

Political Leaders In South Against Postponement

Reveal Views Today

ATLANTA (UP) — State political leaders in the South expressed conflicting views today on the significance of the U. S. Supreme Court's action in postponing re-arguments on five public school segregation cases.

The scheduled new arguments have been set back from Oct. 12 to the week of Dec. 7 at the request of U. S. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr., who said the government needs more time to complete research on the cases.

A decision in the cases, seeking to break down segregation in public schools of Kansas, Delaware, Virginia, South Carolina and the District of Columbia, will affect the entire South's custom of educating white and Negro children in separate schools.

The cases originally were heard last year. Shortly before the end of its last term, the court scheduled the cases for re-argument and posed a series of questions for both sides to answer.

The postponement threatens additional trouble for Mississippi's plan to overhaul its school system. Gov. Hugh White has scheduled a special session of the legislature for Nov. 3 to act on a sweeping $48,000,000-a-year equalization program to bring Negro schools to a par with white schools.

White had thought that some idea of the high court's action would be forthcoming by that time.

Atty. Gen. T. C. Callison of South Carolina interpreted the delay as possibly meaning that there is not as much urgency about the cases as once existed.

Callison said that if equalization of schools is going to have any weight, "I think the more time they give us the better position we will be in." But he doubted "seriously" if the delay is going to affect the ultimate decision of the court.

Atty. Gen. J. Lindsay Almond of Virginia said, "I don't believe Brownell had any business postponing the hearing but there's nothing I can do about it."

Govs. Dan McCarty of Florida and Gordon Persons of Alabama had "no comment" on the delay as did Tennessee officials who expressed a "wait and see" attitude.

But Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin of Florida and Eugene Cook of Georgia saw no ominous implications for the South.

Ervin said "I believe there are no implications as to the merits of the case to be drawn from the postponement. It just reflects a need of the U. S. attorney general for more time to assemble the factual data which the Supreme Court requested for the coming hearing."

Cook said, "I feel that the attorney general was wise in requesting time to ascertain the true factual situation."

"It would be a judicial mockery for the court to even consider a decision that would strike down this doctrine without being fully apprised of the social, economic and political factors involved."

Difference Between Free Western World And Russia News, Propaganda Are Same

By PHIL NEWSOM

One of the basic differences between the free Western world and Russia is the attitude toward world news.

To the Russians, news and propaganda are synonymous terms designed only to promote the ideas of the few men in charge of the government. So, to the Communist or Russian mind, the measure of news is not whether it is true or false but rather the purpose it serves.

Often, then, Western observers must take into account the things the Russians do not say or do in order to have some understanding of the things they do say or do.

It was a slim bit of evidence, but on June 27 Western observers wondered if there was significance in the fact that No. 3 man and chief of Russian secret police Lavrenti Beria had failed to attend the news with other Russian government members of the two houses.

It turned out that it was significant, indeed.

On July 10, it was disclosed that Beria had been deposed and arrested for plotting to take over the government.

Since then, other shreds of evidence have been studied carefully to determine where the seat of power really rests—with Premier Georgi Malenkov, with Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov, with the army or with a possible combination.

So this week's meeting of the Supreme Soviet—the Russian parliament—was awaited with more than the usual amount of interest. Again, the interest was divided almost equally between those who might not appear as those who would.

One question was answered immediately.

Malenkov still is among those very much in charge.

Planned on the one side by Molotov and on the other by Stalin's one-time father-in-law, Lazar Kaganovich, first deputy chairman of the Council of Ministers, Malenkov received a standing ovation from the news members of the two houses.

There appeared to be no important absences, indicating the current purge so far has gone no further than Beria and his lieutenants. The necessity for judging Russia from the negative as well as the positive side carries over into other fields.

This week's Russian reply to the West's proposal for a Big Four foreign ministers' conference on Germany and Austria was an example.

The Russians proposed to discuss "a general lessening of tension in international relations", and then went on to say that in such a discussion the "participation of the Chinese People's Republic is essential."

The immediate reaction in Western capitals was that the Russians deliberately were stalling the conference because they would expect the United States to veto the proposal on Red China.

In fact, there has been a long-standing suspicion that, despite their apparent attempts to include the Red Chinese in international meetings, the Russians actually refer to keep the Chinese away from any influences except their own.

Back of this reasoning lies the United States' coldness to the Russian "peace offensive" and to U. S. demands for "deeds, not words."

Farmville Board Adopts Budget For Fiscal Year

By CHESTER WALSH

FARMVILLE—At a meeting on Tuesday night, the Farmville Board of Commissioners adopted the annual budget for the fiscal year July 1, 1953-June 30, 1954. Mayor O. G. Spill presided.

The commissioners set the tax rate at $1.35 on the $100 valuation, the same as last year.

Authorized appropriation for the annual budget is $290,481.10, a slight increase over the last fiscal year. Town Clerk C. M. Paylor stated.

The increase is to take care of some expenses incidental to establishing a branch of the Pitt County health department in Farmville and for the tax-mapping project of the county.

The commissioners authorized appropriation of a nominal sum of money to provide an airplane observation post in the Farmville community. In the meantime, the commissioners are looking about in the hope of finding a site for the post without spending much money.

The board adopted an ordinance requiring all houses and business places within 200 feet of a town sewer line to connect with it. This is in accordance with a state health law, it was stated. The ordinance becomes effective September 1, 1953. A penalty is provided for violation of the sewerage law.

A contract was authorized to be made with the Rural Fire Association for the Farmville Fire Department to man and operate the association's fire truck with volunteer firemen. Incidentally, the contract is to provide that the Farmville firemen may use the rural truck when necessary. Haywood Smith is chief of the fire department.

The commissioners accepted the resignation of Policeman Floyd Owens, who resigned to accept a position with the N. C. State Highway Patrol. Howard Flora of Farmville was appointed to succeed Owens.

Other matters before the board consisted of routine business and payment of bills.

Members of the Board of Town Commissioners are L. B. Johnson Jr., Lath Morris, W. C. Wooten, Charles Edwards and Robert Rouse Jr.

Socialist Workers Force Announce 24-Hour Strike

PARIS (UP) — The Socialist Workers Force, dominant union among government employees, called a 24-hour general strike by all public workers in France starting at midnight tomorrow.

The move, added to a walkout by postal, telephone and telegraph workers which has caused a virtual communications blackout in the country, was made in an effort to head off cabinet approval of Premier Joseph Laniel's plans to cut government spending by 15 per cent.

The government was caught off guard by the size and speed of the communications strike. It spread faster and farther than any similar strike in French history.

As communications were paralyzed in city after city, Laniel ordered the post-telephone-telegraph minister, Pierre Ferri, back from a North African trip to help settle the crisis.

At mid-morning, the strike was reported 80 per cent effective, with more services going out of action hourly. Virtually no mail was being delivered or collected. Telephone centers in Paris and most provincial capitals were closed. Only security and emergency calls went through, although automatic phones within Paris worked normally.

The postal banking system, which handles more than 12 billion francs a year, came to a standstill.

At Bordeaux, the walkout spread and street cleaners and garbage collectors stopped work.

Garbage Collector Hauls Bills Away

ORLAND, Calif. (UP)—Garbage collector Leone Penna told the City Council he has given up sending garbage bills to his customers.

"What's the use?" he complained. "I send a bill they throw it in the garbage can and then I have to haul my own bill to the city dump."

Prisons Must Be Improved

Governors Convene To Discuss Status Of State Prisons

By MARTIN HEERWALD

SEATTLE, Wash. (UP) — State prisons must be greatly improved "if we are to dull the explosiveness that hovers over an imprisoned colony," Gov. John S. Fine said today.

The Pennsylvania Republican, leading the final panel discussion of the 45th annual governors' conference here, said violent prison riots in the past year actually served one good purpose.

"They pointed up weaknesses and deficiencies in prison administration," Fine said.

"Prison riots have awakened in the minds of every governor here, not only the imperative need for corrections in prison administrations, but also adoption of preventative measures against a recurrence of disturbances," he added.

Fine said there would be more riots "unless we change our centuries' old governmental behavior of placing this problem at the bottom of our lists where a myriad of other problems cause it to be soon forgotten."

The Pennsylvania governor said the states have a joint obligation to initiate a thorough study of the entire penal system from convictions, to prisoner rehabilitation.

"From such a re-appraisal should stem a cooperative, over-all national plan of closest possible uniformity in penal policies," he said.

Yesterday, the governors went into the question of rising school costs, the teacher problem and educational television.

Gov. Norman Bunsdale (R) of North Dakota expressed the opinion of many governors when he said part of the problem of school financing could be solved by placing more emphasis on control at the local level.

One television, Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll (R) of New Jersey warned, "we must be very careful with this great, new instrument, lest it be abused."

The general feeling was educational TV was not yet ready for full use by schools.

Japan Observes 8th Anniversary Of Atom Bomb

TOKYO (UP)—Japan observed today the eighth anniversary of the dropping of the world's first atom bomb with a heartfelt prayer for "no more Hiroshimas."

The only public ceremony recalling the terrible event was the assembly at Hiroshima, where Japanese gathered from all over the nation to pray for an estimated 300,000 persons who died from that single bomb.

But newspapers and radios quietly but forcefully pointed out the tragedy of that grim event, and if only a few moments, Japanese relived again the dread of war and hopes for peace that led them to forswear armaments for their nation.

The ceremonies in Hiroshima were held in the Peace Memorial Park, an austere square standing where the bomb eight years before, on Aug. 6, 1945, cut down iron-concrete buildings and matchstick houses alike in one flaming explosion larger than any man had produced before.

Germans Fight Food Program With Propaganda

BERLIN (UP)—The East German government threw the entire Communist propaganda machine into the battle against the West's free food program today but failed to stem the flow of Soviet soap residents into West Berlin.

Efforts by Communist radios and newspapers plainly showed the Red regime was embarrassed by the thousands pouring across the border to pick up "Eisenhower food packages."

Communist radio commentators and newspaper editors tried to pin labels of "bacon chaser" and "package beggar" on those who accepted the free food.

Communist youth groups loitered at crossing points to West Berlin closely watching and jeering women who returned with the packages. Lists of the "beggars" with their addresses were printed in Communist newspapers. They were called "traitors."

The official East German news agency, quoting "authoritative" sources, predicted rejection of a United States offer to release 41,400,000 in blocked East German funds on condition the money be spent for food. The agency charged the freezing was illegal in the first place and demanded unconditional release of the money.

Business Man Has Patent On Light

CHICAGO (AP)—A caution light signal installed in automatic elevators has been patented by a Chicago business man, Charles W. Lerch, elevator consulting engineer, says the green light for up and red for down still will be used, but an orange caution light will serve to prevent passenger collisions.

Lerch says elevator operators are on the way out in most cities from coast to coast, and his caution signal will eliminate the necessity of the operator saying, "Let 'em off, please."

Don't Toss Things In Glass Houses

CHICAGO (UP)—People who live in glass houses should not throw stones—or knives, forks and dishes. So ruled Judge Julius H. Miner.

He awarded a divorce Wednesday to Raymond Grunwald, 41, who complained that his 24-year-old wife "Miss Popcorn of 1952" twice threw tableware at him in their apartment in Chicago's "Glass House," an apartment building with plate glass walls.

TOKYO (UP)—Sixteen American repatriates were airlifted to Japan today from Korea.

Also aboard the C-124 Globemaster were 12 Filipinos, 7 Colombians, 20 Turks, seven French, one Greek, and one Belgian returned prisoners.

The Americans brought to Tokyo included:

Pvt. Oscar Wooten, Wilson, N. C.; Pfc. William Sherrell, Bryson City, N. C.; Sgt. James Davis, Mullin, S. C.; Cpl. James S. Martin, Lorris, S. C.; and Pvt. Willie Halcher, Farmville, Va.

Communists Promise 81 'Healthy' Americans At Freedom Gate Today

By WILLIAM MILLER

United Press Staff Correspondent

PANMUNJOM, Friay (UP) — The Communists "promised to return 81 more 'healthy' Americans at Freedom Gate today, but the joy over their return was dimmed by the growing fear that thousands of other captured Americans may never come back."

Three returning Americans now have told of fellow prisoners being sentenced by the Reds on phony charges of endangering the lives of other prisoners or "instigating against peace."

In Washington today, Gen. Mark Clark, Far East commander, said the Reds may hold from 2,000 to 3,000 more American prisoners than they have admitted.

The 81 Americans to be returned today will bring to 221 the total returned by the Reds in three days.

However, the condition of ill and haggard prisoners—their appearance reminiscent of victims of the Nazi torture camps of Dachau and Buchenwald—will delay the United States homecoming of the few that are "healthy."

American officers at Inchon said the Reds are delivering so few able-bodied prisoners that it may take three weeks or more before enough are collected to make up a shipload of 400.

A summary of Thursday's prisoner exchange, issued by the United Nations Armistice Commission, said that "the exchange operation is smoothing out and speeding up."

It added:

"Roads leading into the Communist prisoner exchange site were strewn with clothing issued to them by the United Nations Command. By the same token, roads leading to Freedom Village from the United Nations exchange site were littered with the blue cotton uniforms supplied by the Communists for our personnel."

They hobbled on canes or crudely fashioned crutches to the reception tents for identification and preliminary medical examination. Some left the Communist ambulances on stretchers.

Two Americans were unconscious. They were not identified.

One of the South Koreans was returned dead. Another ROK soldier was a living skeleton who tried to pull his tightened skin over his teeth to smile but couldn't.

Battle-toughened Marines on duty at the reception center were shocked by the appearance of the gaunt, haggard shells of men.

A dazed Negro soldier stood like a robot on the tailgate of his truck and lapped into the arms of medics.

The 45 Americans arriving in the first two Russian truck convoys from Kaesong were in worse condition than the 70 Americans released in the first exchange Wednesday, and more than half of that group had tuberculosis. The remaining 25 seemed in better condition and spirits.

The Communists assured the United Nations that all of the 81 Americans to be returned Friday in the third phase of "Operation Big Switch" are "healthy." But that was the description the Reds gave of the limping South Koreans returned Thursday.

There were more tales of Communist atrocities, with specific details of torture.

Lt. Col. Thomas D. Harrison of Clovis, N. M., a distant cousin of chief U.N. truce negotiator Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, left a leg in North Korea. The Communist amputated it after he had smashed it in a plane crash that led to his capture.

Harrison, who has never met the relative who negotiated the armistice that set him free, said the Communists beat him "with clubs and sticks" and gave him the ancient, Chinese "water torture" by dropping water incessantly over a towel wrapped around his face.

Maj. John C. Harlan, 48, of Institute, W. Va., confirmed reports that American officers in Red barbed-wire enclosures had been sentenced to prison terms.

Harlan, whose hair turned grey in captivity, said at least a dozen men in his camp alone were so ill they should have been returned last April in "Operation Little Switch."

Cpl. John W. James Jr., 32, of Jones Creek, Md., and the Reds dragged Americans down a road in his camp and "we could hear them screaming at night."

James said the Reds tried to create racial friction in the camp and succeeded in setting a captive of Mexican descent against other Americans.

Most of the returnees did not want to talk. Others were too weak to speak above a whisper.

The Communists delivered only 392 prisoners Thursday, eight short of the 400 they had promised to release daily until all 18,703 of their captives, including 3,313 Americans, are liberated. Thus far, 140 Americans have returned to freedom.

The men who came back Thursday were ragged uniforms and rubber-soled sneakers. Some of them wore tattered GI caps.

Pvt. Shirley Grimmer of Rita, W. Va., was the first American to answer the roll call. Then he was taken to the medical tent.

None of the returning prisoners knew the whereabouts of Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, hero of Taegu and highest ranking prisoner of the Communists.

Alan Winnington, Communist correspondent of the London Daily Worker, said he, too, did not know when Dean will be returned.

But Winnington said he believed Associated Press photographer Frank Noel would be returned Friday.

When the 2,765 Communists released by the U.N. reached the exchange point, the North Koreans began cursing and tearing off their uniforms.

They threw shoes at American officers. An American major who was hit by a crutch Wednesday was struck in the mouth Thursday by a shoe.

The South Koreans being returned to freedom were disorderly too. One ROK soldier threw his hat on the ground and screamed: "God damn the Communists."

Planes Search Atlantic For 14 Still Unaccounted Persons

Bodies Of 2 Crash Victims Found

LONDON, Aug. 6 (UP) — The bodies of two more victims of Wednesday's crash of an American 4b-36 bomber were taken from the stormy Atlantic today.

Four other of the 23 men aboard the plane have been rescued, and three bodies found yesterday leaving 14 still unaccounted for and feared dead.

Some 21 planes and eight ships criss-crossed a 40,000 square mile area of the North Atlantic in worsening weather in search of these men.

Meanwhile, the British frigate Tenacious was diverted to search for a 30-foot yacht reported in distress in the same area enroute from Boston, Mass., to Norway. It had four persons aboard.

Noon reports said the sea was getting rougher, with waves up to 14 feet expected. Cross swells created a "complicated sea condition."

The giant atom bomber went down in flames 430 miles west of Scotland.

The survivors were identified by the U. S. Seventh Air Division headquarters as:

A-1C Howell Parker, 32, of Spokane, Wash.; Maj. George Parkes, 37, of Nephi, Utah; S-Sgt. C. DeHaven, no age or address available, and S-Sgt. Roy Devere Speer, of Bennington, Okla.

The air search was called off temporarily last night by bad weather, and fog prevented a dawn start this morning. But when the haze lifted, planes again took up the hunt.

Weather was getting rougher in the search area at noon, at which time there were 21 American planes present.

Survivors were expected to be landed by the freighters today or tomorrow. One of them is in good health, two are suffering from shock and one has an arm injury.

Maj. Al Brey, operations officer of the 8th Air Sea Rescue Squadron at Upper Heyford, Oxfordshire, said the search for the missing airmen might go on for as long as a week.

"It will certainly continue until we are definitely sure there is no chance of any further survivors," he said.

Along with the planes, six ships continued to keep watch for any sign of life.

The huge bomber was on its way from Travis Air Force base in California to akenheath Royal Air Force Station on a training flight when two of its engines caught fire.

Far East Commander Has 40 Years Of Service With Country

WASHINGTON (UP) — Gen. Mark W. Clark, Far East commander, announced today that he plans to retire from the Army next Oct. 31 after 40 years service. He is 57 years old.

Clark made the announcement at a news conference here where he has been holding conferences prior to returning to his headquarters in Tokyo.

He said he hoped his successor would be designated in time for "an orderly turnover" in command so that he could return to the United States in September.

Clark also said:

1. There "might be" from 3,000 to 3,000 more Americans in Communist hands in Korea than the Reds have admitted.
2. If the Korean truce is violated, he would personally favor "using any weapon at the disposal of our country" in retaliation. That answered a question whether he would favor using the atomic bomb.
3. The Republic of Korea army does not "have the capability" to go it alone should present Communist forces in North Korea violate the armistice. But if all foreign troops, United Nations and Red Chinese, were removed from Korea, the ROKs "could take care of themselves" if attacked by North Koreans.

Over 2,500 Children Eligible For Serum

NEWLAND (UP) — More than 2,500 children in this sparsely populated county with a population of only 14,000 was made eligible for 21,000 cubic centimeters of the precious polio-resisting serum when the disease struck with sudden fury. Seventeen of the county's 18 cases have occurred within the last month.

Avery County, although situated between two of the hottest spots in the polio outbreak this summer, had been almost entirely free of the disease until July 1.

Caldwell and Catawba counties, where gamma globulin inoculations were carried out earlier, lie east of here, and the county is also near outbreak centers just across the line in Tennessee where inoculation programs were also carried out.

As the children under 10 years of age lined up to receive their shots, state health authorities had a cheerful word for Caldwell County officials.

Dr. Fred Ford, state epidemiologist, notified the Caldwell County School Board to go ahead with its plans to open the public schools as scheduled Sept. 1.

"I told the school board to go ahead and open the schools as scheduled," Dr. Ford said. "The incidence of polio has already gone down below the danger point as far as schools are concerned."

Charles Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction, said the opening dates are "strictly up to local boards of education." He said none of the others in the outbreak centers have inquired about school openings yet, and if they do he will refer them to the State Board of Health.

Byrnes Refuses To Pledge Support To Demo. Nominee

SEATTLE (UP) — Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina says he will not attend another Democratic presidential convention if the delegates must pledge support to the nominee "regardless of what he stands for."

The former secretary of state and newly-appointed delegate to the United Nations yesterday dodged a reporter's question as to whether he thinks the Democratic party is falling apart at the seams.

But he said it is difficult to have unity in the Democratic party "if at the (Presidential) conventions you must first have credentials and promise to support anyone regardless of what he stands for."

Asked if he wants to see the Democratic party returned to power, the cagey governor grinned and said, "if you mean the Democratic party of South Carolina, I would be most happy to see that party in power."

At the 1952 Democratic convention, Byrnes led the fight against binding the delegates to support the nominee, whoever he may be. On other subjects, Byrnes said he thinks President Eisenhower is now more popular than ever in South Carolina, "particularly since the Korean armistice."

He also said it was "most surprising" that Mr. Eisenhower has accomplished as much as he has "during his first six months as President in view of the narrow margin the Republicans have in the Senate."

On international developments, Byrnes said the Soviet Union "has no good reason now" for refusing to negotiate an Austrian peace treaty.

He referred to Russia's acceptance of the three Western powers' proposal for a four-power conference and the Soviets' suggestions that ways of decreasing international tension be one of two items on the agenda.

Byrnes said he did not see how international tensions can be discussed without bringing in the problem of the Austrian peace, Korea and Indo-China.

Wiley Against Big Power Meet

WASHINGTON (UP)—Chairman Alexander Wiley of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said today he is strongly opposed to a big power conference that would let Red China discuss European problems.

The Wisconsin Republican said the Chinese Communist regime has no right to horn in on the Big Four foreign ministers' meeting proposed by the United States, France and Britain because that conference is designed to discuss German and Austrian problems which are of no concern to Communist China.

Wiley was backed up by Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), another member of the Foreign Relations Committee. He said inclusion of Red China in the proposed foreign ministers' meeting would imply U. S. recognition of the Communist regime and "I am opposed to that."

The Senate foreign affairs experts made the statements as Western diplomats puzzled over the meaning of Soviet Russia's reply to the U. S. British-French invitation to attend a Big Four foreign ministers' conference on Germany and Austria.

Cat Leads Dog's Life; Gets Tossed About By Guards

HONG KONG (UP)—The story of a cat who briefly led a dog's life and nearly touched off an international incident on the China-Hong Kong border was told today. Father Paul Dubres who greets expelled missionaries at the border said a lady passing from Canton to Hong Kong was told she could not bring her cat.

The disconsolate lady walked back to the border fence and tossed the cat at a staring Communist guard. The guard picked up the cat and threw it at a British guard. The British officer plucked the cat from his leg where it landed and chucked it back at the Communist who had to duck as the cat's claws whistled past his head. The Red leveled his gun. The Briton firmly told him to "put down that gun." The incident ended when the cat ran away into Communist China.

Drop In Week's Polio Cases; Down To 1,630

WASHINGTON (UP)—The U.S. Public Health Service said today there were 1,630 polio cases reported last week, 29 per cent fewer than those reported in the comparable week of 1952.

The total for the 1953 "disease year" is 8,348 as compared with 9,394 during the same period in 1952. Last week's new cases compared with 1,350 reported in the previous week.

The Public Health Service said that while North Carolina reported no increase above the cases reported in the preceding week for the state as a whole, one additional county (Avery) reported a sufficiently large number to qualify for mass immunization with gamma globulin.

The service said that during the week ended Aug. 1 there were 19 deaths reported from polio.

Receipts Of Post Office Increase

Receipts at the Greenville post-office in July of this year totaled $15,095.78, an increase of $1,519.46 over receipts in July a year ago. Postal receipts for July, 1952 were $13,576.32. Postmaster J. Knott Proctor stated.

The postmaster again requested that the public give complete addresses on all mail matter to facilitate prompt delivery.

Court Docket Is Heavy Tomorrow

A heavy docket is scheduled for trial tomorrow.

President Passes Up News Meeting

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower busy signing bills and preparing for his forthcoming vacation in Denver, decided to pass up his "weekly" news conference today.

His last meeting with reporters was three weeks ago.

Gatlin-Crawford Vows Spoken In Double Ring Ceremony

In the presence of members of the immediate families and a few close friends in the Baptist Church in Tarboro, the marriage of Miss Jean Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Crawford of Balhards, to James Earl Gatlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Gatlin of Tarboro, took place on Friday afternoon, July 10, at 3 o'clock.

Using the double ring ceremony, Rev. Carl Lee Ouskey, pastor of the church, was the officiating minister. The bride and groom entered the church together, unattended. Her dress was of white linen with a navy blue and white accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Gatlin is a graduate of the Arthur high school and attended Louisville College. She has held a secretarial position with the State Hospitalization Insurance Company in Tarboro for the past three years. Mr. Gatlin finished the Tarboro high school and served in the U.S. Navy four years. He is now employed as a supervisor of the Southern Cotton Oil Co. in Tarboro.

They are now living at the home of the groom's parents, 1900 St. Andrews St., in Tarboro.

Greenville Gets New 'Stop' Light

A new traffic signal has been erected at 14th and Evans Streets. It was announced this morning by Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs.

Gibbs said that the signal was erected in an effort to speed up traffic and also in an effort to reduce the danger of traffic accidents at the intersection.

For the next few days, motorists who fail to stop for the signal will be warned by officers stationed near by to watch the new signal. However after this week, violators will be haled into city court, Gibbs said.

The signal was one of several under consideration by the Police department, which are expected to be placed in operation in the near future.

Mutiny Distress, But Was Mistake

LOS ANGELES (UP)—The flag was flown upside down at the Equitable Building, the signal of mutiny or distress, but it was only a mistake.

The building's assistant manager said, "One wirecracker wanted to know if we were in 'upside down mourning'."

Upon arrival the guests were served molded ices and bridal cakes. During play, lead refreshments were served. High score prize was won by Miss Josephine Stoneham; low by Mrs. Eric Whitehead.

Miss Whiteley and Mrs. Albee were presented gifts of crystal. A remembrance was presented to Mrs. T. I. Moore Jr., a recent bride. Mrs. S. W. Dunn and Mrs. K. F. Whiteley, mothers of the honorees, were invited for refreshments.

Bride-Elect Honored By Joint Hostesses

Mrs. M. W. Maxwell and daughter, Mrs. W. K. Whiteley, honored Miss Dorothy Whiteley, bride-elect, with a dessert-bridge Tuesday, August 3, at 8:00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Maxwell, Mrs. Joseph Albee, a recent bride, shared honors.

The rooms were decorated throughout with floral arrangements carrying out bridal colors. A design of white carnations, gladioli and greenery flanked by a replica of the wedding and engagement rings centered the dining table. On the mantel, a ship of matrimony was filled with carnations and gladioli, and on each side were three-branched candelabra holding white tapers. The individual tables covered in white were centered with a taper on which a wedding ring was held with ribbon, tulle, and flowers. Dolls dressed as members of the bridal party depicted the bridal procession on the piano. Napkin rings fashioned as wedding rings held the bridal napkins. A corsage marked the place of the honoree.

JCs Seeking Rooms Here For Tournament Visitors

Greenville's hotels and commercial rooming houses may not have sufficient facilities to accommodate the visitors expected here for the Little League regional tournament August 17-20.

That conclusion was voiced today by Kenneth Hite, chairman of the reception committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce which is sponsoring the tournament.

"We have been told as many as 500 visitors from other places may be in Greenville for the regional Little League tournament," Hite said.

Hite urged local people who will be willing to rent rooms during the tournament to contact the recreation commission as soon as possible in order that visitors who are unable to find places to stay in hotels and commercial rooming houses here will be able to find accommodations with out going to near-by towns.

American Legion Leases Home To Local Church

The American Legion Post Home on South Evans Street has been leased to the Greenville Free Will Baptist Mission for use as a mission Sunday school and church. Commander Ed Harris of the post said yesterday.

The lease for the three story stucco home was for one year with the privilege of extending it together with an option for purchase if desired.

Commander Harris said use of the building as a dining room was discontinued on July 15. The lease was made effective as of August 1, and first services were held in the building last Sunday, he reported. First and second floors of the building are being used for Sunday school and church purposes, and the third floor is being occupied by the Rev. Rashie Kennedy, pastor of the Free Will Baptist Mission.

The home, located in the 500 block of Evans, has been used as a meeting place for the local Legion Post No. 39 since 1946. The post also has maintained a public dining room in the building for about a year.

Commander Harris said future meetings of the post until further notice will be at the exhibit building of the Pitt County Fair Grounds which is owned by the Legion. Regular monthly meeting time for the organization is the third Tuesday in the month.

About 80 persons reportedly attended first services at the new mission church Sunday.

Voters Getting Change, But With A Vengeance

WASHINGTON (UP) — House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn said today the voters who demanded a change in last November's election "are getting it — with a vengeance."

Attacking the Eisenhower administration and the Republican majority of the 83rd Congress, he charged that taxes have been increased instead of cut under the new regime, prices have gone up instead of down, U. S. defenses have been reduced "to a dangerous low" and "the budget is more unbalanced than they found it."

The Texas Democrat ridiculed the "so-called accomplishments" of the recent congressional session as President Eisenhower prepared to defend the GOP record in a nationwide broadcast tonight. Mr. Eisenhower will speak over all radio networks at 9:30 p.m. e.d.t.

Charles A. Halleck (Ind.), House Republican Leader had his say for the record Wednesday declaring that the GOP majority had "hampered out a solid record of accomplishment on behalf of a free, strong and prosperous America."

Deriding that claim, Rayburn said Mr. Eisenhower "must be unhappy" with the showing the Republicans made during their first half year in office.

"They have failed to keep their 1952 campaign pledges," he said. "The Republicans promised to balance the budget. The budget is more unbalanced than they found it."

"They promised to stabilize the nation's economy. Prices of many commodities are rising. The cost of living index is at an all time high. Farm income is down 14 per cent."

"They promised to reduce the national debt. Instead they have asked Congress to increase it."

"One promise the administration made has been fulfilled," Rayburn said. "The Republicans promised hard money. They have made it harder to get. They raised interest rates on the little fellow, the home buyer and the farmer. But the big bankers and financiers are doing well."

Rayburn said that all but two of the major bills enacted by the first session of the 83rd Congress were merely "extensions of policies and laws initiated by Democratic Congresses." The exceptions he noted were the Tidelands oil bill and the measure to admit 214,000 refugees.

Sheriff Guards Hospital Room Of Young Mother

ARAB, Ala. (UP) — A deputy sheriff today guarded the hospital room of a pretty, young mother who slashed herself seven times with a straight edge razor after cutting the throats of her three children.

The bodies of Mrs. Pearl Griffin's three young children were found in a blood-soaked attic room at her parents' home here yesterday.

They were identified as Ricky, 6, Ronnie, 4, and Rosalind, 3. Mrs. Griffin was lying in a pool of blood, still clutching the razor, when her 16-year-old brother, Hosie Chaney, came running to the attic after he saw blood dripping through the living room ceiling. The 26-year-old mother, sent to stay with her parents after her husband became alarmed over her threats to take her own life, was charged with three counts of murder.

"Tell momma and poppa that the children will go to heaven," she told her brother and a neighbor from the blood-soaked floor, "I couldn't leave them behind."

Doctors at the Arab Infirmary said Mrs. Griffin was in "very good" condition despite cuts on both wrists and on one leg.

Coroner Aubrey Carr said Arnold Griffin, 28, an employee of a Detroit automobile manufacturing company, sent his wife home about two months ago so that her parents could keep an eye on her.

Mrs. Griffin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Chaney, were in Huntsville, Ala., when the triple-slaying occurred. They returned home about five minutes after young Chaney walked in and discovered the tragedy.

Carr said Mrs. Griffin had threatened to commit suicide, but had given relatives no indication that she might take the lives of her children also.

Russians Show No Indications

FRANKFURT, Germany (UP) — Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme NATO commander, today discounted the Soviet's announced reduction in defense expenditures.

He said there is no indication that the Russians are cutting back their military strength.

Gruenther outlined his views to the press here on his first visit to U. S. and Allied forces in Germany since assuming the NATO command.

Commenting on a 3.2 per cent defense budget cut announced in Moscow yesterday, he said:

"Certainly, on the face of it, it is not significant."

He stressed that it will continue to be necessary for NATO to build up its strength, because there is no indication that the Russians are reducing theirs.

"Obviously, if the capabilities of the Soviets diminished significantly, it would lessen our requirements. But the question is at the moment academic, because there is no reason to believe the Soviet capabilities are being diminished," he said.

Scouts Relate Experiences Of Recent Jamboree

AYDEN — Sonny Smith and Bobby Johnson, who attended the recent Boy Scout Jamboree in California, related some of their experiences at the Ayden Rotary Club's meeting last week.

Fifty-two thousand boys really attended the Jamboree. The scouts could see the Pacific Ocean on the west and the mountains on the east. The boys gave a vivid description of the train trips to and from the Jamboree, they told about setting up of the camp in the vast tent city and of their experiences in trading with other scouts.

Patrol Examiner Solves Mystery

NORMAN, Okla. (UP) — A Highway Patrol examiner today had solved a mystery.

He gave driving tests to 21 teachers who had just finished a driver training course. But he found he had 22 papers to grade.

Then he recalled a man had driven up a little late and went through the required turns and stops without saying a word.

Examiner Tony Scaramucci decided the test hadn't hurt the man who obviously was not a member of the class. The extra driver lost 56 points on his scorecard for poor driving.

22 Boys Lured To Farm, Say Work Was Slavery

NEW YORK (UP) — Twenty-two boys were safely home in Brooklyn today after "escaping" from an upstate farm where they said they spent days working in virtual peonage.

The boys, all Negroes between 14 and 17 years of age, told the New York World-Telegram and Sun they had been lured to the farm, near Wayland, N. Y., as "vacation laborers" who would be paid money for picking berries and beans.

The newspaper said police and State Farm Bureau officials were attempting to locate the farm.

The episode began July 22, the newspaper said, when two unidentified men approached the boys in the Williamburg section of Brooklyn and offered them good wages to work on a Long Island farm. The parents agreed and that evening the boys boarded a bus for what they thought would be a short ride out on the island.

Instead the bus went to New Jersey and on through the night toward western New York. Once on the long trip the boys were given sandwiches and soda pop to wash them down.

Next day they arrived at the farm and were set to work picking blackberries and beans. The farmer, as yet unidentified, promised them good wages but as the days went by they found they were being charged for meals and for their quarters, a shanty — slept five in a bed. They discovered they were making no money at all.

Some of the younger boys complained and asked to be taken home. They were told that if they wanted to leave they would have to walk. On the night of July 27, all the boys decided to make a break. They started to walk to New York, hundreds of miles away.

Very few persons gave them a lift, they told the paper and they became weak from hunger as they trudged along, although once in a while a farmer or a wayside restaurant owner would give them a handout.

The group split up and arrived home at various times. Some of the boys were picked up by police. Their parents, after being notified, drove all night to fetch them home.

School Bond Issue Deserves Support

The Pitt County Board of Education has voiced its approval and support of the state-wide school bond issue which will be voted on by North Carolinians October 3.

While taking such action, the County school officials also indicated they will ask other school-connected organizations in Pitt to lend their support to the bond issue.

From the standpoint of school facilities, Pitt County is not as bad off as many other counties in the state. By the same token, its share of the money from the bond issue to be allotted on the basis of need may not be as large as that of other counties. Nevertheless, Pitt can put to good use funds which would be forthcoming from the bond issue if it receives favorable action from the voters.

Pitt's Tobacco Outlook Remains Favorable

As the tobacco marketing season in Eastern North Carolina approaches, Pitt County's prospects for a prosperous fall season remain good.

Prices brought on the Georgia-Florida tobacco markets when they opened in July added a spark of encouragement to tobacco farmers hereabouts; and sales on the Border Belt markets added another spark of encouragement as sales there began more recently.

The tobacco crop in Pitt County this year while it may not appear as good now as it did three weeks or so ago — is considered by most experienced tobacco growers and others as about the top crop in this section this year.

While it has been an expensive crop to raise and house, and while its yield may not reach as high an average as the crop of 1951, the outlook for the farmer is by no means as depressing as it was this time last year.

Compared with the outlook for tobacco crops in other sections of Eastern North Carolina, it seems Pitt County stands in a relatively favorable position for 1953.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
BUT WITH NO BITTERNESS
Some time ago, in conversation with a classmate, I was amazed to hear that he had not received his diploma until thirty-eight years after the graduation of our class.
This is how it happened. As a student he and one of his buddies had played a prank on a professor. It seems that this professor was rather dull and when he turned to write on the blackboard, these two students were in the habit of slipping out of the back door of the classroom. They did it just once too often and were caught. So a few days before graduation this student learned to his horror that he would not receive credit for that course and therefore would be denied his diploma.
Now this was what amazed me. The student who had to wait thirty-eight years for his diploma carried absolutely no resentment against that professor. "He did right," said the student, "in cancelling me out of that course. That had to be," he continued, "taught me a very good lesson."
There has never been the slightest bitterness on the part of this student. As he related these circumstances, I fell to wondering whether or not I could have taken anything of that sort in as fine a spirit as he manifested.

Received With Cautious Jubilation

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—The reported emergence of Russia's new heroes as the real power behind Dictator Georgi Malenkov—Marshall Zhukov, Sokolovsky and Vasilevsky—has been received with cautious jubilation at Washington. Communists in name only, the first two have been close associates of President Eisenhower, and are regarded as warm friends of the West.
Their return to prominence had not been unexpected. In liquidating Beria, head of the secret police and its auxiliaries, Malenkov antagonized a powerful, sinister and well-armed faction. He controls the party, but it has no troops or weapons. He evidently needs the military for support of his shaky regime, for without them he could be toppled and Communism with him.
Both the State Department and the British Foreign Office are buzzing their diplomatic lookouts at Moscow for further word on these seemingly authenticated reports. For this changing of the guard in the Kremlin could be an historical coup d'etat of vital import to us.
FRIENDS OF THE PAST—Marshall Zhukov was the Russian commander in Berlin when Ike served there as United States representative after the German collapse. Sokolovsky and General Joseph T. McNarney, now retired, held the same posts after Zhukov and General Eisenhower were transferred to other assignments.
Their personal relations were excellent, since they met as "old soldiers" rather than embittered ideologists. Their political cooperation was marred only when Stalin, to the chagrin and irritation of his military deputies, interfered to disrupt agreements negotiated successfully at Berlin.
In fact, Zhukov became so popular that he was invited to visit the United States. The trip was vetoed by Stalin because he had become envious and fearful of the popularity which the hero of Stalingrad, the defender of Moscow and a captor of Berlin had won with the Russian people.
STALIN FEARED RUSSIAN HEROES—Although Stalin had to exist and eulogize the warriors during the war to revive the people's flagging patriotism at

The Reflector favors the proposed school bond issue. Much progress has been made in the way of better facilities and a better public school program in North Carolina in the past half decade. Part of the progress came as a result of state money allotted to local units for schools, and part as a result of local government money put into the school building program.

Even with the millions which have been spent for schools in this relatively short span of time in North Carolina, it is apparent that more money must be put into the school building program if the state is to keep abreast of the educational needs of its youngsters.

The Reflector feels the Pitt County Board of Education is upholding its obligation to the youth of Pitt County by taking a forthright stand in favor of the bond issue in the coming election. We urge the citizens of Pitt County to join the Board of Education in lending their active support to this proposed bond issue which will mean better schools for the state as a whole and for Pitt County in particular.

Joy And Sorrow Mingle As Prisoners Exchanged

What is hoped to be the last exchange of prisoners in the Korean conflict has begun.

Through the "Little Golden Gate" at Panmunjom are expected to pass some 3,313 American soldiers among the 12,763 United Nations prisoners held by the communists.

Some of them will need extensive medical care; others will be ready to come home with only minor treatment and check-ups. From the more than 3,000 returning American prisoners will come clues to the fate of 10,000 other American boys listed as missing in action in Korean fighting. From them also will come stories — most of them unpleasant — of treatment received by American prisoners at the hands of their communist captors.

Most important of all, "Operation Big Switch" will bring back home from Korea all the Americans who have fallen into communist hands and survived.

The 30 days during which prisoners are being exchanged will be as important as any in the lives of many families in the United States. To many homes — such as the home of Pvt. James E. Gatlin of Chico in Pitt County — will come the long-awaited word that a son is returning from the wars after being a prisoner of the enemy. In other homes the days will bring the disappointment which comes with the fading of the last hope that a loved one will return from war.

Unfortunately in this generation where wars have become the rule rather than the exception, joy is brought to many families while deep sorrow is brought to others.

Somebody Told Me

I Have Been Afraid Of Fishing

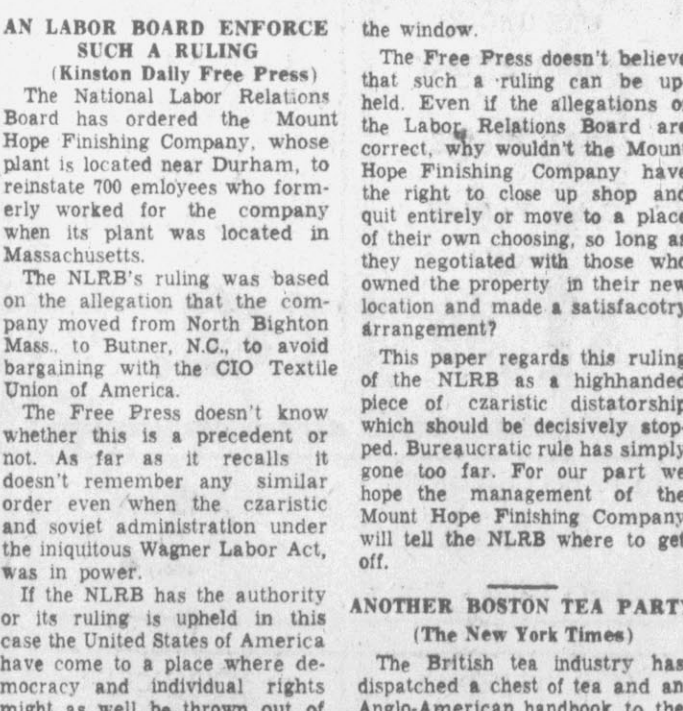

Fishing is a sport that I have always been afraid of. If I get too interested in it, I figure, I cannot be content unless I'm sitting on a creek every spare minute.
Yesterday I went to Hobucken with Ed Ricks, J. E. Nunn, and Ervin Spain, all of Ricks Service Center. We left Greenville at about 1:30 yesterday afternoon and returned at 9:30 last night. If you want to embarrass anybody and ask how many fish we brought back I would certainly appreciate your addressing that question to Ed. Here's the way I figure it: Of the few we caught, Ed caught the most, so let him tell the awful truth.
It was certainly amusing to hear Ed taking orders from his employees. All during the week J. E. and Ervin listen to instructions from their boss, but yesterday at Hobucken Ed was all ears for them.
Ed told me on the side: "These boys come down here more than I do, and they should know where the fish are." Whenever the fish didn't bite, which was most of the time, Ed would say, "Where do you think we should go next?" We spent as much time oar riding as we did fishing.
In my limited fishing experience the most amusing thing to me is the notions fishermen have about where the fish are. "See that stump over there?" Ed asked. "The biggest fish I've ever caught down here were caught right near there." But since then the fish have apparently moved on to a new headquarters. J. E. Nunn kept looking for a sign on the bank that was supposed to be a good spot, but we never found it.
In order to be a fisherman, they tell me, you must have this attitude: It matters not how many fish you catch, just so you have enough luck to keep hopeful. That's just how many we caught; enough to be hopeful.
It all boils down to this: If you like to have a change of scenery now and then, enjoy good fellowship, and hope to catch fish, then it's a good deal. Ed Ricks says his first trip to Hobucken was in 1935, and since then he must have taken thousands of fishing trips here and there.
Fishing is a frightening sport. About one more trip and I'll have to admit that the bug has bitten me. Anybody know the right stump to fish by at Hobucken? And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

AN LABOR BOARD ENFORCE SUCH A RULING

(Kinston Daily Free Press)
The National Labor Relations Board has ordered the Mount Hope Finishing Company, whose plant is located near Durham, to reinstate 700 employees who formerly worked for the company when its plant was located in Massachusetts.
The NLRB's ruling was based on the allegation that the company moved from North Bighton, Mass., to Butler, N.C., to avoid bargaining with the CIO Textile Union of America.
The Free Press doesn't know whether this is a precedent or not. As far as it recalls it doesn't remember any similar order even when the czaristic and soviet administration under the iniquitous Wagner Labor Act, was in power.
If the NLRB has the authority or its ruling is upheld in this case the United States of America have come to a place where democracy and individual rights might as well be thrown out of the window.
The Free Press doesn't believe that such a ruling can be upheld. Even if the allegations of the Labor Relations Board are correct, why wouldn't the Mount Hope Finishing Company have the right to close up shop and quit entirely or move to a place of their own choosing, so long as they negotiated with those who owned the property in their new location and made a satisfactory arrangement?
This paper regards this ruling of the NLRB as a high-handed piece of czaristic dictatorship which should be decisively stopped. Bureaucratic rule has simply gone too far. For our part we hope the management of the Mount Hope Finishing Company will tell the NLRB where to get off.
ANOTHER BOSTON TEA PARTY
(The New York Times)
The British tea industry has dispatched a chest of tea and an Anglo-American handbook to the Mayor of Boston in what is a truly delightful gesture of friendship. This, say the Britons, "is a small token of penitence for British behavior" that led to the Boston Tea Party of 1773. To this we can reply only with heartfelt thanks.
We are living in a world that is vastly different from that of 1773. One of the big differences is that we can exchange pleasantries and courtesies with our British friends, convinced of our mutual sincerity and our community of large interest. Quite recently we have been exchanging some acrimonies as well but they are frank and, we hope, well meant on both sides.
Now there can be another Boston Tea Party, and this time Americans will enjoy drinking the tea just as much as they once enjoyed the fierce protest of throwing it into the harbor. At that time we would have toasted our separation from Britain. Today we fan toast our unity in ideals and in common causes.

Shaky Structure

Cost Determines Price

By ELMER ROESSNER
Appliance manufacturers are in a quandary. This is their problem:
Higher steel prices and pay scales are increasing their costs. Dealers are demanding bigger margins to offset their higher costs.
Sales have ceased their upward spiral, and some manufacturers are raising their prices. A few rises were announced in the past week; a few more will be announced in the next ten days. Most of them have been in the neighborhood of 5 to 10 per cent. But an even greater adjustment of price structures may come when new lines are unveiled. Then, trade sources think, some models will come out at lower prices but with fewer gadgets and less trim; more will be introduced at higher price levels but with lots more extras. All this will amount to a price rise, but it won't be so apparent.
Higher prices may solve the problem of higher costs. But they can only worsen the problem of making sales. And if higher prices provide better margins for dealers, their problem still remains unsolved. What good are better margins if they are fewer?
Retailing Daily's monthly major appliance index for May showed fewer shipments from warehouses than in April; the April index was below that of March. It is true that shipments for most major appliances in May were substantially above a year ago, but even here ironers, freezers and 6- and 8-foot refrigerator shipments were down.
Another complication has been the rise in discount houses. No matter how hard some manufacturers try—and some manufacturers do try—to maintain retail prices, price-cutters operate. One manufacturer bought all his goods off the shelves of a New York cut-price house, but his line is still available at others. Another manufacturer advertised that his line was never sold below regular prices—and one publication sent buyers out to prove they were.
Discounts not only slow regular dealers' sales but they also slash the margins of regular dealers who are forced to meet under-the-counter prices.
Manufacturers of electric, gas and oil ranges, dishwashers, hot-water heaters and garbage disposers have been fighting the 10 per cent Federal excise tax on their products. They have pointed out that Congress went to the aid of movie houses and, with even greater logic, that Federal excises are not levied on washers, vacuum cleaners and other comparable items.
There doesn't seem to be any easy solution for the broad problem confronting the industry, but some trade sources think that manufacturers will step up their advertising campaigns and, at the same time, start wooing out dealers in territories where the manufacturers are overfranchised, especially those who have low volume, who do not maintain prices and who do not get out and fight for sales.

Makes Husband Feel Superior

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing makes an American husband feel more superior than the way women worry about changing clothes styles.
It was a subject on which Wilbur Feeble, the nation's most average man, always enjoyed needing his wife.
"Well, well, Trellis Mae," he said joyously, "I see where some Parisian designers are trying to revive short skirts. How nutty can women get? Why don't they just put fringes on their bathing suits and wear them for evening gowns."
"Oh, shut up," replied his wife.
"Boy, oh boy," said Wilbur. "Don't tell me you gals are going to start dressing again like the high school flappers of the 1920's? Women never looked goofier in all history. This time everybody will be laughing at you."
"Can't you ever be quiet?" murmured Trellis Mae. Usually she paid no attention to her husband's rantings, about women's styles. But this time he had struck home.
For the prospect of a return to short skirts secretly dismayed her. The truth was that Trellis Mae was a bit knock-kneed, and she had reached an age where she thought her knees, when she walked, might be heard—but shouldn't be seen.
"What gets me," marveled Wilbur, "is how some French joker you never even saw says, 'Wear this'—and all you dames run like sheep to do what he says. What's the color going to be this year—gunnysack brown?"
"The pig envies the peacock," said his wife.
"How's that?" asked Wilbur, surprised. Then Trellis Mae blew up.
"Listen, my little sackcloth here," she said. "Why don't you grow up and face life. Don't you know you're jealous?"
"Jealous? Who's jealous of what?"
"All you men are jealous. You are jealous of how much better women dress than you do. You don't even know what clothing is for."
"It's to cover you up, of course," said Wilbur. "Even women can't get away with running around more than half-naked. It's a matter of law."
"That shows how silly men are," replied Trellis Mae. "They think clothing is just something to keep them warm in winter—and hot in summer. But clothes are an adventure with a woman, a weapon, a way to express her personality, to show she is different."
"Yeah? How can they be different when they follow the same style?"
"Don't be ridiculous," said Trellis Mae. "It's men who are afraid to be different."
"I don't follow that," said Wilbur indignantly.
"Look, you and all the other husbands I know think you're dressed up when you have on a black pair of shoes, a white shirt, a blue suit but one that isn't too blue, and a necktie you could wipe a post office pen on and nobody could see the ink stains. You all wear the same uniform, as if you were in an old fashioned orphan home."
"It's just practical," said Wilbur defensively.
"That isn't it—it's fear," insisted Trellis Mae. "Why do you sneer at a man who wears a moustache or beard? Because he has the courage to be different, my little guinea wonder, and you don't."
"Well," said Wilbur lamely, "how about those blue summer shoes I'm going to buy?"
"You've been threatening to buy them for five years, and haven't got up the courage yet. And you'll probably never wear blue shoes unless I bury you in them."
Wilbur looked alarmed.
"Y-y-you wouldn't bury me in blue summer shoes?" he asked uneasily.
"Why not?"
"Oh, I don't know."
"You think St. Peter will look at your shoes?"
"Black shoes?" prodded Wilbur.
"No," said Trellis Mae dreamily. "I think I'll bury you in golden sandals tied with a silver bow. When you get to heaven, I want you to stand out from the crowd."
Wilbur dropped the topic of short skirts. The rest of the evening he kept glancing with a hunted look at Trellis Mae. He never could be sure when she was joking.
He could see himself standing in golden sandals at the pearly gates—and the angels laughing. Trellis Mae wouldn't do that to him, or would she?

Governor Umstead Pulls Surprise

By LYNN NISBET
A.B.C. — The appointment of Tom Allen as chairman of the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board was the biggest surprise yet pulled from the hat by Governor Umstead. Immediate reaction to the idea of putting an ardent dry in charge of the liquor control business was one of shock. Allen is a personal teetotaler and politically voting dry. After the first shock had been overcome there was increasing approval of the selection.
ALLEN — In three sessions of the General Assembly as the representative of Granville county, Tom Allen has demonstrated as the outstanding traits of his character: sturdy honesty, moral courage, fair and impartial treatment of colleagues and issues. Generally coupled as one of the mainstays of progressive agricultural legislation, he manifested his dominant characteristics during the last session in the way he handled the bonus issue as chairman of the committee on veterans' affairs.
ADMINISTRATIVE — At his press conference Tuesday morning Governor Umstead indicated slight resentment at reporters' questions about whether this appointment meant there would be a statewide referendum on liquor after the next Legislature. He said Allen's job was to administer the laws enacted, not to propagandize for political campaigns. He expected Chairman Allen to do the job assigned and do it well. He added that he meant to have the ABC system operated strictly according to law, and he did not consider it a proper function of the chairman to seek changes in the law, except as minor improvements in administrative procedure might be desired.
DISTURBED — The fact remains that some persons connected with the whiskey, beer and wine industries were not a bit happy about getting one of their chief antagonists in the place of high command.
GEOGRAPHY — Governor Umstead took cognizance of criticism at his appointment of the three parol commissioners all from Wake county. Although he has repeatedly shown less regard for geography than for the believed peculiar fitness of his appointees, he noted that Paroles Commissioner Johnson Matthews is and has always been a citizen of Harnett county, and that Chairman Clarence Patrick, a member of the faculty at Wake Forest could not be remotely regarded as a political appointment. Commissioner W.A. Brame, long time recorder court judge at Wendell, is a Wake citizen and has been active in politics.
QUALITIES — Not where they lived but what they might be able to do was the criterion applied in their selection, said the Governor. Dr. Patrick has studied parole systems in 17 states and is a recognized authority on the subject, whose technical knowledge should be of great value. Matthews has had many years as a member of the parol staff and knows the practical operation of the system, while Brame's experience as judge brings the commission a knowledge of what it means to sentence a man to C. & D. — The Governor spent a good part of the time with newsmen discussing the conservation and development program. He announced that the first regional forum staged by the commerce-industry committee will be held at Zebulon on August 16. Governor Umstead is about as much "hipped" on industrial development as Governor Scott was on rural telephones. The difference in their approach is that Umstead hopes to accomplish his purpose by cooperating with and utilizing every possible agency, rather than antagonizing some of the major segments of business. Instead of fighting industries already established he is calling upon their management to carry the ball for further expansion.

REVENUE — Reports of Federal and State revenue collections from North Carolina during July show similar trends, although the actual results were opposite. The Federal government receipts at the Greensboro office were more than $24 million under receipts for July of last year; State receipts at Raleigh were half a million dollars up. In both instances income yield was down. The Federal decline is explained by lower income yield and by probable pre-purchase of certain excise revenue stamps. The State increase was due to heavier returns from general sales, beverage and franchise tax levies.
ILLUSTRATION — One of the clearest illustrations of this trend is found in the decrease of last month, and the increase of $284,470 in gasoline taxes and $71,619 in general sales taxes. Tax collectors and economists insist there is nothing alarming about this situation, because the money was made to be spent, and more can be made in its place. It is basic in economics, however that no individual and no government can for any prolonged time spend more than it takes in.

The Juniper Tree

By FAITH BALDWIN

DAVE was a long time trying to find the way through the storm, and then gave it up, thinking what a fool he'd been to attempt it, and tried to retrace his steps to the pond and find his way from there, the long way. But he did not come upon the pond, and floundered helplessly, blundering into trees, ending up where he'd started.

Cas often warned him against getting lost.

"I never go far enough. Who gets lost, so close to home?"

"Lots of folks, every year."

There had been no crust for some days, and he was not on snowshoes. He sank into the new, wet snow and into the old, far over his high boots. The snow dragged at him like cold quicksand; it slapped his face and blinded him. He fumbled for his dark glasses; they would cut down vision yet perhaps be a protection. They weren't. He dropped them and took a while to find them. It grew darker and the wind was insistent and intensely cold.

After a while he no longer tried to guess where he was; he was intent upon keeping in motion, so tired, with his heart laboring, that it was an immense effort. Keep moving, keep moving, like a policeman, keep moving, and laughing aloud, light-headed, talking and laughing aloud in a storm, lost and talking and laughing to himself.

When he reached the right side of the pond and stumbled upon the path he was no longer looking for it, not even concerned with it. He could see nothing except whiteness falling inexorably through darkness he could feel nothing except the snow upon his face and in his eyes—and the cold. After a while he didn't seem to feel the cold. He thought how much more sensible it would be to sit down, his back against a tree and wait this out. He was not only tired, he was drowsy.

Why was Tim laughing at him? Oh, of course. Tim was laughing, he was saying, Race you to the dock, Pop, last one in's a monkey's uncle.

I'll race you, Tim. I'll beat you there, see if I don't.

But first he had to get up. He'd been sitting down, after all. This surprised him. He got up, slipped to his knee, got up again, holding to the wet tree trunk, his hands aching. Pulled himself up, his back against it. Stood there waiting. All right, Tim, all right.

He walked on. Sometimes he fell and crawled, got up and walked again. He was blind, with snow and fatigue and a pressure back of his eyes. After a while he could walk no farther. I'm running, I'm running as fast as I can. But Tim had beaten him, out there in the blue water, laughing, calling: Hurry . . . it isn't very cold.

He stumbled and fell again, and this time struck his head against a snow-covered tree stump and did not rise again.

When he woke, someone was speaking. "He's coming around now, Cas."

He didn't know much of what was going on. He heard footsteps, he experienced hands; big and deft, smaller and light. He heard a woman's voice and said: "Em?" hoarsely.

The hand touched him, and the voice said: "It's me, Mr. Barton. Mrs. Rogers."

Someone was crying, a rasping frightened sound. A voice said: "Joe, you think you can manage with the truck? The plow's been into the empty camp, the door wide open, the fire out. He called, and someone answered faintly.

So Dave returned to camp; and they stripped off his sodden clothes, cut off the boot on the swollen foot, wrapped him in blankets, and then Cas left the boys there and went to telephone Dr. Mercer and fetch Mrs. Rogers back in the truck. The doctor lived in the village. He was there almost as soon as they, leaving his car beside the truck and fighting his way in on foot, as Cas had.

Alcohol Reason For Mental Cases Says French Dr.

PARIS (U.P.)—Sixty percent of the inmates of French mental hospitals were confined because of alcohol, France was told in a report attempting to prove that the nation drinks too much.

The report by Dr. Marcel Guislain, Socialist Deputy and psychiatrist, showed that the nation spends twice the amount it gets from alcohol taxes on the upkeep of asylums where monthly entries top 500.

The yearly consumption of alcohol by the average Frenchman is 31 liters (equivalent to 62 liters of 90 proof whiskey). The Italian average is 14.4 liters. Next comes Switzerland with 12.5, Belgium with nine, Sweden and Denmark each with five, and the U.S. with four liters, the report said.

The report, the result of a long study of the causes and effects of alcoholism, will be submitted to the National Assembly for possible action against the rising rate of alcoholism.

The French spend $65,000,000,000 francs a year on drinks ($1,614,205,000). This does not include the estimated yearly consumption of 40,000,000 liters of alcohol which are produced tax-free by wine growers.

Takes Heavy Toll

In 1900, 4,300,000 persons worked in the alcohol industry; today the figure is almost double. While the treasury collects between 50,000,000,000 and 60,000,000,000 francs ($142,850,000 and $171,420,000) in taxes on alcohol production and consumption it spends 12,000,000,000 francs ($371,410,000) a year on the upkeep of asylums.

through by now. Take Herb with you. Doc will bring me back."

Late the next day he opened his eyes. He hurt all over; as if he'd been under a steam roller. There wasn't a muscle that didn't hurt. His eyes ached, too, and he squinted. He had the vaguest possible memory of the past night, and most of the day's movement; subdued light falling on closed lids; an urgent voice, the click of a spoon against a glass the obscure, insistent discomfort.

"Hello." His voice was hoarse. Mrs. Rogers, sitting beside him in an old canvas chair, rose and leaned over him.

"Hello, yourself," she said cheerfully. "How do you feel?"

"Terrible." His hand went up, and she said: "Don't touch your face. You got a little frostbite along your cheekbones and nose. Don't try to talk. Doctor's been here. He'll be back. You're doing fine, Mr. Barton."

At night, when he woke again, the lamp burned and Cas was there, a newspaper in his hands. Dave thought: Never saw him wear glasses before, look sort of funny, sliding down his nose.

"Cas?"

Cas came to stand beside him. "Goin' better, Dave?"

"I'm all right. Who found me?"

"Joe. Doc says spare yourself, don't talk."

He wondered why Cas put a careful hand on his forehead. And Cas thought: He don't seem to have fever but he's sure wanderin' in his mind.

"Yes. Save your strength. Doc wants to move you soon's he can."

"Where?"

"For X-rays mostly. He was here a while ago. Back tomorrow."

In the morning Dr. Mercer came again. Dave knew him slightly, a big, brusque, competent man, and beneath the brusqueness anxious and vulnerable. He said: "Mr. Barton, I'd like to get you to the hospital. You hit a tree stump when you fell—you've a slight concussion. But I want to make sure. We couldn't move you before, the storm saw to that. Might've got you out in Cas' truck but it was risky."

"What's wrong with me?"

"Exposure, some frostbite, a sprained ankle, exhaustion, and as I said, concussion. Enough, anyway. Will you leave it to me?"

Dave nodded. "Sure."

They wrapped him in what seemed a hundred blankets and took him out on a big sled to the road, where the ambulance waited, and from there, with Cas riding with him and the doctor following in his car, to the hospital in town. He had the X-ray, a small quiet room, and an efficient nurse. The docand how much I could save!

You're "sitting pretty" behind the wheel. Take this Bel Air model. First thing you'll notice is the rich-looking upholstery and appointments and roomy, comfortable seats. Just turn the ignition key to start the engine and you're ready to go.

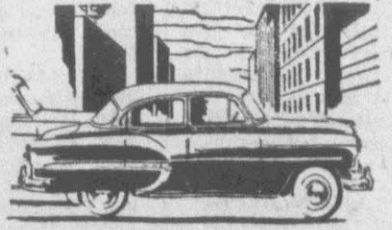

You get more power on less gas. Here's all the power and performance you could ever ask for. And along with it comes the most important gain in economy in Chevrolet history! That's because of Chevrolet's two great high-compression engines.

You can see all around. You look out and down at the road through a wide, curved, one-piece windshield. The panoramic rear window and big side windows provide a clear view in all directions.

It's heavier for better roadability. You're in for a pleasant surprise at the smooth, steady ride. One reason is that, model for model, Chevrolet will weigh up to 200 pounds more than other low-priced cars.

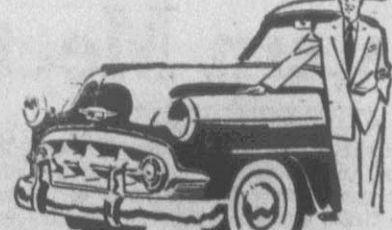

You get greater getaway with the new Powerglide.* Finer performance on less gas. That's what you get with the new Powerglide. There's no more advanced automatic transmission at any price.

Even Power Steering, if you want it. You ought to try Power Steering to see how easy driving can be. You can spin the wheel with one finger! It's optional, of course, at extra cost, and available on all models.

Biggest brakes for smoother, easier stops. An easy nudge on the brake pedal brings smooth, positive response—right now! Chevrolet brakes are the largest in the low-price field—extra large for extra stopping power.

And it's the lowest-priced line. A demonstration will show you that Chevrolet offers more in the lowest-priced line in the low-price field.

*Combination of Powerglide automatic transmission and 115-h.p. "Blue-Flame" engine optional on "Two-Ten" and Bel Air models at extra cost.

Let us demonstrate all the advantages of buying a Chevrolet now!

All-Stars Advance In Tournament Over Tarboro, 8-4

Greenville Meets Kinston Today At 5 In Contest Here

Gaining their second Little League tournament victory this week, the Greenville All-Stars yesterday overcame the Tarboro Eager Beavers by an 8-4 tally in Tarboro.

The All-Stars jumped off to a two-run lead in the bottom of the first frame, when singles by Walker Allen and Charles Staton, followed by a Tarboro error and a hit batter.

Adding three more counts in the second on a walk, fielder's choice, two singles and a double by Staton, Greenville led 5-0 going into the third.

After a scoreless third frame for both sides, the Eager Beavers squeezed across two runs in the top of the fourth on an error and a home run by Johnson. The All-Stars came back with three more in the bottom of the inning on two errors and consecutive base raps by Allen and Staton. In their last scoring opportunity, Tarboro picked up their final two tallies when Bell homered with one on.

Both teams managed a total of seven hits. Walker Allen and Charles Staton together accounted for six of Greenville's seven safeties. Allen batted three base hits in three times at bat, and Staton, winning pitcher of last Monday's game, had three for three with two singles and a double.

Allen, who got credit for the victory, struck out 11 Tarboro batters as his excellent control yielded no walks.

The All-Stars will attempt to continue their winning streak in the single-elimination tournament today as they meet Kinston at 5 p.m. at Elm Street Park.

The player is shown from the chest up, wearing a light-colored uniform with dark horizontal stripes on the sleeves. A single star is visible on the upper left sleeve. The back of the jersey features a large number '1'. The player's face is partially visible on the right side of the frame, looking towards the camera. The background is dark and out of focus.

Hogan Laurels Hogwash: Lloyd

CHICAGO (UP) — Lloyd Mangrum, golf's top money winner of all time, said today that some of the praise being heaped on Bantam Ben Hogan is "hogwash."

Mangrum, who sought his second "world championship" today at Tam O'Shanter Country Club, where he has won the "All-American" open three times said statements that Hogan is the greatest golfer in the world "make me a little sick."

"Sure, Hogan's a fine player," Mangrum said. "But he's a long way from the best golfer that ever picked up a club."

"Just let him play on the tour with the rest of us week in and week out and he'd place eighth or ninth occasionally and it wouldn't surprise me if he finished out of the money once in a while."

Mangrum said he knew "half a dozen" pros on the winter and summer circuit who "do just as well as Hogan if they could afford to pick their spots like he does."

In throwing cold water on the "greatest of all time" accolade for Hogan, Mangrum said he didn't want to "knock" the four-time National Open champion but "it's a little ridiculous, all this notoriety."

"Golf is my business," he said, "just like the guy that goes to the office. Sometimes I win, sometimes I finish second or third and sometimes I don't even place. But that don't make me a bum."

"But there's an awful lot of people that think Hogan would win every tournament he entered just by showing up. Hogwash."

World Tourney Begins In Chicago

CHICAGO (UP) — Defending champions were present today in two of the four phases of Tam O'Shanter's annual "world championship" golf tournament, but it was unlikely either of them, Julius Boros or Betty Jameson, would repeat as winner of the men and women pro groups.

Boros captured the $25,000 top prize a year ago in a playoff with Cary Middlecoff, while Miss Jameson won the women's pro event with a 72-hole medal score of 303.

Boros and Middlecoff had tied at 276, three strokes over Ben Hogan's winning score in 1951.

But both Boros and Miss Jameson were far back in the pack at last week's "All-American" on the same course as Lloyd Mangrum, posting a 275, won the men's division, and Patty Berg captured the women's pro title with 303.

Mangrum, by virtue of his victory a week ago, and Miss Berg for the same reason, ranked as probable favorites for this week's affair.

Mangrum's most likely challengers should be Sam Snead, Ted Kroil, Walter Burkemo, and Ed Oliver, with any of the rest of the usual PGA tournament field likely to get into contention too.

Miss Berg could meet major competition from Louise Suggs, runner-up in the "All-American," but major interest will center on how Babe Didrickson Zaharias fares.

Mrs. Zaharias has won the "world" four of the five times it has been offered, but she was far back in the "All-American" in her first competitive rounds since a cancer operation April 19. At times, though, her game had its former brilliance.

Frank Stranahan, boasting six straight wins in the "All-American" and three in the "world," again was the favorite in the men's amateur scrap.

The tournament will run 18 holes daily through Sunday with any possible tie for the titles settled immediately Sunday evening with a "sudden death" playoff.

Topping Denies Anti-Race Rumor

NEW YORK (UP) — Dan Topping, president of the New York Yankees, said today that Kansas City farmhands Vic Power and Elston Howard "have a clear chance" to become the first Negroes ever to wear the world champions' uniform next season.

"From what I'm told," Topping said, "Howard has a better chance to make the Yankees than Power. Power has gotten all the publicity but Howard may be the better player."

Denying that the Yankees did not intend to add Negro players to their roster, the millionaire owner of the champions said:

"A player's race never will have anything to do with whether he plays for the Yankees. We will bring up the first Negro player who can make the team."

Topping said that plans for Power and Howard will be made "when we discuss next season with our scouts and minor league managers in October."

Stengel Sore At Mickey As Yankees Triumph, 5-4

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — Mickey Stengel's failure to hit in key situations put Yankee Manager Casey Stengel in a peevish mood today, which was mellowed a little by the fine "spray" batting of Gil McDougald.

Mantle may be the new golden glamour boy of the Yankees with his long distance swinging efforts, but he never will be an all-around star with his boss until he quits "trying to kill the ball."

Stengel was a little unhappy even though the Yankees had pounded out 10 hits in a 5-4 victory over Detroit because they wound up without trying to pull, he'd still have enough power to hit homers to the opposite field. Batters who can do that are the real key guys. Look at that McDougald. He hits 'em anywhere—doubles, triples, homers."

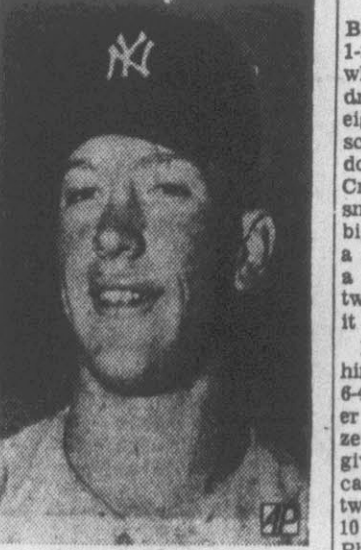

McDougald, in one of his hottest streaks, drilled two doubles and a triple to right, left, and center, in the Yankee triumph. He also had an intentional pass. He scored twice and was stranded the other two times because Mantle couldn't bring him home. The Yankees scored the winning run in the seventh on a double by Yogi Berra. Rookie Gus Triandos and Billy Martin hit successive homers in the fourth.

In the National League the Braves cut Brooklyn's lead to 7-1-2 games again with a 5-3 triumph when pinch hitter Walker Cooper drove in the winning run in the eighth with a single. Ted Kluszewski hit two Cincy homers to give him a total of 32 in a losing cause. The Cubs beat the Giants twice, 9-6 and 7-6, the second in 10 innings. In a night game, the Phillies downed the Cardinals, 7-3.

The Giants' double loss ran their losing streak to six games. Johnny Klippstein gained his sixth victory for the Cubs in the opener, with late-inning help from Dutch Leonard. Warren Hacker, in relief, won his seventh game in the second when Tommy Brown's single drove home a tie-breaking run in the 10th inning.

For the Phillies, Bob Miller scattered seven hits, including Stan Musial's 14th homer, to get his fourth win.

The White Sox remained five games behind the Yankees by beating the Athletics, 9-7, in 14 innings when Sam Mele broke up the game with a two-run homer. Billy Pierce, allowing only three hits in 6-2-3 innings of relief ball, scored his 14th victory while Morris Martin, after six scoreless relief innings, was tagged with the loss.

MICKY MANTLE leaving 10 men on base. "Sure we're hitting again, but we're hanging up too many runners," he said. "And that boy (Mantle) is leaving a lot of them on because he won't hit to the opposite field. He thinks he's got to go for the big blast all the time. Well, in this game he left two on in one inning and then he strikes out with the bases full another time. "If he'd just swing naturally

In other American League games Bob Forterfield of the Senators allowed only six hits as he whipped Cleveland, 11-0, for his second straight shutout and seventh shutout among 13 wins; and the Red Sox blanked the Browns, 5-0.

Ben Flowers, making his first start after 22 relief appearances, held the Browns to eight hits in the Boston triumph. Dick Gernert drove in three runs with a homer and a double as the Red Sox made five double plays and seven two-base hits.

The Atlantic Ocean is less some 20-odd denizens as the result of Gulf Stream fishing by a group of local fishermen. The deep sea anglers, all from the North Carolina Equipment Company of Greenville, went out on two ships, the Sparrow and the Sea Raven, and came back with a catch of some seven amberjack and 10 dolphin, along with an assortment of sea bass and other Gulf Stream fish. The two cruiser parties went out last Sunday from Morehead-City.

Nothing But Boos Says Fight Winner

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Consider the sad case of Art (Golden Boy) Aragon, the bad man of the boxing world.

He won a 10th round technical knockout over underdog Henry Davis in a bloody fight Wednesday night—and got booed for his efforts.

"How about that?" he asked today as he nursed a couple of swollen eyes. "I guess I can't win friends anyplace."

Aragon, a top challenger for the welterweight crown, also draws nothing but boos for his deeds in his home town of Los Angeles.

Seixas Moves Up In Eastern Meet

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J. (UP) — Vic Seixas of Philadelphia clashed with Gil Shea of Los Angeles today in a battle for a quarter-final berth in the Eastern Grass Courts tournament.

Seixas, top-seeded among the American entries here, is heavily favored to defeat Shea.

Three other matches today, each with a quarter-final berth at stake, find Americans playing Australians.

Fourth-seeded Ham Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., met Ian Ayre of Australia; seventh-seeded Straight Clark of Pasadena, Calif., faced Rex Hartwig; and fifth-seeded Noel Brown of Los Angeles was an underdog to southpaw Mervyn Rose, the second-seeded foreign entry.

National Lead In Top Averages

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — One of the major mysteries of the current big league season today is the inexplicable manner in which the National League is walking all over the American League in the department of averages.

The averages, supposedly, are a barometer of excellence. They are indicative numerals which show hitting, fielding, pitching and batting ability over the long haul and, as any beauty contest winner will tell you, it's impossible to argue with figures.

If such be the case, at long last the National League is "the" big league of baseball.

Maybe it has been for some time, if you compare departmental figures for last year, too. For in 1952, the stars of the National League surpassed the American League averages in every phase.

Added evidence is that the National League captured the All-Star game this season for the third straight year. American League fans will shrug this off by pointing to the World Series, which the Nats haven't won since the Cardinals turned the trick against the Boston Red Sox 'way back in 1946.

But they can't shrug off the current averages.

For instance, in batting as of Wednesday's games, the National League had four men hitting at a hotter rate than the American League's leaders. Red Schoendienst of the Cards at .341, Monte Irvin's .337 and the .327 by Ted Kluszewski and Carl Furillo all were superior to the .325 of Minnie Miñoso and Mickey Vernon, the American League leaders.

Only once in the last decade has the American League batting leader beaten the National League king. That was Billy Goodman in 1950.

In runs batted in, the American League's Al Rosen is the only member of his cast among the first five. And he is second to Roy Campanella, while being only slightly ahead of Gil Hodges and Edie Mathews.

In home runs, the National League holds four of the first five places. Mathews leads with 25, followed by Kluszewski with 30. The American League's top batter is Rosen with 27, which ties him with Campanella.

Only in runs and hits does the American League set the pace. Minoso's 83 tallies was only one ahead of Brooklyn's Duke Snider and Vernon's 134 hits had him deadlocked with Detroit's Harvey Kuenn, each of them but four hits ahead of their National League rivals, Schoendienst and Richie Ashburn.

Flock Is Tops At Occoneechee

HILLSBORO, N. C. — On the basis of past performances at Occoneechee speedway since the mile track was opened here in 1948, Ponty Flock of Desatur, Ga., (see picture this page) will definitely be the driver to beat in the 100-mile Grand National Circuit race here Sunday afternoon.

Flock holds the track record for time trials, having clipped off the mile in 46.78 seconds in 1951 with his Olds 88 for a record that has held during the threats of all comers for the past two years.

Starting back in 1948, Flock established himself as top man here by winning the first race and later both ends of a double feature in modified competition.

In 1949, Flock again won a modified feature here and his older brother, Bob, drove an Olds 88 to victory in the first late model stock car speed classic here.

In the two late model car races in 1950, Fireball Roberts of Daytona Beach, Fla., won the first with Lee Petty of Randleman taking top honors in the October event. Roberts was driving an olds 88 and Petty a Plymouth. The following year, Kuenn, won the spring event with Herb Thomas of Olivia, present leader in the 1953 NASCAR championship campaign, winning the second.

Last year, Tim Flock registered his first Occoneechee triumph in the spring race here, but again it was Ponty Flock in the October showdown as Flock scored another win just after his sensational victory in the Darlington 500-mile Labor Day event.

Ponty's major triumph this season was winning the "Raleigh 300" on Memorial Day, and this establishes him as the man to beat at Occoneechee again Sunday afternoon.

Tim Flock will also be back in action for the first time since suffering head injuries in an accident at Spartanburg, S. C. July 4.

Commission For Blind Settling In New Home

A newly-arrived staff comprising the eastern district office of the North Carolina Commission for the Blind were becoming settled in their new home today following moving of their headquarters from Goldsboro here Saturday.

The commission is occupying three rooms on the second floor of the Nobles Building on West Fourth Street just off Evans. From this building counselors will branch out to 34 counties in the eastern area to carry out their services for the blind.

According to Britt L. Green, rehabilitation supervisor in the state offices in Raleigh present to assist in setting up the new office, reason for the move is to give the district office a more centralized location. He pointed out the former office in Wayne county was on the western fringe of the district.

Making up the staff here will be two rehabilitation counselors, Richard Napier and Jack Scott; a medical social worker, Mrs. Emily Johnson; a home industries counselor, Miss Budie Cox; and a secretary, Mrs. Alice Harris. The office expects to hire another secretary within the next week or so, Green said.

Case loads of the rehabilitation counselors include about 200 at the present time. Generally, their duties consist of counseling and guidance, placement of the blind in gainful employment, and following up these placements.

Services of the medical social worker includes physical restoration services which cannot be handled by rehabilitation counselors, establishing contacts with doctors and hospitals for obtaining treatment, and follow ups of treatment.

Work on the home industries counselor, Green said, includes rehabilitation with the visually handicapped unable to be employed outside and training in crafts and other work which can be done in the home. He also provides for marketing of products made in these home industries.

"These are only a few of the services performed by the commission," Green explained, adding that the social service, medical and rehabilitation branches of the commission work closely together and with other agencies for the blind in the state and community, including the N.C. State Association for the Blind, the Lions Clubs, and case workers for visually handicapped in county welfare departments.

Thing Of The Future: Women Fix Own Cars

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—What may be a thing of the future was recently demonstrated by a young woman in Dallas.

It's women fixing their own cars. Husky, six-foot Tiny Drews wheeled her car into a "fix-it-yourself" garage recently. The advising mechanic told her the 1941 model auto needed a new front end.

Undaunted, after six hours of work, Miss Drews emerged from under the renovated car with a few words of advice about women mechanics.

The ex-WAC said "anyone with the slightest idea of mechanics should be able to fix her own car, particularly if there's someone around to give advice when you run into trouble."

The 190-pound girl was determined that she'd fix her own car, which she had bought for 35 dollars. She felt that when a person gets "something for practically nothing" she "ought to try and get something out of it." That's exactly what Miss Drews did.

Enlisting the aid of a friend, petite Mary Taylor, blonde Miss Drews went to work on her vehicle. The garage furnished the necessary items such as hand tools, hydraulic jack, creepers (to swing under the car with ease), and spring pullers. Miss Drews had already purchased the parts to replace those which were worn out.

A regular garage had informed Miss Drews that the work on her auto would probably cost more than $50. However, by buying her own parts, renting a stall and equipment at the garage and furnishing her own labor, the thrifty ex-WAC did the job for $20.

The job consisted in part of pulling the front wheels off and putting in new spindles and bushings. After six hours beneath the auto, Miss Drews was still smiling, although she admitted she was glad the job was done. She told the garageman that she had better hurry home to change her grease-smeared clothes, as her boy friend was coming over.

Male Unchallenged
When asked if she thought she'd started a trend in women mechanics, Miss Drews laughingly said, "Women will never leave the lipstick and powder off." She said she believed the ratio of "one thousand male mechanics to one female will remain unchanged."

Miss Drews' partner, Miss Taylor, wasn't quite as enthused over the mechanical work. In fact, she said she was "sort of duped" into the job. Miss Taylor said "Tiny" had asked her if she'd like to do something "exciting" to which she naturally answered "yes," after which she was taken to the garage.

Miss Drews is employed as an electrical draftsman for the Texas Power and Light Company. She served overseas with the WACs during World War II.

After the two girls had finished the six-hour job, the advising mechanic remarked that they had sought less advice from him than many male customers.

Traffic Light Is Speed Detector
PITTSBURGH (AP)—In suburban Mt. Lebanon, Township Manager John Paulus has installed what he says is the first traffic light of its type in Pennsylvania.

Vehicles run over a magnetic detector. If they are traveling more than 35 miles an hour, the traffic light stays red until the detector is activated by another car.

However, if motorists are within the 35-mile an hour limit the signal turns green five seconds after activation and stays green for approximately eight seconds. Drivers who use the road regularly already are slowing down for the intersection. They know that this is one traffic light they can't "beat."

Red Oak News

The folks at Red Oak wish to express to their many friends from far and near who watched with keen interest the developments in the Town and Country Church Development Program their deepest appreciation for all the good wishes, for all the letters of congratulations and their encouragement expressed in any way. It was a great honor to be chosen as the Rural Church of North Carolina for 1953 and an even greater honor to be one of the three finalists in the south. We were grateful for the honor of being a close runner-up for first place in the final judging. We realize fully that with this honor goes a great responsibility and in the words of our minister, "We cannot rest on our laurels. We must go forward in His name and do all we can to help spread the gospel of Jesus Christ to all the world."

We also wish to express to Mr. David Whichard Jr. and his co-workers our appreciation for all the many news articles, editorials and pictures that were published in the Daily Reflector. For the past 30 years they have published our "Red Oak News" and hundreds of clippings from the Reflector were included in our scrap-book that told of the life of our community as it centers around our church.

Seventeen people representing Red Oak went to Atlanta last week. Our minister attended the Rural Church Institute at Emory University while his wife and her two children visited with several members of her family who live in and near Atlanta.

On Tuesday morning at 4 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Sam Winchester, Mrs. Amos Evans, Mrs. Jarvis Tripp, Mrs. James Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Milton May, Mrs. M. W. Nobles, Mr. O. S. Kittrell, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Tyson, Mrs. Joe Teel, Misses Alice Leota Edwards and Nancy Allen and Mrs. B. L. Tyson left the church and arrived in Atlanta about six o'clock in the evening.

While there they attended several sessions of the Institute, visited the Christian Orphanage in Atlanta, saw Stone Mountain, the Cyclorama which words cannot describe, visited Peachtree Christian Church which is considered the most beautiful church in the south, window-shopped on Peachtree St., visited Miss Agnes Pulllove who is a patient in a hospital in Atlanta and saw the beautiful Fox Theatre.

After leaving Atlanta two cars came home by way of Bryson City, Cherokee and Asheville. While at Asheville they attended the outdoor pageant, "Thunderland." Two other churches were visited on the way home. One was the Center Methodist Church in Oqufurd County and the other was the White Oak Baptist Church near Wendell which will be the largest rural church in North Carolina upon its completion.

About 40 people were present at the second meeting of the Chi-Rho fellowship at the community building last Sunday evening. The president, Geraldine Mills, presided. Mrs. Jarvis Tripp Jr., leader of the group, had charge of the devotional. Betty Lane Evans conducted the recreational program.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton May served ice cream, cookies and lemonade.

A most interesting meeting of the church board, planning committee and interested members attended a meeting at the church last Sunday evening. The outcome of this meeting will be announced at a later date.

Mr. Milton May, chairman of the church board, has called a meeting of the official board of the church for Thursday night at 8 o'clock at the church. All members should be present as very important matters concerning the church will be discussed.

No Death Penalty, For Politicos Fear Outcome

By BRICE ARMSTRONG
United Press Staff Correspondent
MEXICO CITY (UP)—Fear that a firing squad or electric chair would be used as a political weapon is keeping the death penalty out of Mexican courts.

The death penalty debate flared anew recently when half a dozen men among them army officers, were accused of participation in an insurance time-bomb plot which killed three airport employees.

Protests that the death penalty was "too inhuman" led the opposition.

However, many top Mexican newspapermen and observers privately admit that "the big boys are afraid to enact the law; they're afraid their enemies will find a way to sit them in an electric chair."

Execution of criminals is legal in the states of Sinaloa, Sonora, Mexico, Puebla, Hidalgo and Oaxaca, but firing squads haven't been called out in years.

Mexico had a federal death penalty from 1917 to 1931. Of the 481 men condemned to die, only one—Jose de Leon Toral, the killer of President Alvaro Obregon—was executed.

Apply Own Remedy
Some Mexican officers energetically apply the "ley fuga" when dealing with known killers. They report the criminal "was shot while attempting to escape."

"What else can we do?" a secret service agent asked recently.

"This type of criminal isn't human. The brains of most of them have been diseased by syphilis since birth, and they know nothing other than the most depraved tendencies. There is no hope of rehabilitation."

"They think it is easier to stab 10 men in the back and take 10 centavos from each, rather than plan a robbery to get one peso."

"The 'ley fuga' solves many of these problems," he added.

Many Mexican jurists strongly favor legal execution, claiming it is the only way to deal with "the thousands of criminal degenerates in the Mexico City area."

Sentences Lenient
But Mexican courts are remarkably lenient in passing out sentences in some cases.

Jacques Mornard, alias Frank Jackson, received a 30-year sentence for the assassination of Communist leader Leon Trotsky in 1940. Prison officials think Mornard might be released within the next two years, however.

Singer Paco Sierra and Emilio Arrellano still haven't been sentenced for last year's unsuccessful plot to blow up a crowded airliner to collect insurance on six of the passengers. There has been some agitation that the two be executed, but most Mexican police reporters predict they will get no more than 15 years if convicted.

No sentences have been passed out as yet in the latest time-bombing-for-insurance case, which occurred in Mazatlan early in May. In fact, only Jose Alfredo del Valle, 44, is still in custody. Businessman Ramon Angel Salaman, Brig. Gen. Hermenegildo Carrillo and two other suspects are free under small bonds.

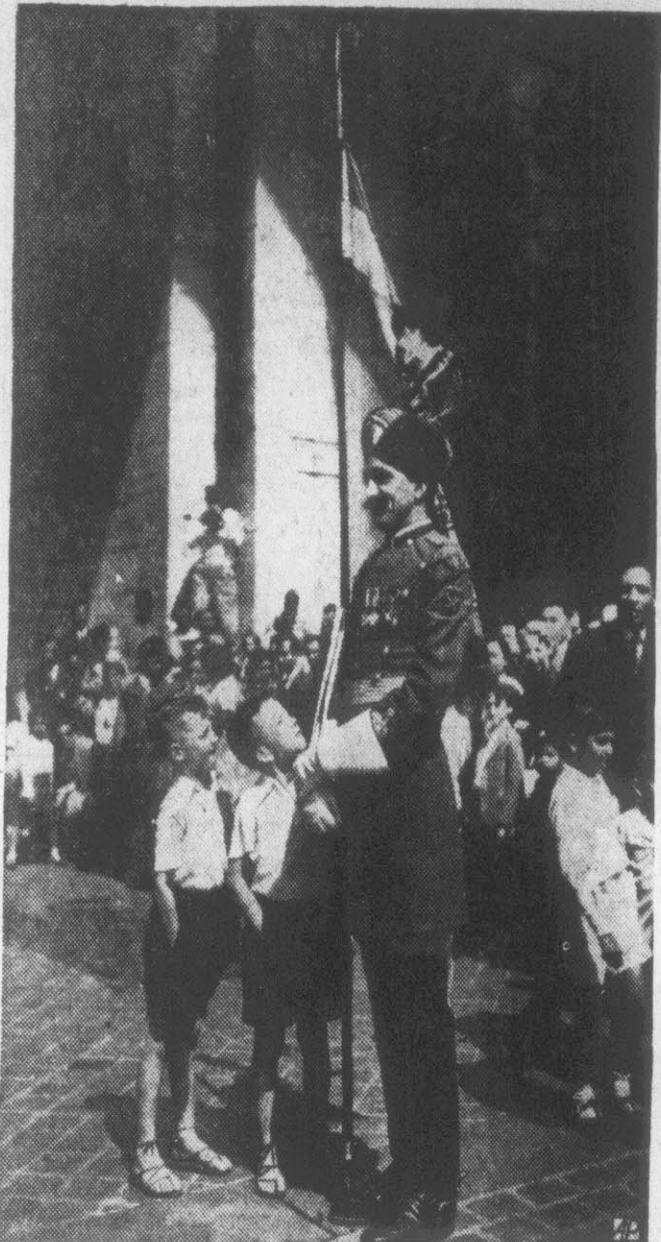

Two men who literally hacked a tailor to pieces and hid his cut-up body in many places throughout the Mexican capital were given the maximum sentence allowed in the federal district—30 years.

HONG KONG (AP)—This crown colony of Britain has lifted restrictions on the imports of a wide variety of Japanese goods.

But cotton yarn and cotton piece goods are still banned.

Stubborn Skipper Finally Listened

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (UP)—When the skipper of a 50-foot ship tender refuses to ask advice he's liable to find himself up a creek.

That happened here when a tender, bound for Morehead City, N.C., from New Jersey, came down the inland waterway into Albemarle Sound.

The skipper refused to tell bridge-keeper Hugh Spruill where he wanted to go. Thinking the tender was part of a salvage operation up the Roanoke River, Spruill sent it that way.

The craft passed a logging crew up the river and asked how far it was to Morehead City, but before the loggers could tell them they were on the wrong river going the wrong way they had shoved off again.

The river became shallow, the craft stuck on a mudflat. A tug freed it and the tender continued obstinately upriver.

When it finally got to the Bugs Island Dam the skipper decided to ask some questions and listen to the answers.

Town Now Used To Annual Visit Of Many Snakes

CHATFIELD, Man. AP)—The

Chatfield area, 75 miles north of Winnipeg, lays claim to the most prolific snakes in the world—and the healthiest.

Every spring, harmless garter snakes turn the town into something between a hangover and a nightmare, but it doesn't seem to worry Chatfielders.

A few snakes were reported in town this year but nothing to what it was three years ago. First signs of the invasion were reported on the highway, where numerous snakes, apparently sunning themselves on the gravel, were killed by cars.

Three years ago an attempt was made to wipe out the reptiles with chemicals, but it had no noticeable effect.

"We just had to learn to live with them," said A.B. Martin, municipal clerk at Inwood, a nearby village.

New Breathing Idea For Victims Of Polio

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
BOSTON (UP) — Men, women and children doomed by polio to live in cans like vegetables are being freed from their "iron lungs" by advances in medical science. The tissues of their lungs and chest walls are being "stretched" to permit them to live and breathe without the "lung."

New systems of breathing are being tailored to wear them from the iron lungs.

New techniques and machines aimed at restoring hundreds of "human vegetables" to active lives were displayed today at the Harvard University School of Public Health and the Children's Medical Center. It operates one of 10 "respirator centers" financed by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Dr. Kenneth Landauer, assistant medical director of the foundation, said 1,600 to 1,800 polio victims are now wholly dependent on "iron lungs." This year's epidemic will increase the figures unless something is accomplished scientifically to save them. To achieve this goal, the foundation is spending $1,000,000 on the centers. So far, Dr. Landauer said, 20 per cent of iron lung cases have been returned to their homes and "some" are even back on their jobs.

Dr. Benjamin Grealey Ferris Jr., assistant professor of physiology, said he and his associates have discovered that the tissues of lungs and chest walls have considerable elasticity. They seek to take advantage of this elasticity and "stretch" lungs and chest walls. One of their new devices is an automatic "sigher" or "cougher." Attached to an "iron lung" and regulated by a clock it periodically increases the pressure inside the lung forcing the victim into a breathing crisis resembling a sigh or a cough. This has the effect of "stretching" and increasing lung capacity.

"Tailored" breathing patterns have the same effect. A new iron lung breathing pattern is made from a piece of cardboard—as a pattern is made for a dress. It is put onto a spindle in a big black box. Automatically the iron lung is controlled to breathe according to the pattern. The polio victim—with the iron lung doing his breathing for him—reflects the changed breathing pattern. More of his lungs and chest wall are involved and so are stretched.

The black box costs $10,000, provided by the March of Dimes, and there is only one in existence. The hope is to reduce it in size and simplify its mechanism so it can be made a standard part of the "iron lung."

ETHIOPIA BOUND — Dr. Joseph Simonson, a Lutheran clergyman at Glen Cove, N. Y., has been nominated by President Eisenhower to be U. S. Ambassador to Ethiopia.

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR

AP Newsfeatures. For a satisfying vacation and striking scenic pictures, head for the mountains, says Hugh Brooks, an ardent camera fan of Montclair, N.J. This has been his successful formula for the past 20 years and he has thousands of beautiful color shots to prove it. This summer's trip to the far west he will spend visiting national parks, hiking, mountain climbing, camping, and taking pictures. We interrupted the final stages of packing to admire some of his mountain vistas, flower close-ups and spurring geysers to get a few tips for other camera fans.

Today you needn't be a Daniel Boone with camera, Brooks concedes. Most of the scenic areas in the Mountains of our nation are reached by a network of good roads for autos and well marked trails for riding or hiking. It is possible for a photographer to shoot from look-out vantage points right on the highways but Brooks feels that too many of today's photographers are in a hurry and practice this shoot-and-run technique.

"Instead," he urges, "find an area you like and stay a while. Get off the highway and travel the trails. Consult the rangers and guides. They know the best scenic spots and how to get there. For safety's sake, travel with one or more companions, leave word with someone where you are going and stick to the route you have planned."

"While searching for the spectacular panoramic mountain shot, don't forget the other features of the terrain. . . the wild flowers, a waterfall, mountain streams, a lookout tower, etc."

For close-ups of wild flowers, Brooks always carries a small mirror to reflect light into the shadow areas. You can also use a piece of white cardboard or the silver foil in which some film is wrapped.

Working exclusively in color these many years, Brooks uses a meter constantly to be assured of proper exposures. It is necessary, though, to question the high readings you get on snow-covered mountains, glaciers, lakes and beaches. In these circumstances, he takes a reading of the blue sky away from the sun or perhaps on a dull rock nearby.

Straight, front lighting is best in portraying the impressive grandeur of mountain scenery. Side and backlighting can give beautiful color effects, on occasions, and they are highly desirable in shooting snow, glacier or beach shots to reveal texture.

In black-and-white, on the other hand, sidelighting and backlighting are first choice for more dramatic composed shadow masses and sparkling highlights.

Figures in a landscape can help the composition if they look natural and are not too conspicuous in color or action. A startling red coat, an obvious pose of looking at the camera will appear artificial and detract from the scene. They should be in the foreground, but not too close to the camera.

Picture balance and one-point-of-interest are two rules to remember, says Brooks. Balance doesn't mean dividing a picture in half and putting equal masses in each half. But if there is a large mass to the left of center, have several smaller masses to the right of center. A large mass in the background should be balanced by several smaller masses to the right of center. A large mass in the foreground should be balanced by several smaller masses in the foreground.

One picture should have one point of interest. Too many photographers take two pictures or more in one. Find the point of interest first, then frame it in the most pleasant composition.

Instead of shooting quickly, instinctively — and sometimes blindly — if you stop and analyze your subject matter along these lines, you may shift your view-point to advantage.

In hiking, climbing and camping, the matter of equipment is important. It must be portable, durable, dependable and versatile. Brooks' camera for the past 15 years has been a 35mm Leica with interchangeable lenses. For distant scenes he uses a long-focus lens to get a larger image and he uses close-up attachments for flower studies. A small, folding tripod is a must, as well as the exposure meter.

He has three small gadget bags which slide onto his belt. One contains the meter. One contains extra film, small mirror and an empty spool. The third holds an Imarret view finder, extra lens and a magnifier.

This handy placement of small accessories makes it unnecessary to place items on the ground. In fact, never put any equipment on the ground "for a second" as it is easily overlooked.

In the traveling pack he suggests rainwear, first aid kit and food, of course. Though mainly for snow and ice, an ice axe has many other uses. Mountain climbing rope and crampons for steep slopes. Boots with heavy rubber cleats on soles are better than metal spikes, he feels.

This all sounds like the activity of a fairly young and vigorous man. Now let me reveal that our mountain climbing Brooks is 67, a retired vice president of the National City Bank. And I can't keep him put any longer. By the time you read this, he'll be headed for Mt. Ranier, Bryce Canyon and the mountain areas of Colorado. Once again, he'll be camera stalking America's peaks, patiently waiting for the right time of day and the right cloud formation from a vantage point high off the beaten track.

Railwaymen Often Expert Gardeners

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Swedish railwaymen are often expert gardeners who fill in time between trains by trimming and watering the plants and lawns in Sweden's 4,000 flower-decked stations.

The Swedish State Railways began planning gardens for its stations as long ago as 1862; when a protective green belt around each roadside stop was considered advisable to protect wooden houses from flying sparks from the locomotives.

Today, nearly the whole system has been electrified, but there are still 4,500 acres of garden to be looked after. Passengers waiting for trains can sit on attractive park benches beside flower-covered wall and gold-fish ponds, sniffing the fragrance of roses in the summer months.

Annual prizes are given for the best-kept gardens along the line.

Only Five Rare Bottles Remain

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) — Only five bottles now remain of an 1815 port wine specially brewed for King Edward VII when he visited Lisbon as the Prince of Wales. In 1905 the cask was found in Portugal by Charles Bellows, a New York wine merchant. Bellows bottled it, numbered each bottle and distributed them to selected clients, including the late William Rockefeller.

With Rockefeller's death, a San Francisco connoisseur, who asked to remain anonymous, acquired the remaining bottles.

Rows of peanut plants stretch out on the local farm of Hugh Winslow. The peanuts, part of a seed development program which will lead to greater yield per acre, are the new types, NC-1, and NC-2. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Eisenhower Likes Duke's Eccentric Game Of Golf

By DAYTON MOORE

White House news photographers recently turned the tables on President Eisenhower and kept him waiting to have his picture taken. They did so unintentionally. The incident resulted from a slip-up by the President's staff.

Mr. Eisenhower and a number of congressmen lined up on the steps of the White House north porch after lunch for the usual picture taking. But when nothing happened, the President exclaimed in astonishment, "Where are the photographers?"

"Mr. Snyder told the photographers there would be no pictures. Mr. President," a reporter volunteered, referring to Assistant White House Press Secretary Murray Snyder.

"But he told me there would be," Mr. Eisenhower said.

This word, relayed by a reporter brought the photographers running. "I'll bet this is the first time I ever surprised you," the President told them.

President Eisenhower prefers to speak from notes, particularly on television, because—as he expresses it—"I get uneasy with a text because I'm liable to go off on a tangent and then I lose my place."

Aluminum ore deposits in the African Gold Coast are estimated at 225 million tons.

School Children Solving Problems

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Who would speak at the third graders' assembly? Should the kindergarten children roller skate in the concrete area outside the classrooms? How should the boys and girls behave while riding on the school bus?

The students of the third through sixth grades at San Diego State College Laboratory School decide these problems themselves.

It's part of the college's plan to educate its 200 pupils in responsibility and to train 160 college students for teaching.

Parents and teachers say the system promotes self discipline and smooth social adjustment.

Pitt County Will Soon Have Bigger Crop Of Peanuts

Pitt County will soon have the advantage of a better and bigger peanut crop, if present plans for the development of a new peanut seed are completed.

The new peanuts, known respectively as NC-1 and NC-2, have been developed by the North Carolina Experimental Service, through the Rocky Mount Peanut Experimental Station. Approximately 40 acres here in the county have been seeded with the new NC-1 and NC-2 crops. The seeds, developed by radioactive processing, are in fields of two county farmers, Hugh C. Winslow and J. D. Rice, in cooperation with the Keel Peanut Company and the two experimental services.

In trial tests last year, the NC-2 seed produced a yield 27 per cent greater than a comparable yield of the present stock. The NC-1 produced a 12 per cent greater yield. Commenting on eight acres of the new peanuts in a local field, an Extension Service Peanut Specialist called them "the prettiest he'd seen" this year.

All of this year's crop will be held for seed distribution next year.

City Construction Up Over Million Dollars In July

New construction in the city of Greenville soared over the one million mark with the close of the month of July according to the monthly building report released today.

Total new construction in the city limits as tabulated by building permits issued by Fire Chief George Gardner now stands at $1,084,500 for the first seven months of the 1953 year.

The Greenville Fire Department answered a total of 24 emergency calls in the month of July, according to the regular monthly report

Of the calls answered in the county, five of them were to burning tobacco barns.

SLEEPY DRIVERS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP) — Judge Phil Canale thinks lack of sleep is more dangerous than too much to drink when a person is driving. He made the statement in fining Charles Prescott $21. Prescott was involved in a crash after going to sleep at the wheel of his auto.

Spring Pig Crop Pushed Live Hog Prices Down

CHICAGO (UP)—The farm belt's spring pig crop pushed live hog prices down sharply today, and market experts predicted that housewives would be able to buy cheaper pork chops in a week or two.

Hog prices, which had been dropping for nine straight days at major Midwest markets, broke sharply Wednesday. At Chicago, the country's largest hog market, prices fell 75 cents to $15.00 per hundred pounds to the lowest level in three months.

Analysts predicted the price changes would be reflected in retail prices at butcher shops either this week or the next.

It was welcome news to shoppers who have been forced to pay record or near-record prices for pork in recent weeks.

A United Press survey recently showed that better pork cuts were selling for a dollar or more a pound in many cities and pork chops were bringing a record $1.10 at New York City.

Most markets had top pork prices Wednesday of from $23.25 to $23.50, although relatively few hogs sold above $23.25. This was in sharp contrast to a mid-July price of near $28 per hundred pounds at Chicago.

The steady fall in live hog prices was attributed by a spokesman for the U. S. Department of Agriculture to the arrival of spring pigs from Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

The bulk of the nation's spring pig crop will not be marketed until October, November and December, and it was likely that prices will drop even more.

But it was probable that pork would reach the extremely economical levels of last year, because total 1953 pig production was about 10 per cent behind the 1952 crop.

Still Hot

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 95 degrees. Lowest last night 78, and at 8 a. m. today it was 80. No rain. Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 89 degrees. Lowest that night 74, and at 8 a. m. next day it was 81. No rain.

Marriage Increase In Georgia Noted

ATLANTA (UP)—Georgia showed the biggest increase of Southern states in the number of marriages recorded during the first five months of 1953.

According to a U. S. Department of Commerce report, 20,248 marriage licenses were issued in Georgia during that period as compared to 18,258 for the first five months of last year. The percentage increase was a high 10.9.

Mississippi, among the top states in the nation in number of licenses issued, showed an increase of 5.3 per cent—from 21,831 last year to 22,997.

Tennessee reported an increase in marriage licenses, from 8,019 to 8,144, a rise of 1.6 per cent, and licenses in North Carolina increased from 9,255 to 9,657 this year, a 4.3 per cent gain.

Decreases appeared in South Carolina, from 17,204 last year to 16,140 this year, a 6.1 per cent drop, and Alabama, 7,616 to 7,416, a 2.6 per cent drop.

Carbon Plant Workers Here Donate On Company Time

Employees of the National Carbon Company in Greenville were notified today they will be allowed to make blood donations to the Red Cross blood program on company time.

The announcement was made here by W. A. Bryan, superintendent of the local plant.

Bryan said the notification of the new policy has been sent to all plants of the company endorsing the Red Cross blood program. Under the new policy, he said, employees will be allowed company time near the end of their shift to donate blood without loss of pay for the time necessary for the donation.

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, chairman of the Pitt County blood program, expressed his appreciation for the new policy by the company and termed it a great asset to the local blood program.

In the past, Bryan said, employees of National Carbon Company in Greenville, have participated heavily in the blood program and as many as 35 to 40 employees of the plant have donated blood on a single visit of the bloodmobile to this community. He said no less than 15 employees of the local plant have donated blood each time the bloodmobile has visited Greenville.

Dr. Humbert also announced that the local plant has agreed to accept the responsibility for a specified number of blood donors for each future visit of the bloodmobile to Greenville. Bryan said the solicitation of donors from the plant will be left to plant employees.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—Landlord Arval H. Pulley observed the end of rent controls by raising his tenants' rents and imposing his own rules to live by.

Pulley raised the rents in his four-family flat from $26.25 to $30 a month. Then he posted 19 rules and penalties.

Violation of a ban on pets brings a $15-a-month penalty. Each violation of other rules costs tenants $10, added to the next month's rent.

Operetta Quintette Ends EC Entertainment Series

A five-star plus performance of the First Operetta Quintette of New York and its one-man orchestra delighted music-lovers attending the final Summer Series Entertainment event of East Carolina College in Austin Auditorium Tuesday evening.

Five singers presented lulling melodies, popular tunes and old-time favorites from Broadway Musicals of Today and Yesterday, and it was the type of program for a summer evening. The 100 minutes of melody and merriment offered by the young sisters pleased the large audience.

Hit numbers sung by the ensemble included "September Song," "Kamenoi Ostrow," a transcription of a Radio City Music Hall Easter feature; four numbers from "Rosalia," a revival of "Die Fledermaus"; a medley from "Oklahoma"; three selections from "The Merry Widow"; and the theme from "Moulin Rouge."

Solos ably interpreted and presented in good vocal form included "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" by Jeanne Beauvais, who also made a "hit" with her French folk song, "Fiacre," and the dramatic rendition of "I Hate Men"; "Parlez moi d'Amour" by Margery Capo; "Summertime" by Dianne de Sanctis; and "I Got Plenty of Nothing," "Old Man River," and "Oh What A Beautiful Morning," sung by Charles Fuller, a Greenwood, S. C., native whose Southern accent made him "at home" with the audience.

Henry Cordy, tenor, and Miss Beauvais in two duets, the trio of Misses Capo, de Sanctis, and Beauvais and dramatic numbers of Fuller and Beauvais, who also stood out brilliantly on the star-studded program.

Felix Van Dyck, pianist, was accompanist for the ensemble and opened the second part of the program with a transcription of a Scottish Piper's Tunes arranged for piano solo.

Department Needs Flowers To Plant On City's Streets

If anyone has excess cuttings of azaleas and camellia plants they would like to see go toward beautifying the city, C. K. Beatty can put them to just such a use.

The superintendent of city streets said today he is preparing a bed for these plants at the streets department office and hopes to set out about 5,000 within the next few weeks.

Beatty said he already has a number of cuttings ready to put in the ground but he would like to have more and would appreciate any donations citizens might like to contribute.

The plants will remain in the bed at the streets office until ready for transplanting, and later will be transferred to the city's parks and playground areas.

Checker Champ Leads Contender

ASHEVILLE (UP)—Checker champion Walter Helman still leads contender Basil Case by three games today as the two cracker-barrel experts go into the last nine rounds of a 20-game "World Series" tonight.

Case, cotton planter and former champion from Russellville, Ala., locked horns with the Gary, Ind., steel mill foreman in three long, hard-fought games last night. All three ended in a draw.

Although the two players are even on the games played in the final 20 rounds, Helman holds the three-game lead he established in the first half of the tournament in Oklahoma City.
