'Ahead Of Russia In Whole Field Of Atomic Weapons'

US Ahead Of Russia

WASHINGTON UP) — A top member of the joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee said today the United States is "ahead of Russia in the whole field of atomic weapons" even if Russia really has the hydrogen bomb.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Ia) ranking Senate member of the committee, said he would "neither dispute nor admit" Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov's statement that "we too have the hydrogen bomb."

Even if the claim is true, Hickenlooper said, "it wouldn't make any difference in our own program. We are going ahead with plans as they have been laid out."

Hickenlooper said he had not received an intelligence briefing recently which would enable him to speculate on the truth of Malenkov's statement. "I wouldn't even guess if it is likely," he said.

The White House said "no comment" to the Russian report, and press secretary James C. Hagerty said President Eisenhower would say nothing himself.

But there was considerable inclination here to doubt the claimed Soviet achievement. Skeptics suggested one big reason: If the Russians had the H-bomb, they wouldn't be telling the world about it.

However, it was recalled that Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov claimed the A-bomb for Russia some time before President Truman announced the first Russian atomic explosion in September 1949.

The Russians have shot off two atomic explosions since then, both in October, 1951. Officials here believe this country certainly would know it if there had been any more atomic blasts in the U.S.S.R. U.S. detection methods are fool proof, they claim.

Hickenlooper was asked whether Malenkov's statement—if true — would increase the need for international control of atomic energy.

"The gate is always open for international control of devastating weapons," he said. "It is up to the Russians whether we have real control.

"If they would consent to the things other nations will consent to, we could have controls. The United States has always stood in readiness to have a system of reliable controls."

Although first official reaction to Malenkov's statement was on the skeptical side, no responsible sources suggested that Russia lacks the scientific, engineering, and industrial skills to make hydrogen bombs.

The atomic reactions involved in the H-bomb are well known — in fact, the theory of hydrogen nuclear reactions was well developed before the discovery of atomic fission, the reaction of conventional A-bombs.

Malenkov's statement that "we, too, have the hydrogen bomb" and that "the United States does not enjoy a monopoly on the hydrogen bomb anymore" showed clearly that the Russians believe this country is making H-bombs.

That is significant because the United States has never officially said as much and, indeed, has never said in so many words that it ever set off a hydrogen explosion.

This country did test a mammoth hydrogen "device" at Eniwetok in the Pacific last fall. But all the Atomic Energy Commission's official statement said was that "thermonuclear" experiments had been conducted and the scientists in charge were satisfied with the results.

If the AEC hoped to keep its hydrogen shot a secret, it was disappointed, because congressional and other sources quickly verified that the Eniwetok blast was a hydrogen explosion.

One source who was briefed by the AEC, said the device exploded last fall yielded violence comparable to 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 tons of TNT. Later information is that the figure was closer to 5,000,000 than 2,000,000.

The explosion obliterated a mile-long island, generated a fireball two miles wide, and shot dust, smoke, and debris some 15 miles into the air. No mere A-bomb could do that.

The trouble with the hydrogen device, said to have been developed at the AEC's Livermore, Calif. laboratory by Dr. Edward Teller, was that it was too big and too violent.

It was not deliverable by any existing airplane, according to congressional sources.

Southern States Are Departing

Alleged Communist Affiliation To Workers Reason For Dropping

ATLANTA UP) — A CIO official said today that associate union locals in five Southern states are dropping out of the United Packinghouse Workers of America because of alleged Communist affiliation.

The disclosure followed an announcement in Chicago yesterday that charges of conspiring to discriminate against Negro members have been filed against A. O. McKinney of Atlanta, director of the union's Southern district comprising Florida, Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

Russell R. Lasley, vice president of the union, and secretary-treasurer G. R. Hathaway filed the charges against McKinney and asked the international executive board for a speedy trial which could result in dismissal from office, suspension from the union, or both.

The union officials charged that McKinney and "others" joined in "a positive conspiracy to undermine and sabotage the union's anti-discrimination" program.

McKinney said today that the charges were a "complete surprise." He refused to comment "until I receive a copy of the charges and find out what it's all about."

Meanwhile, J. R. Kilpatrick, chairman of a joint conference of CIO packinghouse workers, said some 5,000 to 6,000 union members in Florida, Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina and South Carolina, are supporting a withdrawal from the UPWA.

"We are withdrawing. . .because of the failure of top officers of that organization to successfully cope with the Communist elements that have infiltrated that union," he said.

Kirkpatrick predicted that as many as 100,000 members of the union may eventually bolt the national organization.

He said they would seek affiliation with other CIO unions or would ask direct charters from the national CIO as local industrial unions.

Premier Malenkov Tells Supreme Soviet News At Meeting Today

Russia Has Hydrogen Bomb

United Press Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW (UP)—Premier Georgi Malenkov today told the Russian parliament, the Supreme Soviet, that Russia's arsenal now includes the hydrogen bomb.

"This should put an end to any chatterer's nonsense about Soviet weakness," he said.

The statement, which came as the unexpected highlight of a two-hour speech on foreign and domestic policy, was greeted with loud and long applause.

"The United States does not enjoy a monopoly on the hydrogen bomb any more," Malenkov said. "We too have the hydrogen bomb."

He said the Soviet government welcomed President Eisenhower's declaration that the United States wants peace and international collaboration.

But Malenkov charged that the aggressive policy of the United States contradicts the American President's words.

He urged the United States to end its policy of ignoring Red China and said that nation must be admitted to the United Nations.

In a forceful speech, repeatedly interrupted by applause, the Soviet premier said:

1. Russia has emerged as one of the mightiest nations in the world, with a gross industrial production two and one half times that of 1940.

2. Russia will never agree to the restoration of German militarism.

3. The Korean armistice and liquidation of the June 17 riots in Berlin and East Germany were "great victories for world peace."

4. Foreign imperialists provoked the East German disturbances with a view to remilitarizing Germany and leading to a new world war.

Malenkov repeatedly dwelt on the might of Russia, saying it was achieved through vast industrial expansion and backed by the force of the H-bomb.

There was a stir in the diplomatic galleries, which included the American and British ambassadors when Malenkov made his H-bomb announcement.

(Washington dispatches cast some doubt on the Soviet H-bomb claim. Skeptics suggested that if the Russians actually had the H-bomb they wouldn't be telling the world about it. The White House had no comment.)

Malenkov's statement that the Soviets now have the hydrogen bomb was Russia's first direct announcement of the development of atomic weapons.

(The disclosure that the Russians had set off an atomic bomb first was made to the world by then President Harry Truman on Sept. 23,1949.

(The Soviets subsequently announced the explosion of various atomic devices described as being used in huge development projects.

(The American Atomic Energy Commission on Nov. 16, 1952 first announced that successful experiments "contributing to hydrogen bomb research" had been carried out by American scientists.)

(Letters from U. S. personnel who claim to have witnessed a hydrogen bomb explosion were published by a number of American newspapers early in November before the AEC announcement. According to these letters, an H-bomb was exploded at the Marshall Islands proving grounds on Nov. 1.)

Malenkov named Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) as among "the chatterers" who were talking nonsense about Soviet weakness.

In his brief reference to foreign policy, Malenkov hailed the Korean armistice and liquidation of disturbances in Berlin and East Germany on June 17 as "great victories for world peace."

Malenkov said the Soviet government has appropriated one billion rubles (officially $250,000,000) for reconstruction in Korea.

He said that Russia has arisen from one of the most backward countries in the world industrially, before the revolution, to one of the world's greatest industrial nations today.

A short time before the Supreme Soviet had unanimously approved the biggest budget in Soviet history, even though it listed a cut of 3.2 per cent in military appropriations.

Compared to 1924, the Soviet Union has an industry as a whole that produces 29 times as much, with 21 times more steel, 20 times more coal and 45 times more electricity, Malenkov said.

American Soldiers Are Wearing Chinese Sneakers, Big Smiles

Prisoners Dance To Freedom Gate

By WILLIAM MILLER
United Press Staff Correspondent

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP) — Elated American war prisoners wearing Chinese sneakers danced Saturday down a graveled pathway through Freedom Gate.

They were the happiest of the 311 Americans released from Communist captivity during the first four days of "Operation Switch."

Altogether 90 Americans passed through the "Welcome Gate to Freedom" on their way home Saturday and the Communists have promised to liberate 112 Sunday, the most in one day since the prisoner exchange began last Wednesday. Sunday's operation begins at 9 a.m. (10 p.m. Saturday, e.d.t).

In four days, in addition to Americans, the Reds have released 101 British captives, 108 Turks, 21 Colombians and almost 1,000 South Koreans. The United Nations have released more than 2,400 Communists daily.

The first two truckloads of Americans repatriated Saturday were negroes.

Unlike many of their predecessors who looked like victims of Nazi torture camps, these men flashed big smiles and appeared robust.

They jumped off the Russian trucks that brought them down the dusty road from nearby Kaesong and started putting on a show for the benefit of reception personnel who had been shocked by the gaunt appearance of prisoners released the first two days.

Some of the men went through soft-shoe routines and others tried to tap dance in their tennis shoes.

A truckload of singing North Koreans returning to Communism passed by and one of the repatriated Americans commented:

"How 'bout that! Shall we give him a lil' blues song, boy?"

Military Police Lt. Louis Balant of Summerfield, N. J., halted the merry-making momentarily to inform the returnees each had been promoted one grade in rank and would receive back pay immediately.

A loud cheer went up from the former prisoners. Then Balant passed around some cigarets.

As soon as the groups reached Freedom Village near Munsan, they began recalling stories of Communist atrocities and mistreatment.

Cpl. Pedro Teriera, an American of Puerto Rican extraction, told of 1,500 Americans dying during the 1950 march to the Yalu River.

"Most of the men who died were the wounded and sick," said Teriera, of Brooklyn, N. Y. "They died from lack of food and any kind of medical attention."

Pfc. Robert I. Brooks, 23, of Reidsville, N. C., said Chinese Communists encouraged the smoking of narcotics by American war prisoners.

Brooks said several prisoners smoked a narcotic weed similar to marijuana which they had found while foraging for firewood.

"At first the Chinese tried to stop it," Brook said. "Then when they found they could make a junkie out of you in order to have more control over you, they did not try to stop it."

Grifton Citizens Urged To Donate To Bloodmobile

Citizens of Grifton are once again urged to cooperate in Monday's Red Cross bloodmobile visit., according to co-chairman Thurman J. Williams of Grifton.

Williams emphasized the importance of meeting the 170-pint quota. It is not clear as of today exactly how many pledges have been given, as the DuPont Company will not report until Monday. DuPont is giving workers who donate blood 30 minutes off in order that they may have time to visit the Bloodmobile during its six-hour stay in Grifton.

Headquarters for Monday's drive will be the Christian Church in Grifton and hours for donations will be from noon to 6 p. m.

The importance of the bloodmobile visit cannot be overstated, as supplies are drained to manufacture gamma globulin serum to combat polio.

Mr. Williams and Charles R. Kline are acting as co-chairmen of this visit, and the Grifton Service League will handle the canteen work. Mr. Williams said that to date, four of the five nurses needed to handle the donations had volunteered.

Appointments to give blood may be secured by calling Grifton 2461.

Not So Hot

Milder weather prevailed in the Greenville area during the last 48 hours. The highest temperature here yesterday was 89 degrees. Lowest temperature last night 71, and at 8 a.m. today it was 75. Light drizzling rain last night. Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 90 degrees. Lowest last night, 72, and at 8 a. m. next day it was 79. Driling rain.

North Carolina Soldiers Freed

FREEOOOM VILLAGE, Korea. (UP)—Another six North Carolina soldiers walked to freedom from Communist prison camps here today, but the mother of one of them was disappointed because she couldn't see it on television.

"I'm so proud I could pop," said Mrs. Lilly Mae Rudisill of Shelby when told her son, Cpl. Robert Rudisill, was one of the 90 more Americans reaching freedom.

"I just wish they'd get some television over there so I could see my boy," she said. "It's been five long years now and he's been a prisoner for almost three years."

One of the other Tar Heel prisoners was Pfc. John O. Roberson of Rocky Mount. The telephone at his father's home was answered by a neighborhood boy, Albert Tell, who said the soldier's father "just heard the news and he's out telling everybody in the neighborhood right now. I stayed on here to answer the phone."

The other North Carolina ex-prisoners are Pfc. Robert I. Brooks of Reidsville; Pvt. Arthur Jernigan of Cofield in Hertford County; Pvt. Jesse Bellamy of Wilson, and Pvt. William E. Jackson of Edenton.

Urgent Appeal Is Made Today For Blood Donors

An urgent appeal was made today for blood donors to visit the Red Cross bloodmobile when the vehicle comes to Greenville Tuesday.

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, chairman of the Pitt County blood program, said this morning only 124 pledges so far have been received from donors who will give blood Tuesday. He pointed out the number of pledges of blood is still far short of the quota of 170 pints of blood set for Tuesday.

"At least 75 more donors are needed Tuesday if Greenville is to reach its quota of blood for this visit," the chairman said. He urged local citizens who are healthy and willing to donate a pint of blood to respond to the pressing need for blood.

"The shooting in Korea has stoppede," Humbert said, "but that does not mean the need for blood is also ended. Blood is needed just as badly now as it has ever been needed, and the need will continue at a high level for many months."

The bloodmobile headquarters in Greenville Tuesday will be at St. Paul's Episcopal church where the visit is under the sponsorship of the church congregation. Blood donations will be taken from 9:30 Tuesday morning until 3:30 Tuesday afternoon.

In making his appeal today for more blood donors, Dr. Humbert emphasized that women as well as men can contribute to the blood program. Particularly did he appeal to people who have had polio to donate blood on the coming visit of the bloodmobile. Those people who have had polio, he said, have blood which contains a high count of polio antibodies, and such blood is urgently needed for the gamma globulin program.

"If Greenville is to reach its quota of 170 pints of blood on Tuesday, we need at least 200 donors," Dr. Humbert declared. "And 200 donors represents approximately one-one-hundredth of the population of the Greenville area.

Most of the pledges for blood donations Tuesday come from representatives of 16 business firms, civic organizations and government offices. The chairman said other pledges from business firms for blood donations are expected to be received Monday.

The list of pledges of blood from the civic organizations, business firms and offices include:

Health department, five; Medical and Dental Society, six; Post office, 10; National Carbon plant, 15; National Guard unit, 12; Belk-Tyler Co., five; Blount-Harvey, four; J C. Penny, three; Hill's, two; Bright Leaf Motors, four; Flanagan Buggy Co., four; Wagner-Waldrop Motors three; Carolina Dairy, five; Kiwanis Club, five; Lions Club, four; and Greenville Street Department, 10.

The need for blood during the bloodmobile visit Tuesday is so urgent, Dr. Humbert said, that donors who have not already made appointments to give blood need not make appointments. They can report to the Episcopal Church any time between 9:20 and 3:30 Tuesday.

Dulles, Rhee May Walk Out Of Peace Parley

SEOUL, Korea UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and President Syngman Rhee announced Saturday the United States and South Korea would walk out of the Korean peace conference if further negotiations with the Communists appears hopeless after 90 days.

But Dulles told a news conference later the United States does not intend to renew the war in violation of the armistice agreement if the peace conference fails. He also promised the United States would consult with other Allied participants before deciding to cut off further negotiations.

If they have "convincing evidence" that progress is near or possible, the United States will delay a walkout and "give the conference every reasonable chance," Dulles said.

He spoke to the Allied press after initialling the U. S.-South Korean defense alliance at Rhee's mansion.

Then the entire American delegation flew to Tokyo.

At Tokyo International Airport Dulles said he would talk with Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida and other Japanese officials on "matters of common concern" relating to Japan and the free world.

The American secretary of state was scheduled to talk with Yoshida at the American Embassy where a dinner was given in Dulles' honor.

Dulles was scheduled to leave for Washington at Sunday afternoon.

The U. S.-South Korean defense treaty pledges the United States to come to the aid of the Korean republic if it is attacked and gives the United States the right to base military forces in Korea, according to high Korean officials.

USAF Discloses Nonstop Flight

WASHINGTON (UP)— The Air Force disclosed the first nonstop more than a year after the RB-45 jet flight across the Pacific today, bomber spanned the 3,460 miles in nine hours and 50 minutes.

The history-making flight was made July 29, 1952, The Air Force will award the plane commander, Maj. Louis H. Carrington of Austin Tex., the 1952 Mackay Trophy.

The trophy is a silver cup given annually to a member or members of the Air Force for the "most meritorious flight" of the year. It was first presented by Clarence Mackay in 1911.

The all-Texas crew commanded by Carryington made the flight by the great circle rout from Elmendorf Air Force Base in Alaska to Yokota Air Base in Japan.

The plane was refueled twice in flight by a B-29 tanker aircraft, despite adverse weather conditions.

Lawsuit Could Effect Tobacco Industry In N. C.

WILSON UP) —A lawsuit which could have a widespread effect on the state's tobacco industry was scheduled to be summed up here today, but no decision was expected for some time.

Attorney John H. Anderson was the final speaker in the hearing before Judge Walter J. Bone in Superior Court here. Anderson's firm represents a group of tobacco warehousemen seeking an injunction against the Wilson Tobacco Board of Trade.

Warehouseman Carl Renfro brought the suit, contending that the board has no authority to allocate selling time in tobacco warehouses. Renfro charged that tobacco sales are a matter "of public interest" and subject only to regulation by the state.

The present method is to allocate selling time according to what floor space is available in the warehouses, but Renfro and others in the legal action said it should be done on the basis of how much tobacco the individual warehouse sold the past year.

National Experts Warn Dairymen

SALISBURY UP)—North Carolina dairymen were warned by two national experts here yesterday that a nation-wide promotional campaign is the only answer to the dairy industry's problem of too much milk.

Richard A. Aplin, assistant secretary of agriculture, and Merrill N. Warnick of Pleasant Grove, Utah., president of the American Dairy Association, spoke to the fifth annual summer meeting of the N. C. Milk Producers Association.

They told the 400 delegates that per capita milk consumption dropped 130 pounds between 1939 and 1952, and Aplin said "if that market could be regained the milk surpluses could become milk scarcities."

Warnick suggested the industry try to boost milk consumption with a nationwide advertising campaign and urged producers against "merely trying to find out how much we can get from the government at the expense of other taxpayers."

"I don't think dairymen like price supports," Warnick said. But he added that they would be necessary so long as price supports are maintained on products dairymen have to buy, such as feed.

Polio Outbreak Apparently Over

HICKORY UP)—The number of polio victims in Catawba County reached the toll which was not counted until the end of the year in North Carolina's disastrous 1948 epidemic today, but doctors said the worst part of the outbreak is apparently over.

Miss Wanita Ann Pritchard 23, of Hickory became the 95th polio victim in Catawba, that number was counted during the entire year in 1948.

Neighboring Caldwell County, however, has reported no new cases in several days. The Caldwell toll stands at 140. Miss Pritchard was the first victim of the disease in Catawba in a week.

Meanwhile, Orange County doctors diagnosed the first two polio cases reported this year. Dr. David O. Garvin, district health officer said neither was the paralytic type of the disease.

The Orange victims are Mrs. John Pershing, 26, of Chapel Hill, and Miss Gladys Worman of San Diego, Calif., visiting friends in Chapel Hill.

MOONSHINE IN SEWERS

LIVE OAK Fla. (UP)—Sheriff Hugh Lewis enriched the sewers of Live Oak Thursday with 900 gallons of confiscated moonshine. He said recent raids on illegal distilleries were so successful his storeroom was filled to capacity.

Communist Broadcasts Say Ten Officials Sentenced To Death

TOKYO (UP) — Communist broadcasts said today 10 officials have been sentenced to death for plotting to overthrow the Red North Korean government "on the instigation of the United States."

Pyongyang radio, the voice of North Korea, said 13 officials were involved in the plan to instill a capitalistic government to replace the Red regime.

The reports said Pak Hung Yong, North Korean vice premier and foreign minister, was slated to head "the new capitalistic government." The broadcast said he had been dismissed, along with 12 other Koreans, including one official of the South Korean republic.

Lee Sung Yap, inspector-general of the North Korean People's Council, was named in the broadcast as the ringleader who had been in contact since 1945 with U. S. State Department and counter-intelligence officials. The council is the equivalent in Russia of the Supreme Soviet parliament.

Radio Moscow said 10 of the 12 were tried for conspiracy and espionage and sentenced to death, including Lee. Two others got prison sentences of 12 and 15 years.

Pak was not among the 12 indicted and the broadcasts did not say what punishment was in store for him. His replacement as foreign minister by Gen. Nam Il, head of the Communist truce delegation, was announced by Pyongyang without explanation last Sunday.

Informed observers in Tokyo believed Premier Kim Il Sung carried out the purge to consolidate his hold over the North Korean people and keep them from "softening up" during the post-truce period.

These observers said the Moscow-trained Kim anticiated increased sentiment among the Korean people for unification of North and South Korea as a reaction to the three-year war.

Both Korean and Japanese sources saw significance in the fact that all 13 officials were native South Koreans who might be more inclined to press for unification at the cost of concessions to South Korea.

By purging some of the highest level officials of his regime, the North Korean leader gave warning that communism comes first and the only acceptable unified Korea is a Communist Korea, the observers felt.

The lengthy broadcast from North Korea was filled with bitter references to "American imperialism" and American "plots" against the independence of the Korean people.

It said Lee made a "full confession," including the admission he had been acting chiefly under the orders of an American State Department official and political adviser to the ROK government identified as "Noble."

Through his spy ring, Lee supplied Noble and American intelligence officials with information on North Korean military movements, strength of units, distribution of police forces, production figures and other military data, the broadcast said.

But observers in Tokyo regarded these charges as the usual Communist camouflage.

Kerr Scott May Oppose Lennon In U. S. Senate Race In 1954

By DON SEAGRAVES

CHINQUAPIN (UP) — Former Gov. W. Kerr Scott left little doubt today that his farmer's straw hat soon will be in the political ring signaling a race against Sen. Alton A. Lennon for the U. S. Senate in 1954.

Scott as good as opened his campaign yesterday at a Duplin County barbecue by declaring that he will run "if the people want me," but shied away from a flat statement of his intentions.

"If I do run," said the tobacco-chewing Haw River farmer, "it'll be like a scared rabbit with six beagle hounds right behind me."

Lennon announced yesterday that he will begin campaigning actively in the Republican sections of Western North Carolina with a speech at a big fish-fry in Newton Sept. 9 arranged by the Catawba County Democratic executive committee.

The Wilmington Democrat will leave Monday on an informal speaking tour "just to meet some people," with more than 60 stops already arranged over the state.

He is expected to make a major policy address in his appearance in Catawba County, since he is virtually unknown in the Western part of the state. Lennon was the surprise choice of Gov. William B. Umstead to fill the vacacy left by the death of Sen. Willis Smith.

Officially, the barbecue here in honor of Scott was merely a little "thank-you" gesture "for giving us all those paved roads." Several hundred people, mostly farmers, gathered in the yard between Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church and Salem Presbyterian Church to hear old-fashioned political oratory and fill up on 14 barbecued pigs with all the trimmings.

As soon as Scott finished his speech, Leroy G. Simmons, an Albertson farmer, took the stand to announce the formation of a "Scott for Senate Club," the first in the state.

Scott told the gathering "I don't want to run unless you want me," and he said he has been traveling about over the state trying to find out how people feel about next year's Senate race.

"Apparently some people do want me," said Scott, "and if I do get in the race, the people are going to miss a mighty good man if they turn me down."

He said the sentiment toward his candidacy at Chinquapin was "representative" of the people's reaction over the state.

Scott indicated that the matter of financing a campaign is still a big factor to be settled before making a definite commitment, but had a "some say more, some less" answer when a reporter asked him if the $100,000 figure he mentioned earlier would be sufficient.

The colorful ex-governor gave the Umstead administration a pat on the back for carrying on the bond program to aid state schools and mental institutions.

"For my part, I'm going to vote for those bonds," Scott declared.

"I think my greatest contribution as governor was to make it possible for the rural churches of North Carolina to function all the year long by providing roads passable in any kind of weather," he said.

Joshua James of Maple Hill compared Scott with former Gov. Zebulon Vance and Charles Aycock in his introduction, and said the Haw River man has the "common touch of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Juniper Tree

By FAITH BALDWIN

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

EM TOOK her time writing, Dave thought. March went out in a snowstorm and April came in with another. Bets on the day the ice would go out had been placed before he heard from his wife.

Em had been transferred to Italy; his letter, missing her in Greece, had been forwarded. She wrote:

"I'm not coming home yet. When I undertook the job I promised to stay six months .Before the time was up they asked me to extend it. Recently I was offered a permanent, salaried job. It entails responsibility and at the same time a moderately free hand. There'd be a lot of traveling, for inspection, organization, and reorganization.

"I asked for time to consider. By early fall I must decide. Before then I'll come home: either for good or for a leave before taking up the offer.

"You have no plans. I have to have a plan, Dave. And you're right, our situation can't be settled by letter. I think a great deal about it and try to see it as clearly as I can. It was Tim who held you to me. I'm putting this badly, I know. But I didn't feel that way about you. You were my husband as well as Tim's father; we had a separate relationship. I could see you apart from him. And yet when he left us, you left me-almost at once—within a matter of weeks. What kind of life would we have together now? You say your experiment has failed. If this is so, it would be a life of tolerance and habit. It's not good enough. Before we were married I remember you asked me what I'd do if you fell in love with someone else, after. I had fixed ideas, and was emphatic about them. But you didn't fall in love with someone else; if you had, I'd have known, and I'm sure you would have told me. I believe I could have dealt with it as long as I was certain you loved me: also there was Tim. I've always realized you were a little susceptible but it never really worried me. I thought you loved me. You haven't been in love with me for a long time but, I suspect, that happens to most couples, still they go on loving each other. I did, you. There was never anyone else, not even for a foolish moment. But if you'd loved me I would have been able to help you. Before I went away I asked Pete where I'd failed you. He said I hadn't. I asked him what I lacked, and, after a while, he said, weaknesses and humor. I didn't see what that—if it was true—had to do with you and me. I don't now. I've never thought of myself as an especially strong person nor lacking in humor. We used to have so many little jokes, privately, between us and Tim—"

He stopped reading. He couldn't see the words. After a while he read the rest:

"It seems to me," the letter went on, "that we had a better than average marriage but a great deal went out of it when Tim died—for you, I mean. I thought, even in the first shock, that we would be closer than ever. Instead, further apart than seemed credible.

"I can accomplish a lot here and am lucky to be here in spring not that there's much time to think of seasons. Dave, you know how I feel about divorce. I haven't changed. Yet, if there were a reason—if you met someone with whom you could start again, and be happy, I suppose I'd consent, if you asked. I know I would. Now we've been separated for months.

"It could be legalized as the next step, if you like. I can't take up where we left off. If we are to be together again, it must be on a new basis, as I suppose it couldn't be on the old. Don't try to answer this. I'll let you know when I plan to return and I'll leave my decision until we've talked. I want to believe we can work it out; I pray for that, every day. But I don't know, I honestly don't know."

He put the letter away: from time to time he would reread it, and think about it, sentence by sentence. This much was clear: she wouldn't divorce him unless there was what she called a reason; but would, if he wished, agree to a legal separation. In a limited sense she offered him his freedom now. But what he would do with it, if he accepted, he did not know.

For the present he went on living his two lives not always integrated: that of the body and that of the mind. And sometimes he tried to recapture a blurred, dissolving memory, less substantial than the residue of a dream. In the storm when he was close to the limit of endurance, had he heard Tim's voice? Occasionally, between sleeping and waking, he could almost grasp and, so, relive this. Not quite. It had probably been a fantasy of exhaustion. If he could persuade himself that, in his extremity, Tim had made himself heard and known, his entire world must again be altered. He would then stand where his mother stood, where Roger Newton and Em stood —rooted in certainty, with nothing to fear.

But he could not be persuaded; this was scarcely memory, being so nebulous; and perhaps it hadn't even seemed to happen during the storm, but had been part later of a pattern of fever, pain and semi-consciousness.

You couldn't build on it: this was the sort of thing that sent tragic people to mediums, sitting around tables in the dark listening to bells ringing and thinking they heard voices. . . .

He took pads and pencils and went out to sketch the hesitant spring, and soon tired of it; went fishing, alone and with the boys, drove to town to have dinner with the Dawsons and to speak privately to Hank.

"How about Peters?"

"I'm working on him. Can't make up his mind. Vera—his wife —she's on our side."

Dave said: "I'd like to own the place. I suppose there are others, if Peters refuses. But I'm used to this one; it would be fine to come back to, vacations and hunting seasons. And I don't want to lose touch up here." Dave hesitated. He hadn't seen Sheila tonight. She'd taken an aversion to strangers and Hank had apologized: "It's too hard on Louise, getting her calmed down."

"Hank?"

"Yeah?"

"I've a good many contacts through the business. If you and Louise ever decide to make a drastic change about Sheila, I hope you'll feel free to call on me. I'm sure an arrangement could be made which would mean the best possible care for her at the least possible burden to you."

Hank cleared his throat. "Thanks," he said. "I'll remember. Sounds like you were planning to shove off."

"Not for a while. Emily—my wife—writes that she won't be back from her work in Europe until late summer and, far as I know, I'm not being missed at the office."

Later he sounded Cas out.

"If Joe decides to go on to college, perhaps when the matter of his subjects come up he'd talk to me? I'd like to have him for a visit, some vacation, so he could look at our set-up. If he took to it, his courses could be steered in that direction and then, if he was of the same mind on graduation, there'd be a job and, I believe, considerable future. My brother has no sons; I suppose he'll have sons-in-law some day, but at this distance we don't know what they'd want to do. Besides, there'd be room. The business has never stood still."

Cas was silent for a moment. Then he said: "It'd be up to Joe. He wants to go to college, all right, now. Your doin' mostly. He thinks a lot of you. I appreciate the offer, but you ain't in no way obliged."

"I'm obliged, all right," Dave said, "but I don't make the offer because of that. I like Joe. I like both your kids. If Joe came to us of his free will, and fitted in, why not? He'd work hard. It isn't a case of making a job or showing favoritism. My father didn't. George and I were under a lash; he was harder on us than on the rest of the employes. I might have been just as tough with Tim. Don't get any foolish notions about this, Cas. Joe's good material. And, as you say, it's up to him. I wouldn't want him influenced least of all by me."

"Better not say anything to him yet, Dave. Like Mrs. Rogers says, he thinks you're gold. I'll talk it over with her; we always do, her'n me. She has a good head on her shoulders, I've been worried some, that's a fact. The farm ain't big or productive enough to make a livin' for two familes after we're gone. Two families shouldn't be together anyway, not even if there's two houses. But I've known for quite a time that Joe ain't interested in farmin'. He does his chores, like any farm kid, maybe better'n most but grumblin'. Herb likes the farm: maybe he don't work as good but he's younger, and I don't expect it. But the interest's there. Like I say, it worried me. I'll think about what you said, Dave."

With May the punkies arrived, an invasion of irritants, and Dave bought insect repellant. No Eden without its serpent. All around, Dave heard the clear ringing of axes, the rasping of saws. There was another sound, the peepers calling from every pond and swamp.

Wake Forest Ends Summer Session

WAKE FOREST—Summer school ended last night at Wake Forest College as commencement exercises were held.

Dr. Sankey L. Blanton, president of Crozer Theological Seminary was the principal speaker. His topic was "Civilization, Culture and Character."

There wer 80 candidates for degrees, 68 of them Tarheels.

Dr. Harold W. Tribble, College president, presented the four groups of degrees and Dr. Owen F. Herring professor of religion, delivered the invocation and benediction.

A Wake Forest graduate, Dr. Blanton has been president of the Chester, Pa., seminary since 1950. He has held pastorates in New Haven, Conn., and Wilmington.

Commencement formally ended a nine-week summer session directed by Prof. Jasper L. Memory, Jr. There are five weeks between the summer session's end and fall session registration which begins Monday, September 14.

22 Patrolmen Graduate From Highway School

Chapel Hill — Climaxing eight weeks of intensive training in the classroom, on the firing range, and on the highways, 22 patrolmen were graduated here this week from the North Carolina State Highway Patrol School.

The school conducted by the University's Institute of Government, coincided with a series of three-day retraining schools for all members of the patrol.

The graduates and their stations are: Donald P. Darden, Oxford; James L. DeBerry, Jr., Draper; J. B. Dillard, Jefferson; Gene W. Ervin, Asheville; K.M. Gentry, Chadbourn; A.V. Harrison, Asheville; R. E. Hasty, Gibson; William W. Joyner, Farmville; Samuel Robert Judge, Fayetteville; Donald P. King, Hayesville, E.E. LeFurgey, Dobson; John W. Lynn, Jr., Spring Hope; Bert O. Mercer, Jacksonville; Delbert L. Minshew, Walnut Cove; Shephard H Newman, Jr., Greenville; William A. Nichols, Concord; Floyd L. Owens, Woodland; Jerry H. Page, Lawndale; Millard J. Preslar, Gastonia; Sam Sanford, Robbinsville; Roy S. Vaughan, Jr., Fayetteville, and Eugene C. Wray Warsaw.

Albert Coates, director of the Institute of Government, presided during the graduation ceremonies at the Institute's Highway Patrol barracks in Chapel Hill. He introduced the commanding officer of the Patrol, Col. W.B. Lentz; Maj. D.T. Lambert, one of the Patrol's two executive officers; Chancellor Robert B. House of the University, and Edward Scheidt, commissioner of motor vehicles.

Colonel Lentz charged the new patrolmen to regard the saving of lives as a profession to which they are called in the same manner that a minister is called to service.

It is difficult to dispose of termite infestation permanently with poison because a few of the wood-digesting bacteria in the insects' stomachs will survive, establishing a poison-resistant race.

Bethel Through The Eyes Of The Reflector's Camera

Looking East this is a general view of the downtown Bethel business district. While its streets were not filled when the picture was made, on wek-ends it is a regular beehive of activity, as people flock into town to trade.

The modern Bethel Clinic is located in downtown Bethel and affords to citizens of the town and nearby area the benefits of medical services lacking in past years. (Reflector Photos by Roy Hardee)

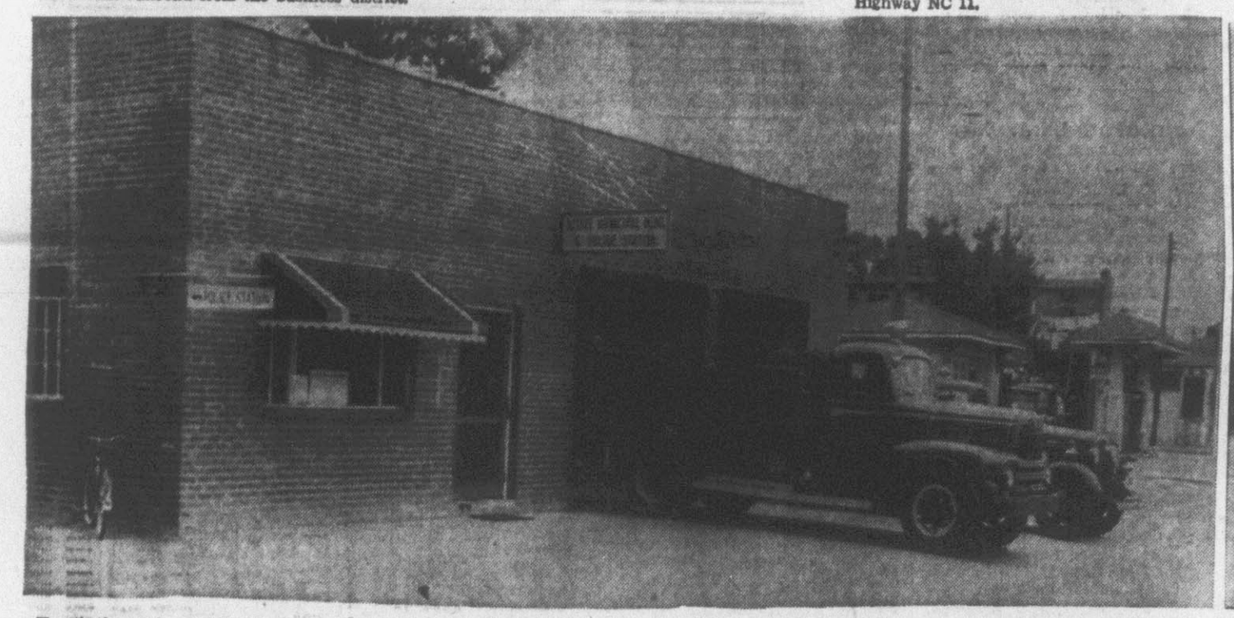

School facilities in Bethel are ample to take care of the needs of its growing school population. The building above is the Bethel Elementary School building located on NC 11 just across the railroad from the business district.

Typical of the modern homes to be found in Bethel is that of J. C. Wynne, Jr., pictured above. The house is one of several constructed on the Northern city limits of the town, off Highway NC 11.

Industry moved into Bethel a little over a year ago when the Diana Hosiery Company located a plant there which has given employment to numbers of local residents in its 24 hour operations.

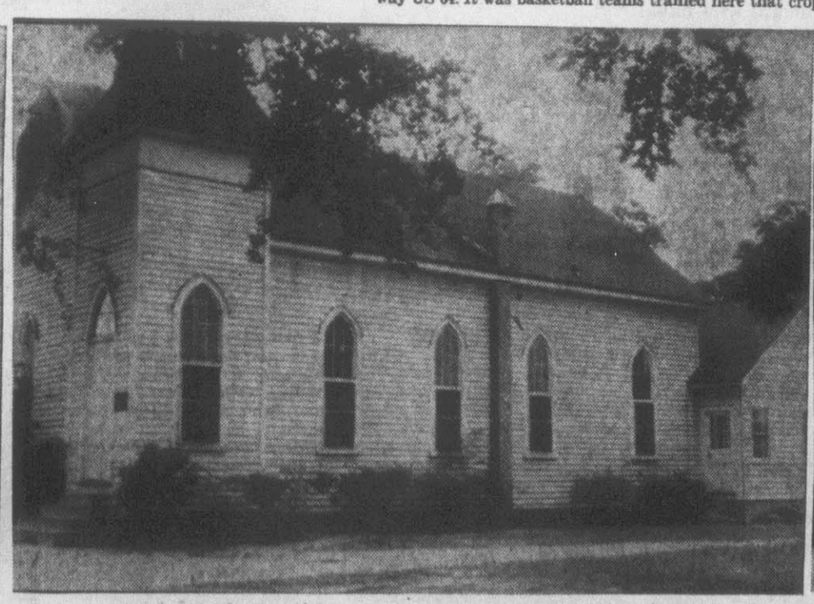

Here is the modern and up to date Bethel Municipal building, housing the town offices, fire department, Police Department and jail. Bethel's modern fire truck along with its first piece of equipment is shown to the lower right of the picture.

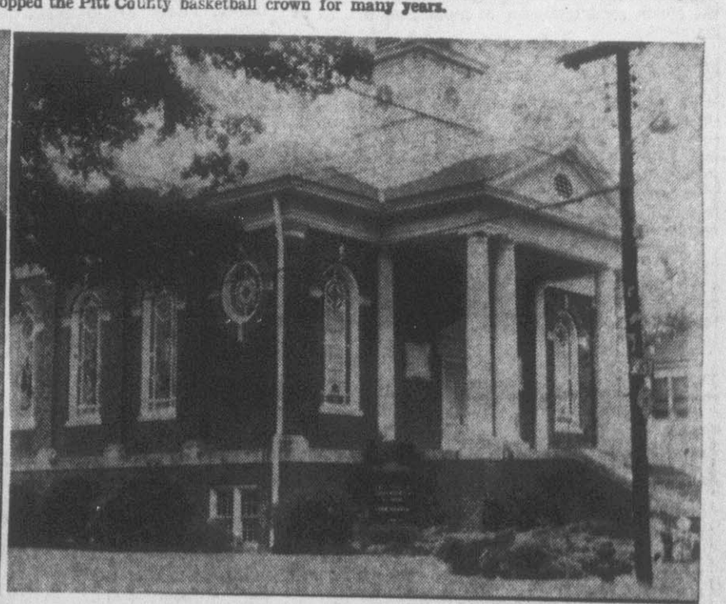

Bethel school children learn their higher ABC's in this modern brick building located East of the business section of the community on highway US 64. It was basketball teams trained here that cropped the Pitt County basketball crown for many years.

This is the Bethel Methodist church which is located West of the stop on US 64.

The home of J. R. Cullifier is another of the large spacious homes to be found in the growing community of Bethel. Construction of new housing in the city has grown steadily recently.

One of the growing businesses in Bethel is that of the sweet potato market which has been expanding by leaps and bounds. Above is the Bethel auction house, one of the many units in the sweet potato marketing set up.

The building shown above is one of the large, neat frame buildings which is used by the Negro school children attending the Bethel schools. Other units of the Bethel system are located behind the building and to the left but not pictured.

The Meter Problem Is Nothing New

It looks like the Greenville City council has about resolved the parking meter question which has been a problem to the council since it took office.

For that matter, the parking meters in Greenville have proved a problem to every governing board of the city since they were first installed in August, 1947. There has not been a city administration since then that has not found itself confronted with a problem concerning all or part of the 843 meters originally installed.

The present council is no exception.

Faced with the problem of worn-out parking meters on the one hand, a recent Supreme Court ruling on parking meters on the other and the old problem of keeping traffic moving along the streets of the business section, the council had to do something.

What it has done so far, seems to us about the most workable solution to the problem. The council has adopted an ordinance setting forth the area which will be regulated by metered parking, and the meters installed will determine the length of parking along each street in the area.

To be sure there will be some people who disagree with the parking meter pattern finally worked out by the council. The changes which are made will not be to everyone's liking. But it would be next to impossible for the council to arrive at a parking meter arrangement which would suit everyone, and at the same time do the job of keeping traffic moving in the business district of the city.

In arriving at its final pattern for parking meters in the city, the council should to the best of its ability have a program which is equally considerate of all merchants in the downtown business area, workable from the standpoint of the shoppers, and at the same time does the job of keeping traffic moving.

Pushing Towards Another "First"

Pitt County is rapidly pushing toward the distinction of being the county in North Carolina with the most individual newspapers.

With the announcement that a weekly newspaper is to be founded in Griton within the next 30 days, Pitt moves into second place in the state among the counties with the most individual newspapers.

Only Wake County, which has six separate newspapers — two dailies and four weeklies — has more newspapers than Pitt will have when the Grifton paper begins operations.

Buncombe County also has five newspapers, three of which are in Asheville and owned by the same company.

In addition to The Daily Reflector, the only daily newspaper published in Pitt County, there are at present three weekly newspapers published. They are the Farmville Enterprise, the Ayden Dispatch and the Bethel Post. When the Grifton paper begins publication, Pitt County will have four weekly newspapers.

With its relatively large number of individual newspapers, Pitt Countains should be kept well informed on happenings in their local communities; and at the same time have the benefit of many varying editorial opinions.

The Reflector welcomes Editor-Publisher Clyde Simmons to the newspaper field in Pitt County and wishes him success with the fledgling newspaper he begins in Grifton.

The Big Thumb The Man Behind

Another account has been in the news in the past few days of a motorist who picked up hitchhikers only to be beaten and robbed by them.

The particular motorist was one of the lucky ones who has gone through the experience and lived to tell about it. There have been a large number of others across the nation in recent years who have not been so fortunate. Their bodies have been found long after the incident occurred.

To be sure, a lot of people who thumb rides along the public highways have nothing more in mind than getting a lift a few miles. There are others, though, who have an ulterior motive when they seek a lift from an unsuspecting motorist.

There is no fool-proof method of distinguishing the hitchhiker who merely wants a ride from the one who packs a gun or has in mind taking money or an automobile from anyone who offers him a lift. The safest policy to follow is to leave the hitchhiker alone. He may be a good fellow; but on the other hand he may not. It is too late once he is in your automobile.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

BETTER TAKE HEED

One of my very good minister friends died several years ago. Many of us had warned him and tried to counsel with him on the matter of rest. We pointed out that the Bible forbids any human being to try working seven days a week. But he thought because he was doing it for the Lord, it was right. Yet he was inadvertently breaking the fourth commandment. Preachers have to have a day of rest the same as anyone else. The preacher serves God best who applies all the Ten Commandments (including the fourth commandment) to himself as well as to his people.

Physically, mentally, and spiritually, we are made after a certain mold. Just as all human beings are bipeds and have certain characteristics which they alone have among all the creatures of the earth, so there are certain imperatives resting upon them which they disobey to their ruin. One of these is the necessity for one day's rest in seven. At the time of the French Revolution, the authorities of that country tried to make it one day in ten. But it did not fit the human framework. It must be one day in seven and nothing else.

This matter of Sunday observance is most important in the life of every human being, and there are millions who never give it a second thought. This demand for one day in seven is built into the structure of the universe.

Defy it at your peril.

The Ones That Get Away

Somebody Told Me

Eight State Champions Play Here

This is a story that will answer two questions: Why do people like to live in Greenville? Why does Greenville continue to grow?

Before giving you the answer, let me tell you the essential fact: Whether you realize it or not, one of the biggest events ever to happen in Greenville will be August 17 through 20, when the Fifth Regional Championship playoffs of Little League baseball will be held here.

That means the state champions from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Florida and Alabama will be at Elm Street Park, Greenville, fighting for the District Championship that will give them a bid to the National finals of Little League in Williamsport, Pa.

So what does all of this have to do with why people like to live here, or why Greenville continues to grow? Simply this: The Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce has undertaken the job of being host to this event, and up to now it seems that the entire forces of Greenville will cooperate in every way to make it a success. It's that kind of spirit that makes a town desirable.

For example, I'm chairman of the entertainment committee for the boys. (Other members: Norman Wilkerson, R. O. Everett, Riddick Revelle). But up to now, Robert Elks of Friendly Furniture Company has done more work than I have. Robert conceived the idea of feeding the boys at Elm Street Park the four nights they are here, coutesy of civic-minded Greenville people. He's chairman of the food committee for the Kiwanis Club and knows how to handle such functions. In fact, he fed his club out at Elm Street Park recently.

Robert contacted me and we have undertaken to line up the four evenings. The Kiwanis Club, through his efforts, have said they would bear the expense of feeding the boys Sunday night, when they first arrive. The Elks Club is committed for Wednesday. Negotiations are underway with Rotary, Lions, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Moose and Exchange, to take care of the remaining time.

The Lipton Tea representative in this area, Robert Hall, has agreed to donate all the tea the boys can drink. Frank Deiner of Peoples Bakery will furnish deserts for the four meals. Two local theater managers have agreed to give the players and coaches passes, with the third yet to be contacted.

With the kind of people we have here in Greenville, Robert and I think this is only the beginning. Civic clubs will probability come through to accept the majority of the burden, but any help from any source will be appreciated.

Even if you want to look at it from a selfish point of view, just think of the impression we can make on the estimated 500 people who will be here for the playoffs. Ninety per cent of them will leave here wishing they lived in a place like Greenville!

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

CAUTION IS THE BY—WORD

(Northampton County News)

Even the cut and dried pages of records in the Register of Deeds office have a story to tell. How is this for a horror tale?

A family in the county—a rural family—needed money to put in a crop. They needed the exact amounted of $524.72. A lending organization was willing to let them have the money. Under certain conditions.

Here's what the family had to put up for security:

1. All the year's crops.
2. All the farm's livestock.
3. A home freezer.
4. A gas stove.
5. A dinette suite.
6. An automatic refrigerator.
7. A three-piece living-room suit.
8. Two (2) bedroom suits, their springs and mattresses.
9. A nine piece dining room suit.
10. A buffet.
11. An automatic washer.
12. Three metal beds, three springs, three mattresses.
13. A radio-phonograph combination.
14. "All other household equipment.

The promissory note stipulated that if a certain percentage of the loan had been paid back by the time the note was due, then the note could be extended.

While the security for the extension was not named, it prpbably would include five pounds of the farmer's flesh.

Congress Snips Tape

By ELMER ROESSNER

Back in May the Little Woman heard someone say that if people stopped spending money there would be a recession. So she decided to have the washer and ironer fixed up. She phoned the nearest store of the chain that sold it and a repairman came around and decided the ironer needed a new gear and the washer needed a new strainer, a gasket for the cover and a new cord. The Little Woman said fine, bring them around some Saturday, the only day she would surely be home.

Three weeks later she got a postcard saying the parts had arrived and please pick them up. She phoned and asked the store to send a man around with the parts some Saturday.

The next Tuesday a card was hung on the doorknob saying the repair man had been there but found no one home. Another phone call.

The next Saturday a man installed the wringer gear. He didn't know anything about the parts. She phoned the store again. Someone explained they had no record of the parts but would order them again. She said please deliver them on a Saturday.

Nothing happened for a few weeks. Then one Wednesday another tag appeared on the doorknob. The next Saturday she called at the store.

'Those parts were here all the time," the service manager said in a tone that implied it was the Little Woman's fault. He had no idea of when they could be installed. So she appealed to the store manager.

"I'll see that you get action!" he said. He phoned the service manager right there and then and said that he was to see that repairs were made the following Saturday—or else.

Nothing happened next Saturday. Another phone call. "I know it sounds perfectly ridiculous," said the manager, "but your order was placed in the Wednesday box."

The following Saturday a man came with the strainer and gasket, but no cord. He was so long in the laundry room we began to fear he had gotten into the applejack.

He hadn't. He's put the strainer in but couldn't get the gasket to stay around the cover. He'd get it on one side and it would pop off as he tried to put it on the other.

"Let's stretch it," we suggested brightly.

"It won't stretch," he said. "It's rubber."

We tried to help him and after each of us had been hit in the eyes with the gasket, he decided it was the wrong size and took it away.

The L.W. phoned again Tomorrow, the manager assured her, the repairman will put on the gasket and the cord. The manager is a pleasant fellow and we may ask him over for bridge some evening.

If the gasket and cord don't arrive tomorrow, the Little Woman is going to call again. If there is a recession, it isn't going to be her fault.

Hollywood Is In Gimmick Stage

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Hollywood is in the gimmick stage at present in its efforts to make the American public forget television.

Have you tried any of the new three — dimensional, wide-screened, technicolored popcorn with the built-in stereoscopic sound effects? A trip to Bermuda and a free life insurance policy with every box:

Seen any of those 3—D films lately? It is like having a "Chamber of Horrors" dumped in your lap. Roller coasters reel toward you, snakes lash out from the screen at you, and when an actor throws a knife you can feel it sink into your own forehead. Man, you don't just see those pictures. You are in them. But you don't get paid.

The Hollywood motto seems to be:

"If you can't entertain 'em—startle 'em."

Therefore, it is pleasant to chronicle a strange experiment just completed by producer Buddy Adler. Adler's unusual idea was to take the best story plot he could find, pick a good cast, and film it in just plain old-fashioned, two-dimensional black and white.

Well, 19 months and three million dollars later, Adler came up with "From Here To Eternity," one of 1953's big hits and a candidate for filmdom's all-time top 10 box office draws. And there isn't a new-fangled gimmick in the picture.

"You don't need gimmicks to get realism," said Adler.

Nearly two years ago he became intertsted in James Jones' best selling novel of professional army life in Hawaii on the eve of Pearl Harbor.

"It had been turned down by every major studio," he said. "It was raw and violent, and I suppose most studioes were afraid they wouldn't be able to get the Army's cooperation in filming it."

Aler thought that because of its many turndowns he could buy the movie rights for $10,000 or $15,000. But the price tag was $82,000. President Harry Cohn of Columbia Pictures read a summary of the story and said:

"Buy it."

That left Adler $82,000 in the hole, and no assurance the Amy would give him the help he needed to make the picture the way he wanted. It took months to win the Army's okay.

Then Adler figured the total cost of the film would be three million dollars, one of the largest budgets for any black and white film.

"Go ahead," Cohn told him. Adler, one of those rare producers who don't believe the "front office" spends its whole time stifling genius, said:

"I'm grateful to him for that. You know you can make a three-million-dollar picture and end up with a five-million-dollar loss.

"The only thing I gamble with is my brain. He gambled with money. If the picture had flopped, I'd still have my mentality—well most of it—but his money would be down the drain."

Alder also credited Cohn for picking Frank Sinatra for a top dramatic role, one in which Frankie doesn't sing a note.

"I was against that at first," Adler admitted, "but we flew Sinatra from Africa to make a test, and I was sold at first sight."

The film was shot in 60 days, much of it on the scene in Hawaiian Army barracks. Adler is hopeful it will outdraw the same studio's "Jolson Story," which grossed more than eight million dollars to become one of the industry's gilded 10 greatest gold mines.

"You can't sell the public on gimmicks alone," said Adler. "Shakespeare was right. "The play's the thing. If you don't have a good story to tell, you have nothing."

That's kind of a revolutionary idea, but if it spreads movie theaters won't have to depend so much on popcorn to turn a profit.

Eisenhower Cleans Out Commies

By RAY TUCKER

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"What is your opinion of the first session of the Republican Congress?" asks S. G. of Mankato, Minn. "Did it do a good job, a bad job or just so-so?"

Answer: For a group of legislators who took charge after 20 years of opposition rule, I think that the Congress and the Administration did about what could be expected. Due to inexperience and intra-party differences, there was fumbling at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue. Ike could have exerted stronger leadership, and Congress could have been more cooperative.

In any assay of accomplishments and failures, I think it only fair to compare the legislative and Presidential record with the principal pledges of the platform on which they were elected.

In my opinion, the really vote-getting promises were: (1)—to end the Korean war (2)—to eradicate corruption and communists from official circles (3)—to achieve economy and a businesslike Administration.

ADMINISTRATION ASSETS—The fighting in Korea has been stopped, and negotiations for an armistice and possibly a permanent settlement have been initiated. Due to causes over which Washington had no control, but which must be listed as assets, Russian turmoil has removed the threat and fear of imminent global war.

I think everybody admits that Eisenhower, with an assist from Senator McCarthy and other Capitol Hill investigators, has cleaned out the commies and fellow-travelers. He has also set up a screening system that should keep them from creeping into posts of influence.

Likewise, the grafters, the chiselers and the political cheap Johns have been driven from their Federal pawn shops.

SWOLLEN TRUMAN BUDGET SLASHED—Although the Administration and Congress found it impossible to give immediate tax relief without endangering Federal finances, the first major move toward large-scale economy in 20 years has been taken. The legislators slashed the swollen Truman budget by $13 billion and reduced Eisenhower's own estimates by $3 billion.

Washington has checked the trend toward government control, ownership and operation of business and industry. Congress enacted laws for the sale of rubber plants and the inland waterway barge lines. It has limited definitely the government's encroachment of the power industry, which would have extended into other fields, if it had not been checked.

Several problems were neglected or deferred, including Social Security extension, revision of labor laws, tariff alterations, etc. But studies of those questions have been started, and it is generally conceded that their complexity requires a cautious approach to any general overhaul.

ADMISSION OF REFUGEES—"In the debate on admission of additional refugees," writes Mrs. A.M. of Passaic, N.J., "many Congressmen gave the impression that the United States had been remiss on this problem. Quoting the 'Send me your poor' from the Statue of Liberty appeal, they charged that we had become selfish. What is the score?"

Answer: There is no basis for this indictment, which was voiced principally by politicians seeking votes among various racial groups. With the number to be admitted under the new law, which operates for the next three years, we will have given shelter to approximately 600,000 refugees or displaced persons since 1947.

Here are the numbers of admissions (in round figures) to a few other countries: Australia, 200,000; Israel, 140,000; Canada, 130,000; United Kingdom, 100,000; France, 50,000; Argentina, 40,000; Brazil, 35,00; Belgium, 30,000.

The explanation for these unwarranted accusations against American charity and generosity is that almost every refugee writes down the U.S. as his first choice for a new home.

Congressman Dean Deserves Sympathies From Everyone

By LYNN NISBET

SYMPATHY — If any member of Congress from North Carolina ever deserved the sympathy of his colleagues and constituents and other friends it is Charles B. Deane, representative of the eighth district. In the first place, his district is the most gerrymandered of any in the knowledge of your reporter, in this or any other State. It runs from the South Carolina line about 75 miles from the Atlanic ocean all across the sandhills and piedmont and mountains to within 10 miles of Virginia and 15 miles of Tennessee. Its eastern extremity is Hoke county, which contains Fort Bragg, and it western edge is the Blue Ridge Parkway marking the boundary between Wilkes and Alleghany. It is bounded by six other congressional districts and 100 miles of South Carolina.

TROUBLES — That situation would seem to afford enough troublous problems, especially when it is noted that he cannot get from one part of his district to another without going outside of it—because of the Badin lake cut-off between Montgomery and Davidson counties. Lately he has been faced with the most acute political issues in some years involving State Federal relations and occuring at the extreme ends of his bailiwick. In Hoke county the army was trying to take over nearly half the remaining taxable lands for a military corridor connecting Fort Bragg and Camp Mackall. Some 200 miles away the postoffice department was closing up some 20 little postoffices in Wilkes county. And now comes a bill in the North Carolina Legislature designed to let Greensboro, High Point and Winston-Salem take over the best part of Yadkin county for a water reservoir.

MIDDLEMAN — In all of these projects, as in the long-drawn-out squabble over whether to build one big dam on the Yadkin river or a lot of little dams on Eddies creek and other tributaries for flood control, Congressman Deane's constituents must suffer for the benefit of people living in other districts. He affords an almost perfect example of the middle man caught in a squeeze play.

CORRIDOR — Take that Fort Bragg-Camp Mackall corridor for example. It is desired mainly to enlarge activities at Fort Bragg. Most people think of Fort Bragg as being near Fayetteville, and it is. Many of those same people do not realize that most of the area of Fort Bragg and Pope Field is in Hoke county. The proposed expansion would probably benefit Cumberland county and the City of Fayetteville, which are not in Deane's district, but at the expense of Hoke, Moore, Richmond and Scotland counties—which are in his district.

RSERVOIR — The Central North Carolina Water Authority sought to be established under HB—1030 would assure the industrial communities of Greensboro and High Point in the sixth district and Winston-Salem in the fifth of adequate water supply—but at the expense of rural Yadkin county, which is in Deane's eighth district.

POSTOFFICES — The postoffice deal in Wilkes comes in a different category. Wilkes got caught as the major victim, but by no means the only one, in North Carolina in a general postoffice department program for closing out little fourth-class rural postoffices and serving the patrons by rural route delivery. The fact that about half the postoffices affected in North Carolina were in Deane's district put an extra load upon his congressional office.

POLITICAL — There are inesdapable political considerations involved in all of these problems. All of them are developing during the early months of a Republican national administration, but all of them were begun under Democratic national administrations. Hoke county is overwhelmingly Democratic, while Wilkes and Yadkin are almost as preponderantly Republican. Deane is a Democat (and the word can just as appropriately be spelled with a little "d" in his case), but he has scrapped just as hard for his Wilkes and Yadkin constituents as he has for those living in Hoke, Moore, Richmond and Scotland. But in every instance he has been caught in the middle, thanks largely to his Democratic predecessors who carved out his district as a corridor all across the State.

HEARINGS — Public hearings have been held in Washington on the Foft Bragg corridor and Wilkes county postoffice matters, which are wholly Federal as to controlling authority. They nave proved ot be futile, so far as obtaining desired relief for North Carolina residents of the eighth congressional district is concerned. A public hearing has been scheduled in Raleigh for Tuesday afternoon on the House bill establishing the water authority. Chances are it will also prove futile so far as relief for Yadkin county is concerned.

PROGRESS — Futility of the Wilkes postoffice hearing was not due to the fact that the plan was devised by Democrats and put into effect under a Republican regime. The Fort Bragg corridor issue in all these incidents is simhas been in the making for a decade. The Yadkin water reservoir business goes back at last ten years, maybe more. The basic issue in all these indicents is simply that old time customs and practices and policies cannot stand up under the impact of progress. Willingly or otherwise, we are becoming a military nation. So the military can take over former civilian authority, as they are doing in Hoke. We are rapidly changing from an agricultural to an industrial economy in North Carolina, so Yadkin farms may have to be scarificed to Guilford industries. We are getting big in every respect; so little postoffices, little schools and little churches must yield to the urge for business.

BETTER — Whether the new system is better than the old, whether we are paying more for economic efficiency in the coin of human relations than the efficiency we buy is worth, are questions that each individual must answer for himself. Progress cannot be stopped, although it may be in some cases directed of temporarily diverted.

On Friday evening, July 31, Mrs. Horace Speight, Mrs. Marvin Speight Jr. and Mrs. Lawrence Speight were joint hostesses at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. William Tedder, recent bride, at the home of Mrs. Marvin Speight Sr. on Dickinson Avenue.

On arrival the guests were welcomed by Miss Ruth Williamson. Mixed summer flowers were used in profusion throughout the house.

Mrs. Horace Speight directed the guests to the dining room where lime ice, salted nuts, cheese straws, and cookies were served by Mrs. H. L. Spivey, Mrs. Marvin Speight Jr. and Mrs. Lawrence Speight.

The honoree received many lovely and useful gifts.

Approximately 50 guests were present.

Rita Hayworth Expected To Stand By Dick Haymes

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Actress Rita Hayworth is expected to stand by her latest romance, crooner Dick Haymes, in his fight to avoid deportation, it was reported today.

Hollywood friends reported the red-haired actress and the singer met alone yesterday for the apparent purpose of discussing what effect his threatened deportation will have on their romance.

The crooner's name has been linked with that of Miss Hayworth since his marriage with Nora Eddington Flynn Haymes broke up four months ago.

Haymes' attorney, Robert Eaton, said he was considering seeking congressional help in preventing the crooner's possible deportation.

The 34-year-old singer, a citizen of Argentina, was arrested by immigration officers on charges he violated the McCarran-Walter Act by leaving the country to see Miss Hayworth in Hawaii. The Act provides that an alien who leaves the continental United States may not legally re-enter.

Herman L. Landon, district director of immigration, said only "an act of Congress" could make Haymes an American citizen and thus assure his staying in this country.

The Justice Department said the singer forfeited his future rights to citizenship in 1944 when he received a military exemption from a New York draft board, allegedly on grounds of being an alien.

Eaton, after huddling with Haymes yesterday, said the singer had "sought the advice and approval of the Immigration Department prior to his departure for Hawaii) and was told by one of its agents that the trip was perfectly all right and that he could re-enter the U.S."

Eaton staunchly supported Haymes' avowal that he is not a draft dodger, and denied reports Miss Hayworth's attorney, Bartley Crum, had come here from New York to take a hand in the case. At the same time, the singer's estranged wife reiterated her plans to drop, at least temporarily, her divorce suit against Haymes.

"I will stand by Dick," she said "I love him, adore him. The divorce was his idea, not mine."

Whitfield Finds Stolen Automobile

Cpl. C. E. Whitfield of the Highway Patrol and Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Manning yesterday recovered an automobile which had been stolen upstate some time ago.

The car, undamaged, was recovered on a rural road off NC 43, South of Greenville yesterday morning.

A careful check of the automobile was made yesterday by officers after blood, believed to be human blood was found on one side of the automobile.

The car was stolen from Pleasantville, belonged to Bobby Allen of that town.

It was "straight-wired", with the entire switch having been removed.

Officers are continuing their investigation into the finding of the stolen car.

Premium Booklets Being Distributed

Duke University Host To Annual Youth Conference

DURHAM, N. C.—Duke University will play host to some 500 young people from high schools and colleges throughout eastern North Carolina when the second Annual Conference Session of the North Carolina Conference Methodist Youth Fellowship opens here on Sunday, Aug. 16.

Devoted to the theme, "These Are Our Needs—To Believe, To Become, To Belong, and To Be Bound," the session will include discussion groups and committee meetings, business sessions, recreational fellowship periods, musical and dramatic presentations, a missions program, and various special worship services.

Business of the five-day meeting will be to plan the over-all program of the Methodist Youth Fellowship of the North Carolina Conference and to elect and install officers.

Highlight will be the eighth Annual Conference Rally on the session's final day, when more than 1000 young people and adult leaders in youth work join the delegates already at Duke for a picnic lunch, a speech by Rev. Dan C. Whitsett of Sylacauga, Ala., worship services, and the installation of officers.

Bride-Elect Extended Courtesy By Miss Wilson

On Wednesday evening, Miss Dorothy Wilson entertained at a dessert-bridge shower honoring Miss Dorothy Whiteley whose marriage to Mr. Asher Harman Jr. took place today in the Eighth Street Christian Church.

Dessert was served on individual tables, after which bridge was played. Each table was centered with a beautiful floral arrangement.

The living room was decorated with lovely bouquets carrying out a pink and white motif.

During the play Coca-Colas and salted nuts were served to the guests. High score went to Mary Neal Lindsey, runnerup was Zelma Boyd, and deuce prize was won by Lucille Deiner.

Upon her arrival Miss Whiteley was given a white bridal corsage. After progressing of games the honoree opened many attractive and useful gifts from the guests and hostess.

Judge Whedbee Tries 138 Cases In Police Court

Judge Charles H. Whedbee tried 138 cases in Police Court in July, Clerk E. J. Dees' report to City Council Thursday night shows.

Convictions and guilty pleas totaled 110; acquittals, 11; cases combined, nol prossed or dismissed, 13; cases sent to Superior Court, 2, and two cases were called and the defendants failed to appear.

The report shows that nine of the defendants were given time in which to pay fines or costs in the amount of $357. The August report shows that 18 cases in which defendants were allowed time to pay ($1,071.80) were paid in full.

Fire In Hay Loft Threatens Dairy

Fire which started in the hay loft of the Harvey Diary on the Hooker Road yesterday threatened to sweep the entire structure before being brought under control.

A fire truck from Greenville was sent to the scene when the building was discovered on fire. However prompt work on the part of persons at the dairy prevented the blaze from getting out of hand, and it was brought under control quickly.

The fire was gaining rapid headway at the time it was first discovered and the packed hay loft offered a ample supply of burnable materials.

Autobiography Of Dr. B. W. Spilman Interesting Book

CHAPEL HILL—Dr. B. W. Spilman, Southern Baptists' pioneer Sunday School leader, is the subject of a biography by Dr. C. Sylvester Green of the University of North Carolina, just published by the Broadman Press, Nashville, Tenn.

Copies of the new book were received here this week, and reveal an interesting study of the popular church leader. Dr. Spilman was a native of Weldon, graduate of Wake Forest, and one-time pastor at Kinston's First Baptist.

At the turn of the century, he went into denominational work, and subsequently became the first field secretary for Sunday Schools in the Southern Baptist Convention. He held this post until his death in 1950.

Rotund, jovial, personable, and scholarly, Dr. Spilman was a great favorite arround the Southern States for more than half a century. He was author of a vast shelf of Sunday School literature, the founder of the Ridgecrest Baptist Assembly, the organizer of Southern Baptist student work, and a teacher and preacher of renown.

His biographer has caught much of the liveliness of this distinguished churchman and spiced his facts with many humorous incidents, mainly associated with Dr. Spilman's size and general friendliness.

As a cousin of Dr. Spilman, the author worked on this story for several years with free access to all of the Spilman papers, journals and correspondence.

Home Builders Edged, 3 - 2, In NC Softball Tourney

Greenville Team Holds 2-0 Lead Over Roanoke Rapids Until Hectic Seventh Frame

A seasoned team from Roanoke Rapids proved a little too much for the Greenville Home Builders in Rocky Mount last night as the Home Builders dropped their first game in the North Carolina Amateur Softball Tournament by a 3-2 count in eight innings.

The Home Builders jumped to a 2-0 lead over the Romancos in the bottom of the first. Leadoff batter Tom Boyd singled. Boyd advanced to second when Romancos hurler Clippard hit Ford McGowan with a pitched ball. Paul Jones grounded out, advancing the runners to second and third. Red Painter then drove in the first run of the game with a ground ball to the infield. The play was made at home, where Boyd was called safe. Jim Corbin singled home the second and last Greenville marker, and Foell and Mallory flew out to end the frame.

Greenville hurler L. E. Johnson held the Romancos to one hit during the first six innings, but the seventh proved his undoing. A double and a four-bagger tied the ball game at 2-2.

The Roanoke Rapids squad picked up the winning run in the seventh when a bad throw by Catcher Robert Dash went into centerfield.

The Home Builders muffed a big chance in the fourth frame when they loaded the sacks with none out. After two walks and a hit batter, a new Romancos hurler came to the mound and fanned three Builders in a row to set down the threat.

The Home Builders will play again tonight in the double-elimination tournament in Rocky Mount, and will meet the winner of last night's Tarboro-Roanoke Rapids Textile game.

Oliver Leads In $25,000 Tourney

CHICAGO (UP) — Ed (Porky) Oliver was headed for the biggest pay check in the game today with a two-stroke lead on the field in the so-called "world" chase which will pay the winner Sunday a whopping $2 ,000.

Oliver, a 37-year-old father of four who is having his best year on the tourney swing since he joined the group in 1947, slapped out a 67, five under par, Friday to post a 36-hole total of 135 and give the rest of the pack something to shoot at.

And it was likely that "Pork Chops" would continue to register sub-par rounds to keep his challengers chasing. He finished second to Ben Hogan in the Masters' tourney this year and only two weeks ago blasted 65 on each of his final two rounds to win the top prize of $3,500 in the Kansas City Open.

Oliver's chipping and putting pushed him in front of the pack Friday despite a light drizzle which fell as the final third of the field completed its round. He was over par only once ,when he three-putted.

He had an assist in gaining first place, though, as the first day leader, Lew Worsham of Pittsburgh, blew far from his first round 65 with a par 72. Worsham went one over par on five of the last six holes to finish in a 137 tie for second place with Bob Toski of Northampton, Mass. and Dave Douglas of Newark, Del.

Douglas had the best round of the day, a 65, with four birdie putts of 12 feet or more, while Toski turned in a 66, also obtained chiefly by sensational putting.

Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., held fifth place at 138 with a pair of 69s, while at 139 there were four tied, Jack Burke Jr. of Kiamesha Lake, N. Y., Al Besselink of Grossinger, N. Y., Freddie Haas of New Orleans, La. and Skee Riegel of Tulsa, Okla.

Patty Berg of Chicago and Louise Suggs of Atlanta, Ga., were tied for the lead in the women pro division with scores of 149, three under par.

Babe Didrikson Zaharias of Chicago, was third with 151.

Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., seeking his fourth straight title in the men's amateur, took a five-stroke lead on his nearest challenger, Joe Conrad of San Antonio, Tex., with a 138 to 143.

In the women's amateur, Wiffi Smith, Mexican amateur champion from Guadalajara, posted 161. Barbara Little of Wauwatosa, Wis., was second with 167.

East Slaps West In 20-0 Victory

GREENSBORO (UP)—The gold-spangled East squad rolled to an impressive 20 to 0 victory over the West in the fifth annual North Carolina high school All-Star football game here last night before a record crowd of 8,000.

Charles Bussey, Henderson's tall and talented T-quarterback, was a standout as he passed and ran the Easterners to a surprisingly easy victory. Bussey passed for one touchdown and masterminded a 92-yard drive for another.

Rocky Mount tackle Tim Kermon set up the final East score late in the game when he blocked a punt by Ken Owen of Salisbury on the West 49, scooped it up and ran to the 11. Two plays later, Jimmy Love of Sanford passed eight yards to Tom Topping of Roanoke Rapids for the score.

Bussey's passes moved the East 58 yards to a touchdown early in the second period. He hit rangy Leo Ward of Fayetteville with a short toss on the six-yard line, and Ward twisted over the goal standing up.

Early in the fourth period, fullback Joe Holt of Graham took a handoff from Bussey and smashed six yards through the middle for the score.

Rockingham's George Wallace [illegible] extra points but missed the third.

State Violates ACC Try-Out Rule

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UP)—North Carolina State was placed on a one-year probation by the Atlantic Coast Conference today for violating the "try-out" rules of the NCAA and the newly formed conference.

The action, taken at a secret executive session of the conference, permanently barred 14 athletes from intercollegiate competition at the school. The conference ruled that the players could enter the college but could not play for it.

O. K. Cornwell, secretary of the conference, said North Carolina State "was perfectly conscious of the violations but is sorry and promised to see it won't happen again."

The identities of the players were not revealed but it was announced that they were basketball prospects for whom the college paid the cost of transportation to Raleigh, N. C.

The violations occurred last spring and could have resulted in the suspension of North Carolina State from the conference.

Earlier, the conference approved a football bowl appearance for one of its members although it reserved the right to decide which one. The Southern Conference, from which the seven members of the new conference withdrew, had barred bowl visits by its members.

The seven colleges in the Atlantic Coast Conference are Duke, South Carolina, North Carolina, Clemson, Maryland, Wake Forest and North Carolina State.

Soap Box Derby Sunday At Akron

AKRON, O. UP)—The biggest prize list in the history of the All - American Soap Box Derby awaits Sunday's winners in the 16th renewal of the gravity-powered classic here.

Five college scholarships totaling $15,000 head the list of prizes. But each of the 152 finalists from all over the United States, Canada, Alaska and Western Germany wins a prize by making it to the championships here.

Every one of th. youngsters is a winner in his own city and each gets a 17-jewel wrist watch. But the one boy who comes out on top at "Derby Downs" wins a $5,000 college scholarship. Second place is worth a $4,000 scholarship and those boys who place in the top five also get college monetary awards.

Coming the longest way is the soap-box champ from Western Germany, Heinz Martin, 14, of Nuremberg, who won out in competition last month at Duisburg.

Also on the list of champs are Brian Thususka, 15, St. Catharines, Ontario; Harry Bates, 14 of Juneau, Alaska; and Eddie Hayse, 15, of Little Rock, Ark., a deaf-mute.

Joe Lunn, 12, of Columbus, Ga., who won the Soap Box championship last year, also will be on hand.

Claims to parts of the Antarctic continent have been made by England, France, Norway, Australia, New Zealand, Argentina, Chile and Russia.

Diving Horses Plunge In Tank

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J U..P.) —An accomplished horsewoman who polished up on her swimming, and a diving expert who learned to ride a horse are giving exciting performances here daily in the famous high diving horse show on the ocean end of Steel Pier.

Miss Olive Gelnau, 19, an expert horseback rider since her childhood in Oradell, N.J., and Miss Marion Hackney, 19, swimming and diving star here for the past several years, taught their talents to each other after being selected for the act by Lorena Carver, veteran diving horse trainer.

Twice a day, each girl rides one of three horses bareback while the steed plunges from a tower into a 12-foot deep tank of fresh water. When the horse hits the water, the girl quickly swims away while the horse ambles up a runway out of the pool. There, the steed poses for a rubdown by Miss Carver.

Plunges 45 Feet

The act was a feature attraction a Steel Pier from 1878 to 1946, when it was retired temporarily. Miss Carver, who discovered only three good performers out of 87 horses trained in Texas revived the act early this summer.

The best performing horse is named Dimah. He makes the 45-foot dive, while the other horses perform from 25 feet. Miss Carver claims it costs $10,000 to train a horse for the 45-foot plunge.

The bathing-suit clad riders were hired for $100 a week after Miss Carver advertised for applicants throughout the East. Miss Gelnau and Miss Hackney learned their work after only two practice dives, according to their boss. Miss Hackney, incidentally, knows all about the work—she suffered 28 fractures during her career as a high-diving jockey.

Stanky Signs Three Year Contract

Eddie Stanky (right), manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, and August A. Busch, Jr., president of the club, read over a new 3-year contract calling for a salary believed to be in excess of $40,000. The contract is effective next year and extends through 1956. (AP Wirephoto)

Battersea Bull Downs Harry 'The Kid' On Points

SEATTLE, Wash. (UP)— Don Cockell, heavyweight champion of the British Empire, leveled his sights at the world's title today after scoring a comeback split-decision victory over Harry (Kid) Matthews in 10 vicious rounds here Friday night.

Cockell, the Bull of Battersea, flattened Matthews three times with wicked left hooks in the ninth round to pull what appeared to be a losing effort out of the fire.

For Matthews the loss apparently put him into boxing's oblivion. As one of boxing's greatest build-ups, he crumbled for the second time—the first was before Rocky Marciano in New York a year ago.

Cockell, at 211 1-2 pounds, was too much bulk for Matthews to handle. The Seattle fighter entered the ring at 180.

Matthews took command in the sixth with a smashing left hook that ripped a three-inch cut under Cockell's left eye. Then Haryr, sighting the bloody target, jabbed the nglishman with a left hand that looked for awhile like it might stop the fight.

Cockell came out in the ninth and nailed Matthews with a left hook to the mid-section that doubled Matthews up and sent him to the canvas for a count of eight. Matthews got up, but another left hook decked him again, for a nine count.

Cockell brought another left hook from the floor that landed flush on Matthews open jaw, sending him flying back across the ring. He rolled off the ropes and barely staggered to his feet at the count of nine.

Only One Entry Against Tom Fool

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y. (UP) — Greentree Stable's Tom Fool faced only one horse today as he went after his eighth straight victory of the year in the $25,000 Whitney Stakes at Saratoga.

Of all the handicap stars, only Putman Stable's Combat Boots was named to match strides with the New York - owned speedburner in the mile-and-a-quarter event.

Because of the shortage of starters, no wagering will be allowed on the Whitney, which will be run off as the seventh event on a nine-race program. Tom Fool will carry 126 pounds, including his steady pilot, Ted Atkinson. Combat Boots, with Gene Rodriquez up, will tote 114 pounds.

Wes After Record In London Mile

LONDON (UP)—Wes Santee of the University of Kansas will be out to shatter the world's record for the mile run today as the British games get under way at London's White City Track.

Santee, whose best time to date is 4:02.4, is the heavy favorite to capture the 'Emsley Carr" trophy for the international mile. Sweden's Gunder Hagg holds the present record with 4:01.4.

Sweden's Ingvar Ericsson, who has a 4:03.6 timing to his name, is a sure starter while Mal Whitfield of the United States, two-time Olympic 800-meter champion who is entered for both the half-mile and mile, may be an added starter. Whitfield, who is the favorite for the half-mile run, will decide before meet time which event he will compete in as 15 men's track and field events will be decided in all.

Lady Swimmers Break Records

PORTLAND, Ore. (UP)—American AAU officials today prepared to rewrite the record books following the opening round of the national women's swimming and diving championships which saw oe [illegible]'s mark and three American records shattered in four events.

Carolyn Green, a tireless freshman from Florida's Miami University, was the darling of the opening program yesterday after splashing a mile in 23:03.4. The recognized world's record of 23:11.5 was set in Helsinki, Finland, by R. Hveger of Denmark in 1938.

The three American records were broken by Barbara Stark, San Francisco, with a 2:45.7 in the 220-yard backstroke; Gail Peters, Washington, D. C., with 4:21.7 in the 330-yard individual medley; and Judy Roberts, Indianapolis, Ind., with 1:07.9 in the 110-yard freestyle.

Miss Green, who swims for the Fort Lauderdale Swim Club, was not even pressed in setting her new mark over the 55-yard long Jantzen Btach pool, dubbed by many as a "record setter's paradise."

"I'm not a bit tired," Miss Green said as she was awarded the medal symbolic of the national championship. Slightly more than an hour earlier she had finished fifth in the 110-yard freestyle.

Walter Reed of Washington, vaulted into an early lead with 30 points, followed by Fort Lauderdale with 15 and defending champion LaFayette, Ind., seven.

Grecian Queen In Monmouth Race

OCEANPORT, N. J. (UP) — Grecian Queen, Mrs. Ben F. Whitaker's dark bay thoroughbred, gets a chance to clinch the 1953 three-year-old filly championship today when she meets eight other fillies in the $50,000 Monmouth Oaks.

Grecian Queen won the $100,000 New Castle Handicap at Delaware Park, the richest race ever offered for female thoroughbreds, in her last start and figures to be an even-money favorite.

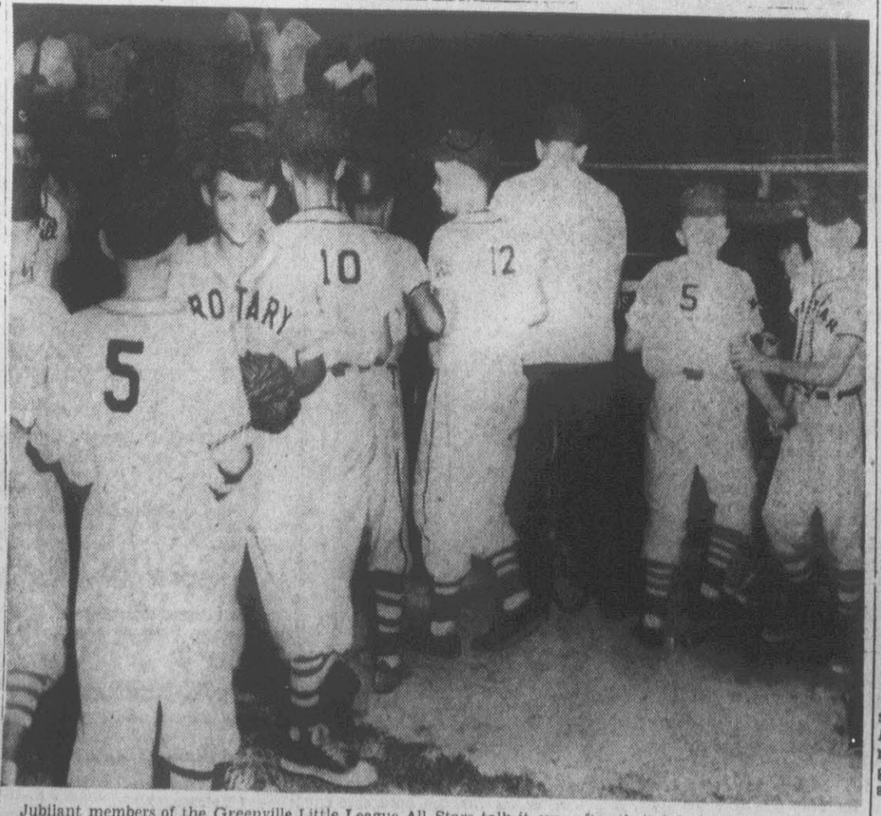

Grecian Queen whipped older fillies and mares in the New Castle. She goes into the race at the top of the three-year-old filly division on the strength of her triumphs in the Prioress, Coaching Club American Oaks and Gazelle Stakes races.

Funeral Held For Ladies Day Man

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—Funeral services were held here today for Abner Powell, 92, the grand old man of baseball who gave the game Ladies' Day, the rain check and the infield tarpaulin.

Powell, who had been bedridden with a heart ailment for almost two months, suffered a stroke Thursday after a hard day of work in the hot sun. He died here Friday.

Powell was born in Shenandoah, Pa., the son of a Welch coal miner.

Jubilant members of the Greenville Little League All-Stars talk it over after their 2-1 victory over Kinston last Thursday evening. The win gave Greenville the District title.

Reynolds In Relief Role As Yanks Top Chisox 6-1; Indians Lose To Boston

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK UP) — Once the Yankees got out of trouble with a Reynolds-Page combination. Now all Manager Casey Stengel does is page Reynolds.

That looked like the new stretch run formula for the Yankees today as they swaggered into a double header with the White Sox, six full games in front and eager to turn the pennant race into a cake walk.

And the key man was Allie Reynolds, who cuts the heart out of the opposition with his mow-down relief pitching. He did it again Friday as the Yankees took the opener of the big series, 6-1. Mickey Mantle supplied the big punch with a three-run, inside-the-park homer. Yogi Berra and Billy Martin also hit homers to account for the other runs.

Lefty Ed Lopat was the victor and he pitched six-hit ball for seven innings. Then, when his arm "tightened up on me a little," Stengel called in Reynolds.

"I didn't know if Lopat was in trouble or not, I just wanted to get the big guy in there," explained Stengel with a grin and a wink. "And he shut 'em off pretty good, too, didn't he?"

Although Stengel wouldn't commit himself flatly, he indicated that Reynolds would be used entirely for relief jobs from now on and he'll bring him in even if the starter isn't in any special jam.

That moves the wheel a full cycle for Allie, the 36-year-old right hander who came to the Yankees from Cleveland and promptly established a reputation for being a pptcher who couldn't go the distance. That was when Joe Page was the king of the relief hurlers and he did the mopping up for Allie. When Page faded, Reynolds became a combination starter and reliever, working in the bullpen between turns. But now apparently, it is relief all the way.

That it will be up to the White Sox to stop the Yankees if anybody can, became more apparent when the skidding Indians dropped a 4-2 decision to Boston to fall 10 1-2 games behind in third place. Mel Parnell pitched six-hit ball and drove in three runs with two singles for his 15th victory although Bob Avila and Luke Easter touched him for homers and he had to have relief help from Ellis Kinder.

In other American League games, the Athletics topped the Tigers, 3-1, on Alex Kellner's seven-hitter as Gus Zernial hit his 27th homer while Washington drubbed the Browns, 12-0. Connie Marrero pitched three-hit ball and Clyde Vollmer started him off with a homer.

The Dodgers pounded out 14 hits to defeat Cincinnati, 9-4, as lefty Johnny Podres struck out nine and Carl Furillo and Duke Snider hit homers. Andy Seminick homered for Cincinnati.

Milwaukee stayed 7 1-2 games behind with a 9-2 victory over Pittsburgh, while in other National League games the Cards edged the Giants, 2-1, and the Phils topped the Cubs, 5-4.

Vernon Bickford, virtually forgotten, came out of the bullpen to win his second game of the year for Milwaukee holding the Pirates to five hits. Del Crandall hit a Milwaukee homer.

Lefty Wilmer Mizell pitched the Cards to a six-hit triumph for his 10th victory. Stan Musial's first inning homer kept him in front until Steve Bilko drove in the winning run in the fourth with a single off Ruben Gomez.

The Phils piled up a 5-0 lead as Ted Kazanski whacked a two-run double for a leading blow in the first inning and Del Ennis and Gran Hamner singled home other tallies in the fifth. Ralph Kiner and Eddie Miksis hit homers for Chicago. Kiner's was his 27th.

Britisher Says Ben Tops; 'Plays Like A Youngster'

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)— Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:

Despite Lloyd Mangrum's derision of Ben Hogan's right to the title of golf's greatest, the British feel that if the mighty mite isn't the best of all time he'd be right there in a photo finish.

One of the highest compliments ever received by Hogan, who will be 41 Thursday, comes from Lord Barbazon. The head of the Royal and Ancient Club at St. Andrews, commenting on Hogan's possible return to play in the British Open said:

"If he comes back, I think he safely could leave our cup at home because I don't think he would lose it. What if he is 41? He plays as if he still is a youngster."...Lord, ain't it the truth...

There has been speculation that Bob Feller, with a current 6-6 mark, might call it a career after this season but Manager Al Lopez' high regard makes it doubtful even though the erstwhile Rapid Robert no longer is a member of the Tribe's ig Four.

"Bob has pitched some real good ball games," Lopez said. "If I didn't have four pitchers who can take their regular turn with ease, Bob still could pitch in turn."...

The most wide open sporting event of the year will be decided Aug. 21 at Dayton, O., when the Grand American Handicap trap-shooting champion is crowned. This will be the 54th championship and it is so unpredictable that no champion ever has repeated...

Trotting may have gone big time but Goshen, home of the famed Hambletonian, hasn't. There will be a crowd of 40,000 at the big race Wednesday—and the population of 4,000 remaining when it's over...They like it that way, too, and if you've ever been to Goshen you wouldn't blame 'em...

Indiana basketball Coach Branch McCracken was discussing a likely prospect and glowed: "He's a good student."

"How do you know?" he was asked.

"He must be," McCracken replied, "because he's seven feet tall!"...which seems to be a perfect example of wishful thinking...

Seixas Out Of Tourney As Richardson Survives

Court Comer . . . . . by Pap'

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J. (UP)—Ham Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., only surviving U. S. star, opposed Australia's Rex Hartwig today in the semi-final round of the Eastern Grass Court tennis championship.

Australia's Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad met in the other semi-final match.

Richardson, the national intercollegiate champion, reached the semi-finals with a 6-3, 6-2, victory over Noel Brown of Los Angeles, Calif., while a trio of more famous U. S. stars were eliminated. Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, Tony Trabert of Cincinnati and Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., all bowed in the series of upsets.

Seixas, Wimbledon champion, was eliminated by Rex Hartwig of Australia, 9-11, 6-3, 7-5; Trabert was defeated by Rosewall, 6-4, 7-5, and Mulloy bowed to Hoad, 4-6, 8-6, 6-4.

In the women's play, Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., meets Shirley Fry of Akron, O., for the title. Miss Hart beat Helen Fletcher of Great Britain, 7-5, 6-2, while Miss Fry defeated Angela Mortimer of Great Britain, 6-1, 7-5.

Labor Relations Panel Submits Suggestions

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UP) — A special labor relations panel will submit its recommendations to President Eisenhower after completing its study of a wage dispute involving 3,500 AFL craftsmen at atomic installations here.

Father Leo Brown of St. Louis, acting chairman of the group said last night after completion of a seven-hour hearing that "the panel will study the data which has been presented" before presenting them to the President.

"But it is impossible to predict when the panel will be ready with its recommendations," he added.

President Eisenhower appointed the panel, which has only power to recommend a settlement, to meet late labor troubles at atomic plants.

The craftsmen, members of the AFL Atomic Trades and Labor Council, struck last week in a demand for a 10 ½ cent per hour wage increase after Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Co., operator of atomic facilities for the Atomic Energy Commission, refused to pay more than five cents.

Some 6,500 AFL construction workers on a new multi-million dollar plant refused to cross picket lines set up by the striking workers, causing a two-day general strike — the first in history at atomic installations here.

Monkeys Peeping In City's Windows

DAVENPORT, Ia. (UP)—Residents of Davenport were advised today to think nothing of it if they see monkeys peering in the window.

Ten Rhesus monkeys escaped from the zoo at Ferjervary Park when attendants drained and cleaned their lagoon.

"They'll get hungry soon and go leaping back to the island," said park Superintendent Emil Plambech. "Meanwhile, just take it easy."

Slow But Sure

HARTFORD, Conn. (UP.) — The rectory mortgage for St. James Episcopal Church is being paid off in a unique manner. Before every meal in every home in the church parish each member of the family drops a penny into a small pence can that is standard equipment on the table along with the salt and pepper shakers.

President Reports Accomplishments Of 83rd Congress

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower in his radio report to the nation credited the Republican-controlled 83rd Congress with these accomplishments:

"A revised defense program for a reorganized Defense Department working on a reduced defense budget.

"Reorganization of whose government departments;

"Revised plans to help arm our allies in freedom;

"Short-term extension of onerous but needed taxes;

"Indefinite lifting of futile economic controls;

"Emergency aid to drought-stricken areas of our own land;

"Extension of legislation to aid and increase our commerce with the peoples of all lands

"Wheat to feed Pakistan

"Programs to rebuild Korea;

"Simplication of customs regulations;

"Admission of refugees:

"Enactment of a multitude of normal appropriation bills."

Milk Gets Into Manila Politics As Major Issue

MANILA (AP)—The birth of triplets on Cantanduances island off the southeast tip of Luzon touched off a local political issue which threatened their survival.

The head of the local social welfare commission refused to issue relief milk to the triplets. He claimed the voiding of President Elpidio Quirino's controversial emergency powers prevented him from doing so.

The impoverished parents of the triplets — all girls — next turned to the Red Cross branch in Virac for help. But it had run out of stock.

Then a commercial firm in Manila heard of the plight of the harrassed parents. The firm sent 192 tins of canned milk and it was delivered by a Philippines Airlines plane, free of charge.

Tax Prepayments 28 Per Cent Of Total Levy

Prepayments of 1953 city real and personal property taxes have amounted to 28 per cent of the total levy for this year, a report for the month of July from the city clerk's office has disclosed.

Total amount collected during the month on the 1953 levy came to $31,177.68 with $1,568.82 listed in discounts. This left about 72 per cent left to be collected on this year's levy estimated at $289,113.14 based on last year's valuations for corporate excess.

The percentage was slightly lower than the ratio of $97,007.43 collected through July last year on 1952 taxes when the tax rate was $1.50 as compared with only $1.25 this year.

City Clerk H. H. Duncan said if the amounts already received in prepayments for corporate excess were included, this year's collections would about reach the 30 per cent total 1952 takenin through July last year.

Discount rates for prepayments have dropped to one per cent and will remain at this figure through August.

Meanwhile, the city received additionally $2,094.80 in prior years' taxes during July. A breakdown of this figure shows the amount was distributed over the years as follows: 1952, $1,804.40; 1951, $273.20; 1850, .6.70; 1949, $2.50; 1948, $8.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH

In Police Court, Friday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Norwood Conway of Greenville guilty of non-support and being a public nuisance.

The defendant has a wife and five young children. He is a regular offender in Police Court over a long number of years, the record shows.

For being a public nuisance, the court gave Conway six months on the roads. For non-support of his family also gave him six months. Sentence is to be suspended on condition that Conway present himself and gain admission to Hebron Colony for Alcoholics in Western North Carolina or some other alcoholics cure institution. The court retained the case for further order.

The court found Ronnie Lee Williams not guilty of abandonment and non-support of his family.

Elbert Lee Pollard, assault on a female, 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of court costs. The judgment provides that he is to remain of good behavior and not molest or harm his wife.

Lonnie L. Whitehurst, Negro, was found guilty of forcible trepass and assault with a deadly weapon on Naomi McCray, Negro, 1215 Clark street. The court gave him six months on the road, sentence suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted. The judgment also provides that he is not to threaten or harm Naomi McCray, Negro.

Assault: Maggie House, Negro, not guilty. Dallas Mae Davis, Negro, 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $5 to Dr. Jospeh Smith's Clinic and $10 to Georgia Joyner, Negro. Georgia Joyner, Negro, 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $5 on court costs and $20 to Maggie House for eyeglasses.

Louis Tyson, Negro, no operator's license, prayer for judgment continued on payment of $15 on costs. For improper passing a vericle, the court gave Tyson 30 days suspended on payment of costs. The judgment also provides that he is not to drive a motor vehicle until he makes restitution to Vance Briely, Jr., for property damage.

Francis Dancey, drunk, 30 days in jail or pay $10; Claude Wooten, $10 for being drunk.

Pitt County Jail Has 59 Prisoners

A total of 59 prisoners were admitted to the Pitt County jail during July, a monthly report by W. G. Leggett, County jailor, disclosed today.

Of this number 25, or almost half, were the result of investigations and arrests by the county sheriff's office. Seventeen remained incarcerated on the last date as compared with 11 in jail on the first.

Others brought in were accounted for a follows: one bound over from Greenville Recorder's court; eight from recorder's court for delivery; one bound over from Farmville Recorder"s court; two bound over from Ayden Recorder's court; 16 from arrests by the State Highway Patrol; two from arrests by the county A. B. C. board; and four were arrests of the county constable.

ExchangeMembers Attend Convention

At the Greenville Exchange Club's supper meeting at the Woman's Club last night, President Jake Hadley announced that four members will represent the club at the state convention at Wrightsville Beach August 14-16.

President Hadley and A. B. Whitley, Jr., are delegates, and Secretary Treasurer J. R. Newell is alternate.

Sam O. Worthington, treasurer of the State Exchange, is in line for the vice-presidency of the State Exchange.

Jimmy Wells, chairman of a special committee, is making arrangements to entertain the Exchange Club's Little League baseball team in the near future.

Approval Is Granted To Buy New Truck

Approval for a new garbage truck for the Greenville city streets department has been granted by the city council with authorization to advertise for bids.

City attorney Raleigh B. Lee was requested to prepare the advertisement which will appear in the local press and copies of specifications will be sent to trade journals.

Superintendent C. K. Beatty said today the new truck will be a packer-type vehicle, replacing an older truck which has worn out. Specifications call for a 13-yard enclosed body, which will handle about two and a half times as much garbage as those now in use.

The city council also has given approval for three new taxi permits. Applicants granted permission to operate cabs on Greenville streets are: William D. O'Neal, Dalton E. Justice, and Cecil Bryant Whaley of Farmville. Norman Edward Tripp of Railroad Street was granted a temporary permit extending for 30 days, and was instructed by the council to report back at the next meeting for its consideration of an extension.

Action on a fifth application was deferred by the board to the next meeting for Henry W. Anderson.

Three applications for taxi franchise also were postponed pending compliance by the applicants with terms of the city ordinance requiring publishing of a notice that a franchise being sought 30 days before council action.

Those seeking franchises are W. W. Ballenger, Larry James Early and William R. Stokes.

In other matters taken up, the board referred back to the board of adjustment for a written recommendation a request by T. D. Clanton, superintendent, for a new Esso Standard Oil Company service station at the corner of Fifth and Harding.

It also instructed City Clerk H. H. Duncan to write a letter to L. R. Pettet, operator of a bus service in Greenville, informing him that insurance on his buses would expire August 10 and that additional insurance must be taken out subject to discontinuance of operation.

The council approved an ordinance submitted by Chief S. G. Gibbs of the police department restricting operation of itinerant photographers in the city.

Patrick O'Brien Wonders Whether Travels Are Over

GENOA, Italy (UP) — Michael Patrick O'Brien, the 20th Century "man without a country," was on the high seas today bound for Brazil but still wondering whether his travels were over.

O'Brien, who shuttled for 10 months on a ferryboat between Hong Kong and Macao, sailed from here last night aboard the liner Bretagnt.

"Please leave me alone," he told reporters nervously at the dock. "My traveling is not over yet."

He glumly boarded the ship accompanied by 30 White Russian refugees who arrived with him at Rome Monday on the same plane from Hong Kong.

Although he has no passport, his only comment was he still considered himself an American. He was traveling with a certificate of the International Refugee Organization.

One of the Russians said O'Brien has a wife and a son waiting for him in Brazil. Mrs. O'Brien is a White Russian, the friend said.

For lack of a passport, O'Brien spent 315 days aboard the ferryboat "Lee Hong" and traveled nearly 24,000 miles between Macao and Hong Kong. He was refused permission to land at either port.

Finally the IRO offered him a certificate to travel to South America with a group of Russians who were to be resettled in Brazil.

Border Averages Show Increase

RALEIGH (UP)—Average prices went up from 25 cents to $5 per hundred pounds on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina flue-cured tobacco markets yesterday as demand strengthened slightly for lower quality lugs, primings and nondescript.

Cutters, leaf and top quality lugs were unchanged from Thursday, and the quality of offerings improved because of a larger percentage of good leaf and less low primings. The proportions of leaf jumped sharply with less primings and cutters.

The U. S. and North Carolina departments of agriculture reported principal marketings in low to good lugs, low and fair primings, fair and good leaf, nondescript and low cutters.

Thursday's gross sales came to 5,237,421 pounds at an average price of $52.50 per hundred, 40 cents higher than Wednesday. Season sales were pushed to 27,876,363 pounds averaging $51.99.

President Runs Over Paper Work Before Vacation

By MERRIMAN SMITH

Eisenhower whisked through last-minute paper work with a carefree air today as he prepared to shed the heat and frustrations of the Capital for a vacation in Colorado.

There would still be work to do, on more than 100 unsigned bills and other government problems. But with the trout streams and golf links beckoning, there was no putting down that holiday feeling.

Mr. and Mrs. Eisenhower and their party will fly to Denver in the presidential plane Columbine.

The first family expected to spend most of its time in Denver at the home of Mrs. John S. Doud, Mrs. Eisenhower's mother. But the President also planned to maintain offices at nearby Lowry Air Force Base and to visit a ranch in the mountains near Fraser.

Mr. Eisenhower helped clear the way for the trip by signing 10 major bills Friday, including the $6,650,000,000 foreign aid program and the $200,000,000 first installment on South Korean rehabilitation.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the Eisenhowers will stay in the centennial state for an indefinite period. Only a serious national or international development, he said would prompt them to return to Washington in less than three weeks.

Local Kiwanians Hear J. W. Butler

At the Kiwanis Club's supper meeting last night, James W. Butler, alumni secretary for East Carolina College, spoke informally about the scholarship foundation at the college.

Butler explained the purpose of the foundation, outlined the plan of action, and predicted that it will be a success. He said he holds an optimistic outlook about Greenville's prospects for steady development, and urged the Kiwanians to continue their good community work. J. C. Clifford Jr. had charge of the program. President Leo W. Jenkins presided.

The president announced that the Kiwanis directors, at a recent meeting, had authorized cooperation in support of the Little League baseball games to be played at Elm Street Park this month.

State Highway Cpl. C. E. Whitfield of Greenville, emissary from patrol headquarters in Raleigh, spoke briefly. He said the patrol is visiting various civic and other organizations and seeking their cooperation in the statewide safety program.

Past Kiwanis Lieut.-Gov. Sam Bundy of Farmville was a guest of the club. Buck Johnson had a birthday and donated a dime for each year of his age. Ted Ashworth won the attendance prize. Secretary David C. Moore Jr., who is regaining his health, was at the meeting last night.

Ornithologists now believe that the short-tailed albatross of the Pacific Ocean may have followed the dodo, the great auk and the Labrador duck into extinction.

95-Year-Old Man Rides Motorcycle

MARKET LAVINGTON, England (UP) — George Dobson, will have to wait until he is 98 years old before he can ride his motorcycle again.

Dobson, 95, got a three-year suspension of his drivers license after he collided with a car while trying to hang on to a bottle of liquor slipping out of his pocket.

Meet Tuesday

A meeting of all Greenville men's apparel dealers will be held Tuesday August 11, at 1 p. m. at the Olde Town Inn.

Theater Shows 'Legion At Bat'

"The Legion At Bat", a short movie, showing the activities of the American Legion in sponsoring baseball for boys, will be shown at a local theater next Monday and Tuesday.

Pitt County Post No. 39, is interested in forming a team for Greenville boys next season to play in a league composed of boys from neighboring towns. Post Commander Ed Harris said the team would probably be composed of boys who are no longer eligible to play in the Little League or Pony League. He urged Legionaires to see the film.

Thursday Meeting

The Greenville Furniture Dealers Association will meet on Thursday, August 13, at 7, p. m. at the Silo Grill. According to Chairman R. W. Davenport, there are many matters of importance to be discussed. He urges full attendance.
