Oil Discovered Accidentally

The family of Earl Lange (right) struck a drilling crew at work on his farm near St. Louis after the Lac Lee Gas Company accidentally struck oil while drilling to learn if natural gas could be stored underground. The utility company said that the amount of oil has not been determined, but the announcement of the strike brought a flood of lease seekers to Lange's farm. (AP Wirephoto)

McCarthy Plans To Carry On

Will Accept Demo Resignations And Appointees To Prob- ing Group

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy said today his Permanent Investigating subcommittee will carry on as before whether or not the Democrats replace their three members who resigned in protest.

The Wisconsin Republican said he would formally accept the resignations and if the Democrats want to name replacements, "I'll accept their appointees."

Sens. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) and Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) quit in a body late Friday after the subcommittee's Republican majority had voted McCarthy broad authority to hire and fire all staff members.

The vote was an outgrowth of the furor over subcommittee Executive Director J. B. Matthews, who quit Thursday night. Matthews resigned in the face of strong criticism, including a blast by President Eisenhower, for a statement that the Protestant clergy forms "the largest single group" of Americans supporting the "communist apparatus."

McClellan, Jackson and Symington quit the subcommittee with a joint statement in which they said the decision to give McCarthy full power over subcommittee employees "places us in the impossible position of having responsibility without having any voice, right or authority."

McClellan, as ranking Democrat on the parent Government Operations Committee, could appoint successors. But he said he knew of nobody who wanted to serve. There were only two possibilities—Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.). The sixth Democratic post on the Operations Committee is temporarily vacant.

Kennedy would not say whether he would refuse to serve if appointed but said he is "very happy" with his assignment on another subcommittee.

Humphrey was en route to Minnesota when the Democrats resigned.

Issue Of Early Talks With Russians Remains In Limelight

Big 3 Ministers Cautious

By DONALD J. GONZALES

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Big Three foreign ministers sought today to iron out their reported differences on whether to propose top level talks with the Russians during the current wave of Kremlin-satellite unrest.

Joint strategy to exploit the crisis facing the Russian leaders in Eastern Germany also was ticketed for study at the second round of three-power meetings.

Predictions were that the Big Three would move soon to step up the diplomatic offensive against the Soviets by proposing plans for getting free elections throughout Germany.

President Eisenhower struck a blow Friday night by offering $15,000,000 worth of American food for Eastern Germany if Moscow will open the Iron Curtain enough to let it through.

The Allied diplomats agreed at their first meeting Friday that it was too early to assess accurately the dramatic downfall of Soviet Police Chief Lavrenti P. Beria from the No. 2 post in the Kremlin.

But they faced up to the possibility that his ouster might mean an end to the honey-tongued peace offensive that has developed since the death of Stalin. This could plunge the Allies into a new round of rearmament.

On the question of Big Four talks in the near future, Britain's Acting Foreign Secretary Lord Salisbury was understood to have admitted that the firing of Beria had injected a new factor into Britain's old-fashioned hopes for face to face talks with the Russians. But he held to the position that a four-power parley should be held at the proper time.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and his advisers feel their position against jumping into Al-Soviet talks at the heads of state level has been strengthened by the Kremlin friction. This government was understood to be in favor of letting the Soviet leaders fight among themselves for the foreseeable future. France's position was not spelled out for the moment.

The ministers planned to thrash out every aspect of a Big Four parley today and at later sessions—whether it is advisable at what level it should be held, the range of subjects, timing, and extent of Allied agreement that should be achieved in advance. Only after these discussions will there be a final decision on whether it should be held.

The diplomatic duelling on the Big Four problem may turn on the first-hand report to be made to the foreign ministers by U. S. Ambassador to Moscow Charles E. Bohlen. America's top expert on Soviet affairs, Bohlen was ordered home today by Dulles.

There was a strong suspicion that Bohlen would emphasize that the Kremlin battle for power is far from over and that Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Premier Georgi M. Malenkov are likely to have a final showdown soon. He is expected to urge delay in top level Big Four talks to await developments along that line.

Wilmington Lawyer Appointed To Fill Smith's Senate Seat

Umstead Selects 'Political Unknown'

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP) — Alton A. Lennon, 47-year-old Wilmington lawyer and political unknown, was chosen late yesterday to succeed the late Sen. Willis Smith as junior senator from North Carolina.

Gov. William B. Umstead made the surprise announcement shortly before leaving the capitol yesterday. Since Smith died June 26 after a series of heart attacks in Washington, almost every prominent political figure in the state had been mentioned as a possible successor except Lennon.

Umstead said he had not definitely settled on a choice until yesterday. He admitted that Lennon is virtually unknown in state politics except for one term in the state Senate but added that "I am satisfied he can make himself known and will do so."

The new senator is a lifetime resident of Wilmington and an old friend of Umstead. He managed Umstead's campaigns in New Hanover County in 1948 and 1951.

Umstead was also confident that Lennon will run for a full term and win in 1954.

Asked if he thought the Wilmington attorney could beat former Gov. Kerr Scott should Scott decide to make the campaign, Umstead replied that although he didn't know "who will be running, I think Alton Lennon can be elected to the U. S. Senate."

He characterized him as a "sound, safe, solid man" and said Lennon's comparative youth was definitely a factor in the choice.

"I think there has developed some feeling that there should be a relatively young man elected to the Senate so that he can build up seniority. I do not know his views on any particular program, but I know the man and I feel he will do what is best for the state," Umstead said.

Lennon, himself, said the appointment was not too much of a surprise.

He said he had talked with the governor earlier in the week and by telephone just before the announcement was made "and I had some reason to believe that I was being considered."

"Like any other man," he said, "I consider it one of the greatest honors and the greatest responsibilities ever to come to anyone."

"I accept it with a spirit of utmost humility and the strongest human determination to serve the people of North Carolina and the nation."

"I'd like to say further that with the help of the citizens and the help of Almighty God I shall strive to advance the progress of North Carolina and assure the better welfare and security of our nation," he said.

Lennon praised the late Senator Smith highly. He said he would not leave for Washington until his appointment is certified to the Senate secretary. Umstead said it would be certified "as soon as possible."

Lennon was born in Wilmington, Aug. 17, 1906. He attended New Hanover High School and Wake Forest College, and has been practicing law in Wilmington since his graduation from Wake Forest. He served as judge of the New Hanover recorder's court and in the state Senate from 1947 to 1951.

He is a Baptist, married to the former Miss Karline Welch. The couple have two children.

Signs Point To Early Trial; Believed Long Under Arrest

Case Against Beria Appears Readied

By HENRY SHAPIRO

United Press Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW (UP) — The case against purged Soviet police chief Lavrenti P. Beria is nearing completion and he may go on trial soon for his role in the Soviet supreme court, diplomatic sources said today.

There is increasing belief that Beria has been under arrest for several weeks—probably before he failed to show up for a gala opera premiere June 26.

It is noted also that for several weeks the newspapers have been saying no leader can stand above the Communist party, and have stressed repeatedly the collective character of the party and the government.

Foreign observers, in expressing belief that there will be no foreseeable policy change, argued that Beria's activities as outlined by the party newspaper Pravda consisted precisely of sabotaging peaceful policies.

"He hatched plans to grab the leadership of the party and the country with the aim of actually destroying the Communist Party and to change the policy elaborated by the party to a capitulatory policy which would have brought about ultimately the restoration of capitalism," the newspaper said. Pravda also accused Beria of opposing efforts of the new Soviet government to introduce universal respect for law and order by insisting on the use of arbitrary police power. He was charged also with encouraging bourgeois nationalism and sabotaging the collective farm policy.

A leading editorial in today's Pravda said the whole Soviet people and the Communist Party condemn Beria's "criminal actions" with one voice.

Pravda devoted an entire page to reports of mass meetings held throughout the Soviet Union to approve the actions taken by the government and to denounce Beria as a "base, contemptible traitor, provocateur, hireling of foreign imperialists and hardened enemy of the people."

An editorial similar to that in Pravda also was carried by the official government newspaper Izvestia. In addition, carried a sharp attack on the Western Big Three foreign ministers conference now underway in Washington.

The newspaper asserted the United States was forced to call the meeting because of the "bankruptcy of the policy of toughness."

The conference was called in view of the aborted Berlin meeting of the chiefs of state of the U. S., Great Britain and France designed, it said to work out an anti-Soviet deal.

Umstead To Take Brief Holiday

RALEIGH (UP) — Gov. William B. Umstead will leave the Capitol Monday for several days of rest.

Umstead informed the Council of State after a meeting late yesterday, at which he named a new senator from North Carolina, that he would be gone long enough to rest but not long enough for it to be called a vacation.

South Korean Indicates Harmony As Talks End

Understanding With Rhee

By EARNEST HOBERECHT

United Press Staff Correspondent

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — President Syngman Rhee announced today he had reached a "friendly understanding" with the United States and President Eisenhower's truce expediter packed his bags to return home.

Rhee, whose unexpected release of 27,000 anti-Communist war prisoners has delayed the Korean armistice, thus removed a major threat to peace through reaching the "understanding."

Official American sources said Assistant Secretary of State Walter S. Robertson, whom Mr. Eisenhower had sent to Korea two weeks ago to try to win Rhee's support, will leave Seoul Sunday.

They said Robertson will fly to Pusan and stop over briefly in Japan before returning to the United States.

Rhee emphasized that his "friendly understanding" with the United States was not a final agreement to support the truce.

However, Gen. Mark W. Clark, supreme commander of United Nations forces in the Far East, considered it strong enough to assure Communist negotiators at Panmunjom that South Korea would not carry out its threat to wreck the truce by sudden military action.

Rhee and Robertson declined to discuss the "understanding," but they said a joint statement would be issued at 10 a.m. Sunday (9 p.m. e.d.t. Saturday), probably before the diplomat's departure.

U.N. and Communist negotiators anxious to end the shooting in Korea, held two meetings today—one lasting 27 minutes in the morning and the other a 23-minute afternoon session.

Rhee earlier had told newsmen he presumed Washington knew about his "friendly understanding," and that a "final decision" will come from the United States.

Observers believed Rhee referred to a mutual security pact with the United States, apparently promised by Robertson but which needs consent of Congress.

The other half of the United States' truce mission to Seoul, former Ambassador to Japan Robert Murphy, also was scheduled to return to the United States. He planned to leave Tokyo today.

Rhee said he and Robertson had "pretty nearly covered all the points" in their almost daily conversations. He indicated the remaining details could be straightened out by other representative Americans, such as Ambassador to Korea Ellis O. Briggs.

Gen. Clark Given Authority To Sign Armistice

Truce Within Week Hoped

WASHINGTON (UP) — The administration hoped today that a Korean truce can be signed in about a week now that South Korea apparently has decided to drop its threat to defy the United Nations.

The State Department had no immediate comment on President Syngman Rhee's announcement that he had reached a "friendly understanding" with armistice envoy Walter S. Robertson.

Officials were optimistic that it would end the dangerous split in the Allied ranks and clear the way for signing of the truce.

It was learned that one thing would prevent an immediate signing was a South Korean demand that all Communist prisoners be moved into the armistice neutral zone for exchange.

It was known, however, that President Eisenhower this week for the first time authorized Gen. Mark W. Clark to sign an armistice.

Mr. Eisenhower made the decision Wednesday during a series of conferences with diplomatic military, and White House advisers. At his news conference the same day he was cautious about predicting how the negotiations with Rhee would turn out. But informed sources said the administration actually knew a week ago that the aged Korean president was relaxing his stand.

In his announcement in Korea, Rhee shed little light on the exact nature of his "understanding," although he did say it was not a "definite agreement" and that a "final decision" would have to come from the United States.

It was learned here, however, that a "final decision" would have to come from the United States.

It was learned here, however, that a key element in the understanding was a compromise plan for shifting the POWs in Allied hands to the neutral zone around Panmunjom. Rhee had from the first threatened to fight any Indian troops sent to Korea to handle the POWs during the post-truce exchange. Under the compromise, it was understood, the prisoners would be moved to the Panmunjom area before they would be placed under Indian control.

The plan will have to be submitted to the Communists for approval. Their reaction will determine how soon a truce can be signed. It was presumed there would be no great objection.

Hail Offer Of Food To Germany

BONN, Germany (UP) — West German and Allied officials today hailed President Eisenhower's offer of food to hungry Germans under Soviet domination as a master-stroke in the cold war against Communism.

These authorities said the offer to send $15,000,000 worth of American food to East Germany came at a strategic moment. The Soviets now have been maneuvered into a position where any decision they make may well lead to a serious loss of prestige, these observers said.

If the offer is rejected, it will fan the smoldering unrest which has stalked the Communist world since the bloody East German uprisings.

If the offer is accepted, it will deliver a damaging blow to the Soviet "hate America" campaign which has been the cornerstone of Communist policy.

West Berlin's Lord Mayor Ernst Reuter enthusiastically endorsed Mr. Eisenhower's actions.

"It is just the right step at the right moment," he said. "The people in East Germany must be informed that free people throughout the world want to help them."

Other German officials also expressed strong approval.

One said the people in Soviet-occupied Germany "desperately need any additional food they can get. For this reason the President's action is a great humanitarian gesture."

"But it is also a wise political step, because it will show the people of East Germany who their real friends are whether or not the generous offer is accepted," the official said.

Army Uncovering Wide Fraud In Allotment Claims

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Army says it has uncovered evidence of widespread fraud in claims from soldiers for living quarters allowances for dependents.

It estimated about $18,000 was being paid out to unauthorized persons in Puerto Rico alone. All allotment claims now in the United States and Puerto Rico are being investigated.

Allotments are paid to enlisted men's dependents when the government is unable to provide adequate living quarters for them. They range from $51.30 monthly for a private with one dependent to $96.90 for a master sergeant with three or more dependents.

The Army said evidence of fraud so far involves mostly parents rather than wives and children.

East Berlin Martial Law To Be Lifted Amid Talk Red Leaders In Turmoil

BERLIN (UP) — Russian authorities announced today that martial law imposed on East Berlin since the June 17 German workers revolt will be lifted at midnight tonight.

The order was issued amid reports that East German Communist leaders had been thrown into "panic confusion" by the purge of Soviet secret police chief Lavrenti P. Beria in Moscow and that workers in three big East Berlin factories threatened a new strike.

There were unconfirmed reports that anti-Communists had blown up a Russian military supply train in the East German area occupied by Poland, and that a bridge had been blown up also.

Maj. Gen. P. T. Dibrowa, Soviet military commander in East Berlin, announced the lifting of martial law, which he imposed that fateful afternoon when German workers rose in rebellion against their Red masters.

The action means the return of practically normal conditions in East Berlin.

The West Berlin newspaper Telegram reported the reaction of German Communist leaders to the purge of Russia's No. 2 man.

"The arrest of Beria has thrown the East German Communist party into panic confusion," the Telegram said. It added that in East German government circles the fall of Beria was considered "extraordinarily unfavorable for the position of the Soviet Union in the present political situation."

Telegram reported that the workers of three large East Berlin factories sent a formal protest to the Red government against the continued imprisonment of comrades arrested in the revolt.

The workers said that unless all those still held were freed by tomorrow night they would go on strike again, Telegram reported.

Similarly, Telegram reported that partisans blew up a Russian military supply train between Thorn and Posen.

"Many" Russian soldiers were killed, the paper said.

'Certificates' Issued Lovers

SASEBO, Japan (UP) — Police today began issuing "lovers' certificates" to the Japanese girlfriends of American servicemen stationed at the American naval base here.

The new licenses carry a photograph of the girl and her boyfriend and state: "This woman keeps company with (blank) (blank) unit, U. S. Army."

Coroner's Jury Clears Youth Of Blame In Auto Collision Fatality

A 16-year-old boy was last night cleared of blame in the traffic death of Clinton B. Galloway, 65, who died one week after the accident without regaining consciousness.

Billy Dunn, son of Judge and Mrs. Albion Dunn of Okmulgee, Greenville, was cleared after only a few minutes deliberation by the six-man coroner's jury following testimony on the accident at Paris and Myrtle Avenue July 1, at which time Galloway was critically injured.

Galloway had been in critical condition since the early morning accident in which he suffered severe head and facial injuries.

C. Flake and Det. R. T. Rogerson of the Greenville Police Department. No other witnesses were called by coroner Griffin H. Rouse. There were no eye-witnesses to the wreck other than the three boys in the Dunn car who reportedly gave the "same account of the wreck to officers as Dunn."

Both officers testified that Dunn was traveling east on Myrtle Avenue and Galloway was traveling north on Paris. Officer Flake stated that the point of impact was two feet to the right of the manhole in the center of the intersection. Officer Flake quoted Dunn as saying he did not see the Galloway car until he had already entered the intersection.

The police officer quoted Dunn as saying that he was traveling approximately 15 miles per hour at the time of the accident and that Galloway was going at a "pretty good speed."

At the close of the testimony, Solicitor W. J. Bundy stated that based on the evidence heard, there was no violation of criminal law. After a few minutes' deliberation, the coroner's jury recommended that no criminal action be brought against Dunn.

Dunn was represented at the inquest by Attorneys Louis Gaylord, J. W. H. Roberts and J. H. Harrell.

Polio-Plagued County Rejoicing At Mass-Innoculation Results

By FRANK MCARDLE

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UP) —

Montgomery county residents rejoiced today over indications that their mass inoculation of 32,000 children with gamma globulin has broken the grip of a polio outbreak here.

Health officials announced the gigantic task of providing the serum for every child under 10 years old already has reduced the number of polio cases here and promises to lessen the crippling effects.

An emergency was declared here when the number of cases rose to 79, and the rate climbed to 27 cases in one 10-day period. Since mass inoculation was completed a week ago there have been only six cases.

"Evidence right now is that every thing looks awfully good," said Dr. Daniel G. Gill, state health officer. "It looks as if gamma globulin had the results which we had hoped for."

Spokesmen among the hundreds of volunteers who made the project possible said that whatever its medical result might be, the mass inoculation was a "lesson in cooperation."

Soberly, almost matter-of-factly the parents, civic workers and medical personnel heard a "well done" from Dr. W. H. Y. Smith, state health officer.

"The program was a great success in impeding the polio outbreak, because of the marvelous cooperation of everyone."

an outlying emergency inoculation station said, "We were so scared we just had to do something about it."

Julius Kashover, a grocery store operator who joined the volunteer ranks, said the project to him had meant "a lesson in cooperation."

Aaron Aronov, chairman of the county chapter of the National foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said, "We can just be grateful that we were fortunate enough to get the gamma globulin."

Montgomery county is still in the throes of a cleanup campaign to reduce chances of spreading the disease, but the children could play together freely once more.

Their experience with the needle was only a grim memory.

Press Meeting Will Close Today

NEW BERN (UP)—The annual three-day summer meeting of the North Carolina Press Association closes here today with election of new officers and memorial services for the late W. Randall Harris of Asheville, former NCPA president.

The editors and publishers toured the Cherry Point Marine Air Base and the Neuse and Trent rivers yesterday. They ended the day with a fish fry at the Trent Pines Club.

One of the highlights of the day was a luncheon address by Rep. Graham A. Barden (D-NC) who called Washington correspondents "pampered individuals" who make too much use of "spoon-fed press releases, propaganda handouts and deliberately planted leaks."

Barden also blasted the policy of the Republican administration concerning Korea and said that "we should either declare war in Korea or get out."

The "old-fashioned" reporter, he said, has vanished from the Washington scene.

"A story with a Washington date-line is apt to consist of a handout carefully prepared and well written by a propagandist who is paid to do it," he said.

"I am sorry to say that it is favorable to the department in which he is employed," he said.

Kiwanis Convention In N. Y. Related At Meet

President Leo W. Jenkins and H. Franklin Steinbeck, delegates to the recent Kiwanis International Convention in New York City, reporting to the Greenville club last night, quoted a speaker as saying "Our future largely depends on a renewal of our faith in God."

Jenkins said 25,000 people were in Madison Square Garden during the convention, and he reminded that several speakers emphasized the importance of renewing faith in God. He said there are over 36,000 Kiwanis clubs in the United States.

Delegates Steinbeck, who spent some of his vacation in Canada, reported that religious emphasis prevailed at the convention. He said the meeting opened on a Sunday night at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, on Morningside Heights in New York City. There were 10,000 Kiwanians and their wives in the cathedral for the service. He called attention to a famous castle in Canada that was transformed into a museum to earn for the club a substantial sum each year for its community activities.

At last night's meeting the Kiwanians gave Secretary David C. Moore Jr. a welcome on his return. He is recuperating from a recent illness.

Tige (Sweetpea) Gardner led the singing of Kiwanis songs, with Mrs. Lena Tyson at the piano.

John Barnhill led the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Rev. Richard E. Hardaway said the invocation.

Kiwanians Fred Webb, Herman Duncan and Joe Taft had birthdays and donated a dime for each year of their age.

Kiwanian Wyatt Highsmith gave his autobiography. Guests of the club were Cecil Ellington Jr. of Greenville and J. Glasgow Smith and C. H. Joyner of the Farmville Kiwanis Club and Doc Cox of the Circle K Club at the college.

While the Boy Scouts from East Carolina Council are on their way by pullman train to California for the annual Jamboree with 50,000 Boy Scouts, arrangements have been made for the boys actually to talk to their friends and parents by way of radio hookup with transcriptions.

Field Scout Executive Lester Dolar of Greenville quoted Jamboree Scoutmaster Frank P. Meadows Jr. of Rocky Mount, as saying the "gigantic conversational plan is under supervision of Ray Wilkinson, of Rocky Mount, radio official representative for the Jamboree Boy Scout troop."

Wire recordings will be made on the train en route, and from time to time, broadcast through radio hookups.

Stations scheduled to receive broadcasts are, Rocky Mount, Winston, Kingston, New Bern, Morehead City, Greenville, Tarboro, Ahoskie, and Roanoke Rapids.

Eagle Scout George Moore of Rocky Mount Troop No. 11 is public relations officer to make transcriptions on the trip. He will make wire recordings of talks with Jamboree Scouts, visitors, dignitaries and others during the trip to the Pacific coast. Transcriptions will be returned to Ray Wilkinson at Rocky Mount by air mail. They will be put on the air at stated intervals. Programs will originate in Atlanta, St. Louis, Kansas City, from the top of Pike's Peak, Salt Lake City, Grand Canyon and, of course, from the Jamboree campsite, near Santa Anita, California. Field Executive Dollar stated.

Red Oak Church Looks Forward To Regional Judging Results

By MURIEL SHOTWELL
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of Red Oak Christian Church, located about three miles west of Greenville, are looking forward with special interest to the outcome of regional judging in the Town and Country Church Development Program.

Recently declared winner in statewide competition, accomplishments of this small but progressive church will be weighed against those of 12 other state winners, and the results announced on July 26.

Inasmuch as this was the first contest year in the Church Development Program, progress recorded by churches during past years was considered in the judging. Subsequent years of competition will be based on accomplishments of only the preceding year.

Projects of the 216 member congregation are many and varied.

For the past 20 years, the church has sent delegates to youth and adult conferences each summer. As a result of participating in a "world fund" drive five years ago, members now correspond regularly with people in Germany, Holland and Finland.

Gifts go each year to children's homes and homes for the aged. Annually, contributions are made toward selected goals, and a "love offering" is available to friends and neighbors in times of misfortune.

"The Lord's Acre", a project in which members pledge their work to the church and donate funds derived from this work, is popularly regarded as one of the most successful programs undertaken.

Harvest sales of hams, pickles, canned goods, pies, cakes, candies and homemade articles are held yearly; and dinners sponsored by the little church are famous throughout Pitt County. Members preparing these dinners have served as many as 800 people.

Activities of the church are carried out by eight groups which

"become one" when embarking on a project whether it is entertaining hospitalized Marines at Camp Lejeune (which they do three times yearly), or giving plays in neighboring communities "just for the fun of it".

Possibly one of the greatest interests of the rural church lies in the Red Oak Home Demonstration Club, whose building is a part of church property. The church gave land to the club on which to construct a building by volunteer labor, with the understanding that should the club cease its activities, the property would revert to the church.

Red Oak Church had its humble beginning in April 1871 when 11 persons banded together, searching for a place to worship. It was under the leadership and the work of Mrs. Elvira Tyson and Rev. Josephus Latham the church was begun and first named Berea. Rev. Latham served as pastor until his death in 1889, no record showing he was paid for his work.

The first 11 members of the church met in four quarters during the next 14 years and established for a while at Arthur, finally moving back to Red Oak in 1879 and meeting in the Frog Level School.

After the congregation grew to about 25, a permanent meeting place was needed. The first building was small, measuring about 40 feet by 30 feet.

In 1885, the name of the church was changed to Red Oak over the disapproval of Rev. Latham who is reported to have said, "the very idea of changing the name of beautiful Berea to Red Oak after one of those trees out there".

The church was formally dedicated on the third Sunday in October 1885 with the Rev. Gideon Allen preaching the dedicatory sermon. The first series of revival services was conducted in 1890 by Rev. J.L. Wipfield and sometime in the early part of the twentieth century, Rev. S.W. Sumrell, a carpenter by trade, became its pastor.

Rev. Sumrell is recorded to have held revival preachings and after the morning service he would help nail the ceiling on the church without extra pay.

Records of the first Sunday School date back as far as 1878 when the church was known as Berea and before the actual church building was erected. Sunday School was organized by Mrs. Alfred Nichols with 25 members and two teachers. Mrs. Nichols was a teacher and superintendent of the Sunday School until her death in 1915. There is one member of the original Sunday School now living, Mrs. Mills Smith.

In the 82 years history of the church, it has had 38 ministers with their salaries ranging from $12.90 to the present salary of $1200 a year for part-time services. Four secretaries, formerly called clerks, have served the church.

Many changes have taken place since that beginning, particularly so in the past five years.

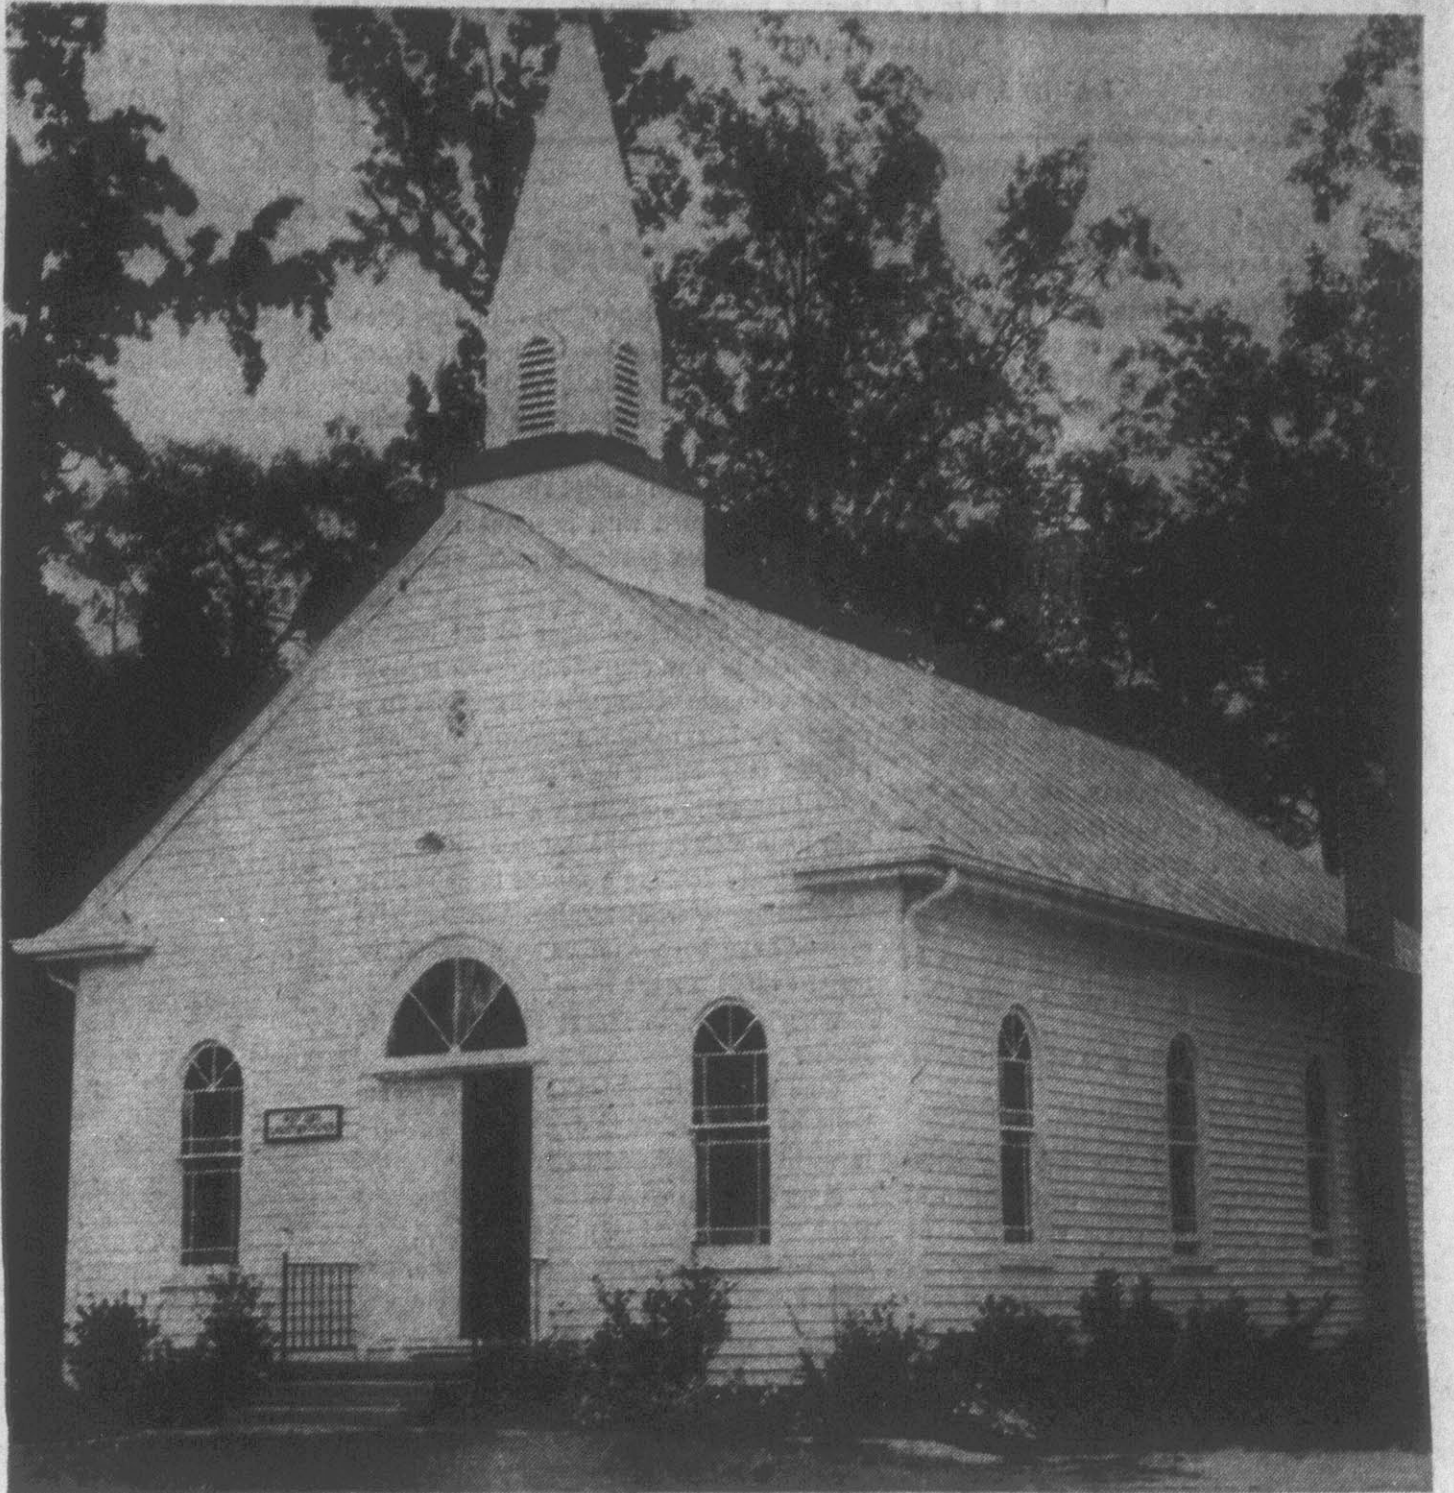

The first extensive remodeling of the building took place in 1947 with the addition of two Sunday School rooms, taking care of an average of 110 pupils, and a vestibule. A steeple was built, one of the first to appear on a rural church in the county; a choir loft was added and the old ceiling replaced.

The years 1950 and 1951 saw new improvement: carpeting, new pews, altar furniture and stained glass windows and the installing of a heating system. (It was not so long ago that Sunday School was discontinued in the winter because of insufficient heat.)

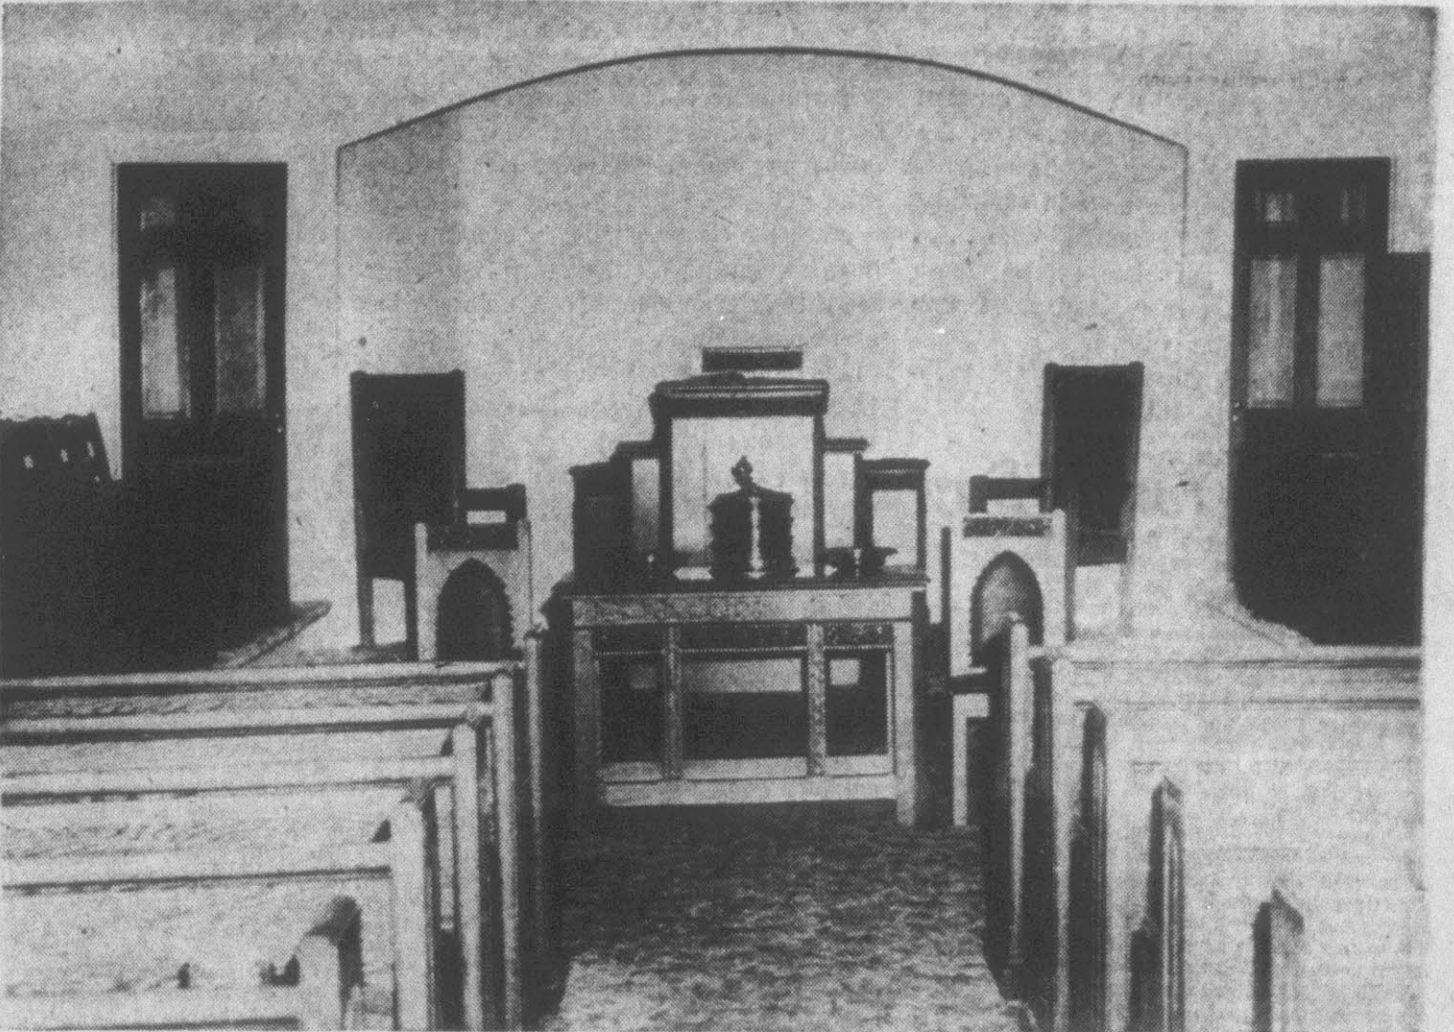

Another great interest of the church lies in music. A far cry from the church's first musical instrument, a piano, is an electric organ which has been recently installed. A choir of 25 members sings every Sunday, led by a paid director, in addition to a youth choir and junior choir, both which "help out" on special occasions. The youth choir sings at events all over the county, some of its members belonging to other churches.

Funds for all of the work done at Red Oak, as well as for outside works, has come from the people themselves. Rev. Harold Tyer, who has been their pastor for a number of years, is unstinting in his praise of the little flock.

"Their reward is all about them," he says.

Red Oak Christian Church, which has a congregation of over 200, is now one of the most outstanding rural churches in the state, having been declared first place winner in the Town and Country Church Development Program. The congregation is now awaiting the results in judging on a regional basis.

New altar furniture and pews and a silver communion service adorn the auditorium of the Red Oak Christian Church which its interior is painted a light green. On either side of the pulpit are choir lofts, another recent addition to the interior of the church. Carpeting covers the floor from wall to wall. (Reflector Photos by Roy Hardee)

Children's Education Involves Much More Than School; They Learn At Home, Too

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Helping your child at school involves much more than seeing he gets his assignments or remembers to take library books or materials for class. Such were the facts recently told to parents and teachers attending a conference on child development and parent education at Iowa University.

The parent who helps his child most realizes that education goes on all the time — at home, in church, at clubs as well as in school. Dr. James Hymes, Jr., professor of education at George Peabody College for Teachers, told the conference. He explained:

"The help we are giving our children involves the stories we have read together, the kind of life our youngsters are having, the pets they own, the fun they have — all these experiences feed into the child. All are a part of education. A talking, playing, music-listening, trip-taking parent helps his child best."

Hymes urged parents to talk freely to teachers about their children adding:

"In the sense of understanding the child, the parent is the expert instead of the teachers. So the expert must talk about his child."

The best atmosphere for learning will be established for the child if the distinction between home and school becomes as vague as possible, Hymes said. This atmosphere develops best if parent and teacher are real friends, not just casual acquaintances. The teacher should feel free to "drop in" often. The friendship of parent and teacher should be such that they can express disagreement when they feel it, Hymes explained, suggesting that one test of friendship is the degree of frankness which prevails between them.

He cautioned parents to realize that success at school may mean totally different things to parent and child. To the child it consists in being a person, winning friends, being a friend, and being independent. These things the child must do on his own.

The parent may be more concerned with measures of the child's progress from an academic point of view, and his attempt to help may threaten the child's independence, Hymes said.

"At times our strong wish for our children to succeed may almost add up to an invasion of their privacy," Hymes advised parents to remember that help is most appreciated at all ages when it is asked for, when the person receiving it is glad to have it and comfortable in taking it. He said:

"At no age is a person ever so self-sufficient that he can get along without help — in one sense, in fact, willingness to take help is a sign of a person's maturity."

But in addition to providing a friendly, cooperative atmosphere and the right background for learning, parents today must do much more, Hymes explained:

"There will not be enough teachers to go around for years, so parents must become teachers. If you want to help your child at school, the place for you to be is at school."

This doesn't mean, unexpected parades of parents to the classroom, he explained. It will have to be an experiment, but will need planning and thinking through on the part of both parents and teachers. Many parents have skills which the schools can well use.

Much To Remember For Playing Perfect Hostess

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Now that you have planned and carried out arrangements for the perfect party, don't spoil it all by the way you play hostess.

Of course you know that you and your husband should be in the living room at least five minutes before the hour at which your guests are invited and that all should have a warm welcome and equal and impartial attention.

But there are many more things to remember if you want to be a successful hostess — and many of them start with "don't."

Above all, don't be one of the flutters, constantly darting about emptying ashtrays or asking, if your guests would not like this or that. This can create such a nervous atmosphere that it ruins a party. Try for that happy medium which is alert, but relaxed, and — if you have no servants — let your guests wait on themselves a bit.

Don't display annoyance if a guest is late. If one is delayed, it is gracious to wait a few minutes after the dinner hour — 20 at most — and then have dinner served. When the late guest does arrive, pass it off as smoothly and kindly as possible and let the party roll on.

Don't be irked if anything goes wrong. If a beautiful piece of china is broken or your costliest rug stained with coffee, keep your face and manner serene. Remember the one who did the damage feels far worse than you, and this is a place for kindness, if there ever was one. Say it doesn't matter and do whatever else you can to put the damage at ease.

Don't be so eager to keep the conversation from dying that you bounce into every second's silence with another subject. Of course the conversation shouldn't really die or get into a rut. But a few short silences won't do it any harm.

As hostess, of course, you are responsible for keeping the talk flowing smoothly and for steering it away from troubled shoals. The way to do this most skillfully is to give considerable thought to your guests, their interests, and some topics of general interest before your party begins. Then, when a pocket of silence opens, you will have something to drop into it easily to start conversation again.

Don't make your guests watch television all evening unless you know that they want to. It may put a strain on the eyes of some and it will be kinder to learn their preferences first.

Finally, don't interrupt your husband's stories, even if he does not tell them very well. Better let him prove it, than to prove that he married a fuss-budget or a shrew.

Common Clam Is Under Scrutiny

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (U.P.)

—The life and wellbeing of the common clam is getting a lot of attention these days from world authorities on the subject.

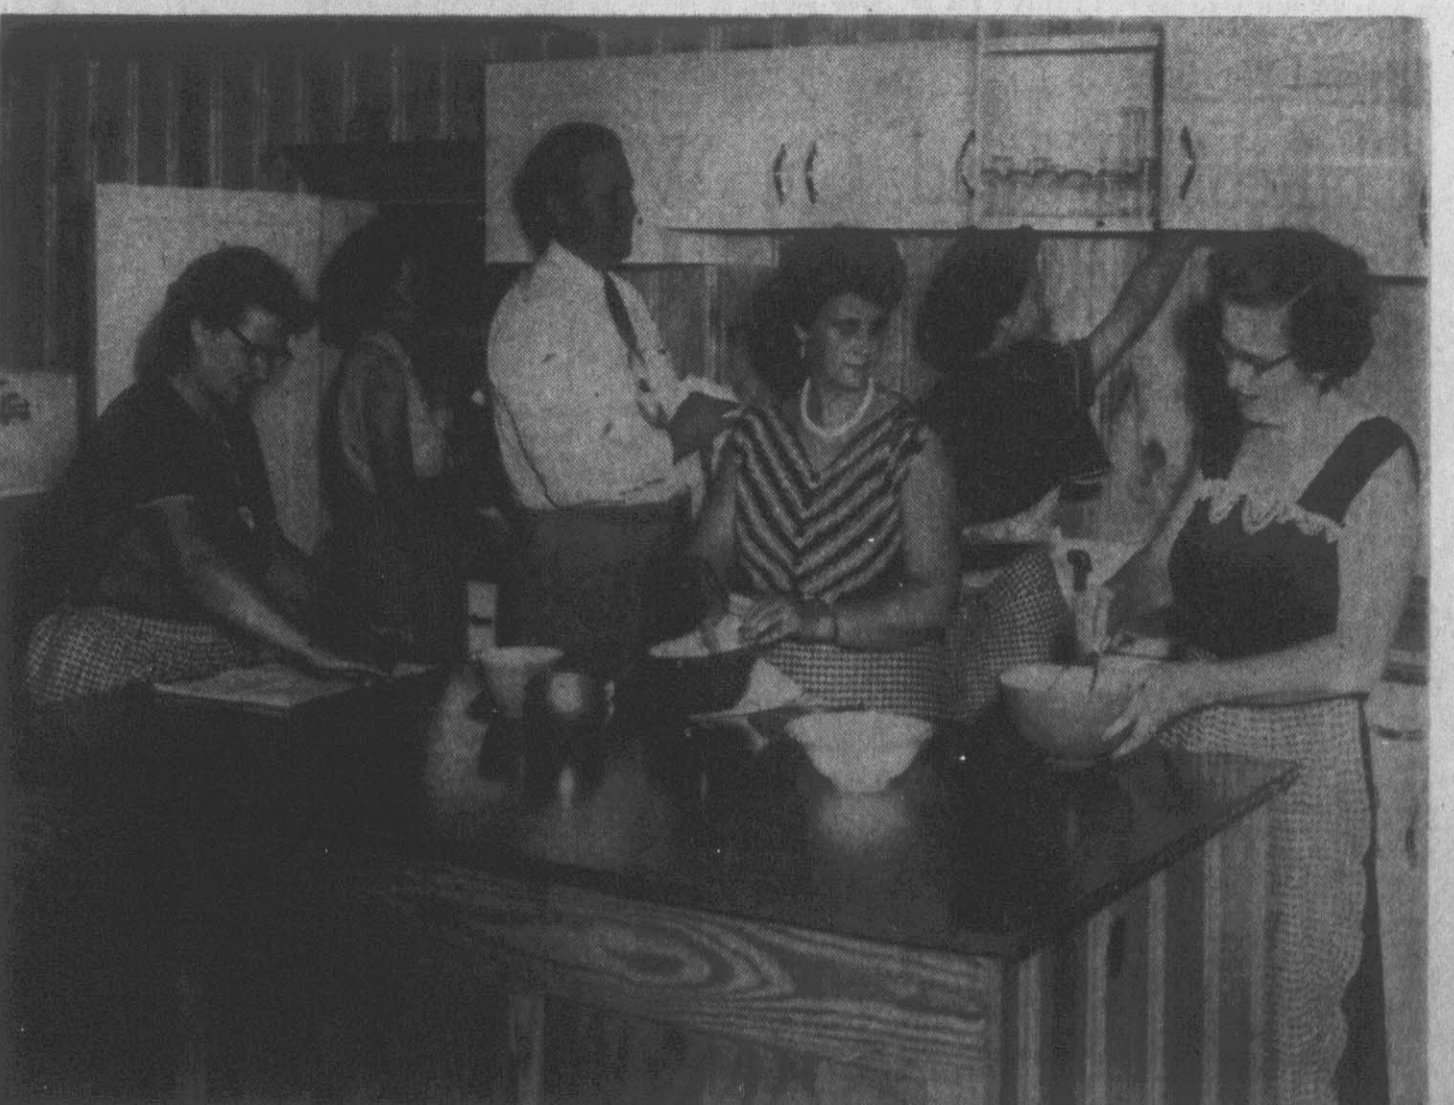

Six years ago, Rutgers University employed three top scientific minds to study the possibilities of establishing and operating a clam farm in southern New Jersey. The research team included Dr. Thurston C. Nelson, professor of zoology and world authority on shellfish, and Drs. Melbourne R. Carriker and Harold H. Haskin.

They managed to come up with a lot of answers of some consequence to the economy of southern New Jersey, where clammers annually account for one-fifth of a $6,000,000 Atlantic Coast business.

The scientists found out that clams have feelings, too being sensitive to such things as water temperature, amount of salt in the water, tidefall and tidal currents, air temperature, moon phases, barometric pressure and rainfall.

The university team learned that clam farming, using artificially-spawned and protected clam seed, would be a red-hot operation at first.

Curiously enough, you have to fence in clams, Nelson said when this major problem is solved, clam farming will be just as practical and profitable as dairy farming.

Not 'If', But 'When' Will Empire Fall

By an odd twist of fate the man responsible for the deaths of tens of thousands, and imprisonment and misery of millions, will be finally "punished."

Not for the crimes of ruthless cruelty and murder, but on the grounds of a lengthy indictment charging him with, in essence, the pursuit of personal power.

Small matter. For if Lavrenti Beria has not already been executed his fate seems sealed. Pravda (Truth) has declared him guilty, and the Soviet Supreme Court is not above the powers that dictate the voice of that state organ.

Outside the Iron Curtain, Beria was believed to be one of the most feared and hated men in the Kremlin. His power was great and tentacles of his secret police reached all over the world.

It is this element of deflated powers in one who held such a high place in the Soviet scheme that lends hope to the Free World; for it signifies that great forces are vying for control behind the inscrutable facade Moscow presents to the outside world.

A house divided cannot stand, we know; and that, coupled with near-revolt among satellite peoples portends great events in the making.

There is a latent danger to the rest of the world in any conflict between leaders of the Communist world; danger that in a desperate bid to unify their ranks and peoples they might turn to war.

Be that as it may, such a threat should bear little weight in the minds of diplomats now eagerly seeking a means to capitalize on Russian internal strains. The dangers of war have been with us to a greater or lesser degree for the last six years.

So Many Dogs To Be Cared For

On the occasion of the last dog nose-counting in Pitt, something over 12,000 of Man's Best Friends were estimated as domiciling in our midst.

It is a matter of record that since January 1 of this year more than 4,500 of these canine amigos have been vaccinated. Too, past experience leads one to believe that if 75 per cent of these pets and scavengers receive their required anti-rabies shots, the county will be faring well.

When it is realized that these vaccinations prevent much needless suffering and death among both dogs and humans, the wonder of it is that all dog owners do not insist on this simple precaution.

Fondness for their pets, if not concern for the welfare of other members of the community, should prompt this step.

Without a doubt, we have in our midst a large number of "unwanted" dogs . . . those with only part-time owners, those with thoughtless owners, and those who are literally running wild.

Their existence poses a constant problem for the health authorities.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
WHERE DO YOU STAND ON THIS ONE?
Do you believe in the reality of the Devil?
There are those today who maintain that when Jesus and his apostles spoke of the Devil and of demons that they were using symbolic language. Others claim that although there was undoubtedly demonic possession in the time of our Lord, there is no such thing today. People who hold this view generally hold the further view that there is enough evil in man's heart to account for the wickedness of the world and that we need no incarnate evil spirit to explain the existence of sin.

There can be little doubt, however, that Jesus believed that Satan existed, that he was overwhelmingly powerful, that he was surrounded by evil helpers (corresponding to the holy angels only the other way about), and that much disease and all human sin was due to this demonic empire. The fall of Judas is ascribed to the fact that Satan entered into him.

It is hard to see how the extensive evil of the world can be explained apart from a powerful, personal influence in conflict with the purposes of God. Also our Lord's frequent mention of Satan and evil spirits is hard to explain unless we take his words at their face value.

Perhaps the Biblical doctrine of Satan and his minions will some day come back into style and be given scientific approval.

Churchill Feared On Way Out

By RAY TUCKER
Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—Is Churchill really sick, or has he suffered a breakdown that may force his retirement fairly soon? Inquires S.B. of Springfield, Mass.

Answer: Obviously, Washington has no authentic information on whether the grand old man has collapsed from age and extraordinary demands on mind and body. It would be indicative for such an old friend as President Eisenhower to ask that question, even though the answer would be of tremendous importance to us and the world, politically, diplomatically, militarily.

There is a feeling—and a fear—that the Prime Minister is nearing the close of his career. He is the same age as Syngman Rhee, 78. Since he covered the Boer war as a newspaper correspondent, he has led a more active life than his World War II colleagues and contemporaries, including the late Joseph Stalin. Nor has he ever spared himself in working, eating and drinking.

CHURCHILL NOT HIMSELF RECENTLY—He certainly has not acted like the old Churchill in recent days. Both Ike and Dulles have not been able to obtain definite plans—an agenda—for the now postponed Bermuda conference. He was vague and uncertain, and that is not like him. His characterization of Rhee's freeing of Korean prisoners as "treachery" in a formal Commons address was out of character.

In view of his prophetic denunciation of Hitler and Munich, his insistence on a face-to-face talk with the Kremlin is most peculiar. It bewilders the White House, which will continue to resist the idea. Such softness at a time of internal crisis within Russia itself does not bode the Churchill of "England's finest hour."

About High Fidelity Tone Fans

The Hi-Fi Fan is a comparatively new character in the field of radio. Greenville has at least two that I know of: Layton Clark of the American Tobacco Company and Heber Adams, engineer at radio station WGTC.

Heber and Layton have high-fidelity amplifiers that bring in sound that you can literally feel. In other words, the quality is so defined that you feel just as if you're sitting in front of the orchestra. "I have a record of organ music," Heber says, "that is so clear that you feel and hear every pedal note."

Life Magazine recently had an article on Hi-Fi Fans, which pointed out the growing amount of interest in this new field. Hank Tribble, Chief Engineer at WGTC, puts it this way: "High Fidelity amplification came about because televisioners have their attention split between two senses: sight and hearing. Because the televisioner is watching a musical scene, he finds that he misses some of the quality of the music. Therefore, people especially interested in getting the full quality have started to use high fidelity amplifiers."

Another factor: The advancement of TV has brought on development in amplification that has fostered the field. Records have improved in quality. FM has brought about improvement in radio sound, and AM sound has been bettered. Like everything else on the American scene, there is constant improvement.

How about the cost of Hi-Fi sets? It seems that a minimum set-up would cost about $200. This system works with three speakers, one for extremely low sound cycles, for the high cycles. Each speaker one for the middle and a "tweeter" picks up only the sound within its realm, and consequently they are combined to give depth.

You might say that Hi-Fi in radio is what 3-D is in movies. It gives you the feeling of the music or speech. The best Hi-Fi quality comes from a live FM signal. The next best quality is records. Hi-Fi sets can be built to include tuners to bring in AM, FM, TV, phonograph, or even tape recordings. It just depends on how much of an investment you are willing to make.

It's just another advancement that makes you wonder what the world will be like 100 years from now. Frankly, I'd like to be here to see it.

And I thank Heber.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

Firing Squads Not The Answer (Henderson Dispatch)
Wholesale resort to firing squads may suffice for the moment to put down rebellion against the Communists in satellite states of eastern Europe. But strong arm methods will not forever be effective. For there is a sense of justice and an inner yearning for freedom in the hearts of all nationalities that cannot be suppressed with bullets.

Berlin reports that forty-six East German police have been shot by the Reds for their part in the revolt against Russian authority last month. The Russians rarely divulge facts about such tactics, so that the number may have been less, or quite probably was even more than that.

This sort of thing only increases subjugated peoples all the more. It may for the moment make them submissive, but it will never make them like their iron-fisted masters. Relatives and friends of men put to death not only resent such cruelties but they will constantly be on the alert for opportunities to get even. At the first chance that presents itself, they will rise again, almost always with reinforcements, and with greater strength at hand to achieve their ends.

Evidence of this trend is at hand in continued resistance on the part of workers in East Germany. They are still in a state of unrest. Prison sentences and deportations to Russia are no secret to the German people, even as executions are apparently of common knowledge. The situation, so far as Russia is concerned has deteriorated to the point that the Soviets are said to have no more confidence in the rank and file of citizens than in officials who refused to fire upon the rioters. That means they are fearful of the populace, as well they may be.

The only weapon recognized by Moscow in keeping conquered nations in subjugation is force. The Kremlin masters evidently have not come around to the idea that even that is questionable as to its continuing effectiveness. But one day they will learn the lesson, and when their chickens come home to roost it could well be that the fate of these tyrants will be similar to that they have so long and so unscrupulously meted out to their helpless victims. And despite whatever sympathy might exist for them, they will be receiving only their just deserts.

By LYNN NISBET
VACANCIES—Another vacancy was occasioned in the State Senate this week by resignation of Senator Zebulon Weaver of Buncombe to become prosecuting attorney for the Asheville municipal court. The first vacancy came with the death of Senator Thomas Wolfe of Stanley about ten days before adjournment of the General Assembly, following a heart attack suffered early in the session. Senator Malcolm Paul of Beaufort was named a special Superior Court judge, thus vacating his berth in the Senate. At least two seats in the House are vacant. Rep. Sam O. Worthington of Pitt was named utilities commissioner some time ago, and Rep. Lee Whitmore of Henderson was made a special Superior Court judge. There may be other vacancies, occasioned by members taking local offices which conflict with legislative membership, but they have not been put on record in the State offices.

FILLING—These vacancies are of no consequence except in event a special session of the General Assembly should be called. If it should be necessary to fill the vacancies, the Governor will make appointments upon nomination of the executive committee in the affected counties—Democratic if the person who held the seat was a Democrat, Republican if he was a member of that party. The constitutional amendment providing for this method of filling vacancies was adopted in the last general election, and it says the vacancy shall be filled "immediately." Attorney General Harry McMillan says that in view of the language the several committees could nominate and the Governor appoint right away; for the member to do and no provision for paying him unless a special session should be held. The word "immediately" was inserted because legislators at the time the amendment was submitted was actually conscious of the delay incident to the old method of requiring a special election. (This is the only place in the constitution where political parties are recognized, directly or indirectly.)

BONDS—It appears that governmental and commercial tape may make it necessary to defer the elections on school and mental hospital bonds beyond the desired date of October 3. The experts say they cannot get ready by then. Chances are much better than even that the election will be called during October, probably on the 10th or 17th—since there is general favor for a Saturday date. Nowhere has your reporter found any slightest doubt that both issues will be overwhelmingly approved by the people.

CAMPAIGN—Neither has there been any evidence of real planning for a campaign to get out the vote or to support the bonds. What many people who have been interviewed on the subject do not seem to realize is that time is slipping by very fast. This is mid-July and mid-October is just three months away—approximately 90 days until the election will be held. On the surface there would seem to be more need for a supporting campaign for the upcoming issues than there was in 1949 for the secondary roads and school building issues. When a tightly organized campaign to ed the full force of his dynamic personality, was conducted. A fund of some $70,000 was raised all of which was not spent in the campaign. The point is there was an organization and money. Major emphasis was put upon the road issue in that campaign and the voting record may have significance as basis for speculation on the school and hospital bonds vote in October.

RETURNS—A total of 404, 140 people voted on the road bonds, 296,123 voted on the school building bonds. The $200 million secondary road bonds were approved by a margin of 54,846 while the $26 million school building issue got a margin of 151,203. Twenty-five counties voted against the road bonds, some very close and Rockingham with a one vote margin, and there was an even tie in Lenoir. Only seven counties voted against the school bonds, although there were several close votes on that issue.

PARTISAN—Bond issues and bond votes are non-partisan, but it has been often stated since the 1949 election that it was Republican votes which gave the necessary majority for the road bonds and probably saved the school building issue. The election returns show that the eleven counties which had Republican representatives in the 1949 Legislature turned up well more than half the majority for the road bonds, and with less than 10 per cent of the voting strength gave more than 20 per cent of the majority for the school bonds. Those counties were Avery, Davie, Madison, Mitchell, Randolph, Sampson, Stanly, Transylvania, Watauga, Wilkes and Yadkin. They gave 30,744 of the 54,744 major-

Chemistry And Farms

By ELMER ROESSNER
The nation's population is increasing at a rate of 2,000,000 a year and both the farm labor force and usable acreage is decreasing. The best hope of keeping American well fed lies in intensification of chemical agriculture. Clyde Williams, director of Battelle Memorial Institute writes in the current monthly business review of the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank.

In the last twenty years, he reports, the production of agriculture chemical s exclusive of fertilizer has risen from 50,000 tons to 600,000,000 and the consumption of fertilizer has risen from 5,000,000 tons to 22,000,000 tons.

"DDT is still being used in large quantities, but other (insecticidal) compounds are coming to the forefront," Dr. Williams writes. "Methoxychlor is less toxic than DDT to warm-blooded animals. Benzene hexachloride is being found more effective for killing the boll weevil. Because house flies build up considerable resistance to DDT, other apparently more suitable chemicals with a chlorinated hydrocarbon base, are being developed and marketed."

Agricultural chemists are entering many new fields beyond pesticides and fertilizers. Within the past two years, Dr. Williams notes, more than 2 brands of soil conditioners have been placed on the market, and a new compound known as CDAA has joined the growing family of plant-growth regulators. CDAA inhibits the growth of the main stem of tomato plants and delays the flowering of ornamental plants. Other chemicals prevent fruit drop before harvest time and undesirable growth of potatoes and nursery stock during storage or shipment. OLD PROMOTER SPURNS MARGE-LEGGING DEALS. "I've just turned down a profitable proposition," the Old Promoter announced. "If you have turned down something profitable, it is news," we said.

"A fellow wanted me to go into partnership smuggling yellow margarine into Wisconsin. But I said no."

"Why?"

"It's illegal for one thing," the O.P. said, "besides, I think I can make more money spotting margine-leggers for Wisconsin dairy interests."

REAL ESTATE MEN. The National Association of Real Estate Boards is upset over a recent Commerce Department release. The government agency reported that tenants of nonfarm rental housing paid nearly $10 billion in rent last year, of which about one-fourth remained at net return to landlords after taxes and other expense.

Contrary to popular impression, this does not mean that landlords made 25 per cent on their investments, the N.A.R.E.B. wants people to know. The return on investment is actually much less, the Association says, citing a typical case in which it was 3 per cent.

Bachelors Take Witness Stand

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—You know what causes more old maids than anything? Bachelors.

All women are convinced the only good bachelor is a former bachelor. They aren't really sporting about their husbands. They not only hate the ones that get away from them. They resent seeing a bachelor escape from another girl.

A young lady who returned empty handed from a recent June matrimonial safari complained to me:

"To get married today a girl practically has to grab a boy while the ink is still wet on his high school diploma. The older men get the more frightened they seem to be of marriage, and after 30 they seem to think it is illegal or underhanded or something."

"Just what is wrong with bachelors? Are they afraid to grow up?"

Well, in the interest of lovelorn ladies everywhere, I called together all the bachelors I know—a mangier-looking, happier today body of men you never saw—and asked them bluntly: "Fellows, what is wrong with you? Why don't you get married? Are you yellow?"

This made them angry. They all joyously agreed they were cads but all denied they were cowards. They divided into two general classes:

1. Those who wouldn't marry the best woman who ever lived, "not even if she was half-angel" as he had feathers to prove it."

2. Those who hadn't found "the right girl"—and heartily hoped now they never would.

"People have got the wrong idea about bachelors," said one. "They think they are sad, lonely and helpless. But when you see a guy like that he isn't a real bachelor—he's just a prospective husband."

"A true bachelor is happy and carefree. A married man has two bosses—one at home, one in the office. And he leads a crowded social life. He is always in demand. Any party is considered dull, even by wives, unless the hostess has a bachelor or two on tap."

Another bachelor broke in: "It isn't true that bachelors hate women. Nobody loves and appreciates them more. A bachelor just refuses to be a watchdog for any one woman."

"Amen, brother," churred his fellow scoundrels.

What basic reason did they have for not marrying?

"Wives insist on treating their husbands like small boys," said one. "They want to mother them. If a wife wants to take the place of one of your parents, why doesn't she act like your father? Your father used to leave you alone most of the time."

"That's right," chimed a second. "A modern wife isn't satisfied just to marry you. She wants to surround you, engulf you, and crawl into your mind, too. If you take up golf, she isn't happy until she can beat you at the game. She isn't a partner—she's a competitor."

One miscreant had the nerve to suggest society owed bachelors a debt because they reduced domestic discord.

"When a married couple get on each other's nerves," he observed, "they often call in a bachelor as a friend of the family. They have a few drinks, the wife cooks up a nice dinner, and afterward they watch television or have a pleasant talk. Result: The bachelor has had a swell cost-free evening, and the husband and wife are cooing at each other instead of throwing plates."

"If it weren't for bachelors, more married people would be trotting to divorce courts or psychiatrists."

When I asked under what conditions they themselves would marry, only two of the dihardes would even admit the possibility. "Let me put it this way," said one. "My father was a stinker—let's face it. He refused to work. So my mother got a good job, and all his life kept him well-fed, well-clothed, idle, happy, and supplied him with enough pocket money to bet on the races."

"But where can you find a sweet, old-fashioned hard-working girl like that today? If I knew a warm-hearted, generous girl with a fine job that would lead in time to a good pension . . . and if she had a car . . . a well-furnished apartment . . . I'd marry her . . . maybe."

"But he added hastily: "If the apartment would have to be air-conditioned."

Boa On Loose Is Traffic-Victim

CHICAGO (UP)—Oscar, a "friendly" boa constrictor who met death in the big city, ended up in an hotel incinerator today. It was a sad finish for Oscar, who came to Chicago to attend the Lions Club convention and was run over by an auto. A few of his fellow conventioners gathered round late Friday as Oscar's master, Mayor Peaslee, Streets of Lake Park, Fla., sadly dropped the snake into the La Salle Hotel incinerator. "He was really friendly," Streets said. "Wouldn't harm a fly." The six-foot long snake escaped from Streets' car Thursday night when pranksters apparently opened his cage. He was on the loose in the busy Loop business area for almost 24 hours. Streets offered a reward and office workers in the area were careful to look under their chairs before sitting down. Then Oscar was found dead in a gutter, his head flattened by an auto tire.

GRANDPA'S SCRAPBOOK

It's all there—in Grandpa's Scrapbook. The story of his life. His baptismal certificate, the newspaper clipping about his kicking that winning field goal, the now-yellowed wedding invitation, the snapshot of their house-warming, the announcement of Mama's birth, the blue ribbon that Grandpa's steer won at the county fair.

And, on a page all by itself, is a Children's Day program from our little Church, the day I sang "Jesus Loves Me" with Danny Andrews!

Grandpa always says, "That's the page I like best. It's a blessing to know yer grandson is goin' in the right direction."

And then with a far-away look in his eyes he says, "You keep yer fine work in Sunday School, Lad. Whether yer kickin' a field goal, or plantin' yer corn, or servin' God in yer own humble way—you have to keep goin' in the right direction!"

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Friendly Smile Worth $40,000

MARIETTA, Okla. (UP)—A waitress with a $40,000 smile said today she planned to attend college with assets left her by a lonely bachelor she never dated. Blue-eyed Virginia Dell Michael, 18, was a soda jerk at a drug store when she smiled at Robert Howard Shellenberger, 37. The rancher-farmer committed suicide April 2. His will left his 500-acre farm, oil and gas rights and cattle to the five-foot, three-inch girl. "I had never even known him except to speak to him at the drug store where I worked," she said. "He never talked much to the others. He seemed quiet and lonely. He liked to talk to me and I was real nice to him. But I never had a date with him." Shellenberger's will was upheld Thursday by District Judge Sam

Should Help Spectators

Spectators at professional baseball games have grown weary by the extended stalling tactics sometimes used by managers. Every league in the United States has taken steps to curb the harm being done to baseball as a sport by these tactics.

One of the more recent measures taken was by the Southern Association when its directors instituted three new clauses in its playing rules. One of the more important steps taken by the league was to place a limit on the number of people allowed in a conference on the mound during a scheduled game.

Only the manager, pitcher, and one more player are now legally able to engage in conversation around the mound. This has been one of the most frequently used methods of stalling. At times the entire club either accumulated around the pitcher at one time or took turns in conferring on the mound in an attempt to slow the game. A violation of the Southern rule will mean an automatic banishment of the manager of the team concerned.

Other rulings made by the directors concerned suspended contests and the usage of lights. Games suspended in the future for any reason other than rain will be completed at a later date. Lights may be used from now on if necessary to complete Sunday games.

Preventive rulings such as the ones above may be the cure for baseball's current downgrade swing. Baseball has slowly been taken away from the spectator. Attendance figures would jump by leaps and bounds if the games were speeded up and played more for the interest of the paying fan.

The teams are gradually awakening to the fact that the fan's enjoyment is necessary to baseball's success. It is the fervent hope of every baseball lover that they hasten the corrective measures.

All-Star Games In August

The first week of August will be a big one in Greensboro if the current plans are carried out successfully. All-Star high school games in football and basketball games will be run off on August 7 and 4, respectively. Coaches sessions will be held throughout the week.

Leading the list of speakers will be several of the top ranking collegiate coaches in the country. Jim Tatum, the well-known mentor at Maryland, will head the football clinic and will be assisted by Hugh Daugherty of Michigan State and Bo Hagan of Georgia Tech.

Phog Allen of Kansas will be the leading orator on basketball antics. Track coach Dale Ranson of North Carolina and Ace Parker, Duke baseball head, will lead the clinics on their respective subjects. North Carolina State's Red McIntosh will lead the discussion on athletic training.

Entry blanks for the clinic are available at the Reflector sports department for local coaches.

Bright Belt Note Lines

Wes Livingood attended the Bright Belt League All-Star game last night in the capacity of scout for the Philadelphia Phillies. Livingood, former manager and pitcher for the Raleigh Capitals and Goldsboro Jets as well as a major leaguer, seemed to be impressed with Stantonburg's Ronald Percise.

Percise, a small second baseman, was one of the leaders in the losing cause of the All-Stars last night in Farmville. The youngster is fast on the bases and covers a large chunk of territory. He is also reportedly interested in another player now on the Stantonburg roster, pitcher Lefty Spencer.

Farmville's Sam Stell probably thought last night was his lucky day. With his team trailing 1-0, Stell missed a third strike for what would have been the third out in the sixth inning. That's where the luck came in, as catcher Tim Dew missed the delivery and then threw in the dirt to first baseman Milburne Felton to insure Stell's safe deliverance to the first sack. Stell hits in the clean-up spot for the Red Sox.

It was a bad night for Rocky Mount's Bo Bell. Besides being charged with the loss for the All-Stars, Bell also had a delivery mishap in the early innings. With Farmville's Barry Jones at bat, Bell made his preparations for the pitch and brought his arm down in perfect style. The pitch in the plans came when the ball, instead of coming to the plate, zoomed past the third baseman's head and into the leftfield foul territory.

Fraley's Facts-Figures

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Fearless

Fraley's facts and figures:

It is official now that Ted

Williams will come marching back to baseball again in 1954—but this time the odds are that he'll be a hero with the fans.

Certainly he should be. The temperamental kid long has been the butt of abuse from the stands.

Actually, much of it was his own fault. He let the customers know that he didn't give a hoot whether they liked him or not. The upshot was that most of them didn't.

But this time he has a general

admiration going for him. He proved he was quite a guy in the uncomplaining manner in which he went back into combat. Now,

if he'll give the fans a chance, he should be one of the most popular players of all time. . . just tip your cap once, Ted, and the house will be yours.

There's a lot of discussion and agitation because Tom Foul has to

they are," Kerbaw explained.

"I thought if we had them all together a week early, for golf and not for training, I'd be able to get them on the dotted line." One player refused to sign alleging that the offer was too low and I promised my father-in-law I'd never send his daughter back to be supported by him."

Biggie Munn, the coach of Michigan State's mythical national football champions, goes into the ruck-ered Big Ten this fall stripped of his two-platoon strength. He now can feel that he has been "framed."

But this time he has a general

admiration going for him. He

he went back into combat. Now,

if he'll give the fans a chance, he should be one of the most popular

players of all time. . . just tip your

There's a lot of discussion and agitation because Tom Foul has to shoulder the mighty impost of 136

Farmville Takes 5-1 Victory Over All-Stars

Jones, Piestrak
Star; Farmville
Wins In Eighth

FARMVILLE—Right-hander Vince Jones and Manager Pete Piestrak combined forces here last night to lead the Farmville Red Sox to a 5-1 victory over the Bright Belt League All-Stars.

Jones went the distance for the League leaders and allowed only five hits to the array of All-Star sluggers. Except for one slip-up in the first inning, Jones had complete control of the game as the All-Stars failed to cash in on their breaks.

It was Piestrak's single in the bottom of the eighth that broke the game wide open. With the score standing at 2-1 and the bases loaded, Piestrak unloaded a sharp grounder between third and short to score two runners and another came in when the leftfielder's throw got away from the catcher.

That eighth was the deciding factor in the game. With one man away, Millard Webb on base as the result of a walk, Streeter Tugwell singled. An infield single that bobbed along in front of the plate by Sam Stell filled the bases. Webb was cut down at the plate on fielder's choice play on a grounder hit by Barry Jones.

The first run of the inning and the winning run for Farmville crossed the plate when Tugwell was forced home by a walk to Bill Kennedy. Piestrak then unlimbered his bat to poke two more runners across home and Kennedy scored when catcher Tim Dew let a wild throw from leftfielder Buddy Stowe get past him. All-Star manager Ambler Davis replaced starting hurler Bo Bell with Jack Boykin at that point, who immediately retired Red McDaniels on a fly to left to end the frame.

The All-Stars took the lead by scoring a single run in the first inning. Dud Whitley started the game by striking out but went to first when the catcher dropped the third strike and moved to second on a bad throw by the catcher to first base. He was immediately picked off second by Jones, but Ronald Percise walked. Al Denison grounded out with Percise moving to second, and he came home a few seconds later on a singleton by Peck Stokes.

Farmville came back to tie the score in the sixth. With two away, Sam Stell fanned and reached base on a dropped third strike. Barry Jones walked and Bill Kennedy then doubled to send Stell home with the first Farmville marker.

The losers threatened to score several times during the contest but Jones constantly worked himself out of trouble.

Tripp Named Lifetime Member Of Commission

Heber B. Tripp, Greenville real estate man and former city alderman, has been named a lifetime member of the Greenville city recreation commission.

The appointment, passed unanimously by the city council at its last meeting, was to give the former chairman an honorary non-voting position for life on the commission he helped inaugurate here.

The recognition followed Tripp's retirement from the board of aldermen this year after a six-year term, during which time he was chairman of the recreation commission and for five years director of playgrounds and parks.

He also, for two years, was the city's representative on the Greenville Planning Board. His retirement from the commission followed induction of the new city board in May after which Councilman A. C. Ruffin was assigned to the post. He was succeeded as playgrounds director by Warren Carroll in 1951. Among projects successfully undertaken by the commission under Chairman Tripp were the Evans Street Negro Park, South Greenville Negro Park, developed and equipped, and new playgrounds at Mill Village, Meadowbrook and Charles at Fourteenth Street.

In the nine years since the commission was organized, the former chairman also has seen its budget grow from $4,500 to its present figure of $30,000.

All of Mr. Tripp's business career has been in real estate. He returned to his native Greenville in 1940 to establish his own agency after 22 years in El Paso, Texas.

Other members of the present recreation board are Supt. J. H. Rose of the city schools, K. T. Futrell of the Pitt welfare department, Mrs. W. M. Johnston of the Pitt health department, the Rev. Leonard Topping of the Greenville Ministerial Association, and five other members at large, Mrs. Arrie B. West, Lester Turnage Jr., Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, Tyson Bilbro and John Birelle.

Drivers License Issuance System Is Speeded Up

RALEIGH (UP) — Issuance of drivers' licenses will be speeded up and long waiting periods for applicants eliminated under a new appointment system scheduled to go into effect Monday, the Department of Motor Vehicles announced today.

Under the new streamlined system, license examiners may schedule appointments with applicants at 30-minute intervals throughout the day. The first 15 minutes of the half-hour intervals will be reserved for appointments and the other 15 for waiting applicants.

Drivers may call or write their nearest examining station for appointments but none will be made more than three weeks in advance.

Red Army's Rise Seen Factor In Beria Downfall

LONDON (UP) — The fall of Soviet Police Chief Lavrenti P. P. Beria appeared today to signify the rise of the Red army.

It also indicated that one-man rule of the Soviet Union ended, perhaps forever with the death of Josef Stalin.

A new era in the history of Russian Communism began with the dramatic and sudden ousting of the dreaded Beria, whose pince-nez glasses gave him a meek, professorial appearance.

With Beria awaiting trial and a possibly a Russian firing squad, the most important question now is: Has the Soviet army taken over the real power—or part power?

Unconfirmed reports beginning to filter through diplomatic channels past the Iron Curtain tell of a big troop concentration in and around Moscow on June 27.

That was the day that members of the Presidium went to the Bolshoi Theater without Beria. This seems to add weight to the suggestion that the army forced Premier Georgi M. Malenkov to purge Beria, top man of the rival secret police.

If true, it would mean the beginning of a considerable decrease in power of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union and the rise of new men who, in recent years, were left in the cold.

Nobody now can say with authority who the new men will be, but probably they will emerge from the ranks of the Red army and from among leaders of industry and science.

This would mean a deep modification of the theory and practice of the Communist movement.

Whether the political demise of Beria was a coup engineered by the army chiefs by Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov and Defense Minister Nikolai Bulganin with army support is not known, but it is almost certain the army will be much more influential in the future.

If Molotov and Bulganin used the army, they will retain the most power but, in turn, would be forced to accept army demands and make a compromise with Malenkov.

If the army itself initiated the coup, then Soviet military bosses rapidly will become members of the highest organs of the state.

They will become a "third force" beside, first, the Communist Party and, second, the secret police.

Big technical managers and bosses likely would emerge as a "fourth force" linked closely with the army.

The liberation of these forces which had been kept under complete subjection by the Kremlin means that personal dictatorship by a Communist Party man no longer is possible in Russia.

For the moment, there is likely to be an uneasy balance between these forces, but the situation may degenerate to a point where the rise of a Russian Napoleon—an army-supported dictator—may result.

President's Quick Trip Heartens Drought Area

AMARILLO, Tex. (UP) — President Eisenhower's quick trip to the drought-stricken Southwest heartened small farmers and ranchers today.

He promised he would sign a $16,000,000 drought aid bill now before Congress and added "we are not going to dilly-dally around until the last cow is dying on the range."

However, many ranchers attending meetings to deal with the drought crisis indicated dissatisfaction with the lack of government price supports for cattle.

Governors of the stricken states, gathered here in an emergency meeting, said they would move quickly to co-operate in a federal-state program.

They also recommended a study of the cattle price-supports problem.

Mr. Eisenhower flew to Amarillo Friday to seek the views of governors and representatives of several states.

He and the governors of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico and Arkansas met in a closed session for two hours. Later, he talked to ranchers and farmers at a public meeting in the Amarillo Municipal Auditorium.

He said he found in his conference with the governors that "There is not complete unanimity of opinion as to exactly what should be done, but we are not going to dilly-dally around until the last cow is dying on the range."

"I do assure you," he told the ranchers, "that we are anxiously and sincerely studying your problems and we do not look upon you as recipients of charity. When the governors get ready to submit their programs, we shall study it and act quickly."

Officers Named By Press Group

NEW BERN (UP) — Weimar Jones of Franklin was elected president today of the North Carolina Press Association at the closing session of the 81st annual convention here.

Jones had filled out the unexpected term of W. Randall Harris Jr., of the Asheville Citizen-Times, who died while in office. A special memorial service for Harris was held during the morning session.

Thomas J. Robinson, publisher of the Charlotte News, was elected vice president.

Miss Beatrice Cobb of Morganton was re-elected secretary-treasurer and Clarence Griffin of Forest City was named historian.

The group also named Leslie Thompson of Whiteville and Jay Haskins, publisher of the Statesville Record, to the board of directors, with terms lasting until 1956.

C. A. Eury of the New Bern Sun-Journal was named to the board to fill the vacancy created by Robinson's election to vice president.

Volcanic Action May Cool Earth

WASHINGTON (UP) — Alaska's surprise volcanic eruptions will cool the earth off slightly, weather experts predicted today.

They might even do something to the Northern Hemisphere's rain-snow pattern in the next year or so, depending on their magnitude.

Dr. Sigmond Fritz of the Weather Bureau's Scientific Services Division said great eruptions of the past have appreciably lowered the world's average temperature.

That is due primarily, he said, to the sun-obscuring effect of huge quantities of volcanic dust spewed into the atmosphere and carried around the earth by high wind currents.

Good-Will Envoy Is Now In Peru

CUZCO, Peru (UP) — Milton S. Eisenhower, on a goodwill tour of Latin America on behalf of his brother, President Eisenhower, today visits the ancient Inca ruins of Machupichu.

Eisenhower arrived in this ancient capital of the Incas Friday. Peru is the sixth country he has visited on his scheduled 10-nation mission.

GI Attack Called Off After Fight

SEOUL, Korea, Sunday (UP) — American troops who have battled savagely for five days in a futile attempt to recapture Porkchop Hill withdrew last night "on orders from higher headquarters" as last barriers to an armistice appeared to be vanishing.

The withdrawal was ordered shortly after President Syngman Rhee said a "friendly understanding" had been reached with the United States regarding a truce.

A reinforced Chinese battalion drove an American force to the southeast slopes of the hill in the climax to a day of bloody, confused fighting in the maze of caves, tunnels and bunkers on the crest.

In the eastern front bulge sector American artillery and South Korean troops killed 1,700 Chinese and smashed Red attacks against three outposts in the Kumsong area.

Major John S. Bolt, Sanford, Fla., knocked down two MIGs in a MIG-Sabre duel over northwest Korea for the first victory over the Russian-built fighters in 12 days. They were his fourth and fifth.

A reinforced Chinese battalion pushed Americans off Porkchop Hill at 6:30 p.m. The Americans fell back after a daylong "blind man's bluff" fight in and out of pitch-black caves and tunnels.

An 8th Army spokesman said U. S. 7th Division troops still controlled northern slopes of Porkchop and 65 per cent of the fortifications.

South Koreans of the 6th and 8th divisions still fought to hold outposts positions guarding the western anchor of the Hwachon bulge on the east-central front.

Bodies of almost half of a 4,000-man Chinese regiment littered the valleys and gulleys in front of three outposts in the Kumsong area defended by the ROK 2nd and 8th divisions.

Major Gen. Sam P. Williams, special ROK adviser, said 1,700 Chinese died in the savage fighting that started when the Chinese tried to take Finger Ridge, Kean Ridge and another outpost.

"We whipped a hell of a lot of Chinese," Williams said. "We whipped them, but they will be back."

"It was a very bloody fight. Our mortars and artillery did terrific havoc. The battle lasted for six hours with the enemy never gaining a solid foothold on the outpost."

Americans groped through caverns and tunnels on the shell-pocked crest at Porkchop Hill and engaged the Chinese in fierce hand-to-hand fighting.

They also struggled with the Reds in bunkers shielded by timber and sandbags for control of the outpost position defending the northern invasion route to Seoul.

In the air American Superforts droned through intense anti-aircraft fire and glaring searchlights to attack three bridges near Sinanju on Korea's western coast.

A swarm of Red night fighters fired on seven of the bombers.
