Former Mayor Is Among Blood Donors

Grifton's former Mayor, Roger Johnson, was among the many who thronged to donate blood in that community yesterday. A total of 118 pints of blood were collected by the Bloodmobile which is visiting in Greenville today. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

U.S. Secret Agents Sail On Troopship With Freed GIs

By AL KAFF United Press Staff Correspondent INCHON, Korea (UP) — The first Americans freed from Red Prison camps by the Korean truce sailed for home today. Aboard the troopship Gen. Nelson K. Walker, when it lifted anchor, were 228 recently-freed Americans. The sailing was marred by the grave suspicion, raised by several of the released men, that Americans converted to communism and pledged to work for it at home were among the returnees. Because of these suspicions, trained counter-intelligence agents also sailed aboard the vessel — their mission to ferret out any Yanks tainted with Red ideologies. Also aboard were about 1,000 regular troops, homeward bound on normal rotation.

ers vowed vengeance against the "rats" who accepted communism and became stool pigeons for their Chinese captors. A Navy spokesman said the Nelson Walker would reach San Francisco Aug. 24. The men aboard were the first former prisoners freed in "Operation Big Switch" to leave for home by ship. A plane left Tokyo yesterday with 17 men too ill to travel by surface transportation. On their last day within sight of Korea where they suffered Communist brutality for months and years, the returnees learned to relax without fear of Red police. Many rested comfortably on clean white sheets and others basked on the hot deck of the gray-blue two stacker. They played cards and read American magazines. Some of the periodicals were months old but new to these men who had been fed a reading diet of the London and New York Daily Workers. Chow call was sounded at 12:30 p. m. and Cpl. Walter O. Moore, 24, Statesboro, Ga., was first in line. The repatriates filed past a steam table where rotators on KP filled their stainless steel trays with soup, meat loaf, carrots, corn, vegetable salad, ice cream and cookies. Other KPs poured cups of ice-cold lemonade and hot coffee. They will eat a special, nourishing diet on the homeward trip so they can gradually build up the bodies that wasted on rice, cracked corn and millet for almost three years.

President Would Avoid Recalling Of Congress Urges Economizing

By MERRIMAN SMITH United Press White House Writer DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower today asked government department heads to cut expenses as much as possible to head off the need for a special session of Congress this fall to raise the federal debt limit. The President, from his summer headquarters here, sent a letter to all department and agency heads calling for an immediate economy campaign, plus "substantial reductions" in their planned expenditures for fiscal 1955. Press secretary James C. Hagerly said the President's letter was an effort to avoid having to call this fall, but he said the White House was "by no means" certain that sufficient economies could be put into effect to avoid a special session. In his letter the President said: "It is absolutely essential that you begin immediately to take every possible step progressively to reduce the expenditures of your department during the fiscal year 1954. "In addition to this action you will be expected to make substantial reductions in your requests for new appropriations and in the level of your expenditures for the fiscal year 1955, beyond those already indicated for the fiscal year 1954." The White House disclosed at the same time that Budget Director Joseph Dodge today notified all department heads that they were to submit their 1955 budget estimates to him by Oct. 1. The President's new economy campaign was disclosed as he conferred here with Adm. Arthur W. Radford, incoming chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Radford does not replace Gen. Omar Bradley until the middle of this month, but he flew here to start what will be for him a new weekly assignment — briefing the President on world developments as seen through the eyes of the Defense Department. Hagerly said the President gave the departments no dollars-and-cents target to shoot at, leaving it to the individual department head to accomplish as much as possible. "Ever since the date of the inauguration, every member of this administration has been dedicated to the purposes of efficiency and economy in government," the President said. "Now that Congress is adjourned, it is time to attack the problem with renewed vigor." He had asked the GOP leadership for an increase in the $276,000,000 federal debt limit shortly before Congress adjourned, but his request was dropped in the adjournment drive. Indicating the urgency of the President's desire to avoid a special session, was his concluding instruction: "It is imperative that we emphasize a critical review and maximum feasible reductions of expenditures in areas which have attracted the attention and concern of the Congress and of the public as possible sources of waste, inefficiency, duplication, and excessive or non-essential costs."

U.S. Appeal For Truce Violation Charges Possible May Ask UN To Take Action

WASHINGTON (UP) — The United States may ask the United Nations to accuse the Communists of violating the Korean truce if they fail to return all prisoners of war, including those convicted of so-called crimes. Officials said a U.N. appeal is one of several steps under consideration. They said no final decision will be made until more evidence is obtained about the way the Reds are carrying out the POW exchange. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who arrived Monday night from an eight-day trip to the Far East, made it plain that the United States is prepared to get tough with the Reds if they withhold any United Nations prisoners for any reason. He said, however, that it is too early yet to know for sure whether any POW's are actually being withheld. Returning G.I.'s are bringing back reports that the Communists are withholding some U.N. prisoners because they have been convicted of instigating insurrection. Questioned about these reports, Dulles said "precautionary measures" are being considered to make sure all U.N. prisoners are freed. He noted that there are a "considerable number" of North Koreans and Red Chinese in U.N. custody who have been convicted of serious crimes. "Naturally," he said, "they would not be returned until the prisoners who have been sentenced by the Communists are returned to us." Dulles stressed that the reports are coming from returning Americans who have spent months in Red prison camps. Many of them

Donors Line Up At Bloodmobile

The blood started flowing at 9:51 this morning here in Greenville. At that time, today's American Red Cross blood drive was under way at the first donor began to give his pint of blood. Exactly at 9:30, the blue station wagon with the big blue truck emblazoned with the Red Cross insignia pulled up to St. Paul's Episcopal Church, scene of the drive. Soon, the steel cots were set up inside the church. Next came the large black boxes marked "Human Blood—Rush—This Side Up—Fragile" and the instruments and cases of empty containers. Nurses and volunteer workers arrived to set up processing and registration of donors. By 9:30 several prospective donors had arrived, and the job of registration and examination began. Several were turned down; their blood deficient or their physical health inadequate. At 11:30 a.m. today, 39 persons had each donated a pint of blood, and there were 12 waiting in line for their turn. Those in charge of the bloodmobile anticipated a larger number of blood donors during the early afternoon. The first person to give blood in today's program was H. Lloyd Mills, of 1004 Ward Street, a post-office employee. He said he felt "fine" after giving his pint of blood although today marked his initial experience.

Among the early donors were Thomas Webb, local insurance man, and Dr. Wallace J. Wolverton, pastor of St. Paul's Church. Webb has given blood each time the bloodmobile has visited Greenville. None of the blood collected today will be used in making plasma; all will go to whole blood for hospitals in this region. Some may be used for gamma globulin manufacture to fight polio. Blood donated today will be taken to Norfolk tonight by truck. That city is regional headquarters for this section, and is known as the Tidewater Regional Blood Center. Dr. Walter C. Humbert, County Health Officer, in charge of the local program, expressed satisfaction with early progress and said he believes the 170-pint quota will be met by the 3:30 p.m. deadline.

Peiping Claims But 1,050 Died In Prison Camps Reds Deny Huge Death Toll

FREEDOM VILLAGE, Korea (UP)—Peiping radio claimed today that only 1,050 American and other non-Korean prisoners died in Communist captivity but returning prisoners said the toll was much higher. Sgt. James Dixon of Hampton, Va., figured that between 1,800 and 1,900 prisoners died in Camp No. 5. "At Death Valley, they carried out 100 to 200 every day," Dixon said. "That does not include the men who died on the march." Sgt. Howard T. Bates, 32, of Detroit, Mich., said dying Americans were given "mercy" shots that killed within minutes. Bates said men "died like flies from starvation" in 1951. "They fed us regular field corn that you give to hogs," he said. "It cut the men's bowels. They stopped eating and started to die. Ten to 15 died every day. I know because I was on the burial detail. We were so weak it took four men to hold a stretcher. It was dog eat dog. If we dug the graves deep, we might die. So we dug them about six inches deep and put rocks and snow on the top." Bates said he watched the "mercy shots" being given men. "They only gave them to men who were going to die anyway," Bates said. "You could tell when Other estimates by returning prisoners have ranged upward to more than 4,000 but a careful analysis indicated the number would fall between 2,000 or 4,000. Sgt. Charles L. Cooke, 26, of Matthews, Va., said he had a list of 1,425 prisoners who starved or died of malnutrition from January to May, 1951, before the Communists took the roster from him. The Virginia Negro said he worked in the "general hospital" in the infamous Camp No. 5 at Pyoktong and took down the name of each man after he died. Cooke estimated that "2,000—maybe more" died in Camp No. 5.

a man was going to die, leaving it to the individual department head to accomplish as much as possible. "Ever since the date of the inauguration, every member of this administration has been dedicated to the purposes of efficiency and economy in government," the President said. "Now that Congress is adjourned, it is time to attack the problem with renewed vigor." He had asked the GOP leadership for an increase in the $276,000,000 federal debt limit shortly before Congress adjourned, but his request was dropped in the adjournment drive. Indicating the urgency of the President's desire to avoid a special session, was his concluding instruction: "It is imperative that we emphasize a critical review and maximum feasible reductions of expenditures in areas which have attracted the attention and concern of the Congress and of the public as possible sources of waste, inefficiency, duplication, and excessive or non-essential costs."

Berlin Surrounded By Heavily Armed Police

BERLIN (UP) — The East German government in Berlin with heavily armed police today to halt a final rush for "Eisenhower food parcels" before next Saturday's deadline. Food-seekers who ran the tightest blockade said Communist police armed with machine pistols stopped Berlin-bound traffic 60 miles from the city and turned back thousands of hungry East Germans. Police were said to be patrolling secondary roads and checking trucks, bicycles and pedestrians to enforce the ban on picking up free food in West Berlin. Reinforced police guards rode all trains into the city. Other police units backed by Communist strong-arm squads patrolled railway and elevated stations in Berlin suburbs. However, an estimated 100,000 of the free parcels were distributed today, about half of them to residents of the Soviet zone outside of Berlin. They brought the total for the 17 days of the program to about 250,000 free food parcels distributed. The number was expected to climb sharply between now and Saturday when the distribution will stop for under way. Communist authorities also adopted terror as a weapon in a fight to save their harvest and avert starvation. The Neue Zeitung, U. S. High Commission newspaper, reported

Scott Is Hunting 350,000 Votes

CHARLOTTE (UP) — Former Gov. W. Kerr Scott looked more and more like a candidate for the U. S. Senate today following a brief trip here to "survey" his strength and support in Mecklenburg County. Scott refused to make a definite statement as to whether he would enter the Democratic primary for the Senate seat. But he said "things look better now" than they did before he began his successful bid to become governor. The Haw River dairy farmer repeated that he was looking for "350,000 votes I can count on" and financial support amounting to $125,000. Meanwhile Sen. Alton A. Lennon prepared for a "get acquainted" tour of the state including more than 60 stops. He refused, however, to call it the beginning of an all-out campaign. Scott said he would make no definite announcement until after the first of the year.

French Strikes Seen Spreading

PARIS (UP) — More than 1,000 government workers and employees in nationalized industries were on strike today in a spreading work stoppage which crippled railway, postal, telephone, telegraph, and gas services. Coal production also was severely hit by refusal of miners to enter the pits. Gas service was reduced to a trickle. Subway and bus workers debated a renewal of their weekend walkout. Ground service personnel at airports voted a 24-hour walkout. Merchant seamen at Marseille already were out and employees of the nationalized electric system warned they would stay home. The strikes and slowdown were labor's answer to the economy measures proposed by the right-wing government of Premier Joseph Laniel. He called, employing decree-making powers granted it by the National Assembly, had published a number of orders aimed at streamlining the swollen French bureaucracy and putting nationalized industries on a profitable basis. Included were measures providing for tougher retirement and pension qualifications, more rigid job requirements and higher rents. Labor accepted these decrees as the burden of Laniel's efforts to get France back on its economic feet. The rail workers began heeding a call by Communist and Socialist unions for an indefinite walkout this morning. Lack of commuter trains skyrocketed absenteeism among the staffs of offices and factories.

Authority On Russia Is Against U. S. Meddling

WASHINGTON (UP)—Former ambassador to Russia George F. Kennan believes the United States should resist the temptation to fish in the troubled waters of Russia's Communist empire. He fears that any meddling by this country may help, rather than hinder, Russia's efforts to put down unrest in satellite countries. Kennan, who is widely regarded as a foremost American authority on the Soviet Union, expressed his views Monday in the first major public speech he has made since retiring from the foreign service last spring. It was delivered before a conference on "The Problem of Soviet Imperialism" sponsored by the Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies. Kennan did not refer directly to

Earthquake Hits Towns In Greece

ATHENS, Greece (UP)—Unconfirmed reports said today at least 30 persons were feared dead and many injured in an earthquake which hit coastal towns 120 miles west of Athens early today. Reports relayed to Athens from the stricken area by the steamer Glaros said the region was the scene of great devastation. The coastal town of Sami was worst hit, the reports said.

Complains Ike's Handicap High

DENVER (UP) — Colorado Gov. Dan Thornton has issued a complaint against President Eisenhower. He wants the President's golf handicap chopped down from 17 strokes to 11. In a match on the Cherry Hills Country Club course here yesterday the President fired a net 66 of the par 72 course, while Thornton with a 73 stroke handicap scored a net 75. The Colorado governor conceded the President, whose putting was termed "masterful," had been a "little too sharp" for him.

Carolinians

FREEDOM VILLAGE, Korea (UP)—The following Americans from North Carolina were released today by the Communists in the POW exchange: Sgt. Oscar, mother, Esther Best, Warsaw. Grainger, Cpl. Ralph M., mother, Leola L. Grainger, Hallboro. Hutchens, Cpl. Lookley H., mother, Maggie Hutchens, Yaukinville. Neal, Pfc. Harold J., mother, Mrs. Anita P. Neal, 2216 Nelson St., Greensboro. Vaughan, Cpl. Donald W., stepmother, Lela P. Vaughan, Route 2, Raleigh.

Leading Atomic Scientists Doubt Malenkov Claim

OSLO, Norway (UP) — Leading atomic scientists of 19 nations, gathered here for a conference on the nuclear energy of heavy water, today adopted a "show me" attitude toward Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov's statement that Russia has the hydrogen bomb. They said they would have to see "the evidence" before accepting Malenkov's statement. Such evidence has not yet been supplied, they said. "We cannot receive the announcement otherwise than as a scientist must see with reservations until we see the evidence," said Odd Dahl, designer of Norway's atomic piles. He added that he "would not be surprised" if Russia has the H-bomb as claimed. But he stressed that tremendous effort is required to produce such a bomb and that evidence that it has been done still is lacking.

Light Price Decline For Tobacco Marts

RALEIGH (UP) — The second full week of fine-cured tobacco sales on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina belts opened today with the most average prices steady to lower than those of last Friday. However, leaf grades were higher in most instances and prices paid for cutters were unchanged. The declines, ranging from $1 to $5 per hundred pounds, were largely for lugs and primings. The U.S. and North Carolina departments of agriculture reported the general quality of offerings was slightly higher yesterday because of less nondescript and a larger percentage of cutters being marketed. Volume was fairly heavy but practically all floors were cleared. Bulk of sales consisted of low to good lugs, low and fair primings, low and fair cutters and nondescript.

Farmers Day Supporters Plan Raise $5,250 Fund To Finance Annual Event

At the "kick-off" breakfast at Proctor Hotel today plans were made for raising $5,250 to finance "Farmers Day" and the beauty contest to be held in Greenville September 8 and 9. Chairman W. H. (Bill) Watson presided. Mayor William L. Whedbee welcomed the 30 men representing various agencies which had pledged to give their support to the fund-raising campaign. Whedbee said "Farmers Day" is one of the most important events in the year in Greenville. "I am anticipating one of the best seasons in a long time when the tobacco market opens Thursday, August 20," he said. B. B. Sugg, bank president, warehouseman, farmer and Greenville's wartime mayor, said, "Other sections of the country may have their oil wells and minerals, but Pitt County in its magic soil and the diligent work of its farmers, produces the

Plan Release Of 400 Tomorrow

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP) — The Communists announced today they would release 100 Americans and 300 other captives tomorrow according to the following timetable: Nine a. m. (7 p. m. EST) — 50 Americans, 50 sick and wounded South Koreans including 25 litter cases. Ten a. m. — 25 Americans, 25 Turks, 50 South Koreans. Eleven a. m. — 25 Americans, 25 Britons, 50 South Koreans. Noon — 100 South Koreans, including 75 sick and injured.

Dollar Day Scheduled In City On Thursday

Thursday, August 13, is "Dollar Day" in Greenville. The Merchants' Association is sponsoring the "semi-annual money-saving shopping event." Leading Greenville merchants participating in "Dollar Day" have indicated that "unusual values and special discounts will be offered." A spokesman for the Merchants' Association said the City Council has announced a holiday on the city's parking meters on "Dollar Day" Thursday, August 13. All of the participating stores will offer merchandise at reduced prices. They have announced special bargains in all departments. Stores have employed extra clerks for "Dollar Day." All stores will be open by 9 a. m. "Dollar Day" originated in Eastern Carolina many years ago, when farmers and other rural dwellers did not get to town frequently, due to muddy roads and lack of paved highways. Back in those days—the early 1900s—when farmers came to town, they bought supplies for six-month periods, a Greenville merchant stated. Continuing, he said, "With the coming of paved highways, improved motor transportation, farmers and rural dwellers are year-round shoppers, and they are alert to the special selling events offered by Greenville merchants on 'Dollar Day' and other sales events."

Mrs. Tucker Hostess At Bridge Supper

GRIFTON—Mrs. J. L. Tucker was a gracious hostess on Thursday night when she entertained at a bridge supper at her home on Church Street.

Lovely bowls of pink sinias formed the decorations for the party. Three tables were arranged amid this setting. As guests arrived they found their places and a delectable supper plate with a sweet and iced tea was passed.

During progressions which followed supper Mrs. J. L. Quinley was highest scorer and Mrs. Thurman J. Williams second high. Others playing were Miss Bert Johnson, Miss Hazel Patrick, Miss Louise Mewborn, Mrs. H. P. Quinley, Mrs. Alton Chapman, Mrs. Jack Chapman, Mrs. W. I. Bissette, Mrs. Robert Mewborn, Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, and Mrs. Dewey Wall.

Entertains Club At Dessert Bridge

GRIFTON—Three tables were in play on Friday night when Mrs. David Parker had as guests for a dessert bridge members of her contract club and invited players, at her home on McRae Street.

A variety of flowers were used as decorations in the living room and hall where the guests were received. On arrival players were shown their places at the card tables and the hostess served a delicious iced dessert with cookies and salted nuts.

During the bridge games Mrs. Clifton Jackson and Mrs. Wilbur Murphy scored high for club members and Mrs. Cecil Cobb among the visitors. The consolation went to Mrs. Jake Worthington. Other guests were Mrs. Albert Tyson, Mrs. John Coward, Mrs. Walter Murphy, Mrs. Claude Hart, Mrs. Bryan Davis, Mrs. B. C. Troutman, Mrs. S. E. Coffman, and Mrs. A. C. Fletcher.

Southern Bell's Telephone Rate Increase Argued

CHARLOTTE (UP)—The legal wrangle over the $1,648,000 annual rate increase granted the Southern Bell Telephone Co. by the State Utilities Commission was aired in Mecklenburg Superior Court here today as Judge William H. Robbitt heard arguments from both sides.

Southern Bell took the case to court in attempt to have the utilities commission nullify the rate increase as too low. The state asked that it be scrapped as too high. Attorneys for both sides began arguments yesterday.

Southern Bell argued that the increase would give the company less than a six per cent return on its investment of $80,000,000, and said such a return is "unfair."

Attorneys for the state argued that Southern Bell has "prospered and provided good service" with a return of 4.8 per cent and said anything more than that would be unfair to the customer.

Meat Prices Too Much For Him

CHICAGO (UP)—Police believe the high price of meat may have been too much for Walter Therian, 46.

Therian was arrested for stealing $3.00 worth of meat from a grocery store. Police found he had $8,808 in his possession at the time and a bank account with a balance of $5,000.

The U. S. sweet potato crop, up 16 per cent from 1952, probably will

Program Ready For Visitor

Mrs. LaVerne M. Myers, Supreme Worthy High Priestess of the Order of The White Shrine of Jerusalem, of Rock Island, Ill., will make her official visit to the Greenville Shrine on August 18.

Plans are complete for the official visit; open house will be held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Laughinghouse, 1101 East Rock Spring Road, in the afternoon, and all members are invited.

At 6:30, a banquet will be held at the Proctor Hotel dining room. At 8:00 p.m. a ceremonial will be held at the Masonic Temple, and Mrs. Theima Braswell will receive the degree of order.

A social hour, at 9:45, will be held in the Fred Stokes dining room. Coastal Shrine No. 9, New Bern, will be co-hostess.

Mrs. Elba Rowe, Worthy High Priestess, W. E. Boswell, Watchman of Shepherds, of Greenville Shrine No. 7, and Mrs. Sarah Lancaster of Vanceboro is Worthy High Priestess of Coastal Shrine No. 9.

Three Airmen In Crash Are Killed

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UP)—The Air Force today identified three airmen attached to this infantry training center who were killed in the crash of a twin-engined courier plane yesterday.

The L-23 plane crashed in a thickly wooded area of this huge base about 13 miles from here, on the Alabama side of the Chattahoochee River. It had just taken off from Lawson Field here en route to Pope Air Force Base, N. C.

The dead were identified as Lt. Col. John E. Richmond, 33, Blanket, Tex., acting assistant director of the airborne department of the infantry school; 1st Lt. James E. Knighton, 28, Columbus, Ga., and Opl. Howard Sweeney Jr., 23, Montgomery, Ala. Knighton and Sweeney were members of the Army aviation section here.

Snake Taunted Trapped Convict

LEXINGTON, S. C. (UP)—Lexington County officers today credited fumes from spilled gasoline with saving the life of a convict who was taunted by a four-foot rattlesnake after being pinned beneath an overturned dump truck.

George Shirley, 35, was pinned beneath the county dump truck yesterday when it overturned and was being taunted by the snake when chain gang officers arrived.

Officers said the snake kept its distance because of fumes from gasoline spilled from the truck's fuel tank.

Shirley was burned slightly by the fumes and was bruised but was not seriously hurt. Officers killed the snake.

St. Louis Will Become Carnival City Aug. 31

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—St. Louis will become a carnival city for four days when 35,000 American Legionnaires and their wives arrive Aug. 31 for their 35th national convention in the city of the organization's birth.

But while there will be the usual merriment and parading for which Legion conventions are famed, local Legion officials predict emphasis will be put on "serious matters" in view of troubled world conditions.

National Commander Lewis K. Gough announced that Vice President Richard Nixon will be the principal speaker at the opening session, Aug. 31.

Other headlines who will appear during the convention include Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, Navy Secretary Robert E. Anderson, the secretaries of the CIO and AFL, and the president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

On the lighter side, local Legion officials have planned a giant, day-long parade—for Sept. 1—the biggest in the city's history—involving 100,000 marchers and hundreds of drum and bugle corps. It is estimated that it will take 10 hours to pass given point.

National competitions for prizes totaling $10,000 will be held Aug. 30 and 31 for bands, drum and bugle corps, choruses, firing squads and color guards.

Housing A Problem The Forty and Eight, the Legion's fun-making organization, will officially kick off the convention on Aug. 30 with a parade of its traditional box cars and engines from each state. Members of the organization, dressed in smocks and chapeaux, and musical units will also participate.

To police the Legion's activities, 400 St. Louis policemen, all members of the Legion, will be on hand around the clock.

Housing the thousands of conventioners posed a big problem for public housing facilities within a 25-mile radius of the city providing accommodations for 22,000, 10,000 rooms in private homes were still needed.

But David Fleischer, executive vice president of the local convention headquarters, citing the response of St. Louis residents during the last Legion convention here in 1935, said he could assure any Legionnaire planning to attend that accommodations will be available.

In addition to the Legion itself, the Forty and Eight and auxiliaries of both organizations will convene here simultaneously.

Business sessions of the Legion and its auxiliary will be held at St. Louis' Kiel Auditorium.

How To Get A Loan

By ELMER ROESSNER
Right timely, perhaps, is a new government bulletin telling small businesses how to get a loan from a bank. It is "Borrowing Money from Your Bank" and was written by William F.G. Price, vice-president of the Bank of the Manhattan Company, for the Small Defense Plants Administration.

Mr. Price has no new formulas, no soothing hexes to be applied to reluctant bankers. But he does round up sound principles succinctly.

For instance, applicants must be ready to give satisfactory answers to these questions:

1. What sort of person are you (character wise)?
2. What are you going to do with the money?
3. When and how are you going to pay it back?
4. Does the amount requested make suitable allowance for unexpected developments?
5. What is the outlook for the borrower's line of business and for business in general?

Applicants also should be ready to show bankers:

1. Balance sheets and profit-and-loss statements, prepared by certified public accountants.
2. Other financial data where needed, such as a report on the aging of accounts receivable.
3. Financial reports at sufficiently frequent intervals.

If the financial statements alone do not justify a loan, collateral may be required. Mr. Price points out that acceptable collateral, in addition to real estate and buildings, may include securities of closely owned companies if a third party will guarantee to buy the note and the collateral; accounts receivable; or merchandise; machinery and equipment and government contracts. Government contracts have been acceptable only since legislation was passed during World War II, and until comparatively recently banks have been cautious about accounts receivable, leaving that to factors.

In preparation for its national personnel conference next month, the American Management Association polled 3,000 personnel administrators on what was on their minds.

The seven topics of most immediate concern turned out to be: strengthening of personnel administration; dynamics of current labor relations; motivation of employees; changing concepts of the personnel function; the application and administration of industrial psychiatry; the status of and the human problems that will arise in the automatic plant of the future.

SELF-SERVICE WORKING IN LUMBER YARD
Self-service in lumber yards is here to stay, according to a Chicago company that has been trying it for a year.

The firm (The Gee Lumber & Coal Co.) has adopted all the techniques of supermarkets—including the practice of getting into other lines. In addition to lumber for do-it-yourself practitioners, the yard offers, in mass displays, plans, weather-stripping and fertilizers as well as a line of toys at Christmas time.

Special Dictionary A 'Must'

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—There is a dictionary available today for every language except the language of women.

Scholars think world peace would be speeded if the people of every nation spoke the same language. That's a pretty hard thing to get everybody together on.

It seems to me that the first step would be to get everybody in the same household to speak the same language. That would bring peace in the home.

"Why that's silly," you say. "Everybody in our house speaks the same language—plain old English."

But do they? The average American home today has at least three separate district language dialects. They are man talk, woman talk, and teenage talk.

All of course, stem from school-book English. But, aside from this mutual ancestry, the three languages have little in common. And no one in a home can understand all three.

Ever listen to a teen-ager on a telephone? Completely mystifying. Every word and then you catch a familiar word or even a complete sentence—such as "Oh, he's real square." But the words and sentences don't focus into any meaning. They don't make sense, except possibly to another teenager, and you can't even be sure of that.

But teen-age talk is really no more important than the Pig Latin of early childhood. Like pig Latin, it is merely something the kids go through while growing up.

The real cause of misunderstanding today is the difference between man talk and woman talk. Basically, man talk means what it says, while woman talk means almost anything in the world but what it says.

This is the real reason why men find women mysterious. They keep expecting a woman's conversation to make sense, when that of a woman has in mind when she opens her mouth.

When two men get together and find they have nothing to say they generally shut up. But two women can chat along comfortably for an hour without really saying anything. They both know it, but mean-while they have had a fine time resting their brains while taking the tension off their vocal chords.

A man usually doesn't realize men and women speak different languages until after he marries. All of a sudden the little bride he thought knew so well starts talking in Greek.

"How do you like the peas, dear?" she asks. And if he grunts, "Fine, Baby," all of a sudden she gets mad. Of course, what her remark really meant was, "Pass me the peas, you big baboon. Don't you see I don't have any?"

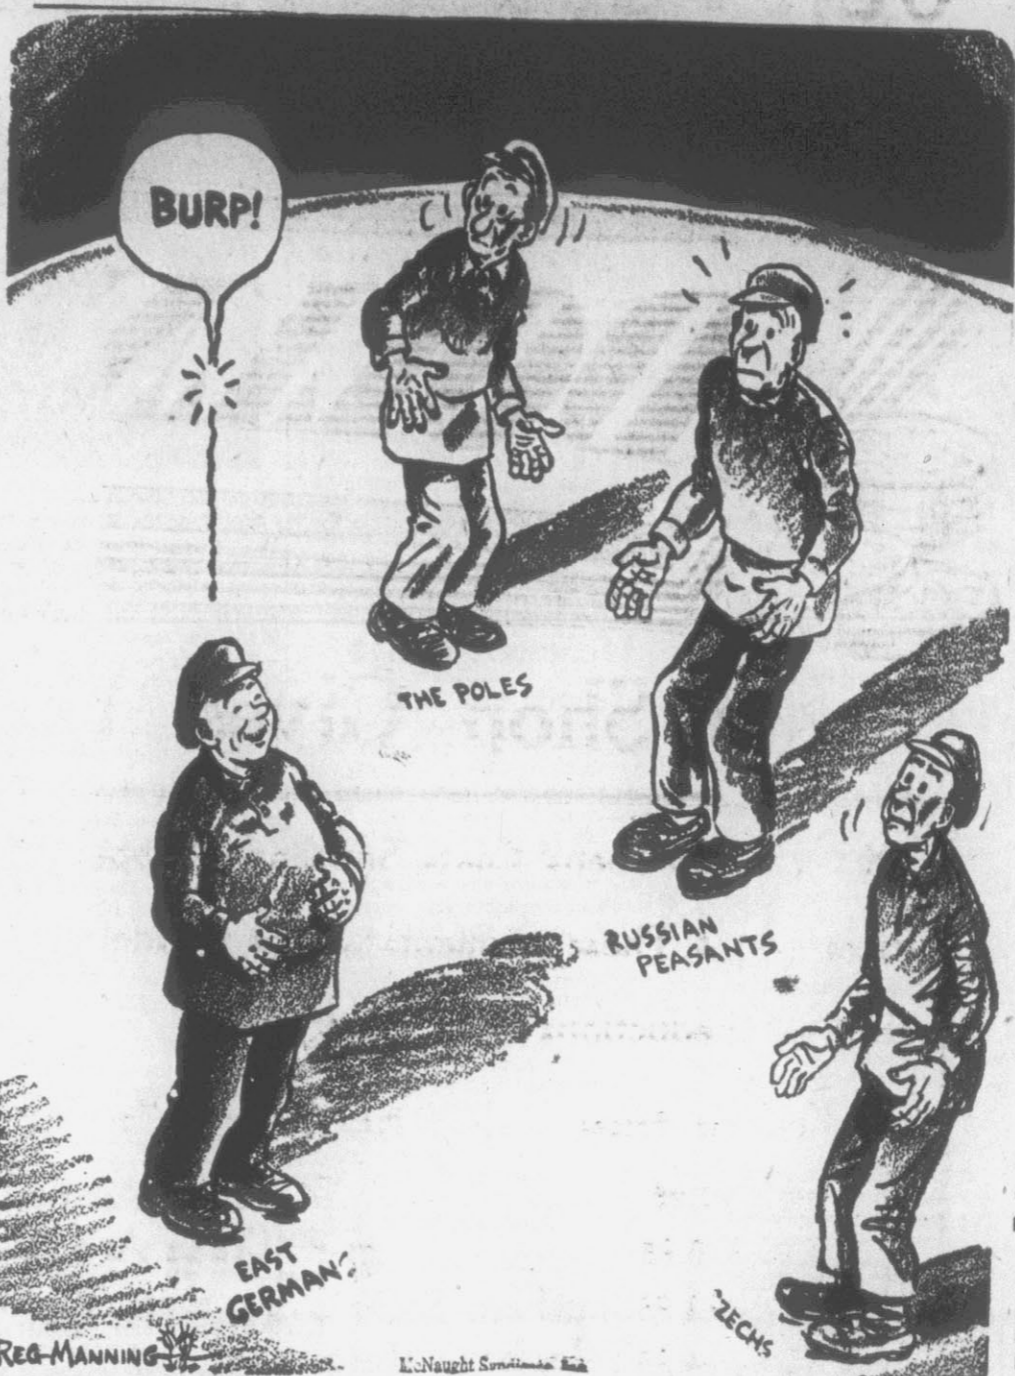

Or, leaving a cocktail party, she may say, "Don't you think that tall blonde was quite attractive?" If she says, "Baby, I'll say she was—well, he's deep in the dog-house. What he should have replied was, "Baby, you made that blonde look like a wet mop after a hard day."

The key thing to realize is that you can't take a woman at her word—or you'll never understand her. And, naturally, a man must learn when a woman doesn't want to be understood. Sometimes she wants to be misunderstood.

Over the years a married man cautiously finds out that anything his wife says has at least three possible meanings, two of which he can only guess at. But no man lives long enough to comprehend them all.

What is needed is a dictionary of woman talk. Each married man could put down all his wife's remarks and then list what he thinks they really mean. By pooling millions of these interpretations some sort of guide could be obtained to the confusing language of women.

Then, if your wife said, "Well, it looks like a nice day," you could thumb hurriedly through your dictionary and find out whether she meant her corns were hurting her or only that she wanted to go for a ride in the country.

To Burn Books, Or Brand Them?

The purging of pro-Communist books, or writings authored by known and suspected Reds from State Department overseas libraries has never satisfied most Americans. There have been fears expressed that we were rendering our cause more of a disservice than if such literature were allowed to remain on those library shelves.

No one will be fully satisfied with any action settled upon.

If we are to regard those overseas libraries as purely propaganda outlets, it

False Gods Offer Us Bitter Fruit

The false god of governmental handouts has many high priests who extoll their idol and promise showers of remunerative blessings to all who yield to him.

Their promises range from cheap electrical power (from government-built plants) to vast "aids-to-education" outlays; new unemployment compensation plans; bigger pension programs, higher price supports and a host of benefits they proclaim will make life a veritable Paradise.

Unmentioned is the cost.

Areas served by "cheap" government power chronically suffer shortages and production costs are shared by taxpayers all over the country who do not enjoy this dubious blessing.

More federal aid to education appears still to be bound to the control-reins of Washington . . . a grab for what little authority individual states, counties and communities retain in their own jurisdiction. Higher federal taxes, more red tape, more opportunity for bungling the job. Small wonder the nation's lawmakers back away when giving this perennial dream a thorough examination.

Undermining of individual thrift, economy, productivity and responsibility, are all fruits obtainable from heeding the high priests of the almighty Handout.

There are idols with feet of clay, but this one rests on a pedestal of rot.

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

NEVER CAUGHT

A man engaged in making out a questionnaire recently encountered the query, "Were you ever in jail?" He answered that he never had been. The next question was, "Why?" intended, of course, for those who had been incarcerated. The man had a sense of humor and wrote, "I was never caught."

There is probably not a person in the world who could not be sent to jail for something. There are obsolete laws on the statute books of every state which daily condemn all of us to jail sentences. Furthermore, people often inadvertently break laws. Almost everyone who drives an automobile goes through a red light unwittingly now and again and has a bad conscience and a sinking heart when he discovers what he has done.

The old story of the man seeing a criminal being led to execution and saying, "There but for the grace of God, go I" has a great deal of truth in it. A few untoward circumstances ten, twenty, fifty years ago might have put many of us in the class of serious malefactors. We escaped by the skin of our teeth.

And that is the way we escape everything—disease, bankruptcy, accidental death, and jail. It was not so much that we were not caught but rather that a certain variety of life's misfortunes did not quite catch up with us. Religion attributes this escape to the grace of God.

U.S. Commies In A Quandary

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—American Communists have become completely demoralized by the bewildering, post-Stalin shifts of policies and personalities in the Kremlin.

The operators of the Red apparatus in the United States—the front executives and organizers, newspaper editors and propagandists, legal advisers and underground agents—have been caught with their ideologies under. They have had to halt all activities, according to Federal agencies charged with keeping them under surveillance, pending the emergence of a new Soviet ruler.

THEY ARE IN A QUANDARY—Like Secretary Dulles, they cannot make out whether Georgi Malenkov is sincere or merely Machiavellian in his recent peace gestures, including his acceptance of the West's invitation to a high-level conference.

The American Reds' present predicament recalls their confusion of August, 1939, when Stalin negotiated a friendship pact with Hitler, thus precipitating World War II. On the very day that Der Fuehrer became a Russian ally, the New York Daily Worker was denouncing him as a "Fascist brute."

The Red New York editors today have no idea what the "party line" will be tomorrow, or who will be their big boss—Malenkov, Molotov, Zhukov, Sokolovskiy or the Russian equivalent of Joe Doakes.

Muddled Minds—Their confused state is illustrated most graphically in current hearings before the Subversive Activities Control Board. That semi-judicial body is now listening to appeals by 12 alleged front groups from Attorney General Brownell's ruling that they are Moscow-directed. If SACB upholds Brownell, they must register and file periodical reports on finances and activities.

The conduct of the appellants' legal and propaganda staffs would shame a first-year law student or a cub reporter. Charging "bias and prejudice," they are seeking to disqualify ex-Senator Harry P. Cain of Washington and Watson Miller, former Immigration Commissioner, and American Legion official. But the evidence they advance tends only to convict them of serving Russian rather than American interests.

would be empty-headed in the extreme to propagandize theories and hate-material directed against free government and our own country in particular. Of course, we don't have to buy them.

On the other hand, if these State Department libraries are true "libraries" with no specific axe to grind other than to offer a source of reference and education, then it seems even writings which we do not approve have their place. The human intellect has a right to pick and choose, to accept or reject, to discern truth and falsehood; a right we treasure though oft-time the big lie is garbed with the coverings of truth.

So what to do?

Harry Golden, editor-publisher of The Carolina Israelite, laments that "only eleven books were burned" in the near-hysteria which erupted during the McCarthy attacks.

"What good is becoming Secretary of State," he asks, "if you have to live with the thought, that during your term of office, some were burned because, as a nation, we feared printed words?"

There are other ways, he says, of registering disapproval; and he relates how the Jewish community in New York maintain an entire section of anti-semitic writings of the world in the New York Public Library.

These hate-mongering pieces are available to anyone, but they are labeled "Anti-semitic" both on the index card and on the inside of the front cover. That's all.

The State Department, if it feels bound to include anti-American writings in its overseas library, could adopt similar tactics.

Once an opinion or chain of thought is labeled as one-sided, it loses most of its power of swaying others.

But again we bump into the question of whether or not those State Department libraries are for purely propaganda purposes. If such is the case, then our government had no business purchasing Communist propaganda material and distributing it.

Selected Shorts

An editor comments on how terrible it must have been for the girl clerk who was locked in a bank vault for eight hours, with all that money and not a hat shop within reach. But how much worse if she'd been in there with a new hat and no mirror.—Detroit News.

COATESVILLE, PA., RECORD: "The million non-operating rail workers of 15 unions, who have served new demands on 311 U.S. railroads, say they don't want more wages. . . . The 'fringe' benefits they are now demanding include longer vacations, paid health and welfare programs, increased overtime pay for Sundays and holidays, and more liberal free transportation allowance. This may not be money to a railroad worker—but it would be to your scribe."

BALTIMORE, MD., DAILY RECORD: "Maybe we're wrong but we wonder if the post office deficit couldn't be cut quite a bit by eliminating a high percentage of the stuff that is franked by Congressmen and various governmental bureaus. The newspapers today keep the public pretty well informed concerning matters in Washington and many of the franked matters seem superfluous."

STRANGE DEFENSE TACTICS—Cain was accused of prejudice on the ground that, while Senator, he supported NATO, which made him a "vehement promoter of enmity and war" between Russia and the United States, according to the Reds' counsel. Since NATO forms one basis of our foreign policy, it is obvious that only an emotionally and ideologically upset lawyer would rely on such evidence.

Spokesmen for the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, one of the alleged fronts, also cited Cain's attitude toward Franco. He referred to his efforts to establish closer relations with the Spanish ruler so that military bases behind the Pyrenees redoubt would be made available to us in all-out war.

It so happens that every national defense expert at the Pentagon advocates a military alliance with Franco, and an agreement may be consummated soon.

BLIND TO RUSSIAN ACTIONS—But the most ridiculous indictment alleged that Cain, in passing up the admission of displaced persons, had voted against a "racial minority," meaning Jewish refugees. In view of Moscow's treatment of all subject peoples, including hungry Germans in East Berlin, such an accusation is explainable only by the galloping demoralization of American Communists.

Cain then noted for the record that he had supported the displaced persons legislation, which admitted 33,479 Jews out of a total of 127,866. Abner Green, lawyer for the Council, grinned foolishly and shrugged.

CHARGE DEPORTATION BIAS—In questioning Miller's qualifications, the American Council for the Foreign Born charged that, as Immigration Commissioner, he had shown bias in seeking the deportation of subversive aliens. It cited the four injunctions it had obtained against his decisions. But it forgot to mention that one court stay involved Gerhart Eisler, then Red Boss in the U.S. and now Soviet propaganda chief in Germany.

In earlier hearings, the Communists' legal apologists refrained from silly, circus performances, presenting fairly respectable arguments. But their current state of mind reflects the same chaotic spirit which seems to be spreading behind the iron curtain. They are men without a country.

Somebody Told Me Big Draw For The Free Loaders

One of the best ways I know to judge a person is by his willingness to pay his own way. Off hand I can't think of any of my associates who are moochers, probably because I quickly lose interest in such people.

It seems that it's always best to call a spade a spade when it comes to finances. Some people shy away from discussing money, because they figure it would show that they are short in that department. But look at it this way: The people who have most watch it the closest and that's why they have money.

In our league this business of picking up the check is unheard of. When a group of young married couples we know go on a trip, everything is broken down to the penny and split up. If one person drives a car, another buys the gas. Every expense is taken into consideration and a fair split is made.

They tell me that there are more people who are able to carry a large part of the entertainment burden because of expense accounts. The closest I get to that sort of thing is at the store, where salesmen frequently ask us out to meals and charge it to "customer entertainment."

We wouldn't consider going unless it's a company we buy a lot from, and even at that it doesn't sway our buying. We are looking for quality and service, not free steaks. But with some people, "customer entertainment" is a big factor, and it plays a big part in the operation of some companies. Frankly, I think business and entertainment should be kept apart from each other as much as possible.

Believe me, it's not our grapes when I say that I wouldn't want any such expense account. Here's what happens: Your friends find out that you have it and therefore enjoy your company a little more because you're picking up the checks. Then before you know it you begin to wonder who's really your friend and who's just interested in your expense account.

As yet I wouldn't know, but I would imagine when you get older and in better financial condition such matters as finances on little things become less important. The way we look at it, young married couples with children have to watch things close or get in trouble fast. If we ever get in a position to spend money on entertainment I think we would enjoy most giving big parties, instead of picking up checks.

When you boil the subject down you will find that people who will not pay their way are soon found out. It's just something that you can't get away with. And I thank you.

JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

HELPING SMALL BUSINESS (Wilson Daily Times)

We, for our part, wish that Congress which is forever talking of helping small business would reduce taxes, which would do more to help small business, rather than set up a new lending agency, which, according to the Senate, may make loans up to $200,000 to small business. If passed, it will, of course, replace the old Reconstruction Finance Corporation. But why do we need a lending agency in the first place? Why not save that money and cut taxes correspondingly?

Small business, properly operated, can take care of itself. That is, it can if it were allowed to keep a reasonable portion of what it earns. If properly operated and if it needs money, it can get that money from the regular sources. Only those that represent hazards will run to the government, which means again that the government will get all the bad loans while the banks get the good ones. In running to the government, too, they'll run behind political interference, which means that they must know someone important who can guide them on the way.

Now we're glad to see the RFC drop out. In the course of its 20-odd-years of existence it's been badly abused. But we're not enthusiastic at seeing a new agency take its place. For it opens the door all over again to all the bad practices of the RFC. It may not lend millions, as the RFC did, but it can lose as much on small loans as the older organization did on large ones. Can't the government get out and stay out of the lending business? Quite obviously, the Republicans are as bad as the Democrats. They must it seems have someone to take their constituents to when they can't find money anywhere else.

Active Campaigning For Congress Starts In N.C.

By LYNN NISBET

CONGRESS—The first active campaigning to unseat a North Carolina representative in the U.S. Senatorial race will have considerable bearing on the congressional situation.

GOOD MEN—Many comments have been about the high caliber men Governor Umstead has persuaded to accept places on administrative boards and commissions—and the promises he gets from them about really working on their jobs. Previous governors have picked generally good boards, and have consistently told the members that if they could not do the job they should get out of the way. Governor Umstead has been slower to name the groups to which are assigned vital State functions. Impression generally is that the caliber of the men put on the C&D board and the Milk Commission compensates for the delayed selection.

SCHOLARSHIPS—The N. C. Dairy Products Association has announced establishment of six scholarships aggregating $5,000 a year for students in dairy manufacturing at State College. Two freshmen will receive $500 each, two sophomores will get $300 and two juniors $200 each. The freshmen scholarships are available for the 1953-54 school year; the upper classmen will qualify for beginning of the 1954-55 season.

BASIS—First requirement is that the applicant be a North Carolinian enrolled for the course in dairy manufacturing. Other factors involve scholastic records, personal characteristics and need for financial aid. Applications will be screened by a joint committee representing the college faculty and the association. Young men may apply now for the freshmen awards, but after this year the deadline will be May 1. Banks party who will back some other candidate than Jones in the primary. Undoubtedly developments in the U.S. Senatorial race will have considerable bearing on the congressional situation.

may be obtained from the Director of Instruction, School of Agriculture, Box 5847, Raleigh, N.C. The $5,000 annually provided by the dairy products people for scholarships is in addition to substantial support of the dairy foundation and the underwriting of special funds for research in milk processing.

WORK—Publisher Bill Horner and Editor Bob Mason of the Sanford Herald concede that the job of putting out a daily newspaper, recently converted from a semi-weekly, is easier because of the new building especially designed for the peculiar needs of the situation. They also insist that there seems to be about as many things to do on a small paper as on the bigger publications. When your reporter made a pop call at Sanford the other day, he found Horner swamped with reports which his staff had made to him and other reports which he had to make to various governmental agencies. "I do believe," he said, "that while the amounts are much larger there cannot be any more entries or reports in connection with the New York Times or the Baltimore Sun papers than for the Sanford Herald."

HOLDING UP—Other calls on daily and weekly newspapers offices brought the information that total business is holding up well during the summer—but may be not as well as total expenses. One weekly publisher humorously commented that he used to take in $300 a week and spend $290 of it.

Now he is taking in $600 and spending $590, leaving his net take the same in dollars but less than half in percentage. There does seem to be a definite trend, nationwide as well as in North Carolina, for business people to put a larger part of their total advertising money into newspapers, less into radio, television and gadget-type publicity. The newspapers naturally like that, but they are finding they must invest a lot more money in mechanical equipment and competent manpower to handle the business.

Worth Noting

COME SOUTH BOYS
We heartily applaud the statements of Col. Harry M. Ayers, publisher of the Aniston Star in his address the other day before his graduating class at Wooster Preparatory School at Danbury, Conn. He told his young hearers frankly, "Come South, young men, come South!" and he recalled Richard H. Edmonds' slogan that "the growth of the South is the hope of the nation." We trust his Northern hearers will pay heed. It's high time that our Northern friends looked a few facts of life squarely in the eye. (Savannah Morning Herald)

1735, QUINCY, MASS. Birthplace of JOHN ADAMS.

AP Newsphotos
In this simple, two story farm house, John Adams was born and spent his boyhood. It stood in Braintree (now Quincy) and has been described as a "plain, square, block of a house, widened by a lean-to." It has been called "the veritable roof-tree, under which was ushered into being, the earliest and strongest advocate (John Adams) of independence - the founder of a line of statesmen, legislators, and historians, whose integrity is like the granite of their native hills." The town of Quincy has been likened to a block of granite with a thin covering of soil. From the quarries the granite was carried on the first New England Railway, for the building of the Bunker Hill Monument.

Women In The Church

Three former presidents of local councils and five other church women are among eleven women elected "for their contributions to community welfare" by the Mary Margaret McBride ABC network radio program recently. They are: Mrs. W. B. Suddeth, of the Baptist Church, former head of the Atlanta (Ga.) Council of Church Women; Mrs. James M. Dolby, past president of the Congregational Council; Mrs. M. M. Doster, past president of the Passadena (Cal.) Council; Mother Mary Alice, of the Order of Sisters of St. Francis, for her ministry at St. Clare's Hospital, New York City; Miss Lulu M. Fairbanks, of Seattle, Wash., a Presbyterian, for her civic work in Alaska; Miss Kate Carter, of Salt Lake City, of the Church of the Latter Day Saints, for historical work; Miss Lillian Bishop, of Topeka, Kan., an Episcopalian, who founded a club of women who work with mental patients; Miss Bertha Schwartz, of New York, Jewish, for leadership in opening a hospital for teen-age narcotics addicts.

Dr. John A. Mackay, president of Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N.J., and recently-elected moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., gave the 1953 Carnahan Lectures at the Union Theological Seminary, Buenos Aires, Argentina. These lectures are named in honor of the Misses Carrie Jay and Ella May Carnahan of Pittsburgh, whose gifts form an endowment for a lectureship. Dr. Mackay will also speak in Montevideo, Uruguay and in Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

At Luomow Christian College.

highest-ranking educational institution of the Methodist Church in India, the "Bishop Chitambar Memorial Chapel" has been dedicated by Bishop Clement D. Rocky of Lucknow City. The late Bishop Chitambar was the first Indian to be elected president of the college—some 30 years ago—as he was later the first Indian elected a Bishop of the Methodist Church. The Memorial Chapel stands in the center of the College campus to indicate "the position which religion should occupy in the life of every Christian educational institution." Present at the formal dedication were the Bishop's widow, Mrs. S.S. Chitambar, former president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in India, their eldest daughter, Mrs. Ivan Jordan, a noted choir director, and three grandchildren.

College Spirit, But No College

ROSEVILLE, Calif. (AP)—Panties and brassieres disappeared from clotheslines, and Police Chief Emmet McCrary was pretty piqued when a 17-year-old boy admitted the thefts.

"We just can't allow these pants raids to go on," Chief McCrary declared. "After all, there isn't even a college around here."

AIMS TO PLEASE
HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—Robert E. Sullivan, 21, got his wish on his 13th arrest. Charged with stealing an automobile, a familiar count with Sullivan, he told Superior Court Judge Samuel Mellitz he served a term in the reformatory and didn't like the place. "This time, I'd rather go to prison," Sullivan said. Mellitz accommodated him with a two-to-five year prison sentence.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

A COTTAGE with two-story advantages, this compact story-and-a-half house includes a garage built into the house itself. The house covers only 922 square feet including the garage and provides 838 square feet of floor space upstairs. # Food Supply of Red-Conquered Tibet Shrinking

KALIMPONG, India (U.P.)—The food situation in Tibet is reported to be getting worse with food hard to get and prices rising. Barley, the staple food of Tibet, sells at six times the price before the Chinese Communists took control. Meat, butter and other foods also have become very expensive. High prices are blamed on the presence of 30,000 Chinese "liberation" troops who are living off the land. Their presence is causing discontent, expressed in some places by popular demonstrations. Posters on village walls demand the withdrawal of these troops and demand food at prices the people can afford. There has been a growth in crime because of the scarcity of food.

Supplies Rationed
Chinese authorities in Tibet are taking steps to combat this dangerous situation. Surplus food stock in the hands of private dealers and cultivators were requisitioned and rationing was introduced. But this policy failed because the quantity of food procured was not enough.

The government, therefore, decided to keep part of what it procured for an emergency and distributed the remainder in areas where food is not available. A proposal to fly food to Tibet from China was dropped as impracticable. Nor can food be brought overland as the road from Lhasa to China is unfinished. Chinese rice which reached Tibet by way of India recently has been mainly reserved for the Red troops while a small quantity was distributed to relieve distress among the Tibetans.

To sustain the spirits of the Tibetans, the Chinese have promised that nobody will be permitted to starve to death. The government has announced the arrival soon of another big consignment of Chinese rice by way of India.

In the meantime, the Government is appealing to the Tibetans to work on projects for national development. The daily wage offered for each worker is equivalent to one dollar. In addition, food is available to project workers at government shops at a concession. Labor For All

The "cultural wing" of the Red army vigorously extols the "dignity of labor" to induce the Tibetans, most of whom are unused to manual labor, to volunteer in sufficient numbers to man these projects.

Large numbers of lamas (Buddhist priests) are said to be working on them. This is not due to the persuasion of the "culture squads," nor to the lamas' love of Communism. These men used to depend on gifts of food for their subsistence but such gifts are no longer forthcoming. They must therefore work or starve.

Beggars, formerly plentiful in Tibet, have been driven out of business by the food shortage. Those who can work have joined the labor force of the Chinese.

Barbecue Hobby Has Created Big Demand

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (U.P.)—The next time the little woman moans about a hard day over a hot stove tell her about H.E. (Howdy) Holmquist, whose hobby is outdoor barbecuing—for about 1500 persons.

Holmquist at 45 is owner of Redwood City's oldest business concern, the Redwood City Hardware Store, but he still finds time to donate his services and equipment for most outings. However, recently the demand has been so great that Holmquist finds it necessary to charge private groups a small fee.

Even at that, the parties he serves are getting quite a break considering the investment his equipment represents.

He has two trailers to haul an eight-foot long barbecue pit, a butane-powered range with a cast-iron top and warming ovens, two stainless steel army kitchens, a steam table, 17 navy surplus dining tables, 1300 stainless steel food trays and silver for 350 persons.

It might be work to the housewife, but Holmquist's idea of fun is to load his equipment, haul it to a picnic site, set it up and then personally barbecue steaks or chickens for 1000 or 1500 persons.

Serves in Crisis
Holmquist also is called upon in emergency situations, such as the recent forest fire in the Butano, Calif., area. When he received the call to help feed the hungry, tired fire-fighting crews he needed no urging.

When Holmquist accepts an invitation to serve at an outing, he goes at it in an almost military manner. Plans are drawn showing how the equipment will be set up, notes are made on the delivery of food, volunteers are assigned to assist by spreading garlic on fresh bread and to watch cooking pots. But he personally handles the barbecuing.

Holmquist said the only time he capitalized on this hobby was last year when a professional catering service in San Francisco gave him a call. Their regular chef was ill, so Holmquist filled in.

"I was paid $88 for that deal," he said.

Parking Space Is 'Woman-Sized'

CHARLEROI, Pa. (AP)—Women drivers can be thankful to the Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber is completing construction of a municipal parking lot which will accommodate 900 cars. "Our parking stalls are made with women customers in mind," said Alex Zelinski, head of the parking committee. "They will be about 50 per cent bigger than the average stalls."

Pupils Helped In Fighting Blaze

PASO ROBLES, Calif. (AP)—An elementary school burned down while students were on vacation. The children, instead of shouting with glee, hurried to the scene. Tolling as flames approached, they helped firemen and policemen carry out desks, books, supplies and equipment valued at many thousands of dollars. Officials warmly praised the youngsters for their assistance.

Opening Of Japan Has Passed Century Mark

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Just 100 years ago this summer Commodore Matthew C. Perry led four United States Navy ships into a Japanese harbor. Centuries of Nipponese isolation were ended. Perry's expedition started a period of dazzling progress in the island kingdom. Bands played, thousands cheered that day—July 14, 1853. Perry went ashore at Kurihama, 30 miles south of Tokyo. According to the National Geographic Magazine, the commodore was sweating under the weight of a full dress uniform on a blistering day. Perry met a representative of the Emperor and handed him a rose-wood and gold box. The box held a letter from President Millard Fillmore. The letter asked "friendship, commerce, a supply of coal and provisions, and protection for our shipwrecked people." The simple Japanese folk were frightened by the black smoke from the paddle-wheelers. Suddenly a whistle blew and the entire crew of one Japanese guard boat jumped over the side. All in all, the operation was considered a success. Nobody got hurt and the wet crew dried off. Brought Modern Gifts. In February, 1854, Perry returned with a larger fleet and more presents for the Emperor. One of the presents was a telegraph instrument. Another was a miniature railroad, some firearms, and books. A treaty was signed at Yokohama on March 31. This called for Japan to open the ports of Shimoda, 80 miles southwest of Tokyo, and Hakodate, on the northern island of Hokkaido, to U.S. ships. An American consul was allowed, and limited trade was permitted. Within 50 years Japan amazed the rest of the world by becoming a modern state. A railway network was developed, banks were started and industries boomed.

Old Ballroom Is Theatrical Site

NEWPORT, R.I. (U.P.)—One of the brightest oases amid the straw on the summer theater circuit is the Newport Casino Theater.

Compared with most hot-weather homes of the drama it's plush. Like most summer theaters, the Casino one was something else. But instead of being a place where cows were milked or carriages were sheltered, it was a ballroom where the great and rich of the world once waltzed.

The ballroom complete with stage was designed during the 1880's by Stanford White, the famous American architect. Although a separate building, it was built as part of the swank Newport Casino.

White, who designed some of the most fabulous homes in America, personally helped direct construction of the little ballroom. And as workmen gilded the walls, White climbed the scaffolding and painted the center of the proscenium arch.

The dancers have long since gone, but the golden walls remain.

In 1927—years after the ballroom was closed—the Newport Casino converted the building into a theatre. A wing was added at the rear and the floor was rebuilt, but the ballroom was left as White designed it.

For nearly 20 years the Casino rented the theater, then sold it to its present owner-manager, Sara Stamm.

On the theater's weekly opening nights members of the Newport summer colony attend in evening dress. Some of America's leading social figures can be found in the quaint boxes and the front rows of the 600-seat orchestra.

As one dowager put it: "I always think of mother."

Driver In Huff Over Violations

PACOMA, Calif. (UP)—Motorist William J. Stickler thought he got a bum deal when police arrested him after a four-mile chase in which he allegedly committed 18 traffic violations.

"What's the matter? I always drive that way," he said. MINK VISITS COPS. EAST HAVEN, Conn. (UP)—A strange guest walked into police headquarters one night when the door was left open because of the heat. It was a mink. One of the policemen put it into a ventilated box until he could figure out what to do with the little fellow.

Industrial Taxes Easing Burden

CHICAGO (U.P.)—Suburban residential areas have found that commercial and industrial developments can ease the tax burden of public schools, according to the Municipal Finance Officers Association.

The association cited a recent study of Abbe Arundel County Md., a community that is primarily residential.

An analysis of one large housing development showed that each school child required $107 of county taxes per year. The development was supplying about 50 per cent of that required amount.

The study also showed that county services required by industrial or commercial developments were low in cost compared to those required by residential areas. As a result, the association said, taxes on such property could be used to offset the cost of services for residential areas.

In a similar study it was found that the average home in a new subdivision in San Mateo County, Calif., yielded less than $50 a year in taxes for school purposes. It cost the county $204 to maintain a child in school one year, not counting costs.

Many of the homes in the area sent more than one child to school.

OLDEST MASON. ROCHESTER, N. H. (UP)—Alfred D. Nute, of West Somerville, Mass., is believed the oldest Mason in the world. He's 100. The centenarian has been a member of Humane Lodge, F. & A. M. here for 79 years.

Turned Cooler

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 90 degrees. Lowest last night 67, and at 8 a. m. today it was 72. No rain.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 88 degrees. Lowest that night, 73, and at 8 a. m. next day it was 79. Drizzling rain that day.

About-Face By Protocol Chiefs

WASHINGTON (UP)—State Department protocol experts made a rapid about-face Monday night in answering a delicate question: How to address the new ambassador to Switzerland, Frances E. Willis.

The answer is to call her madam.

The protocol wizards when first queried on the subject announced that the proper title would be "madame," with a final "E." But after a check with Emily Post, who is the last word in such matters, a correction was issued. It's "madam ambassador," without the "e."

Since the 15th Century forts have been built on the Gold Coast of Africa by the Portuguese, Spanish, Dutch, English, Danes and Swedes.

Expediency Rules On Marine Post

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP)—A night training march by B company, 9th U.S. marines, came to a halt here while its mascot dog had pups.

The spaniel named "Gale" was then returned to quarters and relieved of further military duties while she cares for her litter of seven.

SALT TOOK HOLD. EDINBURG, Tex. (UP)—Walt Ross of Edinburg reports that his daughter and her husband came from their home in Tennessee to visit Edinburg and complained of the salty taste in Edinburg's well water. Ross said that after the couple returned to Tennessee, however, they wrote that they couldn't enjoy their tea unless they put a pinch of salt in it.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

DIFFERENT with a modern air, this unusual design offers free circulation throughout the house. Kitchen is convenient to both front and rear doors. Large front living room is well planned for furniture placement in front to fireplace and television space. The house covers 1,413 square feet. If built without basement, it accommodates a good-sized utility room in place of stairs and adjoining closets. This is Plan GR-95 by Elmer Gylleck, architect, 191 So. Grove Ave., Elgin, Ill. Brick veneer construction is suggested.

CHAPTER TWENTY

DAVE set off for Cas' and wondered, before he'd reached there, why he'd been so sweepingly hostile. Not that he minded, really. But quite unconsciously she'd struck him something of a blow. The sting and surprise were gone, with the resentment and staid dread, but he'd remembered the blow.

Twenty-two, a kid in anyone's books, a child in his.

The boys and Mrs. Rogers were still at church. Cas was home—he'd been down with mild flu.

They talked, over coffee in the kitchen. And Dave reported: "Found a strange girl painting the meadow; she's still there. Incidentally, it looks as if I'll get the place. Hank stopped by yesterday and said Peters was weakening."

"That'll be Vera. Enough to take the starch out of any man, not that she isn't a good soul. What 'girl? Oh, the one who paints. Says her name's Karen Howard."

"Known her since they come here. She was real sick then, thin as a splinter, all eyes and legs. Her folks are well thought of. Her uncle, Doc Howard, everyone knew about him for miles around. Born here, come back to cure, practiced for years, and then died in an accident. Car skidded and turned over one winter night. His wife, Mame, was a nurse, one of the best. Don't nurse now, except in an emergency, but keeps busy. A charitable sort of woman."

"The kid—Karen, that is—told me her mother had remarried and gone out west. She said she wouldn't go, and I accused her of having a boy friend."

"She's got plenty, I expect. A downright nice girl," Cas said. "There's one special. You seen him in the bank. Frank Sims. He's the tall one, in the savings account cage. Folks been expectin' they'd get married."

"She wouldn't admit that he—or anyone else—was the reason she didn't go with her mother."

"Like as not, it wasn't," Cas said. "You ain't talked to many that's cured, leastways to know 'em. You've met a lot though, with out knowin' 'em on the street, been waited on by 'em, too. No I guess it ain't Frank. Expect he'd go along with her, if she wanted. He's travelled a o m e. Quite a skier, been away to a lot of meets. But Karen's like most folks who come here to get well and once they are don't want to leave."

"But why? This is wonderful country, Cas. Still I wouldn't consider it offered much opportunity, especially to young people. If you're born here you find a place for yourself—unless, of course, you look for it somewhere else—as many do. But—"

Cas said: "Hasn't a thing to do with opportunity. It's just, they're scared."

Now Dave could, remembering, identify the shadow that had clouded the girl's face.

"They're afraid?" he asked slowly.

"Some, I guess. Maybe, most I don't know why. Maybe some don't even know it. It's like they had the mountains at their backs, strong, something to lean on and be sure of. So, they stay on. Some alone, some already married, with families and some get married after."

"Isn't it risky?" Dave asked doubtfully.

"No, I guess not—if they're all right, and conditions, too. They get married, have healthy kids, and go on livin' here. Like I used to tell you, folks is always braggin' about how they come up here to die, and don't. Sure, sooner or later they do, but it's usually 40 or 50 years later. Take Mr. Grimes, who came when he was 20 with maybe two, three years left: when he died the whole town followed the coffin. He was 90-something. Log fell on him or he'd likely be livin' yet!"

"Well, more power to the kid," Dave said. "I hope she makes 90, but marries her Frank well before then."

"You stayin' for dinner?" Cas asked.

"Thanks no. I'll get along back. Think I'll go fishing. Tell the boys."

He returned by the road and saw that Karen must still be the as a battered car was drawn up close to the turn-in. He went on to camp and saw her, past the trees, just where he'd left her.

In camp, he opened the milk he'd fetched, and made some sandwiches, one eye on the Sunday papers, which had been left at Cas' for him. You can't say, do two things satisfactorily at once. The knife slipped and nicked him. He applied first aid and then thought of Karen. On an impulse, which he regretted almost as soon as he was within earshot, he went to find her.

"You bring a lunch?" he asked. Karen jumped. "Golly, you scared me. I didn't hear you coming. What time is it?"

He told her and she made a funny face. "I forgot my watch, and had no idea—Look, is that any improvement?"

He looked and nodded. "Some," he said. "What about lunch?"

"I didn't pack one. Thought I'd be back."

"Does your aunt expect you?"

"Never this time of year."

He said: "Come on up to camp. There's milk and sandwiches. I was making some, when the knife slipped." He exhibited the plaster. "If you'd rather have tea or coffee, it's there. I had 'steen cups at Cas Rogers'."

"You know Cas? Oh, of course, he's your neighbor. I don't know anyone that's better liked. He always brings us our Christmas tree, started way back. He and my uncle were friends, and Cas knew my father, too."

Dave picked up camp chair and easel, and she followed with the painting and paint-box and her palette. In the house she took off her smock, a polo gazing. "Aunt Mame says I get more paint on me than on the canvas!"

She was wearing a woollen frock and a cardigan, but he asked: "Aren't you cold? It may be spring but it isn't very warm. I'll make a fire."

"I'm fine, and I've a coat in the car. But I like a fire, if it isn't too hot. This is a comfortable camp, Mr. Barton. I've never been inside before. What a lot of books! I suppose they're yours?"

"Yes, but young Joe Rogers reads more than I do, I'm afraid." She stood her hands behind her, looking at the titles. "I don't know that I'm up to reading them," she admitted and then stopped, having reached the books of art criticism.

"Except maybe there."

"Take them along, any or all," and, as she turned, smiling, he said: "I had only a glimpse of you that day in the art shop, but got an impression of a lot of hair under your woollen cap. Did you cut it?"

It was quite short, very thick and curly.

Her head went up. "That wind," she said ruefully. "Yes, I did. I got sick of it. I had a permanent, too, and looked perfectly awful for a while."

He asked, "What did you decide? Milk, coffee tea?"

"Tea, please. I'll make it, I'd like to."

Dave got out cups and plates and presently they sat at the kitchen table with the sandwiches, a loaf of Mrs. Rogers' bread, cookies, a jar of jelly and one of peanut butter. Karen ate, he saw, with good appetite.

"I'm a pig. I didn't know I was so hungry."

"You're too thin."

"I know. It runs in the family. One good thing, all my friends envy me. I could eat a banana split a day and not put on an ounce."

"What a hideous prospect!"

They talked but said little worth remembering; friendly talk, laced liberally with laughter.

One thing he did remember. She asked naturally, "Do you have a picture of your son, Mr. Barton?"

He gave it to her, from his wallet. She studied it for a long time and then she gave it back to him.

"What a nice boy!" she said. "Yes."

Then she said: "When you've almost died, especially if you were very young when it nearly happened to you, you think about death some times. He'll always be young," she added, quite matter-of-factly.

"It doesn't make it easier to know that," Dave said.

"I suppose not." She rose and smiled at him. "Thanks a lot for lunch, but I'd better go back now. Home, I mean."

"Don't forget the book, or books."

"Well, thanks, I'll take good care of them."

"I'll help you take your things to the car," he said.

"It's Aunt Mame's. She lets me have it for my excursions. I won't forget to return the books, Mr. Barton."

Talk Followed By Real Experience

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, N.Y. (AP)—Thirty-five village policemen here heard a lecture on the fundamentals of obstetrics, so they would know how to pinch-hit as midwives if the need arose.

Dr. G. Borden Granger then opened a question-and-answer period. It was cut short when he received an emergency delivery call to Mercy Hospital.

Three Of Eight Remember Words

BALTIMORE (AP)—How many prepubergologists are there in the United States?

The match industry says there are probably 29 million. And what is a prepubergologist? It is a person who reads the match book cover before striking the match.

At least, so he's been defined by Dr. J.E. Schmidt, a Baltimore lexicographer. At any rate, surveys shows that three out of every eight persons who carry match books—and there are 79 million of them in the United States—can recall the message on the match books in their pockets without looking to check up.

Have Fun, Learn Doctrines Of Communism, Kids Told

By JACK JAMES
Times Press Staff Correspondent
GREENSBORO, N.P.—Two mammoth youth organizations have been established by the Chinese Communists to enable them to bring up youngsters in the Communist tradition.

They are the All China Democratic Youth Federation, which takes in most of the country's teen-agers—and even some below that age—and the New Democratic Youth League, an elite corps of 9,000-900 youngsters in training to become party members when they reach 18 years of age.

The NDYL is often described as the "nucleus" of the bigger and less exclusive Youth Federation. Five members of the National Presidium of the ACDYF, including the Chairman Liao Ch'eng-shih and the vice-chairman, Liu Tzu-sheng, are on the Presidium on NDYL.

This style of organization holds in local chapters, where NDYL members are expected to be the sparkplugs of the youth movement.

Once the NDYL's constitution described it as a "mass organization of progressive youth," but no more. It is now an elite organization and that clause was deleted from the constitution at the last meeting.

According to its constitution, the NDYL also shall carry out all its activities under the direct leadership of the Communist Party of China. All members "must support the policy of the CPC and be willing to strive faithfully for the gradual transition to socialism under the leadership of the party."

Big-Name Speakers
 When the two organizations have their annual conventions—they have just finished the 1963 stint—they draw some of the biggest names in the Peking Government to speak before them. Liu Shao-chi, top theoretician in the Government, and the old war-horse, Gen. Chu Teh, were speakers this year.

Liu Shao-chi's speech sounded like a high school commencement address, vintage 1920. As the "Lieutenant and reserve force of the (Communist) party," Liu told League members they should:

1. "Actively participate in the construction of the Motherland, bring into full play their initiative and creativeness, play a leading role and exert an exemplary effect on the broad masses of Chinese youth."

2. Leave their Communist obligations—Marx, Engels, Lenin, Stalin, Mao Tse-tung, and of course Liu Shao-chi, who wrote, among other things, scientific and technical knowledge of the Soviet Union.

3. "Consolidate your own organization for the purity and solemnity of which you should struggle."
4. Learn to employ the weapons of criticism and self-criticism of the party against all undesirable phenomena.

4. Integrate the vigorously promoted spirit of patriotism and internationalism with the great task of safeguarding and constructing the Motherland and the defense of world peace."

Gay Spirit Fostered
 That may seem like a big order, and a dreary prospect for youth. But the Communists have also decreed that the youth of China must also have fun, whether they want to or not.

"While unflinchingly heightening their political consciousness and discipline, youth must yet develop the vivacious, gay spirit peculiar and natural to the young," the Peoples Daily, official party organ in Peking, said in an editorial. It added "must pay special attention to sports and other cultural and recreational activities."

The Communists also build up international ties through their youth organizations with foreign delegates from the Soviet Union, Korea, the insurgent government of Indonesia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Mongolia, Indonesia, Great Britain and Australia.

The two organizations also named delegations of their own to the Communist sponsored World Federation of Democratic Youth. For the next year they will travel to similar national meetings in other satellite countries.

Midnight Sun Is Tourists' Lure

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Well-heeled tourists, mostly Americans, are taking a 300-dollars-a-head land cruise to enjoy midnight sun-bathing in the Arctic Circle.

They travel through some of Northern Europe's most beautiful scenery in Sweden and Norway, finishing up by the war-famed waters of Narvik fjord.

The tourists live aboard the electric-powered "Sunlit Cruiser" train which is the pride of the Swedish state railroads. The train is equipped with showers, bar and observation car. There are movies and radio aboard and you can telephone direct from the train to almost any place in the world during its longer stops.

Bus and boat tours will carry the tourists to beauty spots far from the rail tracks.

Among the attractions: a midnight round of golf on the world's most northerly course with a Lapp along as caddy, a special welcome from King Bore (the ice king) at the frontier of his domain, and a "polar certificate" to show you have really been right inside the Arctic Circle.

Downtown Areas Require Changes

CHICAGO (U.P.)—An expert on city development says the future of central business districts in many cities may depend largely on the orderly rearrangement of the downtown area.

J.D. Carroll Jr., discussed the problem in Public Management, monthly journal of the International City Managers' Association.

Carroll, director of the Detroit Metropolitan Area Study, said city officials must encourage the intensive use of existing commercial sites, and must make it easier for traffic and people to move within the downtown business districts.

Two major trends, increased automobile registrations and the post-war boom in suburban development, have magnified the problems of the central business district, Carroll said.

He said a study at Flint, Mich., showed that travel by automobile diminishes as cities increase in size, due to traffic congestion and travel distances.

But he said despite these factors, "the larger the city the greater the parking problem."

The study of Flint showed a "steady relative decline in real property values in the central business district, especially in land values," Carroll said.

Milk Signals On Husband's Route

TOKAWA, Okla. (AP)—Mrs. Paul Brooks readily agreed to take care of her husband's milk route during his second vacation in 20 years. She had two strong sons to help. But the three did not know about the code system set up by Brooks with his customers for their orders. And it took nearly all the vacation period to figure it out.

For instance one empty bottle on one front porch meant: "There are two more empties on the back porch. Bring three quarts. You'll find the money in one of the bottles on the back porch."

THEY LIKE HIM

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—When a city park officer, R. L. Brown, stops a motorist for speeding, the captain of the park police is likely to get a letter about it—and not a nasty one either. Park Capt. D. J. Peoples says: "We get a lot of letters on that man. Folks apparently like it the way Brown requests them to observe the park speed limit."

Goddess Of Love Just Isn't Loved

SALEM, Ore. (U.P.)—Nobody loves the Goddess of Love. By virtually unanimous voice of the citizens of Salem, the burton statue of Venus, done in the altogether by the French artist-sculptor Renoir, will neither grace nor disgrace the Marion County courthouse grounds in the heart of Oregon's capital city.

The tizzy over the nude came about because the late Carroll L. Moores, willed his estate to the city for a fitting memorial to Oregon pioneers. Moores, a bachelor and a frugal man, was a janitor and elevator operator in the Oregon Supreme Court building, but he left an estate when he died in 1936 that has grown to about $30,000. Two beneficiaries were willed the interest on the estate as long as they lived, which is why the tizzy did not arise before.

A committee was named to choose a fitting memorial to pioneers. After a continent-wide search they came up with the suggestion of Venus, now reposing in New York. The howls started. What, asked enraged Salemites, did Venus have to do with the pioneers of Oregon?

Straw votes were taken at service club luncheons and the Goddess could have counted the votes she got on her 10 fingers yes. Renoir's Venus has hands. Other citizens wrote letters of indignation to the paper. None wrote approval. So Venus is out, and the committee is trying again.

Hybrid Grass Is Pleasing Cattle

STARKVILLE, Miss. (U.P.)—Officials are keeping their fingers crossed on a new cattle food—a hybrid of Johnson grass and sorghum.

"It looks so good we're afraid to make any promises," says Dr. H.W. Bennett, agronomist heading the experiments at Mississippi State College here.

It will be at least 18 months before the seed can go on sale. Bennett says extensive tests must still be made to find shortcomings.

The hybrid, like Johnson grass, comes up year after year with one planting and is rich in carbohydrates. Like sorghum, the stalks are sweet, and cattle love it.

It outgrows both its parents, often reaching a height of 14 feet. Johnson grass usually hits four feet, and sorghum eight feet.

The hybrid does best when planted in clay type, fairly fertile soils—the same type in which Johnson grass grows.

Bennett says several "bugs" still to be studied may cause the commercial yield to fall below expectations.

More Rice From Philippines Seen

SINGAPORE (AP)—The Philippines is looking forward to the day when she will, like Thailand, be able to export rice to surrounding deficit Asian countries.

V.R. Concepcion, assistant general manager of the National Rice and Corn Corporation and Filipino delegate to the Rice Consultative Committee conference said here: "We have progressed from a rice importing country to a self-supporting country with a reasonable rice surplus."

Match Industry Planning Exports

MARCH INHUSTRIY IS . . . . .
GOA, Portuguese India (AP)—Goa's first match factory hopes to reach a target of 1,000 boxes per day gross output soon and plans exports to Pakistan, Portuguese East Africa, and British East Africa.

Launched by M.B. Shah, formerly of Zanzibar, the venture followed Shah's 1960 visit to Japan. He purchased machinery from the Toa Seiki firm, for $210,000. Two hundred workers are now employed.

The Right Bait Will Catch The Male; And Girls Get Examples

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Girls! Having trouble getting your man? Do the fellow flee when you approach? Does a married future look unlikely?

The trouble may very well be that you are not using the right "color bait." This I read in one of my favorite newspapers, and the theory was credited to Sara Winsborough, identified as a color consultant.

Miss Winsborough's idea is that girls fishing for beaux should learn their lessons from those who fish for fish. The thesis is that an angler wouldn't dream of setting out on a fish-catching expedition without a box of colorful lures—bits of colored feathers artfully fastened together—each designed to cause a species of fish to swallow a hook.

Miss Winsborough cautions that a girl, like a fisherman, must know what kind of bait to use, pointing out quite sensibly that what attracts a marlin won't get so much as a tumble from a striped bass.

I've been thinking over Miss Winsborough's fascination-theory quite carefully, and am now prepared to give some specific information on its practical application.

Now then, the reason that a poor fish leaps onto the end of a baited hook is because he sees something that he stupidly suspects is something he's fond of eating.

Everyone knows that the most direct route to a man's heart is through his stomach, so Miss Winsborough is on solid ground when she suggests that the most effective man-bait is something suggestive of food.

Therefore, the best and wisest plan of attack is to pick arbitrarily some poor fish. Try to find one without obvious scars indicating he's already been hooked and broken away. Without indicating in any way you are contemplating an angling expedition, try to get a line on his favorite foods.

After that, organize your wardrobe and make-up so that every time he looks at you, his thoughts immediately turn to the joys of the growing board.

Here are a few concrete examples on how to proceed:

Let's say you trail the elusive quarry repeatedly to an Italian restaurant. That means you'd better plan your dresses around a color scheme of the dead white of the pasta and the deep red and stimulating reds of tomato sauces. The intricate design, suggesting a steaming plate of spaghetti, is important. But let's say he turns out to be a stew, ragout or goulash man. Then deep, gravy browns, lightened by the pale yellow of an overcooked carrot and the delicate white tracery of a well-boiled onion. A chosen, may be just the bait for

If he goes in for Oriental dishes, and is fond of rice and saffron, perhaps the best lure would be to adopt a definitely yellow makeup, one that could approximate the complexion of one suffering acutely from jaundice. This cannot fail to remind him of his favorite dish.

Sometimes, of course, it is impossible to ferret out the favorite foods of a likely victim. In that case, the fisherman is wise to stick to a color scheme involving the Chinese reeds of rare steak—with just a touch of charcoal hues to mark the silhouette—livened by the delicate golden brown of French fried potatoes.

A precautionary word or two: never go in for such colors as lettuce green, parsnip yellow, or whipped cream white. For dressy wear, the best combination is apple-pie yellow with vanilla ice-cream white accessories.

Good fishing, but for goodness sake watch those calories.

PLANNED MONUMENT:—This is an artist's conception of a planned $25,000,000 national shrine scheduled to be built on Pine Mountain, 74 miles south of Atlanta, Ga., near Warm Springs. The temple-like open hall monument, to be built with funds raised by public subscription and gifts, will portray the story of the U. S. from its discovery through World War I on granite walls nine stories high, according to the plans. The land on which the monument will be built — 2,000-acres — was once owned by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt. Charles F. # Composer's Kin Steers Clear Of Musical Career

CANBERRA, Australia (U.P.)—Operating a 4,248 — character Chinese typewriter is just part of the day's work for Svetlana Rimsky-Korsakoff.

The bulky machine was specially imported from Hongkong. The typefaces are all upside down on a flat surface and the carriage is moved around to the required character each time.

Svetlana, 21, is a research assistant at the Australian National University, which is growing up in the national capital. The composer of "Scheherazade" was the brother of her father's father. Which makes Svetlana a great-niece.

Miss Rimsky-Korsakoff—"Spelt with a 'v' or 'f' makes no difference," she said — came to Australia from Peking in 1952. She was born in Peking, where her father was a professor of ancient history at Tsinghua University.

Instead of going to foreign schools like other European children, Svetlana got her education in China. She went through primary school, college and then graduated from Peking University, where she majored in languages and literature. All in Chinese.

A quiet, soft-spoken girl Svetlana has adopted many Chinese mannerisms. She speaks English with a faint Chinese accent, and loves to break into Chinese idiom — if she knows you understand Mandarin.

Miss Rimsky-Korsakoff came to Australia at the invitation of C.P. Fitzgerald, one of the world's leading experts on Chinese history and politics. Fitzgerald first heard of her during his 1946-50 stay in Peking. Much of his recently published "Revolution in China" is based on what he saw during that time.

Fitzgerald now heads the department of Eastern history at the National University.

Miss Rimsky-Korsakoff's main job is copying and translating articles from current Chinese magazines and other publications. She also finds time to give private Chinese lessons.

She likes to play mahjong, cook Chinese food, or read Chinese poetry. What about music? — "I used to play the piano, but everybody expected me to be brilliant, because of my great-uncle, so I dropped it," she said.

RUNAWAY SLAIN:—This range cow is being shot by police in squad car after cow along with three others, escaped from a suburban slaughterhouse pen in Houston, Texas. Two of the animals were captured on the highway. The fourth also fell to police bullets. The cows tied up traffic for blocks besides frightening passers-by.

Georgia's Manhunt Is Now In Its Fourth Day

ADAIRSVILLE, Ga. (UP)—One of the South's greatest manhunts heavily into its fourth day today as scores of federal and state police officers checked each farm in this hilly north Georgia country for two desperate killers.

Some officers feared that Eugene Juellich and Lewis W. Larson may have broken out of the 40 square mile area cordoned off since Saturday afternoon when U. S. Deputy Marshal Sam Vaughn, 54, was shot and his body tossed from his car.

Missing also and presumed to be a hostage was George Hightower, 30, who was helping Vaughn transport the two men from Nashville, Tenn., to the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

C. H. Carson, special agent in charge of the Atlanta office of the FBI, said the two convicts had operated in rural areas most of the time since forming a "crime team," apparently about three years ago.

"They are used to 'working' small towns and farm sections — and they could probably live out in the woods, if necessary," Carson said.

The 200-man posse, armed with rifles and carrying detailed maps of the area, carefully searched each farm on the theory that the two desperadoes may have hidden out, holding a farm family captive.

Carson said the house-to-house hunt would take about "two or three days" but the investigation would continue as long as there was any possibility that the two men were in northwest Georgia.

Juellich and Larson, both of St. Paul, Minn., had been sentenced in Nashville to five year prison terms on car theft charges growing out of a three-state crime spree.

Scientists Find Fossil Of Turtle

CANYON, Tex. (U.P.)—A party of scientists from the University of California, Berkeley, reported that it had discovered an almost complete fossil of a giant turtle in the Palo Duro Canyon of the Texas Panhandle.

Dr. Don Savage, a former resident of Canyon and head of the expedition said the fossil's nearest living relatives are the giant Galapagos turtles, found only on the islands of that name in the Pacific Ocean, off the South American coast.

"This turtle is not very old," Savage said. "It is possibly 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 years old, which, in geological science isn't very long at all. Some have been found that are over 4,000,000 years old."

The tortoise, complete except for the head, was found while Savage was studying and charting the geology and paleontology of the fossil-mammal bearing beds of the Palo Duro Canyon. Working with him were Pete Norton, Oakland, Calif., and Bill Clemens, Berkeley, both California students.

Norton said the turtle probably burrowed into the sandy bottom of a river bed to hibernate, and the river dried up during the reptile's long sleep.

The paleontologists cast plaster over the shell and then turned the turtle over to remove the bones. The legs escaped the fate of the head, because they were drawn up into the shell, Norton said.

Delegation From ECC To See Lost Colony Production During Weekend

A delegation from the East Carolina College English Department will go to Manteo August 15-16 for the week-end performances of "The Lost Colony."

Clifton Britton, manager of "The Lost Colony" this summer, is an alumnus of East Carolina College, holding bachelor's and master of arts degrees from this institution.

He was recipient of the ECC Alumni Award in 1947.

In the party from here will be Dr. Lucile Turner, director of the ECC English department; Miss Emma Hooper, Miss Lois Grigsby, and Dr. Ed Hirschberg. Miss Grigsby was Britton's advisor while he did his graduate study here.

Others in the party include several students and Miss Lottie Hooper, sister of Miss Emma Hooper; Miss Blanche Grigsby, sister of Miss Lois Grigsby; Miss Katie Earl Owens, and Miss Lois Faircloth.

Special Diet For The Big Game

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Montana's big game animals are getting plenty of minerals in their diet this year.

Robert F. Cooney, director of wildlife restoration for the Montana Fish and Game Department said about 80 tons of specially mineralized block salt were placed on big game ranges throughout the state.

Says President Is Keeping Promise

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UP) — Gov. James F. Byrnes told a news conference late yesterday afternoon that President Eisenhower was adhering to his pre-election statements that he is a firm believer in "indestructible rights" of the states.

Byrnes said Mr. Eisenhower's presence at the 45th annual national governors conference in Seattle, Wash., last week contributed greatly toward making it the best conference Byrnes has attended since he became governor.

Byrnes said he noted a "greater degree of acceptance" among governors of proposals for withdrawal of certain grants to states.

He said he thought the attitude change was due in part to a recommendation by the President for establishment of a commission to study the feasibility of the federal government withdrawing from certain tax fields and at the same time abolishing some federal grants.

Byrnes said the states would

Potomac Island Near-Wilderness

WASHINGTON, U.P.—Washingtonians who want to get away from it all are re-discovering a deserted island just a two-minute boat ride away.

The island, once the site of an imposing summer home, is now a virtual wilderness. Foxes, barred owls, wild mallards, and night herons roam the 90-acre tract in the Potomac river in comparative isolation almost within a stone's throw of the nation's capital city.

Recently, regular ferry service from Georgetown has been launched for the benefit of Washingtonians with a hankering to explore the wilds.

The island is operated by the National Capital Parks as a memorial to Theodore Roosevelt, a strong promoter of conservation. A few trails and a shelter near the river are its only concessions to civilization.

Foundation Overgrown
Curiosity hunters and amateur naturalists will find the foundation of George Mason's fine summer home all but overgrown by a wealth of unusual flora. Among the numerous trees on Roosevelt island is a tall white oak and a rare Kentucky coffee tree.

Mason, whose home was destroyed by fire during the Civil War, operated a flourishing plantation on the island. Here he grew cotton and tobacco and set out fruit trees.

The island was a grant to Lord Baltimore from Charles II of England in 1632. It changed hands several times and, until its purchase in 1931 by the Roosevelt Memorial Association, had been locally known as Mason's island.

ANTS

There's a new and better way to kill ants. It's called Roach Films. When applied to any surface with the built-in cap-applicator, it leaves a hard, dry, clean, invisible film. The film can't harm or soil any surface; but, when ants touch it, their legs become paralyzed and they die in two hours. A single application remains effective for months. You never see it, but it sure does get rid of them. It's available Roaches! Roach Films is available at Belk-Tyler's, 3rd Floor. —Adv

Child's Skeleton From Bronze Age

WHEATON, Ill. (U.P.) — The skeleton of a child who lived about the time of Joseph near Dothan, Palestine, where Joseph was sold into slavery, has been brought here. Dr. Joseph P. Free, Wheaton college archeologist, found the skeleton during a recent expedition with his wife and their two children. "The implements found in the earth near the skeleton indicates that the skeleton belonged to the same period as Joseph," he said. "They were of the period classed as Middle Bronze, between 2,000 and 1,600 B.C."

The Bible says Joseph's brothers sold him as a slave at Dothan. Mrs. Free helped her husband unearth the skeleton which was buried under the corner of a wall. Free said the skeleton's location indicates that the child may have been the victim of a "foundation sacrifice" which, he said, is mentioned in the Bible.

He quoted I Kings 16: "In his days Hiel of Bethel built Jericho; he laid its foundation at the cost of Abram, his first born, and set up its gates at the cost of his youngest son Segub."

Tiny vessels of food were buried with the skeleton, Free said. They indicated that the ancients believed in life after death.

Agriculture Dept. Seems Sure To Call For Controls On Cotton

By PATRICIA WIGGINS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (U.P.) — The Agriculture Department seemed certain today to call for federal controls on cotton production the way it has in the case of wheat.

A spokesman said the Department's estimate yesterday that this year's crop would hit 14,605,000 bales "certainly points to enough cotton to call out quotas."

Wheat farmers are going to the polls next Friday for the first time in 12 years to vote on the wheat quotas. If the government calls for controls on cotton, growers would take part in a similar referendum in December.

The department planned to issue its general crop report late today and there was a chance a third major crop — corn — might get shovled under quotas next year.

In the Chicago grain market, there also was speculation that it would indicate a bigger winter wheat crop than expected. This was a factor in the selling wave that hit the wheat market yesterday.

Another factor, experts said, was the chance that farmers will vote in Friday's referendum to abandon quotas on the 1954 crop and accept a cut in federal price supports of from 90 to 50 percent of parity.

Dwindling exports and growing surpluses, in addition to this year's big crop, were cited as the reasons for the almost certain imposition of controls on cotton.

The Agriculture Department spokesman said yesterday's production estimate already took into account expected heavy losses in drought-hit southwest fields. Crop-saving rains and high yields elsewhere helped boost crop prospects above those anticipated earlier.

The Department's monthly estimates on cotton production have fluctuated as much as 2,000,000 bales during one season in the past. But officials don't believe there will be that big a switch — if a reduction, enough to question the need for quotas next year — in this year's estimates.

One expert pointed out that in the past most of the season fluctuations have been upward.

If estimated output doesn't come down, the only way Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson could avoid proclaiming quotas for 1954 would be if there were "drastic" revisions in estimated export and domestic needs. Changes there also are held unlikely.

On the basis of the currently estimated production, supplies this season would be more than 50 percent above estimated needs. Farm law requires quotas be set when supplies exceed needs by 30 percent.

Benson has until Oct. 15 to proclaim cotton quotas and a farmer-vote must be held by Dec. 15. Two-thirds of those voting must approve before the quotas — which impose fines on those marketing more than their share — can go into effect.

Cotton farmers have voted in favor of quotas each of the seven times they have been asked, on the 1938, 1939, 1940, 1941, 1942, 1943 and 1950 crop years. The percentage voting for quotas ranged from a low of 84 percent to a high of 94 percent. The last time they voted 89 percent favored controls.

Unless Congress acts in January to relax current quota regulations, farmers probably will be voting for a still cutback to only 17,500,000 to 18,000,000 acres next year compared to the 24,618,000 acres planted this year. Law allows Benson to ask for production of only 10,000,

Bob Porterfield Hurls One - Hit Shutout Over Red Sox

Braves' Spahn Beats Cards To Gain Fifteenth Victory

By CARL LUNDQUIST
NEW YORK (UP)—Washington fans, who don't have much else to cheer about, were wondering today if perhaps Bob Porterfield is their best pitcher since the days of the immortal Walter Johnson.

Porterfield has a long way to go to earn that reputation but his 2-0 birthday one-hitter over the Red Sox Monday night gave him eight shutouts for the season—the most by a Washington hurler since Johnson hurled that many 30 years ago in 1924.

It was the third blanking job in a row for the mighty righthander from Newport, Va., giving him a string of 29 scoreless innings, one for every year of his life on his 29th birthday.

"That was the greatest game I ever pitched," he said as his mates mobbed him in World Series victory fashion in the club house. "I've heard people talk of happiest moments and I guess this one was mine."

The one big thrill in his big night came with nobody out in the ninth after he walked Jimmy Piersall, who had spoiled his chance for a no-hitter with a single in the third. Up came Ted Williams as a pitcher but the Red Sox slugger, who homered in a similar role Sunday, struck out.

Porterfield threw terrible Teddy only four pitches.

"That last one was a curve that broke over the plate and he went for it," Porterfield said.

The ex-Yankee hurler put no one but Piersall on base. He struck out three in pitching to only 28 men. The guy who was snubbed by Manager Casey Stengel for the All-Star game now has shut out every team in the league except Detroit. It was his second one-hitter of the year and he now has given up only 10 hits in his last three games. He one-hit the Athletics May 10. It was his 14th victory, the high for any one season in his major league career. Last year he won 12 and lost 14. Washington scored in the first inning on a double by Mike Thomas that followed a single by Mickey Vernon. Vernon also singled in the other run in the eighth.

In the only other major league game, the Braves cut Brooklyn's lead to 6 1-2 games when they topped the Cardinals, 3-2, on a seven-hitter by lefty Warren Spahn, who won his 15th game.

It was Milwaukee's sixth straight victory and it was achieved quickly when the Braves batted around in the second inning to score five runs. Johnny Logan, Andy Pafo, Del Crandall, and Sid Gordon made two hits apiece as the Braves collected 11, but got only one in the four final innings off reliever Cliff Chambers. Spahn struck out five and walked only one man. One of the St. Louis runs was unearned.

In exhibition competition the Indians topped the Dodgers, 8-6, at Cleveland while the Browns toed Cincinnati, 9-5, at St. Louis.

'Meanest Men'—Guys Who Break Up No-Hit Games

NEW YORK (UP)—There were 10 "meanest men" in the major leagues today—the guys who have broken up no-hitters this season.

When Bob Porterfield of Washington pitched a one-hit 2-0 victory over Boston Monday night, it marked the 10th one-hit game of the year. Seven have been in the American League and three in the National.

Jimmy Piersall of the Red Sox was the latest in the "meanest man" club. His third inning single spoiled Porterfield's effort.

The other one-hit pitchers and the spoilers:

Bob Kuzava of the Yankees, Aug. 8—Bob Boyd of the White Sox.

Warren Spahn of the Braves, Aug. 1—Richie Ashburn of the Phils.

Mickey McDermott of the Red Sox, July 19—Al Smith of the Indians.

Carl Erskine of the Dodgers, May 17—Gus Bell of the Reds.

Curt Simmons of the Phils, May 16—Bill Bruton of the Braves.

Porterfield, May 10—Eddie Joost of the Athletics.

Brenner Intends To Reward Perez With Main Event

NEW YORK (UP)—Matchmaker Teddy Brenner said today that he intended to reward Lulu Perez with a 10-round main event at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena on either Aug. 24 or Aug. 31.

Perez, class young Brooklyn featherweight contender, scored his 21st consecutive victory Monday night when he stopped Frankie Sodano of Philadelphia at 2:36 of the fifth round. Perez weighed 125 1-2 to Sodano's 124 3-4.

Sporting News Runs Story On Night Ball

A survey which proves conclusively that night baseball has not shortened players' careers in the majors is presented in The Sporting News by Warren Giles, president of the National League. He offered figures which showed there were more ten-year men in the National League this season than there were in 1938 and, in fact, more players ranging upward from the five-year mark.

A definite margin in longevity for 1953 was established with 30 to 28 in the ten-year-class, and 88 to 77 in players with five or more years' experience.

The study in The Sporting News seems to blast effectively the widely-held belief that floodlight baseball reduces a man's big league life, and it also provided an unassailable answer to player demands.

Giles explained: "We selected 1938 for comparative purposes because night baseball was not a factor at that time, and because it was before the war became a factor affecting ages.

"The players in our study were the 25 men on each club in the league on June 1 of the two years considered.

"In the 1953 figures," Giles continued, "war service years are included, because these count toward a ten-year status. However, I do not think anyone would insist that it is easier for a big leaguer to go into the Army and then regain his job, than it is for him to stay in baseball for the same period.

"We believe," Giles emphasized to The Sporting News writer, "the survey indicates that night baseball has not shortened careers of established players of five or more years' experience."

Dade City Captures Title In Northern Florida Play

Bobby Goldsby Hurls No-Hit Win To Pace Dade City Little Leaguers; Meet Tennessee Team Here Monday

DADE CITY, Fla. — The strong pitching of Bobby Goldsby and Donnie Porter, top hurlers for the Little League All-Star team here, gave Dade City the edge they needed to post two wins in the Little League Sectional Tournament played Friday and Saturday at Orlando, Fla., and capture the state championship for the northern half of Florida.

Both boys pitched shutout games—Goldsby earning a 3-0 victory over Tallahassee in the opening game Friday morning, and Porter hurling a 2-0 game Saturday afternoon in the tourney finale as the Dade City boys downed Panama City.

Panama City had edged Orlando 3-2 in the second game of the tournament Friday afternoon to advance to the finals with Dade City.

Goldsby, who had set an amazing pitching record in the regular season for his team, earned his sixth no-hit victory Friday against Tallahassee. During the regular season he pitched in eight games, winning them all, five of them being no-hitters. He also hurled a perfect game this season, striking out all 18 batters that faced him in the six inning contest.

College All-Stars Cause Detroit's Parker 'Jitters'

DETROIT (UP)—Coach Buddy Parker admitted today he was a bit jittery over not knowing what kind of an attack the college All-Stars will spring on his Detroit Lions at Soldier's Field in Chicago Friday night.

The 39-year-old Texan was optimistic about his Lions' chances during the regular National Football League season but said he was worried about the collegians because his staff knew so little about them.

"About the only thing we're certain of is that Bobby Dodd is coaching them," Parker said. "It's difficult to get ready for any game when you don't know what kind of offense the opposition will use. We've tried in the past few weeks to get as much information as we could on Dodd's style of play at Georgia."

Parker said his charges were rounding into good shape but feared the collegians would be in better condition.

"Those boys are younger and can condition themselves more rapidly than most of the pros," he said. "We're planning on a close game."

Aside from his "close game" comment, Parker would not speculate on the outcome of the game.

"But I'll tell you this," he said, "we aren't taking the All-Stars lightly."

No more scrimmages were on the Lions' practice schedule for the week and drills will taper off with light workouts Thursday morning.

Welborn Strong Contender At Raleigh Track Friday

RALEIGH, Aug. 11 — A young North Carolinian rising fast in the auto racing field will be one of the strongest contenders in the 200-lap late model stock car race scheduled for the sporty quarter-mile asphalt track at the Raleigh Speedway Friday night, August 14.

He is Bob Welborn of Summerfield, near Greensboro, who racked up his latest short-track triumph last Saturday in winning a double feature at the fast Raleigh Speedway in Richmond, Va., against some of the toughest opposition in the business.

In the previous two weeks, Welborn won short-track features at the Lanham, Md. Speedway and on the Royal Canadian Exposition raceway at Toronto, Canada. The up-and-coming Tar Heel speedster drives a 1949 Plymouth, and he will definitely be a driver to watch in next Friday's late model speed spectacle at Raleigh.

Welborn ranked sixth in national NASCAR short-track standings before his two Richmond victories, which are sure to give him a substantial rise toward the top rung, now occupied by Jim Reed of Ossining, N. Y.

Reed was one of the first to file for the Friday night speed show, along with Charles Dyer of North Bergen, N. J., runner-up in national point standings. They will lead a large contingent of northern drivers to the Speedway for a determined crack at the $3,000 purse.

Altogether, 20 or more hard-driving speedsters—all that the brilliantly-lit quarter-mile track can accommodate at one time—will roar off in the 200-lap feature following time trials and two 10-lap heats.

As an added attraction, amateur races will be staged to top off a night of thrilling track action.

Time trials will begin at 6 p. m. and the first heat's set for 8 o'clock.

Softballers Lose

A homerun in the second inning by the rightfielder of the Halifax Textile Mills softball team proved to be enough to eliminate the Greenville Home Builders team from the North Carolina Amateur Softball Association Tournament. The Halifax team beat the locals 2-0 in a game played last night in Rocky Mount, scoring an unearned run in the third inning for the other tally.

The Textiles' Nethercutt tossed the win, while L. E. Johnson was the victim of the shutout loss. Strictly a pitcher's game, neither team showed too much power at the plate.

U. S. Corn stockpiles will contain about 800,000,000 bushels by October 1.

Nellie Fox Clears Mystery Of Locker Falling On Him

By MILTON RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UP)—Once and for all, he hopes, Nellie Fox of the White Sox finally cleared up the "mystery" today of how the lockers happened to fall on him.

"I've heard a hundred rumors about how I got hurt," declared the Chicago second baseman, "so I guess I might as well set the record straight."

"First of all," he said, referring to the accident which occurred in Washington, Aug. 2 after the Senators nipped the White Sox, 1-0, "I didn't have a fight with Ferris Fain or anyone else on the club. I don't know how that story got started but I've been hearing it everywhere I go.

"Then there was another rumor that the lockers fell on me because I blew my top and kicked them in disgust after we lost that 1-0 ball game to the Senators.

"That's a pretty good theory but it didn't happen that way at all. I'll tell you what really happened but I don't know if it'll do any good because everyone seems to have their own idea.

"Anyway, we had just gotten through playing the Senators and

Ted Williams Knows Today That He Has Made It All The Way Back

Newport Star Is Favorite To Win Harness Classic

GOSHEN, N. Y. (UP)—Newport Star, the top favorite among horsemen even before driver Del Cameron reached in the box and pulled out position three for Wednesday's $117,000 Hambletonian Stakes, was well on the way today to becoming an overwhelming choice to win the Harness Classic.

About the only doubtful person in these parts was Cameron himself, who, at 33, is seeking to become the youngest driver ever to win the Hambletonian.

"You may not believe me," Cameron declared. "But I wish I'd drawn Post Eight for Star and Post Three for Newport Mascot.

The Pinehurst, N. C., reinsman drew them just the opposite when the entry box closed Monday. He also drew Post 23, the last one in the biggest Hambletonian field in history, for another Newport Stock Farm trotter, Newport Champ.

Newport Star's two toughest foes, Kimberly Kid and Elby Hanover, drew deep in the second tier.

Kimberly Kid, which is to be driven by two-time Hambletonian winner Tom Berry, drew post 17. Elby Hanover, who will have Frank Ervin up, was even worse off, drawing post 20 and thus starting as the outside horse in the second tier. Three horses will start in a third tier.

Not as bad off as Kimberly Kid and Elby Hanover were three other horses who are rated more than an outside look in for the winner's end of harness racing's richest purse.

Peter Lind (the pole), Bewitch (post 6) and Victory's First (post seven) are all highly regarded.

By OSCAR FRALEY
NEW YORK (UP)—The "Kid" knows today that he has made it all the way back.

There were many times when Ted Williams had his doubts. Not whether he ever would play baseball again, but whether he'd be "lucky enough" to come back from Korea in one piece.

"Why not?" he asked with calm fatalism when he marched away early last year. "You expect to be killed. So many are."

He hit a home run a couple of days ago his first in more than 15 frantic months. But by then, he period of trial, too, but not as bad as it might have been because Williams always was a man proud of his physical fitness.

"My hands gave me the most trouble," he says. "They were sore and blistered from swinging a bat."

The kid, as always, kept swinging. And, to help the hands, he obtained a half dozen golf gloves from Claude Harmon of Winged Foot Country Club. When the bare hands were too sore, he wore the gloves.

Through it all, the kid kept smiling.

Because Ted knows how lucky he has been. Twice his brilliant baseball career has been interrupted by his country's call. The first time he was out three years. Williams saw no combat then but was an instructor and when he came home he knew, at 27, that he still had time to make the demanding baseball grade.

But when they called him again in May of 1952, the 34-year-old Williams figured his diamond career was ended.

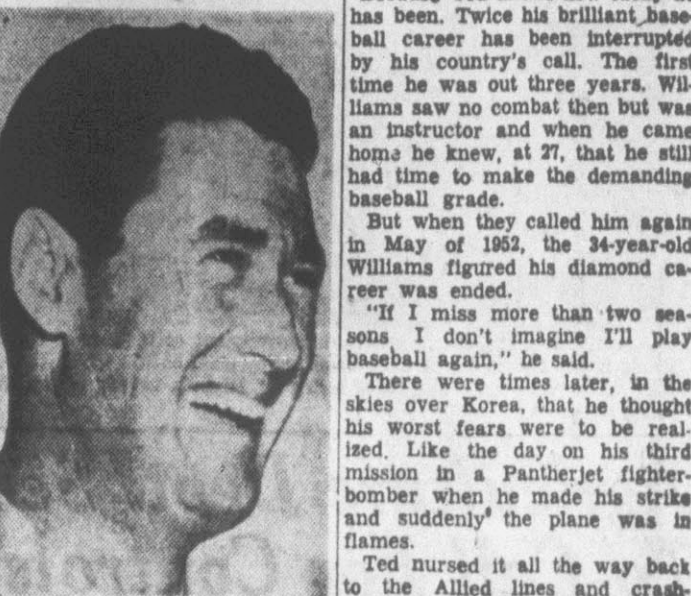

"If I miss more than two seasons I don't imagine I'll play baseball again," he said.

There were times later, in the skies over Korea, that he thought his worst fears were to be realized. Like the day on his third mission in a Pantherjet fighter-bomber when he made his strike and suddenly the plane was in flames.

Ted nursed it all the way back to the Allied lines and crash-landed it on its belly. Undemonstrative, he writes that one off as a "hairy" experience.

He had other troubles, such as pneumonia and always, those nagging doubts that he'd ever make it home—let alone back to baseball.

But he did, as one Indian pitcher can testify, with all that old power in his bat.

TED WILLIAMS

tells his friends, he knew that he would be ready to step back regularly into the lineup of the Boston Red Sox as early as this coming week-end.

His was a swift transition, from Marine captain to ball player in less than two weeks. It was a

GHS Opens Grid Slate Here Against Wilson

Greenville High School Athletic Director Boley Farley today released the 1953 Green Phantom football schedule. Opening with the Class AAA Wilson Cyclones here September 4, the local football team will play a ten-game schedule, five at home and five away.

Six conference games are listed in the schedule, three to be played at home and three on the road. Greenville will meet three triple A clubs this season—Wilson, Fayetteville and Rocky Mount.

The last home game of the season will be with the New Bern Northeastern Conference squad on October 23. The Phantoms close out the season with three road contests, traveling to Rocky Mount, Elizabeth City and Roanoke Rapids.

Becker Brothers Wrestling Here Tomorrow Night

The greatest wrestling extravaganza ever offered in Eastern North Carolina will be held in the New Enterprise Warehouse in Greenville Wednesday night. The deluxe wrestling card will begin at 8:30 p. m.

George and Bobby Becker, the most popular of all brother teams, will appear in Greenville for the first time. The famous television stars have set new records almost in every town in which they have appeared.

George and Bobby will take on the current Number 1 villain, Professor Roy Shire, and his unorthodox manager, Bobby Wallace. George and Bobby are handsome, clean, sportsmanlike wrestlers, but they have beaten the best in the business, and they have no intentions of losing to the Shire-Wallace team, a team which has a long string of victories. In fact, the only losses incurred by this pair of ruffians was on disqualification for their illegal tactics. It will be an Australian tag team match—two out of three falls with a 60-minute time limit.

Matching the tag match in interest will be big Lou Plummer and Irish Jack Moore who meet in the semi-final event. Big Lou, one of the most popular wrestlers of all time, is a former grid great at Notre Dame. He played under Knute Rockne. Plummer, a Texas cowboy, has just completed a successful northern tour. Moore, who is always good against the best, hails from Toledo, Ohio. He recently lost a close one to Lou Tessa, the world's champion.

Seixas, Rosewall Lead Field Today In Newport Match

NEWPORT, R. I. (UP)—American Vic Seixas and Aussie Ken Rosewall, the "key men" in their nations' Davis Cup hopes this year, led almost all the seeded players today into the second round of the Newport Casino Invitation Tennis tournament.

Seixas, after scoring three straight triumphs in a series that started with the Wimbledon championship, failed in last week's Eastern Grass Courts tournament, won by Rosewall, and the experts are waiting to see how Seixas rebounds from that loss.

After an easy first-round triumph Monday, Seixas was matched today against Rafael Ortega of Mexico in a second-round match and was expected to win easily again. Rosewall also was as heavily favored over Japanese Davis cupper Atsushi Miyagi.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP) — Prices on the stock exchange moved downward slightly early today in slow dealings.

High-priced oil stocks led the modest decline. Some pivots here had losses ranging to more than a point. Elsewhere, declines were mostly in the fractional zone. A number of stocks held at their previous close. As measured by the averages, utilities managed to move up a few cents.

Early dealings were very slow. Sales in the first hour totaled only 180,000 shares, compared with 210,000 shares in the same period yesterday.

In the oil group, Texas Pacific Land Trust was down two points to 130 on one transaction. Amerasia Petroleum was off 1 1/2 points to 166. Superior Oil of California, a wide mover, fell 10 points to 625.

Steel shares were backward. U. S. Steel was off 1/2 to 38 1/2 and Bethlehem was off the same amount to 51 1/2. Chrysler and General Motors eased.

NEW YORK (UP)—Sixty Washington political correspondents and commentators polled by Look Magazine expect a divided Congress next year with Republicans losing control of the House but keeping Senate majority.

Look reported today that the same group leaned heavily to believe that the Democrats will nominate Adlai E. Stevenson for Illinois for the presidency again in 1956.

The magazine said the poll showed "a feeling among political writers that Congress, in President Eisenhower's first six months, has muffed the ball — and that Congress, rather than Ike, will get the blame."

Thirty-three predicted a Democratic House as a result of 1954 elections; 26 thought the Republicans would hold on, and one "didn't know." On the Senate side, 48 thought the Republicans would keep control, nine thought the Democrats would take over, and three "didn't know."

Is guessing on the next Democratic presidential nominee, 43 named Stevenson, seven Sen. Stuart Symington (Mo.), three Sen. Richard B. Russell (Ga.), and one Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas. Five didn't guess.

Reports To Rotary On Sea Scout Ship

The Rotarians heard all about the Scout ship they sponsor for boys 14 years and older when they heard Sherman Parks, vice-chairman of the Pitt District Boy Scouts of America and strong friend of all Boy Scouts, bring them up to date last night. Harding Sugg presented the financial angle in the acquisition and outfitting of the unit's boat.

Mr. Parks first went back to the Sea Scouts ship sponsored by Rotary from 1935 to 1938 and then touched on the club's renewed sponsorship of the Sea Scout Ship when it was reorganized four years ago.

He explained that the program teaches seamanship while the boys continue in scouting. Sea Scouting is for boys of 14 just when they find their interest in Boy Scouts waning but just at the time when boys need scouting most.

Then he told how he had walked miles looking over many boats available for scouting at the Norfolk Naval Yard — but found none acceptable.

He explained all boats the Navy declares surplus are first offered to Sea Scouts and, if not taken by them, are then sold. Finally the local committee chose a 38-foot Higgins built boat, launched in 1934, with a 25-horsepower Grey marine diesel engine. It was a boat used for beach operations during World War II.

Prior to having the boat, the local Sea Scout troop used an area in Harris Rogers warehouse with a ship drawn in outline on the floor. But they had voyaged due to the hospitality of the Plymouth Sea Scouts who invited the Greenville boys on cruises with them.

Mr. Parks went on to say that the boat will seat 10 people at present. The boys have been rigging and painting the boat since it recently had new cabins built on to it.

As soon as the boys complete the boat, they plan a cruise to Ocracoke.

In conclusion, Mr. Parks stated: "I think Sea Scouting is one of the best programs the Rotary Club could sponsor."

Prior to presenting the finances, Harding Sugg commended Sherman Parks and J. S. Newman for the many hours they have spent with the boys of the Sea Scout unit. At his suggestion, the Rotarians gave the two scout leaders a round of applause.

Last night the Rotarians voted to underwrite the cost of food for one meal for the Little League Rotarians and, if not taken by them, are then sold. Finally the local committee chose a 38-foot Higgins built boat, launched in 1934, with a 25-horsepower Grey marine diesel engine. It was a boat used for beach operations during World War II.

Lions View Eye-Disease Film, Hear Blind Report

"Hold back the Night," a movie dealing with Glaucoma, an eye disease, was shown to the members of the Greenville Lions Club last night.

The movie dealt with the ways Glaucoma affects the vision of persons it strikes, its cure, and prevention.

The program was under the direction of Frank Brown.

A report on the activities of the blind case worker was read to the club last night by Blind Committee chairman Billy Brown. The report showed that a total of 128 persons in Pitt were aided in the month of July. The persons were all affected in one way or the other with a form of blindness.

Three members of the club were presented with keys last night in recognition of their work in bringing new members into the club over the past year. The presentation was made by past President Bruce Cuggs, the ward cited the men as being "key members of the local club."

During its business session the club decided to feed the visiting Little League ball players who will be here next week on Monday night at a picnic supper to be held at the Elm Street Park.

The club will meet with the Little League at seven o'clock at a split or consecutive season. If a split season is chosen, the number of hunting days must be 10 percent fewer than for a consecutive season. The penalty formerly was 20 percent.

Although hunting of blinds is still outlawed, hunters will not be punished for shooting within one-half mile of ball as they have been for the last two years.

In addition, a special "experimental" season of 15 days in all flyways has been set on Wilson's snipe — or Jack-snipe — with bag and possession limits of eight birds. This season has been closed since 1941.

The decision to extend shooting hours to sunset instead of one hour before sunset as in recent years resulted from considerable pressure in the Central and Pacific flyways. A Fish and Wildlife Service official said the last hour before sunset is a particularly good hunting hour, when "the ducks are moving."

The starting time of one-half hour before sunrise remains in effect in all flyways. On the opening day of each state's season — including each first day of split seasons — waterfowl and coot may not be hunted before noon.

O'Dwyer Knows Of No Divorce

MEXICO CITY (UP) — Former American Ambassador William O'Dwyer said today he knew nothing about a civil divorce decree reported to have been granted his young wife, former fashion model Sloan Simpson.

"Our marital troubles are in the hands of the church," O'Dwyer said.

O'Dwyer, now engaged in the law business here, refused to discuss further a newspaper gossip columnist's assertion that the divorce was granted over his opposition June 3 in a Cuernavaca, Mexico, court.

The report appeared in the newspaper Excelsior under the signature of Carlos Denecri and carried the name of the attorney who represented Mrs. O'Dwyer and the file number of the alleged divorce document.

It said the 36-year-old former model, now vacationing and learning bull fighting in Spain, had charged "the irascible character of my husband" constituted mental cruelty.

Miss Simpson and O'Dwyer, now 64, were married in Florida Dec. 20, 1949, while he was still mayor of New York. They last appeared in public here together on Dec. 11, 1952 five days after he resigned as ambassador. On Jan. 17, Archbishop Luis Maria Martinez announced that they had been granted a temporary ecclesiastical separation.

Hit-Run Death Driver Remains Unknown Figure

BETHEL — Mystery still shrouds the hit-and-run killer who ran the Big Oak Road one mile East of here Saturday night.

Patrolman Delton E. Perry this morning said that no new leads have been turned up by which the motorist could be traced.

However an all-car road alarm has been issued for information regarding the hit-and-run car or truck which ran down Gus Andrews. He died from head injuries sustained when struck down.

Any person having information about the hit and run car are asked to contact Police authorities at once.

Offer To Share Tax Reduction

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Bell Telephone System has promised to pass along to its customers the full amount of any cut which Congress may vote in the present excise tax on telephone service.

The pledge was given to the House Ways and Means Committee last night by Mark R. Sullivan, president of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., who said he spoke for the entire system.

Sullivan said present excise taxes on telephone service are "unreasonably high and burdensome." Local service carries a 15 per cent tax and long distance calls over 24 cents are taxed 26 per cent.

Accident Victim Now Identified

The unknown Marine who wrecked his new automobile on the New Bern Highway sometime after midnight Sunday was listed today by the Highway Patrol as Cpl. Charles Barbican of Cherry Point.

Cpl. C. E. Whitfield said that a radio message received from New Bern revealed that the man was not believed to be seriously injured.

He was first treated at St. Luke's Hospital in New Bern and then removed to the Naval Hospital at the Marine Base at Cherry Point for further treatment.

Investigation of the accident is still incomplete pending the outcome of the man's condition, it was learned.

Colored News

Master Thad D. Johnson and little Miss Claudette Johnson were entertained Sunday from 5:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Long, at a birthday party celebrating their seventh and fifth birthdays, respectively. Games were enjoyed, and then refreshments were served by the hostess.

Those enjoying the party with the honorees were: Delois, Vivian and Myra Bradley, Sylvia, Gayndalin and Vesta Gains, Dorothy Wilkes, Dolores Smith, Lula Blackwell, Barbara and Martha Holly, Sarah Joyce Dixon, Gloria Jean Bennett, Janie R. and Sandra Siaton, Carolyn Watson, Margie Gatlin, Sandra K. Brown, Viola and Cynthia Cherry, Carolyn Glover, Connie Lovett, Clarissa Anderson, Leon Harding, Alonza Sinclair, James E. Siaton, Melvin White, Melvin Butler, Ernest Glover, Charles Gatlin, James Cherry Jr., Lucille B. and George Gorham Jr., Charles Cherry, Frederick Watson and Terry Moore.

Goodbyes were said by the honorees guests, and each guest received a souvenir.

Many useful gifts were received.

Over 100 teenagers and young adults attended the Griffin's second annual lawn party and Weiner cook at their home west Saturday night. The young people from many sections of the county delightfully engaged in playing various games and dancing.

The annual affair is an attempt to provide an evening of fun and wholesome recreation. It is also a meeting source for many high school and college students who otherwise would meet during the summer months. Gatherings of this and various sorts have been given in several sections of the county during the summer vacation period.

There will be a bus leaving here the fourth Sunday in this month for Atlantic Beach, S. C. The bus will be on the block near Mr. Wot Wilson's place, and will leave at 5 o'clock. This affair is sponsored by the Junior Choir of the Cornerstone Baptist Church.

The Junior Choir of the Cornerstone Baptist Church will have their rehearsal Wednesday night of this week.

George Spencer will be admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital Thursday for treatment.

All members of the Rough and Ready Fire Company are asked to be at the Fire Station Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

The Colored Civic League will meet Tuesday, Aug. 11, at the Pythian Hall for one hour from 9:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. Please be on time. D. D. GARRETT, President

Middle-Of-Road Party Ekes Win

OTTAWA (UP) — The middle-of-the-road Liberal administration of Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent was back in office for a history-making fifth term today.

The administration, little changed since it took office in 1948, won another landslide victory yesterday, the second in four years. It elected a powerhouse of at least 168 seats in a new parliament of 268 members.

The Conservatives failed to make the gains even their pessimistic supporters expected. What losses the government sustained went as victories for the CCF and Social Credit parties.

But the balance of power in the Commons will be virtually unchanged in the new house.

The standings early today gave the Liberals 168 seats and the lead in 4 undecided contests. The Conservatives had won 50 seats, the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation 20 with leads in 3 contests, and the Social Credit Party 13 with leads in 2 contests. Independent candidates had won five seats.

The Liberal sweep rolled from east to west across the nation. It hit heavily in Newfoundland where the government party took all seven seats, made gains in the maritime provinces, held its own across Quebec and Ontario, and then suffered a few setbacks in the west.

St. Laurent said in a victory statement "we shall continue to strive resolutely for peace and prosperity, and, with peace and prosperity for the fundamental aim of the Liberal Party, which is to insure all Canadians in every province, of every race and creed and class and of all political parties, the closest possible approach to equality of opportunity and a fair share of the bounties which providence has endowed our favored land."

Several Auto Mishaps In City Over Past Weekend

City police investigated a number of accidents over the past weekend and yesterday.

A car driven by a 15-year-old collided with a light pole at Center and Railroad Streets Sunday around 11:40, damaging the car $100.

The girl, whose name was not released, was cited into Juvenile Court on a charge of having no operator's license.

A car driven by Van Johnson of 1016 Dickinson Ave., Greenville, collided with a car owned by Tommy Stocks, of 217 Evans Street, Sunday evening around six o'clock at Manhattan and Chestnut.

Damage to both cars was estimated at $700. No charges were made.

Charges of following too closely were placed against Richard J. Howard, 19-year-old Negro youth, Sunday night after his car collided with the rear of a trailer being pulled by Joseph H. Webb of Wilson. Damage to both vehicles was listed at $75.

Cars operated by William Thomas Streeter, 17, of Route 1, Greenville, and Ralim Morris, 18, of Route 3, Greenville, collided at Fifth and Ford Sunday afternoon, according to a police report. There were no arrests and property damage was slight.

A car driven by David Lee Baker, 28, of Route 5 was involved in an accident with a car operated by Willie F. Barnhill, of 125 N. Greene Street, at 10:00 Sunday. No charges were made and damage to both cars was listed at $65. The accident occurred on the river bridge.

Yesterday afternoon a car driven by Herman C. Eyerette, 20, of 300 W. Third Street was involved in a traffic accident with a car driven by Louise White Hines, 24, of Winterville. Damage to both cars was estimated at $100. There were no injuries nor charges.

Waterfowl Hunt Rules Are Eased

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Fish and Wildlife Service today issued liberalized migratory waterfowl hunting rules for the 1953-54 season, and said hunters may shoot until sunset in all flyways.

The regulations permit each state to select its own waterfowl hunting season within the period Oct. 1 to Jan. 10, with a choice of a split or consecutive season. If a split season is chosen, the number of hunting days must be 10 percent fewer than for a consecutive season. The penalty formerly was 20 percent.

Although hunting of blinds is still outlawed, hunters will not be punished for shooting within one-half mile of ball as they have been for the last two years.

In addition, a special "experimental" season of 15 days in all flyways has been set on Wilson's snipe — or Jack-snipe — with bag and possession limits of eight birds. This season has been closed since 1941.

The decision to extend shooting hours to sunset instead of one hour before sunset as in recent years resulted from considerable pressure in the Central and Pacific flyways. A Fish and Wildlife Service official said the last hour before sunset is a particularly good hunting hour, when "the ducks are moving."

The starting time of one-half hour before sunrise remains in effect in all flyways. On the opening day of each state's season — including each first day of split seasons — waterfowl and coot may not be hunted before noon.

Village Is Told Fines Are Illegal

COLUMBUS, O. (UP) — State Auditor James A. Rhodes advised the village of Athalia it would have to stop fining drunks under a village ordinance.

In an inspection report, the auditor said Athalia has no ordinance providing fines for drunkenness. The village will have to reimburse any offender who wants his money back.

Farm Electrification Workshop Is Conducted In Three Eastern Towns

T. B. Elliott, supervisor of agricultural education in 20 North-eastern North Carolina Counties, farm electrification workshops for Agriculture Teachers were recently completed. These workshops were held in the high schools of Rich Square, Hertford, and Chocowinity where a total of 45 teachers were given instruction on the fundamentals of farmstead wiring and the selection of electrical equipment. Instruction at the three centers was provided by G. R. Breeding, J. P. Wellons, and J. H. McBrayer, rural representatives of the Virginia Electric and Power Company.

The VEPCO representatives indicated that the use of electricity on the farm is just beginning. They said, "experts believe the consumption of electric power on the farm will double within the next 10 years."

Mr. Elliott said, "with the use of electricity on farms increasing so rapidly, the vocational agriculture teacher will no doubt be faced with many problems in extending its use to more and more farm jobs." These workshops should help the teacher solve these problems.

This instruction was developed through the cooperation of the Department of Vocational Education at N. C. State College and the principal power suppliers of North Carolina. This is part of a state wide program to help educate farm people in the use of electricity.

C-of-C Seeks To Place Blood Collection On Regular Basis

The Greenville Chamber of Commerce endorsed the Red Cross blood program at its August meeting of the Board of Directors last night.

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Pitt County chairman of the blood program, presented a letter to the board. The issue was referred to the Chamber of Commerce's Civic and Public Affairs Committee, headed by A. Tyson Bilbro, and the committee is to work out details with Dr. Humbert to attempt to get the blood program on a sustaining basis over the year.

For past visits to the community the donors were solicited by committees, but plans for the future hope to have the entire program set up whereby there will be no soliciting necessary. It is hoped by the group that the various businesses and industries in the county will be able to supply major portion of the quotas.

A "Loyalty to Greenville" motion was approved by the board. To be a continuing activity on the part of the people in Greenville to perform courtesy and to promote friendship between people here and those who might come here to trade, visit or sell, the motion was passed on to the Civic and Public Affairs Committee for further planning.

The board will again this year be co-sponsors with the Fire Department for Fire Prevention Week, to be observed October 4-10. Planning for the project will be carried out by the Civic and Public Affairs Committee.

Authorization to advertise in the North Carolina Education, official publication of the North Carolina Education Association, was granted the board. The Northeastern District teachers meeting will be held on the East Carolina College campus on October 23, and over 1,500 teachers in this district are expected to attend.

Players on the Little League baseball teams participating in the Region Five Tournament here next week will be given Little League tee-shirts by the local Chamber of Commerce. The shirts will have the Little League symbol on them, as well as "Greenville, N. C."

Members of the Board of Directors approved the advertising program suggested by the City Council for the fiscal year. The program includes the publishing of brochures of Greenville, designed to attract adapted industries and distribution firms. For further use in the advertising field there will be a photo file set up.

To be published for distribution to new citizens and visitors is the pamphlet, "Your Guide to Greenville." The booklet will acquaint the readers with what Greenville is and what it has, where the facilities are located, who to contact, and how to get there.

The advertising program calls for plans to participate with other business firms in the city in advertising East Carolina College, and advertising Greenville as a marketing, trading, and banking center.

Other business transacted at the meeting last evening included the plans for making of a labor survey for industry and prospects in the locale.

With the aid of other clubs and organizations in the city the board will sponsor the annual newcomers party.

TV-Radio Line Is Shown Local Dealers Today

The 1954 Sylvania radio and television line was displayed to approximately 60 dealers from the Greenville-Pitt County area today at the Women's Club.

The dealers were guests of Walker Martin, Inc., exclusive distributors in North Carolina of the Sylvania line, in a luncheon at 12:30.

Tomorrow and Wednesday, the general public will have a chance to get a look at the new radio and television sets. The display will be open to the public on those days.

Present at the dealer's meeting from the Raleigh company will be E. B. Peabody, vice-president and sales manager for radio and television; Credit Manager Ed Starke; Service Manager C. R. McManaway; and Henry Berryman, sales representative for Greenville and Pitt County.

Mining Machine Said To Extract All Of The Gold

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (U.P.)—A revolutionary machine that is said to recover 100 per cent of all the gold in a given deposit has been perfected and is currently in operation in Alaska.

The "Gregersen Concentrate Classifier," developed after 19 years of exhaustive research, constructing and discarding of models and most of the inventor's savings, is said to catch even the "flour gold" which is so light it floats like froth on waste water running out of placer-type machines.

Heretofore, the best available machines recovered only 70 per cent of the gold from dirt fed into them.

Light and Simple
"It will revolutionize the gold mining industry," said Peter L. Gregersen, inventor of the machine. "It will allow Alaskans to work property that wasn't economically feasible before."

Besides its "perfect" ratio of efficiency, the machine has other advantages over older methods of mining.

It is light. It can be flown to remote areas by bush planes because the heaviest part weighs only 300 pounds.

It is simple to operate.

"Three men can install and operate the equipment," Gregersen explained. "The installation is supervised by officials of the Gregersen company and the operation of the machine can be learned in one day. No previous placer mining experience is necessary."

Machines Leased

Gregersen now has a machine working on the Matanuska glacier that is processing 25 tons of dirt per day. He said it is recovering values which area prospectors have never been able to approach. The new equipment is so profitable that it can be used on old "failing grounds" as well as on new ground.

With his two sons and a son-in-law, the inventor is establishing a company in Anchorage to distribute the machines. They will be manufactured in Seattle and assembled on the mining sites in Alaska.

None of the machines will be sold outright; all will be leased to mine operators on a franchise basis.

Snakes Top List Of Coeds' Fears

WACO, Tex. (U.P.)—A Baylor University psychology student reports that only one out of every 20 Baylor co-eds isn't afraid of snakes.

Robert D. Wickham of Waco questioned some 700 girls about their fears for his thesis for an M.A. degree.

He said 98 per cent of the Baylor women cringe at the sound of the word "snake," and are prone to shriek when they see one.

Bulking various fears together, Wickham said the assorted problems of courtship and marriage add to more anxiety than any other cause. Some 40 per cent of the coeds feared being old maids, and 47 per cent were scared they wouldn't find the husband best suited to them. Others feared they wouldn't be able to have children and some said they feared childbirth.

Other fears involved robbers and prowlers; death of parents and other loved ones, spiders, automobile wrecks, war, polio, Communism, reckless driving and being burned.

Many expressed a "fear of God," but Wickham said the oddest phobia was a fear of "assisting in operations at a dog and cat hospital."

The findings, he said, were similar in many respects to a similar survey made in 1930 at the Alabama College for Women. But Wickham said that survey didn't reveal much fear of polio or Communism, both dominant fears for 1953's college women.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

By FAGALY and SHORTEN

91-Year-Old Not Quitting His Job

NEWTON, Pa. (UP) — Horace B. Hogeland, 91-year-old president of the First National Bank & Trust Co. of Newton, has completed 75 years of consecutive service at the bank. He hasn't a thought of retiring.

"I feel fine," said the former bank janitor. "I think I'll keep going as long as they want me. Kind of keeps you in touch with what is going on."

From the point of view of continuous work, Hogeland is probably the senior banker in the nation. He began work as a janitor in a house in this Bucks County country town. His salary was $25 a month to start.

Later, Hogeland became clerk, then cashier in 1904 and finally was chosen president in 1927.

"Some folks say it doesn't amount to much, spending all this time in one place," Hogeland said philosophically. "I don't know. I've enjoyed getting to know people real well as you can do in a small town."

Looking back across his long life, the bright-eyed banker has just two complaints to make about life today.

"We seem to get too much pleasure from outside us now," he said. "Men used to find a lot more joy inside of themselves. I think they were happier that way."

And he also can't understand "that we haven't learned in all my time to settle international problems some other way than by killing each other."

No Real Vacation In President's Trip

MERRIMAN SMITH United Press White House Writer DENVER, Colo. (UP)—Backstairs at the summer White House: To label the President's current stay in Colorado as a vacation is somewhat of a misnomer. He won't have a daily list of callers, but he'll have to sandwich in several hours of paper work between the golf, fishing, and bridge games in the comfortable old home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. John S. Doud.

The White House staff is prepared to stay out here at least three weeks, but it may be more. Best bet is that the President won't be back at his White House desk until after Labor Day.

Mr. Eisenhower and his brother, Edgar, a Tacoma, Wash., attorney, have a fraternal sense of humor about another brother, Arthur, the Kansas City banker who recently spoke quite frankly about his dislike for Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Edgar met the President at the Seattle Airport last week when Mr. Eisenhower flew west for the summer governors conference.

"I promise to be good," Edgar said. "I'll keep my mouth shut." The President chuckled and slapped his brother on the back. "It would be the first time if you ever did," the President said.

The President will do some heavy cooking when he leaves Denver in a week or 10 days and goes up into the mountains for fishing at the ranch of Aksel Nielsen, an old friend who lives outside Fraser, about 70 miles from Denver.

When most of his paper work left by the departing Congress is out of the way, the President will leave his womenfolks in Denver and head for the hills. Aside from trout fishing, the President is a sure bet to cook flapjacks and fry brook fish for Nielsen and other members of the party.

This will make him the highest paid and definitely the most distinguished ranch cook in the country.

The White House brought only one car from Washington to Denver—the President's own bullet-proof limousine. Other cars required by the White House staff will come from local car dealers or the transport pool at Lowry Air Force Base.

Reproduce Chill Of Ocean Floor

NEW YORK (AP)—The black, freezing depths two miles down in the North Atlantic are being artificially reproduced in a downtown New York skyscraper.

Western Union engineers duplicate conditions of the ocean bottom, where no divers have dared to venture, by chilling a 125-gallon tank with 3,300 pounds of ice. The tank they use weighs five tons and has four-inch thick steel walls.

The purpose of the experiments is to test delicate undersea cable amplifiers used in Western Union cable on the ocean floor.

SCHOOL EXPENSES CHICOPEE, Mass. (UP)—The parents of four boys chipped in a total of $125 to pay for 64 wind-blows their sons broke at Chicopee Trade High School.

Indian Fighter Recalls Old Days

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—Indian fights and stage coach robberies aren't just something out of a novel for Louis P. Wilson, 87. He was actually in on some of them and helped spread the news about them. He wanted to get better acquainted with the Indians when he was 19, so he joined a French-Canadian regiment and went out to beat down Louis Riel's rebellion of half-breeds against the Dominion government. The year was 1885.

"We walked along the edge of ice-bound Lake Superior, carrying full equipment: knapsack, haversack, two blankets and a 12-pound gun," he recalled. "We wore great-coats because it was 10 degrees below zero. Sometimes we ate frozen bread."

Wilson talked with Riel before he was hanged and helped to embalm the body. "Riel shouldn't have been hanged," he said. "He honestly wanted to help the Indians, because he thought they were being robbed of their lands." Wilson traveled in the Old West by stagecoach and supported himself by doing free-lance writing for newspapers. He made one trip from Portland to San Francisco by wagon that took four months. "I was a passenger in a stage-coach when highwaymen made off with $80,000 in gold that was being taken to a bank," he said. "In 1889 I was editor of the Seattle Weekly Star. Silk hat and cane were part of my costume. "The fire of 1889 wiped out my business. Later, in 1906, I just missed another big fire. I had left San Francisco the night before the great disaster."

Wilson's wife died last year. He has two children, five grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

He said the single-engine craft was carrying enough gas for one hour's flying when it was stolen from Whitman Air Park. The Santa Fe and Southern Railroads used the first diesel-electric freight engines, in 1941.

If Russia Has H-Bomb, Treachery Spawned It

By PHIL NEWSOM

United Press Foretold News Editor
For two hours Saturday, Russia's Premier Georgi M. Malenkov devoted himself to the theme: "Who's afraid of the big bad wolf?"

Or in this case, "Who's afraid of the big bad United States?" Malenkov said he wasn't, because now Russia also has the hydrogen bomb.

It would be a hardened personality, indeed, who did not receive such news with a chill of apprehension. Or pause and reflect that if Russia really has the "H-bomb," it was born of treachery.

Ethel and Julius Rosenberg died in the electric chair a few weeks ago because they were atomic spies for Russia.

A brilliant naturalized British scientist is serving a prison sentence because he, too, was a spy for Russia. He is Klaus Fuchs. Another, and probably the most brilliant of them all, Bruno Pontecorvo, disappeared from his British laboratory in 1950 and is widely believed to have gone to Russia.

Pontecorvo is believed to have given the Communists a sample of the H-bomb's main ingredient. And then, of course, there is the land, Turkey, Persia, Afghanistan, India and Egypt as countries with which Russia wanted especially good relations.

For the United States, there appeared to be no good in the speech. Malenkov repeated his assertion that no world problem existed that could not be settled by agreement — including "questions under dispute" with the United States.

But it was lip service only. The whole tone of the speech said that if agreement is reached, it will be on Russian terms only.

The man who superintended Russia's atomic energy program, Lavrenti Beria, now also has been dubbed "traitor," has been deposed and already may have been liquidated.

The supreme Soviet which heard Malenkov's announcement of the bomb, first had heard officially and approved Beria's ouster.

It was, far and away, Malenkov's most important speech, but world leaders who study it may pay more attention to other elements of it than his claim to the H-bomb which, after all, had been anticipated.

It was one of his most-belligerent pronouncements and seemed to reflect a switch back to Josef Stalin's "hard line" against the United States.

It also contained the flat announcement that Russia never will permit a rearmament of Germany, a clear implication that she will keep Germany divided indefinitely unless unification also means complete neutrality.

A third point was Russia's intention of surrounding herself with a deep buffer line of neutralized countries.

Such appeared to be Malenkov's intent in singling out France, Fin-

Interstate Drive Against Speeding

CARTHAGE, N.Y. (U.P.)—Authorities here are dunning first-offense speeders $50 as their part of an 11-state "summer slowdown" campaign.

A Carthage ordinance authorizes stiff fines for speeding which follows a general reaction to the upward trend in highway deaths.

A first offender may be fined from $50 to $100. No more than $200 is allowed for the second offense, and if there is a third offense within 18 months the fine can go from $100 to $500.

Safety officials of 11 northeastern states recently undertook the first inter-state program of its kind. Governors of the 11 states proclaimed a "Slow Down and Live" drive, aimed at stopping speeding.

Summer Worst Time
Enforcement efforts are being backed up by judges, magistrates and justices of the peace. The drive is aimed at speeders because studies show that one-third to one-half of the fatal auto accidents occur because drivers lose control of their cars at high speeds.

In Albany, the head of the "slow-down" program, James Barrett, has pointed out that traffic deaths during the first quarter of this year ran 19 per cent higher than the previous year for this area. This is compared with a four per cent rise for the country.

The drive will be concentrated during the summer months, Barrett said, as traffic deaths have run three per cent higher during June, July and August than the rest of the year.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The Arizona Game and Fish Commission believes the deer herd in the Kalaba National Forest at the Grand Canyon is the fastest growing herd in the country.

In 1950 the kill by licensed hunters was 2,858. In 1951 it was 2,515 and last year it was 4,312 but even so the deer have multiplied faster than the rising kill, a joint report of the commission and the U.S. Forest Service shows.

Parents Decided To Be Smart, After All

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKER
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Parents are a lot smarter than some of them think.
Such was the general conclusion of participants in a twoday conference on child development and parent education at the State University of Iowa. It brought together parents and teachers from 13 states and foreign countries.
A number of comments made during the conference struck a note of encouragement for mothers and fathers:
"We're all a heck of a lot smarter than we give ourselves credit for."
"All of us have something to give to children from our experiences."
"It's easy to complicate the job of raising children at home or at school."
"We've been wrong in thinking parents can make too many mistakes."
The best time for schools to reach the parent and help him to help his child through school is before the child has even entered kindergarten, the participants decided.
The best way for the teacher to "reach" the parent is to find out the parent's interests and approach him through them, according to another popular conclusion. The teacher must get across to the parent the idea that she is eager to know the child's background, which only the parent can give completely.
Only the parent can explain what it is in the child's history, present and future plans that makes his child different. The teacher needs this background if she is to treat the child as an individual — and thereby give him the greatest possible help.
Parents, it was agreed, can help prepare children for their first school days by providing the following experiences:
1. Play and social participation with peers and adults.
2. Contacts with various reading and play materials.
3. Regular responsibilities at home.
4. Attendance at Sunday school.
5. Opportunities to earn and deal with money.
6. Attendance and participation in athletic events.
7. Having pets.
8. Visiting other children's homes.
9. Travel by various types of transportation.
10. Going to zoos, circuses, museums, factories, farms, fire departments, etc.
11. Acquaintance with hand tools.
12. Familiarity with art, music and dancing.
It was suggested further that parents read stories to their preschool children, having them follow the stories and re-tell them. Children can be taught auditory discrimination at home, too — likenesses and differences in words, rhyming words, and similarities of letters.
Discussing discipline at home and at school, the group suggested the following points for a good approach to discipline:
1. The procedure used should be as nearly consistent as possible.
2. The best form will teach the child to discipline himself.
3. It should not undermine the child's feelings of security and adequacy; you should make the child feel that you do not dislike him, but dislike his wrong actions.
4. Teach the child to find why he acts the way he does.
5. Help him understand the nature of situations he will face.
6. Teach him to make choices based on insights.
The kind of child which the right kind of discipline should produce is one who is relatively free from emotional tensions, is willing to cooperate in reasonable activities, feels he has a place in school and neighborhood groups, feels secure in home and school settings, and is able to make decisions expected of his age.

Camera News

HOT WEATHER HINT—Keep temperatures down with an ice-packed larger tray. It's easier with the new automatic ice-circle maker.

A VACATION WINNER. Here's a humorous situation which paid off for Joseph H. Craig of Kansas City. His snapshot won the grand award—a custom built car—in Sylvania's 1953 "Folks Are Fun" contest, open to all amateurs. It was shot at 1-100th second at f-22 with a pre-40 bulb to lighten the shadow areas.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures
The no. 1 hot weather hint, repeated in every written or spoken picture taking, is: Don't leave your camera, light meter or extra films in the auto glove compartment. It can become a little hot box, as seen in the trunk compartment, if subject to the broiling rays of the sun for any length of time. I was amazed to meet a snapshotter, about to leave on an extended auto tour, who hadn't heard the warning before. Now he's going to keep the camera on the rear seat or alongside where it'll be handier for shooting anyway.

Here's an idea for storing extra film comfortably cool. Get one of those inexpensive, wide-mouthed jugs for carrying cold or hot liquids for hours. Cool it off before you start on a trip then put the share film in it.

I had supposed all camera fans were aware of the dangers of sand and salt water spray on the tender innards of cameras. Then how come a visit to any beach will reveal several cameras lying around exposed to passing feet spraying flying sand? When not in actual use, a camera should be protected—though handy for further use, spraying such a purpose you'll find kitchen plastic bags very useful.

Sometimes equipment is left in a shady spot only to be broiled later when the sun shifts. Take heed before you take a sun snooze.

Snapshooters occasionally return exposed film to a commercial finisher in the wrong carton—putting color film, perhaps, in a handy empty black-and-white box. This can lead to trouble. In the dark-room, the distinguishing colors aren't recognized and what's another recognized and roll ruined and effort wasted. Moral: If the right box isn't available, don't use any, or identify plainly.

Indoor picture taking is a cooler process by shooting flash instead of working with photo floods, of course. When processing films or prints away from a cold water tap, put your working tray inside an ice-filled larger tray to keep the temperature down. Nowadays some of the newer refrigerators dispense ice circles directly, as you need them.

Before any vacation trip with its irreplaceable picture memories, it's a sensible plan to give your camera equipment a personal shooting test. Make sure the mechanical parts are operating smoothly, the lens is cleaned, the bellows light-tight and your judgment of exposure and focus—or your operation as guided by a meter—is correct. If you plan to use flash, check your batteries and get new ones if there's any doubt that they'll hold up for the whole trip. But instead of a dry run, give it a test run with actual pictures and live film. You'll appreciate it the more if any corrections can be made in advance to make your vacation pictures come to life later.

THE YALE TOUCH
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UP)—Even a skinny Yale freshman can move 30 tons of steel. A four-foot-thick door weighing that much was installed in the new underground atomic laboratory at Yale. It is so delicately balanced that it can be moved with a slight touch.

Film Feature On Life Of Printer

BRUSSELS (AP)—Belgian documentary film director, Gaston Verhaellen, is at present filming a 30 minutes long feature on Christophe Plantin, the renowned 16th century printer of the Flemish "Benediction".

Plantin was the first industrialist in the printing business: He at one time owned some 85 printing machines and employed about 300 workers. He also invented the first workshop regulations and created a health and vitality insurance system managed by the workers of his shop.

The commodity moved to Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi from Latin America.

To All Utilities Customers:

The new billing procedure for preparing and mailing your Utility bill is now in full effect and your cooperation has been most gratifying.

On August 1st statements were mailed out for approximately 50% of the some twenty thousand meters on the system. These accounts were due on the 1st and payable on or before the 15th and if not paid will become delinquent on the 15th.

Statements for the remainder of the meters will be mailed out and fall due on the 16th and if not paid will become delinquent on the last working day of the month.

If this stagger system of billing is to work successfully and accomplish the purposes for which it was designed we shall need the cooperation of everyone; therefore, we hereby solicit your help in seeing that your remittance reaches us within the due date.

THINK OF FUTURE TRADE-IN WHEN YOU TRY OUT A CAR!

Reports Prove Mercury's Trade-In Value Tops Them All in Its Price Class!

Smart shoppers know the actual cost of a new car isn't found on the price tag. When you buy a car you're making an investment. When you sell or trade in that car, one, two, or more years later—you get back part of your original purchase price. With some cars, this resale value is disappointingly small. But with Mercury—according to four independent, impartial surveys—you get the highest resale value in the entire Mercury price class.

The reason? Mercury's consistent years-ahead styling, for one thing. Clean, long, low lines that set the style and stay in style. Colorful interiors that keep their smartness for years. And Mercury's proven V-8 performance is another reason. A V-8 engine is the only type ever used in Mercury—and this latest is the best performer we've ever built.

So—before you buy any car—see us and get the full story on Mercury. Find out about Mercury's optional power features—the widest choice in the field—check on Mercury's proven economy record. Above all; just try a Mercury ride! We feel sure that once you've driven a Mercury, you'll agree no other car will do!

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARRETT, AP Real Estate Editor

Mr. Do-It-Yourself has captured the attention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. This home handyman is doing so much work that the newspapers of the country have decided he needs more team work. Through their Bureau of Advertising they plan to present you and me with more graphic portrayals of attractive supplies and tools, figuring that we spend on the average more than $75 a piece every year for the stuff we use in our household chores.

According to their figuring, Brother, we certainly are big shots. We spent 2 1/2 billion dollars last year for lumber and building supplies. We laid out more than half a billion for paint and wall paper.

The floor tile and wall tile we installed ourselves in our kitchens, bathrooms, basements, laundries and wherenot, cost us an aggregate of more than 100 million. And our home work-benches — where friend wife says we run away from realities — well our work-benches and power tools cost us 80 million dollars last year.

So put this all together and you have an average tab of $77.10 per household for the year — with some of us spending less and some much more.

"Take a look at Mr. Handyman himself," says the publishers bureau. "His home is his hobby. He has more money, but wants to stretch it — by patching a pipe, installing an attic light or building a fireplace himself."

Well, they certainly got our number. And they add that sky-rocketing labor costs in the past decade, with skilled labor hard to get has made us what we are today. That's probably right, no doubt. And they mention an "owner's pride of possession" making him spend more time and money on his home. Banks, please take notice. We all can use some backing.

Apparently this clean-up, paint up, fixup mania is spreading faster than the latest song hit. "There's a workshop in every fourth house on the block," says the publishers bureau, quoting Sales Management. "And there are plenty more in the making."

If you are just an armchair handyman, don't get an inferiority complex, because this pertains to you, too. Even if you don't tackle the job yourself — the patching of a neckbreaking roof, or the cleaning out of a cess pool — you want to know what you're spending your money for.

But believe it or not, your neighbor who puts on overalls in his spare time has turned out to be a bigger consumer — when grouped with his pals in overalls — than big industry itself.

Since industry has developed the mechanical brain, all we need now is some mechanical brawn.

HOME HAZARDS

STRATFORD, Conn. (UP)—After a safe motoring trip in heavy holiday traffic, Peter V. Bedgio and his family had a rousing homecoming. As he drew to a stop, Bedgio was startled when his excited cocker spaniel leaped from the back seat into his lap. His foot jammed down the accelerator and the car plunged through the garage door, out through the rear wall and into a second garage, smashing into another machine. All escaped injury.

NEWKIRK, Okla. (AP)—Kay County Sheriff Roy Welch complains his crime-busting business has fallen off so much that all he and his deputies have to do is serve legal papers and deliver mental patients to hospitals.

Welch says that for the first time since 1938 there is not a single prisoner in the county jail.

Forgot Injuries In Close Escape

OGDEN, Utah. (AP)—Two drivers whose cars collided almost forgot their own slight injuries after one of their spinning cars came to a stop.

The auto spun past a standing truck but didn't touch it. It was loaded with dynamite.

Birds 'Go' For Air Conditioning

MANGUM, Okla. (AP)—Every-one goes for air conditioning now, even the birds.

Claude Miller checked his air conditioning system and found a nest of five baby birds atop the machine.

Before Miller could get the air, he had to give the birds the air. He put the nest in a cigar box; taped it to the side of the conditioner.
