterically. "I tell you I saw him kill my father!"
Mandell walked down the aisle and stood with his hands on the stage. "Why don't you take off your coat, baby, and show them some flesh and convince them?" he asked thickly. "Convince them like you convinced me. Look. How come you're so anxious for me to die?"

Gale kicked at his face. "Why don't you die? Why don't you die?" Here there were lights, but the only sound was Gale's muffled sobbing and the sighing of the wind as it tried the double-hung windows of Inspector Carlton's office. "You gave us a bad time, Barney," Inspector Carlton said finally. "The deeper in we get, the more sleep we lose, the surer we are that you're being taken."
Carlton continued, "That's why we tried to get you to come in with us yesterday afternoon. We were pretty certain of our ground by then. We'd identified Ebbing as the man who was keeping the Marvin girl. We'd placed both Ebbing and Andre in the vicinity of your hotel at the approximate time of Cherry's death. Why Ebbing chose her as your supposed victim is something that will have to come out at the trial. We also knew by then it must have been Ebbing who followed you and Curtis to the Wells Street office. Who got Curtis and had four tries for you. But when you're dealing with men like Ebbing, who call the state's attorney and men like Judge Clay by their first names, you're walking a high tightwire. You have to have proof. And even last night, after your ball was revoked, we didn't have it. Ebbing was carrying it in his body, dying by inches, losing a little more ground every time his watch ticked. I haven't the least idea just what they'd planned for you by stirring up that mental business again. But when the old man died of the slug Curtis put in his guts, they popped him another for good luck and left you with the gun in your hand, expecting you to do a Dutch. I'm surprised you didn't."

"That's a long story," Mandell said.
"I don't want to hear it," Carlton said. "There are a lot of things still to be settled. Why Ebbing gave the dame some of his daughter's perfume. Why Andre stuck you up then left your wallet behind, although I imagine the stick-up was to keep you from getting out of town, and he ditched the leather where he did for fear he might be picked up and it would be found on him. That's the only thing that lets a guy stay in this racket without really blowing his top. Most crooks and killers are so dumb." Carlton looked at Alvarez Cabral. "That the way it happened, Andre?"
Andre said sullenly, "I am not liking."
Lieutenant Rose took the cigarette from his lips and folded his hands across his stomach. "You will," he said quietly. "You will." He shrugged. "Or maybe not. It's really quite immaterial."

Ma asked the question in Mandell's mind. "But why should they want to make my Barney think he is not right in his head? Why should they want him to die? What had he done to them?"
The slim, well-dressed man who reminded Mandell of someone he'd known said, "That comes in my department, Mrs. Mandell." And Mandell knew of whom he reminded him. Of Mr. Curtis. There was the same timbre to his voice. The eagle flapped his wings on every word. "And it concerns on Vladimir Manchotchski, your brother-in-law and Barney's uncle."

Ma hadn't the least idea what he was talking about. She beamed. "See?"
Harper continued, "Shortly before his death, knowing Ebbing only as a wealthy and reputable patent lawyer, and having a great respect for this country, Manchotchski paid Ebbing's expenses to Brazil to commission him to do two things: one, to handle his patents and processes; two, to act as his executor and in the event of his death to make certain said patents and processes and accumulated sums of money would be turned over to his designated heir, one Bernard Manchotchski, son of his brother Berny Manchotchski, now living in the United States but whose address he had lost during his escape from the Nazis and, later, from behind the iron curtain. What Manchotchski didn't know was that Ebbing was no longer either reputable nor wealthy. He was broke. Dead broke."
Gale looked across the room at Mandell. "That's right sucker. Dead broke."
Harper said, "He hasn't had a dime of his own for years. He owed everyone in town. Until he began spending your money. According to our reports, he was as much a satyr as his daughter is a nymph."

Greenville's Little Leaguers complete their regular season play on July 15, but the tournament trail will immediately beckon them to Farmville for the North Carolina District One playoffs.

Only sixteen games are left on the local schedule before the end of the season, and preparations are already being made for the tourney. Each manager of the six Little League teams has selected a player or players from his club to practice with Bill Kittrell and George McMillan for the All-Star tourney team.

This is not necessarily the team to be used for the tournament, but is only a tentative one. Other players may join the squad at any time, and some of the present ones will be dropped from the squad. Kittrell will manage the tourney team, and is allowing the prospective players a chance to familiarize themselves to each other's style.

The winner of the District One playoff in Farmville will proceed to Greensboro for the sectional, or state, tournament during the following week. Pairings have been drawn, and the District One winner is pitted against the District two champion.

Next in the line of playoffs comes the regional. Little League Region Five, embracing the states of Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, Kentucky, North Carolina, Alabama, and Tennessee, is scheduled for Greenville on August 17-18-19-20. Florida is divided into two divisions, and each district will send a representative to Greenville for the tournament. Each of the other states will have one team.

The regional will be second tournament held in Greenville in its three years of operating a Little League. Local pep's backed the District One tourney last season, after bypassing the sectional playoffs.

The Greenville winner will travel to Williamsport, Pa. to take part in the Little League World Series, along with other regional champions in the United States and its neighbors. Little League baseball was invented in Williamsport in the late thirties by Carl Stotz.

Promotion of the regional tournament is in the hands of the Greenville Jaycees. The Jaycees are hard at work on the programs at the present time, expecting to send them to press in a few days. Pairings for the tourney will be drawn Thursday night at the regular meeting of the Jaycees.

Officials of the local Little League have become disturbed about the lack of interest shown in the afternoon ball games. Only a handful of spectators are present at most of the games, and very few of the parents are supporting their sons. The games are played at a time when it is possible for most people to see them. Single games start at 5:30 each day, while doubleheaders on Wednesdays begin at 4 p.m. Support is necessary for any Tides for Sunday's fishermen will be shown on Friday afternoon and Monday's tides will appear in Saturday afternoon's paper.

Indians Win, 7-2, On Home Runs By Doby

Dodgers Take 4-3 Game Over Braves

Cardinals Blank Philadelphia, 7-0; Yankees' Losing Streak Extended To Five Straight In Yankee Stadium

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—A man who isn't hitting is an odd secret weapon but Larry Doby of the Indians insisted today that they might beat the Yankees out for the pennant—"just because Luke Easter is back in the lineup."

Easter's return was supposed to bolster the Indians on offense and it did, even though Doby has been doing all the hitting since Luke came back after a long injury siege last Monday.

While Easter was out Doby was under terrific pressure, but when he returned Doby started swinging naturally and has gotten 13 hits in 28 times at bat since then. He has driven in 15 runs and hit six homers, four in the last two games.

"You just keep hitting" for another week or so until I get my batting eye back and then I'll take over," Easter told him.

"Don't fight the whole world by yourself. Just take on half. I'll get the other half."

"He's kidding but really he's right," Doby said. "With him in the lineup there's a lot less pressure on me and I just seem to do better all the way. Maybe we can catch those Yankees yet."

Doby hit two big homers last night to account for three runs as Cleveland scored its first victory after seven straight defeats by the Yankees, 7-2. It was the fifth straight home defeat for New York, the longest Yankee Stadium losing streak in Casey Stengel's regime. And four unearned runs in the first inning, set up by errors by pitcher Vic Raschi and Joe Collins, handed Cleveland pitcher Bob Lemon the victory on a platter. He gave up only five hits in winning his 10th game and had a shutout until Johnny Mize pinch homered with a man on base in the ninth.

Members of the local Moose entry in the Little League Baseball program were guests of the Loyal Order of the Moose last night at an outdoor dinner at Elm Street Park. Approximately 65 persons attended the affair, including the players and their families.

Dairy Wins Game From Builders

Carolina Dairies continued its bid for first in the Men's Softball League last night by pushing across nine runs in the fourth inning to defeat Home Builders, 9-2. Granite won the second contest, 3-2, over Southern Bread.

Home runs by Marshall Tatum and Hodges were the big guns for the Carolina Dairies crew. Singles by Pete Caraway, James Hardie, Tatum, George Teel, and Cascoli also accounted for the runs. The losers scored their runs on a walk to Bill Kittrell and doubles by Robert Dash and Red Painter.

The Granite collected a pair of runs in the third to insure their 3-2 win over Southern Bread in the nightcap. Ed Warren led off the inning with a single. Paul Rausch flied out, but David Roberson was hit by the pitcher. Hobgood was retired on a fly to the centerfielder, but O. T. Alexander brought Roberson home with the final run on another single.

WILLOUGHBY, O. (UP)—A Baltimore, Md., newcomer who is giving tournament golf "just one try" commanded most of the attention today as pace-setting Jack Burke Jr. led the field into the third round of the Carling's Open.

Leo Biagetti, formerly of Sandusky, O., and now playing out of Baltimore, established a new competitive course record at Manakiki Country Club Friday with an eight-under-par 64 that gained him a tie for second place, three strokes back of Burke. Biagetti's 36-hole total was 136.

Burke remained in the driver's seat with a 67 and a two-day total of 133. Ellsworth Vines of Los Angeles, who shared the first round lead with Burke, posted a 70 to tie Biagetti and Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., for the runner-up spot.

Influence Of Home In Training Child Talked

Some of the "problem areas" in American family life and indications of "what we should like our families to be like in the future" were presented by Dr. Albert E. Lovejoy at East Carolina College Thursday afternoon of this week.

Dr. Lovejoy, faculty member at Lynchburg College in Virginia and visiting professor at the University of North Carolina this summer, appeared as principal speaker at a conference on "The Redirection of the Home in Child Education," sponsored by the college department of psychology and directed by Dr. Carl L. Adams.

More than 125 people, mainly teachers in North Carolina elementary schools, were present for the day's program. Morning and afternoon sessions and a luncheon made up chief events of the conference.

In the course of his talk, Dr. Lovejoy pointed out the importance of pre-natal influences upon the child. Patterns of personality begin to become apparent in the child when he is only eight weeks old, he continued, and they are "pretty well developed" by the time he is fifteen. The child is lucky, he stated, if his father and mother are happy and well adjusted in their roles as husband and wife and as parents.

Among "problem areas" he mentioned "the American woman's dilemma." Conditions of modern life, he explained, confront many women with such difficult choices as whether to stay in the home or to work outside it, or how to combine a career and the duties of wife and mother.

The idea that the "home has lost its function" is only partly true, he said. Yet, he continued, the vices many things can now be done more effectively outside the home, he said. Yet, he continued, the home still has much to do. The child, he explained, cannot be nurtured as well outside as inside the home. Also the family provides affection and security better than any other institution.

"I have no worry," he declared, "about the family becoming an outmoded institution."

Family life education, he said, offers a "big area for study and research." He suggested that such groups as churches, parent-teachers organizations, and service clubs should "try in every way to educate people for family life." Discussing certain "cultural inconsistencies" observable among us, he raised the question of democracy in the home. As there are controls and restraints in society, he said, there must be guidance in the home. He approved the idea that children should "be treated as people." He advised against "overprotection" or over protection of the child and urged training for adulthood. Family discussions among parents and children of such questions as finances, recreation, vacations, and religion are desirable and contribute valuable training, he said.

Other speakers on the program included Dr. Adams, Dr. Judson White, and Dr. Clinton Prewett of the East Carolina psychology department; the Rev. Leon Russell of Greenville; Mrs. Ellen Carroll of the college Training School here; and Warren Carroll, recreation director in Greenville.

House Expected OK Defense Bill

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The House was expected today to vote overwhelming approval of President Eisenhower's defense reorganization plan despite some protests that it will pave the way for a military "dictator."

Chairman Clare E. Hoffman (R-Mich.) of the House Government Operations Committee conceded he could not muster the 218 votes needed to keep the plan from going into effect Monday midnight. No move has been made in the Senate to oppose it.

The House had been expected to act on the plan yesterday, but after more than five hours of debate it put off a vote until today.

The President told Congress the reshuffle will promote civilian control of the armed services, increase efficiency by abolishing "unwieldy boards" and help assure "the very best strategic planning" for the defense of the country.

The plan specifically provides for:

1. Abolition of the Munitions Board, Research and Development Board and Defense Supply Management Agency.
2. Creation of six new assistant defense secretaries.
3. Veto for the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff over personnel selected for the vital 210-man staff of the joint chiefs. The Army, Navy and Air Force each select 70 officers for the staff the nation's top military strategy group.
4. Greater management authority for the chairman of the joint chiefs over the staff.

Opponents of the plan claimed the last two provisions would make it possible for the chairman to muzzle military dissenters and set the stage for a powerful "Prussian-style" general staff.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
In Police Court Friday, five defendants charged with violations of liquor laws appeared before Judge Charles H. Wheeler. He found three of them guilty, two not guilty.

Thelbert Mobley, Negro, possession and transporting non-tax paid whiskey, six months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $75, costs deducted. The judgment also provides that Mobley is to remain of good behavior six months and not violate any law. Eighty-Year-Old Chose Jail Term

STERLING, Ill. (UP)—Mrs. Anna Pittman, 80, was serving a five-day jail sentence today for driving down the center of a highway, running through a stop sign, driving without a license and verbally abusing a police officer.

Arraigned Friday, Mrs. Pittman refused to pay a $10 fine.

"I've got the money," she said, "but I wouldn't pay a cent to the state of Illinois."

U. S. farm population has declined nine and a half per cent since 1922, but production is up 45 per cent.

Hopes Remain High On Fate Of French Widow

The hopes of a local family still remain high for an ill 79 year old French woman that she may be permitted to stay in this country after being ordered by immigration authorities to leave by July 1.

A private bill has been introduced in Congress by Representative Herbert C. Bonner on behalf of the French widow who has been visiting her daughter since November, 1931, and who has been ordered repeatedly by immigration officials to return to France.

While in this country, the visitor has become ill and according to physicians, unable to stand a trip back to France.

Since February, 1931, when her visa was first terminated, immigration authorities have been persistent in getting Mrs. Marie Martha Schramm, mother of Mrs. Woodrow Tripp of Greenville, to leave this country and return to her native land.

She was admitted to this country under Immigration Act of 1924 as a temporary visitor and after being given one extension on her visa, a warrant was served for her arrest in August, 1932.

During her time here, J. W. H. Roberts, local attorney, secured an additional extension and has been working to allow her to remain in the country.

Eisenhower On Fishing Holiday

THURMONT, Md. (UP)—President Eisenhower was expected to concentrate on trout fishing today at Camp David, the presidential hideaway in the Catoclin Mountains.

"No visitors or any business" was the order of the weekend for the presidential party, which included Mrs. Eisenhower.

The party includes Mrs. John S. Doud, Mrs. Eisenhower's mother; Cmdr. Edward L. Beach, the President's naval aide, and Secret Service agents.

The President is expected to return to the White House late Sunday.

definitely. Physicians say that Mrs. Schramm is not in good health and that the strain of a trip back to France is inadvisable.

Mrs. Schramm and her family are now awaiting action to be taken on the private bill introduced by Bonner which would allow her to remain with her family.

Investigating officer C. D. Doss reported that Oakley had stopped at a "stop sign" and then started into the intersection when he was hit by Rawl who was traveling west on 10th.

No injuries were reported.

Still Milder

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 16 degrees lower than it was on the same day a year ago, Mrs. Carl E. Madson, local observer for the U. S. Weather Bureau, reported.

Highest temperature here yesterday was 89 degrees. Lowest last night 72, and at 8 a. m. today it was 78. Light showers of rain fell here yesterday afternoon.

RUSTY RILEY

HERE ARE THE PAPERS ON THE HORSES, MR. PURDY, AND THE BILLS OF SALE... I GUESS MY JOB'S FINISHED, SO I'LL GRAB A TRAIN FOR HOME.

OKAY, CLINTON. THE BOSS'LL SURE BE PLEASED.

SO LONG, MR. CLINTON.

DO WE START FOR MILESTONE RIGHT NOW, TEX?

IT'S PRETTY LATE FOR A START NOW... I THINK WE BETTER LAY OVER AND START AT DAWN.

TEX, I BEEN WONDERIN' WHY MR. MILES IS SO CRAZY TO GET SILVER LAD THAT HE HIRED A DETECTIVE TO FIND HIM... IS HE SO SPECIAL?

HE SURE IS SPECIAL, RUSTY... DUE TO A DISASTROUS STABLE FIRE, HE'S THE ONLY SURVIVOR OF A FAMOUS LINE OF HUNTERS.

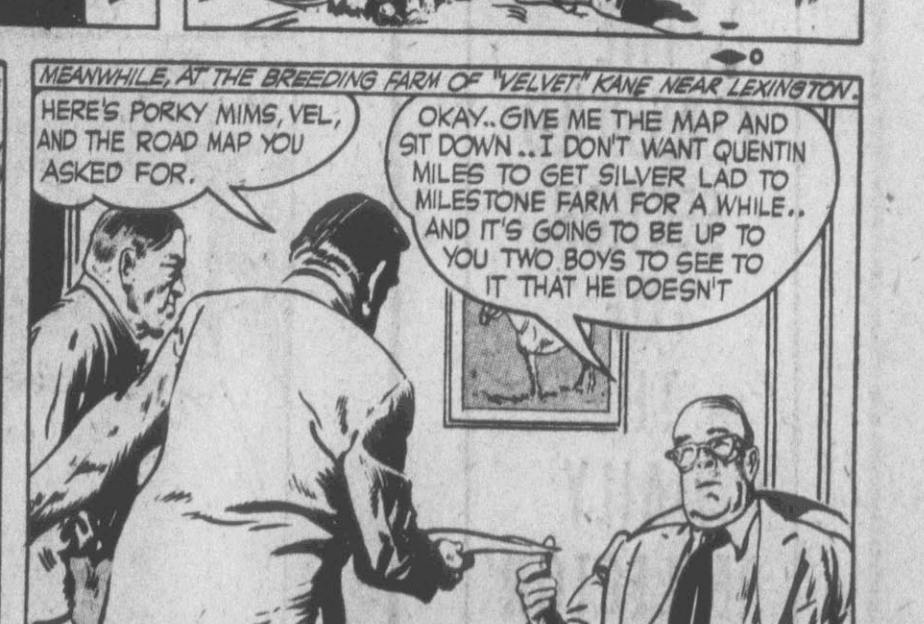

MR. MILES IS DETERMINED TO KEEP THE LINE GOING... AND HE HOPES TO SHOW HIM AT THE LEXINGTON JUNIOR LEAGUE HORSE SHOW.

JEEPER! THAT'S A REAL IMPORTANT SHOW! WE'LL SURE HAVE TO WORK ON HIM TO GET HIM RIGHT FOR IT.

I THINK WE BETTER GRAB A LITTLE SHUT-EYE RIGHT IN THE VAN.

OKAY, TEX--BOY! I'M SURE GLAD I'M GOING HOME.

MEANWHILE, AT THE BREEDING FARM OF 'VELVET' KANE NEAR LEXINGTON, HERE'S PORKY MIMS, VEL, AND THE ROAD MAP YOU ASKED FOR.

OKAY... GIVE ME THE MAP AND SIT DOWN... I DON'T WANT QUENTIN MILES TO GET SILVER LAD TO MILESTONE FARM FOR A WHILE... AND IT'S GOING TO BE UP TO YOU TWO BOYS TO SEE TO IT THAT HE DOESN'T

I DON'T GET IT, VEL... WHAT'S THE GIMMICK?

I'M NOT IN THE GAME OF RAISING HORSES FOR A HOBBY... THAT BIG SHOT FROM SOUTH AMERICA IS READY TO GIVE ME TOP PRICE FOR ALL MY YEARLING HUNTERS...

WELL?

DON'T BE STUPID... SILVER LAD IS FROM THE WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS LINE OF HUNTERS. EVERYBODY THINKS THE LINE ENDED IN THAT STABLE FIRE... IF MY CUSTOMER KNEW THAT MILESTONE FARM WAS GOING TO RAISE THEM... WELL...

I GET IT NOW! IN THAT CASE YOUR BIG SHOT WOULD CALL OFF HIS DEAL AND WAIT TO BUY MILESTONE HORSES...

RIGHT!... I WANT THAT HORSE HIDDEN AND HIDDEN GOOD TILL MY DEAL IS SETTLED... NOW LET'S LOOK AT THIS ROAD MAP!

SO YOU WANT SCRUB AN ME TO SNATCH THE NAG... RIGHT?
