By FREDERICK C. PAINTON United Press Staff Correspondent SEOUL, Korea, Friday (UP)—South Korean and American forces launched a surprise counter-offensive against 80,000 Chinese on the flaming central front Thursday, and gouged out a one-mile gain before being halted by stiffened Red resistance.

One of the Red battalions pushed 200 yards into ROK defenses on the left, but the right and center held firm.

Driver Went Into Ditch In Avoiding Child Riding Bicycle On Rural Road

A truck operated by James Milton Hopkins, Negro, of Greenville had to "take to a ditch" yesterday to avoid striking a child riding a bicycle on a rural road.

Patrolman D. E. Perry quoted the driver as saying he was traveling about 45 miles per hour on a rural road near Whitchard's Station when he saw a small child riding a bicycle, going in the same direction.

Hopkins said as he blew his horn the child pulled to the right and then to the left. To avoid hitting the child, he ran into a ditch and turned over.

No injuries were reported and damage to the truck was estimated at $175. No charges were made.

Two drivers were charged in an accident Tuesday at the intersection of a rural road near Big Oak.

Patrolman Perry charged the driver of an oil truck, Fred Lee

Mozingo, 33, of Bethel, with passing at an intersection and Leroy Smith, 33, of Bethel, driver of the car with failure to give a hand signal.

The patrolman stated that as Smith was attempting to make a left turn, Mazingo attempted to pass him, the vehicles colliding.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $150 and the car was said to be a total loss. No injuries were reported.

Will Telephone Rate Fight Go On?

Telephone rates in Eastern North Carolina are going up again for the fifth time since the end of World War II.

The latest decision by the State Utilities Commission authorizes the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company to up its rates again to bring another $537,210 into its revenues. The figure is considerably less than the $2,150,000 in increased revenues requested by the company, but nevertheless is probably more than subscribers to the service had hoped to pay.

There can be little doubt that the fight put up by individual cities and towns in the area served by Carolina Tel and Tel had its effect upon the hearings on proposed increases before the Utilities Commission. The communities did not win their battle to keep off any increases, but in our opinion their fight was a factor in the granted increase being as small as it was.

Nevertheless the fight between the telephone company for higher rates and the subscribers for lower rates is not over. President L. W. Hill of the company already has warned "it no doubt would be necessary to make further applications for relief to the commission."

In view of that, it probably would not be amiss for individual communities involved with the company in the most recent fracas before the Commission to determine whether their fight against rate increases will be abandoned after the first round or will continue in future rounds.

If the latter is the choice — at it might well be — it seems to us the time to begin

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
A TRUTH HARD TO FACE

The Bible is a realistic book. It has a lot to say about sin and repentance. It has even more to say about love—especially the love of God for man.

But it also talks about the wrath of God. And no Biblical writer ever keeps his voice down or mutes the accents of terror when he speaks about the wrath of God. The Bible from beginning to end pictures this wrath as a terrifying and devastating thing, entirely consistent with God's love. Once it is turned loose, the offender may well cry for the hills to fall upon him and the great waters to swallow him. The wrath of God may be the death knell sounded over earthly hopes or the harbinger of eternal disappointment and sorrow.

A soft-hearted, easy-going generation whose religion quickly degenerates into sentimental schemes for social betterment, turns away with revulsion and amazement from the concept of God's wrath. But the wrath of God is very real. Anyone contemplating an evil course of action should ponder this. Forgiveness is the repentant sinner arise and face God with the realization that God has put away his sin and restored him to the divine household as a son. But for the unrepentant—the willful sinner who keeps on his headstrong course of evil—the divinely attested doctrine of the wrath of God should sound a solemn warning.

Gov't Power Monopoly Broken

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The Roosevelt-Truman-Ickes program for creating a nationwide government monopoly of power production and distribution has been halted by a Republican Congress and Administration. The White House and Capitol Hill have finally given the green light to private as against Federal development of the nation's basic water resources.

This counter-revolution in this important economic area is one of the most significant but least recognized events of the Eisenhower regime. For, as Congress and the Supreme Court have held on numerous occasions, if Uncle Sam could manufacture and sell hydroelectricity on a large scale, he also could engage in the production and marketing of shoes, bread and any other commodity.

This theory reached its climax in former President Truman's unsuccessful attempt to take over the nation's steel plants.

EISENHOWER FOR PRIVATE POWER—Although Eisenhower seemed to waver now and then in this clash between the public and private power advocates, he finally landed in the camp of the private interests. In the main, however, it was bipartisan action by Congress that reversed the Roosevelt-Truman-Ickes trend and philosophy.

As essential background before reporting details of this new, counter-revolutionary movement, it is necessary to begin with F.D.R.'s inauguration of the Tennessee Valley Authority. I was present as a New York World-Telegram reporter when the late President first outlined the TVA program on the veranda of our cottage at Warm Springs in 1933. It was one of the most magnificent moments in almost 40 years of newspaper work.

As F.D.R. explained it, power production was to be only a TVA sideline. TVA, he told us, would provide employment. Secondly, it was designed to contribute to control of floods, improve navigation, aid in conservation and in what was then a new word to most Americans—re-forestation.

With that kind of primitive appeal, he persuaded Congress to launch TVA.

TVA POWER PRODUCTION QZAR—But what F.D.R. planned, although he denied it when I asked the question on that memorable Georgia afternoon, was to put the government into the power business in a big way, producing, selling and marketing heat, light and energy to individual, community and corporate consumers.

Despite his denial, TVA is now an absolute czar of power production and distribution in its area. The states, the cities and the industries there are utterly dependent on the Presidentially-appointed TVA commissioners, who determine the rates and the flow of this basic commodity—power.

In recent letters begging Congress not to strangle the TVA territory by reducing TVA's appropriations, which drew a sharp reply from Representative Ralph W. Gwinn of New York, Governor Frank G. Clement laying groundwork is now.

Who won the recent round before the commission is a matter of opinion. It is probable from statements made since Tuesday's announcement that the company thinks the people had the edge in the round, and the subscribers fighting the increase think the company got the better end of the Utilities Commission's decision.

One thing is sure. Most subscribers apparently felt they were paying quite enough for telephone service before this new increase. From now on, they are going to be paying higher rates than they were before the Utilities Commission order was issued increasing existing rates.

School-Consciousness Continues To Grow

Requests to the Pitt County Board of Education for various expansion programs of individual school districts indicates a continued growth in "school consciousness" in Pitt County.

School-wise, Pitt has made a great deal of progress in recent years. In practically every school district of the county new school buildings have popped up in the past seven years. In addition to new school buildings, there have been major renovation and expansion work done on existing school buildings.

Yet for all this improvement, citizens of many individual school districts are not content that needs of their school children have yet been met. And they should not be, for when a school district — or any other subdivision — becomes satisfied to rest upon its laurels, it begins to go downhill.

There is no getting around the fact that each school improvement made costs taxpayers money. But so long as improvements are needed and are wisely put to use, the citizens generally seem willing to continue footing the bill while the school system forges ahead.

That is a healthy sign of progress in any county or any community.

The investment a community makes in its use is almost never an investment that does not pay great dividends in future years. In Pitt County the impetus for better schools and a better school system is growing as more and more citizens throw their full support to necessary school improvements. It is a factor which greatly enhances progress in the county.

Double Standard

Somebody Told Me . . .

Answers From An Educator

Tuesday night I was talking to D. H. Conley, Superintendent of Pitt County schools for the past 20 years, and asked him some questions that I had always wondered about. The main one: What is your theory on promotion of children who are not qualified to move up to the next grade?

Mr. Conley went into some detail on the question, but in general he said that such students are promoted because even though they are not qualified, in higher grades they often grasp some education that helps them later in life. The work of these students has to be adjusted to the student. For example, if a boy is promoted to the fifth grade and cannot do fifth grade work, he is retained and the teachers give him work on his level.

Just think what would happen if such students were denied schooling, because they lack ability. No doubt many of them would go astray, whereas Mr. Conley states that most of them become useful citizens.

Mr. Conley also answered this question: What is the greatest stride forward in education during your time in the profession? This answer came as no surprise: Twenty years ago the school was interested only in getting the subject matter on the printed page to the child. Now the school is concerned about the child's entertainment, health, and education. The school is interested in developing the child's talents, feeding him, and developing his personality.

Mr. Conley has 366 teachers under his direction and 80 per cent of the white teachers are graduates of East Carolina College. That means that our children here in Pitt County are 80 per cent taught under the theories of our college, which makes ECC a major influence in the county.

It is also interesting to note that among the white teachers Mr. Conley has about a 10 per cent turnover. Among the Negroes, it's only about one per cent.

If Mr. Conley were going to advise someone considering going into teaching he would be mainly concerned with this question: Are you sold on the profession? In order to give it what it requires, you certainly must be.

And I thank you.

BEWARE OF HITCHHIKERS
(Rocky Mount Telegram)

You're driving along in your car and ahead you see a stranger motioning with his thumb—the universal appeal of the hitchhiker for a lift.

You may be lonely and you may feel sorry for him. He may look tired or it may be raining. He looks like a clean-cut American kid and you remember when you yourself once "bummed" rides here and there. The Good Samaritan instinct comes out in you and so you stop the car and give him a ride.

You then lay yourself open to the greatest danger of being robbed, beaten or even murdered. It happens somewhere every day in the United States. In recent years, police reports show cases of highway robbery running into the thousands.

Being a good Joe, you can't believe the man you help would turn on you and do you in. However, you present him with terrible temptation. First of all you offer him an expensive car which besides being valuable gives him a quick means of escape. In the second place your wallet is bound to have enough cash to make robbery worthwhile. In the third place if you are suddenly hit over the head or shot, your body can be dumped in some lonely ditch and apprehension of the killer will be almost impossible.

J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director has issued repeated warnings to motorists to beware of hitchhikers. Motor Club authorities have warned that two of every five hitchhikers have criminal records.

Laws have been passed prohibiting hitchhiking, but motorists still ignore this official safeguard.

The next time you see a hitchhiker, pass him up. In these days of prosperity most anyone who doesn't have money enough to get where he wants to go is liable to be dangerous.

Important C-D Board Selections Were Overshadowed

By LYNN NISBET

C&D — Announcement of the new director and board of the department of conservation and development was overshadowed by the news of the senatorial appointment. Because the senate position is an elective office which the people must fill next year there was more immediate interest in that appointment. It is long range program of development of the economic, human and natural resources of North Carolina the C&D positions may be more important. Furthermore, the C&D selections lacked the surprise news value inherent in the naming of a virtually unknown man to the Senate. With one or two exceptions the departmental appointees are familiar to Tarheels who have had any interest in public affairs.

DIRECTOR — Governor Umstead picked Ben E. Douglas of Charlotte to succeed George R. Ross, who has reached retirement age, as director. Douglas is the go-getter type of business man with proven administrative ability. He has served as mayor of Charlotte, as highway commissioner for the old seventh division, and has figured in speculation as a potential candidate for both branches of the United States Congress and for Governor. His personal interests have been varied. He has been actively interested in the business of funeral director and embalmer, dry cleaner and furrier, real estate and other activities. He had a record of achievement in civic affairs and community development. Recognition of his contribution in this area led to naming the Charlotte airport for him.

HAPPY — His selection is regarded as particularly happy by many people concerned with North Carolina's industrial development and promotion of travel business. The campaign to bring new industry to this state is right down his alley. As director of civilian defense during the first half of the fighting period of the second world war he has Charlie Parker as chief assistant. His relations were so cordial and the results obtained so gratifying, there is reasonable assurance that Parker will be continued as director of State advertising, a job which he had done exceptionally well.

BOARD — With 15 members to name on the board Governor Umstead has announced 13, leaving two places to be filled later. He retained seven members of the former board, whose terms he had asked the General Assembly to end as of midnight June 30 this year, and named six new members. Who the other two will be nobody knows, but what is believed to be reliable sources indicate there will be an outstanding industrialist and a commercial fisherman. The board is already top-heavy with industrially-minded members. That is in keeping with Governor Umstead's known ideas on the subject, which found expression in his successful advocacy of an extra $100,000 a year allocation for industrial development research.

PERSONNEL — The statutes set out that in choosing board members the Governor shall consider the various interests of the state and select persons with this diversity in mind. Five of the six new appointees are definitely connected with industrial development, as is at least one of the holdovers. Cecil Morris of Atlantic might be properly credited to commercial fisheries, although he is not directly interested in that enterprise. The other new appointees are Robert M. Hanes of Winston-Salem, banker-industrialist; Carl Buchan Jr., of North Wilkesboro hardware and supply merchant; Max Watson of Forest City, hosiery manufacturer, merchant, and former highway commissioner; Leo Harvey of Kinston, banker and merchant, who has largely retired from private business and is devoting his time and energy to public service, and Amos Kearns of High Point, hosiery manufacturer.

HOLDOVERS — All of these new members, with possible exception of Morris, are primarily concerned with industry. So is also however, Miles J. Simin of Salisbury, chairman of the old board. Among the other holdovers are Walter J. Damtoft of Asheville, and industrialist with primary interest in forestry; Scoop W. Enloe Jr. of Spruce Pine, also an industrialist with primary concern for minerals; Charles S. Allen of Durham, banker and insurance man with almost equal interest in recreation; W.B. Austin of Jefferson, lawyer and farmer, with auxiliary interest in industrial and tourist development; Charles H. Jenkins of Aulander, automobile dealer also interested in fisheries and recreation; and Hugh Morton of Wilmington and Lenoire, perhaps the most versatile of them all, with primary interest in developing and promoting beach and mountain recreational facilities.

BIG JOB — The new director and board of conservation and development faces one of the biggest jobs ever confronting a State agency. It is getting off to a late start because since early this year it has been known that the old board was going out of office and the new folks had not been named until late last week. The meeting required by statute to be held at Morehead City in July has been called for the 27th to 29th. Right off the bat the board must select a chairman, consider numerous requests for changes in the commercial fisheries rules, and perhaps most important of all, approve an advertising allocation of some $150,000 a year and select an agency to handle the details of the advertising program. At no time since the department was set up more than 26 years ago has it gone into a new year with as "cold" a deck of cards as it must play with

Business Today

Cost Of Sales Calls

By ELMER ROESSNER

One of the key factors in any equation for profitable business operation is the cost of salesmen's calls. Obviously, if it costs a company $20 for each salesman's call and the average profit per order is $18, it is up to the sales manager to gear up salesmen for more calls a day or larger orders per call. On the other hand, if profits per order are considerably greater, it may pay a company to increase its sales staff and expand its territory.

But many companies have not calculated the cost per call. Twenty-three of 228 sales managers of firms selling in the industrial market were unable to supply adequate information on sales costs when polled by the Sales Executives Club of New York.

The average cost per call of those companies responding was $17.34. The costs ranged from $1 to $130 per call, with 8.2 per cent estimating costs under $5, 18 per cent at $5 to $9, 42.1 per cent at $10 to $19, 20.8 per cent at $20 to $30, and 10.9 per cent at over $30.

Interesting statistics, but not very significant except in relation to sales or profits per call—which the survey did not report on. Thirty dollars a call would be a high price to pay when selling several hundred dollars in a salesman's time and in entertainment, would be a good investment if it sold a $30,000 power shovel.

More significant were the figures on the number of orders obtained under different circumstances. While only 162 of the companies make cold calls, they reported an average of 9.2 orders per 100 such calls. On the other hand, an average of 16 orders per 100 resulted from calls following up leads obtained from advertisement. Results ranged from 1 to 80 sales per 100 calls following up advertisements, with 84.4 per cent reporting from 1 to 9 orders; 34.8 per cent reporting 10 to 19 orders, and 28.8 per cent reporting 20 or more.

When prospects had studied catalogue and invited salesmen to call, sales averaged 38.4 per 100 calls.

In another analysis of salesmen's costs, a food manufacturer found that it costs 69 cents a minute for a salesman to talk to a grocer, and that calls averaged 9 minutes. It cost 34 cents just to mention a product.

In calculating costs per call, business executives will err if they consider only salesmen's pay and expenses. Such costs as vacations, Social Security, pensions, hospitalization and other benefits, management and overhead should be reckoned.

GOVERNMENT IMPROVES . . . . . FOREIGN TRADE LISTS . . . . . The Department of Commerce's Office of International Trade has announced it is improving its lists of foreign business firms by including key market data relating to specific commodities and countries. Lists of dealers, importers and agents in many fields and in most countries are available from the department. They are useful in making sales or purchases abroad.

How To Control That Wallet

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The big problem of a June bride in July, when the honeymoon is over, is to teach her husband he can't throw away his money the way he did when he was courting her.

Her task in at least two out of three American homes is to take over the spending of the major part of the paycheck herself.

He asked a group of older married men how they would advise a bride on this problem. They expressed flat disbelief that any woman, even a tender bride, would listen to advice on matrimony from any man. But they were flattered at the idea—strange as it seemed to them.

They divided into two camps.

"The best thing for her to do is to let her husband handle the money until the landlord threatens to throw them out because they are behind in the rent, an auto loan company repossesses their car, and the department stores cut off their credit," was one view. "Then he'll be glad to turn the family finances over to her."

Those in the second camp thought this made about as much sense as the theory that the best way to cure an ache in the toe is to hit yourself over the head with a hammer.

"The thing for the bride to do is to take over the handling of her husband's income gradually," said one old-timer. "A newly married man is jealous of his money, because he has been used to spending it himself.

"You have to break him to the harness gradually, just as you do a colt. A horse gets so he has to take the harness. But if a wife breaks her husband in too fast he will resent her and the harness, too, all his life."

His fellow wise men nodded gravely.

"The best way is for the bride to divide the dough into three piles each payday—one pile for him, one for their bills, and one for her," said another. "Naturally, her own pile at the start will be so small that even her husband will object that it's unfair."

"But as he gets used to letting her pay the bills, she gradually changes what's in the piles. She begins to put more $5 bills at the bottom of her pile, more $10 bills in the middle pile, and more $1 bills on her husband's pile. Before long he will be asking her for lunch money three days before payday, and never know really what's happened to him. It's the old shell game."

The group then voted unanimously for the following recommendations to brides:

- "As a young husband is upset and feels lost the first year of marriage, see that during that time he is allowed the consolation of buying a few pretty things just for himself—at least one suit, a pair of shoes, three shirts and a necktie now and then."
- "Don't treat yourself to a fur coat this first year. Be brave. Make him feel guilty because he is getting more new things than you are."
- "After that you can buy your self anything you want. He'll never know it's new anyway unless you start bragging."

There was one final tip and the other veterans husbands cheered the one who made it:

"Once a bride has thrown her saddle over the family paycheck, she should never be jealous. No goldigger is dumb enough to go after a guy who lets his wife handle his money."

"And a bride who does out the lunch dough to her husband each day should realize he is not keeping another woman on it—not unless they are making love at hot dog stands."

Means For Improving City Traffic Safety Talked At Commission Meet

Ways of improving traffic safety on Greenville streets came in for some detailed discussion and recommendations at a meeting of the Greenville Utilities Commission Monday night.

On request of Mayor W.L. Whedbee, present along with Councilmen S.E. West and C. Wesley Harvey, Jr. the group proposed areas to be considered in a proposed survey of Greenville's traffic control from the safety standpoint.

Mayor Whedbee told the board he intended to accompany Police Chief S.G. Gibbs in looking into traffic safety regulation and asked the board to suggest "danger points" where they believed improvements are needed.

Placement of stop signals at intersections gained major attention.

At some of the intersections named, the group brought out, there either is no regulation at present or only warning stop, or slow signs. At others, blinker caution lights already are in use but in the opinion of one or more of the board, have proved inadequate for their intended purpose.

Among the corners put down on the mayor's list to be included in the survey are: Evans at Fourteenth; Eighth at Cotanche; Tenth at Cotanche; Dickinson Ave. at Eighth; Dickinson at Hooker Road beyond the overpass; and Tenth at Charlies.

Once on the fire, the matter quickly reached its boiling point and suggestions came forth in rapid succession.

Dr. K.B. Pace proposed more effective control of traffic on Fifth Street moving away from the high school after school hours, and Mayor Whedbee questioned if a traffic policeman would be more effective than a stop light in slowing the traffic flow on Fifth at the training school.

Another proposal was for a large sign just beyond the city limits on highways leading into town, citing the speed limit and emphasizing its strict enforcement. Mayor Whedbee thanked the board for the suggestions, and said they would give the city something to work on in conducting its survey.

Earlier in the meeting, the board heard a report by Larry Brown, utilities business manager, on finances for the month of June. His statement showed receipts for the month amounting to $165,391.91 and disbursements aggregating $218,337.49. Balance in the treasury at the beginning of July was $67,685.13.

Total income from the different departments, water, electric — city and rural — and gas, amounted to $169,569.76 during the month and expenses aggregated $137,461.97 giving a net revenue of $32,107.79.

Other income for the month amounted to $5,222.23, bringing total income for June to $165,391.91.

Difference in demand, Brown said, accounted for the difference in average rate for the Pitt-Greene Co-op as compared with that of Winterville. This resulted in the co-op's rate being $1.55 for the month as compared with $1.44 for the Town of Winterville, despite the fact that the co-op's consumption was $2,900 as compared with only $1,800 for Winterville. Records for other towns were as follows: Town of Ayden, $1.22 for 412,000 kilowatt hours, $5,045.44; Town of Grimesland, $1.35 for 154,500 kilowatt hours, $2,078.22. Winterville's charges amounted to $1,177.25 and Pitt-Greene's, $1,277.80. Brown reported 10 rural customers added in June, 21 sewer taps and 26 water taps.

'Convex Curve' Lines For New Fall Coats

United Press Staff Correspondent NEW YORK (UP) — A convex curve that's called both the tapered silhouette and the barrel look will appear with the first cool days this fall.

It's the new coat curve. Actually, the coats are cut in an almost straight line cupped slightly at the hemlines. But many are butted and made to be wrapped snugly around the hips to accent the curve. Hence the barrel description. The curve is more subtle than the description, fortunately, though it's a drastic departure from the flares of previous seasons.

Sleek finishes are the favorites for these coats instead of the nubby wools of the poodle cloth days. Imported wool broadcloth in light, silky weights is sidely used in coats as well as suits and dresses.

Both Original Modes and Monte-Sano and Pruzan showed the new coat look Tuesday as part of the fall fashion previews sponsored this week by the New York Dress Institute.

A straight, wrapped coat in beige cashmere with a matching fringed stole, and a chesterfield retype natural fleece with a black velvet collar and a tapered hem-line were shown by Original Modes. Monte Sano has used both the curved-in hemline and a new standaway frame collar to give a 1954 appearance to winter coats. The collar stands several inches away from the neck, though it can be turned up to the chin on windy days.

Armholes are deep and shoulders are rounded in most fall coats. Many of the sleeves can be pushed up, others have wide cuffs. For the full skirts that are still after dark favorites, women will be able to buy coats with slight flares. And the perennial fitted coat is around too—called the contour coat by several designers.

That midriff-moulding silhouette keeps appearing in different versions. Herbert Sondheim calls it the raised-bosom look. He uses belts curving upward over the diaphragm.

Oleg Cassini describes it as the full bosomed look. He accents the top of the dress by midriff panels that lace in the front with self fabric lacings. The front laced midriff is used on a black afternoon dress and on a brocade satin cocktail dress with the lacings repeated on each small puffed sleeve.

Commercials In Song Effective

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—No matter what you may think of singing commercials on radio and television, it looks as though they are here for good, at least until some better form of getting across the sponsor's message comes along.

Warner S. Shelly, president of N. W. Ayer & Son, Philadelphia, joined several others in the advertising field here recently at the convention of the American Advertising Federation to explain the singing commercials.

Shelly said he questioned whether any "considerable minority" of listeners and viewers "find singing commercials objectionable." He admitted some were objectionable, but added, "I don't agree that all musical jingles are necessarily irritating or offensive."

Henry G. Little, president of Detroit's Campbell-Ewald Company, agreed that the value of the musical commercial is in "the way it's done."

If the commercials are good, Little explained, with adroit use of lyric and music, they are effective. He admitted that, if such is not the case, "it's something awful."

Stanley Patno, head of Cleveland's Fuller & Smith & Ross, also emphasized the quality angle. "If the singing commercial is just a lot of screaming and yelling," Patno pointed out, "then of course it serves no advertising purpose. But if it has a musical lilt and clever lyric, it can be effective."

Most who attended the convention agreed that in the past the singing commercials may have been at times overdone. However, they felt there has been a "tapering off."

Quiet Subway Is Canadian Goal

TORONTO (AP)—Subway engineers are trying to make the city's system, expected to be ready next February, the quietest in the world.

They say Toronto is the only place in North America where acoustical treatment of a subway has even been attempted.

The biggest noise problem is the "barrelling" effect created when a train sets up a noise at a given point, travels down the tunnel with the noise proceeding with it and adding to the racket as it travels.

A.G. Keith, Toronto Transportation Commission architect, said the noise snowballs and by the time a train reaches a station the din can be heard in a boiler factory.

One way the engineers are going to beat sound is by installing perforated fibre board on station ceilings and fibre glass with corrugated aluminum coverings on inside walls and pillars in the tunnels.

Slim Silhouette Scheduled Next Fall!

HANNAH TROY . . . The sheath dress in navy sheer wool with jeweled ermine collar and small muff.

CHRISTIAN DIOR . . . The princess line in a formal evening gown of white satin with black velvet trim.

CLAIRE McCARDELL . . . The nightshirt dress and circle stole in camel fleece, dog-leash belt.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor
This is the year of the Slim-Jim silhouette, of sheath dresses and ruler-straight skirts, of skin tight midriffs and not a petticoat in sight until after five.

The new fall fashions are designed to conceal no bulges, and a big year is predicted as well as for reducing salons. Princess dresses, which follow every line of the figure, are much in evidence in fall collections, as are the straight and narrow sheaths beloved by all designers this season.

The new clothes have a rounded look above the belt, achieved through dolman sleeves, deep armholes, bodice drapery and curving lines in little capes and boleros.

Fabrics are varied and handsome, with accent on polished woollens instead of the shaggy poodle textures of the last few seasons.

Full length evening gowns are back with a bang, and an era of elegance is in the works.

Shoulders are wider, but not square or padded. The widest part of the sleeve usually comes below the shoulder line, and is achieved by cut and drape. And skirts are slightly longer than those of last spring.

Suicide Follows His Slaying Of Actress

NEW YORK (UP)—A beautiful young understudy to a top Broadway role was murdered today by a young salesman who confessed in a suicide note found beside his body more than 40 blocks away.

Police found the nude body of Florence Forsberg, a Canadian-born soprano, identified as a member of the chorus of the hit show "Wonderful Town" and understudy to Edith Adams, "Sister Eileen" to Rosalind Russell's starring role.

She was found lying on the floor of her fashionable apartment, her clothing piled on her bludgeoned head. Police were led to the body in a grimly bizarre fashion.

They found a suicide note beside the body of Lester Johnsen, 25, a chocolate company salesman who killed himself with a rifle blast in the apartment he shared with his mother.

The note read: "I killed or contributed to the death of an actress named Flo at 34 West 69th street."

Miss Forsberg's body was found lying between two beds in the apartment off Central Park which she occupied with two other girls. She had been stabbed repeatedly in the breast and stomach. Her jugular vein had been cut.

Probers Turn Up Another Blaze

BROWNSVILLE Tex. (UP)—Fire and police department officials and a deputy state fire marshal gathered Wednesday in a variety store to find the cause of a June 22 fire.

While the investigation was in full swing, someone smelled smoke. A fire truck was summoned and the executives pitched in to put out the new fire.

Johnsen killed himself in the bedroom of his mother's apartment about 7:15 a.m., firing a bullet through his heart with an explosion which brought his mother and a sister running to his room.

Mrs. Marguerite Johnsen told police her son and the actress had been friends for some time.

S.C. Republicans Hope End Snarl

MYRTLE BEACH S. C. (UP)—William A. Kimbel of Myrtle Beach said tomorrow's Republican meeting in Columbia will be "to eliminate the present confusion in the party organization."

A group claiming to be the state executive committee met in Columbia Tuesday and named D. F. Merrill of Easley chairman to succeed Edgar Morris of Pickens and Washington.

However, the group headed by Morris claims it is still the official state GOP and Kimbel described the Morris group as "a majority" of the state Republican executive committee.

Kimbel has been serving as a liaison between the national Republican officials in Washington and South Carolina independents who supported President Eisenhower.

Apparently the national GOP still recognizes the Morris group for W. Edward Moore of Sumter, secretary of the Morris group, yesterday was appointed federal housing administrator for South Carolina.

Grid Browns To Change Owners

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—The Cleveland Browns professional football team officially changes hands today when Mickey McBride and his associates collect the second installment on the $500,000 purchase price.

McBride received a $50,000 bond on June 11 when the club sale to a group of Cleveland men headed by Saul Silverman and Dave Jones was announced. They were given a month in which to raise another $250,000.

A check will be turned over to the McBride group in the law office of Homer H. Marshman, one of the purchasers when the sale contract is signed. Another member of the buying group is Ellis Ryan, former president of the Cleveland Indians.

Injured Athlete 'Doing Nicely' Reports Doctor

COLUMBUS, O. (UP)—Dr. H. E. Le Fever said today that St. Paul infielder Don Zimmer was "doing very nicely" after an operation to remove a blood clot which had prevented him from talking since being hit on the head by a pitched ball July 6.

The neurological surgeon said Zimmer, who was being groomed by the Brooklyn Dodgers farm club to replace the aging Peeewe Reese in about two years, was "in very satisfactory condition now and is able to say a few words."

It was found Zimmer had suffered a skull fracture through X-ray examination. The blood clot formed on his brain after the accident, Dr. Le Fever said.

Basketball Leads To Presidency

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP)—Paul Endacott, once one of the country's top basketball stars is president of a large independent oil company (Phillips Petroleum Co.), same and his company when they were in infancy. He rose to the heights with both.

He was a court star at the University of Kansas in the early 1920's. The man who got his basketball start as sort of a guinea pig for the game's inventor Dr. James Naismith, now considers himself "just an ordinary fan." There's no doubt his chief interest is in his company-sponsored team, the Phillips Oilers.

As a boy of 10 in Lawrence, Kas., Endacott was used by Dr. Naismith with several other lads to test new ideas to improve the then not too popular sport.

Naismith once told Endacott: "Hustle, use your noodle and you'll master this game some day."

Endacott joined Phillips three days after he left college in 1925 and worked four years in the oil field to start his climb to the company's presidency.

He is a past national president of the American War Dads and the Circus Saints and Sinners of America and a former head of the Southern States Industrial Council.

Neuse Watershed Group To Meet

GOLDSBORO (UP)—The eight-county Neuse River watershed authority created by the 1953 General Assembly, will hold its first meeting here July 24 in conjunction with the Neuse Valley Development Assn., officials said today.

E. J. Wellons of Smithfield, president of the development association, said he asked his group to meet with the new authority "and we intend to give the authority members our full support."

The meeting was called after the final two voting members were named to the authority this week. Craven County commissioners named W. R. Newell of Dover and George R. Scott of New Bern.

Other counties represented on the watershed authority are Durham, Lenoir, Wake, Johnston, Jones, Greene, and Wayne.

Outgoing director George Ross of the Department of Conservation and Development was invited to attend along with Ben Douglas of Charlotte, named by Gov. William B. Umstead as new C&D director.

Vacation's End Has Advantages

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Getting back from vacation has some advantages, hard as it may seem to believe it.

In view of the fact that there inevitably comes that Monday when the long anticipated holiday is just a memory, the return-from-vacation period might just as well be put to some use.

Speaking personally, I don't think that it is of particular importance whether or not one is eager to return to the realities of making a living.

A bustling, bright-eyed and energetic returnee may be a fellow who just loves his job, but he may also be a guy who had a wretched time at a front-porch, dress-former dinner mountain resort when he yearned for the deck of a sail boat and a fighting fish on the end of a line.

Conversely, the returning wage slave, reluctantly dragging back to the office, may loathe his job, but again he may have landed home the night before after a 6,000 mile automobile trip, found the garden full of weeds, the cellar full of condensation and a report from camp that the kids have chickenpox.

Climbing back into the business rut after vacation serves most usefully, I believe, as a period for study of one's reactions. After a couple of weeks—or longer if you're lucky—of change of environment and freedom from the day-in, day-out irritations of living, it is interesting to discover if the causes are your own evil disposition and fatigue or whether they are really annoying.

Before I went away, I would cheerfully have murdered an early-bird neighbor with an irresistible urge to clip his hedge a few minutes after dawn on Saturdays. Upon my return, I find him a sensible fellow who is merely beating the heat. I shall join him in early morning chores and lol in the afternoon shade when my late-sleeping neighbors are toiling in the broiling sun and muttering about the impossibility of getting a decent night's sleep.

I was bored with neighborhood coffee klatches centering on the bright red shade of an absent neighbor's hair. And I find I'm just as bored with post-vacation discussions about the platinum blonde shade which the same hair assumed during my absence.

My annoyance continues unabated with characters who have their secretaries call me on the telephone and then keep me dangling while the secretaries try to find their employers. But in a sweet, post-vacation mood, I quietly hang up the phone without permitting my blood pressure to rise a single point.

A pleasant fellow-employee used to irritate a bit by remarking "Howdy-doo," every single time we met, mugging violently and indicating he was making a very funny joke. He's still at it, but he's pleasant, good humored and cheerful, and there really aren't enough of such types around.

Trains are still running erratically, and people still will try to sneak cigarettes into "No Smoking" coaches, and the little men in charge of running air conditioning plants never seem to be guided by the condition of the weather in the streets, taxi-drivers still ram their opinions down one's throat, and the news vendors hide the later editions under a pile of earlier ones, but none of these seem to matter as much as they did before I got away from it all for a short period.

My conclusion is that the most irritating things in my life are irritations I set up within myself. Any vacation is worthwhile if you can come away from it with even that much.

States Worked Out Reductions In Tax Set-Ups

CHICAGO (U.P.)—A study by the Federation of Tax Administrators reveals that a number of states have approved proposals for income tax reductions in the form of credits, expanded deductions and rate revisions. This is what the various state legislatures have done thus far in 1953:

Colorado: A 20 per cent credit allowed individuals and corporations for every taxable year since 1950 was extended for another year.

Idaho: A 15 per cent tax credit was allowed individuals and corporations beginning with the 1953 tax year.

Iowa: The legislature has sent the governor a measure to make permanent a temporary 25 per cent tax credit first allowed in 1947 income.

Kansas: Allowed an added deduction of $600 to persons over 65 and blind.

North Dakota Cuts Maryland: Extended the 15 per cent credit first allowed individuals last year.

Montana: Allowed a medical deduction up to $1,250 for each taxpayer and each dependent, with a maximum deduction of $2,500 on a single person's return and $5,000 on a joint return.

New York: Extended for another year the 10 per cent credit it has allowed on personal income taxes and a 25 per cent reduction in its unincorporated business tax rate.

North Dakota: Revised tax brackets, cutting taxes from two to one per cent on net income between $2,000 and $3,000, from 12.5 to 10 per cent on net income between $10,000 and $15,000, and from 15 to 11 per cent on net income above $15,000. The state has also raised the personal exemption for single taxpayers and dependents from $500 to $600 and allowed an additional $600 exemption for individual taxpayers and each spouse over 65.

Utah: Raised its allowance for dependents from $300 to $600.

HONOLULU (UP)—The Navy transport Barrett headed towards Guam today with the bodies of 14 of the 56 persons killed in the mid-ocean crash of a Transocean Airlines plane Saturday night.

The tanker M. E. Lombardi reported sighting two more bodies, but said it could not recover them.

Homes of the Famous --- 1

1702, PERRY HOMESTEAD, Wakefield, R.I.

AP Newsfeatures This small, gambrel-roofed house was the birthplace of Oliver Hazard Perry, who won the great naval victory over the British on Lake Erie, and of his younger brother, Matthew Gilbraith Perry, who opened up the ports of Japan to the entire world. The house has been called "the house that launched a fleet of ships." The land upon which the old homestead stands, has been in the Perry family, since 1702, when Benjamin Perry came here from Sandwich, Mass. It was thoroughly restored in 1929, by Mrs. Perry Tiffany, wife of the last descendant-owner. It is located on the old Kingston Road at Rocky Brook, in Wakefield, Rhode Island and is open to visitors during the summer months. It contains many relics of historic interest.

New Floor Care Ends Waxing

One of the most difficult jobs of housekeeping is to keep linoleum and asphalt tile floors waxed and gleaming. Now, thanks to Glaxo, it is no longer necessary to wax and scrub. All you do is apply Glaxo with a brush about twice a year. It maintains a high lustre, non slip coating that seals out dirt. Glaxo dries in one hour and is water clear. It's cheaper than wax in the long run, besides saving a terrific amount of work, plus truly a beautiful floor. Glaxo is available at Belk-Tyers Co., Third Floor.

Red Propaganda Hits Harder

AP Newsfeatures
COMMUNIST propaganda aimed at GIs in Korea has long amused the troops. The picture above is typical of earlier efforts. A new example (shown below) may be no more effective, but at least it is more polished grammatically and better presented.

LIVE AND LET LIVE

You may be a Protestant or a Catholic. Your neighbor may have a different religion. But you don't shoot your neighbor for this reason—nor does he keep a gun loaded for you. Yet you are told that you have to fight in Korea to "smash Communism"—which is a belief and a way of life treasured by the Chinese, Koreans, and many others—about 800 million people all over the world. Did the Chinese or Koreans go to America to "smash Capitalism"—another way of life? The answer is "No." They haven't and they won't, because they believe in peaceful coexistence. Of course, when you come here with a gun, attempting to smash our way of life, we shoot back. At present, your generals are plotting to expand the war. We are determined and have the strength to defeat any aggression. You would not be in Korea if your Government said live and let live.

BBC Hoping To Blanket Britain With A TV Net

By RAE CORELLI
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP)—The nationalized British Broadcasting Corp. is planning to blanket Britain in the next four years with a television network serving 97 per cent of the nation's 50,000,000 people.

The number of stations would be more than tripled. But the venture—part of an over-all 10-year expansion program—is vitally dependent on continued government financial support. The BBC director-general, Sir Ian Jacobs, said the density of coverage envisaged was "incomparably" greater than that in any other country, including the United States.

The plans he announced were strictly for the BBC, but the government of Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill already has announced that there will be commercial television, too—a decision that has provoked heated controversy.

Medium, Small Stations
Plans for commercial television are expected to be revealed soon. The corporation now has five high-power stations operating. Plans call for the completion of five medium-power stations and eight smaller ones. The eight would be spotted over an area extending from southeastern England to Londonderry, Northern Ireland.

When all 18 stations were operative, the corporation said, regular service would be increased from five to seven hours a day. This would not include time devoted to television special events, such as the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, when BBC TV ran all day.

Provided the money is forthcoming and the government relaxes restrictions on capital expenditures, the BBC said, the five medium-power outlets should be ready for business late in 1954 and the eight smaller ones by 1957.

7,000,000 Sets Seen

These developments eventually would make possible the inauguration of a "second-string" service of stations to cater to local tastes or specialties. The ultimate aim is to put the supplementary service on a five-hour basis, giving viewers a choice of programs during the evening, when audiences are largest.

The corporation said plans for the second service depended largely on whether the government would set aside the needed channels. If they were not granted, the scheme would have to be "considerably modified."

Jacobs said he thought color TV could be introduced at some point during the next nine years, but the bulk of programming would continue to be in black-and-white.

Jacobs said current predictions were that 7,000,000 sets would be operating by the time the 10-year program is completed. Despite this expected increase in TV popularity, he said, there is no intention of reducing radio services.

The cost of the entire development was placed in the neighborhood of 3,000,000 pounds ($8,400,000).

LUANDA (Portuguese Angola) (AP)—Four sea gulls were shot on the beach of Luanda recently, after having travelled 5,000 miles or so. Three of the four birds had been ringed on the German island of Heligoland in the North Sea. The fourth came apparently from Vjborg (Denmark).

Backstairs Look Into White House Doings

By DAYTON MOORE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Backstairs at the White House:

President Eisenhower is doing some light "precautionary" dieting. Although the dieting is the President's own idea, the President's physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, approves. Mr. Eisenhower decided to cut out sweets and fats and to limit the amount of other high calorie foods he eats because he had put on a couple of pounds. He now weighs 179 pounds, compared to 177 when he was inaugurated. The purpose of his self-prescribed dieting is to stay under 180.

A large room on the second floor of the west wing of the White House has been remodeled and partitioned into a choice two-room office suite for a presidential aide whose identity is being kept secret for the time being. Offices in the west wing are considered more desirable than those in east wing because they are closer to the President's office. Aides in the east wing must walk through the mansion to get to President Eisenhower's office.

Top White House aides with offices now in the west wing are Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams, Appointments Secretary Thomas E. Stephens, Press Secretary James O. Hagerty and special counsel Bernard M. Shanley. Col. Paul T. Carroll moved from the east wing to the west wing when he was named acting staff secretary last week.

Commerce Undersecretary Walter Williams and Stanley M. Rumbough Jr., special assistant to the commerce secretary, have been given offices in the east wing while acting as liaisons between the White House and government departments and agencies.

President Eisenhower disappointed a large number of his fellow Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., when he attended Sunday morning services at the Trinity Evangelical and Reformed Church at Thurmont, Md., on his most recent weekend at Camp David. The Presbyterian church at Blue Ridge Summit was jammed with a much larger attendance than usual, apparently in hopes of seeing President Eisenhower.

The President had been playing golf at Blue Ridge Summit, and the residents and vacationers concluded he probably would attend Sunday services there because there was no church of his Presbyterian faith closer to Camp David. But Mr. Eisenhower instead went to the Thurmont church of another faith.

Handicapped On Theft Of Pants

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Harry Anthony Lawson told police this sad story:

A robber overpowered him, stole $50 and then ripped off Lawson's trousers and drove away in his truck. That wasn't so bad but the painless Lawson said he walked for blocks knocking at house doors before one of the startled residents finally let him in to use a telephone to call police.

UNDER THE YOLK
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UP)—Poultry specialists on the Davis campus of the University of California are busy testing the world's biggest "omelet"—17,000 broken eggs. The eggs come from 50 California breeding flocks and are broken and tested in a project to see if a whole flock of chickens can lay Grade AA eggs. The "omelet" may contain the secret of what's involved in setting up a breeding project for egg quality.

Archaeological Findings Studied

DUBLIN (U.P.)—Irish research workers have opened the new season's activities at Lough Gara, near Boyle, County Roscommon, where last summer expert drainage work lowered the level of the lake and brought to light one of Europe's richest archaeological finds.

At that time some 100 crannogs, or lake dwellings, were revealed. They proved to scientists that there had been a civilization among the ancients hitherto unknown. The lake dwellings are believed to be more than 4,000 years old.

Dr. Joseph Raftery, keeper of Irish antiquities at the National Museum, Dublin, is in charge of the excavations.

Research workers are hopeful of being able to fill in some gaps in existing knowledge of early Europe's migrations.

Three Periods
Dr. Raftery said that they "were dealing with a tremendous density of population. That is what makes it so interesting. These people seemed to have had very close contact with this continent."

It is known that these ancients lived a close community life were skilled in rudimentary engineering and boat-building. The remains of several boats were found. They were well-to-do, judging by the number of hand-carved ornaments and bones of flocks kept on the nearby hills. They practiced agriculture and grain-growing was not unknown to them.

It is known that the lake-dwellers were of three periods—2,500 B. C., 500 B. C., and A. D. 500. It is not yet known whether they were differing peoples or whether the later inhabitants were the descendants of the earlier ones. This is one of the main questions that the archaeologists now at work have to answer.

TIRED OF WORKING
IGLOO, S. D. (UP)—Florence Tuma, employe at the Black Hills ordinance plant here, won a $135 check for an efficiency suggestion. She suggested the Army abolish her own job.

Jack Benny Believes Old Variety Shows Still Best

By JACK BENNY
NEW YORK (UP)—Recently I completed a three-week engagement in a variety show at the Curran Theatre in San Francisco. While I was there, a young couple rushed up to me in the lobby of my hotel, and the boy breathlessly asked, "Are you Jack Benny?" I nodded yes.

"Mr. Benny," he said, "We are on our honeymoon, and seeing you here and on the stage last night is the biggest thrill we've had."

This is a rather sad commentary on honeymoons, but it does emphasize the fact that people do love to see actors entertain in person. And entertainers also love to entertain—in person. I know that I got such a kick out of my three-week stand in San Francisco that I plan to play a lot of cities around the country next year in a good old-fashioned vaudeville show.

Danny Kaye, Judy Garland, Betty Hutton and a lot of us feel the same way about it, and we all owe this revival of vaudeville in America to one man—and he isn't even an American. His name is Val Parnell, and he's managing director of the Palladium Theatre in London.

When vaudeville died in America in the 1930's, all of us who love the theatre were very sad about its passing and felt there was nothing to do about it except mourn a phase of show business that was outdated. Although radio and television have been very good to me, I guess my first love is still the stage. I know I must be a ham.

In the old days, B.P. — Belare

Parnell—there weren't many of us who could take time off from radio and pictures work to do a Broadway show. So, in order to go out and play to a live audience, we had to appear in the big picture theatre. We did make a lot of money. But five, six and seven shows a day is pretty tough when a man gets to be 39. And also, you always had the feeling that you were merely an extra added attraction.

But all this time, the variety theatre was doing very well in England, Ireland and Scotland, under the capable hands of Val Parnell and a few other showmen. However, in 1947, when business there started to slack off a bit, Val didn't shrug his shoulders and say, "too bad." He decided to import a flock of big name American stars to rejuvenate the variety theatre. His first big hit was Danny Kaye, and the rest is history.

Water-Witcher Is Busy Man In Southern Texas

EDINBURG, Tex. (U.P.)—One of the busiest men in the water-short lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas these days is Walter Klepfer, who claims he can find water anywhere—as long as he has a copper wire to guide him.

Klepfer is a combination farmer and water-witcher. He charges $25 a throw for advice on where to drill a well.

Since the Rio Grande has virtually dried up, wells have provided nearly all the drinking and irrigation water for the agricultural lower valley, which supports a population of 330,000.

"Of course, we don't believe in water-witching, but then again we are not afraid to try," said one farmer.

Klepfer said he found about 80 wells last year and that business has been booming so far in 1953.

Klepfer works with a piece of ordinary copper wire bent double to form outward end prongs. He once used forked tree limbs.

"It worked all right," he explained, "but then I hit on the idea of copper wire. You know copper is a conductor. It works better. More sensitive."

Klepfer said that when he holds the wire over a vein of water the wire turns. The stronger the pull the better the water, he said.

Could anyone be a well-witcher? Klepfer, a 55-year-old native of Illinois, said it's possible, but the odds are against it because only about one person in 10,000 has "the gift."

Klepfer used to tramp over the ground to find underground stores of water, but no more.

One Refund
"I find now I can do it just as well riding in a car," he said. "Or even from a plane. Once we flew at 2,000 feet just to see if it would work. It did."

Klepfer guarantees to refund the $25 if he doesn't locate water. He said so far he has only had to make one refund.

"In that case the party didn't drill exactly where I wanted," he added.

Klepfer puts water on the wire before he starts witching. The wire not only locates veins of water, but "can be used to determine the depth of water and fix the direction of its flow," he explained.

Klepfer said he discovered he possessed "the gift" when he was 15 years old.

"I just picked up a stick and found out I had the ability," he elaborated.

"I can't tell you what it is, but I can't carry a watch and I think that might have something to do with it. A watch stops if I carry it a couple of days. I think it's magnetic pull."

Limited Stopped To Rescue Calf

EUREKA, Calif. (AP)—Engineer Earl Wahlund saw a calf caught in a fence, with its mother bawling helplessly.

So he stopped his Northwestern Pacific passenger train, freed the calf and arrived here 10 minutes late.

Reprimanded? No, because Superintendent A. G. Bays, who happened to be in his private car on the train, praised Wahlund for his "humanitarian action."

Mobile Jewelry Being Introduced As Novelty

By KATHERINE PINKHAM
AP Newfeatures...
PARIS — Golden butterflies with movable wings are being introduced here as a piquant variation in modern jewelry. There are also gem-rimmed roses which open from bud to bloom like real flowers.

It's all part of the demand for lightness and variety in jewels to go with restless present-day living, says their originator, Guy Mellero.

There's even economy in it, if such a word can be used with trinkets of such price. A lovely four-winged butterfly will serve as three ornaments in one.

Put its golden mesh wings back to back, like a butterfly's when it clings to a leaf in hiding, and have a modest little brightener for the suit lapel on a shopping tour. Pause for afternoon tea, put the four wings horizontal to show more gold, but keep them close together for trim and tailored mood.

For evening, spread wings wide and flaring and let your butterfly poise airily upon the shoulder of a dancing frock.

Without jewels, a gold butterfly of moderate, real-life size can be brought for a modest 55,000 francs (around $156). If you covet one with tiny emeralds, diamonds and rubies bordering the wings, and two big gems on the lower ones to simulate eye-markings of the butterfly, it will cost $3,000.

Mellero carries out his papillon or butterfly theme, too, in a new design for glasses, adroitly ornamental for evening wear. The frames, feather-light, form curving eyebrows which cleverly conceal the real ones underneath. They are faintly studded with tiny diamonds.

One model has sapphires halfway across to temple, to enhance blue eyes below. The lenses suggest butterfly wings, coming to an up-turned peak at each temple. The frames cost about $1,000 the pair.

The jeweled roses, with petal stem and leaf in delicately wrought gold, also afford their wearers a change of mood or costume.

One stunning piece is cunningly contrived in perfect imitation of a real rose, with some of the golden petals slightly curled at the edges.

Each petal is bordered with rubies, emeralds and diamonds, and each is individually adjustable, so that the rose can appear at any stage of bloom. The flower's heart is jeweled, and diamonds thread the central vein of each golden leaf.

At the formal showing of his new designs, Mellero displayed a dazzling diamond necklace which does several quick-change acts. Not only can part of it be used as tiara (this idea is not new, of course) but with the front section detached, what remains is turned into a sort of diamond stole, when a pendant is attached to each end. The pendants hide collar-bone hollows and leave white throat bare between.

The front section terminates in a pendant pear-shaped diamond of great size. When the section is worn on the head, it can be arranged so the diamond dangles over the widow's peak as an astringent princess might wear it. Other way up, the section becomes tiara with the big stone its keystone. The entire bauble is valued around 20 million francs (about $57,000).

Korea Casualty Lists Lengthen

WASHINGTON (UP)—American battle casualties in Korea now total 138,246, an increase of 332 since last week's report, the Defense Department said today.

The casualties include 24,804 dead, 100,597 wounded, 2,917 captured, 8,402 missing and 1,526 previously reported captured or missing and since returned to military control.

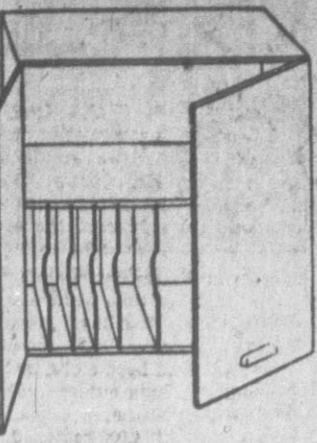

Today's figures reflected an increase of 119 dead, 269 wounded and 14 captured since last week's report. They also showed a decrease of 70 missing in action.

REVERSE TWIST
HARTFORD, Conn. (UP) — Policeman Otto H. Miller reversed his usual role of keeping people out of locked business places after hours. He freed a man who had been locked all night in a restaurant after falling asleep in a booth.

Mellero carries out his papillon or butterfly theme, too, in a new design for glasses, adroitly ornamental for evening wear. The frames, feather-light, form curving eyebrows which cleverly conceal the real ones underneath. They are faintly studded with tiny diamonds.

Adlai Notes He Feared French Might Draft Him

PARIS (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson arrived in Paris today on the last stages of his world tour and said he might have visited here sooner had he not feared he would be impressed into service as French premier.

Stevenson came here from Germany, posed for photographers as he shook hands with the locomotive engineer and, looking at his grimy hands, said:

"Well, nothing like good honest dirt."

"You know," he continued, "I'm probably the first character from Chicago to come to Paris by way of Tokyo, New Delhi and the Far East. I was afraid to come before because France was without a government and I was afraid President Auriol would ask me to form one."

He added hastily: "For all I know the United States may be without a government."

WORTHWHILE VISIT
COLCHESTER, Conn. (UP) — A busy federal judge took time from his regular schedule to visit a convalescent home with his court attendants and preside at the naturalization of a 76-year-old invalid. Mrs. Sophie Barth came to this country 33 years ago.

Represents N.C. Scout Council In Nat'l Meeting

WILSON—Dr. E.F. Menius of New Bern and Delbert Sawyer of Columbia will represent East Carolina Council of Boy Scouts of America at the annual meeting of the National Council to be held July 16-17 at Hotel Statler in Los Angeles, California.

Menius is the father of three Eagle Scouts, one of whom recently completed his third year on the staff at Camp Charlespear Wilson. Also he was camporee chief at the recent camp in Tarboro.

Sawyer is an enthusiastic scouter and he attended the National Scout Training Reservation at Mendham, New Jersey. Also he was among the delegation attending the regional annual meeting in Atlanta last April as a representative of East Carolina Council.

As part of the National Council meeting members of the body will have an opportunity to visit the Jamboree of 50,000 Boy Scouts camped at Irvine Ranch near Los Angeles. Forty-two scouts and leaders from East Carolina Council are camped there enjoying a "once in a lifetime" experience with fellow scouts from 48 states, all U.S. possessions and all "free" foreign countries.

A high spot of the national annual meeting will be presentation of the coveted Lorillard Spencer Trophy to Region Six, which is made up of the two Carolinas, Georgia and Florida. The award is made to the Boy Scout region having the greatest percentage growth in membership units and Boys' Life Magazine. The trophy will be received by W.D. Campbell of Southern Pines, who is chairman of the Regional Executive Committee, and by W.A. Dobson, regional scout executive from Atlanta. The trophy will remain on view in the Atlanta office for a year.

Mrs. Lorillard Spencer of New York provided the award, a silver pitcher, in 1940, in memory of her son, the late Lorillard Spencer, Jr., who worked in the early days of the Boy Scout movement in New York and nationally.

Work Camp For Friendship Has International Air

MANILA (AP)—Four Japanese, a Siamese, two Americans, a South Korean, a Chinese, an Australian and a group of Filipinos have joined hands here to clear a path for international friendship.

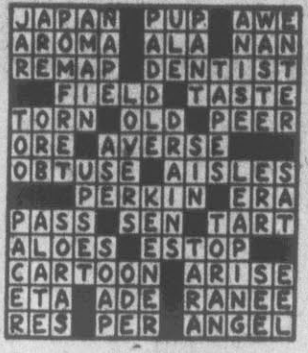

They are members of the International Work Camp, a worldwide movement sponsored by the World Council of Churches at Genoa to foster fraternity through common work. The campers here work hard.

Every morning at Los Baños, 25 miles south of Manila, they start the day with shovels, picks and rakes. They are clearing a wooded section of thick underbrush, leveling high ground, filling low areas, building paths and yards and planting fruit trees. They plan to set up the concrete foundation of a war-damaged building as the site of future world youth conferences here.

Sea Scouts Take Annapolis Cruise

Greenville and Plymouth Sea Scouts returned at the weekend from a week's cruise to Annapolis, Maryland.

Dr. Alban Papineau, skipper of the SS Albemarle was in charge of the cruise. J.S. Newman, skipper of the Greenville Sea Scouts, assisted him. Sixteen boys made the trip. Paul Singleton, former Sea Scout of Plymouth, now a student at East Carolina College, was mate on the cruise.

Greenville Sea Scouts who were on the cruise are Dickie Newell, Glenn Peterson, Terry Bundy, Preston Jarvis and Billy Johnston.

At Norfolk, Va., July 4, the young Tarbeels were entertained with a wicker roast on a Norfolk Sea Scout ship and a trip to Ocean View.

The group spent three days at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. They were served two meals on an old Spanish ship captured during the Spanish-American War in Cuba. The ship is now at Santee dock and is used as a barracks ship.

The Sea Scouts had some exciting experiences. On a Sunday afternoon the Albemarle took in tow a disabled yacht in Chesapeake Bay and towed it about 10 miles to a town on Potomac River. During the tow a pet dog on the yacht fell overboard, and a Sea Scout, Billy Johnson, rescued it.

Free Albania Sought In Tri-Power Statement

By PHIL NEWSOM United Press Foreign News Editor

The combined Turkish, Greek and Yugoslav call for a "free and independent" Albania could be significant.

Albania, on the Adriatic and hemmed in on the one side by Yugoslavia and on the other by Greece, is the smallest and most isolated of the Russian satellites.

Its Communist masters have had even less luck in subduing the rebellious mountain tribes than did the ruthless and iron-fisted King Zog.

Albania has been considered ripe for revolt ever since the death of Josef Stalin.

Communist Albania has been isolated and exposed ever since Marshal Tito's break with the Kremlin. Her position was weakened further by the economic and military agreement among Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey.

Implicit in the three nations' call for a "free and independent" Albania is the promise to help her gain that independence by any means short of war.

In turn this week's Albanian protest to Yugoslavia over the latest border incident also gained significance.

The Albanians charged that Yugoslav soldiers crossed the Albanian border and with hand-grenades and machine guns helped a group of rebels escape across the border.

Aside from rebels within and unfriendly states without, there are conditions which could contribute to an eventual successful Albanian break with the Moscow Communists.

Until 1948, the Kremlin had real hopes of taking over a large section of the northeastern Mediterranean.

In that event, and in the case of war, Albania's Adriatic ports would offer an ideal shelter for Communist submarine nests. But in the space of a year, Russian dreams were shattered.

Tito defected, the Italian Communists lost the 1948 elections and, with United States help, the Greek government put down the Russian-sponsored Greek civil war.

The effect was to isolate Albania and vastly to reduce its military value. Economically, Albania's value to the Reds is even less.

Russia today is believed to maintain about 5,000 troops in Albania, chiefly in the ports to guard highly secret fortifications.

In the interior, what discipline there is is maintained only by the sternest measures. Sabotage, bombings and open attacks against the Reds are frequent.

Head men in Albanian Communism are Premier Gen. Enver Hoxha, whose military title is mostly political, and Minister of Interior Mehmed Shehi, who heads the secret police. Hoxha and Shehi long have feuded bitterly with Shehi apparently having a slight edge. That picture may change, however, with the fall of Lavrenti P. Beria, Shehi's boss in Moscow.

Dior Describes It As 'The Chalice Look'

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Girls shaped like graceful, full-bodied goblets on fluted-like stems will be very happy this fall.

That's what Christian Dior describes as the shape of the season. He calls it the Chalice Look. A little stiffening here and there over the bosom pads out the goblet. But even Mr. Dior hasn't found a way to shrink the stem.

Anyway, the French designer isn't alone in his preference for the exaggerated curve among designers who are showing fall fashions this week. He's just the only one who calls it the Chalice Look, and the only one with previous experience building in a bosom curve, since he had a similar silhouette in Paris last year called the Tulip.

The curve is built into tweed suits with straight skirts and into afternoon dresses with soft fullness in the skirts. Dolman sleeves extending from a yoke across the wide top line on some of the afternoon dresses.

Pierre Balmain, another French designer who showed his newest American-made clothes Tuesday, ignored the top-conscious trend and concentrated on separate skirt panels at the back of short and long dresses. One beige lace brocade sheath evening dress had a floating back panel of gray chiffon. Gray, incidentally, has become as basic a color as black once was. It shows up everywhere for fall in both light and dark shades. Balmain's favorite for evening clothes was a combination of gray with white or with beige.

At-home outfits for women with leisure are getting so dramatic a husband won't dare ask his wife to do the slightest household chore of an evening. One of Balmain's most spectacular fireside outfits was a black velvet hostess robe with a front panel of white chiffon and a snug mink collar.

Also in the interest of glamour were the jewels and embroideries used on dresses and coats for fall. Elfreda-Drex outlined the high neckline of a gray wool dress with silver bugle beads and pearls and added a jacket cut low enough to show off the jewels.

Mayor Of Tiny Borough Showing Up Red Officials

By PHIL NEWSOM
A man like Mayor Willie Kressman must be an awful pain in the neck to the Communists.

For one thing he represents a type of rugged individualism peculiarly distasteful to the Reds, who are great believers in a standard pattern and the collectivization of everything from farms to the human mind.

Further, he has been making liars and monkeys out of them. Kressman, mayor of the tiny West Berlin borough of Kreuzberg, is the man who this week launched a one-man campaign to feed hungry citizens under Russian rule.

On Tuesday he distributed fresh fruit and milk.

On Wednesday, it was potatoes and more milk.

The thousands of East Berliners who flocked to Kressman's "market for the hungry" gave the lie to indignant Communist claims that East Germany had plenty of food.

Milk is rationed in East Berlin, with children getting the priority. Most East Berliners haven't seen fresh fruit for years — or at least, any they could afford.

Aside from his act of mercy, Kressman had another motive in setting up his spectacular market. He believes American and West German officials "talk too much" in planning how best to utilize President Eisenhower's offer of $15,000,000 worth of free food to the Communist-dominated East Germans.

Kressman is noted as a man of action.

Frequently he has acted without consulting either his city or party superiors and as a result also frequently has been in hot water.

However, it has made him a popular mayor in his working class district where he is known as a tough anti-Communist.

Last year he gained considerable fame when he ordered city policy on duty in the borough to confiscate all East Berlin automobiles crossing the border in his borough.

His action was in retaliation for the seizure by Communist police of West Berlin vehicles in the Soviet sector.

The East German government and its Russian masters have been active attempting to offset both Kressman's campaign and President Eisenhower's offer, although mostly so far by propaganda and promises.

The official East German news agency ADN told of vast food shipments en route, including 84 carloads of live hogs, 39 carloads of fresh and canned fish and nine carloads of butter. Thirty-five carloads of rice from China also were promised.

If true, all this food must create quite a sight as it rolls through equally hungry Communist-run lands on its way to East Germany. It is possible, too, that the people of these lands will note that what the East Germans won, they won by rebellion.

How To Amuse Small Fry On Long Vacation Trips

Vacations are fun, but the travel involved may be painful if you don't plan in advance to keep the children amused during a long trip.

Whether you go by plane, train or automobile, it is wise to lay in a supply of toys and games that will keep the youngsters occupied. Such things are coloring books, puzzles, travel record books and stencil toy departments these days.

A favorite doll, provided in advance with a travel wardrobe which must be changed at appropriate hours of the day, often keeps a little girl happy during a long trip.

GOP To Revive 'Citizens' Group

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Republicans are planning today to revive the successful Citizens for Eisenhower movement of 1952 for next year's congressional campaign.

They hope with the personal popularity of Mr. Eisenhower to reverse the tradition that the party in power loses seats in an off-year election. The Democrats did it with Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1934.

The so-called "amateurs" of the citizens movement have White House blessing and the cooperation of hard hitting practical politicians like GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall.

Hall will take all the help he can get to beat the off-year jinx and, if possible, enlarge the Republicans' present paper-thin margin in Congress.

They couldn't stand any losses. The Senate lineup is 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one independent, Wayne L. Morse of Oregon. In the House it is 219 Republicans, 212 Democrats, one independent and three vacancies.

The citizens movement will be expected to coordinate with the regular Republican organization as they did in the 1952 campaign.

Irrigation Demonstration Series Draw Big Number

RALEIGH—North Carolina farmers, interested more than ever these days in irrigation, still have a chance to attend one of three remaining demonstrations in the use of irrigation equipment.

Howard Ellis, in charge of agricultural engineering for the N.C. State College Extension Service, said yesterday that the current series of demonstrations has attracted an unusual number of farmers.

He points to the large attendance as indicating a vastly increased interest in irrigating crops in the state.

Ellis said demonstrations will be held July 21 in Lee County, on the L.P. Wilkins farm, three miles west of Sanford; on July 22 in Duplin County, on the Milton West farm, one mile west of Warsaw; and on July 23, in Edgecombe County, on the E.A. Steadman farm, three miles south of Pinetops on the Greenville Road. All three demonstrations will begin at 2 p.m. and should be over by 4 or 4:30 p.m.

Ellis said that at least three irrigation equipment dealers will cooperate in each demonstration.

Tar Heel farmers have become acutely aware of the high cost of periodic droughts in their farm operations. Ellis said, and many have adopted irrigation as a means of assuring normal, or better-than-normal yields. In many instances the cost of irrigation equipment is not prohibitive and should be considered along with other farm improvements.

"Irrigation is the next logical step toward better farming after the farmer has adopted all good recommended practices," the agricultural engineer said. "These demonstrations have been planned to answer, as nearly as possible, the farmers' questions as to whether they should irrigate certain crops."

Racketeer Freed And Re-Arrested

TRENTON, N. J. (UP)—Joe Adonis, graying boss of a once-flourishing East Coast gambling syndicate, walked out of the New Jersey State Prison a free man today, but was promptly handcuffed and taken into custody by a U. S. marshal.

The 51-year-old racketeer was seized by Marshal William Kish on a federal detainer and taken before U. S. Commissioner Clifford R. Moore for a hearing to set bail on government perjury charges.

If Adonis cannot meet the amount of bond fixed by Moore, he will be jailed again pending trial in U. S. District Court at Washington July 23.

A two-count indictment, handed up by a federal grand jury in Washington April 24, charged that Adonis lied twice in testimony before the now-defunct Senate Crime Investigating Committee in December, 1950.

The indictment said Adonis lied when he testified he was born in Passaic, N. J., and when he said he was a citizen of the United States. If convicted, he would be liable to a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each count.

Adonis went to prison May 28, 1951 to serve a two-to-three year term for operating floating dice games in New Jersey.

Meat Prices Will Soon Show Rise

NEW YORK (UP)—The butcher bill will put a deeper dent in family food budgets funds soon.

A nationwide check of food chains shows steaks and other beef cuts will cost more, along with pork, lamb and frying chicken.

Butter and eggs show little change from a week ago. Shoppers looking to practice economy will find the "best buys" in fresh vegetables, fish and fresh fruits.

But the budget managers' overall price outlook darkened as wholesale food prices spurred ahead sharply to the highest level since mid-October, 1951.

The Dun & Bradstreet Index, representing the sum total of the price per pound of 31 commonly used foods, jumped 12 cents in the week to $6.74, pushing a little more than 13 per cent beyond what food roasts were before Korea.

Of the 31 items, 12 advanced, only six declined and 13 remained unchanged. Mark-ups occurred on flour, oats, beef, jellies, lard, sugar, coffee, cocoa, currants, steers, hogs and lambs. Wheat, corn, rye, barley, cottonseed oil and eggs declined. Unchanged items included hams, butter, cheese, milk, tea, beans, peas, peanuts, potatoes, rice and citrus fruits.

Reason for the jump in meat prices, the experts said, is the higher trend in the wholesale markets as smaller receipts in the fewer of the better grade cattle, plus shrinking hog marketings.

At Chicago, live hog prices jumped to $27.65 a hundredweight, the highest price in nearly five years. Simultaneously, cattle prices edged up to near the highs of mid-March.

More Imported Workers In Jail

Two more imported tobacco hands from Florida were in Pitt county jail today on charges of assault. Sheriff's officers said the pair are accused of attacking a third Negro with a one-by-four board.

The pair, who have been put under $50 bond each pending hearing in magistrate's court, are Jimmy Lee Fields, 26, and James Henry Butler, 36. Their alleged victim was Lonnie Wilkins, 50, also of Florida.

The pair were arrested late yesterday by Sheriff's Deputies J.L. Mills and Elmer Haddock. Wilkins' injuries, Mills said, did not appear serious.

Officers said the incident occurred about 4 p.m. along the Greenville-Pactolus highway.

It was the second assault case involving Florida tobacco hands within the last week. Charles Williams, 31, and Esselle Thomas, 29, were arrested Sunday in a cutting fracas near Grifton.

Deputy Lloyd Manning said today Williams has been charged with an assault with a deadly weapon, but that the woman will be released without charge.

New Vehicles On Road Show Hike

RALEIGH—North Carolina motorists bought 9,334 new cars and 1,971 trucks in June according to a report from Miss Foy Ingram, director of the State Motor Vehicles Department's registration division.

The new vehicles registered last month, brought the state's total motor vehicle registration for the first six months of the year to 1,283,172.

For the corresponding period last year 1,170,222 vehicles were registered.

Chevrollets, Fords and Plymouths, in that order, were the most popular models in the passenger car line. And Chevrolet, Ford and GMC trucks rated highest among the truck buyers, according to Miss Ingram.

Sunbathers Plan Own Selections

PALMERTON, Pa. (UP)—The selection of "Mr. and Mrs. Sun Tan" will highlight the four-day annual convention of the Eastern Sunbathing Association which opened here today, the only nudist convention held in the east this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Sun Tan will be elected at the closing session of the convention on Sunday on the basis of their all-over sun tan, personality and popularity.

Social Security Reports Are Due

July is the month for making the Social Security report on wages earned by employees during the second quarter of this year. Marshall Barney, manager of the Rocky Mount social security office, urges employers to make a careful check to see that all employees are being reported with their Social Security account number.

It is important, Barney emphasized, that the individual be reported by his own, complete number. The number is used in posting the wages to the worker's account in the accounting office in Baltimore. Without the number, the worker or his family may lose benefits when he retires after age 65 or in case of his death.

"We get in touch with the employer later if his report lacks number or lists an incorrect number," Barney said, "but that is expensive and is not necessary if the returns are right in the first place."

June Production Of Milk Reaches Record Quantity

RALEIGH—Estimated milk production in N.C. totaled 187 million pounds during June, the highest on record for June and only 2 million pounds short of the all-time high for any month which was set in May of this year when production reached 159 million pounds. Production during June 1952 was 145 million pounds, while the 1942-51 average for the month is 140 million pounds.

Milk production on U.S. farms passed its June peak somewhat earlier than usual this year, but continued at a relatively high level through the month. National output during June is estimated at 12.3 billion pounds, 4 percent more than a year ago and the largest since 1947.

Rematch Recalls Memories

The return bout between Heavyweight Champion Rocky Marciano and Roland LaStarza brings to mind the violent blasts of words between Jimmy DeAngelo and Al Weill after the first meeting of the two in 1950.

Marciano won that first match on a close decision. As is the case after nearly every fight won by decision, some experts claimed victory for LaStarza. The official records list Marciano as the winner.

A return engagement was agreed upon before the fight, with the only condition stipulated that it must be a good bout. The 1950 fight was so close that anyone with any interest in boxing would like to have seen a rematch.

De Angelo, manager for the challenger, claims that Weill refused to dicker for the return dates following the initial match. Weill was matchmaker at Madison Square Garden at the time and was also the silent manager of Marciano. The two bosses almost came to blows over the disagreement.

Since that time, De Angelo has kept his boy in perfect condition and readiness to get another crack at Marciano. He is reported to have turned down big-money fights with Joe Louis and Ezzard Charles so that LaStarza would be ready. LaStarza defeated Rex Layne in his only outing this season.

LaStarza was the logical contender after Marciano knocked Jersey Joe Walcott out in a return match earlier this season. DeAngelo's chance to pay back some of the debts he has incurred during the last three years is now at hand.

Pirates Have Tough Schedule

A glance at the schedule for East Carolina's football team this season shows a strong card for the Pirates. Five home and four off games are on the 1953 slate.

Seven of the games are against North State Conference competition. Lenoir Rhyne, Elon, Guilford, and Appalachian will be met at College Stadium in Greenville, while the Pirates will travel for games with Catawba and Western Carolina Teachers College.

East Carolina has scheduled three intersectional games for the coming year, two of them against schools from Florida. The Bucs travel to Tampa for a contest with Tampa University on Nov. 7 and go back again the next week against Stetson to end the season. Wilson Teachers of Washington will open the schedule in Greenville on Sept. 19.

Jack Boone and his cohorts should have a good season against the conference teams, with such stars as quarterback Dick Cherry and end Bobby Hodges returning for another year. Sandy Siler and Dwight Shoe, mainstays of the team for the past two years, were lost by graduation.

Cherry, a star at Washington High School two years ago, got in a great deal of time at the helm last year. He should be able to handle the team with little trouble. East Carolina is expected to have a line that will average approximately 220 pounds this season. Opponents will have to devise another method of going through Pirate defenses.

Managers Try For Bigger Leads

Although the rest of the leagues are still trying to catch up with them, Chuck Dressen of Brooklyn and Casey Stengel of the Yankees are constantly devising methods of increasing their lead.

The Dodgers started their late-season reinforcements today by announcing that two of its farm clubbers have been ordered to report. Glenn Mickens, righthanded pitcher from Fort Worth of the Texas League, is due to report to Brooklyn tomorrow. The second player, outfielder Dick Williams, will dress Monday after a trip from Montreal.

Williams has had a brief tenure with the parent Dodgers, but failed to make the grade in the majors. Dressen states that he has improved and is now ready to take his place in Ebbets Field.

The Yankees have a stronghold in the Kansas City farm club, but have not stated any intentions of calling anyone up. George Weiss is planning a visit to the team within the next few days, however, and it is probable that he will promote at least one player in an effort to increase the Yankee's late season steam.

Vic Seixas, the former star at the University of North Carolina, has really been hitting the tournament trail in recent weeks. After taking the singles crown at Wimbledon, Vic came back to the United States and reaped in the honors at the Spring Lake tourney. He and Maureen Connolly are currently setting the pace in the National Clay Court Championship event.

Corcoran Advises Hitters To Get Aid From Golf Pro

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK (UP)—Every major league baseball club should have a golf professional as an advisor in batting, Fred Corcoran said today.

Corcoran, promotion director of the Professional Golfers Association, brilliant manager and manager of the 1953 Ryder Cup team, made that statement after a final conference with Marine Capt. Ted Williams at the All-Star game in Cincinnati.

"Williams, during his years with the Red Sox, proved himself one of the greatest natural hitters in history," Corcoran explained. "He is also an enthusiastic golfer. I wanted to check with him before I approached this plan to the public. He was heartily in accord."

Tommy Armour, an outstanding golf instructor, suggested the probable benefits of golf pros in baseball to Corcoran two years ago, he said. "And since then I have discussed the subject with many players and professional golfers and I have yet to find a single person who found any flaws in the suggestion."

Armour of Greenwich, Conn., came up with the idea because he is an enthusiastic baseball fan.

"Tommy, accustomed as he is to the precision and accuracy of the golf swing, it became apparent that too many batters were making mistakes at the plate—mistakes that were proving costly to themselves and their clubs. It's an old diamond idea."

"They pay off on your hitting." Major leaguers are the best batsmen in organized baseball. Yet, many of them are comparatively weak hitters, Corcoran emphasized. And even when the batting stars go into slumps, there is no certain way of boosting them out.

"When an ace hitter is in a slump, he gets advice of different kinds from nearly everyone on the club, from the manager on down," he said. "When nothing helps, some of them resort to superstition. They change their seats in the dugout. They quit wearing neckties on the street or start wearing them. They have taxi drivers take them through busy sections so they may see a truckload of beer barrels, and so forth. But they never ask the advice of a guy who could really help them—a golf professional."

"Why could golf pros detect batting flaws when veteran managers and players could not?" "Because every good golf pro is an expert on the swing," he replied. "The swing—the good drive—is fundamental in golf. It's only one department of the game but without it you can't be a good golfer."

"In baseball, you can swing at the ball and foul it. That's only a strike. But when you swing at a golf ball and foul it, you're dead. Because it's a slice, and you have to play that ball wherever it lands—in the rough or in a trap of weeds."

Kiwanis Win Second Half Crown

Elks Lose Game, Chance For Tie To Exchangites

The Kiwanians backed into the championship for second half play in the local Little League yesterday as the Exchangites ousted the second place Elks, 4-3, in the final game of the 1953 season.

The Kiwanis team has a record of seven wins and three defeats, good enough to give it undisputed possession of first place. Second place Elks now has a 6-4 record. A victory for the Elks yesterday would have thrown the pennant race into a stalemate.

A best three-of-five series will now be played between the Kiwanians and the Jaycees, first half winners. The series will get underway next Monday at the Little League park.

The Kiwanians assured themselves of at least a tie when Billy Cox came in as a relief pitcher for Bobby Edwards and set the Lions down to a score of 2-1 in a game played Monday.

An unearned run in the top of the sixth won yesterday's game for the Exchangites and erased all hopes of the Elks. Tommy Braxton led off the sixth with a base on balls, and advanced when Edward Buchanan's dribble was error by Elks pitcher Merrill Bynum. He came home on a fielder's choice on a grounder by Bill Brown.

The Exchange team showed they meant business by scoring three runs in the first inning when Braxton unlimbered a triple with the bases loaded. Billy James singled to start the game and Jeff Fountain and Dick Evans walked to fill the bases. Braxton then smashed his three-bagger.

Gavilan Ready To Defend Title

MILWAUKEE (UP)—Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan is ready to defend his title "against anyone, anywhere where we can get a good gate" but his manager also said he's aiming for the vacant middleweight title.

Gavilan won a unanimous 10-round decision over Ramon Fuentes, a novice from Los Angeles, here Wednesday night in Milwaukee's first nationally televised fight. Fuentes said after the fight he thought he would get another bout with Gavilan.

"If Madison Square Garden wants to put up Fuentes, we'll be glad to take him," said Angel Lopez, Gavilan's manager. "Or we'll be glad to take anyone else they want to put up."

Gavilan is scheduled to fight middleweight Joe Giardello in Philadelphia Aug. 10, Lopez said. The Cuban Kid's pilot also said Gavilan was tentatively scheduled for a Garden fight with an as yet unnamed opponent.

Neither fighter was seriously hurt Wednesday night. Fuentes went down for a nine-count in the only knockdown of the bout which came in the seventh round. He was weaving again in the eighth but snapped back to land several telling blows on Gavilan's body before the bell.

Although Fuentes tried to carry the attack to Gavilan in the early rounds, the veteran bolo puncher from Camaguey, Cuba, had too much know-how.

Gavilan outweighed Fuentes, 152-14 to 148-3-4.

The defeat was Fuentes' second in 23 bouts against the Kid's 94th victory in 111 fights.

Top Golfers Get Underway Today In St. Paul Open

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UP)—A high caliber field of touring golf professionals set out in the $15,000 St. Paul Open golf championship today, each hoping, but not expecting, to play the 22-under-par game if took to win the last two St. Paul tournaments.

Neither of the last two years' winners was on hand. Defending titlist Cary Middlecoff withdrew at the last minute because of business pressures in Memphis. Lloyd Mangrum, who fired a record 266 in the 1951 tournament and saw it equalled by Middlecoff last year, did not enter.

Practically all of the other big names of golf except Ben Hogan were on hand. Leading the field were Slammin' Sammy Snead and PGA champion Walter Burkemo, a surprise entry.

Wally Ulrich, of Austin, Minn., was expected to be the local favorite.

Dodgers Recall Two From Farms; Coaches Are Happy

By MILTON RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UP)—Brooklyn's high command finally heeded the anguished plea of Chuck Dressen by sending up "shock troops" today as firing resumed on all big league fronts.

Pushed into the Brooklyn breach will be Glenn Mickens, 22-year old right handed pitcher from Fort Worth of the Texas League, and Dick Williams, 24-year old outfielder from Montreal of the International League. "And if that's not enough," snapped Dressen, intent on preserving a 1-1-2 game lead in the face of a western invasion, "we'll get some more!"

Actually, Charlie was rushing things a little. Mickens, who was a spring sensation with the Dodgers and owned an 8-5 record with Fort Worth, won't report at Ebbets Field until Friday, while Williams, hitting .286 at Montreal, isn't due until Monday.

"Mickens is ready to win in the majors," said Dressen. "and from what they tell me, Williams is so per cent improved from the last time he was with us."

"Do I think they'll help us? Hell, we wouldn't brought 'em up if I didn't think so."

While Dressen anxiously awaited his replacements, Casey Stengel, whose Yankees launch a western invasion in St. Louis tonight, had worries of his own despite his team's five-game bulge.

Stengel's chief concern centered around his switch hitting slugging star, Mickey Mantle.

"The kid's got me worried," said Stengel. "His leg is bothering him and he may not be able to play for awhile. If he has to stay out too long, we'll be in trouble."

Mantle aggravated a leg injury during the All-Star game Tuesday and Stengel, who wanted to rest him in the first place, was forced to take him out. It was reported that Mantle is suffering from water on the knee and might not be able to play for at least four or five days.

General Manager George Weiss accompanied the Yankees to St. Louis but refused to say whether he planned to bring up any Kansas City farm hands although he will visit that city.

While Dressen and Stengel plotted how to stretch their leads, other managers schemed how to cut them still shorter.

Most of the contenders looked on the three-day All-Star "vacation" as a break for them.

"We needed a breather," said Charlie Grimm, whose Braves are 1-1-2 games behind Brooklyn, "and now that we had it, I think we're ready to move up again."

Steve O'Neill said the rest was bound to benefit his injured Phils while Eddie Stanky explained that it enabled him to get his Cardinal pitching rotation in order again for an important series starting against the Dodgers tonight.

Leo Durocher was probably the happiest of all even though his Giants are 6-1-2 games off the pace.

"Our big hitters—Monte Irvin, Bobby Thomson, Whitey Lockman and Hank Thompson—are racking up the hits the way they did in 1951," smiled Durocher, "and what's more we now have this kid pitcher Al Worthington."

Adding most to Stengel's discontent were the red-hot White Sox winners of 25 out of their last 31 games.

"The Yankees," promised White Sox Manager Paul Richards, "will hear from us further."

A DOGGONE GOOD DEBUT—New York Giant hurler Allen Worthington is pawed by Manager Leo Durocher's boxer, Slugger, in the dressing room at the Polo Grounds in New York after making a brilliant debut as a major leaguer with a two-hit shutout as the Giants beat the Philadelphia Phils, 6-0. Worthington, a 23-year-old graduate of the University of Alabama, was purchased from Nashville last winter and recalled from Minneapolis where he had a 9-4 record. (AP Wirephoto)

Builders Win 4-3 Contest With Successive Homers

The Granites toasted the Southern Bread entry in the Softball League last night by beating the Bakers 6-1. Garner-Wynne-Manning dropped the second contest, 4-3, to Home Builders.

Back to back home runs by Red Painter and Ford McGowan in the bottom of the sixth inning won the contest for the Builders. The circuit smashes erased a 3-2 lead established by Garner-Wynne-Manning in the third inning.

The Granites had everything all their own way in the first contest. A single run in the first and three more in the fourth clinched the victory.

John Conway led the Granites with two singles in three times at bat. Sid Briley collected a double in two attempts. Billy McRoy singled twice to lead the losers. Roger Mills

Bob Clay Defeats Popular Grappler

Bob Clay defeated popular Matt Murphy in two of three falls last night in the main bout of the weekly Hardee-Worthington wrestling show.

Art Nelson, a newcomer to the Greenville mat, won over Jack Moore in the semi-finals. Blonde Rip Hawk took the measure of Gene Angelo in one of the preliminaries. The second prelim bout ended in a draw between Tinker Todd and Gene Blakey.

Chatter From The Dugouts

By MILTON RICHMAN

United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—They say in the dugouts:

Virgil (Fire) Trucks of the White Sox credits his improved showing to the elimination of a mental bloc. "I used to worry about hitting the batters with a pitched ball, but I got over it," he says. "I hit Jim Rivera on the head once and almost got sick. But he just rubbed his head a little and trotted down to first base."

Billy Cox of Brooklyn will thank you to soft-pedal that praise of his defensive skill. "They over-rate my fielding and under-rate my hitting," he claims.

Even though Frank Baumholtz of the Cubs is once again among the National League's five top hitters, he insists, "I don't belong in the same class with those fellows. I always aim to hit .280 and figure I've had a good year if I do."

Southpaw Mel Parnell, by-passed for the All-Star game, wags Casey Stengel to know there aren't any hard feelings. "Missing the All-Star game," says the Red Sox hurler, "gives me two extra starts during the regular season."

Manager Phil Cavarretta of the Cubs takes his hat off to Enos Slaughter of the Cards. "There's one fellow," says the Cub skipper, "who after all this time, still plays like he doesn't have his position clinched."

The majority of relief pitchers use sun-tan oil whenever they trudge out to the bullpen. Guess they want to get an even tan on their faces and their arms.

eral at Fort Eustis, Va. Bob Elliott, the White Sox third baseman is going on 37, but he got his dander up recently when a writer referred to him as an "ex-National League retard."

"I'm still using the original tires," Elliott snapped, pointing to his feet, "and there's plenty of mileage left in 'em."

Call it mutiny or whatever else you like, but little Murray Dickson is the only Pirate player who refuses to wear the helmet which Branch Rickey helps manufacture. Dickson's curt comment on the skullpiece is: "the helmet it."

Think Mickey Mantle is bad? George Kell of the Red Sox says, "I'll never learn to lay off the bad balls even if I'm in this league another 20 years."

BILLY COX

Pitchers have every advantage over a pinch-hitter, says Bobby Hofman of the Giants. "When you come up to pinch hit," he says, "your muscles are stiff from sitting on the bench, the pitcher is always bearing down against you and sometimes all you manage to get is one swing at the ball."

Lefty Mickey McDermott of the Red Sox married a girl whose family runs a hotel. Lounging around the lobby one day, he decided to answer a call. "I go up to the room," he says, "and the guy haws me out because the cook in the kitchen didn't send up ketchup with his steak. Then he asks me to bring him up a paper and he gives me his laundry to send out. Didn't even give me a nabe! up, either."

Sen. Lennon Indicates Try To Break McCarthy Tangle

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Alton Lennon (D-NC) raised the possibility today that he may try to break the Democratic boycott of Sen. Joseph McCarthy's Senate investigating subcommittee.

The three Democrats on the subcommittee resigned in a group recently when the four Republican members voted McCarthy iron-clad hire-and-fire authority over all staff employees.

Lennon, however, sworn in just yesterday to take the place of the late Sen. Willis Smith, said his "present intention" is to ask for membership on the committee.

The 46-year-old senator from Wilmington, N. C., added that he would not make a definite decision about it until talking with Democratic leaders and the three Democrats who bolted the subcommittee last week.

McCarthy said he had not met Lennon but "from what I hear, he's an outstanding American; I'd be very glad to have him" on the subcommittee.

Lennon told a news conference that assignment to the subcommittee would give him a chance to "learn more" about the Wisconsin Republican who "is a great American in the eyes of many people."

He said he also would like to see witnesses get "more consideration" before the subcommittee.

Lennon said he "differs violently" with McCarthy's handling of witnesses as reported in the press.

Lennon was assigned to the parent Government Operations Committee and therefore is in position to request the subcommittee assignment, Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark), ranking Democrat in the full committee and one of those who walked out of the subcommittee, said he would not assign any Democrats to McCarthy's subcommittee unless they specifically requested it.

"My present intention is that I will request it," Lennon said.

Lennon received the oath of office from Vice President Richard Nixon at noon yesterday after being escorted up by the Senate aisle by Sen. Clyde R. Hoey (D-NC) of Shelby.

His attractive wife, parents and two children looked on and he was loudly applauded by some 200 well-wishers who accompanied him from Wilmington for the swearing-in ceremony. Dr. Harold Tribble, president of Wake Forest College of which Lennon is an alumnus, gave the invocation when the Senate met.

Lennon was politically unknown outside of his own county until he was appointed by Gov. William B. Umstead last Friday to take the place of Smith.

He has said he will seek a full six-year term in the Senate next year.

Lennon told his news conference that he would give "every consideration" to the policy of Democratic leadership in the Senate and House.

"I'm a Democrat, but I'm an American before I am a Democrat," he said.

Boy's Death Mars Big Scout Jamboree Today

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UP)—Thousands of Boy Scouts arrived today for the 1953 National Jamboree, but the gala event was marred by the death of a Scout who apparently fell from a train enroute here.

Fifteen-year-old Roger Swenson, of Hayward, Wis., died of his injuries last night at a Las Vegas, Nev., hospital, William Armstrong, jamboree official reported.

The youth lost his left arm when he fell or leaped from a special train at Leith, Nev., late Monday. His left arm was severed at the shoulder when he was struck by another train. He was rushed to Las Vegas in critical condition.

Armstrong said it was the first death ever recorded in connection with a jamboree. He said there had been no witnesses to the accident and that it was not known whether the boy was awake or sleepwalking at the time.

Meanwhile, President Eisenhower, in a message to the jamboree, called upon the Boy Scouts "to perform a national conservation good turn in 1954."

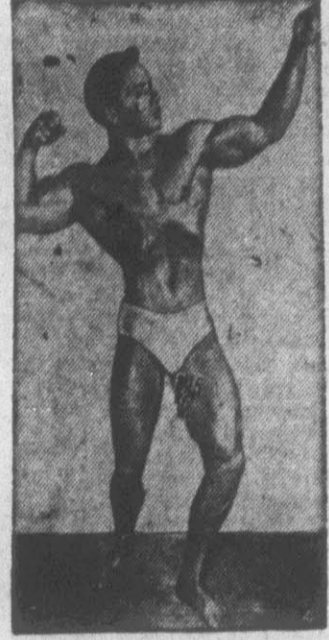

He asked the organization's 3,183,266 boys and adult leaders to "arouse public recognition of the need for adequate protection and wise management of our soil, water, mineral, forest, grassland and wildlife resources."

Chief Scout Executive Arthur A. Schuck read the message at this morning's opening session of the 43rd annual meeting of the organization's National Council in nearby Los Angeles.

Today's arrivals at the 3,000-acre jamboree city on Irvine Ranch included 38 Puerto Rican Scouts. They carried a Puerto Rican flag which they planned to hoist in a special ceremony.

The jamboree will get underway tonight when contingents from throughout America, U. S. territories and 14 nations gather around huge campfires.

'Bones To Spare' In Smithsonian

WASHINGTON, June 8 (U.P.)—There are more skeletons in the closets of the Smithsonian Institution than any place else in the world. A large cemetery excepted, of course.

But don't expect to find the skull of some missing ancestor in the Smithsonian, or the bones of some fugitive from justice. These are the remains of unidentified individuals.

Stowed away in the institution's division of physical anthropology are boxes of bones, more than 18,000 human skulls, and numerous complete skeletons. These represent every division and subdivision of the human race with an especially good array of American aboriginal materials.

Plan Ports For Mexico's Coast

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico, which claims a longer coast line than the United States, is determined to make more use of its maritime resources. For hundreds of years the economic and social life of the country has centered in the mountains of the interior.

Probably yellow fever was the chief reason. Until 40 years ago it was a constant danger along the coast in the summer. But since the disease has been eliminated from the port cities, there is no reason not to make greater use of them.

A cabinet committee drafted plans for what the government calls "The March to the Sea." It calls for increased numbers of fishing boats to provide cheap seafood for the interior; a merchant fleet to carry coastwise freight and relieve the overburdened railroads; better dock facilities; agricultural colonies to use the well watered lands along the coast; and better roads to coastal areas from the interior.

Bones Tell Tales
Since it was established in 1903, the collection has disproved the adage that "dead men tell no tales."

FBI investigators and police detectives have been able to determine much from these skulls — sometimes the identity of the owner and how he died. The collection, in charge of Dr. T. Dale Stewart, is consulted regularly for possible identification of remains found in building excavations, ancient graveyards, and the like.

The division, founded by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, one of the world's foremost anthropologists, has unfolded an invaluable story of the physical history of the human race, the face of the earth.

'Cold Light' In Treated Glass

SOHENEACTADY, N.Y. (U.P.)—A treated sheet of glass that glows with the induction of electricity is science's latest contribution in "cold light" for instrument and panel lighting.

Developed by the General Electric Co., the new light source, glows without producing heat. In other light sources, much of the electrical energy used goes to waste in producing heat rather than light.

Thus, in "cold light," an infinitesimal amount of electricity will produce light equal to that of an incandescent lamp. One cent a year for electricity in "cold light" will produce as much illumination as the 50-cent annual cost of an incandescent lamp.

The new light is easy to place and regulate in intensity. The light can be used for illuminating instrument panels for autos, boats and aircraft, as well as lighting any size clock face, scientists say.

To turn a sheet of glass into an electroluminescent panel, powdered phosphor is sprayed on one side. Then electricity is passed through the phosphor coating by placing two electrodes on the surface. The colors produced range from orange to blue, including white.

Bible Words to Live by

PSALM 34:6. "This poor man cried, and the Lord heard him, and saved him out of all his troubles."

My attachment for this verse dates from a night many years ago when, as a boy of fifteen, I entered for the first time the meeting hall of the Rescue Mission in my home town, Altoona, Pennsylvania. On the wall was a cardboard motto bearing these words. Nearby was a group of "guests" waiting for the nightly service to begin. Their faces as well as their clothing and manners identified them as some of the world's anonymous who had passed through varying degrees of evil and misfortune, and were now finding warmth at least—perhaps also hope and salvation—in the fellowship and spirit of the mission.

The verse has stayed with me ever since, a sort of epitome of our common human need and of that essence of the Christian gospel—that God is forever there, seeking His wayward or troubled children, ready always to meet them where they are and lift them up toward where He is.

Freight Mark On Mississippi Up

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (U.P.)—River freight traffic in the middle Mississippi has surpassed the million-ton-a-month mark for the first time in its history of the river.

Col. Fred E. Ressegieu, head of the U. S. Corps of engineers here, said a total of 1,022,467 tons—a daily average of 33,000 tons—was reported having passed through the Alton, Ill., dam during May.

The towboat, Bruce Walker, carrying 2,000 tons of grain aboard three barges, passed through the dam's lock on May 21 with the month's millionth ton. It was the heaviest month's traffic through the dam since its construction in 1937.

Most of May's freight tonnage in the middle Mississippi was made up of petroleum products. The engineers' report showed the following breakdown: petroleum products, 507,000; grain products, 192,000 tons; coal 97,250 tons; cement, sand and gravel, 22,450 tons; sulphur, 53,798 tons; miscellaneous, 148,941 tons.

A total of 1,702 freight-carrying vessels passed through the Alton dam during May.

The couple were reported last night, however, as "seeking" a marriage license when Condon was stopped for speeding near Winona.

Chicago Blonde Chosen As Miss United States

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UP)—Miss Alabama, the only one of an 18-year old Chicago blonde matches her charms against 26 of the world's most beautiful women for the title of Miss Universe tonight.

Myrna Hansen, the Miss Illinois entry in the beauty pageant here, was crowned Miss United States Wednesday night. The young model squealed with delight at her chance for the lucrative international title and the Miss United States crown.

"I was completely surprised and felt as if I were dreaming," she said.

In tonight's preliminary judging, 16 girls will become finalists for the Miss Universe crown, which will be given to the winner Friday night.

Along with her title, Miss Hansen won a $2,400 sports car, a $1,500 diamond studded wrist watch and a movie contract with Universal-International Studios.

Miss Hansen is five feet, seven inches in height, weighs 125, and has a 37-25-35 figure.

Runners-up for the title were brunette Mary Kemp Griffin of Florence, S. C.; Doris Edwards, three married "misses" to reach the finals; Miss Washington, Nancy Petrabor, and Miss Utah, Shauna Wood.

"I never thought I could be so thrilled," Miss Hansen said after Wednesday night's competition. The shapely model was crowned with a $5,000 gold and silver crown—a replica of the 13-starred liberty cap of revolutionary days.

The stars of Wednesday night's show were the 42 United States beauties who paraded in evening gowns and swim suits before 11 judges and a crowd of 2,300 spectators. The new Miss U.S.A. wore a tropic blue bathing suit and a matching cashmere sweater sprinkled with brilliants.

During preliminary judging of the 20 semi-finalists, Miss Washington lost her powder blue petticoat, much to the amusement of the audience, which cheered as she ran backstage.

Camps Open To Sub-Teen Youths

CAMP LEACH—The first of two "midget camps" is now under way at the East Carolina Episcopal Diocesan Center here.

Rev. Charles I. Penick, rector of Grace Episcopal Church in Whiteville, is director.

The camp is for children from nine through 11 years of age. It started July 7. There are 91 campers here with 13 counselors to supervise them. An Indian theme is being used at the camp and each group of nine campers has an Indian tribe name.

Miss Jettie O'Dell, lay diocesan worker of Holly Ridge; Paul Pittinger, public school music teacher of Southport and Mrs. Hilda Bowen, of Washington are teachers. Classes are held mornings.

Afternoons are devoted to athletics under direction of Mrs. C. L. Taylor of Whiteville.

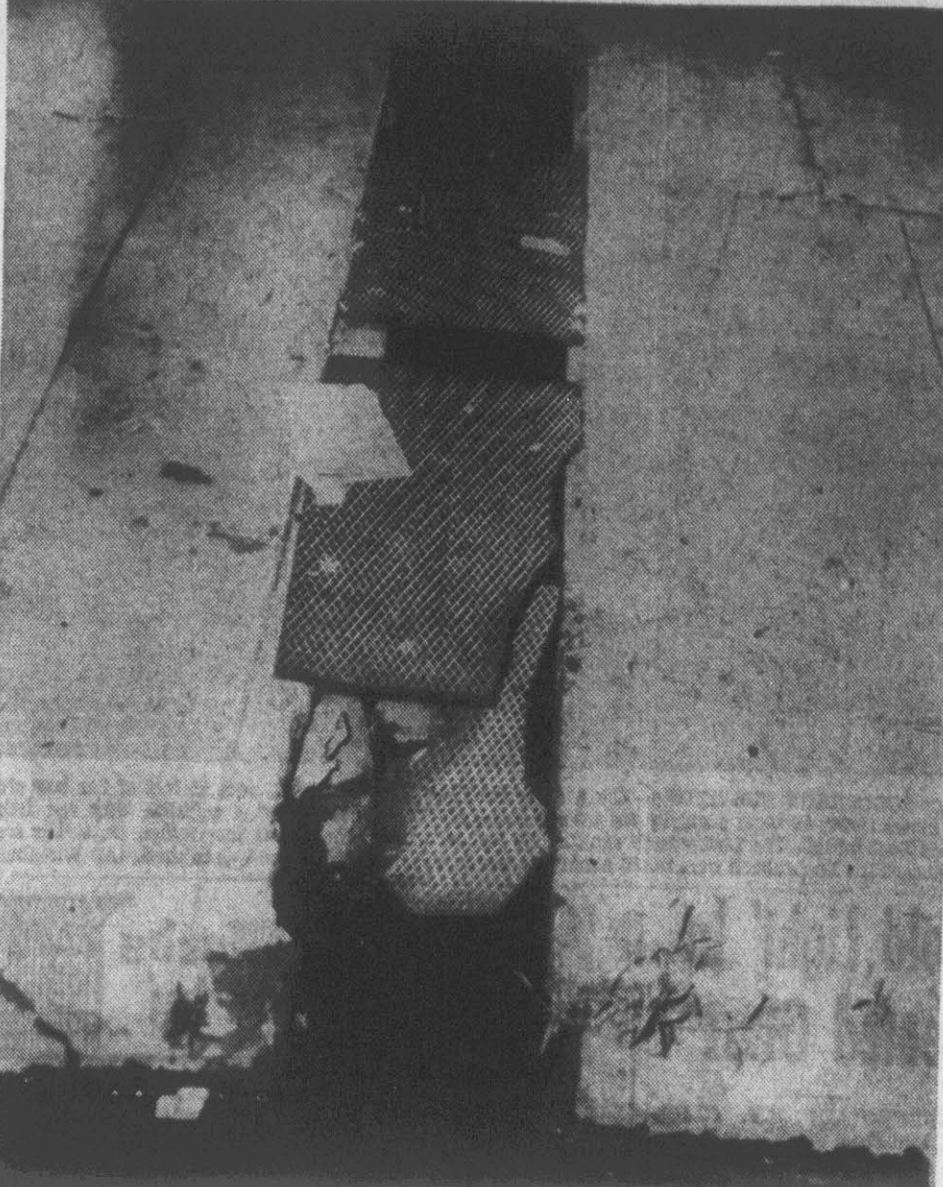

Rev. John Ormond of Fayetteville, camp chaplain holds vesper services in the outdoor chapel. "Campfire" meetings are held after the vespers.

Three boys from Greenville, Jack Foley III, Burt Aycock and George Lay White, are at the camp. Mrs. Gray Hodges of Washington is publicity chairman.

Navy Conceding 'Some Humor' In Stowaway Prank

NEW YORK (UP)—Officials of the Bronx Zoo are "reasonably certain" that Penelope the duck-billed platypus has become a mother.

If their suspicions are correct, it is the first time a baby platypus has been hatched in captivity outside the strange mammal's native Australia.

The officials made their cautious announcement after Penelope emerged for the first time from the underground chamber where she retired six days ago presumably to lay from one to three eggs.

Her reappearance on the sixth day was a hopeful sign, according to the only platypus "baby book," compiled by an Australian biologist.

But the excited zoo officials won't know for three or four months whether their hopes have been fulfilled. It is customary for the mother platypus to keep her young in the cozy dirt burrow that long.

Cecil, the male platypus at the zoo, swam contentedly in his adjacent pool with no obvious concern that he may have just become the first platypus father in the Western Hemisphere.

The platypus is a curiosity of the animal world. It has a duck-like bill and webbed feet and a long furry body. It lays eggs like a fowl but suckles its young like a mammal.

Penelope, who is 18 inches long and weighs three pounds, ducked back into her burrow after taking a brief look around.

Zoo keepers plan to keep a close check on Penelope's food consumption for further evidence of motherhood in the next few weeks.

Mother platypuses eat extraordinary quantities of worms and crayfish while nursing their young.

Quadruple Amputee To Give 50 Pints Of Blood

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP)—Former Sgt. Werner Reininger, 24-year-old quadruple amputee back from the Korean war, plans to give 50 pints of blood for the 25 he has received.

Reininger gave a pint of blood yesterday.

The former Marine was wounded at Ydanmi, Korea, and was treated in Army and Navy hospitals in Japan.

"Every serviceman and ex-serviceman should give blood to the armed forces blood centers," he said today. "It is only a small prick in the arm, but I know what it means to get a pint of blood when you need it."

Reininger said he had made up his mind to give double the 25 pints he had received.

Reininger called and came to the blood donor center several times before being accepted. He was told to wait about two-and-a-half years to allow his system to build up after the quadruple amputation.

Last Christmas, his wife, Jeanette, 22, gave a pint of blood herself when her husband was turned down. Both said they planned to continue giving blood after the birth of the baby.

Zoo Is Hopeful That Platypus Now A Mother

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (UP)—The Navy today admitted that the escape of an 18-year-old girl who impersonated a sailor and boarded a U. S. battle cruiser that went to sea for gunnery practice was "humorous" in some aspects.

But Rear Adm. Herbert Hopwood's office warned that the case of Joan Garrison, who clipped her hair, pulled on a sailor's uniform and boarded the U. S. S. Los Angeles Monday on a dare, "has its serious side."

At the same time, the Navy released the names of two young sailors accused of helping the unemployed Long Beach waitress in the prank and said they were "now confined aboard ship pending an investigation."

LA. Cmdr. William J. Hagerty identified the men as Edward J. Crawford, 19, apprentice seaman, Louisville, Ky., and James N. Conwell, 19, seaman, Roanoke Rapids, N. C.

Hagerty said Conwell admitted lending Miss Garrison his liberty card, which was her pass to board the vessel, and that Crawford had helped her go aboard.

Meanwhile, former U. S. attorney Charles H. Carr, and his associate, former assistant U. S. attorney George E. Danielson, announced they had volunteered to defend Miss Garrison. Federal Judge Pierson M. Hall said he would appoint them. Danielson is a former Navy officer and one-time Navy court martial jurist.

Miss Garrison, who was held in lieu of $1,000 bail on charges of illegally wearing a military uniform, boarded the cruiser early Monday and a few hours later it pulled out to sea.

Miss Garrison, "scared to death" when the ship's batteries began gunnery practice, was finally found and placed in the brig. The cruiser returned to port immediately.

Advice Offered By George Ross

RALEIGH (UP)—Outgoing conservation and Development Director George Ross gave fellow workers some choice bits of his political philosophy here yesterday at a farewell party in the C&D board room.

After receiving a revised edition of the Bible and a silver platter from members of the department, Ross commented, "You know, before the governor called me to his office, I read the 12th Chapter of Romans. Afterwards I read the 27th Psalm."

Ross' eyes twinkled as he added, "This old thing of predestination comes in handy at a time like this."

Although he later declined to be pinned down on just what passages he had in mind in those chapters, he said he had "always liked" this verse from Romans: "Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head."

The 27th Psalm rejoices in defeat: "For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavilion" and urges "put not thy servant away in anger."

Ross will step down as director of the board next Monday when Ben Douglas, businessman and former mayor of Charlotte, will be sworn as his successor.

Ross assured fellow workers he has "no regrets" except for "jobs yet undone."

Funeral Friday For Mrs. Gray

Mrs. Gray died in a Baltimore convalescent hospital Tuesday night after collapsing during a game of Badminton. She was 39.

Burial will be in the Salem Cemetery here. The family requested that flowers not be sent.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks gained a few cents more in another dull session today.

First hour sales of 160,000 shares duplicated yesterday's initial hour and yesterday produced only 60,000 shares, one of the smallest markets of the year.

Traders were still uncertain on the future of the market, the experts said. They were somewhat relieved over passage of the excess profits tax measure, not that they sanctioned it but that its passage removed it as an unknown factor. The big unknown just now is said to be the Korean truce negotiations.

Douglas Aircraft, the sensation in the last part of yesterday's session, ran up nearly two points before running into profit-taking. The company raised the dividend and declared an extra dividend late yesterday. Other aircrafts were strengthened on anticipation of favorable reports of their companies.

Amerasia ran up two points in the petroleum group which generally was steady to firm. The steels gained 25 cents apiece for the leaders. Motors added a few cents. Rails had enough gainers to lift the average a trifle. A few losses set the utility average down two cents.

COLONY - SATURDAY

In the process of construction is the new St. Raphael's Parochial School which will be completed in September. Father Gable said today that he had just received word from Bishop Vincent S. Waters of the Diocese of Raleigh that the addition of a kitchen and cafeteria to the new school has been approved and the cost will be $15,000. The school being built now is estimated to cost $105,000 and will consist of six classrooms, a library and auditorium. Subject to further approval is a public playground which has been planned. The new school is being built on East Fifth Street and one or two of the classrooms will be ready for occupancy by September 1. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Origin Of Tobacco Leaf Spots Remains Mystery

Presence of those "brown and white specks" which have been showing up on some of the 1953 leaf crop for the past week have posed a problem.

What are they?

And that is exactly what both the tobacco grower and scientist would like very much to know.

The spots began making their appearance in Pitt a little over a week ago and since that time have begun to show up in fields all over the county in ever-increasing growth.

County Agent Sam Winchester this morning, in company with tobacco specialist Sam Weeks, frankly admitted that they were "in the same boat" with the farmers and scientists at State College. They just don't know what those specks are.

Winchester stated, however, that this is not the first year which the spots or specks have been known to exist in the county.

They were first discovered but only on a limited scale, in a field near Stokes some three years ago. At that time the field was the only one found to be infested.

But now, and it seems that the cool spell this week may have affected the spread, has become quite general over the county.

However, the specks do not run according to any set pattern, but varies with both the various types of soils or varieties of leaf being used.

The County Agent's office reported that in places along the infested fields the plants will be in one spot healthy and growing while several stalks down the row the spots will be prevalent.

Sam Weeks said that the only information coming from State College regarding the specks so far was that tests made to date have indicated that no disease organisms were present, thus killing for the time being fear that a new tobacco disease has broken out in the tobacco fields.

A variety of theories have been advanced as to the cause of the spots or specks. Some figure it is the lack of nitrogen in the soil while others advance the idea that there is too much nitrogen present.

However, in spite of all this, County Agent Winchester voiced an opinion that the cured leaf should sell well on the 1953 market. And that is the item which local producers are most interested in.

String Of Forged Checks Results In Arrest Of 23-Year-Old Local Negro

A 23-year-old Negro had check artist met his Waterloo yesterday at the hands of Greenville police after his most recent spree of passing forged checks.

Arrested yesterday and charged with forgery on 13 counts is James Clifton Taylor, 23, of 104 Washington Street.

Taylor was taken into custody yesterday morning by Detective R. T. Rogerson shortly after the checks allegedly to have been passed by Taylor began making their appearance over the city.

Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs said

Report 949 New Polio Cases In Week's Listing

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Public Health Service said today that 949 new polio cases were reported last week as compared with 1,044 cases in the same week of last year.

Since the "polio season" started last spring, 4,112 cases have been reported a gain of 2 per cent over the figure for a comparable period of last year. The service said a "high proportion" of this year's cases are non-paralytic.

Nine states showed a substantial increase in new polio cases last week. They are: North Carolina, with 76 new cases; Ohio, 66; Illinois, 57; Virginia, 39; Tennessee, 31; Kansas, 19; Pennsylvania, 15; and Connecticut and New Jersey with 14 new cases each.

Too Many Probes Now

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. Clare E. Hoffman, whose own committee stripped him of some of his investigating powers, rumbled today that "there are too many congressional investigations anyway."

The 77-year-old Michigan Republican ought to know. He heads the House Government Operations Committee, the permanent investigating committee of the House.

Committee members ganged up on Hoffman yesterday and stripped him of his authority to launch investigations of alleged labor union racketeering in Kansas City, Mo., and Detroit.

Hoffman, who often clashes with the administration and House GOP leaders, said the action was in retaliation for his efforts to curb investigations by other committee members which he said were damaging the new administration.

He recently told Rep. George Bender (R-O.), a subcommittee chairman with 19 investigations underway, to cut them to "one complaint."

Committee members revolted by a vote of 23 to 1 and slapped Hoffman down.

Hoffman said the result will be that subcommittee chairmen, seeking "publicity," will compete against each other "by finding things wrong with the Republican administration that hasn't yet had a chance to get its feet on the ground."

Father And Girl Saved At Beach

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH (UP)—A lifeguard pulled a father and a 9-year-old girl from the surf at the south end of Wrightsville Beach late yesterday to prevent a tragedy.

Lifeguard Bill Martin administered artificial respiration to little Patsy Smith, daughter of Numa L. Smith of Arlington, Va., until a rescuator arrived.

Smith and the girl were admitted to a hospital. It was believed the child ventured into water over her head and the father had difficulty when he went after her.

Eisenhower Wins His EPT Battle

Feared Woman Judge Elevated In E. Germany

WASHINGTON (UP)— Passage of the excess profits tax bill gave President Eisenhower a major victory today in the toughest legislative test yet for his six-month-old administration.

The measure needed only Mr. Eisenhower's signature to renew the 1950 excess profits levy, which expired June 30, for six months until Dec. 31. It was a major item in the administration's budget program.

The Senate shouted approval of the bill late Wednesday and sent it to the White House. The usually slow moving upper chamber completed action after only four hours of debate and only five days after the measure finished its bumpy course through the House.

Republican leaders in the House had made support for the bill a test of support for Mr. Eisenhower. Senate GOP leaders invoked the President's name again Wednesday to get the bill through the Senate without amendment.

There had been reports that Mr. Eisenhower had no objection to increasing the $25,000 exemption for the corporate income subject to the excess profits tax.

But Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R-Colo.) of the Senate Finance Committee reported he had telephoned the President Wednesday. He said Mr. Eisenhower hoped the bill would pass without amendment.

Millikin's appeal came in a fight to defeat an amendment sponsored by Sen. John J. Williams (R-Del.). The amendment would have exempted the first $100,000 of a corporation's income instead of $25,000, from the excess profits tax.

The Williams amendment was defeated, 34 to 52.

Death-Threat By Russian Troops Broke Sit-Down

BERLIN (UP)—The Russian army has broken a sit-down strike at the famous Carl Zeiss optical plant in Jena by threatening to shoot without trial 1,400—of its 14,000 workers, it was reported today.

The West Berlin "League of Free Jurists," which investigates conditions in the Soviet zone through its own intelligence agencies, gave the report.

Workers at the plant went on a sit-down strike Saturday, demanding that comrades imprisoned as the result of the June 17 revolt be freed and that the puppet East German government be forced to resign, the league said.

The Soviet army garrison commander in Jena went to the factory Tuesday, according to the report, and told strike leaders that every tenth worker would be shot by firing squads immediately, and without trial, unless work was resumed.

Dog Gets Choice Of 2 Masters; Court Confused

CHICAGO (UP)—A friendly brown collie dog, whose name is either Shep or Laddie, had his choice today of two masters who both claim him.

Jack J. Robbins, 28, told a police court judge yesterday that the dog is his Shep, who vanished 17 months ago.

He said a scar on the dog's nose was caused when Shep once touched a hot waffle iron.

But Frank Daniels, 32, maintained the dog was his Laddie, and said he found it shivering on a street corner last February.

Judge Mason L. Sullivan ordered the dog brought in to decide the proper owner himself.

The collie gleefully licked the face of Daniels' wife.

Then it licked Robbins' face. Then it licked the judge's face. The baffled judge continued the case.
