Pitt Corn Packed For Shipping

Hundreds of bushels of Pitt County corn will find their way to Northern dinner tables this season. Shown above, Negro workers at the Carolina Plant Farm located on US 64, west of Bethel, pack crates of newly-picked corn for shipment North. As many as 500 bushels of corn are packed in one day and then load and watered to keep it fresh for its trip to Chicago, New York or some other large northern market. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

East Berliners Swarm Over Borders To Nearby Shops Cut-Price Food Is Offered

BERLIN (UP) — Patriotic West Berliners in a tiny border sector seized the initiative in the "battle of butter" today and sold fresh fruit and milk to thousands of hungry Communist zone residents at special cut-price prices. East Berliners, whose Red masters denied them free food offered by President Eisenhower, rushed across the border in such numbers that the special mobile stores sold out in the first hour and new supplies had to be rushed to them. Communist police did not interfere, apparently out of fear of touching off another riot. The sale, in the American sector of Kreuzberg on the very edge of the East-West border, was designed to show the United States at least one way food could be delivered to East Germany. Borough Mayor Willi Kressman spent four large mobile food stores stocked with fruits and milk in Granielenple, some 200 yards from the border. He originally planned to sell the food only to residents of 11 East Berlin streets on the border, but so many persons from other parts of East Berlin appeared that he threw the sale open to all. East Berliners lined up for hundreds of yards at each stand. Some drank their milk and ate their fruit in the streets. Others carried the food across the border to share with their families. East Berliners were offered their choice of either five oranges or two pounds of cherries. In addition, each could buy two pints of milk. The food was sold for East marks at the rate of one for one West mark. The West mark on the free market is worth five East marks. Oranges went to the East Berliners for less than one cent apiece; two pounds of cherries cost them 16 cents; a pint of milk cost about 10 cents. One old German woman fondled her five oranges and counted them over and over. "This is unbelievable," she said. "I haven't had an orange in years." The East Berliners were unanimous in condemning the Communist refusal of American food offer. A 38-year old housewife said, "The Communists are crazy when they say we felt insulted about the offer. We'd like to be insulted with food every day." The Information Bureau West said today work was halted in "numerous" factories in the Soviet zone for several hours yesterday while workers held meetings to protest rejection of the American food offer. Even before the bloody June 17 workers rebellion German in the Soviet Zone were ordered not to purchase food or other goods in Western Germany. However, Communist police along the sector borders mainly checked cars only and many East Berliners were able to cross with their purchases. Moscow's rejection, schooled by the Red German regime, of Mr. Eisenhower's offer to send $15,000,000 worth of food to feed hungry workers caused widespread resentment in the Soviet Zone. President Eisenhower offered American flour, lard, dried milk and beans to the Soviet government as the occupying power of hunger-racked East Germany last Friday. The offer was summarily rejected as a "propaganda maneuver" by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov the following day. Despite the opposition of the Kremlin and the German Communist leaders, the United States went ahead with plans to make the supplies available.

Some Bodies Recovered From Shark-Filled Waters 'Sudden Death' For All 58

HONOLULU, T. H. (UP) — The Navy reported today all 58 persons aboard the Transocean airliner Royal Hawaiian, which crashed in the Pacific 320 miles east of Wake Island, apparently died a "violent sudden death." Navy rescue teams, fighting off sharks, had already retrieved 14 badly mangled bodies, the troopship USS Barrett radioed headquarters here. Clothing was stripped from all bodies "probably from the force of the impact when the plane hit the water," the Barrett reported. Nine bodies were of male adults, three of women, one a male child and one a female child. The Barrett's radio report said from a check of debris spread over a 10-mile area it was apparent that the DC6B hit the water hard and the persons aboard apparently met a "violent sudden death." Barrett crewmen, riding choppy seas in lifeboats, fished out considerable personal effects and bits of plane wreckage. The Barrett which requested permission to leave the scene and proceed to Guam with the recovered bodies, reported search conditions in the area were "good." Depth of the water in the area where the Barrett first discovered the wreckage yesterday was estimated to be 15,000 feet. The Navy granted the Barrett's request, but other vessels in the area will remain on constant search until all bodies are recovered or hope of recovering bodies or survivors is abandoned. The unexplained crash was the worst commercial plane accident in the history of Pacific flight. After nightfall the Barrett used searchlights in an effort to find more bodies. Two planes circled overhead in a remote hope of sighting flares from any survivors.

Freighter Quickly Sinks After Pacific Collision

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Two freighters collided in a dense, water level fog in the Pacific 11 miles outside the Golden Gate early today and one of the ships sank within two hours. The SS Hawaiian Pilot rammed the Jacob Luckenbach amidships and sent her beneath the surface. "The Luckenbach is completely sunk," Globe wireless marine station reported. Everyone aboard the Luckenbach was rescued and taken aboard the Hawaiian Pilot. There were no fatalities and no serious injuries, and the Hawaiian Pilot reported it had suffered little damage. The Luckenbach was on its way into San Francisco Bay, Globe said. The Hawaiian Pilot, which radioed earlier that it had struck the Luckenbach, messaged at 6:15 a.m. "Luckenbach sunk. No casualties. ... and no serious injuries. ... their crew aboard Hawaiian Pilot." Visibility in the area was down to 500 yards. The weather bureau said an unusually heavy fog and low clouds were "right down on the water." The Hawaiian Pilot, a Matson Navigation Co. vessel, sent its original distress signal at 4:52 a.m., saying it had struck the other ship, a Luckenbach Steamship Co. vessel on charter to Pacific Far East lines.

Gamma Globulin Shipment Due To Arrive Tonight In Charlotte

NEWTON (UP) — A second shipment of gamma globulin, anxiously awaited by parents in polio-threatened Catawba County, will arrive in Charlotte tonight and a mass inoculation of the county's children under 10 years old will begin early tomorrow. Dr. Fred T. Ford, state epidemiologist, said 55,000 units of the precious serum would arrive tonight. That along with the 70,000 units flown into Hickory Saturday night, will be enough for 12,000 children. The toll of the crippling disease continued to rise steadily, however, as the cases reached 47 in Catawba County and 112 in neighboring Caldwell County where an inoculation program was completed last Wednesday. Joe David Corn, 12, died in a Charlotte hospital yesterday to become the second fatality among those stricken by the crippling disease in Catawba. Anita Robinson, 21, and Bobby Wayne Hartley, 16, died to bring Caldwell's polio deaths to four. Anita's father is the secretary of the Caldwell County chapter of the National Polio Foundation and principal of the West Lenoir elementary school. Ford also warned that the polio outbreak over the state — although concentrated largely in Catawba and Caldwell counties — "shows no indication of having reached its peak." He said the number of cases jumped from 37 for the week ended July 4 to 76 last week. The state total now stands at 244. Ford praised local health departments and cities for "wonderful cooperation" in Caldwell and Catawba counties. "The response to our call for help has been marvelous," he said, "particularly since many health units are short-handed by various reasons."

'Human Sea' Assaults Suffer Heavy Losses; ROK Units Fall Back 72,000 Chinese Advance In Attack

By FREDERICK C. PAINTON SEUL, Korea (UP) — "Human sea" assaults by up to 72,000 Chinese drove South Korean forces back along a 30-mile sector of the central front today, but the ROKs were counterattacking and their artillery was taking a fearful toll of Reds. The Chinese, advancing over their own dead and through "daisy cutter" artillery fire exploding at low level, made three main penetrations of the ROK line with gains of two to three miles. It was the heaviest Red offensive since April, 1951. Eighth Army Commander Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor described it as an attack "in great strength," but said "the attack was not unexpected" and the defense is "exacting a very heavy toll of casualties from the Communists." Taylor paid a personal visit to the front. The assault started about 9:45 p. m., July 13, in the sector of the ROK capitol division, and soon spread eastward to the Pukhan River," Taylor said. "Some ground north and east of the Kumson River is being yielded as the defense readjusts itself to the new situation." Low-flying Allied fighter-bombers fought through clouds, rain and icing conditions to drop more than 442,000 pounds of bombs on the Reds in the bulge area. The Red attack first hit the ROK capitol division, cream of the South Korean army, spread to the ROK Sixth and Eighth divisions on the ROK Third division. Eighth Army placed the number of Red attackers on the four-division front at "at least 30,000," although front reports gave almost double that number. "Our troops have behaved extremely well in spite of the weight of the enemy pressure and the unfavorable weather," Taylor said. The massive Chinese assault overran at least one regimental command post, some helicopter landing circles and a number of artillery positions. However, some of the guns were saved. United Press Correspondent Al Kaff reported from the front that two Chinese divisions hit the Capitol Division, rolling the front backward like a huge door on a hinge. The Red attack crunched forward leaving isolated ROK units still fighting in the rear of the advance, and knifed around the flanks to over-run command posts and gun positions.

An American artillery unit's position was overrun but most of the Americans escaped, said Ralph E. Cowan, Elmira, N. Y. Six or more Chinese divisions composed of 10,000 to 12,000 men each stormed into the attack. A high-ranking American officer said two to three infiltrated South Korean divisions east of Sniper ridge withdrew to a position below the Kumson River on 8th Army orders. "We have had three serious penetrations," the officer told Kaff at the front. "We have found it advantageous to withdraw below the Kumson River." The Reds paid heavily for their advance in the carefully-planned offensive, believed to be a political maneuver to persuade the South Korean government to honor the forthcoming truce. They surged like robots into the face of heavy Allied tank fire and the anti-personnel air bursts known as "daisy cutters" because they explode at low levels. The Chinese concentrated their mammoth assault on four ROK divisions, including one which had been chewed up in earlier fighting in this blazing sector. Frontline officers said the Reds had planned their attack meticulously. While some units engaged the ROKs in frontal assaults, others sneaked around the sides. Groups of Chinese roamed behind Allied lines all night, shooting it out with small Korean units or stragglers. At one place a South Korean colonel stood on a bridge to meet soldiers retreating, hand them grenades and ammunition and sent them back to the front.

Ask Expansion Of School Programs

By MURIEL SHOTWELL Reflector Staff Writer Expansion of the school program in several county schools were requested from school district committees at a meeting of the Pitt Board of Education yesterday. Most of the requests came in the form of letter from Ayden and Grimesland and Bethel. However, the board did not take any action on the requests for expansion but plan to look into the expansion program further. Those communities making requests were asked by the Pitt Board to specify exactly what they need and want in the form of expansion. Those district committees which have asked for expansion have been requested by the board to appear at the next board meeting and present the proposed expansion program in detail. At its meeting, the board accepted the resignation of Dr. H. W. Gooding from the Ayden district school committee and appointed W. O. Jolly to fill the unexpired term of Dr. Gooding. Dr. Gooding resigned because he has been called to duty by the Navy. The board approved a $5,500 shop project for the Chisolm School which will be financed from district funds. Construction on the shop is scheduled to begin in the next 30 days. The building will be made of cement blocks and will measure 38 feet by 110 feet. The board also approved the purchase of land adjacent to the Fountain school to be used as additional playground. The board discussed the employment of an architect for the building of a combination auditorium and gymnasium for the Farmville Negro School. No action was taken as the board wants to confer with Farmville officials. The employment of a public school music teacher for Winterville was approved.

Ministers Tentatively Agree On Moscow Talks In Fall Big Three Plan 'Showdown'

By DONALD J. GONZALES United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP) — The Big Three foreign ministers set wheels in motion today for possible showdown talks with Moscow on two of the biggest issues in the cold war — Germany and Austria. They agreed tentatively to call for a four-power conference of foreign ministers this fall to put Russia's self-styled peace campaign to the acid test. Word of the understanding on Big Four talks came as Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Acting British Foreign Secretary Lord Salisbury, and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault put the finishing touches on their five-day strategy conference with a final session this afternoon. They planned a final communique summing up their effort to work out ways to exploit the unrest behind the Iron Curtain and to deal with Allied troubles in Europe, the Middle East and the Far East. The three statesmen sent a report on their agreements Monday night to London and Paris. If the home governments approve, the Big Three were reported ready to: 1. Propose talks designed to clear the way for an end to the Austrian occupation and free all-German elections leading toward unification of Soviet-controlled Eastern Germany and Western Germany. This would provide a major test of the Soviets' peace offensive. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer was understood to have been asked to approve the move to be outlined in an early note addressed to the Kremlin. 2. Warn the Communists that any aggression in the Far East following a Korean truce would have the gravest consequences on world peace. The French are alarmed over the prospect that Red China may mount a new military offensive against Indochina after an end of the Korean war, which appears near. 3. Pledge their determination to strive for peace by taking advantage of any Communist efforts to call off the East-West cold war. The agreement on talks with the Russians represented a concession for the United States, which had consistently opposed any four-power discussions until Moscow demonstrated its willingness to settle outstanding issues. The mounting pressure for unification in Western Germany, stimulated by the unrest in the Soviet Zone, was believed to have been a major factor in the American decision. With important elections coming up Sept. 6, Adenauer has felt an approach to Moscow is necessary.

New Grimesland Board To Hear Mapping Plan

The Grimesland town board is slated for another hearing tonight on a county-sponsored proposal for mapping of the town for taxation and other purposes. The plan will be presented to the board for the second time at its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall. Expected to be on hand to represent the county are Chairman Floyd Hendrix, Commissioner J. T. Dupree, and County Auditor Reginald Gray. The board got its introduction to the plan, which would provide a duplicate set of maps for town and county, at a meeting last April. Concerned with other pressing matters at the time, the board took the matter under advisement. Since then, elections have brought several changes in board membership and its reception tonight appeared unpredictable. Auditor Gray said he had not had occasion to talk to individual members of the new board about the matter. Acceptance by the board would make approval of the plan 100 per cent among the Pitt towns contacted. Mapping already is under way for seven towns who have agreed to put up half the costs with the county paying the other half. With each of the county worked out separate agreements and the costs varied for each municipality, depending on the size of the job required. Grimesland's share, if approved, will amount to $400, with the county matching the amount with another $400. The addition of Grimesland would bring the price tag on the total project to $35,500. Greenville city engineering firm of Joyce and Rivers holds the contract for the mapping program.

Rhee Delegate Believed Returning To Panmunjom Truce Boycott's End Seen

By EARNEST HOBERECHT SEUL, Korea (UP) — Reports that Syngman Rhee plans to end his boycott of the Panmunjom truce talks circulated today as South Korean troops withdrew from the central front under heavy Red attack. The South Korean president was expected to send Maj. Gen. Choi Duk Shin, his truce delegate, back to the negotiating table in a move to speed signing of the armistice. Choi was not present at the secret 39-minute meeting held by the negotiators today. However, it was believed he might show up at the 11 a.m. meeting Wednesday (10 p.m. e.d.t., Tuesday). Rhee almost wrecked the truce last month by releasing 27,000 anti-Communist North Korean war prisoners. There were three explanations for Rhee's reported desire to end the truce boycott which began last May 27 when Choi claimed the U.N. had sold out to the Communists: 1. The greatest Chinese war offensive in two years, involving up to 72,000 enemy troops, walloping heavy casualties on South Korean troops on the central front. 2. Rhee feels he owes assistance to the U.N. after having blundered in revealing he would abide by a truce only six months after the armistice is signed. 3. Rhee wants to give the Communists proof he is willing to respect the armistice. A Communist correspondent at Panmunjom said in his "personal" opinion there were only two possibilities — Rhee is in on the truce or he is not. If not, the Communist said, the U.N. must make "sufficient" guarantees that Rhee will respect an armistice. Neither Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief U.N. negotiator, or North Korean Gen. Nam Il, the Communist delegate, would disclose the topic of Tuesday's discussions. But Communist radio propagandists, who usually take the same line as Red negotiators at Panmunjom, said again Tuesday that Rhee's promise to honor a truce for only six months was unacceptable. The broadcasts accused the United States of conniving with Rhee to "sabotage" the armistice agreement after 90 days of debate in the post-armistice political conference. The conference will meet within 90 days from A-day. Rhee disclosed Monday he would honor the truce only six months with the hope that the post-armistice political conference will have shown concrete progress on unification of Korea at the end of that period.

British Soldiers Continue Tight Roadblocks Around Suez Zone City Of Ismalia

CAIRO (UP) — British Tommies held a tight ring of roadblocks around Ismalia today and British families planned to move on short notice from the tense Suez Canal Zone. The British methodically searched all vehicles passing their London and the British embassy here denied Festing's letter was an ultimatum. The Egyptian press interpreted British moves today as a "retreat" because of the strong Egyptian stand. Britons claimed young Rigen was kidnapped by Egyptians but National Guidance Minister Salah Salem said Egyptians know nothing of the airman's disappearance. Lt. Gen. Sir Francis Festing delivered a note to the sub-governor, demanding Rigen's return. Rigen was not produced and the British sealed off Ismalia and started searching Egyptians. Rigen was kidnapped by Egyptians but National Guidance Minister Salah Salem said Egyptians know nothing of the airman's disappearance.

Dr. Humbert Named Chairman Of Pitt County Blood Program

Hoover Taft, chairman of the Pitt County Red Cross Chapter, today announced the appointment of Dr. Walter Humbert as chairman of the Blood Program in Pitt for the National Red Cross. Dr. Humbert, director of the Pitt County Health Department, was director of the blood program for the Midwestern Area of the National Red Cross before coming to Greenville in September, 1952. The Midwestern Area is comprised of 16 states. In accepting the appointment, Dr. Humbert said, "I do so with the knowledge of tremendous humanitarian service that the blood program is giving to civilians and military personnel and I am also well aware of the hard work and constant endeavor that is necessary to have a successful and continuous program." Dr. Humbert stated that Pitt County has responded well in the past under the capable guidance of the immediate past leaders, Mrs. J. T. Little and B. C. Satterfield. "However," stated the new chairman, "the need now is greatly increased and we have to work harder throughout the entire county." He said further that although the Red Cross is giving this service it is nevertheless the responsibility of all organizations in the communities in carrying out a successful program. Because the Red Cross and National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis has accepted the charge of the Office of Defense Mobilization in supplying gamma globulin, the previous quotas of 150 pints from Pitt County at each visit of the bloodmobile has been raised to 175 pints. Pitt County's new quota from July 1, 1953, to June 30, 1954, is now 2,450 pints of blood. "This is, in my estimation," said Dr. Humbert, "not too much for a population of 68,000 because many communities have quotas of six percent of the population." "The need for gamma globulin in the control and prevention of paratyphoid is now proven especially in the Montgomery, Alabama, and Caldwell County epidemics," Dr. Humbert said. "In Montgomery 10 days prior to the administering of gamma globulin there were 23 cases of polio and in the first 10 days after administration, the cases were cut down to six. It is evident that gamma globulin 'put the fire out.'" Dr. Humbert explained that the amount of gamma globulin needed to give one injection to a 100 pound child is 14 cubic centimeters which requires three and one-half pints of blood. "So far in epidemics, 32,000 children were given gamma globulin in Montgomery, 13,000 in Caldwell County, and 12,000 planned for Catawba County. Also at Elmira, New York, 35,000 children were inoculated. In epidemics alone, 65,000 children have been inoculated which required 332,500 pints of blood." This tremendous number of serum donations is just beginning over United States and in order to

Utilities Board Convenes Tonight Claims Christie Confession Of Pair Was False

Selection of a site and confirmation of bids for the proposed erection of a water tank in Greenville north of the Tar River is on the agenda for a meeting of the Greenville Utilities Commission board tonight. The board will gather at 8 p.m. in the superintendent's office at city hall. Supt. Martin Swartz said today the group will have two bids of three called for to choose from. Bids include costs of construction, labor and materials for the tank. The total price tag is expected to run about $60,000. Previously named to a committee for selecting a site for the tank were John Clark and Reynolds May. Their report also is expected for board action tonight. In addition, Larry Brown, utilities business manager, will report on anticipated finances for the new fiscal year. LONDON (UP) — A special government investigator held today that doomed sex stranger John R. Christie was not the murderer of a woman and a child for whose death another man was sent to the gallows. Christie, sentenced to die on the gallows tomorrow morning, confessed to strangling seven women including Mrs. Beryl Evans. Truck driver Timothy Evans was charged in 1949 with killing his wife and their baby daughter. He was actually tried only on the charge of killing the child. He was convicted and hanged. Grave doubt rose during Christies trial that Evans was guilty. But John Scott Henderson, appointed as special government investigator to go over the findings in the case, reported today that despite his confession Christie was not the murderer of Mrs. Evans.

More Cooperation In Farm Labor

With tobacco rapidly ripening in the fields, it means a rushed season for most farmers.

The crop which has developed so beautifully in the past few months is now in its crucial stage. It must be housed as it ripens, or its full potential value will never be realized.

In that respect, the matter of labor for housing tobacco is proving a headache to farmers this year as it has for almost a decade.

More than 700 workers have been imported to help harvest Pitt's tobacco crop this year; but even so, there is no apparent surplus of labor to get the crop out of the field and into the barns. On the contrary, many farmers still could use additional labor for housing the crop if they could get it. If weather conditions in the next few weeks cause tobacco to ripen more rapidly than it has recently, the situation will become more acute.

The Pitt County employment office is offering its services to farmers in helping them keep supplied with green tobacco workers. But that office can not do the job alone. It will be a great help to many farmers, if the growers themselves cooperate more closely one with another in utilizing the county's labor supply as many days as possible through the harvesting season.

Such a practice would mean more working hours of laborers could be utilized in housing this year's crop. Workers not needed on a particular farm one day could be utilized on another.

In recent years — in the face of a labor shortage — the degree of cooperation among local farmers in utilizing more fully the labor supply available has increased. Yet there still seems room for more cooperation.

Pitt's Bit In Fighting Polio

Several days ago the Reflector commented editorially on the unselfish cooperation which polio-stricken counties in the state have received from other political subdivisions throughout North Carolina.

This week, Pitt was called on to participate in the battle against polio by sending a nurse to Catawba County to help with the inoculation of some 14,000 youngsters. There was no hesitation on the part of the Pitt County Health Department about complying with the request. Supervisor of Nurses Julia Fisher left today to help in Catawba.

Health Officer Dr. Walter Humbert, in our opinion, expressed aptly the feeling of all North Carolinians toward the two counties already stricken with polio epidemics. He said, "We are glad to be able to help because we never know when we in the county will have to be making the same request."

Just as it is no respecter of individuals, polio apparently has no preference as to the area in which it strikes. It is gratifying to see Pitt doing its bit to aid a sister county hit by the dreaded disease.

One Field In Which We Yield Leadership

From an unexpected source comes a possible explanation of French political instability:

The Associated Press reports Frenchmen spend over $2.5 billions a year on alcoholic drinks . . . enough to build 750,000 housing units.

Adult Frenchmen are said to drink seven times as much pure alcohol yearly as Americans.

Unless their constitutions (physically speaking) are comparatively stronger than those prevailing on this side of the Atlantic, small wonder that uncertainty is the outstanding problem facing their prime ministers.

Let somebody else "lead" America in the drinking field; it's something we're content to forfeit or let go by default.

Dark Clouds Still Gathering

Western nations are cheering the crisis in which Russia finds herself in the midst of unrest in Germany and other satellite nations as well as at home.

Not to be overlooked in the frenzy of jubilation, however, is the impending crises which are coming into focus in Egypt and the Far East.

Egypt is boldly talking war with the British on Egyptian soil. The new flare over the Canal Zone has once more changed the smoldering embers of Egyptian hate for British into a roaring flame.

In the Far East as chances of an end to the Korean war move closer, Chinese communists are said to be moving troops and supplies into Indochina for a greater effort at conquest.

Prospects in Korea are brighter for the end of that war than at any time in more than three years of fighting. Yet war clouds gathering in other parts of the globe hold little promise for a quiet peace even if gunfire ceases to echo across Korea.

Strength for the Day

NOTHING TO GET CONCERNED ABOUT

Everyone will admit that we live in a great age, but anyone who has read history is conscious of the fact that human beings are constantly making mistakes and we can be sure that our generation is making just as many as past generations have made.

For instance, the medical science of 1853 has been almost entirely repudiated by the modern medical world. Within the lifetime of all of us over 45 years of age, basic concepts in the physical sciences have changed. Psychology today is no more like psychology fifty years ago than the sea is like a mountain top.

Of course there must be change, and change sometimes indicates progress. But not always. The fact that each age is so sure of its conclusions and is later proved incorrect, is one reason why we should not put too much stock in the claims of progress which many people make, especially the academic crowd.

Many writers and speakers today assure us that we are just about to lay hold of certain secrets which will improve humanity to an unprecedented extent, clean up corruption in government, bring world peace, establish scientific truths that will outlast the ravages of time.

We are making just as many mistakes as our forebears did. Let us guard against pride—especially intellectual pride.

New Policy Ideas Evidenced

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower has had to listen to a wealth of sharp advice recently to the effect that he must assume more positive and independent leadership in the worldwide struggle against Russia, even though he offend Britain and France by insisting that they abandon colonial rule throughout the universe.

American dollars, material assistance and military reinforcement alone, he has been warned, will not buy friends in the Far East, Asia and the Middle East, now the most sensitive fronts in the cold war. Mutual Security funds will simply "go down a rat hole," unless they are backed by the spirit which inspired the American revolution of 1776.

DESIRE FOR FREEDOM—It is not communism so much as a natural desire for freedom and independence in the proposal. Indeed, it is understood that he has brought quiet pressure on Anglo-French statesmen now in Washington on behalf of small but strategically important countries.

In short, Eisenhower has been urged to demand that England and France renounce all claims to political and economic control where they still exercise it, and free their colonies and protectorates for self-development.

Although Ike has not translated these suggestions into a definite and firm policy, and may not be in a position to do so openly, he has shown intense interest in the proposal. Indeed, it is understood that he has brought quiet pressure on Anglo-French statesmen now in Washington on behalf of small but strategically important countries.

DIRKSEN REPORT MEETS APPROVAL—Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois, a Midwest conservative and a Taft supporter at Chicago, recently discussed this grave problem with Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles after visiting Japan, Korea, Formosa and Southeast Asia. He also presented his views to a Policy Conference of Republican Senators, where they met general approval.

The Dirksen report has assumed even greater significance against the violent background of the rebellion against Moscow's brutal colonial rule in the satellite countries.

FRENCH MAKING NO HEADWAY—In an extremely dramatic recital, Dirksen reports that the French are making no headway in Indo-China against Ho Chi-minh's 300,000 guerrillas, even with our annual contribution of $500,000,000 a year. Despite 88 years of colonialism, the natives are not reconciled to outside domination.

"The French own the country by day," says Dirksen, "and the rebel forces own it by night. When we were at Saigon, which the French have made into a miniature Paris, it was a novelty to see a number of guards armed with shotguns around the home of the Charge D'Affaires, so that we would not be shot while we were eating dinner."

"What an astonishing thing it is that a rebel group only 300,000 strong, can, for seven years, successfully resist the French, when the rebel group has not a single plane in the sky!"

"One may ask, 'What makes them so tough, and what is the force which makes them resist?' It is an ideological force. It is the nationalism which they preach. They do not preach communism. They preach nationalism and freedom."

QUIET DIPLOMATIC PERSUASION FAVORED—Two days before the Fourth of July, appropriately enough, Dirksen placed his plea before the President and Secretary of State at the White House. He said: "It seems to me that, if we are going to hand over another $400,000,000, in all good conscience and in the name of the sacred tradition of America, as we place the 17th candle on our anniversary cake, why can we not declare publicly that there is a target date for independence, for a constitution and for freedom?"

"Is not that what we are fighting for? Is not that the ideal and the objective of the free world?" The Dirksen stipulations, as well as other amendments prodding the British and French on this question, would have commanded a Senate majority save for White House suggestions that the problem should be handled through quiet diplomatic persuasion rather than Congressional pressure.

Somebody Told Me . . .

Your Date At Elm Street Park

Tomorrow night the Elm Street Park will be jumping with square-dancers! You are invited to attend by the City Recreation Commission, and the only requirement for attendance is your interest. The group to date consists of a few experienced dancers, but mostly those just learning and hoping for more learners to show up.

Square dancing normally is scheduled at Elm Street Park every Thursday night, but this week it'll be Wednesday in order to take advantage of the presence of Paul Watkins of Lamart, Tex. Paul is in Greenville visiting his sister-in-law, Mrs. Gene Ward.

Back in Texas Paul and his wife are members of a square-dance club, which is similar to the one our recreation director, Warren Carroll, is hoping to organize here in Greenville. Members of the club not only learn how to dance, but call sets as well. Paul is a proficient caller, so be sure to take in his performance tomorrow night.

The Recreation Commission is developing a type of square dancing that is new to Greenville people: quadrills, the original type of square dancing. In this section we are more accustomed to the circle type, but Warren says that quadrill dancing is more fun, makes for better timing, and gives the caller better control of his dancers.

To assist in teaching quadrill dancing, the Recreation Commission has several records which include not only the music, but also the calling. "Tomorrow night is a real treat," Warren says, "because it's the first time we've had a caller in Greenville since we started the dances."

Among those who have shown an interest so far are Rose and Sam Brooks, Nina and Cotton Guice, Evelyn and Gene Ward, and Dot and Charlie Horne. "Suggest to your readers that they come out and watch," Warren says, "and if they are interested they'll be dancing before they know it."

Warren is looking forward to the organization of a Square Dance Club. "And if the organization develops," he says, "we plan to go to Winston-Salem next year for a Square Dance convention."

The interest is mounting in this project, which is one of many that Warren has pushed in his job as Director of Recreation. It just shows that one of the best investments Greenville makes for its city budget is the money spent on recreation.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

THE FISH ARE NIBBLING

(Greensboro Daily News) The fish are nibbling at North Carolina's new tax allocation formula set up by the 1953 General Assembly. Already two out-of-state industries, considering location in North Carolina, want tax previews from the State Revenue Department as provided under the new law, effective July 1.

Details of the law are complex, but here they are briefly: (1) There is created a board of review composed of State Treasurer Edwin Gill, State Revenue Collector Eugene Shaw and Tax Research Director James Currie. They are charged with making final decisions about tax liabilities of foreign corporations.

(2) The board has wide discretion in determining what formula should be used. It may employ the state's traditional taxing factors—cost of manufacturing and value of physical property—or it may substitute new factors, such as cost of sales. It may use separate accounting to determine what portion of the company's operations ought to be taxed in North Carolina.

(3) As in the cases cited above, it may decide in advance what the tax burden would be on a corporation interested in locating in North Carolina. The law recognizes two types of foreign corporations for tax review purposes—manufacturing and sales.

The law gives North Carolina's tax structure new flexibility. Taxing corporations chartered in other states is not easy. Foreign corporations ought not to receive considerations which give them unfair tax advantages over domestic corporations; but neither should North Carolina's treatment of such industries give other states a powerful selling point against us.

North Carolina's per capita income has risen from $309 in 1929 to $1,052 in 1951, but during those decades we remained 44th among all states. North Carolina should do better. We ought to be moving ahead. The only way to raise per capita income appreciably is to create more industrial jobs. That means attracting entrepreneurs and capital which produce them.

Senator Lennon's True Caliber Not Yet Displayed

By LYNN NISBET

SENATOR — Almost everybody was surprised when Governor William Umstead announced his choice for the United States Senate to succeed the late Willis Smith. The Governor shuffled through the 60-odd names in the prospect file and came up with a man who has not before been considered a state-wide figure or of senatorial calibre. Those who know Alion Lennon understand some of the reasons leading to his selection. He is a "regular" Democrat, slightly right of center in his political philosophy. He is a two-listed defender of issues and persons in whom he believes. He is a man of high integrity, is of appropriate age, and is a warm personal and political friend of Governor Umstead.

SURPRISE — The announcement came during the meeting of the N.C. Press Association at New Bern. The publishers and editors had just learned of the appointment of Ben Douglas as director of conservation and development and took it in stride, as they did the 13 named on the 15-man O&D board. It is an understatement to say they were surprised at Lennon's appointment to the Senate. Very few of the newsmen knew anything about him, and none had reckoned him a serious prospect although his name had appeared on some of the published lists of those recommended for the post.

INTERIM? — Governor Umstead told reporters Friday that he was confident Senator Lennon could sell himself to the people and could win nomination and election next year. The new appointee told newsmen at Wrightsville Beach that he expected to wage a vigorous campaign and he was equally confident of success.

Those familiar with his record find basis for that confidence. The fact is, however, that immediate reaction of the newspaper folk assembled at New Bern was doubt of his ability to survive a primary.

CANDIDATES — That impression was based upon the historic record that such men with statewide popularity as Cameron Morrison, William Umstead and Frank Graham could not overcome the jinx of executive appointment. It is further recalled that Morrison was defeated by Willie Smith, neither of whom was considered at beginning of the campaign as a "popular" candidate. The situation was somewhat different in 1948 when J.M. Broughton, lately out of the Governor's office and one of the recognized political idols of the people, defeated William Umstead. Present conditions are more like that latest episode, with past Governor Kerr Scott looming as a likely candidate in next year's primary, and Rep. Harold Cooley an almost equally sure bet as a contender.

THREE-WAY? There may be more than three entries and there may be only two. Opinion is divided as to whether Scott is as serious about running as some stories would indicate. It is also argued that Cooley would rather retain his top place on the House agriculture committee than become junior Senator. And it is further contended that Scott and Cooley would not both get into the race, since that would "split the farm vote." On the other hand, the sting of the political bee leaves infection that is hard to cure, and there is ample evidence that both men have been stung by the Senatorial bee. It is known that Scott has made tentative approaches about headquarters space at the Carolina Hotel, and Cooley has been quoted as saying he would rather enter a state-wide race than face serious opposition in his own district.

ISSUES — It is impossible at this time to forecast the exact issues which would be paramount in a two-way or a multiple contest. The emphasis would be different, but behind the scenes the real issue will be the personal political leadership of Kerr Scott on the one hand and William Umstead on the other, with Cooley or somebody else rallying the voters with the cry "A plague on both your houses."

RECORDS — In building up impressive records of accomplishment in wide scale political and governmental activities over more than 20 years Scott and Cooley have aroused strong opposition. Scott has never been defeated when his own name was on the ballot, but twice within three years he suffered severe beatings when he vigorously backed the candidacies of Frank Graham and Hubert Olive. Lennon's record is entirely local, but he has the reputation of a staunch fighter, not accustomed to losing. He had the same reputation as a football player for Wilmington High and Wake Forest. During his two terms in the State Senate he was counted a stalwart defender of his position, rather than a crusader. One close friend said of him: "Al doesn't run very fast toward any objective, and he won't run from anything on the face of the earth." His role next year will be to defend his position and that is his strongest fort. He is in the Senate, and he does not intend to be run out.

Big Birth Rate Effects

By ELMER ROESSNER

America has been bursting with pride over its record number of babies since World War II. It's proof of national prosperity and American fecundity.

But in these great numbers of births may lie grave problems. While most of these problems will be sociological, they may have such tremendous impacts on business that they may be considered in this department.

For instance, in the 1950's we may encounter some of the worst juvenile delinquency the nation has ever known. It is then that the bumper crops of postwar babies will be entering their teens.

It was in 1946 that births topped 3,000,000 for the first time—there were 3,458,000 that year. There were more than 3,500,000 every year since, with a $280,000 last year.

More numbers do not make for delinquency—or do they? It seems that in overcrowded classrooms and housing developments overrun with children, the individual's need for self-expression may be hemmed in. It seems that the competition for recognition is intensified and that many will seek attention through superlatives—some in superlative achievement, other in superlative wrong-doing.

Almost everyone is familiar with at least one housing development for new families where the ratio of children is far higher than that in an average community—and where the youngsters have everything broken or defaced everything within reach. Incidents involving juvenile theft, arson and worse, reported in many cities, may be only a forerunner of what is to come as the number of youngsters increase and their abilities for good or evil become greater.

Even discounting the surmise that personality-competition may be generating delinquency, there are other reasons for fearing it.

A higher percentage of mothers are holding jobs than before the war and more youngsters are left to the care of baby-sitters. Schools in most parts of the nation are so overcrowded that pupils get little personal attention. Low levels of pay have caused many of the most desirable men and women to shun teaching as a career, leaving jobs for a few dedicated men and women and a lot of misfits.

In some schools discipline has been largely waived to "permit the full development of the child's personality," and in others it has just broken down.

And we are rearing a generation on the fighting, shooting, and homicides on television. Now it may be that gore in the home will not have such bad effects as some people think. Perhaps it is sublimating some of the frustrations and inhibitions of the young. Certainly the effects of comic books have been considerably less disturbing than some viewers with-alarm have expected.

There will be a few more remarks on related problems tomorrow.

CORPORATION DIRECTING... NOW BETTER PAYING...

Corporation directors are doing better. A survey by the National Industrial Conference Board shows that in 1952, 6 per cent of the manufacturing corporations interviewed gave directors retainer fees as well as attendance fees; today 22 per cent of the same companies pay retainers.

CREDIT UNION GROWTH RISES THIS YEAR.

A total of 1,177 credit unions were organized in the first half of this year, compared with 793 in the same period in 1952, the Credit Union National Association announces. This brings the total in the Western Hemisphere to 17,227 with paid-in shares of $1.6 billion and outstanding loans of $1.2 billion.

A Fortune Out Of Raindrops

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The fear of a raindrop car turn into a financial waterfall. Big money is there.

This is the idea of an eager-eyed young opportunist named Roger Brown, who is tanned, 37, and came here 15 years ago from Ohio to change his happy life for a metropolitan address and success.

Roger is well upon the way to his goal. He is a public relations counsel. Last January after four years without a vacation—Editors note: What do they do?—he was driving through Miami when he saw an auto store ad about a device that would at the first raindrop raise an automatic convertible car top and save the interior from downpour damage.

"It was just a hunch," said Roger. "I had no experience with that sort of thing. But I came back the next day and signed up the inventor."

As a result Roger, two friends, and the original inventor, H.C. Inman, have a multi-million-dollar business.

Inman had thought up the idea of an electrical circuit that would be closed by a drop of rain and bring up the top of an automatic convertible car. But he didn't know how to sell his product, and virtually was peddling it from car to car, Brown says.

This year Brown and his two friends who put $80,000 into the venture estimate their first profit—"weather guard"—will gross at least $2,500,000.

But none except inventor Inman will receive any money from that, Brown said, because the partners think profits should be ploughed back into a business they feel will be many times bigger, even though every American auto manufacturer makes their gadget part of his product.

The device is simply a small box which contains parallel copper wires imbedded in plastic. Nothing happens until a drop of moisture falls upon the wire grid and closes the electrical circuit.

"I knew nothing about inventions until I got mixed up in this," said Roger. "But now we have thought of many things we can do with this principle."

"For example, in new houses, we can install the grid so that windows will close at the first drop of rain—and open again as soon as the rain is over. A housewife won't have to worry about rain wetting her drapes, whether she is there or not."

The partners believe this is a tremendous market. They also see many other commercial uses, such as employing the grid to sound a buzzer of warning at the first sign of water leaks in power plants, dams, and tunnels.

"You know," said Roger dreamily, "it could also be a wonderful help to mothers. Put one of these gadgets in the baby's play pen or bed, connect it with a buzzer, and mama would know exactly when baby needed a change of diapers, by day or by night."

"And it could be used on ships to detect major leaks, and, oh, we haven't begun to explore what we can do with it," Roger said.

"I ran into it on my first real day of vacation in four years, and I haven't had a day of rest since. You know most firms have a fine office and worry about where to get business. We have had so much business we haven't had time to set up an office."

"Really, all I did was follow my hunch—and ride with it."

The shower that cheers the farm era and annoys careless city housewives is to Brown a rain of profit. This makes him glad he came here, but his only boast is:

"I think I know more Methodist hymns by heart than anybody else in New York—and I learned them all at home."

ually expanding. A film, "Spreading Speech" was shown by Raby, describing the working of operator dialing for long distance calls.

During a question and answer period, Raby told Rotarians plans already have been drawn for construction of a new telephone building in Greenville. He did not elaborate. The speaker also pointed out that since World War II, the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company has increased its number of customers by 100 per cent. In addition to Raby, Miss Moore, chief operator of the local telephone office, and Miss Hale, service assistant in the Greenville telephone office were present at the meeting.

Telephone Progress Outlined For Rotary

Leonard Raby, general traffic manager of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph company, last night addressed the Greenville Rotary club discussing progress made in telephone operations and plans for future improvements.

The speaker traced briefly the development of telephone service in the United States since the talking instrument was invented in 1876 by Alexander Graham Bell.

In 1878 the first long distance line was completed from Boston to Cambridge, by 1884 a line from New York to Boston was completed, and in 1892 the New York-Chicago line was completed. It was in 1915, the speaker said, that the transcontinental line from New York to San Francisco was put into operation; and in 1927 the circuit from New York to England was put into operation. In 1946 mobile radio-telephone service began by which telephone conversation may be carried on with a moving vehicle or a ship.

Raby discussed developments in operator toll line dialing for long distance calls by which the operator in the office through which a call originates dials directly the number desired in a distant city. This method, he said, is being used between Greenville and other towns in this area at the present time, and its use will continue to spread.

In the next few years, he predicted, subscriber toll line dialing for long distant calls will be in use throughout the nation. Through this method, it will be unnecessary for a subscriber to contact the operator in making a long distance call. The subscriber will directly dial the number he desires at a distant point. All the work of routing the call and making connections will be done automatically.

Already, Raby said, this subscriber toll line dialing is being used in Englewood, N.J. and is grad-

Drive-In Court Speeds Justice

ENID, Okla. (AP)—The City Council has authorized a painless—well almost—method of paying traffic fines. An innovation at the new police station, to be completed in January, will be a drive-in teller's window at which offenders may settle accounts without the humiliation of entering the station.

No Enemy Was Asking Army For Special Data

ATLANTA (AP)—When the chief of Army Field Forces at Fort Monroe, Va., received a letter from Atlanta, he called for intelligence officers to investigate because, among other things, it said: "Will you please explain D.U.K.-W. T-172E, M-33, A-1 and M-46. What about the Walker Bulldog tanks and performance of the Quack, Weasel and Greyhound?" G-2 went to work and found the writer was no enemy agent seeking information on American equipment but 13-year-old Arnold Gershon, son of an Atlanta insurance man and a keen student of tanks and other military gear. It also developed that most of the information he asked is a matter of public record, anyway, so Arnold got his facts with G-2 okay.

Building Stolen From His Lot

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Police are searching for a 20-by-30-foot building. Alvin Rose reported the structure was stolen from a lot where it had been used for storage by a construction company. Detective R.F. Raulerson said the only clues to the strange disappearance were some large vehicle tracks leading away from the site. Cork is not of good quality until the tree is 40 years old. First step in processing the bark of the cork oak is to boil it to make it flexible.

Preliminaries Under Way In 'Miss Universe' Event

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UP)—Forty two of America's most beautiful girls face their first major test in the Miss Universe beauty pageant tonight when they vie for five finalist positions for the title of Miss United States. There will be no sight-seeing junkets or parties for the girls today preceding the preliminary judging. The five finalists for the Miss United States crown will be selected in the pageant's first formal program. All 67 Miss Universe contestants will sing and dance in the production number, "Main Street, U.S.A." Miss United States will be crowned tomorrow night and will compete against the international entrants Thursday night when the field is reduced to five Miss Universe candidates. Prizes for the girl judged America's most beautiful include a $2,400 sports car and a contract with Universal-International Studios. Trophies will be presented to the four Miss United States runners-up. In tonight's performance, the girls will appear in costumes of their native lands. All of the girls will sing a special finale number, "The Whole World Likes Our Ike." Yesterday, the contestants visited a movie set at Universal-International Studio. They were greeted by stars Jeff Chandler, Piper Laurie and Audie Murphy who conducted them through the lot.

Local Volunteer Firemen Depart

The Negro Rough and Ready Fire Company of Greenville left for Tarboro this morning to attend the 62nd annual convention of the North Carolina Volunteer Fire Association. The meeting opened at noon today and will continue through Thursday. Numerous contests are on the program, including the race for the championship silver belt. Capt. Leroy R. Barnes and the following men are at the convention: Alfred Barnhill, James Adams, John H. Bizzell, Heber Green, James Holiday, John Outerbridge, George Myles, William Hagan, Ernest H. Eaton and Joe Lee Joyner. The Rough and Ready Fire Company of Greenville held the championship silver belt for 11 years until the Wilson Red Heart Hose and Reel Company won it in 1950. "We hope to bring the championship belt back to Greenville this year," he said.

ANTS

There's a new and better way to kill ants. It's called... Film. When applied to any surface with the built-in cap applicator, it leaves a hard, dry, clean, invisible film. The film can't harm or kill any surface; but, when ants touch it their legs become paralyzed and they die in two hours. A single application remains effective for months. You never see it, but it sure does get rid of ants and roaches! Roach Film is available at Bell-Tyler's, 3rd Floor.

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR

AF Newfeatures

The 35 mm camera is riding the crest of popular favor today thanks mainly to color film. These compact cameras get beautiful color transparencies with comparatively little fuss at its cheapest cost. While color film is available in roll film for other popular camera sizes, the standardized 35 mm slide is the common denominator for color shooting, processing, mounting and viewing. Even the most inexperienced novice gets good results if he shoots a colorful scene on a sunny day according to film directions. With the standard exposure 1/50th at f8.3, he can hardly miss even if he's off a trifle in judging distance.

Basically, however, the 35mm camera is unexcelled in the field of shooting pictures in the poorest light, which usually means the natural light whenever and wherever you go. This is because you'll find on the miniature camera the fastest lenses (they transmit the most light) and the greatest depth of field (in sharp focus from front to rear). When used with fast black-and-white film and know-how, the 35mm camera can take it if your eye can see it. However, because of the small size of 35mm negatives (1 inch by 1 1/2 inches) extreme care must be taken in processing, handling and enlarging or the results will not be successful pictures.

Because of these two principal reasons for the present day boom, the camera store shelves are loaded with almost one hundred different models of new 35mm cameras for a prospective purchaser to choose from. They range in price from $10 to over $400. There are three principal types: 1—Least expensive are the manually focusing cameras where you estimate and set the subject distance. 2—Rangefinder focusing is accomplished by viewing the image in a small window and turning a knob to bring it into focus. 3—Reflex cameras are viewed and focussed on a ground glass exactly the way the film will record it. The most expensive are in this class.

Anybody wanting to buy a new 35mm camera would have quite a job wading through all the types and models to find the kind he could afford for the type of pictures he was interested in shooting. Along comes Herbert Keppler with the most comprehensive listing of all the presently available 35mm cameras in three easy-to-read charts. In the June issue of Modern Photography, here you'll find every camera, where it was made, who distributes it, its lens and range mounted, the type of shutter, and approximate price and additional notes. There is a comparison chart for each of the three types of 35mm cameras noted previously.

Knowing the type of pictures you want to shoot will simplify the job of choosing the camera you can afford from among those that can do the job. If it's color you're after, outdoors, you won't require an expensive fast lens nor the higher-costing coupled rangefinder. These advantages are necessary, though if you'd like to follow the present trend of shooting candidly by existing light. For pictures around the house in color and in black-and-white you can use a flash attachment on one of the less expensive models with manual focusing and a relatively slow—4.5—lens.

A lot of medical and scientific work in color is being accomplished by 35mm cameras. The reflex type cameras have many advantages for this type of close-up work. They are built to allow the addition of extension tubes, bellows, attachments, microscope and telescope adapters and permit studying the picture you are photographing until you press the button. However, reflex cameras are bulkier and some rangefinder type cameras have a complete set of accessories available for this type of work. Conversion devices for scientific work are generally expensive.

There are only two cameras now available for sequence photography. In these, a spring-wound motor allows you to take either 12 or 24 pictures in a few seconds if you want movie-like still pictures.

All new cameras today have coated lenses and have the shutters synchronized for flash attachments. A double-exposure prevention device is a desirable feature found on many models.

When 35mm color film is processed, transparencies are normally returned in 35mm slide mounts or in Bantam size mounts. A couple of cameras listed make smaller than normal pictures. These films are returned uncut, to be mounted by the camera fan himself. For the extra work he gets up to 55 square pictures from a normal 36-exposure roll.

Tin Substitute Said In Offing

KUALA LUMPUR (AP)—Malaya's greatest authority on tin has warned that one day some other alloy will be found to replace tin.

A.H. Flowerdew, who served the tin industry in Malaya for 40 years, criticized people who are sitting on tin-bearing land waiting for Malaya to gain independence before beginning mining so that they need not pay such heavy government duties.

The 78-year-old expert estimated deposits have been mined, but there is plenty left, mostly of low quality, he said.

New Variety Of Soybeans Gives A Higher Yield

AMES, Ia. (U.P.)—Development of a new variety of soybean promising higher yields per acre have been announced by the Iowa Agricultural Experiment station and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The variety, named Clark, was developed through 12 years of crossing, selecting and testing.

Record high yields and high oil contents were noted in tests conducted in southern Iowa, and in parts of Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky and other areas of similar latitude from Nebraska to the Atlantic coast.

Clark has outyielded the Chief variety in Iowa by an average of six bushels per acre, according to C.R. Weber, in charge of soybean breeding at the station. He said it has averaged three bushels more than Adams and Lincoln varieties.

Weber said seed of the new variety will be grown on 115 acres in southeastern Iowa this year and the harvest from those acres distributed to certified seed growers in 33 southern counties next year.

It will be 1955 before Clark seed will be plentiful for Iowa soybean growers, Weber said. Illinois, Indiana, Nebraska, and Missouri experiment stations will release seed in their states, also.

The Clark variety was developed from across of Lincoln and Richmond, made 12 years ago by Martin G. Weiss of the federal agricultural department.

The cross Weiss made was crossed back to Lincoln the following winter by L.F. Williams. Then, thousands of selections were tested to find the one best strain for release to growers.

Clark is the 11th superior variety of soybeans developed for a specific producing area in the past 12 years by federal-state cooperation.

Auto Tagged For Wrong Offense

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP)—W.E. Childress of Marietta is willing to give the Savannah, Ga., police "A" for effort but would have to assign an "F" for observation.

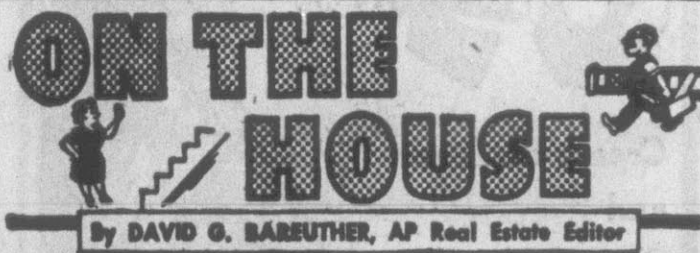

When in the South Georgia city recently on a convention, Childress found his car tagged because he had no city license tag. A few inches away from this tag was a windshield sticker identifying the car as belonging to a convention visitor to Savannah.

Poor Dog Willed $5,000 By Owner

PLACERVILLE, Calif. (AP)—A poor dog was taken in by sympathetic neighbors after the death of his owner, Mrs. Marguerite Morgan.

Later it was learned Mrs. Morgan had bequeathed $5,000 to her Cairn terrier, Chief Dhu Joh.

In disposing of Mrs. Morgan's estate, Superior Judge Thomas Maul gave custody of the dog—no longer poor—to the neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Allen.

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

How to keep your electric bills within reason when you install modern air conditioning equipment calls for as much fortification against the weather as you would use to cut your heating bills in winter. In the South it calls for even more.

This is bringing about big changes in windows—in some cases bigger changes than probably ever occurred in such a short time since the invention of window glass. The reason is that windows can be no-rious heat thieves.

A friend recently installed a couple of room air conditioners in his city apartment. He is highly pleased with the results but would like to have a slightly higher cooling capacity. His apartment faces west and south—a hot exposure—and it has large casement windows. There is a heat gain he can't combat.

Being in a swanky tall structure, he can't hang up awnings. The landlord would say "No" to that. Being a tenant, he's not going to spend money changing windows for somebody else's property. He says he could use one more air conditioning unit. But a third would put too much of a load on his electric power supply. As it is, his 30-ampere fuses blow out every time his wife plugs in an electric iron on the same circuit—and the dead fuse plugs are hot when removed! That's bad.

A home owner, on the other hand, can do a lot about such a window problem. If he doesn't have a broad overhang to shade windows exposed to the sun, he can put up ventilated awnings. He can plant trees and shrubs to shade the house. He can install heat absorbing glass. Such precautions pay off as handsomely in cutting summer cooling costs as storm windows and weather-stripping pay off in cold climates in winter.

Heat resistant glass—the blue-green kind that even looks cool—is so effective that we asked Harry M. Ives of the Libbey-Owens-Ford thermopane department to give us the low down on the relative efficiencies of various forms of glazing. Here are his figures.

Out of the total radiant heat striking an ordinary single-pane window, more than 82 per cent is transmitted directly into the house.

Debate Over Successor For Taft Raging Hot And Heavy

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—The question of Sen. Robert A. Taft's permanent successor to him as Republican leader is the hottest behind the scenes subject of discussion today on Capitol Hill.

Taft named Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) to act for him as leader when illness all but incapacitated the Ohioan last month. Knowland is rated among the ablest Republican members of the Senate.

Some of Knowland's colleagues and others believe he would be a likely Republican presidential nominee when President Eisenhower bows out. But Knowland has made enemies as Senate leader. This has created an explosive political situation.

Farm Depicted In Old Print Found

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (U.P.)—An old print was brought to life when a local historian discovered the actual farm in a woodcut titled "View from West" after a six-month search.

"It was a challenge to Fred L. Spar to find the site of the 19th century work. All he had to go on were the names of the creator of the woodcut at the farm owner.

He came to several dead ends in trying to track down the Furman who had owned the farm depicted in the woodcut. At one site he found a golf course and on the other there was a new housing development.

Then into the picture stepped Mrs. Edna W. Schradler of Albany who was writing "A Study on the Old Roads and History of the Fine Plains." Through her research for her writings she knew the descendants of the farm's original owners. The team of Spar and Schradler then worked through them to find the present owner of the farm and its exact location.

Following directions, Spar rounded a turn and there, silhouetted against the sky, were the chimneys and the four front windows of the house in the woodcut.

Oleo Identified By State Law

DES MOINES, Ia. (AP)—Under a new law, in Iowa, colored oleomargarine may be sold legally for the first time. But each quarter-pound of the spread must have imprinted on it the word, "oleo."

The legislature passed the act after a strenuous contest and the imprint identification plan was a compromise. Proponents of yellow oleo's sale accepted it in order to obtain passage of the legalizing measure.

The peripatus, one of the oldest types of animal on earth, looks like a caterpillar two or three inches long.

cans are protesting Knowland's methods. The political combination with conservative Democrats by which the Eisenhower administration holds slim control of the Senate is threatening to come apart under conditions which have developed since Taft was grounded.

Democrats who helped or secretly hoped for President Eisenhower's election last November have warned responsible Republican senators that they do not like Knowland's methods and will undertake to defeat him at every opportunity.

That is strong language. In a pinch the conservatives probably would not carry their opposition to Knowland to the point of defeating conservative legislation. But on procedural matters and the routine business of the Senate, the Democrats are beginning to make a record of 100 per cent unity when the vote can be a slap at the young Californian.

A veteran legislator explained it this way: A Senate leader must be prepared to give and take—

Comb Virginia Coast For Crew Of Downed Plane

NORFOLK, Va. (UP)—Navy planes and ships combed the Atlantic Ocean off the Virginia coast today for four crewmen of a patrol plane which crashed and sank within seconds while on training Marine exercise.

At least three members of the 11-man crew of the Marlin patrol plane were killed yesterday. Four others were picked up from a life raft by a destroyer an hour after the crash.

Navy officials said one engine of the plane caught fire and the pilot attempted to crash land on choppy seas about 30 miles east of Cape Henry, Va.

Although the plane, which had been on routine anti-submarine exercise with three other planes, burst into flames and sank almost immediately, four men managed to escape. They were returned here and questioned by Navy officials. The names of the crew members were withheld by the Navy.

be elastic when necessary. He must be able to smile a little when he is angry. And, above all, he must have a solid and friendly working arrangement with the leader of the other party in the Senate.

Knowland has been firm, rather than elastic. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), the Democratic leader, is known to feel that Knowland has failed to accept his offer of cooperation in furthering Senate business.

It all adds up to an angry situation with which the lobbies and Senate dining room have been buzzing for days. Some Republicans are angry because Taft named Knowland as stand-in leader without referring the matter to the Republican conference which includes all senators of that party.

The program now is to avoid a showdown on the leadership at this session. If Taft is unable to resume next January, Knowland will have strong opposition unless the state of mind in the Senate changes considerably. With all the criticism of Knowland, there is general agreement that he is more likely than not headed for bigger things. His troubles are assigned mostly to inexperience in his new job. Knowland is 45 years old.

Million-Dollar Radium Pool To Draw Sufferers

INVERMERE, B.C. (AP)—Radium Hot Springs, $1,000,000 pool built in 1951 by the federal government opened earlier this year, is expecting a record number of tourists and arthritic sufferers seeking relief.

A new 25-metre pool, half Olympic size, has been lighted by 17,000-watt submerged lights and the 114-degree (Fahrenheit) water issuing from the rocks.

Chemical analysis has confirmed the existence of radium in the water. While medical authorities refuse to concede any curative value for the water, it is reported that some people arriving in wheel chairs or on crutches have walked away after relaxing in the tepid bath.

Slang Tips Off Your Personality

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Better watch that slang—it can give a significant tip as to your personality.

Dr. James A. Wax of Temple Israel says only people of little faith have a "so what?" attitude, ask "what's in it?" or wonder "what's his angle?"

Saying "so what?" to indicate something is unimportant is merely "an undignified expression," Wax said. But when the phrase is used to signify that "it doesn't make any difference," it takes on a greater and deeper significance.

"One can almost sense a feeling of helplessness in the phrase," Wax said. "When people begin to feel that they do not care, they have forfeited their birthright to lead creative, productive and happy lives."

As for another slang phrase, "what's in it?"

"People whose main concern is what they can get out of something miss a great deal of the joy of living. It is well to consider all the factors before making a decision, but it is foolish and wrong to be concerned primarily with the reward."

And for the third phrase, "what's his angle?"

"It indicates a lack of faith in our fellowmen. It suggests a certain cynicism that not only calls into question the integrity of others but which is self-destructing."

Virginia Demos' Primary Is Today

RICHMOND, Va. (UP)—Virginia Democrats went to the polls today to select one of two men, who campaigned on almost identical platforms, as the party's candidate for governor.

The weather forecast, generally clear and cool with some overcast, was right for a large vote but preliminary reports indicated the lack of differences between State Sen. Charles R. Fenwick, 52, and former U. S. Rep. Thomas B. Stanley, 62, would keep many voters at home.

The polls opened for the Democratic primary at 6:30 a.m. (EST) and were to remain open until 7:30 p. m.

Both candidates have come out for increased state aid for schools, agriculture, health services and other programs without increasing taxes.

The similarity of their platforms, their membership in the state party organization unofficially headed by U. S. Sen. Harry F. Byrd and their records as conservative Democrats caused Virginia Republicans to dub them "Tweedledum and Tweedledee."

The winning candidate has been promised a "real fight" in the Nov. 3 general election by the Republicans who have already chosen state Sen. Tod Dalton as the GOP nominee for governor.

Propaganda Guns Turned Against Vermin In China

HONG KONG (AP)—The Red propaganda magazine, China Reconstructs, has come up with some fantastic figures in reporting progress of the health movement on the Communist mainland.

It said: Children with fly-swatters, have accounted for a large proportion of "138,600,000,000 flies killed." (The magazine doesn't say who kept count.)

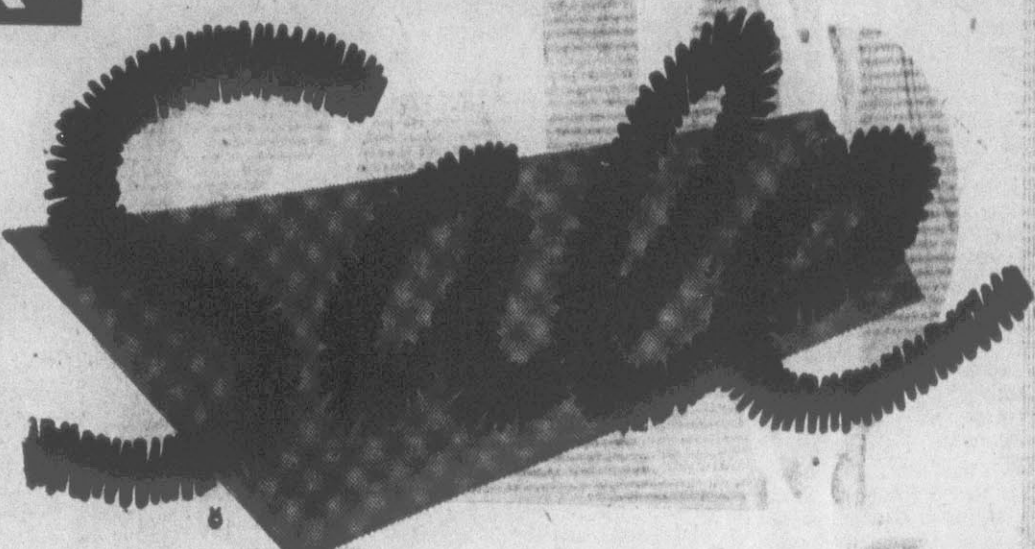

A 16-year-old village school girl won national acclaim by catching 8,500 gnats and organizing classmates to kill 8,000 more. A company of Chinese soldiers in Korea caught 88,494 rats.

Navajo Becomes Radio Announcer

WINSLOW, Ariz. (AP)—The first Navajo radio announcer in Arizona is beaming newscasts, chants, and commercials in their native tongue to Indians on the vast and isolated reservation.

He is Dana Begay, Navy veteran and business school graduate. His program, "Echoes from Navajoland," is broadcast from KVNO, Winslow.

Top-Heavy Look In New Fashion Ideals

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—The newest fashions by the nation's leading designers give women a top-heavy look.

The extra folds of fabric that swished around shapely legs a few years ago now appear above the waist, both front and back. If a bodice isn't bunched or gathered, it's arched to accent that above-the-waist curve.

This week designers officially reveal what women will wear next winter, in a series of fashion shows sponsored by the couture group of the New York Dress Institute. New clothes vary from extreme simplicity for daytime wear to sheer fantasy for after-dark occasions. Skirt lengths the part of the costume that made news a few years ago, are almost never mentioned. The width of the top, not the length of the skirt, gets the attention.

Manufacturers say just as little about prices. Fall clothes, they say, will cost "about the same" as last year. The only fabric shortage mentioned was a dwindling supply of a few precious fleeces such as fine cashmere.

The natural shoulderline is still the favorite. Sometimes the tucks and extra fullness at the top make the shoulders look broader, but there's none of the squares, padded look of a decade ago.

Separates get more versatile every year. First it was the two-way combination. Now weskits, scarf necklines, two-skirt costumes and other variations make four-way combinations quite commonplace.

For a price, a woman can indulge in the wildest whimsies next season. She can buy a strawberry pink mink hat, for instance, or an innocent looking grey flannel coat completely lined with dazzling, tucked gold lame.

Her at-home outfits can be just as surprising. If the dramatic chiffon, satin, velvet and fur designs for woman to wear around the house of an evening mean anything we must be turning into a nation of stay-at-homes. All that glamour used to be saved for New Year's Eve at the country club.

Special Program For Disciplining Young Violators

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (U.P.)—A disciplinary program for teenage traffic law violators has been devised by Circuit Judge Donald Black to discourage young drivers from future infractions and to familiarize them with traffic regulations.

Black, who also presides over juvenile court, said the plan thus far has proved very successful.

When a young motorist is arraigned for the first time for reckless driving or speeding, his license is turned over to a probation officer for a revocation period of 60 to 90 days. During this time, the juvenile must:

1. Write in longhand all the provisions of the city code which cover operation of a motor vehicle including those pertaining to white lines, double lines, traffic lights, parking, etc.
2. Write in longhand all provisions of the state code covering operation of a motor vehicle.
3. Compute the distance an automobile travels at the speed of 15 miles an hour in one second, and then compute the distance an automobile travels for every mile of speed beyond 15 miles an hour up to the speed that the offender was traveling when arrested.

The "homework" must be turned in and approved before the driver's permit is returned to him.

The city and state driving laws cover several pages, Judge Black explained, and when the offender has completed the task of writing them, he will be familiar with the regulations. By computing the distances covered by speeding vehicles, the driver is given an understanding of the dangers to himself and to other persons by speeding, he said.

New Sailplane Model Studied

STARKVILLE, Miss. (U.P.)—Only two people have mastered flying a "wing glider" that has no motor, no fuselage or tail structure but is being experimented with here to make family flying possible.

The odd-shaped aircraft consists of a 65-foot wing that contains a capsule in which the pilot navigates while lying flat on his stomach. German designers built similar models during World War II, but the model here is part of an advanced sailplane research project.

Rudolph Optizn, a former commander of a German rocket squadron, and Ray Parker, a craftsman in the Mississippi State College aerophysics department, are the only persons who can fly the wing. They hope to develop aircraft of low cost and high speed that require little space for takeoffs and landings.

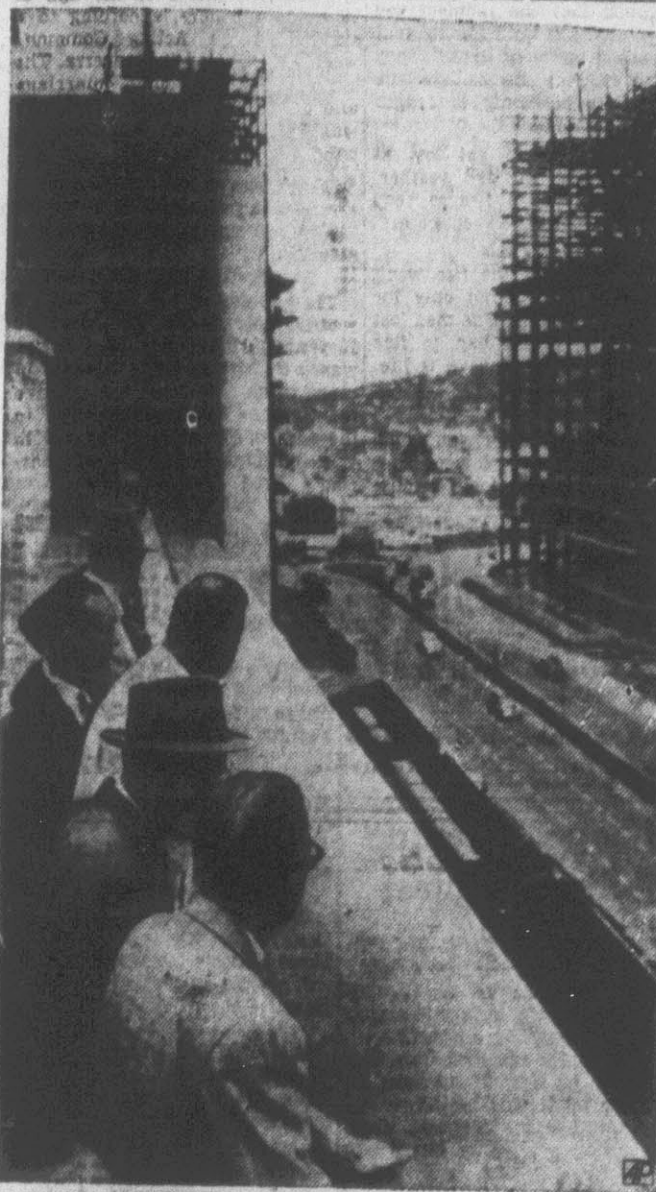

Another phase of their research is testing the wing, which has thousands of pin-point holes in the fabric through which air is sucked and forced out at the rear of the ship.

Dr. August Raspet, who directs the research, said the experiment is the next step in "streamlining"

Owners Discuss Transfers

Owners of the major league baseball teams met in Cincinnati yesterday in a pre-All-Star game conference. One of the more important items on the agenda was a proposal concerning the transfer of major league franchises.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick introduced the proposal, which would limit transfer changes to the period between October 1 and December 1. Another transfer such as the one made by Milwaukee, just before the current season is not wanted.

Hasty switches could cause serious trouble if the new site is not ready for the major leagues, and the owners do not have enough time to study the situation thoroughly before having to vote on the issue.

Although the type of transfer employed by Milwaukee is not desirable, better results could not be expected. The Braves have done a great deal of good to baseball this season by creating more interest in the average fan.

The players throughout the league have also offered a proposed plan to set up a "Player Commissioner" office. The officer would have equal rank with Frick in dealing with problems involving the players.

A higher minimum salary was also proposed by the player representatives. The present $5,000 minimum is considered out of date in view of rising costs, and the players have asked for an increase of $3,000.

Races Proposed For Stadium

A quarter-mile racetrack has been proposed for Guy Smith Stadium in the near future. Alton "Cigar" Haddock, the promoter for the popular automobile races held in Wilson every other Sunday afternoon, is reported to be interested in building a track here.

The proposition was brought up before the City Council at its last meeting. No definite action was taken on the project pending a conference between Haddock and Superintendent of City Schools J. H. Rose.

Some opposition was expressed because of the high school athletic events held at the stadium. It is believed however that a plan can be worked out between Haddock and Rose so that the track will not interfere with the football and baseball games staged by the local high school.

The track proposed would be a quarter-mile dirt affair. It would run around the perimeter of the stadium.

If the plan is carried through successfully, it will benefit hundreds of local racing enthusiasts who follow the auto races regularly. Several Pitt County drivers enter the races in Wilson, Goldsboro, and Raleigh each week.

The races would be sanctioned by NASCAR, the national association which governs professional drivers. A good race is practically guaranteed when NASCAR sponsors an event.

Cards Have Camp In Goldsboro

The St. Louis Cardinals will hold a tryout camp in Goldsboro on July 22 and 23. It will be one of several being held on a nationwide basis by the Cardinals.

St. Louis has one of the finest farm systems of any of the major league clubs, ranging from every class from AAA to D. Present manager Eddie Stanky gives the Card farm system credit for placing the St. Louis club in the first division for 23 of the last 27 years.

Workouts at the Goldsboro camp will get underway each day at 10 a. m. Players between 17 and 23 who report for the workout sessions are to bring their own glove, shoes, and a uniform if one is available. The Cardinals will refund expenses to all players who are signed to a minor league contract.

Mayor Bill Whedbee has proclaimed the week of August 16 as "Little League Week" in honor of the Regional Little League tournament to be held here on August 17-18-19-20. Seven southeastern states will be represented in the tourney.

National Headquarters of Pony League Baseball announced today that dates for the various district and regional tournaments throughout the United States have been set. A total of 288 leagues, with nearly 20,000 players, is sanctioned by Pony League this year. Comedian Joe E. Brown is president of the program, and will be on hand for the national tournament on August 17.

Bill Veeck, the boss of the Browns who was turned down in Baltimore, is expected to move to Philadelphia.

Browns Expected To Move Location For '54 Season

CINCINNATI, O. (UP)—There was little or no doubt today that the St. Louis Browns would be moved to another city at the conclusion of the 1953 season. The big guess was which one.

There also was the possibility that the Philadelphia Athletics might be switched. And any other club owner who is tired of seeing red figures in the bookkeeping now can make plans for a transfer with a reasonable chance of it going through.

The major leagues Monday passed a rule whereby all such transfers will be made in the future between Oct. 1 and Dec. 1. Off hand, that would seem to restrict things, but actually it would expedite them.

The new rule has the blessing of Commissioner Ford Frick, who demanded it be put in effect.

"From now on whenever the question of a franchise transfer comes up and it is to be voted on by the league involved, it will be done legally and according to the official procedure," he said. "All rules will be observed."

Without further comment he indicated that the fast-moving developments of last spring, in which the Boston Braves were moved to Milwaukee and the Browns were almost moved to Baltimore, were almost breaking existing rules, if not breaking them.

"This certainly was the most important item on our agenda," Frick said. "And, provided the leagues themselves voted for a change in a franchise, I would go right along with them after scrutinizing the new people coming in to see if they reasonably honest and decent."

Bill Veeck, the boss of the Browns who was turned down in Baltimore, is expected to move to Philadelphia.

OCEANPORT, N. J. (AP)—Calumet Farm's Bubbly, winner of the Kentucky Oaks, and Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Cerise Reins, winner in the Delaware Oaks, each hold a victory over the other. They will have an opportunity of settling their feud in the $50,000 Monmouth Oaks at Monmouth Park on Aug. 8. Also among eligible fillies is John S. Phipps' Spinning Top, winner of the Black-eyed Susan at Pimlico.

Sluggers Give Nationals Advantage Today

Senior Loop Is 13-10 Favorite Over Americans

By CARL LUNDQUIST
CINCINNATI, O. (UP)—The greatest array of home run hitters since the heyday of Babe Ruth was picked to make it four victories in a row for the National League today in baseball's annual All-Star classic.

Rugged Robin Roberts of the Phillies, who has 14 victories, more than any other hurler in the big league, was slated to start for the Nationals, opposed by 10-game winner Billy Pierce of the White Sox for the American League.

The Nationals' "muscle brigade" was listed as a 13-10 favorite in the game scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m. e. d. t. at Crosley Field under sunny skies.

There was power reminiscent of the golden era of Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx on display. Only this time it was set to do its collective swinging for the National instead of the American League.

National League Manager Charley Dressen of the Brooklyn Dodgers, whose starting team was selected for him by a nationwide vote of fans said "from now on I'm all for grandstand managers."

"They really picked me a lulu of a ball club," he added.

That club has hit a total of 127 home runs so far this season and every man in the lineup down to pitcher Roberts is a threat to blast the ball right out of tiny Crosley Field.

It contains the top four home run sluggers in the majors today, third baseman Ed Mathews of Milwaukee with 27, first baseman Ted Kluszewski of Cincinnati with 25, and catcher Roy Campanella of Brooklyn and center fielder Gus Bell of Cincinnati with 22 apiece.

All this the Nationals have—and Stan Musial, too.

Musial, whose only batting jinx has been described as slowing down between second and third running out triples, might well be the most formidable man in the lineup since he is a seasoned All-Star performer and is moving up fast in the hitting ranks after one of the worst slumps of his career.

Roberts, whose 14 victories put him right on his timetable for the 28 victories which he achieved last year in baseball's biggest winner since Dizzy Dean and he is eager to work, even though he pitched a full nine innings against Pittsburgh Sunday.

"I'm supposed to be a workhorse and I ought to be able to go three innings without any trouble because my arm feels real loose," he said. "Besides, with that lineup I've got behind me, a guy shouldn't have to pitch a no-hitter. Did you take a look at those sluggers?"

The guy first responsible for taking that look will be Pierce, a left hander, and while he was impressed, he wasn't scared.

"We've got some boys ourselves who can hit that ball a mile," he said. "Sure, they're going to be tough and I'm not kidding myself that it will be any easier because I'm a left hander and most of them are left handed hitters. It is the kind of a game that can be decided by just one big swing of the bat and I'm just hoping that one of our fellows will do the swinging."

Manager Casey Stengel of the American League, still without a victory in three years at the helm, said he would wait until he gets to the park before deciding who will relieve Pierce after the first three innings, but it will have to be a right hander because Pierce was the only southpaw he picked.

The guessing is that it would be his own right hander Johnny Sain, who has been particularly effective this year and who used to be a National Leaguer himself. Stengel also made a strong case for the incomparable old Satchel Paige of the Browns, who he has called "the greatest relief pitcher in baseball."

"I might finish up with him," he said. "Last year I was all set to bring him in when it rained and I didn't get a chance. I got rained out of that game and I think we would have won it. It doesn't look like we'll have any rain this time and maybe we'll win this one instead."

Dressen said he would use either Warren Spahn of Milwaukee or Curt Simmons of the Phils, both left handers in relief of Roberts and that it probably would be Spahn because "I don't like to use up two pitchers from one team unless we have to win it and then, of course, I'd use everybody in sight."

But the little skipper of the Dodgers made it plain that he would like to stick with his power packed predominantly left lineup most of the way. He'll replace switch hitter Red Schoendienst of the Cardinals early in the game because he is hampered by injuries, but the others may go quite awhile longer until he has a chance to make use of such key defense men as his own Jackie Robinson, Duke Snider, Gil Hodges and Carl Furillo, and Richie Ashburn of the Phillies. They're the most solid replacements available and none would weaken the starting lineup—either at bat or in field.

Kiwans Win; Assured Of Tie

The Kiwans assured themselves of at least a tie for the first place in the final standings of the second half yesterday by edging the Lions, 2-1.

Bobby Edwards of the Kiwans came out on top in a personal pitching duel with Charles Staton. Both hurlers allowed out three hits in the well-kept contest, but Staton weakened in the top of the sixth to allow the Kiwans to push across two runs to win the game.

Edwards had perfect control throughout the game, fanning 15 men in the six-inning game and did not issue a base on balls. Staton walked four, but fanned 14.

Donald Speight led off the top of the sixth for the winners with a single, and Williams walked. Both runners came home when Jimmie Rogers slashed a long double into the outfield.

The Lions had taken the lead in the first when they scored their only run.

Score by innings:
Kiwans 000 002-2 3
Lions 100 000-1 3

Nelson To Head Wrestling Card

"The fans will like this boy Nelson!" So said Babe Sharkey, former world's wrestling title holder. The Babe, who books the best wrestling stars in the business for the weekly wrestling shows sponsored in Greenville by Hugh T. Harder and Woodrow Worthington, was referring to Art Nelson who will wrestle Jack Moore in the semi-final match Wednesday night at the New Enterprise Warehouse. The program begins at 8:30 p. m.

Nelson, who hails from Marietta, Ga., is a giant of a man. He tips the scales at 235 pounds and is every inch a man. He looks and wrestles like the famous Hans Schnabel. In fact, he is often mistaken for big Hans.

The main event will feature Bob Clay and Matt Murphy in a resumption of their rivalry, which started here last week and resulted in the demand of many fans for a return engagement. Both Clay and Murphy are orthodox, scientific performers and they can thrill the crowd with their skilful antics.

Tinker Todd, who always sets well with the fans, will meet a tough opponent in the rugged, uncanny Gene Blakely in one of the preliminaries, and blond Rip Hawk will meet Gino Angelo in the other.

CHICAGO: Alan Moody 145 1-2, Robbins, Ill., stopped Waldo Fusaro, 145 1-2, Rome, Italy (6).

Omer (Pete) Bogan, defending champion from Montebello, Calif., moved into the round of 128 Monday at the expense of Leroy Parrish, of Ontario, Ore.

In today's round besides Bogan, are others who played Monday and 56 who drew first-round byes.

The sharpest shooter in the first round was a 32-year old Seattle public accountant named George Earnest, who set a competitive record on the tough 6,400-yard par 71 West Seattle course in 66 strokes. He eliminated Norm Asmus, SSalt Lake City, 5 and 3.

Dave Stanley of Los Angeles, Stanley Bielst of Yonkers, N. Y., and Andrew Swedko of Pittsburgh, Pa., all winners of the tourney in other years, also made it through the first round.

Stanley beat Jimmie Arnes, Louisville, Ky., 4 and 3 while Bielst, the 1950 winner, had his troubles before taking 19-year old Anthony Lema, Oakland, Calif., 2 and 1. Swedko moved up with a bye.

Today's match play cuts the field to 64.

Williams Attends All-Star Contest

CINCINNATI, O. (UP)—Ted Williams, a 407-hitter in nine All-Star games, was present at Crosley Field for today's 20th mid-season classic but only as a spectator.

Ted, recently returned from Korea where he flew 37 missions as a Marine pilot, will be introduced to the crowd before the game. Then he'll occupy a guest of honor box seat as his one-time A. L. teammate

Home Builders pushed across a single run in the bottom of the seventh last night to hand Carolina Dairies its first defeat of the second half of play in the Men's Softball League. Garner-Wynne-Manning beat Wagner-Waldrop, 6-1, in the other contest.

Ford McGowan led off the big seventh with a single, and Bill Kittrell reached base on an unsuccessful fielder's choice. Arnold Averette singled to load the bases. Whit Mallory then connected for a clean single to score McGowan with the winning run to break up the contest.

McGowan led the hitting for the winners with two safeties in as many times at bat. Kittrell had two singles in four tries. Pete Caraway, with two singles, led the losers' attack.

Wagner-Waldrop threatened in every inning of the first game, but could not get the hits when they counted. They had at least two men on base in every inning except the third.

Garner-Wynne-Manning took control of the game with three runs in the third. Archie Roebuck singled and Fred Joseph walked. Frank Manley was safe on an attempted fielder's choice. And Johnny Poell walked. John Moore singled and Roeland was safe on error. Billy Jordan and Phillips struck out, and Tom Boyd filed out to end the inning.

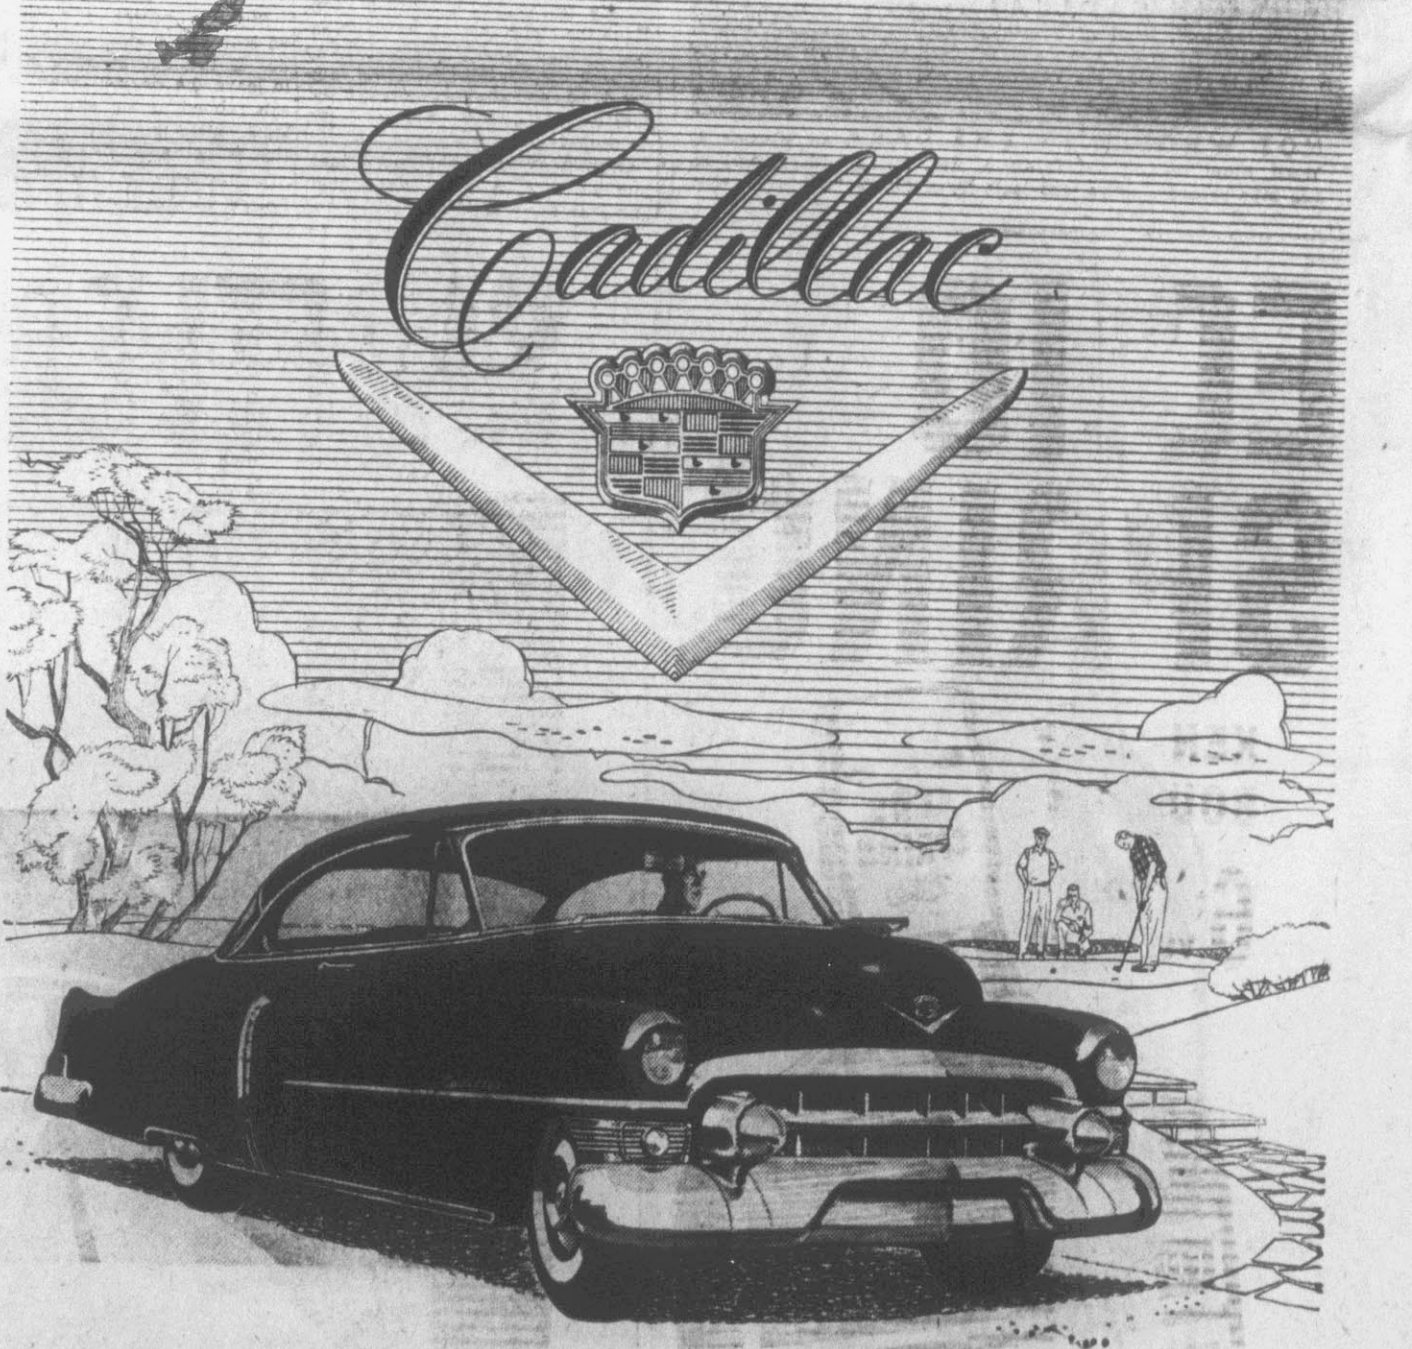

Joseph, with a double in one official time at bat, led the winners. Dallas Evans collected two singles in three times at bat for the losers.

Score by innings:
Wagner-Waldrop 010 00-1 7
G-W-M 105 11-6 5
Umstead and Edwards; Phillips and Roland.

It May Cost Less than the Car You Own!

Surprised by the statement above? Then listen, for a moment, to these amazing facts:

The beautiful motorcar pictured here is actually priced lower than twenty-two different models of other motorcars built and sold in America.

Its gasoline economy is so extraordinary that it will travel farther on a gallon of gasoline than many cars of far less stature and size.

Its dependability is so great that, over a normal span of ownership, it will probably cost as little to operate and maintain as any car you could buy. Records of certain fleet operators indicate this.

And authoritative records reveal that this Cadillac may be expected to return a greater percentage of its owner's investment, at the time of resale, than any other motorcar built in America.

Perhaps your surprise has changed to concern.

If The U.S. Were In Korea's Place-

By EARNEST HOBERECHT
United Press Staff Correspondent
SEOUL (U.P.)—The Korean people have some very natural human desires.

"They want peace, rest and a better life. But at the same time they feel their divided homeland must be unified."

After three years of war, the country is torn and battered. The standard of living has dropped to almost zero for most of the people. Few can consider themselves more than refugees.

Still they have pride and a burning desire to see both North and South Korea brought together again.

"We've been sad ever since the 38th Parallel became a barrier between the North and South," said a Korean business man. "We are one country and one people. There never was any difference between the North and the South. The division is false; it was created by outsiders."

The United States and Russia selected the dividing line between American and Russian troops accepting the Japanese surrender here after World War II.

"Most Americans don't understand the situation in Korea today," a member of the Korean government said.

Here is the way he believes it should be explained to the citizens of the United States:

"Just imagine that some foreign powers drew a line across the United States. Then imagine that the American Civil War began."

"The Northern troops pushed South and almost won the war. Just when victory looked certain imagine that Mexico came in on the side of the South and the reinforced Southern troops pushed up and captured Washington D.C."

"About this time, imagine that Canada came into the war and pushed the South and Mexico back to the dividing line which earlier had been drawn up by foreign powers."

"That would put the United States in the same position as Korea is today."

However, as the Koreans readily point out, the war in Korea did not begin because North and South Korea had differences.

South Koreans point to the millions of North Koreans who have fled to the south as proof of the claim that the people above the 38th Parallel dislike Communism, too.

Once 10,000,000 in number, the North Koreans above the 38th Parallel today are estimated to be no more than about 3,000,000.

South Korean masses today appear to be caught within conflicting emotions. They are glad there will be a truce, but they hope the country soon can be unified.

Student Duels In German Schools Again Is Revived

BONN, Germany (U.P.)—Most West German university student corporations now require members to fight at least one duel, while some demand six, the weekly magazine, Spiegel, has reported.

Duelling has been revived, Spiegel said, by the generations either too old or too young to fight in World War II. The so-called "front generation" came home seeking only jobs and peace.

But 93 of the 97 student corporations which form the Coburg Convent, one of four West German-wide student organizations, now require each member to fight at least one duel, the magazine declared. Twenty-four of these corporations require at least two, 16 require three, eight require four, four require five, and one, in Muenster, requires six duels before members are fully accepted into the corporation.

"The Old Men," alumni who control the corporations because they provide their funds, started the movement to revive duelling after the Nazi government, which outlawed it, fell in 1948.

The "front generation," which filled the universities in the immediate postwar years, had little interest in duelling, having learned enough of "comradeship" and courage in the face of the enemy in seven long years of disastrous war.

Authorities Fight It
But the universities now are filled with the "front generations" who were just too young to fight in the last war, and who feel they have to prove their courage by acquiring a flaming cheek scar in a sword or saber match.

As Berlin delegates to the 1951 meeting of the "Coburg Convent" put it, "we cannot arrange a war for every generation!"
The government has tried to prevent the revival of duelling, but recently the federal courts acquitted a Goettingen student accused of illegal duelling, so the government appears to have lost the fight.

Only the school authorities continue the struggle. Their chief weapon is their power to outlaw any student corporation found arranging duels, and that weapon is used sparingly by rectors with one eye on moneyed alumni.
German students have been dueling as long as there have been universities, and have withstood the attacks of scores of governments. There have been just enough high-ranking supporters of student duelling, such as Kaiser Wilhelm II, who claimed it brought out "the courage and the strength needed later in life," to keep them going.

FAREWELL TO EVEREST — Sir Edmund Hillary, Col. John Hunt and Tenzing of Nepal look at Mount Everest as they leave area after Hillary and Tenzing had scaled the peak.

Scars of Honor
Opponents of duelling say that, aside from the human mutilation involved, it tends to take priority over study which, after all, is the reason universities are operated.

Duelling has undergone a considerable change since the 18th century, when the challenger would go, sword in hand, around to the home of a prospective opponent and shout insults at him from the street, until the man challenged would storm downstairs to do battle. A lot of students died in duels in those days.

Nowadays, however, students wear protective clothing and their eyes are covered by goggles. But the faces remain unprotected, to ensure that sooner or later the face will be cut by a sharp saber tip.
Students prefer a three-cornered scar, but a long, curved one will do. If the cut is so thin as not to leave the desired scar, a bit of salt rubbed in the wound does the trick, although strictly speaking, this is not sporting.
A Frankfurt lawyer wrote to Spiegel complaining about its dueling expose.

"You just don't understand why we duel," he wrote. "Boxing is just as bloody, but you never attack that sport."

Mr. Chips Cuts Silverware Dies

WALLINGFORD, Conn. (U.P.)—There is a teacher here who looks like Mr. Chips and his students say he is as inspirational as that fictional British schoolmaster, but the things he teaches can't be found in books.

Albert Padley has been a silversmith all his life, a creator of the delicately carved steel block dies from which silverware patterns are made.

Now, he is teaching his exacting profession to eight ex-G.I's. Each student gets 8,000 hours of training at good pay under Padley's personal supervision.
Sometime ago Wallace Silver-Smith suddenly realized nothing was being done to develop new hand die-makers and that the old-times were getting scarce.
The job of hand die-maker requires even temperament, patience, perseverance and a sense of art. The job of teaching requires understanding, patience, wisdom.

"A man must devote his soul to this craft," Padley said.

The classroom is well-lighted and each student has a bench that is outfitted with hundreds of small steel cutting chisels. The students are taught to make their own tools, too.

The students call Padley "The Professor" and rib him now and then in order to lessen the tension of their job.

The walls of the classroom are like those of a barracks.
"Pin-ups," said the scholarly Padley, "but my boys don't whistle—they're used to curves."

Sun 'Wiggles' In Odd Phenomenon

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Excited people swamped the weather bureau here with telephone calls reporting the sun was jumping and wiggling and turning green.

The weather bureau had an explanation.
Dust was rising to a height of 25,000 feet 200 miles to the west. The dust caused the odd color, and an inversion air layer made the sun seem to go through surprising motions.

Police, Firemen Salaries Rising

CHICAGO (U.P.)—A recent survey by the International City Managers' Association showed that salaries of firemen and policemen are increasing and their working hours decreasing. The number of full-time firemen-and-policemen per 1,000 population is rising steadily.

The survey showed that the average city over 10,000 population employs 1.24 full-time firemen and 1.35 policemen for every 1,000 residents.

Policemen's salaries have risen $200 to $380 above last year, while salaries of firemen have gone up $100 to $200.

for firemen range from $3,042 in cities from 10,000 to 25,000 to a high of $3,687 in cities over half a million residents. Maximum salaries range from $3,300 to $4,400 in the same population groups.

Salaries for policemen range from a minimum of $3,093 in smaller cities to $3,600 in larger cities. Maximum salaries are from $3,376 to $4,400.

Seventy-two hours is still the average work week for firemen in cities under 100,000 population. Firemen work an average of 67 hours in cities between 100,000 and 250,000, and 60 hours in cities over 500,000.

Policemen work an average of 44 hours in cities of over half a million population and 48 hours in all other cities.

A total of 139 cities reduced the policeman's work week during 1952. Sixty-six cities reduced the work week to 40 hours; 28 to 44 hours, and 45 to 48 hours.

TEEN TALK

BY VIVIAN BROWN

AF Newsfeatures:.....

A girl has just so many youthful summers. Why waste one? But lots of times we do. And then when the summer is over and romances have been counted, it is amazing to find that the summer was expendable.

Many a girl sees Dan Cupid in the bronzed brawn, smooth speech and gallant manners of a summer Romeo, only to find that her dreams are chilled by the autumn air.

So — before you give up good pals, an interesting and lucrative summer job and perhaps an educational form of recreation for a new heartthrob, give yourself this C.Q. (Cupid Quiz) to see if you are wasting time:

1. Are you impressed with his moonlight manners and sun-soaked veneer and will it stand up under a fall shower?
2. Does he disagree with your theories about family, religion, politics and make an issue of it? Or does he try to understand your point of view?
3. Has he said he really cares or have you been sniffing orange blossoms from his sweet and glib talk?
4. Does he rave about his mother's cooking, and criticize everything he eats away from home?
5. Is he tolerant of your lack of know-how when it comes to such sports as swimming, golf, fishing, tennis? Or does he criticize your honest efforts?
6. Do you feel that you could improve him, especially those ghastly ties and suits he wears, and the way he drops his "g's" and "r's"?
7. Do you have more education than he does and would this give you an inferiority complex?
8. Do you have mutual enjoyment of a few things or does he scorn your interest in music and you his enthusiasm for baseball?
9. Do you like his parents? And could you live under the same roof with them if you were compelled to?
10. Do your parents like him? If not what are their objections and are their criticisms justified? Perhaps these pointers seem unimportant to you now, but the swain who pitches the best woo doesn't always make the most desirable husband and most times doesn't even propose. While it does seem to be rushing the orange blossoms to look at your date as a future husband, it really isn't when you consider how slim present-day pickings are, and how short-lived a girl's romantic life is.

The goal of most girls is to marry. So why waste your time with bad prospects while prize flier are being hooked by more than three girls between 17 and 19 years of age is married, so you have a busy brigade out with their fishnets while you idle away your time.

If every girl dated a boy thinking of him as a marriage prospect, there would be fewer bachelor girls. Every smart girl would discard the boy who did not suit her requirements of a husband at once and precious years, months, weeks and days would be saved.

It is silly to date any boy just to pass the time away, unless he invited you to a large soiree where you can meet other young men. But some girls aren't happy unless they can dangle on man until they find another.

Women Making Greater Imprint

CLEVELAND O. (U.P.)—Women's feet are averaging a full size larger than 25 years ago, according to evidence brought out at the annual convention of the Ohio Chiroprodists' Association.

Dr. Neil C. MacBane explained that this is part of the over-all development of the human race. "People are taller than they used to be," Dr. MacBane said, "and their feet are proportionately larger."

He also cited a point that may come as a shock to males: "Women are more sensible (today) about shoes."

"They no longer crowd their feet into small shoes as they used to do," he added. "The younger generations have permitted their feet to stretch to normal length."

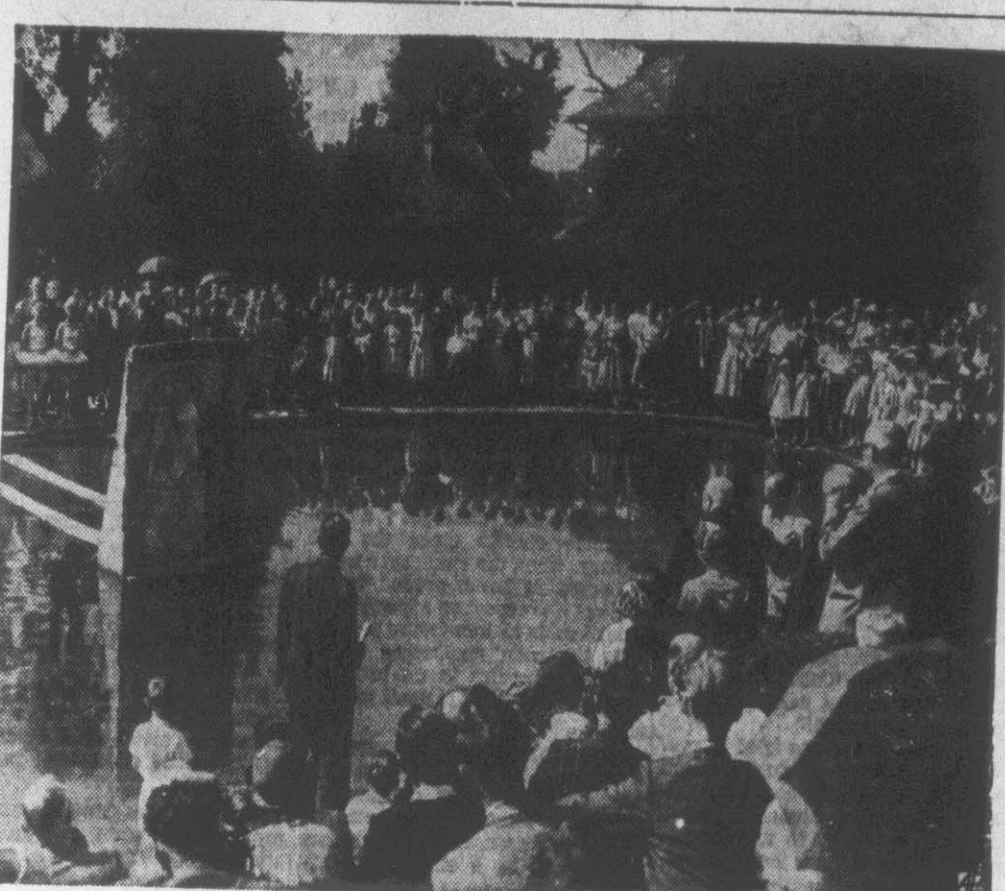

However, Dr. MacBane warned against too much foot freedom and pointed particularly to "flatties" popular with teen-agers. No arch support, he said.

"In later years these teen-agers may be troubled by foot or back trouble and bad posture," he added.

Dr. MacBane reported that nine of 10 adults have some sort of foot trouble, but that "only five per cent do anything about it."

Some Entertainers Give Much To GIs

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS, United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON UP—You have to hand it to some of those in the entertainment field who give their time and talent to entertain service folks.

Horace Heidt recently returned from a tour of camps in Europe. He paid his own way, except for transportation supplied by the government. And now what? The old-timer who has been on top for over 20 years is waiting for orders to go to Korea. Heidt isn't the only one.

Barney Breekin, popular local band leader, is leaving his stand at the Shoreham Hotel for a good will mission to Italy. He will escort an International Cadet Exchange Group, sponsored by the Civil Air Patrol. Recently, Barnee became a CAP adviser with the rank of colonel.

Barnee, too, will pay for his own freight to help CAP promote its program of aviation development. His interest in CAP prompted him to take up flying—at the age of 42. He received his navigator's license this very day.

Barnee has been at the same stand here for 23 years. He has received many distinctions. For one thing he claims to be the only band leader ever written up in the Congressional Record.

In 1951, notable friend of the government pitched a big nose-down in honor of Breekin's 50th anniversary with the hotel. Government officials forgot party lines. There were speeches by diplomats and others, and hundreds cheered.

All of this prompted Sen. Bill Langer, the North Dakota Republican, to take the Senate floor and make a spiel about the virtues of Barnee. The senator pulled out all the stops and the next day his remarks were inserted into the Record.

In all of his years on the stand, the orchestra man has never taken an extended leave of absence—until now.

He and the cadets will leave in an Air Force Constellation on July 23 for Rome. While there, the group will have an audience with the Pope and other dignitaries.

Barnee will have his ear cocked for music while he is in Italy and France. He plans to collect top dance tunes of each nation and later will give his own version of the music back home.

State Bounty On Grasshoppers

CONCORD, N. H. (AP) — New Hampshire, the only state in the nation with a bounty on porcupine, has another rare one — but no takers.

A statute put on the books in 1883 — and never repealed — gives $1 to anyone showing his town selectman a bushel basket of grasshoppers.

But State Treasurer Alfred S. Cloues is uncertain if the bounty was ever paid or why the law was passed. But it stipulates that grasshoppers must be caught during June and July.

Disease In Dust Raised By Army Tanks In Texas

TEMPLE, Tex. (AP) — Huge clouds of dust raised by maneuvering Army tanks may be responsible for the prevalence of two lung diseases in the Fort Hood area.

The diseases are coccidioidomycosis and histoplasmosis, fungus diseases of the lungs sometimes mistaken for tuberculosis.

U.S. Public Health Service officers and members of the Bell County Health Unit staff are testing school children in the Fort Hood area for presence of the diseases. The State Health department and Bell County Tuberculosis Association are cooperating.

"Three fungus (causing the disease) are soil-borne organisms," Dr. Harry Frey explained, "and the huge dust clouds caused by tank maneuvers can reasonably be expected to drift over the area bearing the diseases."

Jap Considers Invasion Chances

SINGAPORE (AP) — Japan's Formosa, Kenichi Yoshizawa, said in Singapore General Chiang Kai-shek can invade the China mainland now, but might not do so for some time.

If Chiang launched an invasion, his forces might be assisted by United States naval and air forces, he added.

On a tour of Southeast Asia studying Chinese economy and political thought, Yoshizawa said he believed the United Nations would act should the Chinese Communists attack Formosa after signing of a Korean armistice.

Inflation Felt By Yugoslavia

BELGRADE (AP)—Prices are shooting up in Yugoslavia, partly as a result of last year's severe drought, partly because cold weather and heavy rains have delayed seasonal crops this year.

During the winter, widespread slaughter of livestock because of the lack of fodder brought meat prices down. With spring, the process was reversed as the farmers turned their livestock out to pasture. Meat prices have almost doubled and are still increasing.

A prospective bumper wheat harvest may bring prices down.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks lost a few cents on average on slightly increased volume during the morning trading today.

Net changes for the most part held to small fractions. Here and there a change of a point or more was noted, but always on small volume, indicating lack of demand rather than sales pressure.

The rails furnished two soft spots—Rock Island which lost a point on top of a 2-point drop yesterday, and Union Pacific off 1-1/4 points. Northern Pacific was off nearly a point. Nickel Plate had a small gain. Southern Pacific held unchanged.

A firm tone was noted in several oils and steels. Republic Steel rose 1-2 on a good earnings report. U. S. Steel and Youngstown Sheet had small gains.

Borg-Warner lost 1-1/2 points to a new low at 71 3/4 and then came back to 72 1/4. American Woolen rallied after selling at a new low of 18 3/4 off 5-8. Kennecott and Raytheon also set new lows and a long list, including Chrysler, Richfield Oil and Studebaker equaled their lows.

Dr. Humbert ...

time we must have many hundreds of thousands pints of blood," stated the blood program chairman.

"It is up to the people of this area and all over the United States to see that persons in polo areas are given this protection," he said.

"Locally, the use of blood at Pitt Memorial Hospital has been without parallel in its aid to physicians in treating patients," stated Dr. Humbert. "In the United States over the July 4 holiday, 250 persons were killed in automobile accidents. An additional 7,000 were injured and of these 900 are alive today because of excellent medical care, adequate hospitalization, and the immediate availability of whole blood.

"There is no substitute for whole blood when whole blood is the product needed.

"We are starting plans for the bloodmobile visits from the Tidewater Region at Norfolk. The first visits will be August 10 in Grifton at the Christian Church from one to seven p.m. and on Tuesday, August 11, in Greenville at St. Paul's Episcopal Church from 9:30 to 3:30.

"It is hoped that everyone will mark those dates and they, their relatives, and friends are urged for the sake of themselves and others to plan to be a blood donor."

Little Effect Here As Result Of New System

Greenville's system of issuing driver's licenses is not expected to be greatly affected by a new appointment system put into effect by the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles Monday.

According to Harry L. Martin, examiner for this area, motorists without appointment seldom come in such numbers at one time that they are required to wait.

About the largest number coming at one time, he said, is 12. While one is being given the eye test, he pointed out, the others can be working on their written examinations.

"So there seldom is any waiting for those applying for the tests," he said.

Martin said he has an average of 20 applicants a day and about a third of these are new drivers for whom road tests are given.

Under the new streamlined system approved by the Motor Vehicles Department, license examiners may schedule appointments with applicants at 3-minute intervals throughout the day. The first 15 minutes of the half-hour intervals will be reserved for appointments and the other 15 for waiting applicants.

Man Jailed, Bond Set For Assault

A Pitt county Negro was in county jail today charged with assaulting a 16-year-old Negro girl with a wrench.

He is James Earl Chapman, 21, a serviceman on leave, accused of assaulting Nine Lee Daniels at Guy Sutton's farm near U. S. Highway 264 last night.

Sheriff's officers said today the scalp wounds the girl sustained did not appear serious. They said she indicated, however, she would seek treatment by a doctor this morning.

Bond for Chapman was set at $200 pending hearing of his case in Recorder's Court on July 28.

Making the arrest were Sheriff's Deputies Lloyd Manning and Jasper Lee Mills. The call was relayed to the county officers by way of the Greenville city police about 12 midnight.

Manning said the alleged incident took place along a dirt road leading to the farmhouse which is about three miles west of Greenville.

New Floor Care Ends Waxing

One of the most difficult jobs at housekeeping is to keep linoleum and asphalt tile floors waxed and gleaming. Now, thanks to Glaxo, it is no longer necessary to wax and scrub. All you do is apply Glaxo with a brush about twice a year. It maintains a high lustre, non slip coating that seals out dirt. Glaxo dries in one hour and is water clear. It's cheaper than wax in the long run, besides saving a terrific amount of work, plus truly a beautiful floor. Glaxo is available at Bell-Tyers Co., Third Floor.
