Rhee Declares Armistice Promises Were Conditional

By EARNEST HOBERECHT United Press Staff Correspondent SEUL, Korea (UP)—President Syngman Rhee blew the Korean truce situation wide open again today.

But whatever promises it contained, they did not satisfy Rhee and so, once more, whether or when there would be a truce in Korea was anybody's guess.

U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, in Washington, had warned that the hot and cold Korea negotiations might blow cold again but he said there were no obstacles that could not be surmounted if the Communists really wanted a truce.

Rhee and the United States were in such sharp disagreement that it appeared only publication of the pledges exchanged by Rhee and Asst. Secretary of State Walter Robertson could settle the dispute.

The general belief is that there is no hope of getting the defense pact (mutual security pact) ratified by the U. S. Senate before the closing of the Congressional session this year.

While Rhee was announcing his latest stand, staff officers worked in marathon sessions at Panmunjom to settle minor issues between the two sides.

Rhee's statement came as no surprise. His foreign minister, Pyun Yung Tae, only a few minutes earlier had indicated that the South Korean government was in an angry mood.

It was understood here that the Rhee-Robertson agreement, said to be "firm and final" with no points left to be clarified by Washington, contained the following guarantees:

Declines To Violate Secrecy Agreement; Assurances Sent Rhee President Still 'Reasonably' Hopeful

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today that despite differences with both North Korean Communists and South Korea he still is hopeful and reasonably confident an armistice can be signed soon.

He said it would be foolish, however, to try to estimate the exact date when it could happen.

The State Department, meanwhile, sent South Korean President Syngman Rhee a new note in the hope of allaying last-minute fears about an armistice.

U. S. officials had no immediate reaction to an angry charge by South Korean Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tae shortly before Rhee made his statement.

Bonds Issue Vote Set October 3

RALEIGH (UP)—The fate of the proposed issue of $72,000,000 in bond, major portion of the $86,250,000 in bond issues authorized by the 1953 General Assembly, will be decided in a statewide referendum Oct. 3.

Tobacco Harvesting Shortcuts Sought

The weird-looking contraption you may have seen in various Pitt County tobacco fields recently represents a new means of getting in the tobacco crop easier.

U.S. Undeterred By Objection To German Food Relief Russian Protests Ignored

BERLIN (UP)—An American spokesman said today that plans to provide food for hungry East Germans will not be abandoned despite angry Soviet protests.

Berliners by West Berlin was an attempt to recruit "Fascist agents" and demanded that "measures be taken immediately" to halt all future plans to distribute food.

He Doesn't Agree? That's Too Bad, Says Ike McCarthy Rift Brushed Off

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today that if Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) or anyone else disagrees with his policies that is just too bad.

Mr. Eisenhower said at a news conference that his policies are based on firm convictions that are right. Asked if he believed the Republican party could achieve greater discipline by cracking down on McCarthy, the President said he never deals in personalities.

But if anyone sees fit to disagree with his policies, he said that is just too bad.

McCarthy has in the past fought some administration actions, notably the appointment of Charles E. Bohlen as ambassador to Russia.

To Women Who Have Changed Shampoos During the Past Year

If you have changed your shampoo in the past twelve months, you've had lots of company. For like you, yourself, literally millions of women are constantly switching from one brand to another, almost all with unhappy results.

Of course there's a good reason for all this coast-to-coast shopping around—two reasons, in fact:

1. A great many shampoos now on the market are so-called "all-purpose" shampoos.
2. Hair conditions differ just as skin conditions do. And each requires a different type of shampoo.

After all, what is an "all-purpose" shampoo but a shampoo that tries to be a "jack of all trades." The result: it ends up by being "master of none." On the other hand, your hair is as individual as your skin. Your hair is either dry, oily, normal or tinted and bleached. So how could any "all-purpose" shampoo be right for all these types of hair? There is only one sensible, scientific solution to the shampoo problem: 4 DIFFERENT SHAMPOOS FOR THE FOUR TYPES OF HAIR.

These 4 custom-formulated shampoos are now available for the first time. They bear a famous name—"Aquamarine Shampoo" by Revlon. While each is expressly formulated for a different type of hair, all work their wonders through a new exclusive shampoo principle—magnetism.

An uncanny new shampoo ingredient, discovered by Revlon chemists, called "Magnetol" gives you complete control over your hair immediately after shampooing. It is almost as though each bottle came complete with a hairdresser: your hair is so amazingly manageable. Here's how "Magnetol" works: As you probably know, when your hair is thoroughly cleaned, many important natural oils have been removed along with the dirt. "Magnetol" replaces these oils, because this incredible ingredient is magnetically attracted to hair. In other words, clean hair actually attracts "Magnetol" to it, and thus "Magnetol" practically becomes part of the hair-shaft, so that your hair has more "body" immediately after your shampoo. In fact, it becomes as beautifully manageable in minutes as it would be two or three days after an ordinary shampoo!

This we promise: you'll never again say, "I just washed my hair and I can't do a thing with it."

You know which type of hair you have. Every woman does. Now at long last you can do something positive about it. Simply ask for Aquamarine Shampoo for Dry Hair . . . Oily Hair . . . Normal Hair . . . or Tinted and Bleached Hair. You'll get what you've always been looking for—a perfect shampoo for your type of hair . . . a shampoo that cannot fail to give you shimmering, beautifully clean hair, alive with dancing highlights . . . hair that is manageable instantly instead of 2 or 3 days later.

Unbreakable plastic bottle—so safe, so economical to use. $1.25 each. No Federal tax.

Now available at BISSETTE'S.

30 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
July 22, 1923

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Thornton and family left today for a visit in Rolling Hill and Java, Va.

P. T. Anthony Jr. has returned from a visit in Goldsboro.

W. S. Moye left this morning for Pamlico Beach to spend several days. Misses Maude and Polly Fulford, Nell Savage, Jane Hadley and Mary Forbes are attending a house party in Kinston.

Hundreds of acres of tobacco were ruined and corn and cotton damaged as the result of a severe wind and hail storm which passed over the Greenville section yesterday afternoon. The dome on the administration building of the Teachers College was splintered, two barns were unroofed and a colored boy was stunned by lightning.

Gamma-Globulin Shots Start In Another Section

BRISTOL, Va.—Tenn. (UP)—Fearful children bared their backsides to the needle today as the first of some 15,000 youngsters received shots of gamma globulin to reduce poliomyelitis.

The number of poliomyelitis cases rose to 51 in this two-state area even as the mass inoculation program got under way. Eight new cases were reported yesterday.

In another area of the South where almost 15,000 children received injections of gamma globulin last week, anxious parents waited for the precious serum to take effect.

Three new cases were added to the toll in Catawba County, N. C., but tests have shown that it takes at least a week before gamma globulin begins to combat the crippling disease.

In this city on the Tennessee-Virginia line, state police joined with city officers to cope with what is expected to be Bristol's biggest traffic jam in history. Thousands of cars ferrying youngsters to the inoculation centers poured into the city.

As each child received his shot, he also collected his reward—the lollipop—which has become a "must" to soothe the injured feeling (and backaches) of the youngsters.

To the east, in Caldwell County, N. C., where another mass inoculation program was held two weeks ago, authorities reported that only nine new cases of poliomyelitis have been discovered since some 12,000 children received GG shots.

Caldwell County has the highest incidence of poliomyelitis in the nation, 127 cases and five deaths. Neighboring Catawba County has had 70 cases with three deaths.

Fellowship Class Honors Dr. Holt

Approximately 25 members of the men's Fellowship class of Memorial Baptist Church last night attended a supper in honor of Dr. Robert L. Holt, teacher of the class.

Dr. Holt, who has been director of religious activities at East Carolina College, has resigned his position with ECC to accept new duties with Mars Hill College.

Bill Hathaway, president of the Fellowship class, expressed to Dr. Holt the appreciation of members of the class for his work, and presented Dr. Holt a gift on behalf of the class.

Phone Calls And Radio Mixed

LOVINGTON, N.M. (UP)—The General Telephone Co. of the South west promised subscribers here today it would have new equipment installed by next winter to keep their phone calls from being tangled up with radio programs.

Telephone users complained to the State Corporation Commission their lines were picking up "everything from Arthur Godfrey to soap opera." Radio listeners objected that their favorite programs were being interrupted by telephone calls.

Girl Abandoned Pro-Red Parents Behind Curtain

CHICAGO (UP)—A pretty American girl, who was forced to abandon her Communist parents to flee Red Poland, was finally home today after a nightmare trip behind the Iron Curtain that lasted four years.

Twenty relatives greeted dark-haired, 19-year-old Ariene Migacz when she stepped from a plane at Midway Airport Tuesday.

"I'm all right in every way," she said happily.

The girl, a militant anti-Communist, was composed when she first greeted her sisters, Mrs. Eleanor Hansen and Mrs. Sylvia Brandt. Then she broke down and sobbed.

"It's wonderful to be home and Chicago is my home, and will be my home," Miss Migacz said. "I hope to stay here always."

Miss Migacz was innocent of her parents' secret Communist sympathies when they took her on a tour of Europe in 1949. The family spent happy days sightseeing in London, then embarked for Poland.

Miss Migacz, then only a child, thought little of the trip behind the Iron Curtain. But when they arrived her Polish-born parents told her they had come to stay and were prepared to give their allegiance to the Communist regime.

From then on the girl quarreled constantly. She finally stole money from them—"I had to"—and made her way to Warsaw.

There she found a job and began a long, frustrating series of appeals to the government for an exit visa.

On July 11, the foreign ministry suddenly changed its mind and allowed her permission to leave.

Miss Migacz had danced with a Polish diplomat at a party shortly before the decision was made.

She landed at Copenhagen, then flew to New York where she was met by her brothers, Joseph and Arthur.

Tuesday her sisters, arms locked in hers, asked again and again: "Are you all right? Are you all right?"

"Yes, I'm all right in every way," she said with a smile.

Trade Promotion Events Approved

Promotions for Greenville Merchants Association for the remainder of 1953 were discussed and approved yesterday at a meeting of the trade promotion committee of the Association.

Chairman H. Frank Steinbeck presided at the committee meeting which gave approval to Greenville's semi-annual dollar day, a back-to-school promotion by local merchants, and a men's fall fashion showing.

Dates of the events will be announced later by the Merchants Association. Plans for the promotion events are now being formulated by the committee.

Members of the trade promotion committee present at yesterday's meeting were Steinbeck, J. D. McGovern, C. E. Blair, B. D. Johnston, Dan Saleed and J. A. Taylor.

Two Ayden Boy Scouts Stated For Eagle Rank

AYDEN—Two Ayden Scouts were recommended for the coveted Eagle Scout rank at a board of review held Thursday night for members of troop 34.

The two Scouts recommended by the board for the Eagle rank, the highest rank in Scouting, were Horton Jolly, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Jolly of Ayden, and Lindy Dunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Dunn of Ayden.

The advancement of Dunn and Jolly to the Eagle rank brings to three the number of Eagle Scouts in troop 34. Sonny Smith received his Eagle badge several weeks ago.

Other Scouts who advanced at the troop board of review were Steve Parish, life scout; Leslie Arnold Stocks, first class scout; Barry Moore, second class scout; and Herbie Little, one merit badge.

Tommy Craft is scoutmaster of the Ayden troop.

At the meeting Thursday night the troop discussed routine business matters and also the sale of tickets for its scout show. The troop expressed its appreciation to Hal Edwards for arranging for the Scouts to hold the show. Proceeds from the project will be used for the annual troop camping trip to White Lake in August.

Two members of the troop, Sonny Smith and Bobby Johnson, are attending the national Boy Scout Jamboree in California at the present time.

Mrs. Ross Honors Hi-Lo Bridge Club

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. George Ross was hostess to the Hi-Lo Bridge Club Friday night. For the occasion the living room was decorated with mixed flowers. When the scores were tallied after three progressions, Mrs. Pitt Roberson received first prize. Mrs. Elliott Taylor had low score. Mrs. William Taylor, who substituted for Mrs. John Tyler, was given the guest prize. Mrs. Ross served a congenial salad to Messdames Walter Baker, Earl Coorn, Elliott Taylor, Leland Coorn, A. P. Roberson, W. W. Taylor and Miss Gladys Bailey.

Art Mooney And Band To Be Here

Each summer school student is allowed to bring two guests, but the dance is closed to the general public.

Tired Of Dishes

GALESBURG, Ill. (UP)—A youthful bridegroom, apparently tired of doing the dishes, was fined $100 and put on a year's probation yesterday for chasing his bride and her father with a butcher knife.

Odell Briggs, 14, told Judge Gale A. Mathers he was washing the dishes on orders from his wife and asked his father-in-law, Fred Milburn, to help.

Briggs said Milburn just sank deeper in a couch, told him scornfully "that woman's work" and refused to help.

That's when the battle started, Briggs said. He told the judge he picked up a knife and chased his wife, Marsha, 19, and Milburn out of the house. He said Milburn's wife prevented him from using the knife.

Mrs. Briggs discounted the dishwashing as the reason for her husband's wrath.

"I don't think he was mad about doing the dishes," she said. "I think he was sore because an old boy friend of mine came to visit me that afternoon."

Morris-Wyman Vows Spoken In Informal Home Wedding

ROBERSONVILLE—The home of Mayor and Mrs. Henry Everett of Robersonville was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Sunday, July 13, at 10 o'clock when Miss Dorothy Wyman became the bride of Mr. Robert Perry Morris. Miss Wyman entered the living room with the groom's stepfather, who gave her in marriage, Rev. Ralph E. Ferguson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiated in the double ring ceremony before an interposed altar. William Morris of Grifton was his brother's best man.

The bride was lovely in a navy blue lace dress of ballerina length and a white hat. Her accessories were blue and white with a white corsage fastened to her attractive pocketbook.

Mrs. Morris, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Wyman of Butte, Montana, is private secretary for Landburgh Brothers in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Morris is the son of Mrs. Henry S. Everett of Robersonville and the late Mr. J. Robert Morris. After graduating from Robersonville High School, Mr. Morris attended business college in Richmond, Va. He is employed as buyer at Landburgh's.

At noon Mr. and Mrs. Everett had a luncheon for the bridal party and guests.

For traveling the bride wore a black and white dress with a white hat and her white corsage. After spending two weeks at Atlantic Beach, the young couple will return to Washington where they will make their home.

Those attending the wedding were her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Cooley, and children of Birmingham, Ala.; his brother, Mr. Melvin Morris, and family of Richmond; his sister, Mrs. Carlton Cozart, and family from Greenville; Mr. William Morris of Grifton; Mr. Everett's daughter, Mrs. Alvin Hasty, and Miss Pat Hasty of Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Everett and their son Marvin Jr. of Robersonville.

A New Citizen Who Has But Memories

What price American citizenship
It is worth an arm, two arms, an eye, or two eyes?
Yesterday we read of a young Polish immigrant who lost both hands and eyes in earning the privilege of swearing allegiance to the American flag and rights of United States citizenship.
We don't suppose that young Wacław Jackiewicz anticipated he would be called upon for such a sacrifice to become a citizen. He adopted this country as his homeland and a year after his arrival answered the call of Selective Service . . . then went to Korea.
Now, he's a sightless, handless American. Couldn't even raise his right hand to take the oath, can't hope to see his country; but now he is Home.

It is tragic to remember our new American will never see the richness, glory and beauties of his country. He has only the memories of a few brief months and of but limited scope, since first arriving in America, to solace him in his darkness. Those flitting scenes will be with him to the end of his days as "what America is like."
Citizen Jackiewicz, we hope with all our heart your memories are happy ones . . . that throughout the years our country will remain in your mind as having days filled with sunny skies, happy showers, smiling people and a freedom from the fears you once fled.

No Time To Take Chances With Polio

Polio has moved into another North Carolina county with vivid swiftness. Avery became the third county in the state to be hit by polio approaching epidemic stages this year.
The county was entirely free of the crippling disease, an official said, until this week-end when five positive and "other probable" cases of polio were diagnosed.
Even though a few counties have been hard hit by the disease this summer there are other counties which have been spared.
Under the circumstances—with the disease breaking out in certain localities with fearful swiftness—it behooves North Carolinians to do everything possible to prevent the spread of polio from community to community.
It appears good advice for people in the state to avoid traveling into areas where the disease has become relatively widespread. Such travel of persons from an infested area to an uninfested area may not cause a new outbreak of polio; but there is the possibility that it could.
Even in areas where the disease has not yet appeared this summer, it would not be amiss for parents to take precautions to shelter youngsters from possible exposure to polio. This is surely no time to take chances with the disease.

MAKING FRIENDS
True friendships are like trees, not like mushrooms. They take a long time to reach maturity; they cannot grow into fullness overnight. And those mushroom-like acquaintances which people mistake for friendships are about as substantial as mushrooms, too—and are likely to last about as long.
Lasting friendships are based on reality, not on delusions. People who are to become and remain true friends must eventually know each other very well. The early impressions that each formed of the other are gradually corrected. Thus the friendships that are formed too hastily on the basis of impressions come to an end as soon as they are put to the test of time.
True friendships demand something in common. They do not demand that the persons be identical, or even similar; they need not be of the same business or profession, or of the same political views. Yet there must be some common ground.
And this common ground is very important. The more superficial it is, the less secure the friendship is likely to be. The deeper and more significant it is, the stronger the friendship will grow. Shared convictions about ideals, right and wrong, and religious faith, however, lead to friendships that outlast life.

National Whirligig

Sectionalism Splits Demo Ranks

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—The still shattered Democratic Party suffers from new and acute dissensions as a result of a sectional, politico-economic war being waged on the Senate floor by two protagonists whose names and home cities recall another less bloodless conflict. They are Senator John Fitzgerald Kennedy of Boston and Senator Burnett Rhetts Maybank of Charleston, South Carolina.
Reversing the history that began at Fort Sumter so many years ago, the member from Massachusetts opened fire first. In a series of speeches based on extensive economic research, he repudiated the idea that New England was on its last legs, economically or industrially. He did, however, recommend a program designed to accelerate recovery in fields where Yankee land has suffered.
SOUTHERN PROGRESS—But Senator Kennedy then seemed to declare war on Dixie, which has drawn many factories, notably textiles, from the northeastern area. He suggested that Southern progress had been due largely to certain artificial advantages, including favoritism under 20 years of Democratic Administrations, and he demanded that Washington give greater consideration to his section.
Kennedy attributed the South's acknowledged advance to such factors as lower wages, an unorganized labor force, tax easements by local communities, Federal investments (TVA, military and atomic energy installations), cotton-tobacco purchases and price supports, railroad rate reductions, Federal improvement of river navigation, etc.
Although he made these remarks in restrained and temperate language, the modern Paul Revere aroused not only the members from Dixie but also those from the booming areas of the Southwest, the Far West and the Northwest. They resented implications that their economic gains had flowed from Federal pap and paternalism rather than from their own spirit of enterprise.
CONTINUATION OF NORTH-SOUTH ROW.—

Little Men And Flying Saucers

Little men "from Mars" and flying saucers are in the news again. As a matter of fact they have been in the news off and on for several years.
But this week it was a new angle.
Some 300 people scanned the skies for the appearance of a silver saucer and 20 or 25 others including newsmen, photographers and others were on hand at the appointed spot to greet the strange visitors who never showed up in their little saucer.
It all happened out in Brush Creek, Calif. where two miners reported they had seen the saucer seven times before, and it landed May 20 and June 20 at 6:30 p. m. at which a little man got out of the saucer and scurried back.
Maybe this flying saucer idea is all a figment of the imagination; maybe it's real. Nobody really seems to know. One thing is certain, however. The mention of magic words "flying saucer" always brings attentive ears.
It was just a few days ago that a man in another part of the country shaved a monkey and passed it for a "little man from Mars" who had jumped out of a flying saucer he had seen land. Maybe the two miners were playing a similar trick on the public.
With all reports being bantered back and forth across the country, sometimes we are prone to think perhaps there are little men who cruise around in flying saucers. At other times we are prone to think we know better than to believe in such tales.

SAN MARINO, CALIF. TRIBUNE: "Some 80 million Americans have paid $17,000,000,000 into the Social Security program. Representative Carl T. Curtis declared . . . Of the 13 1/2 million people who have reached age 65 in America since the program started only 3 1/2 million are eligible to draw cash benefits. The original purpose of the Social Security Act, Representative Curtis pointed out, was to protect the aged when they could no longer earn a living. It is becoming quite evident that Social Security isn't doing that, and perhaps never can be expected to do so."
COLLINSVILLE, CONN. FARMINGTON VALLEY HERALD: "Small business is really the biggest business of all, thus the most important factor in building jobs, in producing goods and stabilizing our economy. This fact is clearly proven by NAM's Earl Bunting, when they could no longer earn a living. It is becoming quite evident that Social Security isn't doing that, and perhaps never can be expected to do so."

Senator Maybank accepted this challenge in a series of economic essays entitled "The South's Dynamic Americanism." Although he did not mention his northern opponent by name, it was obviously a direct reply to the boy from Boston.
Maybank maintained that Southern progress had resulted from the exercise of "economic statesmanship, based on courage, self-reliance, a dynamic and driving force, fostered by independence and freedom." His statement parallels the indictment which so many Southerners have uttered against Roosevelt-Truman policies in Congress and at Democratic national conventions. It helps to explain why nine Southern states voted for Eisenhower last year.
Thus, the Kennedy-Maybank duel is a legislative projection of the North-South row at Chicago a year ago, when the Roosevelt-Harriman-Moody faction sought unsuccessfully to deny representation to certain Southern delegations, including South Carolina's. It is obvious that the wounds have not healed.
SOUTH REINVESTS PROFITS—In analyzing the forces behind the South's "industrial revolution," Maybank argued that his area had been more forward-looking and resourceful than their rivals up north.
He said that his people had reinvested profits in new process, new mills, new machinery. He thereby revived an ancient F.D.R. charge that Yankee families lived off their income instead of plowing it back into modernization.
Maybank did concede that the more temperate climate, proximity to raw materials and hydroelectric development had been favorable factors. But then he made the unkindest cut of all. He declared that Southern labor, although largely unorganized, was more productive than unionized workers of the Northeast.
These fundamental differences of viewpoint, in the opinion of seasoned politicians, strengthen the Eisenhower movement to convert several Southern states to Republicanism, at least on a national Presidential basis.

Velly Peculiar Position

Somebody Told Me . . .

A Suggested Part-Time Sport

A man seldom has trouble settling on a sport or hobby, he just has trouble finding enough time for it. It seems that most people I know are either golfers or fishermen. But for a man with less time and money than it takes to fish or golf, I suggest a sport that can't be beat: ping pong, or table tennis if you prefer.
The investment is about $60 for a top-grade table, and then a small up-keep consisting of balls, a paddle now and then, and on rare occasions the replacement of a net. Down at the store we have a table in the back of the store, so when the six o'clock whistle blows Quinten Avery and I take off for the table.
Since May 18th we have been keeping a record of our games: 107 to date. At present I'm leading.

60 to 47, but Avery is steadily gaining on me. A few years ago I had a long, drawn-out contest with Amos Leggett of Leggett's Texaco Service, and to this date the final victor has never been determined.
We play three or four games a day, which takes 30 to 45 minutes. This is enough exercise to make you feel like you've run around a few city blocks.
Avery and I are so enthusiastic about the game that we wouldn't dare put a wager on a game. Why bet a coin to increase the incentive when we're already playing for blood? After some of our games we get the feeling that there's a pool of blood at each end of the table because we fight every point to the last ditch.
National Carbon Company on 14th Street, where every Eveready penlight battery in the world is made, is a haven for ping pongers. The company during their break periods have a recreation room, where the employees sneak in a few games, and play after hours.
Ping pong is a fast game, but not too fast for the most non-athletic type. There are only a few problems involved: a good partner to play with, a place to put a table, and quite naturally, the necessary $60 to $70 to get started.
If you're looking for a sport that will be inexpensive in the long run and plenty of fun, I guarantee you that ping pong will fill the bill.
And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

INDUSTRY INFILTRATING EAST (Henderson Dispatch)
One has only to make a casual trip through portions of Eastern North Carolina to observe the extent to which industry has been infiltrating that section of the State these past few years. The larger towns and cities and small communities alike are profiting from this influx, and the result is that their economy is being lifted to that extent and along with the wealth produced by a prosperous agriculture.
Eastern Carolina is getting some of the big fish, and that will produce greater wealth through increased payrolls and larger population counts. But not by any means are all the eggs being put into one basket. There is diversity in industry as in agriculture, and an abundance of both is what builds counties, cities and towns.

Among the best features of going away, even for two or three days, is getting back home, but the homecoming brings with it a yearning for a share of the good things that are going to the east. The Piedmont already has achieved great prosperity through its industrial growth, and now the East is beginning to come into its own.
It hasn't been so many decades ago that Henderson was as large as quite a number of eastern towns. But they are getting the jump on us now. What they have that we haven't admits of discussion, but they seem to have it, whatever it is. Nature made the section a great farming area, although even in that respect this region about us here is taking long strides forward. Henderson's great and urgent need is for more and more prosperous small and medium size industries. We won't keep the pace with neighbors toward the flatlands unless we can do something about that.
We could hang the latch string on the outside and embrace prospects with open arms and with a hospitality that would assure an inviting environment and facilities that are necessary to growth and expansion. We need desperately to arouse ourselves to opportunities that are passing us by for other climates and other parts of the industry. We are not likely to broaden our hustling community until something of that character is done.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET
PEACHES — Governor Umstead orally proclaimed this to be "Peach Week in North Carolina" at his press conference Monday. He was in fine mood to make the designation, having just eaten a huge saucer of Sandhills peaches with ice cream. The reporter were in good humor to play up the story, they had shared in the peaches and cream deal. Also each reporter got half bushel of peaches to take home. The brief ceremony was in charge of Hugh Martin of the marketing division and Hawley Poole, peach grower and member of the State board of agriculture.
COOPERATION—The Governor took occasion to note the contribution which development of the peach industry has made to North Carolina, and particularly to commend the spirit of cooperation manifested by the peach growers among themselves. "There are other places in this State where comparable joint activities in production and marketing would add to the income of individuals and the State," he said.
AWARD — Another item on the Governor's agenda during the press conference was presentation of an award to Miss Evelyn Hendricks of Nash county as the outstanding "handicapped" person in North Carolina. Miss Hendricks has been nominated as North Carolina's candidate for the President's national award to be made in September.
HANDICAP — A victim of rheumatoid arthritis which almost destroyed any use of her hands and confined her to a wheel chair, Miss Hendricks began the process years ago of teaching herself to do the impossible. She learned to use a typewriter with a rubber tipped pencil in her left hand and wrote for the local newspapers. She was interested in out of doors and has been wheeled and carried over many miles of fields and fences and ditches, gathering material for stories. She became interested in genetics and has spent hours in libraries searching records.

ACHIEVEMENT — The record of her achievements is too long to give in detail. Governor Umstead knew it and in presenting the award he said that one of her finest contributions was in proving that there is no such thing as being so handicapped that one cannot render service to his fellow man.
BIG DAY — Every day is a big day in the Governor's office, even when the events do not get much publicity. Monday was a big day on the publicity score. It started at 9 o'clock when Ben E. Douglas of Charlotte was sworn in by his former fellow-townsman, Associate Justice Emory B. Denny, as director of conservation and development. At that time Governor Umstead thanked Douglas for his willingness to serve "in what I consider one of the most important positions in State government." The Governor's office day ended with the swearing in of Edwin Gill as State treasurer to succeed Brandon Hodges, resigned, late in the afternoon.
C. & D. — At his noon press conference the Governor reiterated his belief that the conservation and development department is near the top, if not the very top, among important agencies. He said he expects to attend the board meeting at Morehead City next week because he has some things he wants to say to the members about the importance of the task facing them. He also declared his intention of boosting the salary of the director to at least the equal of that drawn by the highway chairman.

Builders Are Worried

By ELMER ROESSNER
The housing industry has the jitters.
It has them despite the fact that the number of new housing units started during the first six months of this year was 1,300 more than in the first half of 1952. The total starts this year to July 1 were 877,100 — a good start toward another million-unit year.
Builders fear this rate won't hold up. "Despite reports of high dollar volume, including residential, the outlook for continuation of this volume in the next six months is not promising," builders are told in the current Washington letter of the National Association of Home Builders. "A major deterrent is the demoralized FHA and VA mortgage market." It added that conventional loans continue in fair supply, but that interest rates are high as 6 per cent in some areas, with shorter terms and higher down payments.
The letter warns: "A cautious policy for the next 60 to 90 days would appear advisable for builders."
William Zeckendorf, president of the real estate firm of Webb & Knapp, told the New York Society of Security Analysts the other day that the postwar housing boom is over. While he predicted an annual market of a million homes for the next few years, he said there is no longer any great rush to buy them or to sustain record production. He advised the construction industry to seek business in other fields than private housing and added that the nation was $10 billion behind in its requirements for public utilities, he said, "was developing another likely field."
The Department of Labor, which compiled the government's figures on building, noted that housing starts in June were 4,000 fewer than in May which, in turn, was 2,000 fewer than in April. The June decline occurred mostly in the New England, South Central and Pacific states. Preliminary building permit reports, it added, indicate continued gains, although at a slower rate, in the Middle Atlantic states.
The Department, incidentally, revised its March figure of starts from 97,000 to 105,800. Seems 8,800 units were started that the Department didn't know about at the time.
REDUCING OVERTIME
ADDS RISK TO CREDIT
Industry in trying to reduce costs by eliminating overtime pay may have an adverse effect on installment payments, Henry H. Heimann, executive vice-president of the National Association of Credit Men, writes in the association's monthly business review.
It seems that a lot of workers and their wives count on overtime payments to meet installments. Mr. Heimann observed that while business will try to increase hourly rates to offset loss of overtime, campaigns will take time and not be entirely successful.

Cars Outbreed People In U.S.

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest problem in the world today is people, and the biggest problem about people is that there are more of them in the world every year.
In the middle years of the most enlightened century in history, a century in which science has saved—and war has destroyed—more lives than in any three previous centuries, the human race is still increasing at the rate of 30 million a year.
This is on the basis of a United Nations estimate that roughly 80,000 more new mouths open for food each day than death closes.
From a global point of view mankind is in a race between the brain, the belly, and the reproductive process. The task is for the human mind to increase the world food supply enough to fill all the crying new empty stomachs that result from the oldest known mathematical formula—"Boy meets girl: result, children."
Here in America, however, we have a special situation. The motor car has been outbreeding people.
The human population in the United States, according to one recent estimate, is growing at the rate of two million or more a year, with some 300 potential voters being born every 13 seconds.
But this is a wide open country still, with plenty of food and space, and there is more than enough room yet for millions of Americans still unborn.
The same isn't true of the motor car. In recent years the automobile here has been outbreeding people two to one. But the threat of a slowing down in its birth rate is upon.
Nearly 3 1/2 cars already have been delivered so far this year and the head of General Motors is quoted as being hopeful the market will absorb 5 1/2 by the end of 1953.
But the automobile industry is running into a real over-population problem. A newly married couple today can still find a place to park a new baby, and know that there will be room for it to play as it grows older. But the same couple no longer is sure, if they get a new automobile, where they can park it—or even where they can drive it, on many days, without ending up in a traffic jam.
A fellow buys a new car and then goes to his psychiatrist and says, "Doc, help me find a garage — and I think I'll be able to face life again."
Our civilization is nearing the point where the roads being so jammed and parking places so few, the only thing left for a motorist to do is jack his car up and drop by every other Saturday and polish it for fun. If he moves it, he may not find another place to park it again until a neighbor dies, and the widow auctions off his garage space. Even then he may have to buy his late neighbor's car to get it.
The birth rates of motor cars and babies are closely tied together in America, as a family that wants one usually wants the other.
So if we want more Americans, we have to do something to keep the auto industry happily spawning.
But what?
My theory is that we will have to change our habits. Today we all go to work at the same time, come home at the same time, take the same days off, in the same hours, vacation in the same months and try to go to the same beaches on the same weekends.
This would be all right if we walked. But we ride. And the roads can't take the traffic anymore—and it is doubtful whether we can build roads that will.
The simplest thing is for people to stagger their working hours, stagger their days off, stagger their shopping and vacation periods, stagger their trips to the beach and even though some must swim by moonlight.
We don't crowd each other in wide America yet, but we are crowding our vehicles to death, and we are in the vehicles. If something isn't done about it, people may decide that both motor cars and babies are just too much trouble—and stay home and watch television.
Do we want that kind of a future?

Highlights Of Governor Umstead's Press Conference

QUESTIONS about upcoming appointments were told they could presume or speculate to their 'hearts' content but without any basis of authority. Reminded by one reporter that he had said reporters should not presume on his actions, he replied with a twinkle, "If I ever said that, I certainly was wasting words." He added he had no control over anybody's presumptions, but so far as he is concerned when he decides what to do he does it and immediately—but not before—let's it be known.

The Juniper Tree

By FAITH BALDWIN

Having imbibed unwisely while attending a convention away from home, a successful businessman David Barton awakens unsteadily in a small hotel room. His slumber had been disturbed by bad dreams, but bad dreams had been usual with him ever since the bitterness of grief had so completely engulfed him. It was the grief, he told himself, which caused him to drink tea much. He who'd always been a sober fellow! David's family and friends had begun to waver gravely over his strange conduct and it was proving a new barb in the gentle heart of his good wife, Emily.

CHAPTER THREE

BARTON'S car was brought around and he drove out of Jason, his reactions reasonably normal. Upwards of a week later, his two-year-old convertible reached home, with George Barton driving. His brother Dave had arrived a little ahead of him, in Peter Dudley's car. They'd gone to New York, after Dave's telephone call from a hotel at which the Bartons often stayed. He'd called, not his wife, but his brother and, cutting across the plunging bow of George's exclamations, had said: "I'm sick, George. Been here two days, too bushed to telephone. I couldn't drive if my life depended on it."

George asked, "Why didn't you call a doctor?" and he's answered wearily: "I did, this afternoon. He says it's flu. Just tell me I'll be back soon as I can. Don't let her worry."

"Hold everything," George ordered. "I'll come over and get you."

He consulted, Emily. "You can't manage alone," she said.

"He'd stalked around the living room of his brother's house, a big, well-fleshed man, with thick red hair and a kind, unremarkable face. Then he said: "I didn't want to tell you, but last night Dave said was—after I'd argued him into my coming—don't bring Em."

If you do I won't go back with you."

Em answered: "Then there's no use my going. He can be like a stone wall." A smile touched her fine, disciplined mouth. "So can you, George. Call Pete, you can drive down together. Dave can come back in Pete's car, you drive his. Pete's a doctor—and if Dave's really ill—"

She meant, but did not add, "and not just drunk."

Pete could not come. He'd become an allergy specialist five years before. He kept good hours and paid no night calls, except in emergencies. He had his weekends, a long summer holiday.

So he could drive to New York at night, and bring his brother-in-law home. Tomorrow was Saturday, there'd been no engagement for Polly to break for him, except golf, and dinner at the club.

Driving, he and George talked, mainly about Dave. "What's wrong?" was the burden of George's song. "Why does he have to take it like this?"

"How would you take it, how would I? No one knows how anyone will react to grief," Pete said.

After a moment they spoke simultaneously, saying, "If Tim had been my own son—"

George said: "I couldn't believe he was dead, for a while. Then I tried to figure out, why Tim? And realized that since time began people have been saying, why this one, or that? And will go on saying it. There's no answer, just, your number's up."

Pete said: "I'm certain Robert Elwood can help Dave, and us. There are few men better, or as good, in the country. We're lucky he quit the clinic and came to us."

George said unasily, "You don't think that Dave's—"

"Of course not. But he isn't behaving normally. I've talked with Elwood. He spoke of pathological grief reactions. I can't argue with him, it isn't my field. Still I wouldn't say pathological! Anyway, not yet. But Dave's been violently wrenched out of his pattern."

Dave's illness was short, sharp, and left him permeated with lassitude. He was—which was not usual with him—a docile patient, and after the temperature came and stayed down, he did not rebel at staying in bed. He saw few people, let Emily whisk about with noiseless competence, supervise naps and diet, and read to him.

He said, the first day he was up in a chair, "You like knocking yourself out for the old man, don't you?"

"I'm not knocking myself out, Dave."

Yet she was, coming softly into his room half a dozen times during the nights. She nursed him exactly as she had nursed Tim through his childhood diseases and later infrequent illnesses.

Until the last one.

This was an ample house. The agreeable room to which its occupant was confined had been a guest room, with its own bath. Em's room, across the hall, was one which for many years her husband had shared. When, less than a year ago, he found it hard to sleep he'd moved across the way. There were two guest rooms. He'd take one. There were still two, for Em had said, a white line around her mouth, "I will not shut Tim's room away."

One evening when Dave was up and around they sat downstairs after dinner.

He had lost a few pounds, but he looked rested. That morning she had spoken privately to Pete. "He hasn't, to my certain knowledge, had a drink since you brought him home. I don't understand it. I just accept it, gratefully. I wonder if I dare hope?"

"Go on waiting, Em, as you've been doing all along."

Tonight she put the paper aside and looked at Dave, his head back, his eyes closed.

"Tired, dear?"

"No, really." He opened his eyes, smiling, and something of his integral vitality reached her, and she rejoiced to have evidence that it was still there.

He had more drive than anyone else she'd ever known. It had seemed inexhaustible. George was the sound, good plodder. Dave the leader, instigator of new methods, the man who could wring the last ounce of work from their employees and make them like it.

Their father had been like that, he'd been told, but he was unlike either in disposition, having been a leasy, bad-tempered man. Dave was impatient but, Dave's mother assured her, "in a different way from his father."

Now Dave said, "You've been worried about me, Em."

"For a long time."

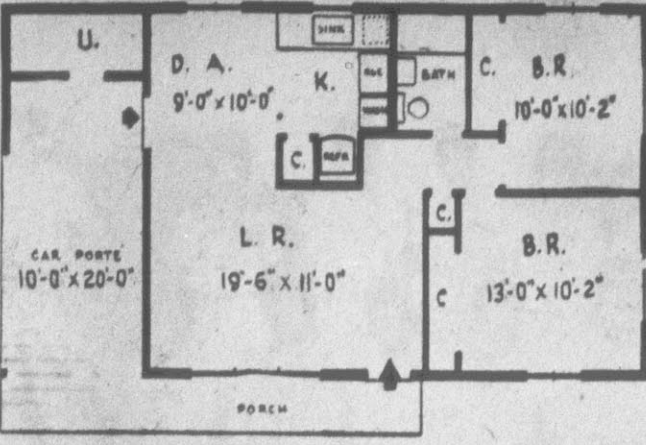

"But the drinking," he said, "that's over. You knew it?"

She said, "I've been hoping, Dave."

"I know. You see, at first, it seemed all right, even helpful. I could sleep quite a lot and not dream, not so much, not the same sort of dreams. Then the helping began to wear off. Once the virtue had gone out of it, what was the use? So I was through."

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newfeatures

RETIREMENT COTTAGES are in the news. How to live comfortably on a limited budget is the key. Here is a complete and livable home built for $6,900 at Venice, Fla., where the Venice Area Chamber of Commerce has sold more than 3,000 homesites measuring 80 by 100 feet at $400 to retirement-minded buyers. This house, built of concrete block with asphalt tile floor comprises 792 square feet of living space. The car port is designed so that it can be screened for a porch or enclosed to form an extra room.

New Disclosures Tell Future Of Soviet Plans

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign New Editor

The announcement that Russia and Israel are resuming diplomatic relations has special international implications.

It would indicate that:

1. Russia will continue, although perhaps in modified form, her current peace offensive.
2. The vast, hungry but non-Communist under-belly of Asia Minor and Asia, from the Dardanelles of Turkey to the islands off Indochina, are high up on the Communist list of future conquest.

Russia broke off relations with Israel last February after the bombing of the Soviet legation at Tel Aviv. Coincident with the break was the fact that the Communist anti-Zionist campaign was at its peak throughout Russia and the satellites, climaxed by the arrest of the nine Kremlin doctors accused of plotting against the lives of Soviet leaders. Six of the nine doctors were Jewish.

The arrest of the nine doctors and their subsequent release, since has been interpreted as part of the Kremlin civil war which earlier this month resulted in the downfall of Russia's deputy premier and secret police chief, Lavrenti Beria.

Negotiations to resume Soviet-Israeli relations began six weeks ago and the fact that they were confirmed officially this week supports the theory of a softer Soviet foreign policy, regardless of strife within the Kremlin.

Lending additional proof, and also adding to the theory that Asia and the Middle East are high on the Communist agenda, is the relaxed Soviet attitude toward Turkey. It was confirmed this week that Russia not only had given up her territorial claims against Turkey but also was not pushing her demands for joint control of the Dardanelles.

How complex and far-flung are the Russian machinations in the Middle East and South Asia may be noted simply by recalling:

Russia's offer of wheat to Pakistan.

Her current negotiations with India, also for wheat.

Her negotiations with Ceylon for rubber.

The flow of Russian-made war supplies to the Communist rebels in Indochina.

The above recapitulation omits the vitriolic propaganda warfare that the Russians also have been carrying on against Israel in Arab-language broadcasts aimed at Israel's neighbors.

The new recognition of Israel is not inconsistent with Communist policy since the Reds never have found it difficult to carry water on both shoulders.

There is no reason still why they cannot hammer away at Israel's alleged "threat" to the Moslem world. At the same time, by recognizing Israel, they reopen another channel both for propaganda and for espionage against the Western world.

The Communist plan for world conquest has no particular timetable. The plan now seems to be to remove external pressures and to allow Asiatic and Middle Eastern internal strifes and discontent to turn exclusively against the West.

Cattlemen Rap Drought Relief Requirements

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Southwestern cattlemen vigorously protested the federal drought relief "pauper's oath" to Washington today as Texas Gov. Allan Shivers scheduled a special drought conference.

A ruling by the Agriculture Department said that a farmer or stockman in the critical area can receive low cost feed only if he does "not have the financial ability to remain in business and maintain his herd in relatively satisfactory condition in view of present drought conditions."

Claude A. McCann, of Victoria, Tex., chairman of the Texas State-wide Drought Committee, said his group was sending an official protest directly to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson.

He said such a requirement makes as few as four men in some counties eligible to buy feed at reduced prices under the government program.

West Virginia university's ter varsity athletic squads in 1952-53 won, 78, lost 34 and tied one for a winning percentage of .696.

The only convertible that outsells Ford!

WHAT is it that makes Ford's Sunliner America's best seller? Is it its high-compression V-8 power? (No other convertible in Ford's field has this kind of engine.) Is it the fine craftsmanship of its Crestmark Body? (No body in its field can match Ford's choice of exterior and interior color combinations.) Is it its new spring and shock absorber action which makes even roughest roads feel smooth? (The Sunliner's springs are specially tailored to its weight.) Is it the choice of Fordomatic, Overdrive or Conventional you get? (You won't find such a choice of drives in any other car in Ford's field.)

No, it's not just any one of these things that makes Ford America's largest-selling convertible. It's all 41 of Ford's "Worth More" features... features which folks know make Ford worth more when they buy it, worth more when they sell it.

Test Drive America's No. 1 Convertible! Ford Sunliner!

Kiwanians Blank Jaycees 3-0 To Tie In Play-Offs

Cox Hits 3-Run Homer To Give Edwards Win

Billy Cox, the losing pitcher in Monday's contest, gave his Kiwanians teammates the necessary steam yesterday by blasting a home run with two mates aboard to beat the Little League Jaycees, 3-0.

The game winning clout was that which was needed by Kiwanians hurler Bobby Edwards, as the young right-hander set the Jaycees down with three hits. His own Kiwanians were able to reach Arthur Andrews for a like number of safeties, but the Kiwanians bunched their hits to make them count.

The series is now tied, with both teams having one victory apiece. Three wins are necessary before the championship is decided.

Cox's fourbagger came in the top of the third inning. Donald Speight walked and Edwards singled to set the scene for the blow.

The Jaycees threatened in their half of the third, when they loaded the bases with two out. Sonny Rodgers started the frame by walking. After Rick Saue had fanned, Buddy Murray hit a grounder and Hodges was forced at second. Dick Nobles singled and Walker Lee Allen was safe on an error to fill the sacks. Edwards got out of the jam by forcing Andrews to ground out, to throw to first.

The losers got a man as far as second base in both the fourth and sixth. Linwood Bridges doubled in the fourth, while Jasper Tripp walked and moved to second on a passed ball with two away. Edwards brought the game to a close at that point by fanning Stancil.

The third game of the series will be played this afternoon at 5 p.m. at the Little League Park on Elm Street. The fourth and fifth, if necessary, will be played Thursday and Friday.

Red Schoendienst To Miss 5 Games On Eastern Swing

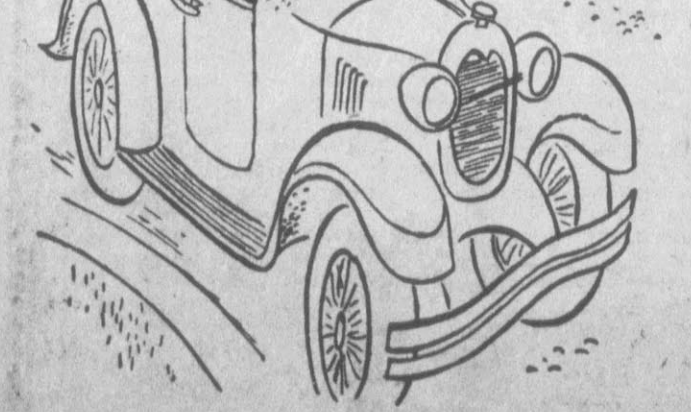

NEW YORK (UP) — Al (Red) Schoendienst of the Cardinals, the major league's leading batter, was sent home to St. Louis today to recuperate from a 10-stitch cut he suffered in Tuesday night's Cardinals game.

The star second baseman was struck on the head by a ball thrown by Al Dark of the Giants as he was running on a single to short right field in the second inning. The blow felled Schoendienst and opened a deep cut over his left eye.

Schoendienst will miss the last five games of the Cards' current Eastern swing. He is currently batting .335.

Manager Ed Stanky took over at second base Tuesday night and will play for the remainder of the road trip.

Wake Forest plays two night football games in 1953. The Deacons will meet Richmond and N.C. State under the lights.

Bucceroni Faces Harrison Tonight In Chicago Fight

CHICAGO (UP) — Dan Bucceroni, a Philadelphia fighter more noted for his slugging than his boxing, will tangle with Tommy Harrison in the Chicago Stadium tonight with the winner slated for an equally unimportant scrap Aug. 19 against Bob Satterfield.

Bucceroni and Harrison both rank among the top ten heavyweights. Bucceroni fifth and Harrison sixth.

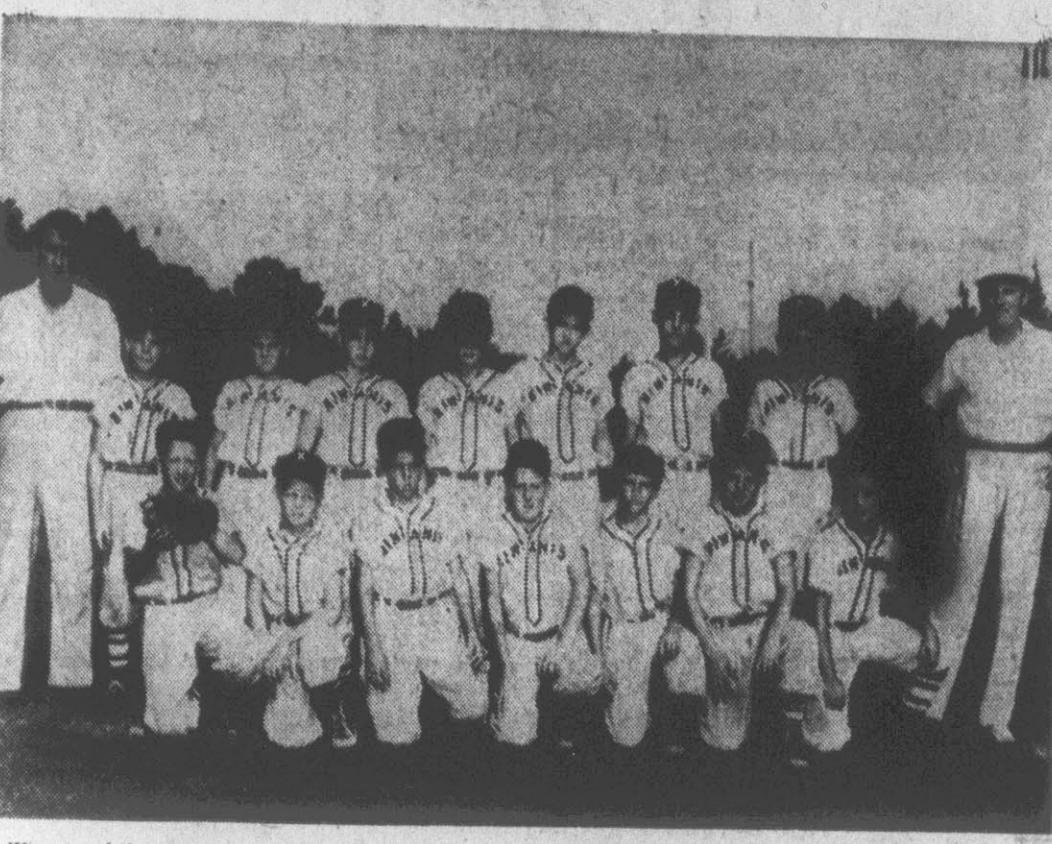

Bucceroni, who has won 27 of his 42 victories with knockouts, was a two to one choice over Harrison, who has scored only five knockouts in his 20 wins.

Bucceroni has been beaten seven times and drawn once while Bucceroni has lost only three times and has reversed the decision against two of these opponents, Roland La Starza and Dick Wagner.

Tonight's fight will be a television feature and each scrapper will get $2,500 for his video appearance. It was likely that a payoff would be the major cut for both, for a crowd of not much more than 1,000 was expected. Bucceroni will get 25 per cent of the net and Harrison 20 per cent.

Bucceroni, 25, contended that his split with La Starza earned him a title fight with Rocky Marciano as much as it did for La Starza. But the latter already has been scheduled for the championship bout to keep Bucceroni on the "waiting" list.

Kiwanians Pull Into Tie In Little League Playoffs

Winners of the second half of the local Little League season, the Kiwanians blanked the Jaycees 3-0 in the second game of the play-offs yesterday afternoon, after dropping the opening contest 10-1. The players are: front row, left to right — Donald Speight, Lew Ward, Jack Foley, Gene Byrd, Jackson Williams, John Barnhill and Kenneth Cox; second row, left to right — Coach Jack Cobb, James Henderson, Delbert Smith, Coleman Ruffin, Jimmy Rogers, Bobby Edwards, Billy Cox, Bryce Cummings, and Coach Carl Pierce.

Roberts Wins Sixteenth Game By Blanking Braves 10-0

By CARL LUNDQUIST
 United Press Sports Writer
 NEW YORK (UP) — Robin Roberts is going to have to be almost unbeatible from now on to equal his pace during the last half of 1952, but even if he doesn't, he could well wind up with 30 victories and win the most valuable player award he just missed a year ago.

Ruffin Robby pitched his 16th victory of the year Tuesday night and his fourth shutout when he blanked Milwaukee, 10-0, in the first game of a doubleheader with seven hits. The Braves rebounded to take the second game 7-3, but it didn't dim the all-around luster of Roberts' latest job.

Roberts is well ahead of his 1952 pitching time table when he didn't win his 16th game until July 30. At his present pace he could make the magic 30-game level for the first time in the majors since Dizzy Dean won that number for the 1934 Cardinals.

However, Roberts pitched at an incredible pace during the last half of 1952, winning 17 games and losing only one after the All-Star game break.

In the second game, lefty Johnny Antonelli pitched seven-hit ball for his ninth victory and catcher Walk-up Cooper drove in four runs with a double and homer. Ed Mathews hit his 29th homer for Milwaukee.

Brooklyn's window-breakers took a full four-game lead, their longest of the year, by pounding out 18 hits in a 15-4 victory over the Cubs. Gil Hodges drove in four runs with a homer, triple and two singles.

and Duke Snider, Peeewe Reese and Bobby Morgan also hit homers while Billy Cox drove in three runs with three singles.

In other National League games, the Cardinals topped the Giants 10-6 as Stan Musial and Rip Repulski led an 11-hit assault with homers and Gerry Staley won his 13th game, while Cincinnati topped Pittsburgh, 7-2, as lefty Ken Raffensberger scattered 10 hits and had a three-run homer.

In the American League, the Indians beat the Yankees at Cleveland for the first time this year, 8-3, to move back into third place while Detroit edged Washington, 8-7, in 10 innings. Boston at Chicago and Philadelphia at St. Louis were rained out.

The Indians pounded out 13 hits and Bob Lemon achieved his 13th victory by holding New York to seven. Al Rosen started Lemon off in front with a two-run homer, his 24th, and the Indians took the lead for good with two more in the fourth, on scoring on a squeeze bunt by Joe Ginsberg. Larry Doby's two-bagger and a two-run single by George Strickland accounted for three more in the fifth.

Don Luidh doubled with two out in the 10th to bring home the tying and winning runs in Detroit's triumph. Mickey Vernon's three-run homer sent the Nets ahead in the ninth and Matt Batts hit a pinch-homer for Detroit in the bottom of the inning to send the game into the extra frame. Washington scored a lone run on a single by Mel Hoderlein in the 10th before Lund broke it up.

Rulanes, Red Men Finish Season's Play With Wins

Final play in the Pony League saw the Rulanes run roughshod over the Ford-O-Matics in taking a 15-2 decision, as the Red Men trounced the Bright Leafs 19-3 in the second game of the evening.

James Hudson, with a home run and a single, had a perfect night at the plate to pace the romping Rulanes. Oscar Stoneham of the Rulanes collected two safeties to capture runner-up honors in the batting department.

A home run, double and single by Wade Jordan stole the show for the Red Men in the second game. Jordan's four base blow came in the 14-run fourth inning. John Tripp was the winning hurler for the contest.

Red Sox Play Tonight

Farmville's Red Benton, currently holding a 9-2 season pitching record, is slated to do mound duties against Kinston tonight in an exhibition game slated to be played in Farmville. The Red Sox play host to Stantonburg Friday and Rocky Mount Saturday in Bright Belt League contests. All the games will start at 8 p.m.

Cleveland Still Has Chance For Title—Lopez

CLEVELAND, O. (UP) — He sounded a little like a man whistling past a graveyard, but Manager Al Lopez stoutly insisted today that his slumping, fourth-place Cleveland Indians still "have a chance" for the American League pennant.

Lopez' brave hopes will be put quickly to the acid test, for the league-leading New York Yankees come to town tonight to open a three-game series and the champions are riding high after walloping the White Sox twice.

Yankee Manager Casey Stengel

Rush Fells Furillo With Pitched Ball, Gets Fans' Boos

BROOKLYN (UP) — Bob Rush, his ears still stung by the boogie he received after felling Brooklyn's Carl Furillo with a pitched ball, agreed Tuesday that the "beanball" should be outlawed but defended a pitcher's time-honored right to "brush off" a batter.

"Of course I brush off the hitters," the 6-foot, 4-inch, 210-pound right-hander said. "And so do all the other pitchers in the league. Offhand, I can't think of a pitcher in the league who doesn't brush off the hitters."

Rush conceded that the difference between a "beanball" and a "brushoff" pitch is something the fans don't understand. But he said it's something that all players learn long before they reach the big leagues.

"The pitcher has to earn a living, too," Rush explained. "He'd be a sucker to stand out there and let the good hitters crowd the plate on him all the time. He's got to loosen up the hitters and the hitters know it."

Furillo, who has been hit on the head six times, used the same expression as Rush when asked what he thought of the brush-off pitch. "Ah, the pitcher's gotta earn a living, too," he said.

had been planning to open the series tonight with southpaw Whitey Ford, but he switched to right hander Johnny Sain, who has a 9-5 record. He will be opposed by Bob Lemon, who has won 12 and lost eight.

Fresh in the Indians' mind is the Yankees' invasion last month when they swept four straight games here as part of their 18-game winning streak.

What's more, the Indians really are staggering as they come into this series with seven defeats in their last ninth games. A double header loss to the Red Sox on Sunday shoved them a half-game into fourth place and 11 games behind the Yankees. Last week they lost four straight to the White Sox.

"I'm not worried about the Red Sox or the White Sox," said swarthy Al. "It's the Yankees who worry me."

Local Pony Leaguers Open Tourney Play With Kinston

Cole Manages Kinston Charges

KINSTON—Pony League All-Star manager Tommy Cole will send his 14-man squad through its final practice session tonight before leaving for Greenville and the opening rounds of the District Three tourney.

The local team will meet a tournament team from Greenville in one of the opening round games to be played Thursday night. Cole has planned a brief drill session in Greenville tomorrow morning.

Raleigh and Rocky Mount will meet the same night in Rocky Mount. The winners will move into the winner's division of the double elimination event and will meet each other Friday night in Rocky Mount. The losers will play in the first game at 7 p.m. the same night.

The Kinston squad is composed of a veteran crew that is capable of handling any team in the tourney. Ten of the players have played at least one year on all-star teams representing the local Pony League.

One of the leaders on the squad is expected to be Charlie Lewis, an outfielder-pitcher. Lewis has hit at an even .500 pace this season and has led the league in home runs for two years. He has appeared on the all-star team twice.

Infielder Ricky Baldrice has had two years experience as a Pony Leaguer and was on the all-star squad in 1951. He had a batting average of .390 this season. Another all-star repeater is Eddie Taylor. An infielder-pitcher, Taylor has played for two years and had a .087 batting average this year.

Catcher Phil Daniels is capable of pinch-hitting as a moundsman if called upon. A veteran performer in the Kinston league, Daniels won nine straight games in 1951. He has a batting average of over .400.

Leon Smith, infielder-pitcher, has been on the all-star squad for both seasons of his Pony League experience. Catcher-outfielder Terry Knox has hit .390 in his first season.

Allie Hart is an infielder that can double up as a relief pitcher. Allie has played for two seasons and has been named to the all-star roster in one of the years. George Fant, a .136 hitter, is a pitcher with one year of experience.

Infielder Eion Faelton has appeared on the all-star list twice. He has hit at a .350 mark this season. James Dail, outfielder, is a one-time all-star performer and has hit .130 this year. Steve Creech, another infielder whose name has been on the honor roster for one time, has been in the league for two years and hit .167 this season.

Billy Cauley, a regular infielder who sometimes enters the game as a relief hurler, pitched the shortest game on record in the local Pony League. Cauley hurled a no-hit contest in just 35 minutes in 1951 A two-year performer, David Adkins has hit .322 this season. Merrill Byrd, a pitcher with a .292 batting average, was on the 1952 squad.

Cole will be assisted by Billy Fay and Travis Hart. The latter is an ex-major league player.

Cole Manages Kinston Charges

It will be a hard-hitting crew that represents Greenville in the opening round of the District Three Pony League Tournament here tomorrow night against Kinston.

The seventeen-man squad will enter the contest with a team average of .335. Included on the roster are four boys who have been hitting at a pace of 400 or better.

Joe Wingate, a catcher, leads the individual batting of the tourney team with a phenomenal .450 mark. Wingate has slugged four home runs this season, his second as a full time Pony League player.

Third baseman Wayne Eidson, a newcomer to the league, is close behind Wingate with an average of .422. In his first year of action, Eidson tied for the league home run output with seven fourbaggers for the Ford-O-Matics.

Wade Jordan, playing in both outfield and infield positions, has accumulated a .425 mark during the season. Jordan, in his second year as a Pony League performer, has hit one home run during the season. This is his first year on the All-Star squad.

Next in line in the individual batting department is Ike Riddick, with an even .400 mark. Riddick is one of the better players in the league performing at shortstop and on the mound. In his second year in the league and on the tourney team, he has hit three home runs and has a 3-0 pitching record. He will be valuable as both a starting or relief hurler.

James Hudson does not compare with the hitting prowess of the above players, but his aggressiveness on the field marks as one of the players to watch. Hudson, a two-year all-star catcher, has hit at a .300 pace this year. He has two homers to his credit.

Charlie Smith was picked for the team for the first time this season on the strength of a .381 hitting mark and his excellent overall play. He has hit three home runs, all of them coming at crucial points on the mound. In his second year in the league and on the tourney team, he has hit three home runs and has a 3-0 pitching record. He will be valuable as both a starting or relief hurler.

Hudson Miller, right-handed hurler for the champion Rulanes, compiled a 7-0 pitching record. Miller played at short when not on the mound, and he had an even .300. He has two home runs, and is on the all-star squad for the second year.

Lindy Dunn, a repeater from last season, batted at a .385 mark during the regular season. An outfielder-pitcher, Dunn has a 3-1 pitching mark. Second baseman Mack Roebuck was picked for the squad for the first time this year. He has a .265 batting average.

Tommy Baggett, a first year man on the team, batted .316 as the left-fielder for the Ford-O-Matics. First baseman Mike Riddick is on the team for the first time after playing in the league for two seasons. He hit .320 this year.

John Ed Arnold, hitting .282, tied Eidson for the league home run lead with seven. Arnold is a first baseman and pitcher. Outfielder Donald "Dynamite" Patrick is in his first season in the league and hit .320 during the year, with one home run.

Centerfielder Roger Bullock hit .200 in this, his first season. First baseman Kelly Barnhill, in his first year on the team, hit .276 and slugged out one fourbagger. John Tripp, second baseman and pitcher, is on the squad for the second year. He hit .250 during the season, but is one of the more valuable moundsmen.

C. D. Smith, manager of the Rulanes during the regular campaign, will lead the local All-Stars in the tournament. Johnny Foell, former left-handed pro pitcher, will assist Smith and coach the hurlers. Bob Watson will serve as business manager for the team.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Dividend news brought several wide declines in an irregularly lower stock market today.

Alexander Smith omitted dividends on its 1-2 per cent and the 4.20 per cent cumulative preferreds stocks. The common dropped 2 1/8 points and the 3 1/2 per cent preferred lost a point, both new lows.

St. Regis Paper Co. declared an extra dividend of 12 1/2 cents and the stock dropped more than a point because traders had anticipated a higher payment.

Heavy volume came into United Gas Corp. and the stock eased 1/2 point to a new low at 23 5/8. Philco at 28 5/8 off 3/4 and Phelps Dodge at 31 off 3/8 were at new lows.

Electric Auto-Lite slipped a small fraction to a new low in the auto equipments.

Automobile issues held about steady. Oils ranged from a rise of 1 3/8 points in Pacific Western to a loss of nearly a point in Amerasia. Steels were little changed. Rails had a small average loss and utilities dipped mainly because of a 3/4 point decline in Panhandle Eastern Pipeline.

Investment buying sustained the tobaccos. American Tobacco and Lorillard reached new highs on small gains. Lorillard preferred ran up two points.

Funeral Held For Former Official Maurice Tobin

BOSTON, Mass. (UP)—Funeral services were held today for Maurice J. Tobin, 52-year-old "boy wonder" of politics who died Sunday while reading a newspaper in bed.

Former President Harry S. Truman, in whose cabinet Tobin served as Secretary of Labor, headed the honorary pallbearers who escorted the body into Holy Cross Cathedral for the solemn requiem high mass sung by Archbishop Francis J. Cushing.

Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York was among clergymen seated in the sanctuary of the cathedral. The honorary pallbearers also included Martin P. Durkin, Tobin's successor as Secretary of Labor and representative of President Eisenhower at the funeral.

Other city, state and national figures joined the funeral cortege that moved from the Tobin home in the Jamaica Plain section to the cathedral and then to Holyhood Cemetery in nearby Brookline.

The Massachusetts National Guard furnished a color guard and firing squad for the Irish immigrant's son who rose to become mayor of Boston and governor of the state. Air National Guard planes roared over the cemetery in a final salute.

Mourners included many delegations from CIO and AFL unions who found Tobin a strong friend during his more than four years as Secretary of Labor.

Mr. Truman arrived by plane early today from his home at Independence Mo. His only comment to reporters at the airport was: "This is a sad errand. I thought a lot of Maurice Tobin."

Tobin suffered a fatal heart seizure Sunday morning at his summer home at Scituate, Mass., and died in the arms of his wife.

The son of an immigrant carpenter, he became a state representative at 25 and Boston's youngest mayor at 37. He was elected governor of Massachusetts in 1944 and was preparing to run for a second term when Mr. Truman named him to the cabinet.

Another Offers To Sell An Eye To Meet Debts

ATLANTA (UP)—A husky World War II veteran offered today to sell one of his eyes for $10,000 to settle his debts and support his sick wife and two children.

Winton E. Brannen, 30, of nearby Decatur, said he decided to put one eye—"my left one because I'm righthanded"—up for sale after reading about a Knox City, Tex., woman offering an eye to get out of debt and begin a new life.

"I had to quit work three weeks ago to take care of my wife and kids and do the housework," Brannen said. "I've been mowing lawns and doing odd jobs around the neighborhood trying to make enough money for us to eat."

He said his debts now totaled $2,500 and he could not hold down a regular job as long as his wife remained sick. He said his wife and a son, Winston Stevenson, had each been operated on four times in recent years. Brannen also has a four-year-old girl, Victoria Jean.

"We must owe every doctor in town," he added. "It looks like we're so far behind in payments that we're going to lose our house."

Meanwhile, in Knox City, a 31-year-old welder said today he would try to talk his pregnant wife out of her plan to sell one of her eyes for $10,000.

The 26-year-old mother of three small children offered to sell an eye to get the family out of debt and give it a new start in Alaska. Frank Benbow, retired Wichita, Kan., contractor, has decided to accept the offer.

Benbow lost his left eye in 1929. He said he had the money ready and had already conferred with his doctor.

But the husband of the woman, who prefers her name not be revealed, was not enthusiastic over the prospect of the sale.

"I don't know what to think about it," he said. "She seemed serious when she placed the advertisement in the Wichita Falls Record-News last Friday night. But I don't approve of her giving up the eye—it was all her idea."

"I'll try to talk her out of it."

Superforts Bomb Bulge; South Koreans Halt Red Raiding Party

By WARREN FRANKLIN

United Press Staff Correspondent

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—South Korean troops threw back a force of 1,000 attacking Chinese today while the Kumson River, but the ROKs threw them back, one at a time.

After an hour-long lull, a company of Chinese staged a sneak attack, driving the ROKs from one position. But the ROKs regrouped and counterattacked before dawn, routing the Reds from the trenches. American Sabre jet pilots shot down three Communist MIGs at sundown in battles along the Yalu River.

Credited with one of the kills was 2nd Lt. Sam P. Young, Miami, Fla. Allied fighter bombers pierced a heavy cloud layer to dump 500,000 pounds of explosives on Chinese troops and positions in the bulge area.

Night-flying Superforts flew near the Yalu River and bombed the Uiju airstrip, defying intense anti-aircraft fire, the blinding glare of searchlights and enemy night fighters.

B-26 bombers hit a railway yard at Hwangju, north of Sariwon, but could not observe damage because of cloud formations.

Clouds and haze obscured the entire battlefield and troops not fighting sweated in humid, middle-80 degree weather.

McCarthy Firm As Criticism Of Prober Mounts

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy said today he is sticking by his chief investigator Roy M. Cohn until his critics "show me some specific reason" why he should not hold the job.

He brushed off as "generalities" the criticism leveled against Cohn by Sens. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.), Herbert H. Lehman (D-N.Y.), and others.

Cohn "has a tremendous record and those who have been criticizing him haven't been able to say anything (specific) against him," McCarthy insisted.

There have been no open demands for Cohn's scalp. But criticism of the former Justice Department prosecutor, now chief counsel of McCarthy's permanent investigating subcommittee, has been building up.

In a weekend telecast, McCarthy charged that the anti-Cohn attacks were a "flagrant example of anti-Semitism." Cohn is a Jew.

The issue boiled over on the Senate floor Tuesday with McCarthy squared off against Lehman and Monroney in one of the sharpest exchanges heard in the Senate in recent years.

Lehman, a Jew himself, denounced McCarthy as a man "charged with high misdemeanor" who "has not even had the guts to answer" the charges "to the Senate and the American people."

He tore into McCarthy after the Wisconsin Republican said Monroney "didn't have the guts" to spell out his "sneer attack" on Cohn.

Lehman said McCarthy's "sneers" are "despicable" and accused McCarthy of parading as an "enemy of the Communists" who accepted their support for election in 1946.

McCarthy denied having Communist support in 1946 and in turn accused Lehman of placing three Communists in UNRRA when the former New York governor headed the postwar world relief agency.

Most of the criticism of Cohn centers around a recent trip to Europe on which he and G. David Schine, the subcommittee chief consultant, were severely criticized abroad. Monroney said their actions "discredited" the Senate.

Miss Italy Objects To Judges' Choice

ROME (UP)—Blonde, statuesque Miss Italy returned from the Miss Universe contest today and reported that victorious Christine Martel has shapely legs and second class beauty.

"I never thought the title would go to the French girl," 21-year-old Rita Stazi told reporters on her return from the California contest.

"She has legs that are straight up and down, without shape and without ankles. If she came to Italy nobody would look at her."

"When I first saw Christine I decided she had no chance in the contest. I even gave her advice in the semi-finals. I told her to hold her head higher."

"She is a girl with plenty of charm and a pleasing manner, but she does not have that beauty I thought was indispensable."

When Miss Italy was elected at Capri the story went around that she entered the contest only in hopes of seeing Herbert Barnes, 24-year-old Air Force sergeant from Savannah, Ga. She met and fell in love with him in England.

"Naturally," her father said, "the judges feared that if they elected Rita she might run off and marry her sergeant and break the movie contract."

But even the romance did not work out for Rita. Of Barnes she said: "He's a nice guy—as a friend but as a husband—I don't want him."

Another Tobacco Laborer In Jail

Another imported tobacco worker was in jail today in absence of bond on charges of assaulting a fellow worker with a brick and beer bottle.

Waiting a hearing in recorder's court next Tuesday is Jim Brown, 24, whose address is listed as Savannah, Ga. Bond for Brown has been set at $200.

Victim of the attack, who was released from Pitt Memorial Hospital after receiving emergency treatment, is Harry R. Carter, 29, also of Savannah. One stitch was taken in Carter's forehead where officers said he was allegedly hit with the bottle.

Both Negroes are reported employed at Jack Smith's farm in Clay Root Neck. Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Manning was called in on the case early this morning and made the arrest.

Crash Victim Is Moved Today

Charles B. Finch, 35, who lost his left arm in a head-on crash near Bell Arthur last Saturday night, was transferred to a New Bern hospital today.

Finch lost his arm and suffered facial and head injuries when his car was involved in an accident with a car driven by Billy Ray Freeman of near Bell Arthur.

Freight Car Is Derailed; Road Briefly Blocked

A loaded freight car of the Norfolk and Southern railroad derailed yesterday afternoon blocking Tenth Street highway for several hours.

The car, filled with gravel, was being backed into the spur track behind East Carolina College and reportedly jumped the tracks when the switch was closed instead of being open.

The car did not overturn but remained upright, blocking the road. Traffic had to be rerouted around the blocked highway until railroad employes could place the derailed car back on the tracks.

Work crews were still busy this morning repairing the damage to the tracks and roadbed.

Assault Victim Isn't Sure Of Man's Identity

DURHAM (UP)—Police pressed a search today for a tall, husky man who seized a 48-year-old mother of nine children and raped her in Duke Gardens on the Duke University campus here Monday night.

The woman told police last night that "after thinking it over" she was not sure whether her attacker was a Negro or a swarthy white man. She said he had a "copper complexion," an athletic build, a crew cut, and spoke "excellent English." She said he wore gray trousers but was naked from the waist up.

The attack, which occurred in the shadow of the Duke chapel, shocked the university. Police warned against women walking alone on the campus or in the vicinity at night.

Electrical Outlet In Home Caught Fire

Greenville firemen answered a call to the home of J. P. Moss, 906-A West Third Street, this morning when an electrical outlet caught fire.

Firemen reported that no damage resulted other than to the outlet. The call was received 10:30.

Popcorn Stand Is Winner In Court

CHEYENNE Wyo (UP)—The Wyoming Supreme Court has ruled that John A. Nelson can continue to operate his popcorn stand in the same location at Riverton, Wyo.

The court rejected the complaint of I. E. Knight, who charged that the popcorn dispensary 150 feet from his movie theater was a fire hazard.

Didn't Recognize Marilyn Monroe

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—A woman sitting in a restaurant on Fisherman's Wharf spotted a blonde across the room and said to her companion, "If that girl bleached her hair a little more she could almost pass for Marilyn Monroe."

The blonde, enjoying her dinner unnoticed by the other customers, was Marilyn Monroe.
